Sale or Partition of Reversions, Remainders and Executory Interests.—This section is no authority for partition as between the life tenant and remaindermen, except where the proceeding is brought by the remaindermen, and the life tenant is joined. Burton v. Cahill, 192 N. C. 505, 510, 135 S. E. 332. For a full treatment of the interests mentioned in the catch-line, see section 46-23 and the notes thereto.

Persons Bound. — Persons not parties are not bound. Henderson v. Wallace, 72 N. C. 451; Patillo v. Lytle, 158 N. C. 92, 73 S. E. 200. And if named as parties they must be served with process. Patillo v. Lytle, 158 N. C. 92, 73 S. E. 200.

Partition by Infant and Another.—Where partition was brought by a minor and another, the latter was bound by the judgment, although it was not approved by the judge of the court. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 38 S. E. 811.

Claimant of Paramount Title.—In an action for partition of lands, it is proper to allow another party claiming paramount title to the land to intervene and assert his rights. Roughton v. Duncan, 178 N. C. 5, 100 S. E. 78. But such a claimant may be estopped by his laches. Thomas v. Garvin, 15 N. C. 223, 25 Am. Dec. 703.

Administrator Not a Party.—In an action by the heirs at law for partition of an intestate's lands, the administrator cannot be made a party defendant because he opposes the partition and wishes in the same action to make application to sell the land for debts of the estate. Garrison v. Cox, 99 N. C. 478, 6 S. E. 124.

Judgment Creditors and Mortgagees.—In proceedings for partition, judgment creditors of the individual tenants, and their mortgagees, are proper parties to the proceedings; and where such lienors have been made parties thereto, it is error for the trial judge to dismiss the action as to them. Holley v. White, 172 N. C. 77, 89 S. E. 1061.

The mortgagee of one tenant in common is not a necessary party to special proceedings to partition the land. Rostan v. Huggins, 216 N. C. 386, 5 S. E. (2d) 162, 126 A. L. R. 410.

Making Additional Party for Purpose of Setting Aside Sale.—An application to be made a party defendant in partition proceedings after confirmation of sale was properly denied, where it was based on deeds from persons who never had claimed any title and accompanied by a motion to set aside the sale to permit his principals to make a bid. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113.

Presence of Unnecessary Party.—The presence of an unnecessary party, in proceedings for partition of lands, will be regarded as immaterial, except as affecting costs. Baggett v. Jackson, 160 N. C. 26, 76 S. E. 86.

Unknown Parties.—See section 46-6 and notes thereto.

III. PLEA OF SOLE SEIZIN.

Effect of Plea.—Where the plea of sole seizin is set up, the effect is practically to convert it into an action of ejectment. When it is not set up, the parties are taken to be tenants in common, and the only inquiry is as to the interests owned. Haddock v. Stocks, 167 N. C. 70, 74, 83 S. E. 9; Graves v. Barrett, 126 N. C. 267, 270, 35 S. E. 539. Where the plea is set up the proper course is for the court to try title to the land. Purvis v. Wilson, 50 N. C. 22, 69 Am. Dec. 773.

Plea Not Put in before Partition Ordered. — Where, in partition, a plea of sole seisin is not put in before the order of partition is made, it will be considered as waived. Wright v. McCormick, 69 N. C. 14.

Burden of Proof.—Where the defendants plead sole seizin in proceedings to partition lands, the burden of proof is with the plaintiff, which will devolve upon the defendant to establish adverse possession, when relied upon for title, after a prima facie case of tenancy in common is made out. Lester v. Harvard, 173 N. C. 83, 91 S. E. 698.

Effect of Adjudication When Title Put in Issue.—While proceedings for the partition of lands do not ordinarily place the title at issue, such may be done by the tenants in common, and the judgment thereunder will estop them. Baugham v. Trust Co., 181 N. C. 406, 107 S. E. 431; Buchanan v. Harrington, 152 N. C. 333, 67 S. E. 747, 136 Am. St. Rep. 838.

Cited in Brittain v. Mull, 91 N. C. 498, 504.

§ 46-4. Surface and minerals in separate owners; partitions distinct. — When the title to the mineral interests in any land has become separated from the surface in ownership, the tenants in common or joint tenants of such mineral interests may have partition of the same, distinct from the surface, and without joining as parties the owner or owners of the surface; and the tenants in common or joint tenants of the surface may have partition of the same, in manner provided by law, distinct from the mineral interest and without joining as parties the owner or owners of the mineral interest. In all instances where the mineral interests and surface interests have thus become separated in ownership, the owner or owners of the mineral interests shall not be compelled to join in a partition of the surface interests, nor shall the owner or owners of the surface interest be compelled to join in a partition of the mineral interest, nor shall the rights of either owner be prejudiced by a partition of the other interests. (Rev., s. 2488; 1905, c. 90; C. S. 3216.)

§ 46-5. Petition by judgment creditor of cotenant; assignment of homestead.—When any person owns a judgment duly docketed in the superior court of a county wherein the judgment debtor owns an undivided interest in fee in land as a tenant in common, or joint tenant, and the judgment creditor desires to lay off the homestead of the judgment debtor in the land and sell the excess, if any, to satisfy his judgment, the judgment creditor may institute before the clerk of the court of the county wherein the land lies a special proceeding for partition of the land between the tenants in common, making the judgment debtor, the other tenants in common and all other interested persons parties to the proceeding by summons. The proceeding shall then be in all other respects conducted as other special proceedings for the partition of land between tenants in common. Upon the actual partition of the land the judgment creditor may sue out execution on his judgment, as allowed by law, and have the homestead of the judgment debtor allotted to him and sell the excess, as in other cases where the homestead is allotted under execution. The remedy provided for in this section shall not deprive the judgment creditor of any other remedy in law or in equity which he may have for the enforcement of his judgement lien. (Rev., s. 2489; 1905, c. 429; C. S. 3217.)

Cross References.—As to homestead and exemptions in sale under execution, see § 1-369 et seq. As to execution, see § 1-302 et seq.

Intervention in Partition Proceeding of Cotenant.—See Edmonds v. Wood, 222 N. C. 118, 122, 22 S. E. (2d) 237.

§ 46-6. Unknown parties; summons and representation.—If, upon the filing of a petition for partition, it be made to appear to the court by affidavit or otherwise that there are any persons interested in the premises whose names are unknown to and cannot after due diligence be ascertained by the petitioner, the court shall order notices to be given to all such persons by a publication of the petition, or of the substance thereof, with the order of the court thereon, in one or more newspapers to be designated in the order. If after such general notice by publication any person interested in the premises and entitled to notice fails to appear, the court shall in its discretion appoint some disinterested person to represent the owner of any shares in the property to be divided, the ownership of which is unknown and unrepresented. (Rev., s. 2490; 1887, c. 284; C. S. 3218.)

Appointment Discretionary.—It is discretionary, by the express terms of the statute, with the trial judge as to whether he will appoint some disinterested person to represent the interest of unknown persons, etc., and this discretion is not reviewable. Lawrence v. Hardy, 151 N. C. 123, 65 S. E. 766.

Purchaser Acquires Good Title.—When the service of summons has been made by publication on parties unknown, as required by this section, the proceedings being regular upon their face, and the court having jurisdiction of the subject matter, a purchaser for full value without notice acquires title, free from claim or demand of such heir upon whom summons has been thus served. Lawrence v. Hardy, 151 N. C. 123, 65 S. E. 766.

Purchaser Cannot Resist Payment of Purchase Price. — Where the method prescribed by this section is followed, a purchaser may not successfully resist payment of the purchase price of the land on the ground of a defect in title for that the commissioner's deed would not preclude the claim of the missing heir. Bynum v. Bynum, 179 N. C. 14, 101 S. E. 527.

§ 46-7. Commissioners appointed. — The superior court shall appoint three disinterested commissioners to divide and apportion such real estate, or so much thereof as the court may deem best, among the several tenants in common, or joint tenants. Provided, in cases where the land to be partitioned lies in more than one county, then the court may appoint such additional commissioners as it may deem necessary from counties where the land lies other than the county where the proceedings are instituted. (Rev., s. 2487; Code, s. 1892; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 62, s. 2; C. S. 3219.)

Editor's Note.—The provision of this section in regard to the appointment of additional commissioners when the land lies in more than one county was added to the original section by the amendment of 1924.

Confirmation and Approval by Two Appraisers Held Error.—Testator's children selected three appraisers in accordance with the will, but prior to final report one of the appraisers died, whereupon the court ordered the two surviving appraisers to complete the appraisal and file report, which report was later approved by the court. It was held that under the terms of the will and under this section, it is necessary that three appraisers act in the matter, although two of them may file the report, § 46-17, and the superior court should have appointed a third appraiser, and the confirmation and approval of the report based upon the findings of but two appraisers is reversible error. Sharpe v. Sharpe, 210 N. C. 92, 185 S. E. 634.

§ 46-8. Oath of commissioners.—The commissioners shall be sworn by a justice of the peace, or other person authorized to administer oaths, to do justice among the tenants in common, in respect to such partition, according to their best skill and ability. (Rev., s. 2492; Code, s. 1893; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 2; C. S. 3220.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of oath, see § 11-11.

§ 46-9. Delay or neglect of commissioner penalized.—If, after accepting the trust, any of the commissioners unreasonably delay or neglect to execute the same, every such delinquent commissioner shall be liable for contempt and may be removed, and shall be further liable to a penalty of fifty dollars, to be recovered by the petitioner. (Rev., s. 2498; Code, s. 1901; 1868-9, s. 122, s. 10; C. S. 3221.)

§ 46-10. Commissioners to meet and make partition; equalizing shares. — The commissioners, who shall be summoned by the sheriff, or any constable, must meet on the premises and partition the same among the tenants in common, or joint tenants, according to their respective rights and interests therein, by dividing the land into equal shares in point of value as nearly as possible, and for this purpose they are empowered to subdivide the more valuable tracts as they may deem best, and to charge the more valuable dividends with such sums of money as they may think necessary, to be paid to the dividends of inferior value, in order to make an equitable partition. (Rev., s. 2491; Code, s. 1894; 1887, c. 284, s. 2; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 3; C. S. 3222.)

Applies Only to Compulsory Partition or Sale. — Where the partition was not compulsory but was under an agreement between cotenants, this section is not applicable. Outlaw v. Outlaw, 184 N. C. 255, 258, 114 S. E. 4; Newsome v. Harrell, 168 N. C. 295, 84 S. E. 337.

Action of Two Commissioners Valid.—Where three commissioners are appointed to partition land the action of any two of them is valid. Thompson v. Shemwell, 93 N. C. 222. And this action may consist in filling the vacancy caused by the absence of the third commissioner, when done in the presence of the interested parties and without their objection. Simmons v. Foscue, 81 N. C. 86.

By the very terms of section 46-17, the signature of two of the commissioners to their report is sufficient. Thompson v. Shemwell, supra.

Existing Easement.—It would seem that existing easements are not destroyed by a division in partition. See Jones v. Swindell, 176 N. C. 34, 96 S. E. 663.

Improvements.—A tenant in common is entitled to recover against a co-tenant for betterments he has placed on the land. Daniel v. Dixon, 163 N. C. 137, 79 S. E. 425. Section 1-340 does not apply in such a case. See that section and the last paragraph of the notes thereto.

Where no appeal is taken from the order allowing for the improvements, it concludes the plaintiff from having the good faith of the defendant, in making the improvements, inquired into. Fisher v. Toxaway Co., 171 N. C. 547, 88 S. E. 887.

But where in a partition an excessive portion is allotted to one, which is reduced on a re-allotment, he cannot be allowed for improvements made on the excess, as it was his own folly to make them before obtaining a final decree and his deed. Carland v. Jones, 55 N. C. 506.

Basis of Owelty.—The right to owelty on an unequal partition is based on the implied warranty attaching to each share from all the others. Cheatham v. Crews, 88 N. C. 38; Nixon v. Lindsay, 55 N. C. 230.

Owelty Not Mere Lien Debt. — The charge in partition upon the more valuable shares is not a mere debt secured by lien. The debtor is a tenant in common with the holder of the share in whose favor the decree is entered to the extent of the charge, until the same shall be satisfied. In re Walker, 107 N. C. 340, 12 S. E. 136.

Same—Charge upon Land.—The sums charged upon "the more valuable dividends," in partitions of lands are charges, not upon the persons of the owners of such dividends, but upon the land alone. Young v. Trustees, 62 N. C. 261.

Owelty Follows Land.—Charges upon land for equality of partition follow the land into the hands of all persons to whom it may come; and they are held to be affected by constructive notice. Powell v. Weatherington, 124 N. C. 40, 32 S. E. 380; Dobbin v. Rex, 106 N. C. 444, 11 S. E. 260. As to the docketing of owelty charges, see section 46-21.

When Land Charged with Payment of Several Shares.—Payment under execution of the charge in favor of one share does not discharge the land in the hands of the purchaser from the payment of a charge in favor of another share. Meyers v. Rice, 107 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 66.

Effect of Discharge in Bankruptcy on Owelty.—A discharge in bankruptcy does not cancel the charge of owelty of partition against the land of the bankrupt. In re Walker, 107 N. C. 340, 12 S. E. 136.

Division of Costs.—The costs in proceedings for partition (including the expenses of the partition) are charges upon the several shares in proportion to their respective values. Hinnant v. Wilder, 122 N. C. 149, 150, 29 S. E. 221.

Costs Precede Homestead Exemption.—Where in an ex parte proceeding for the partition of lands, partition was duly made and one part was assigned in severalty to A, and A failed to pay the costs adjudged against her and the share allotted to her was sold on execution issued on the judgment, and no homestead was allotted to A, who has no other land, and her interest was not worth $1,000, in an action by the heirs of A against the purchaser at the execution sale, the sale was held to be valid. Hinnant v. Wilder, 122 N. C. 149, 150, 29 S. E. 221.

Procedure to Subject Land Charged. — A motion in the cause for execution is the proper proceeding to subject land charged with owelty of partition to the payment thereof. Meyers v. Rice, 107 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 66.

Charges for equality of partition should be enforced by proceedings in rem against the more valuable shares of the land divided, and not by personal judgments against the owners thereof. Young v. Trustees, 62 N. C. 261; Waring v. Wadsworth, 80 N. C. 345; Meyers v. Rice, 107 N. C. 24, 12 S. E. 66, 67.

Confirmation Necessary to Execution.—No execution can issue to satisfy a charge against land in partition proceedings until the commissioners' report has been confirmed. In re Ausborn, 122 N. C. 42, 29 S. E. 56.

Parties to Action to Recover Owelty of Partition.—The widow of the party upon whose land a charge is placed is not a necessary party to an action brought to recover the sum charged. Ruffin v. Cox, 71 N. C. 253.

Counterclaim.—A cotenant, who is charged in the partition proceedings with owelty, may set up by way of counterclaim damages sustained by his eviction from part of the land awarded to him. Huntley v. Cline, 93 N. C. 458.

Cited in Capps v. Capps, 85 N. C. 408, 409.

§ 46-11. Owelty to bear interest.—The sums of money due from the more valuable dividends shall bear interest until paid. (Rev., s. 2496; Code, s. 1899; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 8; C. S. 3223.)

§ 46-12. Owelty from infant's share due at majority.—When a minor to whom a more valuable dividend shall fall is charged with the payment of any sum, the money shall not be payable until such minor arrives at the age of twenty-one years, but the general guardian, if there be one, must pay such sum whenever assets shall come into his hands, and in case the general guardian has assets which he did not so apply, he shall pay out of his own proper estate any interest that may have accrued in consequence of such failure. (Rev., s. 2497; Code, s. 1900; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 9; C. S. 3224.)

Charged Land Inherited by Infants. — Owelty may be enforced against land inherited by infants from an adult who owned the land when the owelty was made a charge against it, though as to land partitioned to an infant cotenant owelty is not payable until he reaches his majority. Powell v. Weatherington, 124 N. C. 40, 32 S. E. 380.

§ 46-13. Partition where shareowners unknown or title disputed.—If there are any of the tenants in common, or joint tenants, whose names are not known or whose title is in dispute, the share or shares of such persons shall be set off together as one parcel. If, in any partition proceeding, two or more appear as defendants claiming the same share of the premises to be divided, or if any part of the share claimed by the petitioner is disputed by any defendant or defendants, it shall not be necessary to decide on their respective claims before the court shall order the partition or sale to be made, but the partition or sale shall be made, and the controversy between the contesting parties may be afterwards decided either in the same or an independent proceeding. If two or more tenants in common, or joint tenants, by petition or answer, request it, the commissioners may, by order of the court, allot their several shares to them in common, as one parcel, provided such division shall not be injurious or detrimental to any co-tenant or joint tenant. (Rev., ss. 2491, 2511; Code, s. 1894; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 3; 1887, c. 284, ss. 2, 4, 1937, c. 98; C. S. 3225.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the last sentence. While the primary purpose of the partition proceeding is to allot to each of the former cotenants his share of the property in severalty, this amendment by no means militates against such purpose but makes it possible for some of the former cotenants, who find it economically desirable, to have their several shares allotted to them as one parcel so that they may again hold as cotenants that parcel of land. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 355.

§ 46-14. Judgments in partition of remainders validated.—In all cases where land has been conveyed by deed, or devised by will, upon contingent remainder, executory devise, or other limitation, where a judgment of partition has been rendered by the superior court authorizing a division of said lands upon the petition of the life tenant or tenants and all other persons then in being who would have taken such land if the contingency had then happened, and those unborn being duly represented by guardian ad litem, such judgment of partition authorizing a division of said lands among the respective life tenants and remaindermen, or executory devisees, shall be valid and binding upon the parties thereto and upon all other persons not then in being. (1933, c. 215, s. 1.)

§ 46-15. Dower claims settled on partition; dower valued.—When there is dower or right of dower on any land, petitioned to be sold or divided in severalty by actual partition, the woman entitled to dower or right of dower therein may join in the petition. The land to be divided in severalty shall be allotted to the tenants in common, or joint tenants, subject to the dower right or dower, and either may be asked and assigned at the same time that partition thereof is made and by same commissioners. On a decree of sale, the interest of one-third of the proceeds shall be secured and paid to her annually; or in lieu of such annual interest, the value of an annuity of six percent on such third, during her probable life, shall be ascertained and paid to her absolutely out of the proceeds. (Rev., s. 2517; Code, s. 1909; 1893, c. 341; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 18; C. S. 3226.)

Cross References.—As to computation of present value of annuity, see § 8-47. As to allotment of dower generally, see § 30-11 et seq.

Partition and Dower in Same Proceedings.—Partition of lands and the allotment of dower therein may be had in the same proceedings. Baggett v. Jackson, 160 N. C. 26, 76 S. E. 86. See also Vannoy v. Green, 206 N. C. 77, 173 S. E. 277.

Allotment before Division. — The widow of a deceased owner of lands held by him in common with another may have her dower interest therein set apart to her before division of the lands among the heirs at law. Dudley v. Tyson, 167 N. C. 67, 82 S. E. 1025.

Immediate Payment of Dower.—In a sale for partition of land subject to dower, where the widow is a party, her life estate may be valued in money and the money paid to her in lieu of the interest for life on one-third of the proceeds of the sale. Ex Parte Winstead, 92 N. C. 703.

Dower Allotment Cannot Be Attacked Collaterally.—An allotment to the widow in dower proceedings cannot be attacked collaterally in proceedings for partition of the lands of the deceased ancestor by his heirs at law. Dudley v. Tyson, 167 N. C. 67, 82 S. E. 1025.

Cited in High v. Pearce, 220 N. C. 266, 274, 17 S. E. (2d) 108 (con. op.).

§ 46-16. Partial partition; balance sold or left in common.—In all proceedings under this chapter actual partition may be made of a part of the land sought to be partitioned and a sale of the remainder; or a part only of any land held by tenants in common, or joint tenants, may be partitioned and the remainder held in cotenancy. (Rev., s. 2506; 1887, c. 214, s. 1; C. S. 3227.)

Intent of Section.—This section does not authorize a partition or a sale of the undivided interest of some of the cotenants, in an entire tract of land, leaving the undivided interest of other cotenants unaffected. Patillo v. Lytle, 158 N. C. 92, 73 S. E. 200, citing Brooks v. Austin, 95 N. C. 474.

§ 46-17. Report of commissioners; contents; filing.—The commissioners, within a reasonable time, not exceeding sixty days after the notification of their appointment, shall make a full and ample report of their proceedings, under the hands of any two of them, specifying therein the manner of executing their trust and describing particularly the land or parcels of land divided, and the share allotted to each tenant in severalty, with the sum or sums charged on the more valuable dividends to be paid to those of inferior value. The report shall be filed in the office of the superior court clerk. (Rev., s. 2494; Code, s. 1896; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 5; C. S. 3228.)

Alteration of Report. — The report of commissioners in partition proceedings, dividing land, when filed, approved, confirmed, recorded and registered, becomes a muniment of title, and the commissioners, without the order and approval of the court, have no right to alter or change the same. Clinard v. Brummell, 130 N. C. 547, 41 S. E. 675.

Findings as to Value of Property.—The findings of commissioners on value is not subject to review in the appellate court. Fisher v. Toxaway Co., 171 N. C. 547, 88 S. E. 887.

Under this section, two commissioners can make the report, but the parties whose rights are to be effected have the right to have three disinterested parties appointed under the will or statute, so that the three can consider the questions involved. Sharpe v. Sharpe, 210 N. C. 92, 98, 185 S. E. 634.

§ 46-18. Map embodying survey to accompany report.—The commissioners are authorized to employ the county surveyor or, in his absence or if he be connected with the parties, some other surveyor, who shall make out a map of the premises showing the quantity, courses and distances of each share, which map shall accompany and form a part of the report of the commissioners. (Rev., s. 2493; Code, s. 1895; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 4; C. S. 3229.)

§ 46-19. Confirmation and impeachment of report.—If no exception to the report of the commissioners is filed within twenty days, the same shall be confirmed. Any party after confirmation may impeach the proceedings and decrees for mistake, fraud or collusion by petition in the cause: Provided, innocent purchasers for full value and without notice shall not be affected thereby. (Rev., s. 2494; Code, s. 1896; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 5; C. S. 3230.)

Proceedings Interlocutory until Confirmation.—Until the decree of confirmation by the judge, the proceedings for the partition of lands are not final, but interlocutory, and rest in his discretion. Tayloe v. Carrow, 156 N. C. 6, 72 S. E. 76.

Effect of Failure to Object.—Where no exceptions were filed and no objections made, plaintiff was entitled to a decree of confirmation as a matter of law. Roberts v. Roberts, 143 N. C. 309, 55 S. E. 721.

Time for Filing Exception.—Exceptions to the report of the commissioners appointed to make partition of land must be filed within twenty days after the report is filed. Floyd v. Rock, 128 N. C. 10, 38 S. E. 33. As to objection to confirmation, see sec. 46-32 and notes thereto.

Sufficiency of Exception.—Where within 20 days after filing the report the defendant notified the clerk that he desired to file exceptions, whereupon the clerk made a memorandum that the defendant had objected to the report, and later amended exceptions, setting out various grounds why the report should not be confirmed, were filed with the clerk without objection, it was held error to confirm the report on the ground that no exception had been filed within 20 days. McDevitt v. McDevitt, 150 N. C. 644, 64 S. E. 761.

Resale after Confirmation.—After confirmation a resale may be ordered for sufficient cause shown; but should be upon petition or notice to the purchaser who has acquired equitable rights under the first confirmation. Ex parte White, 82 N. C. 378.

Estoppel as to Lands Not Included in Petition.—When land is assigned in a decree in a partition proceeding with the knowledge and consent of the parties thereto, the administrator of one of the parties is estopped from denying that the land was not originally included in the petition for partition. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 38 S. E. 811.

Appeals May Be to Different Judges.—When appeals from the clerk in proceedings for partition are made successively to different judges, a judge before whom comes a later appeal may set aside or modify a former interlocutory order, it not being required for that purpose that the same judge should have passed upon the former appeals. Tayloe v. Carrow, 156 N. C. 6, 72 S. E. 76.

Jurisdiction of Judge in Chambers.—A judge in chambers has jurisdiction of appeals from the report of commissioners appointed in special proceedings to partition land. McMillan v. McMillan, 123 N. C. 577, 31 S. E. 729.

Right of Clerk to Set Aside Former Order.—Where it appears of record that the clerk of the court in proceedings to partition lands had rendered a judgment in the plaintiff's favor, and had set it aside on the defendant's motion made before him seventeen months thereafter upon allegation of fraud in its procurement, and that the plaintiff had fraudulently prevented the defendant from appearing and defending, to which the plaintiff did not except, the plaintiff's motion in the superior court, in the cause transferred, for judgment in his favor upon the whole record cannot be allowed. It is held that the clerk was within the provisions of this section in setting aside his former order, in plaintiff's favor, on defendant's motion, at the time it was made before him. Turner v. Davis, 163 N. C. 38, 79 S. E. 257.

Statute of Limitations. — Where the commissioners to divide lands held by tenants in common award owelty to one of them to equalize his share with the other, the ten-year statute of limitations begins to run from the confirmaion of the report by the clerk, approved by the judge, and the fact that the clerk has not docketed the judgment in the seven years, as between the parties having at least constructive notice of the proceedings, does not alone repel the bar of the statute. Cochran v. Colson, 192 N. C. 663, 135 S. E. 794.

Some of the earlier cases, since overruled, held that limitations do not run aganist a charge on land for owelty of partition. In re Ausborn, 122 N. C. 42, 29 S. E. 56; Sutton v. Edwards, 40 N. C. 425.

Under the Acts of 1837.—For a case where proceedings for a partition of lands were under the provisions of chapter 85 Revised Statutes of 1837, which did not contain provisions similar to this section and section 46-20, see Power Co. v. Taylor, 188 N. C. 351, 124 S. E. 634.

§ 46-20. Report and confirmation enrolled and registered; effect.—Such report, when confirmed, together with the decree of confirmation, shall be enrolled and certified to the register of deeds and registered in the office of the county where such real estate is situated, and shall be binding among and between the claimants, their heirs and assigns. (Rev., s. 2495; Code, s. 1897; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 6; C. S. 3231.)

Effect of Adjudication before Clerk.—In proceedings to partition lands among tenants in common, the adjudication before the clerk operates as an estoppel as to them and those in privity with them, when no appeal has been taken. Southern State Bank v. Leverette, 187 N. C. 743, 748, 123 S. E. 68 and cases cited. Matters not in issue and claims for different rights are not, however, concluded. Gillans v. Edmonson, 154 N. C. 127, 69 S. E. 9.

Color of Title.—The record of the proceedings constitutes color of title. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 38 S. E. 811.

Admissibility of Record in Evidence.—The record of the proceedings is admissible in evidence though not recorded as required by this section. Lindsay v. Beaman, 128 N. C. 189, 38 S. E. 811.

§ 46-21. Clerk to docket owelty charges; no release of land and no lien.—In case owelty of partition is charged in favor of certain parts of said land and against certain other parts, the clerk shall enter on the judgment docket the said owelty charges in like manner as judgments are entered on said docket, persons to whom parts are allotted in favor of which owelty is charged being marked plaintiffs on the judgment docket, and persons to whom parts are alloted against which owelty is charged being marked defendants on said docket; said entry on said docket shall contain the title of the special proceeding in which the land was partitioned, and shall refer to the book and page in which the said special proceeding is recorded; when said owelty charges are paid said entry upon the judgment docket shall be marked satisfied in like manner as judgments are canceled and marked satisfied; and the clerk shall be entitled to the same fees for entering such judgment of owelty as he is entitled to for docketing other judgments: Provided, that the docketing of said owelty charges as hereinbefore set out shall not have the effect of releasing the land from the owelty charged in said special proceeding: Provided, any judgment docketed under this section shall not be a lien on any property whatever, except that upon which said owelty is made a specific charge. (1911, c. 9, s. 1; C. S. 3232.)

Effect of Failure to Docket.—Failure of the clerk to docket the owelty of partition upon his judgment docket, within seven years after such date, does not affect the right of plaintiff to enforce payment of the owelty by execution. Cochran v. Colson, 192 N. C. 663, 135 S. E. 794.

Art. 2. Partition Sales of Real Property

§ 46-22. Sale in lieu of partition.—Whenever it appears by satisfactory proof that an actual partition of the lands cannot be made without injury to some or all of the parties interested, the court shall order a sale of the property described in the petition, or any part thereof. (Rev., s. 2512; Code, ss. 1904, 1921; 1868-9, c. 122, ss. 13, 31; C. S. 3233.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of court to enter judgment for money due on judicial sales, see § 1-243.

Entitled to Actual Partition.—Tenants in common are entitled to an actual partition, if it can be made without injury to any of the co-owners. Tayloe v. Carrow, 156 N. C. 6, 72 S. E. 76; Gillespie v. Allison, 115 N. C. 542, 548, 20 S. E. 627.

Tenant Entitled to Homestead.—That a tenant in common is entitled to a homestead against the judgment cannot prevent a sale for partition. Holley v. White, 172 N. C. 77, 89 S. E. 1061.

Purchase of Lands by Tenant in Common.—A tenant in common suing to partition the premises controlled by h m as agent for the cotenants cannot, on being appointed commissioner to sell the premises, purchase them at the sale nor procure any one to do it for him, and he cannot speculate for his own benefit or do any act detrimental to the interest of his cotenants. Tuttle v. Tuttle, 146 N. C. 484, 59 S. E. 1008. See also Credle v. Baugham, 152 N. C. 18, 67 S. E. 46.

Issues of Fact—Questions of Fact.—In Ledbetter v. Piner, 120 N. C. 455, 27 S. E. 123, it is held: "The only controverted fact arising on the pleadings was as to the advisability of a sale for partition or an actual division. This was not an issue of fact but a question of fact for the decision of the clerk subject to review by the judge on appeal." Vanderbilt v. Roberts, 162 N. C. 273, 78 S. E. 156.

Question for Court.—Whether or not, in a proceeding instituted under § 46-3, for partition of the land of tenants in common, there shall be an actual partition, or a sale for partition, involves question of fact to be determined by court. In such proceedings, an allegation that the land is incapable of actual division without injury to some or all of the tenants in common raises a question of fact for the trial judge, and not an issue of fact for the jury, and he has the power to order a sale for partition. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

Under this section the burden is on the party seeking sale for partition to show necessity therefor, and where sale for partition is decreed by the court without hearing evidence or finding facts to show the right to sell, the cause will be remanded. Wolfe v. Galloway, 211 N. C. 361, 190 S. E. 213.

Court must find the facts required by this section in order to support a decree of sale for partition. Priddy & Co. v. Sanderford, 221 N. C. 422, 20 S. E. (2d) 341.

Effect of Interests of Others.—The owner of an undivided one-half interest in land cannot be denied his rights to have a partition or sale in lieu of partition, because of interests which defendants, other than his cotenants, claiming under him, have acquired in and to his undivided interest. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

Effect of Trust Created by Another Co-Tenant. — The right of a tenant in common to have the lands sold for a division, under this section cannot be defeated by a trust creating an interest in the lands by another of the tenants. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

Parties—Trustee and Beneficiaries. — The trustee and beneficiaries under a trust created in lands by a tenant in common are proper parties to the proceedings for a sale for division. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

Same—Right of Wife of Co-Tenant to Resist Partition.—The wife of a tenant in common has an interest in his portion of the lands or the proceeds of the sale thereof, for division, contingent upon her surviving him, and is a proper party to the proceedings for partition, under this section or section 46-3, with the right to be heard when the lands are sold for division in order to protect her contingent interests in the proceeds of the sale. But she cannot resist the plaintiff's right to a partition nor challenge the power of the court to order sale for partition. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

A wife having a dower interest in property held by her husband as tenant in common may not defeat sale for partition. Citizen Bank, etc., Co. v. Watkins, 215 N. C. 292, 1 S. E. (2d) 853.

Interest of Trust Beneficiaries Attaches to Proceeds. — The interest of the beneficiaries under a deed of trust upon the interest of a tenant in common in land will upon its sale under this section attach to the proceeds and be fully protected in the final judgment or order in the proceedings. Barber v. Barber, 195 N. C. 711, 143 S. E. 469.

Review of Decision.—The action of a judge of the superior court in setting aside the report of partition commissioners, advising actual partition, and ordering a sale, is not reviewable, unless an error of law was committed. Tayloe v. Carrow, 156 N. C. 6, 72 S. E. 76; Albemarle Steam Nav. Co. v. Wovell, 133 N. C. 93, 45 S. E. 466.

Since a tenant in common has the right to actual partition unless it is made to appear by satisfactory proof that actual partition cannot be made without injury to some or all of the parties interested, an order for sale for partition affects a substantial right, and an appeal will lie to the supreme court from such order entered by the judge on appeal from the clerk. Hyman v. Edwards, 217 N. C. 342, 7 S. E. (2d) 700.

Applied in Talley v. Murchison, 212 N. C. 205, 193 S. E. 148.

§ 46-23. Remainder or reversion sold for partition; outstanding life estate.—The existence of a life estate in any land shall not be a bar to a sale for partition of the remainder or reversion thereof, and for the purposes of partition the tenants in common or joint tenants shall be deemed seized and possessed as if no life estate existed. But this shall not interfere with the possession of the life tenant during the existence of his estate. (Rev., s. 2508; 1887, c. 214, s. 2; C. S. 3234.)

Cross Reference.—See also § 41-11.

Rule before Section Adopted.—Before the passage of this section cotenants in remainder or reversion had no right to enforce a compulsory partition of land in which they had such estate. Gillespie v. Allison, 115 N. C. 542, 20 S. E. 627, 628. See Wood v. Sugg, 91 N. C. 93; Ex parte Miller, 90 N. C. 625. But partition was permitted between the holder of the life estate and the owner in fee. McEachern v. Gilchrist, 75 N. C. 196.

Right of Possession.—A tenant in common is entitled to a compulsory partition, and to enable said tenant to maintain a proceeding for such partition he must have an estate in possession, or the right of possession. The possession need not be actual. The actual possession may be in a life tenant. Moore v. Baker, 222 N. C. 736, 24 S. E. (2d) 749. See also, Priddy & Co. v. Sanderford, 221 N. C. 422, 20 S. E. (2d) 341.

Section Not Limited to Sale.—By the wording of this section, that is, "a sale for partition" followed by the words "purposes of partition," it is apparent that the Legislature did not intend to limit the application of the section to sales, and it is held that it is to be construed to include actual partition by the remaindermen, as well as for a sale for division by them. Baggett v. Jackson, 160 N. C. 26, 76 S. E. 86.

Section Enlarges Vested Rights.—A statute giving to remaindermen the right to have partition of lands in remainder vested before the passage of such statute is remedial and, instead of impairing, enlarges vested rights. Gillespie v. Allison, 115 N. C. 542, 20 S. E. 627.

All Parties Interested.—A sale for partition will not be decreed when there are contingent remainders or other conditional interests therein unless all the persons who may be by any possibility interested unite in asking such a decree. Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500, quoting Aydlett v. Pendleton, 111 N. C. 28, 16 S. E. 8.

If contingent interests are to be affected by the partition they must be represented. Overman v. Tate, 114 N. C. 571, 19 S. E. 706.

Life Estate with Power of Sale.—When lands are devised to the wife for life, giving her control thereof with power to sell, pay debts, etc., this section does not apply, for if applied it would defeat the very purpose as to powers given the wife. Makely v. Makely, 175 N. C. 121, 95 S. E. 51.

Holder of Contingent Interest.—Proceedings for partition of lands cannot be maintained when the plaintiff holds only a contingent interest in the lands, determinable on the death of the life tenant, who is still living at the time. Vinson v. Wise, 159 N. C. 653, 75 S. E. 732.

Proceeding Instituted before Clerk.—The locus in quo was devised to testator's children for life with remainder to testator's grandchildren, the remainder to the children of each child being defeasible if all the children of such child should predecease the first taker, and the limitation over being subject to be opened up to include after-born children. Petition was filed before the clerk by the life tenants and the remaindeermen in esse for sale of the land for partitions, under this section. The minor remaindermen were represented by their next friend, duly appointed by the court, who filed supplemental petition alleging that the sale would materially promote the interest of the minors. The clerk appoined a trustee for any unborn remaindermen and ordered the land sold. Unborn children of each life tenant were also represented by a child of such life tenant then in esse. The judge holding the courts of the district entered an order at chambers, upon its finding that the interest of the minors would be materially promoted by the sale, confirming the decree of sale. Thereafter the clerk approved the commisioner's report of sale to one of the life tenants and later appointed the respective parents of the remaindermen, in esse and in posse, trustees to receive the share of their respective children. The judge, apparently at term, approved the order of confirmation. It was held that even conceding the proceeding was irregular, the superior court acquired jurisdiction and the proceeding was not so fatally defective as to render it void. Perry v. Bassenger, 219 N. C. 838, 15 S. E. (2d) 365.

§ 46-24. Life tenant as party; valuation of life estate.—In all proceedings for partition of land whereon there is a life estate, the life tenant may join in the proceeding and on a sale the interest on the value of the share of the life tenant shall be received and paid to such life tenant annually; or in lieu of such annual interest, the value of such share during the probable life of such life tenant shall be ascertained and paid out of the proceeds to such life tenant absolutely. (Rev., s. 2509; 1887, c. 214, s. 3; C. S. 3235.)

Cross References.—As to evaluation of life tenant's interest, see § 8-47. As to dower upon partition, see § 46-15.

Life Tenants May Waive Rights.—Under a will providing that "home place shall remain a home for all the single members of the family as long as they shall live, if they choose to do so, and then be divided between the next of kin," single members of the family were entitled to partition of the home place among remaindermen as directed by will, where they showed the court that they no longer desired to retain it as a home, since life tenants could waive the right if they desired to enjoy their share in severalty. Sides v. Sides, 178 N. C. 554, 101 S. E. 100.

While the life tenant during the existence of her estate may waive her rights and consent to the sale of her estate, under this section, this may not be done, against her will, in a partition proceeding. Priddy & Co. v. Sanderford, 221 N. C. 422, 20 S. E. (2d) 341.

Estate Durante Viduitate.—This section does not apply to an estate durante viduitate, as there is no practicable rule by which the present value of such an estate can be determined; hence, where land to which an estate durante viduitate attached was sold for partition and the proceeds are in custody of the court below, they cannot be divided among the widow and the remaindermen, against the will of the remaindermen, but will remain real estate until partition can be made at the termination of the estate durante viduitate. Gillespie v. Allison, 117 N. C. 512, 23 S. E. 438.

Same—Payment until Termination of Estate.—Where the tenant of an estate durante viduitate joins with some of the remaindermen for a sale for partition of the lands, this section will be satisfied with the payment to her of the interest upon the proceeds of the lands sold, until the termination of the particular estate by her marriage or death. Gillespie v. Allison, 115 N. C. 542, 20 S. E. 627.

Application of Life Tenant for Sale.—While under this and the preceding section there is authority for a sale for partition, at the instance of the remaindermen, of the reversion, or by their joining the life tenants, or between tenants in common or joint tenants, there is no statute which authorizes the sale on the application of the life tenant as against the remaindermen. Ray v. Poole, 187 N. C. 749, 751, 123 S. E. 5.

Cited in Pendleton v. Williams, 175 N. C. 248, 95 S. E. 500.

§ 46-25. Sale of standing timber on partition; valuation of life estate.—When two or more persons own, as tenants in common, joint tenants, or copartners, a tract of land, either in possession, or in remainder or reversion, subject to a life estate, on which there may be standing timber trees, a sale of said timber trees, separate from the land, may be had upon the petition of one or more of said owners, or the life tenant, for partition among the owners thereof, including the life tenant, upon such terms as the court may order, and under like proceedings as are now prescribed by law for the sale of land for partition: Provided, that when the land is subject to a life estate, the life tenant shall be made a party to the proceedings, and shall be entitled to receive his portion of the net proceeds of sales, to be ascertained under the mortuary tables established by law. (Rev., s. 2510; 1895, c. 187; C. S. 3236.)

Cross Reference.—As to mortuary tables and present worth of annuities, see §§ 8-46, 8-47.

§ 46-26. Sale of mineral interests on partition.—In case of the partition of mineral interests, in all instances where it is made to appear to the court that it would be for the best interests of the tenants in common, or joint tenants, of such interests to have the same sold, or if actual partition of the same cannot be had without injury to some or all of such tenants (in common), then it is lawful for and the duty of the court to order a sale of such mineral interests and a division of the proceeds as the interests of the parties may appear. (Rev., s. 2507; 1905, c. 90, s. 2; C. S. 3237.)

The mere conclusion of the court that the mineral interest is incapable of actual division, unsupported by allegation, proof, or finding, will not support a decree of sale for partition. Carolina Mineral Co. v. Young, 220 N. C. 287, 17 S. E. (2d) 119.

§ 46-27. Sale of land required for public use on cotenant's petition.—When the lands of joint tenants or tenants in common are required for public purposes, one or more of such tenants, or their guardian for them, may file a petition verified by oath, in the superior court of the county where the lands or any part of them lie, setting forth therein that the lands are required for public purposes, and that their interests would be promoted by a sale thereof. Whereupon the court, all proper parties being before it, and the facts alleged in the petition being ascertained to be true, shall order a sale of such lands, or so much thereof as may be necessary, in the manner and on the terms it deems expedient. The expenses, fees and costs of this proceeding shall be paid in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 2518; Code, s. 1907; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 16; C. S. 3238.)

§ 46-28. Manner and terms of partition sale.—The sale shall be made by some person appointed by the court, on such terms as to size of lots, place or manner of sale, time of credit and security for payment of purchase money, as may be most advantageous to the parties concerned. (Rev., s. 2512; Code, ss. 1904, 1921; 1868-9, s. 122, ss. 13, 31; C. S. 3239.)

Private or Public Sale.—The superior court may, in the exercise of its discretion, order a sale of lands in proceedings for partitions, where minors are interested and represented by guardian ad litem, either to be publicly or privately made. Ryder v. Oates, 173 N. C. 569, 92 S. E. 508. And where no abuse of this discretion is shown on appeal, the action of the lower court will not be reviewed. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113.

Private Bids.—The court may authorize its commissioner in a proceeding for sale for partition to receive and report to it a private offer or bid for the land. Wooten v. Cunningham, 171 N. C. 123, 88 S. E. 1.

§ 46-29. Notice of partition sale. — The notice of sale, under this proceeding, shall be the same as required by law on sales of real estate by sheriff under execution: Provided, however, that in case a re-sale of such real property shall become necessary under such proceeding, that such real property shall then be re-sold only after notice of re-sale has been duly posted at the courthouse door in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale and also published at any time during such fifteen day period once a week for two successive weeks of not less than eight days in some newspaper published in the county, if a newspaper is published in the county, but if there be no newspaper published in said county the notice of re-sale must be posted at the courthouse door and three other public places in the county for fifteen days immediately preceding the re-sale. (Rev., s. 2514; Code, s. 1905; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 14; 1933, c. 187; C. S. 3240.)

Cross Reference.—As to notice in execution and judicial sales, see § 1-325.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 219, for brief review of this section.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1933, c. 187, added the proviso at the end of this section relating to notices of resale.

§ 46-30. Title made to purchaser; effect of deed.—On the coming in of the report of sale, and confirmation thereof, and payment of the purchase money, the title shall be made to the purchaser or purchasers at such time and by such person as the court may direct, and in all cases where the persons in possession have been made parties to the proceeding, the court may grant an order for possession. And the deed of the officer or person designated to make such sale shall convey to the purchaser such title and estate in the property as the tenants in common, or joint tenants, had. (Rev., s. 2512; Code, ss. 1904, 1921; 1868-9, c. 122, ss. 13, 31; C. S. 3241.)

Sale an Official Act.—When an officer of the court, designated either by his official or individual name in the order, is commissioned to make sale of real or personal estate, he acts in his official capacity and his sureties undertake for the fidelity of his conduct. Kerr v. Brandon, 84 N. C. 128, 131.

Enforcement.—Upon acceptance by court's commissioner of a bid, whether at public or private sale, for land involved in partition proceedings, the court has jurisdiction over the purchaser to enforce the bid. Wooten v. Cunningham, 171 N. C. 123, 88 S. E. 1.

Same—Balance of Bid.—The purchaser of land at a judicial sale for partition can be required by summary proceedings to pay into court the amount of his bid which remains unpaid after the confirmation of the sale and delivery of the deed, such proceedings not being unconstitutional as depriving the purchaser of his right to a jury trial. Lyman v. Southern Coal Co., 183 N. C. 581, 112 S. E. 242.

When Title Passes.—Where, under a petition of tenants in common, lands are sold for division, under the provisions of this section title to the lands held in common will not pass to the purchaser until the purchase price has been paid, and a deed executed to the purchaser by the one appointed to sell under the order of the court. Crocker v. Vann, 192 N. C. 422, 135 S. E. 127.

Title of Intending Purchaser before Confirmation.—An intending purchaser at a partition sale is a mere preferred proposer, and not a purchaser, until after the sale has been confirmed. Patillo v. Lytle, 158 N. C. 92, 73 S. E. 200.

After Confirmation Purchaser Regarded Equitable Owner.—Under section 41-32 after confirmation by the court of a judicial sale of lands, the purchaser is regarded as the equitable owner, and the sale, as it affects his interest, can only be set aside for "mistake, fraud, or collusion," established on petition regularly filed in the cause. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 173 N. C. 88, 91 S. E. 702.

When Purchaser Fails to Pay.—Where a purchaser of land under decree of court fails to pay the price, the title will not be made even though there be a confirmation of the sale. And if the land in such case be sold under an execution against said purchaser, the purchaser thereof takes subject to the equities against the defendant in the execution. Burgin v. Burgin, 82 N. C. 197.

Formal Direction to Make Title Unnecessary.—A formal direction to make title is not necessary when the order of sale reserves the title as an additional security for the purchase-money, and the money has been paid. Latta v. Vickers, 82 N. C. 501.

Purchaser Need Not Look beyond Decree.—A purchaser at a judicial sale, if not a party to the proceeding, is not bound to look beyond the decree if the facts necessary to give jurisdiction appear on the face of the proceedings. If there has been an irregularity, or the jurisdiction has been improvidently exercised, it will not be corrected at his expense. Herbin v. Wagoner, 118 N. C. 656, 657, 24 S. E. 490.

When Judgment Creditor Not Made Party. — Where judgment creditors of a tenant in common are not made parties to a partition proceeding, the purchaser buys subject to their liens. Holley v. White, 172 N. C. 77, 89 S. E. 1061.

Estoppel of Persons Parties to Sale.—One who was a party to ex parte partition proceedings, was present at the sale, and received her share of the purchase money could not thereafter have the judgment and sale set aside for division as to her. In re Wilson, 161 N. C. 211, 75 S. E. 1086; Hargrove v. Wilson, 148 N. C. 439, 62 S. E. 520.

Liens against Interest of Tenant in Common.—"The purchaser at a judicial sale takes the property subject to whatever liens and encumbrances exist thereon . . . and cannot have the proceeds of sale applied to discharge such liens." Jordan v. Faulkner, 168 N. C. 466, 84 S. E. 764.

Proceedings Cannot Be Collaterally Attacked. — When land is sold and the sale confirmed, in proceedings for partition of lands, and the record therein is regular in form, and on its face it appears that plaintiffs were parties, the proceedings cannot be collaterally attacked, as the remedy is by petition in the cause. Hargrove v. Wilson, 148 N. C. 439, 62 S. E. 520.

Deed Erroneously Made to Husband and Wife.—Where the wife alone is entitled to a deed in the severance of her interest as a tenant in common of lands sold for division, and in proceedings thereunder it is erroneously adjudged by the court that the deed be made to her and her husband by entireties, the title will inure only to her under a resulting trust, and the husband cannot acquire by survivorship. Crocker v. Vann, 192 N. C. 422, 135 S. E. 127.

§ 46-31. Who appointed to sell. — The court may authorize any officer thereof, or any other competent person, to be designated in the decree of sale, to sell the real estate under this proceeding; but no clerk of any court shall appoint himself or his deputy to make sale of real property or other property in any proceeding before him. (Rev., s. 2513; Code, s. 1906; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 15; 1899, c. 161; C. S. 3242.)

Editor's Note.—The last part of this section was passed to abolish the practice of clerks appointing themselves to make partition sales. This practice was condemned in Evans v. Cullens, 122 N. C. 55, 28 S. E. 961, and thereupon the next Legislature adopted the last clause.

§ 46-32. Report of sale; filing; confirmation and impeachment. — Such officer or person shall file his report of sale, giving full particulars thereof, within ten days after the sale, in the office of the clerk of the superior court, and if no exception thereto is filed within ten days, the same shall be confirmed. Any party, after the confirmation, shall be allowed to impeach the proceedings and decrees for mistake, fraud or collusion, by petition in the cause: Provided, innocent purchasers for full value and without notice shall not be affected thereby. (Rev., s. 2513; Code, s. 1906; 1899, c. 161; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 15; 1937, c. 71; C. S. 3243.)

Cross Reference.—As to confirmation of judicial sales in vacation, see § 1-218.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment reduces the time for filing exceptions from twenty to ten days. The proceedings are thus speeded up, and it is now possible for the partition sale to be confirmed within 20 days after it is held instead of 30 days as formerly required. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 355.

In General.—This section does not require formal exceptions; but because of the use of the word "shall" it is a prerequisite to the power of the court to order a resale that exceptions in a recognized legal way be made within the time prescribed. McCormick v. Patterson, 194 N. C. 216, 139 S. E. 225.

What Exceptions Contemplated.—In the contemplation of this section an exception is an objection to the regularity of the proceeding or sale or because of "inequitable adjustment." McCormick v. Patterson, 194 N. C. 216, 139 S. E. 225.

Section Relates Only to Public Sale.—This section relates only to public sales, and does not prevent confirmation of a private sale within 20 days. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113.

Execution Sales.—This section is not applicable to execution sales. Weir v. Weir, 196 N. C. 268, 269, 145 S. E. 281.

Effect of Failure to File Report.—Upon the commissioner's failure to file a report and final account with the clerk, as provided by this section, the demand upon the commissioner or his administrator, for the disbursement of the funds, will be considered to have been made as a matter of law. Peal v. Martin, 207 N. C. 106, 176 S. E. 282.

Power of Superior Court to Confirm Sale.—The superior court in a partition action, having general jurisdiction in law and equity, has power to order and confirm a private as well as a public sale. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113; McAfee v. Green, 143 N. C. 411, 418, 55 S. E. 828.

Power to Set Aside.—Where lands are ordered to be sold for partition by a court of equity, the authority of the court to set aside an inchoate sale and reopen the biddings applies as well to cases where all the parties are adults as where some of them, or all, are infants. Ex parte Post, 56 N. C. 482.

Same—Objection Must Be Timely. — Under this section exceptions must be filed or an increased bid placed upon the purchase price within twenty days or before a motion to confirm the sale is made. McCormick v. Patterson, 194 N. C. 216, 219, 139 S. E. 225.

Same—Sufficiency of Objection. — Where three commissioners for the sale of lands in partition proceedings for a division have regularly sold the locus in quo as provided by law, and two of them have filed the report of sale, and the other protests against its confirmation upon the ground of a mistake in fact and appears before the clerk and gives his reason therefor within the statutory time, his conduct may amount to a substantial compliance with the statute leaving the matter within the power of the court to order a resale. McCormick v. Patterson, 194 N. C. 216, 139 S. E. 225.

Advance in Bid.—Before a partition sale has been confirmed, if an advanced bid of 10 per cent. is offered, the court may, in its discretion, order a resale. Trull v. Rice, 92 N. C. 572. But where no increase bid was received within twenty days and the purchaser moved promptly for confirmation, an increased bid received thereafter will not prevent confirmation. Ex parte Garrett, 174 N. C. 343, 93 S. E. 838.

Same—Where Parties Do Not Join in Motion.—The court did not abuse its discretion in a partition action in refusing to grant a re-sale upon an offer of an advance bid on motion of the officer in which none of the parties joined. Thompson v. Rospigliosi, 162 N. C. 145, 77 S. E. 113; Tayloe v. Carrow, 156 N. C. 6, 72 S. E. 76.

Same—Ten Per Cent Advance Unnecessary. — While it has been in accord with the practice in this State to refuse to confirm a judicial sale unless there has been an advanced bid from a responsible bidder, this is but to afford evidence as to the inadequacy of the price, which the court, in the exercise of its discretion to confirm or set aside the sale, may regard or disregard; and while a bid of 10 per cent will customarily be considered, so may, also, an advanced bid in a less sum, when the amount is large. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 173 N. C. 88, 91 S. E. 702.

Cited in Buncombe County v. Arbogast, 205 N. C. 745, 748, 172 S. E. 364.

§ 46-33. Shares in proceeds to cotenants secured.—Upon confirmation of the report, the court shall secure to each tenant in common, or joint tenant, his ratable share in severalty of the proceeds of sale. (Rev., s. 2513; Code, s. 1921; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 31; C. S. 3244.)

Effect on Title.—This section in nowise interferes with power to free the title and make a valid conveyance of the same. Bynum v. Bynum, 179 N. C. 14, 17, 101 S. E. 527.

Same—Failure to Invest. — A purchaser for full value, without notice, of lands at a sale for partition thereof by the heirs at law, acquires a title which is not affected by the failure of the court to retain and invest funds sufficient to protect the rights of such unknown persons, served with summons by publication, who may afterwards appear and establish an interest in the lands. Lawrence v. Hardy, 151 N. C. 123, 65 S. E. 766.

Consent of Court Necessary to Agreement.—Parties can not stipulate as to the distribution of the proceeds of a judicial sale without the full knowledge and consent of the court, especially where there are infants in the case whose rights may be seriously prejudiced by such an agreement. Lyman v. Southern Coal Co., 183 N. C. 581, 112 S. E. 242.

Infant's Share of Proceeds Remains Realty. — The proceeds of land, sold for partition, to which an infant is entitled, remain real estate until such infant comes of age and elects to take them as money. Bateman v. Latham, 56 N. C. 35.

Payment to Guardian.—A payment made by purchaser of lands, under a decree for the sale and partition of lands which directed the proceeds to be paid over to the parties according to law, to the guardian of one of the tenants in common, is proper and in pursuance of the statute. Howerton v. Sexton, 104 N. C. 75, 10 S. E. 148. As to sufficiency of payment to husband before the modern statute liberating married women from their legal disabilities, see Burgin v. Burgin, 82 N. C. 177.

Art. 3. Partition of Lands in Two States.

§§ 46-35 to 46-41: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

Art. 4. Partition of Personal Property.

§ 46-42. Personal property may be partitioned; commissioners appointed.—When any persons entitled as tenants in common, or joint tenants, of personal property desire to have a division of the same, they, or either of them, may file a petition in the superior court for that purpose; and the court, if it think the petitioners entitled to relief, shall appoint three disinterested commissioners, who, being first duly sworn, shall proceed within twenty days after notice of their appointment to divide such property as nearly equally as possible among the tenants in common, or joint tenants. (Rev., s. 2504; Code, s. 1917; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 27; C. S. 3253.)

Exclusiveness of Remedy.—A petition for the partition of personal property is the only remedy one tenant in common has against another for withholding possession. Grim v. Wicker, 80 N. C. 343; Powell v. Hill, 64 N. C. 169.

Same—No Right to Exclusive Possession.—One tenant in common or joint owner of personal property cannot maintain an action against the other tenant or owner to recover the exclusive possession of the property because the defendant forcibly took it from the plaintiff's possession; the plaintiff's only remedy is to have the property partitioned. Thompson v. Silverthorne, 142 N. C. 12, 54 S. E. 782.

Injunction to Prevent Destruction.—Where, pending a suit for partition of personal property, the defendant threatened the destruction or removal of the property, the court, on the plaintiff's application, might grant an injunction or appoint a receiver. Thompson v. Silverthorne, 142 N. C. 12, 54 S. E. 782.

Title to Personalty.—In petitions for the partition of personal property owned in common, where the defendant sets up title in severalty in himself, the title to the property may be tried on the petition. Edwards v. Bennett, 32 N. C. 361, cited in note in 27 L. R. A., N. S., 69.

Notes.—The owners of notes, as tenants in common, are entitled to partition. Central Bank, etc., Co. v. Board of Commissioners, 195 N. C. 678, 681, 143 S. E. 252.

Quoted in Chadwick v. Blades, 210 N. C. 609, 188 S. E. 198.

§ 46-43. Report of commissioners. — The commissioners shall report their proceedings under the hands of any two of them, and shall file their report in the office of the clerk of the superior court within five days after the partition was made. (Rev., s. 2505; Code, s. 1918; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 28; C. S. 3254.)

Cited in Clement v. Ireland, 129 N. C. 220, 39 S. E. 838.

§ 46-44. Sale of personal property on partition; report of officer.—If a division of personal property owned by any persons as tenants in common, or joint tenants, cannot be had without injury to some of the parties interested, and a sale thereof is deemed necessary, the court shall order a sale to be made by some officer of the court or other competent person, who shall file his report of sale in the office of the clerk of the court within ten days after sale. (Rev., s. 2519; Code, s. 1919; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 29; C. S. 3255.)

Cited in Chadwick v. Blades, 210 N. C. 609, 188 S. E. 198.

§ 46-45. Confirmation and impeachment of reports of commissioners or officer.—If no exception to the report of the commissioners making partition, or to the report of the officer making sale, as the case may be, is filed within ten days, the same shall be confirmed. Any party, after confirmation, shall be allowed to impeach the proceedings and decrees for mistake, fraud or collusion, by petition in the cause: Provided, innocent purchasers for full value and without notice shall not be affected thereby. (Rev., ss. 2505, 2519; Code, ss. 1918, 1919; 1868-9, c. 122, ss. 28, 29; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 3256.)

Cross Reference.—As to confirmation of judicial sales in vacation, see § 1-218.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment substituted "ten" for "twenty" in line four.

§ 46-46. Notice of sale of personal property.—The sale shall be made after twenty days notice, by advertisement in three or more public places in the county, and shall be on such terms as the court may direct. (Rev., s. 2520; Code, s. 1920; 1868-9, c. 122, s. 30; C. S. 3257.)

Chapter 47. Probate and Registration.

Art. 1. Probate.

§ 47-1. Officials of state authorized to take probate.—The execution of all deeds of conveyance, contracts to buy, sell or convey lands, mortgages, deeds of trust, assignments, powers of attorney, covenants to stand seized to the use of another, leases for more than three years, releases and any and all instruments and writings of whatsoever nature and kind which are required or allowed by law to be registered in the office of the register of deeds or which may hereafter be required or allowed by law to be so registered, may be proved or acknowledged before any one of the following officials of this state: the several justices of the supreme court, the several judges of the superior court, commissioners of affidavits appointed by the governor of this state, the clerk of the supreme court, the several clerks of the superior court, the deputy clerks of the superior court, the several clerks of the criminal courts, notaries public, and the several justices of the peace. (Rev., s. 989; Code, s. 1246; 1895, c. 161, ss. 1, 3; 1897, c. 87; 1899, c. 235; C. S. 3293.)

Effect of Disqualification.—If the disqualification of either the probating or acknowledging officer appears upon the face of the record, the registration is a nullity as to subsequent purchasers and incumbrances. Quinnerly v. Quinnerly, 114 N. C. 145, 19 S. E. 99. But when the incapacity of the acknowledging or probating officer is latent, i. e., does not appear upon the record, one who takes under the grantee in such instrument gets a good title, unless the party claiming the benefit of the defected acknowledgment or probate is cognizant of the facts. Richmond Co. v. Walston, 187 N. C. 67, 122 S. E. 663; County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 130, 133 S. E. 558.

Woman Notary Qualified.—A woman is qualified to act as a notary public since the adoption of the amendment to the Constitution of this State, Art. VII, sec. 7; and also to pass upon the proper probate of a deed to lands, and make a valid certificate for its registration, when deputized by the clerk of the superior court under the provisions of our statutes. Preston v. Roberts, 183 N. C. 62, 110 S. E. 586.

Interest and Relationship.—As to disqualification on the ground of interest and relationship, see section 47-7.

Cited in McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 146 S. E. 713.

§ 47-2. Officials of the United States, foreign countries, and sister states.—The execution of all such instruments and writings as are permitted or required by law to be registered may be proved or acknowledged before any one of the following officials of the United States, of the District of Columbia, of the several states and territories of the United States, of countries under the dominion of the United States and of foreign countries: Any judge of a court of record, any clerk of a court of record, any notary public, any commissioner of deeds, any commissioner of oaths, any mayor or chief magistrate of an incorporated town or city, any ambassador, minister, consul, vice-consul, consul general, vice-consul general, or commercial agent of the United States, any justice of the peace of any state or territory of the United States, any officer of the army of the United States or United States marine corps having the rank of captain or higher, any officer of the United States navy or coast guard having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, or any officer of the United States merchant marine having the rank or lieutenant, senior grade, or higher. No official seal shall be required of said military, naval or merchant marine official, but he shall sign his name, designate his rank, and give the name of his ship or military organization and the date, and for the purpose certifying said acknowledgment, he shall use a form in substance as follows:

On this the .... day of ....., 19.... before me....., the undersigned officer, personally appeared ....., known to me (or satisfactorily proven) to be serving in or with the armed forces of the United States and to be the person whose name is subscribed to the within instrument and acknowledged that .... he .... executed the same for the purposes therein contained. And the undersigned does further certify that he is at the date of this certificate a commissioned officer of the rank stated below and is in the active service of the armed forces of the United States.

Signature of Officer

Rank of Officer and command to which attached.

If the proof or acknowledgment of the execution of an instrument is had before a justice of the peace of any state of the United States other than this state or of any territory of the United States, the certificate of such justice of the peace shall be accompanied by a certificate of the clerk of some court of record of the county in which such justice of the peace resides, which certificate of the clerk shall be under his hand and official seal, to the effect that such justice of the peace was at the time the certificate of such justice bears date an acting justice of the peace of such county and state or territory and that the genuine signature of such justice of the peace is set to such certificate. (Rev., s. 990; 1899, c. 235, s. 5; 1905, c. 451; 1913, c. 39, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 72, s. 1; 1943, c. 159, s. 1; 1943, c. 471, s. 1; C. S. 3294.)

Cross References.—As to commissioner of affidavits and deeds appointed by the governor, see § 3-1 et seq. As to powers of clerks of courts of record of other states, see § 3-7. As to power of notaries public in and out of state, see § 10-4. As to form of certificate required upon acknowledgment by nonresident official, see §§ 47-44 and 47-45.

Editor's Note.—Both 1943 amendments inserted the words "any commissioner of oaths" in the first sentence. The first 1943 amendment also added to the first sentence the provisions relating to military, naval and merchant marine officials.

Compliance Essential.—This section prescribing how deeds may be proved and acknowledgment and privy examination taken in other states as well as in foreign countries, must be followed, or they and the registration thereon will be declared void. New Hanover Shingle Mills v. Roper Lumber Co., 171 N. C. 410, 88 S. E. 633.

This case, although decided in 1916 and holding a probate before a commissioner of deeds of another state to be ineffectual, was pending in 1913 when an act amended § 47-2 so as to allow probate and acknowledgment before a commissioner of deeds of another state. By the amendatory act, all prior probates and acknowledgments before such commissioners of deeds, except those which affected pending litigation or vested rights, were validated.

Proof before Notary Public in Another State.—A deed regularly proved before a notary public in South Carolina by authority of this section, is effectual to pass title as against creditors. County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558.

Proof in This State by Notary of Another State.—The probate of an instrument taken in this State by a notary public of another state is defective. County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558.

Same—Rights of Purchaser Where Record Is Clear.—While a probate of a mortgage taken in this State by a notary public of another state is defective, the purchaser at the mortgage sale will acquire by his deed the title as against a subsequent judgment creditor, when the probate appears of record, in the office of the register of deeds in the county wherein the land is situate here, to have been regularly taken in South Carolina, and there is no evidence that such purchaser had knowledge of the defect at or before the time he acquired his deed. County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558.

By Woman Notary Public.—The position cannot be maintained that the probate is fatally defective, being taken by a woman, for it will be assumed that the notary was rightfully appointed in the State in which the deed was probated, and her act will be recognized as valid here. Nicholson v. Eureka Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 33, 75 S. E. 730.

§ 47-3. Commissioner appointed by clerk for nonresident maker.—When it appears to the clerk of the superior court of any county that any person nonresident of this state desires to acknowledge a power of attorney, deed or other conveyance touching any real estate situated in the county of said clerk, he may issue a commission to a commissioner for receiving such acknowledgment, or taking such proof, and said commissioner may likewise take the acknowledgment and privy examination of a married woman separate and apart from her husband, touching her assent to any power of attorney, deeds or other conveyances, touching real estate in said county. The commissioner shall make certificate of the acknowledgments or proof and privy examination made by him, and shall return the same to the clerk of the superior court, whereupon he shall adjudge that such conveyance, power of attorney or other instrument is duly acknowledged or proved, and that such examination is in due form, and shall order the same to be registered. (Rev., s. 991; Code, s. 1258; 1869-70, c. 185; C. S. 3295.)

Cross Reference.—As to acknowledgments before officials of the United States, foreign countries, and sister states, see §§ 3-5, 10-4, 47-2, 47-6, 47-44, 47-45.

§ 47-4. By justice of peace of other than registering county.—If the proof or acknowledgment of any instrument is had before a justice of the peace of any county other than the county in which such instrument is offered for registration, the certificate of proof or acknowledgment made by such justice of the peace shall be accompanied by the certificate of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said justice of the peace resides, that such justice of the peace was at the time his certificate bears date an acting justice of the peace of such county, and that such justice's genuine signature is set to his certificate. The certificate of the clerk of the superior court herein provided for shall be under his hand and official seal. (Rev., s. 992; 1899, c. 235, s. 4; C. S. 3296.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of clerk's certificate, see § 47-44.

Omission to Register Seal Not Fatal.—The execution of a deed was proved before a justice of the peace in the County of Franklin, and the clerk of the superior court of that county certified the official character of the Justice of the peace under his official seal; the deed was thereupon registered in Granville County upon the fiat of the clerk of the superior court of the county, but the official seal of the clerk of Franklin superior court was not registered: It was held that the registration was valid. Perry v. Bragg, 111 N. C. 159, 16 S. E. 10.

§ 47-5. When seal of officer necessary to probate.—When proof or acknowledgment of the execution of any instrument by any maker of such instrument, whether a married woman or other person or corporation, is had before any official authorized by law to take such proof and acknowledgment, and such official has an official seal, he shall set his official seal to his certificate. If the official before whom the instrument is proved or acknowledged has no official seal he shall certify under his hand, and his private seal shall not be essential. When the instrument is proved or acknowledged before the clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is to be registered, the official seal shall not be necessary. (Rev., s. 993; 1899, c. 235, s. 8; C. S. 3297.)

Cross References.—See also § 10-9. As to validation of certain acknowledgments of deeds, etc., before a notary public where seal omitted, see §§ 47-52, 47-102. As to validation of certain acknowledgments before officers with seal where seal does not appear of record, see § 47-53.

Name of Notary on Notarial Seal.—The statute does not require that his name or any name should be used on the notarial seal, though customarily the name of the notary does appear thereon. The seal appended by the notary to his certificate is presumably his, in the absence of evidence to the contrary. This is not rebutted by the mere fact that the notary signs his name "Geo. Theo. Sommer" and the seal has on it the name of "Theo. Sommer," when the fact of the execution of the deed is adjudged to have been proved by such seal and certificate of the notary. Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 196, 19 S. E. 146.

Effect of Omission of Justices' Seal.—The omission by a justice of the peace to attach his seal to a certificate of the proof of execution of a deed and privy examination of the wife will not invalidate his action, otherwise regular. Lineberger v. Tidwell, 104 N. C. 506, 10 S. E. 758.

No Seal When Not Required by Statute.—The certificate of probate to a deed need not have a seal if not required by statute at the date of the execution. Westfelt v. Adams, 131 N. C. 379, 42 S. E. 823.

Presumption as to Seal.—When a copy of the certificate of the commissioner of affidavits concludes, "Given under my hand and seal," the presumption is that the seal was affixed to the original, though not appearing in the copy. Johnson v. Eversole Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 249, 60 S. E. 1129.

§ 47-6. Officials may act although land or maker's residence elsewhere.—The execution of all instruments required or permitted by law to be registered may be proved or acknowledged before any of the officials authorized by law to take probates, regardless of the county in this state in which the subject-matter of the instrument may be situated and regardless of the domicile, residence or citizenship of the person who executes such instrument, or of the domicile, residence or citizenship of the person to whom or for whose benefit such instrument may be made. (Rev., s. 994; 1899, c. 235, s. 13; C. S. 3298.)

§ 47-7. Probate where clerk is a party.—All instruments required or permitted by law to be registered to which clerks of the superior court are parties, or in which such clerks are interested, may be proved or acknowledged and privy examination of any married woman may be taken before any justice of the peace or notary public of the county of said clerk, which clerk may then under his hand and official seal certify to the genuineness thereof. Such proofs, acknowledgments and examinations may also be taken before any judge of the superior court or justice of the supreme court, and the instruments may be probated and ordered to be registered by such judge or justice, in like manner as is provided by law for probates by clerks of the superior court in other cases. Provided, that nothing contained herein shall prevent the clerk of the superior court who is a party to any instrument, or who is a stockholder or officer of any bank or other corporation which is a party to any instrument, from adjudicating and ordering such instruments for registration as have been acknowledged or proved before some justice of the peace or notary public. All probates, adjudications, and orders of registration made prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred thirty, by any such clerk of conveyances or other papers in which said clerk is an interested party, or other papers by any corporation in which such clerk also is an officer or stockholder, are hereby validated and declared sufficient for all such purposes. (Rev., s. 995; 1891, c. 102; 1893, c. 3; 1913, c. 148, s. 1; 1921, c. 92; 1921, c. 106, s. 2; 1939, c. 210, s. 1; C. S. 3299.)

Cross References.—As to disqualification of clerk to act, see § 2-17. See also § 47-7.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment in effect inserted the words "who is a party to any instrument or" in the proviso after the words "clerk of the superior court."

Officer Party Trustee or Cestui Que Trust.—An acknowledgment and privy examination before an officer who was a party, trustee or cestui que trust in the deed is invalid. Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 18 S. E. 499; McAllister v. Purcell, 124 N. C. 262, 264, 32 S. E. 715.

Relation to Parties Not a Disqualification.—Probate and private examination taken before an officer are not invalid simply because he is related to the parties. McAllister v. Purcell, 124 N. C. 262, 32 S. E. 715.

§ 47-8. Attorney in action not to probate papers therein.—No practicing attorney at law has power to administer any oaths to a person to any paper writing to be used in any legal proceedings in which he appears as attorney. (Rev., s. 2350; Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 105, s. 2; C. S. 3300.)

§ 47-9. Probates before stockholders in building and loan associations.—No acknowledgment or proof of execution, including the privy examination of any married woman, of any mortgage or deed of trust executed to secure the payment of any indebtedness to any building and loan association shall hereafter be held invalid by reason of the fact that the officer taking such acknowledgment, proof or privy examination, is a stockholder in said building and loan association. This section does not authorize any officer or director of a building and loan association to take acknowledgments, proofs and privy examinations. The provisions of this section shall apply to federal savings and loan associations having their principal offices in this state. Acknowledgments and proofs of execution, including private examinations of any married woman taken before March 20, 1939 by an officer who is or was a stockholder in any federal savings and loan association, are hereby validated. (1913, c. 110, ss. 1, 3; 1939, c. 136; C. S. 3301.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment, which added the last sentence of this section, provides: "Acknowledgments and proofs of execution, including private examinations of any married woman heretofore taken by an officer who is or was a stockholder in any federal savings and loan association, are hereby validated. Provided that the provisions of this Act shall not affect pending litigation."

§ 47-10. Probate before stockholders in banking corporations. — No acknowledgment or proof of execution, including privy examination of married women, of any mortgage, or deed of trust executed to secure the payment of any indebtedness to any banking corporation, taken prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred twenty-nine, shall be held invalid by reason of the fact that the officer taking such acknowledgment, proof or privy examination, was a stockholder or director in such banking corporation. (1929, c. 302, s. 1.)

Acknowledgment before Bank Official.—Under this section where a mortgage is executed on the equity in lands in order to secure endorsers on a note against loss and the note is discounted at a bank, the contract to secure the endorsers against loss is a collateral agreement between the makers and endorsers to which the bank is not a party, and the acknowledgment to the mortgage taken by a official of the bank is valid. Watkins v. Simonds, 202 N. C. 746, 164 S. E. 363.

§ 47-11. Subpœnas to maker and subscribing witnesses.—The grantee or other party to an instrument required or allowed by law to be registered may at his own expense obtain from the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is required to be registered a subpoena for any or all of the makers of or subscribing witnesses to such instrument, commanding such maker or subscribing witness to appear before such clerk at his office at a certain time to give evidence concerning the execution of the instrument. The subpœna shall be directed to the sheriff of the county in which the person upon whom it is to be served resides. If any person refuses to obey such subpœna he is liable to a fine of forty dollars or to be attached for contempt by the clerk, upon its being made to appear to the satisfaction of the clerk that such disobedience was intentional, under the same rules of law as are prescribed in the cases of other defaulting witnesses. (Rev., s. 996; Code, s. 1268; 1899, c. 235, s. 16; 1897, c. 28; C. S. 3302.)

Cross References.—As to powers of clerk, see § 2-16. As to power of clerk to punish for contempt, see § 5-6.

§ 47-12. Proof of attested writing.—If an instrument required or permitted by law to be registered has a subscribing witness and such witness is dead or out of the state, or of unsound mind, the execution of the same may be proved before any official authorized to take the proof and acknowledgment of such instrument by proof of the handwriting of such subscribing witness or of the handwriting of the maker, but this shall not be proof of the execution of instruments by married women. Provided, that no instrument required or permitted by law to be registered shall be proved, probated or ordered to be registered upon the oath and examination of a subscribing witness who is also the grantee named in said instrument, and the registration of any instrument which has been proven and admitted to probate upon the oath and examination of a subscribing witness who is the grantee in said instrument shall be void: Provided further, that nothing herein shall invalidate the registration of any instrument registered prior to the ninth day of April, A.D. one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five. (Rev., s. 997; 1899, c. 235, s. 12; 1935, c. 168; 1937, c. 7; C. S. 3303.)

Editor's Note.—The provisos added by the 1935 amendment were changed by the 1937 amendment. The 1937 amendment omitted the prohibition of registration of an instrument if the witness attesting its execution is the agent or servant of the grantee. This is proper since the interest, if any, of such a witness would seem to be rather remote. It also omitted a former proviso applying the section to agricultural liens. This omission is quite logical since the statute is applicable to all instruments "required or permitted by law to be registered," and agricultural liens fall within such a category. 15 N. C. L. Rev. 337.

§ 47-13. Proof of unattested writing.—If an instrument required or permitted by law to be registered has no subscribing witness, the execution of the same may be proved before any official authorized to take the proof and acknowledgment of such instrument by proof of the handwriting of the maker, but this shall not apply to proof of execution of instruments by married women. (Rev., s. 998; 1899, c. 235, s. 11; C. S. 3304.)

Cross References.—As to proof by attesting witnesses of instruments not required to be attested, see § 8-38. As to proof of handwriting by comparison as evidence, see § 8-40.

Admission to Probate by Proof of Handwriting of the Maker.—A deed having no subscribing witness, may be admitted to probate and registration upon proof of the handwriting of the maker; or, if the subscribing witness be dead, upon proof of his handwriting. Rollins v. Henry, 78 N. C. 342, overruled upon this point. Black v. Justice, 86 N. C. 504.

Proof of Writing of Nonresident by Resident Party. — Where the parties to an instrument requiring registration are nonresidents, except one, the instrument may be probated by proving the handwriting of the nonresident by the resident party. LeRoy v. Jacobosky, 136 N. C. 443, 48 S. E. 796.

§ 47-14. Clerk to pass on certificate and order registration. — When the proof or acknowledgment of the execution of any instrument, required or permitted by law to be registered, is had before any other official than the clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which such instrument is offered for registration, the clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is offered for registration shall, before the same is registered, examine the certificate or certificates of proof or acknowledgment appearing upon the instrument, and if it appears that the instrument has been duly proved or acknowledged and the certificate or certificates to that effect are in due form, he shall so adjudge, and shall order the instrument to be registered, together with the certificates. (Rev., s. 999; 1899, c. 235, s. 7; 1905, c. 414; 1921, c. 91; 1939, c. 210, s. 2; C. S. 3305.)

Cross Reference.—As to form of adjudication and order of registration, see § 47-37.

Elements of Adjudication.—If the certificate is not found in due form, the instrument is rejected. If the certificate is adjudged in due form, then the clerk admits to probate, i. e., probates it, passes upon the certificate as furnishing proof of execution, adjudges as to the genuineness of the certificate, the authority of the officer, and whether the justice or officer certifying is such, and the sufficiency of proof as certified. White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 66, 68, 11 S. E. 177.

Adjudication by Clerk Mandatory.—This section requiring clerks of the superior court to adjudicate upon the probate to a deed for lands situated here is mandatory, and its omission will invalidate the conveyance as against the rights of purchasers and creditors. Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozad, 183 N. C. 600, 112 S. E. 810.

The requirement of this section that the clerk of the court shall pass upon the sufficiency of the probate of a deed is mandatory and not directory. Woodlief v. Woodlief, 192 N. C. 634, 635, 135 S. E. 612.

In Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozad, 183 N. C. 600, 112 S. E. 810, two lines of decisions, one holding that this section is directory, the other holding that it is mandatory, are reviewed and distinguished. The first series, to which belong Holmes v. Marshall, 72 N. C. 37; Young v. Jackson, 92 N. C. 144; Darden v. Neuse, etc., Steamboat Co., 107 N. C. 437, 12 S. E. 46; and Heath v. Lane, 176 N. C. 119, 96 S. E. 889, hold that inasmuch as every clerk of the superior court in North Carolina has equal jurisdiction with every other clerk in respect to probate matters, where the clerk of the court of any county in the state takes the acknowledgment of a deed and orders it to registration, it is not absolutely necessary that the certificate of this clerk be passed upon by the clerk of the court of the county in which the land is situated. In the other series of cases, which includes Simmons v. Gholson, 50 N. C. 401; Evans v. Etheridge, 99 N. C. 43, 5 S. E. 386; White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 11 S. E. 177; and Cozad v. McAden, 148 N. C. 10, 61 S. E. 633, the section is held to be mandatory, but in these cases the probate was taken before some officer other than the clerk of court, judges of the superior court, or justices of the supreme court. In Darden v. Neuse, etc., Steamboat Co., supra, the court apparently limits the doctrine that the statute is directory to cases in which deeds have been acknowledged before other clerks, judges, or justices of the supreme court.

Same—Qualification of the Rule.—While it is held that such act of adjudication and order of registration are directory upon the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land is situated, it is so only where the fiat or order of registration has been properly made by the clerk of another county upon which such power has been conferred by the statute, and in the absence of any proper fiat or order for registration, the conveyance will be ineffectual against the rights of purchasers and creditors of the grantor. Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozad, 183 N. C. 600, 112 S. E. 810.

Same—Where Probate Taken by Foreign Commissioner of Deeds.—The probate to a mortgage of lands situated in North Carolina, taken by the commissioner of deeds in another state, registered without the fiat or order for registration by a clerk of the superior court within the State, and clothed with authority to do so by our statute, is ineffectual as against purchasers or creditors to pass title to the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, or those claiming under him. Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozad, 183 N. C. 600, 112 S. E. 810.

Use of Words "In Due Form" Not Essential to Adjudication.—The adjudication by the clerk of the superior court that "the foregoing instrument has been duly proved, as appears from the foregoing seal and certificate," does not follow the very words of the statute in that it does not adjudge that said probate is "in due form." But it is intelligible and means substantially the same thing and "will be upheld without regard to mere form." Devereux v. McMahon, 102 N. C. 284, 9 S. E. 635. The acknowledgment was before an officer authorized to take it and probate was in fact in due form. The omission, therefore, of the clerk to adjudge in just so many words that the probate was "in due form" when in substance he did so adjudge, was not sufficient ground to exclude the deed. Deans v. Pate, 114 N. C. 194, 196, 19 S. E. 146.

Adjudication Exercise of Judicial Function.—When the clerk of the superior court, upon the certificate of the acknowledgment of a grantor in a conveyance, or of proof of its execution, and privy examination of a married woman by a justice of the peace, adjudges such certificate to be in due form, admits the instrument to probate, and orders its registration, this is the exercise of a judicial function. White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 11 S. E. 177.

Substantial Compliance Sufficient.—A substantial compliance with this section and section 47-37, is all that is necessary to be observed by the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land lay, in passing upon the certificate to a deed thereto made and executed in another state; and when objection to the validity of registration is made on that ground, and it appears of record on appeal that the certificate made in such other state is in fact sufficient, the validity of the registration will be declared and upheld by the Supreme Court. Kleybolte & Co. v. Black Mountain Timber Co., 151 N. C. 635, 66 S. E. 663.

Certificate of Probate or Acknowledgment Necessary Even if Probate Made before Clerk.—The statutes of North Carolina require, as the method of authentication and warrant to the register to record a deed, that a certificate complying substantially with the terms of the statute shall be attached to or indorsed upon the deed, even though probate is had before the clerk of the superior court, and where no sufficient certificate was attached to or indorsed upon an instrument, it could not be shown by parol that proper proof was made before the clerk. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102, 103.

Registration No Evidence of Adjudication without Signed Certificate of Clerk.—Where a justice of the peace has properly and in due form taken the acknowledgment of the grantor and his wife to a deed to lands, and the clerk of the court has failed or omitted to sign his name to the certificate for registration, the registration of the instrument is no evidence that the clerk or his deputy has complied with the provisions of this section requiring the clerk, etc., to adjudicate the sufficiency of the certificate of the justice of the peace, or permit a copy of such deed to be used in evidence under the provisions of section 8-18. The curative statutes, §§ 47-49, 47-86, 47-87, 47-88 and 47-89, have no application. Woodlief v. Woodlief, 192 N. C. 634, 135 S. E. 612.

No Adjudication When Instrument Proved before Clerk.—It is only required for a valid probate that the clerk should certify to the proof of a deed taken before him and it is only when he passes upon a probate taken before some other officer that he is required to certify to the correctness of the probate and certificate, and order the instrument to be registered. Table Rock Lumber Co. v. Branch, 158 N. C. 251, 73 S. E. 154.

Adjudication of Instrument Probated in Another State.—When a deed in trust made and executed beyond the borders of this State conveying lands herein has been there acknowledged and probated before a notary public, and (unnecessarily) the clerk of the Supreme Court in compliance with a statute there, has certified the official character of the notary and his authority as such, it is a sufficient compliance with this and section 47-37, for the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land lay, to certify that "the foregoing and annexed certificate of (naming the clerk), a clerk of the Supreme Court, etc., duly authenticated by his official seal, is adjudged to be correct, in due form and according to law, and the foregoing and annexed deed of trust is adjudged to be duly proved, etc." Kleybolte & Co. v. Black Mountain Timber Co., 151 N. C. 635, 66 S. E. 663.

Certificate of Clerk for Registration of Grant by State Not Required.—The certificate of the clerk of the court, required as a prerequisite to the registration of instruments of writing named therein, is not essential to the validity of the registration of a grant; the great seal of the State being sufficient authority for such registration. Ray v. Stewart, 105 N. C. 472, 11 S. E. 182.

Presumption of Regularity from Clerk's Certificate.—Where it appears that the clerk appended to a lease offered for registration his certificate, it will be presumed, nothing to the contrary appearing, that it was in due form. Darden v. Neuse, etc., Steamboat Co., 107 N. C. 437, 12 S. E. 46.

Defective Corporate Deed—Invalid Notwithstanding Adjudication.—A corporate deed of trust was executed by the trustee, as well as the corporation, and bore a notary's certificate of proof of the trustee's execution, and a certificate of the clerk that the instrument had been duly proved, "as appears from the foregoing seals and certificate, which are adjudged to be in due form and according to law," but no certificate as to the proof of execution by the corporation was attached. It was held, under this section that the clerk's certificate was invalid, and did not entitle the deed to registration. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102, 103.

Ancient Document Rule.—Plaintiffs claimed the locus in quo under seven years adverse possession under color and under twenty years adverse possession. Defendants objected to certain deeds in plaintiffs' chain of color of title on the ground that they were improperly registered and did not comply with this and section 47-17. It was held the deeds, having been on record for some thirty years, were competent under the ancient document rule to be submitted to the jury on the claim of adverse possession for twenty years, and error, if any, in admitting the deeds as color of title was not prejudicial under the facts. Owens v. Blackwood Lbr. Co., 212 N. C. 133, 193 S. E. 219.

§ 47-15. Probate of husband's deed where wife insane.—When a deed executed by a married man whose wife is insane or a lunatic, and whose homestead has been allotted, together with the certificate of the clerk of the superior court or with the certificate of the superintendent of the insane institution of the state where the wife is confined in conformity to section 39-14 under the chapter Conveyances, is offered for probate before the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land conveyed is situated, and the execution of such deed is acknowledged or proved, the clerk shall adjudge whether the certificate of the superintendent or the clerk is in due form, and if adjudged to be in due form he shall order the registration of the deed and certificate. (Rev., s. 1000; 1905, c. 138, s. 2; 1919, c. 20; C. S. 3306.)

§ 47-16. Probate of corporate deeds, where corporation has ceased to exist.—It is competent for the clerk of the superior court in any county in this state, on proof before him upon the oath and examination of the subscribing witness to any contract or instrument required to be registered under the laws of this state, to adjudge and order that such contract or instrument be registered as by law provided, when such contract or instrument is signed by any corporation in its corporate name by its president, and when such corporation has been out of existence for more than ten years when the said contract or instrument is offered for probate and registration, and when the grantee and those claiming under any such grantee have been in the uninterrupted possession of the property described in said contract or instrument since the date of its execution; and said contract or instrument so probated and registered shall be as effective to all intents and purposes as if signed, sealed, and acknowledged, or proven, as provided under the existing laws of this state. (1911, c. 44, s. 1; C. S. 3307.)

Cross Reference.—As to forms of probate for deeds and other conveyances by corporations, see § 47-41.

Art. 2. Registration.

§ 47-17. Probate and registration sufficient without livery.—All deeds, contracts or leases, before registration, except those executed prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and seventy, shall be acknowledged by the grantor, lessor or the person executing the same, or their signature proven on oath by one or more witnesses in the manner prescribed by law, and all deeds executed and registered according to law shall be valid, and pass title and estates without livery of seizin, attornment or other ceremony. (Rev., s. 979; Code, s. 1245; 1885, c. 147, s. 3; 29, Ch. II, c. 3; R. C., c. 37, s. 1; 1715, c. 7; 1756, c. 58, s. 3; 1838-9, c. 33; 1905, c. 277; C. S. 3308.)

Purpose of Section.—This section together with section 47-20 were intended to uproot all secret liens, trusts, unregistered mortgages, etc., and under its force it has been held that no notice, however full and formal, will supply the place of registration. Robinson v. Willoughby, 70 N. C. 358; Hooker v. Nichols, 116 N. C. 157, 160, 21 S. E. 207.

Application to All Deeds.—The construction first put upon this section was, that it only applied to such deeds as operated at common law by livery of seizin. Hogan v. Strayhorn, 65 N. C. 279. But our courts, in their policy of relaxing the rigid and technical rules of common law, have since extended the construction so as to bring all of our deeds of conveyance within the purview of that statute. Thus it has been held that deeds of bargain and sale and covenants to stand seized to uses are put on the same footing with feoffments at common law, with respect to seizin, the declaration of uses thereon, and the consideration. Love v. Harbin, 87 N. C. 249; Ivy v. Cranberry, 66 N. C. 224. Prior to that statute, and the more recent interpretation upon it, if there was a deed of bargain and sale upon a consideration, the consideration raised a use for the bargainee, and then the statute transferred the legal estate to the uses, that is, to the bargainee, but no further use could be declared by the deed, for it was held a use could not be mounted upon a use. But there is no reason now why it may not be done, since the registration of the deed has all the effect of livery of seizin. Jones v. Jones, 164 N. C. 320, 324, 80 S. E. 430.

All Registered Deeds Put on Same Footing with Feoffment.—This section in terms at least, does not give to registered deeds the effect of conveyances with livery, but on the contrary enacts that registered deeds without livery shall pass title. It is, however, settled law in North Carolina that by the statute all registered deeds "are put on the same footing with feoffments at common law, with respect to seizin, the declaration of uses thereon, and the consideration." Bryan v. Eason, (1908) 147 N. C. 284, 61 S. E. 71. That is, because the statute has abolished livery, all registered deeds operate as if they were given with livery. 1 N. C. Law Rev. 155.

Probate May Be Sufficient as Contract.—While the order of probate cannot authorize the registration of an instrument in the form of a deed which has been defectively executed, it is sufficient, nevertheless, to authorize its registration as a contract to convey, which is expressly provided for in this and the following section. Haas v. Rendleman, 62 F. (2d) 701.

Subsequently Acquired Title—Estoppel.—See article in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 153, as to relation of this section to the doctrine of estoppel and rebutter where the grantor at the time of conveyance has no interest in the property conveyed but subsequently acquires title thereto.

Registration between Parties Not Necessary to Validity of Conveyance.—See annotations to § 47-18.

Evidence Supporting Judgment for Recovery of Land.—Evidence showing good record title in plaintiff, without any record evidence of title in defendant, held to support judgment for plaintiff for recovery of land. Knowles v. Wallace, 210 N. C. 603, 188 S. E. 195.

§ 47-18. Conveyances, contracts to convey, and leases of land.—No conveyance of land, or contract to convey, or lease of land for more than three years shall be valid to pass any property, as against creditors or purchasers for a valuable consideration, from the donor, bargainor or lessor, but from the registration thereof within the county where the land lies: Provided, the provisions of this section shall not apply to contracts, leases or deeds executed prior to March first, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, until the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-six; and no purchase from any such donor, bargainor or lessor shall avail or pass title as against any unregistered deed executed prior to the first day of December, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, when the person holding or claiming under such unregistered deed shall be in the actual possession and enjoyment of such land, either in person or by his tenant, at the time of the execution of such second deed, or when the person claiming under or taking such second deed had at the time of taking or purchasing under such deed actual or constructive notice of such unregistered deed, or the claim of the person holding or claiming thereunder. (Rev., s. 980; Code, s. 1245; 1885, c. 147, s. 1; C. S. 3309.)

I. IN GENERAL.

The object of probate and registration in the county where the land lies was intended to give notice to creditors and purchasers for value, or others whose rights might otherwise be seriously and unjustly impaired by the deed. Warren v. Williford, 148 N. C. 474, 62 S. E. 697; Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 266, 75 S. E. 800; Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438.

The purpose of the registration laws is to give notice, and where the index is sufficient to put a careful and prudent examiner upon inquiry, the records are notice of all matters which would be discovered by reasonable inquiry, but the records are intended to be self-sufficient, and a person examining a title is not required to go out upon the premises and ascertain who is in possession and under what claim, the proviso of this section being applicable only to deeds executed prior to 1 December, 1885. Dorman v. Goodman, 213 N. C. 406, 196 S. E. 352.

The purpose of this section was to enable purchasers to rely with safety upon the examination of the records, and act upon the assurance that, as against all persons claiming under the "donor, bargainor, or lessor," what did not appear did not exist. Grimes v. Guion, 220 N. C. 676, 679, 18 S. E. (2d) 170.

An unregistered deed does not convey complete title and is ineffectual as against subsequent grantees under registered deeds and creditors of the grantor. Glass v. Lynchburg Shoe Co., 212 N. C. 70, 192 S. E. 899.

Not Applicable to Grants.—This section does not apply to grants, the registration of which is regulated by sections 146-47 and 146-48. Wyman v. Taylor, 124 N. C. 426, 32 S. E. 740.

Date of Registration Controls Title as against Purchasers.—Under this section a grantee in a deed acquires title thereto, as against subsequent purchasers for value, from the date of the registration of the instrument. Sills v. Ford, 171 N. C. 733, 88 S. E. 636.

Liberal Construction of Proviso.—The words of the proviso should receive a liberal construction so as to give full force and effect to the spirit and intention of the section. Cowen v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 737, 17 S. E. 575.

Similar Construction with Section 47-20.—This section and section 47-20 in view of the similarity of their terminology, may be construed interchangeably. Cowen v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 740, 17 S. E. 575.

Lis pendens and registration each have the purpose of giving constructive notice by record, and this section and § 1-117 must be construed in pari materia, and while the lis pendens statutes do not affect the registration laws, the converse is not true. Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438.

Registry Does Not Cure Lack of Mental Capacity, though Prior Deed Unregistered.—Where a deed, void for mental incapacity of the grantor to make it, is registered prior to one theretofore made by the same grantor, for a valuable consideration, when he had sufficient mental capacity, the registration under this section can give no effect to the invalid deed, and the valid deed, though subsequently registered, will be effective. Thompson v. Thomas, 163 N. C. 500, 79 S. E. 896.

Effect of Amendment of 1885, Connor Act.—Under this section a conveyance of land, made prior to the amendment of 1885, is not valid against creditors or bona fide purchasers, unless registered before 1 January, 1886. Phillips v. Hodges, 109 N. C. 248, 13 S. E. 769.

Where plaintiff's deed was executed fraudulently, in which fraud plaintiff participated, for the purpose of depriving defendant of her life estate in the land, theretofore created by paper writing executed by plaintiff's grantor, this section does not apply, and defendant's rights are superior to those of plaintiff under the registered deed, even though the paper writing giving defendant a life estate was not registered, since the protection of this section extends only to creditors and purchasers for value. Twitty v. Cochran, 214 N. C. 265, 199 S. E. 29.

Conversion in Partition Proceedings—Registration before Confirmation of Sale.—In a sale of lands in proceedings for partition, the conversion from realty to personalty does not take place until the land is sold and the sale confirmed by the court. Therefore, an unregistered deed made by some of the cotenants of their interest in the lands held in common is not good as against a subsequently made and registered deed by the same grantors of the same interest, to another, after the decree of sale for partition, but before the sale was confirmed. McLean v. Leitch, 152 N. C. 266, 67 S. E. 490.

Registered Deed Good Although Deed to Grantor Was Unregistered.—Upon registration, the deed is good even as against creditors and purchasers for value, even though the deed by which the grantor acquired title is unregistered. Durham v. Pollard, 219 N. C. 750, 14 S. E. (2d) 818.

Applied in Fidelity, etc., Co. v. Massachusetts Mut. Life Ins. Co., 74 F. (2d) 881.

Cited in Johnson v. Fry, 195 N. C. 832, 836, 143 S. E. 857, holding the section not applicable; Jones v. Rhea, 198 N. C. 190, 151 S. E. 255; Threlkeld v. Malcragson Land Co., 198 N. C. 186, 151 S. E. 99; Tocci v. Nowfall, 220 N. C. 550, 18 S. E. (2d) 225.

II. REGISTRATION AS BETWEEN THE PARTIES.

Formerly Registration Prerequisite Even as between Parties.—The provision of this section prior to its amendment, as construed in White v. Holly, 91 N. C. 67, was that "no conveyance of land nor contract to convey, etc., shall be good and available in law, unless the same shall be acknowledged by the grantor, or proved, etc., and registered." At the next session of the General Assembly the law was so amended as to provide that "no conveyance of land or contract to convey, shall be valid to pass any property, as against creditors or purchasers for a valuable consideration from the doner, bargainor or lessor, but from the registration thereof in the county where the land lies." The manifest purpose of this section therefore, is to protect purchasers for value and creditors, and leave the parties to contracts for the sale of lands inter se to litigate their rights under the rules of evidence in force. Hargrove v. Adcock, 111 N. C. 166, 167, 170, 16 S. E. 16.

At Present Instrument Good between Parties without Registration.—A deed is good and valid between the parties thereto without registration, and may be proved on the trial as at common law. Warren v. Williford, 148 N. C. 474, 62 S. E. 697; Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 266, 75 S. E. 800; Glass v. Lynchburg Shoe Co., 212 N. C. 70, 192 S. E. 899.

Contracts to convey land, as between the parties thereto, may be read in evidence without being registered. Hargrove v. Adcock, 111 N. C. 166, 16 S. E. 16.

An unregistered deed is good as between the parties and the fact that it is not registered does not affect the equities between the parties, the sole purpose of the statute being to determine and make certain the question of title. Patterson v. Bryant, 216 N. C. 550, 5 S. E. (2d) 849.

Same—Deed Effective under Statute of Uses.—Under this section registration is not necessary to the validity of a deed for valuable consideration, effective under the Statute of Uses, as between the parties. In cases where livery of seisin was formerly required registration still supplies the place of that ceremony. Hinton v. Moore, 139 N. C. 44, 46, 51 S. E. 787.

Same—Registration after Commencement of Action.—As between the parties, there being no question of title arising from prior registration of junior deeds, a deed registered after the commencement of an action is admissible in evidence. Hudson v. Jordan, 108 N. C. 10, 12 S. E. 1029.

Same—Analogy with Section 47-20.—The Connor Act (the amendment to this section) has substantially the same legal effect upon deeds that the Act of 1829 had upon mortgages and deeds in trust (Robinson v. Willoughby, 70 N. C. 358, 362), leaving them, although unregistered, valid as between the parties and as to all others except purchasers for value, and creditors. King v. McRackan, 168 N. C. 621, 624, 84 S. E. 1027.

The registration laws are not for the protection of the grantor, and therefore laches on the part of his first grantee in failing to promptly record his deed is not available as an equitable defense in such grantee's action for damages for failure of title by reason of the execution by the grantor of a second deed to the same property which is first recorded. Patterson v. Bryant, 216 N. C. 550, 5 S. E. (2d) 849.

Quoted in Tucker v. Almond, 209 N. C. 333, 183 S. E. 407.

III. WHAT INSTRUMENTS AFFECTED.

Instruments in Writing Dealing with Estates Which Lie in Grant.—It will be observed that this section, in terms, applies only to conveyances of land, contracts to convey, and leases of land for more than three years. Such instruments deal with estates that lie in grant, and therefore, are required to be in writing under the statute of frauds and under the law of North Carolina. Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 220, 117 S. E. 32.

Same—Parol and Implied Trusts Not Affected.—The primary purpose and intent of the Legislature, in the passage of this act, was to establish a known and ready method for the settlement of conflicting claims and priorities arising from registrations. Hence, from its very nature and purpose it would seem to require that it be restricted to written instruments capable of being registered. There are certain parol trusts, and those created by operation of law, dealing with beneficial interests in lands, which are fully recognized in this jurisdiction. Jones v. Jones, 164 N. C. 320, 80 S. E. 430, and cases there cited. And it has been held with us consistently that these trusts, though resting in parol, or not evidenced by any writing, may be enforced against the holder of the legal title, unless it appear that such holder, or some one under whom he claims, has acquired his title for a fair and reasonable value and without notice of the trust. Here it will be observed that a bona fide purchaser for value without notice (but not a creditor) is protected against the claim of one in whose favor the trust is sought to be established, not by virtue of the terms of this section, but on the broad principles of equity. Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 220, 117 S. E. 32; Sills v. Ford, 171 N. C. 733, 88 S. E. 636; Pritchard v. Williams, 175 N. C. 319, 95 S. E. 570; Roberts v. Massey, 185 N. C. 164, 116 S. E. 407; Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 21, 128 S. E. 494.

Parol trusts, and those created by operation of law, such as are recognized in this jurisdiction, do not come within the meaning and purview of this section. These trusts were purposely omitted from its terms for the reason that, being incapable of registration because not in writing, it was considered unfair and subversive of right to destroy them in favor of one who had acquired his title with full knowledge of their existence. See concurring opinion of Hoke, J., in Pritchard v. Williams, 175 N. C. 319, 95 S. E. 570, and opinion of Connor, J., author of the act, in Wood v. Tinsley, 138 N. C. 507, 51 S. E. 59. See, also, Roberts v. Massey, 185 N. C. 164, 116 S. E. 407; Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 220, 117 S. E. 32; Sansom v. Warren, 215 N. C. 432, 2 S. E. (2d) 459.

Certain parol trusts in land are enforceable in this jurisdiction when the holder of the legal title, or those claiming under him, have not acquired it for a fair and reasonable value without notice; and this section requiring notice by registration as against creditors or purchasers for a valuable consideration from the donor, bargainor, or lessor, necessarily, in contemplation of the express provisions of the statute, refer to such instruments as are in writing and capable of registration. Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 117 S. E. 32.

When the plaintiff seeks to engraft a parol trust in his favor against the holder of the legal title to lands, only a bona fide purchaser for value without notice is protected, and this under the broad principles of equity, and creditors expressly referred to in this section, are not included, Spence v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 117 S. E. 32.

A declaration of trust is not a conveyance, or contract to convey, or lease of land, requiring registration as against creditors, by virtue of the provisions of this section. Crossett v. McQueen, 205 N. C. 48, 51, 169 S. E. 829.

Contracts to Sell—The One First Registered Prevails. — Among two or more contracts to sell land, the one first registered will confer the superior right. Combes v. Adams, 150 N. C. 64, 68, 63 S. E. 186.

Wills Not Affected—Purchaser under a Will Not Purchaser for Value.—The evil which it was intended to remedy by this section was the uncertainty of title to real estate caused by persons withholding deeds, contracts, etc., based upon a valuable consideration, from the public records. This evil could not exist in regard to wills, where the devisee is not a purchaser for value, but takes as a donee or volunteer. Bell v. Couch, 132 N. C. 346, 349, 43 S. E. 911.

Hence it is not necessary to examine the book of wills to see if the grantor of lands has devised them, or a part thereof, to another, and actual notice thereof will not affect the title conveyed by a registered deed. Harris v. Dudley Lumber Co., 147 N. C. 631, 61 S. E. 604.

Same—Will Not a Conveyance.—Looking to the purpose of the Legislature and the meaning of the language used, the statute can not by construction include wills under the general term "conveyance." Bell v. Couch, 132 N. C. 346, 349, 43 S. E. 911.

Same—But Purchaser from Devisee Prevails against Unregistered Deed.—This section requiring conveyances of land, contracts to convey, and leases to be recorded, applies when the grantee in a deed fails to record his deed until after the probate of a will of the grantor devising the same land, and after the registration of a deed for the same land from the devisee to a purchaser for value. Bell v. Couch, 132 N. C. 346, 43 S. E. 911.

What Included in Phrase "Unregistered Deed" in Proviso.—The use of the words "unregistered deed" in the proviso is in their broad generic sense and has reference to the same scope as the words "conveyance of land, or contract to convey, or lease of land," used in the first part of the section. McNeill v. Allen, 146 N. C. 283, 59 S. E. 689.

Agreement for Division of Proceeds of Sale Not Affected.—An instrument which is neither a conveyance of land, nor a contract to convey, nor lease of land, but only an agreement for a division of the proceeds of sales thereafter to be made of land and authority to one to take entire control and management of sales of land for the parties, is not required to be registered. Lenoir v. Valley River Min. Co., 113 N. C. 513, 18 S. E. 73.

Applies to Both Lost and Unlost Deeds.—This section applies both to lost and unlost deeds executed after 1 December, 1885, and there was no error in rejecting parol evidence to show that the plaintiff's grantor deeded the land in controversy to W. in 1891 and that the said deed had been lost before registration, where the plaintiff was purchaser for value of said title under registered conveyances. Hinton v. Moore, 139 N. C. 44, 51 S. E. 787.

Lease in Writing.—In order to affect with notice and bind a purchaser of lands to a contract of lease for more than three years made by a tenant with a former owner, it is necessary that the lease be registered in the proper county, and, consequently, the lease must be in writing. Mauney v. Norvell, 179 N. C. 628, 103 S. E. 372.

Mortgages Included.—Mortgages have been uniformly held to be conveyances of the legal title, and require the formality of a conveyance in their assignment as against purchasers for value, and, therefore, as against purchasers, the legal title vested in the mortgagee comes within the provisions of the registration act, and this section includes mortgages within its terms. First Nat. Bank v. Sauls, 183 N. C. 165, 170, 110 S. E. 865.

Creation of Building Restrictions Included. — A building restriction, being an easement, which must be created by a grant is within this section. Davis v. Robinson, 189 N. C. 589, 127 S. E. 697.

Rents Accruing Included.—While rents accrued are choses in action and an assignment thereof need not be recorded. rents accruing are incorporeal hereditaments which, if for a period of more than three years, must be registered to pass any property as against purchasers for valuable consideration. First, etc., Nat. Bank v. Sawyer, 218 N. C. 142, 10 S. E. (2d) 656.

IV. RIGHTS OF PERSONS PROTECTED.

In General.—By virtue of this section only creditors of the donor, bargainor, or lessor, and purchasers for value are protected against an unregistered deed, contract to convey, or lease of land for more than three years. Gosney v. McCullers, 202 N. C. 326, 162 S. E. 746; Case v. Arnold, 215 N. C. 593, 2 S. E. (2d) 694; Durham v. Pollard, 219 N. C. 750, 752, 14 S. E. (2d) 818; Warren v. Williford, 148 N. C. 474, 62 S. E. 697; Virginia-Carolina Joint Stock Land Bank v. Mitchell, 203 N. C. 339, 166 S. E. 69.

In Lowery v. Wilson, 214 N. C. 800, 200 S. E. 861, it was held that creditors and purchasers for value are entitled to rely on the record of the instrument as written and recorded, under this and § 47-20, and as to them the mortgagee is not entitled to reformation.

Right to Easement.—Under this section where a grantor conveys land by registered deed creating an easement in land reserved by grantor, his grantee is entitled to the easement unaffected by an unregistered contract to convey the reserved land executed prior to the deed. Walker v. Phelps, 202 N. C. 344, 162 S. E. 727.

Where a deed provides that it is subject to a written lease previously executed by the grantor, the grantee takes the premises subject to the lease although the lease is for more than three years and is not recorded. Hildebrand Machinery Co. v. Post, 204 N. C. 744, 169 S. E. 629.

Creditors Put upon the Same Plane as Purchasers.—No distinction is made in the statute or in the opinions of the court, construing and applying the statute, between creditors and purchasers for value. No conveyance of land is valid to pass any property from the donor or grantor, as against either creditors or purchasers for value, but from the registration thereof. As to a purchaser for value, who has recorded his deed, it has been held that a prior deed from the same grantor, unregistered, does not exist, as a conveyance or as color of title. The same is true as against the creditors. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 19, 128 S. E. 494.

Volunteers and Donees Not Protected.—This section for lack of timely registration, only postpones or subordinates a deed older in date to creditors and purchasers for value. As against volunteers or donees, the older deed, though not registered, will, as a rule, prevail. Tyner v. Barnes, 142 N. C. 110, 113, 54 S. E. 1008.

While the cancellation of a preëxisting debt may be sufficient consideration to constitute the grantee in a registered deed from the debtor a purchaser for value within the protection of the Conner Act, so as to take free from the claim of the grantee in a prior unregistered deed from the debtor, where the debtor transfers the property without consideration to a third person, who in turn transfers the property to the creditor without any consideration moving from the creditor to such third person, the creditor cannot maintain that the cancellation of the debt constitutes him a purchaser for value so as to be protected under the Conner Act, since his deed from the third person is not supported by any consideration, and it is required that the creditor be a "purchaser for value from the donor, bargainor, or lessor" in order to be protected. Sansom v. Warren, 215 N. C. 432, 2 S. E. (2d) 459.

The trustee in bankruptcy is regarded as a purchaser for value under the amendment to the Bankrupt Act of 1910, and acquires a valid title as against the holder of the unregistered deed, under this section. Lynch v. Johnson, 171 N. C. 611, 89 S. E. 61. This is also true under the Chandler Act, the 1938 amendment to the National Bankruptcy Act.

Dower Where Title Divested Prior to Marriage.—Where a man executed and delivered a deed to a tract of land prior to his marriage and remained on the land up to his death, and the deed was not recorded until after his death, his widow is not entitled to dower. She is not a purchaser. Haire v. Haire, 141 N. C. 88, 53 S. E. 340.

Possessor under Unregistered Contract to Convey—Rights to Improvements.—One who goes into possession of land, under a parol contract to convey, paying the purchase money and making improvements thereon, cannot assert the right to remain in possession until he is repaid the amount expended for purchase money and improvements as against a purchaser for value from the vendor, under a duly registered deed. Wood v. Tinsley 138 N. C. 507, 51 S. E. 59. As to a purchaser for value, from the common grantor, the rule applies to one in possession, under an unregistered deed, who has enhanced the value of the land by improvements, although made in good faith. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 21, 128 S. E. 494. Expressions in Kelly v. Johnson, 135 N. C. 647, 47 S. E. 674, conflicting with these views, were obiter and were corrected by Wood v. Tinsley, supra.

Tort Feasor Neither a Purchaser Nor a Creditor.—A tort feasor, whose negligence has damaged a chattel in the rightful possession of the mortgagor, is neither a purchaser nor creditor within the contemplation of our registration laws, §§ 47-18, 47-20, and 47-23, and in action may be maintained against him for the consequent damage either by the mortgagor or mortgagee, and a settlement with one will preclude a recovery by the other. Harris v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 190 N. C. 480, 130 S. E. 319.

Trustee or Mortgagee as Purchaser.—A trustee or mortgagee, whether for old or new debts, is a purchaser for valuable consideration. Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191.

Priorities between Unregistered Deed and Execution of Judgment.—A sale of land under the execution of a judgment in the due course and practice of the court, and conveyance to the purchaser at the sale, regular in form and sufficiently describing the land, conveys the title superior to that of an unregistered deed from the judgment debtor to another, previously made, no notice, however formal, being sufficient to supply that required by registration; though a mortgage for the balance of the purchase price had been given by the grantee of the debtor, and duly registered before the docketing of the judgment, under the execution of which the conveyance had been made to the purchaser at the sale. Wimes v. Hufham, 185 N. C. 178, 116 S. E. 402.

Purchaser under Execution Sale — Prior Purchaser in Possession.—The purchaser at execution sale who registers his deed prior to a deed from the defendant in execution to his wife, which was executed before the sale, acquires the title to the land; and the wife in possession of the land conjointly with her husband at the time of the sale and of the execution of the sheriff's deed to the plaintiff, is not within the saving clause of the act, as the plaintiff does not take as purchaser from the "donor, bargainor or lessor," as against a donee in possession under an unregistered deed, but from the sheriff, who is the agent of the law. Cowen v. Withrow, 109 N. C. 636, 13 S. E. 1022.

Extent of Judgment Creditor's or Execution Sale Purchaser's Right.—A judgment creditor or purchaser at an execution sale can acquire no greater lien or interest in the property of the judgment debtor than such debtor had at the time the judgment lien became effective. Bristol v. Hallyburton, 93 N. C. 384, 387; Spense v. Foster Pottery Co., 185 N. C. 218, 117 S. E. 32.

Rights of Creditor Whose Judgment Docketed between Execution and Registration of Prior Deed.—The grantee, in a deed executed by the grantor and deposited with the holder of a mortgage under an agreement between the latter and the grantee that it should not be registered until the payment of the purchase price, took subject to the lien of a judgment creditor of the grantor, whose judgment was rendered and docketed between execution and registration of the deed. Board v. Micks, 118 N. C. 162, 24 S. E. 729.

Execution Purchaser with Notice Prior to 1885, Subordinate to Prior Unregistered Deed.—The proviso that no purchase of land from a donor, bargainor or lessor shall avail or pass title as against any unregistered deed executed prior to 1 December, 1885, where there is constructive or actual notice, applies as well to a purchaser of land at an execution sale with actual notice as to a purchaser from the "bargainor or lessor." Cowen v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 17 S. E. 575.

Priority of Judgment Obtained before Registration of Prior Deed.—Where a judgment is obtained against a grantor of lands subsequent to the execution of the conveyance, but prior to the time of its registration, the lien of the judgment has priority over the title of the grantee, and the lands conveyed are subject to execution under the judgment. Maxton Realty Co. v. Carter, 170 N. C. 5, 86 S. E. 714.

The lien of a regularly docketed judgment is superior to a claim under an unrecorded deed from the judgment debtor. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 128 S. E. 494.

Same—Agreement between Parties as to Registration.—Under the provisions of this section the holder of a subsequently registered conveyance takes subject to the lien of a judgment creditor of the grantor where the judgment was rendered and docketed before the registration of the deed, even though there was an agreement between the grantor and the grantee that such deed should not be registered till the payment of the purchase money. Board v. Micks, 118 N. C. 162, 24 S. E. 729; Bostic v. Young, 116 N. C. 766, 21 S. E. 552; Francis v. Herren, 101 N. C. 497, 8 S. E. 353; Colonial Trust Co. v. Sterchie Bros., 169 N. C. 21, 24, 85 S. E. 40.

Same—Judgment against Grantee.—Where a judgment has been obtained and docketed against the grantee, the lien thereof immediately attaches upon the registraion of his deed, and cannot be defeated by a deed in trust subsequently registered and carrying out the agreement theretofore resting only in parol; and the consideration recited in grantee's deed is immaterial. Colonial Trust Co. v. Sterchie Bros., 169 N. C. 21, 85 S. E. 40.

Collateral Attack by Creditors for Want of Registration.—The want of registration does not invalidate the instrument so that creditors, merely as such, may treat it as a nullity in a collateral proceeding; but it is void against proceedings, instituted by them and prosecuted to a sale of the property or acquirement of a lien, as against all who derive title thereunder. Boyd v. Turpin, 94 N. C. 137; Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191; Francis v. Herren, 101 N. C. 507, 8 S. E. 353.

V. NOTICE.

No Notice Will Supply Want of Registration.—No notice, however full or formal, will supply the want of registration of a deed. Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106, 43 S. E. 579. See Knowles v. Wallace, 210 N. C. 603, 188 S. E. 195; Case v. Arnold, 215 N. C. 593, 2 S. E. (2d) 694; Grimes v. Guion, 220 N. C. 676, 18 S. E. (2d) 170; Turner v. Glenn, 220 N. C. 620, 18 S. E. (2d) 197.

Where defendant alleged that she went into possession of the land, paid taxes and made improvements under a parol agreement with the owner that if the owner should fail to return and repay the taxes and pay for the improvements defendant should have the land in fee, and that plaintiff, seeking to recover possession of the land by virtue of a duly registered deed from the heirs of the vendor, took with knowledge of the terms of the agreement and that defendant was in possession thereunder, it was held that the parol agreement was ineffectual as against plaintiff notwithstanding his knowledge, since no notice, however full and formal, will supply notice by registration as required by this section. Grimes v. Guion, 220 N. C. 676, 18 S. E. (2d) 170.

A deed to lands registered under this section, conveys title as against any unregistered deed though previously executed to the knowledge of the grantee of the later deed, no notice supplying the place of registration, though the claimant is in possession; the provision of this section as to such possession is restricted to deeds executed prior to 1 December, 1885. Lanier v. Roper Lumber Co., 177 N. C. 200, 98 S. E. 593.

No notice however full and formal as to the existence of a prior deed can take the place of registration. McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 659, 146 S. E. 713.

Ordinarily, a person interested in a transaction involving title to land may rely upon the public records, and a grantee, mortgagee, or trustee for value in registered instruments takes title conveyed in such instruments free from claims arising from prior unregistered instruments, and no notice, however full and formal, will supply want of registration. Smith v. Turnage-Winslow Co., 212 N. C. 310, 193 S. E. 685.

This section provides, for reasons of public policy, that the rights of successive grantees of the same property shall be determined by registration, and that even actual knowledge on the part of the grantee in a registered instrument of the execution of a prior unregistered deed will not defeat his title as purchaser for a valuable consideration in the absence of fraud or matters creating an estoppel. Patterson v. Bryant, 216 N. C. 550, 5 S. E. (2d) 849.

See note under § 47-20.

In order for a registered deed to give constructive notice to creditors or purchasers for value, the probate must not be defective upon its face as to a material requirement, and where the probate is taken upon the examination of an attesting witness it must actually or constructively appear upon the face of the probate that the certificate was made upon evidence taken of the subscribing witness under oath, and if not so appearing the registration of the deed is insufficient to give the statutory notice. McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 146 S. E. 713.

Possession No Notice after 1885.—The mere possession of the locus in quo under an unregistered ninety-nine year lease or any other circumstances is not sufficient notice to the owner of the fee under a valid paper chain of title. Dye v. Morrison, 181 N. C. 309, 107 S. E. 138.

Possession as Notice Only as to Deeds before 1885.—The proviso making actual possession notice to subsequent purchasers, applies only to deeds executed prior to 1 December, 1885. Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106, 43 S. E. 579.

A deed executed prior to the Registration Act of 1885, ch. 147, but not registered until after the registration of a mortgage from the same grantor, is competent evidence to show title in the grantee, he being in possession before the passage of the said act. Laton v. Crowell, 136 N. C. 377, 48 S. E. 767.

Doctrine of Estoppel Not Applicable.—The equitable doctrine of estoppel has no application to an innocent purchaser of lands for a valuable consideration, where the party setting up the estoppel under his deed has not had the latter recorded; for no notice, however full or formal, will, under this section, supply the place of registration. Sexton v. Elizabeth City, 169 N. C. 385, 86 S. E. 344.

VI. EFFECT OF DEFECTIVE REGISTRATION.

Registration of Defectively Probated Deed Ineffective. — The registration of a deed executed outside of the State with defective probate is without authority and ineffective for any purpose; such a deed previously executed and so registered, unless probated and registered prior to January 1, 1866, takes effect to pass the legal title only from the date of lawful registration, and is invalid as against a conveyance made and registered in the meantime under a decree of court against the grantor which left in him no title to pass thereunder. United States v. Hiawassee Lumber Co., 202 Fed. 35.

The registration of a deed upon an unauthorized probate is invalid, and it cannot be introduced in evidence for the purpose of showing an essential link in the chain of title. Allen v. Burch, 142 N. C. 524, 525, 55 S. E. 354.

While a defective probate of a deed to lands appearing upon its face is ineffectual to pass title as against creditors, etc., it is otherwise when the probate appears to have been in conformity with law, regularly taken by a notary public in some other state and there is no evidence that the grantee in the commissioner's deed under the foreclosure of a mortgage had actual notice of the defect. County Sav. Bank v. Tolbert, 192 N. C. 126, 133 S. E. 558.

VII. UNREGISTERED DEED AS COLOR OF TITLE.

Unregistered Deed as Color of Title—Synopsis of Law.—Formerly an unregistered deed was in all cases color of title if sufficient in form (Hunter v. Kelly, 92 N. C. 285), but after the passage of the Conner Act it was held in Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338, that an unregistered deed was not color of title.

The question was again considered in Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106, 43 S. E. 579, and the ruling in the case of Austin v. Staten was modified so that it only applied in favor of the holder of a subsequent deed executed upon a valuable consideration, and the court has since then consistently adhered to the latter decision. Janney v. Robbins, 141 N. C. 400, 53 S. E. 863; Burwell v. Chapman, 159 N. C. 209, 211, 74 S. E. 685; Gore v. McPherson, 161 N. C. 638, 644, 77 S. E. 835; King v. McRackan, 168 N. C. 621, 624, 84 S. E. 1027.

Where one makes a deed for land, for a valuable consideration, and the grantee fails to register it, but enters into possession thereunder, and remains therein for more than seven years, such deed does not constitute color of title and bar the entry of a grantee, in a subsequent deed for a valuable consideration, who has duly registered his deed. Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106, 43 S. E. 579. Except in cases coming within this rule, the rights acquired by adverse possession for seven years under color of title are not disturbed or affected by this section. Roberts v. Massey, 185 N. C. 164, 116 S. E. 407; Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 18, 128 S. E. 494.

Same—Qualification — Adverse Possession. — The principle, that under this section an unregistered deed does not constitute color of title, does not extend to a claim by adverse possession held continuously for the requisite time under deeds "foreign" to the true title or entirely independent of the title under which the plaintiff makes his claim. Austin v. Staten, 126 N. C. 783, 36 S. E. 338, distinguished. Janney v. Robbins, 141 N. C. 400, 53 S. E. 863.

But where one makes a deed for land for a valuable consideration and grantee fails to register it, but enters into possession thereunder and remains therein for more than seven years, such deed does not constitute color of title and bar the entry of a grantee in a subsequent deed for a valuable consideration who has duly registered his deed. King v. McRackan, 168 N. C. 621, 624, 84 S. E. 1027.

Same—No Color of Title as against Judgment Creditors. —The possession of a grantee under an unregistered deed of lands is not under color of title as against subsequent judgment creditors of his grantor, who have thus obtained their liens on the locus in quo, the source of title being a common one, nor can the grantee establish his rights to betterments. Eaton v. Doub, 190 N. C. 14, 128 S. E. 494.

Registration as Affecting Commencement of Limitations. —The statute of limitations does not begin to run in favor of the lessee in possession under a ninety-nine-year lease of lands until the registration of the lease, as against the owner of the fee under a paper chain of title from a common source. Dye v. Morrison, 181 N. C. 309, 107 S. E. 138.

§ 47-19. Unregistered deeds prior to January, 1890, registered on affidavit.—Any person holding any unregistered deed or claiming title thereunder, executed prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety, may have the same registered without proof of the execution thereof by making an affidavit, before the officer having jurisdiction to take probate of such deed, that the grantor, bargainor or maker of such deed, and the witnesses thereto, are dead or cannot be found, that he cannot make proof of their handwriting, and that affiant believes such deed to be a bona fide deed and executed by the grantor therein named. Said affidavit shall be written upon or attached to such deed, and the same, together with such deed, shall be entitled to registration in the same manner and with the same effect as if proved in the manner prescribed by law for other deeds. (Rev., s. 981; 1885, c. 147, s. 2; 1905, c. 277; 1913, c. 116; 1915, cc. 13, 90; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 56; C. S. 3310.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1924, Public Laws, c.

56, extended the operation of this section to deeds executed between 1885 to 1890.

Affidavit in Case of Corporation Grantee, by Whom Made.—Where a corporation is the holder of such a deed, the affidavit under this section, may properly be made by its president. Richmond Cedar Works v. Pinnix, 208 Fed. 785.

Affirmation of Belief That Deed Is Bona Fide, Essential.—The probate of a deed dated in 1845 upon an affidavit that the affiant claims title under the said deed and that the maker of said deed and the witnesses thereto are dead, and that he cannot make proof of their handwriting, is defective, in that it does not appear by the affidavit that the "affiant believes such a deed to be a bona fide deed and executed by the grantor therein named." Allen v. Burch, 142 N. C. 524, 525, 55 S. E. 354.

§ 47-20. Deeds of trust and mortgages, real and personal.—No deed of trust or mortgage for real or personal estate shall be valid at law to pass any property as against creditors or purchasers for a valuable consideration from the donor, bargainor or mortgagor, but from the registration of such deed of trust or mortgage in the county where the land lies; or in case of personal estate, where the donor, bargainor or mortgagor resides; or in case the donor, bargainor or mortgagor resides out of the state, then in the county where the said personal estate, or some part of the same, is situated; or in case of choses in action, where the donee, bargainee or mortgagee resides. For the purposes mentioned in this section the principal place of business of a domestic corporation is its residence. (Rev., s. 982; Code, s. 1254; R. C., c. 37, s. 22; 1829, c. 20; 1909, c. 874, s. 1; C. S. 3311.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Section Liberally Construed. — This section is liberally construed. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Mayberry, 195 N. C. 508, 142 S. E. 767.

Registration Statutory.—The probate and registration of deeds and mortgages are entirely statutory, and creditors and purchasers are entitled to rely upon at least a substantial compliance with the statute. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102.

The object of this section was to prevent fraud, and to that end it requires all encumbrances upon estates to be registered, so that purchasers and creditors might have notice of their existence and nature, and that all persons might see for what the encumbrance was created.

When the registration is made the means of knowledge thus furnished, it enables creditors of the mortgagor to avail themselves of their legal remedy against the equity of redemption in the land. This publicity affords the creditor all the benefit he can reasonably ask or that the law intended. Starke v. Etheridge, 71 N. C. 240, 244.

The courts of this state have adopted a strict policy in regard to notice and registration in order to encourage immediate and proper recording. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 166.

Character of Registration.—The recording of the transfer is not required by this section in the sense in which that word is used in section 60b of the National Bankruptcy Act concerning voidable preferences. In re Cunningham, 64 F. (2d) 296, 299.

Effective from Time of Registration.—A mortgage deed, not registered within time, when registered operates from the time of registration only, and has no relation back to its date. Davison v. Beard, 9 N. C. 520.

Identical Construction with Section 47-18. — In view of practical identity of the terminology of this section and section 47-18, the construction put upon them will be identical. Cowan v. Withrow, 112 N. C. 736, 740, 17 S. E. 575; Francis v. Herren, 101 N. C. 497, 8 S. E. 353.

Registration of Chattel Mortgages at Common Law.—At common law, mortgages of personal property were not required to be reduced to writing, and our statute only requires them to be reduced to writing and registered as affecting creditors and purchasers for value. Butts v. Screws, 95 N. C. 215.

This section is a substitute for possession by the mortgagee. If the mortgagee as such takes possession of the mortgaged personal property, it renders registration unnecessary. Possession, in such circumstances, will render the mortgage as good as it would be if registered. Coggin v. Hartford Acci., etc., Co., 9 F. Supp. 785, 788, citing Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155.

If possession is to be substituted for registration under this section, it seems that the possession should be by virtue of the mortgage. Coggin v. Hartford Acci., etc., Co., 9 F. Supp. 785, 788.

In the instant case, the record shows very clearly that possession of the property was not taken in the capacity of mortgagee. The defendant obtained possession by promising the contractor a preference when letting the contract for completion. The motive of the bankrupt, to the knowledge of surety, was to perpetuate a fraud on his creditors. The transaction is void and cannot supply the place of registration. Id.

Valid Mortgage Not Constituting a Preference.—The mortgage was executed for a valuable consideration years before the filing of petition in bankruptcy, and through inadvertence and without fraud, it was not recorded until within four months from the filing of petition, but no lien having attached, and no proof of insolvency of bankrupt at time of recording mortgage, the mortgage is valid and does not constitute a preference. In re Finley, 6 F. Supp. 105, 106.

No Inference of Fraud Where Contracts of Road Contractor Were Not Recorded.—In Hartford Acci., etc., Co. v. Coggin, 78 F. (2d) 471, 476, it was held that no inference of fraud could fairly be drawn from the failure to record application contracts of road contractor containing chattel mortgage provisions, especially in view of the publicity and general knowledge that attends public works.

The Words "at Law" Construed.—The words "at law" in this section do not mean in a court of law only, but in all courts. "At law" is an expression in a statute which does not mean merely a legal tribunal as distinguished from an equitable jurisdiction, but, generally, our system of jurisprudence, whether legal or equitable. Hooker v. Nichols, 116 N. C. 157, 160, 21 S. E. 207.

Effect of Defective Registration.—A defective registration is no registration and is void; and hence does not prevent the rights of subsequent purchasers for value from attaching upon the property. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155, 156.

Under this and § 47-23 where a chattel mortgage is registered prior to the registration of the title-retaining contract the lien of the chattel mortgage is superior to that of the title-retaining contract. Jordan v. Wetmur, 202 N. C. 279, 162 S. E. 610.

Want of Registration at Any Particular Time Does Not Avoid Instruments.—This section does not avoid a deed of trust for want of registration at any particular time, but declares that it shall not operate "but from" the registration; and that is deemed to be done on the day of its delivery to the register, as noted by him on the deed. McKinnon v. McLean, 19 N. C. 79.

Determination of Priorities between Mortgages by the Time of Filing.—The priorities between two mortgages or deeds of trust on land, appearing upon the index of the register of deeds to have been registered on the same month, exact date not given, nothing else appearing, may be determined by the time of filing for registration, and their relative position on the index. Blacknall v. Hancock, 182 N. C. 369, 109 S. E. 72.

Sale of Mortgaged Property — Left with Mortgagor — Waiver by Mortgagee.—Where the mortgagor of an automobile has sold it to another after the registration of the mortgage, in claim and delivery, there was conflicting evidence as to whether the mortgagee gave permission for the sale. It was held, that an instruction that the registration of the mortgage was notice of the lien to the defendant purchaser, and he acquired the automobile subject to the mortgage lien, unless the jury find that the plaintiff mortgagee had waived the right to his lien, is correct. This principle is distinguished from one in which a mortgage is taken of an entire stock of goods which was left with the mortgagor for sale. Rogers v. Booker, 184 N. C. 183, 113 S. E. 671.

Applied in Commercial Casualty Ins. Co. v. Willaims, 37 F. (2d) 326; First Nat. Bank v. Raleigh Sav. Bank &

Trust Co., 37 F. (2d) 301; Ward v. Southern Sand & Gravel Co., 33 F. (2d) 773.

Cited in Hetherington & Sons v. Rudisill, 28 Fed. (2d) 713; Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 176, 148 S. E. 39; Threlkeld v. Malcragson Land Co., 198 N. C. 186, 189, 151 S. E. 99; In re Wallace, 212 N. C. 490, 193 S. E. 819; Freeman v. Morrison, 214 N. C. 240, 199 S. E. 12; Massachusetts Bonding, etc., Co. v. Knox, 220 N. C. 725, 18 S. E. (2d) 436, 138 A. L. R. 1438.

II. REGISTRATION AS BETWEEN PARTIES.

Between the Parties—Valid without Registration. — As between the parties a mortgage is valid without registration. Leggett v. Bullock, 44 N. C. 283, 285; In re Finley, 6 F. Supp. 105.

As between the parties, a mortgage is valid without registration, but not so as to creditors. Ellington v. Supply Company, 196 N. C. 784, 789, 147 S. E. 307.

Same—Personal Representative Occupies Intestate's Position.—As between the original parties, the lien of an unregistered mortgage holds priority. Wallace v. Cohen, 111 N. C. 103, 15 S. E. 892; Deal v. Palmer, 72 N. C. 582; Leggett v. Bullock, 44 N. C. 283. And the personal representative of a deceased mortgagor stands in the shoes of the latter. Hence, the plaintiff holding an unregistered second mortgage on the lands of the defendant's intestate is entitled to his lien upon the funds derived from the sale in excess of the first mortgage, in preference to other creditors of the deceased. McBrayer v. Harrill, 152 N. C. 712, 68 S. E. 204.

Intended Primarily to Protect Creditors and Purchasers. —This section was intended primarily to protect creditors and purchasers, and not to attach to the instrument additional efficacy as between the mortgagor and the mortgagee. South Georgia Motor Co. v. Jackson, 184 N. C. 328, 331, 114 S. E. 478.

III. INSTRUMENTS AFFECTED.

Absolute Sale Not Affected.—When the circumstances of a given transaction amount to an absolute sale, rather than a mortgage, such transaction is valid without registration as against the persons protected under this section. Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123, 3 S. E. 723.

It is not necessary under this section that a sale or conveyance of personal property by a corporation shall be in writing or shall be registered for any purpose when such sale is absolute and delivery of the property is made to the purchaser. Carolina Coach Co. v. Begnell, 203 N. C. 656, 166 S. E. 903.

Same—Except Where It Is Actually a Mortgage.—A bill of sale of property, absolute on its face, but intended as a mortgage, is void as against a purchaser for valuable consideration, by force of this section requiring mortgages, etc., to be registered. Dukes v. Jones, 51 N. C. 14.

Agreement in Substance a Chattel Mortgage.—A bankrupt, having several textile mills, in order to provide working capital agreed that claimants, who were factors, should advance on its goods, in process of manufacture, in transit, in the hands of finishers, and in the possession of customers until paid for, and that the goods should be subject to advances to him, made generally by claimants against all merchandise in and produced at enumerated mills. It was to be held in effect a chattel mortgage, and not an equitable lien, and hence such contract, not being recorded as required, was not a valid lien against the creditors of the bankrupt. In re Southern Textile Co., 174 Fed. 523.

Under this section where a transaction is in effect a pledge of security for borrowed money, it is not a chattel mortgage requiring registration as against creditors and third persons. Bundy v. Commercial Credit Co., 201 N. C. 604, 163 S. E. 676.

Advancement of Money to Pay Off Lien.—This section does not apply to the application of the equitable subrogation of lien in favor of one advancing money to pay off existing mortgage liens upon lands. Wallace v. Benner, 200 N. C. 124, 125, 156 S. E. 795.

Preferred Stock Giving Lien. — Where preferred stockholders of a corporation are given a priority over creditors by an agreement in its charter and certificates of stock giving the holders thereof a lien on its realty, even if the agreement be construed as a mortgage, it is inoperative as to creditors without compliance with this section requiring registration. Ellington v. Supply Co., 196 N. C. 784, 147 S. E. 307.

Purchase Money Deed of Trust Registered Prior to Deed. —Where the owner of lands deeds same to a wife, according to the language of the registered instrument, and the husband alone executes a purchase money deed of trust on the lands which is registered prior to the registration of the deed in fee to the wife, the records are insufficient to show that the husband had any interest in the land, and the purchase money deed of trust is ineffective as against creditors or subsequent purchasers for value from the wife, and where the husband and wife thereafter execute a mortgage, which is duly registered, the mortgagee is entitled to foreclose same upon default as against those claiming title by foreclosure under the purchase money deed of trust, and this result is not affected by the fact that the mortgage, in the clause warranting title, referred to the purchase money deed of trust by page number of the registry book, since such reference does not constitute even constructive notice in that the records would not have shown that the husband had any interest in the land, and since no notice, however full and formal, will supply want of registration. Smith v. Turnage-Winslo, 212 N. C. 310, 193 S. E. 685.

IV. RIGHTS OF PERSONS PROTECTED.

Not Valid without Registration — As against Judgment Creditor.—Under this section a deed of trust is of no validity whatever as against a judgment creditor unless registered. Bostic v. Young, 116 N. C. 766, 21 S. E. 552.

In Lowery v. Wilson, 214 N. C. 800, 200 S. E. 861, it was held that creditors and purchasers for value are entitled to rely on the record of the instrument as written and recorded, under this and § 47-18, and as to them the mortgagee is not entitled to reformation.

Same—As against Subsequent Purchasers Whose Deeds Are Registered.—A mortgage not registered in time is ineffectual against purchasers subsequent to the mortgage whose conveyances are registered before the mortgage. Cowan v. Green, 9 N. C. 384. See "Place of Registration" under this section.

Void as to Creditors of Mortgagor and Not of Mortgagee. —An unregistered mortgage or deed of trust is void as against creditors of the mortgagor, and not of the mortgagee. Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 126, 3 S. E. 723.

Between Mortgagee and Creditor.—While the sale of property to a creditor in possession in partial payment of a preëxisting debt is not good as against the equity of a mortgagee having a prior unregistered chattel mortgage against the property, since the creditor takes the property subject to the equities existing against it in the hands of the debtor, the chattel mortgage in itself creates no equity in favor of the mortgagee therein, and where the mortgagee shows no equity existing in his favor, the creditor takes the property free from the lien of the unregistered chattel mortgage in view of this section. Weil v. Herring, 207 N. C. 6, 175 S. E. 836.

General Creditors Not Protected. — Under this section general creditors are not protected as against prior unregistered mortgages or deeds of trust, unless and until such general creditors have secured a specific lien upon the property covered by the mortgage or deed of trust. Only the lien creditors are protected. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102, 103. See also In re Cunningham, 64 F. (2d) 296; In re Finley, 6 F. Supp. 105.

Same — Even in Bankruptcy Proceedings. — In Holt v. Crucible Steel Co., 224 U. S. 262, 56 L. Ed. 756, 32 S. Ct. 414, Justice Van Devanter discussed the Kentucky statute in regard to the registration of mortgages, which, in this respect, is the same as this section, holding that, as no creditor has fastened any lien upon the property covered by the mortgage prior to the proceedings in bankruptcy, by which the title passed to the trustee, the mortgage was valid as against him. Davis v. Hanover Sav. Fund Society, 210 Fed. 768, 127 C. C. A. 318; National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102, 115.

Before a creditor can claim a lien given by a state statute on property of a bankrupt, he must perfect the same, as required by such statute. In re Franklin, 151 Fed. 642.

Mortgagee for Future and Contingent Debts.—A debtor may lawfully mortgage his property to secure future and contingent debts, and that he does so is not of itself proof of a fraudulent intent. The mortgagee in such case is deemed a purchaser for value, and his rights are not affected by a prior unregistered mortgage. Moore v. Ragland, 74 N. C. 343.

Trustee or Mortgagee as Purchaser.—A trustee or mortgagee, whether for old or new debts, is a purchaser for a valuable consideration. Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191.

Right of Attachment Creditors. — The registration of a mortgage prior to attachments issued by creditor makes it superior to the creditors' lien, but only on property situated in the county where the mortgage was registered. Williamson v. Bitting, 159 N. C. 321, 74 S. E. 808.

Collateral Attack by Creditors Not Warranted.—The want of registration does not invalidate the instrument so that creditors, merely as such, may treat it as a nullity in a collateral proceeding; but it is void against proceedings instituted by them and prosecuted to a sale of the property or acquirement of a lien, as against all who derive title thereunder. Boyd v. Turpin, 94 N. C. 137; Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191; Francis v. Herron, 101 N. C. 497, 507, 8 S. E. 353.

Rights of Mortgagee Registering within Four Months of Bankruptcy of Mortgagor.—Under the Federal Bankruptcy Act of 1898, section 60b, and under this section a chattel mortgage given by a bankrupt, but not registered until some time after its execution and within four months of the filing of the petition, is a "preference," if on the date of its registration the mortgagee knew that the mortgagors were insolvent and that the mortgage would constitute a preference, though the mortgagors were solvent at the date of the execution of the mortgage. Brigman v. Covington, 219 Fed. 500. This is also true under the Chandler Act, the 1938 amendment to the National Bankruptcy Act.

Priority between Judgment Creditor and Purchaser at the Same Term. — A. executed a mortgage upon his land; the mortgage was filed for registration during a term of the superior court, at a subsequent day of which a judgment was rendered against him and duly docketed. It was held that the lien of the judgment was prior to that of the mortgage. Fleming v. Graham, 110 N. C. 374, 14 S. E. 922.

Mortgagee for Purchase Price—Priority against Subsequent Mortgage.—A mortgage executed and registered contemporaneously with a deed by the same parties to the same land, to secure the balance of the purchase price, is one act, giving the mortgagee a lien on the land described superior to that of a later executed and registered mortgage thereon. Allen v. Stainback, 186 N. C. 75, 118 S. E. 903.

Tort Feasor as Purchaser or Creditor.—See Harris v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 190 N. C. 480, 130 S. E. 319, annotations, sec. 47-18.

Trustee in Bankruptcy.—A mortgagee who failed to register his mortgage has no rights to the property mortgaged as against the trustee in bankruptcy of a corporation, to which the mortgagor subsequently conveyed the property in consideration of stock in such corporation. Holt v. Pick & Co., 25 Fed. (2d) 378.

Where Right of Surety Is Superior to That of Trustee in Bankruptcy.—Where no creditor has secured a lien upon the property of a road contractor prior to bankruptcy, the transfer of possession of the property to the surety-mortgagee before bankruptcy had the same effect under the North Carolina law as if the mortgage had been recorded. Cowan v. Dale, 189 N. C. 684, 128 S. E. 155. It follows that the right of the surety to the property transferred is superior to the claim of the trustee in bankruptcy. Hartford Acci., etc., Co. v. Coggin, 78 F. (2d) 471, 476.

Applications of Road Contractor Not Valid as against Trustee without Registration.—Applications of road contractor in so far as they profess to convey property, are chattel mortgages and are not valid as against the trustee without registration. Coggin v. Hartford Acci., etc., Co., 9 F. Supp. 785, 787, citing Commercial Cas. Ins. Co. v. Williams, 37 F. (2d) 326.

Chattel Mortgage Good against Purchasers and Creditors Only from Registration.—Under this section a chattel mortgage is good against bona fide purchasers for value and against creditors only from registration. A general creditor must yield to the lien of the mortgage from the moment of its registration, unless the lien can be successfully assailed as a fraudulent conveyance. Coggin v. Hartford Acci., etc., Co., 9 F. Supp. 785, 787.

Before a creditor can defeat the lien of the mortgage properly registered he must acquire a prior lien by way of judgment, as against land, and by levying an execution against personal property. Id.

Application contracts containing a conveyance whereby a road contractor as of the date thereof assigns, transfers, and conveys to the surety, all his right, title, and interest in the tools, plant, equipment, and materials that he may then or thereafter have upon the work, authorizing and empowering the surety and its agents to enter upon and take possession thereof, are chattel mortgages within the meaning of this recordation statute. Hartford Acci., etc., Co. v. Coggin, 78 F. (2d) 471, 474.

Where Mortgagor Displaying Property in Sales Room.—Where a mortgagee of an automobile permits the mortgagor, a dealer, to keep it on display at his show room for sale with others therein, and the mortgage sufficiently describes the property, giving the serial and motor numbers and is duly registered under the provisions of this section the mortgagee by his conduct does not lose his right of lien as against a subsequent purchaser from the dealer, and the doctrine of implied authority to the dealer to sell the machine free from the mortgage lien as agent of the mortgagee does not apply under the facts of this case. Whitehurst v. Garrett, 196 N. C. 154, 144 S. E. 835.

Priority is given to the mortgage first recorded, by virtue of this section. Wayne Nat. Bank v. National Bank, 197 N. C. 68, 72, 147 S. E. 691. As to priority in proceeds of insurance on property, see note under § 58-160.

V. NOTICE.

No Notice Will take Place of Registration.—No notice, however full and formal, will supply the place of registration, in the case of mortgages and deeds of trust, as is the case under section 47-18. Robinson v. Willoughby, 70 N. C. 358; Blacknall v. Hancock, 182 N. C. 369, 371, 109 S. E. 72; Hooker v. Nichols, 116 N. C. 157, 160, 21 S. E. 207. Therefore, mortgage given for the purchase-money of land is not entitled to priority over a second mortgage which is filed first, though the second mortgagee has notice thereof. Quinnerly v. Quinnerly, 114 N. C. 145, 19 S. E. 99.

"In construing the registration laws of this State, this Court has consistently held that no notice, however full and formal, will supply the place of registration. Whitehurst v. Garrett, 196 N. C. 154, 144 S. E. 835; Mills v. Kemp, 196 N. C. 309, 145 S. E. 557; Salassa v. Mortgage Co., 196 N. C. 501, 146 S. E. 83; Weeks v. Adams, 196 N. C. 512, 146 S. E. 130." Ellington v. Supply Co., 196 N. C. 784, 789, 147 S. E. 307.

No notice, however full and formal, will supply the place of registration required by this section, and a registered mortgage on lands constitutes a first lien on the mortgaged lands as against prior mortgages or equities which the registration books in the county in which the land lies does not disclose. Duncan v. Gulley, 199 N. C. 552, 155 S. E. 244.

No notice, however full and formal, can replace the statutory notice of registration as against creditors or purchasers for value, and where a mortgage on lands is executed and delivered, but not registered until after the registration of a later executed mortgage, the prior registered mortgage is a first lien on the land, and it is not sufficient to change this result that the prior registered mortgage was marked upon its face "second mortgage." Nor can notice aliunde advantage the holder of the mortgage first executed. Williams v. Lewis, 158 N. C. 571, 74 S. E. 17, cited and distinguished. Story v. Slade, 199 N. C. 596, 155 S. E. 256.

No notice, however full and formal, can replace the statutory notice of registration, and where a second mortgage is executed and delivered, but not registered until after the registration of a third mortgage, the mortgage third in execution is prior to the mortgage secondly executed and subsequently registered, and this result is not changed by the fact that the mortgage third in execution contained a reference to a first and second deed of trust, and contained a warranty against encumbrances "except as above stated," the references being insufficient to show that the parties intended to recognize the prior instruments as superior liens. Lawson v. Key, 199 N. C. 664, 155 S. E. 570.

Same—Except Where Fraud Is Used.—Where one who knows of a prior unregistered deed of trust or mortgage, procures a mortgage for his own benefit on the same property, which is registered first, he gets the first lien on the property, unless he used fraud to prevent the registration of the mortgage which is first in date. Traders Nat. Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 3 S. E. 363.

Same—Except When Subsequent Mortgage Recites Prior Mortgage.—While it is the established rule that as no notice, however full or formal, can take the place of registration, where the subsequent mortgage of the same property recites that it is made subject to a prior mortgage, such recitation is more than a mere notice of the prior incumbrance: and it establishes a trust in equity in favor of the prior incumbrances even though this instrument is not registered. Bank v. Vass, 130 N. C. 590, 594, 41 S. E. 791; Avery County Bank v. Smith, 186 N. C. 635, 120 S. E. 215.

Where a trust deed is given to secure purchase money for land, and later a mortgage is given on the same land, which refers to the trust deed as a prior lien for purchase money, and the mortgage is registered before the trust deed, the debt secured by the trust deed must be paid by the mortgagee from the proceeds of the sale of the land, but the mortgagee is entitled to the possession of the land. Bank v. Vass, 130 N. C. 590, 41 S. E. 791.

Constructive Notice to All the World.—Under this section deeds of trust and mortgages on real and personal property, when properly probated and registered, are constructive notice to all the world. Whitehurst v. Garrett, 196 N. C. 154, 144 S. E. 835.

Record of unsatisfied mortgage is sufficient notice to put a third person upon inquiry, and whatever puts a person upon inquiry is in equity notice to him of all the facts which such inquiry would have disclosed. Collins v. Davis, 132 N. C. 106, 43 S. E. 579.

Registration upon a defective probate does not have the effect of actual or constructive notice of the existence of the mortgage deed, so as to affect a subsequent purchaser for value. Todd, etc., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235.

Same—Mortgage for Future Advances—Effect of Actual Notice.—Where the plaintiffs took a mortgage from A. to secure future advancements, there being a prior mortgage to B. defectively registered, it was held that if after the execution of the plaintiffs' mortgage, and before they had made any part of or all the advancements stipulated, they had been fixed with actual notice of prior mortgages in equity, any advancements subsequently made by them would have been made at their peril; but if they were unaffected with notice before they paid out their money, their legal title must prevail as a security for repayment. Todd, etc., Co. v. Outlaw, 79 N. C. 235.

Same—Corporate Deed. — Where the execution of a corporate deed of trust was not proved as the statute required, its registration was without warrant or authority of law, and as against creditors and purchasers for value it was not registered until subsequently probated in proper form and again registered. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102.

VI. PLACE OF REGISTRATION.

County of Actual Personal Residence.—The mere fact that a person had personal property in a certain county does not constitute residence. The purpose of the statute is to have the deed of trust or mortgage of personalty registered in the county where the donor, bargainor, or mortgagor has actual personal residence. The reason is that persons interested to have knowledge in such respect would go to the county where a person resides to see what disposition he had made of his personal property by deeds and other instruments required to be registered; they would not ordinarily look elsewhere. The statutory requirement is too plain to be mistaken. Harris v. Allen, 104 N. C. 86, 10 S. E. 127; Bank v. Cox, 171 N. C. 76, 79, 87 S. E. 967.

The term "residence" as used in this section is the actual personal residence of the mortgagor. Industrial Discount Corp. v. Radecky, 205 N. C. 163, 170 S. E. 640.

Registration in County Where Land Lies.—Under this section a mortgage deed, conveying land which is not registered in the county where the land lies, is not valid as against creditors or purchasers for value. King v. Portis, 77 N. C. 25.

Same—Where Land Lies in Two or More Counties.—Upon the question whether a mortgage of one tract of land described by metes and bounds and registered in one county only—both mortgagor and mortgagee believing the whole tract to be situated in such county—is valid against creditors and purchasers, when in fact a part of said tract is situated in an adjoining county, about which the controversy arose, it was held invalid. King v. Portis, 77 N. C. 25, 26.

Registration at Changed Residence.—We know of no law requiring a new registration of mortgages of personal property whenever the mortgagor changes his residence. Weaver v. Chunn, 99 N. C. 431, 6 S. E. 370; Harris v. Allen, 104 N. C. 86, 90, 10 S. E. 127.

Effect of Registration in Wrong County.—This section requires that a mortgage on personal property be registered where the mortgagor resides, and where a mortgage on such property has been registered in the wrong county, and subsequently registered in the right one, but after a mortgage on the same property has been given to another and properly registered, the second mortgage has priority of lien over the first one, and no other notice, however full, will take the place of that of registration required by the statute. Bank v. Cox, 171 N. C. 76, 87 S. E. 967.

§ 47-21. Blank or master forms of mortgages, etc., embodiment by reference in instruments later filed.—It shall be lawful for any person, firm or corporation to have a blank or master form of mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument conveying an interest in, or creating a lien on, real and/or personal property, filed, indexed and recorded in the office of the register of deeds. When any such blank or master form is filed with the register of deeds, he shall record the same, and shall index the same in the manner now provided by law for the indexing of instruments recorded in his office, except that the name of the person, firm or corporation whose name appears on such blank or master form shall be inserted in the indices as grantor and also as grantee. The fee for filing, recording and indexing such blank or master form shall be five ($5.00) dollars.

When any deed, mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument conveying an interest in, or creating a lien on, real and/or personal property, refers to the provisions, terms, covenants, conditions, obligations, or powers set forth in any such blank or master form recorded as herein authorized, and states the office of recordation of such blank or master form, book and page where same is recorded such reference shall be equivalent to setting forth in extenso in such deed, mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument conveying an interest in, or creating a lien on, real and/or personal property, the provisions, terms, covenants, conditions, obligations and powers set forth in such blank or master form. Provided this section shall not apply to Chowan, Stanly, Iredell. Yates, Watauga, Guilford, Camden, Transylvania, Jackson, Washington, Alleghany, Bladen, Halifax, Ashe, Dare, Beaufort, Moore, Swain, Orange, Granville, Perquimans, Martin, Vance, Columbus, Cartaret, Cleveland, Avery, Sampson counties. (1935, c. 153.)

Editor's Note.—The scheme authorized by this section has obvious advantages and disadvantages. The advantages lie in the shortening of the later instruments. There will be some saving in recordation fees to persons and corporations giving or taking numerous deeds, deeds of trust, and mortgages, especially documents of a bulky character, such as some corporate mortgages. The disadvantages are that persons concerned with the subsequent documents will be obliged to examine the record of the master form in order to be sure what the provisions of the documents are. Furthermore, if single provisions as distinguished from all the provisions of the master form may be incorporated by reference to the master form, the device is dangerous. 13 N. C. Law Rev. 395.

It is hard to see why the section authorizes specifically a master form for mortgages and deeds of trust, but does not mention deeds. Deeds are included in the words "other instrument conveying an interest in—real and/or personal property," but so are mortgages. The intent to include deeds is made clear, however, by the specific mention of them among the instruments which may incorporate the provisions of the master form. 13 N. C. Law Rev. 396.

Conditional sales are doubtless covered by the statute, both because in North Carolina they are "mortgages" and because they are instruments "conveying an interest in, or creating a lien on," personal property. Various other security devices, such as trust receipts are included for similar reasons. So also bills of sale are obviously instruments "conveying an interest in" personal property. Id.

§ 47-22. Counties may provide for photographic or photostatic registration.—The board of county commissioners of any county is hereby authorized and empowered to provide for photographic or photostatic recording of all instruments filed in the office of the register of deeds and in the office of the clerk of the superior court and in other offices of such county where said board may deem such recording feasible. The board of county commissioners may also provide for filing such copies of said instruments in loose leaf binders. (1941, c. 286.)

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 513.

§ 47-23. Conditional sales of personal property.—All conditional sales of personal property in which the title is retained by the bargainor shall be reduced to writing and registered in the same manner, for the same fees and with the same legal effect as is provided for chattel mortgages, in the county where the purchaser resides, or, in case the purchaser shall reside out of the state, then in the county where the personal estate or some part thereof is situated, or in case of choses in action, where the donee, bargainee or mortgagee resides. (Rev., s. 983; Code, s. 1275; 1891, c. 240; 1883, c. 342; C. S. 3312.)

Cross References.—As to foreclosure in the event of a conditional sale, see § 45-24. As to chattel mortgages generally, see § 45-1 et seq.

In General.—Prior to the time when this section became operative, "conditional sales" of personal property, that is, sales, whether the contract of sale was reduced to writing or not, in which it was stipulated, that although the property agreed to be sold, was placed in the possession of the bargainee and used by him, the title to the same should not pass to him, but should remain in, and be retained by, the bargainor, until the bargainee should pay the price agreed to be paid for it, were upheld in this State, as valid against all persons claiming under the bargainee, without registration. Such sales became frequent and a public grievance. They were the source of much fraud, and many fraudulent practices. The bargainee having possession of the property, and being the apparent owner, easily obtained credit on the faith of it, and when it became necessary to resort to it to satisfy his just debts, he would take shelter behind the bargainor, who retained the title. To cure this evil, the statute was passed. The bargainor really retained the title to the property so sold by him, only as a security for the purchase money due him for it. The Legislature, therefore, deemed it just and salutary, that he should be required to reduce the contract of sale to writing, and register the same, just as creditors are required to do, who take the lien created by chattel mortgages. Empire Drill Co. v. Allison, 94 N. C. 548, 552.

The purpose of this section requiring all conditional sales of personal property to be reduced to writing and registered, is to protect creditors and purchasers for value. It is no part of its purpose to render such sales, whether in writing or not, invalid as between the parties to it. As between them, such sale has the same qualities and is just as effectual as it would have been, and may be proven by the like evidence as before the statute was enacted, and the parties may have the like remedies against each other. Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191; Empire Drill Co. v. Allison, 94 N. C. 548; Butts v. Screws, 95 N. C. 215; Kornegay v. Kornegay, 109 N. C. 188, 190, 13 S. E. 770.

Purpose of Section—Forfeiture Proceedings by Government. — This section is designated for the protection of creditors or purchasers for value, without notice, and the government of the United States, in a forfeiture proceeding under the National Prohibition Act does not come under either class. So, the failure to register a conditional sales contract does not render the seller's lien void as against the government's claim of forfeiture. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. United States, 23 Fed. (2d) 799, 802.

Section Liberally Construed.—This section is liberally construed. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Mayberry, 195 N. C. 508, 142 S. E. 767.

The effect of this section requiring all conditional sales of personal property to be reduced to writing and registered, is to render inoperative, as against creditors and purchasers for value, so much of the contract as reserves the title in the vendor unless and until the contract is registered. Brem v. Lockhart, 93 N. C. 191.

Where personal property is sold under a registered conditional sales contract and the purchase price is not paid in accordance with the agreement, the seller is the owner thereof and is entitled to possession as against the purchaser and all persons claiming under him. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. v. Carolina Bowling Alleys, 204 N. C 609, 169 S. E. 186.

Validity of Conditional Sales Apart from This Section.—Prior to the enactment of this section, a conditional sale contract was valid without registration not only between the parties but also as against all the world. Perry v. Young, 105 N. C. 463, 466, 11 S. E. 511.

Sufficiency of Form.—The certificate of registration of a contract of sale of personal property reserving title need not be in any particular form to meet the requirement for registration. Manufacturers' Finance Co. v. Amazon Cotton Mills Co., 182 N. C. 408, 109 S. E. 67.

Where the certificate for registration of a contract of sale of personal property thereon appears to have been "subscribed before" a notary public, with the seal attached showing the county, and has been certified to for registration by the clerk of the court of that county, and in the caption of the contract also appears the name of the county and state in which it had been registered, and by reference to the certificate and the paper to which it relates the names of the parties sufficiently appear, it was held, that the contract is sufficient in form for the purposes of registration as to the venue, the name of the party, and as to its having been sufficiently acknowledged; the fact that it was sworn to as well as subscribed is regarded as surplusage and immaterial. Manufacturers' Finance Co. v. Amazon Cotton Mills Co., 182 N. C. 408, 109 S. E. 67.

No Registration or Writing as between Parties.—As between the parties, a conditional sale is binding without registration, and is only void if not reduced to writing and registered as against creditors and purchasers for value. Deal v. Palmer, 72 N. C. 582; Gay v. Nash, 78 N. C. 100; Reese & Co. v. Cole, 93 N. C. 87. And as between the parties it is not essential that it should be reduced to writing, for the act gives to conditional sales the same effect as that given by law to chattel mortgages. But chattel mortgages are not required to be reduced to writing, except when it is necessary to have them registered to validate them against creditors and purchasers for value, and then only for the reason they could not be registered without being reduced to writing. Butts v. Screws, 95 N. C. 215, 218.

It has been uniformly held that a mortgage or conditional sales contract although not recorded, is valid as between the parties. It is void only as against creditors or purchasers for value. Cutter Realty Co. v. Dunn Moneyhun Co., 204 N. C. 651, 653, 169 S. E. 274.

Other Notice Will Not Take Place of Registration.—No notice however full and formal can supply notice by registration, and thus, by virtue of this section, where a conditional sale contract has not been registered, a subsequent purchaser acquires title free from its lien. Brown v. Burlington Hotel Corp., 202 N. C. 82, 161 S. E. 735.

Registration Required to Prevail over Subsequent Chattel Mortgage.—A conditional sale requires registration in respect to its priority of lien over chattel mortgages subsequently given to others upon the same property and registered in the proper county. Commercial Inv. Trust v. Albemarle Motor Co., 193 N. C. 663, 137 S. E. 874.

Regarded as Chattel Mortgages as to Registration. — Under this section conditional sales are regarded as chattel mortgages and void as to creditors and purchasers, except from registration. Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 94 S. E. 526.

Priority between Vendor and Mortgagee of After-Acquired Property. — Under this section conditional sale contracts of personal property are in effect chattel mortgages, and are required to be recorded as such, and such contracts covering machinery or fixtures sold to a corporation and attached by the purchaser to realty which is subject to a mortgage containing an after-acquired property clause, unless recorded, are not effective as against the mortgagee. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193.

Where the bargainor under a conditional sale to a corporation has not recorded the instrument, as required by this section and a receiver has been appointed, under the provisions of sec. 55-149, his right to a preferential lien has been lost by his failure to register the instrument, the receiver representing the rights of the other creditors, and he is only entitled as any other general distributee of the funds. Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 94 S. E. 526. But see Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, where it is held that contracts of conditional sales of loose personal property, such as live stock, to a corporation, although not recorded as required by this section, where the property passes into the hands of a receiver for the corporation and is sold together with its other property, entitle the sellers to priority of payment from the proceeds over the holders of a prior mortgage upon the property of the corporation containing an after-acquired property clause.

Priority between Widow's Year's Allowance and Vendor's Rights.—A conditional sale of personal property made to the husband, registered after his death, like a mortgage, takes precedence over an allotment of a year's allowance, made to his widow after the registration. Williams v. Jones, 95 N. C. 504; Hinkle, etc., Co. v. Greene, 125 N. C. 489, 34 S. E. 554.

Transactions Constituting Conditional Sales.—Where the vendor of personalty ships to itself as consignee, order notify the purchaser, and the latter has received money from another with which to pay the draft and obtain the goods from the common carrier, under an agreement that the title to the goods shall vest in such third person until the goods are paid for, the effect of the contract is a conditional sale falling within the meaning of this section.

General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Mayberry, 195 N. C. 508, 142 S. E. 767.

A contract under which the seller ships to the purchaser certain goods, to which the latter acquires title upon the payment of the specified purchase price, is a conditional sale, requiring registration as against the rights of creditors. National Furniture Mfg. Co. v. Price, 195 N. C. 602, 143 S. E. 208.

See Hetherington & Sons v. Rudisill, 28 Fed. (2d) 713.

Necessity for Registration—Between Parties to Contract.—Between the parties to a conditional sales contract probate and registration is not required by this section. Pick & Co. v. Morehead Bluffs Hotel Co., 197 N. C. 110, 147 S. E. 819; General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Mayberry, 195 N. C. 508, 142 S. E. 767; National Furn. Mfg. Co. v. Price, 195 N. C. 602, 143 S. E. 208; Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 148 S. E. 39.

Same—As to Receiver of Corporation.—While a conditional sale to a corporation does not require registration as between the parties, after receivership of the corporation its validity as to the rights of creditors depends upon its registration. General Motors Acceptance Corp. v. Mayberry, 195 N. C. 508, 142 S. E. 767; National Furniture Mfg. Co. v. Price, 195 N. C. 602, 143 S. E. 208; Hetherington & Sons v. Rudisill, 28 Fed. (2d) 713.

Registration in County of Residence at Time of Purchase.—The provision of this section requiring conditional sales to be reduced to writing and registered in the county where the purchaser resides, refers to the county in which he resides at the time the contract is made, and as construed by the Supreme Court of the State the contract is valid if there recorded, although the property is thereafter removed into another county to which the purchaser changes his residence. In re Franklin, 151 Fed. 642.

A bankrupt at the time of purchasing property under a conditional sale contract had acquired no fixed place of residence in the state but was then residing and receiving his mail in the county where the contract was made and to which the property was shipped. It was held that the recording of the contract in that county was sufficient to preserve the seller's lien. In re Franklin, 151 Fed. 642.

No Registry Required in the County of Removal. — An instrument constituting a conditional sale of personal property is properly registered in the county where the purchaser resides, and in case of the latter's removal to another county with the property, need not be again recorded in the latter county. Barrington v. Skinner, 117 N. C. 47, 48, 23 S. E. 90.

Transaction in Effect Absolute Sale.—Where goods were sold and delivered under a contract in which it was stipulated that the vendee should deliver to the vendor the notes taken by the vendee from purchasers of such goods, to be held by the vendor "as collateral security for the payment of the purchase-money to him," and further, that such "goods, as well as the proceeds therefrom, are to be held in trust by him for the payment of the price to the vendor": It was held that this agreement was not a mortgage, nor a conditional sale, but an absolute sale of the goods, and its registration was not necessary. Chemical Co. v. Johnson, 98 N. C. 123, 3 S. E. 723.

Instrument in Effect Conditional Sale Required to Be Registered.—A contract for the "lease" of personal property upon payments of rent, the property to belong to the lessee upon the last payment of rent, is in effect a conditional sale, and unless registered its stipulation for the retention of title by the vendors is invalid as to third parties. Clark v. Hill, 117 N. C. 11, 23 S. E. 91.

Conditional Sale, and Conditional Hiring Distinguished.—A contract of "conditional sale," and a contract of hiring, conditional in its provisions, are essentially different in their respective natures and purposes. The latter need not be in writing, and when it is, it need not be registered. The former, to be effectual against creditors and subsequent purchasers for value, must be in writing and registered. Foreman v. Drake, 98 N. C. 311, 315, 3 S. E. 842.

Priority over Attachment.—A title retaining contract in the sale of personalty is in the nature of a chattel mortgage, and when registered prior to an attachment of the property it is superior to the claim of the attaching creditor. And this is true though the purchaser falsely entered into the contract under an assumed name. Weeks v. Adams, 196 N. C. 512, 146 S. E. 130.

Section Not Repealed by Laws 1923—Registration Cannot Be Dispensed with.—Chapter 236, Public Laws of 1923, requiring a certificate of the transfer of title to an automobile to be issued to the purchaser by the Secretary of State, does not repeal this section so as not to require the registration of title retaining contract to secure the balance due on the purchase price of an automobile, as against subsequent purchaser for value, and no notice, however formal, is sufficient to supply that of registration required by the statute. Carolina Discount Corp. v. Landis Motor Co., 190 N. C. 157, 129 S. E. 414. See Whitehurst v. Garrett, 196 N. C. 154, 144 S. E. 835. See also note under § 47-20.

This section has no retroactive effect. Harrell v. Godwin, 102 N. C. 330, 8 S. E. 925.

Interest of Innocent Party in Unregistered Mortgage Not Subject to Confiscation. — Failure to register a mortgage taken to secure payment on an automobile, will not subject the interest of an innocent mortgagee to confiscation under section 3404 of the Consoldiated Statutes, for violation of that section relating to seizure of automobiles engaged in illegal transportation of liquor. South Georgia Motor Co. v. Jackson, 184 N. C. 328, 114 S. E. 478. Section 3404 of the Consolidated Statutes has been superseded by § 18-6 of the General Statutes, which transfers the lien from the confiscated property to the proceeds from the sale of it.

Question for Jury.—Upon conflicting evidence as to whether one was a purchaser for value from the vendee in a conditional sales contract, the issue is properly submitted to the jury, and a motion as of nonsuit is properly denied. Andrews Music Store v. Boone, 197 N. C. 174, 148 S. E. 39.

Cited in Standard Motors Finance Co. v. Weaver, 199 N. C. 178, 179, 153 S. E. 861; Ward v. Southern Sand & Gravel Co., 33 F. (2d) 773.

§ 47-24. Conditional sales or leases of railroad property. — When any railroad equipment and rolling stock is sold, leased or loaned on the condition that the title to the same, notwithstanding the possession and use of the same by the vendee, lessee, or bailee, shall remain in the vendor, lessor or bailor until the terms of the contract, as to the payment of the installments, amounts or rentals payable, or the performance of other obligations thereunder, shall have been fully complied with, such contract shall be invalid as to any subsequent judgment creditor, or any subsequent purchaser for a valuable consideration without notice, unless—

1. The same is evidenced by writing duly acknowledged before some person authorized to take acknowledgments of deeds.

2. Such writing is registered as mortgages are registered, in the office of the register of deeds in at least one county in which such vendee, lessee or bailee does business.

3. Each locomotive or car so sold, leased or loaned has the name of the vendor, lessor, or bailor, or the assignee of such vendor, lessor or bailor plainly marked upon both sides thereof, followed by the word owner, lessor, bailor or assignee as the case may be.

This section shall not apply to or invalidate any contract made before the twelfth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three. (Rev., s. 984; Code, s. 2006; 1883, c. 416; 1907, c. 150, s. 1; C. S. 3313.)

§ 47-25. Marriage settlements. — All marriage settlements and other marriage contracts, whereby any money or other estate is secured to the wife or husband, shall be proved or acknowledged and registered in the same manner as deeds for lands, and shall be valid against creditors and purchasers for value only from registration. (Rev., s. 985; Code, ss. 1269, 1270, 1281; 1885, c. 147; R. C., c. 37, ss. 24, 25; 1785, c. 238; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 12; C. S. 3314.)

Cross Reference.—As to marriage settlements, void as to existing creditors, see § 39-18.

Place of Registration.—Registration of a marriage settlement, embracing the slaves of a feme, was held to be properly made in the county where the feme resided and the slaves were, at the time the instrument was executed. Latham v. Bowen, 52 N. C. 337.

Deed Possessing Two Characters.—A deed combining the two characters of a deed of trust to secure creditors, and a deed of settlement in trust for a wife and children, may operate and have effect in both characters, provided it has been duly proved and registered. Johnston v. Malcom, 59 N. C. 120.

Registration after Three Years, as against Subsequent Creditors.—A deed of settlement, in trust for a wife and children, proved and registered three years after the date of its execution, was held to be valid as against creditors, whose debts were contracted after such registration. Johnston v. Malcom, 59 N. C. 120.

Agreement in Effect Not a Marriage Settlement.—An agreement by which the husband consents that the wife may convert one tract of land, which is in nowise subject to the claims of his creditors, into another tract of land, and in which, in order to enable her to make the conversion, he stipulates to allow her to hold as her separate property the price of her land until it can be reinvested in another tract of land, is not a marriage settlement falling within the section. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280, 287.

The Law of What Time Governs.—Where a marriage took place, and a deed was made between husband and wife prior to 1868, it is governed by the law as it then existed and is not affected by the changes in the marital relations brought about by the Constitution of 1868, and the statutes passed in pursuance thereof, although the deed was not registered until 1884. Walton v. Parish, 95 N. C. 259.

Registration in Another State.—An antenuptial contract entered into between a husband whose domicile was in North Carolina and a wife whose domicile was in New York, and which was duly registered in New York, but not in North Carolina, is good against the creditors of the husband, although the property was removed to North Carolina and changed from what it originally was when the contract was signed. Hicks v. Skinner, 71 N. C. 539.

§ 47-26. Deeds of gift.—All deeds of gift of any estate of any nature shall within two years after the making thereof be proved in due form and registered, or otherwise shall be void, and shall be good against creditors and purchasers for value only from the time of registration. (Rev., s. 986; Code, s. 1252; 1885, c. 147; R. C., c. 37, s. 18; 1789, c. 315, s. 2; C. S. 3315.)

Cross Reference.—As to extension of time for registering deeds of gift, see § 146-64.

Editor's Note.—The time of the registration of deeds of gifts under this section has been unaffected by § 146-64 which extended the time in which certain instruments could be registered until September 1, 1926. The effect of the curative act has given rise to some conflict of opinion in the case of Booth v. Hairston, 193 N. C. 278, 136 S. E. 879. In that case A made a deed of gift of her property, which deed was not registered until after the statutory period of two years had expired. After such expiration A devised this land to her daughter. The question arose whether the devisee under the will or the grantee under the deed prevailed under the statute above referred to; the court held that the deed was void, not having been registered within the time prescribed, and that the statute extending the time would not validate a deed which had been once avoided, so as to impair vested rights. This decision met a strong dissent in the same case and has also been criticized in 5 N. C. Law Review 365. The criticism is based on the ground that as the devisee took no interest under the will until after the death of the testarix (for the will speaks as of the date of the death of its maker) no vested rights of third parties were involved and that as between the grantor and the grantee the deed would be valid, even though not registered within two years, under the extension given by the above referred to statute.

Though met with criticism and dissent, it seems that the majority holding is correct. This conclusion may be justified upon the analogy of the effect of curative statutes upon a right of action already barred under the statute of limitations. It has been uniformly held throughout this country that where a right of action has been barred by the statute of limitations a subsequent statute extending the time of its enforcement does not revive the right of action already barred. It may also be justified upon the ground of legislative intention as expressed by the use of the word "extended". This word in its etymological sense confers the idea of continuity without any intermission. It follows that the word "extended" as used in this statute cannot refer to the registration of a deed which has already been barred. Extension of a limitation can only take effect from a time on or prior to the expiration of such limitation. Any new time limited thereafter is not an "extension" of the prior limitation, but a new limitation in itself.

A deed of gift not registered within the time prescribed by this section is void, and thereafter the Legislature is without power to bring it to life again by the enactment of a statute lengthening the period in which it may be registered. Booth v. Hairston, 195 N. C. 8, 141 S. E. 480, affirming Booth v. Hairston, 193 N. C. 278, 136 S. E. 879, 57 A. L. R. 1186, on rehearing.

Formerly when this section was differently worded it was held that the requirement of recordation of deeds of gift applied only where creditors and purchasers were interested. Hancock v. Hovey, 1 N. C. 152. But the present section in plain terms rebuts this holding.—Ed. Note.

"Making" means date of execution. The execution of a deed is not complete until the instrument is signed, sealed and delivered. Turlington v. Neighbors, 222 N. C. 694, 697, 24 S. E. (2d) 648.

Registration as Notice. — The registration of the prior voluntary deed is notice to the subsequent purchaser. Taylor v. Eatman, 92 N. C. 602.

Unregistered Deed Void Regardless of Fraud.—Where a deed appearing on its face to be a deed of gift is not registered in two years from its execution as required by this section, it is void, and may be set aside in an action by creditors of the grantor regardless of whether it was executed in fraud of creditors. Reeves v. Miller, 209 N. C. 362, 183 S. E. 294.

Acknowledgment and Resigtration after Lapse of Period.—Where the owner of lands executed a deed of gift thereto and delivered same to the grantee, and some three and a half years thereafter he acknowledges the deed and filed same for registration, the acknowledgment of the execution was not a re-execution of the deed, and the deed of gift, not having been registered within two years of its execution, was void, and may not be revived by curative act of the legislature. Cutts v. McGhee, 221 N. C. 465, 20 S. E. (2d) 376.

§ 47-27. Deeds of easements. — All persons, firms, or corporations now owning or hereafter acquiring any deed or agreement for rights of way and easements of any character whatsoever shall record such deeds and agreements in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land affected is situated. Where such deeds and agreements may have been acquired, but no use has been made thereof, the person, firm, or corporation holding such instrument, or any assignment thereof, shall not be required to record them until within ninety days after the beginning of the use of the easements granted thereby. If after ninety days from the beginning of the easement granted by such deeds and agreements the person, firm, or corporation holding such deeds or agreements has not recorded the same in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the land affected is situated, then the grantor in the said deed or agreement may, after ten days notice in writing served and returned by the sheriff or other officer of the county upon the said person, firm, or corporation holding such lease or agreement, file a copy of the said lease or agreement for registration in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the original should have been recorded, but such copy of the lease or agreement shall have attached thereto the written notice above referred to, showing the service and return of the sheriff or other officer. The registration of such copy shall have the same force and effect as the original would have had if recorded: Provided, said copy shall be duly probated before being registered.

Nothing in this section shall require the registration of the following classes of instruments or conveyances, to wit:

1. It shall not apply to any deed or instrument executed prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and ten.

2. It shall not apply to any deed or instrument so defectively executed or witnessed that it cannot by law be admitted to probate or registration, provided that such deed or instrument was executed prior to the ratification of this section.

3. It shall not apply to decrees of a competent court awarding condemnation or confirming reports of commissioners, when such decrees are on record in such courts.

4. It shall not apply to local telephone companies, operating exclusively within the state, or to agreements about alley-ways.

The failure of electric companies or power companies operating exclusively within this state or electric membership corporations, organized pursuant to chapter 291 of the Public Laws of 1935[G. S. §§ 117-6 to 117-27], to record any deeds or agreements for rights of way acquired subsequent to one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, shall not constitute any violation of any criminal law of the State of North Carolina.

No deed, agreement for right of way, or easement of any character shall be valid as against any creditor or purchaser for a valuable consideration but from the registration thereof within the county where the land affected thereby lies. (1917, c. 148; 1919, c. 107; 1943, c. 750; C. S. 3316.)

Local Modification.—Alleghany, Harnett, Lee, Surry, Wilkes: C. S. 3316; Halifax, Martin: 1939, c. 45.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last two paragraphs, and struck out a former provision making a violation of this section a misdemeanor.

§ 47-28. Powers of attorney.—Every power of attorney, wherever made or concerning whatsoever matter, may, on acknowledgment or proof of the same before any competent official, be registered in the county wherein the property or estate which it concerns is situate, if such power of attorney relate to the conveyance thereof; if it does not relate to the conveyance of any estate or property, then in the county in which the attorney resides or the business is to be transacted. (Rev., s. 987; Code, s. 1249; 1899, c. 235, s. 15; C. S. 3317.)

Cross Reference.—As to form for acknowledgment of instrument executed by attorney in fact, see § 47-43.

Power of Attorney Given by Married Woman. — See Hollingsworth v. Harman, 83 N. C. 153, prior to this section, holding that a power of attorney given by a married woman to dismiss an action concerning her land need not be registered to give it validity.

§ 47-29. Recording of bankuptcy records. — A copy of the petition with the schedules omitted beginning a proceeding under the United States Bankruptcy Act, or of the decree of adjudication in such proceeding, or of the order approving the bond of the trustee appointed in such proceeding, shall be recorded in the office of any register of deeds in North Carolina, and it shall be the duty of the register of deeds, on request, to record the same. The register of deeds shall be entitled to the same fees for such registration as he is now entitled to for recording conveyances. (1939, c. 254.)

For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 344.

§ 47-30. Plats and subdivisions.—Any person, firm or corporation owning land in this State may have a plat thereof recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which such land or any part thereof is situated, upon proof upon oath by the surveyor making such plat that the same is in all respects correct and was prepared from an actual survey by him made, giving the date of such survey, or if the surveyor making such plat is dead, or where land has been sold and conveyed according to an unrecorded plat, upon the oath of a duly licensed surveyor that said map is in all respects correct and that the same was actually and fully checked and verified by him, giving the date on which the same was verified and checked. Such plat, when so proven and probated as deeds and other conveyances, shall be recorded either by transcribing a correct copy thereof upon or by permanently attaching the original to the records or in a book to be designated the "Book of Plats"; and when so recorded shall be duly indexed. Reference in any instrument heretofore or hereafter executed to the record of any plat herein authorized or validated shall have the same effect as if the description of the lands as indicated on the record of the plat were set out in the instrument.

Where any map or plat has been recorded, either by transcribing a correct copy thereof upon or by permanently attaching the original to the records or in a book designated "Book of Plats," such map or plat shall be deemed to have been recorded in full compliance with this section, notwithstanding the fact that the same has not been probated in accordance with the provisions hereof; and the registration of all plats and maps which have been recorded by transcribing a correct copy thereof upon or by permanently attaching the original to the records or in a book designated "Book of Plats" is hereby validated as fully as if the statute had been fully and completely complied with. (1911, c. 55, s. 2; 1923, c. 105; 1935, c. 219; 1941, c. 249; C. S. 3318.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 so changed this section that a comparison is necessary to determine the full extent. The 1941 amendment added the provision as to recording plats when the surveyor making the plat is dead.

For comment on the 1941 amendment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 513.

Object in Enacting Section.—This section was enacted in view of a decision of the Supreme Court in Sexton v. Elizabeth City, 169 N. C. 385, 86 S. E. 344, in which it was held that a purchaser in reference to a second plat who had registered his deed would take precedence over one under a former plat, but who had failed to have his deed registered; this on the ground that, as no statute provided for registration of plats, the date of registration of the deed would determine the matter. Wittson v. Dowling, 179 N. C. 542, 547, 103 S. E. 18.

Intended to Regulate Priorities.—The statute was designed to regulate priorities as between two conflicting dedications, and does not and was not intended to affect the general principles, dedication and acceptance, and the owner's right of revocation. Wittson v. Dowling, 179 N. C. 542, 547, 103 S. E. 18.

§ 47-31. Certified copies may be registered; used as evidence.—A duly certified copy of any deed or writing required or allowed to be registered may be registered in any county; and the registry or duly certified copy of any deed or writing when registered in the county where the land is situate may be given in evidence in any court of the state. (Rev., s. 988; Code, s. 1253; 1858-9, c. 18, s. 2; C. S. 3319.)

Cross References.—As to court records as proof of destroyed instruments, see §§ 98-12, 98-13. As to certified copies of registered instruments as evidence, see § 8-18. As to certified copies of deeds, mortgages, etc., as evidence and for registry, see § 8-20.

Registration of Copies in Proper County Allowed.—This section allows certified copies of deeds erroneously registered to be recorded in the proper counties. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 75 S. E. 800.

Proper Registration of the Original Presumed.—It is to be assumed that the deed was properly put upon the registry, until the contrary is made to appear, and nothing more is required to render the copy competent evidence when certified by the register. Starke v. Etheridge, 71 N. C. 240; Love v. Hardin, 87 N. C. 249; Strickland v. Draughan, 88 N. C. 315, 317.

Copy of Contract Used in Evidence to Prove Lost Original.—For proof of the loss of a contract to convey land, a copy thereof, if shown to be correct, is admissible as secondary evidence to prove the contents of the original, though no search was made to ascertain whether the original was registered. Such a contract is valid between the parties without registration. Mauney v. Crowell, 84 N. C. 314.

Certified Copy 100 Years Old May Be Registered though Mutilated.—Under this section a certified copy of a deed over 100 years old, which showed that the original was a perfect deed of conveyance, is admissible to probate and registration, though by reason of the mutilation of the records some lines of the conveyance showing the consideration therefor were lost; this being particularly true where an earlier certified copy of the same conveyance included the destroyed portions. Richmond Cedar Works v. Stringfellow, 236 Fed. 264.

Cited in United States v. 7,405.3 Acres of Land, 97 F. (2d) 417.

§ 47-32. Photostatic copies of plats, etc.; fees of clerks.—In all special proceedings in which a plat, map or blue-print shall be filed as a part of the papers, the Clerk of the Superior Court may have a photostatic copy of said plat, map or blue-print made on a sheet of the same size as the leaves in the book in which the special proceeding is recorded, and when made, shall place said photostatic copy in said book at the end of the report of the commissioners or other document referring to said plat, map or blue-print. The Clerk of Superior Court shall be allowed a fee to be fixed by the County Commissioners not exceeding the sum of five dollars to be taxed in the bill of costs, which fee shall cover the cost of making said photostatic copy and all services of the clerk in connection therewith. (1931, c. 171.)

§ 47-33. Certified copies of deeds made by alien property custodian may be registered.—Any copy of a deed made, or purporting to be made, by the United States alien property custodian duly certified pursuant to Title twenty-eight, section six hundred sixty-one of United States Code by the department of justice of the United States, with its official seal impressed thereon, when the said certified copy reveals the fact that the execution of the original was acknowledged by the alien property custodian before a notary public of the District of Columbia, and that the official seal of the alien property custodian by recital was affixed or impressed on the original, and further reveals it to have been approved, as to form, by general counsel, and the copy also shows that the original was signed and approved by the acting chief, division of trusts, and was witnessed by two witnesses, shall, when presented to the register of deeds of any county wherein the land described therein purports to be situate, be recorded by the register of deeds of such county without other or further proof of the execution and/or delivery of the original thereof, and the same when so recorded shall be indexed and cross-indexed by the register of deeds as are deeds made by individuals upon the payment of the usual and lawful fees for the registration thereof. (1937, c. 5, s. 1.)

§ 47-34. Certified copies of deeds made by alien property custodian admissible in evidence. — The record of all such recorded copies of such instruments authorized in § 47-33 shall be received in evidence in all the courts of this state and the courts of the United States in the trial of any cause pending therein, the same as though and with like effect as if the original thereof had been probated and recorded as required by the law of North Carolina, and the record in the office of register of deeds of such recorded copy of such an instrument shall be presumptive evidence that the original of said copy was executed and delivered to the vendee, or vendees therein named, and that the original thereof has been lost or unintentionally destroyed without registration, and in the absence of legal proof to the contrary said so registered copy shall be conclusive evidence that the United States alien property custodian conveyed the lands and premises described in said registered copy to the vendees therein named, as said copy reveals, and title to such land shall pass by such recorded instrument. (1937, c. 5, s. 2.)

§ 47-36. Errors in registration corrected on petition to clerk.—Every person who discovers that there is an error in the registration of his grant, conveyance, bill of sale or other instrument of writing, may prefer a petition to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which said writing is registered, in the same manner as is directed for petitioners to correct errors in grants or patents, and if on hearing the same before said clerk it appears that errors have been committed, the clerk shall order the register of the county to correct such errors and make the record conformable to the original. The petitioner must notify his grantor and every person claiming title to or having lands adjoining those mentioned in the petition, thirty days previous to preferring the same. Any person dissatisfied with the judgment may appeal to the superior court as in other cases. (Rev., s. 1008; Code, s. 1266; R. C., c. 37, s. 28; 1790, c. 326, ss. 2, 3, 4; C. S. 3321.)

Cross Reference.—As to correction of grants, see § 146-55 et seq.

Proceedings provided for by this section are exclusive. Hopper v. Justice, 111 N. C. 418, 16 S. E. 626.

Same—Grantor Cannot call upon Grantee to Correct Mistake.—Where, by the mistake or oversight of the makers of a deed, the same is incorrectly written, they have no equity to call upon the grantee to correct the mistake in the books of the register, as they have an ample remedy under this section and a promise by the grantee to make such correction at his own expense and trouble would be nudum pactum. Oldham v. First Nat. Bank, 85 N. C. 241.

The Register May Correct His Mistake.—The order of registration by the clerk is a continuous one, with which the register may subsequently comply upon inadvertently having omitted to copy the words it contained upon his book. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302.

Original Deed as Evidence to Show Mistake of Register.—The original deed may be shown in evidence to correct an omission by the register of deeds of the signature of the justice of the peace before whom the deed was acknowledged. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302.

Art. 3. Forms of Acknowledgment, Probate and Order of Registration.

§ 47-37. Adjudication and order of registration.—The form of adjudication and order of registration required by § 47-14 shall be substantially as follows:

North Carolina, ... County.

The foregoing (or annnexed) certificate of (here give name and official title of the officer signing the certificate passed upon) is adjudged to be correct. Let the instrument and the certificate be registered.

This ..... day of ....., A. D.....

.....

But the order of registration may be substantially in the form: "Let the same with this certificate be registered." (Rev., ss. 1001, 1010; 1899, c. 235, s. 7; 1905, c. 344; C. S. 3322.)

It is a sufficient compliance with this section for the clerk of the superior court of the county wherein the land lay, to certify that "the foregoing and annexed certificate of (naming the clerk), a clerk of the Supreme Court, etc., duly authenticated by his official seal, is adjudged to be correct, in due form and according to law, and the foregoing and annexed deed of trust is adjudged to be duly proved, etc." Kleybolte & Co. v. Black Mountain Timber Co., 151 N. C. 635, 66 S. E. 663.

§ 47-38. Acknowledgment by grantor.—Where the instrument is acknowledged by the grantor or maker, the form of acknowledgment shall be in substance as follows:

North Carolina, ... County.

I (here give the name of the official and his official title), do hereby certify that (here give the name of the grantor or maker) personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the due execution of the foregoing instrument. Witness my hand and (where an official seal is required by law) official seal this the .... day of .... (year).

(Rev., s. 1002; C. S. 3323.)

Certificates of acknowledgment will be liberally construed and will be upheld if in substantial compliance with the statute. Freeman v. Morrison, 214 N. C. 240, 199 S. E. 12.

"Acknowledgment" describes the act of personal appearance before a proper officer and there stating to him the fact of the execution of the instrument as a voluntary act. Freeman v. Morrison, 214 N. C. 240, 199 S. E. 12.

Acknowledgment Taken Over Telephone. — Section 39-7, providing the proper mode of conveyance of real property by husband and wife of his lands, tenements and hereditaments, contemplates that the acknowledgment and the privy examination of the wife provided for shall be made in the presence of the officer, which is emphasized by this section and section 47-39 as to acknowledgments of grantors and married women; and such acknowledgment, taken of the wife over a telephone, does not meet the statutory requirements, and renders the conveyance invalid as to her. Southern State Bank v. Summer, 187 N. C. 762, 122 S. E. 848.

Position of the Name of the Justice.—It is not necessary to the validity of the probate of a deed that the signature of the name of the justice before whom it was acknowledged should be recorded at the end, when it appears from the certificate as recorded and from the clerk's adjudication thereon that his name appeared in the first line, and that in fact he properly took the acknowledgment. Brown v. Hutchinson, 155 N. C. 205, 71 S. E. 302.

Cited in McClure v. Crow, 196 N. C. 657, 146 S. E. 713.

§ 47-39. Private examination of wife.—When an instrument purports to be signed by a married woman, the form of certificate of her acknowledgment and private examination before any officer authorized to take the same shall be in substance as follows:

North Carolina, ... County.

I (here give name of the official and his official title), do hereby certify that (here give name of the married woman who executed the instrument), wife of (here give husband's name), personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the due execution of the foregoing (or annexed) instrument; and the said (here give married woman's name), being by me privately examined, separate and apart from her said husband, touching her voluntary execution of the same, doth state that she signed the same freely and voluntarily, without fear or compulsion of her said husband or any other person, and that she doth still voluntarily assent thereto.

Cross Reference.—As to conveyances by husband and wife and requirement of private examination of wife, see § 39-7 et seq.

"And Doth Voluntarily Assent Thereto" Not Essential.—The privy examination of a feme covert which sets out that she signed the deed of her own free will and accord, and without any compulsion of her husband, is sufficient, without adding the words, "and doth voluntarily assent thereto." Robbins v. Harris, 96 N. C. 557, 2 S. E. 70.

§ 47-40. Husband's acknowledgment and wife's examination before same officer.—Where the instrument is acknowledged by both husband and wife or by other grantor before the same officer the form of acknowledgment shall be in substance as follows:

North Carolina, ... County.

I (here give name of official and his official title), do hereby certify that (here give name of the grantors whose acknowledgment is being taken) personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the due execution of the foregoing (or annexed) instrument, and the said (here give name of the married woman or women), wife (or wives) of (here give name of husband or husbands), being by me privately examined, separate and apart from her said husband, touching her voluntary execution of the same, doth state that she signed the same freely and voluntarily, without fear or compulsion of her said husband or any other person, and that she doth still voluntarily assent thereto.

Cross Reference.—As to necessity of seal of probating officer when such officer has an official seal, see § 47-5.

§ 47-41. Corporate conveyances.—The following forms of probate for deeds and other conveyances executed by a corporation shall be deemed sufficient, but shall not exclude other forms of probate which would be deemed sufficient in law. If the deed or other instrument is executed by the president or vice president of the corporation, is sealed with its common, or corporate seal, and is attested by its secretary or assistant secretary, or, in case of a bank, by its secretary, assistant secretary, cashier or assistant cashier, the following form of acknowledgment is sufficient:

.....
(State and county, or other description of place where acknowledgment is taken)

I, ..., ...,
(Name of officer taking acknowledgment) (Official title of officer taking acknowledgment)

certify that ..... personally
(Name of secretary, assistant secretary, cashier or assistant cashier)

(Official seal, if officer taking acknowledgement has one.)

(a) The words "a corporation" following the blank for the name of the corporation may be omitted when the name of the corporation ends with the word "Corporation" or "Incorporated."

(b) The words "My commission expires" and the date of expiration of the notary public's commission may be omitted except when a notary public is the officer taking the acknowledgment.

(c) The words "and official seal" and the seal itself may be omitted when the officer taking the acknowledgment has no seal or when such officer is the clerk, assistant clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which the deed or other instrument acknowledged is to be registered.

If the instrument is executed by the president or presiding member or trustee and two other members of the corporation, and sealed with the common seal, the following form shall be sufficient:

North Carolina, ... County.

This ..... day of ....., A. D. ....., personally came before me (here give the name and official title of the officer who signs this certificate), A. B. (here give the name of the subscribing witness), who, being by me duly sworn, says that he knows the common seal of the (here give the name of the corporation), and is also acquainted with C. D., who is the president (or presiding member or trustee), and also with E. F. and G. H., two other members of said corporation; and that he, the said A. B., saw the said president (or presiding member or trustee) and the two said other members sign the said instrument, and saw the said president (or presiding member or trustee) affix the said common seal of said corporation thereto, and that he, the said subscribing witness, signed his name as such subscribing witness thereto in their presence. North Carolina, ... County.

This is to certify that on the .... day of ....., 19...., before me personally came ..... (president, vice-president, secretary or assistant secretary, as the case may be), with whom I am personally acquainted, who, being by me duly sworn, says that ..... is the president (or vice-president), and ..... is the secretary (or assistant secretary) of the ....., the corporation described in and which executed the foregoing instrument; that he knows the common seal of said corporation; that the seal affixed to the foregoing instrument is said common seal, and the name of the corporation was subscribed thereto by the said president (or vice-president), and that said president (or vice-president) and secretary (or assistant secretary) subscribed their names thereto, and said common seal was affixed, all by order of the board of directors of said corporation, and that the said instrument is the act and deed of said corporation. Witness my hand and (when an official seal is required by law) official seal, this the .... day of ..... (year).

If the deed or other instrument is executed by the signature of the president, presiding member or trustee of the corporation, and sealed with its common seal and attested by its secretary, or assistant secretary, the following form of proof and certificate thereof shall be deemed sufficient:

This .... day of ....., A. D. ....., personally came before me (here give name and official title of the officer who signs the certificate) A. B., who, being by me duly sworn, says that he is president (presiding member or trustee) of the ..... Company, and that the seal affixed to the foregoing (or annexed) instrument in writing is the corporate seal of the company, and that said writing was signed and sealed by him in behalf of said corporation by its authority duly given. And the said A. B. acknowledged the said writing to be the act and deed of said corporation.

If the officer before whom the same is proven be the clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument is offered for registration, he shall add to the foregoing certificate the following: "Let the instrument with the certificate be registered."

All corporate conveyances probated and recorded prior to February 14, 1939, wherein the same was attested by the assistant secretary, instead of the secretary, and otherwise regular, are hereby validated as if attested by the secretary of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1005; 1899, c. 235, s. 17; 1901, c. 2, s. 110; 1905, c. 114; 1907, c. 927, s. 1; 1939, c. 20, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 172; C. S. 3326.)

Cross Reference.—As to sections validating certain corporate acknowledgments, see §§ 47-70, 47-71, 47-72, 47-73.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the first form of acknowledgment and paragraphs (a), (b) and (c).

Power of Directors to Mortgage Corporate Property.—This section appears to recognize inferentially the power of a board of directors to mortgage the corporate property. Wall v. Rothrock, 171 N. C. 388, 390, 88 S. E. 633.

Reference to Forms of Probate Sufficient by Common Law. — This section providing that it shall not exclude "other forms of probate which would be deemed sufficient in law," can only refer to forms of probate deemed sufficient by the common law, under which a certificate, showing that the officer whose duty it was to affix the seal acknowledged that he did so, is sufficient. National Bank v. Hill, 226 Fed. 102.

Substantial Compliance Sufficient. — Under the decisions of the Supreme Court of North Carolina, the probate of a deed of a corporation is sufficient if it substantially shows the facts required by the statute which expressly provides that the form prescribed "shall not exclude other forms of probate." Board v. Wills & Sons, 236 Fed. 362.

Where the probate of a corporation's deed for land is in substantial compliance with this section, parol evidence is competent, in an action attacking its validity, that tends to corroborate the recitations of the probate, and to further show that the president and secretary had proper authority to act therein on its behalf. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166.

While it is the better course to follow the suggested methods of this section, in the execution of a corporate chattel mortgage, there being no general law or charter provision to the contrary, it is not necessary to its validity that the witness to the probate certifies in its probate that he saw the presiding member sign it, when otherwise it complies with the requirements of the general law. Merchants, etc., Bank v. Pearson, 186 N. C. 609, 613, 120 S. E. 210.

Same—What Does Not Constitute Substantial Compliance.—When it does not appear from the probate of a corporation's deed to lands that the seal affixed is the common seal of the corporation, or that it was affixed by the proper officers of the corporation, it is not a substantial compliance with this section, and the deed is ineffectual to pass title to the lands as against creditors and purchasers. Withrell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 69 S. E. 748.

A corporation's deed is defective which fails to show by its certificate, read in connection with the deed, that the corporate officials acknowledged the instrument as the act and deed of the corporation, or that the official executing the deed in behalf of and under authority from the corporation acknowledged it to be "his" act and deed, as such. Withrell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 69 S. E. 748.

Same—Seal of Corporation. — It is not necessary to the valid probate of a deed made by a corporation that it literally follows the statutory printed forms of this section if it substantially complies with the law regulating the probate of a conveyance of land; and where the probate shows the acknowledgment of the president and secretary, each acting in his official capacity, or as representing the corporation, who is designated as "the grantor, for the purpose therein expressed," it is sufficient; and the finding of the jury, upon evidence, that their officials were properly authorized to act for and in behalf of the corporation, and had so acted; and had used the word "seal" enclosed in scroll, that had been lawfully adopted for the purpose, makes it a valid execution and probate of the deed as an act of the corporation itself; and were it otherwise, the defects as to the "seal" seems to be cured under the provisions of § 47-72, and as to signatures of the officials by § 47-73. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166.

Acknowledgment of Individuals Instead of Officers.—The probate of a deed of a corporation by the acknowledgment of individuals instead of by its officers, is fatally defective and its registration, in consequence, is a nullity. Bernhardt v. Brown, 122 N. C. 587, 29 S. E. 884.

§ 47-42. Attestation of banking corporation conveyances by cashier.—In all forms of proof and certificate for deeds and conveyances executed by banking corporations, which corporations have no secretary, the cashier of said banking corporation shall attest such instruments; all deeds and conveyances executed prior to February 14, 1939, by banking corporations, where the cashier of said banking corporation has attested said instruments, which deeds and conveyances are otherwise regular, are hereby validated. (1939, c. 20, s. 2½.)

Cross Reference.—As to probate of deeds by examination of subscribing witness in certain cases, when corporation has ceased to exist, see § 47-16.

§ 47-43. Form of certificate of acknowledgment of instrument executed by attorney in fact.—When an instrument purports to be signed by parties acting through another by virtue of the execution of a power of attorney, the following form of certificate shall be deemed sufficient, but shall not exclude other forms which would be deemed sufficient in law:

"North Carolina, ...County.

I (here give name of the official and his official title), do hereby certify that (here give name of attorney in fact), attorney in fact for (here give names of parties who executed the instrument through attorney in fact), personally appeared before me this day, and being by me duly sworn, says that he executed the foregoing and annexed instrument for and in behalf of (here give names of parties who executed the instrument through attorney in fact), and that his authority to execute and acknowledge said instrument is contained in an instrument duly executed, acknowledged, and recorded in the office of (here insert name of official in whose office power of attorney is recorded, and the County and State of recordation), on the (day of month, month, and year of recordation), and that this instrument was executed under and by virtue of the authority given by said instrument granting him power of attorney; that the said (here give name of attorney in fact) acknowledged the due execution of the foregoing and annexed instrument for the purposes therein expressed for and in behalf of the said (here give names of parties who executed the instrument through attorney in fact).

WITNESS my hand and official seal, this .... day of ....., (year) .....

Cross Reference.—As to registration of power of attorney, see § 47-28.

§ 47-44. Clerk's certificate upon probate by justice of peace. — When the proof or acknowledgment of any instrument is had before a justice of the peace of some other state or territory of the United States, or before a justice of the peace of this state, but of a county different from that in which the instrument is offered for registration, the form of certificate as to his official position and signature shall be substantially as follows:

North Carolina, ... County.

I, A. B. (here give name and official title of a clerk of a court of record), do hereby certify that C. D. (here give the name of the justice of the peace taking the proof, etc.), was at the time of signing the foregoing (or annexed) certificate an acting justice of the peace in and for the county of ..... and state (or territory) of ....., and that his signature thereto is in his own proper handwriting.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and official seal, this ..... day of ....., A. D. .....

(Rev., s. 1006; 1899, c. 235, s. 8; C. S. 3327.)

§ 47-45. Clerk's certificate upon probate by nonresident official without seal.—When the proof or acknowledgment of any instrument is had before any official of some other state, territory or country and such official has no official seal, then the certificate of such official shall be accompanied by the certificate of a clerk of a court of record of the state, territory or country in which the official taking the proof or acknowledgment resides, of the official position and signature of such official; such certificate of the clerk shall be under his hand and official seal and shall be in substance as follows:

.....County.

I, A. B. (here give name and official title of the clerk of a court of record as provided herein), do hereby certify that C. D. (here give name of the official taking the proof, etc.) was at the time of signing the foregoing (or annexed) certificate a (here give the official title of the officer taking proof, etc.) in and for the county of ..... and state of ..... (or other political division of the state, territory or country, as the case may be), and that his signature thereto is in his own proper handwriting.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and official seal, this .... day of ....., A. D. .....

(Rev., s. 1007; 1899, c. 235, s. 8; C. S. 3328.)

§ 47-46. Verification; form of entry.—The registers of deeds in the several counties of the State shall, after each instrument or document has been transcribed on the record, verify the record with the original and the entry of record shall read "Recorded and Verified," and the same shall be without extra charge. (1929, c. 320, s. 1.)

Art. 4. Curative Statutes; Acknowledgments; Probates; Registration.

§ 47-47. Defective order of registration; "same" for "this instrument."—Where instruments were admitted to registration prior to March 2, 1905, and the clerk's order for the registration used the word "same" in place of "this instrument," the said registrations are good and valid. (Rev., s. 1010; 1905, c. 344; C. S. 3329.)

§ 47-48. Clerk's certificate failing to pass on all prior certificates.—When it appears that the clerk of the superior court or other officer having the power to probate deeds, in passing upon deeds or other instruments, and the certificates thereto, having more than one certificate of the same or a prior date, by other officer or officers taking acknowledgment or probating the same, has in his certificate or order mentioned only one or more of the preceding or foregoing certificates or orders, but not all of them, but has admitted the same deed or other instrument to probate, it shall be conclusively presumed that he has passed upon all the certificates of said deed or instrument necessary to the admission of the same to probate, and the certificate of said clerk or other probating officer shall be deemed sufficient and the probate and registration of said deed or instrument is hereby made and declared valid for all intents and purposes. (1917, c. 237; C. S. 3330.)

§ 47-49. Defective certification or adjudication of clerk, etc., admitting to registration. — In all cases where, prior to January first, nineteen hundred and nineteen, instruments by law required or authorized to be registered, with certificates showing the acknowledgment or proof of execution thereof as required by the laws of the state of North Carolina, have been ordered registered by the clerk of the superior court or other officer qualified to pass upon probates and admit instruments to registration, and actually put upon the books in the office of the register of deeds as if properly proven and ordered to be registered, all such probates and registrations are hereby validated and made as good and sufficient as though such instruments had been in all respects properly proved and recorded, notwithstanding the failure of clerks or other officers qualified to pass upon the proofs or acknowledgments of instruments and to admit such instruments to registration to adjudge or certify that said instruments were duly proven, and notwithstanding the failure of such officers to adjudge or certify that the certificates of proof or acknowledgment of said instruments were correct or in due form. (1919, c. 248; C. S. 3331.)

§ 47-50. Order of registration omitted.—In all cases prior to January 1, 1941, where it appears from the records in the office of the register of deeds of any county in this state that the execution of a deed of conveyance or other instrument by law required or authorized to be registered was duly acknowledged, as required by the laws of the state of North Carolina, and the clerk or deputy clerk of the superior court of such county has properly proved and adjudged that the certificate or certificates of the official before whom such acknowledgment was taken is in due form, except that the order for registration by said clerk was omitted, any and all such probates and registration are hereby validated, and the record of such deeds of conveyance, or other instruments authorized or required to be registered, may be read in evidence upon the trial or hearing of any cause with the same force and effect as if the same had been duly ordered registered. (1911, cc. 91, 166; 1913, c. 61; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 73; 1915, c. 179, s. 1; 1941, cc. 187, 229; C. S. 3332.)

§ 47-51. Official deeds omitting seals.—All deeds executed prior to July 1, 1939, by any sheriff, commissioner, receiver, or other officer authorized to execute a deed by virtue of his office or appointment, in which the officer has omitted to affix his seal after his signature, shall not be invalid on account of the omission of such seal. (1907, c. 807; 1917, c. 69, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 64; 1941, c. 13; C. S. 3333.)

Editor's Note.—The acts of 1924 and 1941 each changed the date mentioned in this section.

§ 47-52. Defective acknowledgment on old deeds validated. — The clerk of the superior court may order registered any deed, or other conveyance of land, in all cases where the instrument and probate bears date prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and seven (1907) where the acknowledgment, private examination, or other proof of execution, has been taken or had before a notary public residing in the county where the land is situate, where said officer failed to affix his official seal, and where the certificate of said officer appears otherwise to be genuine. (1933, c. 439.)

§ 47-53. Probates omitting official seals. — In all cases where the acknowledgment, private examination, or other proof of the execution of any deed, mortgage, or other instrument authorized or required to be registered has been taken or had by or before any commissioner of affidavits and deeds of this state, or clerk or deputy clerk of a court of record, or notary public of this or any other state, territory, or district, and such deed, mortgage, or other instrument has heretofore been recorded in any county in this state, but such commissioner, clerk, deputy clerk, or notary public has omitted to attach his or her official or notarial seal thereto, or it does not appear of record that such seal was attached to the original deed, mortgage, or other instrument, or such commissioner, clerk, deputy clerk, or notary public has certified the same as under his or her "official seal," "notarial seal," or words of similar import, and no such seal appears of record, then all such acknowledgments, private examinations, or proofs taken prior to January first, gages, or other instruments, and the registration thereof, are hereby made in all respects valid and binding. The provisions of this section apply to acknowledgments, private examinations, or proofs taken prior to January first, 1929. (Rev., s. 1012; 1907, cc. 213, 665, 971; 1911, c. 4; 1915, c. 36; 1929, c. 8, s. 1; C. S. 3334.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 amended the last two sentences as formerly appearing in this section to read as the last sentence above.

§ 47-54. Registrations by register's clerks or deputies.—All registration of deeds and other instruments heretofore made by the several registers of deeds of the several counties of the state by their deputies and clerks, and signed in the name of the register of deeds by a deputy or clerk, and when said registration is in all other respects regular, are hereby validated and declared of the same force and effect as if signed in the name of the register and not by a deputy or clerk. (1911, c. 184, s. 1; C. S. 3335.)

§ 47-55. Before officer in wrong capacity or out of jurisdiction.—All deeds, conveyances, or other instruments permitted by law to be registered in this state, which have been probated or ordered to be registered previous to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, before any officer of this or any other state or country, authorized by law to take acknowledgments or to order registration, where the certificate of the probate or order of registration is sufficient in form, but appears to have been certified by the officer in some capacity other than that in which such officer was authorized to act, or appears to have been made out of the county or district authorized by law, but within the state, and where the instrument with such certificate has been recorded in the proper county, are hereby declared to have been duly proved, probated and recorded, and to be valid. (Rev., ss. 1017, 1030; 1913, c. 125, s. 1; C. S. 3336.)

Deeds, etc., Ordered to Be Registered by Justices Validated.—All deeds, conveyances, or other instruments permitted by law to be registered in this State which have been probated or ordered to be registered by any of the several justices of the peace appointed under the Act of 1921 C. 237, set out since the first Monday in April, nineteen hundred and twenty-five, where the certificate of the probate is sufficient in form, but appears to have been certified by one of the several justices of the peace named in said act, are hereby declared to have been duly proved, probated and recorded, and to be valid. 1927, ch. 189, section 2.

Has no Retroactive Effect as to Vested Rights of Third Parties.—Acts validating irregular acknowledgments and probates while good, as between the parties, and as to third parties from the passage of the acts, would not validate such acknowledgments and probates as to third parties whose rights had already been acquired prior to the validating statutes. Gordon v. Collett, 107 N. C. 362, 12 S. E. 332; Williams v. Kerr, 113 N. C. 306, 310, 18 S. E. 501.

§ 47-56. Before justices of peace, where clerk's certificate or order or registration defective.—In every case where it appears from the record of the office of any register of deeds in this state that a justice of the peace in this state has taken and certified the proof of any instrument required by law to be registered, or the privy examination of a married woman thereto, and the deed and certificate have been registered, prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and seven, in the county where the lands described in the instrument are located, without or with a defective certificate of the clerk of the official character of the justice, or as to the genuineness of his signature, or without the order of registration of the clerk, or his adjudication of due probate, or with a defective adjudication thereof, such proofs, certificates and registration are validated; but as against creditors or purchasers from donor, bargainor or lessor, only from February first, nineteen hundred and seven. (1907, c. 83, s. 1; C. S. 3337.)

Local Modification.—Clay: 1933, c. 530.

§ 47-57. Probates on proof of handwriting of maker refusing to acknowledge.—All registrations of instruments, prior to February fifth, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven, permitted or required by law to be registered, which were ordered to registration upon proof of the handwriting of the grantor or maker who refused to acknowledge the execution, are hereby validated. (Rev., s. 1026; 1897, c. 28; C. S. 3338.)

§ 47-58. Before judges of supreme or superior courts or clerks before 1889.—Wherever the judges of the supreme or the superior court, or the clerks or deputy clerks of the superior court, or courts of pleas and quarter sessions, mistaking their powers, have essayed previously to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-nine, to take the probate of any instrument required or allowed by law to be registered, and the privy examination of femes covert, whose names are signed to such deeds, and have ordered said deeds to registration, and the same have been registered, all such probates, privy examinations and registrations are validated. (Rev., s. 1009; Code, s. 1260; 1871-2, c. 200, s. 1; 1889, c. 252; 1891, c. 484; C. S. 3339.)

In General.—It is evident from the general scope of all the legislation upon this important subject that this section was intended to ratify and validate what had erroneously been done by officials having general or special powers of probate and registration, so that the essence of what was done should not be sacrificed to the form of doing it, and to save rights of property where no substantial departure from legal requirements appeared, but merely an irregularity which could be cured without injury to the rights of others. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 75 S. E. 800, 801.

Liberal Construction.—The statutes validating defective probates and registrations of deeds are remedial, and must be liberally construed to embrace all cases fairly within their scope. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 75 S. E. 800.

Defective Probates of County Courts Embraced.—Where it is argued by counsel that this section does not refer to probates taken by the county courts, but to those of the clerks of said courts, it was held that the probates of the county courts were intended to be validated. The phraseology and punctuation, as well as the grammatical construction, of the statute, lead to that conclusion. If the other meaning had been intended, the preposition "of" would have been inserted before the words "courts of pleas and quarter sessions." The section also validates registrations made upon such probates. Weston v. Roper Lumber Co., 160 N. C. 263, 75 S. E. 800, 801.

Was Not Intended to Validate Intentional Breaches of Authority. — There was no purpose to give efficacy and vitality to a certificate of probate or adjudication of its correctness, where the error consisted not in misconceiving the extent of the power affirmatively conferred by law, but in disregarding a plain prohibition of the statute, and committing a breach of propriety in breaking over the barriers constructed to limit their authority. It was never intended that an officer, who exercised authority in the face of a plain statutory prohibition, should under the curative provisions of this section derive benefit from thus disregarding such legal restrictions for his own advantage or convenience. Freeman v. Person, 106 N. C. 251, 253, 10 S. E. 1037.

Probate of Officer Who is a Party Not Validated.—This section has been considered in Freeman v. Person, 106 N. C. 251, 10 S. E. 1037, and it is there held that it cannot be construed to validate the probate of an officer in regard to a matter in which he or his wife was a party. White v. Connelly, 105 N. C. 65, 71, 11 S. E. 177.

Probate by Deputy Clerks.—At the time, and prior to the enactment of this section, deputy clerks could not, take proof of deeds and other instruments requiring registration; but an erroneous impression prevailed then and before that time, that they and the judges of the courts had authority to do so, and in many instances they undertook to exercise such authority. This was attributable to confused legislation on the subject of the probate of deeds and other instruments, and the fact that such officers were invested with such power before the present statutes on that subject were enacted. To cure errors in this respect, and render effectual many official acts done by honest misapprehension of the law, the Legislature enacted this section. Tatom v. White, 95 N. C. 453, 458. Deputy clerks are now authorized by section 47-1 to take probate on instruments.—Ed. Note.

Same—Signing by Deputy Clerk.—This section validates probates of deeds and privy examinations taken before a deputy clerk prior to January 1, 1889, and it is immaterial whether the deputy clerk, in making the probate, signed as deputy clerk or merely signed the name of the clerk thereto. Gordon v. Collett, 107 N. C. 362, 12 S. E. 332.

Constitutionality.—This curative statute is constitutional and valid if rights of third parties have not accrued, but it would not divert the title of a party acquired by a subsequent deed from the same grantor which is registered prior to the enactment of the curative statute. Gordon v. Collett, 107 N. C. 362, 12 S. E. 332.

Scope of the Original Section. — This section originally rendered valid all probates of deeds, etc., made before the officers therein named, prior to 12 February, 1872; and registrations made in pursuance of such probates were held embraced within the operation of the statutes, although made after that date, but before the enactment of the Code. Tatom v. White, 95 N. C. 453.

§ 47-59. Before clerks of inferior courts.—All probates and orders of registration made by and taken before any clerk of any inferior or criminal court prior to the twentieth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-five, and valid in form and substance, shall be valid and effectual, and all deeds, mortgages or other instruments requiring registration, registered upon such probate and order of registration, shall be valid. This section shall apply only to the counties of Halifax, Northampton, Hertford, Buncombe, Mecklenburg, Granville, Beaufort, Lenoir, Robeson, Cumberland, Ashe, Martin, Wayne, Greene, Iredell, Bertie, Edgecombe, Duplin and New Hanover. This section applies to probates and private examinations taken before the clerks of the criminal court of Buncombe prior to February second, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three. (Rev., ss. 1020, 1021; 1885, cc. 105, 108; 1889, c. 143; 1889, c. 463; C. S. 3340.)

§ 47-60. Order of registration by judge, where clerk party.—All deeds, mortgages or other instruments which prior to the twentieth day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, have been probated by a justice of the peace and ordered to registration by a judge of the superior court or justice of the supreme court, to which clerks of the superior court are parties, are hereby confirmed, and the probates and orders for registration declared to be valid. (Rev., s. 1011; 1893, c. 3, s. 2; C. S. 3342.)

§ 47-61. Order of registration by interested clerk.—The probate and registration of all deeds, mortgages and other instruments requiring registration prior to the fifteenth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-five, to which the clerks of the superior courts are parties, or in which they have an interest, and which have been registered on the order of such clerks or their deputies, or by assistant clerks of the superior courts, on proof of acknowledgment taken before such clerks, assistant clerks, deputy clerks, justices of the peace or notaries public, be, and the same are declared valid. (Rev., s. 1015; 1891, c. 102; 1899, c. 258; 1905, c. 427; 1907, c. 1003, s. 2; Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 105, s. 1; 1935, c. 235; C. S. 3343.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed the date from "prior to the fourth day of March, 1908" to "prior to the fifteenth day of January, 1935." It also validated registration on the order of deputies or assistant clerks.

§ 47-62. Probates before interested notaries.—The proof and acknowledgment of instruments required by law to be registered in the office of the register of deeds of a county, and all privy examinations of a feme covert to such instruments made before any notary public on or since March eleventh, one thousand nine hundred and seven, are hereby declared valid and sufficient, notwithstanding the notary may have been interested as attorney, counsel or otherwise in such instruments. (Ex. Sess. 1908, c. 105, s. 2; C. S. 3344.)

§ 47-63. Probates before officer of interested corporation.—In all cases when acknowledgment or proof of any conveyance has been taken before a clerk of superior court, justice of the peace or notary public, who was at the time a stockholder or officer in any corporation, bank or other institution which was a party to such instrument, the certificates of such clerk, justice of the peace, or notary public shall be held valid, and are so declared. (Rev., s. 1015; 1907, c. 1003, s. 1; C. S. 3345.)

Although a grantee in a chattel mortgage is not qualified to take the acknowledgment thereof, a chattel mortgage to a bank will not be declared void because the acknowledgment thereof was taken by its cashier. Bank of Duplin v. Hall, 203 N. C. 570, 166 S. E. 526.

§ 47-64. Probates before officers, stockholders or directors of corporations prior to January 1, 1943.—No acknowledgment or proof of execution, including privy examination of married women, of any deed, mortgage or deed of trust to which instrument a corporation is a party, executed prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, shall be held invalid by reason of the fact that the officer taking such acknowledgment, proof or privy examination was an officer, stockholder, or director in said corporation; but such proofs and acknowledgments and the registration thereof, if in all other respects valid, are declared to be valid. Nor shall the registration of any such instrument ordered to be registered be held invalid by reason of the fact that the clerk or deputy clerk ordering the registration was an officer, stockholder or director in any corporation which is a party to any such instrument. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 41; 1929, c. 24, s. 1; 1943, c. 135; C. S. 3346.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 inserted the above section in lieu of the one formerly appearing.

§ 47-65. Clerk's deeds, where clerk appointed himself to sell.—All deeds made by any clerk of the superior court of any county or his deputy, prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and five, in any proceeding before him in which he has appointed himself or his deputy to make sale of real property or other property are hereby validated. (1911, c. 146, s. 1; C. S. 3347.)

§ 47-66. Certificate of wife's "previous" examination.—All probates of deeds, letters of attorney or other instruments requiring registration to which married women were parties, had and taken prior to the fourteenth day of February, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three, in which probate it appears that such married women were "previously examined" instead of "privately examined," are hereby validated and confirmed. (Rev., s. 1016; 1893, c. 130; C. S. 3348.)

§ 47-67. Probates of husband and wife in wrong order.—All probates prior to March 6, 1893, of instruments executed by a husband and wife in which the probate as to the husband has been taken before or subsequent to the privy examination of his wife are validated. (Rev., s. 1017; 1893, c. 293; C. S. 3349.)

Cross Reference.—As to order of acknowledgment being immaterial, see § 39-8.

Rights of Third Parties Acquired before Statute Cannot Be Divested.—If third parties acquired rights, as by liens, against the grantor or conveyances from him, registered before the curative act, though with notice of such defectively probated instruments, the rights of such third parties could not be divested or impaired by this curative statute. Robinson v. Willoughby, 70 N. C. 358; Smith v. Castrix, 27 N. C. 318; Gordon v. Collett, 107 N. C. 362, 12 S. E. 332; Long v. Crews, 113 N. C. 256, 18 S. E. 499; Williams v. Kerr, 113 N. C. 306, 18 S. E. 501; Quinnerly v. Quinnerly, 114 N. C. 145, 19 S. E. 99; Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 129, 26 S. E. 691.

Husband's Deed Acknowledged or Subscribed by Witnesses.—The Curative Act, 1893, chap. 293, made valid probates where the wife's privy examination was had prior to the husband's "acknowledgment," and under this provision it was held that this embraces, in the true intendment of the act, cases in which the execution of the deed by the husband was proved by a subscribing witness, and not by his technical acknowledgment. Barrett v. Barrett, 120 N. C. 127, 130, 26 S. E. 691. The wording of the present section seems to cover both situations,—Ed. Note.

§ 47-68. Probates of husband and wife before different officers.—Where, prior to the second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, the probate of a deed or other instrument, executed by husband and wife, has been taken as to the husband and the wife by different officers having the power to take probates of deeds, whether both officers reside in this state or one in this state and the other in another state, or foreign country, the said probate, in the cases mentioned, shall be valid to all intents and purposes, and all deeds and other instruments required to be registered, and which have been ordered to registration by the proper officer in this state, and upon such probate or probates, and have been registered, shall be taken and considered as duly registered, and the word "probate," as used in this section, shall include privy examination of the wife. (Rev., s. 1018; 1895, c. 120; 1907, c. 34, s. 1; C. S. 3350.)

Cross Reference.—As to acknowledgment before different officers at different times and places, see § 39-8.

§ 47-69. Wife free trader; no examination or husband's assent. — In all cases prior to the twenty-fourth day of September, nineteen hundred and thirteen, where a married woman who was at the time a free trader by her husband's consent has executed and delivered a deed conveying her land, without her privy examination having been taken, and without the written assent of her husband other than his written assent contained in the instrument making her a free trader, such deed shall be valid and effectual to convey her land as if she had been, at the time of the execution and delivery of such deed, a feme sole. This section does not validate such deed where it would affect the title to land or property of purchasers or their grantees or assignees from such married woman and free trader subsequent to the execution of such deed. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 54, s. 1; C. S. 3351.)

Section 52-12 Not Affected.—This section does not affect section 52-12, requiring the additional certificate in deed of wife of her separate realty to her husband. Foster v. Williams, 182 N. C. 632, 109 S. E. 834.

Application to Deed to Husband.—It is not within the meaning or intent of this section purporting to insure defective execution of deeds of married women, free traders, that it should apply to deeds made directly to the husband, or annul the requirement that the probate officer certify that it was not unreasonable or injurious to her; but this should only apply to such conveyances made to third persons in respect to the husband's assent, etc., coming within the provisions of the section referred to, when the grantor is a free trader. Foster v. Williams, 182 N. C. 632, 109 S. E. 834. See notes of this case under section 52-12.

§ 47-70. By president and attested by treasurer under corporate seal.—All deeds and conveyances for lands in this state, made by any corporation of this state, which have heretofore been proved or acknowledged before any notary public in any other state, or before any commissioner of deeds and affidavits for the state of North Carolina in any other state, and sealed with the common seal of the corporation and attested by the treasurer, are hereby ratified and declared to be good and valid deeds for all purposes. Where such deeds have been executed for the corporation by its president and attested, sealed and acknowledged or probated as aforesaid, and the acknowledgment or probate has been duly adjudged sufficient by any deputy clerk and ordered registered, the acknowledgment, probate and registration are ratified, and said deed is declared valid. Such deeds, or certified copies thereof, may be used as evidence of title to the lands therein conveyed in the trial of any suits in any of the courts of this state where the title of said lands shall come in controversy. (Rev., s. 1028; 1905, c. 307; C. S. 3352.)

§ 47-71. By president and attested by witness before January, 1900.—Any deed or conveyance for land in this state, made prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred, by the president of any corporation duly chartered under the laws of this state, and attested by a witness, is hereby declared to be a good and valid deed by such corporation for all purposes, and shall be admitted to probate and registration and shall pass title to the property therein conveyed to the grantee as fully as if said deed were executed according to provisions and forms of law in force in this state at the date of the execution of said deed. (1909, c. 859, s. 1; C. S. 3353.)

§ 47-72. Corporate name not affixed, but signed otherwise prior to January, 1927.—In all cases prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-seven, where any deed conveying lands purported to be executed by a corporation, but the corporate name was in fact not affixed to said deed, but same was signed by the president and secretary of said corporation, or by the president and two members of the governing body of said corporation, and said deed has been registered in the county where the land conveyed by said deed is located, said defective execution above described shall be and the same is hereby declared to be in all respects valid, and such deed shall be deemed to be in all respects the deed of said corporation. (1919, c. 53, s. 1; 1927, c. 126; C. S. 3354.)

§ 47-73. Probated and registered on oath of subscribing witness.—In all cases prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and nineteen, where any deed conveying lands was executed by a corporation, and said deed was probated and ordered registered upon the oath and examination of a subscribing witness, by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land conveyed by said deed is located, and said deed has been duly registered by the register of deeds of said county, such probate and order of registration shall be, and the same is hereby, declared to be in all respects valid. (1919, c. 53, s. 2; C. S. 3355.)

§ 47-74. Certificate alleging examination of grantor instead of witness.—Wherever any deed of conveyance registered prior to January first, eighteen hundred and eighty-six, purports to have been attested by two witnesses and in the certificate of probate and acknowledgment it is stated that the execution of such deed was proven by the oath and examination of one of the grantors in said deed instead of either of the witnesses named, all such probates and certificates are hereby validated and confirmed, and any such deed shall be taken and considered as duly acknowledged and probated. (1925, c. 84.)

§ 47-75. Proof of corporate articles before officer authorized to probate.—All proofs of articles of agreement for the creation of corporations which were, prior to the eighteenth day of February, one thousand nine hundred and one, made before any officer who was at that time authorized by the law to take proofs and acknowledgments of deeds and mortgages are ratified. (Rev., s. 1027; 1901, c. 170; C. S. 3356.)

§ 47-76. Before officials of wrong state. — In all cases where the acknowledgment, examination and probate of any deed, mortgage, power of attorney or other instrument required or authorized to be registered has been taken before any judge, clerk of a court of record, notary public having a notarial seal, mayor of a city having a seal, or justice of the peace of a state other than the state in which the grantor, maker or subscribing witness resided at the time of the execution, acknowledgment, examination or probate thereof, and such acknowledgment, examination or probate is in other respects according to law, and such instrument has been duly ordered to registration and has been registered, then such acknowledgment, examination, probate and registration are hereby in all respects made valid and binding. This section applies to probates and acknowledgments of deputy clerks of other states when such probate and acknowledgment has been attested by the official seal of said office and adjudged sufficient and in due form of law by the clerk of the court in the state where the instrument is required to be registered. (Rev., s. 1013; 1905, c. 505; C. S. 3357.)

§ 47-77. Before notaries and clerks in other states.—All deeds and conveyances made for lands in this state which have, previous to February fifteenth, one thousand eight hundred and eighty-three, been proved before a notary public or clerk of a court of record, or before a court of record, not including mayor's court, of any other state, where such proof has been duly certified by such notary or clerk under his official seal, or the seal of the court, or in accordance with the act of congress regulating the certifying of records of the courts of one state to another state, or under the seal of such courts, and such deed or conveyance, with the certificate, has been registered in the office of register of deeds in the book of records thereof for the county in which such lands were situate at the time of such registration, are declared to be validly registered, and the proof and registration is adjudged valid. All deeds and conveyances so proved, certified and registered, or certified copies of the same, may be used as evidence of title for the lands on the trial of any suit in any courts where title to the lands come into controversy. (Rev., ss. 1022, 1023; Code, ss. 1262, 1263; 1883, c. 129, ss. 1, 2; 1885, c. 11; 1915, c. 213; C. S. 3358.)

Deed Probated in Tennessee in 1869. — When no vested rights are impaired, a deed dated in 1869 is not incompetent evidence upon the ground of a defective probate, showing the acknowledgment of the grantor and his wife, and her privy examination, taken before the clerk of a certain county court of Tennessee, with the seal of that court, which appears to be the seal of his office, affixed thereto, the same being validated by this section. Penland v. Barnard, 146 N. C. 378, 59 S. E. 1109.

Registry of Deed Upon Certificate of Commissioner of Deeds from Another State.—A deed registered in the proper county upon the certificate of a commissioner of deeds from another state must have the fiat from the clerk ordering it to be registered, or the registration will be invalid. This defect is not cured by this section. Cozard v. McAden, 148 N. C. 10, 61 S. E. 633. See section 47-81.

Constitutionality.—The Legislature has the constitutional right to enact statutes making valid deeds theretofore invalid by reason of defective probate, when no vested rights are impaired. Penland v. Barnard, 146 N. C. 378, 59 S. E. 1109.

§ 47-78. Acknowledgment by resident taken out of state.—When prior to the ninth day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, a deed or mortgage executed by a resident of this state has been proved or acknowledged by the maker thereof before a notary public of any other state of the United States, and has been ordered to be registered by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land conveyed is situated, and said deed or mortgage has been registered, such registration is valid. (Rev., s. 1019; 1895, c. 181; C. S. 3359.)

§ 47-79. Before deputy clerks of courts of other states.—Where any deed or conveyance of lands in this state, executed prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, has been acknowledged by the grantor or the privy examination of any married woman has been taken before the deputy clerk of a court of record of any other state, and the certificate of acknowledgment and privy examination is otherwise sufficient under the laws of this state, except that it appears to have been signed in the name of the clerk of said court, by the deputy clerk, and the seal of the court has been affixed thereto, and such certificate has been duly approved by the clerk of the superior court of this state in the county where the lands conveyed are situated and the instrument ordered to be recorded, such certificate and probate and the registration made thereon is validated, and the conveyance, if otherwise sufficient, is declared valid. (1913, c. 57, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3360.)

§ 47-80. Sister state probates without governor's authentication. — In all cases where any deed concerning lands or any power of attorney for the conveyance of the same, or any other instrument required or allowed to be registered, has been, prior to the twenty-ninth day of January, one thousand nine hundred and one, acknowledged by the grantor therein, or proved and the private examination of any married woman, who was a party thereto, taken according to law, before any judge of a supreme, superior or circuit court of any other state or territory of the United States where the parties to such instrument resided, and the certificate of such judge as to such acknowledgment, probate or private examination, and also the certificate of the secretary of state of said state or territory instead of the governor thereof (as required by the laws of this state then in force) that the judge, before whom the acknowledgment or probate and private examination were taken, was at the time of taking the same a judge as aforesaid, are attached to said deed, or other instrument, and the said deed or other instrument, having said certificates attached, has been exhibited before the former judge of probate, or the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the property is situated, and such acknowledgment, or probate and private examination have been adjudged by him to be sufficient and said deed or other instrument ordered to be registered and has been registered accordingly, such probate and registration shall be valid. Nothing herein contained affects the rights of third parties who are purchasers for value, without notice, from the grantor in such deed or other instrument. (Rev., s. 1014; 1901, c. 39; C. S. 3361.)

§ 47-81. Before commissioners of deeds.—Any deed or other instrument permitted by law to be registered, and which has prior to the third day of March, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, been proved or acknowledged before a commissioner of deeds, is validated; and its registration is authorized and validated. (1913, c. 39, s. 2; C. S. 3362.)

Does Not Interfere with Vested Rights.—This section is remedial in character and beneficent in purpose—making for the saving of titles, and not their destruction—yet it will not be permitted to impair or to interfere with the vested rights of others. Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozard, 183 N. C. 600, 611, 112 S. E. 810.

Same—Purchasers at Execution Sale.—This section cannot have the effect of impairing vested rights of purchasers at an execution sale under judgment, or those holding the land under his deed. Champion Fibre Co. v. Cozard, 183 N. C. 600, 112 S. E. 810.

§ 47-81.1. Before commissioner of oaths.—All deeds, mortgages or other instruments required to be registered, which prior to March 5, 1943, have been probated by a commissioner of oaths and ordered registered, are hereby validated and confirmed as properly probated and registered instruments. (1943, c. 471, s. 2.)

§ 47-81.2. Before army, etc., officers.—In all cases where instruments and writings have been proved or acknowledged before any officer of the army of the United States or United States marine corps having the rank of captain or higher, before any officer of the United States navy or coast guard having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, or any officer of the United States merchant marine having the rank of lieutenant, senior grade, or higher, such proofs or acknowledgments, where valid in other respects, are hereby ratified, confirmed and declared valid. (1943, c. 159, s. 2.)

§ 47-82. Foreign probates omitting seals.—In all cases where the acknowledgment, privy examination or other proof of the execution of any instrument authorized or required to be registered has been taken by or before any ambassador, minister, consul, vice consul, vice consul general or commercial agent of the United States in any country beyond the limits of the United States, and such instrument has heretofore been recorded in any county in this state, but the official before whom it was taken has omitted to attach his seal of office, or it does not appear of record that such seal was attached to the instrument, or such official has certified the same as under his "official seal" or seal of his office, or words of similar import, and no such seal appears of record, then all such acknowledgments, privy examinations or other proof of such instruments, and the registration thereof, are hereby made in all respects valid, and such instruments, after the ratification hereof, shall be competent to be read in evidence. (1913, c. 69, s. 1; C. S. 3363.)

§ 47-83. Before consuls general.—Any deed or other instrument permitted by law to be registered, and which has prior to the thirteenth day of October, nineteen hundred and thirteen, been proved or acknowledged before a "consul general," is validated; and its registration is authorized and validated. (Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 72, s. 2; C. S. 3364.)

§ 47-84. Before vice consuls and vice consuls general.—The order for registration by the clerk of the superior court and the registration thereof of all deeds of conveyance and other instruments in any county of this state prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and five, upon the certificate of any vice consul or vice consul general of the United States residing in a foreign country, certifying in due form under his name and the official seal of the United States consul or United States consul general of the same place and country where such vice consul or vice consul general resided and acted, that he has taken the proof or acknowledgments of the parties to such instruments, together with the privy examinations of married women parties thereto, are hereby, together with such proof and acknowledgments, privy examinations and certificates, validated. (Rev., s. 1024; 1905, c. 451, s. 2; C. S. 3365.)

Application to Right Prior to Statute—Person Not Claiming from Same Grantor Not Protected.—This section validating acknowledgment of deeds in foreign countries before "vice consuls and vice consuls general," though not valid against a deed from the same grantor duly registered or a lien against the grantor acquired before the validating act, is good as against a person not claiming under the grantor therein. Powers v. Baker, 152 N. C. 718, 68 S. E. 203.

§ 47-85. Before masters in chancery.—All probates, acknowledgments, and private examinations of deeds and conveyances of land heretofore taken before masters in equity or masters in chancery in any other state are declared to be valid, and all registrations of such deeds or conveyances upon such probates, acknowledgments and private examinations, or any of them, are hereby declared to be sufficient. All such deeds and conveyances and registration thereof, and all certified copies of such registrations, shall be received in evidence or otherwise used in the same manner and with the same force and effect as other deeds and conveyances with probates, acknowledgments, or private examinations made in accordance with provisions of statutes of this state in force at the time and as registrations thereof and certified copies of such registrations. Nothing in this section contained shall have effect to deprive any one of any legal rights acquired, before its passage, from the grantors in such deeds or conveyances subsequently to their execution, where the deeds or conveyances by which such rights were acquired have been duly acknowledged or probated and registered. (1911, c. 10; C. S. 3366.)

§ 47-86. Validation of probate of deeds by clerks of courts of record of other states, where official seal is omitted.—In all cases where, prior to the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-one, the acknowledgment, privy examination of a married woman, or other proof of the execution of any deed, mortgage, other instrument authorized to be registered has been taken before a clerk of a court of record in another state, and such clerk has failed or neglected to affix his official seal to his certificate of such acknowledgment, privy examination, or other proof of execution, of such deed, mortgage or other instrument, or where such court had no official seal and no official seal was affixed to such certificate by reason of that fact, and such deed, mortgage, or other instrument has been ordered to registration by the clerk of the superior court of any county in this state and has been registered, the probate of any and every such deed, mortgage, or other instrument authorized to be registered shall be and hereby is to all intents and purposes validated. (1921, c. 15, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 3366(a).)

§ 47-87. Validation of probates by different officers of deeds by wife and husband.—In all cases where, prior to the second day of March, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-five, the acknowledgment, privy examination of a married woman, or other proof of the execution of any deed, mortgage, or other instrument, authorized to be registered, executed by husband and wife, has been taken as to the husband and wife in different states and by different officers having power to take acknowledgments, any and every such acknowledgment, privy examination of a married woman, or other proof of execution, and the probate of any and every such deed, mortgage or other instrument shall be and hereby is, to all intents and purposes validated. (1921, c. 19, ss. 1, 4; C. S. 3366(b).)

ment, privy examination of a married woman, or other proof of the execution of any deed, mortgage or other instrument, authorized to be registered, has been taken before a commissioner in another state appointed by the probate judge of any county of this state, under the provisions of section twenty of chapter thirty-five of Battle's Revisal, during the time said chapter remained in force and effect, and such commissioner has certified to such acknowledgment, privy examination or other proof, and has returned such deed, mortgage or other instrument to said probate judge, with his certificate endorsed thereon, and such deed, mortgage or other instrument, together with such certificate, has been registered, without any adjudication or order of registration by such probate judge, the probate and registration of any and every such deed shall be, and hereby is, to all intents and purposes validated. (1921, c. 19, ss. 2, 4; C. S. 3366(c).)

§ 47-89. Same.—In all cases where any deed, mortgage or other instrument has heretofore been acknowledged or probated in accordance with the provisions of §§ 47-87 and 47-88, and such deed, mortgage or other instrument has been registered, without any order of registration by the probate judge or clerk of the superior court appearing thereon, the probate and registration of any and every such deed, mortgage or other instrument shall be, and hereby is to all intents and purposes validated. (1921, c. 19, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 3366(d).)

§ 47-90. Validation of acknowledgments taken by notaries public holding other office.—In every case where deeds or other instruments have been acknowledged before a notary public, when the notary public, at the time was also holding some other office, and the deed or other instrument has been duly probated and recorded, such acknowledgment taken by such notary public is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1921, c. 21; C. S. 3366(e).)

§ 47-91. Validation of certain probates of deeds before consular agents of the United States.—In all cases where the acknowledgment, privy examination of a married woman, or other proof of the execution of any deed, mortgage or other instrument authorized or required to be registered has been taken before any consular agent of the United States, during the time chapter thirty-five of Battle's Revisal remained in force and effect, and such acknowledgment, privy examination, or other proof of the execution of such deed, mortgage, or other instrument is in other respects regular and in proper form, and such deed, mortgage, or other instrument has been duly ordered to registration and registered in the proper county, the acknowledgment, probate, and registration of any and every such deed, mortgage, or other instrument is hereby validated as fully and to the same effect as though such acknowledgment, privy examination, or other proof of execution had been taken before one of the officers named in subsection five of section two of said chapter thirty-five of Battle's Revisal. (1921, c. 157; C. S. 3366(f).)

§ 47-92. Probates before stockholders and directors of banks.—No acknowledgment or proof of execution, including privy examination of married women, of any mortgage, or deed of trust executed to secure the payment of any indebtedness to any banking corporation, taken prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-three (1923), shall be held invalid by reason of the fact that the officer taking such acknowledgment, proof, or privy examination was a stockholder or director in such banking corporation. (1923, c. 17; C. S. 3366(g).)

Editor's Note.—A provision for a similar purpose to that of this section is found in section 47-63.

This section is summarized in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 302.

§ 47-93. Acknowledgments taken by stockholder, officer, or director of bank.—No acknowledgment or proof of execution, including privy examination of married women, of any mortgage or deed of trust executed to secure the payment of any indebtedness to any banking corporation taken prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, shall be held invalid by reason of the fact that the officer taking such acknowledgment, proof, or privy examination was a stockholder, officer, or director in such banking corporation. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 68.)

§ 47-94. Acknowledgment and registration by officer or stockholder in building and loan association.—All acknowledgments and proofs of execution, including privy examination of married women, of any mortgage or deed of trust executed to secure the payment of any indebtedness to any building and loan association prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine, shall not be, nor held to be, invalid by reason of the fact that the clerk of the Superior Court, justice of the peace, notary public, or other officer taking such acknowledgment, proof of execution or privy examination, was an officer or stockholder in such building and loan association; but such proofs and acknowledgments of all such instruments, and the registration thereof, if in all other respects valid, are hereby declared to be valid.

Nor shall the registration of any such mortgage or deed of trust ordered to be registered by the clerk of the Superior Court, or by any deputy or assistant clerk of the Superior Court, be or held to be invalid by reason of the fact that the clerk of the Superior Court, or deputy, or assistant clerk of the Superior Court, ordering such mortgages or deeds of trust to be registered was an officer or stockholder in any building and loan association, whose indebtedness is secured in and by such mortgage or deed of trust. (Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 108; 1929, c. 146, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 made this section applicable to acknowledgments and registrations prior to Jan. 1, 1929, instead of Aug. 10, 1924, as formerly provided.

§ 47-95. Acknowledgments taken by notaries interested as trustee or holding other office.—In every case where deeds and other instruments have been acknowledged and privy examination of wives had before notaries public, or justices of the peace, prior to January 1, 1939, when the notary public or justice of the peace at the time was interested as trustee in said instrument or at the time was also holding some other office, and the deed or other instrument has been duly probated and recorded, such acknowledgment and privy examination taken by such notary public or justice of the peace is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1923, c. 61; 1931, cc. 166, 439; 1939, c. 321; C. S. 3366(h).)

Editor's Note.—It is suggested in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 302, where it is analyzed, that this section should be considered as an addition to section 47-62.

Public Laws 1931, c. 438, inserted the justice of peace in the list of interested officers. The other 1931 act and the act of 1939 merely changed the date.

§ 47-96. Validation of instruments registered without probate.—In every case where it shall appear from the records in the office of the register of deeds of any county in the state that any instrument of writing required or allowed by law to be registered prior to January first, eighteen hundred and sixty-nine, without any acknowledgment, proof, privy examination, or probate, or upon a defective acknowledgment, proof, privy examination, or probate, the record of such instrument may, notwithstanding, be read in evidence in any of the courts of this state, if otherwise competent. (1923, c. 215, s. 1; C. S. 3366(i).)

Local Modification.—Cherokee, Graham: 1935, c. 92.

Editor's Note.—It is suggested in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 302, where this section is summarized, that it probably means that the registration must have been made prior to 1869, and that this and section 47-98 should be considered as amendments or additional sections to chapter 8, article 2, and §§ 47-47 to 47-85.

§ 47-97. Validation of corporate deed with mistake as to officer's name. — In all cases where the deed of a corporation executed before the first day of January, 1918, is properly executed, properly recorded and there is error in the probate of said corporation's deed as to the name or names of the officers in said probate, said deed shall be construed to be a deed of the same force and effect as if said probate were in every way proper. (1933, c. 412, s. 1.)

§ 47-98. Registration on defective probates beyond state.—In every case where it shall appear from the records in the office of the register of deeds of any county in this state that any instrument required or allowed by law to be registered, bearing date prior to the year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five, executed by any person or persons residing in any of the United States, other than this state, or in any of the territories of the United States, or in the District of Columbia, has been proven or acknowledged, or the privy examination of any feme covert taken thereto, before any officer or person authorized by any of the laws of this state in force prior to the said year one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five to take such proofs, privy examinations and acknowledgments, and the said instrument has been registered in the proper county without the certificate of the governor of the state or territory in which such proofs, acknowledgments or privy examinations were taken, or of the secretary of state of the United States, when such certificate or certificates were required, as to the official character of the person taking such acknowledgment, proof or privy examination, as aforesaid, and without an order of registration made by a court or judge in this state having jurisdiction to make such order, then and in all such cases such proofs, privy examinations, acknowledgments and registrations are hereby in all respects fully validated and confirmed and declared to be sufficient in law, and such instruments so registered may be read in evidence in any of the courts of this state. (1923, c. 215, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 3366(j).)

§ 47-99. Certificate of clerks without seal.—All certificates of acknowledgment and all verifications of pleadings, affidavits, and other instruments executed by clerks of the Superior Court of the State prior to March 10, 1925, and which do not bear the official seal of such clerks, are hereby validated in all cases in which the instruments bearing such acknowledgment or certification are filed or recorded in any county in the State other than the county in which the clerk executing such certificates of acknowledgment or vertifications resides, and such acknowledgments and verifications are hereby made and declared to be binding, valid and effective to the same extent and in the same manner as if said official seal had been affixed. (1925, c. 248.)

§ 47-100. Acknowledgments taken by officer who was grantor.—In all cases where a deed or deeds dated prior to the first day of January, 1910, purporting to convey lands, have been registered in the office of the Register of Deeds of the county where the lands conveyed in said deed or deeds are located, prior to said first day of January, nineteen hundred and ten, and the acknowledgments or proof of execution of such deed or deeds has been taken as to some of the grantors by an officer who was himself one of the grantors named in such deed or deeds, such defective execution, acknowledgment and proof of execution and probate of such deed or deeds thereon and the registration thereof as above described, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be in all respects valid, and such deed or deeds shall be declared to be in all respects duly executed, probated and recorded to the same effect as if such officer taking such proof or acknowledgment of execution had not been named as a grantor therein, or in anywise interested therein. (1929, c. 48, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—By express provision this section does not affect actions and proceedings pending at the time of its ratification, which was on the 21st of February, 1929.

§ 47-101. Seal of acknowledging officer omitted; deeds made presumptive evidence.—In all cases where deeds appear to have been executed for land prior to January 1, 1900, and appear to have been recorded in the offices of the registers of deeds in the proper counties in this state, and the same appear to have been acknowledged before commissioners of affidavits (or deeds) of North Carolina, residing in the District of Columbia or elsewhere in the different states, or appear to have been recorded without any certificate being recorded on the record of such deed or deeds, such record or records shall be presumptive evidence of the execution of such deed or deeds by the grantor or the grantors to the grantee or grantees therein named for the lands therein described, and the record of such deed or deeds may be offered or read in evidence upon the trial or hearing of any cause in any of the courts of this state as if the same had been properly probated and recorded. Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall prevent such record or records from being attacked for fraud, and provided further that this section shall not apply to creditors or purchasers, but as to them the same shall stand as if this section had not been passed, and shall only apply to deeds executed prior to January first, nineteen hundred. (1929, c. 14, s. 1.)

§ 47-102. Absence of notarial seal.—Any deed executed prior to the first day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-five, and duly acknowledged before a North Carolina notary public, and the probate recites "witness my hand and notarial seal," or words of similar import, and no seal was affixed to the said deed, shall be ordered registered by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the land lies, upon presentation to him: Provided, the probate is otherwise in due form. (1935, c. 130; 1943, c. 472.)

The 1943 amendment changed the year named in this section from 1910 to 1935.

§ 47-103. Deeds probated and registered with notary's seal not affixed, validated.—Any deed conveying or affecting real estate executed prior to January 1, 1932, and ordered registered and recorded in the county in which the land lies prior to said date, from which deed and the acknowledgment and privy examination thereof the seal of the notary public taking the acknowledgment or privy examination of the grantor or grantors thereof was omitted, is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid, and the probate and registration thereof are hereby in all respects validated and confirmed to the same effect as if the seal of said notary was affixed to the acknowledgment or privy examination thereof. (1941, c. 20.)

§ 47-104. Acknowledgments of notary holding another office.—In every case where deeds or other instruments have been acknowledged before a notary public, when the notary public at the time was also holding some other office, and the deed or other instrument has been duly probated and recorded, such acknowledgment taken by such notary public is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1935, c. 133; 1937, c. 284.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment re-enacted this section without change.

§ 47-105. Acknowledgment and private examination of married woman taken by officer who was grantor.—In all cases where a deed or deeds of mortgages or other conveyances of land dated prior to the first (1st) day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six (1926), purporting to convey lands have been registered in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the lands conveyed in said deeds are located prior to said first (1st) day of January, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-six (1926), and the acknowledgments or proof of execution of such deed or deeds and the private examination of any married woman who is a grantor in such deed or deeds have been taken as to some of the grantors, and the private examination of any married woman grantor in such deed has been taken by an officer who was himself one of the grantors named in such deed or deeds, such defective execution, acknowledgment, proof of execution and the private examination of such married woman, evidenced by the certificate thereof on such deed and the registration thereof as above described and set forth, shall be and the same are hereby declared to be in all respects valid, and such deed or deeds or other conveyances of land are declared to be in all respects duly executed, probated and recorded to the same effect as if such officer taking such proof or acknowledgment of execution or taking the private examination of such married woman and certifying thereto upon such deed or deeds had not been named as grantor therein and had not been interested therein in any way whatsoever. (1937, c. 91.)

§ 47-106. Certain instruments in which clerk of superior court was a party, validated.—In all cases where a deed, or other conveyance of land dated prior to the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and eighteen, purporting to convey land, wherein the grantor or one of the grantors therein was at the time clerk of the superior court of the county where the land purporting to be conveyed was located, was acknowledged, proof of execution, privy examination of a married woman, and, or, order of registration had and taken before a deputy clerk of the superior court of said county, and the instrument registered upon the order of said deputy clerk of the superior court in the office of the register of deeds of said county, within two years from the date of said instrument, such instrument and its probate are hereby in all respects validated and confirmed; and such instrument, together with such defective acknowledgment, proof of execution, privy examination of a married woman, order of registration, and the certificate of such deputy clerk of the superior court, and the registration thereof, are hereby declared in all respects to be valid and binding upon the parties of such instrument and their privies, and such instrument so probated and recorded together with its certificates may be read in evidence as a muniment of title, for all intents and purposes, in any of the courts of this state. (1939, c. 261.)

§ 47-107. Validation of probate and registration of certain instruments where name of grantor omitted from record.—All deeds, deeds of trust, conveyances or other instruments permitted by law to be registered in this state, which have been registered prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and in which a clerk of the superior court has adjudged the certificate of the officer before whom the acknowledgment was taken to be in due form and correct and has ordered the instrument to be recorded, but in which the name of a grantor which appears in the body of the instrument and as a signer of the instrument has been omitted from the record of the certificate of the officer before whom the acknowledgment was taken, are hereby declared to have been duly proved, probated and recorded and to be valid. (1941, c. 30.)

§ 47-108. Acknowledgments before notaries under age.—All acts of notaries public for the state of North Carolina who were not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of the performance of such acts are hereby validated; and in every case where deeds or other instruments have been acknowledged before such notary public who was not yet twenty-one years of age at the time of taking of said acknowledgment, such acknowledgment taken before such notary public is hereby declared to be sufficient and valid. (1941, c. 233.)

veyances and other instruments of writing of corporations entitled to registration, which have been heretofore duly executed in the manner required by law, by the proper officers of the corporation, and which have prior to March 8, 1943, been admitted to registration, on the acknowledgment or proof of the proper executing officer, in the manner required by law, shall be, and the same are hereby declared to be, in all respects validly admitted to record, although such officer at the date of such acknowledgment or proof had ceased to be an officer of such corporation, or such corporation at the date of such acknowledgment or proof had ceased to exist. (1943, c. 598.)

Art. 5. Registration of Official Discharges from the Military and Naval Forces of the United States.

§ 47-109. Book for record of discharges in office of register of deeds; specifications.—There shall be provided, and at all times maintained, in the office of the register of deeds of each county in North Carolina a special and permanent book, in which shall be recorded official discharges from the military and naval forces of the United States. Said book shall be securely bound, and the pages of the same shall be printed in the form of discharge papers, with sufficient blank lines for the recording of such dates as may be contained in the discharge papers offered for registration. (1921, c. 198, s. 1; C. S. 3366(k).)

§ 47-110. Registration of official discharge or certificate of lost discharge.—Upon the presentation of any official discharge, or official certificate of lost discharge, from the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States, it shall be the duty of the register of deeds of the several counties of the state to record such discharge in the book provided for in the preceding section. (1921, c. 198, s. 2; 1943, c. 599; C. S. 3366(l).)

The 1943 amendment struck out the former provision relating to fee for registration.

§ 47-111. Inquiry by register of deeds; oath of applicant.—If any register of deeds shall be in doubt as to whether or not any paper so presented for registration is an official discharge from the army, navy, or marine corps of the United States, or an official certificate of lost discharge, he shall have power to examine, under oath, the person so presenting such discharge, or otherwise inquire into its validity; and every register of deeds to whom a discharge or certificate of lost discharge is presented for registration shall administer to the person offering such discharge or certificate of lost discharge for registration the following oath, to be recorded with and form a part of the registration of such discharge or certificate of lost discharge:

"I, ..., being duly sworn, depose and say that the foregoing discharge (or certificate of lost discharge) is the original discharge (or certificate of lost discharge) issued to me by the Government of the United States; and that no alterations have been made therein by me, or by any person to my knowledge.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this ..... day of ....., 19 ...."

§ 47-112. Forgery or alteration of discharge or certificate; punishment. — Any person who shall forge, or in any manner alter any discharge or certificate of lost discharge issued by the Government of the United States, and offer the same for registration or secure the registration of the same under the provisions of this article shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 198, s. 4; C. S. 3366(n).)

§ 47-113. Certified copy of registration; fee.—Any person desiring a certified copy of any such discharge, or certificate of lost discharge, registered under the provisions of this article shall apply for the same to the register of deeds of the county in which such discharge or certificate of lost discharge is registered; and it shall be the duty of the register of deeds to furnish such certified copy upon the payment of a fee of fifty (50) cents therefor. (1921, c. 198, s. 5; C. S. 3366(o).)

Division IX. Domestic Relations.

Chapter 48. Adoption of Minors.

§ 48-1. Petition for adoption and change of name.—Any proper adult person or husband and wife, jointly, who have legal residence in North Carolina may petition the superior court of the county in which he or they have legal residence or the county in which the child resides, or of the county in which the child had legal residence when it became a public charge, or of the county in which is located any agency or institution operating under the laws of this state having guardianship and custody of the child, for leave to adopt a minor child and for a change of the name of such child. Provided, that in every instance when the parent, guardian or custodian of the child is not a citizen or resident of the state of North Carolina at the time of filing of petition for adoption, or where the child has been brought into the state for the purpose of placement and adoption by a parent, person, agency, institution or association, the provisions of chapter two hundred twenty-six of the Public Laws of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one [§§ 110-50 to 110-56] must be complied with before the child is eligible for adoption. Such petition for adoption shall be filed in duplicate on standard form to be supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, one form to be held in the files of the said superior court, and the other to be sent to said state board of charities and public welfare. Provided, that where a child or children have been duly adopted in North Carolina by a husband or wife and the name of the other spouse of said husband or wife was omitted in said adoption proceedings, and it being made to appear to the court by petition and affidavit of the original petitioner in said adoption proceeding and spouse of said petitioner that the name of said husband or wife of said petitioner was omitted through inadvertence, and that it was the intention of all parties to said proceeding that both the husband or wife of the original petitioner and the petitioner should be the adopting parties, then, and in that event, the court shall order that the original proceeding be corrected to the end that the husband or wife of the petitioner be made one of the adopting parties, and said order when so made shall have the effect of making said husband or wife one of the adopting parties; that this order shall be made notwithstanding the fact that the adopted child or children have reached their majority, unless said adoptee or adoptees should object to said adoption. (1935, c. 243; 1937, c. 422; 1939, cc. 32, 132, s. 1; 1943, c. 735.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment to this section limited the former one year's residence requirement to children born outside of the state. Chapter 132 of Public Laws of 1939 inserted the first proviso of the present section in lieu of that provision.

The 1943 amendment added the last proviso.

For a critical analysis and appraisal of this chapter, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 355.

For an article entitled "Thwarting Adoptions," see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 127.

Strictly Construed.—Since the laws of inheritance and distribution of property are directly involved in an adoption proceeding, and since the proceeding is in derogation of the common law, it must be strictly construed. In re Holder, 218 N. C. 136, 10 S. E. (2d) 620.

Juvenile Court Act Not an Amendment.—The Juvenile Court Act was not an amendment to the former Adoption Law and did not affect the procedure therein prescribed for the adoption of minors. Ward v. Howard, 217 N. C. 201, 7 S. E. (2d) 625.

Jurisdiction.—The evidence disclosed that the child in question was brought by its mother into the juvenile court of the county of their residence charged with being a dependent child, that the court commited it to the custody of a children's home society having its home office in another county of the state, but that the child was immediately taken by the persons seeking to adopt it to their residence in another state. Held, the child never resided in the county in which is located the home office of the children's home society, its mere commitment to the children's home not having the effect of making the child's constructive residence there, and adoption proceedings in that county are void since the child was never within its jurisdiction. In re Holder, 218 N. C. 136, 10 S. E. (2d) 620.

An agreement to adopt a minor, made between the person desiring to adopt the minor and the minor's parents, as the respective parties to the agreement, is not intended as an "Adoption of Minors" under this and following sections. Chambers v. Byers, 214 N. C. 373, 199 S. E. 398.

Cited in Stewart v. Cary, 220 N. C. 214, 17 S. E. (2d) 29.

§ 48-2. Use of true name of child unnecessary; identification.—It shall not be necessary in the petition for adoption or other papers, except the report on investigation of the conditions and antecedents of the child, to give the true or legal name of the child to be adopted, but it shall be competent to name or identify the child to be adopted by such name as may be presented in the petition of adoption, and the adoption proceedings shall not be invalidated by reason thereof. In every case, however, the true name of the child proposed to be adopted shall be set forth in, and made known to the court through, the report upon the conditions and antecedents of the child to be made by the superintendent or superintendents of public welfare or duly authorized representative of a child-placing agency as hereinafter provided. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-3. Investigation of conditions and antecedents of child and of suitableness of foster home. —Upon the filing of a petition for the adoption of a minor child the court shall instruct the county superintendent of Public Welfare, or a duly authorized representative of a child-placing agency, licensed by the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare, to investigate the conditions and antecedents of the child for the purpose of ascertaining whether he is a proper subject for adoption, and to make appropriate inquiry to determine whether the proposed foster home is a suitable one for the child; or the court may instruct the superintendent of public welfare of one county to make an investigation of the conditions and antecedents of the child and the superintendent of public welfare of another county or counties to make any other part of the necessary investigation. The county superintendent or superintendents of public welfare or the duly authorized representative of such agency described hereinbefore shall make a written report of his or their findings, on a standard form supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, for examination by the court of adoption. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-4. Necessary parties to proceeding. — The parents or surviving parent or guardian, or the person or persons having charge of such child, or with whom it may reside, must be a party or parties of record to this proceeding: Provided, that where the parents or surviving parent or guardian of the child whose adoption is sought cannot be found within this state for the service of process, that fact shall be made known to the court either by affidavit or return of the sheriff of the county in which such person or persons were last known to reside. It shall be competent to make such service by publication of summons as provided by §§ 1-98, et seq., and such person shall be bound in every respect by such service: Provided, that when the parent, parents, or guardian of the person of the child has signed a release of all rights to the child, the person, agency, or institution to which said rights were released shall be made a party to this proceeding and it shall not be necessary to make the parent, parents or guardian parties: Provided, further, that when such parent, parents, or guardian has consented to an adoption as specified in § 48-5, he shall not be a necessary party of record to this proceeding. (1935, c. 243; 1939, c. 32; 1941, c. 281, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The first proviso in this section was added to the law by Chapter 32 of Public Laws of 1939. The 1941 amendment added the last proviso.

For comment on the 1939 amendment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 350.

For comment on the 1941 amendment to this and other sections in this chapter, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 449.

Noncompliance Deprives Clerk of Jurisdiction.—In Trueblove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 132 S. E. 295, decided under similar provisions of a former law, it is said: "Upon the record in this case it is held that neither the father nor the mother of the child was a party to the proceeding within the contemplation of the statute, and that the clerk had no jurisdiction of their person, (consequently) he had no jurisdiction of the subject-matter." See note of this case in 5 N. C. Law Rev. 67.

Mother of illegitimate child must be made a party to proceedings for the adoption of the child, and her consent to the adoption or proof of abandonment of the child in the statutory or legal sense, must be made to appear as a jurisdictional matter. In re Holder, 218 N. C. 136, 10 S. E. (2d) 620.

Parent's consent to adoption must be shown within record and must relate to particular persons seeking to adopt the child. In re Holder, 218 N. C. 136, 10 S. E. (2d) 620.

Cited in Chambers v. Byers, 214 N. C. 373, 199 S. E. 398.

§ 48-5. Tentative approval and order of adoption; completion of adoption within two years.— Upon the examination of the written report of the Superintendent of Public Welfare or of a duly authorized representative of said agency described hereinbefore and with the consent of the parent or parents if living or of the guardian, if any, or of the person with whom such child resides, or who may have charge of such child, except in cases hereinafter provided for, the Court, if it be satisfied that the petitioner is a proper and suitable person and that the child is a proper subject for adoption and that the adoption is for the best interests of the child, may tentatively approve the adoption and issue an order giving the care and custody of the child to the petitioner: Provided, that when the parent, parents, or guardian of the person of the child has in writing surrendered the child to a duly licensed child-placing agency, or the Superintendent of Public Welfare of the County and has in writing consented to adoption of the child by any person or persons to be designated by said agency or officer, this shall be deemed a sufficient consent for the purposes of this chapter, and no further consent of the parent, parents, or guardian to a subsequent specific adoption shall be necessary: Provided, however, that if any child is placed in any home or institution referred to in this chapter by its mother, then said mother shall give her written consent that said child may be adopted without further consent upon her part. Such consent shall not be revocable by the consenting party. For the purpose of this chapter, a parent under the age of twenty-one shall be deemed to have capacity for the purposes of giving consent, releasing rights in the child, and for all other purposes of this chapter, and shall be as fully bound thereby as if the parent had been twenty-one. Within two years of the interlocutory order, but not earlier than one year from the date of such order, the Court shall complete the proceeding by an order granting letters of adoption or, in its discretion, by an order dismissing the proceeding, and the effect of any adoption so completed shall be retroactive to the date of application. During this interval the child shall remain the ward of the Court and shall be subject to such supervision as the Court may direct. Upon making the interlocutory order the written report of the investigation made by the Superintendent or Superintendents of Public Welfare or representative of the child-placing agency described hereinbefore shall be forwarded by the Clerk of the Superior Court to the State Board of Charities and Public Welfare. Upon receipt of the same the said Board shall cause said report to be recorded in a book to be kept for that purpose, which book shall be properly indexed showing the name of the child, the names of its natural parents, the names of its adoptive parents, and the new legal name, if any, given to said child; and said Board shall also cause the original report to be permanently indexed and filed. Neither the original report nor the record thereof in the aforesaid book shall be made public, nor shall any information concerning the contents of either of them be disclosed by any person except upon order of a Judge of the Superior Court, made upon application of any party requiring such information, and when in the opinion of the said Judge it may be to the interests of the said child or to the public to have such information disclosed. It shall be a misdemeanor for any person having charge of the said report or record to allow said report or records to be examined by anyone or to give any information concerning the contents of either except upon order of a Judge of the Superior Court as herein provided. No party to a completed and final adoption proceeding nor anyone claiming under such a party may later question the validity of the adoption proceeding, by reason of any defect or irregularity therein, jurisdictional or otherwise, but shall be fully bound thereby, save for such appeal as may be allowed by law. Further, no adoption may be questioned by reason of any procedural or other defect by anyone not injured by such defect. Such order granting letters of adoption shall have the force and effect of, and shall be entitled to, all the presumptions attaching to a judgment rendered by a court of general jurisdiction in a common law action. A parent who has not consented to nor been made a party to an adoption proceeding where such steps are required may have the adoption vacated provided he bring action to vacate within one year of actual notice of the adoption, and provided he failed to appear in the adoption proceedings because he did not know of such proceedings. In any case where a parent or parents in writing surrenders a child for adoption (other than to a duly licensed child-placing agency or the Superintendent of Public Welfare of the County, which situation is governed by an earlier part of this section), and the child is taken by prospective adoptive parents in reliance thereon and kept for a period of six months or more, the surrender shall not be revocable by the surrendering parent or parents. (1935, c. 243; 1941, c. 281, ss. 2, 3.)

The 1941 amendment struck out the former second sentence of this section and inserted in lieu thereof the two provisos following the first sentence and the three sentences following the provisos. The amendment also added the last five sentences of the section.

§ 48-6. Form and contents of adoption order; parent-child relationship established; rights of inheritance, etc.—Such order granting letters of adoption shall be made upon a standard form supplied by the state board of charities and public welfare, and shall state whether for the minority or for the life-time of such child and shall have the effect forthwith to establish the relation of parent and child between the petitioner and the child. A child adopted for its minority shall not be deemed a relative of its adopted parents when determining succession of property to, through or from it. But where adoptions are for life succession by, through, and from adopted children and their adoptive parents shall be the same as if the adopted children were the natural, legitimate children of the adoptive parents. Succession by children adopted for life and their lineal descendants from or through their natural parents or by or through the natural parents from such adopted children or their lineal descendants shall take place only where but for such succession the state of North Carolina would succeed to the intestate's property. Further, for all other purposes whatsoever a child adopted for life and his adoptive parents shall be in the same legal position as they would be if he had been born to his adoptive parents. No defect or irregularity, jurisdictional or otherwise, in an adoption proceedings shall prevent inheritance by a child, adopted for life, who has after the adoption continuously lived as the adopted child of the adoptive parents. (1935, c. 243; 1939, c. 132, s. 2; 1941, c. 281, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out this section as it formerly appeared and inserted the above in lieu thereof.

The cases treated under this section were decided under former provisions of the law.

Strictly Construed.—As statutes, such as this section, are in derogation of the common law, they must not be construed to enlarge or confer any rights not clearly given. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 665, 85 S. E. 19; Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

Right of Inheritance.—This section has reference to cases of the intestacy of persons standing in loco parentis, and does not apply where the property is disposed of by will. King v. Davis, 91 N. C. 142; Sorrell v. Sorrell, 193 N. C. 439, 137 S. E. 306.

A child adopted under this section does come within the terms of a devise to "heirs lawfully begotten." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 101 S. E. 562.

A deed to the grantor's daughter conveyed the lands to be held, with remainder over as designated thereinafter, with habendum to her for her natural life then over to any child or children she may leave surviving her in fee, qualified by the expression, "should any child or children born unto her predecease her the other such children should take in fee," with an ultimate and further contingent limitation over. It was held that a child adopted by the grantee after the death of the grantor, no other child having been born, is excluded as against the ultimate takers of the blood of the grantor provided by the deed. Tankersley v. Davis, 195 N. C. 542, 142 S. E. 765.

Same—Adopting Parent Does Not Inherit.—This section confers the right of inheritance on the adopted child only, and not on the adopted father. So where the adopted child dies seized of realty, without brothers or sisters, the law confers it upon the natural rather than the adopted father. Edwards v. Yearby, 168 N. C. 663, 85 S. E. 19. This case contains an excellent review of similar statutes in other states. Ed. Note.

It gives no power to the adopted child to inherit through the adoptive parent, or from any source other than the "estate of the petitioner." It limits the right to inherit to the property of the adoptive parent, and it cannot be construed to give the adopted child the right to inherit from his father's ancestors or other kindred, or to be a representative of them. Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

The effect of the adoption is simply to create a personal status between the adoptive parent and the child adopted, so that the adopted child may inherit from the adoptive parent such estate of the adoptive parent as such parent, during his lifetime, might voluntarily have given to such child. Grimes v. Grimes, 207 N. C. 778, 780, 178 S. E. 573.

§ 48-7. Change of name; report to bureau of vital statistics; entry on birth certificate. — For proper cause shown the court may decree that the name of the child shall be changed to such name as may be prayed in the petition: Provided, that whenever the name of any child is so changed, the court shall immediately report such change to the bureau of vital statistics of the state board of health, authorizing said bureau to enter change of name on the original birth certificate of the child and to issue upon request a certificate of birth bearing the new name of a child as shown in the decree of adoption, the name of the foster parents of said child, age, sex, date of birth, but no reference in any certified copy of the birth certificate shall be made to the adoption of the said child. However, original registration of birth shall remain a part of the record of the said bureau of vital statistics. The provisions of this section shall apply to all minors heretofore adopted in accordance with the laws existing at the time of such adoptions in as full a manner as to adoptions hereunder. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-8. Surety bond required of petitioner where child with estate is without guardian. — When the court grants the petitioner the custody of the child, if the child is an orphan and without guardian and possesses any estate, the court shall require from the petitioner such bond as is required by law to be given by guardians. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-9. Recordation of adoption proceedings; revocation of orders.—All papers, except the report upon the conditions and antecedents of the child and consent of natural parents or guardian to the adoption, shall be recorded in the book or books in which other special proceedings are recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the county in which the adoption is made; and all orders made in the proceedings may be revoked at any time by the court for good cause shown. On issuing such order granting letters of adoption, the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the order is issued shall send a copy of such order to the state board of charities and public welfare and likewise a copy of the revocation of the order to said board to be held as a permanent record. (1935, c. 243.)

Editor's Note.—Section 190 of Michie's Code of 1931 provided for the restoration of the parent's right to custody of a child after such right had been forfeited by abandonment. Under that section it was held in Newsome v. Bunch, 142 N. C. 19, 54 S. E. 785, that where the court, in habeas corpus proceedings for the custody of a child, found that there had been no abandonment, it was error to order a restoration of the child without considering the interest or welfare of the child as prescribed by that section. This case was remanded by the supreme court with a direction to the court below to make a finding as to whether the child's interests would be prejudiced, the lower court found that, under the circumstances, no prejudice would result from the restoration, and the supreme court affirmed this decision in 144 N. C. 15, 56 S. E. 509.

§ 48-10. Parents, etc., not necessary parties to adoption proceedings upon finding of unfitness or abandonment.—In all cases where a juvenile court has declared the parent or parents or guardians unfit to have the care and custody of such child, or has declared the child to be an abandoned child, such parent, parents, or guardians shall not be necessary parties to any action or proceeding under this chapter nor shall their consent be required. But in the event that the child be of age beyond the jurisdiction of the juvenile court, and the juvenile court has not theretofore determined that an abandonment has taken place, then on notice to the parent, parents, or guardian the court in the adoption proceedings is hereby authorized to determine that an abandonment has taken place, provided that if the parent, parents, or guardian deny that an abandonment has taken place, this issue of fact shall be determined as provided in § 1-273, and if abandonment be determined, then the consent of the parent, parents, or guardian shall not be required. (1935, c. 243; 1941, c. 281, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out this section as it formerly appeared and inserted the above in lieu thereof.

The cases treated under this section were decided under former provisions of the law.

Abandonment Judicially Determined. — The existence of abandonment as ground for an adoption without parental consent must be judicially determined. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 439, 132 S. E. 295.

Abandonment Must Be Willful.—Where there was evidence in behalf of the defendant father tending to show that the plaintiff took possession of his children against his will and prevented him from performing his parental duty, as well as evidence to the contrary, it was held that when the jury found for the defendant, the case did not fall within the meaning of this section. Howell v. Solmon, 167 N. C. 588, 83 S. E. 609. Wilfully as employed in this section means "purposely and deliberately in violation of law." State v. Whitner, 93 N. C. 590.

In the case of In re Jones, 153 N. C. 312, 69 S. E. 217, this section is cited and the statement is made that there was no abandonment shown of an illegitimate child.

Intention to Forego Parental Duties.—To constitute abandonment by a parent of its child, so as to deprive him of the right to prevent the adoption of the child, there must be some conduct on the part of the parent which evinces a purpose to forego the parental duties. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N. C. 430, 132 S. E. 295.

Death by Wrongful Act.—This section does not deprive the parent of the right to recover for the wrongful death of the child. Avery v. Brantley, 191 N. C. 396, 399, 131 S. E. 721.

Stated in In re Osborne, 205 N. C. 716, 721, 172 S. E. 491.

§ 48-11. Past adoption proceedings validated. —All proceedings for the adoption of minors in courts of this State are hereby validated and confirmed, and the orders and judgments therein are declared to be binding upon all parties to said proceedings and their privies and all other persons, until the orders or judgments shall be vacated as provided by law. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-12. Procuring custody of child by forfeiting parents declared crime.—Any parent whose rights and privileges have been forfeited as provided by § 48-10 and who shall procure the possession and custody of such child, with respect to whom his rights and privileges are forfeited, otherwise than by law provided, shall be guilty of a crime, and shall be punished as for abduction. (1935, c. 243.)

§ 48-13. "Legal resident" defined.—For the purpose of this chapter a legal resident is any person who has had his domicile anywhere in the state of North Carolina for a period of at least twelve consecutive months after entering said state for the purpose of residence. (1939, c. 132, s. 3.)

§ 48-14. Rights of adoptive parents. — When a child is duly adopted pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, the adoptive parents shall not thereafter be deprived of any rights in the child, at the instance of the natural parents or otherwise, except in the same fashion and for the same causes as are applicable in proceedings to deprive natural parents of their children. (1941, c. 281, s. 6.)

§ 48-15. Construction of 1941 Amendment. — The provisions of § 48-6 except for the last sentence, shall apply only to adoptions made after March 15, 1941. All other provisions of chapter 281 of the Public Laws of 1941, amending §§ 48-4, 48-5, 48-10, adding § 48-14, including the last sentence of § 48-6, referred to above, shall apply to all adoptions heretofore and hereafter made. No adoption proceeding had before March 15, 1941, shall be declared void because of procedural defects therein, and all adoption proceedings theretofore conducted substantially in accordance with the provisions of §§ 48-1 to 48-13, are hereby validated and declared to be as binding as if said procedural defects did not exist. (1941, c. 281, s. 8.)

Chapter 49. Bastardy.

Art. 1. Support of Illegitimate Children.

Art. 2. Legitimation of Illegitimate Children.

Art. 1. Support of Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-1. Title.—This article shall be referred to as "An act concerning the support of children of parents not married to each other." (1933, c. 228, s. 11.)

§ 49-2. Non-support of illegitimate child by parents made misdemeanor.—Any parent who willfully neglects or who refuses to support and maintain his or her illegitimate child shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to such penalties as are hereinafter provided. A child within the meaning of this article shall be any person less than fourteen years of age and any person whom either parent might be required under the laws of North Carolina to support and maintain as if such child were the legitimate child of such parent. (1933, c. 228, s. 1; 1937, c. 432, s. 1; 1939, c. 217, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment the age specified was ten years. The 1939 amendment repealed the 1937 act, struck out section one of the 1933 act, and re-enacted this section as it appeared when amended by the 1937 Act.

A number of the cases treated in the following note were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the new law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

The question as to whether bastardy proceedings under the former law are criminal or civil in their nature presents a subject which has occasioned much controversy, and one in which there are three sharp lines of demarcation established by the cases. The early decisions up to and including State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741, (1892) held without dissent that the proceedings were civil in their nature, and that the statute did not even carry a quasi criminal aspect.

The period between 1892 and 1904, may be designated as the criminal era; during that time several decisions were rendered by the Supreme Court which flatly reversed the former holdings. The opinion in the second of these cases, State v. Ostwalt, 118 N. C. 1208, 24 S. E. 660, delivered by Judge Avery, is a cogent and forceful declaration of the principle.

Subsequent to these decisions, in 1904, the court again reverted to the civil theory, and in an able opinion Chief Justice Clark, who had dissented consistently from the criminal theory, refuted Judge Avery's contention and declared that while containing some anomalous features the proceeding is a civil action. This opinion is very interesting and gives the entire history of the subject. See State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 47 S. E. 750. The following decisions, confirming the Liles case, held that bastardy is in its nature a civil action to enforce a police regulation. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398; State v. McDonald, 152 N. C. 802, 67 S. E. 762; State v. Currie, 161 N. C. 275, 76 S. E. 694; Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 319, 83 S. E. 490; Payne v. Thomas, 176 N. C. 401, 97 S. E. 212; State v. Carnegie, 193 N. C. 467, 468, 137 S. E. 308.

Purpose of Act. — The object of the bastardy act was to shift the burden of maintaining the child from the innocent many to the guilty one. State v. Roberts, 32 N. C. 350, 353.

The sole aim of the proceeding is to ascertain the paternity of the child and impose upon the father the burden of its support, such as he would incur if it were his lawful instead of his illegitimate offspring, and to save the county the expense of its maintenance. State v. Collins, 85 N. C. 511, 513. See also, State v. Robeson, 24 N. C. 46; State v. Brown, 46 N. C. 129; State v. Durham, 52 N. C. 100; Ward v. Bell, 52 N. C. 79.

Liberally Construed.—As former section 265 was not a penal act, but one of police regulation, it was held that it ought to receive such a construction as would carry out the intention of the legislature and facilitate its execution. State v. Roberts, 32 N. C. 350, 351.

The old bastardy act is repealed in toto by ch. 228, Public Laws of 1933, the provisions of sec. 2 that the act should not affect pending litigation or accrued actions being repugnant to the specific repealing clause of sec. 9, and in a prosecution under the Act of 1933 a demurrer on the grounds that proceedings under the old bastardy act were then pending should be overruled. See State v. Morris, 208 N. C. 44, 179 S. E. 19, holding that the Act of 1933 was intended to cover the entire subject dealing with bastardy.

And Proceeding under Former Law Will Not Bar Proceeding under Present Statute. — Bastardy proceedings against defendant under C. S., 265, et seq. (repealed by sec. 9, ch. 228, Public Laws of 1933), being civil, will not support a plea of former jeopardy in a prosecution under this and the following sections for wilful failure to support his illegitimate child. State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761.

Constitutionality.—This section does not violate due process of law or impose imprisonment but by the law of the land. State v. Spillman, 210 N. C. 271, 186 S. E. 322.

Warrant Must Charge a Crime. — Where the warrant upon which defendant was tried is insufficient to charge any crime, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed, since the defect is one appearing on the face of the record. State v. Tyson, 208 N. C. 231, 180 S. E. 85.

The failure of the warrant to charge defendant with wilful failure to support his illegitimate child is not cured by the charge or verdict, where the warrant fails to charge any criminal offense. Id.

Defective Warrant.—Where the warrant fails to charge that defendant's failure to support his illegitimate child was willful, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed. State v. Tarleton, 208 N. C. 734, 182 S. E. 481; State v. Sturdivant, 220 N. C. 535, 17 S. E. (2d) 661; State v. Clarke, 220 N. C. 392, 17 S. E. (2d) 468.

The warrant in a prosecution under this and following sections, must allege that the failure or refusal of defendant to support his illegitimate child was willful, and where it does not do so, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed. State v. McLamb, 214 N. C. 322, 199 S. E. 81.

Sufficiency of Indictment.—In a prosecution for willful failure and refusal to support an illegitimate child, under this and following sections, an exception on the ground that the indictment failed to charge the specific date in the month in which the offense was alleged to have been committed cannot be sustained. State v. Oliver, 213 N. C. 386, 196 S. E. 325.

The begetting of an illegitimate child is not of itself a crime, and a warrant charging defendant with being the putative father of an unborn, illegitimate child is insufficient to support a prosecution under this statute, nor is such insufficiency cured by an amendment allowing the word "wilful" to be inserted therein, in the absence of an amendment alleging the birth of the child and defendant's refusal to support the child. State v. Tyson, 208 N. C. 231, 180 S. E. 85.

Wilfulness Is Essential Element of Offense.—The father of an illegitimate child may be convicted of neglecting to support such child only when it is established that such neglect was wilful, that is, without just cause, excuse or justification. The wilfulness of the neglect is an essential ingredient of the offense, and as such must not only be charged in the bill, but must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. The presumption of innocence with which the defendant enters the trial includes the presumption of innocence of wilfulness in any failure on his part to support his illegitimate child. The failure to support may be an evidential fact tending to show a wilful neglect, but it does not raise a presumption of willfulness. State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 261, 262, 176 S. E. 757.

Construing the word "wilful" in the light of the decided cases, it is clear that one cannot be brought within the meaning of the statute without proving the criminal intent, and that it is error for the court to charge the jury that if the defendant failed to support his illegitimate child "the presumption is he wilfully did so." Id.

The word "wilfully" as used in the statute is used with the same import as in the act relating to wilful abandonment of wife by husband (see § 14-322). State v. Cook, 207 N. C. 261, 262, 176 S. E. 757, and authorities therein discussed.

The willfulness of the neglect is an essential ingredient of the offense, and as such must not only be charged in the bill, but must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Spillman, 210 N. C. 271, 272, 186 S. E. 322.

It is worthy of note that the new act operates against both parents, not primarily the father, and it is a criminal, not a civil statute; it begins by making wilful failure to support the illegitimate child by "any parent" a misdemeanor. It is the failure to support, not the bastardy, which is made a crime. The consequence or punishment of the crime is the fixing of a sum to be paid by the parent for the support of the child. The failure to pay this sum brings on the other possible consequences as previously enumerated. No provision is made for execution against the parent for the sum fixed; there is no section comparable to former § 275. The only means of enforcing payment specifically provided in the act are the list of alternatives above set forth to which the court can turn if payment is not made. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 205, 206.

The proceeding now being a criminal one, probably the defendant is now legally subject to extradition. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 191, 206.

State Must Prove Paternity of Child and Willful Neglect.—It is not necessary that defendant's paternity of the child should be first judicially determined, but the state must prove on the trial, first, defendant's paternity of the child, and then his willful neglect or refusal to support the child. State v. Spillman, 210 N. C. 271, 186 S. E. 322.

Since the statute raises no presumption against a person accused, the failure to support being evidence of wilfulness, but raising no presumption thereof, but to the contrary, the statute requires the state to overcome the presumption of innocence both as to the willfulness of the neglect to support the illegitimate child and defendant's paternity of the child. State v. Spillman, 210 N. C. 271, 186 S. E. 322.

Violation of Statute Is a Continuing Offense.—Defendant was convicted and served the sentence imposed for willfully failing and refusing to support his illegitimate child under this and following sections. After completion of his term, defendant still willfully failed and refused to support the child, and this prosecution was instituted for breach of this and following sections subsequent to his release. Defendant entered a plea of former jeopardy. It was held that the violation of the statute constitutes a continuing offense, and the prior prosecution is not a bar to a prosecution for breach of the statute for the period subsequent to defendant's release from the imprisonment imposed in the first prosecution. State v. Johnson, 212 N. C. 566, 194 S. E. 319.

Offense Punishable after Effective Date of Section Although Child Born before. — A parent may be prosecuted under this section for willful failure to support his illegitimate child begotten and born before the effective date of the statute, the offense being the willful failure to support an illegitimate child, and it being sufficient if such willful failure occur after the effective date of the statute. State v. Parker, 209 N. C. 32, 182 S. E. 723.

Applied in State v. Moore, 209 N. C. 44, 182 S. E. 692; State v. Bradshaw, 214 N. C. 5, 197 S. E. 564; State v. Moore, 222 N. C. 356, 23 S. E. (2d) 31.

§ 49-3. Place of birth of child no consideration.—The provisions of this article shall apply whether such child shall have been begotten or shall have been born within or without the state of North Carolina: Provided, that the child to be supported is a bona fide resident of this state at the time of the institution of any proceedings under this article. (1933, c. 228, s. 2.)

§ 49-4. Action must be commenced within three years after birth.—Proceedings under this article to establish the paternity of such child may be instituted at any time within three years next after the birth of the child, and not thereafter: Provided, however, that where the reputed father has acknowledged the paternity of the child by payments for the support of such child within three years from the date of the birth thereof, and not later, then, in such case, prosecution may be brought under the provisions of said sections within three years from the date of such acknowledgment of the paternity of such child by the reputed father thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 3; 1939, c. 217, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—A number of the cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

The 1939 amendment added the proviso to this section.

In General.—Even when bastardy proceedings were considered criminal in their nature it was held that former § 274 provided the limitation and that such proceedings were not controlled by the provision limiting criminal prosecutions for misdemeanors to two years. State v. Perry, 122 N. C. 1043, 30 S. E. 139; State v. Hedgepeth, 122 N. C. 1039, 30 S. E. 140.

A proceeding to establish the paternity of an illegitimate child and to prosecute the father, who willfully neglects or refuses to support and maintain the same, may be instituted at any time within three years next after the birth of the child. State v. Moore, 222 N. C. 356, 23 S. E. (2d) 31.

This section cannot be limited to proceedings to establish paternity. Its language is clear, positive and unbending. It seems to have been taken from C. S., 274, of the old law, which was held to supersede the general statute of limitations on the subject. State v. Bradshaw, 214 N. C. 5, 6, 197 S. E. 564.

A proceeding upon indictment charging defendant with willful neglect and refusal to support his illegitimate child, instituted more than three years after the birth of the child, is properly dismissed, under this section, and this result is not affected by the fact that defendant had admitted paternity of the child in a prior proceeding under §§ 265-279 (now repealed), the limitation provided in this section not being confined to proceedings to establish the paternity of the child. Id.

Compliance Must Appear from Examination.—The examination of the mother must appear on its face to have been taken within three years, otherwise the action will be quashed, State v. Ledbetter, 26 N. C. 242. The objection proper time, i. e., before issue is tendered, or it will be deemed waived. State v. Robeson, 24 N. C. 46; State v. Carson, 19 N. C. 368.

A defendant may be prosecuted under this statute, for wilful failure to support his legitimate child born after the passage of the act although the child was begotten before the effective date of the statute, and defendant's contention that in regard to such prosecution the statute is ex post facto cannot be sustained, since the offense is the wilful failure to support the child, and the time it was begotten is immaterial. State v. Mansfield, 207 N. C. 233, 176 S. E. 761, followed in State v. Morris, 208 N. C. 44, 179 S. E. 19.

Maximum Time for Prosecution Is Six Years from Birth.—In a prosecution against the reputed father for failure to maintain and support his illegitimate child, proceedings to determine the paternity of the child must be instituted within three years from the date of its birth, with the proviso that where the reputed father acknowledges paternity by making payments for the support of such child, prosecution may be instituted at any time within three years from the date of such payments made within three years from the date of birth, so that the greatest length of time that may elapse between the birth of the child and the prosecution even under the proviso of the statute is six years, and a prosecution is properly dismissed upon a special verdict establishing that the reputed father continuously supported the child for eight years and that the prosecution was not instituted until more than nine years after its birth. State v. Killian, 217 N. C. 339, 7 S. E. (2d) 702.

An Acknowledgment Made More than Three Years from Birth Does Not Prevent Running of Limitation.—Where acknowledgment has been made of the paternity of the child by payments for its support within three years from the date of the birth, prosecution for nonsupport may be brought within three years thereafter, but a later acknowledgment, made more than three years from the birth, will not avail to prevent the running of the statute. State v. Hodges, 217 N. C. 625, 9 S. E. (2d) 24.

§ 49-5. Prosecution; indictments; death of mother no bar; determination of fatherhood.—Proceedings under this article may be brought by the mother or her personal representative, or, if the child is likely to become a public charge, the superintendent of public welfare or such person as by law performs the duties of such official in said county where the mother resides or the child is found. Indictments under this article may be returned in the county where the mother resides or is found, or in the county where the putative father resides or is found, or in the county where the child is found. The fact that the child was born outside of the state of North Carolina shall not be a bar to indictment of the putative father in any county where he resides or is found, or in the county where the mother resides or the child is found. The death of the mother shall in no wise affect any proceedings under this article. Preliminary proceedings under this article to determine the paternity of the child may be instituted prior to the birth of the child but when the judge or court trying the issue of paternity deems it proper, he may continue the case until the woman is delivered of the child. When a continuance is granted, the courts shall recognize the person accused of being the father of the child with surety for his appearance, either at the next term of the court or at a time to be fixed by the judge or court granting a continuance, which shall be after the delivery of the child. (1933, c. 228, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the new law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

Married Women.—It was held in State v. Pettaway, 10 N. C. 623, and in State v. Wilson, 32 N. C. 131, cited with approval in State v. Allison, 61 N. C. 346, that, though the section specifies "any single woman big with child or delivered of the child," the subsequent language in the section, that the object is to protect the public against the charge of maintaining bastard children, includes married women, since a bastard child can be begotten upon a married woman as well as upon a single woman. See State v. Liles, 134 N. C. 735, 742, 47 S. E. 750; Wilkie v. West, 5 N. C. 319.

Child Not Born.—The former statute expressly authorized the mother to proceed against the putative father before the child was born, that is, when it was en ventre sa mere. The Court may continue the proceedings until the birth of the child. This clearly implies that the proceedings may be commenced during pregnancy. State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35; State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 687, 57 S. E. 398.

Formalities of the Examination.—The examination need not be signed by the mother and if the warrant issued, signed by the justices, is on the same paper as the examination it is a sufficient signature of the examination, State v. Thompson, 26 N. C. 484; in any event the signature may be made by amendment, State v. Thomas, 27 N. C. 366. But the examination must be under oath as prescribed by the section or the proceedings will be quashed. State v. Ledbetter, 26 N. C. 242, 245.

Venue.—In bastardy cases the jurisdiction of the justice to issue the warrant before the birth of the child, depends upon the domicil of the mother at the time, and not on her legal place of settlement; and if the mother continues to reside in the same county until the birth of her child, making her whole residence therein more than twelve months, the full jurisdiction of the case will be in that county. State v. Hales, 65 N. C. 244. See also, State v. Elam, 61 N. C. 460; Meritt v. McQuaig, 63 N. C. 551.

The Judgment.—Under former section 267 authorizing the Court, in bastardy proceedings, to commit defendant "until he find surety," such a judgment though conditional, was valid. State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35.

Promise of Father to Support Child.—Where the mother of a bastard child has refrained from enforcing maintenance thereof under former § 267, this was held to constitute consideration to support an action on a promise of the father to support and educate it. Thayer v. Thayer, 189 N. C. 502, 127 S. E. 553.

The Appeal.—The provision in former section 267 that either party could appeal, applied to the affiant, the woman or the defendant, and so did not conflict with the general rule that the State may not appeal from a judgment upon a verdict of not guilty. Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 241, 19 S. E. 764.

A bastardy proceeding under the former law was, in its principal features and purposes, a civil action, and was within the operation of superior court rule 24, which provides that appeals from justices of the peace in civil actions will not be called for trial unless the returns of such appeals have been docketed ten days previous to the term. State v. Edwards, 110 N. C. 511, 14 S. E. 741.

Rights of Surety.—The surety on the appearance bond of the defendant, who, in bastardy proceedings, appealed from a justice of the peace to the county court and there remanded for want of jurisdiction, may insist upon the exact terms of his bond; and where the defendant has been legally convicted and has served his term as the law provides on failing to pay the allowance made to the prosecutrix, costs, etc., the provisions in the appearance bond as to the surety's liability has been discharged. State v. Carnegie, 193 N. C. 467, 137 S. E. 308.

Death of Child.—What kind of order should be entered where the child dies pending the trial at the next term of court, is in the discretion of the judge. Former § 268 seemed to require an order in every case. State v. Beatty, 66 N. C. 648.

§ 49-6. Mother not excused on ground of self-incrimination; not subject to penalty.—No mother of an illegitimate child shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate her or subject her to a penalty or a forfeiture, from attending and testifying, in obedience to a subpoena of any court, in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of the provisions of this article, but no such mother shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forefeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, she may so testify. (1933, c. 228, s. 5; 1939, c. 217, s. 5.)

§ 49-7. Jurisdiction of inferior courts; issues and orders.—Proceedings under this article shall be instituted only in the superior court of any county of this state, or in any court inferior to the superior court of this state, except courts of justices of the peace and courts whose criminal jurisdiction does not exceed that of justices of the peace. Justices of the peace may issue warrants for violations of this article made returnable to any court having jurisdiction of such violations under the terms of this article.

The court before which the matter may be brought shall determine whether or not the defendant is a parent of the child on whose behalf the proceeding is instituted. After this matter has been determined in the affirmative, the court shall proceed to determine the issue as to whether or not the defendant has neglected or refused to support and maintain the child who is the subject of the proceeding. After this matter shall have been determined in the affirmative, the court shall fix by order, subject to modification or increase from time to time, a specific sum of money necessary for the support and maintenance of the particular child who is the object of the proceedings. The court in fixing this sum shall take into account the circumstances of the case, the financial ability to pay and earning capacity of the defendant, and his or her willingness to cooperate for the welfare of the child. The order fixing the sum shall require the defendant to pay it either as a lump sum or in periodic payments as the circumstances of the case may appear to the court to require. Compliance by the defendant with any or all of the further provisions of this article or the order or orders of the court requiring additional acts to be performed by the defendant shall not be construed to relieve the defendant of his or her responsibility to pay the sum fixed or any modification or increase thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 6; 1937, c. 432, s. 2; 1939, c. 217, ss. 1, 4.)

Editor's Note.—The possibility of imposing a sentence of imprisonment in excess of thirty days was thought by some to exclude the jurisdiction of justices of the peace, but in many instances they did exercise jurisdiction. The amendment clearly excludes justices. 15 N. C. Law Rev. 347.

Jurisdiction.—Former § 265 expressly conferred jurisdiction upon justices of the peace. State v. Mize, 117 N. C. 780, 23 S. E. 330.

Acquittal on Charge of Non-Support Bars Appeal Involving Issue of Parentage.—Where the jury found the defendant to be the father of the bastard child, but not guilty of non-support, this is an acquittal. The defendant therefore is not entitled to an appeal under § 15-180 for the refusal of the court to allow his motions that the action be dismissed, and that the answer to the issue of parentage be set aside. State v. Hiatt, 211 N. C. 116, 189 S. E. 124.

Modification of Orders.—Where defendant pleaded guilty and orders were made for the support of the child, the court had no authority to strike out a plea of guilty or a judgment at a former term; but, under this section, the court may modify the conditions of the former judgment, or increase from time to time the amount necessary for the child's support. State v. Duncan, 222 N. C. 11, 21 S. E. (2d) 822.

Cited in State v. Black, 216 N. C. 448, 5 S. E. (2d) 313.

§ 49-8. Power of court to modify orders; suspend sentence, etc.—Upon the determination of the issues set out in the foregoing section and for the purpose of enforcing the payment of the sum fixed, the court is hereby given discretion, having regard for the circumstances of the case and the financial ability and earning capacity of the defendant and his or her willingness to coöperate, to make an order or orders upon the defendant and to modify such order or orders from time to time as the circumstances of the case may in the judgment of the court require. The order or orders made in this regard may include any or all of the following alternatives:

(a) Commit the defendant to prison for a term not to exceed six months;

(b) Suspend sentence and continue the case from term to term;

(c) Release the defendant from custody on probation conditioned upon the defendant's compliance with the terms of the probation and the payment of the sum fixed for the support and maintenance of the child;

(d) Order the defendant to pay to the mother of the said child the necessary expenses of birth of the child and suitable medical attention for her;

(e) Require the defendant to sign a recognizance with good and sufficient security, for compliance with any order which the court may make in proceedings under this article. (1933, c. 228, s. 7; 1939, c. 217, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The cases treated under this section were decided under the former law. They are, however, made available to the practitioner with the hope that they may be of some aid in construing the present law, but they must be read in the light of the former law.

The 1939 amendment struck out former subsection (d) relating to apprenticing defendant to superintendent of county home.

Constitutionality.—Proceedings in bastardy under former § 273 for an allowance to be made to the woman were civil and not criminal, for the enforcement of police regulations, and that section was held not to be contrary to the provisions of the Constitution, Art. IV, sec. 27. Richardson v. Egerton, 186 N. C. 291, 119 S. E. 487.

A judgment for an allowance for the mother of the bastard, is not a debt arising out of contract, to which the protection afforded by the inhibition of the Constitution, Article 1, sec. 16, extended, but is rendered as a means of enforcing a legal obligation and duty imposed by the Legislature under the police power of the State upon one who is responsible for bringing into existence a bastard child that may become a burden to society. State v. Cannady, 78 N. C. 539; State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511; State v. Manuel, 20 N. C. 144; State v. Nelson, 119 N. C. 797, 799, 25 S. E. 863; State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35.

Effect of Death of Child.—Under former § 273 the intention was to secure to the mother either her probable expenses or to reimburse her actual outlay, and the death of the child when born did not affect the right of the mother to "support"; among other things, she was entitled to pay for medical attention and medicine for herself, and the burial expenses of the child, consequent upon the defendant's unlawful act. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398.

The section simply required that this allowance should be made without directing how the money should be spent. This left it discretionary with her as to how she would apply it. She was compelled to pay for medical attention and medicine for herself, and the burial expenses of the child, all consequent upon the defendant's unlawful act. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 688, 57 S. E. 398.

Suggestion of Fraud.—A mother of a bastard child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of her child as to permit her to oppose the insolvent's discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Notice.—Where the mother of a bastard obtained judgment against the putative father, and purchased his land under an execution thereon, held, that in the ejectment for the land, she must prove the father had notice of her intention to move for judgment, or that the sheriff had returned non est inventus. Doe v. McCoy, 13 N. C. 391.

Defenses.—In a proceeding under that section a defendant, who alleged that he had paid the mother of the child a certain sum, for which he exhibited her receipt, which receipt, it was contended and so charged by said mother, was obtained from her by fraud, was entitled to have the issue thus joined tried by a jury; and it was error in the court below to refuse a trial by jury, when demanded by the defendant. State v. Beasley, 75 N. C. 211.

Same—Right to Claim Exemption.—The father was not entitled to the constitutional exemption of $500 as against such debt due the mother. State v. Parsons, 115 N. C. 730, 20 S. E. 511.

Imprisonment.—Where defendant was in default only for a fine of $10 and an allowance of $50 to the mother of the bastard, a sentence to imprisonment at hard labor for twelve months was excessive. State v. Nelson, 119 N. C. 797, 25 S. E. 863.

Imprisonment of the putative father for failure to obey an order of maintenance, or to give the bond, is a matter of legislative discretion, and is not imprisonment for debt. State v. Morgan, 141 N. C. 726, 53 S. E. 142; State v. Green, 71 N. C. 172; State v. Wynne, 116 N. C. 981, 21 S. E. 35.

Work on Roads.—When there is no house of correction in the county, the court can only commit the putative father to jail until the performance of the order of support. He cannot be put to work on roads. State v. Addington, 143 N. C. 683, 57 S. E. 398, overruling Myers v. Stafford, 114 N. C. 234, 19 S. E. 764.

Effect of Discharge.—After the defendant who had served a twenty day sentence for failure to pay under former § 276 had been discharged he could not be resentenced to the house of correction at a subsequent term. State v. Burton, 113 N. C. 655, 18 S. E. 657.

Appeal.—Where judgment has been awarded in bastardy proceedings in conformity with former § 273, and upon defendant's motion in the superior court the judge has set the judgment aside upon sufficient evidence, the facts found accordingly are not reviewable on appeal to the Supreme Court. Baker v. West, 190 N. C. 335, 129 S. E. 804.

§ 49-9. Bond for future appearance of defendant.—At the preliminary hearing of any case arising under this article it shall be the duty of the court, if it finds reasonable cause for holding the accused for a further hearing, to require a bond in the sum of not less than one hundred dollars, conditioned upon the reappearance of the accused at the further hearing under this article. This bond and all other bonds provided for in this article shall be justified before, and approved by, the court or the clerk thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 8.)

Art. 2. Legitimation of Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-10. Legitimation.—The putative father of any illegitimate child may apply by petition in writing to the superior court of the county in which he resides, praying that such child may be declared legitimate; and if it appears that the petitioner is reputed the father of the child, the court may thereupon declare and pronounce the child legitimated; and the clerk shall record the decree. (Rev., s. 263; Code, s. 39; C. S. 277.)

Cross Reference.—As to constitutional provision regarding private laws to legitimate persons, see the North Carolina Constitution, Article II, section 11.

Petition Addressed Directly to Judge.—The action of the judge of the court having jurisdiction in passing upon the matter is within the intent and meaning of the statute, and his decree is not void upon the ground that the petition should have been originally addressed to the clerk of the court. Dunn v. Dunn, 199 N. C. 535, 155 S. E. 165.

Presumption.—There exists a rebuttable presumption that child born in wedlock is legitimate. West v. Redmond, 171 N. C. 742, 88 S. E. 341.

Cited in Williamson v. Cox, 218 N. C. 177, 10 S. E. (2d) 662.

§ 49-11. Effects of legitimation.—The effect of such legitimation shall extend no further than to impose upon the father all the obligations which fathers owe to their lawful children, and to enable the child to inherit from the father only his real estate, and also to entitle such child to the personal estate of his father, in the same manner as if he had been born in lawful wedlock. In case of death and intestacy, the real and personal estate of such child shall be transmitted and distributed according to the statute of descents and distribution among those who would be his heirs and next of kin in case he had been born in lawful wedlock. (Rev., s. 264; Code, s. 40; C. S. 278.)

In General.—The plain intent and language of former section 185 and this section is that a child so adopted, or legitimated, shall inherit his father's real estate, and be entitled to the personal estate of his father "in the same manner as if it had been born in lawful wedlock." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 116, 101 S. E. 562.

"The word 'only' as used in this section qualifies the words 'inherit from the father,' and not the words 'real estate,' thereby limiting the right of inheritance to the properties of the adopting father, and this is emphasized by the fact that the remaining part of the sentence provides that the adopted child is also entitled to the personal estate of his father." Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 117, 101 S. E. 562.

Right of Inheritance.—In Love v. Love, 179 N. C. 115, 117, 101 S. E. 562, it was said: "This statute seems to be clear enough on its face. It limits the right to inherit to the properties of the adopting father, and so clearly that it would seem unnecessary to cite authorities; but if authorities are necessary, it will appear that this Court has construed this and other statutes on all-fours to the effect that the legitimated child can only inherit from the adopting father, and cannot inherit from the father's ancestors or other kindred, or be representative of them. Such adopted child cannot be issue or heir general. The word 'only' as used in this statute qualifies the words 'inherit from the father,' and not the word 'real estate,' thereby limiting the right of inheritance to the properties of the adopting father, and this is emphasized by the fact that the remaining part of the sentence provides that the adopted child is also entitled to the personal estate of his father."

§ 49-12. Legitimation by subsequent marriage.—When the mother of any illegitimate child and the reputed father of such child shall intermarry or shall have intermarried at any time after the birth of such child, the child shall in all respects after such intermarriage be deemed and held to be legitimate and entitled to all the rights in and to the estate, real and personal, of its father and mother that it would have had had it been born in lawful wedlock. (1917, c. 219, s. 1; C. S. 279.)

Cross Reference.—As to change of birth certificate by state registrar of vital statistics on proof of marriage of unwed parents, see § 130-94.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the passage of this section in 1917, marriage of the parents did not legitimate the previous offspring. Ashe v. Cam. Mfg. Co., 154 N. C. 241, 70 S. E. 295.

But where, by the laws of the domicile of the parents at the time of the birth of their bastard child and of their marriage, their marriage legitimates him, the legitimacy attached at the time of the marriage, he being a minor, and follows him wherever he goes. Fowler v. Fowler, 131 N. C. 169, 42 S. E. 563.

Consitutionality.—Only those who would inherit, or have a vested right in the lands, may contest the constitutionality of this section, providing that a child born out of wedlock may inherit from her father who thereafter married the mother of the bastard. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 110 S. E. 98.

Construed Strictly.—This section is strictly construed as being in derogation of the common law. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

Section Retroactive.—This section is, by its express terms, retroactive as well as prospective in effect; and upon the dying intestate of the father, under the facts of this case, the son is entitled to the balance of the proceeds of the sale of land to make assets to pay debts, subject to his mother's dower right, after paying creditors and court costs, as against the collateral heirs of the father. Stewart v. Stewart, 195 N. C. 476, 142 S. E. 577.

The provisions of this section are retroactive as well as prospective in effect, and a child born out of wedlock whose mother marries his reputed father prior to the enactment of the statute is the heir of his parents who die subsequent to its enactment. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

Irregularity in divorce proceedings is not, by virtue of this section, ground for declaring children by a subsequent marriage illegitimate. Reed v. Blair, 202 N. C. 745, 164 S. E. 118.

Inheritance from Maternal Uncle.—The provisions of this section legitimizing a child born out of wedlock when his reputed father subsequently marries his mother for the purpose of inheritance from its father and mother, do not extend to such inheritance from a maternal uncle dying intestate after the death of the mother through whom the claim is made as next of kin. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N. C. 334, 148 S. E. 456.

How Shown.—Where one claims lands of his father by descent by reason of the subsequent marriage of his parents, the child so born is recognized as legitimate for the purpose of inheriting, and this may be shown by evidence of the declaration of the parents or by family traditions ante litem motam, this being an exception to the rule excluding hearsay evidence. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 110 S. E. 98.

"Reputed Father."—In Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 666, 110 S. E. 98, the Court said: " 'No contention as to the statute was made by the defendant except as the construction of the words "reputed father," which the defendant contended should be construed to mean "actual father." ' The exception is not meritorious. The word 'reputed' means considered, or generally supposed, or accepted by general or public opinion."

In Bowman v. Howard, 182 N. C. 662, 666, 110 S. E. 98, it was said: "In McBride v. Sullivan, 155 Ala. 166, 174, 45 So. 902, Simpson, J., says: 'The use of the word "reputed" was intended merely to dispense with absolute proof of paternity, so that, if the child is "regarded," "deemed," "considered," or "held in thought" by the parents themselves as their child, either before or after marriage, it is legitimate.' "

Chapter 50. Divorce and Alimony.

§ 50-1. Jurisdiction.—The superior court shall have jurisdiction of complaints for divorce and alimony, or either. (Rev., s. 1557; Code, s. 1282; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 45; C. S. 1655.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of the general assembly to pass laws regulating divorce and alimony, see the North Carolina Constitution, Article II, section 10.

Editor's Note.—Divorces have been granted from the earliest time. In England, at the time our government was founded, the question of divorce was handled entirely by the ecclesiastical courts and there seems to have been no common law action of divorce. Since we have never established ecclesiastical courts in this country, the power has been conferred entirely by statute and is one of the powers which is exclusively reserved to the state governments.

The granting of alimony is based upon the duty of support which the husband owes to the wife.

On the general question of jurisdiction in divorce, see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 95.

Definition.—Divorce is the legal separation of man and wife, effected, for cause, by the judgment of a court, and either totally dissolving the marriage relation, or suspending its effects so far as concerns the cohabitation of the parties. Black's Law Dict. p. 382.

Power of Federal Courts to Grant Divorces.—All governments possess inherent power over the dissolution of marriages. Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 569, 26 S. Ct. 525, 50 L. Ed. 867. See also Maynard v. Hill, 125 U. S. 190, 8 S. Ct. 723, 31 L. Ed. 654.

But in the United States the authority rests with the states entirely, and not with the federal government. Id.

The courts of the United States have no jurisdiction upon the subject of divorce, either as an original proceeding in chancery, or an incident of a divorce or separation, except the Supreme Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction. De La Rama v. De La Rama, 201 U. S. 303, 308, 26 S. Ct. 485, 50 L. Ed. 765.

Superior Court Has Sole Original Jurisdiction.—The Legislature has conferred the sole original jurisdiction in all applications for divorce upon the superior courts. Williamson v. Williamson, 56 N. C. 446, 448; Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179.

Faith and Credit Given to Decree.—No faith and credit should be given to a decree of divorce obtained in a state by service of publication in another state, where neither of the parties reside in the state where the decree is rendered. Bell v. Bell, 181 U. S. 175, 177, 21 S. Ct. 551, 45 L. Ed. 804; Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, 21 S. Ct. 544, 45 L. Ed. 794.

§ 50-2. Bond for costs unnecessary.—It shall not be necessary for either party to a proceeding for divorce or alimony to give any undertaking to the other party to secure such costs as such other party may recover. (Rev., s. 1558; Code, s. 1294; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 41; C. S. 1656.)

Cross References.—As to prosecution bonds generally, see § 1-109 et seq. As to costs generally, see § 6-21.

Husband Liable for Own Costs.—In actions for divorce the husband, whether successful or unsuccessful, is liable for his own costs, and whether he shall pay the wife's costs is in all cases left to the discretion of the court. Broom v. Broom, 130 N. C. 562, 565, 41 S. E. 673.

§ 50-3. Venue.—In all proceedings for divorce, the summons shall be returnable to the court of the county in which either the plaintiff or defendant resides. (Rev., s. 1559; Code, s. 1289; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 40; 1915, c. 229, s. 1; C. S. 1657.)

Section Not Jurisdictional—Waiver.—The provision of this section is not jurisdictional and may be waived, and the failure therein must be taken advantage of by motion to remove the cause to the proper venue, and not to dismiss. Davis v. Davis, 179 N. C. 185, 102 S. E. 270.

Change in Common-Law Rule.—The common-law rule that the wife should bring her action for divorce in the domicile of her husband was changed by this section, as amended by chapter 229, Public Laws 1915, making the summons returnable to the county in which either the plaintiff or defendants reside. Wood v. Wood, 181 N. C. 227, 106 S. E. 753.

Where Wife Resides.—A demurrer to an action for divorce brought by the wife in the county of her own residence, when the husband resides in a different county, on the ground that the summons should have been made returnable to the county of his residence, is bad. Wood v. Wood, 181 N. C. 227, 106 S. E. 753.

Same—Forced Residence.—When the acts and conduct of the husband make the wife's condition so intolerable and burdensome as to compel her to leave home, she may maintain her action in the county wherein she has been forced to reside by the conduct of her husband. Rector v. Rector, 186 N. C. 618, 120 S. E. 195.

§ 50-4. What marriages may be declared void on application of either party.—The superior court in term time, on application made as by law provided, by either party to a marriage contracted contrary to the prohibitions contained in the chapter entitled Marriage, or declared void by said chapter, may declare such marriage void from the beginning, subject, nevertheless, to the proviso contained in § 51-3. (Rev., s. 1560; Code, s. 1283; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 33; C. S. 1658.)

Cross References.—As to marriage generally, see § 51-1 et seq. As to void and voidable marriages, see § 51-3 and annotations.

Editor's Note.—It should be noted that the word "divorce" is frequently used in referring to a decree of nullity in cases where the parties were never validly married as well as in cases where the decree is granted to dissolve a valid marriage. At common law no divorce a vinculo could be granted except for cause existing previous to the marriage —causes which rendered the marriage a nullity. Thus the word divorce was regularly used in cases where there had never really been a marriage.

In Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N. C. 470, the marriage of the parties was declared a nullity because of the mental incapacity of one of the parties at the time of the marriage. In that decision the court declared that the "plaintiff ought to be, and is divorced from the defendant." See Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488; Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Procedure Similar to Divorce Action.—An action, under this section, to have a marriage declared void, so far as procedure is concerned, is an action for divorce. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 94, 53 S. E. 623; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 607, 10 S. E. 488.

While not technically actions for divorce they come under that heading, in a general way, in that alimony pendente lite may be allowed. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

Affidavit Not Necessary.—Actions for annulment under this section will not be dismissed because of failure to make the affidavit prescribed in section 50-8. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Marriage Not Void Until So Declared by Court. — The court has jurisdiction to declare a marriage in proper cases void ab initio, but they are not so ipso facto, and must be so declared by a decree of the court, for only in the instances set out in the second proviso to section 51-3 can they be treated as void in a collateral proceeding. Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 414, 84 S. E. 703; State v. Setzer, 97 N. C. 252, 1 S. E. 558.

Formal Decree When Marriage Originally Void.—Though the marriage of a lunatic is absolutely void, without being so declared, yet the court will formally decree its nullity, as well for the sake of the good order of society as the quiet and relief of the party seeking the relief. Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N. C. 470, cited in notes in 40 L. R. A. 737, 744; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

How Action Brought.—A suit for nullity of marriage on the ground of insanity may be brought either in the name of the lunatic, by her guardian, or in the name of the guardian, though the former is, for some reasons, the preferable course. Crump v. Morgan, 38 N. C. 91, 40 Am. Dec. 447.

What Marriages Absolutely Void.—The only marriages (under section 51-3) which are absolutely void are those between a white person and one of negro or Indian blood (or descent to the third generation, inclusive,) and bigamous marriages. The others need to be "declared void." State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 712, 11 S. E. 517.

Effect of Twenty Years Ratification.—Where a marriage is entered into by one under the legal age, but is followed by a cohabitation of twenty years, the parties acknowledging each other and being recognized as husband and wife, though such marriage in its inception is invalid, by reasons of such ratification by the parties, it will not be declared void. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Former Void Marriage.—A former marriage, which has been decreed to have been void because induced by duress, was void ab initio, and hence does not afford ground for annulment of a later marriage between one of the parties and a third person, though such decree was rendered after the second marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Subsequent Insanity.—Insanity afterwards afflicting a party to a contract of marriage is not a ground for annulment. Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 84 S. E. 703.

Suit by Nonresident.—Under this section the courts of this State have jurisdiction of a suit to annul a marriage performed here, although the plaintiff was a nonresident of this State at the time of the commencement of the suit. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864.

License Issued upon Fraudulent Representations as to Age—Suit by Parent or Register of Deeds.—Where the register of deeds has been induced by fraudulent representations to issue a license for the marriage of a female between the ages of fourteen and sixteen without conforming with § 51-2, as to the written consent of her parent, the marriage is voidable only at the suit of the female, and neither the parent nor the register of deeds may maintain a suit to declare the marriage void, though the latter may at most maintain an action to revoke and cancel the license issued by him before the solemnization of the marriage. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864. [This case was decided prior to the 1939 amendment to § 51-2 which amendment makes the parents of the female proper parties plaintiff to an action to annul the marriage.]

Effect of Decree.—A decree annulling a marriage is final and conclusive and not open to collateral impeachment, although it may be vacated or set aside for good cause on proper application. Its effect is to make the supposed or pretended marriage as if it had never existed, and hence it restores both parties to their former status and to all rights of property as before the marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 41, 75 S. E. 941, 26 Cyc. 920.

Same—Children Legitimate.—The children of a marriage which is subsequently annuled are made legitimate by section 50-11. Taylor v. White, 160 N. C. 38, 75 S. E. 941.

Appeal from Judgment.—If either party to an action to annul a marriage contract desires to move to set aside the judgment rendered, it must be done in an adversary proceeding after due notice is served upon the other party, and notice to counsel of record in the original action is not sufficient. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

Same Counsel Cannot Represent Both Parties.—A proceeding to set aside a judgment in an action of annulment will be dismissed where the same counsel jointly make the motion representing both parties to the action. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 53 S. E. 623.

§ 50-5. Grounds for absolute divorce. — Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony, on application of the party injured, made as by law provided, in the following cases:

Divorce Is Entirely Statutory.—It has always been the policy of this state to regard marriage as indissoluble except for the causes named in the statute. Long v. Long, 77 N. C. 304. See also Alexander v. Alexander, 165 N. C. 45, 80 S. E. 890, citing many cases.

Legislative Control.— Subject to the constitutional restriction that "it may not grant a divorce nor secure alimony in any individual case," the question of divorce is a matter exclusively of legislative cognizance. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 274, 80 S. E. 178.

When Legislature Will Grant a Divorce.—In some states in the absence of constitutional prohibition, when the object of the marriage relation has been defeated by any cause, physical, moral or intellectual, and no jurisdiction is vested in the judicial tribunals to grant a divorce, the legislature itself may put an end to the relation in the interest of the parties as well as of society. Maynard v. Hill, 125 U. S. 190, 205, 8 S. Ct. 723, 31 L. Ed. 654.

Facts Must Be Pleaded and Proved.—Divorces are granted only when the facts constituting a sufficient cause, under a proper construction of the law, are pleaded, proved and found by the jury. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 634, 10 S. E. 707; McQueen v. McQueen, 82 N. C. 471.

Decree a Mensa Not a Bar.—Decree of divorce a mensa does not bar subsequent action for absolute divorce under this section. Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 80 S. E. 178.

Recrimination.—The general principle which governs in a case where one party recriminates is that the recrimination must allege a cause which the law declares sufficient for divorce. House v. House, 131 N. C. 140, 142, 42 S. E. 546.

Cited in Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N. C. 486, 187 S. E. 798; Burrowes v. Burrowes, 210 N. C. 788, 188 S. E. 648.

1. If the husband or wife commits adultery.

Plaintiff Need Not Set Up His Innocence.—A party seeking divorce is not bound to set forth or prove that he has not himself been guilty of adultery or is not in fault. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 637, 10 S. E. 707; Edwards v. Edwards, 61 N. C. 534; Toms v. Fite, 93 N. C. 274.

Adultery Even after Abandonment Sufficient Cause.—Adultery by the wife committed after her husband had wrongfully abandoned her is ground for divorce. Ellett v. Ellett, 157 N. C. 161, 72 S. E. 861. This case overrules Tew v. Tew, 80 N. C. 316.

Both Parties Guilty.—Where both parties are found guilty of adultery and no condonation is proven, the petition will be dismissed. Horne v. Horne, 72 N. C. 530.

Effect of Plaintiff's Death Pending Trial.—Where the plaintiff in a suit for divorce on the ground of adultery dies pending the trial, after it has been entered upon and before the retirement of the jury, if all issues are found by the jury in favor of the plaintiff, judgment of divorce will be entered as of the first day of the term, while the plaintiff was still alive. Webber v. Webber, 83 N. C. 280.

2. If either party at the time of the marriage was and still is naturally impotent.

Editor's Note.—Since the passage of section 51-3 impotency of either of the contracting parties renders the marriage void, and prior to the passage of that section it was a ground for annulment of the marriage. Smith v. Morehead, 59 N. C. 360.

Husband Competent Witness.—The husband is a competent witness to prove the impotency of his wife. Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N. C. 179.

3. If the wife at the time of the marriage is pregnant, and the husband is ignorant of the fact of such pregnancy and is not the father of the child with which the wife was pregnant at the time of the marriage.

Pregnancy Must Result.—Unknown illicit intercourse, even though incestuous, prior to marriage will not authorize a decree for divorce under this section unless pregnancy resulted. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

False Representations.—Where a man is induced to marry a woman by her false representation that she is pregnant by him, he cannot secure a divorce under this section. Bryant v. Bryant, 171 N. C. 746, 88 S. E. 147.

Cited in State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769.

4. If there has been a separation of husband and wife, whether voluntary or involuntary, provided such involuntary separation is in consequence of a criminal act committed by the defendant prior to such divorce proceeding, and they have lived separate and apart for two successive years, and the plaintiff in the suit for divorce has resided in this state for six months.

Editor's Note.—In the case Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N. C. 272, 80 S. E. 178, the court held that this subsection, which was first added to the grounds for divorce in 1907, was a new and independent cause and should not be construed in connection with the main part of the section which provides that the suit can only be brought by the injured party. In Sanderson v. Sanderson, 178 N. C. 339, 100 S. E. 590 the court practically overrules this part of the Cooke case, supra, and construes this subsection to mean that one who has caused the separation by his own misconduct cannot later use that separation to obtain a divorce. And this construction was refuted in the recent case of Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

A five year provision was put in by chapter 63, Public Laws 1921, the original paragraph providing for ten years.

The Act of 1929 inserted the following words "whether voluntary or involuntary, provided such involuntary separation is in consequence of a criminal act committed by defendant prior to such divorce proceedings."

The period of required living apart for five successive years was changed to two successive years and the requirement that the plaintiff has resided in the state for five successive years was changed to one year by Public Laws of 1933, c. 71.

The 1943 amendment substituted, at the end of subsection 4, "six months" for "one year."

In General.—Under this section a divorce upon the ground of desertion cannot be granted unless there be a continuous separation of the parties for time required preceding the beginning of the case and unless the plaintiff has been a resident of the state for the requisite period of time. These provisions are jurisdictional, and, when they are not complied with, the state court is without authority to grant a divorce. Sears v. Sears, 92 F. (2d) 530, 532.

In Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N. C. 397, 174 S. E. 118, it was held that two years' separation as a ground for divorce need not have existed six months prior to the commencement of the action under either this subsection or under § 50-6. See also discussion in 11 N. C. L. Rev. 223.

Separation Defined.—The word "separation" as used in this section means a voluntary separation by mutual agreement with the intent on the part of at least one of the parties to discontinue all the marital privileges and responsibilities, or a separation under judicial decree, or a separation caused by the abandonment or wrongful act of the party sued. Woodruff v. Woodruff, 215 N. C. 685, 3 S. E. (2d) 5.

A physical separation caused by the commitment of one of the parties for insanity is not a "separation" constituting ground for divorce, nor may the party committed consent to a separation during the continuance of the mental incapacity. Id.

The word "separation" as used in matrimonial law is defined in Black's Law Dictionary 1073 as "a cessation of cohabitation of husband and wife by mutual agreement" or in the case of a judicial separation "under decree of court." This statute contemplates the addition of "separation" caused by desertion or abandonment, or other wrongful act of the party sued. It certainly does not intend to give an action to one for driving the other from home or who has voluntarily deserted it for the specified period. Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

An action can be maintained under this section only by the party injured. Reeves v. Reeves, 203 N. C. 792, 794, 167 S. E. 129.

Abandonment Not Implied.—In an action for divorce a vinculo brought by the husband against the wife, an allegation in his complaint that the adultery was committed without the husband's procurement and without his knowledge or consent, and that he has not cohabited with her since he discovered her acts of adultery, does not imply his abandonment of her or put that matter at issue. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

Abandonment as Defense Must Be Set up in Answer.—In an action for divorce a vinculo brought by the husband against the wife, the defense of abandonment, if relied on, should be set up in the answer, as it is not required of the plaintiff to plead and prove that he has not abandoned his wife. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

Necessary Residence Must Be Established.—For the granting of a divorce for the separation of husband and wife under the provisions of this section, there must not only be evidence but a determinative issue answered in the affirmative as to the necessary period of residence, and a judgment rendered upon an issue establishing a lesser period of residence in this State by the plaintiff is insufficient, and a judgment signed thereon is improvidently rendered. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Allegation of Separation Works Estoppel.—If a wife petitions for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, and alleges in her petition that she separated herself from her husband she is estopped by this averment, and a verdict, that her husband separated himself from her, will not be regarded by the court, unless, upon a proper issue, circumstances of outrage or violence, justifying such separation, be found by a jury. Wood v. Wood, 27 N. C. 674.

Appeal and Error. — Where a husband appeals from a judgment under this section in favor of his wife and assigns error, only in the court's refusing his motion to nonsuit upon the evidence, on the ground that he was insane for a part of the time, it is necessary that the evidence should appear in the record and not in the assignment merely. Brown v. Brown, 182 N. C. 42, 108 S. E. 380.

Where a judgment has been entered granting a divorce under this section, in the absence of finding of the necessary issue as to the plaintiff's residence, a motion in the cause to correct this error or omission is proper, and where such appears to be the only and unrelated error committed, the case will be remanded for the submission of this issue only. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Separation without Fault.—It certainly was not intended that this statute should apply to cases where the separation was without fault on either side. While it is in the power of the Legislature to make the misfortune of either party a ground for divorce it has not done so, and the court cannot by judicial construction extend the grounds of divorce beyond the statute. The misconduct of the parties and not their misfortunes are the causes which will justify a divorce. Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 63, 64, 108 S. E. 352.

5. If any person shall commit the abominable and detestable crime against nature, with mankind, or beast.

It shall not be necessary to set forth in the affidavit filed with the complaint in suits brought under subsection four of this section that the grounds for divorce have existed at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, nor to allege or prove such fact. (Rev., s. 1561; Code, s. 1285; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 35; 1879, c. 132; 1887, c. 100; 1889, c. 442; 1899, c. 29; 1903, c. 490; 1905, c. 499; 1907, c. 89; 1911, c. 117; 1913, c. 165; 1917, cc. 25, 57; 1921, c. 63; 1929, c. 6; 1931, c. 397; 1933, c. 71, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 448, s. 2; C. S. 1659.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of absolute divorce on right to administer, see §§ 28-10, 52-19.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the fifth ground for divorce. The last paragraph was added by Public Laws of 1933, c. 71.

§ 50-6. Divorce after separation of two years on application of either party.—Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony on the application of either party, if and when the husband and wife have lived separate and apart for two years, and the plaintiff in the suit for divorce has resided in the state for a period of six months. This section shall be in addition to other acts and not construed as repealing other laws on the subject of divorce. (1931, c. 72; 1933, c. 163; 1937, c. 100, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 448, s. 3.)

Cross Reference.—As to effect of absolute divorce on right to administer, see §§ 28-10, 52-19.

Editor's Note.—This section is not made an amendment to § 50-5, which gives the right of action to the injured party, but either party may maintain the action without regard to the cause for separation. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 368.

By Public Laws of 1933, c. 163, the time of living apart was changed from five to "two" years, and the required residence of the defendant in the State was changed from five years to "one" year. The 1933 amendment also struck out the provision "and no children having been born to the marriage," formerly appearing in this section.

In Parker v. Parker, 210 N. C. 264, 186 S. E. 346, the supreme court ruled that no divorce could be obtained under this section unless a separation agreement, express or implied, existed. The 1937 amendment, apparently intended to avoid this construction requiring the existence of a separation agreement, amends the statute by striking out the phrase, "either under deed of separation or otherwise." 15 N. C. Law Rev. 348. See Byers v. Byers, 222 N. C. 298, 303, 22 S. E. (2d) 902.

The 1943 amendment substituted, at the end of the first sentence, "six months" for "one year."

Either party may secure an absolute divorce under this section even though the applicant is the party who commits the wrong, as granting divorces is exclusively statutory and this is an independent act of the General Assembly. Long v. Long, 206 N. C. 706, 708, 175 S. E. 85; Byers v. Byers, 222 N. C. 298, 22 S. E. (2d) 902.

Either party may bring an action for absolute divorce under this section and the jury's finding that defendant did not abandon plaintiff without cause does not preclude judgment in plaintiff's favor. Campbell v. Campbell, 207 N. C. 859, 176 S. E. 250.

This section automatically reduces the time from ten to two years, in § 50-11; the two are cognate statutes dealing with similar questions and are to be construed in pari materia. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 675, 174 S. E. 921; Dyer v. Dyer, 212 N. C. 620, 622, 194 S. E. 278.

This section does not contemplate, as essential, a repudiation of all marital obligations, and that husband has supported wife will not defeat his action. Byers v. Byers, 222 N. C. 298, 22 S. E. (2d) 902.

Jurisdictional Averments.—In an action for divorce on the ground of two years separation, brought by either party under this section, as amended, it is not required that the jurisdictional affidavit, required by § 50-8, contain the averment that the facts set forth in the complaint, as grounds for divorce, have existed to the knowledge of plaintiff at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, the legislative intent to this effect being apparent from the proviso in § 50-8, dispensing with the necessity that the cause of action should have existed for six months when the grounds for divorce is separation, the period of separation then being prescribed as five years, which was reduced to two years by this section. Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N. C. 397, 174 S. E. 118.

In order to be entitled to a divorce on the ground of separation, plaintiff must show the fact of marriage, that the parties have lived separate and apart for two years, and that plaintiff has been a resident of the state for one year (now six months). Oliver v. Oliver, 219 N. C. 299, 13 S. E. (2d) 549.

"Living Apart."—For note on "living apart" where both parties live in the same house, see 18 N. C. Law Rev. 247.

Meaning of "Separation."—The word "separation," as applied to the legal status of a husband and wife, means more than "abandonment"; it means a cessation of cohabitation of husband and wife, by mutual agreement. Parker v. Parker, 210 N. C. 264, 266, 186 S. E. 346, citing Lee v. Lee, 182 N. C. 61, 108 S. E. 352.

A charge by the court to the jury that the living separate and apart means living separate and apart under mutual agreement only, was erroneous entitling plaintiff to a new trial. Byers v. Byers, 222 N. C. 298, 22 S. E. (2d) 902, distinguishing Parker v. Parker, supra, as decided under prior wording of section.

Intention.—The bare fact of living separate and apart for the period of two years, standing alone, will not constitute a cause of action for divorce. There must be at least an intention on the part of one of the parties to cease cohabitation, and this must be shown to have existed at the time alleged as the beginning of the separation period; it must appear that the separation is with that definite purpose on the part of at least one of the parties. The exigencies of life and the necessity of making a livelihood may sometimes require that the husband shall absent himself from the wife for long periods—a situation which was not contemplated by the law as a cause of divorce in fixing the period of separation. Byers v. Byers, 222 N. C. 298, 304, 22 S. E. (2d) 902.

Section Did Not Apply Where Separation Was without Cause and without Agreement.—While the applicant need not be the injured party, the statute did not authorize a divorce where the husband has separated himself from his wife, or the wife has separated herself from her husband, without cause and without agreement, express or implied. Parker v. Parker, 210 N. C. 264, 186 S. E. 346; Reynolds v. Reynolds, 210 N. C. 554, 187 S. E. 768; Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N. C. 486, 187 S. E. 798, decided prior to the 1937 amendment.

Question of Resumption of the Conjugal Relation after Separation Is for Jury.—Reynolds v. Reynolds, 210 N. C. 554, 187 S. E. 768, decided prior to 1937 amendment.

Husband Not Entitled to Divorce on His Own Criminal Conduct.—A husband may not ground an action for divorce under this section on his own criminal conduct towards his wife. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 208 N. C. 428, 181 S. E. 338; Campbell v. Campbell, 207 N. C. 859, 176 S. E. 250; Long v. Long, 206 N. C. 706, 175 S. E. 85, distinguished. Followed in Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N. C. 486, 187 S. E. 798.

Applied in Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N. C. 239, 1 S. E. (2d) 540.

§ 50-7. Grounds for divorce from bed and board.—The superior court may grant divorces from bed and board on application of the party injured, made as by law provided, in the following cases:

Evidence of Acts Occurring "More than Ten Years Ago."—Where the wife sues the husband for divorce a mensa et thoro, under this section, it is not error to admit on the trial evidence of his misconduct occurring "more than ten years ago" when it is a part of the whole course of his dealings coming down to "within six months of the beginning of the action." Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 347, 83 S. E. 625.

Plaintiff Must Petition for Divorce a Mensa.—A decree of divorce a mensa will not be granted in an action where plaintiff petitioned for absolute divorce. Morris v. Morris, 75 N. C. 168.

Allegations in the cross action for divorce a mensa et thoro, set up by defendant wife in the husband's action for divorce, held sufficient. Ragan v. Ragan, 214 N. C. 36, 197 S. E. 554.

Effect of Delay in Bringing Action.—An unreasonable delay by one party, after a probable knowledge of the criminal conduct of the other, will, if unaccounted for, preclude such party from obtaining a decree for a separation from bed and board. Whittington v. Whittington, 19 N. C. 64.

But a delay of seven years in filing a petition is sufficiently accounted for by the allegations that at the happening of the matters relied upon for divorce, the petitioner was a nonresident of the State, and is now a pauper. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N. C. 215.

Condonation.—Evidence merely of forgiveness by the plaintiff, in her action for divorce a mensa et thoro against her husband, is insufficient to establish condonation. Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 347, 83 S. E. 625; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

For condonation is forgiveness upon condition, and the condition is, that the party forgiven will abstain from like offenses afterwards. If the condition is violated, the original offense is revived. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Repetition of the offence nullifies the previous condonation. Collier v. Collier, 16 N. C. 352; Gordon v. Gordon, 88 N. C. 45; Page v. Page, 167 N. C. 346, 83 S. E. 625.

Grounds Available to Husband as Well as Wife.—The grounds for divorce a mensa given by this section are available to the husband as well as to the wife, or as stated by the express language of the statute to "the injured party." Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N. C. 669, 153 S. E. 163.

Only the party injured is entitled to a divorce under this section. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 211 N. C. 354, 358, 190 S. E. 492, citing Carnes v. Carnes, 204 N. C. 636, 169 S. E. 222; Albritton v. Albritton, 210 N. C. 111, 185 S. E. 762.

Applied in Albritton v. Albritton, 210 N. C. 111, 185 S. E. 762.

Cited in Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 64, 70, 169 S. E. 818.

1. If either party abandons his or her family.

Acts Constituting Abandonment.—Where husband drives his wife from his house, or obtains her removal by stratagem or withholds from her support while there, he is deemed to have abandoned her. Setzer v. Setzer, 128 N. C. 170, 172, 38 S. E. 731.

To constitute abandonment it is not necessary that the husband should leave the state. Witty v. Barham, 147 N. C. 479, 61 S. E. 372.

2. Maliciously turns the other out of doors.

This Section an Instance of Abandonment in Sec. 1.—The ground for divorce a mensa given the wife under this section, because of being maliciously turned out of doors by her husband, is but an instance of wrongful abandonment provided by subsection 1, and the basic facts of these two suits are the same. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

Adverse Ruling in Previous Action.—A denial of alimony in an independent action under sec. 50-16 brought by the wife, on the ground that her husband maliciously turned her out of doors, will conclude her upon her cross-bill setting up the same matter in an action thereafter brought by her husband against her for divorce a vinculo. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

3. By cruel or barbarous treatment endangers the life of the other.

Revival of Cause.—Much less cruelty or indignity is sufficient to revive a transaction occurring before the condonation, than to support an original suit for divorce. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Whipping wife, held cause for divorce in Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N. C. 433. For further examples, see Jackson v. Jackson, 105 N. C. 433, 11 S. E. 173; Griffith v. Griffith, 89 N. C. 113.

Communication of Disease.—The communication of an infectious disease by the husband to the wife is not sufficient ground under this subsection. Long v. Long, 9 N. C. 189.

Acts Committed More Than Ten Years before.—A divorce will not be granted for cruel and barbarous treatment where it appears the acts complained of were committed more than ten years before the commencement of the action, and in the meanwhile the parties had continued to reside together. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887.

Causes within Six Months.—Nor will a divorce be granted under this section for causes arising within six months before the commencement of the action. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954.

4. Offers such indignities to the person of the other as to render his or her condition intolerable and life burdensome.

This Section Remedial.—It would seem that the Legislature purposely omitted to specify the particular acts of indignity for which divorces may in all cases be obtained. The matter is left at large under general words, thus leaving the courts to deal with each particular case and to determine it upon its own peculiar circumstances, so as to carry into effect the purpose and remedial object of the statute. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 234, 72 S. E. 876; Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N. C. 433, 437.

Facts in Each Case Determined.—The acts of the husband which will render the wife's condition intolerable and her life burdensome so as to entitle her to a divorce a mensa are largely dependant on the facts in each particular case, such as the station in life, temperament, state of health, habits and feelings of the plaintiff. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876.

Complaint Must Show Plaintiff's Innocence.—The complaint must aver, and facts must be found upon which it can be seen that the plaintiff did not by her own conduct contribute to the wrongs and abuses of which she complains. Garsed v. Garsed, 170 N. C. 672, 673, 87 S. E. 45; White v. White, 84 N. C. 340.

Same—General Allegation Insufficient.—It is essential that the plaintiff shall specifically set forth in her complaint the circumstances under which the violence was committed, what her conduct was, and especially what she had done to provoke such conduct on the part of her husband. A general allegation that such conduct was "without cause or provocation on her part" is insufficient. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822; Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202.

Examples of Sufficient Cause.—Where a drunken husband cursed his wife and drove her from his house, and by demonstrations of violence caused her to leave the bedside of a dying child, and seek safety and protection at a distance of several miles, this is sufficient cause for divorce under this section. Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N. C. 348.

A persistive charge of adultery against a virtuous woman, accompanied by a contemptuous declaration that she was no longer his wife, and by an abandonment of her bed, is such an indignity to her person as would entitle her to a partial divorce and to alimony. Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202, 210.

To entitle a wife to a divorce from bed and board under this section, the indignity offered by the husband must be such as may be expected seriously to annoy a woman of ordinary sense and temper, and must be repeated, or continued, so that it may appear to have been done willfully and intentionally or at least consciously by the husband to the annoyance of the wife. Miller v. Miller, 78 N. C. 102.

When in an action by the wife for divorce a mensa there is evidence tending to show that the plaintiff, in her married life, was free from blame and that the defendant's conduct was a long course of neglect, cruelty, humiliation, and insult, repeated and persisted in, it is sufficient to bring the cause within the words of this section, that he had offered "such indignities to her person as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome." Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876.

Where a petitioner alleges that her husband had become jealous of her without cause, had shook his fist in her face and threatened her, and declared to her face and published to the neighborhood that the child with which she was pregnant was not his; that her condition had from such treatment become intolerable and her life burdensome, and that she had been compelled to quit his house and seek the protection of her father: It was held that she had set out enough to entitle her to alimony pendente lite. Erwin v. Erwin, 57 N. C. 82.

A divorce from bed and board will be granted the wife if it is shown that the husband made foul and injurious accusations, and refused to bed with her and denied that she was his wife. Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954.

5. Becomes an habitual drunkard. (Rev., s. 1562; Code, s. 1286; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 36; C. S. 1660.)

§ 50-8. Affidavit to be filed with complaint; affidavit of intention to file complaint.—The plaintiff in a complaint seeking either divorce or alimony, or both, shall file with his or her complaint an affidavit that the facts set forth in the complaint are true to the best of affiant's knowledge and belief, and that the said complaint is not made out of levity or by collusion between husband and wife; and if for divorce, not for the mere purpose of being freed and separated from each other, but in sincerity and truth for the causes mentioned in the complaint. The plaintiff shall also set forth in such affidavit, either that the facts set forth in the complaint, as grounds for divorce, have existed to his or her knowledge at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, and that complainant has been a resident of the state for six months next preceding the filing of the complaint; or, if the wife be the plaintiff, that the husband is removing, or about to remove, his property and effects from the state, whereby she may be disappointed in her alimony: Provided, however, that if the cause for divorce is two years separation then it shall not be necessary to set forth in the affidavit that the grounds for divorce have existed at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint, it being the purpose of this proviso to permit a divorce after a separation of two years without waiting an additional six months for filing the complaint. If any wife files in the office of the superior court clerk of the county where she resides an affidavit, setting forth the fact that she intends to file a petition or bring an action for divorce against her husband, and that she has not had knowledge of the facts upon which the petition or action will be based for six months, she may reside separate and apart from her husband. If she fails to file her petition or bring her action for divorce within ninety days after the six months have expired since her knowledge of the facts upon which she intends to file her said petition or bring her said action, then she shall not be entitled any longer to the benefit of this section. (Rev., s. 1563; Code, s. 1287; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 46; 1869-70, c. 184; 1907, c. 1008, s. 1; 1925, c. 93; 1933, c. 71, ss. 2, 3; 1943, c. 448, s. 1; C. S. 1661.)

Editor's Note.—The requirement that the complainant has been a resident of the state for "two years" was changed to "one year" by Public Laws 1933, c. 71.

The 1943 amendment substituted in line sixteen "six months" for "one year."

Purpose of Section.—The affidavit was intended to prevent bad faith and collusion on the part of the parties to the action, and is an indispensable part of the complaint and application, and, if it is wanting, there is no jurisdiction in the courts. Holloman v. Holloman, 127 N. C. 15, 16, 37 S. E. 68; State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769.

Requirements Mandatory.—All the requisites mentioned in the affidavit required by this section are mandatory and a failure to set out these averments in the affidavit prevents the superior court from having jurisdiction. Nichols v. Nichols, 128 N. C. 108, 38 S. E. 296; Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N. C. 91, 94, 53 S. E. 623.

General Terms Permitted.—The matters in the jurisdictional affidavit in an action for divorce a mensa brought by the wife may be stated in general terms following the language of the statute. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 285, 91 S. E. 960.

Verification According to Statute.—In an application for alimony pendente lite the affidavit and petition must be verified as required by this section. Clark v. Clark, 133 N. C. 28, 45 S. E. 342. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 132 N. C. 22, 43 S. E. 508. And verification of a pleading that it was "sworn and subscribed to" is not sufficient. Martin v. Martin, 130 N. C. 27, 40 S. E. 822.

Verification of Answers Setting Up Cross Action.—In the husband's action for divorce a vinculo, the wife's answer setting up a cross action must be verified under this section, as a jurisdictional prerequisite, and when the answer is not so verified the granting of permanent alimony is erroneous. Silver v. Silver, 220 N. C. 191, 16 S. E. (2d) 834.

Six Months Prior Knowledge.—By chapter 93, Pub. Laws of 1925, this section was amended so that in cases where the cause for divorce is five years (now two years) separation, then the six months prior knowledge need not be alleged in the affidavit, it being the purpose of sec. 50-5, par. 4, to permit a divorce after a separation of five years (now two years) without waiting an additional six months for filing the complaint. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 422, 130 S. E. 7.

In all other cases the affidavit must state that the action was not brought within six months from the time the plaintiff first acquired knowledge of the facts stated therein. Clark v. Clark, 133 N. C. 28, 45 S. E. 342.

And unless so stated the divorce will not be granted. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N. C. 140, 13 S. E. 887; Green v. Green, 131 N. C. 533, 42 S. E. 954.

But this need not be alleged in the complaint. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N. C. 321, 63 S. E. 97.

The proviso, in this section, eliminating the necessity of waiting six months after the expiration of the requisite period of separation, when the ground for divorce is that of separation, still applies with the reduction in time from five to two years. Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N. C. 397, 398, 174 S. E. 118.

Actual Residence.—The residence means actual residence, and a nonresident wife in suing for divorce cannot avail herself of the maxim that "her domicile is that of her husband" where she has not actually satisfied the residence requirement. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 55 N. C. 367.

Where husband and wife establish a residence in the State, the wife, by leaving the State for a temporary purpose, without any intention of changing her residence, does not thereby lose her citizenship. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

It is not required that the two years (now six months) residence in the State of the plaintiff in an action for absolute divorce be alleged in the complaint to confer jurisdiction, but it is sufficient if it is set out in the accompanying affidavit. Williams v. Williams, 180 N. C. 273, 104 S. E. 561.

Removal of Property by Husband.—In an action by the wife for divorce a mensa, when the allegations are necessary that the defendant is about to remove himself and property from the State to jeopardize the plaintiff's right to alimony, it is not presumed that the wife would have personal knowledge of her husband's plans or purpose in this regard, and an averment thereof in positive terms and of her personal knowledge is not required. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

Where the necessary affidavit is made under this section, in reference to the husband's removal of his property from the State, it is not necessary, in order to get a decree for such separation, to file another complaint six months after the time the facts (upon which alone the decree could be made) are alleged to have occurred. Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N. C. 348; Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 72 S. E. 876.

Supplementary Affidavits.—No order should be made to deprive the defendant of his property unless the facts appear upon which the plaintiff's information and belief are founded, and it is proper and sufficient to show such facts in supplementary or additional affidavits. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N. C. 229, 230, 72 S. E. 876.

Amendment to Affidavit.—It is discretionary with the trial judge to allow an amendment to the affidavit in an action for divorce. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943. When allowed the facts shown in the amendment must be verified. Foy v. Foy, 35 N. C. 90.

Proof Must Correspond to Allegations.—As the allegations in a petition for a divorce are directed by statute to be sworn to, it is more emphatically required in such a case than in others that the allegations and proofs should correspond; otherwise the court cannot decree a divorce. Foy v. Foy, 35 N. C. 90.

Action to Annul Marriage.—The affidavit required under this section is not necessary in an action to annul a marriage upon statutory grounds. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 699, 146 S. E. 864.

§ 50-9. Effect of answer of summons by defendant.—In all cases upon an action for a divorce absolute, where the plaintiff had caused to be served upon the defendant in person a legal summons, whether by verified complaint or unverified complaint, and such defendant answered such summons, and where the trial of said action was duly and legally had in all other respects and judgments rendered by a Judge of the Superior Court upon issues answered by a judge and jury, in accordance with law, such judgments are hereby declared to have the same force and effect as any judgment upon an action for divorce otherwise had legally and regularly. (1929, c. 290, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to procedure in trial generally, see § 1-170 et seq.

§ 50-10. Material facts found by jury; parties cannot testify to adultery.—The material facts in every complaint asking for a divorce shall be deemed to be denied by the defendant, whether the same shall be actually denied by pleading or not, and no judgment shall be given in favor of the plaintiff in any such complaint until such facts have been found by a jury, and on such trial neither the husband nor wife shall be a competent witness to prove the adultery of the other, nor shall the admissions of either party be received as evidence to prove such fact. (Rev., s. 1564; Code, s. 1288; 1868-9, c. 93, s. 47; C. S. 1662.)

Cross Reference.—As to competency of spouse as witness in civil actions, see § 8-56.

Purpose of Section.—The object of this section was to prevent a judgment from being taken by default, or by collusion, and to require the facts to be found by a jury. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 415, 102 S. E. 737; Moss v. Moss, 24 N. C. 55, 58; Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

Presumption of Denial.—The provisions of this section that the allegation of the complaint in an action for divorce "are deemed to be denied," applies only to the trial upon the merits, since the facts must be found by a jury. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

The denial by the statute of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce, presumes, as a matter of law, a meritorious defense, and does not require that this be found by the judge in passing upon a motion to set aside a judgment rendered in an action. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737.

Same—Applies to Cross Action.—The defendant in an action for divorce a vinculo, may file a cross action for the same relief, and where no reply has been filed by the plaintiff, and no evidence offered by him, an issue is raised by our statute, and upon a verdict on the required issues, a judgment may be rendered upon the cross action if the pleadings and the evidence are sufficient. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N. C. 418, 130 S. E. 7.

Same—Time for Answering Not Affected.—The provision of this section, putting in a denial of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce, does not affect the defendant's right to twenty days after completion of the service of summons by publication, in which to answer or demur, etc. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N. C. 413, 102 S. E. 737.

Applies to Cross-Action.—This section is applicable to a defendant who files a cross-action, and prays for divorce therein from the plaintiff. Saunderson v. Saunderson, 195 N. C. 169, 172, 141 S. E. 572; citing Cook v. Cook, 159 N. C. 46, 47, 74 S. E. 639.

Where the wife's cross-action for divorce a mensa is sustained by the verdict of the jury, a judgment rendered must accord therewith, and if entered for a divorce absolute upon consent of the parties, the judgment is a nullity. Saunderson v. Saunderson, 195 N. C. 169, 141 S. E. 572.

Verdict of Jury.—In a proceeding for a divorce the issues submitted and the verdict found should be as specific and certain as the facts alleged in the petition. Wood v. Wood, 27 N. C. 674.

Same—Eleven Jurors.—In an action for divorce, a verdict by eleven jurors, consented to by both parties, is valid if for the defendant, but invalid if for plaintiff. Hall v. Hall, 131 N. C. 185, 42 S. E. 562.

Witnesses in Actions on Ground of Adultery.—The statutory inhibition that the husband and wife will not be permitted to testify for or against each other prevails whether under the circumstances of any particular case it would seemingly appear that there was no collusion or otherwise; and the inhibition extends to any and all admissions or confessions by the other, tending to establish the acts of adultery, either in the pleadings or otherwise. Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

It is incompetent for the husband to testify that the wife had a certain contagious venereal disease, of which he had been free, under circumstances tending necessarily to establish her improper relations with other men. Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N. C. 605, 81 S. E. 933.

Instruction Not at Variance with Section.—In an action for absolute divorce a charge in reference to the admissions of counsel that the evidence was sufficient to support an affirmative answer to the issues of marriage, separation and residence is held not equivalent to a directed verdict and not to be at variance with the provisions of this section. Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N. C. 465, 149 S. E. 585.

Evidence.—In an action for divorce on the ground of adultery of the wife, evidence that she offered to pay the cost of a criminal prosecution against her alleged paramour was competent, not in any sense as a confession of her guilt, but was tending to show interest in and association with him, and as corroborating other testimony as to adulterous intercourse between the parties. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

In Vickers v. Vickers, 188 N. C. 448, 450, 124 S. E. 737, the court said:—"On perusal of the record it appears that the affidavit of the wife, charging adultery on the husband, is submitted as part of her evidence pertinent to the inquiry. As an independent fact, such evidence seems to be absolutely forbidden by the statutes and public policy controlling in the matter."

Declaration—Presence of Third Person.—A declaration made by a husband to his wife in the presence of a third party is not such a confidential communication, as is privileged. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

Same—Of Alleged Paramour.—The declarations of an alleged paramour, made to or in the presence of a party to a suit for divorce a vinculo matrimonii, tending to show that improper familiarities had been or were about to be indulged in between them, and such party's reply to the declarations is admissible as evidence and does not come within the prohibition of this section. Toole v. Toole, 112 N. C. 153, 16 S. E. 912.

Stated in State v. Williams, 220 N. C. 445, 17 S. E. (2d) 769.

§ 50-11. Effects of absolute divorce.—After a judgment of divorce from the bonds of matrimony, all rights arising out of the marriage shall cease and determine, and either party may marry again unless otherwise provided by law: Provided, that no judgment of divorce shall render illegitimate any children in esse, or begotten of the body of the wife during coverture; and, Provided further, that a decree of absolute divorce upon the ground of separation for two successive years as provided in § 50-5 or § 50-6 shall not impair or destroy the right of the wife to receive alimony under any judgment or decree of the court rendered before the commencement of the proceeding for absolute divorce. (Rev., s. 1569; Code, s. 1295; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 43; 1919, c. 204; C. S. 1663.)

Time Reduced to Two Years.—Section 50-6, as amended, reduced the time in this section from ten to two years. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 174 S. E. 921; Dyer v. Dyer, 212 N. C. 620, 194 S. E. 278.

No Permanent Alimony.—Upon the granting of an absolute divorce all rights arising out of the marriage cease and determine and hence the court has no power in such cases to allow permanent alimony. Duffy v. Duffy, 120 N. C. 346, 27 S. E. 28.

Consent Judgment Not Affected.—Where a consent judgment has been entered, a condition of which is that the wife remain unmarried, the subsequent decreeing of a divorce a vinculo to the wife is not a violation of the terms of the consent judgment, and the judge has no authority to modify it upon that ground. Lentz v. Lentz, 193 N. C. 742, 138 S. E. 12.

§ 50-12. Resumption of maiden name authorized; adoptions of name of prior deceased husband validated.—Any woman at any time after the bonds of matrimony theretofore existing between herself and her husband have been dissolved by a decree of absolute divorce, may resume the use of her maiden name or the name of a prior deceased husband, or a name composed of her given name and the surname of a prior deceased husband upon application to the clerk of the court of the county in which she resides, setting forth her intention so to do. Said application shall be addressed to the clerk of the court of the county in which such divorced woman resides, and shall set forth the full name of the former husband of the applicant, the name of the county in which said divorce was granted, and the term of court at which such divorce was granted, and shall be signed by the applicant in her full maiden name. The clerks of court of the several counties of the state shall provide a permanent book in which shall be recorded all such applications herein provided for, which shall be indexed under the name of the former husband of the applicant and under the maiden name of such applicant. The clerk of the court of the county in which said application shall be recorded shall charge a fee of one ($1.00) dollar for such registration. In every case where a married woman has heretofore been granted a divorce and has, since the divorce, adopted the name of a prior deceased husband, or a name composed of her given name and the surname of a prior deceased husband, the adoption by her of such name is hereby validated. (1937, c. 53; 1941, c. 9.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1941, chapter 9, inserted in the first sentence of this section the words "or the name of a prior deceased husband, or a name composed of her given name and the surname of a prior deceased husband." The amendment also added the words "or a name composed of her given name and the surname of a prior deceased husband," in the last sentence.

§ 50-13. Custody of children in divorce.—After the filing of a complaint in any action for divorce, whether from the bonds of matrimony or from bed and board, both before and after final judgment therein, it is lawful for the judge of the court in which such application is or was pending to make such orders respecting the care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as may be proper, and from time to time to modify or vacate such orders, and may commit their custody and tuition to the father or mother, as may be thought best; or the court may commit the custody and tuition of such infant children, in the first place, to one parent for a limited time, and after the expiration of that time, then to the other parent; and so alternately: Provided, that no order respecting the children shall be made on the application of either party without five days notice to the other party, unless it shall appear that the party having the possession or control of such children has removed or is about to remove the children, or himself, beyond the jurisdiction of the court.

Provided, custody of children of parents who have been divorced outside of North Carolina may be determined in a special proceeding instituted by either of said parents in the superior court of the county wherein the petitioner, or the respondent or child at the time of filing said petition, is a resident. The resident judge of the district wherein the petition is filed may hear the facts and determine the custody of said children at any place that may be designated in his district after five days notice of said proceedings to the defendant. Notice of the summons and petition in said proceedings may be served on a nonresident defendant by publishing a notice thereof setting forth the grounds and nature of the proceedings in a newspaper published in the county wherein the petitioner resides once a week for a period of four successive weeks and by posting a copy thereof at the courthouse door of said county for a period of thirty days. Service as aforesaid in said action will be deemed complete thirty days after the date of the first publication of said notice.

In any case where either parent institutes a divorce action when there is a minor child or children, the complaint in such action shall set forth the name and age of such child or children; and if there be no minor child, the complaint shall so state. (Rev., s. 1570; Code, ss. 1296, 1570; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 46; 1939, c. 115; 1941, c. 120; 1943, c. 194; C. S. 1664.)

Cross Reference.—As to habeas corpus proceeding to determine custody of children of parents who are separated without being divorced, see §§ 17-39, 17-40.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the second paragraph of this section.

The 1941 amendment inserted the words "or the respondent or child" in the first sentence of the second paragraph.

The 1943 amendment added the last paragraph.

For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 352.

In General.—The superior court, in which a suit for divorce is pending, has exclusive jurisdiction as to the care or custody of the children of the marriage, before and after the decree of divorcement has been entered, by this section, and though by proceedings in habeas corpus under the provisions of sec. 17-39, the custody of a child of the marriage may be awarded as between parents each of whom claim it, this applies only when the parents are living in a state of separation, without being divorced, or are suing for a decree of divorcement; and where the decree of divorcement has been granted without awarding the custody of minor children of the marriage, the exclusive remedy is by motion in that cause. Quaere, whether the statutes relating to the juvenile courts, sec. 110-21 et seq., confer jurisdiction in such instances. In re Blake, 184 N. C. 278, 114 S. E. 294.

Upon institution of a divorce action the court acquires jurisdiction over any child born of the marriage and may hear and determine questions both as to the custody and as to the maintenance of such child either before or after final decree of divorce. Story v. Story, 221 N. C. 114, 19 S. E. (2d) 136.

Habeas Corpus Is Not Appropriate Writ When Parties Are Divorced.—Although statutory habeas corpus is an appropriate writ to determine the custody of children as between married parents living in a state of separation under § 17-39, it is not appropriate when they are divorced. McEachern v. McEachern, 210 N. C. 98, 185 S. E. 684.

Court May Disregard Agreement between Husband and Wife Regarding Custody of Child.—A deed of separation between husband and wife containing an agreement for the custody of their minor child does not preclude the court, upon granting a decree for absolute divorce in a suit brought subsequent to the deed of separation, from awarding the custody of the child in accordance with this section. In re Albertson, 205 N. C. 742, 172 S. E. 411.

No agreement or contract between husband and wife will serve to deprive the court of its inherent as well as statutory authority to protect the interests and provide for the welfare of infants. They may bind themselves by separate agreement or by a consent judgment; but they cannot thus withdraw children of the marriage from the protective custody of the court. The child is not a party to such agreement and the parents cannot contract away the jurisdiction of the court which is always alert in the discharge of its duty towards its ward—the children of the state whose personal or property interests require protection. State v. Duncan, 222 N. C. 11, 21 S. E. (2d) 822.

Father Primarily Liable for Support.—The liability of the father primarily to support the children remains after the divorce, as well as before such divorce, and even where the custody of the children has been awarded to the mother. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 319, 83 S. E. 490. And the order may be made a lien on his land. Ibid. Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N. C. 474, 37 S. E. 502.

Consent Judgments.—Where consent judgment in a suit a mensa et thoro has been entered in the action, without providing for the children, upon motion in the original cause the court has power to make such further orders as it deems proper requiring the father to provide for the support of his children, whether born before or after the rendition of the consent judgment. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 317, 83 S. E. 489.

Same—Award of Custody Does Not Affect.—Where consent judgment in an action for a divorce a mensa operates as a gift to the wife of an estate in the husband's land, the fact that the court awards custody of the children does not affect it. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N. C. 484, 105 S. E. 25.

Without the consent of the parties to vacate or moderate a properly entered consent judgment, the court is without power to do so. Lentz v. Lentz, 193 N. C. 742, 138 S. E. 12.

Consent Judgment on Issue of Divorce Does Not Divest Jurisdiction as to Custody of Child.—Upon the institution of an action for divorce from bed and board the court acquires jurisdiction of the minor children of the parties which is not divested by a consent judgment on the issue of divorce entered in the cause with approval of the court, especially where such consent judgment expressly provides that either party might thereafter make a motion in the cause for the custody of the children, the court having the power in an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, before or after final judgment, to enter orders respecting the care and custody of the children under this section. Tyner v. Tyner, 206 N. C. 776, 175 S. E. 144.

Judgment out of Term.—Where an absolute divorce has been decreed in an action and a motion is made respecting the custody of a minor child, and the parties agree that the judge should render judgment on the motion out of term and outside the county of trial, the judgment rendered under the terms of the agreement is valid, the judge having authority under this section to render such judgment. Pate v. Pate, 201 N. C. 402, 160 S. E. 450.

Modification of Decree.—Where, in a decree of divorce the father is ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the support of his infant daughter, and by its first order the court has retained the cause subject to the right of either party at any time to apply for a modification of the order, and pursuant to this provision the court later, upon the father's insolvency, made the sums assessed a charge on the plaintiff's homestead and personal property exemptions when allotted, the modification is authorized by this section as well as by the order of the courts. Walker v. Walker, 204 N. C. 210, 212, 167 S. E. 818.

The superior court has jurisdiction under this section to modify an order for the support of a child of the marriage entered in the husband's action for absolute divorce, and may do so upon the wife's motion in the cause made subsequent to the rendition of the decree of absolute divorce. Story v. Story, 221 N. C. 114, 19 S. E. (2d) 136.

Five Days' Notice Is for Protection of Parent Who Does Not Have Control of Child.—The provision in the statute dispensing with the notice of five days, when it appears that the parent having possession or control of the infant child of the parties to the action has removed or is about to remove such child from the jurisdiction of the court is applicable only where the application or motion is made by the parent who does not have possession or control of the child, and is for the protection of the rights of such parent, and not of the parent who has possession or control of the child at the time the application or motion is made. In such case, no notice to the adverse party is required. Burrowes v. Burrowes, 210 N. C. 788, 794, 188 S. E. 648.

Appeals by Both Wife and Children.—Upon appeals by the wife and children in separate actions, the appeal of the children will be considered as improvidently taken if the relief sought is identical with that afforded under the judgment obtained in the action of the mother. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N. C. 317, 83 S. E. 489.

§ 50-14. Alimony on divorce from bed and board.—When any court adjudges any two married persons divorced from bed and board, it may also decree to the party upon whose application such judgment was rendered such alimony as the circumstances of the several parties may render necessary; which, however, shall not in any case exceed the one-third part of the net annual income from the estate, occupation or labor of the party against whom the judgment shall be rendered. (Rev., s. 1565; Code, s. 1290; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 37; C. S. 1665.)

Alimony Defined.—See Rogers v. Vines, 28 N. C. 293, 294; Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N. C. 418.

Nature of Alimony.—A decree awarding alimony to the wife or children, or both, is not a debt which has been put in the form of a judgment, but is rather a legal means of enforcing the obligation of the husband and father to support and maintain his wife and children. Wetmore v. Markoe, 196 U. S. 68, 74, 25 S. Ct. 172, 49 L. Ed. 390.

But alimony decreed to a wife in a divorce of separation from bed and board is as much a debt of record, until the decree has been recalled, as any other judgment for money. Barber v. Barber, 21 How. 582, 595, 16 L. Ed. 226.

The alimony allowed under this section is incident to and dependent upon a decree of divorce a mensa, and where no divorce a mensa was granted on the verdict no permanent alimony could be allowed. Silver v. Silver, 220 N. C. 191, 16 S. E. (2d) 834.

Permanent alimony under this section may be allowed only upon decree for divorce a mensa, and is erroneously granted in the wife's cross action in which divorce a mensa is neither prayed nor decreed. Silver v. Silver 220 N. C. 191, 16 S. E. (2d) 834.

Not Permanent.—Alimony is in its nature a provision for a wife separated from her husband, and it cannot continue after reconciliation or the death of either party. Rogers v. Vines, 28 N. C. 293, 297.

Effect of Decree upon Defendant's Property.—The order of a court for alimony operates in personam, by compelling the defendant to pay the alimony or to convey the property accordingly, and does not of itself transfer any title in real estate unless allowed that effect by the law of the place in which the real estate is situated. Barrett v. Failing, 111 U. S. 523, 525, 4 S. Ct. 598, 28 L. Ed. 505.

One-Third of Husband's Estate.—Decree of divorce à mensa may assign one-third of husband's estate to the wife. Davis v. Davis, 68 N. C. 180.

Effect of Wife's Abandonment.—The voluntary abandonment by the wife of her husband without legal justification will not entitle her to alimony in her suit for divorce from bed and board. McManus v. McManus, 191 N. C. 740, 133 S. E. 9.

Appeal.—Whether the wife is entitled to alimony is a question of law upon the facts found and is reviewable upon the appeal by either party. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

Cited in Dyer v. Dyer, 212 N. C. 620, 194 S. E. 278; Story v. Story, 221 N. C. 114, 19 S. E. (2d) 136.

§ 50-15. Alimony pendente lite; notice to husband.—If any married woman applies to a court for a divorce from the bonds of matrimony, or from bed and board, with her husband, and sets forth in her complaint such facts, which upon application for alimony shall be found by the judge to be true and to entitle her to the relief demanded in the complaint, and it appears to the judge of such court, either in or out of term, by the affidavit of the complainant, or other proof, that she has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of the suit, and to defray the necessary and proper expenses thereof, the judge may order the husband to pay her such alimony during the pendency of the suit as appears to him just and proper, having regard to the circumstances of the parties; and such order may be modified or vacated at any time, on the application of either party or of any one interested: Provided, that no order allowing alimony pendente lite shall be made unless the husband shall have had five days notice thereof, and in all cases of application for alimony pendente lite under this or § 50-16, whether in or out of term, it shall be admissible for the husband to be heard by affidavit in reply or answer to the allegations of the complaint: Provided further, that if the husband has abandoned his wife and left the state or is in parts unknown, or is about to remove or dispose of his property for the purpose of defeating the claim of his wife, no notice is necessary. (Rev., s. 1566; Code, s. 1291; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 38; 1883, c. 67; C. S. 1666.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—It was formerly held that alimony pendente lite could not be awarded in the absence of a statute conferring this power. Wilson v. Wilson, 19 N. C. 377; Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348. In 1852 the Legislature passed an act authorizing the courts upon a petition for divorce and alimony, to decree the petitioner a sum sufficient for her support during the pendency of the suit. See Everton v. Everton, 50 N. C. 202, 206. In the case of Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857, the court overruled the former doctrine mentioned supra, and stated that the courts possessed the right to grant alimony pendente lite by virtue of the common law—the practice having come down from the English Ecclesiastical Courts.

This holding has an important bearing on the construction of this statute, making it remedial in its nature, affirmative in its terms and cumulative in its effect and not abrogating the common law existent on the subject nor withdrawing from the court any powers already possessed in administering its principles. Medlin v. Medlin, supra, overruling Reeves v. Reeves, supra, on this point.

Purpose of the Section.—The purpose of this section is to afford the wife present pecuniary relief pending the progress of the action and to afford the husband some measure of protection in a motion so important, which is made and to be determined before the merits of the controversy are ascertained and the rights of the parties settled regularly by final judgment. Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109, 111.

Alimony When the Wife Is Defendant.—When the wife is the defendant she has a right to claim alimony pendente lite under this section. Webber v. Webber, 79 N. C. 572; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

And this is true although she may be concluded by the judgment against her in her former and independent action for divorce à mesna under the provisions of the statute. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N. C. 529, 95 S. E. 857.

Cited in Dyer v. Dyer, 212 N. C. 620, 194 S. E. 278.

II. APPLICATION AND PROCEEDINGS THEREON.

An application for alimony pendente lite can be made by motion in the cause. Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348.

A motion for alimony pendente lite may be heard anywhere in the judicial district. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943. Also a motion to reduce alimony. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

But a resident judge holding court in another district can not hear a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite in a suit pending in the district in which he resides. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

In the husband's suit for divorce, in which the wife files answer demanding alimony pendente lite and alimony without divorce, it is error for the court, upon the hearing for alimony pendente lite under this section, to issue an order for alimony without divorce under § 50-16. Adams v. Adams, 212 N. C. 373, 193 S. E. 274.

Kind of Divorce Warranted Immaterial.—Upon an application for alimony pendente lite, it is unnecessary to decide whether the petition warrants a divorce a vinculo, or only a divorce à mensa et thoro. Little v. Little, 63 N. C. 22.

III. PREREQUISITES TO AWARD.

A. Entitled to Relief.

Prima Facie Case.—Under this section a petitioner for divorce is entitled to alimony pendente lite upon making out a prima facie case. Sparks v. Sparks, 69 N. C. 319.

Finding Facts as Alleged Sufficient.—Upon a motion for alimony it is sufficient for the court to find that the facts are as alleged in the answer and the affidavits filed in support of the motion. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733; Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488; Vaughan v. Vaughan, 211 N. C. 354, 190 S. E. 492; Ragan v. Ragan, 214 N. C. 36, 197 S. E. 554.

Upon application for alimony pendente lite the trial court is required to find the facts in order that the correctness of its ruling may be determined on appeal, and the granting of the application solely upon a finding that defendant was the owner of certain properties is error. Dawson v. Dawson, 211 N. C. 453, 190 S. E. 749.

In an application for alimony it need not be found as a fact that the plaintiff was a faithful, dutiful and obedient wife. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

Where the wife's action is for a divorce à mensa on the ground of abandonment, stating that she was compelled to leave home by the conduct of her husband, the judge, in allowing alimony pendente lite, must find such facts that would justify her in law for so doing, at the time she left her husband, and those that occurred thereafter are insufficient. Horton v. Horton, 186 N. C. 332, 119 S. E. 490.

In an application for alimony pendente lite under this section, it is required that the court find the facts in determining whether the wife is entitled to alimony, her right thereto being a question of law, and it is error for the court to refuse applicant's request for a finding of facts upon which the court denies the application. Caudle v. Caudle, 206 N. C. 484, 174 S. E. 304.

Superior Judge May Leave Charges Open.—Where the allegations of the complaint are sufficient under the terms of this section, and are found to be true and sufficient by the judge of the superior court, in the wife's action for a divorce a mensa et thoro, the court may leave open the charges made by each of the parties against the other, and award alimony pendente lite, including a reasonable attorney's fee, taking into consideration the circumstances of the case. Hennis v. Hennis, 180 N. C. 606, 105 S. E. 274.

Sufficient Grounds.—Where the facts as found by the judge would, if found by the jury on the final hearing, warrant a divorce from bed and board, they per se constitute sufficient ground to award alimony pendente lite. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130.

In an action by a wife for a divorce a mensa, where acts of cruelty were alleged as the ground of separation, and also an estimate was made of the value of the defendant's estate, it was held to be sufficient evidence to decree alimony and fix the amount. Pain v. Pain, 80 N. C. 322. Also where acts were alleged which were well calculated to make her condition intolerable and her life burdensome and the bill set forth an estimate of the amount of the defendant's property. Gaylord v. Gaylord, 57 N. C. 74.

B. Necessity for Alimony.

Alimony Granted.—Where the complaint of a feme plaintiff seeking a divorce alleges facts which, if believed, entitled her to the relief demanded, and is supplemented by an affidavit that the husband is trying to dispose of his property and has offered his land for sale with the avowed purpose of leaving the State, and that the children are small and need the mother's care, it is proper to grant an order for alimony pendente lite, and it is also competent for the court to award to the mother the custody of the younger children. Scroggins v. Scroggins, 80 N. C. 319.

A married woman is entitled to alimony pendente lite from her husband's estate, when the income from her separate estate is not sufficient for her support and to defray the necessary expenses in prosecuting her suit. Miller v. Miller, 75 N. C. 70.

Where, in the husband's action for divorce on the ground of adultery, the wife files answer denying the charges and sets up a cross action for divorce from bed and board, the finding by the court that the wife denied the charge of adultery under oath, that the court did not find that she was guilty of adultery, and that the husband had abandoned her and that she was financially unable to defray the necessary and proper expenses of the action, was without means of support and that the husband was financially able to make the payments ordered, is sufficient to support the court's order of alimony pendente lite. Covington v. Covington, 215 N. C. 569, 2 S. E. (2d) 558.

Whether the wife is entitled to alimony, is a question of law, upon the facts found, and reviewable on appeal by either party. Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109; Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

Where Wife Has Ample Means.—The right of alimony pendente lite, both under this section and under the common law, is predicated upon the justice of affording the wife sufficient means to cope with her husband in presenting their case before the court, and a finding, supported by evidence, that the wife has earnings and means of support equal to that of her husband, sustains the court's order denying her motion for alimony pendente lite. Oliver v. Oliver, 219 N. C. 299, 13 S. E. (2d) 549.

IV. NOTICE.

Sufficiency.—An order of court continuing the motion for alimony to a future term of court made in the presence of counsel for both parties is sufficient notice, under the statute, of such motion. Lea v. Lea, 104 N. C. 603, 10 S. E. 488.

Time of Hearing Not Specified.—The fact that a notice of a motion for alimony pendente lite, duly served upon the defendant, did not specify the time of hearing, will not invalidate the order allowing the same, it having been heard at a term of court at which the cause stood regularly for trial. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

When Five Days Required.—The provision requiring five days' notice applies only when the motion is heard out of term, and parties are fixed with notice of all motions or orders made during the term of the court. Coor v. Smith, 107 N. C. 431, 11 S. E. 1089; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960; Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

When Dispensed with.—An affidavit of the wife that husband had left the State the day after the filing of the complaint, and that she had good reason to believe that he had left to defeat her claim for alimony, having been selling his property for several months with that purpose in view, dispenses with the necessity for notice. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

Before Return Term.—Alimony pendente lite may be allowed before the return term if the complaint has been filed. Moore v. Moore, 130 N. C. 333, 41 S. E. 943.

V. THE ORDER.

A. In General.

Effect of Insufficient Finding.—An order allowing the wife alimony pendente lite may be declared erroneous on appeal for insufficiently full findings of fact therein, but not void. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216; Moody v. Moody, 118 N. C. 926, 23 S. E. 933.

If Allegations Not Controverted.—If the allegations in the complaint are not controverted, it is sufficient if the judge finds that no answer was filed and adjudges alimony to be paid. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334.

Enforcement.—An order to pay alimony may be enforced by imprisonment for contempt. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N. C. 433, 18 S. E. 334; Pain v. Pain, 80 N. C. 322.

B. Amount.

Discretion of Court.—While the right to alimony involves a question of law, the amount of alimony and counsel fees is a matter of judicial discretion. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682, 683; Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N. C. 215; Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733. Subject to the limitation that it is not in excess of the net income of the defendant. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682. See also, Wright v. Wright, 216 N. C. 693, 6 S. E. (2d) 555.

Usually One-Third Net Income.—Excepting attorney's fees and expenses, the amount ordinarily allowed pendente lite under this section is not in excess of the amount prescribed by sec. 50-14 upon a final judgment for divorce from bed and board; that is, one-third part of the net annual income from the estate and occupation or labor of the party against whom the judgment is rendered. 19 C. J. 222 (532). But this rule is not inflexible, and the amount to be allowed is not arbitrarily fixed by the statute. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N. C. 625, 127 S. E. 682, 683.

Amount May Be Altered by Court.—Alimony regularly ordered to be paid a wife pendente lite may be increased or reduced in amount by the court from time to time, but that which she has already received in the course and practice of the courts may not be ordered to be given up by her. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216.

Allowance for Children.—Where in passing upon a motion of feme plaintiff in her action for divorce à mensa for alimony, etc., pendente lite, if the trial judge has found facts sufficient upon the evidence, he may award the custody of the minor children, who have been removed by the defendant from the State, to the plaintiff, with an additional allowance for them from the time they may be placed in her custody. Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

Not Reviewable Unless Abuse Shown.—The question of the amount allowed, in proper instances, by the superior court judge to the wife, in her action for divorce à mensa et thoro, is addressed to his sound judgment and discretion, and not reviewable on appeal, unless his discretion is abused. Hennis v. Hennis, 180 N. C. 606, 105 S. E. 274; Jones v. Jones, 173 N. C. 279, 91 S. E. 960.

VI. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

In application for alimony pendente lite, it is competent for the husband to controvert the allegations of the complaint by affidavit or answer. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N. C. 130; Easeley v. Easeley, 173 N. C. 530, 92 S. E. 353; Griffith v. Griffith, 89 N. C. 113.

Finding of Facts.—On a motion for alimony pendente lite and counsel fees in an action instituted by a wife against her husband under the provisions of this section, whether the wife is entitled to alimony is a question of law upon the facts found, and the court below must find the facts, upon request. Holloway v. Holloway, 214 N. C. 662, 663, 200 S. E. 436.

Where Husband Appeals, Injunction Should Issue.—Where alimony pendente lite is allowed the wife, and the husband appeals from such order, an injunction should be granted to stay execution against the property of the husband pending the appeal. Barker v. Barker, 136 N. C. 316, 48 S. E. 733.

Alimony May Be a Lien.—Where alimony pendente lite has been regularly granted to the wife in her action for divorce against her nonresident husband, who has abandoned her, the court may decree it a lien upon his lands described in the complaint and situated here, and order the sale thereof for its payment; and it is not necessary that the defendant should have had notice of the wife's application therefor. White v. White, 179 N. C. 592, 103 S. E. 216; Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N. C. 474, 37 S. E. 502.

When Husband Denies Having Property.—Where the husband denies having any property but admits that he is an able-bodied man, the court may order an allowance without inquiry into the value of his property. Muse v. Muse, 84 N. C. 35.

Deed of Separation May Be Bar.—A deed of separation, in conformity with §§ 52-5, 52-12, and 52-13, approved by a consent judgment, may be pleaded as complete bar to the wife's application for alimony pendente lite and for reasonable counsel fees, as provided by this section. Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 64, 169 S. E. 818.

New Motion After Failure of Original.—Where a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite has been disallowed, another motion for the same purpose should not be heard unless a different state of facts is shown and a receipt exhibited for a reasonable proportion of the allowance made at the former hearing. Moore v. Moore, 131 N. C. 371, 42 S. E. 822.

Appeal and Error.—The superior court judge, in allowing alimony to the wife pendente lite, under the provisions of this section, must find the essential and issuable facts and set them out in full for the purpose of the appeal, so that the Supreme Court may determine therefrom whether the order appealed from should be upheld, and his general and inconclusive estimate of such facts is insufficient. Horton v. Horton, 186 N. C. 332, 119 S. E. 490; Easeley v. Easeley, 173 N. C. 530, 92 S. E. 353; Morris v. Morris, 89 N. C. 109.

Same—Effect of Demurrer.—In an action for divorce a vinculo, the admissions of parties are not competent evidence; but a demurrer to the petition for divorce admits that the facts alleged are true and can and will be proved, so as to secure the verdict of a jury. Steel v. Steel, 104 N. C. 631, 10 S. E. 707.

§ 50-16. Alimony without divorce.—If any husband shall separate himself from his wife and fail to provide her and the children of the marriage with the necessary subsistence according to his means and condition in life, or if he shall be a drunkard or spendthrift, or be guilty of any misconduct or acts that would be or constitute cause for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, the wife may institute an action in the superior court of the county in which the cause of action arose to have a reasonable subsistence and counsel fees allotted and paid or secured to her from the estate or earnings of her husband. Pending the trial and final determination of the issues involved in such action, and also after they are determined, if finally determined, in favor of the wife, such wife may make application to the resident judge of the superior court, or the judge holding the superior courts of the district in which the action is brought, for an allowance for such subsistence and counsel fees, and it shall be lawful for such judge to cause the husband to secure so much of his estate or to pay so much of his earnings, or both, as may be proper, according to his condition and circumstances, for the benefit of his said wife and the children of the marriage, having regard also to the separate estate of the wife. Such application may be heard in or out of term, orally or upon affidavit, or either or both. No order for such allowance shall be made unless the husband shall have had five days notice thereof; but if the husband shall have abandoned his wife and left the state, or shall be in parts unknown, or shall be about to remove or dispose of his property for the purpose of defeating the claim of his wife, no notice shall be necessary. The order of allowance herein provided for may be modified or vacated at any time, on the application of either party or of any one interested. In actions brought under this section, the wife shall not be required to file the affidavit provided in § 50-8, but shall verify her complaint as prescribed in the case of ordinary civil actions: Provided further, that in all applications for alimony under this section it shall be competent for the husband to plead the adultery of the wife in bar of her right to such alimony, and if the wife shall deny such plea, and the issue be found against her by the judge, he shall make no order allowing her any sum whatever as alimony, or for her support, but only her reasonable counsel fees. (Rev., s. 1567; Code, s. 1292; 1919, c. 24; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 39; 1921, c. 123; 1923, c. 52; C. S. 1667.)

Cross References.—As to the criminal aspect of abandonment of family by husband, see §§ 14-322, 14-323, 14-324, 14-325. As to abandonment by husband as forfeiture of right and interest in wife's property and estate, see § 52-21.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the year 1872 there was no statute regulating the question of alimony without divorce and in this state it was held that this relief in proper cases could be granted by courts of equity. See Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 170, 95 S. E. 149. By ch. 193, Laws 1872 the Legislature provided for this relief but in that act there was no provision whereby the wife could obtain alimony during the determination of the issues involved in her suit. In 1919 however an amendment was added whereby the wife might apply for an allowance for her subsistence during the pendency of her main action. Laws of 1919, ch. 24.

In considering this section therefore it must be noted that two distinct remedies are therein provided—first the action for alimony without divorce—second the application for an allowance for subsistence pendente lite. See McFetters v. McFetters, 219 N. C. 731, 14 S. E. (2d) 833.

Chapter 24, Laws of 1919 made other radical changes in this section. In addition to adding the last four sentences in toto, this amendment added the clauses allowing subsistence for failure to support the children of the marriage or for guilty conduct which would constitute grounds for divorce.

Chapter 52, Laws of 1923 amended this section by allowing the husband to plead the adultery of the wife in bar of her right to such alimony. This amendment is certainly a proper one and protects the husband who abandons his wife because of her adultery. 1 N. C. L. Rev. 294.

Allowance of Subsistence Pendente Lite Is Constitutional.—Defendant's contention that the provisions of this section empowering the court to allow subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite to plaintiff in her action for alimony without divorce are unconstitutional as depriving him of a property right without trial by jury is untenable, since he is under duty to support plaintiff until the adjudication of issues relieving him of that duty, and since such allowance by the court does not form any part of the ultimate relief sought nor affect the final rights of the parties. Peele v. Peele, 216 N. C. 298, 4 S. E. (2d) 616.

This section is one solely for support. It provides a remedy for an abandoned wife to obtain support from the estate or earnings of her husband. Shore v. Shore, 220 N. C. 802, 804, 18 S. E. (2d) 353.

Independent Suits.—This section only applies to independent suits for alimony. Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N. C. 348, 352; Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851; Dawson v. Dawson, 211 N. C. 453, 190 S. E. 749.

It may not be used by the wife as the basis of a cross action in a suit for divorce instituted by the husband. Shore v. Shore, 220 N. C. 802, 18 S. E. (2d) 353; Silver v. Silver, 220 N. C. 191, 16 S. E. (2d) 834.

The phrase "may institute an action" as used in this section is permissive and not mandatory. Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 754, 172 S. E. 493.

Section Applies Only to Actions Instituted by Wife.—A child of divorced parents is not entitled to an allowance of counsel fees and suit money pendente lite in her action against her father to force him to provide for her support, this section and § 50-15 applying only to actions instituted by the wife, and such right not existing at common law. Green v. Green, 210 N. C. 147, 185 S. E. 651.

Section 50-14, may be considered in an action under this section, in determining the allowance of reasonable subsistence to the wife and children and the allowance of counsel fees based on the defendant's means and condition in life. Kiser v. Kiser, 203 N. C. 428, 166 S. E. 304.

Jurisdiction Not Affected.—The fact that the summons, in a proceeding under this section, of which a judge of the superior court has jurisdiction, was made returnable at term, does not affect the jurisdiction of the judge to hear and determine the matter. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Venue of Action.—A wife who has been forced by her husband to leave his home at night and take refuge elsewhere may acquire a separate domicile, and may sue him for alimony without divorce in the county of her residence, and the husband is not entitled to removal to the county of his residence as a matter of right under the provisions of this section and §§ 1-82, 50-3. Miller v. Miller, 205 N. C. 753, 172 S. E. 493.

The provision that a wife may institute action for alimony without divorce in the county in which the cause of action arose does not prescribe the exclusive venue, but the wife may institute the action in the county in which she resides at the commencement of the action. Dudley v. Dudley, 219 N. C. 765, 14 S. E. (2d) 787.

What Facts Material.—Under this section the only material facts at issue in the action for alimony without divorce are the questions of the existence of the marriage relation and whether the husband abandoned the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851; Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N. C. 1, 80 S. E. 64.

The effect of this section has been changed by chapter 24, Public Laws of 1919, and thereunder it is not now required that an issue involving the validity of the marriage be first determined before the wife may sustain her civil action against her husband for an allowance for a reasonable subsistence and counsel fees pending the trial and final determination of the issue relating to the validity of the marriage. Barbee v. Barbee, 187 N. C. 538, 122 S. E. 177.

Issue of Fact for Jury.—In actions under this section, when there are issues of fact raised, they should be found by a jury. Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149. See also, Barber v. Barber, 217 N. C. 422, 8 S. E. (2d) 204.

And the trial judge may not pass upon the issuable facts in proceedings for alimony without divorce, under this section, upon evidence introduced before him theretofore upon a trial of the husband for criminal abandonment, etc., of which he was acquitted, when the witnesses are present and ready to testify. Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149; Cooper v. R. R., 170 N. C. 490, 87 S. E. 322, cited and distinguished.

Where in his answer defendant alleged that he separated himself from his wife at her bidding after an altercation to avoid continual abuse, nagging and assaults by plaintiff, and that he had provided plaintiff and their children with a furnished house, paid bills for necessaries and given them cash weekly, and had therefore furnished them with necessary subsistence in accordance with his means in life, the answer raises issues of fact determinative of the right to the relief sought, which issues must be submitted to the jury, and the granting of plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was error. Masten v. Masten, 216 N. C. 24, 3 S. E. (2d) 274.

Finding of Facts by Judge Unnecessary.—In the wife's application for alimony without divorce, it is not required that the judge hearing the matter shall find the facts as a basis for his judgment, as in proceedings for alimony pendente lite (sec. 50-15), although it is necessary that she allege sufficient facts to constitute a good cause of action thereunder. Price v. Price, 188 N. C. 640, 125 S. E. 264; Vincent v. Vincent, 193 N. C. 492, 137 S. E. 426.

On motion for alimony pendente lite and counsel fees made in an action instituted by the wife against her husband under provisions of this section, the judge is not required to find the facts as a basis for an award of alimony unless the adultery of the wife is pleaded in bar, though the better practice would be to do so. Holloway v. Holloway, 214 N. C. 662, 663, 200 S. E. 436.

Where the complaint alleges facts sufficient to entitle plaintiff to alimony pendente lite under this section, it is not error for the court to grant plaintiff's motion therefor and refuse to find the facts upon which the order is based, since it will be presumed that the court found the facts as alleged in the complaint for the purposes of the hearing. Southard v. Southard, 208 N. C. 392, 180 S. E. 665.

Complaint Must Allege Good Cause.—The complaint must allege facts sufficient to constitute a good cause of action under the provision of this section, when the wife proceeds thereunder, for the court to allow her from the estate or earnings of her husband a reasonable support and counsel fees, and when the wife alleges only that she has left her husband because he failed to fulfill his promise to supply certain conveniences, it is insufficient. McManus v. McManus, 191 N. C. 740, 133 S. E. 9.

Plaintiff must meet the requirements of the statute for divorce from bed and board, and must allege with particularity the acts of defendant constituting the basis of the charge that he offered such indignities to her person as to render her condition intolerable, and allege that such acts were without adequate provocation on her part. Pollard v. Pollard, 221 N. C. 46, 19 S. E. (2d) 1.

Indefinite Allegations in Answer.—Vague and indefinite allegations of infidelity on the part of a wife made by a husband in his answer to her complaint in a proceeding for support and maintenance, will not be allowed to affect the question of the husband's liability in such proceedings. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Counter Charges Immaterial.—Under the provisions of ch. 24, Laws of 1919, amending this section, it is immaterial what counter charges the defendant makes against the plaintiff, his wife, in her application for necessary "subsistence" pendente lite, for if he has separated from her, he must support her according to his means and condition in life, taking into consideration the separate estate of his wife, until the issue has been submitted to the jury. Allen v. Allen, 180 N. C. 465, 105 S. E. 11.

Previous Contract of Separation.—Where the defendant resists his wife's application for alimony without divorce under this section, upon the ground that there was still in effect a valid contract of separation they both had executed, and appeals from an adverse decision of the trial judge hearing the matter, the record on appeal should set out the written contract of separation so that the Supreme Court may determine whether it was reasonable, just and fair to the wife, and whether in taking her acknowledgment the officer had properly certified that it was not unreasonable or injurious to her, as the statute requires. Moore v. Moore, 185 N. C. 332, 117 S. E. 12.

Where, by an agreement for a separation between husband and wife, the former agreed to pay a certain monthly allowance, and the husband, after paying several installments discontinued the payments, he cannot set up the agreement in bar of her action for a support under this section even though he discontinued the payments because she demanded that the allowance be increased. Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

Where the parties by reason of this section entered into a consent judgment, approved by the court, providing for the payment to the wife of a certain sum monthly and making such sums a lien upon the husband's real estate, and the husband failed to make payments in accordance with the judgment and the wife brought a separate action alleging abandonment, it was held that plaintiff's rights were remitted to the prior judgment. Turner v. Turner, 205 N. C. 197, 170 S. E. 646.

Validity of Separation Agreement Need Not Be First Determined.—Where in proceedings by the wife to secure her subsistence and reasonable counsel fees under this section it is alleged that a separation agreement was procured by fraud, sufficiently pleaded, objection that the validity of the separation contract must be first determined in an independent action is untenable, the statute expressly providing that alimony may be granted "pending the trial and final determination of the issues." Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N. C. 197, 148 S. E. 171.

Wrongful Abandonment of Husband.—This section does not contemplate that a wife who wrongfully abandons and separates herself from her husband should be awarded subsistence and counsel fees. Byerly v. Byerly, 194 N. C. 532, 533, 140 S. E. 158.

Same—Presumption on Appeal.—Where, in an action by the wife under this section, she has duly moved the court for alimony pendente lite and an allowance for counsel fees, and the husband has answered and offered evidence to the effect that the plaintiff had abandond him, and that he had not abandoned her, and the record on appeal does not disclose any findings of fact upon the question but only that the trial judge had refused the plaintiff's motion until the jury should determine the issue, the presumption is that the trial judge had held adversely to the plaintiff as to the fact. Byerly v. Byerly, 194 N. C. 532, 140 S. E. 158.

Effect of Prior Divorce in Another State.—No action will lie under this section where it appears that the court of a state having jurisdiction over the parties has declared them not husband and wife. Bidwell v. Bidwell, 139 N. C. 402, 52 S. E. 55.

Effect of Decree of Divorce.—Where the husband's action for divorce on the ground of two years' separation was consolidated for trial with the wife's subsequent action for alimony without divorce, and the decree of divorce was granted in the first action and judgment entered against the wife in the second action upon the verdict of the jury and the wife appealed in both actions, the decree of absolute divorce terminates all the rights arising out of marriage, including the right to alimony, and upon dismissal of the appeal from the judgment of divorce, the judgment in the action for alimony will be affirmed. Hobbs v. Hobbs, 218 N. C. 468, 11 S. E. (2d) 311.

Does Not Affect Prior Order for Alimony.—A decree of absolute divorce on the ground of separation as provided in § 50-6 will not affect a prior order for alimony without divorce rendered under this section. Howell v. Howell, 206 N. C. 672, 174 S. E. 921.

Effect of Sec. 14-322.—Section 14-322 requiring the State to show the husband's willful abandonment of his wife, etc., beyond a reasonable doubt, does not deprive the wife of her civil remedies under the provisions of this section. State v. Falkner, 182 N. C. 793, 108 S. E. 756.

Amount.—The amount allowed for the reasonable subsistence, cost and attorneys' fees to the wife in her proceedings against her husband under the provisions of this section, is within the sound discretion of the judge hearing the same and having jurisdiction thereof. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Cram v. Cram, 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197.

And the limitation to one-third of the net annual income from the estate, (provided by sec. 50-14) which applies when the court adjudges the parties divorced from bed and board, does not apply when the wife institutes the proper proceeding for alimony pendente lite under sec. 50-15 nor when she applies for a reasonable subsistence under this section. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Hodges v. Hodges, 82 N. C. 122, 124.

The allowance made under this section is not such a "debt" as will give the husband the right to claim his homestead or personal property exemptions. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 143, 110 S. E. 863. See also, Wright v. Wright, 216 N. C. 693, 6 S. E. (2d) 555.

Allowance for Attorney's Fees.—Chapter 24, Laws of 1919, amended this section in regard to "subsistence" of the wife pendente lite. The effect of this amendment was held to be that it superseded the allowance for alimony and hence no allowance for attorney's fees was permissible. Allen v. Allen, 180 N. C. 465, 105 S. E. 11.

By chapter 123, Laws of 1921, the section was further amended. And now, while the allowance to be made by the judge for the "subsistence" of the wife from the earnings or estate of her husband, in her application for alimony without divorce, is not regarded as synonymous with "alimony" and does not in terms include the allowance for attorney's fees, by this amendment the court may now allow her attorney's fees. Moore v. Moore, 185 N. C. 332, 117 S. E. 12.

In an action under this section, for alimony and counsel fees pendente lite and for alimony without divorce, plaintiff, on the day set for hearing of the motion for alimony and counsel fees pendente lite, filed "certificate and affidavit" stating that there had been a reconciliation between plaintiff and defendant and that plaintiff "withdraws and renounces the complaint" and "takes a voluntary nonsuit . . . and prays the court to dismiss" the action as of nonsuit. Plaintiff's attorneys filed petition for counsel fees against defendant, and defendant's attorney filed plaintiff's "certificate and affidavit" as an affidavit in support of defendant's resistance to judgment allowing counsel fees against him. After the petition was filed and after the court had announced its intention of allowing same, judgment as of nonsuit was tendered and signed by the court. It was held that at the time the petition for counsel fees was filed, the complaint was still a part of the record and the action was still pending, and the petition amounted to a motion to have the court act upon the prayer as made by plaintiff in her complaint, and the action of the court in allowing counsel fees to plaintiff's attorneys against defendant was affirmed. McFetters v. McFetters, 219 N. C. 731, 14 S. E. (2d) 833.

Establishing of One Cause for Divorce Is Sufficient Although Three Alleged.—In a suit for alimony without divorce where three separate grounds for divorce a mensa et thoro were alleged in the complaint, it was held not necessary for the plaintiff to establish all of them in order to sustain her action, it being sufficient under this section if she established the defendant's guilt of any of the acts that would constitute a cause for divorce from bed and board as enumerated in § 50-7. Albritton v. Albritton, 210 N. C. 111, 116, 185 S. E. 762. See also, Hagedorn v. Hagedorn, 211 N. C. 175, 189 S. E. 507.

Modification or Vacation of Order.—Where, within the exercise of his sound discretion, the superior court judge, having jurisdiction, has allowed the wife a reasonable subsistence, attorney's fees, etc., in her proceedings under the provisions of this section, the order of allowance may be thereafter modified or vacated as the statute provides upon application to the proper jurisdiction for the circumstances to be inquired into and the merits of the case determined. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

The amounts allowed for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees upon application for alimony pendente lite are determined by the trial court in his discretion and are not reviewable, although either party may apply for a modification before trial. Tiedmann v. Tiedmann, 204 N. C. 682, 169 S. E. 422.

Amendment of Prior Orders.—The court may reopen and amend prior orders awarding subsistence to wife and children. Wright v. Wright, 216 N. C. 693, 6 S. E. (2d) 555.

Amount Due under Prior Orders May Be Determined upon Motion.—The wife may have the amount of alimony due under prior orders determined by the court upon motion in the cause. Barber v. Barber, 217 N. C. 422, 8 S. E. (2d) 204.

An action is not ended by the rendition of a judgment, but is still pending until the judgment is satisfied for the purpose of motions affecting the judgment but not the merits of the original controversy, especially judgments allowing alimony with or without divorce, and where the defendant makes a general appearance in the original action for subsistence without divorce in which judgment is duly rendered for plaintiff, the court acquires jurisdiction over defendant by the proper service of notice of plaintiff's subsequent petition to recover past due installments, and defendant may not challenge the court's jurisdiction to hear plaintiff's motion and petition for such recovery by special appearance. Barber v. Barber, 216 N. C. 232, 4 S. E. (2d) 447.

The husband's "estate," from which the court may secure its order allowing a reasonable subsistence, etc., to the wife in her proceedings under the provisions of this section, includes within its meaning income from permanent property, tangible or intangible, or from the husband's earnings. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863; Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

Technical alimony is the allowance made to the wife in suits for divorce, and may be secured by a proportionate part of the husband's estate judicially declared; or if he have no estate, it may be "made a personal charge against him," and it materially differs from a reasonable subsistence, etc., allowable in the wife's proceedings under the provisions of this section, where a divorce is not contemplated, and where, in accordance with this section, the order allowing her such subsistence may secure the same out of the husband's estate. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

"Alimony without Divorce."—While as to technical alimony the ordinary rule is that the title to the property designated to enforce the order of the court remains in the husband, and it will revert to him upon reconciliation with or the death of the wife, this rule does not apply to an allowance for the reasonable support of the wife, etc., under the provisions of this section, and the words used in the beginning of this section, "alimony without divorce," will not be construed to give the word "reasonable subsistence" for the wife, the meaning of technical alimony. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

Husband's Interest in Estate by Entireties Chargeable.—Where husband and wife own land by entireties, the rents and profits of the husband therein may be charged with the support of the wife and the minor children of the marriage upon his abandonment of her, under the provisions of this section, and for her counsel fees by chapter 123, Public Laws of 1921, in these proceedings; and to enforce an order allowing her alimony and attorney's fees, according to the statutes, a writ of possession may issue (sec. 50-17) to apply thereto the rents and profits as they shall accrue and become personalty; and an order for the sale of land conveying the fee simple title for the purpose of paying the allowance is erroneous. Holton v. Holton, 186 N. C. 355, 119 S. E. 751.

Defeasible Fee in Part of Husband's Land.—Where the judge, in the proceedings of the wife for an allowance of reasonable subsistence has impressed a trust upon the husband's land for the enforcement of the decree, the fact that in a part of the land he has only a defeasible fee, cannot prejudice him, and his exception on that ground cannot be sustained. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N. C. 139, 110 S. E. 863.

Corpus of Husband's Estate May Be Assigned to Secure Allowance.—The court is authorized to assign the corpus of the husband's property to secure the allowance, and therefore it is immaterial to defendant whether the home place is taken and rents and profits therefrom used to provide a suitable residence for the wife and children or whether they are granted the right of occupancy of the home place, and it being found that such arrangement is most feasible and appropriate, the order will not be disturbed. Wright v. Wright, 216 N. C. 693, 6 S. E. (2d) 555.

Attachment Will Lie.—An attachment against the husband's land will lie in favor of the wife, abandoned by him, for a reasonable subsistence or allowance adjudged by the court, under the implied contract, that he support and maintain her, under the statute declaring and enforcing it and under the order of court; and attachment of the husband's land is a basis for the publication of summons. Walton v. Walton, 178 N. C. 73, 100 S. E. 176.

Wife's Claim Prior.—The wife's inchoate right to alimony makes her a creditor of her husband, enforceable by attachment, in case of her abandonment, which puts every one on notice of her claim and her priority over other creditors of her husband. Walton v. Walton, 178 N. C. 73, 100 S. E. 176.

Intervenor in Another Jurisdiction.—Where the wife has obtained an order for support from her husband, declared a lien on his property, under this section, in order for her to intervene in an action in another jurisdiction and claim priority over an attachment therein issued, it is necessary that she should show some valid service of process, or waiver by her husband in an appropriate civil action against him. Whether the lien of the wife will in any event prevail as against the lien of a valid attachment first levied in another court of equal concurrent jurisdiction, Quaere? Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N. C. 683, 109 S. E. 882.

No Decree before Final Hearing.—When the application is for alimony without divorce it cannot be decreed before the final hearing. Hodges v. Hodges, 82 N. C. 122.

No Final Judgment under Section.—A final judgment cannot be entered under this section as the necessity of such provisions for the wife and children will cease if the parties resume the marriage relation, and cannot properly be continued if the husband procures a divorce for the fault of the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N. C. 72, 40 S. E. 851; Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N. C. 1, 80 S. E. 64; Crews v. Crews, 175 N. C. 168, 95 S. E. 149.

An order for the payment of alimony is res judicata between the parties, but is not a final judgment, since the court has the power, upon application of either party, to modify the orders for changed conditions of the parties. Barber v. Barber, 217 N. C. 422, 8 S. E. (2d) 204.

Infant's Guardian May Subsequently Attack Consent Judgment.—Where the court in proceedings under this section approves a consent judgment, providing for the support and subsistence of the defendant's wife and child, the validity of such consent judgment may be later attacked by the child's authorized guardians on the ground of irregularity and that it is not binding on the minor. In re Reynolds, 206 N. C. 276, 173 S. E. 789.

Contempt.—In Little v. Little, 203 N. C. 694, 166 S. E. 809, the defendant was held in contempt for disobedience of the court's order for him to pay certain weekly sums to his wife under this section.

Under a consent judgment, entered in an action by a husband against his wife where no pleadings were filed, providing for certain money payments in lieu of alimony by the husband to the wife and that it should be more than a simple judgment for debt and as binding upon plaintiff as if rendered under this section, and, upon proper cause shown, should subject him to such penalties as the court may require in case of contempt of its orders, the court may commit the plaintiff upon his failure to make the payments required. Edmundson v. Edmundson, 222 N. C. 181, 22 S. E. (2d) 576.

The mere fact that a defendant ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the necessary subsistence of his wife and child has a right to move at any time for modification of the order does not support the conclusion that defendant's failure to comply with the order is willful. Smithwick v. Smithwick, 218 N. C. 503, 11 S. E. (2d) 455.

In contempt proceedings for willful failure to comply with an order of court, it is required that the court find facts supporting the conclusion of willfulness, and findings of fact that defendant had been ordered to pay, under the provisions of this section, a certain sum monthly for the necessary subsistence of his wife and child, and that defendant had failed to comply with the order, without findings as to the property possessed by defendant or his earning capacity, will not support a judgment attaching defendant for contempt. § 50-17. Alimony in real estate, writ of possession issued. — In all cases in which the court grants alimony by the assignment of real estate, the court has power to issue a writ of possession when necessary in the judgment of the court to do so. (Rev., s. 1568; Code, s. 1293; 1868-9, c. 123, s. 1; C. S. 1668.)

Title to Specific Property Remains in Husband.—Where alimony is alloted to the wife in specific property of the husband, the title to such property remains in him, and will revert at the death of the wife or upon a reconciliation. Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N. C. 418.

Chapter 51. Marriage.

Art. 1. General Provisions.

Art. 2. Marriage License.

Art. 1. General Provisions.

§ 51-1. Requisites of marriage; solemnization. —The consent of a male and female person who may lawfully marry, presently to take each other as husband and wife, freely, seriously and plainly expressed by each in the presence of the other, and in the presence of an ordained minister of any religious denomination, minister authorized by his church, or of a justice of the peace, and the consequent declaration by such minister or officer that such persons are man and wife, shall be a valid and sufficient marriage: Provided, that the rite of marriage among the Society of Friends, according to a form and custom peculiar to themselves, shall not be interfered with by the provisions of this chapter: Provided further, marriages solemnized before March 9, 1909, by ministers of the gospel licensed, but not ordained, are validated from their consummation. (Rev., s. 2081; Code, s. 1812; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 3; 1908, c. 47; 1909, c. 704, s. 2; 1909, c. 897; C. S. 2493.)

Cross References.—As to statutes concerning married women, see § 52-1 et seq. As to divorce and alimony, see § 50-1 et seq.

Editor's Note.—For article on common-law marriage in North Carolina, see 16 N. C. L. Rev. 259.

History of Marriage Laws in the State.—In State v. Bray, 35 N. C. 290, Ruffin C. J., in an interesting discussion tracing our marriage law shows that, originally in this colony, valid marriages could only be solemnized by ministers of the Church of England with the result, as we now know from the "Colonial Records," that a large part of the population were not legally married, owing to the scarcity of such ministers. See State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

In 1715, ch. 1 of the Colonial Records, reciting the inconvenience from scarcity of ministers of the established Church, authorized the Governor of the colony to solemnize marriages, then, in 1741, Chapter 1, empowered justices of the peace to perform the ceremony. In 1766 by ch. 9, the privilege was extended to ministers of the Presbyterian Church, and at last, in 1778, ch. 7, to ministers of all other denominations and marriages according to the custom of the Society of Friends were also made valid. This list, made a little broader, is now in this section. See State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Common Law Marriage Invalid.—"There is no such thing as marriage simply by consent in this State," said Ruffin, C. J., in State v. Samuel, 19 N. C. 177, and State v. Bray, 35 N. C. 290; Gaston, J., in State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346; Pearson, C. J., in Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N. C. 583. And the same is recognized as the law in the more recent cases of State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 26 S. E. 933; State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Celebration Essential.—No celebration was required by the Cannon Law prior to the Council of Trent, nor by the Civil Law, nor by the law in Scotland, nor in many states in this Union. In some states the question has never been decided. In other states celebration before some person authorized by law is held essential, as (after some hesitation) has been held to be the common law in England. Stewart

Marriage and Div., section 90; 14 Am. & Eng. Enc. 515. In the latter class is North Carolina. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 656, 28 S. E. 416.

Same—Section Must Be Followed.—While consent is essential to marriage in this State, it is not the only essential, but it must be acknowledged in the manner and before some person prescribed by this section. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 28 S. E. 416.

When Marriage Complete.—Marriage is in law complete when parties able to contract and willing to contract have actually contracted to be man and wife, in the forms and with the solemnities required by law. Consummation by carnal knowledge is not necessary to its validity. State v. Patterson, 24 N. C. 346.

Elder in Colored Church Can Celebrate.—An elder in the colored Methodist Church is "an ordained minister" of the Gospel within the meaning of the statute, and, as such, can celebrate the rites of matrimony. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517.

Indian Custom Not Valid Marriage.—There is but one law of marriage for all the residents of this State. Hence cohabitation between an Indian man and woman according to the customs of their tribe, by which the parties are at liberty to dissolve the connection at pleasure, does not constitute a marriage. State v. Ta-cha-na-tah, 64 N. C. 614, cited in notes in L. R. A. 1915E, 67; 57 L. R. A. 160.

"'A marriage procured by force or fraud is void ab initio, and may be treated as null by every court in which its validity may be incidently drawn in question.' 2 Kent Com., 66." Scroggins v. Scroggins, 14 N. C. 535, 538.

Marriage during Seduction Proceedings Valid.—A marriage contracted while one is under arrest for seduction is not contracted under duress. State v. Davis, 79 N. C. 603, cited in note in 43 L. R. A. 816.

Sham Marriage a Nullity.—A marriage pretendedly celebrated before an unauthorized person is a nullity and not capable of being legalized by consent. State v. Wilson, 121 N. C. 650, 28 S. E. 416.

Personating a Minister Not Criminal.—A private citizen who personates an ordained minister and, with the consent of the parties, solemnizes a marriage between a man and woman is not guilty of any criminal offense known to the common or statute law. State v. Brown, 119 N. C. 825, 25 S. E. 820.

Evidence of Marriage.—It is sufficient evidence of a marriage that it was solemnized by one in the known enjoyment of the office of justice of the peace, and acting as such. His commission need not be produced. State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23, 44 Am. Dec. 64, cited in note in 14 L. R. A. 541.

Retroactive Legislation.—It is competent for the Legislature by retrospective legislation to give validity to a marriage which is invalid by reason of the non-observance of some solemnity required by statute, aliter, where such marriage is a nullity. Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N. C. 583, cited in note in L. R. A. 1915E, 18.

§ 51-2. Capacity to marry.—All unmarried male persons of sixteen years, or upwards, of age, and all unmarried females of sixteen years, or upwards, of age, may lawfully marry, except as hereinafter forbidden: Provided, that females over fourteen years of age and under sixteen years of age may marry under a special license to be issued by the register of deeds, which said special license shall only be issued after there shall have been filed with the register of deeds a written consent to such marriage, signed by one of the parents of the female or signed by that person standing in loco parentis to such female, and the fact of the filing of such written consent shall be set out in said special license: Provided, that when the special license is procured by fraud and misrepresentation, the parent or person standing in loco parentis of the female shall be a proper party plaintiff in an action to annul said marriage: Provided, that all couples resident of the state of North Carolina who marry in another state must file a copy of their marriage certificate in the office of the register of deeds of the home county of the groom within thirty days from the date of their return to the state, as residents, which certificate shall be indexed on the marriage license record of the office of the register of deeds and filed with marriage license in his office; the fee for the filing and indexing said certificate shall be fifty cents: Provided, the failure to file said certificate shall not invalidate the marriage. (Rev., s. 2082; Code, s. 1809; R. C., c. 68, s. 14; 1871-2, c. 193; 1923, c. 75; 1933, c. 269, s. 1; 1939, c. 375; C. S. 2494.)

Cross References.—As to penalty for marrying female under fourteen, see § 14-319. As to what marriages may be declared void on application of either party, see § 50-4. As to requirement that persons married outside the state file with register of deeds a certificate showing compliance with §§ 51-9 to 51-14 on their return, see § 51-14.

Editor's Note.—Formerly, the legal age of marriage for males was placed at sixteen and for females at fourteen. This was amended by c. 75 Public Laws, 1923, which changes the legal age of marriage for females to sixteen, thus making it lawful for a female at sixteen to marry, but making it unlawful for a female under sixteen and over fourteen to marry, unless a special license shall be issued upon filing with the register of deeds a written consent to such marriage by one of the parents of the female or by one standing in loco parentis. Since the amendment provides for the marriage of female minors over fourteen and under sixteen, it looks as if the Legislature did not intend to change the age of consent to sixteen in section 51-3, which provides that the marriage of a female under fourteen and any male shall be void. See 1 N. C. L. R. 295.

Public Laws of 1933, c. 269, added the proviso, at the end of this section, relating to filing certificates by those marrying in another state. The 1939 amendment inserted the second proviso.

Annulment.—As to annulment under the 1939 amendment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 353.

Effect of Lack of Special License.—The marriage of a female between the ages of fourteen and sixteen without the written consent of her parent and without the special license required by this section is not void but voidable. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N. C. 697, 146 S. E. 864.

Male of Marriageable Age Indictable for Seduction.—A male at the marriageable age of eighteen years is indictable for seduction. State v. Creed, 171 N. C. 837, 88 S. E. 511.

§ 51-3. Want of capacity; void and voidable marriages.—All marriages between a white person and a negro or indian, or between a white person and person of negro or indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, or between a Cherokee indian of Robeson county and a negro, or between a Cherokee indian of Robeson county and a person of negro descent to the third generation, inclusive, or between any two persons nearer of kin than first cousins, or between a male person under sixteen years of age and any female, or between a female person under fourteen years of age and any male, or between persons either of whom has a husband or wife living at the time of such marriage, or between persons either of whom is at the time physically impotent, or is incapable of contracting from want of will or understanding, shall be void: Provided, double first cousins may not marry; and Provided further, that no marriage followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue shall be declared void after the death of either of the parties for any of the causes stated in this section, except for that one of the parties was a white person and the other a negro or indian, or of negro or indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, and for bigamy. (Rev., s. 2083; Code, s. 1810; R. C., c. 68, ss. 7, 8, 9; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 2; 1887, c. 245; 1911, c. 215, s. 2; 1913, c. 123; 1917, c. 135; C. S. 2495.)

Cross References.—As to suits to nullify marriages which were entered into contrary to the provisions of this section, see § 50-4. As to penal provisions for miscegenation, see §§ 14-181, 14-182. As to penal provisions for bigamy, see § 14-183. As to penal provisions for incest, see §§ 14-178, 14-179. As to penalty for marrying female under fourteen, see § 14-319.

Editor's Note.—Chapter 215, Laws 1911, amended this section by striking out the words "Croatan Indians" wherever those words occurred in the section, and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Indians of Robeson County." Chapter 123, Laws 1913, amended the last named act by striking out the words "Indians of Robeson County" and inserting in lieu thereof the words "Cherokee Indians of Robeson County." See Goins v. Trustees, 169 N. C. 736, 738, 86 S. E. 629.

Power of Legislature.—The competency of the General Assembly to impose, implies the right to remove, the restraints and conditions incident to the formation of the marriage relation and the contract which creates it. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 297.

Section Expresses Public Policy.—During the existence of slavery, no marriage was recognized as binding when had between slaves, and marriage was prohibited by positive law when had between whites and free persons of color, who are within the specified degrees, and between the latter and slaves, and this in pursuance of a general public policy growing out of the slavery of a part of the population owned by masters. This policy still prevails in this section and inhibits the intermarriage of white and free persons of color into which the slave population had been immerged. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 113, 9 S. E. 492.

Section Not Repugnant to U. S. Constitution. — This interdict is held not to be repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, or legislation under it. State v. Hairston, 63 N. C. 451.

Foreign Marriages Valid Here.—The relation, if legally created elsewhere, is recognized as a valid subsisting relation, when the parties come into this State from that of their former residence. State v. Rose, 76 N. C. 242; Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

Attempt to Evade Provisions of Section.—The validity of a foreign marriage is not recognized here when parties having their domicile here, to evade our laws, go to a State which allows such marriage, with intent to return and keep up their domicile. State v. Kennedy, 76 N. C. 251. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

What Marriages Void Ab Initio.—Construing this section and section 50-4 together, it is held that the only marriages that are void ab initio are those within the last proviso of this section i. e., where one of the parties was a white person and the other a negro or an Indian or of negro or Indian descent to the third generation, inclusive, or bigamous marriages. And any other marriage need to be "declared void." Watters v. Watters, 168 N. C. 411, 84 S. E. 703. See also, Parks v. Parks, 218 N. C. 245, 10 S. E. (2d) 807.

Effect of Attempted Marriage between White and Negro.—A white person and a person of color cannot intermarry in North Carolina, and if an invalid marriage is contracted between persons of the two races and the parties cohabit together they are guilty of fornication. State v. Reinhardt, 63 N. C. 547; State v. Hairston, 63 N. C. 451.

What "Negro Descent" Includes.—In order to have a marriage annulled on the ground that it is "between a white person and a person of negro descent to the third generation inclusive," etc., it must be shown the ancestor of the generation stated must have been of pure negro blood. Ferrall v. Ferrall, 153 N. C. 174, 69 S. E. 60.

Bigamous Marriages Always Void.—The fact that a presumption which had arisen at the death of a woman's husband shields her from prosecution for bigamy upon marrying another, does not render the last marriage any the less bigamous or void if the first husband be, in fact, alive. Ward v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 55, 23 S. E. 926.

Where a wife attempts to marry again when no valid divorce a vinculo has been obtained from her living husband, such second attempted marriage is absolutely void and may be annulled by the husband of the second attempted marriage in an action instituted for that purpose. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 203 N. C. 533, 166 S. E. 591.

Impotency Renders Marriage Voidable.—Impotency in a husband does not render a marriage by him void ab initio, but only voidable by sentence of separation, and until such sentence, it is deemed valid and subsisting. Smith v. Morehead, 59 N. C. 360.

Marriage of Female under Fourteen Voidable.—This section provides that a marriage by a female under fourteen years of age, or a male person under sixteen, is void, but the proviso speaks of its being "declared void," and the construction of the statute by the courts has always been that the meaning is that such marriages are voidable. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 712, 11 S. E. 517.

Same—Ratification.—"If the parties, after arriving at the specified age of consent, continue to cohabit and live together as man and wife, this is a ratification." Coke on Littleton, 79; 1 Black. Com., 436; 1 Bish. Marriages and Divorce, 150 (4th Ed.), and Pearson, C. J., in Koonce v. Wallace, 52 N. C. 194; State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 713, 11 S. E. 517.

The Proviso as to Death of Party.—The last proviso is broad and comprehensive in its declaration. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 300. It applies to marriages contracted before its enactment as well as those contracted thereafter. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 49 Am. Rep. 641. It has been applied to an incestuous marriage between an uncle and a niece. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293.

Same—Purpose.—The intention of the Legislature was to confine the power conferred upon the court in section 50-4, to declare void, or in a judicial proceeding to treat as void, except where the intermarriage is between the specified races or involves the offense of bigamy, to cases, whenever the power is exercised, during the lifetime of the parties, or after death, only when there has been no issue born to them. That is, after the death of one of the parties, a marriage must then stand with all its legal consequences, and its validity no longer open to controversy. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 300.

Same—Effect of Proviso.—The effect of the proviso is in the nature of a statute of limitation upon the delegated or recognized judicial power, confining its exercise with a single exception to the lifetime of the parties, and, if cohabitation and offspring followed, withholding it afterwards, so as not to operate as a posthumous bastardizing of children born to them. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 297.

Same—What Must Be Proven.—To bring a case of unlawful marriage within the last proviso to this section, it must be shown not only that one of the parties is dead but that cohabitation and the birth of issue followed the unlawful marriage. Ward v. Bailey, 118 N. C. 55, 23 S. E. 926.

§ 51-4. Prohibited degrees of kinship. — When the degree of kinship is estimated with a view to ascertain the right of kinspeople to marry, the half-blood shall be counted as the whole-blood: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to invalidate any marriage heretofore contracted in case where by counting the half-blood as the whole-blood the persons contracting such marriage would be nearer of kin than first cousins; but in every such case the kinship shall be ascertained by counting relations of the half-blood as being only half so near kin as those of the same degree of the whole-blood. (Rev., s. 2084; Code, s. 1811; 1879, c. 78; C. S. 2496.)

§ 51-5. Marriages between slaves validated. — Persons, both or one of whom were formerly slaves, who have complied with the provisions of section five, chapter forty, of the acts of the general assembly, ratified March tenth, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-six, shall be deemed to have been lawfully married. (Rev., s. 2085; Code, s. 1842; 1866, c. 40, s. 5; C. S. 2497.)

Cross Reference.—As to inheritance of children born of certain colored parents, see § 29-1, rule 13.

Section Is Valid.—The validity of this section in creating retroactively a legal marriage relation between slaves is upheld in Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N. C. 583; State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1; State v. Adams, 65 N. C. 537; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636; Long v. Barnes, 87 N. C. 329; Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N. C. 293, 298.

Provisions of the Act of 1866.—Sections 5, c. 40, 1866, reads: "That in all cases where man and woman, both or one of whom were lately slaves and are now emancipated, now cohabit together in the relation of husband and wife, the parties shall be deemed to have been lawfully married, as man and wife, at the time of the commencement of such cohabitation, although they may not have been married in due form of law." State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 637.

Power of Legislature.—The substance of marriage, the consent of the parties, existing, it was as clearly within the power of the Legislature to dispense with any particular formality as it was to prescribe such. State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639; citing State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1.

Relation Made Legal from Beginning.—This section legalized a cohabitation among those who were lately slaves, when still continued, and validates the relation as a marriage from its commencement; and, to give the act full force, directs the parties to go before the clerk or justice in acknowledgment of assent, and to state the time when it began. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N. C. 109, 114, 9 S. E. 492.

Continuing Cohabitation Supplies Consent.—The necessary consent to marriage thereto is supplied under this section by continuing cohabitation. Battis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 186, 52 S. E. 584; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639.

By force of the original consent of the parties while they were slaves, renewed after they became free, and by the performance of what was required by the statute, they became to all intents and purposes man and wife. State v. Harris, 63 N. C. 1, 5.

Same—Old Rule Adopted.—Our statute of 1866, owing to the peculiar status of slave marriages, adopted as to such marriages the rule which has long prevailed in Scotland, New York and several other states (and which was the rule of the civil law and of the Canon law till the Council of Trent), that consent, followed by cohabitation, constitutes a legal marriage. State v. Melton, 120 N. C. 591, 595, 26 S. E. 933.

Provision for Recordation.—Section 6 made the failure to have the acknowledgment recorded, in a specified time, a misdemeanor punishable at the discretion of the court. State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 638.

Same—Directory Only.—The provision as to acknowledgment was considered to be directory, so that a failure to comply with it, though a misdemeanor, did not affect the validity of the marriage. Bettis v. Avery, 140 N. C. 184, 186, 52 S. E. 584.

Same—Noncompliance Does Not Effect Marriage. — It has been held that an entry of the acknowledgment is not essential to the consummation of the marriage, and that a marriage constituted by operation of the act can not be avoided by a failure to have the acknowledgment entered of record. State v. Adams, 65 N. C. 537, 539; State v. Whitford, 86 N. C. 636, 639.

Art. 2. Marriage License.

§ 51-6. Solemnization without license unlawful.—No minister or officer shall perform a ceremony of marriage between any two persons, or shall declare them to be man and wife, until there is delivered to him a license for the marriage of the said persons, signed by the register of deeds of the county in which the marriage is intended to take place, or by his lawful deputy. (Rev., s. 2086; Code, s. 1813; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 4; C. S. 2498.)

Actual Delivery Required.—This section requires an actual delivery, and constructive delivery will not suffice. So performance of the ceremony by a justice after a telephone communication informing him that the license has been mailed subjects him to the penalty prescribed by the next section. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Marriage without License Valid.—The failure to procure a license to marry will not invalidate a marriage otherwise good. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919; Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Effect of Illegal License.—A marriage is not invalid because solemnized under an illegal license. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919; Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

Same—Officer Penalized.—The only effect of marrying a couple without a legal license is to subject the officer or minister to the penalty of $200 prescribed by the next section. State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 11 S. E. 517; State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23; Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 74, 16 S. E. 919.

§ 51-7. Penalty for solemnizing without license.—Every minister or officer who marries any couple without a license being first delivered to him, as required by law, or after the expiration of such license, or who fails to return such license to the register of deeds within two months after any marriage celebrated by virtue thereof, with the certificate appended thereto duly filled up and signed, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars to any person who sues therefor, and he shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 2087, 3372; Code, s. 1817; R. C., c. 68, ss. 6, 13; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 8; C. S. 2499.)

In General.—The failure to comply with the requirements as to the license subjects the officer or minister to the penalty under this section, but the marriage is, notwithstanding, good to every intent and purpose. State v. Robbins, 28 N. C. 23; State v. Parker, 106 N. C. 711, 713, 11 S. E. 517.

Statute of Limitations.—A summons was issued to recover the penalty against a justice of the peace, under this section, for performing the marriage ceremony without the delivery of the license therefor to him, within less than a year from the time he had performed it: Held, that the plea of the statute of limitations, sec. 1-54, par. 2, could not be sustained. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N. C. 438, 114 S. E. 628.

§ 51-8. License issued by register of deeds.—Every register of deeds shall, upon application, issue a license for the marriage of any two persons, if it appears to him probable that there is no legal impediment to such marriage. Where either party to the proposed marriage is under eighteen years of age, and resides with the father, or mother, or uncle, or aunt, or brother, or elder sister, or resides at a school, or is an orphan and resides with a guardian, the register shall not issue a license for such marriage until the consent in writing of the relation with whom such infant resides, or, if he or she resides at a school, of the person by whom said infant was placed at school, and under whose custody and control he or she is, is delivered to him, and such written consent shall be filed and preserved by the register. When it appears to the register of deeds that it is probable there is a legal impediment to the marriage of any person for whom a license is applied, he has power to administer to the person so applying an oath touching the legal capacity of said parties to contract a marriage. (Rev., s. 2088; Code, s. 1814; 1887, c. 331; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 5; C. S. 2500.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for issuing license unlawfully, see § 51-17.

Editor's Note.—Section 51-17 which provides the penalty for violation of the provisions of this section should be read along with this section and the annotations under the two sections should be considered together.

The two sections are in pari materia and should be construed together. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 297, 72 S. E. 970; Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N. C. 398. The editor has deemed it expedient to place all constructions of the two sections under section 51-17.

§ 51-9. Health certificates required of applicants for licenses.—No license to marry shall be issued by the register of deeds of any county to a male or female applicant therefor except upon the following conditions: The said applicant shall present to the register of deeds a certificate executed within thirty days from the date of presentation showing that, by the usual methods of examination made by a regularly licensed physician, no evidence of any venereal disease in the infectious or communicable stage was found. Such certificate shall be accompanied by the original report from a laboratory approved by the state board of health for making such tests showing that the Wassermann or any other approved test of this nature is negative, such tests to have been made within thirty days of the time application for license is made.

Furthermore, such certificate shall state that, by the usual methods of examination made by a regularly licensed physician, no evidence of tuberculosis in the infectious or communicable stage was found.

And, furthermore, such certificate shall state that, by the usual methods of examination made by a regularly licensed physician, the applicant was found to be not subject to epileptic attacks, an idiot, an imbecile, a mental defective, or of unsound mind. (1939, c. 314, s. 1; 1941, c. 218, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the words "thirty days" for "seven days" with reference to physician's certificate, and for "two weeks" with reference to laboratory report.

For comment on the 1939 law, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 354.

Defense in Action for Breach of Promise.—The fact that at the time of the breach of promise of marriage, license for the marriage of the parties could not be lawfully issued under this section is a defense to an action for damages for breach of promise of marriage. Winders v. Powers, 217 N. C. 580, 9 S. E. (2d) 131.

§ 51-10. Exceptions to foregoing section.—Exceptions to the above section are permissible only under the conditions hereinafter named:

When the medical history and physical examination of either applicant shows syphilis to be present, or when the laboratory test for syphilis is positive, and provided both applicants are informed that syphilitic infection is present, certificate may be issued and license granted only in the following instances: (1) When the applicant with syphilis has been under continuous weekly treatment with adequate dosage of standard arsenical and bismuth preparation given by a regularly licensed physician for a period of one year, and when such applicant also signs an agreement to continue such treatment until cured or probated. It is specified that the condition stipulated in subparagraph one above may be waived in instances in which the female applicant is pregnant and it is necessary to protect the legitimacy of the offspring. In such a case certificate may be granted and license issued provided the applicant with syphilis signs an agreement to take adequate, approved treatment until cured or probated. (2) When the female applicant is past the childbearing age, and provided the applicant with syphilis signs an agreement to take adequate treatment until cured or probated. (1939, c. 314, s. 2.)

§ 51-11. Who may execute certificate; form; filing copy with department of health.—Such certificate, upon the basis of which license to marry is granted, shall be executed by any reputable physician licensed to practice in the state of North Carolina, whose duty it shall be to examine such applicants and to issue such certificate in conformity with the requirements of §§ 51-9 to 51-14. If applicants are unable to pay for such examination, certificate without charge may be obtained from the local health officer or county physician.

Such certificate form shall be designed by the state board of health and shall be obtained by the register of deeds from the state board of health upon request.

Every examining physician under the provision of §§ 51-9 to 51-14 shall make and immediately file with the department of health of North Carolina a true copy of such certificate. (1939, c. 314, s. 3.)

§ 51-12. Eugenic sterilization for persons adjudged of unsound mind, etc.—If either applicant has been adjudged by a court of competent jurisdiction as being an idiot, imbecile, mental defective, subject to epileptic attacks, or of unsound mind, unless the applicant previously adjudged of unsound mind has been adjudged of sound mind by a court of competent jurisdiction, upon the recommendation of one or more practicing physicians who specialize in psychiatry, license to marry shall be granted only after eugenic sterilization has been performed on the applicant in accordance with state laws governing eugenic sterilization. (1939, c. 314, s. 3; 1943, c. 641.)

The 1943 amendment inserted the provision relating to being adjudged of sound mind.

§ 51-13. Penalty for violation.—Any violation of §§ 51-9 to 51-14, or any part thereof, by any person charged herein with the responsibility of its enforcement shall be declared a misdemeanor and shall be punishable by a fine of fifty dollars ($50.00) or imprisonment for thirty days, or both. (1939, c. 314, s. 3.)

§ 51-14. Compliance with requirement by residents who marry outside of state. — Residents of the state who are married outside of North Carolina, shall, within sixty days after they return to said state, file with the register of deeds of the county in which they live, a certificate showing that they have conformed to the requirements of the examination required by §§ 51-9 to 51-14 for those who are married in the state. (1939, c. 314, s. 2½.)

§ 51-15. Obtaining license by false representation misdemeanor.—If any person shall obtain a marriage license for the marriage of persons under the age of eighteen years by misrepresentation or false pretenses, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be fined not exceeding fifty dollars, or imprisoned not exceeding thirty days, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3371; 1885, c. 346; C. S. 2501.)

Cross Reference.—As to false pretenses generally, see § 14-100 et seq.

§ 51-16. Form of license.—License shall be in the following or some equivalent form:

To any ordained minister of any religious denomination, minister authorized by his church, or to any justice of the peace for.....county: A. B. having applied to me for a license for the marriage of C. D. (the name of the man to be written in full) of (here state his residence), aged .....years (race, as the case may be), the son of (here state the father and mother, if known; state whether they are living or dead, and their residence, if known; if any of these facts are not known, so state), and E. F. (write the name of the woman in full) of (here state her residence), aged.....years (race, as the case may be), the daughter of (here state names and residences of the parents, if known, as is required above with respect to the man). (If either of the parties is under eighteen years of age, the license shall here contain the following:) And the written consent of G. H., father (or mother, etc., as the case may be) to the proposed marriage having been filed with me, and there being no legal impediment to such marriage known to me, you are hereby authorized, at any time within sixty days from the date hereof, to celebrate the proposed marriage at any place within the said county. You are required, within sixty days after you shall have celebrated such marriage, to return this license to me at my office with your signature subscribed to the certificate under this license, and with the blanks therein filled according to the facts, under penalty of forfeiting two hundred dollars to the use of any person who shall sue for the same.

Issued this .... day of ....., 19.. L. M.,
Register of Deeds of.....County

Every register of deeds shall designate in every marriage license issued the race of the persons proposing to marry by inserting in the blank after the word "race" the words "white," "colored" or "indian," as the case may be. The certificate shall be filled up and signed by the minister or officer celebrating the marriage, and also be signed by one or more witnesses present at the marriage, who shall add to their names their place of residence, as follows:

I, N. O., an ordained or authorized minister of (here state to what religious denomination, or justice of the peace, as the case may be), united in matrimony (here name the parties), the parties licensed above, on the ..... day of ....., 19...., at the house of P. R., in (here name the town, if any, the township and county), according to law.

Witness present at the marriage: .....N. O.
S. T., of (here give residence). (Rev., 2089; Code, s. 1815; 1899, c. 541, ss. 1, 2; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 6; 1909, c. 704, s. 3; 1917, c. 38; C. S. 2502.)

Local Modification.—Bladen: 1941, c. 95.

License Not Issued Until Filled Out.—A blank marriage license, though signed by the register of deeds, is not issued until filled up and handed to the person who is to be married, or to some one for him, and, if at the time of such issuance the register has become functus officio, the failure to record it does not render him liable to the penalty imposed by sections 51-18 and 51-19, for failure to record the substance of each marriage license issued. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919.

§ 51-17. Penalty for issuing license unlawfully.—Every register of deeds who knowingly or without reasonable inquiry, personally or by deputy, issues a license for the marriage of any two persons to which there is any lawful impediment, or where either of the persons is under the age of eighteen years, without the consent required by law, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars to any parent, guardian, or other person standing in loco parentis, who sues for the same. (Rev., s. 2090; Code, s. 1816; 1895, c. 387; 1901, c. 722; R. C., c. 68, s. 13; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 7; C. S. 2503.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—In connection with this section, see § 51-8 and the editor's note thereto.

Object of Section.—This section is a wise and beneficient one, the object being to protect the parties themselves, and the community as well, from hasty and improvident matrimonial alliances, which eventually produce discord and unhappiness in the family—one of the essential units of our republican household—and are hurtful to society in many ways. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 297, 72 S. E. 970. See also, Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 315, 45 S. E. 662; Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 350, 91 S. E. 1024.

The section is remedial in its nature. Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 350, 91 S. E. 1024.

Construed with Section 2500.—This section and section 2500 are in pari materia and should be construed together. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 297, 72 S. E. 970; Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N. C. 398; Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 91 S. E. 1024.

II. DUTIES OF REGISTER.

Duty Highly Important.—To all persons who believe that the welfare of human society depends largely upon the family relation, and that the contract of marriage should be defended by careful and just laws for the purpose of guarding against legal impediments and to prevent the marriage of those under a certain age, when the parties are presumed not to be able to contract, the duty of the register of deeds, the officer in our State charged with the duty of issuing marriage licenses, seems most important and most solemn. That officer must exercise his duties carefully and conscientiously, and not as a mere matter of form. Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 315, 45 S. E. 662; Agent v. Willis, 124 N. C. 29, 32 S. E. 322; Julian v. Daniels, 175 N. C. 549, 555, 95 S. E. 907.

Cannot Be Delegated.—A register of deeds can not delegate to another the duty of making the required reasonable inquiry into the legal competency of persons applying for a license to marry. Cole v. Laws, 108 N. C. 185, 12 S. E. 985.

Delivery to Third Party Prohibited.—This section prohibits the register from permitting the completed license to pass from the office and beyond his control into the hands of any applicant acting for a party to the proposed marriage. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N. C. 21, 24.

Where the register delivered a license complete in form to one with instructions not to give it to the parties until the mother's consent in writing was given and it was never presented to the mother or her consent obtained, but the marriage ceremony was performed under it, it was held that the register is liable to the penalty. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N. C. 21.

Inquiry by Deputy Will Not Excuse Register.—If a party to a marriage is under the age authorized by law, the register can not excuse himself from liability, because his deputy or agent made proper inquiry, if he did not make the inquiry himself. The trust is personal to him. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919.

III. DILIGENCE REQUIRED.

Reasonable Inquiry.—The register violating these requirements is not liable to the penalty when he has made reasonable inquiry and has been deceived, without laches on his part. Agent v. Willis, 124 N. C. 29, 32 S. E. 322; Cole v. Laws, 104 N. C. 651, 656, 10 S. E. 172; Williams v. Hodges, 101 N. C. 300, 303, 7 S. E. 786; Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 633, 57 S. E. 386; Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 91 S. E. 1024.

Same—Not a Mere Formality.—The requirement of reasonable inquiry is not merely a formal matter, which is met by taking the oaths of the husband or other parties unknown to the register, but it is expressive of a sound principle of public policy designed to protect immature persons from hasty and ill-advised marriages, made without the consent of their parents or guardians or those having properly the care over them. Julian v. Daniels, 175 N. C. 549, 555, 95 S. E. 907.

Same—What Required.—By reasonable inquiry is meant such inquiry as renders it probable that no impediment to the marriage exists. Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N. C. 398.

It would seem that "reasonable inquiry" involves at least an inquiry made of, or information furnished by, some person known to the register to be reliable, or, if unknown, identified and approved by some reliable person known to the register. This is the rule upon which banks act in paying checks, and surely in the matter of such grave importance as issuing a marriage license the register should not be excused upon a less degree of care. Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 317, 45 S. E. 662; Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664; Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 298, 72 S. E. 970.

Same—Register Not Required to Examine Witnesses.—Section 51-8 does not require that the register shall make inquiry by examination of the witnesses in such cases under oath, but merely declares that he shall have "the power to do so." His using, or failing to use, such discretionary power is merely a circumstance to be considered by the jury. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664; Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 298, 72 S. E. 970.

Same—Sworn Statement of Stranger Insufficient.—It is not sufficient that he takes the sworn statement of the parties or their friends not known to him. Snipes v. Wood, 179 N. C. 349, 102 S. E. 619, citing Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 91 S. E. 1024.

Same—Question for Jury.—See "Pleading and Practice," this note.

Illustrations of Reasonable Inquiry.—When a man of good character and reliable applied for a license, and produced to the register a written statement purporting to give the age of the female as over eighteen years, and also the name and residence of the parents, and the person producing the statement said it was true, though no name was signed to it, it was held that the register had made such inquiry as was required of him, and was not liable for the penalty. Bowles

v. Cochran, 93 N. C. 398. For other cases where the inquiry was held reasonable, see Walker v. Adams, 109 N. C. 481, 13 S. E. 907; Harcum v. Marsh, 130 N. C. 154, 41 S. E. 6.

But when a register of deeds issues a license for the marriage of a woman under 18 years of age, without the assent of her parents, upon the application of one of whose general character for reliability he was ignorant, and who falsely stated the age of the woman, without making any further inquiry as to his sources of information, it was held, that he had not made such reasonable inquiry into the facts as the law required, and he incurred the penalty for the neglect of his duty in that respect. Cole v. Laws, 104 N. C. 651, 10 S. E. 172. Again, where the uncontradicted evidence showed that the register took the word of the prospective bridegroom and his friend, neither of whom he knew, the same rule applies. To the same effect are the following cases: Williams v. Hodges, 101 N. C. 300, 7 S. E. 786; Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 45 S. E. 662; Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 57 S. E. 386; Morrison v. Teague, 143 N. C. 186, 55 S. E. 521; Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 301, 72 S. E. 970; Julian v. Daniels, 175 N. C. 549, 95 S. E. 907; Snipes v. Wood, 179 N. C. 349, 102 S. E. 619.

IV. CONSENT OF PARENT.

Consent Must Be Written.—A register of deeds is not permitted to issue a marriage license, where one of the parties is under eighteen years of age, until the consent in writing of the person under whose charge he or she is, shall be delivered to the register. The written consent is a condition precedent to the issue of the license. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N. C. 21.

Section Prescribes Order.—Section 51-8 fixes the order in importance of those from whom the register of deeds should obtain the written consent for the marriage of minors under eighteen years of age. Littleton v. Haar, 158 N. C. 566, 74 S. E. 12.

Same—Father's Consent if Possible.—The language of our statute requires the written consent of the father, if living and not unable or disqualified in some way to give it. Littleton v. Haar, 158 N. C. 566, 570, 74 S. E. 12.

Thus when a minor resides with the father, which the register could reasonably have ascertained, the written consent of the mother only indicates that the subject of the application for the license is under the age specified, and does not preclude her father from suing the register of deeds for the penalty provided for issuing a license without his consent. Littleton v. Haar, 158 N. C. 566, 74 S. E. 12.

Same—Stepfather Not Included.—The word "father" used in the section does not include stepfather, and the written consent of the mother, the father being dead, authorizes the issuing of the license. Owens v. Munden, 168 N. C. 266, 267, 84 S. E. 257.

Same—When Mother's Consent Sufficient.—It was held in Littleton v. Haar, 158 N. C. 566, 74 S. E. 12, that the consent of the persons named in section 51-8 and in the order named should be obtained, the effect of the decision being that if the child is living with father and mother, the written consent of the father is necessary, and if with the mother, the father being dead, that her consent is sufficient. Owens v. Munden, 168 N. C. 266, 267, 84 S. E. 257.

V. THE ACTION.

A. In General.

Jurisdiction.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action against a register of deeds for unlawfully issuing a marriage license. Dixon v. Haar, 158 N. C. 341, 74 S. E. 1.

When the action under this section is against the register and his sureties, it is therefore for the amount of the bond ($10,000) to be discharged upon payment of $200, and the superior court has jurisdiction. Joyner v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 111, 114, 16 S. E. 917.

Venue.—An action for the penalty against a register of deeds under this section should be tried in the county wherein the cause of action arises. Dixon v. Haar, 158 N. C. 341, 74 S. E. 1. And if brought in the wrong county, it should be removed and not dismissed. Id.

Action Abates upon Register's Death.—Under section 1-74, an action for a penalty, against a register of deeds and the surety on his official bond, abates on the death of the officer. Wallace v. McPherson, 139 N. C. 297, 51 S. E. 897.

Register Not Indictable.—The issuing of a marriage license by a register of deeds in violation of the section is not an indictable offense, unless the illegal act be done mala fide. State v. Snuggs, 85 N. C. 542.

B. Pleading and Practice.

Allegations in Complaint.—In an action under this section it is essential that the complaint should allege that the register issued the license knowingly or without reasonable inquiry. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 890.

Presumption as to Time of Issuance.—The presumption is that a marriage license, signed by a register of deeds, was issued during his term of office. The burden of proving the contrary is on the party asserting it. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that the officer issued the license when he knew of the impediment to the marriage, or that it was forbidden by the law, or when he had not made reasonable inquiry. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664; Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 45 S. E. 662; Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 298, 72 S. E. 970.

Question for Jury as to Reasonable Inquiry. — Where there is a conflict of evidence, whether there has been "reasonable inquiry" is to be submitted to the jury upon all the evidence under proper instructions. Joyner v. Roberts, 114 N. C. 389, 19 S. E. 645; Harcum v. Marsh, 130 N. C. 154, 41 S. E. 6; Furr v. Johnson, 140 N. C. 157, 52 S. E. 664.

The fact that the register administered an oath to the applicant and his friend does not, of itself, exonerate him. He is permitted by the statute to do so, that he may better elicit the facts, and his doing so or failing to do so would be but a circumstance for the jury to consider. Gray v. Lentz, 173 N. C. 346, 354, 91 S. E. 1024.

Same—Nonsuit Erroneous.—If the evidence is conflicting as to the reasonableness of the inquiry made by the register, the question should be submitted to the jury, and a judgment as of nonsuit thereon is erroneously entered. Lemmons v. Sigman, 181 N. C. 238, 106 S. E. 764.

Reasonable Inquiry Question of Law When Facts Admitted.—It is well settled that the facts being admitted or found by the jury, the question as to what is "reasonable inquiry" is one of law for the court. Joyner v. Roberts, 114 N. C. 389, 19 S. E. 645; Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N. C. 312, 45 S. E. 662; Snipes v. Wood, 179 N. C. 349, 102 S. E. 619; Julian v. Daniels, 175 N. C. 549, 95 S. E. 907.

Same—Instructions to Jury.—If the facts are admitted, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury whether they are sufficient to constitute reasonable inquiry; if they are in controversy, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury that certain facts to be determined from the evidence do or do not constitute reasonable inquiry. Spencer v. Saunders, 189 N. C. 183, 126 S. E. 420.

Evidence.—In a civil suit against a register evidence of nolo contendere pleaded by the husband in a criminal action is not admissible. Snipes v. Wood, 179 N. C. 349, 102 S. E. 619.

Proof of the officer's failure to administer the oath to the applicant for the license is admissible to show a lack of reasonable inquiry. Laney v. Mackey, 144 N. C. 630, 57 S. E. 386.

The testimony of a witness as to the age of the woman depending solely upon her statements to him, which he repeated to the register when the license was applied for, is not substantive evidence of her age. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N. C. 295, 72 S. E. 970.

§ 51-18. Record of licenses and returns; originals filed.—Every register of deeds shall keep a book (which shall be furnished on demand by the board of county commissioners of his county) on the first page of which shall be written or printed:

Record of marriage licenses and of returns thereto, for the county of ....., from the ..... day of ....., 19...., to the ..... day of ....., 19....., both inclusive.

In said book shall be entered alphabetically, according to the names of the proposed husbands, the substance of each marriage license and the return thereupon, as follows: The book shall be divided by lines with columns which shall be properly headed, and in the first of these, beginning on the left, shall be put the date of issue of the license; in the second, the name in full of the intended husband, with his residence; in the third, his age; in the fourth, his race and color; in the fifth, the name in full of the intended wife, with her residence; in the sixth, her age; in the seventh, her race and color; in the eighth, the name and title of the minister or officer who celebrated the marriage; in the ninth, the day of the celebration; in the tenth, the place of the celebration; in the eleventh, the names of all or at least three of the witnesses who signed the return as present at the celebration. The original license and return thereto shall be filed and preserved. (Rev., s. 2091; Code, s. 1818; 1899, c. 541, s. 3; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 9; C. S. 2504.)

§ 51-19. Penalty for failure to record.—Any register of deeds who fails to record, in the manner above prescribed, the substance of any marriage license issued by him, or who fails to record, in the manner above prescribed, the substance of any return made thereon, within ten days after such return made, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars to any person who sues for the same. (Rev., s. 2092; Code, s. 1819; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 10; C. S. 2505.)

Legislature May Relieve.—An act of the Legislature relieving the register from the penalty for failure to record passed after an action was brought to recover the penalty, but before judgment, is constitutional. Bray v. Williams, 137 N. C. 387, 49 S. E. 887.

Penalty Is in Alternative. — The penalty given by this section is in the alternative, either for the failure to record the substance of the license issued or for failure to record the substance of the return. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 175, 178, 12 S. E. 890.

Jurisdiction.—Notwithstanding the penalties imposed do not exceed $200 (and if only one was sought to be recovered a justice of the peace would have jurisdiction), a plaintiff may unite several causes of action for several penalties against same party, in same complaint, and if the aggregate amount thereof exceeds $200 the superior court will have jurisdiction. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 890.

Prosecution in Nature of Person. — An action against a register of deeds to recover the penalties imposed for a failure to comply with the provisions of the statute in relation to issuing marriage licenses under this section must be prosecuted in the name of the person who sues therefor, and not in the name of the State. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N. C. 174, 12 S. E. 890.

Where Register Functus Officio.—If the filling up and handing the paper previously signed to the party proposing to be married was done, not by the register but by an agent, and at the time the register was functus officio, the paper would be equally invalid because lacking the signature of a de facto register, and there could be no penalty for not recording it. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N. C. 71, 16 S. E. 919.

Art. 1. Powers and Liabilities of Married Women.

§ 52-1. Property of married woman secured to her.—The real and personal property of any female in this state, acquired before marriage, and all property, real and personal, to which she may, after marriage, become in any manner entitled, shall be and remain the sole and separate estate and property of such female, and shall not be liable for any debts, obligations or engagements of her husband, and may be devised and bequeathed, and, with the written assent of her husband, conveyed by her as if she were unmarried. (Rev., s. 2093; Const., Art. X, s. 6; C. S. 2506.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of the history of this legislation and of many of the earlier cases construing it, see Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410. For a discussion of the early law regarding married women's contracts, see the notes under the following section.

It will be noted that this section is identical with the constitution, art. 10, sec. 6 and the annotations under that section should be referred to.

Common Law Rules.—At common law, marriage was an absolute gift to the husband of all the personal property of the wife in possession, and the same became his property instantly on the marriage; and it was a qualified gift of all the personal property adversely held, and all the choses in action of the wife, which became the husband's absolutely upon his reduction of the same into possession, during the coverture, with the right in case the wife die to administer on her estate, and in that character to collect, and after payment of her debts to hold the surplus to his own use, without obligation to distribute to any one. O'Connor v. Harris, 81 N. C. 279, 282.

It was also competent to the husband having choses in action "jure mariti" to assign the same for value, or as a security to pay his debts, and the assignment availed to pass the right to the assignee to collect and have the proceeds as his absolute property, if collected during coverture, just as the husband might have done if he had kept and reduced it into possession himself. O'Connor v. Harris, 81 N. C. 279, 282.

When Provision Took Effect.—The Constitution of 1868, Art. 10, sec. 6, took effect for purposes of domestic policy, in April, 1868, and not when Congress approved it. Freeman v. Lide, 176 N. C. 434, 435, 97 S. E. 402, and cases cited.

Power of Legislature.—The Legislature may abolish all the incapacities of married women, and give them full power to contract as feme sole. Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437, 445.

A Broad and Comprehensive Provision.—This provision is very broad, comprehensive and thorough in its terms, meaning and purpose, and plainly gives and secures to the wife the complete ownership and control of her property, as if she were unmarried, except in the single respect of conveying it. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 512, 14 S. E. 299.

Effect of Section.—A married woman holds her separate real and personal property free from any debts, obligations, or engagements of her husband, according to the provisions of our constitution and this section. Graves v. Howard, 159 N. C. 594, 75 S. E. 998.

The real property of the wife, whether acquired before or after marriage, remains her sole and separate property (N. C. Const., Art. X, sec. 6), and therein the husband has no vested interest, but merely the power to refuse his written assent to her conveyance thereof. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N. C. 182, 96 S. E. 988; Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 666, 47 S. E. 784.

In construing section six of article 10 of our Constitution and statutes passed on the subject, "it has been held that neither the constitutional provision nor the statutes referred to had the effect of enabling a married woman living with her husband to bind herself by contracts strictly in personam, but that the constitutional provision declaring her property, real and personal, to be her sole and separate estate was intended and operated to enable her to charge her personal estate by contracts on the principle by which, under recognized equitable principles, she was formerly allowed to charge her separate estate in the hands of a trustee and her real estate also by contract in which her husband joined and the wife's privy examination taken. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 52 S. E. 410; Farthing v. Shields, 106 N. C. 289, 10 S. E. 998; Flaum v. Wallace, 103 N. C. 296, 9 S. E. 567; Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437." Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 409, 87 S. E. 126.

Same—Wife's Obligations. — The purpose of this section was to protect the estate of the wife from liability for her husband's debts arising under the common law by reason of the coverture, but it was not intended to protect the property from her own obligations. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784; Brinkley v. Ballance, 126 N. C. 393, 35 S. E. 631; Royal v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 406, 84 S. E. 708.

Applies to Property Not Otherwise Secured.—This section does not apply to cases where the property is secured to the wife by marriage settlement, or deed of gift or will. The property is thereby secured to her by act of the parties. The object of the act is to secure the property to the wife by act of law when it has not been done by act of the parties, who may make restrictions and limitations over. Cooper v. Landis, 75 N. C. 526, 533.

Acquisition of Property Not Affected. — It is settled law in North Carolina that this section imposes no limit upon the wife's power to acquire property by contracting with her husband or any other person, but only operates to restrain her from, or protect her in, disposing of property already acquired by her. Osbourne v. Wilkes, 108 N. C. 661, 667, 13 S. E. 285, and cases cited.

Meaning of "Convey."—The word "convey" must be restricted in its operation to such property as is by law required to be transferred by a written instrument. The words "convey and devise" are technical terms, relating to the disposition of interests in real property. It would not be technically or legally correct to speak of conveying personal property by a verbal sale of it, or even by a writing, any more than it would be to speak of devising it by last will and testament. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 669, 47 S. E. 784.

Conveyances of Personalty.—A married woman has the absolute power to dispose of her property by will, and she can convey it "with the written assent of her husband," which does not restrict her freedom in the disposition of her personal property, as conveyances apply only to realty. Everett v. Ballard, 174 N. C. 16, 17, 93 S. E. 385.

There is no restriction whatever upon the right of a married woman to dispose of her personalty as fully and freely as if she had remained unmarried, either in the Constitution or by any statute. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784; Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 91, 52 S. E. 410; Rea v. Rea, 156 N. C. 529, 532, 72 S. E. 873.

Statute of Limitations.—Since a wife may now maintain an action without the joinder of her husband, when it concerns her separate property, and against her husband, when it is between the husband and wife, and there being no exception in favor of the wife when she holds a claim against him, the statute of limitation will run against a note thus held by her. Graves v. Howard, 159 N. C. 594, 75 S. E. 998.

Money from Sale of Wife's Realty.—Money received by the husband from a sale of the wife's lands before the adoption of the Constitution in 1868 belonged to him absolutely, unless at the time he received it he agreed to invest it for her in some other way. Kirpatrick v. Holmes, 108 N. C. 206, 12 S. E. 1037.

But if the wife acquired the title and the marriage occurred prior to 1868, and the sale was made subsequent to that time, the proceeds would be her separate estate; and if the husband purchased other lands with such proceeds and took title in his own name, in the absence of any special agreement to the contrary, he would become a trustee for her. Kirpatrick v. Holmes, 108 N. C. 206, 12 S. E. 1037.

Vested Rights Protected.—The husband's right to receive and appropriate to his own use his wife's distributive share in her mother's estate was vested, under the law then in force, of which no subsequent legislation could deprive him, without his consent. Morris v. Morris, 94 N. C. 613, 616.

Separate Estate.—Prior to the adoption of the Constitution of 1868 it was held that deeds by which property was conveyed to a trustee for the sole and separate use of a married woman created an active trust in the trustee, and this was held because otherwise the statute would execute the use, and the husband would, as husband, become vested with rights in and control over his wife's property. But by the Constitution of 1868, as declared in Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299, the wife's property was rendered secure to her, and not subject to the control of, or to the debts or obligations of, her husband. So that it was no longer necessary to invoke the fiction of the law in order to protect the wife's property from the husband or his creditors in deeds made subsequent to the adoption of that Constitution. Freeman v. Lide, 176 N. C. 434, 438, 97 S. E. 402. See also Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437, 443.

Since the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, she has or can have the legal as well as the equitable estate, but this of itself does not give her the unrestricted disposition of her property. Its only effect was to do away with the necessary concurrence of the trustee by vesting in her the legal title. Her common law disabilities still continue. Sanderlin v. Sanderlin, 122 N. C. 1, 3, 29 S. E. 55.

Lien on Married Woman's Property.—By construing sections 6 and 3 of Article X of the Constitution in connection with section 44-1, the conclusion is sustained that for all debts contracted for work and labor done, a lien is given upon the property of a married woman. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N. C. 83, 95, 52 S. E. 410.

Presumption as to Property Delivered to Husband.—Under the change made in the law of married women's property rights by this section and the Constitution, Article X, section 6: Held, where she receives checks from her parents as personal gifts to her which she endorses and delivers to her husband, there is a presumption that he receives the money in trust for her, and in the absence of evidence that it was a gift, she may recover the same in her action against him, or, after his death, against his personal representative. Etheredge v. Cochran, 196 N. C. 681, 146 S. E. 711.

What Is Sufficient Written Assent to Make Wife's Deed Valid.—Since the deed of the husband conveys no title to his wife's land, but evidences his written assent to her conveyance, upon reason and authority, subscribing his name under seal to her deed, and acknowledging his execution thereof as required by law, is a sufficient written assent to make her deed valid. Joiner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 6 F. Supp. 103, 104.

Cited in Martin v. Bundy, 212 N. C. 437, 193 S. E. 831.

§ 52-2. Capacity to contract.—Subject to the provisions of § 52-12, regulating contracts of wife with husband affecting corpus or income of estate, every married woman is authorized to contract and deal so as to affect her real and personal property in the same manner and with the same effect as if she were unmarried, but no conveyance of her real estate shall be valid unless made with the written assent of her husband as provided by section six of article ten of the constitution, and her privy examination as to the execution of the same taken and certified as now required by law. (Rev., s. 2094; Code, s. 1826; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 17; 1911, c. 109; C. S. 2507.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The common law, by which the contract of a married woman was void, continued to be the law in courts of law in this State until the adoption of the Constitution of 1868. Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437, 441.

At common law the contract of a married woman was void, but it was held in equity that she might have an estate settled to her separate use, and, that although she had no power to bind herself personally, she might with the concurrence of the trustee specifically charge her separate estate, and the courts of equity would enforce the charge against the property. But her contracts, in order to create a charge must refer expressly, or by necessary implication, to the separate estate as a means of payment, this being in the nature of an appointment or appropriation. Knox v. Jordan, 58 N. C. 175; Frazier v. Brownlow, 38 N. C. 237; Sanderlin v. Sanderlin, 122 N. C. 1, 3, 29 S. E. 55; Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437, 441.

Ch. 193, sec. 17, Public Laws 1871-2, known as the Marriage Act was the first legislation directly regulating the power of a married woman to make contracts. It seems that the only change made by this act was that the consent of the husband in writing was required in order to allow her to charge her separate estate. See Arrington v. Bell, 94 N. C. 247. This Marriage Act was in effect for about forty years and was frequently construed by the courts.

The present section known as the Martin Act was passed March 6, 1911 and has entirely changed the law. This renders obsolete the numerous constructions of the previous legislation. The general effect of these former provisions is discussed by Rodman, J., in Pippin v. Wesson, 74 N. C. 437.

See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 62.

Section Constitutional.—This section is constitutional and valid. Warren v. Dial, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126.

The effect of this section is to take married women out of the classification which the law recognized, prior to its enactment, and to make them, with respect to capacity to contract, sui juris. This section is held to mean what it plainly says, that, except as to contracts with her husband, in which the forms required by § 52-12, must still be observed, and except in conveyances of her real estate, in which case her privy examination must still be taken and her husband's written consent had, a married woman can now make any and all contracts so far as "to effect her real and personal property," in the same manner and to the same effect as if she were unmarried. Taft v. Covington, 199 N. C. 51, 55, 153 S. E. 597. See Davis v. Cockman, 211 N. C. 630, 191 S. E. 322.

By virtue of this section, a married woman may make contracts affecting her personal and real property as though she were unmarried, except that her privy examination must be taken and her husband's written consent had to conveyances of her real property, and the requirements of § 52-12 must be met in contracts between her and her husband affecting her real property or the corpus of her personal property. Martin v. Bundy, 212 N. C. 437, 193 S. E. 831.

Operates Prospectively. — This section operates prospectively and does not apply to contracts made prior to its adoption. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N. C. 239, 72 S. E. 313.

Section Does Not Apply to Estates in Entirety.—The doctrine of title by entireties between husband and wife as it existed at common law remains unchanged by statute in this State. And this section has been construed, in Jones v. Smith, 149 N. C. 318, 62 S. E. 1092, as not affecting estates held by husband and wife as tenants by the entirety. Davis v. Bass, 188 N. C. 200, 124 S. E. 566.

Cited in Etheredge v. Cochran, 196 N. C. 681, 146 S. E. 711.

II. POWERS CONFERRED.

Legislature Has Power to Remove Restraints.—The restraints upon a married woman's power to "contract" rest upon the statute, not upon the Constitution, and of course can be removed by statute. There is no prohibition upon the Legislature to do so, and indeed the court in many instances has indicated to the Legislature that justice might be facilitated by more liberal legislation in that regard. Finger v. Hunter, 130 N. C. 529, 530, 41 S. E. 890.

Effect of Section.—The effect of the Martin Act (this section) is to take married women out of the classification which the law recognized, prior to its enactment, and to make them, with respect to capacity to contract, sui juris. Dorsey v. Corbett, 190 N. C. 783, 130 S. E. 842; Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N. C. 525, 92 S. E. 369; Thrash v. Ould, 172 N. C. 728, 90 S. E. 915; Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126; Royall v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 84 S. E. 708; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820; Tise v. Hicks, 191 N. C. 609, 612, 132 S. E. 560.

This section should be held to mean what it plainly says, that, except as to contracts with her husband, in which the forms required by sec. 52-12, must still be observed, and except in conveyances of her real estate, in which case her privy examination must still be taken and her husband's written consent had, a married woman can now make any and "all contracts so far as to affect her real and personal property, in the same manner and to the same effect as if she were unmarried." Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 410. 87 S. E. 126; Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820; Everett v. Ballard, 174 N. C. 16, 18, 93 S. E. 385.

Same—Practically Makes Free Traders.—This section practically constitutes married women free traders as to all their ordinary dealings. Price v. Charlotte Electric Railway Co., 160 N. C. 450, 452, 76 S. E. 502; Croom v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 217, 219, 108 S. E. 735.

Bound by Estoppel.—Since, in this state, the common law disabilities of a married woman to contract, with certain exceptions, have been removed, she is bound by an estoppel the same as any other person. Tripp v. Langston, 218 N. C. 295, 10 S. E. (2d) 916.

Conveyances of Personalty.—This section does not extend to conveyances of personalty by the wife to the husband, and certainly when it would lead to an absurd conclusion, as in instances of a gift from the wife to her husband. Rea v. Rea, 156 N. C. 529, 72 S. E. 573.

Section 52-12 Not Affected.—This section does not alter the effect of section 52-12, requiring certain findings and conclusions by the probate officer to a conveyance of her lands directly to her husband, and her deed not probated accordingly, is void. Singleton v. Cherry, 168 N. C. 402, 84 S. E. 698; Butler v. Butler, 169 N. C. 584, 86 S. E. 507.

III. LIABILITIES INCURRED.

Liable for Breach of Contract.—When the Legislature authorized a married woman "to contract and deal so as to affect her real and personal property in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if she were unmarried," it authorized contracts for breach of which they would be liable as fully as if they had remained unmarried. Everett v. Ballard, 174 N. C. 16, 18, 93 S. E. 385.

Same—Contract to Convey Realty.—On a breach of a married woman's contract to convey her land, she may be held responsible in damages, as in other contracts by which she is properly bound. Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 410, 87 S. E. 126. Though the contract to convey is made without the written consent of the husband. Everett v. Ballard, 174 N. C. 16, 93 S. E. 385.

Same—No Specific Performance.—This section means that when a married woman makes an executory contract to convey land and her privy examination is not taken she can only be held in damages, and that specific performance may not, as formerly, be enforced. Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 410, 87 S. E. 126.

Liability of Wife Where Husband Agent.—Under this section, a wife may appoint her husband as her agent for doing in her behalf work which may be of such dangerous character as to be a menace to the safety of others, and is liable with him for his negligence that, while acting as her agent, he proximately caused an injury to a child who found explosive caps negligently left by him while causing her lot to be blasted and excavated on a bordering street. Krachanake v. Mfg. Co., 175 N. C. 435, 95 S. E. 851; Barnett v. Cotton Mills, 167 N. C. 580, 83 S. E. 826, cited and applied in Richardson v. Libes, 188 N. C. 112, 123 S. E. 306.

Where Husband Is Alien.—A married woman whose husband is an alien and never visited or resided in the United States is personally liable on her contracts. Levi v. Marsha, 122 N. C. 656, 29 S. E. 832.

Liable When Partner or Surety.—Since the passage of the Martin Act, a wife has been held liable jointly and severally on her contracts whenever a partner or a surety. Bristol Grocery Co. v. Bails, 177 N. C. 298, 299, 98 S. E. 768.

A wife by becoming surety on the obligations of her husband creates a direct and separate liability to the creditor of the husband which makes her personally responsible, under this section, without requiring the statutory formalities necessary to the validity of certain contracts made directly between the wife and her husband. Royal v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 84 S. E. 708.

Assessments on Stock.—In Robinson v. Turrentine, 59 Fed. 554, construing the former provisions of this section, it was held that the purchase of stock by a married woman was not a "contract" within the terms of the section and that the wife was liable upon an assessment although the stock was purchased without the written consent of her husband.

Husband Still Liable for Funeral Expenses.—The common-law rule that the husband is liable for the funeral expenses of his deceased wife and for "necessaries" during their married life is not affected by this section, when there is nothing to show an express promise to pay on her part, or that the articles were sold on her credit or under such circumstances as to make her exclusively or primarily liable according to the equitable principles of indebitatus assumpsit. Bowen v. Daugherty, 168 N. C. 242, 84 S. E. 265.

IV. THE ACTION FOR BREACH.

Inability to Get Husband's Consent Immaterial.—The rule that a married woman is liable in damages for failure to specifically perform her contract to convey her lands under the Martin Act may not be successfully defeated upon the ground that she may be unable to get the consent of her husband to the conveyance, in the absence of any bad faith. Warren v. Dail, 170 N. C. 406, 87 S. E. 126.

Wife May Claim Personal Property Exemption.—Under the provisions of Article X, section 1 of our Constitution, and of this section, the wife may claim her personal property exemption from the assets of a partnership with her husband when the validity of the partnership contract is not questioned by them under the provisions of section 52-12, and each has consented that such exemption should be allowed to the other therefrom. Bristol Grocery Co. v. Bails, 177 N. C. 298, 98 S. E. 768.

Estoppel of Wife.—As to the doctrine of title by estoppel applying to a married woman under the provisions of this section, who has joined with her husband in a deed to his lands with warranty, the wife's interest not appearing on the face of the instrument, but which title the wife afterwards acquired, Quaere? Builders, etc., Co. v. Joyner, 182 N. C. 518, 109 S. E. 259.

Judgment against Wife as Surety.—In Royal v. Southerland, 168 N. C. 405, 81 S. E. 708, it was held that under this section a judgment could be rendered against a wife upon her obligation as surety to her husband. Thrash v. Ould, 172 N. C. 728, 731, 90 S. E. 915.

Judgment Enforced by Execution.—It was held in Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N. C. 508, 83 S. E. 820, Brown, J., construing this section, that judgment could be rendered against a married woman upon her contracts and enforced by execution, though she had not specifically charged her property with payment thereof. Thrash v. Ould, 172 N. C. 728, 730, 90 S. E. 915.

Where Specific Performance May Be Decreed.—Since the wife's contracts are valid without the written assent of her husband, and she is liable in damages for a breach thereof, specific performance may be decreed where the husband has subscribed his name under seal to her deed. Joiner v. Firemen's Ins. Co., 6 F. Supp. 103.

§ 52-3. Capacity to draw checks.—Bank deposits made by or in the name of a married woman shall be paid only to her or on her order, and her check, receipt or acquittance shall be valid in law to fully discharge the bank from any and all liability on account thereof. (Rev., s. 2095; 1891, c. 221, s. 30; 1893, c. 344; C. S. 2508.)

§ 52-4. Conveyance or lease of wife's land requires husband's joinder.—No lease or agreement for a lease or sublease or assignment by any married woman of her lands or tenements, or chattels real, to run for more than three years, or to begin in possession more than six months after its execution, or any conveyance of any freehold estate in her real property, shall be valid, unless the same be executed by her and her husband, and proved or acknowledged by them, and her free consent thereto appear on her examination separate from her husband, as is now or may hereafter be required by law in the probate of deeds of femes covert. (Rev., s. 2096; Code, s. 1834; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 26; C. S. 2509.)

Cross References.—As to the formalities necessary in married women's conveyances, see § 39-7 et seq. As to exceptions, see §§ 35-12, 52-5, and 52-6. As to title to swamp lands reclaimed vesting in board of education by written consent without privy examination of feme covert, see § 151-81.

Written Assent of Husband Required.—The power of a married woman to convey her property is regulated by the Constitution, Art. X, sec. 6, and must be exercised by the written assent of her husband. Walton v. Bristol, 125 N. C. 419, 34 S. E. 544; Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 97 S. E. 25; Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N. C. 182, 96 S. E. 988.

Same—How Expressed.—His assent need not be by deed, for he has nothing to convey; and his joining with her in the instrument is sufficient. Jones v. Craigmiles, 114 N. C. 613, 19 S. E. 638, and cases there cited. His signing the instrument merely as a witness is a sufficient "written assent." Jennings v. Hinton, 126 N. C. 48, 35 S. E. 187. A letter written by him is also sufficient. Brinkley v. Ballance, 126 N. C. 393, 35 S. E. 631; Stallings v. Walker, 176 N. C. 321, 324, 97 S. E. 25.

Husband's Indorsement Does Not Validate Deed. — The written assent of her husband indorsed on the deed does not meet with the constitutional and statutory requirements necessary for her to make a valid conveyance. Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404; Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 107, 78 S. E. 6.

Privy Examination Required.—In order to convey a married woman's separate real estate or fix a charge upon it, her privy examination is required. Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404; Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 107, 78 S. E. 6.

Deed Made in Foreign State.—A deed executed by a married woman in another state, according to the laws of such state, for realty in this State, without privy examination of the wife, as required by section 39-7, is void. Smith v. Ingram, 130 N. C. 100, 40 S. E. 984.

Conveyance as Executrix.—It is not necessary that a married woman should be privily examined as to the execution by her of a lease for land, as executrix under the will of a former husband, and when she was a feme sole. Darden v. Neuse, etc., Steamboat Co., 107 N. C. 437, 12 S. E. 46.

Action for Damages for Breach.—A married woman may be held in damages for the breach of her contract in the lease of her separate lands for more than three years, though her husband has not joined therein or given his written consent thereto Miles v. Walker, 179 N. C. 479, 102 S. E. 884. The opinion in this case draws the distinction between suits for specific performance on the leases mentioned in this section and actions for damages on same. Ed. Note.

§ 52-5. Separation by divorce or deed; husband non compos.—Every woman who is living separate from her husband, either under a judgment of divorce by a competent court or under a deed of separation executed by said husband and wife and registered in the county in which she resides, or whose husband has been declared an idiot or a lunatic, shall be deemed and held, from the docketing of such judgment, or from the registration of such deed, or from the date of such idiocy or lunacy and during its continuance, a free trader, and may convey her personal estate and her real estate without the assent of her husband. (Rev., s. 2116; Code, s. 1831; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 23; 1880, c. 35; C. S. 2529.)

Cross Reference.—As to alternative method by which wife of lunatic may convey real estate, see § 35-12.

Editor's Note on Separation Agreements.—Separation deeds have been rare in this State, and, for a long period of time, they were declared absolutely void in North Carolina, as they were in England. This was the conclusion reached in Collins v. Collins, (1866) 62 N. C. 153. The decision was based upon the intention expressed in the Code to regard man and wife as one, upon the decisions of the English courts regarding the marital bond as inseparable, and upon the general grounds of public policy in preserving the marriage bond.

After the case of Collins v. Collins, supra, decided in 1866, and before the next case involving separation agreements, decided twenty years later, Sparks v. Sparks (1886) 94 N.

C. 527, the legislature had enacted, in furtherance of the constitutional provisions guaranteeing married women's rights, this section.

In the Sparks case, supra, on page 532 the court says: "This section, passed in February, 1872, in furtherance of the constitutional provision, by which the property of the woman, on her marriage, is secured to her as separate estate, implies a possible legal separation of the parties, by voluntary agreements, and defines her condition and rights resulting therefrom."

Later in Smith v. King, (1890) 107 N. C. 273, 12 S. E. 57, the court states that separation deeds are not regarded with favor in North Carolina. In that case, the deed had been rescinded by a subsequent cohabitation, and therefore the court did not decide what the effect of that deed would have been, if not so rescinded. In a subsequent case, Cram v. Cram (1895) 116 N. C. 288, 21 S. E. 197, there is an intimation that separation deeds are not looked upon with favor.

The leading case in North Carolina, Archbell v. Archbell, 158 N. C. 408, 74 S. E. 327, was decided in 1912. Although the separation deed in that case was held to be void because of an invalid certificate of the probate officer, Justice Hoke said, that due to the "distinct recognition of deeds of this character . . . we are constrained to hold that public policy with us is no longer peremptory on this question, and that under certain conditions these deeds are not void as a matter of law."

From these decisions it clearly appears that separation deeds are valid "under certain conditions." In North Carolina, there is no direct decisions which would show these necessary "certain conditions." However there is general agreement as to requisites in practically all jurisdictions. As stated in the Archbell case, 158 N. C. 408, 74 S. E. 327, supra, these requisites are as follows: (1) That there must be a separation already existing or immediately to follow the execution of the deed; (2) that the separation deed must be made for an adequate reason, of such a kind that it is necessary for the health or happiness of one or the other; (3) that it must be reasonable and fair to the wife, considering the condition of the parties. In North Carolina, in addition, the separation deed must conform to the statutory requirements, concerning deeds between husband and wife. See 2 N. C. L. R. 193, 194.

Section Constitutional.—This section is a valid exercise of the legislative power. Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 23, 100 S. E. 120.

When Husband's Assent Unnecessary.—The husband's assent cannot be required when either by reason of mental incapacity he is unable to give assent, or by his conduct in abandoning his wife or maliciously turning her out of doors he has practically emancipated her, for in both cases she must rely upon her property or her labor for her support. Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 23, 100 S. E. 120.

This section has been referred to in a number of cases as an exception to the constitutional provision which requires the assent of the husband, though not directly construed. In these cases it is stated that the husband's assent to the conveyance of the realty is required except in cases under secs. 52-5 and 52-6. Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404; Harvey v. Johnson, 133 N. C. 352, 45 S. E. 644; Sanderlin v. Sanderlin, 122 N. C. 1, 29 S. E. 55; Farthing v. Shields, 106 N. C. 289, 295, 10 S. E. 998; Hodges v. Hill, 105 N. C. 130, 10 S. E. 916; Flaum v. Wallace, 103 N. C. 296, 304, 9 S. E. 567; Sparks v. Sparks, 94 N. C. 527; Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 23, 100 S. E. 120.

Declaration of Insanity Necessary.—In order for a wife to become a free trader because of insanity of her husband it is necessary that he shall be declared insane. Abbott v. Hancock, 123 N. C. 99, 102, 31 S. E. 268.

Section 35-12 an Alternative Method.—Section 35-12 is not in contradiction of this section, but is an optional alternative method to which the wife can resort if for any reason it should be desirable that in the future the record of the deed should show that at the time of the conveyance the husband had been adjudged a lunatic. Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 23, 100 S. E. 120.

Cited in Fisher v. Fisher, 217 N. C. 70, 6 S. E. (2d) 812.

Section Constitutional.—This section was held constitutional in Hall v. Walker, 118 N. C. 377, 24 S. E. 6; Brown v. Brown, 121 N. C. 8, 27 S. E. 998, 38 L. R. A. 242; Finger v. Hunter, 130 N. C. 529, 531, 41 S. E. 890.

There is no constitutional inhibition on the Legislature to declare by statute when and how a wife may become a free trader, and notwithstanding the provisions of Article X, § 6, to the effect that a married woman may convey her separate realty with the written consent of her husband, the provision of this section is valid, and in such cases § 52-4, requiring the execution of her deed by her husband and her separate examination taken, does not apply. Keys v. Tuten, 199 N. C. 368, 154 S. E. 631.

When Husband an Alien.—In Troughton v. Hill, 3 N. C. 406, it was held that when the husband became an alien the wife became a feme sole for the purpose of contracting, and might acquire and transfer property. Hall v. Walker, 118 N. C. 377, 381, 24 S. E. 6.

An action to recover possession of land may be sustained against a married woman alone, whose husband is an alien, resides abroad, or has abandoned his wife. Finley v. Saunders, 98 N. C. 462, 4 S. E. 516.

Where Husband Fugitive from Justice.—In an action against a married woman where the husband is a nonresident and a fugitive from justice, the husband is not a necessary party. Heath, etc., Co. v. Morgan, 117 N. C. 504, 23 S. E. 489.

Departure from State Not Required.—This section does not require the departure of the husband from the State to enable the wife to use her property for her support. Vandiford v. Humphrey, 139 N. C. 65, 51 S. E. 893.

Abandonment Sufficient.—Abandonment of the wife by the husband is sufficient for her to execute a valid conveyance of her lands without his joinder. Bachelor v. Norris, 166 N. C. 506, 82 S. E. 839; Pardon v. Paschal, 142 N. C. 538, 55 S. E. 365; Campbell v. Campbell, 221 N. C. 257, 20 S. E. (2d) 53; Nichols v. York, 219 N. C. 262, 13 S. E. (2d) 565.

Same—Tort Actions.—Under a reasonable construction of the Constitution and this section, a wife abandoned by her husband may maintain an action in tort, in her own name, against a third person. Brown v. Brown, 121 N. C. 8, 27 S. E. 998.

Same—Wife Need Not Wait Six Months.—Under this section a wife is not required to wait six months (the time required to elapse before entitling her to bring an action for divorce) before she is permitted to make contracts. Vandiford v. Humphrey, 139 N. C. 65, 51 S. E. 893.

Evidence of Abandonment to Be Submitted to Jury.—In order for a wife abandoned by her husband to become a free trader under this section, it is not necessary that the wife be abandoned for the statutory time necessary to constitute grounds for divorce, and where, in an action by her to set aside her deed executed without the written consent of her husband, the defense is set up that at the time of its execution she had been abandoned by her husband, and pleadings in her action for divorce alleging abandonment at the time are introduced in evidence, the issue of abandonment should be submitted to the jury even though abandonment was not an issue in the divorce proceedings, and the granting of a judgment on the pleadings in her favor is error. Keys v. Tuten, 199 N. C. 368, 154 S. E. 631.

Cited in Hudson v. Hudson, 208 N. C. 338, 180 S. E. 597.

§ 52-7. Husband cannot convey, etc., wife's land without her consent; not liable for his debts.— No real estate belonging at the time of marriage to females, married since the third Monday of November, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight, nor any real estate by them subsequently acquired, nor any real estate acquired on and since the first day of March, one thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, by femes covert, who were such on the said third Monday of November, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight, shall be subject to be sold or leased by the husband for the term of his own life or any less term of years, except by and with the consent of his wife first had and obtained, to be ascertained and ef-fectuated by deed and privy examination, according to the rules required by law for the sale of lands belonging to femes covert. And no interest of the husband whatever in such real estate shall be subject to sale to satisfy any execution obtained against him; and every such sale is hereby declared null and void. (Rev., s. 2097; Code, s. 1840; R. C., c. 56; 1848, c. 41; C. S. 2510.)

Editor's Note.—See 8 N. C. Law Rev. 476.

Formerly Husband Could Lease and Convey.—At common law the husband, upon the marriage, was seized in right of his wife of a freehold interest in her lands during their joint lives. After the birth of issue he was seized of an estate in his own right, called tenancy by the curtesy initiate. Coke Lit., 67 A. This estate, if he survived his wife, was called tenancy by the curtesy consummate, and inured to his benefit for life. Either as tenant by marital right or as tenant by curtesy initiate, the husband was entitled to the rents and profits and might lease or convey his estate, and it might be sold under execution against him. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 134, 135, 16 S. E. 1019.

Former Right to Rents and Profits. — Where a man was married, and the land was acquired by his wife before the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, and the act called the "Marriage Act," he was a tenant by the curtesy initiate, notwithstanding the Act of 1848. Houston v. Brown, 52 N. C. 161. If he was the tenant by the curtesy initiate, he was necessarily entitled to the possession. Wilson v. Arentz, 70 N. C. 670. And if entitled to the possession, he had a right to the pernancy of the rents and profits, etc. Morris v. Morris, 94 N. C. 613, 618.

In General.—This section expressly provides that a husband shall not have power to dispose of his wife's land for his own life or any less term of years without her assent, nor can the same be subject to sale to satisfy any execution obtained against him. Bruce v. Nicholson, 109 N. C. 202, 206, 13 S. E. 790.

Purpose and Effect of Section.—Neither this section nor the Constitution of 1868 abolished tenancy by the curtesy initiate, but since the passage of this section such tenancy confers no right which the husband can assert against the wife as respects her real estate acquired after that act took effect—the intention and effect of the act being to provide for the wife a home which she can not be deprived of either by her husband or his creditors. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 134, 16 S. E. 1019.

Same—Tenancy by Curtesy Limited.—It has been decided that neither this section nor the Constitution of 1868 destroyed such tenancy, although the husband was stripped almost entirely of his common law rights therein during the coverture. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299; Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 134, 137, 16 S. E. 1019.

The tenancy by the curtesy initiate is stripped of its common law attributes till there only remains the husband's bare right of occupancy with his wife, with the right of ingress and egress (Manning v. Manning, 79 N. C. 293), and the right to the curtesy consummate contingent upon his surviving her. * * * The husband is still seized in law of the realty of his wife, shorn of the right to take the rents and of the power to lease her lands. * * * He has by the curtesy initiate, a freehold interest, but not an estate in the property. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 134, 137, 16 S. E. 1019. See Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299.

Vested Rights Not Impaired.—By this section the husband's vested rights as tenant by the curtesy initiate to the rents and profits were not impaired. Cobb v. Rasberry, 116 N. C. 137, 21 S. E. 176.

Same—Sufficient Complaint.—A complaint by a husband which states that he was married to his wife in 1841, that he had by her several living children, and that she acquired the land in question by a deed executed to her in 1864, is sufficient to show his title as tenant by the courtesy initiate of the land. Wilson v. Arentz, 70 N. C. 670. And where this curtesy exists the fact that this section deprives the husband of the power to lease the land without the consent of his wife, will not prevent his recovery of the land by an action without joining his wife as a party. Wilson v. Arentz, 70 N. C. 670.

Curtesy Consummate Can Be Sold.—A tenant by the curtesy consummate may sell his estate, notwithstanding this section. Long v. Graeber, 64 N. C. 431.

Lease Not Complying with Section Is Void.—A written lease of land for a term of five years, made subsequent to the passage of this section, without the privy examination of the wife, is void as to the wife and passes no interest to the husband in the rents and profits thereof. Richardson v. Richardson, 150 N. C. 549, 64 S. E. 510.

Who Can Sue to Recover Possession.—A tenant, by the curtesy initiate, could have sued alone for and recovered possession of the lands and the rents and profits, in this State, before the adoption of the present constitution. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 511, 14 S. E. 299. But since the passage of the section the husband cannot maintain an action in his name alone to recover lands of which he is tenant by the curtesy initiate, but the wife can maintain such action, either by joining her husband or suing alone. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299; Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 508, 14 S. E. 301.

Same—Where Husband Conveys Land to Wife.—A conveyance of land from husband to wife will pass the legal estate of the vendor and enable the vendee to sustain an action to declare title and recover possession. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299.

Statute of Limitations Not Applicable.—A tenant by the curtesy initiate has not such estate in the land of his wife that will put in operation the statute of limitations against either the husband or wife in favor of one claiming title by adverse possession. Jones v. Coffey, 109 N. C. 515, 14 S. E. 84.

Husband Can Surrender Curtesy.—Since the section was enacted a husband has the right to surrender his estate as tenant by the curtesy initiate and let it merge in the reversion of his wife, who, with the assent of her husband may sell the same and receive the whole of the purchase money. Teague v. Downs, 69 N. C. 280.

Land Purchased with Wife's Money.—Where land is purchased by a husband with his wife's money, the proceeds of the sale of her real estate, and title is taken to the husband alone, a resulting trust is created in favor of the wife, and a purchaser from the husband with notice stands affected by the same trust. Lyon v. Akin, 78 N. C. 258.

§ 52-8. Capacity to make will.—Every married woman has power to devise and bequeath her real and personal estate as if she were a feme sole; and her will shall be proved as is required of other wills. (Rev., s. 2098; Code, s. 1839; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 31; C. S. 2511.)

Cross Reference.—See also, § 31-2.

May Defeat Curtesy by Will.—Since the Constitution of 1868 a married woman may by will deprive her husband of curtesy in her separate estate. Hallyburton v. Slagle, 132 N. C. 947, 44 S. E. 655; Freeman v. Lide, 176 N. C. 434, 97 S. E. 402; Tiddy v. Graves, 126 N. C. 620, 36 S. E. 127. And she can so devise her separate estate whether the trust is active or passive. Freeman v. Lide, supra.

§ 52-9. May insure husband's life.—Any feme covert in her own name, or in the name of a trustee with his assent, may cause to be insured for any definite time the life of her husband, for her sole and separate use, and she may dispose of the interest in the same by will, notwithstanding her coverture. (Rev., s. 2099; C. S. 2512.)

Cross Reference.—As to right of husband to insure life for the benefit of wife and children, see the North Carolina Constitution, Article X, section 7.

§ 52-10. Earnings and damages from personal injury are wife's property.—The earnings of a married woman by virtue of any contract for her personal service, and any damages for personal injuries, or other tort sustained by her, can be recovered by her suing alone, and such earnings or recovery shall be her sole and separate property as fully as if she had remained unmarried. (1913, c. 13, s. 1; C. S. 2513.)

Editor's Note.—In the concurring opinion in Patterson v. Franklin, 168 N. C. 75, 79, 84 S. E. 18, Clark, C. J. states that this section was passed as a result of the decision in Price v. Charlotte Electric Co., 160 N. C. 450, 76 S. E. 502. The same is mentioned in Kirkpatrick v. Crutchfield, 178 N. C. 348, 352, 100 S. E. 602.

Former Provisions.—The law formerly prevailing allowed the husband the earnings of his wife and the proceeds of her labor but the husband could confer upon the wife the right to her earnings, upon which they became her separate estate, giving her a right of action to recover them in her own name. Patterson v. Franklin, 168 N. C. 75, 84 S. E. 18.

In General.—This section and C. S. § 454 give to a married woman the fullest and most untrammeled power to bring actions, even against her husband and in all cases whatever. Crowell v. Crowell, 180 N. C. 516, 105 S. E. 206; In re Will of Witherington, 186 N. C. 153, 119 S. E. 11. And her right to sue her husband extends to tort actions. Crowell v. Crowell, 181 N. C. 66, 106 S. E. 149.

Nonresident Wife Has Right of Action for Husband's Tort.—The right of a married woman to maintain an action against her husband to recover for negligent injury is not limited to residents of this state, and a nonresident wife may maintain an action here against her nonresident husband on a transitory cause of action which arises in this state, and she is entitled to any recovery as her separate property. Bogen v. Bogen, 219 N. C. 51, 12 S. E. (2d) 649.

Recovery for Loss of Consortium.—It is now well settled in practically every jurisdiction that the wife has a right to the consortium of her husband and can recover when there has been an intentional and direct invasion or breach of the marital relations. Brown v. Brown, 124 N. C. 19, 32 S. E. 320. In every case, however, the recovery was allowed only where there was an intentional invasion. The right of the wife to recover in North Carolina for a direct and intentional invasion is clearly settled. Id. See also, 3 N. C. Law Rev. 100.

Effect on Rights of Husband.—By virtue of the statutes giving married women separate property rights and the right to sue for injuries, the husband is deprived of his former rights in her property and choses in action. Hinnant v. Tidewater Power Co., 189 N. C. 120, 126 S. E. 307.

Joinder of Husband Unnecessary.—Since the passage of this section a married woman may sue without joining her husband to recover damages she has sustained by reason of a personal injury wrongfully inflicted. Kirkpatrick v. Crutchfield, 178 N. C. 348, 100 S. E. 602.

Same—Not Improper.—While the husband is not a necessary party to his wife's action to recover for the value of her services rendered upon a quantum meruit, under this section, his joinder therein as a party plaintiff is not improper; and where he has alleged an independent cause of action upon a quantum meruit, the Supreme Court, on appeal, in the exercise of its discretion, may remand the cause with direction that the allegations of the complaint as to the statement of the husband's cause to be stricken out and the action of the wife proceeded with. Shore v. Holt, 185 N. C. 312, 117 S. E. 165.

Action against Seducer.—Under the provisions of this section, a married woman who has been seduced may, in proper instances, maintain her action for damages against her seducer without joinder of her husband as a party. Hyatt v. McCoy, 194 N. C. 25, 138 S. E. 405.

Action of Wife for Tort to Husband.—In Hipp v. Dupont, 182 N. C. 9, 13, 108 S. E. 318, the court said: "It follows therefore (from this section) that the husband cannot sue to recover his wife's earnings, or damages for tort committed on her and there is no reason why she can sue for tort or injuries inflicted on her husband. The law has never authorized the wife to maintain such action for torts sustained by the husband."

Husband and Wife Employed Together.—Since the passage of the Martin Act, section 52-2, and this section, the separate earnings of a married woman belong to her, and she may sue and recover them alone; and where the evidence tends only to establish the fact that the employer was to pay a husband and wife each a certain and different amount for services, the husband may not recover the whole upon the theory that the amount he was to receive was augmented by what she was to receive for her separate services. Croom v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 182 N. C. 217, 108 S. E. 735.

Services Rendered to Husband.—For wife to recover for services rendered to her husband in his business, or outside of her domestic duties, while living together under the marital relation, there must be either an express or an implied promise on his part to pay for them; and the relationship of marriage, nothing else appearing, negatives an implied promise on his part to do so. Dorsett v. Dorsett, 183 N. C. 354, 111 S. E. 541.

Cited in Earle v. Earle, 198 N. C. 411, 151 S. E. 884.

§ 52-11: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 52-12. Contracts of wife with husband affecting corpus or income of estate.—No contract between a husband and wife made during coverture shall be valid to affect or change any part of the real estate of the wife, or the accruing income thereof for a longer time than three years next ensuing the making of such contract, or to impair or change the body or capital of the personal estate of the wife, or the accruing income thereof, for a longer time than three years next ensuing the making of such contract, unless such contract is in writing, and is duly proved as is required for conveyances of land; and upon the examination of the wife separate and apart from her husband, as is now or may hereafter be required by law in the probate of deeds of femes covert, it shall appear to the satisfaction of such officer that the wife freely executed such contract, and freely consented thereto at the time of her separate examination, and that the same is not unreasonable or injurious to her. The certificate of the officer shall state his conclusions, and shall be conclusive of the facts therein stated. But the same may be impeached for fraud as other judgments may be. (Rev., s. 2107; Code, s. 1835; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 27; C. S. 2515.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—All transactions of the wife with her husband in regard to her separate property were held void at common law. Sims v. Ray, 96 N. C. 87, 2 S. E. 443. This was because at common law the husband and wife were deemed one person, and it was necessary to convey to a third person, as a conduit, in order to pass the title to property from one to the other. Sydnor v. Boyd, 119 N. C. 481, 485, 25 S. E. 92.

Section Passed to Protect Wife.—This section was passed to protect the wife from the influence and control which the husband is presumed to have over her by reason of the marital relation. Sims v. Ray, 96 N. C. 87, 89, 2 S. E. 443. The law presumes that contracts between husband and wife affecting her real estate are executed under the influence and coercion of the husband, and to rebut this presumption and render the contract valid, an officer of the law must examine the contract, and be satisfied that she is doing what is reasonable and not hurtful to her, and so certify, and we do not think it was the purpose of the Legislature to abrogate these requirements. Kearney v. Vann, 154 N. C. 311, 319, 70 S. E. 747; Caldwell v. Blount, 193 N. C. 560, 562, 137 S. E. 578.

The purpose of this section was to prevent frauds by the husband upon the wife, and to give validity to transactions, invalid at common law, between husband and wife, of the nature described, provided they are executed with the prescribed formality. Sims v. Ray, 96 N. C. 87, 2 S. E. 433; Long v. Rankin, 108 N. C. 338, 12 S. E. 987; Stout v. Perry, 152 N. C. 312, 313, 67 S. E. 757.

Section Constitutional.—This section has been held to be constitutional and valid in Sims v. Ray, 96 N. C. 87, 2 S. E. 443; Long v. Rankin, 108 N. C. 338, 12 S. E. 987; Kearney v. Vann, 154 N. C. 311, 319, 70 S. E. 747; Butler v. Butler, 169 N. C. 584, 586, 86 S. E. 507.

Strict Construction.—This section is an enabling statute and must be strictly construed. Caldwell v. Blount, 193 N. C. 560, 137 S. E. 578.

It is necessary that it should affirmatively appear that the provisions of this section have been strictly complied with. Sims v. Ray, 96 N. C. 87, 2 S. E. 443; Butler v. Butler, 169 N. C. 584, 586, 86 S. E. 507.

Same—Requirements Necessary.—No deed from a wife to her husband, conveying her land to him, is valid, unless the officer who certifies that he privately examined the wife, as required by statute, shall also state in his certificate his conclusions that said deed is not unreasonable or injurious to her. The statute requires that both conclusions, to-wit, that the deed is reasonable and not hurtful or injurious to the wife, shall be stated by the officer in his certificate attached or annexed to the deed. Caldwell v. Blount, 193 N. C. 560, 563, 137 S. E. 578.

Section Does Not Apply to Confession of Judgment in Favor of Creditors.—A judgment by confession in favor of creditors against a husband and wife is valid and the private examination of the wife is not necessary under this section which is applicable only to contracts between husband and wife. Davis v. Cockman, 211 N. C. 630, 191 S. E. 322.

II. TRANSACTIONS INCLUDED.

Parol Transfer for Less Than Three Years Valid.—A wife can upon a fair consideration give land by parol to the husband for a period less than three years under this section. Wells v. Batts, 112 N. C. 283, 289, 17 S. E. 417.

Section Applies to Contracts Only.—An examination of this section shows that it applies solely to contracts and not to conveyances; indeed, the word "contract" is used five times. The object of the Legislature was clearly to prevent the wife from making any contract with her husband whereby she should incur a liability against her estate which in the future might prove a burden or charge upon it, or cause a change or impairment of her income or personalty. Rea v. Rea, 156 N. C. 529, 531, 72 S. E. 573.

If this section extended to conveyances, it would be a violation of that provision of the Constitution by adding the requirement that some third party, a magistrate or other official, must give his wise approval before she can do what the Constitution guarantees that she may do "with the approval of her husband." Concurring opinion Clark, C. J. in Frisbee v. Cole, 179 N. C. 469, 475, 102 S. E. 890.

Same—Personalty.—As to conveyances of personalty there is no restriction whatever upon the right of a wife to dispose of her personalty as fully and as freely as if she had remained unmarried. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N. C. 661, 47 S. E. 784; Deese v. Deese, 176 N. C. 527, 528, 97 S. E. 475.

Same—Conveyance in Trust is an Exception.—This section however applies to conveyances by the wife of her land in trust to another for her husband. Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 361, 127 S. E. 337; Davis v. Bass, 188 N. C. 200, 124 S. E. 566; Garner v. Horner, 191 N. C. 539, 540, 132 S. E. 290.

Notes Payable to Husband and Wife Jointly.—Where the wife has conveyed her lands with her husband's written consent, and with the consent of all parties takes a mortgage back on the same day and as a part of the same transaction to secure notes given in part payment of the purchase price, payable to herself and husband jointly, it is not evidence that she made him an unqualified gift, either of the notes or a half thereof, and they remain her property as fully as the land for which consideration alone they were given; and the transaction comes within the express letter as well as the spirit of this section. Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N. C. 182, 96 S. E. 988.

Conveyance by Entirety.—When land is purchased by the wife with money belonging to her separate estate, with conveyance to the husband and wife by entirety, it is not a gift by the wife to her husband of her personal property and though thus conveyed at her request creates a resulting trust in the lands in her favor. Deese v. Deese, 176 N. C. 527, 97 S. E. 475.

Deeds of separation, though not favored by law, are under certain circumstances recognized by this section and §§ 52-5 and 52-13, when signed in conformity thereto. Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N. C. 197, 148 S. E. 171. See also Brown v. Brown, 205 N. C. 64, 169 S. E. 818.

Consent Judgment Must Conform.—A consent judgment, that transfers the wife's title in her separate realty to her husband, must be in conformity with this section. Ellis v. Ellis, 193 N. C. 216, 136 S. E. 350.

Applicable to Wife's Interest in Estates by Entireties. — During the continuance of the joint lives of the husband and wife, who have acquired an estate by entireties, the wife's interest in the lands is such as is contemplated by this section; and where the estate has been conveyed to one in trust for them both, and the officer in taking the acknowledgment of the wife has failed to make the certificate required by this section, requiring him, as a prerequisite to its validity, to certify that the instrument was not unreasonable or injurious to her, the instrument itself is void, and the husband may not, by will or otherwise, dispose of her interest thereunder. Davis v. Bass, 188 N. C. 200, 124 S. E. 566.

A deed by husband and wife conveying lands held by them by entireties to a trustee for the use and benefit of the husband is a conveyance of land by a wife to her husband within the meaning of this section. Fisher v. Fisher, 217 N. C. 70, 6 S. E. (2d) 812.

Policy on Husband's Life Included.—An insurance policy on the life of her husband, payable to a married woman, being a vested interest, is embraced in the word "body" as used in this section, which requires all contracts between husband and wife affecting "the body or capital" of the latter's estate to be in writing and accompanied by the privy examination of the wife. Sydnor v. Boyd, 119 N. C. 481, 26 S. E. 92.

Agreement by husband and wife to pool their respective lands for division among their children is not an agreement under which any interest in his wife's lands moves to the husband, and it is not required that such agreement be executed in accord with this section. Coward v. Coward, 216 N. C. 506, 5 S. E. (2d) 537.

III. THE CERTIFICATE.

Certificate Must Be Annexed to Deed.—It has been uniformly held that the deed of a wife, conveying land described therein to her husband, is void, unless there is attached or annexed to said deed the certificate of the probate officer as required by statute. Caldwell v. Blount, 193 N. C. 560, 562, 137 S. E. 578, and numerous cases cited.

Certificate Must Show Deed Not Unreasonable and Injurious.—A conveyance of land by a wife to her husband is void when the acknowledgment fails to comply with this section, and the acknowledgment is fatally defective if the probating officer fails to certify that, at the time of its execution and the wife's privy examination, the deed is not unreasonable and injurious to her. Fisher v. Fisher, 217 N. C. 70, 6 S. E. (2d) 812.

Certificate Conclusively Presumed to Be True.—This section only requires that the officer taking the probate of a deed to lands from a wife to her husband shall state his conclusions that the contract or deed "is not unreasonable or injurious to her," and it will be conclusively presumed that it was upon sufficient evidence, and where the statutory requirements have been followed, the action of the officer taking the probate is not open to inquiry in a collateral attack in impeachment of it, except "for fraud, as other judgments may be" so attacked. Frisbee v. Cole, 179 N. C. 469, 102 S. E. 890.

Amendment of Defective Certificate.—Where the certificate required by this section is defective, it cannot be subsequently amended so as to render a deed valid, at least after the death of the wife. Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 127 S. E. 337.

Same—Evidence.—Where the defendants allege that certain of the requirements were observed by the officer but omitted by mistake from his certificate, testimony of the wife and the probate officer as to what transpired at the time is competent in rebuttal of the defendant's evidence, if he had introduced any, and immaterial if he did not do so. Anderson v. Anderson, 177 N. C. 401, 99 S. E. 106.

Evidence is not admissible to show that the facts stated in the certificate are not true. Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 127 N. C. 337.

Defective Acknowledgment Not Cured by Prior Separation Agreement.—A defective acknowledgment of a deed conveying the wife's interest in land to her husband is not cured by a prior deed of separation properly executed. Fisher v. Fisher, 217 N. C. 70, 6 S. E. (2d) 812.

Probate or Acknowledgment—Proof of Deed.—Where the husband joins with his wife in the execution of a deed to her lands, and it is certified that he had assented thereto at that time, the objection to the probate of the husband that it was taken after his wife's death is untenable, for the probate or acknowledgment is not the execution of the deed, but the proof thereof. Frisbee v. Cole, 179 N. C. 469, 102 S. E. 890.

Where a deed to lands from the wife to her husband has not been properly probated before her death under the provisions of this section, the probate may not thereafter be amended so as to make the conveyance a valid one which otherwise is void. Butler v. Butler, 169 N. C. 584, 86 S. E. 507.

IV. EFFECT OF NONCOMPLIANCE.

Noncompliance Renders Deed Void.—The failure on the part of the probate officer to observe the requirements of the statute renders a deed absolutely void. Davis v. Bass, 188 N. C. 200, 124 S. E. 566; Wallin v. Rice, 170 N. C. 417, 89 S. E. 239; Barbee v. Bumpass, 191 N. C. 521, 522, 132 S. E. 275; Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 361, 127 S. E. 337; Whitten v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571; Garner v. Horner, 191 N. C. 539, 540, 132 S. E. 290; Foster v. Williams, 182 N. C. 632, 109 S. E. 834.

Where the husband has conveyed to his wife his title to lands held by them by the entireties, and the wife thereafter conveys her title by deed to the husband and herself, which deed is not probated under the requirements of this section, with respect to the finding of the probate officer that the instrument was not unreasonable or injurious to her, the wife's conveyance is void in law, and does not operate as an estoppel by deed to her during her life or her heirs at law after her death. Capps v. Massey, 199 N. C. 196, 154 S. E. 52.

The failure of the certificate of a deed to lands from a wife to her husband to state that the conveyance was "not unreasonable or injurious to her" renders the instrument void. Farmers Bank v. McCullers, 201 N. C. 440, 160 S. E. 494.

Same—Partial Omission.—The deed of a wife to her husband, duly acknowledged and with private examination properly certified, was held invalid in Singleton v. Cherry, 168 N. C. 402, 84 S. E. 698, by the unanimous opinion of the court, because of the fact that the officer taking the probate failed to certify that the making of the deed was not unreasonable and not injurious to the wife. Butler v. Butler, 169 N. C. 584, 586, 86 S. E. 507.

Same—Oral Declarations Incompetent.—Oral declarations of the wife are incompetent to give validity to her deed to her husband of her separate realty, which is void for noncompliance with this section. Shermer v. Dobbins, 176 N. C. 547, 97 S. E. 510.

Under Void Deed Husband Takes Only Curtesy.—Where the husband has had children by the wife of his first marriage, and he has received an invalid deed from her of her separate lands, after her death he has only an estate for life therein as tenant by the curtesy, and under foreclosure sale under a mortgage given by himself and his second wife, only such life estate may be conveyed to the purchaser. Caldwell v. Blount, 193 N. C. 560, 137 S. E. 578.

Defective Paper Good as Color of Title.—A paper writing void for failure of compliance with this section is good as color of title. Best v. Utley, 189 N. C. 356, 127 S. E. 337; Whitten v. Peace, 188 N. C. 298, 124 S. E. 571.

If such deed is not color of title, it is at least some evidence, under the ancient document rule, to be submitted to the jury on the question of adverse possession for 20 or 30 years. Owens v. Blackwood Lbr. Co., 210 N. C. 504, 184 S. E. 804.

Same—Title by Adverse Possession.—It seems well settled that, owing to the unity of husband and wife, adverse possession cannot exist between them so long as the coverture continues. And this is true though the husband holds a deed to the land executed by his wife to him but which is void for failure of certificate required by this section. The possession of the husband of land conveyed to him by the wife under a void deed becomes adverse only after her death and against her heirs. There are authorities which hold that the possession of the husband does not become adverse against the wife's heirs until a demand is made for possession. Kornegay v. Price, 178 N. C. 441, 100 S. E. 883. See Norwood v. Totten, 166 N. C. 648, 82 S. E. 951.

Estoppel of Heirs.—The land in question was held by tenants in common. The husband of one of the tenants bought the interest of another tenant, and thereafter the husband and the heirs entered into a parol agreement, and pursuant thereto deeds were exchanged between each of the heirs and the husband to effect a partition, but in the deed to the husband, signed by his wife as one of the heirs, the wife's privy examination was not taken and the certificate of the clerk was not executed as required by this section. Thereafter the wife, prior to the effective date of the Martin Act (G. S. § 52-2), with the written consent of her husband, conveyed the share alloted to her in the partition. It was held that upon the death of the wife, her husband surviving her, her inchoate dower in the share allotted to him was terminated, and even conceding her joinder in the partition deed to him was inoperative under this section, her heirs may be estopped under the doctrine of estoppel by laches as existing prior to the Martin Act, from setting up any interest in the share alloted to him, since her valid conveyance of the share allotted to her prevents the parties from being placed in statu quo. Martin v. Bundy, 212 N. C. 437, 193 S. E. 831.

Estoppel of Husband.—Where a husband and wife conveyed lands owned by them by entireties to a trustee for the benefit of the husband, which deed was void because not acknowledged as required by this section, the void deed did not estop the husband or his heirs from claiming a one-half undivided interest in the lands vesting in him as tenant in common upon the rendition of an absolute divorce. Fisher v. Fisher, 218 N. C. 42, 9 S. E. (2d) 493.

§ 52-13. Contracts between husband and wife generally; releases.—Contracts between husband and wife not forbidden by § 52-12 and not inconsistent with public policy are valid, and any persons of full age about to be married, and, subject to § 52-12, any married person, may release and quitclaim dower, tenancy by the curtesy, and all other rights which they might respectively acquire or may have acquired by marriage in the property of each other; and such releases may be pleaded in bar of any action or proceeding for the recovery of the rights and estates so released. (Rev., s. 2108; Code, s. 1836; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 28; C. S. 2516.)

Cross References.—See also, §§ 52-5, 52-12, and notes thereto. As to renouncement of rights of dower and curtesy by minors, see § 30-10.

At the common law the husband and wife were regarded as so entirely one as to be incapable of either contracting with or suing one another, but in equity, it was always otherwise, and there, many of their contracts with each other were recognized and enforced. George v. High, 85 N. C. 99, 101.

What Contracts Included.—This section clearly refers throughout to contracts between the husband and the wife, and does not and was not intended to affect the contracts between the husband and the wife and third parties. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 110, 78 S. E. 6.

Separation Agreement Valid.—A deed of separation executed by the husband and wife is not against our policy, when properly made in accordance with section 52-12. Archbell v. Archbell, 158 N. C. 408, 74 S. E. 327.

Mutual Releases Do Not Bar Wife's Right to Alimony.—Mutual releases between husband and wife of their interests in the separate property of one another does not bar the wife from making application for temporary alimony and attorney's fee in a subsequent suit for divorce. Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N. C. 474, 37 S. E. 502.

Rent Notes Given Wife by Husband Valid.—Where a husband occupies his wife's land for nine years, during the whole of which period he received the rents therefrom, under an express agreement with his wife to account to her for such rents, and each year gave his wife a note for the rent, it was held that the notes constitute a valid indebtedness on the part of the husband to his wife. Battle v. Mayo, 120 N. C. 413, 9 S. E. 384.

Money Lent to Husband Recoverable.—In a suit brought by a wife against the administrator of her deceased husband for money "advanced and lent" to him during the coverture, where the marriage took place since the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, it was held that the contract between them was not inconsistent with public policy, and was, therefore, valid. George v. High, 85 N. C. 99.

§ 52-14. Wife's antenuptial contracts and torts.—The liability of a feme sole for any debts owing, or contracts made or damages incurred by her before her marriage shall not be impaired or altered by such marriage. No man by marriage shall incur any liability for any debts owing, or contracts made, or for wrongs done by his wife before the marriage. (Rev., ss. 2101, 2106; Code, ss. 1822, 1823; 1871-2, c. 193, ss. 13, 14; C. S. 2517.)

Justice Has Jurisdiction.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action against a married woman to recover a debt contracted prior to her marriage. Hodges v. Hill, 105 N. C. 130, 10 S. E. 916; Neville v. Pope, 95 N. C. 346; Beville v. Cox, 109 N. C. 265, 13 S. E. 800. And the justice also has jurisdiction where the action is on a contract made or a wrong done by her before the marriage. Neville v. Pope, 95 N. C. 346, 348.

Wife May Appoint Husband as Agent.—A wife may appoint her husband to act as her agent to settle her antenuptial debts in the same manner as one sui juris may appoint an agent, and compliance with the requirements of section 52-12 is not necessary. Stout v. Perry, 152 N. C. 312, 67 S. E. 757.

Where prior to their marriage the wife incurs liability for a negligent injury to the husband the subsequent marriage does not affect her liability. Shirley v. Ayers, 201 N. C. 51, 158 S. E. 840.

§ 52-15. For wife's torts, husband not liable.—No husband shall be liable for damages accruing from any tort committed by his wife, or for any costs or fines incurred in any criminal proceeding against her. (Rev., s. 2105; Code, s. 1833; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 25; 1921, c. 102; C. S. 2518.)

Editor's Note.—The present section, abolishing the husband's liability for the torts of his wife was substituted for the former provision by ch. 102, Public Laws, 1921.

At common law the husband was liable for the tort of his wife, although committed without his knowledge or consent and in his absence, and although living separate at the time, on the ground that "as her legal existence was incorporated in that of her husband, she could not be sued alone, and if the husband was protected from responsibility the injured party would be without redress." Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N. C. 136. This principle was modified by the Act of 1871-2, (this section as it was formerly) so that the husband could only be held liable for torts committed while the husband was living with the wife. Young v. Newsome, 180 N. C. 315, 316, 104 S. E. 660. The case of Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N. C. 136, supra, gives a good discussion of the common law and statutory liability of the husband for the contracts and torts of the wife, by Ashe, J. The following cases were decided under the former provision.

Liability for Slander.—Under the former provisions of this section it has been held that "a husband is liable for slanderous words spoken by his wife in his absence and without his knowledge or consent." Presnell v. Moore, 120 N. C. 390, 27 S. E. 27; Young v. Newsome, 180 N. C. 315, 316, 104 S. E. 660.

Negligence of Clerk in Wife's Store.—The husband living with his wife is jointly liable with her for damages resulting from an injury received by a customer through the negligence of a clerk in her store, if she is liable therefor. Brittingham v. Stadiem, 151 N. C. 299, 66 S. E. 128.

Upon Death of Wife Action Abated.—Where husband and wife are jointly sued for the wrong of the wife and the wife dies, the action abates. Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N. C. 136.

§ 52-16. Estate by the curtesy.—Every man who has married or shall marry a woman, and by her has issue born alive, shall, after her death intestate as to the lands, tenements and hereditaments hereinafter mentioned, be entitled to an estate as tenant by the curtesy during his life, in all the lands, tenements and hereditaments whereof his said wife was beneficially seized in deed during the coverture, wherein the said issue was capable of inheriting, whether the said seizin was of a legal or of an equitable estate; except that when the wife has obtained a divorce a mensa et thoro, and is not living with her husband at her death, or when the husband has abandoned his wife, or has maliciously turned her out of doors, and they are not living together at her death; or if the husband has separated himself from his wife, and is living in adultery at her death, he shall not be tenant by the curtesy of her lands, tenements and hereditaments. (Rev., s. 2102; Code, s. 1838; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 30; C. S. 2519.)

Cross References.—As to divorce a mensa et thoro and grounds therefor, see § 50-7. As to dower, see § 30-4 et seq.

This section retains curtesy consummate in practically its common law form, but the rights of the husband in his wife's property have been so cut down by the Constitution, by statutes, and by pronouncements of the court, that his estate by curtesy initiate is of little value. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 273.

Where the court finds that a wife died intestate seized in fee of certain lands, and left her husband surviving and a child by such husband, the husband is entitled to an estate by the curtesy in the lands. Stockton v. Maney, 212 N. C. 231, 193 S. E. 137.

Actual Seizure Necessary at Common Law.—At the common law, it was essential that the wife, or the husband in the right of the wife, should have seizin in deed—that is, actual seizin—actual possession of the estate, to entitle the husband as tenant by the curtesy. Nixon v. Williams, 95 N. C. 103, 104.

Incidents of Common Law Curtesy Initiate Drastically Limited.—The common law estate of the husband as tenant by the curtesy initiate in the lands of his wife was abolished by sec. 6, Art. X, of the Constitution, and now, by virtue of that provision and the statutes passed in pursuance thereof, while the husband has an interest, the right to enter upon and occupy the land with the wife, he has no estate therein until her death. Walker v. Long, 109 N. C. 510, 14 S. E. 299.

When Right Attaches.—After a child of the marriage has been born alive and capable of inheriting, the husband is tenant by curtesy initiate in his wife's lands, and as such has a valuable right. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6.

Husband Has a Freehold Interest.—A husband has, by the curtesy initiate, a freehold interest, but not an estate, in the property. Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 508, 510, 14 S. E. 301.

A Bare Right of Occupancy.—The only right attaching to tenancy by the curtesy initiate in the wife's real estate is the bare right of joint occupancy with the wife with the right of ingress and egress. Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 508, 14 S. E. 301.

A tenant by curtesy has an insurable interest in buildings and structures on the lands. Stockton v. Maney, 212 N. C. 231, 193 S. E. 137.

Nothing else appearing, a policy of fire insurance which a tenant by the curtesy procures to be issued to him, insures only his interest in the dwelling insured, and upon its destruction by fire, the life tenant is entitled to the entire proceeds of the policy, and the remainderman has no interest in other property bought by the life tenant with the proceeds thereof. Id.

Curtesy Consummate Is Not Changed.—Tenancy by the curtesy consummate, remains as at common law. The husband may sell such interest, Long v. Graeber, 64 N. C. 431. And it is liable to sale under execution against him after his wife's death. McCaskill v. McCormac, 99 N. C. 548, 6 S. E. 423; Thompson v. Wiggins, 109 N. C. 508, 509, 14 S. E. 301.

Husband a Necessary Party.—A husband, tenant by curtesy, has an interest in his wife's land and is a necessary party to a suit concerning it. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 110, 78 S. E. 6; McGlennery v. Miller, 90 N. C. 215.

Joinder of Minor Husband.—It was formerly held that when the husband, being a minor, joins in the deed to lands of his wife, the conveyance is voidable, subject to his affirmance or ratification when he becomes of age; and where the deed has been disapproved in apt time by him, the conveyance, requiring his valid or statutory consent, is void. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N. C. 105, 78 S. E. 6. However, in view of § 30-10, a minor spouse is now empowered to renounce dower or curtesy or to consent to a conveyance of real property with the same effect as though of age.

Effect of Divorce a Mensa.—Where a wife has obtained a divorce a mensa et thoro, whatever rights the husband had in her lands are suspended until a reconciliation shall be effected, or until by her death he may become tenant by the curtesy consummate, and therefore she is entitled to recover from him the possession and use of her lands. Taylor v. Taylor, 112 N. C. 134, 16 S. E. 1019.

Applied in Caskey v. West, 210 N. C. 240, 186 S. E. 324.

§ 52-18: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

Art. 2. Acts Barring Reciprocal Property Rights of Husband and Wife.

§ 52-19. Divorce a vinculo and felonious slaying a bar.—When a marriage is dissolved a vinculo, the parties respectively, or when either party is convicted of the felonious slaying of the other or of being accessory before the fact of such felonious slaying, the party so convicted, shall thereby lose all his or her right to an estate by the curtesy, or dower, and all right to any year's provision or distributive share in the personal property of the other, and all right to administer on the estate of the other, and every right and estate in the real or personal estate of the other party, which by settlement before or after marriage was settled upon such party in consideration of the marriage only. (Rev., s. 2109; Code, s. 1843; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 42; C. S. 2522.)

Cross References.—As to absolute divorce, see § 50-5. See also § 28-10.

Editor's Note.—In the case of Owens v. Owens, 100 N. C. 240, 6 S. E. 794, a wife who murdered her husband was held to be entitled to her right of dower irrespective of her crime. The Legislature the following year adopted this section.

Application to Estates by Entireties. — This and the following section deal with the rights of husband and wife growing out of the marriage relation, such as dower, curtesy, and the like, and has no application to estate by entireties. McKinnon, etc., Co. v. Caulk, 167 N. C. 411, 83 S. E. 559.

In Bryant v. Bryant, 193 N. C. 372, 137 S. E. 188, it was held that where husband and wife hold estate by entireties, and the husband has murdered the wife, and her expectancy of life has been legally determined to have been longer than his own, equity will decree that he hold the legal title to lands held by them in entireties in trust for her heirs at law until his death, subject to his right of management and the use of the rents and profits for his own life. As this decision was based upon equitable principles, it was not necessary to determine whether the provision of this section, in reference to the felonious slaying of the husband or wife, which was enacted after the decision in Owens v. Owens, 100 N. C. 240, 6 S. E. 954, embraces estates held by entireties.

For comment on Bryant v. Bryant, see 5 N. C. L. Rev. 374.

Husband's Rights Terminated by Divorce. — Personal choses in action which belong to the wife, reduced into possession by the husband, in the words of a recent author, "remain his, but as to rights dependent on marriage, and not actually vested, a full divorce or the legal annihilation ends them." Schouler's Dom. Rel., section 221, and authorities cited in the notes; Arrington v. Arrington, 102 N. C. 491, 514, 9 S. E. 200.

Effect of Valid Foreign Divorce.—Where a wife who had resided here, bona fide removed to Illinois, and instituted an action for divorce in one of the courts of that state and the husband, in this State, appeared by attorney and defended the action there, it was held that he was bound by a decree for divorce on a verdict rendered in that action, and that his property rights in her estate here were terminated from its date. Arrington v. Arrington, 102 N. C. 491, 9 S. E. 200.

When a spouse is beneficiary, the effect of a subsequent divorce on his right to take might be controlled by this section. See 12 N. C. Law Rev. 376.

When Homicide Is Admitted.—The provisions of this section do not require a conviction of the offense where it is admitted that the homicide had been committed. Parker v. Potter, 200 N. C. 348, 349, 157 S. E. 68.

§ 52-20. Wife's elopement or divorce a mensa at husband's suit a bar.—If a married woman elopes with an adulterer, or willfully and without just cause abandons her husband and refuses to live with him, and is not living with her husband at his death, or if a divorce from bed and board is granted on the application of the husband, she shall thereby lose all right to dower in the lands and tenements of her husband, and also all right to a year's provision, and to a distributive share from the personal property of her husband, and all right to administration on his estate, and also all right and estate in the property of her husband, settled upon her upon the sole consideration of the marriage, before or after marriage; and such elopement may be pleaded in bar of any action, or proceeding, for the recovery of such rights and estates; and in case of such elopement, abandonment, or divorce, the husband may sell and convey his real estate as if he were unmarried, and the wife shall thereafter be barred of all claim and right of dower therein. (Rev., s. 2110; Code, s. 1844; 1893, c. 153, ss. 1, 2, 3; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 44; C. S. 2523.)

Cross References.—See also § 30-4. As to forfeiture of wife's right to administer and to distributive share in personal estate, see § 28-11.

Wife Deprived of Dower.—A wife who commits adultery and is not living with her husband at the time of his death is thereby deprived of her dower. Phillips v. Wiseman, 131 N. C. 402, 42 S. E. 861.

§ 52-21. Husband's living in adultery, etc., or divorce a mensa at wife's suit a bar.—If a husband separates from his wife and lives in adultery, or willfully and without just cause abandons his wife and refuses to live with her, and such conduct on his part is not condoned by her, or if a divorce from bed and board is granted on the application of the wife, he shall thereby lose all right to curtesy in the real property of the wife, and also all right and estate of whatever character in and to her personal property, as administrator, or otherwise; and also any right and estate in the property of the wife which may have been settled upon him solely in consideration of the marriage by any settlement before or after marriage, and in case of such adultery and abandonment or divorce, the wife may sell and convey her real property as if she were unmarried, and the husband, if there has been no condonation at the time of the conveyance, shall thereafter be barred of all claim and right to curtesy in such real property. (Rev., s. 2111; Code, s. 1845; 1893, c. 153, s. 4; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 45; C. S. 2524.)

Cross References.—As to estate by curtesy and forfeiture, see § 52-16. See also § 28-12.

Possibility of Condonation Recognized.—This section recognizes the possibilites of condonation and the resumption of the marriage relation. Joyner v. Joyner, 151 N. C. 181, 183, 65 S. E. 896.

Art. 3. Free Traders.

§ 52-22. Requisites of writing to make her free trader.— Every married woman of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, with the consent of her husband, may become a free trader in the manner following:

1. By antenuptial contract, proved and registered, as hereinafter required; or,

2. By her and her husband signing a writing in the following or some equivalent form:

A. B., of the age of twenty-one years or upwards, wife of C. D., of ..... county, with his consent, testified by his signature hereto, enters herself as a free trader from the date of the registration hereof.

(Signed)

A. B.
C. D.

Witness: E. F.

Registered this ..... day of ....., 19....

The said writing may be proved by the subscribing witness or acknowledged by the parties before any officer authorized to take the probate of deeds, and shall be filed and registered in the office of the register of deeds for the county in which the woman proposes to have her principal or only place of business. (Rev., s. 2112; Code, s. 1827; 1871-2, c. 193, ss. 18, 19; C. S. 2525.)

Effect of Martin Act.—That the Martin Act practically constitutes a married woman a free trader, see under section 52-2, analysis line, "Powers Conferred," catchline, "Practically Makes Free Traders."

Legislature Has Broad Powers.—In Hall v. Walker, 118 N. C. 377, 380, 24 S. E. 6, the court said: "There is no constitutional inhibition on the power of the Legislature to declare where and how the wife may become a free trader. Const., Art. X, sec. 6, was not intended to disable but to protect her." Lancaster v. Lancaster, 178 N. C. 22, 23, 100 S. E. 120.

Section for Benefit of Married Women.—This section was passed for the benefit of married women who wish to engage in business, in order to give them credit, and it was not intended for the benefit of their debtors. Wilkes v. Allen, 131 N. C. 279, 281, 42 S. E. 616.

Does Not Make Wife Free to Convey.—By becoming a registered free-trader, a married woman is not enabled to convey her real property, without joinder of her husband and without her privy examination. Council v. Pridgen, 153

N. C. 443, 449, 69 S. E. 404. However, conveyances executed by a free trader without privy examination and the written assent of her husband prior to Sept. 24, 1913, were validated by P. L. Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 54.

§ 52-23. Writing effective from registration.—From the time of the registration of the writing mentioned in § 52-22, the married woman therein mentioned shall be a free trader, and authorized to contract and deal as if she were a feme sole. (Rev., s. 2113; Code, s. 1828; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 20; C. S. 2526.)

Cross Reference.—As to Martin Act and its effect, see § 52-2 et seq. and annotations.

Section Does Not Include Conveyance.—The words "free-trader," "contract" and "deal," refer to contracts and trades in some business enterprises, and are restricted under this section to the dealings of the wife as a free-trader with reference to her contracts in the pursuit of the business she is engaged in; and the word "deal," taken in its legal significance, does not enlarge this meaning so as to confer upon a married woman power to convey her real estate. Council v. Pridgen, 153 N. C. 443, 69 S. E. 404.

Justice Has Jurisdiction.—A justice of the peace has jurisdiction of an action against a married woman in regard to liabilities incurred by her while she is a free trader. Hodges v. Hill, 105 N. C. 130, 131, 10 S. E. 916; Neville v. Pope, 95 N. C. 346.

§ 52-24. Certified copy as evidence.—A copy of such writing, duly proved and registered and certified by the register of the county in which the same is registered, is admissible in evidence as certified copies of registered deeds are or may be allowed to be. (Rev., s. 2114; Code, s. 1829; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 21; C. S. 2527.)

Evidence of Being Free Trader.—Where it is averred, and not denied, that a married woman is a free trader, and the judgment fastens no personal liability upon her it was held that she was bound by the judgment. Roseman v. Roseman, 127 N. C. 494, 497, 37 S. E. 518. In this case Montgomery, J. dissented holding that the only evidence competent to prove that a married woman is a free trader is the registered writing or a duly certified copy.

§ 52-25. Revocation by entry on record and publication.—The right of a married woman to act as a free trader may be ended at any time by an entry by her, or by her attorney, in the margin of the registration of the writing above mentioned, to the effect that from the date of such marginal entry she ceases so to act, and by publication to that effect weekly for three weeks in some newspaper published in the county in which she had her principal or only place of business, or if there is none so published, then in any other convenient newspaper. But such entry and publication shall not impair any liabilities incurred previously thereto, nor prevent such married woman from becoming liable afterwards to any person whom she may fraudulently induce to deal with her as a free trader. (Rev., s. 2115; Code, s. 1830; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 22; C. S. 2528.)

Division X. Corporations and Associations.

Chapter 53. Banks.

Art. 1. Definitions.

§ 53-1. "Bank," "surplus," "undivided profits," and other words defined.—The following definitions shall be applied to the terms used in this chapter:

The term "bank" shall be construed to mean any corporation, partnership, firm, or individual receiving, soliciting, or accepting money or its equivalent on deposit as a business: Provided, however, this definition shall not be construed to include building and loan associations, Morris plan companies, industrial banks or trust companies not receiving money on deposit.

The term "surplus" means a fund created pursuant to the provisions of this chapter by a bank from payments by stockholders or from its net earnings or undivided profits which, to the amount specified and by any additions thereto set apart and designated as such, is not available for the payment of dividends, and cannot be used for the payment of expenses or losses so long as such bank has undivided profits.

The term "undivided profits" means the credit balance of the profit and loss account of any bank.

The term "net earnings" means the excess of the gross earnings of any bank over the expenses and losses chargeable against such earnings during any dividend period.

The term "time deposits" means all deposits, the payment of which cannot be legally required within thirty days.

The term "demand deposits" means all deposits, the payment of which can be legally required within thirty days.

The term "insolvency" means: (a) when a bank cannot meet its deposit liabilities as they become due in the regular course of business; (b) when the actual cash market value of its assets is insufficient to pay its liabilities to depositors and other creditors; (c) when its reserve shall fall under the amount required by this chapter, and it shall fail to make good such reserve within thirty days after being required to do so by the commissioner of banks; (d) whenever the undivided profits and surplus shall be inadequate to cover losses of the bank, whereby an impairment of the capital stock is created. (1921, c. 4, s. 1; 1927, c. 47, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 216(a).)

Cross References.—As to definitions of "commercial and business paper" and "trade acceptance," see § 53-55. As to definition of "bank acceptance," see § 53-56. As to definition of "goods," see § 53-56. As to definition of "reserve," see § 53-51. As to definition of "Federal Reserve Act," "Federal Reserve Board," "Federal Reserve Banks," and "member banks," see § 53-61. As to definition of "banks" as used in the Negotiable Instruments Law, see § 25-1. As to definition of "demand and time deposits" under the prior law, see C. S. 226. As to demand deposits under present law, see § 53-65. As to definition of "available funds" and "cash" under the prior law, see C. S. 226.

Editor's Note.—In 1921 the legislature passed an act which was intended, it would seem, to supplement the provisions of chapter five of the Consolidated Statutes by enlarging the corporation commission's powers of supervision over banks and making more specific regulations for the business of banking. This statute did not supersede or repeal any of chapter five of the Consolidated Statutes except those provisions which are in conflict with or repugnant to it. Mr. Justice Adams, in speaking of the effect of the banking act of 1921 in Litchfield v. Roper, 192 N. C. 202, 205, 134 S. E. 651, said: "A revision or codification of statutes as generally understood signifies a written expression of the entire body of the law on the particular subject; but, where the scheme of the revision is intended as a continuation of existing laws together with such changes as are necessary to make them more effective or to harmonize them, the revised laws will not usually operate as a repeal. The mere enactment of a part of a former statute will not necessarily repeal the part which is not included in the subsequent act. * * * After comparing the act of 1921 with chapter 5 of the Consolidated Statutes we are by no means convinced that the later statutes were intended by the Legislature as a repeal of the old law." He construed the act of 1921 as a supplement to the prior law.

Editor's notes citing corresponding section of the prior law have been placed under the sections of this chapter, and, in many cases, comparisons have been made of old and new.

It should be borne in mind that in many instances this act is a copy of the National Banking Act and that in such cases the constructions of the National Act by the courts of the United States are persuasive authority as to the proper construction of this act in such cases.

There is no section in the prior law which corresponds to this section although various terms are defined here and there throughout the law.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" in the last sentence of this section.

The definition of "insolvency" of a bank as set forth in this section is correct. State v. Shipman, 202 N. C. 518, 163 S. E. 657.

Art. 2. Creation.

§ 53-2. How incorporated. — Any number of persons, not less than five, who may be desirous of forming a company and engaging in the business of establishing, maintaining, and operating banks of discount and deposit to be known as commercial banks, or engaging in the business of establishing, maintaining, and operating offices of loan and deposits to be known as savings banks, or of establishing, maintaining, and operating banks having departments for both classes of business, or operating banks engaged in doing a trust, fiduciary, and surety business, shall be incorporated in the manner following and in no other way; that is to say, such persons shall, by a certificate of incorporation under their hands and seals set forth:

1. The name of the corporation; no name shall be used already in use by another existing corporation organized under the laws of this state or of the congress, or so nearly similar thereto as to lead to uncertainty or confusion.

2. The location of its principal office in this state.

3. The nature of its business, whether that of a commercial bank, savings bank, trust company, or a combination of two or more or all of such classes of business.

4. The amount of its authorized capital stock which shall be divided into shares of ten, twenty, twenty-five, fifty or one hundred dollars each; the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business, which shall not be less than twenty-five thousand dollars in cities or towns of three thousand population or less; nor less than thirty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds three thousand, but does not exceed ten thousand; nor less than fifty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds ten thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars in cities and towns having a population of more than twenty-five thousand; the population to be ascertained by the last preceding national census: Provided, that this subsection shall not apply to banks organized and doing business prior to its adoption. Provided, further, that fractional shares may be issued for the purpose of complying with the requirements of § 53-88.

5. The names and postoffice addresses of subscribers for stock, and the number of shares subscribed by each; the aggregate of such subscriptions shall be the amount of the capital with which the company will commence business.

6. Period, if any, limited for the duration of the company. (1921, c. 4, s. 2; 1927, c. 47, s. 2; 1929, c. 72, s. 1; C. S. 217(a).)

Cross References.—As to incorporation of a general corporation, see §§ 55-2 et seq. As to power to issue non par bank stock, see § 55-73 et seq.

Editor's Notes.—With the exception of a few changes which will be pointed out, this section is a substantial reenactment of C. S. Sec. 216.

Formerly three or more persons could incorporate for the purpose of establishing and operating banks.

There was a provision in subsection 2 that no branch office or business could be established and maintained without the approval of the corporation commission. This requirement has not been done away with but an entire section providing for the establishment of branches has been inserted (sec. 53-62) so that such a provision in this section would be superfluous.

The next changes came in the provision as to the amount each share of stock should represent; in raising the minimum capital stock and the population of the cities and towns in which such minimum might be maintained; and in changing the minimum of capital stock in cities and towns having a certain population. The Act of 1929 inserted in paragraph four the words: "ten, twenty, twenty-five."

The prior provision requiring that if more than one class of stock was created, the certificate must describe the different classes and state the terms upon which each was created, was not inserted in this section.

The proviso at the end of the fourth subsection of this section was added by the 1927 amendment.

The word "corporation" appearing in the sixth subsection of the prior section was changed to the word "company" as used in this section.

Cited in Cocke v. Hood, 205 N. C. 832, 170 S. E. 637.

Editor's Note. — The first sentence of this section is identical in meaning with the first part of C. S. sec. 217. However the latter part of this section makes a radical departure from the provisions of the prior section. Formerly it was the duty of the secretary of state to record the certificate in the corporation book in his office if the certificate was in accordance with law, and then, upon the payment of the required fees, it became his duty to issue two certified copies of the certificate of incorporation and probate, one to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court and the other in the office of the corporation commission (now the commissioner of banks). Under this arrangement the secretary did not have power to inquire into the facts and circumstances connected with the formation of the proposed corporation and pass upon the bona fide character thereof. His power was limited to inspecting the certificate to ascertain if it complied with the requirements of the law. Nor did the corporation commission or any other officer or agency have power to inquire into the good faith etc., of the incorporators. Thus, it was not necessary for the Secretary of State to transmit a copy of the certificate to the corporation commission and await its action upon the merits of the certificate before issuing the certified copies to the superior court clerk and the corporation commission (now the commissioner of banks). Thus, under the prior law, upon the performance of the ministerial duties of inspecting the certificate and issuing the copies, the proposed corporation became a corporate entity.

Refusal to Issue Charter.—Where plaintiffs applied for an industrial bank charter, under this and § 53-145, and their application was not passed upon by the secretary of state on the advice and recommendation of the commissioner of banks, acting in accordance with the statutes, and plaintiffs sued to compel the issuance of a charter, alleging no capricious acts, bad faith or disregard of law by the state officers, the complaint did not state a cause of action and was not sufficient as a petition for certiorari or as an application for mandamus. Pue v. Hood, 222 N. C. 310, 22 S. E. (2d) 896.

§ 53-4. Examination by commissioner; when certification to be refused.—Upon receipt of a copy of the certificate of incorporation of the proposed bank, the commissioner of banks shall at once examine into all the facts connected with the formation of such proposed corporation, including its location and proposed stockholders, and if it appears that such corporation, if formed, will be lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the commissioner of banks shall so certify to the secretary of state, who shall thereupon issue and record such certificate of incorporation. But the commissioner of banks may refuse to so certify to the secretary of state, if upon examination and investigation he has reason to believe that the proposed corporation is formed for any other than legitimate banking business, or that the character, general fitness, and responsibility of the persons proposed as stockholders in such corporation are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which said bank is proposed to be located; or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment, or that the name of the proposed corporation is likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose; or if the proposed name is the same as one already adopted, or appropriated by an existing bank in this state, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public. (1921, c. 4, s. 4; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(c).)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the prior banking laws corresponding to this section. As was stated in the editor's note under the preceding section, the proposed corporation was entitled to become a body corporate upon filing a certificate, conforming to the requirements of the law, with the secretary of state, and no investigation into the purposes, qualifications, etc., of the incorporators was necessary.

Duty of Commissioner.—This section was complete in every respect when it left the hands of the legislature and the duty imposed upon and the discretion vested in the commissioner of banks bears only upon the question whether certain conditions exist justifying the creation of the proposed bank under the terms and procedure laid down in the statute. His action and the certificate issued thereon merely constitute the prescribed procedure to determine whether the franchise applied for was grantable under the law. Pue v. Hood, 222 N. C. 310, 314, 22 S. E. (2d) 896.

§ 53-5. Certificate of incorporation, when certified.—Upon receipt of such certificate from the commissioner of banks, the secretary of state shall, if said certificate of incorporation be in accordance with law, cause the same to be recorded in his office in a book to be kept for that purpose, and known as the corporation book, and he shall, upon the payment of the organization tax and fees, certify under his official seal two copies of the said certificate of incorporation and probates, one of which shall forthwith be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of said corporation in this state shall or is to be located, in a book to be known as the record of incorporations, and the other certified copy shall be filed in the office of the commissioner of banks, and thereupon the said persons shall be a body politic and corporate under the name stated in such certificate. The said certificate of incorporation, or a copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state or the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the same is recorded, or by the commissioner of banks, under their respective seals, shall be evidence in all courts and places, and shall, in all judicial proceedings, be deemed prima facie evidence of the complete organization and incorporation of the company purporting thereby to have been established. The charter of any bank which fails to complete its organization and open for business to the public within six months after the date of filing its certificate of incorporation with the secretary of state shall be void: Provided, however, the commissioner of banks may for cause extend the limitation herein imposed. (1921, c. 4, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(d).)

Editor's Note. — With the exception of the requirement that the secretary must await the receipt mentioned before issuing the certified copies, and the last sentence and the proviso which were added by the present act, this section is identical with the similar provisions of C. S. sec. 217. The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Who May Take Advantage of Defect in Organization.— A defect in the organization of a bank because of a failure to begin business within the specified time can be taken advantage of only by a direct proceeding by the state for that purpose. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35. This case was decided under the law prior to this section. The time limit within which to begin business was incorporated in the charter.—Ed. Note.

So it was held in the Boyd case that such a failure could not affect the validity of whatever lien a bank had upon the shares of stock of a stockholder indebted to it. [Only in case of a debt previously contracted in good faith may a bank purchase or receive pledge of its own stock under the present law. See sec. 53-64.]

§ 53-6. Payment of capital stock.—The capital stock of every bank shall be fully paid in, in cash, before it shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to commence business and the full payment in cash of the capital stock shall be certified to the commissioner of banks under oath by the president and cashier of the said bank. Provided, that the stock sold by any bank in process of organization, or for an increase of the capital stock, shall be accounted for to the bank in the full amount paid for the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association, or corporation for selling such stock. The commissioner of banks shall refuse authority to commence business to any bank if commissions or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid by it, or by any one in its behalf, to any person, association, or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 6; 1927, c. 47, s. 3; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(e).)

Cross Reference.—As to the similar provision relating to industrial banks, see § 53-140.

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the former law, C. S. sec. 218, was confined to the subject-matter now contained in the first sentence. However it was provided that at least one half of the capital stock which should not be less than $5,000 should be paid in. The section also contained provisions regulating the payment of the balance. While the $5,000 provision was not inserted in the section as re-enacted in 1921, the requirement that only one-half of the capital stock need be paid in was not changed until the 1927 amendment, and this was the only change made by the amendment. Prior to the 1927 enactment the section, and this applies to the prior law as well, contained provisions regulating the payment of the balance of the capital stock. There is no occasion for such provisions since the 1927 amendment and they were therefore omitted by it. C. S., sec. 218 was clearly superseded, being in conflict with the present law.

The remaining part of the section is new with the act of 1921, and is intended to prevent a payment of commissions to the promoters for the sale of stock, or an impairment of capital by reserving a part of the sum paid in as compensation for the sale of stock. Thus the proviso requires that the full amount for which the stock was sold shall be accounted for to the bank, and the following sentences specifically provides that no commissions shall be paid for the sale of stock. The authority to commence business is denied if the provisions are violated.

§ 53-7. Statement filed before beginning business. — Before such company shall begin the business of banking, banking and trust, fiduciary, or surety business, there shall be filed with the commissioner of banks a statement under oath by the president or cashier, containing the names of all the directors and officers, with the date of their election or appointment, term of office, residence, and postoffice address of each, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith and the amount of money paid in on account of the capital stock. Nothing shall be received in payment of capital stock but money. (1921, c. 4, s. 7; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(f).)

Editor's Note. — This section is identical in meaning with the first two sentences of sec. 219 of the Consolidated Statutes. Section 53-8 covers the subject matter of the remaining part of sec. 219, except for one sentence which is repeated in the Editor's Note to sec. 53-8.

§ 53-8. Authorized to begin business. — Upon filing of such statement, the commissioner of banks shall examine into its affairs, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each director, the amount of capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith, and whether such corporation has complied with all the provisions of law required to entitle it to engage in business. If upon such examination it appears to the commissioner of banks that it is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, banking and trust, fiduciary, or surety business, he shall give to such corporation a certificate signed by the commissioner of banks, that such corporation has complied with all the provisions of the law required to be complied with, before commencing the business of banking, and that such corporation is authorized to commence business. (1921, c. 4, s. 8; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(g).)

Editor's Note. — This section covers the same subject-matter as the latter part of section 219 of the Consolidated Statutes, except for the last sentence of sec. 219 which reads as follows: "The corporation commission may withhold from any such corporation its certificate authorizing the commencement of business whenever it has reason to believe that the stockholders have formed the same for any other purpose than the legitimate objects contemplated by this chapter."

This section requires a stricter investigation than was formerly required. Under the prior law, an examination into the affairs of the organization was discretionary; now it is made a duty. This strictness is further manifested by the fact that the prior law did not enumerate, as does this section, the particulars to which especial attention should be given.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" or "commission" wherever these words appeared in this section.

§ 53-9. Transactions preliminary to beginning business.—No such corporation shall transact any business except such as is incidental and necessarily preliminary to its organization until it has been authorized to do so by the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 9; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(h).)

Editor's Note. — There was no express provision corresponding to this section in the prior law.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-10. Increase of capital stock.—A corporation doing business under the provisions of this chapter may increase its capital stock as provided by law for other corporations upon a vote in favor of the increase of two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders in its voting powers. (1921, c. 4, s. 10; C. S. 217(i).)

Cross Reference.—As to the manner of increasing the capital stock of corporations generally, see § 55-31.

Editor's Note. — While there was no express provision in the prior law which corresponds to this section, section 236 of the Consolidated Statutes provided that the general corporation law so far as applicable and not inconsistent with the banking laws should apply to banks, and it is probable that under that section the capital stock could be increased just as it is under this section.

§ 53-11. Decrease of capital stock.—A corporation doing business under the provisions of this chapter may reduce its capital stock in the manner provided for other corporations upon a vote in favor of the decrease of two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders with voting powers: Provided, that no bank shall reduce its capital stock to an amount less than the minimum required by law. Such reduction shall not be valid or warrant the cancellation of stock certificates until it has been approved by the commissioner of banks. Such approval shall not be given except upon a finding by the commissioner of banks that the security of existing creditors of the corporation will not be impaired. (1921, c. 4, s. 11; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(j).)

Cross Reference.—As to manner of decreasing stock of corporations generally, see § 55-66.

Editor's Note. — While there was no corresponding section in the prior law, it is very probable that a bank could decrease its stock under the provisions of sec. 236 of the Consolidated Statutes which made applicable all the general corporation law which was not in conflict with the banking laws.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-12. Consolidation of banks. — A bank may consolidate with or transfer its assets and liabilities to another bank. Before such consolidation or transfer shall become effective, each bank concerned in such consolidation or transfer shall file, or cause to be filed, with the commissioner of banks, certified copies of all proceedings had by its directors and stockholders, which said stockholders' proceedings shall set forth that holders of at least two-thirds of the stock voted in the affirmative on the proposition of consolidation or transfer. Such stockholders' proceedings shall also contain a complete copy of the agreement made and entered into between said banks, with reference to such consolidation or transfer. Upon the filing of such stockholders' and directors' proceedings as aforesaid, the commissioner of banks shall cause to be made an examination of each bank to determine whether the interests of the depositors, creditors, and stockholders of each bank are protected, and that such consolidation or transfer is made for legitimate purposes, and his consent to or rejection of such consolidation or transfer shall be based upon such examination. No such consolidation or transfer shall be made without the consent of the commissioner of banks. The expense of such examination shall be paid by such banks. Notice of such consolidation or transfer shall be published for four weeks before or after the same is to become effective, at the discretion of the commissioner of banks, in a newspaper published in a city, town, or county in which each of said banks is located, and a certified copy thereof shall be filed with the commissioner of banks. In case of either transfer or consolidation the rights of creditors shall be preserved unimpaired, and the respective companies deemed to be in existence to preserve such rights for a period of three years. (1921, c. 4, s. 12; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(k).)

Cross References.—As to merger of corporations generally, see § 55-165 et seq. As to liquidation of banks, see § 53-20 and notes thereto.

Presumption of Approval by Corporation Commission.—Where under the provisions of this section a State bank under jurisdiction of the Corporation Commission has transferred its assets to another State bank, the latter assuming the former's liabilities under a consolidation agreement, it will be presumed that the Corporation Commission had notice or knowledge of the transaction coming within the scope of its duties, and had approved of the transaction as the statute requires. Corporation Commission v. Stockholders, 199 N. C. 586, 155 S. E. 445.

§ 53-13. Consolidated banks deemed one bank.—In case of consolidation when the agreement of consolidation is made, and a duly certified copy thereof is filed with the secretary of state, together with a certified copy of the approval of the commissioner of banks to such consolidation, the banks, parties thereto, shall be held to be one company, possessed of the rights, privileges, powers, and franchises of the several companies, but subject to all the provisions of law under which it is created. The directors and other officers named in the agreement of consolidation shall serve until the first annual meeting for election of officers and directors, the date for which shall be named in the agreement. On filing such agreement, all and singular, the property and rights of every kind of the several companies shall thereby be transferred and vested in such new company, and be as fully its property as they were of the companies parties to the agreement. (1921, c. 4, s. 13; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(l).)

§ 53-14. Reorganization.—Whenever any bank under the laws of this state or of the United States is authorized to dissolve, and shall have taken the necessary steps to effect dissolution, it shall be lawful for a majority of the directors of such bank, upon authority in writing of the owners of two-thirds of its capital stock, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, to execute articles of incorporation as provided in this chapter, which articles, in addition to the requirements of law, shall further set forth the authority derived from the stockholders of such national bank or state bank, and upon filing the same as hereinbefore provided for the organization of banks, the same shall become a bank under the laws of this state, and thereupon all assets, real and personal, of the dissolved national or state bank shall by operation of law be vested in and become the property of such state bank, subject to all liabilities of such national or state bank not liquidated under the laws of the United States or this State before such reorganization. (1921, c. 4, s. 14; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 217(m).)

Editor's Note. — This section is identical in its provisions to C. S. sec. 235, the prior law, except that the references to state banks in the last lines of this section have been inserted.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-15. Consolidation of banks and insurance corporations.—Banking corporations, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, and in conformity with such requirements and regulations as the state banking commissioner may prescribe, and insurance corporations, with the approval of the insurance commissioner, and in conformity with such requirements and regulations as he may prescribe may merge and consolidate under the provisions of §§ 55-165 through 55-170. (1925, c. 77, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; 1943, c. 450, s. 2.)

Prior to the 1943 amendment this section also applied to building and loan corporations.

§ 53-16. Consolidation of state banks or trust companies with national banking associations.—Any bank or trust company incorporated under the laws of North Carolina may be consolidated with any national banking association, or associations, under the charter of such national banking association or under a new charter issued to such consolidated association, upon such terms and conditions as may be lawfully agreed upon, provided that the laws of North Carolina governing the consolidation of State banks shall be first complied with as to the consolidation of such bank or trust company. When such consolidation shall have been effected and approved, as provided by law, all the rights, franchises and interests of such bank or trust company so consolidated with the national banking association, or national banking associations, in and to every species of property, real, personal and mixed, and choses in action thereto belonging, shall be deemed to be transferred to and vested in such national banking association into which it is consolidated, without any deed or other transfer, and the said consolidated national banking association shall hold and enjoy the same and all rights of property, franchises and interests, including the right of succession as trustee, executor, administrator, or in any other fiduciary capacity, in the same manner, and to the same extent, as was held and enjoyed by such bank or trust company so consolidated. In case of such consolidation the rights of creditors of such bank or trust company shall be preserved unimpaired and all lawful debts and liabilities of such bank or trust company shall be deemed to have been assumed by such consolidated national banking association. (1929, c. 148, s. 1.)

§ 53-17. Fiduciary powers and liabilities of banks or trust companies merging or transferring assets and liabilities.—Whenever any bank or trust company, organized under the laws of North Carolina or the Acts of Congress, and doing business in this state, shall consolidate or merge with or shall sell to and transfer its assets and liabilities to any other bank or trust company doing business in this state, as provided by the laws of North Carolina or the Acts of Congress, all the then existing fiduciary rights, powers, duties and liabilities of such consolidating or merging or transferring bank or banks and/or trust companies, including the rights, powers, duties and liabilities as executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, and/or any other fiduciary capacity, whether under appointment by order of court, will, deed, or other instrument, shall, upon the effective date of such consolidation or merger or sale and transfer, vest in, devolve upon, and thereafter be performed by, the transferee bank or the consolidated or merged bank or trust company, and such latter bank or trust company shall be deemed substituted for and shall have all the rights and powers of the transferring bank or trust company. (1931, c. 207; 1941, c. 80.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers and liabilities of merged corporations generally, see §§ 55-169, 55-170 and 55-172.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the provisions relating to sale and transfer of assets and liabilities. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 457. See also, 9 N. C. L. Rev. 398.

A distinction is drawn between "consolidation" and "merger." See Braak v. Hobbs, 210 N. C. 379, 186 S. E. 500.

Consolidated Bank Succeeds to Power as Trustee under Deed of Trust.—A bank, created as a result of a consolidation of several state banks, may properly exercise the power of sale contained in a deed of trust in which one of its constituent banks was named trustee, upon default by the trustor, since under this section, the consolidated bank succeeds to such power. Braak v. Hobbs, 210 N. C. 379, 186 S. E. 500.

This section, although in form an independent statute, is in reality an amendment of chapter 77, Public Laws of North Carolina, 1925, and is therefore applicable in the instant case, although the deed of trust involved was executed prior to its enactment. Braak v. Hobbs, 210 N. C. 379, 384, 186 S. E. 500. See Bateman v. Sterrett, 201 N. C. 59, 159 S. E. 14.

Art. 3. Dissolution and Liquidation.

§ 53-18. Voluntary liquidation. — A bank may go into voluntary liquidation and be closed, and may surrender its charter and franchise as a corporation of this state by the affirmative votes of its stockholders owning two-thirds of its stock, such vote to be taken at a meeting of the stockholders duly called by resolution of the board of directors, written notice of which, stating the purpose of the meeting, shall be mailed to each stockholder, or in case of his death, to his legal representative or heirs at law, addressed to his last known residence ten days previous to the date of said meeting. Whenever stockholders shall by such vote at a meeting regularly called for the purpose, notice of which shall be given as herein provided, decide to liquidate such bank, a certified copy of all proceedings of the meeting at which said action shall have been taken, verified by the oath of the president and cashier, shall be transmitted to the commissioner of banks for his approval. If the commissioner of banks shall approve the same, he shall issue to the said bank, under his seal, a permit for such purpose. No such permit shall be issued by the commissioner of banks until said commissioner of banks shall be satisfied that provision has been made by such bank to satisfy and pay off all depositors and all creditors of such bank. If not so satisfied, the commissioner of banks shall refuse to issue a permit, and shall be authorized to take possession of said bank and its assets and business, and hold the same and liquidate said bank in the manner provided in this chapter. When the commissioner of banks shall approve the voluntary liquidation of a bank, the directors of said bank shall cause to be published in a newspaper in the city, town, or county in which such bank is located, a notice that the bank is closing up its affairs and going into liquidation, and notify its depositors and creditors to present their claims for payment. When any bank shall be in process of voluntary liquidation, it shall be subject to examination by the commissioner of banks, and shall furnish such reports from time to time as may be called for by the commissioner of banks. All unclaimed deposits and dividends remaining in the hands of such bank shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter as hereinafter provided. Whenever the commissioner of banks shall approve it, any bank may sell and transfer to any other bank, either State bank or national bank, all of its assets of every kind upon such terms as may be agreed upon and approved by the commissioner of banks and by two-thirds vote of its board of directors. A certified copy of the minutes of any meeting at which such action is taken, under the oath of the president and cashier, together with a copy of the contract of sale and transfer, shall be filed with the commissioner of banks. Whenever voluntary liquidation shall be approved by the commissioner of banks or the sale and transfer of the assets of any bank shall be approved by the commissioner of banks, a certified copy of such approval under seal of the commissioner of banks, filed in the office of the secretary of state, shall authorize the cancellation of the charter of such bank, subject, however, to its continued existence, as provided by this chapter and the general law relative to corporations. (1921, c. 4, s. 15; 1927, c. 47, s. 4; 1929, c. 73; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 218(a).)

Cross Reference.—As to voluntary dissolution of corporations generally, see § 55-121 et seq.

Editor's Note.—For article discussing the statutory changes made in the North Carolina banking law, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 194 et seq.

While there was no specific provision in the prior banking law which corresponded to this section, dissolution was probably effected under sec. 55-121 et seq. the general corporation law, by virtue of C. S. § 236, providing that where applicable and not inconsistent with the banking laws the general corporation law should apply.

The 1927 amendment added the last four sentences to this section.

It has been the policy of the legislature to continue the corporate existence upon a dissolution for a period of three years for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the corporation and to bring and defend suits. See sec. 55-132. The provisions of this section are in keeping with this general policy.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

When Receiver Has Title to Assets. — Upon the appointment of a receiver under the statute, whether voluntary or by act of the Commission, the title to all of its assets vests in the receiver to be administered for the benefit of its depositors, etc., alike, and where the directors are individually sued for having published false statements as to its solvency, and in the bank's report to the Corporation Commission, without alleging any damage peculiar to himself therefrom, as distinguished from a loss among the creditors generally, the action is maintainable only by the receiver or upon his refusal to so act upon application. Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195. This case is not applicable to a suit by a depositor for damage or loss incurred because of a violation of § 53-132. Bayne v. Powell, 192 N. C. 389, 391, 118 S. E. 118.

Enforcement of Statutory Liability of Stockholders by Bank Purchasing Another Bank for Purpose of Liquidation.—Under the provisions of this section, either a state or national bank may purchase the assets of another bank, including the statutory liability of the stockholders of the selling bank, upon such terms as are agreed upon and approved by the Commissioner of Banks, and suit on the statutory liability of the stockholders of the selling bank may be instituted in the name of the purchasing bank to the use of the selling bank within three years from the date of the transfer, and § 53-20 does not repeal this section, as amended, and is inapplicable when the liquidation is under its provisions, and the amendment of the act of 1921 by chapter 73, Public Laws of 1929, being only to correct a typographical error, does not affect the right of action accruing prior to its enactment, it being significant only as legislative construction that the act of 1921 was not repealed by the act of 1927. Peoples Bank and Trust Co. v. Roscower, 199 N. C. 653, 155 S. E. 560.

Approval of Stockholders Not Necessary for Sale to Bank.—For a valid sale of assets to another bank the approval of the stockholders of the selling bank is not required by this section and the section is not invalid for that reason. Planters' Sav. Bank v. Earley, 204 N. C. 297, 299, 168 S. E. 225.

§ 53-19. Commissioner of banks may take charge, when.—The commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the business and property of any bank to which this chapter is applicable whenever it shall appear that such bank:

1. Has violated its charter or any laws applicable thereto;
2. Is conducting its business in an unauthorized or unsafe manner;
3. Is in an unsafe or unsound condition to transact its business;
4. Has an impairment of its capital stock;
5. Has refused to pay its depositors in accordance with the terms on which such deposits were received, or has refused to pay its holders of certificates of indebtedness or investment in accordance with the terms upon which such certificates of indebtednesss or investment were sold;
6. Has become otherwise insolvent;
7. Has neglected or refused to comply with the terms of a duly issued lawful order of the commissioner of banks;
8. Has refused, upon proper demand, to submit its records, affairs, and concerns for inspection and examination to a duly appointed or authorized examiner of the commissioner of banks;
9. Its officers have refused to be examined upon oath regarding its affairs.
10. Has made a voluntary assignment of its assets to trustees;

Such banks may resume business as provided in § 53-37. (1911, c. 25, s. 4; 1921, c. 4, s. 16; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 218(b), 242.)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the prior law which corresponded to this section. It was true however that the bank examiner could take possession where so authorized by the corporation commission and hold it until a receiver could be appointed. See C. S. sec. 253.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79, discussing this section.

Commissioner May Be Restrained from Taking Control of Assets of Reorganized Bank Where Assets Sufficient to Pay Claims.—Where a banking corporation, organized and doing business under the laws of this State, and for that reason subject to the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Banks, has transferred, assigned and conveyed all its assets to another banking corporation, also organized and doing business under the laws of this State, in consideration of the agreement of the latter corporation to pay and fully discharge the claims of all the depositors and other creditors of the former corporation, and the Commissioner of Banks had consented to such transfer, assignment and conveyance (section 53-12, Corporation Commission v. Stockholders, 199 N. C. 586, 155 S. E. 445), but thereafter, before the latter corporation has fully performed its agreement with the former corporation, files notice that he has taken into his possession the former corporation, under the provisions of this section, for purposes of liquidation, the said former corporation, its depositors, and stockholders may restrain the Commissioner of Banks from taking into his possession the assets of the former corporation, which are then in the possession of the latter corporation, upon showing that said assets are sufficient in value for the payment in full of the claims of all its depositors and other creditors. Pending the trial of the issue involving the value of said assets, the Commissioner of Banks may also be restrained from levying and collecting assessments on the stockholders of the former corporation, because of their statutory liability. Stanly Bank, etc., Co. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 543, 545, 174 S. E. 503.

Presumption Exists That Bank Complied with Prerequisites before Resuming Operation.—See People's Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 4 F. Supp. 379, 382.

§ 53-20. Liquidation of banks.—(1) When Commissioner of Banks to Take Possession.—Whenever any State bank shall neglect or refuse for a period of sixty days to make a report to the commissioner of banks, as he may demand, or shall, after demand under seal of the commissioner of banks fail, neglect or refuse to comply with any of the rules, regulations or requirements of the state banking commission, or the provisions of the banking law, or if at any time the commissioner of banks shall find a bank subject to the supervision of the commissioner of banks, in an insolvent, unsafe or unsound condition to transact the business for which it was organized, or in an unsafe, or unsound condition to continue its business, or if such institution shall neglect or refuse to correct any irregularity which may be called to the attention of the president, cashier or board of directors, by the commissioner of banks, or any of his assistants; then, in either of such events, the commissioner of banks, or any duly authorized agent of the commissioner of banks appointed under seal of the commissioner of banks, shall forthwith take possession of such bank, and all of its assets and business and shall retain possession thereof until such bank shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to resume business, or its affairs shall be fully liquidated as herein provided, or possession thereof shall have been surrendered under order of a judge of the Superior Court under the provisions of this section.

(2) Directors May Act.—Any bank may place its assets and business under the control of the commissioner of banks for liquidation by resolution of a majority of its directors upon notice to the said commissioner of banks, and, upon taking possession of said bank, the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall retain possession thereof until such bank shall be authorized by the commissioner of banks to resume business or until the affairs of said bank shall be fully liquidated as herein provided, and no bank shall make any general assignment for the benefit of its creditors save and except by surrendering possession of its assets to the commissioner of banks, as herein provided. Whenever any bank for any reason shall suspend operations for any length of time, said bank shall, immediately upon such suspension of operations, be deemed in the possession of the commissioner of banks and subject to liquidation hereunder.

(3) Notice of Seizure to Court Bar to Attachment, etc.; Transfers Void.—When the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall take possession of any bank under paragraph (1) or (2) hereof he shall, within forty-eight hours, file with the Clerk of the Superior Court in the county where said bank is located, a notice of his action which shall state the reason therefor: and such notice shall be deemed the equivalent of a summons and complaint against said bank in an action in the Superior Court except that it shall not be necessary to make service thereof, and the taking possession of any bank shall thereupon date from the time when such authority was exercised and from and after such time all assets and property of such bank, of whatever nature shall be deemed to be in possession of the commissioner of banks, and the exercise of such authority shall operate as a bar to any attachment, or other legal proceeding, against such bank or its assets and, after such exercise of authority, no lien shall be acquired, in any manner binding or affecting any of the assets of such bank and every transfer or assignment made thereafter by such bank, or by its authority, of the whole or any part of its assets, shall be null and void; and the commissioner of banks shall be substituted in place of the bank in all actions in the State or Federal Courts, pending at the time of the exercise of such authority.

(4) Notice to Banks; Corporation and Persons Holding Assets; Liens Not to Accrue.—On taking possession of the assets and business of any bank, the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, shall forthwith give notice, by mail or otherwise, of such action to all banks or other persons or corporations holding, or having in possession, any assets of such bank. No bank or other person or corporation shall have a lien or charge for any payment, advance or clearance made, or liability incurred against any of the assets of said bank after possession has been taken as provided under this section, except as hereinafter provided.

(5) Permission to Resume Business.—After the commissioner of banks has taken possession of any bank, such bank may resume business as provided in § 53-37.

(6) Remedy by Bank for Seizure; Answer to Notice; Injunction, etc., Appeal.—Whenever any bank, of whose assets and business the commissioner of banks has taken possession as aforesaid, except where possession is taken under paragraph (2) hereof, shall deem itself aggrieved thereby, it may, at any time within ten (10) days after the filing of the notice with the clerk of the Superior Court, file an answer to said notice and may also upon notice to the commissioner of banks, apply to the resident or the presiding judge of the district for an injunction to enjoin further proceedings by the said commissioner of banks, and the said judge may cite the said commissioner of banks to show cause within ten days thereafter why further proceedings should not be enjoined, and after hearing the allegations and proof of the parties with respect to the condition of said bank, may dismiss such application for injunction or may enjoin further proceedings under this section by the commissioner of banks. If the judge shall enjoin further action of the commissioner of banks and permit the reopening of the bank, he shall have authority to require of the bank such surety bond as he may deem necessary to insure its solvency, payable to the commissioner of banks for the sole benefit of the general creditors of the bank, and upon such terms as said judge may deem proper. Either party shall have the right to appeal to the Supreme Court as in other actions.

(7) Collection of Debts and Claims; Sale or Compromise of Debts, Claims; Commissioner Succeeds to All Property of Bank.—Upon taking possession of the assets and business of any bank by the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, is authorized to collect all money due such bank, and to do such other acts as are necessary to conserve its assets and property, and shall proceed to liquidate the affairs thereof, as hereinafter provided. The commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall collect all debts due and claims belonging to such bank, by suit, if necessary; and, by motion in the pending action, and upon authority of an order of the presiding or resident judge of the district may sell, compromise or compound any bad or doubtful debt or claim, and may upon such order, sell the real and personal property of such bank on such terms as the order may provide or direct, except that, where the sale is made under power contained in any mortgage or lien bond or other paper wherein the title is retained for sale and the terms of sale set out, sale may be made under said authority. Upon taking possession of any bank under this section, the commissioner of banks and/or the duly appointed agent shall have the possession and the right to the possession of all the property, assets, choses in action, rights and privileges of the said bank, including the right to resign the trust or exercise the power in all mortgages, deeds of trust, and all other papers executed to secure the payment of money in any form in which the said bank shall have been named as trustee and/or pledgee, and such property rights and privileges shall vest in the said commissioner and/or duly appointed liquidating agent absolutely, for the purpose of liquidating, and sales and conveyance of the same, together with any and all other incidental rights, privileges, and powers necessary and convenient for the enjoyment of the right of conveyance and sale and for the exercise of the same. Upon the motion made, the bank or any person interested, may be heard, but the judge hearing the motion shall enter his order as in his discretion will best serve the parties interested.

The powers granted by the second preceding sentence shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any existing acts ratified at the 1931 session of the General Assemby.

The officers and directors of any bank, or any bank that is in liquidation as provided by law, shall not hereafter exercise any powers herein declared to be vested in the North Carolina commissioner of banks, and/or the duly appointed liquidating agent.

(8) Bond of Commissioner of Banks; Surety; Condition; Minimum Penalty.—Upon taking possession of any bank, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall execute and file a bond payable to the State of North Carolina, with some surety company as surety thereon, with the clerk of the Superior Court of the county where the bank is located, conditioned upon the faithful performance of all duties imposed by reason of the liquidation of such bank by the said commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, or any agent or assistant assisting in the liquidation of the said bank, the penal sum of said bond to be fixed by order of the commissioner of banks, which in no case shall be less than five thousand ($5,000) dollars. Any person interested, by motion in the pending action, shall be heard by the resident or presiding judge as to the sufficiency of the bond; the judge hearing the motion may thereupon fix the bond; provided, that where such bank under this section is taken possession of by the commissioner of banks, he may, in his discretion with the approval of the state banking commission, appoint as his agent with the powers, duties and responsibilities of such agent under this section, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any corporation or agency established under and by virtue of the laws of the United States of America which is established for the purposes for which the said Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created under the banking act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three enacted by congress; and provided further that such appointment may be made when and only when the liabilities of such bank to its depositors are insured by said corporation or agency, either in whole or in part. In the event of such appointment such corporation or agency, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, may serve as such agent without giving the bond required under all other circumstances in this subsection.

(9) Inventory Necessary.—Within thirty days after the filing of the notice of the taking possession of any bank in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall make and state an inventory of the assets and liabilities of the said bank, and shall file one copy thereof with the clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action and shall keep one copy on file in the said bank. Such inventory shall be open for inspection during the usual banking hours, provided, that nothing herein shall require said bank to remain open unnecessarily.

(10) Notice and Time for Filing Claims; Copies Mailed.—Notice shall be given by advertisement for four weeks in a newspaper published in said county; if no newspaper is published in said county, then in some newspaper having a general circulation in said county, calling on all persons who may have claims against the bank to present the same to the commissioner of banks at the office of the bank, and within the time to be specified in the notice, not less, however, than ninety (90) days from the date of the first publication. A copy of this notice shall be mailed to all persons whose names appear as creditors upon the books of the bank. Affidavit by the commissioner of banks, or agent mailing the notice, to the effect that said notice was mailed shall be conclusive evidence thereof.

(11) Power to Reject Claims; Notice; Affidavit of Service; Action on Claim.—If the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, doubts the justice and validity of any claim or deposit, he may reject the same and serve notice of such rejection upon the claimant or depositor, either personally or by registered mail, and an affidavit of the service of such notice shall be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action, and shall be conclusive evidence of such notice. Any action or suit upon such claim so rejected must be brought by the claimant against the commissioner of banks in the proper court of the county in which the bank is located within ninety days after such service, or the same shall be barred. Objections to any claim or deposit not rejected by the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, may be made by any person interested by filing such objection in the pending action and by serving a copy thereof on the commissioner of banks, or duly appointed agent, and the commissioner of banks or duly appointed agent, after investigation, shall either allow such objection and reject the claim or deposit, or disallow the objection. If the objection is not allowed and the claim or deposit not rejected, the commissioner of banks or the duly appointed agent, shall file a notice to this effect in the pending action; and within ten days thereafter, the person filing objection by motion in the pending action, a copy of which notice shall be served upon the person whose claim or deposit is objected to, may present to the court the question of the validity of said claim or deposit; and the questions of law and issues of fact shall thereupon be determined as in other civil actions.

(12) List of Claims Presented and Deposits; Copies; Proviso.—Upon the expiration of the time fixed for presentation of claims, the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, shall make a full and complete list of the claims presented and of the deposits as shown, including and specifying any claims or deposits which have been rejected by him, and shall file one copy in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the pending action, and shall keep one copy on file with the inventory in the office of the bank for examination. Any indebtedness against any bank which has been established or recognized as a valid liability of said bank before it went into liquidation, for which no claimant has filed claim, and/or any liability for which claim has been filed and disapproved, shall be listed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, by the liquidating agent, and the dividends accruing thereto shall be paid into the said office and shall be held for a period of three months after said liquidation is completed, and shall then be paid to the escheator of the University of North Carolina. Any claim which may be presented after the expiration of the time fixed for the presentation of claims in the notice hereinbefore provided shall, if allowed, share pro rata in the distribution only of those assets of the bank in the hands of the commissioner of banks, and undistributed at the time the claim is presented: Provided, that when it is made to appear to the judge of the superior court, resident or presiding in the county, that the claim could not have been filed within said period, said judge may permit those creditors or depositors who subsequently file their claim to share as other creditors.

(13) Declaration of Dividends; Order of Preference in Distribution.—At any time after the expiration of the date fixed by the commissioner of banks, or the duly appointed agent, for the presentation of claims against the bank, and from time to time thereafter, the commissioner of banks, out of the funds in his hands, after the payment of expenses and priorities, may declare and pay dividends to the depositors and other creditors of such bank in the order now or hereafter provided by law; and a dividend shall be declared when and as often as the funds on hand subject to the payment of dividends shall be sufficient to pay ten (10) per centum of all claims entitled to share in such dividends. In paying dividends and calculating the same, all disputed claims and deposits shall be taken into account, but no dividend shall be paid upon such disputed claims and deposits until the same shall have been finally determined. The following shall be the order and preference in the distribution of the assets of any bank liquidated hereunder: (1) Taxes and fees due the commissioner of banks for examination or other services; (2) wages and salaries due officers and employees of the bank, for a period of not more than four months; (3) expenses of liquidation; (4) certified checks and cashier's checks in the hands of a third party as a holder for value and amounts due on collections made and unremitted for or for which final actual payment has not been made by the bank; (5) amounts due creditors other than stockholders. The word "asset" used herein shall not be deemed to include bailments or other property to which such bank has no title. Provided, that when any bank, or any officer, clerk, or agent thereof, receives by mail, express or otherwise, a check, bill of exchange, order to remit, note, or draft for collection, with request that remittance be made therefor, the charging of such item to the account of the drawer, acceptor, indorser, or maker thereof, or collecting any such item from any bank or other party, and failing to remit therefor, or the non-payment of a check sent in payment therefor, shall create a lien in favor of the owner of such item on the assets of such bank making the collection, and shall attach from the date of the charge, entry or collection of any such funds. A statement of all dividends paid shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action, and said statements shall show the expenses deducted and the disputed claims and deposits considered in determining said dividend.

(14) Deposit of Funds Collected.—All funds collected by the commissioner of banks, in liquidating any bank, shall be deposited from time to time in such bank or banks as may be selected by him, and shall be subject to the check of the commissioner of banks. The payment of interest on the net average of such sums on deposit shall be controlled by the governor and council of state, who shall have full power and authority to determine for what periods of time payment of interest on such deposits shall or shall not be required, and to fix the rate of interest to be paid thereon.

(15) Employment of Local Attorneys; Expert Accountants and Other Experts; Compensation.—The commissioner of banks, for the purpose of liquidating banks as herein provided, shall employ such liquidating agents, competent local attorneys, accountants and clerks as may be necessary to properly liquidate and distribute the assets of said bank, and shall fix the compensation for all such agents, attorneys, accountants and clerks, and shall pay the same out of the funds derived from the liquidation of the assets of said bank: Provided, that all expenditure for the purpose herein provided shall be approved by the resident or presiding judge in the pending action at such time as the same may be reported, and such charges shall be a proper charge and lien on the assets of such bank until paid.

(16) Unclaimed Dividends Held in Trust.—The unclaimed dividends remaining in the hands of the commissioner of banks for six months after the order for final distributions shall be held in trust for the several depositors and creditors of the liquidated bank; and the money so held by him shall be paid over to the persons respectively entitled thereto as and when satisfactory evidence of their right to the same is furnished. In case of doubtful or conflicting claims the commissioner of banks shall have authority to apply to the superior court of the county, by motion in the pending action, for an order from the resident or presiding judge of the superior court directing the payment of the moneys so claimed. When issues of fact are raised by said motion, the same may, upon request of any claimant, be submitted to the jury for determination as other issues of fact are determined. The interest earned on the unclaimed dividend so held shall be applied toward defraying the expenses incurred in the distribution of such unclaimed dividends. The balance of interest, if any, shall be deposited and held as other funds of the banking department to the credit of the commissioner of banks.

(17) Report by Commissioner of Banks. — If the assets of any bank when fully collected by the commissioner of banks are not more than sufficient to pay the depositors and creditors of said bank, the commissioner of banks after he shall have fully distributed as herein provided the sums so collected, then he shall cause to be filed in the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court in the pending action a full and complete report of all his transactions in said liquidation; and the filing of such report shall act as a full and complete discharge of the commissioner of banks from all further liabilities by reason of the liquidation of the bank.

(18) Action by Commissioner of Banks after Full Settlement.—Whenever the commissioner of banks shall have paid all the expenses of liquidation and shall have paid to each and every depositor and creditor of such bank, whose claims shall have been duly proven and allowed, the full amount of such claims, and shall have made proper provision for unclaimed and unpaid deposits and disputed claims and deposits, and shall have in hand other assets of said bank, he shall call a meeting of the stockholders of said bank by giving notice thereof by publication once a week for four weeks in a newspaper published in said county, or if no newspaper is published in said county, then in a newspaper having general circulation in said county, and by mailing a copy of such notice to each stockholder addressed to him at his address as the same shall appear upon the books of the bank. Affidavit of the officer mailing the notice herein required and of the printer as to the publication shall be conclusive evidence of notice hereunder. At such meeting any stockholders may be represented by proxy and the stockholders shall elect, by a majority vote of the stock present, an agent or agents who shall be authorized to receive from the commissioner of banks all the assets of said bank, then remaining in his hands; and the commissioner of banks shall cause to be transferred and delivered to the said agent, or agents, all such assets of said bank. The commissioner of banks shall thereupon cause to be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court in the pending actions a full and complete report of all his transactions, showing the assets of said bank so transferred, together with the name of the agent or agents receipting for the same; and the filing of such report shall act as a full and complete discharge of the commissioner of banks from all further liabilities by reason of the liquidation of the bank. Such agent, or agents, shall convert the assets coming into his hands, or their hands, into cash, and shall make distribution to the stockholders of said bank as herein provided. Said agent, or agents, shall file semi-annually a report of all transactions with the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, and with the commissioner of banks, and shall be allowed for such services such fees not in excess of five per cent, as may be fixed by the court. In case of death, removal or refusal to act, of any agent or agents elected by the stockholders, the commissioner of banks shall, upon report of such action on the part of such agent or agents to the superior court of the county in which the bank is located, turn over to said superior court for the stockholders of said bank, all the remaining assets of the bank, file his report and be discharged from any and all further liability to the stockholders as herein provided. Said assets, when turned over to the superior court hereunder, shall remain in the hands of the superior court until such time as, by order of Court or by action of the stockholders, distribution shall be provided for.

(19) Annual Report of Commissioner of Banks; Items in Report of; Publication.—The commissioner of banks shall file, as a part of his annual report to the governor, a list of the names of the banks so taken possession of and liquidated; and the commissioner of banks shall, from time to time, compile and make available for public inspection, reports showing the condition of each and all the banks so taken possession of; and the annual report of the commissioner of banks shall show the sum of unclaimed and unpaid deposits, with respect to each bank and shall show all depositories of all sums coming into the hands of the commissioner of banks under the provisions of this section.

(20) Compensation of Commissioner of Banks.—The commissioner of banks, for his services rendered in connection with the liquidation of banks hereunder, shall be entitled to actual expenses incurred in connection with the liquidation of each bank, including therein a reasonable sum for the time of the bank examiners and other agents of the commissioner of banks, which expenses shall be a prior lien on the assets of such bank so liquidated until paid in full; and the commissioner of banks shall have authority to prescribe reasonable rules and regulations for fixing such expenses.

(21) Exclusive Methods of Liquidation.—No bank created under the banking act or the industrial banking act, and under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, shall be liquidated in any other way or manner than that provided herein.

(22) Application of Act.—The applicable provisions of this section as enacted by chapter 113 of the Public Laws of 1927 shall apply to all banks which on March 7, 1927, have suspended operations or are in the process of liquidation but for which no permanent receiver has been appointed by the court.

(23) Liquidation by Commissioner of Banks of All Banks in Receivership Required.—On and after the first day of January, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-six, the provisions of this section shall apply to all banks included in the definition or classification of banking institutions under this chapter, and/or any amendment thereto, which at said time shall be in receivership in the State courts; and the said banks shall be liquidated exclusively in accordance with the provisions of this section and by said banking commissioner. The liquidation of said banks shall be made strictly in accordance with the terms of this section and the words "competent local attorneys," as set forth in subsection sixteen of this section shall be defined to be any attorney or attorneys resident of the county in which the bank is being liquidated. (1921, c. 4, s. 17; 1927, c. 113; 1931, c. 243, s. 5, cc. 385, 405; 1933, c. 175, s. 2, c. 546; 1935, c. 81, s. 4, c. 231, s. 1, c. 277; 1939, c. 91; C. S. 218(c).)

Local Modification.—Buncombe: 1933, c. 27; Rutherford: 1933, c. 567.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1927 amendment, the Supreme Court held in Litchfield v. Roper, 192 N. C. 202, 205, 134 S. E. 651, that this section did not supersede or repeal the provisions of C. S. section 240, but that it was supplemental to that section and should be construed in conjunction with it.

Prior to this amendment the superior court had exclusive jurisdiction over the affairs of an insolvent bank incorporated under the laws of this state. See Trust Co. v. Leggett, 191 N. C. 362, 131 S. E. 752. It was therefore the duty of the court to ascertain the amount of liability and assess the stockholders. By virtue of the amendment these duties, and all the others formerly performed by the court as well, were devolved upon the corporation commission.

Prior to the amendment it was held that a justice of the peace had no jurisdiction over an action of the receiver to collect an overpayment of dividends to a stockholder, where the amount of indebtedness had not been fixed by the superior court. Trust Co. v. Leggett, supra.

Public Laws of 1931-1933-1935.—This section was amended three times by Public Laws 1931. Chapter 405 rewrote subsection (16). Chapter 385, effective May 11, 1931, and excepting pending litigation, added the second paragraph to subsection (7), and provided that "the powers herein granted shall be in addition to and not in derogation of any existing acts ratified at this session of the General Assembly."

Chapter 243 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

By c. 546 of Public Laws 1933 subsection (12) of this section was amended by the addition of the second sentence relating to dividends on unclaimed deposits in closed banks. Prior to the second 1933 amendment, chapter 175, subsection (15) required deposits should return interest on the net average sum on deposit at a rate of not less than three per cent per annum.

The proviso at the end of subsection (8) of this section was added by the 1935 amendment. The act also added subsection (24) in its entirety. §§ 2-5½ of the amendatory act provide for the procedure by receivers in charge of liquidation in effecting the change required by subsection (24).

In General.—The functions of the Commissioner of Banks are not limited to the provisions of this section, and the courts of equity have inherent power to permit the Commissioner of Banks to exercise the functions of a chancery receiver in matters which are not inconsistent with his statutory duties. Blades v. Hood, 203 N. C. 56, 164 S. E. 828.

The corresponding section of the general corporation law is not applicable to banks, see § 55-125.

Does Not Affect Right to Restrain Commission.—The jurisdiction of the Superior Courts of this State, in a proper case, to restrain the Commissioner of Banks, is not affected by the provisions of this section. The Commissioner of Banks is an administrative officer of the State, and in the performance of his duties as prescribed by statute, is subject to the jurisdiction of the Superior Courts, in the exercise of their equitable jurisdiction. Stanly Bank, etc., Co. v. Hood, 206 N. C. 543, 546, 174 S. E. 503; Hood v. Burrus, 207 N. C. 560, 178 S. E. 362.

When the commissioner is made a party, he succeeds to the rights of the bank in the litigation pending and comes into the pending case for the purpose of protecting the rights of creditors in the recovery, not for the purpose of asserting a new and independent cause of action. Fidelity, etc., Co. v. People's Bank, 72 F. (2d) 932, 936.

Necessity of Closing Bank's Doors. — Among other powers conferred by statute, the Corporation Commission may, without taking possession of the business and property of a state bank, upon its appearing to the commission to be in imminent danger of insolvency, direct upon what conditions its officers may continue in its management and control, and thus, upon the banks complying therewith, avoid losses to depositors, creditors, and stockholders, necessarily incident to the closing of its doors. Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

Preferences. — It will be noted that under subsection 13 of this section claims against the estate of an insolvent bank for amounts due on collection made and unremitted for, or for which final actual payment has not been made by the bank, are given preference, in the final distribution of the assets of said bank. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 233, 148 S. E. 236.

The words "or otherwise" in subsec. 13 of this section, are to be construed in connection with the other parts of the statute, meaning any mode of transportation analogous to those specified in the statute, requiring "remitting" or "sending" the money to the payee of the check. Morecock v. Hood, 202 N. C. 321, 162 S. E. 730.

Where a check was purchased from a bank, which a few days later became insolvent and the bank on which the check was drawn refused to honor it, it was held that the purchaser could not claim a preference under this section. The transaction was that of debtor and creditor. If it were otherwise in every transaction involving the relationship of debtor and creditor, near to a bank's going into liquidation on account of insolvency, it would be claimed a preference—thus destroying the well recognized maxim that "equality is equity." Great Atlantic, etc., Tea Co. v. Hood, 205 N. C. 313, 316, 171 S. E. 344.

It is well settled that the purchase of a bank draft, a cashier's check or a certified check creates the relation of debtor and creditor between the bank and the purchaser, and that the purchaser is not entitled to a preference over other general creditors of the bank from which it was purchased. Id.

Where a depositor drew a draft on his local bank against a general deposit and the payee forwarded the draft to the drawee bank for collection and it was returned with notice of the bank's insolvency, it was held that the drawer's claim was not entitled to a statutory preference under this section for the reason that the bank did not charge the draft to the account of the drawer; and if the bank's failure to return the draft within twenty-four hours after its receipt by mail implied an acceptance under the provisions of sections 25-143 and 25-144, such acceptance did not ipso facto create a preference. Lamb v. Hood, 205 N. C. 409, 410, 171 S. E. 359.

Where a national bank received a draft for collection and remitted for the collection of the draft a draft drawn on one of its correspondents, but failed before this draft could be paid, it was held that the owner of the draft collected had no lien on the assets of the insolvent bank in the hands of the receiver. There was no augmentation of the assets of the bank as a result of the collection, but merely a shifting of credits, and consequently no basis for the declaration of a trust. Spradlin v. Royal Mfg. Co., 73 F. (2d) 776.

It is clear, that even if this proviso be construed as having relation to solvent banks as distinguished from those in liquidation, it cannot affect national banks. Id.

The lien created, although it is to attach from the date of the charge, entry or collection, arises only upon "failing to remit" or "the non-payment of a check sent in payment;" and it is manifest that a solvent bank will not fail to remit collections or permit a check sent in payment of a collection to remain unpaid. It is only in case of banks which have failed, therefore, that the statute can have any practical application; and the lien which it creates is of such a character that it can be enforced only by a liquidation of the bank. Id.

Same—Cashier's Check.—Where a bank debits an account with the amount of a check drawn by the depositor and issues its cashier's check for the amount but is placed in a receiver's hands before remitting the proceeds to a third person as instructed to do by the depositor, the cashier's check does not constitute a preference as defined by this section. Board of Education v. Hood, 204 N. C. 353, 168 S. E. 522.

If a depositor in a bank takes a cashier's check for his deposit, and thereafter surrenders the cashier's check, purchasing with the proceeds, a draft for the purchase price of Liberty Bonds, and the bank is closed before the draft is paid, such transaction does not constitute a preference as defined by this section. In re Bank of Pender, 204 N. C. 143, 144, 167 S. E. 561.

Same—Draft on Another Bank.—Under subsec. 13 of this section a depositor who presents his check for payment over the counter of a bank which charges his account with the amount thereof and gives him a draft drawn on another bank which he deposits in a third bank, and the draft is returned unpaid, is not entitled to a preference in assets of the bank drawing the draft, the transaction not coming within the provisions of the statute for a preference when a bank receives a check by "mail," express or otherwise . . . with request that remittance be made therefor. Morecock v. Hood, 202 N. C. 321, 162 S. E. 730.

Taxes Held to Constitute Preferred Claim.—A bank, owning the land upon which the bank building was situate, closed its doors and the Commissioner of Banks took possession for purposes of liquidation by virtue of the statute. At the time of closing there was an outstanding mortgage securing an indebtedness of $25,000, all of which was unpaid and in default. The mortgagee took possession of the real estate and collected the rents and thereafter the liquidating agent of the bank listed the real property for taxation. County and town taxes were duly assessed and subsequently the mortgagee duly exercised the power of sale and became the purchaser of the property. It was held that as the bank, the mortgagor, was the real owner it was liable for taxes unpaid at the time of the sale and by subdivision (13) of this section taxes constitute a preferred claim against the assets of the insolvent bank. Hood v. McGill, 206 N. C. 83, 85, 173 S. E. 20.

Payment of Dividends to Clerk of Court.—In In re Bank of Ayden, 206 N. C. 821, 175 S. E. 177, dividends declared by Commissioner were paid to clerk of court to hold for three months, during which time conflicting contentions of creditors and depositors were heard and decided.

"Assets" Defined.—C. S. sections 239 and 240, providing for the assessment of the stockholders, were a recognition of the distinction between ordinary assets of the corporation and the statutory liability, and was substantially a legislative construction that the former does not include the latter. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 649, 92 S. E. 607.

The term "assets" is broad enough to cover anything which is now or may be available to pay creditors, but as usually understood it refers to the tangible property of the corporation and not to the liability of stockholders, contingent upon insolvency. It does not include rights and property which do not belong to the corporation, and the current of opinion is that the statutory liability is not for the benefit of the corporation, but is an additional security for creditors. Hill v. Smathers, 173 N. C. 642, 648, 92 S. E. 607.

"Creditors" and "Claimants" — Subd. 10. — In regard to bonds left for safe-keeping in the bank, it was held that the bank was a trustee of an express trust and plaintiffs were not "creditors" or "claimants" as contemplated by subdivision 10 of this section and therefore the provisions of this subdivision as to filing claims was inapplicable to the action, and further, that even if the subdivision were applicable it would be inequitable for defendant to set up the defense since defendant's agent had told plaintiff that claims need not be filed. Bright v. Hood, 214 N. C. 410, 199 S. E. 630.

Personal Liability of Directors as Asset.—The right of action by the bank, and by its receiver (now Bank Examiner or agent) in case of insolvency for loss or depreciation of the bank's assets, due to their wilfud or negligent failure to perform their official duties, is one enforceable for the benefit of the bank as well as for its creditors, and where the receiver has sued the shareholders of its stock for their additional or personal liability, the defendants, setting up this defense as an asset of the bank, are entitled to have the officer's or director's liability determined before the amount of their liability by assessment may be fixed. Corporation Comm. v. Merchants Bank, etc., Co., 193 N. C. 113, 114, 136 S. E. 362.

Purchase Price of Sale of Insolvent Bank's Property Must Be Paid to Corporation Commission. — Where the Corporation Commission takes possession of the assets of an insolvent bank under the provisions of this section, it is a statutory receiver and it is required by statute to collect the assets of the bank and to distribute them to the creditors and depositors, and the court having jurisdiction is without power to authorize the sale of an insolvent bank's property in bulk to purchasers under an agreement that the purchasers organize another bank and pay to it the purchase price for distribution to the creditors and depositors and thus relieve the Commission of its duty to collect and distribute the assets. As to whether the court might authorize the sale of the assets in bulk is not decided, though it would seem that under the statutory provision that he shall make such order as in his discretion will best serve the parties interested he has the power to authorize a sale in bulk, which would not be reviewable on appeal except on the ground of abuse of discretion. In re Lafayette Bank & Trust Co., 198 N. C. 783, 153 S. E. 452.

The Commissioner of Banks Acts in a Capactiy Equivalent to a Receiver.—See Hood v. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co., 209 N. C. 367, 184 S. E. 51.

The commissioner of banks acts as receiver under inherent power of court only in matters which are not provided for by statute, and his powers and duties in the collection and distribution of the assets of an insolvent bank are derived from the statute. Hoft v. Mohn, 215 N. C. 397, 2 S. E. (2d) 23.

And the bank as a legal entity is not dissolved and does not cease to exist, but its powers are exercised by the commissioner (formerly the Corporation Commission) for the purpose of converting the assets, paying its liabilities, and distributing the surplus, if any, among the stockholders. People's Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 4 F. Supp. 379, 383.

No New Cause of Action Is Created Where Commissioner Is Made a Party to Previous Action by Bank.—See People's Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 4 F. Supp. 379, 383.

An order authorizing the liquidating agent to sell a stock assessment judgment affects only the liquidating agent and whoever purchases by virtue thereof, and so far as stockholders are concerned, the order is res inter alios acta. In re Carolina State Bank, 208 N. C. 509, 181 S. E. 621.

An action on a note by the Commissioner of Banks, etc., is properly brought in the county in which the insolvent bank is situate and of which the liquidating agent is a resident, and defendants' motion for change of venue to the county of their residence is properly refused. Hood v. Progressive Stores, 209 N. C. 36, 182 S. E. 694.

The manifest purpose of subdivision (13) is to place the out of town holder of a check or draft on a footing as favorable as the one occupied by the local depositor. The local depositor can present his check and get the cash. If the bank collects the out of town check or draft received through the mails by charging it to the account of its customer, it is the bank's duty, under this statute, to remit the proceeds to the owner, and the owner has a lien thereon. The proceeds of the collection rightfully belong to the owner of the draft; thereafter they are not the property of the bank, and the general creditors have no right to participate therein. Royal Mfg. Co. v. Spradlin, 6 F. Supp. 98, 100.

This subdivision clearly supersedes the law as declared by the supreme court in Corporation Comm. v. Merchant's, etc., Bank, 137 N. C. 697, 50 S. E. 308, and similar decisions. The statute embodies what was declared to be the law by the United States Supreme Court in Dakin v. Bayly, 290 U. S. 143, 54 S. Ct. 113, 78 L. Ed. 229, 90 A. L. R. 999, where it was held that the forwarding bank of a draft for collection is nothing but the agent of the drawer, and that this agency continues until the proceeds are remitted, and that the forwarding bank is not a creditor of the collecting bank and for this reason cannot offset such items against its debt to the collecting bank. Id.

It Is Applicable to National Banks.—See Spradlin v. Royal Mfg. Co., 73 F. (2d) 776, overruling Royal Mfg. Co. v. Spradlin, 6 F. Supp. 98.

The lien provided in subdivision (13) is in no wise contingent upon the insolvency of the bank. It attaches, in all cases, "from the date of the charge, entry or collection of any such funds." The lien exists before insolvency and subsequent insolvency does not invalidate it. Royal Mfg. Co. v. Spradlin, 6 F. Supp. 98, 101.

The proviso in subdivision (13) does not create a preference; it creates a statutory lien. The legislature used the word "preference" everywhere in the act preceding the proviso, but it used the word "lien" advisedly and to make it apply without regard to preferences. Id.

Upon collection, the agency relation ceases, in the absence of agreement to the contrary, and the position of the bank from then on is that of a mere debtor. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 86 F. (2d) 4, 6, citing Jennings v. United States Fidelity, etc., Co., 294 U. S. 216, 55 S. Ct. 394, 395, 79 L. Ed. 869, 99 A. L. R. 1248.

Where a certificate of deposit sent to the insolvent collecting bank was used in clearance, a draft for the balance on the clearance transaction being received by the insolvent collecting bank, it was held that a debtor and creditor relationship arose and that the creditor's successor was not entitled to preference. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 86 F. (2d) 4.

It makes no difference that, instead of collecting cash on the certificate of deposit, the collecting bank used it in a clearance and received a draft for the balance due upon the clearance, which was ultimately collected in cash. If a bank accepts anything other than cash in payment of a negotiable instrument which it holds for collection, it becomes, under the rules of the common law, liable as a debtor for the amount of the instrument, the reason for the rule being that, as the instrument is payable only in cash, the collecting bank by accepting something other than cash assumes the risk incident to such method of collection and is estopped to deny payment. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 86 F. (2d) 4, 6, citing Cleve v. Craven Chemical Co., 18 F. (2d) 711, 713, 52 A. L. R. 980; Federal Reserve Bank v. Malloy, 264 U. S. 160, 44 S. Ct. 296, 68 L. Ed. 617, 31 A. L. R. 1261.

The agency to collect is coupled with an authority in the collecting bank to use the proceeds for its own purposes; and where the collecting bank, in accordance with the usual custom of the banking business, makes a collection in what it chooses to accept as money's worth and thereupon becomes in law liable as a debtor for the amount of the collection, there is no reason to hold that the trust relationship is extended beyond such collection. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 86 F. (2d) 4, 6.

§ 53-21. Sale of stocks of defunct banks validated.—All private sales of stocks in resident corporations, joint stock companies and limited partnerships, made prior to March 20, 1935, by the commissioner of banks or a duly appointed agent in the course of the liquidation of a defunct bank, where such sale was made by and with the approval of a liquidation board duly selected by the creditors and stockholders of such bank and upon authority of an order of the presiding or resident judge of the district in which the principal office of such bank was located, are hereby in all respects validated, ratified and confirmed. (1935, c. 113.)

§ 53-22. Statute relating to receivers applicable to insolvent banks.—Article thirteen, chapter fifty-five relating to receivers, when not inconsistent with the provisions of § 53-20, shall apply to liquidation of insolvent banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 19; 1923, c. 148, s. 4; 1931, c. 215; C. S. 218(e).)

Editor's Note.—The 1931 amendment rewrote the section.

Effect in General.—This section serves to confer upon the Commissioner of Banks possession and the right to possession of all property, rights, etc., with certain enumerated powers together with such incidental powers as are necessary to a sale of the insolvent bank's assets. Blades v. Hood, 203 N. C. 56, 164 S. E. 828.

§ 53-23. Books, records, etc., disposition of.—All books, papers, and records of a bank which has been finally liquidated shall be deposited by the receiver in the office of the clerk of the superior court for the county in which the office of such bank is located, or in such other place as in his judgment will provide for the proper safekeeping and protection of such books, papers, and records. The books, papers, and records herein referred to shall be held subject to the orders of the commissioner of banks and the clerk of the superior court for the county in which such bank was located. (1921, c. 4, s. 20; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 218(f).)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-24. Destruction of records of liquidated insolvent banks.—After the expiration of ten years from the date of filing in the office of the clerk of the superior court of a final order approving the liquidation by the banking department of any insolvent bank and the delivery to the clerk or into his custody of the records of such bank, the said records may be destroyed by the clerk of the superior court holding said records by burning the same in the presence of the register of deeds and the sheriff of said county, who shall join with the clerk in the execution of a certificate as to the destruction of said records. The certificate shall be filed by the clerk in the court records of the liquidation of the bank whose records are thus destroyed.

After ten years from the filing by the commissioner of banks of a final report of liquidation of any insolvent bank, the said commissioner, by and with the consent of the state banking commission or its successor, may destroy by burning the records of any insolvent bank held in the department of the commissioner of banks in connection with the liquidation of such bank: Provided, that in connection with any unpaid dividends the commissioner of banks shall preserve the deposit ledger or other evidence of indebtedness of the bank with reference to the unpaid dividend until the dividend shall have been paid.

Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize the destruction by the clerk of the superior court of any county or by the commissioner of banks of any of the formal records of liquidation, nor shall the commissioner of banks have authority under this section to destroy any of the records made in his office with reference to the liquidation of any insolvent bank. (1939, c. 91, s. 1; 1939, c. 135.)

§ 53-25. Trust terminated on insolvency of trustee bank.—Whenever any bank or trust company created under the laws of this State, which has heretofore been, or shall hereafter be, appointed trustee in any indenture, deed of trust or other instrument of like character, executed to secure the payment of any bonds, notes or other evidences of indebtedness, has been or shall be by reason of insolvency, or for any other cause provided by law, taken over for liquidation by the commissioner of banks of this State or by any other legally constituted authority, the powers and duties of such bank or trust company as trustee in any such instrument shall, upon the entry of an order of the Clerk of the superior court appointing a successor trustee, upon a petition as hereinafter provided, immediately cease and determine. (1931, c. 250, s. 1.)

§ 53-26. Petition for new trustee; service upon parties interested.—In all cases of such insolvency and liquidation mentioned in § 53-25, the clerk of the superior court of any county in which such indenture, deed of trust or other instrument of like character is recorded shall, upon the verified petition of any person interested in any such trust, either as trustee, beneficiary or otherwise, which interest shall be set out in said petition, enter an order directing service on all interested parties either personally or by the publication in some newspaper published in the county, or in some adjoining county if no newspaper is published in the county where such application is made, of a notice directed to all persons concerned, commanding and requiring all persons having any interest in said trust, to be and appear at his office at a day designated in said order and notice, not less than thirty days from the date thereof, and show cause why a new trustee shall not be appointed. (1931, c. 250, s. 2.)

§ 53-27. Publication and contents of notice.—Such notice shall be published in the manner required by law for service of summons by publication, and shall set forth the names of the parties to the indenture, deed of trust or other such instrument, the date thereof, and the place or places where the same is recorded. (1931, c. 250, s. 3.)

§ 53-28. Appointment where no objection made.—If, upon the day fixed in said notice, no person shall appear and object to the appointment of a substitute trustee, the clerk shall, upon such terms as he deems advisable to the best interest of all parties, appoint some competent person, or corporation authorized to act as such, substituted trustee, who shall be vested with and shall exercise all the powers conferred upon the trustee named in said instrument. (1931, c. 250, s. 4.)

§ 53-29. Hearing where objection made; appeal from order.—If objection shall be made to the appointment of a new trustee, the clerk shall hear and determine the matter, and from his decision an appeal may be prosecuted as in case of special proceedings generally. (1931, c. 250, s. 5.)

§ 53-30. Registration of final order.—The final order of appointment of such new trustees shall be certified by the clerk of the superior court in which such order is entered and shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds in the county or counties in which the instrument under which such appointment has been made is recorded, and a minute of the same shall be entered by the register of deeds on the margin of the record where said original instrument is recorded. (1931, c. 250, s. 6.)

§ 53-31. Petition and order applicable to all instruments involved.—The petition and the order appointing such new trustee may include and relate and apply to any number of indentures, deeds of trust or other instruments, wherein the same trustee is named. (1931, c. 250, s. 7.)

§ 53-32. Additional remedy.—Sections 53-25 to 53-31 shall be in addition to and not in substitution for any other remedy provided by law. (1931, c. 250, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—As the remedy provided is cumulative, the statute should be read in connection with §§ 45-10 to 45-16. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 403.

§ 53-33. Validation of acts of officers of insolvent banks as trustees in deeds of trust.—Whenever any state bank, prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, shall have become insolvent and its assets and business been placed in the hands of the corporation commission or taken control of by the corporation commission for liquidation, and the board of directors of said bank shall have thereafter by resolution authorized or directed the officers of said bank or some of them to perform or exercise in the name of the bank as trustee any power or duty of such bank as trustee under any deed in trust to it recorded in any county in this State, provided said resolution was passed prior to the eleventh day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, the performance or exercise of any such power or duty heretofore or hereafter by any officer or officers so authorized shall be effective and binding on all parties concerned as the act of such bank as trustee as aforesaid, to the same extent and in the same manner as if such bank had not become insolvent and its assets and business had not been placed in the hands of the corporation commission or taken control of by the corporation commission for liquidation. (1931, c. 403.)

pointed pursuant to the provisions of § 53-20, has undertaken to exercise the power of sale set up in any mortgage, deed of trust, or other written instrument for the security of the payment of money in which any bank then in liquidation was named trustee, the said acts including the acts of resigning the trust, of the North Carolina corporation commission and/or chief state bank examiner, and/or liquidating agent appointed as aforesaid, are hereby validated and declared to be of the same force and effect as if done by the bank named as trustee in the mortgage, deed of trust, or other instrument. (1931, c. 132.)

Editor's Note.—This section, which validates sales by the commission and its representatives in the course of liquidation of insolvent banks, when the power of sale was originally granted to such a bank before the state took it over, appears to have been intended to overcome the effect of the case of Mitchell v. Shuford, 200 N. C. 321, 156 S. E. 513, which held that the commission had no such authority. In view, however, of this case, and of Booth v. Hairston, 193 N. C. 278, 136 S. E. 879; s. c., 195 N. C. 8, 141 S. E. 480, doubt is cast upon the constitutionality of the validating act. Upon the rehearing of the latter case, Justice Brogden said: "* * * but the power to cure a crippled instrument, having at least a spark of legal life, does not extend to raising a legal corpse from the dead." It is believed, however, that if more emphasis is placed upon the need for a dependable device for translating the security into a satisfaction of the debt, which is all the deed of trust or mortgage amounted to, than upon questions of title or contracts, that the facts of the situation aimed at by the validating act can be distinguished.

The future policy is stated in § 53-25 et seq., and in the 1931 amendment to § 53-20, subsection 7. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 401, 402.

§ 53-35. Foreclosures and execution of deeds by commissioner of bank, validated.—Whereas, the commissioner of banks, created by chapter two hundred forty-three of the Public Laws of 1931, was given general supervision over the banks of this state; and

Whereas, the commissioner of banks, under authority of chapter three hundred and eighty-five of the Public Laws of 1931, succeeded to all the property of banks in liquidation, including fiduciary powers under the mortgages and deeds of trust; and

Whereas, the commissioner of banks, in his own name and in the name of a number of conservators or liquidating agents of banks in the process of liquidation under his supervision, has foreclosed a large number of deeds of trust in which such banks were the named trustee, and has executed under the powers contained therein a large number of trustee's deeds under authority thereof: Now, therefore,

All the deeds and acts of the commissioner of banks and/or conservators or liquidating agents of such banks in the process of liquidation, as in the preamble to this section described, are hereby in all respects ratified, validated and confirmed.

This section shall not effect litigation pending April 3, 1939. (1939, c. 368.)

§ 53-36. Commissioner to report to secretary of state certain matters relative to liquidation of closed banks; publication.—The commissioner of banks of the state of North Carolina shall on or before the first day of June, 1933, and on the first day of January and July of each year thereafter file with the secretary of the state of North Carolina a report showing all banks under liquidation in the state of North Carolina, and the names of any and all auditors together with the amounts paid to them for auditing each of said banks, and the names of any and all attorneys employed in connection with the liquidation of said banks together with the amount paid or contracted to be paid to each of said attorneys. If any attorney has been employed on a fee contingent upon recovery said report must state in substance the contract.

Within five days from the receipt of said report the secretary of the state of North Carolina shall cause same to be published one time in some newspaper published in each county in which a bank or banks are under liquidation, if there be a newspaper published in said county. If not, the secretary of the state of North Carolina shall cause a copy of said report to be posted at the courthouse door in said county. (1933, c. 483.)

Art. 4. Reopening of Closed Banks.

§ 53-37. Conditions under which banks may reopen.—Whenever the commissioner of banks has taken in possession any bank, such bank may, with the consent of the commissioner of banks, resume business upon such terms and conditions as may be approved by the state banking commission. When such banks have been taken in possession under the provisions of § 53-20, paragraphs one or two, such conditions shall be fully stated in writing and a copy thereof shall be filed with the clerk of the superior court in the action required to be commenced in such cases against said bank under the provisions of § 53-20, paragraph three: Provided, however, no bank or banking institution which has been taken in possession by the commissioner of banks under the provisions of the state banking laws shall be reopened to receive deposits or for the transaction of a banking business unless and until:

(a) The bank has been completely restored to solvency;

(b) The capital stock, if impaired, has been entirely restored in cash;

(c) It shall clearly appear to the commissioner of banks that such bank may be reopened with safety to the public and such reopening is necessary to serve the business interests of the community. (1921, c. 4, s. 16; 1927, c. 113, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1931, c. 388, s. 1; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 218(q).)

Cross References.—As to liquidation, see § 53-20. As to when commissioner takes charge, see § 53-19.

Liability of Directors under Agreement.—The agreement of directors to make good the impairment of the capital stock of a state bank as a condition precedent to the management of its business by its own officers, and at the instance of the state bank examiner, acting according to the power conferred by statute upon the corporation commission, renders such directors, as stockholders liable to the extent of the obligations they have thus assumed, and this liability is independent of the former statute creating an additional liability to the amount of stock held by them in the banking corporation. (C. S. § 219(a).) Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316.

§ 53-38. Certain contracts not affected.—Nothing in § 53-37 shall impair or affect any contracts made by banks and depositors of banks reopened prior to May 12, 1931, under the permission of the state banking department. (1931, c. 388, s. 4.)

Art. 5. Stockholders.

§ 53-39. New state banks to set up surplus fund.—The common stockholders of any bank organized after March 17, 1933, under the laws of the state of North Carolina shall pay in, in cash, a surplus fund equal to fifty per centum of its common capital stock before the bank shall be authorized to commence business. (1933, c. 159, s. 2; 1935, c. 79, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of history and scope of this section, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 200. For an interesting article discussing the law of contracts, and referring to provisions of the instant section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 91.

The amendment of 1935 added the word "common" wherever it appears in the section preceding the words "stockholders" and "capital stock."

§ 53-40. Executors, trustees, etc., not personally liable.—Persons holding stock as executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees shall not personally be subject to any liabilities as stockholders, but the estate and funds in their hands shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator, intestate, ward, or person interested in such trust fund would be if living and competent to hold stock in his own name. (1921, c. 4, s. 23; C. S. 219(c).)

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial re-enactment of the latter part of C. S. sec. 237.

Extent of Section.—This provision is held to refer not only to trustees appointed by will, or by order of a court or of a judge, but to any trust relation, however created. But the exemption is limited to cases of express and active trusts, where there is a probability of some estate to respond to the liability. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 765, 138 S. E. 139.

In Smathers v. Western Carolina Bank, 155 N. C. 283, 71 S. E. 345, it was held that by reason of this statute, a person to whom a certificate for shares of the capital stock in a bank was issued, showing on its face that he held the said shares as trustee for a cestui que trust, also named in the certificate, is not liable personally as a stockholder in an action by the receiver of the bank to recover judgment upon the statutory liability of stockholders. American Trust Co. v. Jenkins, 193 N. C. 761, 764, 138 S. E. 139. See Corporation Comm. v. Latham, 201 N. C. 342, 343, 160 S. E. 295.

Assignee of Judgment for Stock Assessment against Executor Is Not Entitled to Set Up Personal Liability of Executor.—Plaintiff assignee of a judgment against an executor in his representative capacity for a stock assessment made on shares of stock of a bank in liquidation, sought by subsequent proceedings to charge the executor personally with liability upon allegations that the executor personally owned the bank stock, legally or equitably. The mere assignment of the judgment, without more, was held to transfer only the rights of the assignor of the judgment in his status of judgment creditor and not his personal rights not incident to such status, and plaintiff was not entitled to set up the personal liability of the executor. Jones v. Franklin's Estate, 209 N. C. 585, 183 S. E. 792.

Liability Attaches to Estate or Funds in Hands of Trustees, etc.—By this provision an administrator, executor, guardian, or trustee is not personally liable for the statutory liability on bank stock held in their representative capacities, but such liability attaches to the estate or funds in their hands. Hood v. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co., 209 N. C. 367, 184 S. E. 51.

And where a trustee breached its duty in failing to sell bank stock for reinvestment, its wrongful act will not relieve the estate of the statutory liability to the prejudice of depositors and creditors of the bank. Id.

A trust estate is liable for assessment on bank stock owned regardless of the method by which the trust is established, and where shares of bank stock appear on the books of the bank in the name of "executors," the statutory liability thereon of the estate may not be defeated by showing that the stock was held by the executors as executors and trustees under the will for the benefit of minor ulterior beneficiaries, the beneficiaries of the income from the trust estate being of age, and there being nothing on the books of the bank to disclose the trusteeship. Hood v. North Carolina Bank, etc., Co., 209 N. C. 367, 184 S. E. 51.

Liability of Bank Trustee to Trust Estate Can Not Be Set Up as Counterclaim against Liability of Estate.—The liability of a bank trustee to the trust estate for its negligent failure to sell for reinvestment shares of stock of the bank belonging to the trust estate cannot be set up as a counterclaim or set-off against the statutory liability of the estate upon the insolvency of the bank. In re United Bank, etc., Co., 209 N. C. 389, 184 S. E. 64.

Former Liability of Stockholders Individually.—The amendment of 1935 to C. S. § 219(a)—1935, c. 99, s. 1—abolished the statutory liability of stockholders in the banks of this state, and it is made applicable to all shares of stock, issued or to be issued. Hood v. Richardson Realty, 211 N. C. 582, 191 S. E. 410.

Where since the levy of the assessment the holders of bank stock have been relieved of their double liability by the 1935 enactment, unless the defendants were rendered liable by the prior original assessment, they cannot now be made liable therefor. Fidelity Security Co. v. Hight, 211 N. C. 117, 189 S. E. 174.

§ 53-41. Stock sold if subscription unpaid. — Whenever any stockholder, or his assignee, fails to pay any installment on the stock, when the same is required by law to be paid, the directors of the bank shall sell the stock of such delinquent stockholder at public or private sale, as they may deem best, having first given the delinquent stockholder twenty days notice, personally or by mail, at his last known address. If no party can be found who will pay for such stock the amount due thereon to the bank with any additional indebtedness of such stockholder to the bank, the amount previously paid shall be forfeited to the bank, and such stock shall be sold, as the directors may order, within thirty days of the time of such forfeiture, and if not sold, it shall be canceled and deducted from the capital stock of the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 25; C. S. 219(e).)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for unpaid stock under general corporation law, see § 55-65.

Editor's Note.—This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 243, the prior law, except that the sale limit allowed the directors was changed from six months to thirty days.

§ 53-42. Impairment of capital; assessments, etc.—The commissioner of banks shall notify every bank whose capital shall have become impaired from losses or any other cause, and the surplus and undivided profits of such bank are insufficient to make good such impairment, to make the impairment good within sixty days of such notice by an assessment upon the stockholders thereof, and it shall be the duty of the officers and directors of the bank receiving such notice to immediately call a special meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of making an assessment upon its stockholders sufficient to cover the impairment of the capital, payable in cash, at which meeting such assessment shall be made: Provided, that such bank may reduce its capital to the extent of the impairment, as provided in § 53-11. If any stockholder of such bank neglects or refuses to pay such assessment as herein provided, it shall be the duty of the board of directors to cause a sufficient amount of the capital stock of such stockholder or stockholders to be sold at public auction, upon thirty days notice given by posting such notice of sale in the office of the bank and by publishing such notice in a newspaper in the place where the bank is located, and if none therein, a newspaper circulating in the county in which the bank is located, to make good the deficiency, and the balance, if any, shall be returned to the delinquent shareholder or shareholders. If any such bank shall fail to cause to be paid in such deficiency in its capital stock for three months after receiving such notice from the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be finally liquidated as provided by law. A sale of stock, as provided in this section, shall effect an absolute cancellation of the outstanding certificate or certificates evidencing the stock so sold, and shall make the certificate null and void, and a new certificate shall be issued by the bank to the purchaser of such stock; but in the event the stock of any stockholder be sold as hereinbefore provided, and the said stock when sold fails to bring the amount of the assessment against said stockholder, then, and in such event, the said stockholder shall be personally liable for the difference between the amount of said assessment and the price brought by the sale of said stock. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 3; 1925, c. 117; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 219(f).)

Cross Reference.—As to the amount of reserve required, see §§ 53-50 and 53-51.

Editor's Note.—This section first appeared in the act of 1921, ch. 56, amending the act of 1921, ch. 4. Its provisions are substantially similar to the national banking act which was designed principally for the purpose of strengthening banks whose capital has become impaired. See Elon Banking, etc. v. Burk, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

The 1925 amendment added the last lines, beginning with the word "but" after the semicolon. This was added to overcome the construction placed upon this section by the case cited above. See annotations following in this note.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Rules of Construction.—This statute creates a new liability and provides a special remedy for its enforcement, viz., the sale of stock if the stockholder fails to pay assessment. This remedy is exclusive and actions or proceedings ordinarily available may not be resorted to. So a personal action against the stockholder for the difference between the price for which the stock sold and the amount of the assessment cannot be maintained. Elon Banking, etc., Co., v. Burke, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

The effect of the holding that a personal action for the difference cannot be maintained was destroyed by the 1925 amendment which specifically provides for such an action, but the general rules laid down for the construction of this section remain applicable.—Ed. Note.

Laws 1925, c. 117, amending this section, was passed to meet the decision in Elon Bkg., etc., Co. v. Burke, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163. Bank of Pinehurst v. Derby, 218 N. C. 653, 12 S. E. (2d) 260.

Amendatory Act of 1925 Cannot Be Given Retroactive Effect.—The act of 1925, amending this section by providing for personal liability of stockholders for the amount by which the sale of their stock failed to realize a sum sufficient to pay the assessment, provided a new remedy, and to permit the bank to maintain the action against a stockholder who purchased his stock prior to the enactment of the amendment of 1925 would violate due process of law, and would impair the obligations of the contract, and hence the act of 1925 cannot be given retroactive effect. Bank of Pinehurst v. Derby, 218 N. C. 653, 12 S. E. (2d) 260.

"Payable in Cash" Construed.—The expression "payable in cash" merely means that the account is presently due, and its payment may be presently enforced, but only by the methods the statute specifies. Elon Banking, etc., Co. v. Burke, 189 N. C. 69, 126 S. E. 163.

Art. 6. Powers and Duties.

§ 53-43. General powers.—In addition to the powers conferred by law upon private corporations, banks shall have the power:

1. To exercise by its board of directors, or duly authorized officers and agents, subject to law, all such powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking, by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of indebtedness, by receiving deposits, by buying and selling exchange, coin, and bullion, by loaning money on personal security or real and personal property. Such corporations at the time of making loans or discounts may take and receive interest or discounts in advance.

2. To adopt regulations for the government of the corporation not inconsistent with the constitution and laws of this state.

3. To purchase, hold, and convey real estate for the following purposes:

(a) Such as shall be necessary for the convenient transaction of its business, including furniture and fixtures, with its banking offices and other apartments to rent as a source of income, which investment shall not exceed fifty per cent of its paid-in capital stock and permanent surplus: Provided, that this provision shall not apply to any such investment made before the ninth day of March, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one. Provided further, that the commissioner of banks may in his discretion authorize the continuance of investments made prior to the first day of February, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-five, of the character described in this paragraph. Provided, further, that the commissioner of banks may, in his discretion, authorize any bank located in a city having a population of more than ten thousand, according to the last United States census, to invest more than fifty per cent of its capital and permanent surplus in its banking houses, furniture, and fixtures.

(b) Such as is mortgaged to it in good faith by way of security for loans made or moneys due to such banks.

(c) Such as has been purchased at sales upon foreclosures of mortgages and deeds of trust held or owned by it, or on judgments or decrees obtained and rendered for debts due to it, or in settlements affecting security of such debts. All real property referred to in this subsection shall be sold by such bank within one year after it is acquired, unless, upon application by the board of directors, the commissioner of banks extends the time within which such sale shall be made. Any and all powers and privileges heretofore granted and given to any person, firm, or corporation doing a banking business in connection with a fiduciary and insurance business, or the right to deal to any extent in real estate, inconsistent with this chapter, are hereby repealed.

4. Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to authorize banking corporations to engage in the business of dealing in investment securities, either directly or through subsidiary corporations: Provided, however, that the term "dealing in investment securities" as used herein, shall not be deemed to include the purchasing and selling of securities without recourse, solely upon order, and for the account of, customers; and provided further, that "investment securities," as used herein, shall not be deemed to include obligations of the United States, or general obligations of any state or of any political subdivision thereof, or of cities, towns, or other corporate municipalities of any state or obligations issued under authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, or issued by the Federal Home Loan Banks or the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

Any provision in conflict with this subsection contained in the Articles of Incorporation heretofore issued to any banking corporation is hereby revoked.

5. Subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks and on the authority of its board of directors, or a majority thereof, to enter into such contracts, incur such obligations and generally to do and perform any and all such acts and things whatsoever as may be necessary or appropriate in order to take advantage of any and all memberships, loans, subscriptions, contracts, grants, rights or privileges, which may at any time be available or inure to banking institutions, or to their depositors, creditors, stockholders, conservators, receivers or liquidators, by virtue of those provisions of section eight of the Federal Banking Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (section twelve B of the Federal Reserve Act as amended) which establish the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and provide for the insurance of deposits, or of any other provisions of that or any other act or resolution of congress to aid, regulate or safeguard banking institutions and their depositors, including any amendments of the same or any substitutions therefor; also, to subscribe for and acquire any stock, debentures, bonds or other types of securities of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and to comply with the lawful regulations and requirements from time to time issued or made by such corporation.

6. Any commercial bank, savings bank, or trust company, heretofore or hereafter organized under any general or special laws of this state and any national bank doing business in this state, shall have power, in addition to such other powers as it may have:

(a) Upon the making of a loan or discount, to deduct in advance, from the proceeds of such loan, interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum (6%) per annum upon the amount of the loan from the date thereof until the maturity of the final installment, notwithstanding that the principal amount of such loan is required to be repaid in installments: Provided, any commercial bank may exercise and enjoy all the powers now or hereafter provided in paragraph 3 of section 53-141.

(b) Nothing in subsection 6 shall be construed as in any wise extending or increasing or decreasing the powers of commercial banks, savings banks, or trust companies or national banks to make loans or discount notes other than as herein or by other laws expressly provided.

7. Maintain separate departments and deposit in its commercial department to the credit of its trust department all uninvested fiduciary funds of cash and secure, under rules and regulations of the state banking commission, all such deposits in the name of the trust department whether in consolidated deposits or for separate fiduciary accounts, by segregating and delivering to the trust department such securities as may be eligible for the investment of the sinking funds of the state of North Carolina, equal in market value to such deposited funds, or readily marketable commercial bonds having not less than a recognized "A" rating equal to one hundred and twenty-five per centum of such deposits. Such securities shall be held by the trust department as security for the full payment or repayment of all such deposits, and shall be kept separate and apart from other assets of the trust department. Until all of such deposits shall have been accounted for to the trust department or to the individual fiduciary accounts, no creditor of the bank shall have any claim or right to such security. When fiduciary funds are deposited by the trust department in the commercial department of the bank, the deposit thereof shall not be deemed to constitute a use of such funds in the general business of the bank and the bank in such instance shall not be liable for interest on such funds. To the extent and in the amount such deposits may be insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the amount of security required for such deposits by this section may be reduced.

The banking commission shall have power to make such rules and regulations as it may deem necessary for the enforcement of the provisions of the preceding paragraph, and such authority shall exist and is hereby conferred under the general authority heretofore conferred upon said commission as well as by this paragraph. (1921, c. 4, s. 26; 1923, c. 148, s. 5; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 67; 1925, c. 279; 1927, c. 47, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 303; 1935, c. 81, s. 1, c. 82; 1937, c. 154; 1941, c. 77; 1943, c. 234; C. S. 220(a).)

Cross References.—As to powers conferred upon private corporations, see § 55-26 et seq. As to form for corporate conveyances, see § 47-41. As to license of commercial banks to act in a fiduciary capacity, see § 58-114.

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S., sec. 220. However there are several material changes. Subsection 2 was inserted; the date beyond which investments are exempt from the section as now provided in clause (a) of subsection 3 was changed from 1903 to 1921, the second proviso permitting the commission to authorize the continuance of investments made prior to 1923 being inserted in 1924 and amended in 1925 by changing the date from 1923 to 1925, and the third proviso added by the 1927 amendment; a clause providing that real estate conveyed to a bank in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of the dealings might be purchased, held and conveyed was not brought forward; and in clause (c) of subsection 3 the requirement that all real estate acquired under the subsection should be disposed of within one year was incorporated in 1921 when the section was passed, and the 1923 amendment inserted the words "and deeds of trust held or" in the second line of the clause. Otherwise the prior law is re-enacted in this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The amendment of 1935 changed the list of obligations excepted in paragraph four which was added by the 1933 amendment. Formerly all obligations of the state instead of "general" obligations were excepted. Obligations issued under Farm Loan Act or by Home Loan Banks and Home Owners' Loan Corporation were added to the list. Subdivision 5 was added by the 1935 amendment in its entirety.

The 1937 amendment added subsection 6.

The 1941 amendment added subsection 7. For comment on this amendment, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 544.

Prior to the 1943 amendment the proviso to paragraph (a) of subsection 6 provided: "no loan made under the provisions of subsection 6 shall exceed fifteen hundred dollars ($1,500.00) to any one person, firm, partnership or corporation."

Similarity of Section to Federal Act. — The words used in the statute relative to the powers of corporations engaged in the banking business under the laws of this State are almost identical with those used in the Federal statute, relative to the powers of National Banks. U. S. Comp. Stat. 1918, sec. 9661, subsec. 7. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

Power to Become Surety or Lend Credit.—In the absence of an express grant of authority, a banking corporation, as a rule, has not the power to become the guarantor or surety of the obligation of another person, or to lend its credit to any person. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

A bank is not authorized to become a guarantor, except where it is necessary to protect its rights where the guaranty relates to commercial paper and is an incident to the purchase and sale thereof, or when the guaranty is especially authorized by law. Indiana Quarries Co. v. Angier Bank, etc., Co., 190 N. C. 277, 283, 129 S. E. 619.

Negotiations of Evidences of Debt.—In the course of its dealings and for a lawful purpose a bank may negotiate notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of indebtedness embraced by this section; and where there is more than one transfer of the same security, and the equities are equal, the first in time will prevail. Richmond County v. Page Trust Co., 195 N. C. 545, 132 S. E. 786.

§ 53-44. Investment in bonds guaranteed by United States.—(1) Any bank, building and loan association, land and loan association, savings and loan association, insurance company, title insurance company, land mortgage company, fraternal order or benevolent association, or any other corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, and operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, insurance commissioner, or superintendent of savings and loan associations; the state treasurer, as custodian of the assurance fund provided under the Torrens Act, or any officer charged with the investment of sinking funds of the State, any county, city, town, incorporated village, township, school district, school taxing district, or other district or political subdivision of government of the State; the North Carolina State Thrift Society, any clerk of the court holding money by color of his office or as receiver; and any person, firm or corporation acting as executor, administrator, guardian, trustee, or other person acting in a fiduciary capacity may invest in bonds issued, or in bonds which are fully and unconditionally guaranteed as to principal and interest by the United States, to the same extent as the same are now or may be hereafter authorized to invest in any obligation of the United States: Provided that all investments authorized hereunder shall be guaranteed, both as to the payment of principal and interest thereon, by the United States treasury.

(2) Security for Loans and Deposits.—No bank shall be required to maintain a reserve against deposits secured by any of the above mentioned bonds equal in market value to the amount of such deposits, and such bonds shall be valid security for all loans and deposits to the same extent as are any obligations of the United States.

(3) Bonds Deemed Cash in Settlements by Fiduciaries.—In settlements by guardians, executors, administrators, trustees and others acting in a fiduciary capacity, the bonds and securities herein mentioned shall be deemed cash to the amount actually paid for same, including the premium, if any, paid for such bonds, and may be paid as such by the transfer thereof to the persons entitled and without any liability for a greater rate of interest than the amount actually accruing from such bonds. (1935, c. 164; 1937, c. 433.)

Cross References.—As to investment of funds held by bank for investment or distribution, see § 36-27. As to banks holding stock as fiduciary, see § 36-32.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out the words "not exceeding par value thereof" formerly appearing in subsection (3) of this section.

For an analysis of this section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 362.

§ 53-45. Banks, fiduciaries, etc., authorized to invest in mortgages of federal housing administration, etc.—(1) Insured Mortgages and Obligations of National Mortgage Associations.—It shall be lawful for all commercial and industrial banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, and other financial institutions engaged in business in this state, and for guardians, executors, administrators, trustees or others acting in a fiduciary capacity in this state to invest, to the same extent that such funds may be invested in interest-bearing obligations of the United States, their funds or the moneys in their custody or possession which are eligible for investment, in bonds or notes secured by a mortgage or deed of trust insured by the federal housing administrator, in mortgages on real estate which have been accepted for insurance by the federal housing administrator, and in obligations of national mortgage associations.

(2) Insured Loans. — All such banks, trust companies, building and loan associations and insurance companies, and other financial institutions, and also all such guardians, executors, administrators, trustees or others acting in a fiduciary capacity in this state, may make such loans, secured by real estate, as the federal housing administrator has insured or has made a commitment to insure, and may obtain such insurance.

(3) Eligibility for Credit Insurance.—All banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies and other financial institutions, on being approved as eligible for credit insurance by the federal housing administrator, may make such loans as are insured by the federal housing administrator.

(4) Certain Securities Made Eligible for Collaterals, etc.—Wherever, by statute of this state, collateral is required as security for the deposit of public or other funds; or deposits are required to be made with any public official or department; or an investment of capital or surplus, or a reserve or other fund, is required to be maintained, consisting of designated securities, bonds, and notes secured by a mortgage or deed of trust insured by the federal housing administrator, debentures issued by the federal housing administrator and obligations of national mortgage associations shall be eligible for such purposes.

(5) General Laws Not Applicable.—No law of this state prescribing the nature, amount or form of security or requiring security upon which loans or investments may be made, or prescribing or limiting the rates or time of payment of the interest any obligation may bear, or prescribing or limiting the period for which loans or investments may be made, shall be deemed to apply to loans or investments made pursuant to the foregoing paragraphs. (1935, cc. 71, 378; 1937, c. 333.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment made this section applicable to building and loan associations, and made other changes.

§ 53-46. Limitations on investments or securities.—The investment in any bonds or other interest-bearing securities of any one firm, individual or corporation, unless it be the interest-bearing obligations of the United States, obligations issued under authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, or issued by the Federal Home Loan Banks, or the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, state of North Carolina, or other state of the United States, or of some city, town, township, county, school district, or other political subdivision of the state of North Carolina, shall at no time be more than twenty per cent of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of any bank to an amount not in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars; and not more than ten per cent of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus in excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars: Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to compel any bank to surrender or dispose of any investment in the stocks or bonds of a corporation owning the lands or buildings occupied by such bank as its banking home, if such stocks or bonds were lawfully acquired prior to February 25, 1927. (1921, c. 4, s. 27; 1927, c. 47, s. 6; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 359; 1935, c. 199; 1937, c. 186; C. S. 220(b).)

Cross References.—As to the suspension of this section, see § 53-49. As to limitation of amount of bank acceptances, see § 53-56.

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law.

The 1927 amendment made radical changes in this section. The maximum investment which might be made in private securities was reduced from 25% to 20% of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus where the amount was not in excess of $250,000, and reduced to 10% of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus in excess of $250,000. Prior to the amendment the section fixed 20% of the capital and permanent surplus as the maximum where the capital was between $250,000 and $500,000; 15% where it was between $500,000 and $750,000; and 10% in excess of $750,000.

The last proviso in the section was also added by the 1927 amendment.

By Public Laws 1933, c. 359, provisos, formerly appearing in the section, permitting restricted investments in stock or bonds of a corporation owning the building or land occupied by the bank, were omitted.

The amendment of 1935 added the words "or other state of the United States, or of some" near the beginning of this section.

The 1937 amendment inserted the words "obligations issued under authority of the Federal Farm Loan Act, as amended, or issued by the Federal Home Loan Banks, or the Home Owners' Loan Corporation."

§ 53-47. Stocks, limitations on investment in. —No bank shall make any investment in the capital stock of any other state or national bank: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to prevent banks doing business under this chapter from subscribing to or purchasing, upon such terms as may be agreed upon, the capital stock of banks organized under that act of congress known as the "Edge Act" or the capital stock of central reserve banks whose capital stock exceeds one million dollars. To constitute a central reserve bank as contemplated by this chapter, at least fifty per cent of the capital stock of such bank shall be owned by other banks. The investment of any bank in the capital stock of such central reserve bank or bank organized under the act of congress commonly known as the "Edge Act," shall at no time exceed ten per cent of the paid-in capital and permanent surplus of the bank making same. No bank shall invest more than fifty per cent of its permanent surplus in the stocks of other corporations, firms, partnerships, or companies, unless such stock is purchased to protect the bank from loss. Any stocks owned or hereafter acquired in excess of the limitations herein imposed shall be disposed of at public or private sale within six months after the date of acquiring the same, and if not so disposed of they shall be charged to profit and loss account, and no longer carried on the books as an asset. The limit of time in which said stocks shall be disposed of or charged off the books of the bank may be extended by the commissioner of banks if in his judgment it is for the best interest of the bank that such extension be granted; Provided that the limitations imposed in this section on the ownership of stock in or securities of corporations is suspended to the extent (and to that extent only) that any bank operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks may subscribe for and purchase shares of stock in or debentures, bonds or other types of securities of any corporation organized under the laws of the United States of America for the purpose of insuring to depositors a part or all of their funds on deposit in banks where and to such extent as such stock or security ownership is required in order to obtain the benefits of such deposit insurance for its depositors. (1921, c. 4, s. 28; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1935, c. 81, s. 3; C. S. 220(c).)

Editor's Note. — There was no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section.

The amendment of 1935 added the last proviso of this section relating to suspension of the limitations in case of banks operating under the supervision of the commissioner of banks.

§ 53-48. Loans, limitations of.—The total direct and indirect liability of any person, firm or corporation, other than a municipal corporation for money borrowed, including in the liabilities of a firm, the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed twenty per cent of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or fractional part thereof, of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of the bank and not more than ten per cent of the excess of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of the unimpaired capital and permanent surplus of the bank: Provided, however, that the discount of bills of exchange drawn in good faith against actual existing values, the discount of solvent trade acceptances, or other solvent commercial or business paper actually owned by the person, firm or corporation negotiating the same and the purchase of any notes, secured by not less than a like face amount of bonds of the United States or state of North Carolina or certificates of indebtedness of the United States, shall not be considered as money borrowed within the meaning of this section: Provided, further, that the limitations of this section shall not apply to loans or obligations to the extent that they are secured or covered by guarantees or by commitments or agreements to take over or purchase the same, made by any federal reserve bank or by the United States or any department, board, bureau, commission or establishment of the United States, including any corporation wholly owned directly or indirectly by the United States. (1921, c. 4, s. 29; 1923, c. 148, s. 6; 1925, c. 119, s. 1; 1927, c. 47, s. 7; 1937, c. 419; 1943, c. 204; C. S. 220(d).)

Cross References.—As to the suspension of this section, see § 53-49. As to limitation of amount of bank acceptances, see § 53-56.

Editor's Note.—C. S. § 227 was the corresponding section of the prior law. The provisions have been so changed that this section could not be called a re-enactment of the prior law.

The words "or business" appearing in the first proviso of this section were inserted by the acts of 1923.

The 1925 amendment changed the percentage where the paid-in capital is $250,000 or less from 25% to 20%. It also inserted a proviso that upon the approval of two-thirds of the directors a loan could be increased to 25% but this was omitted when revised by the act of 1927. The word "solvent" was inserted in the first proviso before "trade acceptance" and before "commercial" by this amendment.

The acts of 1927 repealed the old section and re-enacted it with several important changes. Prior to it the section provided for a maximum loan of 20% where the paid-in capital was $250,000 or less; 20% between $250,000 and $500,000; 15% between $500,000 and $750,000; and 10% over $750,000.

A proviso at the end of the section providing that the limitations imposed should not apply to existing loans, or renewals or extension thereof, except as made to apply by the commission, was omitted.

The 1937 amendment added the proviso at the end of the section.

The 1943 act rewrote the section to include, in the last proviso; departments, boards, etc., of the United States, or corporations owned directly or indirectly by the United States.

Section Not Retroactive. — The statutory limitation upon a bank making loans to any one person or class of common interest, does not apply to loans, or extensions or renewals thereof, existing at the date of the ratification of the statute. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Violation a Misdemeanor. — The violation of this section is a misdemeanor. See sec. 53-134.

A bank must act through its officers, and where they have violated the provisions of this section as to lending the bank's money, the offense is committed by the officers under the meaning of the statute, and they are individually indictable therefor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180; State v. Davidson, 205 N. C. 735, 738, 172 S. E. 489.

A construction of this section which would limit criminal liability to the bank would defeat the manifest purpose of the General Assembly. The loans prohibited can be made for the bank only by officers and directors, and to hold that the bank only is liable criminally, would result, upon its conviction, in the imposition of a fine, the only punishment that can be imposed by the court upon a corporation, thus resulting in most instances in a further depletion of the already impaired resources of the bank, and entailing further loss to depositors and stockholders, for whose protection the provisions are primarily included in the statute. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 533, 130 S. E. 180.

An indictment charging the officer of the bank of violating section 53-111, and also unlawfully making loans for the bank to certain persons in excess of the maximum percentage of the capital stock and permenent surplus, in violation of this section, alleges the commission of crimes of the same class. Where there are two indictments thereof against the same person they may be consolidated and tried together by the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Loss of Assets Must Result.—In an action against the managing officials of a bank for wrongful depletion of assets in mismanagement of the affairs of the bank in making loans in excess of the limit set forth in this section, the evidence is insufficient to be submitted to a jury, if it appears that no loss to the assets of the bank has been caused by the acts of the officials. Gordon v. Pendleton, 202 N. C. 241, 162 S. E. 546.

§ 53-49. Suspension of investment and loan limitation.—The board of directors of any bank, may by resolution duly passed at a meeting of the board, request the commissioner of banks to suspend temporarily the limitations on loans and investments as the same may apply to any particular loan or investment in excess of the limitations of §§ 53-46, 53-47, and 53-48 which the bank desires to make. Upon receipt of a duly certified copy of such resolution, the commissioner of banks may, in his discretion, suspend the limitations on loans and investments insofar as they would apply to the loan or investment which the bank desires to make: Provided, however, such loan shall be amply secured and shall be for a period not longer than one hundred and twenty days. (1921, c. 4, s. 30; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 239, s. 1; C. S. 220(e).)

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-50. Reserve. — Every bank shall at all times have on hand or on deposit with approved reserve depositories, instantly available funds in an amount equal to at least fifteen per cent of the aggregate amount of its demand deposits, and five per cent of the aggregate amount of its time deposits. But no reserve shall be required on deposits secured by a deposit of United States bonds or the bonds of the state of North Carolina. Any bank that is now or may hereafter become a member of the Federal Reserve Bank shall maintain the same reserve with respect to deposits as shall be required of other members of such Federal Reserve Bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 31; C. S. 220(f).)

Cross References.—As to effect of impaired capital upon reserve, see § 53-42. As to provisions giving authority to join federal reserve bank, see § 53-61. As to failure to maintain reserve required by law, see § 53-111.

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the old law was C. S. sec. 226. With the exception of the insertion of the phrase permitting deposits with approved reserve depositories, this section, in so far as it goes, is a re-enactment of the prior law. The prior section contained a provision prohibiting a bank from making new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange payable at sight, or make any dividends of its profits when the available funds are below the reserve required. This provision will be found as a part of sec. 222(i).

The prior section also contained definitions of time and demand deposit, available funds and cash. The first two terms were defined under Sec. 53-1 so that a repetition here is uncalled for and a definition of the last two terms is omitted from the banking laws.

"Deposits" Defined. — This section means all deposits the payment of which can be legally required within thirty days [see sec. 53-1], this reserve consisting in cash on hand, balance payable on demand due from other approved solvent banks designated as depositors, [see sec. 53-51], by resolution of the board of directors approved by the Corporation Commission [see sec. 53-84]. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 53-51. Reserve and cash defined. — Reserve shall consist of cash on hand and balances payable on demand, due from other approved solvent banks, which have been designated depositories as hereinafter provided in this chapter. Cash includes lawful money of the United States, and exchange of any clearing house association. (Rev., s. 232; 1903, c. 275, s. 29; 1919, c. 58; 1921, c. 4, s. 32; C. S. 220(g).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-71.

§ 53-52. Forged check, payment of. — No bank shall be liable to a depositor for payment by it of a forged check or other order to pay money unless within sixty days after the receipt of such voucher by the depositor he shall notify the bank that such check or order so paid is forged. (1921, c. 4, s. 33; C. S. 220(h).)

Editor's Note.—"This section is a substantial reënactment of C. S., sec. 231, except that formerly the depositor had six months within which to give notice of the forgery. Greensboro Ice, etc., Co. v. Security Nat. Bank, 210 N. C. 244, 186 S. E. 362." Arnold v. State Bank, etc., Co., 218 N. C. 433, 437, 11 S. E. (2d) 307.

The liability of the bank for payment of the forged instrument is predicated upon the presumption that it knows the genuine signature of its depositors. State Bank v. Cumberland Sav., etc., Co., 168 N. C. 605, 85 S. E. 5. The bank assumes the responsibility of holding the depositor's funds subject to his order and the burden is upon it, where a deposit is shown, to relieve itself of liability for the fund by proof of payment in accordance with the order of the depositor. Bank v. Thompson, 174 N. C. 349, 93 S. E. 849; Yarborough v. Trust Co., 142 N. C. 377, 55 S. E. 296.

The bank is just as liable for the payment of a forged check within the meaning of this section, when the endorsement is forged, as where the whole instrument is forged, it would seem, and this for the reason that the bank is authorized to pay only to the person designated by the depositor. Of course, if the payment is due to the negligence of the depositor, the bank would be relieved of liability. See Michie on Banks and Banking, p. 1209; 7 C. J. sec. 414, p. 686.

The general rule as to the liability of a bank upon a raised check is that it is liable for payment unless the depositor was so negligent in preparing his check that it was left incomplete or easily altered. But it should be observed in this connection that the depositor is not bound to prepare the checks so that it is impossible to alter them, and it would seem that if he used the care that an ordinary prudent man would use, the bank is liable. See Michie on Banks, pp. 1203 et seq. and 7 C. J. p. 684 sec. 413 for a collection of authorities.

The provision of this section requiring a return of the voucher, giving the bank notice within a specified time of the receipt thereof, is in keeping with the law of the majority of the states. This requirement is predicated upon the proposition that it is the duty of the depositor to examine his returned checks within a reasonable time and to report any forgeries or alterations. However, in the absence of a statute similar to this one, it has often been held that the depositor owes no such duty, and that even if he does and fails in it, the bank will not be relieved of payment unless it has been prejudiced by the delay. See Michie on Banks and Banking, pp. 1229-1239 for full treatment. See also 7 C. J. sec. 415, p. 687.

Receipt of Statement by Bookkeeper Who Forged Checks Is Receipt by Corporation.—The receipt of a corporation's bank statement by its bookkeeper is receipt of the statement by the corporation, and it may not recover against the bank for the payment of forged checks when notice is not given within sixty days after such receipt of the bank statement, even though the checks were forged by the bookkeeper, who destroyed them after he received the canceled checks from the bank. Greensboro Ice, etc., Co. v. Security Nat. Bank, 210 N. C. 244, 186 S. E. 362.

§ 53-53. Minor, payment of deposit in the name of.—When money is held on deposit by any state, industrial or national bank in this state in the name of a minor under fifteen years of age, it may be paid, together with the interest, if there be any interest thereon, upon receipts or checks signed by such minor and one of the minor's parents. When money is held on deposit by any state, industrial or national bank in this state in the name of a minor fifteen years of age or upwards, it may be paid, together with the interest, if there be any interest thereon, upon receipts or checks signed by the minor. A written statement from the minor, if fifteen years of age or upward, or from one of the said minor's parents, if the minor is under fifteen years of age, shall be conclusive evidence of the age of the minor. (1921, c. 4, s. 34; 1939, c. 84; C. S. 220(i).)

Cross Reference.—As to payment of deposit in trust for minor to minor upon death of trustee, see § 53-59.

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 228.

The 1939 amendment repealed the former section and substituted the above therefor.

For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 345.

This section is an exception to the general rule that contracts of an infant are voidable at the option of the infant. Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 44, 178 S. E. 863.

§ 53-54. Tranactions not performed during banking hours.—Nothing in any law of this state shall in any manner whatsoever affect the validity of, or render void or voidable, the payment, certification, or acceptance of a check or other negotiable instrument or any other transaction by a bank in this state, because done or performed during any time other than regular banking hours: Provided, that nothing herein shall be construed to compel any bank in this state, which by law or custom is entitled to close at twelve noon on any Saturday, or for the whole or part day of any legal holiday, to keep open for the transaction of business, or to perform any of the acts or transactions aforesaid on any Saturday after such hour or on any legal holiday, except at its option. (1921, c. 4, s. 35; C. S. 220(j).)

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 234 in so far as Saturdays, Sundays and holidays are concerned. There was no similar provision in the prior law relating to transactions not performed during banking hours on other days.

§ 53-55. Commercial and business paper defined.—The term "commercial or business paper," as used in this chapter, is hereby defined to mean a promissory note, and the term "trade acceptance" to mean a draft or bill of exchange issued or drawn for agricultural, industrial, or commercial purposes, or the proceeds of which have been used or are to be used for such purposes, but such definition shall not include notes, drafts, or bills of exchange covering merely investments, or issued or drawn for the purpose of carrying on or trading in stocks, bonds, or other investment securities, except bonds and notes of the government of the United States and state of North Carolina. (1921, c. 4, s. 36; 1923, c. 148, s. 7; 1941, c. 268; C. S. 220(k).)

Cross Reference.—As to promissory notes and checks, see § 25-191 et seq.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment struck out the former second sentence of this section, which sentence related to maturity.

§ 53-56. Bank acceptances defined.—Any bank doing business under this chapter may accept for payment at a future date, drafts or bills of exchange having not more than six months sight to run, drawn upon it by its customers under acceptance agreements, and which grow out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods; and issue letters of credit authorizing the holders thereof to draw upon it or its correspondents, provided that there is a definite bona fide contract for the shipment of goods within a specified reasonable time, and the existence of such contract is certified in the acceptance agreement; or which grow out of transactions involving the domestic shipment of goods, provided that shipping documents, conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods, are attached or in the hands of an agent of the accepting bank, independent of the drawer, for his account, at the time of acceptance, or which are secured at the time of acceptance by warehouse receipts or other documents conveying or securing to the accepting bank title to readily marketable goods fully covered by insurance, the warehouse receipts or other documents to be those of a responsible warehouse, independent of the drawer, the acceptance to remain secured during the life of the acceptance unless suitable security of same character, or cash, be substituted: Provided, no bank shall accept drafts or bills of exchange under this section to an aggregate amount at any time more than equal to the sum of its capital and permanent surplus: Provided further, that no bank shall accept, whether in a foreign or domestic transaction, for any one person, firm, or corporation, to any amount at any time equal to more than twenty-five per cent of its capital and permanent surplus, unless the accepting bank is secured either by attached documents or those held for its account by its agent, independent of the drawer, or by some other actual security of the same character. Should the accepting bank purchase or discount its own acceptances, such acceptances will be considered as a direct loan to the drawer, and be subject to the limitation on loans hereinbefore provided in this chapter. The state banking commission may issue such further regulations as to such acceptances as it may deem necessary in conformity with this chapter. As used herein, the word "goods" shall be construed to mean and include goods, wares, merchandise, or agricultural products, including livestock. (1921, c. 4, s. 37; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 220(l).)

Cross References.—As to limitations on investments in securities, see § 53-46; stocks, § 53-47; loans generally, § 53-48.

Acceptance Prior to Statute. — Notwithstanding that, prior to the legislative enactment, an acceptance was beyond the power of a bank when not expressly permitted by the charter, an acceptance by a bank not so authorized was not invalid, though actually beyond power, and a payment might be enforced. Sherrell v. American Trust Co., 176 N. C. 591, 97 S. E. 471.

§ 53-57. Nonpayment of check in error, liability for.—No bank shall be liable to a depositor because of the nonpayment, through mistake or error, and without malice, of a check which should have been paid had the mistake or error of nonpayment not occurred, except for the actual damage by reason of such nonpayment that the depositor shall prove, and in such event the liability shall not exceed the amount of damage so proven. (1921, c. 4, s. 38; C. S. 220(m).)

Editor's Note. — The section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 232.

A bank is held liable to the drawer for its breach of promise to pay the check, upon the ground that there is an implied promise by the bank, arising from the deposit of the funds with it, that it will pay the checks when and as they are presented. If the bank fails to perform this promise, it becomes liable to the drawer for the damage sustained by him on account of its refusal or failure to pay his check. But the holder of the check can only sue the drawer, and cannot sue the bank. The reason why the holder of the check is not permitted to sue the bank has been stated by the authorities to be that there is no privity between the holder in the bank until by certification of the check or the acceptance thereof, expressed or implied, or by any other act or conduct it has made itself directly liable to the holder. First Nat. Bank v. Whitman, 94 U. S. 343, 24 L. Ed. 229; Commercial Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524; Hawes v. Blackwell, 107 N. C. 196, 12 S. E. 245.

Notwithstanding that these principles have been recognized, there are courts which hold, in well considered opinions, that the bank should be held liable directly to the holder if it is notified that he has the check, or demand for its payment is made upon it, and it then has sufficient clear and unincumbered funds to the credit of the drawer with which to pay the check without any risk or embarrassment to itself. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 166 N. C. 112, 119, 81 S. E. 1074; Perry v. Bank, 131 N. C. 117, 42 S. E. 551; Commercial Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 118 N. C. 783, 24 S. E. 524; Hawes v. Blackwell, 107 N. C. 196, 12 S. E. 245.

For general treatment of subject, see Michie on Banks and Banking, pp. 1079, 1151 et seq. See also, 7 C. J. 425, p. 696.

Where Nonpayment Malicious.—This section does not apply where the complaint alleges that the nonpayment was wrongful and malicious. In such case the question of malice is for the jury, and the sustaining of a demurrer to the complaint is reversible error. The complaint is subject to demurrer only when it appears from the allegations that nonpayment was through error or mistake and without malice, and that no actual damages resulted to depositor from such nonpayment. Woody v. National Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150.

Damages.—Any person will be deemed substantially damaged upon the refusal of a bank to pay his checks, unless protected by the provisions of this section, and substantial damages may be awarded. And where the nonpayment is through malice, punitive damages may also be recovered. Woody v. First Nat. Bank, 194 N. C. 549, 140 S. E. 150, holding that on the facts admitted by demurrer plaintiff was entitled to nominal damages at least.

A bank wrongfully and unlawfully refusing to pay a check breaches its contract and the depositor is entitled to nominal damages at least. Thomas v. American Trust Co., 208 N. C. 653, 182 S. E. 136.

Charge on Injury to Credit and Reputation Not Supported by Evidence Is Error.—In an action to recover for the wrongful and unlawful refusal by a bank to pay a depositor's check, it is error for the court to charge the jury on the issue of damage that it should consider the evidence of damage sustained by plaintiff through injury to his credit and reputation in the community resulting from the bank's wrongful act when there is no evidence that plaintiff's credit or reputation had been injured thereby. Thomas v. American Trust Co., 208 N. C. 653, 182 S. E. 136.

§ 53-58. Checks sent direct to bank on which drawn.—Any bank receiving for collection or deposit any check, note, or other negotiable instrument drawn upon or payable at another bank, located in another town or city, whether within or without this state, may forward such instrument for collection, direct to the bank on which it is drawn, or at which it is payable, and such method of forwarding direct to the payer bank shall be deemed due diligence, and the failure of such payer bank, because of its insolvency or other default, to account for the proceeds thereof, shall not render the forwarding bank liable therefor: Provided, however, such forwarding bank shall have used due diligence in other respects in connection with the collection of such instrument. (1921, c. 4, s. 39; C. S. 220(n).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 233 except that the last line of that section which provided, "The provision of this section shall not apply where there is more than one bank in a town," was omitted.

Dealings Presumed to Contemplate Statute. — Banks must be presumed to have dealt with each other with respect to a statute of the State in which a check was deposited for collection, defining the rights and liabilities of banks to which checks are forwarded for collection. Fed. Land Bk. v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 310, 127 S. E. 3.

Sending Check to Federal Reserve Bank. — Under this section the sending of a cashier's check to the proper Federal Reserve Bank is due diligence in collecting the same, as would be sending it directly to the drawer bank. Fed. Land Bk. v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 127 S. E. 3.

Abrogated Holdings. — The holding of the Supreme Court, in Bank v. Floyd, 142 N. C. 187, 55 S. E. 95; and in American Nat. Bank v. Savannah Trust Co., 172 N. C. 344, 90 S. E. 302, that "It is negligence in a bank having a draft or check for collection to send it directly to the drawee, and this is true, though the drawee is the only bank at the place of payment," is abrogated by the express provisions of this statute. See Malloy v. Fed. Reserve Bank, 281 Fed. 1003; Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 309, 127 S. E. 3.

Constitutes Good Presentment.—A collecting bank makes a good presentment of a check for payment by forwarding it to the drawee bank in another city by mail. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 148 S. E. 236.

When Section Not Applicable—Rights and Liabilities as to Collection.—When a collecting bank receives a check for collection payable at a bank in another town, there is no authority of agency conferred by the drawer of the check on it to receive in payment anything but money; and where the drawer of the check has money to meet the check on deposit in the drawee bank, on presentment in due course, and an intervening bank, in the course of collection, receives a check of the drawee bank in payment, which is not paid by reason of the drawee bank becoming insolvent before presentment of its check: Held, as a matter of law the drawer of the check is released from liability thereon. This section has no application to the facts in this case. Dewey Brothers v. Margolis, 195 N. C. 307, 142 S. E. 22.

Cited in Qualls v. Farmers, etc., Bank, 197 N. C. 438, 149 S. E. 546; Bank of Canton, etc., Co. v. Clark, 198 N. C. 169, 151 S. E. 102.

§ 53-59. Deposits in trust, payment of. — Whenever any deposits shall be made in any bank or banking institution in this state by any person in trust for any other person who is a minor of the age of fifteen years and upward, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given to the bank, in event of the death of the trustee, the same, or any part thereof, together with the dividends or interest thereon, may be paid to the person for whom said deposit was made: Provided, that the amount of said deposit is not in excess of one hundred dollars. (1921, c. 4, s. 40; C. S. 220(o).)

Cross References.—As to whom a deposit in trust for a minor might be paid generally, see § 53-53. As to deposits made by fiduciaries generally, see § 32-8 et seq.

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of C. S. sec. 229, except that formerly the terms of the section limited the deposits to which the section applied to the amount of fifty dollars or less.

See discussion in 9 N. C. L. Rev. 13.

§ 53-60. Farm loan bonds, authorized investment in.—Any bank or insurance company organized under the laws of this state, and any person acting as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, may invest in federal farm loan bonds issued by any federal farm loan bank or joint-stock land bank organized pursuant to an act entitled "An act of Congress to provide capital for agricultural development, to create standard forms of investment based upon farm mortgages to equalize rates of interest upon farm loans, to furnish a market for United States bonds, to create government depositories, and financial agents for the United States, and for other purposes," approved the seventeenth day of July, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen. (1921, c. 4, s. 41; C. S. 220(p).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of the C. S. sec. 225.

§ 53-61. Federal Reserve Bank, authority to join.—The words "Federal Reserve Act," as herein used, shall be held to mean and to include the act of Congress of the United States, approved December twenty-third, nineteen hundred thirteen, as heretofore and hereafter amended. The words "Federal Reserve Board" shall be held to mean the Federal Reserve Board created and described in the Federal Reserve Act. The words "Federal Reserve Banks" shall be held to mean Federal Reserve Banks created and organized under the authority of the Federal Reserve Act. The words "member bank" shall be held to mean any National or State bank or bank and trust company which has become or which becomes a member of one of the Federal Reserve Banks created by the Federal Reserve Act.

(a) Any bank incorporated under the laws of this state shall have the power to subscribe to the capital stock and become a member of a Federal Reserve Bank.

(b) Any bank incorporated under the laws of this state which is, or which may become, a member of the Federal Reserve Bank is by this chapter vested with all powers conferred upon member banks of the Federal Reserve Banks by terms of the Federal Reserve Act as fully and completely as if such powers were specifically enumerated and described therein, and such powers shall be exercised subject to all restrictions and limitations imposed by the Federal Reserve Act, or by regulations of the Federal Reserve Board made pursuant thereto. The right, however, is expressly reserved to revoke or to amend the powers herein conferred.

(c) A compliance on the part of any such bank with the reserve requirements of the Federal Reserve Act shall be held to be a full compliance with the provisions of the laws of this state, which require banks to maintain cash balances in their vaults or with other banks, and no such bank shall be required to carry or maintain reserve other than such as is required under the terms of the Federal Reserve Act.

(d) Any such bank shall continue to be subject to the supervision and examination required by the laws of this state, except that the Federal Reserve Board shall have the right, if it deems necessary, to make examinations; and the authorities of this state having supervision over such banks may disclose to the Federal Reserve Board, or to the examiners duly appointed by it, all information in reference to the affairs of any bank which has become, or desires to become, a member of a Federal Reserve Bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 42; C. S. 220(q).)

Cross Reference.—As to the amount of reserve required, see § 53-50.

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the C. S. sec. 221.

Unemployment Compensation.—A bank organized under the laws of this state is not an instrumentality of the federal government so as to exempt it from the tax imposed by the Unemployment Compensation Act, notwithstanding that the bank may be a member of the federal reserve system. Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co., 215 N. C. 491, 2 S. E. (2d) 592.

§ 53-62. Establishment of branches.—Any bank doing business under this chapter may establish branches in the cities in which they are located, or elsewhere, after having first obtained the written approval of the commissioner of banks, which approval may be given or withheld by the commissioner of banks, in his discretion, and shall not be given until he shall have ascertained to his satisfaction that the public convenience and advantage will be promoted by the opening of such branch. Such branch banks shall be operated as branches of and under the name of the parent bank, and under the control and direction of the board of directors and executive officers of said parent bank. The board of directors of the parent bank shall elect a cashier and such other officers as may be required to properly conduct the business of such branch, and a board of managers or loan committee shall be responsible for the conduct and management of said branch, but not of the parent bank or of any branch save that of which they are officers, managers, or committee: Provided, that the commissioner of banks shall not authorize the establishment of any branch, the paid-in capital stock of whose parent bank is not sufficient in an amount to provide for the capital of at least twenty-five thousand dollars for the parent bank, and at least twenty-five thousand dollars for each branch which it is proposed to establish in cities or towns of three thousand population or less; nor less than thirty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds three thousand, but does not exceed ten thousand; nor less than fifty thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds ten thousand, but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars in cities and towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand. All banks operating branches prior to February 18, 1921, shall, within a time limit to be prescribed by the commissioner of banks, cause said branch bank to conform to the provisions of this section: Provided, however, that any bank with a capital stock (including both common and preferred) of one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars or more may without additional capital establish and operate such number of branches or agencies in the state of North Carolina as the commissioner of banks may in his discretion permit; but a bank operating branches under this proviso shall at all times maintain an unimpaired capital of at least one million ($1,000,000.00) dollars: Provided further, that the commissioner of banks shall not permit the establishment of additional branches, and/or agencies unless said bank maintains its capital stock and surplus in ratio of one to ten to its deposits; Provided that in small communities having no other banking facilities, and upon a finding by the commissioner of banks that the public convenience and advantage will be promoted thereby, the opening of "tellers window agencies or branches" of then existing banks may be permitted, but no more than one such agency or branch may be so opened in any one community nor shall any bank be permitted to open such an agency or branch when its unimpaired capital and surplus in proportion to deposits is below that herein required. (1921, c. 4, s. 43; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 2; 1927, c. 47, s. 8; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1933, c. 451, s. 1; 1935, c. 139; C. S. 220(r).)

Editor's Note. — There is no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section. However, C. S. sec. 216 contained a provision prohibiting the establishment of branches except with the consent of the corporation commission. Authority to establish branches under the old law must have been given by the legislature in the charter, and this must have been given by express terms for the court could not construe a provision in a charter to give authority by implication. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 316, 30 S. E. 341. In this case the court pointed out the reason for the policy, stating that past experience indicated that it was possibly a mistake to permit banks to establish branches.

It is likely that this section will go far to overcome the objections to branches which the court had in mind. The requirement that the parent bank have enough capital over and above its required capital to legally capitalize a branch as a separate bank, the vigilant supervision of the commissioner of banks and the provision that a local committee or board of managers shall be responsible for the conduct and management of the business are features calculated to bring such result.

The amendment of the section made at the extra session of 1921 changed the amount that must be provided for branch banks in cities and towns of 3,000 population or less from $20,000 to $15,000, so that it was the same amount required for parent banks in such cities and towns. The act of 1927 changed the amount in each instance to $25,000.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The second and third provisos of this section were added by Public Laws 1933, c. 451.

For comment on changes made by Acts 1933, see 11 N. C. Law Rev. 199.

For a comment on the last proviso of this section, see 13 N. C. Law Rev. 360.

The amendment of 1935 added the proviso at the end of the section making an exception in smaller communities having no other banking facilities.

Who May Question Authority to Establish.—Whether a banking company, chartered to do business in a certain place and without express authority to establish and conduct a branch at another place, can do so, is a matter for the State, through the Attorney General, to have determined by an action to vacate its charter. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 30 S. E. 341. [This case was decided prior to the statute.]

Contracts of Branch Illegally Established.—A bond given by a cashier of a branch bank for the faithful performance of his duties is not against public morals because the parent corporation may not have had the express authority to establish a branch bank. Morehead Banking Co. v. Tate, 122 N. C. 313, 30 S. E. 341.

Branch as Agent of Parent.—The relation between bank and the branch is that of principal and agent, and all the assets and indebtedness of the agency are those of the principal. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

The establishment of a branch by a bank, having the authority under its charter to do so, is not an estoppel upon the latter so as to require it to treat the former as an independent bank. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

Creditors of Parent and Branch Share Ratably. — The creditors and depositors of the parent and branch share ratably where the assets are being liquidated. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775.

§ 53-63. Certificate of deposit, unlawful issuing of.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to issue any certificate of deposit or other negotiable instrument of its indebtedness to the holder thereof except for lawful money of the United States, checks, drafts, or bills of exchange which are the actual equivalent of such money; nor shall such moneys, checks, drafts, or bills of exchange be the proceeds of any note given in payment of the purchase price of any stock. Any officer or employee of any bank violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 4, s. 44; C. S. 220(s).)

Cross Reference.—As to provision making it unlawful for bank to handle draft connected with receipt of liquor, see § 18-33.

§ 53-64. Bank's own stock, unlawful to loan on.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to make any loan secured by the pledge of its own shares of stock, nor shall any bank be the holder as pledgee, or as purchaser, of any portion of its capital stock unless such stock is purchased or pledged to it to prevent loss upon a debt previously contracted in good faith. Provided, that whenever any bank shall have shares of its own stock sold to, or pledged to it, for the purpose of preventing a loss upon a debt previously contracted, it shall dispose of all such shares of stock within a period of six months from the date such stock was sold or pledged to it and if not so disposed of, the same shall be charged to profit and loss and no longer carried as an asset of the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 45; 1927, c. 47, s. 9; C. S. 220(t).)

Editor's Note.—The terms of the prior law, C. S. sec. 224, were somewhat similar to the provisions of this section. However, this section is fuller and goes into more detail than did the prior law. Prior to the former enactment (1903) there was no general law upon the subject and it was not unusual for the legislature to permit a bank to accept pledge of its own stock. But in order for stock so pledged to share in the assets of the bank when winding up business it must have been released by payment of the debt. First Nat. Bank v. Riggins, 124 N. C. 534, 32 S. E. 801. A prior statute gave a lien to a bank on stock of stockholder indebted to the bank and the statute was strictly construed. See Boyd v. Reed, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35. See also In re Mills Co., 162 Fed. 42.

To What Indebtedness Lien Applies. — The lien given to a bank by its charter upon the stock of a stockholder indebted to it extends only to indebtedness incurred directly by such stockholders to the bank and not to his indebtedness to a third person acquired by the bank. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35.

Taking Stock in Payment of Note.—A payee bank may not cancel a note in consideration of shares of its stock delivered to it by the maker of the note, it not appearing that he was insolvent, or that the transaction was necessary to prevent loss to the bank, and payment so made is not a valid defense in the hands of another bank to which the note had been endorsed before maturity by the payee bank as collateral security. White v. Whitehurst, 194 N. C. 305, 139 S. E. 598.

§ 53-65. Deposits payable on demand. — Any bank may receive deposits of funds subject to withdrawal or to be paid upon the checks of the depositor. All deposits in such banks shall be payable on demand, without notice, except when the contract of deposit shall otherwise provide. (1921, c. 4, s. 46; C. S. 220(u).)

Cross References.—As to definition of "demand deposits," see § 53-1. As to definition under prior law, see C. S. 226.

§ 53-66. Savings deposits.—Any bank conducting a savings department may receive deposits on such terms as are authorized by its board of directors and agreed to by its depositors. The board of directors shall prescribe the terms upon which such deposits shall be received and paid out, and a passbook shall be issued to each depositor containing the rules and regulations adopted by the board of directors governing such deposits, in which shall be entered each deposit made, the interest allowed thereon, and each payment made to such depositor. By accepting such book the depositor assents and agrees to the rules and regulations therein contained. (1921, c. 4, s. 47; C. S. 220(v).)

Editor's Note.—There were no provisions in the prior law which were similar to this section.

See discussion in 9 N. C. L. Rev. 13.

§ 53-67. Boards of directors, banks controlled by.—The corporate powers, business, and property of banks doing business under this chapter shall be exercised, conducted, and controlled by its board of directors, which shall meet at least quarterly. Such board shall consist of not less than five directors, to be chosen by the stockholders, and shall hold office for one year, and until their successors are elected and qualified. The annual meeting of stockholders for the election of directors shall be held during the month of January of each year. (1921, c. 4, s. 48; 1925, c. 170; C. S. 220(w).)

Editor's Note.—There was no provision in the prior law corresponding to this section. The last sentence of this section was added by the 1925 amendment.

§ 53-68. Statements showing deposits of state and state officials.—All banks in which any money is on deposit by the state of North Carolina or any of the officials thereof shall, in their published statements as by law required, show the amount of money on deposit in such bank to the credit of the state or of any official thereof; and no officials of the state shall deposit money in any bank which shall refuse to comply with the provisions of this section. (1923, c. 211, s. 1; C. S. 220(x).)

Cross Reference.—See also § 147-77 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This provision did not appear in the prior banking law.

§ 53-69. Deposits by state departments or institutions.—All moneys collected by any state department or institution shall be deposited with or to the credit of the state treasurer, as and when directed by the governor and council of state. (1923, c. 211, s. 2; C. S. 220(y).)

Editor's Note.—This provision did not appear in the prior banking law.

§ 53-70. Fees on remittances covering checks.—For the purpose of providing for the solvency, protection, and safety of the banking institutions and trust companies chartered by this state and having their principal offices in this state, it shall be lawful for all banks and trust companies in this state to charge a fee, not in excess of one-eighth of one per cent, on remittances covering checks, the minimum fee on any remittance therefor to be ten cents. (1921, c. 20, s. 1; C. S. 220(z).)

Cross Reference.—As to what checks are exempted from this section, see § 53-73.

Editor's Note.—There is no provision in the prior law similar to this section.

Transaction Not within Statute.—The exchange or collection charges authorized by this section apply only to "remittances" covering checks, and where checks, etc., are sent to a bank in the same town with the bank on which they are drawn, for which either money or bank entries are required, such transactions do not fall within the meaning of the term "remittances" which will entitle the bank on which they are drawn to the exchange charges specified in the statute. First Nat. Bank v. Peoples Bank, 194 N. C. 720, 140 S. E. 705.

Enforcement of Payment.—A bank may maintain its action against another bank to enforce by mandatory injunction its payment of the exchange charges drawn through the one on the other, allowed by the statute and the fact that the plaintiff is a national and the defendant a state bank, does not vary this principle, and § 53-74 does not apply. First Nat. Bank v. Peoples Bank, 194 N. C. 720, 140 S. E. 705.

§ 53-71. Checks payable in exchange. — In order to prevent accumulation of unnecessary amounts of currency in the vaults of the banks and trust companies chartered by this state, all checks drawn on said banks and trust companies shall, unless specified on the face thereof to the contrary by the maker or makers thereof, be payable at the option of the drawee bank, in exchange drawn on the reserve deposits of said drawee bank when any such check is presented by or through any Federal Reserve Bank, post office, or express company, or any respective agents thereof. (1921, c. 20, s. 2; C. S. 220(aa).)

Cross References.—As to what checks are exempted from this section, see § 53-73. See also note under § 53-58.

Editor's Note.—The prior banking law did not contain a provision similar to this section.

The general rule is that a check is payable only in cash and if the payee or holder accepts anything other than cash in payment, the drawer is discharged from liability. Thus the ordinary rule is that if the payee accept a draft from the payor bank on its reserve fund in another bank, the drawer is relieved from further liability.

But this section changes the rule so that payment on such a draft does not discharge the check until the draft is paid in money.

The purpose of this section is to relieve the North Carolina banks of the pressure exerted upon them by the Federal Reserve Banks in seeking to enforce the policy of "par clearance," by presenting checks over the counters of the banks which would not agree to remit at par, and demand payment in cash. The effect of this demand for cash payment was not only to deprive the banks of their exchange charges on checks, but also to reduce their income-producing assets through the necessity of keeping in their vaults in cash a much larger portion of their resources than had heretofore been necessary. The purpose of this section is effected by the draft upon a reserve deposit as has always been the general custom. See the comprehensive article in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 133.

The effect of this section is as though the provision of the law is written into the face of the check; and consequently where the maker or drawer does not specify cash payment, he agrees, as does the payee in accepting it, that if presented by or through a Federal Reserve Bank, Express Co., etc., the check shall be payable by an exchange draft drawn by the payee bank on its reserved deposits. See Farmer, etc., Bank v. Federal Reserve Bank, 262 U. S. 649, 43 S. E. 651, 67 L. Ed. 1157; Cleve v. Graven Chem. Co., 18 Fed. (2d) 711.

For comprehensive articles by C. T. Murchison, Professor of Applied Economics, U. of N. C., giving the history of the controversy out of which this statute grew, and a review of the subsequent litigation, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 133; 2 N. C. Law Rev. 36.

The Federal Reserve Bank cannot require payment in any other medium than the exchange. Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 310, 127 S. E. 3. See also, 8 N. C. Law Rev. 55.

Constitutionality.—This section does not violate the federal constitution. Farmers, etc., Bank v. Federal Reserve Bank, 262 U. S. 649, 43 S. Ct. 651, 67 L. Ed. 1157, overruling the same case in 183 N. C. 546, 552, 112 S. E. 252; Federal Land Bank v. Barrow, 189 N. C. 303, 311, 127 S. E. 3.

Purpose of Statute.—This section was enacted to relieve banks and trust companies, chartered by this State, of embarrassments growing out of the policy theretofore pursued by the Federal Reserve Bank with respect to the collection of checks drawn on said banks and trust companies. It does not deal with or purport to deal with the rights or liabilities of depositors who in the transaction of their business draw checks on their deposits with said banks and trust companies. The purpose of the section and its only effect is to confer upon such banks and trust companies the right, in certain instances, to pay checks drawn on them in a medium other than money, and to deprive the payee or holder of such checks of the right to demand payment in money. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 264, 148 S. E. 253.

This section does not change the general rule that when a depositor draws his check on a bank or trust company chartered by this State, such check is payable in money, or at the option of the holder, in a medium other than money—such payment being at the risk of the holder. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 265, 148 S. E. 253.

Construed Strictly.—This section should be construed strictly. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

This section has no application to certificates of deposit. Citizens Nat. Bank v. Fidelity, etc., Co., 86 F. (2d) 4, 7.

Right to Specify Medium of Payment.—Under this section the drawer has the right to specify on the face of the check that payment shall be made in money, and in such case the drawee bank or trust company must pay in money, in any event. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Payment in money may be required if the check is presented for payment, in person, or by an agent for collection other than as prescribed by this section. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253.

Liability Where Exchange Unpaid.—It will not be held under this section, that a drawee bank can charge checks drawn on it by its customers to the accounts of such customers, remit in drafts or exchange to the forwarding bank, and thereby be released, notwithstanding that said drafts or exchange are, for valid and lawful reasons, not paid. Where a check drawn on a bank or trust company chartered by this State is presented to the drawee bank, "by or through any Federal Reserve Bank, post office or express company or any respective agent thereof," and such bank or trust company, in the exercise of the option conferred by said statute, sends to the forwarding bank its draft on its reserve deposits in payment of such check, it will not be discharged of liability for the collection of its depositor's check until such draft on its reserve deposit has been paid. Graham v. Proctorville Warehouse, 189 N. C. 533, 538, 127 S. E. 540.

Where the payee of a check deposits it in a bank for collection and does not thereon indicate that the collecting bank is to require payment in money, he authorizes the collecting bank to collect in due course of mail and comes within the provisions of this section and § 53-57 as being a check presented by or through a "postoffice," and the collecting bank is not liable for accepting the check of the drawee bank on another bank, resulting ultimately in nonpayment, and the payee must suffer the loss thereon. Braswell v. Citizens Nat. Bank, 197 N. C. 229, 148 S. E. 236.

Where a bank receives a check in payment of a note and elects to put it in the hands of a Federal reserve bank for collection, which bank accepts the check of the drawee bank on another bank in payment, when the check would have been paid in course of collection had cash been demanded, the drawer and endorsers on the original check are relieved of liability thereon, and may not be held if the check of the drawee bank was not paid because of its later insolvency; and this result is not affected by this section since the payee bank has the option of presenting the check for payment through the Federal reserve bank or not. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, criticizing Cleve v. Craven Chemical Co., 18 Fed. (2d) 711.

Charging Check to Drawer's Account as Payment.—When the drawee bank has to the credit of the drawer funds sufficient and available for the payment of his check, and accepts and charges the check to the drawer's account, the check is paid, and the drawer is discharged from liability, not only on the check, but also for the debt in payment of which the check was drawn. Morris v. Cleve, 197 N. C. 253, 148 S. E. 253, citing Dewey Bros. v. Margolis & Brooks, 195 N. C. 307, 142 S. E. 22; Quarles v. O. B. Taylor & Co., 195 N. C. 313, 142 S. E. 25.

§ 53-72. Notation on checks forbidden. — It shall be unlawful for any person, or persons, other than the maker thereof to make, by rubber stamp or otherwise, any notation on any check drawn on any bank or trust company chartered in this state, the effect of which notation shall change or affect any condition or provision thereof, as created by §§ 53-70 through 53-74. Any person or persons violating this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall pay a fine of not more than two hundred dollars, ($200) or be imprisoned not more than thirty days. (1921, c. 20, s. 3; C. S. 220(bb).)

Editor's Note.—The prior banking law did not contain a provision similar to this section.

§ 53-73. Checks exempted.—All checks drawn on the banks and trust companies in this state in payment of obligations due the state of North Carolina or the federal government shall be exempt from the provisions of §§ 53-70 and 53-71. (1921, c. 20, s. 4; C. S. 220(cc).)

§ 53-74. No protest on checks refused for nonpayment of exchange charges. No action on refusal to pay checks.—No officer in this state shall protest for nonpayment any check or checks drawn on any bank or trust company chartered by this state when payment is refused by the drawee bank solely on account of failure or refusal of the holder or owner thereof to pay exchange charges authorized in §§ 53-70 through 53-74; and there shall be no right of action, either in law or equity, against any bank or trust company chartered by this state, for refusal to pay any such check when such action is based alone on the ground of refusal to pay exchange or collection charges authorized in §§ 53-70 through 53-74. (1921, c. 20, s. 5; C. S. 220(dd).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-70.

Editor's Note. — The prior law contained no provision which was similar to this section.

§ 53-75. Statement of account from bank to depositor deemed final adjustment if not objected to within five years.—When a statement of account has been rendered by a bank to a depositor accompanied by vouchers, if any, which are the basis for debit entries in such account, or the depositor's passbook has been written up by the bank showing the condition ot the depositor's account and delivered to such depositor with like accompaniment of vouchers, if any, such account shall, after the period of five years from the date of its rendition in the event no objection thereto has been theretofore made by the depositor, be deemed finally adjusted and settled and its correctness conclusively presumed and such depositor shall thereafter be barred from questioning the incorrectness of such account for any cause. (1929, c. 188, s. 1.)

§ 53-76. Depositor not relieved from exercising diligence as to errors.—Nothing in the preceding section shall be construed to relieve the depositor from the duty now imposed by law of exercising due diligence in the examination of such account and vouchers, if any, when rendered by the bank and of immediate notification to the bank upon discovery of any error therein, nor from the legal consequences of neglect of such duty; nor to prevent the application of § 53-52 to cases governed thereby. (1929, c. 188, s. 2.)

§ 53-77. Governor empowered to proclaim banking holidays.—The governor is hereby authorized and empowered, by and with the advice and consent of the council of state, to name and set apart such day or days, as he may from time to time designate, as banking holidays. During such period of holidays, all the ordinary and usual operations and business of all banking corporations, state or national, in this state shall be suspended, and during such period no banking corporation shall pay out or receive deposits, make loans or discounts, transfer credits, or transact any other banking business whatsoever: Provided, however, that during any such holiday, including the holiday validated in this section, the commissioner of banks, with the approval of the Governor, may permit any or all such banking institutions to perform any or all of the usual banking functions.

The banking holiday heretofore proclaimed by the governor of this state for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March sixth, seventh and eighth, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three, is hereby approved and validated, and the said days are hereby declared to be banking holidays in the state of North Carolina. (1933, c. 120, ss. 1, 2.)

Art. 7. Officers and Directors.

§ 53-78. Executive committee, directors shall appoint.—The board of directors shall appoint an executive committee or committees, each of which shall be composed of at least three of its members with such duties and powers as are defined by the regulations or by-laws, who shall serve until their successors are appointed. Such executive committee or committees shall meet as often as the board of directors may require, which shall not be less frequently than once each month, and approve or disapprove all loans and investments. All loans and investments shall be made under such rules and regulations as the board of directors may prescribe. (1921, c. 4, s. 49; C. S. 221(a).)

Editor's Note.—There were no sections in the banking law prior to 1921 corresponding to the sections under this article. The general corporation law, sections 55-48 et seq., was applicable by virtue of sec. 236.

§ 53-79. Minutes of directors and executive committee meetings.—Minutes shall be kept of all meetings of the board of directors and of the executive committee or committees, and same shall be recorded in a book or books which shall be kept for that purpose; which book or books shall be kept on file in the bank. Such minutes shall show a record of the action taken by the board of directors and executive committee or committees, on all loans, discounts, and investments made, authorized or approved, and such further action as the board of directors and executive committee or committees shall make concerning the conduct, management, and welfare of the bank. The minutes of the executive committee or committees shall be submitted to the board of directors for approval at each meeting of the board. (1921, c. 4, s. 50; C. S. 221(b).)

Cross Reference.—See note under § 53-78.

Effect of Not Writing Minutes.—The plaintiffs cannot be deprived of their right by reason of failure of the proper officer to actually make a written minute or record of the proceedings for the reason that proceedings of a corporate meeting of stockholders or directors are facts, and that they may be proved by parol testimony where they are not so recorded. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 459, 115 S. E. 166. And this notwithstanding this section, there being no objection appearing in the record to the testimony of the plaintiff and other witnesses as to what transpired among the directors about this transaction. Everett v. Staton, 192 N. C. 216, 220, 134 S. E. 492.

§ 53-80. Directors, qualifications of. — Every director of a bank doing business under this chapter shall be the owner and holder of shares of stock in the bank having a par value of not less than five hundred dollars, provided, such bank shall have a capital stock of more than fifteen thousand dollars; and not less than two hundred dollars if such bank shall have a capital stock of fifteen thousand dollars or less. And every such director shall hold such shares in his own name unpledged and unencumbered in any way. The office of any director at any time violating any of the provisions of this section shall immediately become vacant, and the remaining directors shall declare his office vacant and proceed to fill such vacancy forthwith. Not less than three-fourths of the directors of every bank doing business under this chapter shall be residents of the state of North Carolina: Provided, that as to banks doing business before February 18, 1921, the requirements as to amount of stock owned by a director shall not apply unless the commissioner of banks shall rule that such director is not bona fide discharging his duties. (1921, c. 4, s. 51; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(c).)

Cross Reference.—As to the law prior to the enactment of this section, see § 55-48.

§ 53-81. Directors shall take oath. — Every director shall, within thirty days after his election, take and subscribe, in duplicate, an oath that he will diligently and honestly perform his duties in such office; and that he is the owner in good faith of the shares of stock of the bank required to qualify him for such office, standing in his own name on its books, and one of such oaths shall forthwith be filed with the commissioner of banks, and the other shall be kept on file in the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 52; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(d).)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-82. Directors, liability of. — Any director of any bank who shall knowingly violate, or who shall knowingly permit to be violated by any officers, agents, or employees of such bank, any of the provisions of this chapter shall be held personally and individually liable for all damages which the bank, its stockholders or any other person shall have sustained in consequence of such violation. Any aggrieved stockholder in any bank in liquidation may prosecute an action for the enforcement of the provisions of this section. Only one such action may be brought. The procedure shall follow as nearly as may be that prescribed by § 44-14, relative to suits on bonds of contractors with municipal corporations. (1921, c. 4, s. 53; 1935, c. 464; C. S. 221(e).)

Cross References.—As to fraud of director of a general corporation, see § 55-56. As to criminal liability of bank directors, see § 53-129. See also §§ 14-254 and 53-130.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the last three sentences to the section.

Similarity to National Act.—This section is, with mere verbal changes, Comp. Stat. 9831, R. S. 5239. For federal cases construing the national banking act see Yates v. Jones Nat. Bank, 206 U. S. 158, 51 L. Ed. 1002, 27 S. Ct. 638; Thomas v. Taylor, 224 U. S. 73, 56 L. Ed. 673; 32 S. Ct. 403; Chesbrough v. Woodworth, 244 U. S. 72, 61 L. Ed. 1000, 37 S. Ct. 579

Effect of Violation.—Doubtless, the General Assembly, at the regular session of 1921, thought that the inclusion of section 53-48 and this section would be sufficient, without providing that the violation of either provision should be a crime. The provision with reference to the reserve was enforceable by the Corporation Commission in the exercise of its power of supervision of banks. No provision was made for the enforcement of the prohibition of loans to individuals exceeding the statutory limitation. Violations of these and other provisions of the statute by directors might result in civil liability, only. However, at the Extra Session of 1921, the General Assembly added section 53-134 making such violation a misdemeanor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 532, 130 S. E. 180.

Elements of Crime in Violation.—An intent to defraud the bank or others is not required to be either alleged in the indictment or proved upon the trial of the issue raised by a plea of not guilty. Neither the bank nor any of its officers or directors have any discretion as to the making of loans which are thus forbidden. Intent is, therefore, not an element of the crime. The wilful doing of the unlawful act constitutes the crime declared by statute to be a misdemeanor, punishable as such in the discretion of the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 534, 130 S. E. 180.

Who May Prosecute Action.—An action for damage against the directors for false statements as to the bank's solvency, made to private persons and in the bank's report to the commission, is solely maintainable by the receiver of the bank unless the private person can show an injury peculiar to him as distinguished from the loss among the creditors generally. Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195.

Liability Where False Statement Misleads.—A false and misleading statement made by the directors by which one was led to make deposits gave a cause of action against the directors. It was also held that the directors are presumed to know the condition of the bank. Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C. 287, 24 S. E. 482. See also Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 29 S. E. 827; Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478.

Position as Evidence of Knowledge.—Where the official position of an officer of a bank is such as necessarily to acquaint him of the violation of the statute respecting the making of loans, and to fix him as a party thereto, it is sufficient evidence to sustain his conviction of the misdemeanor prescribed in § 53-134. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 53-83. Directors, examining committee of. — A committee of at least three directors or stockholders shall be appointed annually to examine, or to superintend the examination of the assets and the liabilities of the bank, and to report to the board of directors the result of such examination. The committee, with the approval of the board of directors, may provide for such examinations by a certified public accountant or clearing-house examiner in any city where such examination is provided for by the rules of such clearing-house association. A copy of such report of examination, which is herein required to be made, attested, and verified under oath by the signature of at least three members of such committee, shall forthwith be filed with the commissioner of banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 54; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(f).)

§ 53-84. Depositaries, designated by directors. —By resolution of the board of directors, other banks organized under the laws of this state, or of another state, or of the national banking act of the United States, shall be designated as depositaries or reserve banks in which a part of such bank's reserve shall be deposited, subject to payment on demand. A copy of such resolution shall, upon its adoption, be forthwith certified to the commissioner of banks and the depositary so designated shall be subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks. For causes which he may deem adequate, the commissioner of banks shall have authority at any time to withdraw such approval. (1921, c. 4, s. 55; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(g).)

§ 53-85. Stockholders' book. — The directors shall provide a book in which shall be kept the name and resident address of each stockholder, the number of shares held by each, the time when such person became a stockholder, together with all transfer of stock, stating the time when made, the number of shares and by whom transferred, which book shall be subject to the inspection of the directors, officers, and stockholders of the bank at all times during the usual hours for the transaction of business. (1921, c. 4, s. 56; C. S. 221(h).)

§ 53-86. Directors, officers, etc., accepting fees, etc. — No gift, fee, commission, or brokerage charge shall be received, directly or indirectly, by any officer, director, or employee of any bank doing business under this chapter, on account of any transaction to which the bank is a party. Any officer, director, employee, or agent who shall violate the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be and thereafter remain ineligible as an officer, director, or employee of any bank doing business under this chapter. Nothing in this section shall be construed to prevent the payment of necessary and proper attorney's fees to any licensed attorney for professional services rendered. (1921, c. 4, s. 57; C. S. 221(i).)

§ 53-87. Dividends, directors may declare. — The board of directors of any bank may declare a dividend of so much of its undivided profits as they may deem expedient, subject to the requirements hereinafter provided. When the surplus of any bank having a capital stock of fifteen thousand dollars or more is less than fifty per cent of its paid-in capital stock, such bank shall not declare any dividend until it has transferred from undivided profits to surplus twenty-five per cent of said undivided profits, or any lesser percentage that may be required to restore the surplus to an amount equal to fifty per cent of the paid-in capital stock. When the surplus of any bank having a capital stock of less than fifteen thousand dollars is less than one hundred per cent of its paid-in capital stock, such bank shall not declare any dividend until it has transferred from undivided profits to surplus fifty per cent of said undivided profits, or any lesser percentage that may be required to restore the surplus to an amount equal to one hundred per cent of the paid-in capital stock. In order to ascertain the undivided profits from which such dividend may be made, there shall be charged and deducted from the actual profits:

(a) All ordinary and extraordinary expenses, paid or incurred, in managing the affairs and transacting the business of the bank;

(b) Interest paid or then due on debts which it owes;

(c) All taxes due;

(d) All overdrafts which have been standing on the books of the bank for a period of sixty days or longer;

(e) All losses sustained by the bank. In computing the losses, there shall be included debts owing the bank which have become due and are not in process of collection, and on which interest for one year or more is due and unpaid, unless said debts are well secured; and debts reduced to final judgments which have been unsatisfied for more than one year and on which no interest has been paid for a period of one year, unless said judgments are well secured.

(f) All investments carried on its books, which are prohibited under the provisions of this chapter, or rules and regulations made by the commissioner of banks, pursuant to the powers conferred under this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 58; 1927, c. 47, s. 10; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(j).)

Editor's Note.—The 1927 amendment added subsection (f). The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-88. Surplus, shall not be used for.—The surplus of any bank doing business under this chapter shall not be used for the purpose of paying expenses or losses until the credit to undivided profits has been exhausted. But any portion of such surplus may be converted into capital stock and distributed as a stock dividend, provided that such surplus shall not thereby be reduced below fifty per cent of the paid-in capital of such bank, having a paid-in capital of fifteen thousand dollars or more. When the surplus of any bank having a capital stock of less than fifteen thousand dollars shall reach an amount equal to one hundred per cent of its paid-in capital, the board of directors of such bank shall declare a dividend of fifty per cent of said surplus and distribute the same as a stock dividend: Provided, that where the distribution of such a stock dividend would increase the capital stock of any bank to an amount greater than fifteen thousand dollars, the board of directors of such bank may, in its discretion, declare a stock dividend of only so much of said surplus as will be necessary to increase the stock of the said bank to fifteen thousand dollars. (1921, c. 4, s. 59; C. S. 221(k).)

Cross Reference.—As to definition of "surplus" and "undivided profits," see § 53-1.

§ 53-89. Overdrafts, payment by officer, etc.—Any officer (other than a director), or employee of a bank, who shall permit any customer or other person to overdraw his account, or who shall pay any check or draft, the paying of which shall overdraw any account, unless the same shall be authorized by the board of directors or by a committee of such board authorized to act, shall be personally and individually liable to such bank for the amounts of such overdrafts. (1921, c. 4, s. 60; C. S. 221(l).)

§ 53-90. Officers and employees shall give bond.—The active officers and employees of any bank before entering upon their duties shall give bond to the bank in a bonding company authorized to do business in North Carolina, in the amount required by the directors and upon such form as may be approved by the commissioner of banks, the premium for same to be paid by the bank. The commissioner of banks or directors of such bank may require an increase of the amount of such bond whenever they may deem it necessary. If injured by the breach of any bond given hereunder, the bank so injured may put the same in suit and recover such damages as it may have sustained. (1921, c. 4, s. 61; Ex. Sess., 1921, c. 18; 1927, c. 47, s. 11; 1929, c. 72, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 221(m).)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 struck out the section as amended by the Act of 1927 and inserted in lieu thereof the above.

This statute enters into and forms a part of the bond. Hood v. Simpson, 206 N. C. 748, 175 S. E. 193.

Effect of Renewal of Bond.—When a bond which guarantees the fidelity of a bank cashier and guarantees the bank against loss by reason of embezzlement, etc., of said cashier, is executed for an indefinite term and thereafter is kept in force by the payment of annual premiums, for each year the officer was re-elected, then each and every renewal thereof is a separate and distinct bond or independent contract. Hood v. Simpson, 206 N. C. 748, 753, 175 S. E. 193.

§ 53-91. Officers and employees may borrow, when.—No officer or employee of a bank, nor a firm or partnership of which such officer or employee is a member, nor a corporation in which such officer or employee owns a controlling interest, shall borrow any amount whatever from the bank of which he is an officer or employee, except upon good collateral or other ample security or endorsement; and no such loan shall be made until the same has been approved by a majority of the board of directors and a resolution, duly entered upon the minutes of the board of directors and signed by them, showing the amount of the loan, the directors approving the same and a brief description of the security upon which said loan is made; and a certified copy of such resolution shall be attached to the instrument evidencing the indebtedness. Provided, however, this section shall not apply to directors who are neither officers nor employees of the bank. (1921, c. 4, s. 62; 1925, c. 119, s. 2; 1927, c. 47, s. 12; C. S. 221(n).)

Editor's Note.—The scope of this section was broadened by the Act of 1925. The prohibition was extended to employees as well as officers. The provision as to partnerships and corporations in which officers or employees are interested is new. The provision immediately preceding the proviso at the end of the section is also new.

The proviso at the end of this section was added by the 1927 amendment.

Art. 8. Commissioner of Banks and Banking Department.

§ 53-92. Appointment of commissioner of banks; state banking commission.—On or before April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one, after the ratification of this section, and quadrennially thereafter, the governor, with the advice and consent of the senate, shall appoint a commissioner of banks who shall hold his office for a term of four years or until his successor has been appointed and has qualified, subject, however, to the provisions herein made as to his removal. The commissioner of banks shall, before entering upon the discharge of his duties, enter into bond with some surety company authorized to do business in the State of North Carolina, in the sum of not less than fifty thousand dollars, conditioned upon the faithful and honest discharge of all duties and obligations imposed by statute upon him.

There is hereby created, to become effective on April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine, a state banking commission, which commission shall consist of the state treasurer and the attorney general, who shall serve as ex officio members thereof, and five members to be appointed by the governor, four of which said members shall be practical bankers and one shall be a business man who is not an executive official in any bank, said five members shall be appointed for a term of four years beginning on April first, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine; and said appointive members shall receive as compensation the same per diem and expenses paid to the members of the advisory budget commission, which compensation shall be paid from the fees collected for the examination of banks, as provided by law.

The banking commission shall meet at such time or times, and not less than once every three months, as the commission shall, by resolution, prescribe, and the commission may be convened in special session at the call of the governor, or upon the request of the commissioner of banks. The state treasurer shall be chairman of the said commission.

No member of said commission shall act in any matter affecting any bank in which he is financially interested, or with which he is in any manner connected. No member of said commission shall divulge or make use of any information coming into his possession as a result of his service on such commission, and shall not give out any information with reference to any facts coming into his possession by reason of his services on such commission in connection with the condition of any state banking institution, unless such information shall be required of him at any hearing at which he is duly subpoenaed, or when required by order of a court of competent jurisdiction.

The commissioner of banks shall act as the executive officer of the banking commission, but the commission shall provide, by rules and regulations, for hearings before the commission upon any matter or thing which may arise in connection with the banking laws of this state upon the request of any person interested therein, and review any action taken or done by the commissioner of banks.

The banking commission is hereby vested with full power and authority to supervise, direct and review the exercise by the commissioner of banks of all powers, duties, and functions now vested in or exercised by the commissioner of banks under the banking laws of this state. (1931, c. 243, s. 1; 1935, c. 266; 1939, c. 91, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—The most notable change in the banking law is the creation of a new banking department and of a new official—the commissioner of banks, to whom is transferred the supervision of banks heretofore exercised by the corporation commission.

All of the section except the first paragraph was inserted by the 1939 amendment in lieu of provisions relating to the former advisory banking commission.

Had the new banking department been created as a purely administrative agency it might fairly be contended that the finality of its action would be in an administrative sense only, and appropriate legal proceedings could be had to test them. But the corporation commission had judicial powers in dealing with banks—its stock assessments were, for example, given the effect of Superior Court judgments. Corporation Commission v. Murphey, 197 N. C. 42, 147 S. E. 667, aff'd 280 U. S. 534, 50 S. Ct. 161, 74 L. Ed. 598, see also Corporation Commission v. Bank of Vanceboro, 200 N. C. 422, 157 S. E. 59. And the new commissioner of banks succeeds to those judicial powers so that he is obviously not a purely administrative official. There still remains the possibility that as to certain matters his rulings are administrative and that it is in respect to such rulings only that the decisions of the new commission as an appellate administrative body are final. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 348-350.

§ 53-93. Powers and duties of commissioner.—The commissioner of banks shall have the powers, duties and functions herein given, and in addition thereto such other powers and rights as may be necessary or incident to the proper discharge of his duties. (1931, c. 243, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—For validation of foreclosures and executions of deeds of trust by the commissioner of banks, see § 53-35.

The Commissioner of Banks, when engaged in the liquidation of the assets of an insolvent bank, as authorized by statute, does not derive his power or his authority from the court. His power and authority, both to take possession of an insolvent bank, and to liquidate its assets for distribution among its creditors according to their respective rights, are derived from the statute. In re Central Bank, etc., Co., 206 N. C. 251, 253, 173 S. E. 340.

§ 53-94. Right to sue and defend in actions involving banks; liability to suit.—As commissioner of banks he is empowered to sue and prosecute or defend in any action or proceeding in any courts of this State or any other state and in any court of the United States for the enforcement or protection of any right or pursuit of any remedy necessary or proper in connection with the subjects committed to him for administration or in connection with any bank or the rights, liabilities, property or assets thereof, under his supervision; but nothing herein shall be construed to render the commissioner of banks liable to be sued except as other departments and agencies of the State may be liable under the general law. (1931, c. 243, s. 3.)

§ 53-95. Commissioner to exercise powers under supervision of banking commission.—All the powers, duties, and functions granted to or imposed upon the commissioner of banks by law shall be exercised by him under the direction and supervision of the banking commission, and wherever provision is made in any law now in effect authorizing and permitting the commissioner of banks to make rules and regulations with respect to any actions or things required to be done under the banking laws of this state, such rules and regulations shall be made by the banking commission, and the words "the commissioner of banks," used in such statutes authorizing him to make rules and regulations, shall be construed to mean the banking commission, and the words "banking commission" substituted in such statutes for "commissioner of banks." (1931, c. 243, s. 4; 1939, c. 91, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added that portion of the first sentence beginning with the words "under the direction."

§ 53-96. Salary of commissioner; legal assistance and compensation.—The salary of the commissioner of banks shall be fixed by the advisory budge commission. The governor may in his discretion appoint and assign to the commissioner of banks such legal assistance as in his judgment may be necessary; and compensation therefor, when permanent, shall be fixed in like manner. (1931, c. 243, s. 6.)

§ 53-97. Vacancy appointments and removal.—Vacancies existing in the office of commissioner of banks by death, resignation or otherwise shall be filled by the governor; and he shall have the power of removal for sufficient cause. (1931, c. 243, s. 8.)

§ 53-98. Seal of office of commissioner; certification of documents.—The commissioner of banks shall have a seal of office bearing the legend "State of North Carolina—Commissioner of Banks," with such other appropriate device as he may adopt. (1931, c. 243, s. 9.)

§ 53-99. Official records.—The commissioner of banks shall keep a record in his office of his official acts, rulings and transactions: Provided, however, that where any disclosure of the records in his office, or of any report or other transaction, might injuriously affect any bank actually operating, such disclosure shall not be made or required except as may now be done under the provisions of law in similar cases. (1931, c. 243, s. 10.)

§ 53-100. General or special investigations of insolvent banks.—Whenever it may appear to be to the public interest, the governor may cause a general or special investigation to be made of the affairs of any insolvent bank or banks, singly or in related groups, with a view to discovering and establishing the causes of the failure of such bank or banks, and responsibility therefor; and of discovering the dealings with such banks of persons, officers, corporations or municipalities which may have led to such insolvency or which may have endangered or involved any public funds therein. The governor may assign counsel who shall prosecute such inquiry before the commissioner of banks, or a deputy or commissioner appointed by the commissioner of banks for the purpose; and the commissioner of banks is hereby empowered to conduct such investigation either in person or through such commissioner or deputy appointed by him. The inquiry shall be held at the office of commissioner of banks in the city of Raleigh or at any other place or places in the State designated by the commissioner of banks under such rules and regulations as the state banking commission may prescribe and may be adjourned from time to time as convenience may require. Attendance of witnesses and production of papers may be required by subpoena under the hand of the commissioner or his deputy, and on failure of any witness to appear as subpoenaed or his or her failure to produce any books or papers, as called for by such commissioner or deputy on subpoena or other order due notice shall be served, at the instance of such commissioner or deputy, of not less than three days to appear before a judge of the superior court residing in or holding courts within the district wherein such witness is subpoenaed or notified to appear or produce such records or papers, on a day certain and a place named, when such judge shall hear the matter and is authorized to punish such witness as for contempt as he may find on such hearing.

A summary of such investigation shall be made with the findings and recommendations of the commissioner thereon, and a copy thereof submitted to the governor, and when the facts shall disclose that any person or persons are criminally responsible, a summary shall be sent to the solicitor of the judicial district likely to have jurisdiction of the matter, whose duty it shall be to have the matter presented to the grand jury for its action. The governor may employ counsel to assist in the prosecution of any person or persons criminally responsible and fix his compensation and the manner of its payment. (1931, c. 243, s. 11.)

§ 53-101. Clerical help.—The commissioner of banks is empowered to employ sufficient clerical and secretarial help, and other necessary labor to conduct the affairs of his office with economy and efficiency. Persons so employed shall be paid as other employees in the departments of the State and shall be under the same rules and regulations. (1931, c. 243, s. 12.)

§ 53-102. Suitable offices; transfer of books, records, etc., by corporation commission.—Suitable offices shall be provided for the commissioner of banks in some State owned public building in Raleigh. (1931, c. 243, s. 13.)

§ 53-103. Acceptances. — Banking corporations and banking and trust companies doing a fiduciary business shall have power to accept drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon them, and to endorse drafts or bills of exchange drawn upon another, having not more than six months sight to run, exclusive of days of grace, which grow out of transactions involving the importation or exportation of goods, or which grow out of transactions involving the domestic shipment of goods. No such banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business shall accept or indorse, whether in a foreign or domestic transaction, for any one person, company, firm, or corporation to an amount equal at any time in the aggregate to more than ten per centum of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus, unless the banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business is secured either by attached documents or by some other actual security growing out of the same transaction as the acceptance; and no such banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business shall accept or indorse such bills or drafts to an amount equal at any one time in the aggregate to more than one-half of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus. The commissioner of banks, however, under such general regulations as the state banking commission may prescribe, which shall apply to all banking corporations or banking and trust companies doing a fiduciary business alike regardless of the amount of capital stock and surplus, may authorize any banking corporation or banking and trust company doing a fiduciary business to accept or indorse such bills or drafts to an amount not exceeding at any time in the aggregate one hundred per centum of its paid-up and unimpaired capital stock and surplus: Provided, that the aggregate of acceptances growing out of domestic transactions shall in no event exceed fifty per centum of such capital stock and surplus. (1919, c. 76; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 222.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-104. Commissioner of banks shall have supervision over, etc.—Every bank, corporation, partnership, firm, company, or individual, now or hereafter transacting the business of banking, or doing a banking business in connection with any other business, under the laws of and within this state, shall be subject to the provisions of this chapter, and shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of banks. The commissioner of banks shall exercise control of and supervision over the banks doing business under this chapter, and it shall be his duty to execute and enforce through the state bank examiners and such other agents as are now or may hereafter be created or appointed, all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted relating to banks as defined in this chapter. For the more complete and thorough enforcement of the provisions of this chapter, the state banking commission is hereby empowered to promulgate such rules, regulations, and instructions, not inconsistent with the provisions of this chapter, as may in its opinion be necessary to carry out the provisions of the laws relating to banks and banking as herein defined, and as may be further necessary to insure such safe and conservative management of the banks under its supervision as will provide adequate protection for the interests of the depositors, creditors, stockholders, and public in their relations with such banks. All banks doing business under the provisions of this chapter shall conduct their business in a manner consistent with all laws relating to banks and banking, and all rules, regulations, and instructions that may be promulgated or issued by the state banking commission. (1921, c. 4, s. 63; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 222(a).)

Editor's Note.—Section 244 of the Consolidated Statutes was the corresponding section of the law prior to this section which changed the law considerably. See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 81.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-105. Reports of condition. — Every bank shall make to the commissioner of banks not less than three reports during each year, according to the form which may be prescribed by said commissioner of banks; which report shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the president, vice-president, cashier, secretary, or treasurer of said bank, and in addition thereto, two of the directors. Each such report shall exhibit in detail and under appropriate heads the resources, assets, and liabilities of such bank at the close of business on any past day by the commissioner of banks specified, and shall be transmitted to the commissioner of banks within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor from the commissioner of banks; and in a form prescribed by the commissioner of banks; a summary of such report shall be published in a newspaper published in the place where the bank is located, or if there is no newspaper in the place, then in the nearest one published thereto in the county in which such bank is established. Proof of such publication shall be furnished the commissioner of banks in such form as may be prescribed by him. (1921, c. 4, s. 64; 1923, c. 148, s. 2; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(b).)

Editor's Note. — This section seems to cover all the terms of C. S. section 245, and supersedes it. However, there are a few changes. Formerly the secretary or treasurer could not verify the report on oath; and the full report must have been published "in a newspaper in the county in which the banking corporation or individual was located." The provisions prescribing the details of such report were also inserted.

The 1923 amendment changed the minimum number of reports from four to three.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-106. Special reports. — The commissioner of banks may call for special reports whenever in his judgment it is necessary to inform him of the condition of any bank, or to obtain a full and complete knowledge of its affairs. Said reports shall be in and according to the form prescribed by the commissioner of banks, and shall be verified in the manner provided in § 53-105, and shall be published as therein provided, if required by the commissioner of banks so to be. (1921, c. 4, s. 66; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(d).)

Editor's Note. — There was no corresponding section in the prior law. However, under C. S. section 247 a special report might be required when necessary to acquire a full knowledge of a bank. There was no requirement as to form or publishing.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-107. Failure to make report, penalty for.— Every bank failing to make and transmit any report which the commissioner of banks is authorized to require by this chapter, and in and according to the form prescribed by said commissioner of banks, within ten days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor, or failing to publish the reports as required, shall forthwith be notified by the commissioner of banks, and if such failure continue for five days after the receipt of such notice, such delinquent bank shall be subject to a penalty of two hundred dollars. The penalty herein provided for shall be recovered in a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute all such actions. (1921, c. 4, s. 67; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(e).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of C. S. section 248.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-108. List of stockholders to be kept. — Every bank doing business under this chapter shall at all times keep a correct record of the names of all its stockholders, and once in each year, or whenever called upon, file in the office of the commissioner of banks a correct list of all its stockholders, the resident address of each, and the number of shares held by each. (1921, c. 4, s. 68; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(f).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of the first sentence of C. S. section 247.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-109. Official communications of commissioner of banks. — Each official communication directed by the commissioner of banks, or any state bank examiner, to any bank, or to any officer thereof, relating to an examination or investigation conducted or made by the commissioner of banks, or containing suggestions or recommendations as to the conduct of the bank shall, if required by the authority submitting same, be submitted by the officer or director receiving it, to the executive committee or board of directors of such bank and duly noted in the minutes of such meeting. The receipt and submission of such notice to the executive committee or board of directors shall be certified to the commissioner of banks within such time as he may require, by three members of such committee or board. (1921, c. 4, s. 69; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(g).)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the 1921 act.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-110. Banking commission to prescribe books, records, etc.—Whenever in its judgment it may appear to be advisable, the state banking commission may issue such rules, instructions, and regulations prescribing the manner of keeping books, accounts, and records of banks as will tend to produce uniformity in the books, accounts, and records of banks of the same class. (1921, c. 4, s. 70; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 222(h).)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section first appeared in the act of 1921.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-111. Reserve, when below legal requirement.—When the reserve of any bank falls below the amount required by law, it shall not make new loans or discounts, otherwise than by discounting or purchasing bills of exchange, payable at sight or on demand, nor make dividends of its profits until the reserve required by law is restored. The commissioner of banks shall require any bank whose reserve falls below the amount herein required immediately to make good such reserve. In case the bank fails for thirty days thereafter to make good its reserve the commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of such bank until its affairs be adjusted or finally liquidated as provided for in this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 71; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 222(i).)

Cross References.—As to manner of making good an impaired capital, see § 53-42. As to limitations upon loans, see § 53-48. As to definition of reserve, see § 53-51. As to the amount of reserve, see § 53-50.

Purpose of Section. — The wisdom of this provision and section 53-48 is manifest; banks, whose business is conducted in strict compliance seldom become insolvent, and thus bring loss and disaster upon depositors and stockholders and usually, also, upon others who may have no direct interest in the insolvent bank, but who nevertheless suffer by reason of the loss sustained by those who do have such interest. These sections, although arbitrary as to details are supported in principle by the lessons taught in the school of experience. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 532, 130 S. E. 180.

Individual Liability of Officer. — A bank must act through its officers, and where they have violated the provisions of this section and section 53-48, as to lending the bank's money, the offense is committed by the officers under the meaning of the statute, and they are individually indictable therefor. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

So where the official position of an officer of a bank is such as necessarily to acquaint him of the violation of the statute respecting the making of loans, and to fix him as a party thereto, it is sufficient evidence to sustain his conviction of the misdemeanor prescribed by section 53-134. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 53-112. Appraisal of assets of doubtful value. —If any assets of a bank are of a doubtful or disputed value, an appraisal of such assets may be had by the commissioner of banks, and for the purpose of making such appraisal the commissioner of banks shall designate one agent as an appraiser and the bank shall designate an agent as an appraiser and the two so chosen shall designate a third. The appraisers so selected shall make an appraisal of the assets so designated as doubtful or disputed and file a written report of their appraisal with the bank and with the commissioner of banks. In making such appraisal the appraisers shall determine the actual cash market value of such assets. Such appraisal, when made, shall be accepted as the value of such assets for the purpose of examination or for the purpose of determining the actual cash market value of such assets. The appraisers designated shall not be interested, in any way, either in the bank or as an employee of the commissioner of banks and all expenses of such appraisal shall be paid by the bank whose assets are appraised. If any bank required to appoint an appraiser hereunder shall fail for ten (10) days to appoint an appraiser, the commissioner of banks may apply to the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county in which the bank is located for the appointment of such an appraiser, and the clerk shall thereupon make the appointment for the bank. (1927, c. 47, s. 13; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-113. Certified copies of records as evidence.—In all civil actions in the courts of this state wherein are involved as evidence or otherwise any of the records of the commissioner of banks, a certified copy over the signature and under the seal of the commissioner of banks shall be admissible in evidence to the same effect as if produced in court at trial by the proper custodian of the records. (1927, c. 47, s. 14; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-114. Other powers of state banking commission.—In addition to all other powers conferred upon and vested in the state banking commission, the said commission, with the approval of the governor, is hereby authorized, empowered and directed, whenever in its judgment the circumstances warrant it:

(a) To authorize, permit, and/or direct and require all banking corporations under its supervision, to extend for such period and upon such terms as it deems necessary and expedient, payment of any demand and/or time deposits.

(b) To direct, require or permit, upon such terms as it may deem advisable, the issuance of clearing house certificates or other evidences of claims against assets of such banking institutions.

(c) To authorize and direct the creation, in such banking institutions, of special trust accounts for the receipt of new deposits, which deposits shall be subject to withdrawal on demand without any restriction or limitation and shall be kept separate in cash or on deposit in such banking institutions as it shall designate or invested in such obligations of the United States and/or the state of North Carolina as it shall designate.

(d) To adopt for such banking institutions such regulations as are necessary in its discretion to enable such banking institutions to comply fully with the federal regulations prescribed for national or state banks. (1933, c. 120, s. 3; 1939, c. 91, s. 2.)

§ 53-115. State banking commission to make rules and regulations.—The state banking commission is hereby authorized, empowered and directed to make all necessary rules and regulations, and to give all necessary instructions with respect to such banking corporations which the commissioner of banks may authorize, permit and/or direct and require to be conducted under the provisions of §§ 53-77, 53-114, 53-115, and 53-116. And it shall be the duty of all such banking corporations and their officers, agents and employees, to comply fully with any and all such rules, regulations and instructions, established and promulgated by the state banking commission with respect to such banking corporations under the terms of §§ 53-77, 53-114, 53-115, and 53-116; and such orders, rules, and regulations shall have the same force and effect as rules, regulations and instructions promulgated under the existing banking laws. (1933, c. 120, s. 4; 1939, c. 91, s. 2.)

§ 53-116. Commissioner need not take over banks failing to meet deposit demands.—The commissioner of banks is authorized and directed not to take possession of any banking corporation under his supervision for failure to meet its deposit liabilities during the period in which such banking corporation is operating under the terms of § 53-114, paragraph (a); and he is hereby relieved from any and all liability for permitting such banking corporations to continue operations under the terms thereof. (1933, c. 120, s. 5.)

Art. 9. Bank Examiners.

§ 53-117. Appointment by commissioner of banks.—The commissioner of banks, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this chapter, shall appoint from time to time such state bank examiners, assistant state bank examiners, clerks and stenographers as may be necessary to make a thorough examination of and into the affairs of every bank doing business under this chapter, as often as the commissioner of banks may deem necessary, and at least once each year. The commissioner of banks may at any time remove any person appointed by him under this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 72; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 223(a).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of a part of C. S. section 249.

The Act of 1931 provided that "commissioner of banks" should be substituted for "corporation commission" or "chief state bank examiner."

For a case describing the manner in which the commission takes charge through the state bank examiner see Taylor v. Everett, 188 N. C. 247, 124 S. E. 316. See also the article in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 79, discussing the case and suggesting that the bank examiner probably has power to prescribe regulations without the express approval or direction of the commission although upon an appeal the decision of the commission would undoubtedly control.

§ 53-118. Duties and powers.—It shall be the duty of the examiners to verify all reports made to the commissioner of banks by the officers and directors, members, or individuals conducting any banking institution, as required by this chapter or by the commissioner of banks. The officers of every bank shall submit and surrender its books, assets, papers, and concerns to the examiners appointed under this chapter, who shall retain the custody and possession of such books, assets, papers, and concerns for such length of time as may be required for the purpose of making an examination as required by this chapter. If any officer shall refuse to surrender the books, assets, papers, and concerns as herein provided, or shall refuse to be examined under oath touching the affairs of such bank, the commissioner of banks may forthwith take possession of the property and business of the bank and liquidate its affairs in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. (1921, c. 4, s. 73; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 223(b).)

Editor's Note. — The first sentence of this section is a re-enactment of a portion of the first sentence of C. S. 249, which required the examiners to verify the quarterly report which was required by sec. 245; thus, it will be seen that the terms have been extended to include all the reports made to the commissioner.

By virtue of C. S. sec. 250 it was the duties of the examiners to examine the books, papers and affairs of the bank, but the section did not go into detail as to the surrender of the books etc., nor fix a penalty for a refusal to do so. However, under C. S. sec. 253 the examiners were given power to take and retain possession of any bank for the purpose of examining into its affairs, when authorized to do so, but it fixed no penalty for a failure of the officers to fail to surrender the books, etc.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-119. Officers and employees, removal of.—The commissioner of banks shall have the right, and is hereby empowered, to require the immediate removal from office of any officer, director, or employee of any bank doing business under this chapter, who shall be found to be dishonest, incompetent, or reckless in the management of the affairs of the bank, or who persistently violates the laws of this state or the lawful orders, instructions, and regulations issued by the state banking commission. (1921, c. 4, s. 74; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 223(c).)

Editor's Note. — There was no section in the Consolidated Statutes corresponding to this section.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-120. Examiners may administer oath.—For the purpose of making examinations as required by this chapter, any duly appointed examiner may administer oaths to examine any officer, director, agent, employee, customer, depositor, shareholder of such bank, or any other person or persons, touching its affairs and business. Any examiner may summon in writing any officer, director, agent, employee, customer, depositor, shareholder, or any person or persons resident of this state to appear before him and testify in relation thereto. (1921, c. 4, s. 75; C. S. 223(d).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial re-enactment of a portion of C. S. sec. 250.

§ 53-121. Examiners may make arrest.—When it shall appear to any examiner, by examination or otherwise, that any officer, agent, employee, director, stockholder, or owner of any bank has been guilty of a violation of the criminal laws of this state relating to banks, it shall be his duty, and he is hereby empowered to hold and detain such person or persons until a warrant can be procured for his arrest; and for such purposes such examiner shall have and possess all the powers of peace officers of such county, and may make arrest without warrant for past offenses. Upon report of his action to the commissioner of banks, said commissioner may direct the release of the person or persons so held, or, if in his judgment such person or persons should be prosecuted, the commissioner of banks shall cause the solicitor of the judicial district in which such detention is had to be promptly notified, and the action against such person or persons shall be continued a reasonable time to enable the solicitor to be present at the trial. (1921, c. 4, s. 76; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 223(e).)

Cross Reference.—As to malfeasance of bank examiners, etc., see § 53-124 et seq., and also § 14-254.

Editor's Note.—For article discussing arrest without a warrant, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 101.

This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 254.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-122. Fees for examinations and other services.—For the purpose of paying the salaries and necessary traveling expenses of the commissioner of banks, State bank examiners, assistant State bank examiners, clerks, stenographers and other employees of the commissioner of banks, the following fees shall be paid into the office of the commissioner of banks: (a) Each bank and each branch of any bank which under the laws of the State of North Carolina is subject to supervision and examination by the commissioner of banks and is authorized to do business or is in process of voluntary liquidation shall, within ten days after the assessment has been made, pay into the office of the commissioner of banks according to its total resources as shown by its report of condition made to the commissioner of banks at the close of business December thirty-first, nineteen hundred and twenty-six, and on the thirty-first day of December, or the date most nearly approximating same of each year thereafter on which a report of condition is made to the commissioner of banks not in excess of the following fees for its annual examination: Fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars of assets or less, seven dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction in excess thereof, and two dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof of trust assets, which said trust assets shall not include real estate carried as such.

(b) All examinations made other than those provided for in subsection (a) hereof shall be deemed special examinations and for such special examination the bank shall pay into the office of the commissioner of banks the following fees for each special examination: Fifty dollars for the first one hundred thousand dollars of assets or less, seven dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction in excess thereof, and two dollars for each one hundred thousand dollars or fraction thereof of trust assets, which said trust assets shall not include real estate carried as such. The fees paid for special examination shall be based on the assets of the bank examined as of the date of such examination.

(c) For services performed for any bank other than examination, the commissioner of banks may make such charge as in his opinion is fair and just.

(d) In all criminal cases tried in any of the courts of this state wherein any of the employees of the commissioner of banks are used as witnesses, a fee of ten ($10.00) dollars per day and actual expenses incurred shall be allowed such witnesses and the same shall be paid to the commissioner of banks by the clerk of the court of the county in which the case is tried and thereafter charged in bill of costs as are other costs incurred in the trial; and in all civil actions tried in any of the courts of this State, wherein any of the employees of the commissioner of banks are required as witnesses, the party requiring such employee as witness shall deposit with the commissioner of banks when the subpoena is served a sufficient sum to cover the witness fee of ten ($10.00) dollars per day and expenses, and such sums as may thus be advanced shall thereafter be charged in the bill of costs as other costs are charged.

All sums paid under this subsection shall be paid to the commissioner of banks as are fees for examination and used in like manner.

(e) The total compensation and necessary traveling expenses of the employees of the commissioner of banks shall not in any one year exceed the total fees collected under the provisions of this section.

(f) It shall be the duty of the state banking commission annually to review the estimated cost of maintaining the office of the commissioner of banks and if the estimated fees provided for under paragraphs (a) and (b) shall exceed the estimated cost of maintaining the office of the commissioner of banks, then the state banking commission may reduce by uniform percentage the fees provided in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section but not in a percentage greater than twenty-five per cent (25%) nor to an amount which will exceed the surplus resulting from the operation of the office of commissioner of banks for the preceding fiscal year. Any reduction made by the state banking commission shall be applicable only for the fiscal year in which the action is taken by the state banking commission, but this shall not prevent the state banking commission from taking action each fiscal year within the limits above prescribed. (1921, c. 4, s. 77; 1927, c. 47, s. 15; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1943, c. 733; C. S. 223(f).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 252. However there were several radical changes.

Under the prior section the full amount of the fees fixed for the annual examination must be paid and in addition the expenses incurred and services rendered, other than examinations performed, had to be paid for. But in no case was a bank required to pay for more than one examination unless its condition was precarious or in some other way unsatisfactory.

The act of 1921 raised the rate in all cases and changed the amount from a fixed sum to the maximum which might be charged, the specific sum actually charged up to the amount prescribed being left to the discretion of the commission. Under this act charges were made for both annual and special examinations.

The 1927 amendment or re-enactment made a radical change in the section. The section was subdivided, new provisions were added and in many instances the old provisions changed. The fees were again raised by this act and the classification of the capital stock which determines the amount of fee charged. The distinction between annual and special examinations was first made in this act; and subsections (d) and (g) were inserted.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in the third line of this section, as well as for "corporation commission" wherever appearing.

The 1943 amendment added the last subdivision to this section.

§ 53-123. Examiners shall make report. — Examiners shall make a full and detailed report in writing to the commissioner of banks of the condition of each bank within ten days after each and every examination made by them. (1921, c. 4, s. 78; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 223(g).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a reenactment of the last sentence of C. S. sec. 250.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Art. 10. Penalties.

§ 53-124. Examiner making false report. — If any bank examiner shall knowingly and willfully make any false or fraudulent report of the condition of any bank, which shall have been examined by him, with the intent to aid or abet the officers, owners, or agents of such bank in continuing to operate an insolvent bank, or if any such examiner shall keep or accept any bribe or gratuity given for the purpose of inducing him not to file any report of examination of any bank made by him, or shall neglect to make an examination of any bank by reason of having received or accepted any bribe or gratuity, he shall be guilty of a felony, and on conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state prison for not less than four months nor more than ten years. (1921, c. 4, s. 79; C. S. 224(a).)

Cross Reference.—See § 14-254.

§ 53-125. Examiners disclosing confidential information.—If any bank examiner or other employee of the commissioner of banks fails to keep secret the facts and information obtained in the course of an examination of a bank, except when the public duty of such examiner or employee requires him to report upon or take official action regarding the affairs of such bank, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five hundred dollars or imprisoned not more than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. Nothing in this section shall prevent the proper exchange of information with the representatives of the banking departments of other states, with the Federal Reserve Bank or national bank examiners, or other authorities, with the creditors of such bank or others with whom a proper exchange of information is wise or necessary, or with the clearing-house officials and examiners. (1921, c. 4, s. 80; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 224(b).)

Editor's Note. — This section is a substantial reenactment of C. S. sec. 251.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-126. Loans or gratuities forbidden.—No State bank, or any officer, director or employee thereof shall hereafter make any loan or grant any gratuity to the commissioner of banks, any bank examiner or assistant bank examiner of the commissioner of banks of North Carolina. Any such officer, director or employee violating this provision shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and imprisoned not exceeding one year or fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both; and they may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given. If the commissioner of banks, or any bank examiner, or assistant bank examiner of the commissioner of banks of North Carolina shall accept a loan or gratuity from any State bank, or from any officer, director or employee thereof, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and imprisoned not exceeding one year, or fined not more than one thousand dollars, or both, and may be fined a further sum equal to the money so loaned or gratuity given. (1927, c. 29, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "chief state bank examiner" and "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-127. Use of "bank," "banking," or "trust" in corporate name.—No corporation shall hereafter be chartered under the laws of this state with the words "bank," "banking," or "trust" as a part of its name except corporations reporting to and under the supervision of the commissioner of banks, or corporations under the supervision of the insurance commissioner; nor shall any corporate name be amended so as to include the words "bank," "banking," "banker," or "trust," unless the corporation be under such supervision. No person, association, firm or corporation domiciled within the state of North Carolina except corporations, persons, associations, or firms reporting to and unde the supervision of the commissioner of banks or under the supervision of the insurance commissioner, shall therein advertise or put forth any sign as bank, banking, banker or trust company, or use the word "bank," "banking," "banker," or "trust," as a part of its name and title, or in any way solicit or receive deposits or transact business as a trust company: Provided, that this chapter shall not be held to prevent any individual as such from acting in any trust capacity as heretofore: Provided, further, that it shall be lawful for any corporation incorporated prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred and five, to retain the word "trust" in the name of said corporation, though it does not transact a banking business or such other business as requires its examination by the commissioner of banks or the insurance commissioner.

Any violation of the provisions of this section shall be a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof the offender shall be fined in a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars for each offense. (1921, c. 4, s. 81; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1943, c. 543; C. S. 224(c).)

Cross Reference.—As to unauthorized use of the word "trust" in corporate name, see §§ 55-12 and 55-46.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The 1943 act rewrote the section expanding it to include the provisions of duplicating sections—C. S. §§ 1124 and 1142—which sections were then repealed.

Alleging Corporation is a Bank. — Where the indictment charges the employee with making false entries upon the books of the bank in which he was employed, and that it was a corporation existing under the laws of the state of North Carolina, it is not defective for failing to particularize that it was a bank, within the contemplation of the statute under which the indictment had been drawn. State v. Hedgecock, 185 N. C. 714, 117 S. E. 47.

§ 53-128. Derogatory reports, willfully and maliciously making.—Any person who shall willfully and maliciously make, circulate, or transmit to another or others any statement, rumor, or suggestion, written, printed, or by word of mouth, which is directly or by inference derogatory to the financial condition, or affects the solvency or financial standing of any bank, or who shall counsel, aid, procure, or induce another to state, transmit, or circulate any such statement or rumor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1921, c. 4, s. 82; C. S. 224(d).)

§ 53-129. Misapplication, embezzlement of funds, etc. — Whoever being an officer, employee, agent or director of a bank, with intent to defraud or injure the bank, or any person or corporation, or to deceive an officer of the bank or an agent appointed to examine the affairs of such bank, embezzles, abstracts, or misapplies any of the money, funds, credit or property of such bank, whether owned by it or held in trust, or who, with such intent, wilfully and fraudulently issues or puts forth a certificate of deposit, draws an order or bill of exchange, makes an acceptance, assigns a note, bond, draft, bill of exchange, mortgage, judgment, decree or fictitiously borrows or solicits, obtains or receives money for a bank not in good faith, intended to become the property of such bank; or whoever being an officer, employee, agent, or director of a bank, makes or permits the making of a false statement or certificates, as to a deposit, trust fund or contract, or makes or permits to be made a false entry in a book, report, statement or record of such bank, or conceals or permits to be concealed by any means or manner, the true and correct entries of said bank, or its true and correct transactions, who knowingly loans, or permits to be loaned, the funds or credit of any bank to any insolvent company or corporation, or corporation which has ceased to exist, or which never had any existence, or upon collateral consisting of stocks or bonds of such company or corporation, or who makes or publishes or knowingly permits to be made or published a false report, statement or certificate as to the true financial condition of such bank, shall be guilty of a felony and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than ten thousand dollars or imprisoned in the State's prison not more than thirty years, or both. (1921, c. 4, s. 83; 1927, c. 47, s. 16; C. S. 224(e).)

Editor's Note. — This section was revised in 1927, the position of many phrases and clauses being changed. It would seem, however, that the section was not changed materially in many respects although it was made somewhat more comprehensive.

The intent and purpose of this section is to prevent the deception of the officers of a bank or the depletion of its assets or injury of its business by falsification of the bank's books by its officers or employees, and an indictment for the offense is not sufficient which merely charges such falsification without showing that the false entries were material or affected the interests of the bank or deceived its officers. State v. Cole, 202 N. C. 592, 163 S. E. 594.

A specific intent to deceive or to defraud is not necessary to a conviction of a bank officer or employee of making false entries on the books of the bank under the provisions of this section, it being sufficient if the defendant wilfully made such false entries, the performance of the act expressly forbidden by statute constituting an offense in itself without regard to the question of specific intent. State v. Lattimore, 201 N. C. 32, 158 S. E. 741.

In a prosecution under this section for wilfully making false entries on the books of a bank an instruction which was intended to stress and in effect did stress the necessity of proving that the false entries were wilfully and not inadvertently made, will not be held for error. State v. Lattimore, 201 N. C. 32, 158 S. E. 741.

"Abstracts" Construed. — The legal meaning of the word "abstract," as it appears in § 14-254, with reference to the unlawful use of the funds of the bank, is correctly charged under an instruction to the jury defining it as the taking from or withdrawing from the bank, with the intent to injure or defraud. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

"Embezzle" means to misappropriate as well as to convert to one's own use. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 143 S. E. 3, citing State v. Lanier, 89 N. C. 517; State v. Foust, 114 N. C. 842, 19 S. E. 275.

Section 14-254 Not in Conflict.—Section 14-254, making it a criminal offense for the cashier or certain other officers, agents and employees of a bank to be guilty of malfeasance in the respects therein enumerated, making the intent necessary for a conviction, is not in conflict with this section as passed in 1921. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Conviction of Depositor. — In order to convict a depositor of a bank who has abstracted funds from the bank in collusion with its cashier, it is not required that he himself was an officer of the bank or that he was present at the time the money was feloniously "abstracted," under the provisions of § 14-254; and he may be convicted thereunder when the bill of indictment substantially follows the language of the statute and the evidence is sufficient to sustain the charge therein. This is not applicable to the provisions of this section as passed in 1921. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Same—Necessity of Being Present.—Though the depositor was not present at the time the offense was committed, he may be convicted as a principal under the counts of the indictment so charging the offense. State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 143.

Allegation That All Defendants Were Officers.—It is not necessary for an indictment, charging a conspiracy to violate the provisions of this section, to allege that all of the defendants were officers or employees of the bank, the indictment being sufficient if it alleges that some of the defendants were officers or employees of the bank and that the other defendants conspired with them to do the unlawful act. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 13, 14, 164 S. E. 737.

Indictment.—In a prosecution under this section and § 14-254 it was not necessary to aver or to prove that the money or funds had been committed by the bank to the custody of the defendant or that there had been any breach of trust or confidence except that which arose out of the relation between the bank and the defendant. Nor was it necessary to charge in the very words that the defendant had converted the property to his own use. The words "did embezzle" sufficiently indicated the criminal act. The intent to defraud was sufficiently set out, under § 15-151, without specifically naming any particular victim of the preconceived purpose. And the indictment was sufficient though there was nothing to indicate the number of abstractions, if more than one. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 540, 143 S. E. 3, citing State v. Switzer, 187 N. C. 88, 121 S. E. 43.

Evidence.—In a prosecution under this section and § 14-254 expert parol evidence may be properly admitted to trace book entries, without contradicting them, so as to show that the officer of the bank had embezzled the bank's funds held in trust, as charged in the bill of indictment. In such case there was no invasion of the province of the jury by the expression of an opinion upon a fact in issue. State v. Maslin, 195 N. C. 537, 143 S. E. 3.

Variance as to Some Items.—In a prosecution of an officer of a bank for publishing a false report of the bank's condition in violation of this section, a variance between the allegations and proof as to some of the items of the report will not be fatal when there is no variance with respect to all the items, it being sufficient for conviction if the report as published was false in any particular as alleged in the indictment and was published with knowledge of such falsity and with a wrongful or unlawful intent. State v. Davis, 203 N. C. 47, 48, 164 S. E. 732.

§ 53-130. Making false entries in banking accounts; misrepresenting assets and liabilities of banks.—If any person shall willfully and knowingly subscribe to, or make, or cause to be made, any false statement or false entry in the books of any bank, or shall knowingly subscribe to or exhibit false papers, with intent to deceive any person authorized to examine into the affairs of such bank, or shall willfully and knowingly make, state or publish any false statement of the amount of the assets or liabilities of any bank, he shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be imprisoned in the state's prison not less than four months nor more than ten years. (Rev., s. 3326; 1903, c. 275, s. 27; C. S. 4402.)

§ 53-131. False certification of a check.—Whoever, being an officer, employee, agent, or director of a bank, certifies a check drawn on such bank, and willfully fails to forthwith charge the amount thereof against the account of the drawer thereof, or willfully certifies a check drawn on such bank unless the drawer of such check has on deposit with the bank an amount of money subject to the payment of such check an equivalent to the amount therein specified, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned in the state prison for not more than five years, or both. (1921, c. 4, s. 84; C. S. 224(f).)

§ 53-132. Insolvent banks, receiving deposits in.—Any person, being an officer or employee of a bank, who receives, or being an officer thereof, permits an employee to receive money, checks, drafts, or other property as a deposit therein when he has knowledge that such bank is insolvent, shall be guilty of a felony, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not more than five thousand dollars or imprisoned in the state prison not more than five years, or both. Provided, that in any indictment hereunder insolvency shall not be deemed to include insolvency as defined under subsection (d) in the definition of insolvency under § 53-1. (1921, c. 4, s. 85; 1927, c. 47, s. 17; C. S. 224(g).)

Editor's Note.—The proviso at the end of this section was added by the 1927 amendment. This was the only change effected by the amendment.

The word "insolvent," in this section, means when the bank cannot meet its depository liabilities in due course, and does not require that the condition of the bank should at the time be such as to enable it at any given time to pay all of its depositors in full at the same time on demand. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

A bank is insolvent within the meaning of this section, when the actual cash market value of its assets is not sufficient to pay its liabilities to its depositors or other creditors. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 188, 162 S. E. 363.

Elements of Crime.—In order for a conviction under the provisions of this section, the state must prove beyond a reasonable doubt the actual receipt of the deposits by defendant officer of the bank at the time when the bank was insolvent to his own knowledge, or that such officer permitted an employee of the bank to receive the deposits with knowledge of these facts. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

How Knowledge Determined. — The question as to an officer's knowledge is ordinarily to be determined with reference to a variety of facts and circumstances, and in defense it is permitted to him to go into an investigation of the assets and property of the bank at the date of the deposits, and their value at that time or thereafter, when bearing upon their worth at the time they were charged to have been unlawfully received. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

Same—Admissions.—Upon the trial of an officer of an insolvent bank under this section the officer's admissions that he knew of the insolvency of the bank at the time in question with his explanation thereof is competent testimony. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 188, 162 S. E. 363.

Who May Bring Action for Civil Liability.—A violation of this section by an employee, or by officers and directors of a bank, resulting in damages to a depositor, is a wrong to the depositor; he and not the bank or its receiver is entitled to maintain an action to recover the damages resulting from such wrong. See Russell v. Boone, 188 N. C. 830, 125 S. E. 926; Houston v. Thornton, 122 N. C. 365, 29 S. E. 827; Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461; Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478; Tate v. Bates, 118 N. C. 287, 24 S. E. 482; Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 391, 135 S. E. 118.

In his opinion in State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616, speaking of this section, Chief Justice Stacy says: "The statute was designed to protect the depositing public against this kind of practice on the part of officers and employees of banks, and they will be held to a strict accountability under its provisions when they receive, or when any such officer permits an employee to receive deposits therein, with knowledge of the fact that, by reason of the bank's insolvency, such deposits then being received are taken at the expense or certain peril of the depositors presently making them." Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 390, 135 S. E. 118.

The right of a depositor in a bank, who has sustained damages, peculiar to himself, by the wrongful act of the officers and directors of the bank, to recover damages in an action brought by him against the officers and directors, is not affected by the decision in Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 130 S. E. 195; the right is expressly recognized in the opinion in that case. Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 391, 135 S. E. 118.

Same—Liability as Bank Asset. — Sums for which bank officers and directors are liable for receiving or permitting receipt of deposit with knowledge of bank's insolvency, contrary to this section, are not assets of the bank. The wrong being only to the depositor, he need not allege, to maintain an action, that bank's receiver refused to sue on demand. Bane v. Powell, 192 N. C. 387, 135 S. E. 118.

Action against Officers to Recover Deposit—Necessary Allegations.—In order for a depositor to maintain an action against the individual officers of an insolvent bank for permitting the deposits to be received it is necessary, among other things, to allege and prove the insolvency of the bank at the time the deposits were made, and the allegation that it was either insolvent then or the misconduct of the officials afterwards caused its insolvency, is insufficient, the alternative of the allegation being a wrong to the bank itself which may be sued upon by its receiver afterwards. Wall v. Howard, 194 N. C. 310, 139 S. E. 449.

Bank Examiner as Expert Witness.—In an action to convict an officer of a bank under this section, the testimony of the State Bank Examiner is to be received as that of an expert upon the question of the bank's insolvency. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

Same—Weight of Evidence.—Where the State Bank Examiner and another expert have been permitted to give their testimony as to the bank's insolvency at the time of the crime, upon their investigation, without stating the basis of their opinions thereon, it may not be decided as a matter of law, upon conflicting evidence, that the defendant must have known of the insolvent condition testified to by the experts. State v. Hightower, 187 N. C. 300, 121 S. E. 616.

Certified Accountant as Witness.—Upon the trial of a bank official under the provisions of this section testimony of a certified public accountant who had had experience in such matters and who had examined the books of the bank and had obtained from the directors, collectively and individually, information as to the value of its assets including lands and collateral, that the bank was insolvent at the time in question is not objectionable. State v. Brewer, 202 N. C. 187, 162 S. E. 363.

§ 53-133. Capital stock, advertising larger amount than that paid in.—It shall be unlawful for any bank to advertise in a newspaper, letterhead, or any other way, a larger capital stock than has been actually paid in in cash. Any bank violating this section shall be subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars for each and every offense. The penalty herein provided for shall be recovered by the state in a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and it shall be the duty of the attorney-general to prosecute all such actions. (1921, c. 4, s. 86; C. S. 224(h).)

§ 53-134. Offenses declared misdemeanors; prosecution; employment of counsel; punishment.—Any offense against the banking laws of the state of North Carolina which is not elsewhere specifically declared to be a crime, or for which elsewhere a penalty is not specifically provided, is hereby declared to be a misdemeanor, and shall be punishable at the discretion of the court. The commissioner of banks is authorized and directed to prosecute all offenses against the banking laws of the state, and to that end is expressly authorized to employ counsel to prosecute in the inferior courts and to aid the solicitor in the superior courts. The auditor of the state shall, upon the certificate of the commissioner of banks, accompanied by an itemized statement of the account, draw his warrant upon the state treasurer to compensate the counsel so employed, and the state treasurer shall pay the same out of the funds in the treasury and not otherwise appropriated. (Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 56, s. 4; 1927, c. 47, s. 18; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 224(i).)

Cross Reference.—See annotation under §§ 53-48 and 53-82.

Editor's Note.—The act of 1927 re-enacted this section in full.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

Unlawful Act of Making Loans.—Under this section, the unlawful act of making loans in violation of sec. 53-48 is made a misdemeanor, and is punishable as such at the discretion of the court. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 130 S. E. 180.

Officers Individually Liable. — Guilt is personal, and the manifest purpose of the General Assembly in declaring the acts in violation of the statute misdemeanors, punishable at the discretion of the court, was to provide further assurance that these wise and prudent statutory provisions should be obeyed by those who alone could violate them, to wit, officers and directors of the bank. Their personal and individual liability for damages sustained by the bank, its stockholders or other persons, as a result of the violation of these and other provisions of the statute by directors or officers, was evidently not deemed sufficient for the purpose in the mind of the General Assembly. State v. Cooper, 190 N. C. 528, 533, 130 S. E. 180.

§ 53-135. General corporation law to apply.—All provisions of the law relating to private corporations, and particularly those enumerated in the chapter entitled "Corporations," not inconsistent with this chapter or with the business of banking, shall be applicable to banks. (1921, c. 4, s. 87; C. S. 224(j).)

Editor's Note.—The corresponding section of the prior law was C. S. sec. 236. This section is a re-enactment.

Stated in Cole v. Farmers Bank, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 249, 20 S. E. (2d) 54.

Art. 11. Industrial Banks.

§ 53-136. Industrial bank defined. — The term "industrial bank," as used in this article shall be construed to mean any corporation organized, or which may hereafter be organized, under the general corporation laws of this state, which is engaged in lending money to be repaid in weekly, or monthly, or other periodical installments, or principal sums as a business: Provided, however, this definition shall not be construed to include building and loan associations, or commercial or savings banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 1; C. S. 225(a).)

Editor's Note.—It was stated in the caption of the act of 1923, which revised the law regulating industrial banks, that the purpose was to provide for the supervision and examination of industrial banks. While this section is a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 255, it is more specific in its terms, the provisions respecting loans which are to be paid in weekly installments, etc., and the proviso, being added by the act of 1923.

§ 53-137. Manner of organization. — Corporations may be organized under this article in the same manner as provided for corporations authorized under the chapter on corporations. (1923, c. 225, s. 2; C. S. 225(b).)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 256.

§ 53-138. Corporate title. — Every corporation incorporated or reorganized pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be known as an industrial bank, and may use the word "bank" as part of its corporate title. (1923, c. 225, s. 3; C. S. 225(c).)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 258.

§ 53-139. Capital stock.—The amount of capital stock with which any industrial bank shall commence business shall not be less than twenty-five thousand ($25,000.00), in cities or towns of fifteen thousand population or less; nor less than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00), in cities or towns whose population exceeds fifteen thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00), in cities or towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand; the population to be ascertained by the last preceding national census: Provided, that this section shall not apply to industrial banks organized and doing business prior to March 3, 1923. (1923, c. 225, s. 4; C. S. 225(d).)

Editor's Note.—C. S. sec. 257, which was the corresponding section of the prior law merely provided that the capital should not be under $25,000.

§ 53-140. Sales of capital stock; accounting; fees.—The capital stock sold by any industrial bank in process of organization, or for an increase of the capital stock, shall be accounted for to the bank in the full amount paid for the same. No commission or fee shall be paid to any person, association, or corporation for selling such stock. The commissioner of banks shall refuse authority to commence business to any industrial bank where commissions or fees have been paid, or have been contracted to be paid by it, or by any one in its behalf to any person, association, or corporation for securing subscriptions for or selling stock in such bank. (1923, c. 225, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; C. S. 225(e).)

Editor's Note.—The provisions of this section are new with the act of 1923.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-141. Powers.—Industrial banks shall have the powers conferred by paragraphs one, two, three, five and seven of § 55-26, and paragraph three of § 53-43; such additional powers as may be necessary or incidental for the carrying out of their corporate purposes, and in addition thereto the following powers:

1. To loan money on real or personal security and reserve lawful interest in advance upon such loans, and to discount or purchase notes, bills of exchange, acceptances or other choses in action.

2. To sell or offer for sale its secured or unsecured evidences or certificates of indebtedness, or investment, and to receive from investors therein or purchasers thereof payments therefor in installments or otherwise, with or without an allowance of interest upon such payments, whether such evidence or certificates of indebtedness or of investment be hypothecated for a loan or not, and to enter into contracts in the nature of a pledge or otherwise with such investors or purchasers with regard to such evidences or certificates of indebtedness, or of investment; and no such transaction shall in any way be construed to affect the rate of interest on such loans.

3. To charge for a loan made pursuant to this section one dollar for each fifty dollars or a fraction thereof loaned, up to and including loans of two hundred and fifty dollars, and for loans in excess of two hundred and fifty dollars, one dollar for each two hundred and fifty dollars excess or fraction thereof, to cover expenses, including any examination or investigation of the character and circumstances of the borrower, comaker, or surety. An additional fee of five dollars may be charged on such loans where same are secured by mortgage on real estate. No charge shall be collected unless a loan shall have been made.

4. To establish branch offices or places of business within the county in which its principal office is located, and elsewhere in the state, after having first obtained the written approval of the commissioner of banks, which approval may be given or withheld by the commissioner of banks in his discretion: Provided, that the commissioner of banks shall not authorize the establishment of any branch the paid-in capital of whose parent bank is not sufficient in amount to provide for the capital of at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) for the parent bank and at least twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) for each branch which it is proposed to be established in cities or towns of fifteen thousand population or less; nor less than fifty thousand dollars ($50,000.00) in cities or towns whose population exceeds fifteen thousand but does not exceed twenty-five thousand; nor less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000.00) in towns whose population exceeds twenty-five thousand.

5. Subject to the approval of the commissioner of banks and on the authority of its board of directors, or a majority thereof, to enter into such contracts, incur such obligations and generally to do and perform any and all such acts and things whatsoever as may be necessary or appropriate in order to take advantage of any and all memberships, loans, subscriptions, contracts, grants, rights or privileges, which may at any time be available or inure to banking institutions, or to their depositors, creditors, stockholders, conservators, receivers or liquidators, by virtue of those provisions of section eight of the Federal Banking Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (section twelve B of the Federal Reserve Act as amended) which establish the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and provide for the insurance of deposits, or of any other provisions of that or any other act or resolution of Congress to aid, regulate or safeguard banking institutions and their depositors, including any amendments of the same or any substitutions therefor; also, to subscribe for and acquire any stock, debentures, bonds or other types of securities of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation and to comply with the lawful regulations and requirements from time to time issued or made by such corporations.

6. To solicit, receive and accept money or its equivalent on deposit both in savings accounts and upon certificates of deposit.

7. Subject to the approval of the state banking commission, to solicit, receive and accept money or its equivalent on deposit subject to check. (1923, c. 225, s. 6; 1925, c. 199, s. 1; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1935, c. 81, s. 2; 1939, c. 244, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 233; C. S. 225(f).)

Editor's Note.—This section is virtually a re-enactment of C. S. sec. 259. However, subsection 4 has been changed considerably; prior to the re-enactment it was provided that branch offices could be established only in the county in which the principal office was located.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

The amendment of 1935 added subdivision (5) of this section in its entirety.

The 1939 amendment inserted the reference to § 53-43 in the opening paragraph and added subsection 6.

The 1943 amendment added paragraph 7.

§ 53-142. Restriction on powers. — No industrial bank shall deposit any of its funds in any banking corporation unless such corporation has been designated as such depositary by a vote of a majority of the directors, or of the executive committee, exclusive of any director who is an officer, director, or trustee of the depositary so designated, present at any meeting duly called at which a quorum is in attendance, and approved by the commissioner of banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 7; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1937, c. 220; C. S. 225(g).)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment struck out the former provision prohibiting loans for longer than one year.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-143. Limit of loans.—The total liabilities to any industrial bank of any person, corporation, company, or firm, for money borrowed including in the liabilities of the company or firm the liabilities of the several members thereof, shall at no time exceed ten per cent of the actually paid-up capital and surplus of such industrial bank, but the discount of bona fide bills of exchange or acceptances drawn against actually existing values, and the discount of commercial or business paper actually owned by the person or persons, corporation, company, or firm negotiating the same, shall not be considered money so borrowed. (1923, c. 225, s. 8; C. S. 225(h).)

Editor's Note.—This section is a literal re-enactment of C. S. sec. 261.

§ 53-144. Supervision and examination.—Every industrial bank now or hereafter transacting the business of an industrial bank as defined by this article, whether as a separate business or in connection with any other business under the laws of and within this state, shall be subject to the provisions of this article, and shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of banks. The commissioner of banks shall exercise control of and supervision over the industrial banks doing business under this article, and it shall be his duty to execute and enforce, through the state bank examiners and such other agents as are now or may hereafter be created or appointed, all laws which are now or may hereafter be enacted relating to industrial banks as defined in this article. For the more complete and thorough enforcement of the provisions of this article, the state banking commission is hereby empowered to promulgate such rules, regulations, and instructions, not inconsistent with the provisions of this article, as may, in its opinion, be necessary to carry out the provisions of the laws relating to industrial banks as in this article defined, and as may be further necessary to insure such safe and conservative management of industrial banks under the supervision of the commissioner of banks as may provide adequate protection for the interest of creditors, stockholders, and the public, in their relations with such institutions. All industrial banks doing business under the provisions of this article shall conduct their business in a manner consistent with all laws relating to industrial banks, and all rules, regulations and instructions that may be promulgated or issued by the state banking commission. (1923, c. 225, s. 11; 1931, c. 243, s. 5; 1939, c. 91, s. 2; C. S. 225(k).)

Editor's Note. — The corresponding section of the Consolidated Statutes was sec. 263. It provided for a supervision by the commission and subjected industrial banks to an examination under the provisions of the banking laws in so far as they were applicable and not inconsistent with the article on industrial banks.

The Act of 1931 substituted "commissioner of banks" for "corporation commission" and "chief state bank examiner" formerly appearing in this section.

§ 53-145. Sections of general law applicable.—Sections 53-1, 53-3, 53-4, 53-5, 53-7, 53-8, 53-9, 53-10, 53-11, 53-12, 53-13, 53-18, 53-20, 53-42, 53-47, 53-50, 53-51, 53-54, 53-63, 53-64, 53-67, 53-78, 53-79, 53-80, 53-81, 53-82, 53-83, 53-87, 53-88, 53-90, 53-91, 53-105, 53-106, 53-107, 53-109, 53-110, 53-117, 53-118, 53-119, 53-120, 53-121, 53-122, 53-123, 53-124, 53-125, 53-128, 53-129, 53-132, 53-134, relating to the supervision and examination of commercial banks, shall be construed to be applicable to industrial banks, insofar as they are not inconsistent with the provisions of this article. Sections 53-19, 53-24, 53-37, 53-39, 53-40, 53-41, 53-44, 53-45, 53-75, 53-76, 53-77, 53-86, 53-114, 53-115, 53-116, 53-146, and 53-148 through 53-158, relating to commercial banks, shall be construed to be applicable to industrial banks. (1923, c. 225, s. 13; 1927, c. 141; 1939, c. 244, s. 3; C. S. 225(m).)

Editor's Note. — The provisions of this section were new with the act of 1923.

The 1939 amendment inserted 53-50 and 53-51 in the list of sections.

Where plaintiffs applied for an industrial bank charter, under this and § 53-3, and their application was not passed upon by the secretary of state on the advice and recommendation of the commissioner of banks, acting in accordance with the statutes, and plaintiffs sued to compel the issuance of a charter, alleging no capricious acts, bad faith or disregard of law by the state officers, the complaint did not state a cause of action and was not sufficient as a petition for certiorari or as an application for mandamus. Pue v. Hood, 222 N. C. 310, 22 S. E. (2d) 896.

Art. 12. Joint Deposits; Assignments as Evidence of Insolvency; Receivers.

§ 53-146. Deposits in two names.—When a deposit has been or is hereafter made in any bank, trust company, banking and trust company, or any other institution transacting business in this state, in the names of two persons, payable to either, or payable to either or the survivor, all or any part of the deposit, or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid to either of said persons, whether the other is living or not; and the receipt or acquittance of the person so paid is a valid and sufficient discharge to the bank for payment so made. (1917, c. 243, s. 1; C. S. 230.)

Editor's Note.—See 9 N. C. L. Rev. 14.

Purpose—Necessity of Words of Survivorship.—Like former § 220(o), this section is obviously designed to protect the bank, and does not control as between the personal representative of the deceased and the other party. While, by its terms, the statute might apply whether there are words of survivorship in the deposit record or not, the Court, in one case, held that the authority of the survivor to withdraw, where no such words were used, was revoked by the death of the other person. 9 N. C. L. Rev. 15.

When Statute Applicable.—The certificate of deposit by a bank in the name of the husband, payable to himself "or" his wife does not fall within the provisions of this section. The statute applies only where the deposit is made in the names of two persons and payable to either, nor can construing the word "or" as meaning "and" have the effect of creating a tenancy in common. Jones v. Fullbright, 197 N. C. 274, 148 S. E. 229.

§ 53-147: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

Art. 13. Conservation of Bank Assets and Issuance of Preferred Stock.

§ 53-148. Provision for bank conservators; duties and powers.—Whenever he shall deem it necessary, in order to conserve the assets of any bank for the benefit of the depositors and other creditors thereof, the commissioner of banks may (with the approval of the governor), appoint a conservator for such bank and require of such conservator such bond with such security as he may deem necessary and proper. The conservator, under the direction of the commissioner of banks, shall take possession of the books, records and assets of every description of such bank, and take such action as may be necessary to conserve the assets of such bank pending further disposition of its business as provided by law. Such conservator shall have all such rights, powers and privileges, subject to the commissioner of banks, now possessed by or hereafter given to the commissioner of banks under § 53-20, as amended, as are necessary to conserve the assets of said bank. During the time that such conservator remains in possession of such bank, the rights of all parties with respect thereto, shall be the same as those provided in § 53-20, as amended. All expenses of any such conservator shall be paid out of the assets of such bank and shall be a lien thereon which shall be prior to any other lien provided by this article or otherwise. The conservator shall receive as salary an amount no greater than that paid at the present time to employees of departments of the state government for similar services. (1933, c. 155, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This article is substantially a copy as to state banks of Titles II and III of the Federal Act of March 9, 1933, Public No. 1, 73rd Congress. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 196.

§ 53-149. Examination of bank.—The commissioner of banks shall cause to be made such examination of the affairs of such bank as shall be necessary to inform him as to the financial condition of such bank. (1933, c. 155, s. 2.)

§ 53-150. Termination of conservatorship.—If the commissioner of banks shall become satisfied that it may safely be done, he may, in his discretion, terminate the conservatorship and permit such bank to resume the transaction of its business, subject to such terms, conditions, restrictions and limitations as he may prescribe. (1933, c. 155, s. 3.)

§ 53-151. Special funds for paying depositors and creditors ratably; new deposits.—While such bank is in the hands of the conservator appointed by the commissioner of banks, the commissioner of banks may require the conservator to set aside from unpledged assets and make available for withdrawal by depositors and payment to other creditors on a ratable basis, such amounts as, in the opinion of the commissioner of banks, may safely be used for this purpose; and the commissioner of banks, may, in his discretion, permit the conservator to receive deposits, but deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator (as well as special or trust deposits received by any bank, under the orders of the commissioner of banks, since March 2, 1933), shall not be subject to any limitation as to payment or withdrawal, and such deposits shall be segregated and shall not be used to liquidate any indebtedness of such bank existing at the time that a conservator was appointed for it, or any subsequent indebtedness incurred for the purpose of liquidating any indebtedness of said bank existing at the time such conservator was appointed. Such deposits received while the bank is in the hands of the conservator, as well as the special or trust deposits received since March 2, 1933, shall be kept on hand in cash or on deposit with a federal reserve bank. In being transmitted to the federal reserve bank, said deposits shall be so marked and designated as to indicate to such federal reserve bank that they are special deposits. (1933, c. 155, s. 4.)

§ 53-152. Reorganization on agreement of depositors and stockholders.—By the agreement of (a) depositors and other creditors of any bank representing at least seventy-five per cent in amount of its total deposits and other liabilities as shown by the books of the banks, or (b) stockholders owning at least two-thirds of each class of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the books of the bank, or (c) both depositors and other creditors representing at least seventy-five per cent in amount of the total deposits and other liabilities, and stockholders owning at least two-thirds of its outstanding capital stock as shown by the books of the bank, any bank may effect such reorganization with the consent and approval of the commissioner of banks as by such agreement may be determined: Provided, however, that claims of depositors or other creditors which will be satisfied in full under the provisions of the plan of reorganization shall not be included among the total deposits and other liabilities of the bank in determining the per cent thereof as above provided.

When such reorganization becomes effective, all books, records and assets of such bank shall be disposed of in accordance with the provisions of the plan, and the affairs of the bank shall be conducted by its board of directors in the manner provided by the plan and under the conditions, restrictions and limitations which may have been prescribed by the commissioner of banks. In any reorganization which shall have been approved, and shall have become effective as provided herein, all depositors and other creditors and stockholders of such bank, whether or not they shall have consented to such plan of organization, shall be fully and in all respects subject to and bound by its provisions, and claims of all depositors and other creditors shall be treated as if they had consented to such plan of reorganization: Provided, however, that no reorganization shall affect the lien of secured creditors. (1933, c. 155, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The most important feature of the law is the provision for reorganization and the issuance of preferred stock. By a reorganization agreement having the assent of certain percentages of the creditors or stockholders and also of the Commissioner of Banks, the affairs of the bank may be removed from conservatorship and restored to the Board of Directors. All non-consenting depositors and their creditors are expressly made bound by the act. The provision in the second paragraph is identical with the federal act (Sec. 207) but its validity may be questioned on a constitutional ground not applicable to the Federal Government, i. e., impairment of contract. 11 N. C. Law Rev. 196.

§ 53-153. Segregation of recent deposits not effective after bank turned back to officers; notice of turning bank back to officers. — After fifteen days after the affairs of a bank shall have been turned back to its board of directors by the conservator, either with or without a reorganization as provided in § 53-152 hereof, the provisions of § 53-151 with respect to the segregation of deposits received while it is in the hands of the conservator, and with respect to the use of such deposits to liquidate the indebtedness of such bank, shall no longer be effective: Provided, that before the conservator shall turn back the affairs of the bank to its board of directors, he shall cause to be published in a newspaper published in the city, town or county in which such bank is located, and if no newspaper is published in such city, town or county, in a newspaper to be selected by the commissioner of banks, a notice in form approved by the commissioner of banks, stating the date on which the affairs of the bank will be returned to its board of directors, and that the said provisions of § 53-151 will not be effective after fifteen days after such date; and on the date of publication of such notice, the conservator shall immediately send to every person who is a depositor in such bank under § 53-151, a copy of such notice by registered mail, addressing it to the last known address of such persons shown by the records of the bank; and the conservator shall send similar notice in like manner to every person making deposit in such bank under § 53-151, after the date of such newspaper publication and before the time when the affairs of the bank are returned to its directors. (1933, c. 155, s. 6.)

§ 53-154. Issuance of preferred stock. — Notwithstanding any other provision of this article or any other law, and notwithstanding any of the provisions of its articles of incorporation or by-laws, any bank may, with the approval of the commissioner of banks, and by vote of stockholders owning a majority of the stock of such bank, upon not less than two days' notice given by registered mail pursuant to action taken at a meeting of its board of directors (which may be held upon not less than one day's notice) issue preferred stock in such amount and with such par value as shall be approved by said commissioner of banks. A copy of the minutes of such directors' and stockholders' meetings, certified by the proper officer and under the corporate seal of the bank, and accompanied by the written approval of the commissioner of banks shall be immediately filed in the office of the secretary of state, and when so filed, shall be deemed and treated as an amendment to the articles of incorporation of such bank.

No issue of preferred stock shall be valid until the par value of all stock so issued shall have been paid for in full in cash or in such manner as may be specifically approved by the commissioner of banks. (1933, c. 155, s. 7.)

§ 53-155. Rights and liabilities of preferred stockholders.—The holders of such preferred stock shall be entitled to cumulative dividends payable at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, but shall not be held individually responsible as such holders for any debts, contracts or engagements of such bank, and shall not be liable for assessments to restore impairments in the capital of such banks as now provided by law with reference to holders of common stock in banks. Notwithstanding any other provisions of law, the holders of such preferred stock shall have such voting rights and such stock shall be subject to retirement in such manner and on such terms and conditions as may be provided in the articles of incorporation or any amendment thereto, with the approval of the commissioner of banks.

No dividends shall be declared or paid on common stock until the cumulative dividends on the preferred stock shall have been paid in full; and if the bank is placed in liquidation, no payments shall be made to the holders of the common stock until the holders of the preferred stock shall have been paid in full the par value of such stock and all accumulated dividends. (1933, c. 155, s. 8.)

§ 53-156. Term "stock" not to include preferred stock; latter not to be used as collateral for loans. —Wherever in existing banking law, the words "stock," "stockholders," "capital" or "capital stock" are used, the same shall not be deemed to include preferred stock: Provided that no bank issuing preferred stock under the provisions hereof, shall be permitted at any time to make loans upon such preferred stock; Provided further that in determining whether or not the minimum capital or capital stock required in §§ 53-2, 53-11, 53-62, 53-139, and 58-116, has been supplied to such bank or banking corporation, the commissioner of banks shall include preferred stock as capital or capital stock. (1933, c. 155, s. 9; 1935, c. 80.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 added the last proviso of this section relating to the determination of whether the capital stock has been supplied.

§ 53-157. Rights and liabilities of conservator.— The conservator appointed pursuant to the provisions of this article shall be subject to the provisions of and to the penalties prescribed by §§ 53-43, 53-129, and 53-131. (1933, c. 155, s. 10.)

§ 53-158. Naming of conservator not liquidation. —No power conferred in this article upon the commissioner of banks, when exercised, shall be deemed an act of possession for the purposes of liquidation; and whenever the commissioner of banks shall, with reference to any bank for which a conservator is appointed, deem that liquidation is necessary, he shall exercise the powers for the purposes of liquidation as provided in § 53-20 as amended. (1933, c. 155, s. 11.)

Chapter 54. Co-Operative Organizations.

SUBCHAPTER I. BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Art. 1. Organization.

Art. 2. Shares and Shareholders.

Art. 3. Loans.

SUBCHAPTER I. BUILDING AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Art. 1. Organization.

§ 54-1. Application of term.—The term "building and loan association," as used in this subchapter, shall apply to and include all corporations, companies, societies, or associations organized for the purpose of making loans to their members only, and of enabling their members to acquire real estate, make improvements thereon and remove incumbrances therefrom by the payment of money in periodical installments or principal sums, and for the accumulation of a fund to be returned to members who do not obtain advances for such purposes. It shall be unlawful for any corporation, company, society, or association doing business in this state not so conducted to use in its corporate name the term "building and loan association" or "building association," or in any manner or device to hold itself out to the public as a building and loan association. (Rev., s. 3881; 1905, c. 435, s. 16; C. S. 5169.)

§ 54-2. Method of incorporation; powers. — It shall be lawful for any persons in any city, town, or county of this state, under any name by them to be assumed, to associate for the purpose of organizing and establishing a homestead and building and loan association, and, being so associated, they shall, on complying with this subchapter, be a body politic and corporate, and as such be capable in law to hold and dispose of property, both real and personal; may have and use a common seal; may choose a presiding and other officers; may enact by-laws for the regulation of the affairs of such corporation, and compel the due observance of the same by fines and penalties; may sue and be sued, plead and be impleaded, answer and be answered in any court in this state, and do all acts necessary for the well ordering and good government of the affairs of such corporation, and shall exercise all and singular the powers incident to bodies politic and corporate: Provided, that before any such corporation shall be entitled to the privileges of this subchapter it shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county where such corporation is designed to act a copy of the certificate of incorporation of such corporation, signed by at least seven members, to be recorded in the office of such clerk, and shall pay a tax of twenty-five dollars to the clerk, which tax shall be paid over by the clerk to the treasurer of the county, to the use of the school fund of the county. The clerk shall certify a copy of the charter to the insurance commissioner. The clerk shall not issue or record the same until duly authorized to do so by the Insurance Commissioner as hereinafter provided.

(a) Upon receipt of a copy of the certificate of incorporation of the proposed association, the Insurance Commissioner shall at once examine into all the facts connected with the formation of such proposed corporation, including its location and proposed stockholders, and if it appears that such corporation, if formed, will be lawfully entitled to commence the business for which it is organized, the Insurance Commissioner shall so certify to the Clerk of Court in the county in which organized, who shall thereupon issue and record such certificate of incorporation. But the Insurance Commissioner may refuse to so certify, if upon examination and investigation he has reason to believe that the proposed corporation is formed for any purpose other than a mutual building and loan business, or that the character, general fitness, and responsibility of the persons proposed as stockholders in such corporation are not such as to command the confidence of the community in which said building and loan association is proposed to be located; or that the public convenience and advantage will not be promoted by its establishment; or that the name of the proposed corporation is likely to mislead the public as to its character or purpose; or if the proposed name is the same as one already adopted or appropriated by an existing association in the same county, or so similar thereto as to be likely to mislead the public.

(b) Upon receipt of such certificate from the Insurance Commissioner, the Clerk of Court shall, if said certificate of incorporation be in accordance with law, issue and cause same to be recorded in the records of his office as hereinabove provided. (Rev., s. 3877; 1905, c. 435, s. 1; 1931, c. 73; C. S. 5170.)

Cross References.—As to annual license tax, see § 54-25 and § 105-73. As to power to merge, see § 53-15.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section by providing for an investigation of organizers, etc., substantially copied from the Banking Law. See § 53-4. The examiner of prospective building and loan associations is, however, the commissioner of insurance instead of the commissioner of banks. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 351.

§ 54-3. Amendments to certificate.—Any addition, alteration or amendment of the certificate of incorporation of any building and loan association shall be made at any annual or special meeting of such association, held in pursuance of the provisions of § 54-10, by a majority of the shareholders present in person or represented by proxy at any such meeting, and any such addition, alteration or amendment shall be signed, certified, and recorded as is provided in § 54-2. (Rev., s. 3878; 1905, c. 435, s. 2; 1939, c. 128, s. 1; C. S. 5171.)

§ 54-4. Prior amendments validated.—All additions, alterations or amendments of the certificate of any building and loan association made prior to March 17, 1939, and which failed to comply with all of the provisions of the statutes of North Carolina applicable thereto, be, and the same are hereby declared to be sufficient and valid to the same extent as if the provisions of said statutes had been fully complied with. (1939, c. 128, s. 2.)

§ 54-5. Form of certificate.—Substantially the following form shall be used by associations to be formed under this chapter:

Certificate of Incorporation

This is to certify that we, the undersigned citizens of the state of North Carolina, hereby associate ourselves into a building and loan association under and by virtue of the provisions of subchapter I, entitled Building and Loan Associations, of chapter 54 of the North Carolina Code, and by this certificate do set forth:

Signed, sealed, and delivered in the presence of ..... (Rev., s. 3879; 1905, c. 435, s. 27; C. S. 5172.)

§ 54-6. When to begin business.—Upon filing the certificate of incorporation with the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of the corporation is located, and with the insurance commissioner, the company shall become a body politic and corporate, and shall be authorized to begin business, when licensed by the insurance commissioner. (Rev., s. 3880; Code, s. 2297; 1907, c. 959, s. 1; C. S. 5173.)

§ 54-7. Chapter on corporations applicable. — All of the provisions of law relating to private corporations, and particularly those enumerated in the chapter entitled Corporations, not inconsistent with this subchapter, or with the business of building and loan associations, shall be applicable to building and loan associations. (Rev., s. 3882; C. S. 5174.)

§ 54-8. Charters validated. — The charters of all building and loan associations heretofore organized are hereby in all respects validated and confirmed, and all such associations shall have the powers and privileges of associations formed under this subchapter. (Rev., s. 3883; 1905, c. 435, s. 27; C. S. 5175.)

§ 54-9. May become members of and hold stock in federal home loan bank.—Any building and loan association heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this state may subscribe to, purchase, hold, own and dispose of stock in any federal home loan bank, and may become members of any such bank authorized by or organized under an act of congress entitled "The Federal Home Loan Bank Act," approved July 22, 1932. (1933, c. 20.)

§ 54-10. Annual meetings.—The annual meeting of any such association shall be held at such time and place as shall be fixed in the notice of said meeting. There shall be published once a week for two weeks preceding such meeting, in a newspaper published in the county or town where the association has its principal office, a notice, signed by the secretary, of such meeting, and the time and place where the same is to be held; and such further notice shall be given as the charter or by-laws of the association may require. Notice of special meetings of shareholders shall be given in a like manner. Unless otherwise provided, twenty-five shareholders, present in person or represented by proxy, shall constitute a quorum at any regular or special shareholders' meeting. If no newspaper be published in the county or town in which any association has its principal office, then the notice above provided may be published by posting same at a conspicuous place in the office of the association, and a like notice at the door of the county court house. (1933, c. 19.)

§ 54-11. Conversion of building and loan associations into federal savings and loan associations.—Any corporation organized and existing under the laws of this State and operating as a building and loan association may convert itself into a federal savings and loan association pursuant to an act of Congress, approved June thirteenth, nineteen hundred and thirty-three, entitled "Home Owners' Loan Act of Nineteen Hundred and Thirty-three," and any amendments thereto, with the same force and effect as though originally incorporated under such act of Congress, and the procedure to effect such conversion shall be as follows:

1. The directors shall submit a plan of conversion to the insurance commissioner, and he may approve the same, with or without amendment, or disapprove the plan. If he approve the plan, then same shall be submitted to the shareholders as provided in the next sub-section.

2. A meeting of the shareholders shall be held upon not less than ten days' written notice to each shareholder, served personally or sent by mail to the last known address of such shareholder, postage prepaid, such notice to contain a statement of the time, place and purpose for which such meeting is called. It shall be regarded as sufficient notice of the purpose of said meeting if the call contain the following statement: "The purpose of said meeting being to consider the matter of the conversion of this corporation into a federal savings and loan association, pursuant to act of Congress approved June thirteenth, nineteen hundred and thirty-three." The secretary or other officer of the corporation shall make proof by affidavit at such meeting of due service of the notice or call for said meeting.

3. At the meeting of the shareholders of such corporation, called and held as above provided, such shareholders may, by affirmative vote of a majority of shareholders present, in person or by proxy, declare by resolution the determination to convert said corporation into a federal savings and loan association. A copy of the minutes of the proceedings of such meeting of the shareholders certified by the president or vice-president and secretary or assistant secretary of the corporation shall be filed in the office of the insurance commissioner of this State within five days after such meeting, and a like copy shall also be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which such corporation has its principal office. Each of said certified copies when so filed shall be presumptive evidence of the holding and the action of such meeting.

4. Within a reasonable time after the receipt of a certified copy of the minutes of said meeting the insurance commissioner shall either approve or disapprove the same. If the proceedings be approved by him he shall so endorse the certified copy of the minutes in his office, and shall issue a certificate certifying his approval of the conversion and proceedings, and send same to the corporation. Such certificate shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county in which the corporation has its principal office, and the original shall be held by the corporation. If the commissioner disapproves such proceedings he shall mark the certified copy of minutes in his office disapproved and notify the corporation to that effect.

5. Within sixty days after the approval of the proposed proceedings by the insurance commissioner, the officers of said corporation shall take such action, in the manner prescribed or authorized by the laws of the United States, as shall make it a federal savings and loan association, and there shall thereupon be filed in the office of the insurance commissioner a copy of the charter or authorization issued to such corporation by the federal home loan bank board, or a certificate showing the organization or conversion of such corporation into a federal savings and loan association, and upon such filing with the insurance commissioner the corporation shall cease to be a state corporation and shall be deemed to be converted into a federal savings and loan association.

6. Whenever any such corporation shall so convert itself into a federal savings and loan association it shall thereupon cease to be a corporation under the laws of this State, except that its corporate existence shall be deemed to be extended for the purpose of prosecuting or defending suits by or against it and of enabling it to close its concerns as a state corporation, and to dispose of and convey its property. At the time when such conversion becomes effective all the property of the state corporation, including all its right, title and interest in and to all property of whatever kind, whether real, personal or mixed, and things in action, and every right, privilege, interest and asset of any conceivable value or benefit then existing, belonging or pertaining to it, or which would inure to it, shall immediately by act of law and without any conveyance or transfer, and without any further act or deed, be vested in and become the property of the federal savings and loan association, which shall have, hold and enjoy the same in its right as fully and to the same extent as the same was possessed, held and enjoyed by the state corporation; and the federal savings and loan association as of the time of the taking effect of such conversion shall succeed to all the rights, obligations and relations of the state corporation.

7. Any such corporation may, instead of effecting the conversion above provided, at a meeting called and held as above outlined, authorize the sale of all or any portion of its assets, subject to the approval of the insurance commissioner, to a federal savings and loan association or to a building and loan association of this state, and subject to the approval of the insurance commissioner, may authorize the taking of stock in the association so buying the assets in payment thereof; and upon liquidation of the selling corporation the stock so received shall be distributed to its shareholders. In the event such sale shall be authorized, and approved by the insurance commissioner, the directors and officers shall have full power and authority to do any and everything necessary to carrying same into effect. (1935, c. 104.)

§ 54-12. Conversion of federal association into state association.—Any federal savings and loan association organized and existing under the Home Owners Loan Act of one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three, as amended, may convert into a building and loan association, pursuant to the provisions of this chapter, with the same force and effect as though originally incorporated under the provisions of this sub-chapter, by complying with the acts of congress and the requirements of federal regulatory authority, and also by following the procedure as set out below:

1. The directors of such federal savings and loan association shall submit a plan of conversion to the federal home loan bank board (hereinafter referred to as "board") or other federal regulatory authority, and also to the insurance commissioner of the state of North Carolina. When such plan has been approved, either with or without amendment by both of said authorities, then said plan shall be submitted to the members of such association as provided in the next sub-section.

2. A meeting of the members shall be held upon not less than ten days' written notice to each member, served personally or sent by mail to the last known address of such member, postage prepaid, such notice to contain a statement of the time, place and purpose for which such meeting is called. It shall be regarded as sufficient notice of the purpose of said meeting if the call contain the following statement: "The purpose of said meeting being to consider the matter of the conversion of this association into a building and loan association, pursuant to the provisions of the laws of the state of North Carolina." The secretary or other officer of the association shall make proof by affidavit at such meeting of the due service of the notice or call for said meeting.

3. At the meeting of the members of such association, called and held as above provided, such members may, by affirmative vote of fifty-one per cent or more of members present, in person or by proxy, declare by resolution the determination to convert said association into a building and loan association operating under the laws of this state. A copy of the minutes of the proceedings of such meeting of the members, certified by the president or vice-president and secretary or assistant secretary of the association, shall be filed with the federal home loan bank board within five days after such meeting. Such certified copy, when so filed, shall be presumptive evidence of the holding and the action of such meeting.

4. Within thirty days after the approval of said proceedings by the board the officers of said association shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county where such association is designed to act a copy of the certificate of incorporation of such association, signed by at least seven members, to be recorded in the office of such clerk. Such certificate of incorporation shall conform to the provisions of the laws of this state. The clerk shall certify a copy of the certificate to the insurance commissioner, and shall not issue or record the same until duly authorized to do so by the insurance commissioner. Upon receipt of a copy of the certificate of incorporation the insurance commissioner shall at once examine into the facts connected with the conversion of such association, and, if it appears that such association if converted will be lawfully entitled to commence business as a building and loan association pursuant to the laws of this state, the insurance commissioner shall so certify to the clerk of the court in the county in which the association will be located, who shall thereupon issue and record such certificate of incorporation. Upon the issuance and recordation of such certificate of incorporation the association shall file with the board a certified copy of same. Thereupon the association shall cease to be a federal savings and loan association and shall be deemed to be converted into a building and loan association under the laws of this state, whose corporate existence shall be deemed then to begin.

5. At the time when the corporate existence of said state association begins all the property of the said federal association, including all its rights, title and interest in and to all property of whatsoever kind, whether real, personal or mixed, and things in action, and every right, privilege, interest and asset of any conceivable value or benefit then existing, belonging or pertaining to it, or which would inure to it, shall immediately by act of law and without any conveyance or transfer, and without any further act or deed, be vested in and become the property of such state association, which shall have, hold and enjoy the same in its own right as fully and to the same extent as if the same was possessed, held or enjoyed by said federal association; and such state association shall be deemed to be a continuation of the entity and of the identity of said federal association, operating under and pursuant to the laws of this state, and all the rights, obligations and relations of said federal association to or in respect to any person, estate, or creditor, depositor, trustee or beneficiary of any trust, and in or in respect to any executorship or trusteeship or other trust or fiduciary function, shall remain unimpaired, and such state association, as of said beginning of its corporate existence, shall by operation of this section succeed to all such rights, obligations, relations and trusts, and the duties and liabilities connected therewith, and shall execute and perform each and every such trust and relation in the same manner as if such state association had itself assumed the trust or relation, including the obligations and liabilities connected therewith. (1937, c. 12.)

§ 54-12.1. Merger of building and loan associations.—Any two or more building and loan associations organized or to be organized, or existing under the laws of this state and operating under the provisions of this subchapter, may merge into a single association which may be either one of said merging associations, and the procedure to effect such merger shall be as follows:

1. The directors, or a majority of them, of such associations as desire to merge, may, at separate meetings, enter into a written agreement of merger signed by them, and under the corporate seals of the respective associations, specifying each association to be merged and the association which is to receive into itself the merging association or associations, and prescribing the terms and conditions of the merger and the mode of carrying it into effect. Such merger agreement may provide the manner and basis of converting or exchanging the shares in the association or associations so merged for shares of the same or a different class of the receiving association.

2. Such merger agreement together with the copies of the minutes of the meetings of the respective boards of directors verified by the secretaries of the respective meetings shall be submitted to the insurance commissioner, who shall cause a careful investigation and examination to be made of the affairs of the associations proposing to merge, including a determination of their respective assets and liabilities. The reasonable cost and expenses of such examination shall be defrayed by each association so investigated and examined. If, as a result of such investigation, he shall conclude that the shareholders of each of the associations proposing to merge will be benefited thereby, he shall, in writing, approve same, or shall, if he deems that the proposed merger will not be in the interest of all members of the associations so merging, disapprove, in writing, the same. If he approve the merger agreement, then same shall be submitted, within thirty days after notice to such associations of such approval, to the shareholders of each of such associations, as provided in the next subsection.

3. A special meeting of the shareholders of each of said associations shall be held separately upon written notice to each shareholder of not less than twenty days, specifying the time, place and purpose for which such meeting is called and such notice shall be served personally or sent by mail, postage prepaid, to each shareholder at the last known address of such shareholder appearing upon the books of the association; of the time, place and object of which meeting due notice shall be given by publication at least once a week for four successive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein each such association has its principal office or conducts its business (and if there be no newspaper published in such county then in a newspaper published in an adjoining county). The secretary or other officer of the association shall make proof by affidavit at such meeting of the due service of the notice or call for said meeting.

4. At separate meetings of the shareholders of each of such associations, called and held as above provided, such shareholders representing a majority of the outstanding shares of stock entitled to vote, by affirmative vote of at least two thirds of the shareholders present, in person or by proxy, may declare by resolution the determination to merge into a single association upon terms of the merger agreement as shall have been agreed upon by the directors of the respective associations and as approved by the insurance commissioner. Members of the associations who do not attend the meetings or who do not vote thereat, shall, if the merger is so approved by the members, be deemed to consent to the merger. Upon the adoption of such resolution, a copy of the minutes of the proceedings of such meetings of the shareholders of the respective associations, certified by the president or vice president and secretary or assistant secretary of the merging associations, shall be filed in the office of the insurance commissioner of this state, within ten days after such meetings, and within fifteen days after the receipt of a certified copy of the minutes of said meetings the insurance commissioner shall either approve or disapprove the same. If the proceedings be approved by him he shall so endorse the certified copy of the minutes in his office, and shall issue a certificate certifying his approval of the merger and send same to each of said associations. Such certificate shall be filed and recorded in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county or counties in this state in which the respective associations so merged shall have their original certificates of incorporation recorded; provided, that the only fees that shall be collected in connection with the merger of said associations shall be filing and recording fees. When such certificate is so filed, the merger agreement shall take effect according to its terms and shall be binding upon all the members of the associations so merging, and the same shall thence be taken and deemed to be the act of merger of such constituent building and loan associations under the laws of this state, and such record or certified copy thereof shall be evidence of the agreement and act of merger of said building and loan associations and the observance and performance of all acts and conditions necessary to have been observed and performed precedent to such merger. If the commissioner shall disapprove the proceedings he shall mark the certified copies of the meetings in his office disapproved and notify the associations to that effect.

5. Upon the merger of any association, as above provided, into another:

a. Its corporate existence shall be merged into that of the receiving association; and all and singular its rights, powers, privileges and franchises, and all of its property, including all right, title, interest in and to all property of whatsoever kind, whether real, personal or mixed, and things in action, and every right, privilege, interest or asset of any conceivable value or benefit then existing belonging or pertaining to it, or which would inure to it under an unmerged existence, shall immediately by act of law and without any conveyance or transfer, and without any further act or deed, be vested in and become the property of such receiving association which shall have, hold and enjoy the same in its own right as fully and to the same extent as if the same were possessed, held or enjoyed by the association or associations so merged; and such receiving association shall absorb fully and completely the association or associations so merged;

b. Its rights, liabilities, obligations and relations to any person shall remain unchanged, and the association into which it has been merged shall, by the merger, succeed to all the relations, obligations and liabilities, as though it had itself assumed or incurred the same, and no obligation or liability of a member in an association a party to the merger shall be affected by the merger, but the obligations and liabilities shall continue as they existed before the merger, unless otherwise provided in the merger agreement;

c. A pending action or other judicial proceeding to which any association that shall be so merged is a party, shall not be deemed to have abated or to have discontinued by reason of the merger, but may be prosecuted to final judgment, order or decree in the same manner as if the merger had not been made; or the receiving association may be substituted as a party to such action or proceeding, and any judgment, order or decree may be rendered for or against it that might have been rendered for or against such other association if the merger had not occurred. (1943, c. 450, s. 1.)

Art. 2. Shares and Shareholders.

§ 54-13. Number of shares and entrance fee prescribed.—Any corporation created under and by virtue of this subchapter shall have power to declare in its certificate of incorporation the maximum number of shares of which the corporation shall consist to be in force at any one time, the par value of the same, to prescribe the entrance fee per share to be paid by each shareholder at the time of subscribing, to regulate the amount of the installments to be paid on each share, and the time at which the same shall be paid and payable: Provided, that not more than one per cent of the par value of each share of stock subscribed, may be paid as commissions or other remuneration for the soliciting and sale of stock. (Rev., s. 3887; 1905, c. 435, s. 3; 1931, c. 75; C. S. 5176.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the proviso to this section by which a building and loan association is prohibited from paying more than 1% for services in obtaining stock subscriptions. No penalty is attached for violation but the license of the association might be revoked under the provisions of § 54-28 if any prohibited payments were discovered through the annual report (see § 54-26) or otherwise. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 351.

Applied in Dorrity v. Greater Durham Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 204 N. C. 698, 169 S. E. 640.

§ 54-14. Different classes of shares; dividends; reserve fund.—Every building and loan association doing business in this state shall be authorized to issue as many series or classes and kinds of shares and at such stated periods as may be provided for in its charter or by-laws: Provided, the dividends on paid-up stock shall be less than the association is earning, and such stock may have the right to share in the dividends between the rate paid and the earned per centum. Every association shall at all times have on hand and unpledged, investments in obligations of the United States government or the government of the state of North Carolina, or stock in the federal home loan bank, or bonds issued by the federal home loan bank, or on deposit in such bank or banks as may have been approved by a majority of the entire board of directors, an amount equal to at least five per centum of the aggregate amount of paid-up stock outstanding, as shown by the books of the association. When the aggregate of investment or funds in hand or on deposit as herein provided falls below the amount required under this section, the association shall make no new real estate loans until the required amount has been accumulated: Provided, that the refinancing, recasting or renewal of loans previously made, and/or loans made as a result of foreclosure sales under instruments held by the interested building and loan association, shall not be considered as new loans within the meaning of this section. (Rev., s. 3889; 1905, c. 435, s. 6; 1907, c. 959, s. 3; 1919, c. 179, s. 3; 1931, c. 107; 1933, c. 26; 1941, c. 67; C. S. 5177.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 amended this section in two ways: (1) by doing away with all provisions about guaranteed dividends; (2) by requiring a reserve paid-up stock.

Public Laws of 1933, c. 26, substituted the above section in lieu of the former reading. A comparison of the old with the new is necessary to determine the changes.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev., 207, for comment on changes made in this section by the 1933 amendment.

The 1941 amendment inserted the words "and unpledged" near the beginning of the second sentence.

Optional payment stock may be issued under this section. Lumpkin v. Durham Bldg., etc., Co., 204 N. C. 563, 169 S. E. 156.

§ 54-15. Certificate issued and payment enforced.—Any such corporation shall have power to issue to each member a certificate of the shares held by him, and to enforce the payment of all installments and other dues due to the corporation from the members or shareholders by such fines and forfeitures as the corporation may from time to time provide in the by-laws or its certificate of incorporation. (Rev., s. 3888; 1905, c. 435, s. 4; C. S. 5178.)

§ 54-16. New members admitted. — Any person applying for membership or shares in any corporation after the end of a month from the date of its incorporation may be required to pay, on subscribing, such sums or assessments as may from time to time be fixed and assessed in the manner provided by the corporation, in order to place such new member or shareholdeer on like footing with the original members and others holding shares at the time of such application. (Rev., s. 3886; 1905, c. 435, s. 5; C. S. 5179.)

§ 54-17. Shareholders equally liable. — All shareholders shall occupy the same relative position as to debts, losses, and profits of the association: Provided, that this shall not prevent the payment of a lesser rate of dividend on paid-up stock as provided in § 54-14, but this provision shall not prevent any association from receiving dues in advance, allowing such a rate of interest for the anticipated payments of dues as may be agreed upon by the directors. No series or class of stock shall be paid off until fully matured: Provided, that this section shall not prevent the cashing in of any stock before maturity. (Rev., s. 3884; 1905, c. 435, s. 7; 1907, c. 959, s. 2; 1919, c. 179, s. 2; 1931, c. 109; C. S. 5180.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section and inserted the above in lieu thereof. The stockholders equality feature of the law is now expressly qualified by a provision that a lesser rate of dividend may be declared on paid-up stock than on serially maturing issues. The proviso is new. What seems to be meant is that until the full matured value of serial stock is earned, i. e., until it has actually matured, it cannot be paid off at that ultimate figure under an agreement or guarantee, but that before maturity it may be cashed in at its value then accrued. This construction has been put upon the act as now amended by a building and loan officer who was consulted on the subject. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 352.

In General.—In case of the insolvency of a building and loan association, every person having stock therein, whether as creditor or debtor, must be considered a corporator, and every member indebted to it must be treated as a debtor. Strauss v. Carolina Interstate Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 117 N. C. 308, 23 S. E. 450; 118 N. C. 556, 24 S. E. 116. Such debtors are liable for authorized assessments to cover losses. New Bern Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Blalock, 160 N. C. 490, 76 S. E. 532.

Liability of Corporation. — Where a corporation becomes the holder of stock in another corporation, e. g., a Building and Loan Association, which becomes insolvent, it may be held liable on the same, as an incorporator, in the association issuing the stock. Meares v. Monroe Land, etc., Co., 126 N. C. 662, 36 S. E. 130.

Stockholder and Debtor. — Where the borrower from a building and loan association takes out stock, to pay at maturity the debt secured by a mortgage on his building, he occupies, upon the bankruptcy of the association in the hands of a receiver in bankruptcy, two independent relations to the association; that of stockholder, and that of debtor to the association, and he is not entitled to have his payments made on his shares of stock credited to his debt, as against the claims of the other creditors. Rendleman v. Stoessel, 195 N. C. 640, 143 S. E. 219.

§ 54-18. Minors as shareholders.—Minors of the age of twelve years and upwards are authorized and empowered to become shareholders in and buy, sell, hold, pay dues on, withdraw, transfer, and otherwise deal in the shares in any such association in the same manner and with the same powers, rights, and liabilities, force and effect as though such minors were of full age. The provisions of this section shall apply to federal savings and loan associations having their principal offices in this state. (Rev., s. 3885; 1903, c. 728; 1905, c. 435, s. 1; 1939, c. 179; C. S. 5181.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last sentence.

This section is a statutory exception to the general rule that contracts of infants are voidable at the option of the infant, and when so avoided are void ab initio. Coker v. Virginia-Carolina Joint-Stock Land Bank, 208 N. C. 41, 178 S. E. 863.

Art. 3. Loans.

§ 54-19. Manner of making loans; security required.—At such times as the by-laws shall designate, not less frequently than once a month, the board of directors shall hold meetings at which the funds in the treasury applicable for loans may be loaned: Provided, that between meetings of the board of directors any three members of said board may act as an executive committee and may, by unanimous vote, make such loans. Any loans so made or approved by the executive committee shall be reported to the board of directors at its next meeting. No loans shall be made by such association to any one not a member thereof. Borrowers shall be required to give real estate security, either by way of mortgage or deed of trust, subject only to mortgages or deeds of trust to secure loans made by the association and undue taxes and special assessments: Provided, that the shares of any such association may be received as security for a loan on such shares of an amount not to exceed ninety per centum of the amount paid in as dues on such shares: Provided, further, that bonds issued as general obligations of the United States government and bonds issued as general obligations of the state of North Carolina may be received as security to an amount not exceeding ninety per centum of the face value of such bonds. (Rev., s. 3890; 1905, c. 435, s. 8; 1907, c. 959, s. 4; 1919, c. 249; 1937, c. 11; 1941, c. 65; C. S. 5182.)

Cross References.—As to investment in bonds guaranteed by United States, see § 53-44. As to loans on mortgages, etc., issued under federal housing act, see § 53-45.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment so changed this section that a comparison here is not practical.

The 1941 amendment changed the wording of the proviso to the first sentence.

§ 54-20. Direct reduction of principal.—The board of directors of any building and loan association, heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this state, may, unless specifically prohibited by the certificate of incorporation, constitution or by-laws of the association, by resolution or by-law, permit borrowing members to repay their indebtedness by a direct monthly or periodical reduction of principal method. In every such case the borrower shall in writing make such agreement with the association relative to the repayment of his indebtedness as the directors may require. The agreement shall stipulate that the borrower or debtor shall make periodical payments, not less frequently than once a month, until such mortgage indebtedness and advances, if any, made by the association for payment of taxes, assessments, insurance premiums and other purposes, as may be owing from the borrower to the association, with interest thereon, shall have been fully paid. The balance of any loan account under such direct reduction of principal method shall be determined monthly, quarterly or semiannually, in order to ascertain the amount then necessary to satisfy in full the mortgage obligation, and when so ascertained such amount shall be the amount due upon said loan at said time to said association or any representative or successor thereof. Any association permitting such method of repayment may adopt a plan by which the interest shall be computed periodically on the preceding balance, and such interest shall be added to that preceding balance, together with any and all advances and other charges above enumerated made for the benefit of the borrower during the said interest period, and then there shall be deducted from the total any and all payments made by the borrower to the association during said period, or since the preceding balance was set up.

All payments made on a loan under such plan of direct periodical reduction shall be applied first to interest, and then to the principal of advances made for the account of the borrower and charged thereto, and to the principal of the loan. The board of directors may adopt any other direct periodic reduction of principal plan that will require complete repayment of such loans: Provided, no plan of payment shall be adopted that will not mature and pay off the loan within twenty years from the date of the making thereof: Provided further, the board of directors may authorize the renewal or extension of the time of repayment of any loan theretofore made. No association shall make any loan upon this plan to any person unless he be a member of such association. (1937, c. 18.)

§ 54-21. Federal housing administration insured loans.—Notwithstanding any provision in this act any building and loan association, whether operating on the serial sinking fund plan or the direct reduction plan incorporated by and under this act, is authorized and empowered to make to its members loans under the provisions of Title I, Class two and three, and Title II of an Act of Congress of the United States entitled "National Housing Act," as amended, and all supplementary legislation thereto. (1941, c. 64.)

§ 54-22. Repayment at any time. — Any member of such association who shall borrow from it shall have the right at any time prior to the maturing of the shares pledged as collateral for such loan to pay off and discharge his loan by paying the amount received by him, including the cost and expenses of making the loan, if the same has been deducted therefrom, with interest at the rate of six per cent per annum on the whole sum received by him to the date of settlement and all fines and dues then remaining unpaid. Upon such settlement he shall be credited with only the withdrawal value of his shares as fixed by the charter or by-laws, or by the directors of such association. In case of default by a shareholder who has borrowed from the association and a foreclosure of his mortgage or deed of trust, the amount of his indebtedness to such association shall be ascertained in the manner provided by this section. (Rev., s. 3891; 1905, c. 435, s. 9; C. S. 5183.)

Cross Reference.—As to interest and usury laws in general, see § 24-1 et seq.

Stockholder Cannot Escape Payment of Losses.—Before availing himself of the privileges provided by this section the stockholder must have paid any assessments to meet losses of the corporation. New Bern Bldg., etc., Ass'n v. Blalock, 160 N. C. 490, 76 S. E. 532. See also Mears v. Davis, 121 N. C. 126, 28 S. E. 188.

Usury.—An illegal transaction cannot be settled. Dickerson v. Bldg. Asso., 89 N. C. 37. And the usury laws apply to the same extent as to natural persons. Craven v. Ry. Co., 77 N. C. 289. These laws will be found as section 24-1 et seq. of the General Statutes, and they cannot be changed by special legislation. Rowland v. Old Dominion Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 116 N. C. 877, 22 S. E. 8. No subterfuge such as calling the charges "fines," "dues," etc., or calling the borrower a partner will prevent the transaction from being usurious. Mills v. Bldg. Ass'n, 75 N. C. 292; Hollowell v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781. A full exposition of usury will be found in the notes to section 24-2, and the principles there stated are applicable when usury is charged by a building and loan association.

Same—Effect.—As stated in the notes to sec. 24-2 the effect of usury is the forfeiture of the entire interest, and when already paid the recovery back of twice the amount of interest. Cases applying this principle to building and loan associations are: Smith v. Old Dominion, Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 119 N. C. 249, 26 S. E. 41; Cheek v. Iron Belt Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 126 N. C. 242, 35 S. E. 463; Hollowell v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 120 N. C. 286, 26 S. E. 781.

This rule is qualified, however, by the equitable doctrine that where the borrower seeks an affirmative relief, such as to prevent the foreclosure of his mortgage, equity will make payment of a legal rate of interest a prerequisite to the grant of relief. This principle is fully explained in the note to section 24-2. Building and loan association cases applying the same are: Rowland v. Old Dominion Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 118 N. C. 173, 24 S. E. 366; Williams v. Maxwell, 123 N. C. 586, 31 S. E. 821.

Forfeiture of Mortgage on Default.—A contract, by which the stock, taken out by a borrower and assigned to the association, when the mortgage is executed, is forfeited to the association on default, without allowance of credit on the mortgage for the payments made on the stock, is unconscionable, and, though upheld by the laws of the association's own state, will not be enforced in North Carolina. Rowland v. Old Dominion Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 116 N. C. 877, 22 S. E. 8.

Refusal to Make Loan.—On association's refusal to make loan to subscriber, the subscriber is entitled to recover back money paid for shares of stock in association. Fagg v. Southern Bldg., etc., Ass'n, 113 N. C. 364, 18 S. E. 655.

§ 54-23. Power to borrow money.—Any such association may in its certificate of incorporation, constitution or by-laws authorize the board of directors from time to time to borrow money, and the board of directors may from time to time, by resolution adopted by a vote of at least two-thirds of all the directors and duly recorded on the minutes, borrow money for the association on such terms and conditions as they may deem proper; but the total amount of money so borrowed shall at no time exceed thirty-five per centum of the gross assets of such association. In order to secure obligations for money borrowed under the provisions of this section, any such association may assign its notes, bonds and mortgages and/or other property, including the right to repledge the shares of stock pledged as collateral security, without securing the consent of the owner thereto, as security for the repayment of its indebtedness as evidenced by its bond, obligation or note given for such borrowed money. (Rev., s. 3892; 1905, c. 435, s. 10; 1909, c. 898; 1911, c. 61; 1913, c. 21; 1933, c. 18; 1941, c. 66; C. S. 5184.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 18, substituted the above section in lieu of the former reading. A comparison of the old with the new is necessary to determine the changes.

The chief change of the 1933 amendment is the granting of express authority to an association to pledge its assets as security for money borrowed. For further comment, see 11 N. C. Law Rev., 208.

The 1941 amendment substituted "thirty-five" for "thirty" in line eleven and omitted from the first sentence a provision relating to the use of the money borrowed.

Art. 4. Under Control of Insurance Commissioner.

§ 54-24. Power of insurance commissioner. — The insurance commissioner of the state is hereby empowered and directed to perform all the duties and exercise all the powers as to building and loan associations, unless herein otherwise provided. (Rev. s. 3893; 1905, c. 435, s. 24; C. S. 5185.)

§ 54-25. Annual license fees. — All domestic building and loan associations shall pay an annual license fee of twenty-five dollars and may be licensed upon filing with the insurance commissioner an application in such form as he may prescribe. Such license fee shall be used to defray the expenses incurred by the insurance commissioner in supervising building and loan associations. (1919, c. 179, s. 1; C. S. 5186.)

Cross References.—As to additional license tax, see § 105-73. As to exception of building and loan associations from certain intangible taxes, see § 105-212. As to listing property for taxes, see § 105-347. As to an initial tax of twenty-five dollars ($25) before the assumption of corporate powers, see § 54-2.

§ 54-26. Statement filed by association. — Every association doing business under this subchapter shall file in the office of the insurance commissioner, on or before the first day of February in each year, in such form as he shall prescribe, a statement of the business standing and financial condition of the applicant on the preceding thirty-first day of December, signed and sworn to by the principal, or chief managing agent, attorney, or officer thereof, before the insurance commissioner, or before a commissioner of affidavits for North Carolina, or before some notary public. (Rev., s. 3894; 1905, c. 435, s. 11; 1907, c. 959, s. 5; C. S. 5187.)

§ 54-27. Statement examined, approved, and published; fees.—It shall be the duty of the insurance commissioner to receive and thoroughly examine each annual statement required by this subchapter, and if made in compliance with the requirements thereof, to publish an abstract of the same in one of the newspapers of the state, to be selected by the general agent or attorney making such statement, and at the expense of his principal. The insurance commissioner shall be entitled to a fee of five dollars, to be paid by the association filing such statement. (Rev., s. 3895; 1905, c. 435, s. 12; C. S. 5188.)

§ 54-28. License revoked.—If the insurance commissioner shall become satisfied at any time that any statements made by any association licensed under this subchapter are untrue, or in case a general agent shall fail or refuse to obey the provisions of this subchapter, or if upon examination the insurance commissioner is of opinion that such association or company is insolvent, or has exceeded its powers, or has failed to comply with any provisions of law, or its mode of business is not feasible for the purposes of carrying out successfully its plan, or that its condition is such as to render its further proceedings hazardous to the stockholders, he shall thereupon have power to revoke and cancel such license. (Rev., s. 3896; 1905, c. 435, s. 13; 1907, c. 959, s. 6; C. S. 5189.)

§ 54-29. Examinations made; expense paid.—If at any time the insurance commissioner has good reason to think that the standing and responsibility of any building and loan association or company doing business in this state, or its mode of business, is of a doubtful character, or in his discretion whenever he deems it prudent to do so, it shall be his duty to examine and investigate everything relating to the business of such company, and to that end he is hereby authorized, if he deem it advisable, to appoint a suitable and competent person to make such investigation, who shall file with the insurance commissioner a full report of his finding in such case. The expenses and cost of such examination shall be defrayed by the company or association subjected to investigation, and each company or association doing business in this state shall stipulate in writing, to be filed with the insurance commissioner, that it will pay all reasonable cost and expenses of such examination when it shall become necessary. (Rev., s. 3897; 1905, c. 435, ss. 14, 15; 1919, c. 179, s. 4; C. S. 5190.)

§ 54-30. Failing to exhibit books or making false statement a misdemeanor.—If any person having in his possession or control any books, accounts, or papers of any building and loan association licensed by law, shall refuse to exhibit the same to the insurance commissioner, or his agents on demand, or shall knowingly or wilfully make any false statement in regard to the same, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined and imprisoned, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3329; 1893, c. 434; 1899, c. 164; C. S. 5191.)

§ 54-31. Agent must obtain certificate.—It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit business or act as agent for any building and loan association or company without having procured from the insurance commissioner a certificate that such association or company for which he offers to act is duly licensed by the state to do business for the current year in which such person solicits business or offers to act as agent. The fee for such license shall be $2.50, to be paid to the insurance commissioner at the time the certificate is issued; and no other license or fee shall be required for said business of an agent or solicitor so licensed. (Rev., s. 3898; 1895, c. 444, s. 3; 1899, c. 154, s. 2, subsec. 20; 1907, c. 959, s. 7; 1933, c. 17; C. S. 5192.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 17, added the last sentence to this section, relating to fees.

§ 54-32. Penalties imposed and recovered.—Every general agent or attorney of any building and loan company or association who shall fail or refuse to perform any duty required of him by this subchapter shall forfeit and pay to the insurance commissioner fifty dollars for the state for every such refusal, to be recovered before any justice of the peace at the suit of the insurance commissioner. (Rev., s. 3899; 1893, c. 434, s. 2300g; 1899, c. 154, s. 2, subsec. 20; C. S. 5193.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 208.

Art. 5. Foreign Associations.

§ 54-34. Allowed to do business.—A building and loan association of another state may be admitted to transact business in this state in the manner hereinafter provided, and no association not so admitted shall transact business in this state. (Rev., s. 3900; 1905, c. 435, s. 17; C. S. 5194.)

§ 54-35. Copy of charter and list of officers filed. —Application for authority to transact business in this state shall be made to the insurance commissioner, and on making such application every such association shall file with the insurance commissioner a duly authenticated copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation, its constitution and by-laws, and thereafter certified copies of all amendments thereto, the names and addresses of its officers and directors, the compensation paid each officer, and a report of its condition, in such form as may be prescribed by the insurance commissioner, which shall be verified by oath of such officers and other persons as the commissioner shall designate, and the commissioner shall furnish blank forms for the report required, and may call for additional reports at such other times as may seem to him expedient. (Rev., s. 3902; 1905, c. 435, s. 19; C. S. 5195.)

§ 54-36. License granted. — If it shall appear to the insurance commissioner by the report aforesaid and by an examination of the affairs of such association that it has good assets of sufficient value to cover all liabilities, and that its methods of doing business are safe and not contrary to the laws governing building and loan associations of this state, it may be admitted to transact business in this state upon a certificate of authority to be issued by the insurance commissioner, which shall only be issued when such association shall have complied with the further requirements of this article. (Rev., s. 3903; 1905, c. 435, s. 20; C. S. 5196.)

§ 54-37. Securities deposited. — The insurance commissioner before issuing the certificate of authority aforesaid shall require every such association to deposit with the commissioner such securities as he may approve, amounting to at least thirty thousand dollars, which securities shall be held by him in trust for the exclusive benefit and security of the creditors and shareholders of such association resident in this state, and he shall have authority to require it to deposit additional securities and to order a change in any of the securities so deposited at any time, and no change or transfer of the same shall be made or be effectual without his consent. Such deposit shall be maintained intact in the full sum required at all times, but the association making such deposit, so long as it shall continue solvent and comply with all the provisions of this subchapter applicable to it, may receive the dividends or interest on the securities deposited, and may from time to time, with the assent of the commissioner, withdraw any of such securities on depositing with the commissioner other like securities the par value of which shall be equal to such as may be withdrawn. (Rev., s. 3904; 1905, c. 435, s. 21; C. S. 5197.)

§ 54-38. Annual certificate; service of process.— Such certificate of authority shall be for the current year only, and shall not be issued until such association shall, by a duly executed instrument filed with the insurance commissioner of the state, constitute the insurance commissioner and his successors in office its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all original process in any action or legal proceedings against it may be served, and therein shall agree that any original process against it which may be served upon the commissioner shall be of the same force and validity as if served on the association, and that the authority thereof shall continue in force irrevocable so long as any liability of the association remains outstanding in this state. The service of such process shall be made by leaving a copy of the same in the office of the insurance commissioner, with a fee of two dollars, to be taxed in the plaintiff's costs. When any original process is thus served, the commissioner, by letter directed to the secretary, shall within two days after such service forward to the secretary a copy of the process served upon him, and such service shall be deemed sufficient service upon the association. The commissioner shall keep a record of all such process, showing the day and hour of service. (Rev., s. 3906; 1905, c. 435, s. 23; C. S. 5198.)

§ 54-39. Agent must have certificate of license; fees.—It shall be unlawful for any person to solicit business or act as agent for any foreign building and loan association or company doing business in this state without having first procured from the insurance commissioner a certificate that such association or company for which he offers to act is duly licensed by the state to do business for the current year in which such person solicits business or offers to act as agent. The insurance commissioner shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar for issuing each such certificate, to be paid by the company for which the same was issued. Any person violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., ss. 3327, 3901; 1895, c. 444, s. 3; 1905, c. 435, s. 18; C. S. 5199.)

§ 54-40. Fees and expenses.—Every such association shall pay for filing a certified copy of its charter or certificate of incorporation twenty dollars; for filing original annual reports, twenty dollars; for certificate of authority, annually, two hundred and fifty dollars; for certificate for each agency, five dollars; and shall defray all expenses incurred in making any examination of its affairs as herein provided for; and the insurance commissioner may maintain an action in the name of the state against such association for the recovery of such expenses in any court of competent jurisdiction. (Rev., s. 3905; 1905, c. 435, s. 22; C. S. 5200.)

Cross References.—As to license tax, see § 105-73. As to exception of building and loan associations from certain taxes, see § 105-212. As to listing property for taxes, see § 105-347.

§ 54-41. All contracts deemed made in this state. —Any contract made by any foreign association with any citizen of this state shall be deemed and considered a North Carolina contract, and shall be so construed by all the courts of this state according to the laws thereof. (1905, c. 435, s. 26; C. S. 5203.)

Foreign building and loan associations are subject to the application of the state usury laws where loans are made at home office. Rowland v. Old Dominion Bldg., etc., Ass'n, Art. 6. Withdrawals.

§ 54-42. Month's notice required for withdrawals.—Any shareholder in a building and loan association may withdraw all or any part of his or her holdings of unpledged or unhypothecated stock in such association by giving to the secretary of such association one month's written notice of his or her intention so to do, and the right of such shareholder to make such withdrawal shall accrue one month after the giving of such notice, subject to the conditions set out in § 54-43. (1933, c. 122, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 207, for review of this and § 54-43.

§ 54-43. Withdrawal or maturity fund. — Whenever any shareholder whose stock has matured or whose right to withdraw his or her stock has accrued, as set out in § 54-42, has not been paid because of insufficiency of funds in the treasury of the association, the secretary of said association shall under instruction from the directors, create a separate fund to be known as the "withdrawal or maturity fund" and into such fund shall be paid one-half of the net receipts of the association monthly. Net receipts shall mean the receipts of the association from interest, installments, rent and other revenue producing sources, diminished by the expenses of the association, and by any sums directed by the board of directors to be set apart and held separately for the purpose of meeting bills payable or notes payable at the maturity thereof. From time to time as the board of directors may direct, the secretary shall make an equitable and ratable distribution of the funds in said "withdrawal or maturity fund" to the stockholders whose right to receive payment from said fund has accrued, as hereinbefore provided, at the date of such distribution. One-half of the net receipts of the association shall be added monthly to such fund so long as there remains any shareholder of the association entitled to receive a portion thereof as aforesaid. No shareholder whose stock has matured or whose right to withdraw his stock has accrued as hereinbefore set out, shall have the right to demand or receive any funds in excess of the amount equitably and ratably distributed as hereinbefore set out except on approval of board of directors of such association and/or the insurance commissioner. (1933, c. 122, s. 2.)

Art. 7. Statements of Financial Condition of Associations.

§ 54-44. Derogatory statements.—Any person who shall willfully and maliciously make, circulate, or transmit to another or others any statement, rumor, or suggestion, written, printed, or by word of mouth, which is directly or by inference derogatory to the financial condition, or affects the solvency or financial standing of any building and loan association, or who shall counsel, aid, procure, or induce another to state, transmit, or circulate any such statement or rumor shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1915, c. 273; 1921, c. 4, s. 82; 1931, c. 12; C. S. 4231.)

SUBCHAPTER II. LAND AND LOAN ASSOCIATIONS.

Art. 8. Organization and Powers.

§ 54-45. Application of term.—The term "Land and Loan Associations" shall apply to and include all corporations, companies, societies or associations organized for the purpose of making loans to their members only, and of enabling their members to acquire real estate, make improvements thereon, and remove incumbrances therefrom by the payment of money in periodical installments or principal sums, and for the accumulation of a fund to be returned to members who do not obtain advances for such purposes, where the principles of building and loan associations and their work are adapted to the use of the farmers and the rural population.

It shall be unlawful for any corporation, company, society, or association doing business in this state not so conducted to use in its corporate name the term "land and loan association," or in any manner or device to hold itself out to the public as a land and loan association. (1915, c. 172, s. 1; C. S. 5204.)

§ 54-46. Incorporation and powers.—Land and loan associations shall be incorporated, supervised, and be subject to such regulations and have such privileges as are prescribed for building and loan associations under the laws of this state as they now are or may be hereafter enacted, except as prescribed in this article. (1915, c. 172, s. 2; C. S. 5205.)

Cross Reference.—As to powers of building and loan associations, see § 54-2.

§ 54-47. Loans. — The boards of directors of land and loan associations may contract for loans to the amount of seventy-five per cent of the securities used by them as collateral, where the loans are on long time (three or more years), and for at least one per cent less than is charged by such associations on their loans to shareholders; and they may make short loans to their shareholders on their shares and personal indorsement or personal property. (1915, c. 172, s. 3; C. S. 5206.)

Cross Reference.—As to loans on mortgages, etc., issued under federal housing act, see § 53-45.

§ 54-48. Reserve associations.—Associations to be known as "Reserve Land and Loan Associations" may be chartered and licensed as provided in this article, when they are organized and the stock therein is held by local land and loan associations, and shall have such powers, rights, and privileges as are accorded to other domestic associations, and they may conform to such laws, rules, and regulations as may be prescribed by the laws of the United States, or of this state, to enable them to receive moneys, bonds, or securities to be used in loans and to secure the same. Such reserve associations shall be under the supervision of the insurance commissioner as are building and loan associations. (1915, c. 172, s. 4; C. S. 5207.)

§ 54-49. Land conservation and development bureau; land mortgage associations. — Recognizing that agriculture is the most fundamental wealth-producing occupation of the State and that land is the basis of agriculture, the General Assembly of North Carolina does hereby authorize and direct the State Department of Agriculture to establish as a major division of its organization a land conservation and land development bureau. The function of this bureau shall be to promote conservation, rural home ownership, and the development of the land resources of the State through land mortgage associations under the following provisions. (1925, c. 223, s. 1.)

§ 54-50. Number of incorporators; capital stock. —Any number of persons, resident freeholders of the State, not less than fifteen, may associate to establish an association on the terms and conditions and subject to the liabilities hereinafter prescribed. The aggregate amount of the capital stock of any such association shall not be less than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000). Such association shall mean a corporation organized under the laws of the State for the purpose of making loans upon agricultural lands, forest lands and dwelling houses within this State and known as a land mortgage association. (1925, c. 223, s. 2.)

§ 54-51. Incorporation.—The articles of incorporation shall be in writing signed and acknowledged by the incorporators and shall contain the following:

(1) The declaration that they are associating for the purpose of forming a land mortgage association under the provisions of this article.

(2) The name of such association, which shall be in no material respect similar to any other association in the same county.

(3) The name of the village, town or city, and the county where such association is to be located.

(4) The amount of capital stock, which shall be divided into shares of one hundred dollars each.

(5) The period for which such association is organized. (1925, c. 223, s. 3.)

§ 54-52. Organization. — The incorporators at their first annual meeting shall elect by ballot from their number a board of trustees of not less than six members who shall adopt a code of by-laws and a plan of organization approved by the Commissioner of Agriculture and the Corporation Commission. (1925, c. 223, s. 4.)

§ 54-53. Corporate powers. — Said land mortgage association shall have power: (a) To make loans, the conditions of which shall be approved by the Corporation Commission if the security taken therefor is to be used as the basis for a bond issue under subsection (c) hereof, and to accept as security for any such loan a first mortgage upon improved or partially improved agricultural lands within this State. Such loan shall not exceed, however, sixty-five per cent of the value of such real estate so conveyed, according to the appraisal made as herein provided.

(b) To purchase first mortgages, heretofore or hereafter issued against North Carolina agricultural lands, either improved or partially improved, from persons or firms resident of this State or corporations organized under the laws of this State engaged in the colonization or settlement of North Carolina lands and to whom such mortgages were issued, if, after investigation, the plan of settlement or colonization followed by such person, firm or corporation is approved by the Commissioner of Agriculture as beneficial to the settler or colonist, and if the lands against which such mortgages are issued are found by the said commissioner to be in fact agricultural lands suitable for agricultural purposes and the terms and conditions of the loans made by such person, firm or corporation are just and reasonable, or from banks or trust companies organized under the laws of this State, or of the United States, to do business in this State, to which such mortgages were issued direct by the borrowers. Each such mortgage shall be payable on the amortization plan maturing in not less than twenty years. The request for an investigation leading to such a purchase of mortgages from persons, firms or corporations engaged in the settlement or colonization of North Carolina lands shall be accompanied by a deposit, the amount of such deposit to be determined by the Commissioner of Agriculture. Upon completion of the investigation the Commissioner of Agriculture shall render a statement of expense accompanied by a remittance of any unused balance of such deposit, but no mortgage shall be purchased until the lands against which the same is issued have been appraised as hereinafter provided for the appraisal of land for a loan by the land mortgage association and such mortgage is approved by all members of the loan committee.

(c) To issue bonds secured by the pledge of the mortgage so taken or purchased.

(d) To pledge the notes and mortgages so taken or purchased under the provisions of subdivisions (a) and (b) hereof as security for the bonds of the land mortgage association referred to in subdivision (c) hereof. (1925, c. 223, s. 5.)

Cross References.—As to investment in bonds guaranteed by United States, see § 53-44. As to loan on mortgages, etc., issued under federal housing act, see § 53-45.

§ 54-54. Restrictions.—All mortgage obligations acquired by the company shall be subject to the following restrictions:

(a) Each such mortgage shall be a first and valid lien upon improved or partially improved agricultural lands within the State of North Carolina;

(b) Each such mortgage shall be a first and valid lien upon the whole and undivided fee and upon no lesser estate;

(c) Each such mortgage shall be given to secure a principal indebtedness not exceeding in amount fifteen per cent of the capital and surplus of the company;

(d) All such mortgages shall contain provisions for soil conservation;

(e) All such mortgages shall contain provisions for the time of commencing payments for annual or semiannual reduction of the indebtedness secured thereby, subject to the requirements as to repayment of loans and interest hereinafter provided;

(f) The company shall make no loan secured by mortgage of any real estate in which any officer or trustee of the company is interested either directly or indirectly, except upon the approval of two-thirds of all the trustees;

(g) A sufficient amount of the proceeds of any loan made upon lands upon which are buildings in course of construction or upon which land clearing or other improvements are being made shall be retained by the association and paid out only upon construction or improvement vouchers, countersigned by a duly authorized agent of the association. (1925, c. 223, s. 6.)

§ 54-55. Mortgage forms; approval. — The mortgages to be given to the association, the bonds to be issued and the trust deed executed to secure the bonds shall be in such form and shall contain such conditions as will adequately protect all parties thereto. The trustees shall provide the forms subject to the joint approval of the Corporation Commission and the Attorney-General. (1925, c. 223, s. 7.)

§ 54-56. Repayment of loan and interest. — The prospective borrower may be required to pay all expenses incidental to the examination of title and appraisal of the property. The total amount shall include (a) the rate of interest agreed upon; and (b) a payment. (1925, c. 223, s. 8.)

§ 54-57. Terms of payment. — A borrower may repay his loan by installments of such frequency and amounts as may be agreed upon: Provided, that not less than one per cent of the original amount of the mortgage shall be paid upon the principal thereof annually, and commencing not later than the sixth year succeeding the year in which the loan was made the borrower may pay a larger installment upon the principal, or the whole of it, at any interest date, such payments to be in amounts equal to additions of one or more principal amortization payments. Such payment may be made in cash, or by tendering at par bonds of the associations. For failure to pay the interest or any installment required by the terms of the loan, the borrower may be fined as the by-laws may prescribe. But the borrower shall never be required to pay more than the specified installment, nor to pay the principal before it is due except as prescribed herein for partial repayment on account of depreciation and for foreclosure by the association. The borrower may on sixty days' notice repay the association his total indebtedness, or, without such notice, upon payment of sixty days' interest upon the principal unpaid. The borrower shall be entitled to a receipt for all installments as paid, and where the repayment is complete to a satisfaction of his note and mortgage. (1925, c. 223, s. 9.)

Cross Reference.—As to satisfaction of mortgages, see § 45-37 et seq.

§ 54-58. Transfer of mortgaged lands.—The acquirer of any lands mortgaged to a land mortgage association shall enter at once, on the acquisition of the land, into a written agreement with the association, attested by a notary, or a justice, and assume the personal responsibility for the indebtedness to the association attaching to such lands. This document must be presented to the trustees within fourteen days after demand. (1925, c. 223, s. 10.)

§ 54-59. Calling in loans before due. — Every land mortgage association shall have the power to call in loans upon sixty days notice:

(a) When the person acquiring the lands upon which money has been loaned does not comply with the provisions of § 54-58 and fulfill the obligations incumbent upon him;

(b) When the debtor does not meet the obligation imposed upon him by his contract and the by-laws of the land mortgage association;

(c) When the mortgaged premises become subject to forced sale;

(d) When the mortgaged premises are depreciating in value because of lack of care, of failure to maintain and conserve or from other cause.

The trustees of the association, whenever necessary, shall provide for an inspection of mortgaged premises by the State Department of Agriculture for an investigation of the care which is being given said premises, and may employ an expert to inspect the soil with a view of determining whether or not the same is being depleted. (1925, c. 223, s. 11.)

§ 54-60. Partial recall of debt.—The association may require a suitable partial repayment of the debt if the mortgaged premises may have at any time become depreciated in value from any cause whatsoever. (1925, c. 223, s. 12.)

§ 54-61. Foreclosure. — Whenever any loan is called in and the borrower shall fail to pay the principal and interest due to the association as required by law and the notices given him, the land mortgage association may then foreclose upon the mortgaged premises as for a past due loan. But in no case shall a borrower be liable for a sum greater than the amount of the unpaid portion of the loan with any accretions of interest thereon and expenses incidental to the collection thereof. (1925, c. 223, s. 13.)

§ 54-62. Appraisal of lands.—Upon application for a loan the land mortgage association shall cause the lands which it is proposed to mortgage to the association to be appraised by a competent appraiser furnished it by the State Department of Agriculture. (1925, c. 223, s. 14.)

§ 54-63. Preference prohibited; association borrowing money. — No land mortgage association, and no officer or agent thereof, shall give any preference to any creditor by pledging any of the assets of such association as collateral security, except that any such association may borrow money for temporary purposes, and may pledge assets of the association as collateral security therefor. Whenever it shall appear that any land mortgage association has borrowed habitually for the purpose of reloaning, the Corporation Commission may require such association to pay off such amount so borrowed. (1925, c. 223, s. 15.)

§ 54-64. Bond issues.

(a) The bonds to be issued by any land mortgage association may be issued for such amounts, bearing such serial number, and date or dates, and be payable at such time and times, bear such rate of interest, and be redeemable at maturity or upon notice at such times and in such manner, as the land mortgage association may, subject to the approval of the banking commission, deem advisable.

(b) Each land mortgage association shall keep a register for the registration and transfer of bonds issued by it in which it shall register, or cause to be registered, all bonds upon presentation thereof for such purpose; and such register shall contain the post office address of all registered holders of bonds and shall, at all reasonable times, be open to the inspection of the banking commission, or any of its deputies, and to the State Treasurer. (1925, c. 223, s. 16.)

§ 54-65. Deed of trust.

(a) To secure the payment of such bonds, the land mortgage association shall issue a collateral deed of trust to the State Treasurer, pledging as security for such bonds the notes and mortgages taken or purchased, as provided herein, in an amount equal to or exceeding the aggregate amount of bonds issued or to be issued.

(b) The total amount of bonds actually outstanding shall not at anytime exceed the total amount unpaid upon the notes secured by the mortgages belonging to the association and pledged for the payment of the bonds, plus such securities and moneys as may be on deposit with the State Treasurer under the provisions hereof.

(c) The aggregate amount of the principal of all bonds issued by land mortgage associations and outstanding at any one time shall not exceed twenty times the amount of the capital and surplus of the company. (1925, c. 223, s. 17.)

§ 54-66. Collaterals deposited with State Treasurer.—All mortgages pledged to secure the payment of the bonds issued hereunder shall be deposited and left with the State Treasurer. The land mortgage association may, with the approval of the State Treasurer, remove such mortgages from the custody of the State Treasurer, substituting in place thereof other of its mortgages, or money or State of North Carolina bonds or certificates of deposit, endorsed in blank, issued by state or national banks located in North Carolina, farm mortgage bonds issued under the provisions of the Federal Farm Loan Act approved July seventeenth, one thousand nine hundred and sixteen, or obligations of the United States Government, in an amount equal to or greater than the amount unpaid upon the notes secured by the mortgages withdrawn. (1925, c. 223, s. 18.)

§ 54-67. Redemption of bonds.

(a) Notice of redemption of bonds may on no account be given on the part of the holder thereof, but may be given by the association only for the purpose of affecting redemption in accordance with the conditions of the bonds and as provided by law and the by-laws.

(b) If the land mortgage association shall elect to redeem any bond prior to maturity, six months notice of redemption shall be given and shall be effected by personal service upon the owner and holder of the bond, by notice mailed to his address as registered or by advertising the same three times in a newspaper selected by the State Treasurer.

(c) The numbers of the bonds of which notice of redemption is to be given shall be determined by lot, to be drawn by the president or the vice-president at a meeting of the trustees. (1925, c. 223, s. 19.)

§ 54-68. Validity of bonds after maturity.—In case the holder of any bond outstanding shall not have presented the same for payment within the period of two years after its maturity or within two years after the date fixed for the redemption, as the case may be, then such bonds shall cease to be a lien upon the mortgages, moneys, and securities pledged to the State Treasurer and deposited with him as security therefor, but such bond shall still constitute, until the statute of limitation running against such bonds shall have expired, a single legal money claim or demand against the land mortgage association issuing the same, and be recoverable from it in a suit at law, and in no event shall any interest be collectible upon such bond after the maturity thereof or after the date fixed for its redemption. (1925, c. 223, s. 20.)

§ 54-69. Bonds as payment.—If the association gives notice to a debtor for repayment of the mortgage loan the latter must pay to the association in cash or in its bonds at par the face of the same so far as it has not yet been covered by his assets in the amortization and payments. (1925, c. 223, s. 21.)

§ 54-70. Bonds as investments.—The bonds of a land mortgage association shall be a legal investment for savings associations, trust companies, or other financial institutions chartered under the laws of this State and shall also be a legal investment for trustees, executors, administrators, or custodians of public or private funds, or corporations, partnerships or associations. (1925, c. 223, s. 22.)

§ 54-71. Applications of earnings; reserve fund.—The gross earnings of the association shall be ascertained annually, and there shall first be deducted therefrom the expenses incurred by the association for the preceding year and the balance thereof shall be set aside as a reserve fund for the payment of contingent losses, to an amount equal to two per cent of the capital stock outstanding, and until such reserve fund equals twenty per cent of the capital stock of such association. (1925, c. 223, s. 23.)

§ 54-72. Restriction on holding real estate.—No land mortgage association shall acquire real estate (other than for the occupation of its offices) except to protect its interests in case any of the mortgages owned by it are foreclosed and the property therein described sold to pay the indebtedness secured thereby. All real estate so acquired shall be promptly sold. (1925, c. 223, s. 24.)

§ 54-73. Banking laws applicable.—The statutes relating to banks and banking in this State, that is, §§ 53-1 to 53-158, in so far as applicable and not in conflict with the provisions hereof shall apply to land mortgage associations. (1925, c. 223, s. 25.)

SUBCHAPTER III. CREDIT UNIONS.

Art. 9. Superintendent of Credit Unions.

§ 54-74. Office created.—There shall be established in the State Department of Agriculture a superintendent of credit unions and such assistants as may be necessary. (1915, c. 115, s. 1; 1925, c. 73, s. 4; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5208.)

Editor's Note.—The Public Laws of 1925, Ch. 73 struck out all of the old section and inserted this one in its stead.

This subchapter was formerly entitled Savings and Loan Associations and the article headings conformed thereto. Public Laws 1935, chapter 87, provides: "In order to make the name of this organization conform with the names of similar organizations authorized by federal statute, the words 'savings and loan associations,' wherever appearing in Consolidated Statutes, sections five thousand two hundred and eight to five thousand two hundred and forty-one, inclusive, (Michie's Code of one thousand nine hundred thirty-one) shall be changed to read 'credit unions.' "

§ 54-75. Duties of the officer.—The duties of the superintendent of credit unions shall be as follows:

1. To organize and conduct, in the state department of agriculture, a bureau of information in regard to coöperative associations and rural and industrial credits.

2. Upon the application of three persons residing in the state of North Carolina, to furnish, without cost, such printed information and blank forms as, in his discretion, may be necessary for the formation and establishment of any local credit union in the state.

3. To maintain an educational campaign in the state looking to the promotion and organization of credit unions; and upon the written request of twelve bona fide residents of any particular locality in this state expressing a desire to form a local credit union at such locality, the superintendent or one of his assistants shall proceed as promptly as convenient to such locality and advise and assist such organizers to establish the institution in question.

4. To examine at least once a year, and oftener if such examination be deemed necessary by the superintendent or his assistant, the credit unions formed under this subchapter. A report of such examination shall be filed with the state department of agriculture, and a copy mailed to the credit union at its proper address. (1915, c. 115, s. 1; 1925, c. 73, ss. 2, 3, 5, 6; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5209.)

Editor's Note.—The words "and industrial," in the first clause of this section were added by Public Laws of 1925, ch. 73.

Under the fourth clause of this section it was formerly required that a report of the examination, therein referred to, be also sent "to the clerk of the court of the county in which the principal office of the credit union or co-operative association"—the present saving and loan association, "is located, and such report" to be "kept on file by the clerk of the superior court for public inspection."

Art. 10. Incorporation of Credit Unions.

§ 54-76. Applications filed.—Seven or more persons employed or residing in the state may become a credit union by making, signing, and acknowledging a certificate which shall contain:

1. The name of the proposed credit union which shall include the words "credit union."

2. A statement that incorporation is desired under this article.

3. The conditions, whether of residence, of occupation, or otherwise, which shall qualify persons for membership.

4. The par value of the shares, which shall not exceed twenty-five dollars.

5. The city, village, or town in which its principal business office is to be located. If it is to be located in an incorporated city, the street address of the city shall be given. If the condition of its membership is employment by a certain individual, copartnership, or corporation, a statement that its office shall be with such individual, copartnership, or corporation may be substituted for the street address.

6. The number of its directors, not less than five, all of whom must be members of and shareholders in the corporation.

7. The names and postoffice addresses of the directors for the first year.

8. The names and postoffice addresses of the subscribers to the certificate, and a statement of the number of shares of stock which each agrees to take in the corporation. (1915, c. 115, s. 2; 1925 c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5210.)

§ 54-77. By-laws adopted.—At the time of filing the certificate the incorporators shall adopt by-laws which shall provide:

1. The name of corporation.

2. The purposes for which it is formed.

3. Qualifications for membership.

4. The date of the annual meeting; the manner in which members shall be notified of meetings; the manner of conducting the meetings; the number of members which constitute a quorum at the meetings, and the regulations as to voting.

5. The number of members of the board of directors, their powers and duties, and the compensation and duties of officers elected by the board of directors.

6. The number of members of the credit committee, their powers and duties.

7. The number of members of the supervisory committee, their powers and duties.

8. The par value of shares of capital stock.

9. The conditions upon which shares may be issued, paid in, transferred, and withdrawn.

10. The fines, if any, which shall be charged for failure to meet obligations to the corporation punctually.

11. The conditions upon which deposits may be received and withdrawn. Whether the proposed corporation shall, in addition, have power to borrow funds.

12. The manner in which the funds of the corporation shall be invested.

13. The conditions upon which loans may be made and repaid.

14. The maximum rate of interest that may be charged upon loans, not to exceed, however, the legal rate.

15. The method of receipting for money paid on account of shares, deposits, or loans.

16. The manner in which the reserve fund shall be accumulated.

17. The manner in which dividends shall be determined and paid to members.

18. The manner in which a voluntary dissolution of the corporation shall be effected. (1915, c. 115, s. 2; C. S. 5211.)

§ 54-78. Certificate of incorporation. — The by-laws acknowledged to have been adopted by all of the incorporators, together with the certificate of incorporation, shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of credit unions who shall approve the certificate of incorporation if he is satisfied that it is in conformity with this subchapter, and shall approve the by-laws if he is satisfied as to the character of the incorporators and that the by-laws are reasonable and will tend to give assurance that the affairs of the prospective credit union will be administered in accordance with this subchapter. Thereupon, the superintendent of credit unions shall issue to the corporation a certificate of approval, annexed to a duplicate of the certificate of incorporation and of the by-laws, which certificate of approval, together with the attached duplicate certificate of incorporation and duplicate by-laws, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the office of such credit union is situated, and upon such filing the incorporators shall become and be a corporation. The county clerk shall charge the same filing fee for filing the certificate of approval, certificate of incorporation and by-laws as he is now allowed to charge for filing a certificate of incorporation of a corporation organized under the business corporations law of the state. (1915, c. 115, s. 2; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5212.)

Cross Reference.—As to clerk's fee for filing certificate of incorporation, see § 55-159.

§ 54-79. Amendment of by-laws.—The by-laws adopted by the incorporators and approved by the superintendent of credit unions shall be the by-laws of the corporation, and no amendment to the by-laws shall become operative until such amendment shall have been approved by the superintendent of credit unions, and a copy thereof certified by him, with a certificate of his approval, shall be filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the office of the credit union is located. Such approval may be given or withheld by the superintendent of credit unions at his discretion. The county clerk shall receive the same fee for filing as provided in § 54-78. (1915, c. 115, s. 3; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5213.)

§ 54-80. Restriction of use of terms.—The use by any person, copartnership, association, or corporation except corporations formed under the provisions of this subchapter, of any name or title which contains the words "credit union" shall be a misdemeanor: Provided, that the provisions of this section shall not apply to associations or credit union leagues, the membership of which is composed entirely of corporations formed under the provisions of this subchapter. (1915, c. 115, s. 4; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; 1941, c. 236; C. S. 5214.)

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment added the proviso.

§ 54-81. Change of place of business.—A credit union may change its place of business on the written approval of the superintendent of credit unions, which written approval shall be filed in the office of the superintendent of credit unions and a duplicate of the approval in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where its office was located, and a second duplicate in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the new office is to be located. Such approval of the superintendent may be given or withheld at his discretion. (1915, c. 115, s. 25; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5215.)

Art. 11. Powers of Credit Unions.

§ 54-82. General nature of business.—A credit union may receive the savings of its members in payment for shares or on deposit; may loan to its members at reasonable rates of interest not exceeding the legal rate, or may invest as hereinafter provided the funds so accumulated, and may undertake such other activities relating to the purpose of the corporation as its by-laws may authorize. (1915, c. 115, s. 5; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5216.)

Editor's Note.—For act relating to withdrawal of deposits from the State Employees' Credit Union, see Session Laws 1943, c. 781.

§ 54-83. Receive deposits.—A credit union may receive on deposit the savings of its members and also nonmembers in such amounts and upon such terms as the board of directors may determine and the by-laws shall provide. (1915, c. 115, s. 16; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5217.)

§ 54-84. Borrowing money.—If the by-laws so provide, a credit union shall have power to borrow money from any source in addition to receiving deposits, but the aggregate amount of such indebtedness shall not at any one time exceed more than four (4) times the sum of its capital, surplus and reserve fund. (1915, c. 115, s. 17; 1925, c. 73, s. 10; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5218.)

§ 54-85. Authority to execute contracts of guaranty in certain cases.—A credit union may execute such contracts of guaranty as may be necessary to procure credit for its members: Provided, that the said contracts of guaranty shall not place on the said local credit union a liability arising in any one year in excess of ten (10) per cent of the total credit under the said contracts of guaranty handled through that association in a particular year; and provided further, that all such contracts shall be approved by the superintendent of credit unions and each such contract must bear his approval in writing before becoming effective. In assuming such liability the said credit union may require of the individual members being served such security as the board of directors of each such credit union may determine upon. (1925, c. 73, s. 11; 1935, c. 87.)

§ 54-86. Investment of funds.—The capital, deposits, undivided profits and reserve fund of the corporation may be invested in one of the following ways, and in such way only:

1. They may be lent to the members of the corporation in accordance with the provisions of this subchapter.

2. They may be deposited to the credit of the corporation in savings banks, credit unions, building and loan associations, state banks or trust companies, incorporated under the laws of the state, or in National banks located therein. Funds of credit unions deposited in a savings bank, state bank, or trust company which may become insolvent, shall be preferred in the same way that funds of a "credit union" so deposited are preferred under the banking law of the state.

3. A credit union shall keep on deposit at interest in any of such depositories as are enumerated in the next preceding paragraph so much of the reserve fund and capital stock as shall equal five (5) per cent of the total liabilities.

4. Not more than ten per cent of the capital stock and reserve fund of a credit union may be invested in the stock of another local credit union and not more than twenty-five (25) per cent of the capital stock and reserve fund of a local association may be invested in the stock of a central association. (1915, c. 115, s. 18; 1917, c. 232, ss. 2, 3; 1925, c. 73, ss. 12, 13, 14; 1935, c. 87; 1939, c. 400, s. 1; C. S. 5219.)

Cross Reference.—As to investment in bonds guaranteed by the United States, see § 53-44.

Editor's Note.—The words "building and loan associations," in the second clause under this section were added by Public Laws of 1925, ch. 73.

The act changed the third clause.

The act also inserted the word "local" before the words "credit union" in the fourth clause of the section and added the provisions that follow.

The 1939 amendment changed clause 3.

§ 54-87. Loans.

1. To Members.—A credit union may lend to its members for such purposes and upon such security and terms as the by-laws shall provide and the credit committee shall approve; but security must be taken for any loan in excess of fifty dollars. An indorsed note shall be deemed to be security within the meaning of this section.

2. Installment Loans.— A member who needs funds with which to purchase necessary supplies for growing crops may receive a loan in fixed monthly installments instead of in one sum.

3. Loans to Members of Committee.—The supervisory committee shall appoint a substitute to act on the credit committee in the place of any member in case such member makes application to borrow money from the credit union or becomes surety for any other member whose application for a loan is under consideration.

4. Loans to Persons Not Members Forbidden.—All officers and members of any committees in any way knowingly permitting or participating in making a loan of funds of a credit union to one not a member thereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The credit union shall have the right to recover the amount of such illegal loans from the borrower or from any officers or members of committees who knowingly permitted or participated in the making thereof, or from all of them jointly.

5. Repayment of Loans.—A borrower may repay the whole or any part of his loan on any day on which the office of the corporation is open for the transaction of business. (1915, c. 115, s. 19; 1917, c. 232, s. 4; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5220.)

Cross Reference.—As to loans on mortgages, etc., issued under federal housing act, see § 53-45.

§ 54-88. Rate of interest; penalty.—No corporation organized pursuant to this subchapter shall directly or indirectly charge or receive any interest, discount, or consideration, other than the entrance fee, greater than the legal rate.

Any corporation, any person, the several officers of any corporation, and the members of committees who shall violate the foregoing prohibition shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. The corporation shall also be subject to procedure by the superintendent of credit unions as prescribed herein in article fourteen. (1915, c. 115, s. 20; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5221.)

§ 54-89. Interest or discount rate charged by agricultural association. — An agricultural credit corporation or association, organized under the laws of the State of North Carolina, may charge and collect by way of interest or discount on all loans made for agricultural purposes to farmers, growers and truckers of staple agricultural crops, fruits and vegetables respectively, or for the purpose of raising, breeding, fattening, or marketing of live stock, a rate of interest or discount not to exceed three per centum per annum in excess of the rate of interest or rediscount rate charged by any Federal intermediate credit bank to such agricultural credit corporation or association when rediscounting or purchasing from it the notes of such farmers, growers and truckers: Provided, that the total rate, both interest and rediscount, to the borrower shall not exceed eight per centum (8%) per annum. (1927, c. 101; 1929, c. 43, s. 1; 1931, c. 329.)

Cross Reference.—As to commission in lieu of interest, see §§ 44-57 and 44-58.

§ 54-90. Reserve fund.—All entrance fees, transfer fees, and fines shall, after the payment of organization expenses, be known as reserve income, and shall be added to the reserve fund of the corporation.

At the close of each fiscal year there shall be set apart to the reserve fund twenty per centum of the net income of the corporation which has accumulated during the year. But upon the recommendation of the board of directors, the members at an annual meeting may increase, and whenever such funds equal the amount of the capital may decrease, the proportion of profits which is required by this section to be set apart to the reserve fund. Nor shall the reserve fund in any case exceed the capital of the corporation plus fifty per centum of its other liabilities.

The reserve fund shall belong to the corporation and shall be held to meet contingencies, and shall not be distributed to the members except upon the dissolution of the corporation. (1915, c. 115, s. 21; 1939, c. 400, s. 2; C. S. 5222.)

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment substituted "twenty" for "twenty-five" in line two of the second paragraph.

§ 54-91. Dividends.—At the close of the fiscal year a credit union may declare a dividend not to exceed six per cent per annum from the income during the year and which remains after the deduction of expenses, losses, interest on deposits, and the amount required to be set apart to the reserve fund. Dividends shall be paid on all fully paid shares outstanding at the close of the fiscal year, but shares which become fully paid during the year shall be entitled to a proportional part of such dividend calculated from the first day of the month following such payment in full. (1915, c. 115, s. 22; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5223.)

§ 54-92. Voluntary dissolution.—At any meeting specially called to consider the subject, three-fourths of the members present and represented may vote to dissolve the corporation and upon such vote shall signify their consent to such dissolution in writing. Such corporation shall then file in the office of the superintendent of credit unions such consent, attested by its secretary or treasurer and its president or vice-president, with a statement of the names and residences of the existing board of directors of the corporation and the names and residences of its officers duly verified. The superintendent of credit unions, upon receipt of satisfactory proof of the solvency of the corporation, shall issue to such corporation, in duplicate, a certificate to the effect that such consent and statement have been filed and that it appears therefrom that such corporation has complied with this section. Such duplicate certificate shall be filed by the corporation in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the corporation has its place of business, and thereupon such corporation shall be dissolved and shall cease to carry on business except for the purpose of adjusting and winding up of its affairs. The corporation, by its board of directors, shall then proceed to adjust and wind up its business and affairs, with power to carry out its contracts, collect its accounts receivable, and to liquidate its assets and apply the same in discharge of debts and obligations of such corporation, and after paying and adequately providing for the payment of such debts and obligations, each share, according to the amount paid thereon, shall be entitled to its proportion of the balance of the assets. The corporation shall continue in existence for the purpose of paying, satisfying, and discharging any existing debts or obligations, collecting and distributing its assets, and doing all other acts required in order to adjust and wind up its business and affairs, and may sue and be sued for the purpose of enforcing such debts and obligations until its business and affairs are fully adjusted and wound up. (1915, c. 115, s. 24; 1925, c. 73, ss. 3, 15; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5224.)

Editor's Note.—The words "three-fourths of the members present and represented," in the first sentence of this section, were substituted, in lieu of the words "four-fifths of the entire membership of a corporation" which were stricken out, by the Acts of 1925, ch. 73.

§ 54-93. Savings institution; restriction of taxation.—The corporation shall be deemed an institution for savings, and together with all accumulations therein shall not be taxable under any law which shall exempt building and loan associations or institutions for savings from taxation; nor shall any law passed taxing corporations in any form, or the shares thereof, or the accumulations therein, be deemed to include corporations doing business in pursuance of the provisions of this sub-chapter, unless they are specifically named in such law. The shares of credit unions, being hereby regarded as a system for saving, shall not be subject to any stock-transfer tax either when issued by the corporation or transferred from one member to another. (1915, c. 115, s. 26; 1925, c. 73, ss. 3, 16; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5225.)

Editor's Note.—The words "buildings and loan associations" in the first clause of this section were added by the Public Laws of 1925, ch. 73 and substituted for the words "savings banks," which were stricken out.

Art. 12. Shares in the Corporation.

§ 54-94. Ownership and transfer of shares. — The capital of a credit union shall consist of the payments that have been made to it by the several members thereof on the shares. Shares may be subscribed for and paid in such manner as the by-laws shall prescribe. The credit union shall have a lien on the shares of any member and upon any dividends payable thereon for and to the extent of any loan made to him and of any dues or fines payable by him. The credit union may, upon the resignation or expulsion of a member, cancel the shares of such member and apply the withdrawal value of such shares towards the liquidation of the member's indebtedness.

A credit union may, if the by-laws so provide, charge an entrance fee for each share subscribed, to be paid by the shareholder upon his election to membership.

Fully paid shares of a credit union may be transferred to any person eligible for membership, upon such terms as the by-laws may provide, and the payment of a transfer fee shall not exceed twenty-five cents per share. (1915, c. 115, s. 13; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5226.)

§ 54-95. Shares and deposits for minors and in trust.—Shares may be issued and deposits received in the name of a minor, and such shares and deposits may, in the discretion of the directors, be withdrawn by such minor or his parent or guardian, and in either case payments made on such withdrawals shall be valid. If shares are held or deposits made in trust, the name and residence of the beneficiary shall be disclosed and the account shall be kept in the name of such holder as trustee for such person. Such shares or deposits may, upon the death of the trustee, be withdrawn by the person for whom the shares were held or for whom such deposits were made, or by his legal representatives. (1915, c. 115, s. 14; C. S. 5227.)

§ 54-96. Fines and penalties.—For failure by any member of a credit union to meet his payments on obligations when due, such fines and other penalties may be imposed upon the delinquent member as the by-laws provide. Such fines shall not exceed two per centum per month or a fraction thereof on amounts due, except that a minimum fine of five cents may be imposed. (1915, c. 115, s. 15; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; 1939, c. 400, s. 3; C. S. 5228.)

§ 54-97. Liability of shareholders. — A shareholder of any such corporation, unless the by-laws so provide, shall not be individually liable for the payment of its debts for an amount in excess of the par value of the shares which he owns or for which he has subscribed. (1915, c. 115, s. 26; C. S. 5229.)

Art. 13. Members and Officers.

§ 54-98. Who may become members. — The membership of the corporation shall consist of those persons who have been duly elected to membership and who have subscribed for one or more shares and have paid for the same in whole or in part, together with the entrance fee as provided in the by-laws, and have complied with such other requirements as the by-laws may contain. No credit union shall ever pay any commission or offer compensation for the securing of members or on the sale of shares. (1915, c. 115, s. 6; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5230.)

§ 54-99. Expulsion and withdrawal of members. —The board of directors may expel from the corporation any member who has not carried out his engagement with the corporation, or has been convicted of a criminal offense, or neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of this subchapter or of the by-laws, or who habitually neglects to pay his debts, or shall become insolvent or bankrupt. The members at a regularly called meeting may expel from the corporation any member who has become intemperate or in any way financially irresponsible; no member shall be expelled until he has been informed in writing of the charges against him and an opportunity has been given him, after reasonable notice, to be heard thereon.

A member may withdraw from a credit union by filing a written notice of his intention to withdraw.

The amounts paid in on shares or deposits by an expelled or withdrawing member, with any dividends credited to his shares and any interest accrued on his deposits to the date of expulsion or withdrawal, shall be paid to such member, but in the order of expulsion or withdrawal and only as funds therefor become available, after deducting any amounts due to the corporation by such member. The member shall have no other or further right in the credit union or to any of its benefits, but such expulsion or withdrawal shall not operate to relieve the member from any remaining liability to the corporation. (1915, c. 115, s. 23; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5231.)

§ 54-100. Meetings; right of voting.—The fiscal year of every such corporation shall end at the close of business on the thirty-first day of December. The annual meeting of the corporation shall be held at such time and place as the by-laws prescribe. Special meetings may be held by order of the directors or of the supervisory committee, and shall be held upon request in writing of ten per cent of the members. Notice of all meetings of the corporation shall be given in the manner prescribed in the by-laws. At all meetings of members or shareholders a member shall have one vote and but one vote, irrespective of the number of shares that may be held by him, and in case of sickness or other unavoidable absence of a member he shall be allowed to vote by proxy in writing, but no member present shall vote more than one such proxy. At any meeting the members may decide upon any question of interest to the corporation, and overrule the board of directors, and by a three-fourths vote of those present and represented, provided the notice of the meeting shall have specified the question to be considered, may vote to amend the by-laws. (1915, c. 115, s. 8; C. S. 5232.)

§ 54-101. Election of directors and committees.

1. Number Elected.—At the annual meeting the members shall elect a board of directors of not less than five members, a credit committee and a supervisory committee of not less than three members each. However, in credit unions whose business offices are located in places other than incorporated cities, the board of directors as such may also be the credit committee. Except as herein specified, no member of the board shall be a member of either of such committees, nor shall one person be a member of more than one of such committees. All members of committees and all directors, as well as all officers whom they may elect, shall be sworn, and shall hold their several offices for such term as may be determined by the by-laws.

2. Oath of Office.—The oath required of each director, officer, and member of committee shall be the oath of the individual taking the same that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such corporation, and will not knowingly violate or willingly permit to be violated any of the provisions of law applicable to such corporation, and that he is the owner in good faith and in his own right on the books of the corporation of at least one share therein. Such oath shall be subscribed by the individual making it and certified by the officer before whom it is taken, and shall immediately be transmitted to the superintendent of credit unions and filed and preserved in his office. (1915, c. 115, s. 9; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5233.)

§ 54-102. Duties of board of directors.

1. Elect Executive Officers.—At their first meeting and at each first meeting in the fiscal year, the board of directors shall elect from their number a president, vice-president, a secretary, and a treasurer, who shall be the executive officers of the corporation. The offices of secretary and treasurer may, if the by-laws so provide, be held by one person.

2. General Management.—The board of directors shall have the general management of the affairs, funds, and records of the corporation, shall meet as often as may be necessary, and, unless the by-laws shall specifically reserve all or any of these duties to the members, it shall be the special duty of the directors:

1. To act upon all applications for membership and the expulsion of members.

2. To fix the amount of the surety bond which shall be required of each officer having the custody of funds.

3. To determine from time to time the rate of interest which shall be allowed on deposits and charged on loans.

4. To fix the maximum number of shares which may be held by and the maximum amount which may be lent to any one member; to declare dividends; and to recommend amendments to the by-laws.

5. To fill vacancies in the board of directors or in the credit committees until the election and qualification of successors.

6. To have charge of the investment of the funds of the corporation except loans to members, and to perform such other duties as the members may from time to time authorize.

3. Compensation.—No member of the board of directors or of the credit or supervisory committees shall receive any compensation for his services as a member of the board or committees. But the officers elected by the board of directors may receive such compensation as the members may authorize. (1915, c. 115, s. 10; C. S. 5234.)

§ 54-103. Duties of credit committee.—The credit committee shall approve every loan or advance made by the corporation to members. Every application for a loan shall be made in writing and shall state the purpose for which the loan is desired and the security offered. No loan shall be made unless it has received the unanimous approval of those members of the committee who were present when it was considered, who shall constitute at least a majority of the committee, nor if any member of the committee shall disapprove thereof; but the applicant for a loan may appeal from the decisions of the credit committee to the board of directors. The credit committee shall meet as often as may be required after due notice has been given to each member. (1915, c. 115, s. 11; C. S. 5235.)

§ 54-104. Duties of supervisory committee.—The supervisory committee shall inspect the securities, cash, and accounts of the corporation and supervise the acts of its board of directors, credit committee, and officers. At any time the supervisory committee, by a unanimous vote, may suspend the credit committee or any member of the board of directors, or any officer elected by the board, and by a majority vote may call a meeting of the shareholders to consider any violation of this subchapter or of the by-laws, or any practice of the corporation which, in the opinion of said committee, is unsafe and unauthorized. Within seven days after the suspension of the credit committee the supervisory committee shall cause notice to be given of a special meeting of the members to take such action relative to such suspension as may seem necessary. The supervisory committee shall fill vacancies in their own number until the next regular meeting of the members

At the close of each fiscal year the supervisory committee shall make a thorough audit of the receipts, disbursements, income, assets, and liabilities of the corporation for the fiscal year, and shall make a full report thereon to the directors. This report shall be read at the annual meeting of the members and shall be filed and preserved with the records of the corporation. (1915, c. 115, s. 12; C. S. 5236.)

Art. 14. Supervision and Control.

§ 54-105. Subject to superintendent of credit unions.—Corporations organized under the provisions of this subchapter shall be subject to the supervision of the superintendent of credit unions. (1915, c. 115, s. 7; 1925, c. 73, s. 3; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5237.)

§ 54-106. Reports; penalties; fees.—1. Every corporation organized under this subchapter shall, in January and in July of each year, make a report of condition to the superintendent of credit unions giving such information as he shall require, which reports shall be verified by oath of the treasurer and by oath of a majority of the supervisory committee, and shall make such other and further reports under like oath as the superintendent shall demand at any time.

2. Each credit union applying on or after July first, one thousand nine hundred forty-one, for a certificate to do business under the provisions of this subchapter shall, before receiving such certificate, pay into the office of the superintendent of credit unions a charter fee of five dollars ($5.00).

3. Each credit union subject to supervision and examination by the superintendent of credit unions, including credit unions in process of voluntary liquidation, shall pay into the office of the superintendent of credit unions supervisory fees as follows: (a) two dollars and fifty cents ($2.50) for the first one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of assets and fifty cents ($.50) for each additional thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of assets, or fraction thereof, payable during the month of July each year on the basis of total assets as shown by its report of condition made to the superintendent of credit unions as of the previous June thirtieth, or the date most nearly approximately same of each year; and (b) two dollars and fifty ($2.50) for the first one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of assets and fifty cents ($.50) for each additional thousand dollars ($1,000.00) of assets, or fraction thereof, payable during the month of January each year on the basis of total assets as shown by its report of condition made to the superintendent of credit unions as of the previous December thirty-first, or the date most nearly approximating same of each year: Provided, that no credit union shall be required to pay any supervisory fee until the expiration of twelve months from the date of the issuance of a certificate of incorporation to such credit union.

4. Any such corporation which neglects to make semi-annual reports as provided in paragraph 1 of this section, or any of the other reports required by the superintendent of credit unions at the time fixed by the superintendent, shall forfeit to the superintendent of credit unions five dollars ($5.00) for each day such neglect continues; and, furthermore, the superintendent of credit unions shall have authority, in his discretion, to revoke the certificate of incorporation and take possession of the assets and business of any corporation failing to pay the fees required in this section after serving notice of at least fifteen (15) days upon such corporation of his intention so to do.

5. Moneys collected under this section shall be deposited with the state treasurer of North Carolina and expended, under the terms of the Executive Budget Act, to defray expenses incurred by the office of the superintendent of credit unions in carrying out its supervisory and auditing functions. (1915, c. 115, s. 7; 1925, c. 73, ss. 3, 7; 1935, c. 87; 1941, c. 235; C. S. 5238.)

Editor's Note.—Under the first paragraph of this section it was formerly provided that the report, therein referred to, "shall be verified by the oath of the president, treasurer and secretary, as well as by the oath of a majority of the members of the supervisory committee". By Public Laws 1925, ch. 73, the word "president" was stricken out and the word "and" substituted in lieu of "as well as."

Prior to the 1941 amendment annual reports were required. The amendment changed the provision relating to penalties and added subsections 2, 3 and 5.

§ 54-107. Annual examinations required. — The superintendent of credit unions shall cause every such corporation to be examined once a year and whenever he deems it necessary. The examiners appointed by him shall be given free access to all books, papers, securities, and other sources of information in respect to the corporation; and for the purpose of such examination the superintendent shall have power and authority to subpœna and examine personally, or by one of his deputies or examiners, witnesses on oath and documents, whether such witnesses are members of the corporation or not, and whether such documents are documents of the corporation or not.

§ 54-108. Revocation of certificate; liquidation.—If any such corporation shall neglect to make its annual report, as provided in this article, or any other report required by the superintendent of credit unions, for more than fifteen days, or shall fail to pay the charges required, including the fines for delay in filing reports, the superintendent of credit unions shall give notice to such corporation of his intention to revoke the certificate of approval of the corporation for such neglect or failure, and if such neglect or failure continues for fifteen days after such notice, the said superintendent shall, at his discretion, revoke the certificate, and he, personally or by one of his deputies, shall take possession of the property and business of the corporation and retain possession until such time as he may permit it to resume business, or until its affairs be finally liquidated as provided in the banking laws of the state. (1915, c. 115, s. 7; 1925, c. 73, ss. 3, 8; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5240.)

Editor's Note.—The words "or any other report required by the superindendent of savings and loan associations," (now credit unions), following the words "as provided in this article," in the first part of the section were added by Public Laws 1925, ch. 73.

§ 54-109. Deficits supplied; business discontinued.—If it shall appear to the superintendent of credit unions by any examination or report that any such corporation is insolvent, or that it has violated any of the provisions of this subchapter or any other law of the state, he may, by an order made over his hand and official seal, after a hearing or an opportunity for a hearing given the accused corporation, direct any such corporation to discontinue the illegal methods or practices mentioned in the order to make good any deficit. A deficit, in the discretion of the superintendent of credit unions, may be made good by an assessment on the members in proportion to the shares held by each member. If any such corporation shall not comply with such order within the time stipulated after the same shall have been delivered in person or shall have been mailed to the last address filed by such corporation in the office of the superintendent of credit unions (provided, that not more than thirty (30) days shall be allowed) the superintendent shall thereupon take possession of the property and business of such corporation and retain such possession until such time as he may permit it to resume business or its affairs be finally liquidated, as provided in the banking law of the state. (1915, c. 115, s. 7; 1925, c. 73, ss. 3, 9; 1935, c. 87; C. S. 5241.)

Editor's Note.—The provision, in the third sentence of this section, that "the time stipulated after the same shall have been delivered in person or shall have been mailed to the last address filed by such corporation in the office of the superintendent of credit unions (Provided, that not more than thirty (30) days shall be allowed)," was substituted by the acts of 1925, ch. 73, in place of the former provision "sixty days after the same shall have been mailed to the last address filed by such corporation in the division of markets and rural co-operation," which was stricken out by same act.

Art. 15. Central Associations.

§ 54-110. Central association.—(1) Upon application of seven or more credit unions for a central corporation for the purpose of securing credit and discounting notes with any outside agency, and to act as a clearing house in the settlement of these accounts, the superintendent of credit unions shall, upon receipt and investigation of charters and by-laws signed by the secretary-treasurers of the several credit unions, approve same if he is satisfied they are in conformity with and give reasonable assurance that the affairs of the corporation will be administered in accordance with this article.

(2) The procedure and plan of organization, method of operation, officers and their duties, supervision, liquidation and dissolution shall be the same as with any local credit union; except that the membership of a central credit union shall be institutional and only local credit unions can become members, unless the by-laws otherwise prescribe.

(3) Any local credit union can become a member of a central association by subscribing to any number of shares and paying for same, in whole or in part, not to be in excess of twenty-five per cent (25%) of their share capital and reserve fund.

(4) Deposits in the central association may be accepted from any source in such amounts and upon such terms as the board of directors may determine and the by-laws shall prescribe.

(5) The secretary-treasurer shall cast the one vote of local member credit unions in its annual election of officers and at all meetings of the member associations unless the by-laws otherwise prescribe.

(6) A central credit union shall not charge more than three-fourths (¾) of one per cent for discounting paper, provided that no discount rate shall make the interest higher than the legal rate.

(7) Section 54-84 shall not apply to a central association, and such an association shall have power to borrow money from any source in amounts not in excess of ten times the amount of its capital and reserve fund.

(8) A central credit union shall not be taxable under any law which shall exempt any local credit union. (1925, c. 73, s. 17; 1935, c. 87.)

SUBCHAPTER IV. CO-OPERATIVE ASSOCIATIONS.

Art. 16. Organization of Associations.

§ 54-111. Nature of the association.—Any number of persons, not less than five, may associate themselves as a mutual association, society, company, or exchange, for the purpose of conducting any agricultural, horticultural, forestry, dairy, mercantile, mining, manufacturing, telephone, electric light, power, storage, refrigeration, flume, irrigation, water, sewerage, or mechanical business on the mutual plan. For the purposes of this subchapter, the words association, company, corporation, exchange, society, or union shall be construed to mean the same; Provided, that the membership of agricultural organizations incorporated under this subchapter shall consist of producers of agricultural products, handled by such organizations or by organizations owned and controlled by such producers. (1915, c. 144, s. 1; 1925, c. 179, ss. 1, 2; 1931, c. 447; C. S. 5242.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of a mutual corporation to create stock, see § 55-72.

Editor's Note. — This and the following sections were amended by Public Laws 1925, ch. 179 by striking out the word "co-operative" wherever it occurred in this subchapter and inserting in the lieu thereof the word "mutual."

The scope of this subchapter was enlarged by the 1925 act which added to the number of societies that may be organized thereunder the following: "horticulture, forestry, and telephone, electric light, power, storage, refrigeration, flume, irrigation, water and sewerage."

The Act of 1931 added the proviso to this section.

§ 54-112. Use of term restricted.—No corporation or association hereinafter organized for doing business for profit in this state shall be entitled to use the term "mutual" as part of its corporate or other business name or title, unless it has complied with the provisions of this subchapter; and any corporation or association violating the provisions of this section may be enjoined from doing business under such name at the instance of any shareholder of any association legally organized under this subchapter. (1915, c. 144, s. 18; 1925, c. 179, s. 1; C. S. 5243.)

§ 54-113. Articles of agreement.—The persons desiring to organize such association shall sign and acknowledge written articles which shall contain the name of the association and the names and residences of the persons forming the same. Such articles shall also contain a statement of the purposes of the association and shall designate the city, town, or village where its principal place of business shall be located. The articles shall also state the amount of authorized capital stock, the number of shares subscribed, and the par value of each. No shareholder in any corporation organized under this subchapter shall be personally liable for any debt of the corporation. (1915, c. 144, s. 2; C. S. 5244.)

§ 54-114. Certificate of incorporation. — The original articles of incorporation of corporations organized under this subchapter, or a true copy thereof, verified as such by the affidavits of two of the signers thereof, shall be filed with the secretary of state. A like verified copy of such articles and certificate of the secretary of state, showing the date when such articles were filed with and accepted by the secretary of state, within thirty days of such filing and acceptance, shall be filed with and recorded by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is to be located, and no corporation shall, until such articles be left for record, have legal existence. The clerk of court shall forthwith transmit to the secretary of state a certificate stating the time when such copy was recorded. Upon a receipt of such certificate, the secretary of state shall issue a certificate of incorporation. (1915, c. 144, s. 3; C. S. 5245.)

§ 54-115. Fees for incorporation. — For filing the articles of incorporation of corporations organized under this subchapter, there shall be paid the secretary of state ten dollars and his fees allowed by law, and for the filing of an amendment to such articles, five dollars and his fees allowed by law: Provided, that when the authorized capital stock of such corporations shall be less than one thousand dollars, such fee for filing either the articles of incorporation or amendments thereto shall be two dollars. For recording copy of such articles, the clerk of court shall receive a fee of fifty cents, to be paid by the person presenting such papers for record. (1915, c. 144, s. 4; C. S. 5246.)

§ 54-116. By-laws adopted. — At the time of making the articles of incorporation the incorporators shall make by-laws which shall provide:

1. The name of the corporation.
2. The purposes for which it is formed.
3. Qualifications for membership.
4. The date of the annual meeting; the manner in which members shall be notified of meetings; the manner of conducting the meetings; the number of members which shall constitute a quorum at the meetings, and regulations as to voting.
5. The number of members of the board of directors; powers and duties; the compensation and duties of officers elected by the board of directors.
6. In the case of selling agencies or productive societies, regulations for grading.
7. In the case of selling agencies or productive societies, regulations governing the sale of products by the members through the organization.
8. The par value of the shares of capital stock.
9. The conditions upon which shares may be issued, paid in, transferred, and withdrawn.
10. The manner in which the reserve fund shall be accumulated.
11. The manner in which the dividends shall be determined and paid to members.
12. Associations, societies, companies or exchanges, organized hereunder to engage in the telephone or electric light business upon a mutual basis, shall adopt a by-law limiting the patrons and subscribers to members of the association. (1915, c. 144, s. 5; 1925, c. 179, s. 4; C. S. 5247.)

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by Public Laws 1925, ch. 179, by adding thereto subsection twelve.

§ 54-117. General corporation law applied; dealing in products of non-members. — All mutual associations shall be maintained in accordance with the general corporation law, except as otherwise provided for in this subchapter. And no corporation or association hereafter organized under this subchapter for doing business in this State shall be permitted to deal in the products of non-members to an amount greater in value than such as are handled by it for members. (1915, c. 144, s. 17; 1925, c. 179, s. 1; 1931, c. 447, s. 2; C. S. 5248.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added the second sentence to this section.

§ 54-118. Other corporations admitted.—All mutual corporations, companies, or associations heretofore organized and doing business under prior statutes, or which have attempted to so organize and do business, shall have the benefit of all of the provisions of this subchapter, and be bound thereby on filing with the secretary of state a written declaration, signed and sworn to by the president and secretary, to the effect that the mutual company or association has by a majority vote of its shareholders decided to accept the benefits of and to be bound by the provisions of this subchapter. No association organized under this subchapter shall be required to do or perform anything not specifically required herein, in order to become a corporation. (1915, c. 144, s. 16; 1925, c. 179, s. 1; C. S. 5249.)

Art. 17. Stockholders and Officers.

§ 54-119. Certificate for stock fully paid. — Certificates of stock shall not be issued to any subscriber until fully paid, but the by-laws of the association may allow subscribers to vote as shareholders: Provided, part of the stock subscribed for has been paid in cash. (1915, c. 144, s. 11; C. S. 5250.)

§ 54-120. Ownership of shares limited. — No shareholder in any such association shall own shares of a greater aggregate par value than twenty per cent of the paid-in capital stock, except as hereinafter provided, or be entitled to more than one vote. A mutual association shall reserve the right of purchasing the stock of any member whose stock is for sale, and may restrict the transfer of stock to such persons as are made eligible to membership in the by-laws. (1915, c. 144, s. 9; 1925, c. 179, s. 1; C. S. 5251.)

§ 54-121. Shares issued on purchase of business. —Whenever an association, created under this subchapter, shall purchase the business of another association or person, it may pay for the same in whole or in part by issuing to the selling association or persons shares of its capital stock to an amount which at par value would equal the fair market value of the business so purchased, and in such case the transfer to the association of such business at such valuation shall be equivalent to payment in cash for the shares of stock so issued. (1915, c. 144, s. 10; C. S. 5252.)

§ 54-122. Absent members voting.—At any regularly called general or special meeting of the shareholders a written vote received by mail from any absent shareholder, and signed by him, may be read in such meeting, and shall be equivalent to a vote of such of the shareholders so signing: Provided, he has been previously notified in writing of the exact motion or resolution upon which such vote is taken, and a copy of same is forwarded with and attached to the vote so mailed by him. In case of sickness or other unavoidable absence of a member, he shall be allowed to vote by proxy in writing; but no member shall vote more than one such proxy. (1915, c. 144, s. 12; C. S. 5253.)

§ 54-123. Directors and other officers. — Every such association shall be managed by a board of not less than five directors. The directors shall be elected by and from the stockholders of the association at such time and for such term of office as the by-laws may prescribe, and shall hold office for time for which elected and until their successors are elected and shall enter upon the discharge of such duties as are prescribed in the by-laws; but a majority of the stockholders shall have the power at any regular or special stockholders' meeting, legally called, to remove any director or officer for cause, and fill the vacancy, and thereupon the director or officer so removed shall cease to be a director or officer of the association. The officers of every such association shall be a president, one or more vice-presidents, a secretary and treasurer, who shall be elected annually by the directors, and each of the officers must be a director of the association. The office of secretary and treasurer may be combined, and when so combined the person filling the office shall be secretary-treasurer. (1915, c. 144, s. 6; C. S. 5254.)

Art. 18. Powers and Duties.

§ 54-124. Nature of business authorized. — An association created under this subchapter shall have power to conduct any agricultural, horticultural, forestry, dairy, mercantile, mining, manufacturing, telephone, electric light, power, storage, refrigeration, flume, irrigation, water, sewerage, or mechanical business, on the mutual plan. (1915, c. 144, s. 8; 1925, c. 179, ss. 1, 3; C. S. 5255.)

§ 54-125. Amendment of articles.—The association may amend its articles of incorporation by a majority vote of its shareholders at any regular shareholders' meeting, or any special shareholders' meeting called for that purpose, on ten days notice to the shareholders. The power to amend shall include the power to increase or diminish the amount of capital stock and the number of shares: Provided, the amount of the capital stock shall not be diminished below the amount of the paid up capital at the time the amendment is adopted. Within thirty days after the adoption of an amendment to its articles of incorporation, an association shall cause a copy of such amendment adopted to be recorded in the office of the secretary of state and of the clerk of court of the county where the principal place of business is located. (1915, c. 144, s. 7; C. S. 5256.)

§ 54-126. Apportionment of earnings. — The directors, subject to revision by the association at any general or special meeting, shall apportion the earnings by first paying dividends on the paid-up capital stock, not exceeding six per cent per annum, then setting aside not less than ten per cent of the net profits for a reserve fund, until an amount has been accumulated in the reserve fund equal to thirty per cent of the paid-up capital stock, and not less than two per cent thereof for an educational fund to be used in teaching coöperation, and the remainder of the net profits by uniform dividend upon the amount of purchases of shareholders and upon the wages and salaries of employees, and one-half of such uniform dividend to nonshareholders on the amount of their purchase, which may be credited to the account of such nonshareholders on account of capital stock of the association; but in selling agencies such as fruit, truck, peanuts, and cotton growers' associations, and in productive associations such as creameries, canneries, warehouses, factories, and the like, dividends shall be prorated on raw materials delivered instead of on goods purchased. In case the association is both a selling and productive concern, or a service and distributing association the dividends may be on both raw material delivered and on goods or service purchased by patrons. (1915, c. 144, s. 13; 1925, c. 179, s. 5; C. S. 5257.)

Editor's Note.—The words, "or a service and distributing association" and "or service," in the last sentence of this section, were added, to the sentence as it formerly stood, by Public Laws 1925, ch. 179.

§ 54-127. Time of distribution. — The profits or net earnings of such associations shall be distributed to those entitled thereto, at such times as the by-laws shall prescribe, which shall be as often as once in twelve months. (1915, c. 144, s. 14; C. S. 5258.)

§ 54-128. Annual reports.—Every association organized under the provisions of this subchapter shall annually, on or before the first day of March of each year, make a report to the secretary of state; such report shall contain the name of the company, its principal place of business in this state, and generally a statement as to its business, showing total amount of business transacted, amount of capital stock subscribed for and paid in, number of shareholders, total expenses of operation, amount of indebtedness or liabilities, and its profits and losses. A copy of such report shall also be filed with the division of markets in the Department of Agriculture. (1915, c. 144, s. 15; C. S. 5259.)

SUBCHAPTER V. MARKETING ASSOCIATIONS.

Art. 19. Purpose and Organization.

§ 54-129. Declaration of policy.—In order to promote, foster, and encourage the intelligent and orderly producing and marketing of agricultural products through coöperation, and to eliminate speculation and waste; and to make the distribution of agricultural products as direct as can be efficiently done between producer and consumer; and to stabilize the marketing problems of agricultural products this subchapter is enacted. (1921, c. 87, s. 1; 1935, c. 230, s. 1; C. S. 5259(a).)

Editor's Note. — An excellent discussion of co-operation marketing will be found in 1 N. C. Law Rev. 216, and a review of the cases in 2 N. C. Law Rev. 222. Volume 27 of the Columbia Law Review pp. 827 et seq. contains an article on the constitutionality of this and the corresponding statutes of other states as being in restraint of trade. The soundness of the North Carolina decisions upholding the statute is questioned.

Public Laws of 1935 inserted the words "producing and."

Validity.—"The Tobacco Growers Co-operative Association Act, this and the following sections of the chapter, was construed and its validity sustained in Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174." Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bissett, 187 N. C. 180, 182, 121 S. E. 446.

Same—Assailed on Ground of Insufficient Signers. — In Pittman v. Tobacco Growers Co-op. Ass'n, 187 N. C. 340, 341, 121 S. E. 634, the Court said that the validity cannot be assailed by alleging an insufficient number of signers. This is a collateral attack and is not a direct attack by the State upon a quo warranto to vitiate the incorporation. Besides, there was no evidence of an insufficient sign-up, and if the plaintiff could bring a collateral attack to vitiate the organization, the burden is upon him to produce evidence to that effect.

Withdrawal of Charter. — It was held in the Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174, that since an association formed under this act had no capital, stock, surplus or credit except as given by the act, the legislature may withdraw its charter at any time and for this reason a monopoly is safely guarded against. For a constructive criticism of this holding, see 27 Columbia Law Rev. 827 et seq.

§ 54-130. Definitions.—As used in this subchapter—

(a) The term "agricultural products" shall include horticultural, viticultural, forestry, dairy, livestock, poultry, bee, and any farm products;

(b) The term "member" shall include actual members of associations without capital stock and holders of stock in associations organized with capital stock;

(c) The term "association" means any corporation organized under this subchapter; and

(d) The term "person" shall include individuals, firms, partnerships, corporations, and associations.

Associations organized hereunder shall be deemed nonprofit, inasmuch as they are not organized to make profits for themselves, as such, or for their members, as such, but only for their members as producers.

This subchapter shall be referred to as the "Coöperative Marketing Act." (1921, c. 87, s. 2; 1935, c. 436, s. 1; C. S. 5259(b).)

Editor's Note.—The 1935 amendment omitted "common" which preceded the word "stock."

§ 54-131. Who may organize. — Five (5) or more persons engaged in the production of agricultural products may form a nonprofit, coöperative association, with or without capital stock, under the provisions of this subchapter. (1921, c. 87, s. 3; C. S. 5259(c).)

§ 54-132. Purposes. — An association may be organized to engage in any activity in connection with the producing, marketing or selling of the agricultural products of its members and other farmers, or with the harvesting, preserving, drying, processing, canning, packing, storing, handling, shipping, or utilization thereof, of the manufacturing or marketing of the by-products thereof; or in connection with the manufacturing, selling, or supplying to its members of machinery, equipment, or supplies; or in the financing of the above enumerated activities; or in any one or more of the activities specified herein. (1921, c. 87, s. 4; 1933, c. 350, s. 2; 1935, c. 230, s. 2; C. S. 5259(d).)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 350, inserted, near the beginning of this section, the words "and other farmers" after the word "members."

The amendment of 1935 inserted the word "producing" preceding the word "marketing."

§ 54-133. Preliminary investigation. — Every group of persons contemplating the organization of an association under this subchapter is urged to communicate with the chief of the division of markets, who will inform it whatever a survey of the marketing conditions affecting the commodities to be handled by the proposed association indicates regarding probable success. (1921, c. 87, s. 5; C. S. 5259(e).)

§ 54-134. Articles of incorporation. — Each association formed under this subchapter must prepare and file articles of incorporation, setting forth:

(a) The name of the association.

(b) The purposes for which it is formed.

(c) The place where its principal business will be transacted.

(d) The term for which it is to exist, not exceeding fifty (50) years.

(e) The names and addresses (not less than five) of those who are to serve as directors for the first term or until the election of their successors.

(f) If organized without capital stock, whether the property rights and interest of each member shall be equal or unequal; and if unequal, the article shall set forth the general rule or rules applicable to all members by which the property rights and interests, respectively, of each member may and shall be determined and fixed; and this association shall have the power to admit new members who shall be entitled to share in the property of the association with the old members, in accordance with such general rule or rules. This provision of the articles of incorporation shall not be altered, amended, or repealed except by the written consent or the vote of three-fourths of the members.

(g) If organized with capital stock, the amount of such stock and the number of such shares into which it is divided and the par value thereof. The capital stock may be divided into preferred and common stock. If so divided, the articles of incorporation must contain a statement of the number of shares of stock to which preference is granted and the number of shares of stock to which no preference is granted and the nature and extent of the preference and the privileges granted to each.

In addition to the foregoing, the petition for articles of incorporation may contain any provision consistent with law with respect to management, regulation, government, financing, indebtedness, membership, the establishment of voting districts and the election of delegates for representative purposes, the issuance, retirement and transfer of its stock, if formed with capital stock, or any provisions relative to the way or manner in which it shall operate with respect to its members, officers, or directors, and any other provisions relating to its affairs; provided that nothing set forth in this paragraph shall be construed as limiting any of the rights or powers otherwise given to such associations.

The articles must be subscribed by the incorporators and acknowledged by one of them before an officer authorized by the law of this state to take and certify acknowledgments of deeds and conveyances; and shall be filed in accordance with the provisions of the general corporation law of this state; and when so filed the said articles of incorporation, or certified copies thereof, shall be received in all the courts of this state, and other places, as prima facie evidence of the facts contained therein, and of the due incorporation of such association. A certified copy of the articles of incorporation shall also be filed with the chief of the division of markets. (1921, c. 87, s. 8; 1935, c. 230, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 5259(f).)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed subsection "(e)" of this section and added the next to the last paragraph in its entirety.

When Agreement Becomes Binding. — The agreement to form an association under this subchapter, becomes binding at once upon its being accepted by the association after incorporation. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

§ 54-135. Amendments to articles of incorporation.—The articles of incorporation may be altered or amended at any regular meeting, or any special meeting called for that purpose. An amendment must first be approved by two-thirds of the directors and then adopted by a vote representing a majority of a quorum of the members attending a meeting of which notice of the proposed amendment shall have been given. Amendments to the articles of incorporation, when so adopted, shall be filed in accordance with the provisions of the general corporation law of this state. (1921, c. 87, s. 9; 1935, c. 230, s. 5; C. S. 5259(g).)

Cross Reference.—As to filing amendments to articles of incorporation generally, see § 55-31.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changes the second sentence to this section. Prior to the amendment the adoption was by a majority of all members rather than by a majority of the quorum of the members attending a meeting.

§ 54-136. By-laws. — Each association incorporated under this subchapter must, within thirty (30) days after its incorporation, adopt for its government and management a code of by-laws, not inconsistent with the powers granted by this subchapter. A majority vote of a quorum of the members or stockholders attending a meeting, of which notice of the proposed by-law or by-laws shall have been given, is sufficient to adopt or amend the by-laws. Each association under its by-laws may also provide for any or all of the following matters:

(a) The time, place, and manner of calling and conducting its meetings.

(b) The number of stockholders or members constituting a quorum.

(c) The right of members or stockholders to vote by proxy or by mail, or by both, and the conditions, manner, form, and effects of such votes.

(d) The number of directors constituting a quorum.

(e) The qualifications, compensations, and duties and terms of office of directors and officers; time of their election, and the mode and manner of giving notice thereof.

(f) Penalties for violations of the by-laws.

(g) The amount of entrance, organization, and membership fees, if any; the manner and method of collection of the same, and the purposes for which they may be used.

(h) The amount which each member or stockholder shall be required to pay annually or from time to time, if at all, to carry on the business of the association, the charge, if any, to be paid by each member or stockholder for services rendered by the association to him, and the time of payment and the manner of collection; and the marketing contract between the association and its members or stockholders which every member or stockholder may be required to sign.

(i) The number and qualification of members or stockholders of the association and the conditions precedent to membership or ownership of common stock; the method, time, and manner of permitting members to withdraw or the holders of common stock to transfer their stock; the manner of assignment and transfer of the interest of members, and of the shares of common stock; the conditions upon which, and the time when membership of any member shall cease; the automatic suspension of the rights of a member when he ceases to be eligible to membership in the association, and mode, manner, and effect of the expulsion of a member; manner of determining the value of a member's interest and provision for its purchase by the association upon the death or withdrawal of a member or stockholder, or upon the expulsion of a member or forfeiture of his membership, or at the option of the association, by conclusive appraisal by the board of directors. In case of the withdrawal or expulsion of a member the board of directors shall equitably and conclusively appraise his property interests in the association, and shall fix the amount thereof in money, which shall be paid to him within one year after such expulsion or withdrawal. (1921, c. 87, s. 10; 1935, c. 230, s. 6; C. S. 5259(h).)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed the second sentence to this section. Prior to the amendment the majority vote of all members was required instead of a majority vote of a quorum of stockholders attending a meeting.

§ 54-137. General and special meetings; how called.—In its by-laws each association shall provide for one or more regular meetings annually. The board of directors shall have the right to call a special meeting at any time, and ten per cent of the members or stockholders may file a petition stating the specific business to be brought before the association, and demand a special meeting at any time. Such meeting must thereupon be called by the directors. Notice of all meetings, together with a statement of the purposes thereof, shall be mailed to each member at least ten days prior to the meeting: Provided, however, that the by-laws may require instead that such notice may be given by publication in a newspaper of general circulation, published at the principal place of business of the association. (1921, c. 87, s. 11; C. S. 5259(i).)

§ 54-138. Conflicting laws not to apply.—Any provisions of law which are in conflict with this subchapter shall not be construed as applying to the associations herein provided for. (1921, c. 87, s. 20; C. S. 5259(j).)

§ 54-139. Limitation of use of term "coöperative".—No person, firm, or corporation, or association hereafter organized or doing business in this state shall be entitled to use the word "coöperative" as part of its corporate or other business name or title unless it has complied with the provisions of this subchapter. (1921, c. 87, s. 21; C. S. 5259(k).)

§ 54-140. Association heretofore organized may adopt the provisions of this subchapter.—Any corporation or association organized under previously existing statutes may, by a majority vote of its stockholders or members, be brought under the provisions of this subchapter by limiting its membership and adopting the other restrictions as provided herein. It shall make out in duplicate a statement signed and sworn to by its directors, upon forms supplied by the secretary of state, to the effect that the corporation or association has by a majority vote of its stockholders or members decided to accept the benefits and be bound by the provisions of this subchapter. Articles of incorporation shall be filed as required in § 54-134, except that they shall be signed by the members of the board of directors. The filing fee shall be the same as for filing an amendment to articles of incorporation. (1921, c. 87, s. 24; C. S. 5259(l).)

Cross Reference.—As to fees for filing an amendment to articles of incorporation, see § 54-144.

§ 54-141. Associations not in restraint of trade.—No association organized hereunder shall be deemed to be a combination in restraint of trade or an illegal monopoly; or an attempt to lessen competition or fix prices arbitrarily, nor shall the marketing contracts or agreements between the association and its members, or any agreements authorized in this subchapter be considered illegal or in restraint of trade. (1921, c. 87, s. 26; C. S. 5259(m).)

Purpose and Effect of Act.—This chapter, is an enabling act whereby an organization among tobacco growers may be formed by the voluntary act of those joining therein for handling the product of its members, to enable them to obtain a fair price therefor without profit to the organization itself, in opposition to any agreement among the manufacturers or others that may have a contrary effect, and under conditions that will keep the public informed of its methods, and control them under governmental supervision when they go beyond a protective policy or become monopolistic in effect; and the statute, and the organization formed in pursuance thereof, are not objectionable as being in restraint of interstate commerce, or contrary to the law against monopolies or the public policy or Constitution of this State. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

Presumption in Favor of Validity.—The legal presumption is in favor of the validity of the marketing contract made by a member with the coöperative association, in an action by the latter against the former for its breach, which presumption will only yield when its illegal character plainly appears; and in this case there is nothing appearing that would indicate the association proposed to sell the member's tobacco for a greater sum than its true or actual value, or that it was acting in violation of the Anti-trust Law, or in restraint of trade. Tobacco Growers Co-op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

Governmental Control as Affecting.—The governmental control to be exercised as herein prescribed renders the coöperative plan for the protection of its own members incapable of exercise to the extent of a monopoly or restraint of trade prohibited by law. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

§ 54-142. Application of general corporation laws.—The provisions of the general corporation laws of this state, and all powers and rights thereunder, shall apply to the associations organized hereunder, except where such provisions are in conflict with or inconsistent with the express provisions of this subchapter. (1921, c. 87, s. 28; C. S. 5259(o).)

Effect of Period Limiting Existence.—The provisions in the charter that an association under the provision of the coöperative marketing acts exists for five years, is the same as applies to a period limited for the existence of other corporations formed under other legislative acts, and does not contemplate that the association hold over the crops raised in one year for one or more successive years, such being destructive of the purposes of the association as contemplated by the statute. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

§ 54-143. Annual license fees.—Each association organized hereunder shall pay an annual license fee of ten dollars ($10), but shall be exempted from all franchise or license taxes. (1921, c. 87, s. 29; C. S. 5259(p).)

Cross Reference.—As to listing property for taxes, see § 105-316.

§ 54-144. Filing fees.—For filing articles of incorporation, an association organized hereunder shall pay ten dollars ($10); and for filing an amendment to the articles, two dollars and one-half ($2.50). (1921, c. 87, s. 30; C. S. 5259(q).)

Art. 20. Members and Officers.

§ 54-145. Members.—(a) Under the terms and conditions prescribed in its by-laws, an association may admit as members, or issue common stock, only to persons engaged in the production of the agricultural products to be handled by or through the association, including the lessees and tenants of land used for the production of such products and any lessors and landlords who receive as rent part of the crop raised on the leased premises.

(b) If a member of a nonstock association be other than a natural person, such member may be represented by any individual, associate, officer, or member thereof, duly authorized in writing.

(c) One association organized hereunder may become a member or stockholder of any other association or associations, organized hereunder. (1921, c. 87, s. 7; C. S. 5259(r).)

§ 54-146. Directors; election.—(a) The affairs of the association shall be managed by a board of not less than five directors, elected by the members or stockholders from their own number. The by-laws may provide that the territory in which the association has members shall be divided into districts, and that the directors shall be elected according to such districts. In such case the by-laws shall specify the number of directors to be elected by each district, the manner and method of reapportioning the directors and of redistricting the territory covered by the association. The by-laws may provide that primary elections should be held in each district to elect the directors apportioned to such districts, and the result of all such primary elections must be ratified by the next regular meeting of the association.

(b) The by-laws shall provide that one or more directors shall be appointed by the director of agricultural extension or any other public official or commission. The directors so appointed need not be members or stockholders of the association, but shall have the same powers and rights as other directors.

(c) An association may provide a fair remuneration for the time actually spent by its officers and directors in its service. No director, during the term of his office, shall be a party to a contract for profit with the association differing in any way from the business relations accorded regular members or holders of common stock of the association, or to any other kind of contract differing from terms generally current in that district.

(d) When a vacancy on the board of directors occurs, other than by expiration of term, the remaining members of the board, by a majority vote, shall fill the vacancy, unless the by-laws provide for an election of directors by districts. In such case the board of directors shall immediately call a special meeting of the members or stockholders in that district to fill the vacancy: Provided, that this subsection shall not apply to the director or directors appointed under the provisions of subsection (b) of this section: Provided further, that any vacancy occurring in the office of a director appointed under subsection (b) of this section shall be filled in the same manner as the original appointment was made. (1921, c. 87, s. 12; C. S. 5259(s).)

§ 54-147. Election of officers.—The directors shall elect from their number a president and one or more vice presidents. They shall also elect a secretary and treasurer, who need not be directors, and they may combine the two latter offices and designate the combined office as secretary-treasurer. The treasurer may be a bank or any depository, and as such shall not be considered an officer, but as a function of the board of directors. In such case the secretary shall perform the usual accounting duties of the treasurer, excepting that the funds shall be deposited only as authorized by the board of directors. (1921, c. 87, s. 13; C. S. 5259(t).)

§ 54-148. Stock; membership certificates; when issued; voting; liability; limitation on transfer of ownership.—

(a) When a member of an association established without capital stock has paid his membership fee in full, he shall receive a certificate of membership.

(b) No association shall issue stock to a member until it has been fully paid for. The promissory notes of the members may be accepted by the association as full or partial payment. The association shall hold the stock as security for the payment of the note, but such retention as security shall not affect the members' right to vote.

(c) Except for debts lawfully contracted between him and the association, no member shall be liable for the debts of the association to an amount exceeding the sum remaining unpaid on his membership fee or his subscription to the capital stock, including any unpaid balance on any promissory notes given in payment thereof.

(d) A coöperative association, incorporated under this subchapter, may fix or limit in its by-laws the amount of stock which one member might own in said association.

(e) No member or stockholder shall be entitled to more than one vote.

(f) Any association organized with stock under this subchapter may issue preferred stock, with or without the right to vote. Such stock may be redeemable or retirable by the association on such terms and conditions as may be provided for by the articles of incorporation and printed on the face of the certificate.

(g) The by-laws shall prohibit the transfer of the common stock of the association to persons not engaged in the production of the agricultural products handled by the association, and such restrictions must be printed upon every certificate of stock subject thereto.

(h) The association may at any time, except when the debts of the association exceed fifty per cent (50%) of the assets thereof, buy in or purchase its common stock at book value thereof as conclusively determined by the board of directors, and pay for it in cash within one (1) year thereafter. (1921, c. 87, s. 14; 1935, c. 436, s. 2; C. S. 5259(u).)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1935 changed subsection (d) of this section. Prior to the amendment no stockholder could own more than one-twentieth of the common stock and the association could in its by-laws limit the amount to less than one-twentieth.

§ 54-149. Removal of officer or director.—Any member may bring charges against an officer or director by filing them in writing with the secretary of the association, together with a petition signed by ten per cent of the members, requesting the removal of the officer or director in question. The removal shall be voted upon at the next regular or special meeting of the association, and by a vote of a majority of the members, the association may remove the officer or director and fill the vacancy. The director or officer against whom such charges have been brought shall be informed in writing of the charges previous to the meeting, and shall have an opportunity at the meeting to be heard in person or by counsel, and to present witnesses; and the person or persons bringing the charges against him shall have the same opportunity.

In case the by-laws provide for election of directors by districts, with primary elections in each district, then the petition for removal of a director must be signed by twenty per cent of the members residing in the district from which he was elected. The board of directors must call a special meeting of the members residing in that district to consider the removal of the director. By a vote of the majority of that district, the director in question shall be removed from office: Provided, that this section shall not apply to directors appointed under subsection (b) of § 54-146. (1921, c. 87, s. 15; C. S. 5259(v).)

§ 54-150. Referendum.—Upon demand of one-third of the entire board of directors, any matter that has been approved or passed by the board must be referred to the entire membership of the stockholders for decision at the next special or regular meeting: Provided, however, that a special meeting may be called for the purpose. (1921, c. 87, s. 16; C. S. 5259(w).)

Art. 21. Powers, Duties, and Liabilities.

§ 54-151. Powers. — Each association incorporated under this subchapter shall have the following powers:

(a) To engage in any activity in connection with the producing, marketing, selling, harvesting, preserving, drying, processing, canning, packing, storing, handling, or utilization of any agricultural products produced or delivered to it by its members and other farmers; or the manufacturing or marketing of the by-products thereof; or in connection with the purchase, hiring, or use by its members of supplies, machinery, or equipment; or in the financing of any such activities; or in any one or more of the activities specified in this section. No such association, during any fiscal year thereof, shall deal in or handle products, machinery, equipment, supplies, and/or perform services for and on behalf of non-members to an amount greater in value than such as are dealt in, handled, and/or performed by it for and on behalf of members during the same period.

(b) To borrow money and to make advances to members and other farmers who deliver agricultural products to the association.

(c) To act as the agent or representative of any member or members in any of the above mentioned activities.

(d) To purchase or otherwise acquire, and to hold, own, and exercise all rights or ownership in, and to sell, transfer, or pledge shares of the capital stock or bonds of any corporation or association engaged in any related activity or in the handling or marketing of any of the products handled by the association, or engaged in the financing of the association.

(e) To establish reserves and to invest the funds thereof in bonds or such other property as may be provided in the by-laws.

(f) To buy, hold, and exercise all privileges of ownership, over such real or personal property as may be necessary or convenient for the conducting and operation of any of the business of the association, or incidental thereto.

(g) To do each and everything necessary, suitable, or proper for the accomplishment of any one of the purposes or the attainment of any one or more of the objects herein enumerated; or conducive to or expedient for the interest or benefit of the association; and to contract accordingly; and in addition, to exercise and possess all powers, rights, and privileges necessary or incidental to the purposes for which the association is organized or to the activities in which it is engaged; and in addition, any other rights and powers, and privileges granted by the laws of this state to ordinary corporations, except such as are inconsistent with the express provisions of this subchapter; and to do any such thing anywhere. (1921, c. 87, s. 6; 1933, c. 350, ss. 3, 4; 1935, c. 230, ss. 7-9; C. S. 5259(x).)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 350, made this section applicable to a certain extent to other farmers not members. Prior to the amendment the association could not handle the agricultural products of a non-member. See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 212, for review of this section as amended 1933.

Near the beginning of subsection (a) the amendment of 1935 inserted the word "producing." The amendment also changed the last sentence of that subsection and added the last clause of subsection (d).

Formation of Subsidiary Companies.—Objection to the validity of the Coöperative Marketing Act that an organization of tobacco growers thereunder has formed subsidiary or minor companies to cure tobacco, redry it, and store it, prize it, and get it ready for market, is without merit, the money for such purpose being very small, specifically limited and under a complete system for its return to its members who have contributed it, it being necessary for the association to own or control enough of the facilities to make effective the authorized purpose of its organization. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

§ 54-152. Marketing contract.—(a) The association and its members may make and execute marketing contracts, requiring the members to sell, for any period of time, not over ten years, all or any specified part of their agricultural products or specified commodities exclusively to or through the association or any facilities to be created by the association. The contract may provide that the association may sell or resell the products of its members, with or without taking title thereto, and pay over to its members the resale price, after deducting all necessary selling, overhead, and other costs and expenses, including interest on preferred stock, not exceeding eight per cent per annum, and reserve for retiring the stock, if any; and other proper reserves; and interest not exceeding eight per cent per annum upon common stock.

(b) The by-laws and the marketing contract may fix, as liquidated damages, specific sums to be paid by the member or stockholder to the association upon the breach by him of any provision of the marketing contract regarding the sale or delivery or withholding of products; and may further provide that the member will pay all costs, premiums for bonds, expenses and fees in case any action is brought upon the contract by the association; and any such provisions shall be valid and enforceable in the courts of this state.

(c) In the event of any such breach or threatened breach of such marketing contract by a member, the association shall be entitled to an injunction to prevent the further breach of the contract, and to a decree of specific performance thereof. Pending the adjudication of such an action, and upon filing a verified complaint showing the breach or threatened breach, and upon filing a sufficient bond, the association shall be entitled to a temporary restraining order and preliminary injunction against the member. (1921, c. 87, s. 17; C. S. 5259(y).)

Validity of Standard Contract. — The provisions of the standard contract made by the Tobacco Co-operative Marketing Association with its members are valid under a constitutional statute, and upon the alleged breach thereof on the part of the member in its material parts, the equitable remedy by injunction is available to the association. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 121 S. E. 631.

A co-operative association formed under the provisions of this act. whereby its members agree to sell and deliver to it all of the tobacco owned and produced by or for him or acquired by him as landlord or tenant, being, among other things, for the purpose of steadying the market and enabling the member to obtain a proper price for his tobacco and compensate him for his labor, skill, etc., exists by virtue of a constitutional statute, and the provisions of its standard contract with its members are valid and enforceable. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Battle, 187 N. C. 260, 121 S. E. 629.

Remedies for Breach by Member.—Upon the breach by a member of a contract for the sole handling of his crop the recovery of liquidated damages and all cost of the action, including premiums for bonds, expenses, and fees, and equitable relief by injunction to prevent the further breach of the contract by a member, and a decree of specific performance, can be had, and also pending the adjudication of such actions, a temporary restraining order against the member upon the filing of a verified complaint showing the breach of the contract, with the filing of sufficient bond. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Jones, 185 N. C. 265, 117 S. E. 174.

Same—Liquidated Damages.—The fact that the co-operative marketing contract provides for liquidated damages does not give the association an adequate remedy at law for its members otherwise selling their tobacco as provided in the marketing contract, as such would seriously menace the existence of the association for the purpose for which it was incorporated under the provisions of the statute. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Pollock, 187 N. C. 409, 121 S. E. 763.

Same—Specific Performance.—Injuries from the breach of contract by a member with the Co-operative Tobacco Marketing Association, formed under the provisions of chapter 87, Public Laws of 1921, to market his tobacco, etc., cannot be adequately compensated for in damages, and the equitable remedy of specific performance as allowed by the statute will be upheld by the courts. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Battle, 187 N. C. 260, 121 S. E. 629.

Same—Extent of Injunctive Relief.—Upon an alleged breach on the part of the member the equitable remedy by injunction is available to the association. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 121 S. E. 631.

Where the defendant resists injuctive relief upon the ground that he had not become a member, and the plaintiff's evidence tends strongly to show to the contrary, it was held that the injunction should be continued to the hearing upon the principle that the plaintiff has established an apparent right to the relief sought, and that the writ is reasonably necessary to protect the property pending the inquiry. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Battle, 187 N. C. 260, 121 S. E. 629; Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Spikes, 187 N. C. 367, 121 S. E. 636.

The temporary restraining order obtained under the provisions of the statute will not be continued if the breach of the contract complained of was caused by the plaintiff's own default, or if the continuance of the temporary restaining order will work greater injury than its dissolution by the court. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bland, 187 N. C. 356, 121 S. E. 636.

The fact that the member gave a lien on his crop for advancements does not invade the rights of the association under the contract such that an injunction against selling the crops should be continued until the final hearing. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Harvey & Son Co., 189 N. C. 494, 127 S. E. 545.

The general denial by the association of owing the defendant anything under the contract, without detailed statement as to the account between them from information available to it, was insufficient against the defense that the defendant was forced to sell a small portion of crop to maintain his livelihood because of a failure of the association to pay for bulk of crop under contract; and an order of the Superior Court judge dissolving the restraining order upon defendant's giving a proper bond for plaintiff's protection was proper under the evidence in this case. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bland, 187 N. C. 356, 121 S. E. 636.

Same—Justification for Breach. — A penalty in a small sum erroneously attempted to be imposed on a member by the tobacco marketing association, under its contract for the failure to market the tobacco of his non-member tenant, is not of sufficient proportionate importance to justify an entire severance of the contract relation by the member thereof. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bland, 187 N. C. 356, 121 S. E. 636.

Same—Same—Shown by Parol.—Where a member of a co-operative marketing association, formed under the statute, resists the performance of marketing his tobacco with the association under the usual and written contract, he may show by parol that he had never been a member thereof or obligated by the contract sued on, for the failure of the association to obtain a certain membership within the territory. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Moss, 187 N. C. 421, 121 S. E. 738.

Right of Court to Continue Injunction to Final Hearing.—The right given to injunctive relief against a member breaching his contract, upon filing the bond and verified complaint showing such breach, or threatened breach, relates only to the initial process and does not, and is not, intended to withdraw from the courts their constitutional right to pass upon the question of continuing the injunction to the final hearing upon the issues, under approved principles of law and equity. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bland, 187 N. C. 356, 121 S. E. 639.

Where the defendant has admitted breaking his contract and he expects to continue doing so, a temporary injunction should be continued until the final hearing. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 256, 121 S. E. 631.

Right of Member to Mortgage Crop.—In Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 256, 121 S. E. 631, it was said: "It is true that a member may place a mortgage or crop lien on his crop for the current year for the purpose of enabling him to successfully cultivate and produce the same, the contract between plaintiffs and defendant clearly contemplates such a mortgage, and good policy requires that such a privilege should never be withdrawn."

The mortgagee or lien holder for supplies furnished to produce the crop has a right to demand and receive of defendant, or to enforce delivery by any appropriate procedure, of a sufficient amount of the tobacco or other property included in his mortgage, to satisfy his claims to the extent that the same constitute a valid lien superior to the rights and interests of plaintiff under its contract. If such a lien and the amount and extent of it cannot be agreed upon and adjusted it would seem that the lien claimant should become or be made a party of record, that authoritative and final disposition should be made of the matter. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 256, 121 S. E. 631.

Effect of Mortgage upon Injunction.—A preliminary order restraining a member of the co-operative association from disposing of the tobacco embraced in the contract in breach thereof will not be dissolved by reason of a defense set up by its member that the tobacco was the subject of a lien for supplies necessary for its cultivation. The restraining order should be continued to the hearing, safeguarding the rights of the mortgagee to be asserted by his appropriate action. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 121 S. E. 631.

Evasive Answer Respecting Breach.—In proceedings for injunctive relief by a co-operative marketing association wherein the plaintiff definitely alleges that the defendant had breached his contract and declares his purpose to dispose of his tobacco in breach thereof, the defendant's answer not admitting the allegations, but demanding strict proof, is too evasive or illusive to be a denial of plaintiff's allegation, or received as sufficient evidence upon the question of the injunctive relief. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Patterson, 187 N. C. 252, 121 S. E. 631.

Liability of Landlord for Non-Member Tenant.—The landlord is not liable for a penalty on account of failure of tenant to market tobacco through the association until and unless he receives the tenant's crop as payment for rent, etc. He is then liable for as much as is received. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Bissett, 187 N. C. 180, 121 S. E. 446.

Evasion of Contract for Fraud.—In order to avoid a written contract, which was made under this section, for fraud for misrepresentations of a party or his authorized agent, it must not only be shown that the statements complained of were false, but among other things that the party was at the time ignorant of their falsity, and was induced thereby to his damage, and he must show facts sufficient to make out a case of fraud with all the material elements required in such instances. Simpson v. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n, 190 N C. 603, 130 S. E. 507.

In order to render void for fraud in its procurement a tobacco marketing contract made in conformity with the provisions of our statute, it is required that the member seeking to do so must introduce evidence of the fraud he relies on, as well as allege it. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n v. Chilton, 190 N. C. 602, 130 S. E. 312; Simpson v. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n, 190 N. C. 603, 130 S. E. 507.

Where one as agent for the Association falsely represents to a prospective member certain material advantages that induce him to sign the membership contract, without affording him, an illiterate man, an opportunity to become informed as to its contents, and he, within a reasonable time afterwards, is informed of this misrepresentation, and requests the agent to take his name off the books as a member and cancel the contract, the agent and the one to whom the false representations were made were not upon an equality as to the facts, and the law will avoid the contract for the fraud. The cases in which the representations were only promissory in character, not amounting to a factual representation, do not apply. Dunbar v. Tobacco Growers Co-Op. Ass'n, 190 N. C. 680, 130 S. E. 505.

§ 54-153. Purchasing business of other associations, persons, firms, or corporations; payment; stock issued.—Whenever an association organized hereunder with preferred capital stock, shall purchase the stock or any property, or any interest in any property of any person, firm, or corporation or association, it may by agreement with the other party or parties to the transaction discharge the obligations so incurred, wholly or in part, by exchanging for the acquired interest shares of its preferred capital stock to an amount which at par value would equal a fair market value of the stock or interest so purchased, as determined by the board of directors. In that case the transfer to the association of the stock or interest purchased shall be equivalent to payment in cash for shares of stock issued. (1921, c. 87, s. 18; C. S. 5259(z).)

§ 54-154. Annual reports.—Each association formed under this subchapter shall prepare and make out an annual report on forms furnished by the division of markets, containing the name of the association, its principal place of business, and a general statement of its business operations during the fiscal year, showing the amount of capital stock paid up, and the number of stockholders of a stock association or the number of members and the amount of membership fees received, if a nonstock association; the total expenses of the operations; the amount of its indebtedness, or liability, and its balance sheets. (1921, c. 87, s. 19; C. S. 5259(aa).)

§ 54-155. Interest in other corporations or associations. — An association may organize, form, operate, own, control, have interest in, own stock of, or be a member of any other corporation or corporations, with or without capital stock, and engaged in preserving, drying, processing, canning, packing, storing, handling, shipping, utilizing, manufacturing, marketing, or selling of the agricultural products handled by the association, or the by-products thereof. If such corporations are warehousing corporations, they may issue legal warehouse receipts to the association, or to any other person, and such legal warehouse receipts shall be considered as adequate collateral to the extent of the current value of the commodity represented thereby. In case such warehouse is licensed or licensed and bonded under the laws of this state or the United States, its warehouse receipt shall not be challenged or discriminated against because of ownership or control, wholly or in part, by the association. (1921, c. 87, s. 22; C. S. 5259(bb).)

§ 54-156. Contracts and agreements with other associations.—Any association may, upon resolution adopted by its board of directors, enter into all necessary and proper contracts and agreements, and make all necessary and proper stipulations, agreements and contracts and arrangements with any other coöperative corporation, association, or associations, formed in this or in any other state, for the coöperative and more economical carrying on of its business, or any part or parts thereof. Any two or more associations may by agreement between them, unite in employing and using or may separately employ and use the same methods, means, and agencies for carrying on and conducting their respective businesses. (1921, c. 87, s. 23; C. S. 5259(cc).)

§ 54-157. Breach of marketing contract of coöperative association; spreading false reports about the finances or management thereof; misdemeanor.—Any person or persons, or any corporation whose officers or employees knowingly induces or attempts to induce any member or stockholder of an association organized hereunder to breach his marketing contract with the association, or who maliciously and knowingly spreads false reports about the finances or management thereof shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars ($100), and not more than one thousand dollars ($1,000), for such offense and shall be liable to the association aggrieved in a civil suit in the penal sum of five hundred dollars ($500) for each such offense: Provided, that this section shall not apply to a bona fide creditor of any member or stockholder of such association, or the agents or attorney of any such bona fide creditor, endeavoring to make collection of the indebtedness. (1921, c. 87, s. 25; C. S. 5259(dd).)

§ 54-158. Coöperative associations may form subsidiaries.—Nothing in this subchapter shall prevent an association organizing, forming, operating, owning, controlling, having an interest in, owning stock of, or being a member of any other corporation (hereinafter referred to as a subsidiary corporation) from including or having included in the charter or by-laws of such subsidiary corporation provisions for the control or management of said subsidiary corporation by such association to such extent as shall by votes of the board of directors of such association, and the majority of the stockholders of such subsidiary corporation, be declared to be for the best interests of said association and said subsidiary corporation respectively. Such provisions may be so included in any such charter or by-laws and may by way of illustration, but not of limitation, include the following:

1. Representation of said association on the board of directors or other governing body of said subsidiary corporation, upon such terms as may be deemed advisable.

2. Ownership by an association of an interest or interests in a subsidiary corporation represented by stock of any class thereof, or otherwise, to such extent and upon such terms, and with such voting power, as may be deemed advisable.

3. Participation by said association in the profits of such subsidiary corporation to such extent and upon such terms as shall be deemed advisable. (1933, c. 350, s. 1.)

Chapter 55. Corporations.

Art. 1. Definitions.

§ 55-1. Definitions.—The following words and phrases where used in this chapter, unless differently defined or described, have the meanings and references stated below:

1. "Corporation" refers to a corporation which may be created and organized under this chapter, or under any other general or any special act.

2. "Certificate of incorporation" is the instrument filed by the incorporators and by which the corporation is formed.

3. The words "special act" refer to the act of the legislature enacted for the purpose of creating the corporation.

4. The word "charter" means either "certificate of incorporation" or "special act," together with all appropriate parts of this chapter and its amendments.

5. "Court," "superior court," or "judge of the superior court" means the judge of the superior court resident in the district or holding the courts of the district in which the corporation affected has its principal place of business.

6. "Receiver" as used in this chapter includes receivers and trustees appointed by the court, as herein provided. (Rev., ss. 1136, 1222, 1247; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 7, 74, 111; C. S. 1113.)

Cross References.—As to constitutional provisions regarding corporations, see N. C. Constitution, Article VIII. As to the requirements of the certificate of incorporation, see § 55-3. As to jurisdiction of superior courts upon dissolution of a corporation, see § 55-134. As to receivers of corporations, see § 55-147 et seq.

In General.—A corporation, though very hard to define, has been said to be "an artifical being, invisible, intangible, and existing only in contemplation of law. Being the mere creature of law, it possesses only those properties which the charter of its creation confers upon it, either expressly or as incidental to its very existence. See the famous case of Dartmouth College v. Woodward, 4 Wheat, 518, 636, 4 L. Ed. 629.

It has been described as an "association of persons," contracting a joint capital for a common purpose, with assignability of shares in perpetual succession, and is a mere creature of the legislature. Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 312, 12 S. Ct. 403, 36 L. Ed. 164.

Private, Public and Quasi Public Corporations.—Corporations are private, where the property of the corporation is private, although the corporation is engaged in a quasi public business, such as a railroad corporation, and the fact that the state owns a portion of its stock does not change its character; public and quasi public corporations, are corporations exercising a public employment, and having duties to the public to perform. Railroad Co. v. Commissioners, 103 U. S. 1, 26 L. Ed. 359; Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 50, 11 S. Ct. 478, 35 L. Ed. 55.

A Charter Defined.—A charter, is an instrument or authority from the sovereign power, bestowing rights or privileges; as it is briefly expressed, it is an act of incorporation, and an amendment thereto may be treated as part thereof. Humphrey v. Pegues, 16 Wall. 244, 21 L. Ed. 326.

Art. 2. Formation.

§ 55-2. How created.—Three or more persons who desire to engage in any business, or to form any company, society, or association, not unlawful, except railroads other than street railways, or banking or insurance, or building and loan associations, may be incorporated in the following manner only (except corporations created for charitable, educational or reformatory purposes that are to be and remain under the patronage and control of the state): Such persons shall, by a certificate of incorporation, under their hands and seals, set forth—

Strict Construction. — The requirements of this section should be strictly construed. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 180, 18 S. E. 107.

Position of Corporators and Promoters. — The promoters of a corporation are held to the duties of trustees and the obligation of directors. They may not take a secret or undisclosed profit in the organization by way of shares therein or otherwise. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 93 S. E. 906.

When Powers Granted by Special Act.—When corporate powers are granted by a special, instead of a general act of the Legislature, there must be evidence of acceptance by the corporators and compliance with all the conditions precedent prescribed by law, in order to show affirmatively that the corporation is lawfully organized. Powell Brothers v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 55, 68 S. E. 926.

1. The name of the corporation. No name can be assumed which is already in use by (a) a domestic corporation, or (b) a foreign corporation authorized to do business under the laws of this State, or (c) a corporation which has heretofore or may hereafter sell its good will to any other person, firm or corporation, and notice thereof has been or may hereafter be filed in the office of the Secretary of State of North Carolina, and the filing fee of twenty-five dollars paid to the said Secretary of State: Provided, however, that the purchaser of the good will of such corporation, or his or its assigns, may be permitted to use the same name, or one similar thereto, of the corporation whose good will it has purchased. The prohibition of this paragraph shall extend to names so nearly resembling or deceptively similar to such existing corporate names as may be likely to mislead or deceive the public or tend to confusion of identity. The name adopted must end with the word "company," "corporation," "incorporated" or the abbreviation "inc.," and will not be accepted for filing unless approved by the secretary of state.

Cross References.—As to necessity of displaying the name of the corporation, see § 55-37. As to the use of the word "trust" in a name, see §§ 53-127 and 55-12. As to use of the term "building and loan association" in a name, see § 54-1. As to the use of "land and loan association," see § 54-45. As to use of the term "credit union," see § 54-80. As to restriction of use of term "mutual" as part of a corporate name, see § 54-112. As to limitation of use of term "co-operative," see § 54-139.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1935 amendment this subdivision read as follows: "No name can be assumed already in use by another domestic corporation, or so similar as to cause uncertainty or confusion, and the name adopted must end with the word 'company,' 'corporation' or 'incorporated.'"

The 1939 amendment added the requirement as to approval by secretary of state, and substituted the part of the third sentence after the word "so" for the words "similar in sound or appearance to such existing corporate names as may tend to confusion of identity."

Right to Name.—One corporation cannot prevent another from using in its corporate title a name to which others have a common right. Howe Scale Co. v. Wyckoff, 198 U. S. 118, 25 S. Ct. 609, 47 L. Ed. 972.

And in the absence of contract, fraud or estoppel, any man may use his own name, in all legitimate ways, and as the whole or a part of a corporate name. Id.

2. The location of its principal office in the state.

Cross Reference.—As to change in principal office, see § 55-34.

3. The object or objects for which the corporation is to be formed.

Corporation Limited to Objects Stated.—A charter of incorporation creating a company for the purpose of effecting a communication by a plank-road between designated points, with the privilege of taking tolls, does not authorize the company to establish a stage line upon their road, nor to contract for carrying the United States mail. Wiswall v. Greenville Plank-Road Co., 56 N. C. 183.

Need Not Use All Powers.—The fact that a corporation avails itself of only one of several privileges granted by its charter—that is, manufacture all the products it is permitted to manufacture—does not invalidate the act of incorporation. Wadesboro Cotton Mills Co. v. Burns, 114 N. C. 353, 19 S. E. 238.

4. The amount of the total authorized capital stock, the number of shares into which it is divided, the par value of each share, the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business, and, if there is more than one class of stock, a description of the different classes. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to religious, charitable, nonprofit social or literary corporations, unless they desire to have a capital stock. If they desire to have no capital stock, that fact and the conditions of membership shall be stated.

Cross Reference.—As to making provision for future exchange of par value stock for non-par value stock, see § 55-80.

Editor's Note.—The Legislature has recently made two changes in this paragraph of the section. The first sentence formerly contained the additional clause "with the terms on which the respective classes of stock are created." This concluding clause was stricken out by ch. 55, Ex. Sess. 1920.

By ch. 98, Laws of 1924 the second sentence in the paragraph was amended by inserting the words "non-profit social" immediately after the word "charitable," thus adding to the list of corporations to which the paragraph does not apply.

5. The names and postoffice addresses of the subscribers for stock and the number of shares subscribed for by each; the aggregate of the subscriptions shall be the amount of capital with which the corporation will commence business. If there is to be no capital stock, the certificate must contain the names and postoffice addresses of the incorporators.

Editor's Note.—Formerly it was not required that the number of shares taken by each subscriber be set out in the certificate of incorporation. In Cotton Mills v. Cotton Mills. 115 N. C. 475, 478, 20 S. E. 770, the court says that although this was not at that time required it is the usual practice to set them out and should have been required by statute.

6. The period, if any, limited for the duration of the corporation.

Cross Reference.—As to period of existence if no limit given, see § 55-26, subsection 1.

Limit of Corporate Existence.—It is unquestionably true that a corporation, whose term of existence is fixed and limited in the act which creates it, cannot endure beyond the prescribed time, unless prolonged by the same authority or continued for the purpose of adjusting and closing its business, and no judicial proceedings are required to terminate it. The expiration of the time ends the life given to the artificial body, as death terminates the life of the natural person. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579, 585.

Exhaustion.—When a charter power is once exhausted it is, in respect to further contracts and rights, as though it had never been granted. East Tennessee, etc., R. Co. v. Frazier, 139 U. S. 288, 292, 11 S. Ct. 517, 35 L. Ed. 196.

7. The certificate of incorporation may also contain any provision, consistent with the laws of this state, for the regulation of the affairs of the corporation, or creating, defining, limiting and regulating its powers, directors and stockholders, or any class or classes of the latter. (Rev., s. 1137; Code, s. 677; 1885, cc. 19, 190; 1889, c. 170; 1891, c. 257; 1893, cc. 244, 318; 1897, c. 204; 1899, c. 618; 1901, c. 2, s. 8, cc. 6, 41, 47; 1903, c. 453; 1911, c. 213, s. 1; 1913, c. 5, s. 1; Const., Art. 8, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 55; 1924, c 98; 1935, cc. 166, 320; 1939, c. 222; C. S. 1114.)

Cross References.—As to the constitutional power of the legislature to form corporations, see N. C. Constitution, Article VIII, § 1. As to legislature's power to amend this chapter and charters of corporations, see § 55-36. As to the requirements for incorporating banks, see § 53-2 et seq. As to the establishment of railroads, see § 60-9 et seq. As to creating insurance companies, see § 58-73. As to incorporating building and loan associations, see § 54-2; land and loan associations, see § 54-46; credit unions, see § 54-76 et seq.; co-operative associations, see § 54-111 et seq.; marketing associations, see § 54-131 et seq.; hospital service corporations, see § 57-2.

Under Dual Incorporation.—Where a corporation is incorporated under the laws of two states, all its powers in relation to land lying in one of them must be derived from the law of that state alone. Beaty v. Knowler, 4 Pet. 152, 167, 7 L. Ed. 813.

Liabilities. — A corporation cannot absolve itself from the performance of its obligations, without the consent of the legislature, and courts will not allow corporations to escape from their proper responsibilities by means of any disguise. New York, etc., R. Co. v. Winans, 17 How. 30, 40, 15 L. Ed. 27.

§ 55-3. Requirements as to certificate of incorporation.—The certificate of incorporation shall be signed by the original stock subscribers, or a majority of them, and must be acknowledged before an officer duly authorized under the laws of this state to take the proof or acknowledgment of deeds. The certificate shall then be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and there remain of record, and he shall, if it is in accordance with law, cause it to be recorded in his office in a book to be kept for that purpose and known as the Corporation Book. Upon the payment of the organization tax and fees, the secretary of state shall certify under his official seal a copy of the certificate of incorporation and probates, which certified copy shall be forthwith recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county where the principal office of the corporation in this state is, or is to be, established, in a book to be known as the Record of Incorporations. The certificate, or a copy thereof, duly certified by the secretary of state, or by the clerk of the superior court of the county in which it is recorded, is evidence in all courts and places, and in all judicial proceedings is prima facie evidence of the complete incorporation and organization of the corporation purporting thereby to have been established. (Rev., s. 1139; Code, ss. 678, 679, 682; 1901, c. 2, s. 9; 1903, c. 343; C. S. 1115.)

Cross References.—As to taxes for filing the certificate, see § 55-158. As to amending the certificate, see §§ 55-30 and 55-31. As to the effect of errors or omissions in the certificate, see § 55-8. As to fees for recording, see § 55-159.

Record of Incorporations Admissible in Evidence.—Under the former wording of this section which provided that the letters of incorporation or copies duly certified by the clerk should be admissible in evidence, it was held that the Record of Incorporation's book was also admissible as prima facie evidence of the complete organization and incorporation of the company. Iron Co. v. Abernathy, 94 N. C. 545, 547.

Proof of Existence—By Reputation.—The existence of a corporation may be proved by reputation. Gulf States Steel Co. v. Ford, 173 N. C. 195, 91 S. E. 84. Existence or nonexistence is a fact and may be proved as other facts. Id.

Same—By Written Contract.—Where a written contract entered into between the parties furnishes evidence that the defendant was dealing with the plaintiff as a corporation, and the plaintiff's existence as a corporation is denied, the contract may properly be introduced upon this disputed fact. Otis Elevator Co. v. Cape Fear Hotel Co., 172 N. C. 319, 90 S. E. 253.

Same—Copies Prima Facie Evidence. — Copies of letters of incorporation are admissible to show prima facie the existence of a corporation, and it cannot avoid its liability for debts because in fact it had but an inchoate existence. Marshall v. Macon County Bank, 108 N. C. 639, 13 S. E. 182.

§ 55-4. When incorporators become corporation.—From the date the certificate of incorporation is filed in the office of the secretary of state, the stock subscribers, their successors and assigns, are a body corporate by the name specified in the certificate, subject to amendment and dissolution as provided in this chapter. (Rev., s. 1140; 1901, c. 2, s. 10; C. S. 1116.)

Cross Reference.—As to when a building and loan association becomes a body corporate, see § 54-6; a co-operative association, see § 54-114; a credit union, see § 54-78; a bank, see § 53-5.

Signing and Recording Articles Sufficient. — When corporate powers are granted by a special act of the Legislature, there must be evidence of the acceptance by the corporators of the privileges conferred and compliance with all conditions precedent prescribed by law in order to show affirmatively that the corporation is lawfully organized. It is otherwise when the corporation is formed under the general law, for by the signing of the articles of agreement, and the due recording thereof, the corporators become a body politic for the purposes set forth in the agreement. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453.

No Requirement for Stock Issue. — There is no requirement of the statute that the stock should be issued or paid up before a valid organization can be effected or corporate action taken. Fayetteville Street Ry. v. Aberdeen R. R., 142 N. C. 423, 434, 55 S. E. 345.

Adoption of By-Laws Not Necessary.—By signing and recording the articles of incorporation three or more persons become a body corporate and it is not necessary for the exercise of such powers as are conferred by statute or corporations that the one so formed shall issue certificates of stock or adopt by-laws. Powell Brothers v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

Date Corporation Begins to Do Business.—While incorporators became a body incorporate from the date the certificate of incorporation is filed in the office of the secretary of state, there is no presumption that the corporation is organized and doing business as such from that time, the time from which it begins to do business as a corporation being a question of fact to be proved as any other fact. Hammond v. Williams, 215 N. C. 657, 3 S. E. (2d) 437.

De Jure and De Facto Existence. — A corporation de jure is said to exist when persons holding a charter have made substantial compliance with the provisions of the same, looking to its proper organization, while a corporation de facto is one where the parties having a charter or law authorizing it have in good faith made a colorable compliance with such requirements, and have proceeded in the exercise of the corporate powers or a part of them. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

If the corporation has acted as such and exercised its franchises, then it is a corporation de facto, and in such case any irregularity in its organization is immaterial. Whitney v. Wyman, 101 U. S. 392, 395, 25 L. Ed. 1050.

Same—Distinctions. — So far as the State is concerned, the ultimate distinction between a corporation de jure and a corporation de facto is that the former, having made substantial compliance with the charter requirements looking to the proper organization, can successfully resist the suit instituted by the State or its officers for the direct purpose of annulling the charter, while the latter cannot; but as to private persons holding claims against them, the individual corporators, in either case, are not personally liable for debts, except and to the extent the charter and law applicable may so provide. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Applied in Britt v. Howell, 210 N. C. 475, 187 S. E. 566.

§ 55-5. Incorporators act until directors elected.—Until directors are elected the signers of the certificate of incorporation shall have the direction of the affairs of the corporation, and may take proper steps to obtain the necessary subscription to stock and to perfect the organization of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1141; 1901, c. 2, s. 11; C. S. 1117.)

Subscribers May Release Member. — Under this section the management of a corporation, before the first directors are elected, vests entirely in the subscribers, and, before the rights of creditors have supervened, the subscribers or stockholders may, by the consent of each and all of them and within the limits of the charter, release one from his subscription to the stock. Boushall v. Myatt, 167 N. C. 328, 83 S. E. 352.

§ 55-6. First meeting; notice.—The first meeting of every corporation shall be called by a notice, signed by a majority of the incorporators, designating the time, place, and purpose of the meeting, which notice shall be published at least two weeks before the meeting, in a newspaper of the county where the corporation is established; or the meeting may be called without publication, if two days notice is personally served on all the incorporators; or if all the incorporators in writing waive notice and fix a time and place of meeting, no notice or publication is required. (Rev., s. 1142; Code, s. 665; 1901, c. 2, s. 18; C. S. 1118.)

Cross References.—As to stockholders' meetings generally, see § 55-105. As to meeting called by three stockholders, see § 55-106.

Waiver of Notice. — The strict requirements as to notice, being intended to protect stockholders, may be waived by them, and when they do waive it, the meeting and all proceedings are as valid as they would be had the full statutory notice been given. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 330, 20 S. E. 453.

Meeting outside of State. — Though the first meeting of stockholders may have been held outside of the State, that fact cannot be shown by the body assuming the powers of a corporation in order to avoid its liability, nor by its debtors for the purpose of evading their accountability under contracts made with it, but the State only can set up that fact. Tuckasegee Mining Co. v. Goodhue, 118 N. C. 981, 985, 24 S. E. 797.

§ 55-7. Death of incorporators; vacancy filled.—When one or more of the incorporators of any corporation die before the corporation has been organized pursuant to law, the survivor or survivors may, in writing, designate others who may take the place and act instead of the deceased, in the organization; and the organization so effected by their aid is as effectual in law as if it had been effected by all the original incorporators. (Rev., s. 1143; 1901, c. 2, s. 36; C. S. 1119.)

§ 55-8. Errors or omissions in certificate of incorporation.—Whenever in the certificate of incorporation under any general law there is an error or omission in the recital of the act under which the corporation is created or an error or omission of any matter required to be stated therein, it is lawful for the corporation to correct the error or supply the omission in the following manner: The board of directors shall pass a resolution declaring that the error or omission exists and that the corporation desires to correct it, and shall call a meeting of the stockholders to take action upon the resolution. The stockholders' meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice, given personally or by mail. If two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders vote in favor of the correction of the error or omission, a certificate of their action shall be made and signed by the president and secretary under the corporate seal; which certificate shall be acknowledged as in the case of deeds of real estate, and, together with the written consent in person or by proxy of two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders of the corporation, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. Upon the filing thereof, in conformity with this section, the certificate of incorporation has the same force and effect as if it had been originally drafted in conformity with the amendment so made. (Rev., s. 1144; 1901, c. 2, s. 109; C. S. 1120.)

Cross References.—As to amendments generally, see § 55-31 et seq. As to amendments before payment of stock, see § 55-30.

§ 55-9. Street railways.—Corporations may be organized under the provisions of this chapter for the purpose of building, maintaining or operating street railways. The term street railways, wherever used in this chapter, includes railways operated either by steam or electricity, or other motive power, used and operated as means of communication between different points in the same municipality, or between points in municipalities lying adjacent or near to each other, or between the municipality in which is the home office of the company and the territory contiguous thereto, and such railways may carry and deliver freights. No such railway may operate a line extending in any direction more than one hundred miles from the municipality in which is located its home office, or in any city or town without the consent of the municipal authorities thereof. (Rev., s. 1138; 1901, cc. 6, 41; 1903, c. 350; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 70, s. 1; C. S. 1121.)

§ 55-10: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 55-11. Public parks and drives.—Three or more persons may be incorporated under this chapter for the purpose of creating and maintaining public parks and drives. It is not necessary, however, to set forth in the certificate of incorporation of any corporation created for such purpose the amount of authorized capital stock, the number of shares into which the same is divided, the par value of such stock, or the amount of capital stock with which it will commence business. Any corporation created hereunder shall have full power and authority to lay out, manage, and control parks and drives within the state, under such rules and regulations as the corporation may prescribe, and shall have power to purchase and hold property and take gifts or donations for such purpose. It may hold property and exercise such powers and trust for any town, city, township, or county, in connection with which said parks and drives shall be maintained. Any city, town, township, or county, holding such property, may vest and transfer the same to any such corporation for the purpose of controlling and maintaining the same as public parks and drives under such regulations and subject to such conditions as may be determined upon by such city, town, township, or county. All such lands as the corporation may acquire shall be held in trust as public parks and drives, and shall be held open to the public under such rules, laws, and regulations as the corporation may adopt through its board of directors; and it shall have power and authority to make and adopt all such laws and regulations as it may determine upon for the reasonable management of such parks and drives. All property owned by it and appropriated exclusively for public parks and drives shall not be subject to taxation, and no such corporation shall be liable in damages on account of the construction or maintenance of any such parks or drives. (1911, c. 155, ss. 1, 2, 3, 4; C. S. 1123.)

Local Modification.—Scotland: 1939, c. 359, s. 1.

§ 55-12: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 55-13. Certain religious, etc., associations deemed incorporated.—In all cases where a religious, educational or charitable association has been formed prior to January first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and has since said date been acting as a corporation, exercising the powers and performing the duties of religious, educational or charitable corporations as prescribed by the laws of this state, then such association shall be conclusively presumed to have been duly and regularly organized and existing as a corporation under the laws of this state on January first, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-four, and all of its acts as a corporation from and after said date, if otherwise valid, are hereby declared to be valid corporate acts. (1919, c. 137; C. S. 1125.)

Art. 3. North Carolina State Thrift Society.

§§ 55-14 to 55-25: Transferred to §§ 115-383 to 115-394.

Editor's Note.—Acts 1943, c. 543, transferred these sections to chapter 115 to follow immediately after § 115-382 and directed that they be appropriately renumbered.

Art. 4. Powers and Restrictions.

§ 55-26. Express powers.—Every corporation has power—

1. To have succession, by its corporate name, for the period limited in its charter, and when the charter contains no time limit, for a period of sixty years.

2. To sue and be sued in any court.

3. To make, use, and alter a common seal.

4. To purchase, acquire by devise or bequest, hold and convey real and personal property in or out of the state, and to mortgage the same and its franchises.

5. To elect and appoint, in such manner as it determines to be proper, all necessary officers and agents, fix their compensation, and define their duties and obligations. And when there devolves upon an officer or agent of a corporation such duties and responsibilities that a financial loss would result to the corporation from the death and consequent loss of the services of such officer or agent, the corporation has an insurable interest in, and the power to insure the life of, the officer or agent for its benefit and in all cases where a religious, educational or charitable corporation or institution shall be, or has been, named as beneficiary in any policy of life insurance by a friend, student, former student or any person who for any reason is loyal to such corporation or institution and has himself or herself paid the premiums on said policy, then such corporation or institution shall be deemed to have an insurable interest in the life of such person.

6. To conduct business in this state, other states, the District of Columbia, the territories, dependencies and colonies of the United States, and in foreign countries, and have offices in or out of the state.

7. To make by-laws and regulations, consistent with its charter and the laws of the state, for its own government, and for the due and orderly conduct of its affairs and management of its property.

8. To wind up and dissolve itself, or be wound up and dissolved, in the manner hereafter mentioned.

9. To sell, transfer and convey any part of its corporate property in the course of its regular business.

10. To sell, transfer and convey any part of its corporate real or personal property when authorized so to do by its board of directors.

11. To sell, transfer and convey all of its corporate property when authorized so to do by its board of directors and approved by a two-thirds vote of the stock entitled to vote at any stockholders meeting, notice of which contains notice of the proposed sale: Provided, paragraph nine, ten and eleven of this section shall not be construed as authorizing any public utility corporation to sell or convey all of its property otherwise than under the terms prescribed in its charter, or as authorizing the sale of stock in bulk, in violation of the Bulk Sales Law. (Rev., s. 1128; Code, ss. 663, 666, 691, 692, 693; 1893, c. 159; 1901, c. 2, s. 1; 1909, c. 507, s. 1; 1925, c. 235; 1925, c. 298; 1929, c. 269; 1939, c. 279; C. S. 1126.)

I. EDITOR'S NOTE.

Previous to 1925 this section enumerated 8 general powers. By chapter 235, Laws 1925 paragraph 9 containing an additional power with several provisos was added, and the 1929 amendment added another proviso thereto. The 1939 amendment struck out such paragraph as amended and inserted the present paragraphs 9, 10 and 11 in lieu thereof. See discussion of former paragraph 9 in 3 N. C. Law Rev. 137.

By ch. 298, Laws 1925 an addition was made to par. 5 of this section. Formerly the paragraph ended with the word "benefit". In 3 N. C. Law Rev. 147 this amendment is discussed and it is concluded that although the Legislature intended to extend the doctrine of insurable interest, it has merely stated a well-established rule of insurance law.

II. SUITS BY AND AGAINST CORPORATIONS.

Must Be in Corporate Name. — A suit against a corporation must be brought in its corporate name, and not against its officers or agents. Young v. Barden, 90 N. C. 424; Britain v. Newland, 19 N. C. 363. However, in case of insolvency, where a receiver has been appointed, he may sue either in his own name or in that of the corporation. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371.

Misnomer Immaterial.—A misnomer does not vitiate, provided the identity of the corporation with that intended by the parties is apparent, whether it is in a deed, Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579, 584, or in a judgment, or in a criminal proceeding, McCrea v. Starr, 5 N. C. 252. See Gordon v. Pintsch Gas Co., 178 N. C. 435, 100 S. E. 878.

Same Liability as Natural Person. — A corporation is now held liable to civil and criminal actions under the same conditions and circumstances as natural persons are. Redditt v. Singer Mfg. Co., 124 N. C. 100, 32 S. E. 392.

No Application to Governmental Agencies. — The general authority to sue and be sued conferred on corporations by this section, has reference only to private and quasi public corporations, and not to corporations like the state prison, which are merely governmental agencies. As to these the authority to be sued must be expressly given. Moody v. State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 38 S. E. 131.

Same—State Highway Commission. — This section giving corporations the right to sue and be sued, does not apply to the State Highway Commission, a governmental agency of the State, but only to private and quasi-private corporations. Carpenter v. Atlantic, etc., Ry. Co., 184 N. C. 400, 114 S. E. 693.

Suits against Cities and Towns. — As to cities and towns, though by their charters they are broadly authorized "to sue and be sued," it is equally well settled that this suability does not create any liability for damages caused by the torts of their officers and agents when acting in a governmental capacity. McIlhenney v. Wilmington, 127 N. C. 146, 37 S. E. 187, and numerous cases there cited. Moody v. State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 16, 38 S. E. 131.

Suits against Counties.—As to counties, we have an unbroken line of authorities that they can be sued only in such cases and for such causes of action as are authorized by statute, and such cases do not embrace liabilities for negligence or other torts of their officers and agents. White v. Commissioners, 90 N. C. 437; Manuel v. Commissioners, 98 N. C. 9, 3 S. E. 829; Threadgill v. Commissioners, 99 N. C. 352, 6 S. E. 189; Pritchard v. Commissioners, 126 N. C. 908, 36 S. E. 353; Bell v. Commissioners, 127 N. C. 85, 37 S. E. 136; Moody v. State's Prison, 128 N. C. 12, 13, 16, 38 S. E. 131.

Liability for Slander. — A corporation may be held liable for slander when the defamatory words are uttered by express authority of the company or by one of its officers or agents in the course of his employment, and authority for their utterances may be fairly and reasonably inferred under relevant and sufficient circumstances. Cotton v. Fisheries Products Co., 177 N. C. 56, 97 S. E. 712.

Cited in Independence Trust Co. v. Keesler, 206 N. C. 12, 16, 173 S. E. 53.

III. THE COMMON SEAL.

An Inherent Power.—The power to have a common seal and to alter or renew the same at will is frequently conferred on corporations by statute, but such a power is one of the incidental and implied powers of every corporation when not expressly conferred 14 C. J. § 404, p. 334. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 454, 115 S. E. 166, 168.

Any Device May Be Used. — While it is required for the sufficiency of the deed of a corporation to convey its lands that the corporate seal should be affixed to the instrument, any device used for the corporate seal will be sufficient, provided it was intended for and used as the seal of the corporation, and had been adopted by proper action of the corporation for that purpose. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166.

The simple word "seal" with a scroll adopted as the seal of a corporation and used by it on a deed to its lands according to resolutions of the stockholders and directors thereof at separate meetngs held for the purpose, when all were present, is sufficient. Bailey v. Hassell, 184 N. C. 450, 115 S. E. 166.

IV. RIGHTS AS TO PROPERTY.

Corporation Not Stockholders Own Property.—The property of a corporation belongs to it, and not to the stockholders. They only have an interest in such property through their relation to the company, and in this respect the state is like any other stockholder. Marshall v. Western N. C. Railroad Co., 92 N. C. 322.

Same—Where State a Stockholder. — Where the state is a stockholder in a railroad company, it is bound by the provisions of the charter in the same manner as an individual. It has no advantage as a stockholder on account of its sovereignty, for, by becoming such, it lays aside its character as a sovereign and places itself on a footing of equality with the individual stockholders. Marshall v. Western N. C. Railroad Co., 92 N. C. 322.

May Hold Estates in Fee. — Although the existence of a corporation be limited to a certain number of years, yet it is capable of holding estates in fee. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579.

Same—Not Forfeited upon Suspension of Business. — A corporation, chartered for the purpose of promoting temperance, does not forfeit real estate which it has purchased because it ceases to pursue the objects for which it was incorporated. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 578, 579.

Adverse Possession. — A corporation may acquire land by showing sufficient adverse possession for the statutory period. Cross v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 119, 90 S. E. 14.

Ejectment and Trespass Will Lie. — Corporations, in contemplation of the law, are capable of having actual possession of the land, and whatever may have been supposed to the contrary in the distant past, it is now settled that the actions of ejectment and trespass lie against them. Young v. Barden, 90 N. C. 424, 426.

Right to Dispose of Property.—A private corporation may dispose of its property without express authority of the Legislature. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453.

Same—Quasi Public Corporation.—A strictly private corporation can lawfully sell any of its property, real or personal, just as an individual can; but such is not the case with corporations which are quasi public and have duties to perform in which the public is interested. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Example.—A corporation chartered for the purpose of mining and milling ores has the right, by implication of law, to buy and sell real estate essential to the successful prosecution of its business. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Right to Dispose of Franchise.—The franchise or the right of being a corporation, unlike the property and other powers and privileges, can never be alienated by the corporation without express authority and provision therefor, pointing out how it may be effected. New Orleans, etc., R. Co. v. Delamore, 114 U. S. 501, 508, 5 S. Ct. 1009, 29 L. Ed. 244.

A quasi public corporation cannot, without the assent of the legislature, transfer its franchise to another corporation, and abnegate the performance of its duties to the public, imposed upon it by its charter as the consideration for the grant of its franchise. Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co., 139 U. S. 24, 49, 11 S. Ct. 478, 35 L. Ed. 55.

Right to Mortgage Property. — Corporations other than railroad companies have a general power to mortgage their property, unless prohibited by some provision in the charter, the right to mortgage being a natural result of the right to incur an indebtedness. Antietam Paper Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co., 115 N. C. 143, 20 S. E. 366.

Right to Mortgage Franchise—Power of Sale.—The power given to mortgage the franchises of the corporation must necessarily include the power to bring it to sale with the property to make the sale effectual as a means of transferring the right to use the thing conveyed. Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co., 202 U. S. 453, 464, 26 S. Ct. 660, 50 L. Ed. 1102.

Where Powers Exceeded.—Where a corporation takes a conveyance of lands for use beyond its charter powers, the deed is not void, but only voidable upon the objection of the State. Cross v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 172 N. C. 119, 120, 90 S. E. 14.

V. THE OFFICERS; CONDUCTING BUSINESS; BY-LAWS AND DISSOLUTION.

Power to Insure Life of Officer.—A manufacturing corporation engaged in the operation of a cotton mill had no implied power to insure the life of its president, at least beyond the period of his connection with the company. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 61 S. E. 648; Victor v. Chadwick Mfg. Co., 148 N. C. 119, 61 S. E. 653. [These cases were decided in 1908 when the section did not contain the present provision as to insurable interest. The question of implied power would of course no longer arise.]

A corporation may transact business anywhere unless prohibited by its charter or excluded by local laws. Garrett v. Bear, 144 N. C. 23, 25, 56 S. E. 479; Ex Parte Schollenberger, 96 U. S. 369, 377, 24 L. Ed. 853, Waite, C. J.

§ 55-27. By-laws.—A corporation may, by its by-laws, when consistent with its charter, determine the manner of calling and conducting all meetings; the number of members that constitute a quorum, but in no case shall more than a majority of shares or amount of interest be required to be represented at any meeting in order to constitute a quorum, and if the quorum is not so determined by the corporation, a majority in interest of the stockholders, represented either in person or by proxy, constitutes a quorum; the number of shares that will entitle the members to one or more votes; the mode of voting by proxy; the mode of selling shares for the nonpayment of assessments; the tenure of office of the several officers, and the manner in which vacancies in any of the offices shall be filled till a regular election; and they may annex suitable penalties to such by-laws, not exceeding in any case the sum of twenty dollars for any one offense. The power to make and alter by-laws is in the stockholders, but a corporation may, in the certificate of incorporation, confer that power upon the directors.

By-laws made by the directors under power so conferred may be altered or repealed by the stockholders. (Rev., ss. 1145, 1146; Code, s. 664; 1901, c. 2, ss. 12, 13; C. S. 1127.)

Cross References.—As to power to make by-laws, see § 55-26, paragraph 7. As to by-laws of insurance companies, see § 58-75. As to by-laws of building and loan association, see § 54-2; of a land and loan association, see § 54-52; of a credit union, see § 54-77; of a co-operative association, see § 54-116; of a marketing association, see § 54-136. As to power to determine, by by-law, the number of shares a stockholder must hold to qualify as director, see § 55-48.

Extent to Which Stockholder Is Bound by By-Laws.—The principle by which a shareholder in a corporation is bound by a corporate resolution, regularly passed pursuant to its charter and by-laws, prevails only in reference to his status and rights as a shareholder and not where he deals independently with it as one of its customers in the line of its business. Cardwell v. Garrison, 179 N. C. 476, 103 S. E. 3.

By-Law to Sell Defaulting Subscriber's Stock. — Under this section a corporation is empowered to provide by its by-laws for the sale of shares of a subscriber who makes default in paying the assessments. Elizabeth City Cotton Mills v. Dunstan, 121 N. C. 12, 27 S. E. 1001.

Strangers Must Have Notice. — The by-laws of the corporation are not evidence for it against strangers who deal with it, unless brought home to their knowledge and assented to by them. Smith v. N. C. R. R. Co., 68 N. C. 107.

§ 55-28. Implied powers.—In addition to the powers enumerated in §§ 55-26 and 55-27 and the powers specified in its charter, every corporation, its officers, directors and stockholders, possess all the powers and privileges contained in this chapter so far as they are necessary or convenient to the attainment of the objects set forth in such charter, and shall be governed by the provisions and be subject to the restrictions and liabilities in this chapter contained, so far as they are applicable to and not inconsistent with such charter; and no corporation may possess or exercise any other corporate powers, except such incidental powers as are necessary to the exercise of the powers so given. Nothing in this chapter shall authorize or empower corporations organized under this chapter to lease, operate, maintain, manage or control any railroad except street railways. (Rev., s. 1129; Code, s. 701; 1897, c. 204; 1901, c. 2, s. 4; 1901, c. 6; C. S. 1128.)

Cross References.—As to express powers, see § 55-26. As to powers of street railways, see § 55-9. As to power of the legislature to amend or repeal corporate charter, see § 55-36.

In General. — Corporations possess by legal implication such powers as are essential to the exercise of the powers expressly conferred and necessary to attain the main objects for which they were formed. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Charter Subsequent to General Law Prevails. — Where a charter was granted to a corporation after the passage of a general law and the charter confers powers conflicting with the general law, then by this section the provisions of the charter prevail. Carolina Power Co. v. Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 256, 88 S. E. 349.

Ultra Vires Acts. — It is true, as held by numerous courts, including our own, that the doctrine of ultra vires has been very much modified in recent years, and many contracts made in the course of business, especially when executed and benefits are received or liabilities are incurred, will be upheld and enforced which were formerly declared absolutely void. Hutchins v. Bank, 128 N. C. 72, 38 S. E. 252; Womack Pr. Corp. 142.

Same—State May Bring Action. — This modification of the doctrine does not involve the right in an appropriate case, of the State to enjoin a threatened ultra vires act. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 61 S. E. 648, 650.

Same—Stockholder May Bring Action. — If the act of the corporation be ultra vires, any one or more stockholders may by some appropriate method call it in question and, unless by having consented to or acquiesced in it he is barred, have relief. Victor v. Louise Cotton Mills, 148 N. C. 107, 110, 61 S. E. 648; Lutterloh v. Fayetteville, 149 N. C. 65, 62 S. E. 758.

Same—Law Governing. — When the question of ultra vires arises, the validity of a corporate contract is to be determined by the lex loci contractus, not the lex fori. Eastern Building, etc., Ass'n v. Ebaugh, 185 U. S. 114, 121, 22 S. Ct. 566, 46 L. Ed. 830.

Conclusion of Law. — The question of whether acts are ultra vires is a conclusion of law to be drawn from the facts stated. Spencer v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 107, 117, 49 S. E. 96.

§ 55-29. Banking powers not conferred by this chapter.—No corporation created under the provisions of this chapter shall have the power to carry on the business of discounting bills, notes or other evidences of debt, of receiving deposits of money, of buying gold or silver bullion or foreign coins, of buying and selling bills of exchange, or of issuing bills, notes or other evidences of debt, upon loan, or for circulation as money; but in the transaction of its business it may make and take and indorse, when necessary, all such bonds, notes and bills of exchange as the business may require. (Rev., s. 1134; Code, s. 684; 1901, c. 2, s. 5; C. S. 1129.)

Cross Reference.—As to banks and banking in general, see Chapter 53.

§ 55-30. Amendments before payment of stock.—The incorporators of a corporation, before the payment of any part of its capital, may file with the secretary of state an amended certificate of incorporation, duly signed and acknowledged by the incorporators named in the original certificate, changing the original certificate of incorporation, in whole or in part, which amended certificate takes the place of the original one, and when recorded in the proper county is deemed to have been filed and recorded on the date of filing and recording the original certificate. The officers are entitled to the same fees for filing and recording the amended certificate of incorporation as if it were original; but there shall be charged no additional organization tax, except when the certificate is amended by increasing the capital stock, in which event such tax shall be paid upon the increase. (Rev., s. 1174; 1901, c. 2, s. 28; C. S. 1130.)

Cross References.—As to the original certificate of incorporation, see § 55-3. As to taxes for filing, see § 55-158.

Subscriber Released. — Any fundamental change in the charter of a corporation relieves a non-assenting subscriber from liability upon his stock. Bank v. City, 85 N. C. 433.

§ 55-31. Amendments, generally.—A corporation, whether organized under a special act or general laws, and which might now be created under the provisions of this chapter, may, in the manner set out below—

1. Change the nature or relinquish one or more branches of its business, or extend its business to such other branches as might have been inserted in its original certificate of incorporation.
2. Change its name.
3. Extend its corporate existence.
4. Increase or decrease its capital stock.
5. Change the par value of the shares of its capital stock.
6. Create one or more classes of preferred stock.
7. Make any other desired amendment. In all cases the certificate of amendment can contain only such provisions as could be lawfully and properly inserted in an original certificate of incorporation filed at the time of making the amendment.

The board of directors shall pass a resolution declaring that the amendment is advisable, and call a meeting of the stockholders to take action thereon; the meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice, given personally or by mail; if the holders of a majority of the shares of stock with voting powers vote in favor of the amendment, a certificate thereof shall be signed by the president and secretary, under the corporate seal, acknowledged as in the case of deeds to real estate, and this certificate, together with the written assent, in person or by proxy, of said stockholders, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state. Upon such filing the secretary of state shall issue a certified copy thereof, which shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the original certificate of incorporation is recorded, and thereupon the certificate of incorporation is amended accordingly. The certificate of the secretary of state, under his official seal, that such certificate of amendment and assent have been filed in his office, is evidence of the amendment in all courts and places. A corporation which cannot now be created under the provisions of this chapter may, except as otherwise provided by law, in like manner increase or decrease its capital stock, or change its name, or extend its corporate existence: Provided, that before the Secretary of State shall issue a certificate of such amendment to any corporation possessing powers, franchises, privileges or immunities, which could not be obtained under this chapter, he shall forthwith transmit to the Commissioner of Banks or the Utilities Commission, as the case may be, a copy of said certificate and shall not issue or record the same until duly authorized so to do by the Commissioner of Banks or the Utilities Commission, as the case may be, as provided for the issuing of certificates of incorporation of banks in the chapter entitled, "Banks", provided that nothing herein shall be construed to require the increase of the capital stock of a bank renewing its charter over the capital of such bank at the time such renewal is applied for.

Any corporation organized on or after March 4, 1925, may insert a provision in its charter that amendments to said charter may be made or amendments to said charter in certain specified respects may be made only when such amendments shall be approved by the holders of such amount of the stock of the corporation (not less than a majority of the shares of stock with voting powers) or such amount of each class of stock as may be specified in said charter and any corporation heretofore organized may by vote of the holders of a majority of the stock entitled to vote amend its charter at any stockholders' meeting, notice of which contains notice of the proposed amendment so as to provide the vote of stockholders (not less than a majority of the stock entitled to vote) required to enable the corporation to amend its charter or to amend it in certain specified respects: Provided, however, that no new class of stock shall hereafter be created by amendment of the charter or otherwise entitled to dividends or shares in distribution of assets in priority to any class of preferred stock already outstanding except with the consent of the holders of record of two-thirds (or such greater amount as may be specified in the charter) of the number of shares of such outstanding preferred stock having voting powers: Provided, that the provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to banks and building and loan associations. (Rev., ss. 1175, 1178; 1893, c. 380; 1899, c. 618; 1901, c. 2, ss. 29, 30, 37; 1903, c. 516; 1925, c. 118, ss. 1, 2a; 1927, c. 142; 1931, c. 243, ss. 4, 5; 1933, c. 134, ss. 7, 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 5; C. S. 1131.)

Cross References.—As to amendments by charitable, educational, penal, or reformatory corporations, see § 55-33. As to amendment of certificate of incorporation of building and loan association, see § 54-3. As to amendment of articles of incorporation of a co-operative association, see § 54-125; of a marketing association, see § 54-135. As to amendment of charter by railroad, see § 60-11. As to amendments changing shares with nominal or par value into shares without nominal or par value, see § 55-76.

Editor's Note.—This section has been amended several times.

The seventh subdivision formerly provided that any proposed amendment should require a favorable vote by "two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders." By P. L. 1925, c. 118, these words were stricken out and the words "the holders of a majority of the shares of stock" substituted therefor. However, it was provided that this amendment should not apply to banks and building and loan associations. It was evidently the legislative intent that the "two-thirds" requirement should apply to amendments to these two kinds of corporations. See, for example, §§ 53-10, 53-11, and 54-7.

As to building and loan associations, however, P. L. 1939, c. 128 amended § 54-3 to require a vote of the majority of the shareholders, so that now the "two-thirds" provision apparently extends only to banks.

The paragraph providing that a corporation may insert in its charter at the time of its organization a rule regulating amendments was also added by P. L. 1925, c. 118, and banks and building and loan associations were excepted from its operation. For a discussion of the effect of these amendments, see 3 N. C. L. Rev. 134.

Chapter 142, Laws of 1927 makes further changes. Par. three formerly contained a provision following the word "existence" which made the corporation, in extending its existence, waive and abandon any privileges, franchises or immunities which could not be obtained under this chapter. This provision was stricken out.

Par. 7 formerly contained the following provision: "A corporation which cannot now be created under the provisions of this chapter may in like manner increase or decrease its capital stock or change its name." Chapter 142, supra, struck out the period at the end of that sentence and added the words "or extend its corporate existence" and the proviso which immediately follows.

Amendment Operates Prospectively.—Whether the law itself makes an amendment, or as now, confers the power of amendment to the corporation, it will not be construed to operate retrospectively to the detriment of rights already vested under the old charter. Patterson v. Durham Hosiery Mills, 214 N. C. 806, 200 S. E. 906.

A charter provision requiring consent of three-fourths in interest of the preferred stockholders to the issuing of bonds or securities of prior or equal rank, is prospective in effect, and does not constitute a waiver of the right to the declaration of accrued, accumulated dividends, when earned, by permitting the interposing of new preferred stock by agreement of three-fourths of the preferred stockholders, nor does legislative authority to amend the charter extend to authority to defeat the vested right to the declaration of such dividends by amendment of the charter. Id.

§ 55-32. Inadvertent omission to file amendment extending corporate existence.—Any private corporation chartered under the general laws of the State of North Carolina whose period of existence fixed in its charter has expired and which corporation has continued to act and do business as a corporation, but has through inadvertence, omitted to file an amendment extending the period of its corporate existence, may at any time after the expiration of the period of corporate existence set forth in its original charter, file an amended certificate in the office of the Secretary of State as provided by § 55-31 to extend or renew its corporate existence, as provided for in the amended certificate; provided, this section shall not serve to impair the validity of any contract or vested right in existence at the time of the filing of said amended charter. All acts of such a corporation, purporting to be the acts of the corporation, done or performed after the expiration of its period of existence and before the amendment to its charter, shall be legal and valid as the acts and deeds of said corporation. (1929, c. 271; 1935, c. 6.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section contained a seven-year limitation after the expiration of the original period in which the amended certificate should be filed. This provision was omitted.

§ 55-33. Amendments by charitable, educational, penal, reformatory, etc., corporations.—A charitable, educational, social, ancestral, historical, penal, or reformatory corporation not under the patronage or control of the state, and any corporation, without capital stock, organized for the purpose of aiding in the work of any church, religious society or organization, or fraternal order whether organized under a special act or general laws, may change its name, extend its corporate existence, change the manner in which its directors, trustees or managers are elected or appointed, abolish its present method of electing such officers and create a different method of election, and generally reorganize the manner of conducting such corporation, and make any other amendment of its charter desired, in the following manner: The board of directors, trustees, or managers shall pass a resolution declaring that the amendment is advisable, and call a meeting of trustees, managers, and directors to take action thereon. The meeting shall be held upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision, upon ten days notice given personally or by mail. If two-thirds of the directors, trustees, or managers of the corporation vote in favor of the amendment, a certificate thereof shall be signed by the president and secretary under the corporate seal, acknowledged as provided in the case of deeds to real estate, and such certificate, together with the written assent in person or proxy of two-thirds of the directors, trustees, or managers, shall be filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, and upon filing it he shall issue a certified copy thereof, which shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the original certificate of incorporation is recorded, or in which the corporation is doing business, and thereupon the certificate of incorporation shall be deemed amended accordingly. Such certificate of amendment may contain only such provision as it would be lawful and proper to insert in an original certificate of incorporation made at the time of making the amendment, and the certificate of the secretary of state, under his official seal, that such certificate and assent has been filed in his office shall be taken and accepted as evidence of such amendment in all courts. (1917, c. 62, s. 1; 1925, c. 42; 1925, c. 257; C. S. 1132.)

Editor's Note. — Two additions were made to this section in 1925. By ch. 257, Laws of 1925 the words "social, ancestral, historical" were inserted in the first sentence of the section.

Chapter 42, Laws of 1925 added the following clause after the word "state" in the first sentence: "and any corporation, without capital stock, organized for the purpose of aiding in the work of any church, religious society or organization, or fraternal order."

§ 55-34. Change of location of principal office.—The board of directors of a corporation organized under the laws of this state may, by resolution adopted at a regular or special meeting by a two-thirds vote of its members, change the location of the principal office of the corporation in the state. A copy of the resolution, signed by the president and secretary of the corporation and sealed with the corporate seal, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. No certificate need be filed of the removal of an office from one point to another in the same town, city, or township. (Rev., s. 1176; 1901, c. 2, s. 31; C. S. 1133.)

"Principal Place of Business." — The words "principal place of business," as used in section 1-79 must be regarded as synonymous with the words "principal office," as used in this section and sections 55-2, par. 2 and 55-105. Roberson v. Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 122, 68 S. E. 1064.

§ 55-35. Curative act; amendments prior to 1901.—All amendments to the plan of incorporation of any corporation organized under the provisions of the general laws of North Carolina prior to the passage of the act entitled "An act to revise the corporation law of North Carolina," being chapter two, public laws of nineteen hundred and one, are declared to be valid in all respects, whether such amendments were made in accordance with the provisions of chapter three hundred and eighty of the public laws of eighteen hundred and ninety-three or in accordance with the provisions of chapter two of the public laws of nineteen hundred and one; but no amendment shall be validated by this section unless it is an amendment of such nature as is authorized to be made under the provisions of chapter two of the public laws of nineteen hundred and one. (Rev., s. 1248; 1905, c. 316; C. S. 1134.)

§ 55-36. Amendment or repeal of this chapter; a part of all charters.—This chapter may be amended or repealed by the legislature, and every corporation is bound thereby; but such amendment or repeal shall not take away or impair any remedy against the corporation, or its officers, for any liability which has been previously incurred. This chapter and all amendments are a part of the charter of every corporation formed hereunder, so far as the same are applicable and appropriate to the objects of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1136; 1901, c. 2, s. 7; C. S. 1135.)

§ 55-37. Name must be displayed.—The name of every corporation must be at all times conspicuously displayed at the entrance of its principal office in this state, and in default thereof for sixty days the corporation is liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, to be recovered with costs, by the state, in an action to be prosecuted by or under the direction of the attorney-general. (Rev., s. 1242; 1901, c. 2, s. 50; C. S. 1136.)

§ 55-38. Resident process agent.—Every corporation having property or doing business in this state, whether incorporated under its laws or not, shall have an officer or agent in the state upon whom process in all actions or proceedings against it can be served. A corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section is liable to a forfeiture of its charter, or to the revocation of its license to do business in this state. In the latter event, process in an action or proceeding against the corporation may be served upon the secretary of state by leaving a true copy thereof with him, and he shall mail the copy to the president, secretary or other officer of the corporation upon whom, if residing in this state, service could be made. For this service to be performed by the secretary, he shall receive a fee of fifty cents, to be paid by the party at whose instance the service was made. (Rev., s. 1243; 1901, c. 5; C. S. 1137.)

Section Constitutional. — This section is constitutional and valid. Currie v. Mining Co., 157 N. C. 209, 72 S. E. 980; Fisher v. Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 222, 48 S. E. 667.

Strict Compliance Not Required. — Formal compliance with the statutory requirements for domesticating these corporations and the appointment of process agents is not required, but it is sufficient if such corporations doing business or holding property within the state have been continuously for the statutory period subject to valid service of process, so as to confer jurisdiction on our courts to render binding judgments in personam against them. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 418, 93 S. E. 948.

A Federal Land Bank created by act of Congress and deriving its right to own property and to do business in this State solely through a Federal statute is not a foreign corporation exercising such functions under express or implied authority of this State, and this section is not applicable to such corporation, and our courts acquire no jurisdiction over it by such service. Leggett v. Federal Land Bank, 204 N. C. 151, 167 S. E. 557.

Jurisdiction over Foreign Corporation. — A foreign corporation, having neither property nor process agent in this state and not having domesticated in North Carolina, must be engaged in business within the state in order to give our courts jurisdiction over it. Goldey v. Morning News, 156 U. S. 518, 15 S. Ct. 559, 39 L. Ed. 517; Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Asso., 190 N. C. 314, 318, 129 S. E. 805.

The fact that nonresident defendant corporation had samples, order blanks and stationery in the state was held insufficient to show that defendant had property in the state for the purpose of service of process on it by service on the Secretary of State under the provisions of this section. Plott v. Michael, 214 N. C. 665, 200 S. E. 429.

Transitory Cause of Action Arising in Another State.—In an action by a nonresident plaintiff against a nonresident bus corporation, doing business in this state, to recover for personal injuries alleged to have been sustained through negligence of defendant occurring in Virginia, service of process upon the process agent appointed by the defendant under this section was ineffective. Hamilton v. Atlantic Greyhound Corp., 220 N. C. 815, 18 S. E. (2d) 367.

Foreign Corporation May Plead Statute of Limitations.— A foreign corporation which had complied with the requirements of this section in maintaining an agent in this state upon whom process may be served, together with public-service corporations doing business in this state, may plead the statute of limitations. Volivar v. Richmond Cedar Works, 152 N. C. 656, 68 S. E. 200. Overruling Green v. Insurance Co., 139 N. C. 309, 51 S. E. 887, and cases cited. See also, Anderson v. U. S. Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 418. 93 S. E. 948.

The nonresidence of a foreign corporation will not prevent the running of the statute of limitations in its favor where constantly from the accrual of the cause of action it might have been served with summons under the provisions of this section. Smith v. Finance Co., 207 N. C. 367, 177 S. E. 183.

Service on Insurance Company. — In Fisher v. Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 224, 48 S. E. 667, it was held that service of process on an insurance company is not restricted to that method as prescribed by section 58-153 but that it may be made also in the manner prescribed by this section. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 678, 94 S. E. 414.

Merger of Express Companies. — An express company conveyed its property, used in transportation, for its appraised value, to the American Express Company formed at the suggestion of the Director General of Railways, etc., under government control, retaining property of very large value, so that it remained perfectly solvent, and continued to do business under its franchise, and having its own officials and shareholders distinct from those of the new corporation. In such a case the American Express Company is not affected by the provisions of this section, requiring foreign corporations to keep a process agent in this state. McAlister v. American Ry. Exp. Co., 179 N. C. 556, 103 S. E. 129.

Doing Business Here is Acceptance of Section. — Where foreign corporations come into the state to do business after the enactment of a statute providing a method of personal service on them, reasonably calculated to give them full notice of the pendency of suits against them, the statutory provisions are regarded as conditions on which they are allowed to do business within the state, and their doing so here thereafter is an acceptance by them of the statutory method and in recognition of its validity to confer jurisdiction on our courts by service thereunder. Anderson v. United States Fidelity Co., 174 N. C. 417, 93 S. E. 948.

What Constitutes Doing Business. — A foreign company acquiring membership of persons in North Carolina for life insurance, without soliciting agents to whom policies are issued, upon a mutual benefit plan and kept in force by the payments of dues, is doing a life insurance business here in contemplation of this section, and valid service of summons may be had on such corporation upon compliance with its provisions in respect thereto. Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Accident Asso., 190 N. C. 314, 129 S. E. 805.

The meaning of the phrase "doing business in this state" as used in this section is not susceptible to an all embracing definition, and each case must be decided upon the particular facts therein appearing, the general criteria being that a foreign corporation is doing business in this state if it transacts in this state the business it was created and authorized to do, through representatives in this state, and thus is present in this state through the person of its representatives. Parris v. Fischer & Co., 219 N. C. 292, 13 S. E. (2d) 540.

It cannot be held that the issuance of one or more policies of fire insurance, by a corporation, created and existing under the laws of another state, and not authorized to do business in this state, insuring citizens of this state against loss or damage by fire to property situate in this state, the contracts for such policies having been made, and the premiums having been paid in the state in which the foreign corporation has its principal office and place of business, not by or through any agent of such corporation or person authorized to act for it in this state, constitutes "doing business" in the State of North Carolina within the meaning of these words in this section. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire etc. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

In determining the question whether a foreign corporation is doing business within a state, so as to be subject to its jurisdiction, and, to the end that such jurisdiction may be exercised, subject to service of process from its courts, in accordance with statutory provisions for such service, it has been generally held that the foreign corporation must have entered the state and must have been within the state during the time such business was transacted. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

A foreign banking corporation which sends its agents here for the purpose of investigating and looking after the properties in its capacity as trustee, does business in the State, "doing business in this State" as used in this section meaning engaging in, carrying on, or exercising in this State some of the functions for which it was created. Ruark v. Virginia Trust Co., 206 N. C. 564, 174 S. E. 441.

Where nonresident defendant corporation employed a soliciting agent who took orders and forwarded them to home office in another state, it was held that the contract was entered into in the state where the home office was situated and that evidence failed to show that defendant was doing business in the state for the purpose of service of process on it by service on the secretary of state under this section. Plott v. Michael, 214 N. C. 665, 200 S. E. 429.

Same—Continuity of Conduct.—While the phrase "doing business in this state" connotes some degree of continuity and an isolated instance is insufficient to support service of process under this section, evidence that defendant nonresident corporation maintained dealer-representatives in this state, and that in the particular instance in suit the corporation was doing business in this state through its dealer-representative, is held sufficient to support service of process under this section, since the fact that it employed dealer-representatives for the purpose of selling its products and carrying on its business, presumably in a similar manner, implies a sufficient continuity of conduct within the purview of the statute. Parris v. Fischer & Co., 219 N. C. 292, 13 S. E. (2d) 540.

Same—Question of Fact. — The question as to doing business is one of fact, and must be determined largely according to the facts of each individual case, rather than by the application of fixed, definite and precise rules. In the last analysis, the question is one of due process of law under the Constitution of the United States, 14a C. J., 1372, sec. 4079. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

Finding by Trial Court Conclusive.—Where there is evidence to show that a foreign corporation, is doing business in this State at the time the summons in the action is served on the Secretary of State, a finding by the trial court to the contrary is conclusive and not subject to review of this Court. Brown v. Tennessee Coal, etc., R. Co., 208 N. C. 50, 52, 178 S. E. 858.

Cited in White v. Vaca Land & Lumber Co., 199 N. C. 410, 154 S. E. 620; Mauney v. Luzier, 212 N. C. 634, 194 S. E. 323; C. T. H. Corporation v. Maxwell, 212 N. C. 803, 195 S. E. 36.

§ 55-39. Process agent in county where principal office located; service on inactive corporations.—Every corporation chartered under the laws of North Carolina shall have an officer or agent in the county where its principal office is located upon whom process can be had, and shall at all times keep on file with the secretary of state the name and address of such process officer or agent, and upon the return of any sheriff or other officer of such county that such corporation or process officer or agent cannot be found, service may be had upon such corporation by leaving a copy with the secretary of state, who shall mail the copy so served upon him to the process agent or officer at the address last given and on file with him, or if none, to the corporation at the address given in its charter; and any such corporation so served shall be in court for all purposes from and after the date of such service on the secretary of state.

For service as above provided to be performed by the secretary of state he shall receive a fee of one dollar ($1.00), to be paid by the party at whose instance the service is made.

This section shall not be in derogation of any other act or law pertaining to the service of summons or process, but shall be in addition thereto. (1937, c. 133, ss. 1-3.)

Cross References.—As to service of process upon a corporation, see § 1-97, paragraph 1, and notes thereto. As to service of summons in action for dissolution, or for appointment of a receiver, see § 55-131.

Editor's Note.—For article discussing the effect of this chapter, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 340.

Service on Secretary of State.—The provision of this section providing for service upon the secretary of state is not in the nature of a penalty upon the corporation for not having an agent upon whom process could be had and not keeping the name of such agent on file with the secretary of state, which might be condoned because of the alleged inability of the corporation to comply with the statute. It is a device for public convenience and is sustained upon the theory that it is reasonably adequate notice, either to be employed alternatively or where other forms of notice are unavailable. Sisk v. Old Hickory Motor Freight, 222 N. C. 631, 633, 24 S. E. (2d) 488.

Service after Bankruptcy.—The continuance of corporate existence, by § 55-132, makes service of process on a corporation after it has been adjudged a bankrupt and its charter forfeited under § 55-129 reasonable notice and a valid service. Sisk v. Old Hickory Motor Freight, 222 N. C. 631, 24 S. E. (2d) 488.

§ 55-40. Corporate conveyances; when void as to torts.—Any corporation may convey lands, and other property which is transferable by deed, by deed sealed with the common seal and signed in its name by the president, a vice-president, presiding member or trustee, and two other members of the corporation, and attested by a witness, or by deed sealed with the common seal and signed in its name by the president, a vice-president, presiding member or trustee, and attested by the secretary or assistant secretary of the company. If the corporation is a bank, the deed may be attested by the secretary or an assistant secretary or by the cashier or an assistant cashier of the bank. But any conveyance of its property, whether absolutely or upon condition, executed by a public service corporation, is void as to torts committed by such corporation prior to the execution of said deed, if persons injured, or their representatives, commence proceedings or actions to enforce their claims against said corporation within sixty days after the registration of said deed as required by law. (Rev., s. 1130; Code, s. 685; 1891, c. 118; 1893, c. 95, s. 2; 1899, c. 235, s. 17; 1901, c. 2, s. 2; 1903, c. 660, s. 1; 1905, c. 114; 1929, cc. 28, 189, 256; 1931, c. 238; 1943, c. 219, s. 1; C. S. 1138.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929, c. 28, inserted the words "public service" in the last sentence of this section. Public Laws of 1929, c. 189 provided that such amendatory act should not affect pending litigation, and Chapter 256 provided that it should be construed to apply only to instruments executed after its ratification. The Act of 1931 which became effective April 2, 1931, except as to pending litigation, repealed the last mentioned chapter. Consequently the section, limited to public service companies, must be regarded as affecting the standing of corporate mortgages whenever executed. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 363. Some of the cases treated here were decided prior to these amendments.

The 1943 amendment inserted the second sentence.

Purpose of Section. — The primary purpose of this section is to impose restraints upon insolvent corporations, and disable them from borrowing money and conveying their property to secure it, whereby present liabilities might go unpaid. Traders National Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 307, 3 S. E. 363.

Applies Generally. — By this section the Legislature expressed a general intention with regard to a general subject-matter, that is, it applies to all conveyances and to all creditors and to all torts. Boston Safe-Deposit & Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 758, 760.

Not Applicable to Leases.—It is not required that a lessee corporation should sign a lease, this section applying only to conveyances, and the failure of a lessee corporation to affix its seal to a lease to it of lands necessary to the purpose of its business does not of itself render the lease invalid. Raleigh Banking & Trust Co. v. Safety Transit Lines, 198 N. C. 675, 153 S. E. 158.

An Enabling Act. — This section is an enabling act, additional to and not exclusive of the common law mode of executing deeds. Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 765, 21 S. E. 562; Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 417.

Power to Convey Belongs Primarily to Stockholders. — The extraordinary powers of a corporation, such as that of selling or leasing the corporate property, where it exists, belongs primarily to the stockholders but may be delegated by them, as it can be by an individual, to the directors or to an agent designated in the resolution of the body, either by his official title or his name. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 714, 730, 24 S. E. 124.

Hence a mortgage deed executed according to the provisions of this section is the act of the corporation alone, and not that of the corporation officers, by whose agency the deed is executed. Traders National Bank v. Mfg. Co., 10[illegible] N. C. 345, 5 S. E. 81.

Other Methods of Execution Permissible. — The statutory method of alienation by corporations, like that provided by this section is not exclusive of the common law mode of conveyance, and does not prohibit other methods of execution by authorized agents. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 730, 24 S. E. 124.

Same—Example. — A deed of a corporation, the concluding clause being, in witness whereof the said corporation "has caused this indenture to be signed by its president and attested by its secretary, and its common seal to be affixed," with the signatures and seal, is properly executed as a common law deed. Bason v. Mining Co., 90 N. C. 417.

Sixty Day Provision Mandatory. — Under this section the action should be commenced within sixty days after the registration of the mortgage. Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 275, 97 S. E. 44.

Judgment for Tort Committed before Transfer.—Under this section as construed with §§ 47-18 and 47-20, an absolute sale by a corporation of its personal property, accompanied by delivery to the purchaser, is not void as to a judgment creditor of the corporation on a judgment obtained against the corporation for a tort committed before the transfer. Carolina Coach Co. v. Begnell, 203 N. C. 656, 166 S. E. 903.

II. THE SEAL.

Corporation Seal Necessary. — When a mortgage by a corporation is signed by the president, secretary and two stockholders and duly witnessed, but there is no common seal attached, and the probate recites that it is "acknowledged by the secretary, who also proves the execution by the president and two stockholders," such probate is insufficient and does not authorize registration, and is ineffectual to pass title as against creditors. Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 138, 10 S. E. 1003.

An instrument purporting to be the deed of a corporation, signed by the president and two members of the corporation, but not having the common seal of the corporation attached, is not effective as a deed, under this section for lack of the common seal. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475.

Where a corporate act must be executed by an instrument under seal and the corporation has adopted a common seal, the corporation speaks through and by its seal. Withrell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 69 S. E. 748.

Presumption of Validity.—When a corporation deed recites that it is sealed with the corporate seal it will be presumed that what purports to be such seal placed after the name of the officer executing the deed is the seal of the corporation. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 324, 325, 20 S. E. 453.

When Private Seal of Officer Used.—An instrument purporting to be the deed of a corporation and executed in its name by its president with the word "seal" at the end of the signature, is not effective as the deed of the corporation, either at common law or under this section, but is only the personal act of the president, and is not admissible in evidence to prove a conveyance by the corporation. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475. See Clark v. Hodge, 116 N. C. 761, 21 S. E. 562.

Same—May Be Adopted by Corporation.—A corporation may adopt and make effectual as its seal the individual seals of its officers affixed to a deed of the corporation, when it has no seal of its own. Taylor v. Heggie, 83 N. C. 244.

III. PLEADING AND PRACTICE.

No Action to Vacate Required.—This section does not require that an action be brought for the purpose of setting aside or vacating the assignment, but that it becomes void and of no effect immediately upon the bringing of an action by the creditor to "enforce his claim." Hence it is unnecessary for the plaintiffs in their action to make any reference or to ask any judgment in respect to the deed of assignment. Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 778, 44 S. E. 601.

Recital in Deed Proof of Authority.—A recital in a deed of a corporation, properly executed, that it was executed in pursuance of an order of the board of directors, dispenses with the necessity of proving such action of the board otherwise than by the deed itself. Caldwell v. Morganton Mfg. Co., 121 N. C. 339, 28 S. E. 475.

When Demurrer Insufficient. — In an action against a corporation for specific performance of a contract the defense, that it is not in writing with the corporate seal attached or signed by an officer, must be taken advantage of by plea and not by demurrer. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco Works, 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

Presumption of Authority Rebutted. — The presumption that a mortgage, with its seal affixed, was authorized by a corporation is rebutted when it was executed to the company's officers to secure a pre-existing debt. Edwards v. Hill Supply Co., 150 N. C. 171, 63 S. E. 742.

When Authority Granted at Special Meeting.—A mortgage executed by a corporation pursuant to a resolution adopted by a majority of the stockholders at a meeting which was specially called, but was not a "regular general meeting," is valid against creditors of the corporation other than the mortgage creditors. Antietam Paper Co. v. Chronicle Pub. Co., 115 N. C. 143, 20 S. E. 366.

IV. FORMER PROVISIONS AS TO CREDITORS.

Editor's Note.—Prior to 1901 this section provided that conveyances should be void as to creditors existing prior to or at the time of the execution of the said deed provided they commenced proceedings within sixty days after registration. See Fisher v. Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 771, 777, 44 S. E. 601 where this former provision is discussed by the court.

The following constructions were given while the provision above referred to was a part of the section.

In General.—The provisions of this section manifestly are designed to prevent a fraudulent conveyance by a corporation contemplating insolvency to the detriment of its existing creditors. It recognizes the principle that the property of an insolvent corporation is a trust fund for the benefit of its creditors. Giving to this creature of the law the rights of property of a natural person, the statute in express terms protects its existing creditors from fraud in disposition of this property. Finance Co. v. Charleston, C & C. R. Co., 61 Fed. 369, 371.

An insolvent corporation may, under the laws of this State, exercise preference in favor of creditors, not corporators or officers, provided it is not done with a purpose to defeat, delay or hinder other creditors or parties in interest (Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107, Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680, distinguished), and subject (in the case of preference by a conveyance by deed) to the right of other creditors to avoid the preference by commencing suit to enforce their claims within sixty days from the date of the registration of the deed, as provided in this section. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

Creditors Must Act within Sixty Days.—An assignment by an insolvent corporation for the benefit of creditors will be set aside at the suit of creditors within sixty days from the assignment, as provided in this section. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770. But the right must be asserted within sixty days. William v. R. R., 125 N. C. 918, 36 S. E. 189.

A conveyance by a corporation of its property in trust for creditors is not void as to pre-existing creditors, unless the latter shall bring suit to enforce their claims, within sixty days after the registration of such conveyance. Blalock v. Kernersville Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 99, 100, 14 S. E. 501.

§ 55-41. Certain corporate conveyances validated.—All deeds and conveyances of land in this state, made by any corporation of this state prior to January first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-eight, executed in its corporate name and signed and attested by its proper officers, from which the corporate seal was omitted, shall be good and valid, notwithstanding the failure to attach said corporate seal. (1939, c. 23.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws 1937, c. 360, validated such conveyances executed prior to January 1, 1935.

§ 55-41.1. Certain deeds executed by banks validated.—All deeds heretofore executed by banks and attested by the cashier, assistant cashier, secretary or assistant secretary thereof, which deeds are otherwise regular and valid, are hereby validated. (1943, c. 219, s. 1½.)

§ 55-42. Conveyances by corporations owned by the United States government.—The home owners' loan corporation and any corporation, the majority of whose stock is owned by the United States government, may convey lands, and/or other property which is transferable by deed which is duly executed by either an officer, manager, or agent of said corporation, sealed with the common seal and has attached thereto a signed and attested resolution under seal of the board of directors of said corporation authorizing the said officer, manager, or agent to execute, sign, seal and attest deeds, conveyances and/or other instruments.

All deeds, conveyances and/or other instruments which have been executed prior to March 15, 1941 in the manner prescribed above, if otherwise sufficient, shall be valid, and shall have the effect to pass the title to the real and/or personal property described therein.

To the extent as modified in this section the provisions of § 55-40 shall not apply to conveyances executed by the corporations herein referred to. (1941, c. 294.)

Editor's Note.—This section became effective March 15, 1941.

§ 55-43. Conditional sale contracts.—Contracts, in writing, for the purchase of personal property by corporations, providing for a lien on the property or the retention of the title thereto by the vendor as a security for the purchase price, or any part thereof, are sufficiently executed if signed in the name of the corporation by the president, secretary or treasurer in his official capacity, and may be acknowledged and ordered to registration as is provided by law for the execution, acknowledgment and registration of deeds by natural persons. (1909, c. 335, s. 1; C. S. 1139.)

Cited in Pick & Co. v. Morehead Bluffs Hotel Co., 197 N. C. 110, 147 S. E. 819.

§ 55-44. Mortgaged property subject to execution for labor, clerical services, and torts.—Mortgages of public service corporations upon their property or earnings cannot exempt said property or earnings from execution for the satisfaction of any judgment obtained in courts of the state against such corporations for labor and clerical services performed, or torts committed whereby any person is killed or any person or property injured. (Rev., s. 1131; Code, s. 1255; 1879, c. 101; 1897, c. 334; 1901, c. 2, s. 3; 1915, c. 201, s. 1; 1929, cc. 29, 256; 1931, c. 238; C. S. 1140.)

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—It must be noted in studying the cases under this section that there were formerly included the words "for material furnished." These words were stricken out in 1897.

Under the section as formerly constituted it was held that coal is "material furnished." Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Elec., etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 24 S. E. 22. Steam Engine and boiler were not "material furnished" where it did not appear that they were necessary to the conduct of the business. James v. Lumber Co., 122 N. C. 157, 29 S. E. 358. A mortgage is now not postponed to a judgment for material furnished. Cheesborough v. Sanatorium, 134 N. C. 245, 46 S. E. 494; Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 166, 67 S. E. 477.

The words "clerical services" were added to the section by ch. 201, Laws of 1915.

The Act of 1929 inserted the words "public service" before "corporations" in line two of this section. Public Laws of 1929, c. 256 provided that such amendatory act should be construed to apply only to instruments executed after its ratification. The Act of 1931, which became effective April 2, 1931, except as to pending litigation, repealed the last amendment and consequently the section, limited to public service companies, must be regarded as affecting the standing of corporate mortgages whenever executed. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 363.

The Act of February 13, 1929, was not intended to affect instruments executed before its passage, since it does not expressly state that they shall be also affected and acts of the Legislature are to be construed prospectively, not retroactively. Dial v. Chatham, 70 F. (2d) 21, 23.

Strict Construction.—This section being in derogation of the common law, must be strictly construed. Fidelity Insurance, Trust, etc., Deposit Co. v. Norfolk & W. R. Co., 90 Fed. 175.

Purpose.—This section is exceedingly comprehensive in its terms, and was intended manifestly to prevent corporations within the State of North Carolina, and those doing business with them, from avoiding the payment of obligations due to laborers. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 204.

This section was passed to secure labor and materials, and to give ample protection against the necessary consequences of the use of plant and machinery. Finance Co. v. Charleston, C. & C. R. Co., 61 Fed. 369, 372.

Protects Employees and Not Officers.—This section is for the protection of employees of a corporation and not for its officers. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Applies Only to Property within State.—This section can only operate on property within the State. Fidelity Insurance Trust, etc., Deposit Co. v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 114 Fed. 389, 393.

Does Not Create a Lien.—This section neither creates nor provides for the creation of a lien. It does not seem to provide against prior judgment liens, whether taken upon a prior or subsequent debt; nor does it provide against an absolute bona fide sale, but only provides that the property mortgaged shall stand, so far as their debts and liabilities are concerned, just as if there had been no such mortgage made. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 463, 67 S. E. 1023.

The section confers no lien or priority. It simply wipes out a mortgage as against a judgment for tort, so that the judgment creditor may proceed to collect his judgment as if there was no mortgage, by execution if the property is not in the hands of a receiver, or by prorating with the mortgage creditors if a receiver has taken charge. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 460, 67 S. E. 1023, and cases cited. Joyner v. Reflector Co., 176 N. C. 274, 275, 97 S. E. 44.

Same—Example.—This section confers no lien on the products of a cotton factory corporation in favor of one furnishing coal used in their manufacture, but only the right to enforce their claims by judgment and execution, as against the holders of mortgages upon the corporate property. Norfleet v. Tarboro Cotton Factory, 172 N. C. 833, 89 S. E. 785.

Priorities.—This section creates a priority in favor of those performing labor or rendering clerical services only from the time a judgment has been entered by a court of competent jurisdiction ascertaining the amount and declaring the priority, and when so established it relates back and becomes prior to that of general creditors of the corporation under a prior registered judgment. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Same—Purchaser at Foreclosure Sale.—A notice at a foreclosure sale of the property of a corporation under a mortgage that the employees of the corporation claim a priority under the provisions of this section, does not affect the title conveyed to the purchaser at the sale, but the claimants after obtaining judgment against the corporation may maintain the superiority of their claims to those of the purchaser, but the purchaser is entitled to be heard, and may bring suit to restrain the execution. Helsabeck v. Vass, 196 N. C. 603, 146 S. E. 576.

Judgments Not Superior Except as Provided in This Section.—Judgments against a corporation for its obligations arising on a contract are not superior to the lien of a prior registered deed of trust given to secure bondholders when the judgments were not in actions to recover for labor and clerical services performed or to recover damages for a tort or for injuries to property within the meaning of this section. Amoskeag Mfg. Co. v. Yadkin Cotton Mills, 200 N. C. 10, 156 S. E. 101.

II. RELATION TO OTHER SECTIONS.

Editor's Note.—In Boston Safe-Deposit and Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 758, the court makes an exhaustive comparison between this section and section 55-40. The decision reached was that a judgment against a railroad company for a tort causing injury to the person is superior to the mortgage executed after the tort was committed, and that the bringing of the action within 60 days, as provided by section 55-40, did not apply.

See also Finance Co. v. Charleston, etc., R. R., 61 Fed. 369, where the court discusses the history and purpose of this section and section 55-40.

Gives a Different Remedy.—This section was enacted after sections 55-40 and 44-1 and could not have been intended to give the same relief they gave; and it is equally certain it was passed for the benefit of the class of persons mentioned in the enactment, and it is the duty of the court to take into consideration the object for which it was passed and to construe it in that light. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 236, 24 S. E. 22.

Applies to Labor and Torts after Mortgage.— This section must mean such labor performed, and such torts committed after making the mortgage, as the Act was passed in 1879. If it were for liabilities existing prior to making the mortgage, they would have been provided by section 55-40 which was enacted in 1798, and there would have been no need for the enactment of this section. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 234, 24 S. E. 22.

Mechanics' Lien under Sec. 44-1.—The mechanics' lien, under section 44-1 has no preference over a prior registered mortgage. Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 165, 67 S. E. 477.

III. EFFECT ON MORTGAGES.

Refers to Mortgage of Corporation Itself.—This section expressly refers to a mortgage given by the corporation itself, and not to mortgages on the corporate property acquired by a stranger and registered before the formation of the corporation. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

This section does not directly invalidate the mortgages, but notwithstanding the attempted alienation, exposes the corporate property to execution issued upon a judgment recovered upon the causes of action mentioned. Traders National Bank v. Lawrence Mfg. Co., 96 N. C. 298, 308, 3 S. E. 363.

Property Acquired Subject to Prior Mortgage.—This section, which gives to judgments against corporations for labor performed and torts committed priority over prior mortgages executed by the corporation, has no application where the corporation acquired the property subject to such prior mortgage. Humphery Brothers v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 519, 93 S. E. 971; Walker v. Linden Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 87 S. E. 331.

Conveys Nothing.—A mortgage of a corporation conveys nothing as against a subsequent judgment for a tort by the corporation. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 358, 37 S. E. 505; R. R. Co. v. Burnett, 123 N. C. 210, 213, 31 S. E. 602; Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 67 S. E. 1023.

Prior Claim.—A mortgagee of the legal title of property of a corporation, to secure a debt, takes subject to laborers' liens, judgments for torts, and expenses of receivership, and other court proceedings to wind it up, in case of insolvency. Humphery Brothers v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 515, 93 S. E. 971.

Judgment against Lessee.—This section does not make a judgment, against the lessee of a railroad, a lien on the property superior to a mortgage given by the lessor before the lease. And where the road is in the hands of receivers, appointed in a suit to foreclose the mortgages, the judgment creditor has no right to payment from earnings of the road as all rights and interests of the lessee were ended by the appointment of the receiver. Hampton v. Norfolk & W. Ry. Co., 127 Fed. 662.

IV. CERTAIN JUDGMENTS PREFERRED.

A. Labor Performed.

Meaning of Labor.—The word "labor" in legal parlance and as used in this section has a well defined, understood, and accepted meaning. It implies continued exertion of the more onerous and inferior kind, usually and chiefly (prior to the addition of the word "clerical" in the section) consisting in the protracted exertion of muscular force. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 305, 50 S. E. 687.

Foreman Included.—A foreman is a laborer, and the money paid him is entitled to any preference for "labor performed" which is given his co-laborers whom he supervised and with whom he worked. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 50 S. E. 687; Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 167, 67 S. E. 477.

Services Need Not Add to Value of Plant.—Debts of a corporation for labor performed to keep it "a going concern," have a priority over a mortgage previously recorded, although the labor done or materials furnished do not add to the plant or enhance its value. Pocahontas Coal Co. v. Henderson Electric, etc., Co., 118 N. C. 232, 24 S. E. 22.

What Services Excluded.—The words "labor performed," as used in this section, do not embrace such services as superintending the conduct of its milling operations, or conducting a commissary store and keeping the books of the corporation. Moore v. Industrial Co., 138 N. C. 304, 305, 50 S. E. 687, and cases cited. (But note the effect of the addition of the word "clerical" in the section.)

Independent Contractor's Laborers Excluded.—Under this section the preference given for "labor performed" over prior mortgages of corporations is intended to, and does, give such preference only to laborers employed by the corporation in carrying on the ordinary business of the company, including its repairs and up-keep, and does not confer such preference upon contractors who employ labor under a contract to place "betterments" upon the company's property. Cox v. New Bern Lighting & Fuel Co., 152 N. C. 164, 167, 67 S. E. 477.

Prior Judgment Unnecessary.—Under this section it is not necessary that claims for labor should be reduced to a formal judgment before they can be proved and given priority over a mortgage. The decree, adjudging the amount of the claim, is to all intents and purposes such a judgment as will meet the requirements of the statute. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills, etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 194, 204.

B. Torts Committed.

Must Injure Person or Property.—This section expresses a particular intention with regard to a restricted subject-matter, and applies only to torts which injure persons or property. Boston Safe-Deposit & Trust Co. v. Hudson, 68 Fed. 760.

Action against Purchaser. — An insolvent railroad company is not a necessary party to a suit against a purchaser at the foreclosure of a mortgage on its road for an injury while it was operating the road. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 37 S. E. 505.

Remedy for Injured Person. — While this section does not create a lien, it gives to the tort-claimant, who has reduced his claim to judgment, a right (remedy) to follow and subject to the payment of his claim such property as the corporation has disposed of by mortgage, even where the sale under the mortgage had taken place before the judgment has been rendered. Clement v. King, 152 N. C. 456, 464, 67 S. E. 1023.

Judgment Pending Foreclosure Proceedings. — A passenger recovered judgment in the courts of this state against a railroad company for personal injury. At the time, a suit to foreclose a mortgage against the railroad was pending in the federal courts. Held, the judgment in the state court constituted a prior lien on the property of the railroad. Trust Co. v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 183 Fed. 803.

Deed of Trust Subordinate.—While this section does not give a tort claimant a lien for his judgment for the tort committed, it does create a priority and has the effect of rendering a deed of trust subordinate to the judgment. Dial v. Chatham, 70 F. (2d) 21, 23.

§ 55-45. Gas and electric power companies.— Gas and electric light and power companies have power to lay, extend, construct, erect, maintain, repair and remove all necessary or convenient towers, poles, cable wires, conductors, lamps, fixtures, appliances, and appurtenances upon, through and over any roads, streets, avenues, lanes, alleys and bridges within and near any city, town or village where said company is located; and all such roads, streets, lanes, alleys and bridges shall be left in as good condition as they were in at the time of using them as aforesaid: Provided, that the rights and privileges conferred in this section shall not be exercised unless the authorities of such city, town or village first give their consent, and afterwards the said authorities shall have full power to control the location of all towers, poles, wires, conductors and all other fixtures, appliances and appurtenances belonging to or operated by any of said companies. (Rev., s. 1133; 1889 (Pr.), c. 35, s. 2; C. S. 1141.)

§ 55-46: Repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543.

§ 55-47. Actions by attorney-general to prevent ultra vires acts, etc.—In the following cases the attorney-general may, in the name of the state, upon his own information, or upon the complaint of a private party, bring an action against the offending parties for the purpose of—

1. Restraining by injunction a corporation from assuming or exercising any franchise or transacting any business not allowed by its charter.

2. Restraining any person from exercising corporate franchises not granted.

3. Bringing directors, managers, and officers of a corporation, or the trustees of funds given for a public or charitable purpose, to an account for the management and disposition of the property confided to their care.

4. Removing such officers or trustees upon proof of gross misconduct.

5. Securing, for the benefit of all interested, the said property or funds.

6. Setting aside and restraining improper alienations of the said property or funds.

7. Generally compelling the faithful performance of duty and preventing all fraudulent practices, embezzlement, and waste. (Rev., s. 1197; Code, ss. 607, 686; 1901, c. 2, s. 107; C. S. 1143.)

Cross Reference.—As to action by the attorney general to dissolve a corporation, see § 55-126.

Editor's Note.—For article on Powers and Duties of Attorney General, see 16 N. C. Law Rev. 127.

Application. — This section applies when the purpose of the action is not to dissolve a corporation but to preserve it in order that its useful functions may be performed and at the same time that it may not be able to abuse its powers or transcend them. Attorney General v. R. R., 28 N. C. 456, 464.

The above case was decided under the old R. S., ch. 26, sec. 10, the provisions of which are contained in this section.

Art. 5. Directors and Officers.

§ 55-48. Directors.—The business of every corporation shall be managed by its directors, who must be at least three in number, and at all times bona fide stockholders or the guardian of a bona fide stockholder, or the executor or administrator of the estate of a deceased bona fide stockholder, or a director in a corporation which is a bona fide stockholder, in case the corporation is one issuing stock. A corporation may, by its certificate of incorporation or by-laws, determine the number of shares a stockholder must own to qualify him as a director. The directors shall be chosen annually by the stockholders at the time and place provided in the by-laws, and shall hold office for one year and until others are chosen and qualified in their stead; but by so providing in its certificate of incorporation, a corporation may classify its directors in respect to the time for which they will severally hold office, the several classes to be elected for different terms, but no class may be elected for a shorter period than one year, or for a longer period than five years, and the term of office of at least one class must expire in each year. A corporation which has more than one kind of stock may, by so providing in its certificate of incorporation, confer the right to choose the directors of any class upon the stockholders of such class, to the exclusion of the others. One director of every corporation of this state shall be, and only one need be, an actual resident of the state, notwithstanding the provisions of the charter or any other act. (Rev., ss. 1147, 1148; 1901, c. 2, ss. 14, 44; 1937, c. 179; C. S. 1144.)

Cross References.—As to election of directors, see §§ 55-112 to 55-114. As to cumulative voting for directors, see § 55-110. As to production of books at elections, see § 55-108. As to directors' meetings, see §§ 55-105 and 55-106. As to power to declare dividends, see § 55-115 and § 55-116. As to power to make assessments, see § 55-70. As to liability for impairing capital, see § 55-116. As to liability for fraud, see § 55-56. As to directors acting as trustees upon dissolution of the corporation, see § 55-133. As to directors' power to have offices, keep books of the corporation, and hold meetings outside the state, see § 55-105.

Editor's Note. — The 1937 amendment inserted the words "or the guardian of a bona fide stockholder, or the executor or administrator of the estate of a deceased bona fide stockholder, or a director in a corporation which is a bona fide stockholder" in the first sentence.

Director Occupies Fiduciary Relation. — A director of a company occupies a fiduciary relation to the company which, by virtue of his office, he represents in the management of its principal functions. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107. Directors are to be considered and dealt with as trustees or quasi trustees. Besseliew v. Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 67, 97 S. E. 743.

Care Required of Directors. — Good faith alone will not relieve the directors of a corporation from liability to its creditors for damages caused them by their gross mismanagement and neglect of its affairs. Anthony v. Jeffress, 172 N. C. 378, 90 S. E. 414.

They are not, as a rule, responsible for mere errors of judgment (Fisher v. Fisher, 170 N. C. 378, 87 S. E. 113, and authorities cited), nor for slight omissions from which the loss complained of could not have been reasonably expected; but where they accept these positions of trust they are expected and required to give them the care and attention that a prudent man should exercise in like circumstances and are charged with a like duty, usually the care that he shows in the conduct of his own affairs of a similar kind. Besseliew v. Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 97 S. E. 743.

Director Cannot Prefer Himself as Creditor. — A director, who is also a creditor of a corporation, cannot prefer himself to the other creditors in the application of its assets to the security or payment of its debts. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Bank v. Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765; McIver v. Young Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 483, 57 S. E. 169.

Powers of Directors. — It is well settled that the directors of a corporation, unless they are specially restrained by the charter or by-laws, have the power to borrow money with which to conduct its business and to secure payment by mortgage on the corporate property. Wall v. Rothrock, 171 N. C. 388, 88 S. E. 633.

Same—May Loan Money to Corporation. — While a director of a company may lend it money when needed for its benefit, and take a lien upon the corporate property as security for its repayment, provided the transaction be open and entirely fair and capable of strict proof as to its bona fides, yet where a corporation is insolvent a director who is a creditor can not, upon a debt theretofore existing, take advantage of his superior means of information to secure his debt as against other creditors. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107.

Liens of Directors. — Where the directors of a corporation made a bona fide sale of property to it, for value and free from fraud, judgments against the corporation for the purchase price, duly docketed, constitute liens in favor of the directors against the corporate property. Caldwell v. Robinson, 179 N. C. 518, 523, 103 S. E. 75.

Right of Directors to Security. — By taking mortgage on corporate property, when the corporation is in failing circumstances, directors, occupying a fiduciary relation, are not permitted to secure themselves against pre-existing liabilities of the corporation upon which they are already bound. Wall v. Rothrock, 171 N. C. 388, 88 S. E. 633; Caldwell v. Robinson, 179 N. C. 518, 523, 103 N. C. 75.

Right of Corporation to Sue Negligent Directors.—Where the directors or managing officers of a corporation are liable in damages for their willful or negligent failure to exercise the care and attention to the corporate affairs entrusted to them and which they have assumed, an action will lie against them in favor of the corporation, and in case of its insolvency and receivership, in favor of its receiver. Besseliew v. Brown, 177 N. C. 65, 97 S. E. 743.

Cited in Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584.

§ 55-49. Officers, agents, and vacancies.—Every corporation organized under this chapter shall have a president, secretary, and treasurer, to be chosen either by the directors or stockholders, as the by-laws direct, and they shall hold office until others are chosen and qualified in their stead; the president shall be chosen from among the directors; the secretary shall record all the votes of the corporation and directors in a book to be kept for that purpose, and perform such other duties as are assigned to him; the treasurer may be required to give bond for the faithful discharge of his duty in such sum, and with such surety or sureties, as are required by the by-laws. Any two of these offices may be held by the same person, if the body electing so determine. The corporation may have such other officers and agents, who shall be chosen in the manner and hold office for the terms, and upon the conditions, prescribed by the by-laws or determined by the board of directors. Any vacancy occurring among the directors, or in the office of president, secretary or treasurer, shall be filled in the manner provided for in the by-laws; in the absence of such provision the vacancy shall be filled by the board of directors. (Rev., ss. 1149, 1150, 1151; 1901, c. 2, ss. 15, 16, 17; C. S. 1145.)

Cross References.—As to release of mortgage to a corporation by corporate officer, see § 45-42. As to arrest in civil cases, see § 1-410. As to oath of corporation being made by an officer, see § 11-5.

Officers Must Act in Good Faith. — The officers of the company had no right to take advantage of their knowledge of its financial condition to secure a preference for themselves on all its property as to a pre-existing debt. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Electric Light Co. v. Electric Light Co., 116 N. C. 112, 21 S. E. 951; Graham v. Carr, 130 N. C. 271, 274, 41 S. E. 379; Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 251, 50 S. E. 650; Edwards v. Hill Supply Co., 150 N. C. 171, 172, 63 S. E. 742.

Powers of President. — The president of a corporation is not bound by any secret limitation upon the authority usually vested in the chief officer of a corporation; hence a defense to a note, issued by the president of a corporation, that it was unauthorized because of an unwritten by-law is untenable. Phillips v. Interstate Land Co., 176 N. C. 514, 97 S. E. 417.

The president of a corporation under this section has implied power to sign a note and secret limitations on his authority will not be binding on the payee, and a plea of ultra vires by the corporation, having placed its president in a position to mislead plaintiff and cause the loss, will be excluded. White v. Johnson & Sons, 205 N. C. 773, 172 S. E. 370.

Power of General Manager. — The general manager of one of a chain of stores has implied authority to employ clerks by the year, and the corporation is bound by such contract though there exists an undisclosed limitation of the agent's authority to make contracts of employment for more than a month. Strickland v. Kress & Co., 183 N. C. 534, 112 S. E. 30.

Implied Authority of Secretary. — The secretary of an incorporated garage and auto repair company has the implied authority under this section to settle claims made for damages upon the corporation, and one so dealing with him therein will not be bound by a secret limitation of his authority; and upon his own testimony that he was the proper one to be dealt with in this respect, the question of the corporation's liability for his promise to pay the claim is properly presented. Beck v. Wilkins-Ricks Co., 186 N. C. 210, 119 S. E. 235.

Individual Liability of Officers. — Where officers of a corporation knowingly participate in a wrong which is actionable they are jointly and severally liable therefor. Cone v. United Fruit Growers' Ass'n, 171 N. C. 530, 83 S. E. 860.

Necessity for Contract for Compensation. — The cases very generally hold that an officer of a corporation, for services in the course and scope of his official duties, can only recover when compensation therefor has been authoritatively agreed upon in advance. It is not always required that a definite sum be fixed upon, but there must be a previous agreement for compensation existent or in some way expressed so as to bind the company. There can be no recovery on a quantum meruit. Chiles v. United States, etc., Mfg. Co., 167 N. C. 574, 83 S. E. 812, citing Caho v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 147 N. C. 20, 60 S. E. 640.

Removal. — The officers of a corporation created for private purpose have no franchise in their offices, and are removable during the term for which they are appointed, when found to be incompetent or faithless. Eliason v. Coleman, 86 N. C. 236, 240.

Cited in Lloyd & Co. v. Poythress, 185 N. C. 180, 116 S. E. 584.

§ 55-50. Books to be audited on request of stockholders.—Upon request of twenty-five per cent of the stockholders, or of any stockholder or stockholders owning twenty-five per cent of the capital stock, of a private corporation organized under the laws of North Carolina and doing business in this state, it is the duty of the officers of the corporation to have all of its books audited by a competent accountant, so that its financial status may be ascertained. Upon refusal or failure of the corporation to commence the auditing of its books within thirty days after such request, the requesting stockholder or stockholders, after ten days notice to the corporation, may apply to the judge of the district, or to the judge holding the courts of the district, in which the corporation has its residence, either at chambers or term time, at any place in the district, and the judge shall appoint an auditor and require the books to be audited at the expense of the corporation. The officers of the corporation shall render to the auditor any assistance or information they can, and give him access to all of the assets, books, papers, etc., relating to the affairs of the corporation, in order that a proper audit may be made. Upon completion of the audit the auditor shall render a statement to the corporation, and to the petitioning stockholder or stockholders. (1911, c. 174, s. 1; 1913, c. 76, s. 1; C. S. 1146.)

This section is primarily concerned with the protection of the rights of minority stockholders, and has reference to private corporations as distinguished from municipal, public, or quasi public corporations. Cole v. Farmers Bank, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 249, 20 S. E. (2d) 54.

It applies to banking corporations since the statute embraces all domestic corporations organized for profit in which the beneficial interest and pro rata ownership are represented by shares of stock. Cole v. Farmers Bank, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 249, 20 S. E. (2d) 54.

Sufficient Number of Signatures.—The fact that an interlocutory motion of plaintiff stockholders for an audit of defendant corporation under this section was denied because request therefor was not signed by 25 per cent of its stockholders, does not estop them from thereafter moving for the same relief after the corporation had failed to act within the statutory time on another request for audit signed by more than 25 per cent of its stockholders. Cole v. Farmers Bank, etc., Co., 221 N. C. 249, 20 S. E. (2d) 54.

§ 55-51. Loans to stockholders.—No loan of money may be made to a stockholder or officer of a corporation, and if any is made, the officers who made it or assented thereto are jointly and severally liable, to the extent of such loan and interest, for all the debts of the corporation until the repayment of the sum loaned. (Rev., s. 1160; 1901, c. 2, s. 53; C. S. 1147.)

§ 55-52. Forfeiture of corporate charter and organization of new corporation.—Wherever a corporation created under the laws of the state of North Carolina has, on account of failure to make reports to the different state authorities, for such a length of time as to lose its charter and where thereafter, under the laws of the state of North Carolina, a new charter is issued, in the same name as the original corporation, and on behalf of the same corporation, such new corporation shall succeed to the same properties, to the same rights as the original corporation before losing its charter on account of neglect hereinbefore mentioned.

Whenever such new corporation shall have been created, under the laws of this state, all the title, rights and emoluments to the property held by the original corporation shall inure to the benefit of the newer corporation and the new corporation shall issue its stock to the stockholders in the defunct corporation, in the same number and with the same par value as held by the stockholders of the defunct corporation.

Such new corporation shall have the rights and privileges of maintaining any action or cause of action which the defunct corporation might maintain, bring or defend and to all intents and purposes the new corporation shall take the place of the defunct corporation to the same intent and purposes as if the defunct corporation had never expired by reason of its failure to make the reports hereinbefore referred to. (1933, c. 124.)

Editor's Note.—See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 211, for criticism and interpretation of this section.

§ 55-53. Secretary of state may call for special reports.—The secretary of state has power to call for special reports from corporations, of the same character as their regular reports, at such times as he may deem the public interest requires, but no fees shall be charged for filing these special reports. (Rev., s. 1153; C. S. 1149.)

§ 55-54. Secretary of state to publish list of corporations created. — The secretary of state shall annually compile and publish from the records of his office a complete alphabetical list of the original and amended certificates of incorporation filed during the preceding year, together with the location of the principal office of each in this state, the name of the agent in charge thereof, the amount of authorized capital stock, the amount with which business is to be commenced, the amount issued, the date of filing the certificate, and the period for which the corporation is to continue; but the secretary of state and the Commissioner of Banks or the Utilities Commission, as the case may be, shall confer and arrange the statistics so as to prevent the same facts being embodied in the reports of both departments. (Rev., s. 1244; 1901, c. 2, s. 104; 1911, c. 211, s. 10; 1913, c. 198, s. 5; 1931, c. 243, ss. 4, 5; 1933, c. 134, ss. 7, 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 5; C. S. 1150.)

§ 55-55. Liability of officers failing to make reports or making false reports.—If any of the officers neglect or refuse to make any report required of them by law for thirty days after written request so to do by a creditor or stockholder of the corporation, they are jointly and severally liable to the person demanding such report, for the amount of his debt if he is a creditor, or for the amount of his loss if he is a stockholder. If any report or certificate made, or any public notice given, by the officers in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter, is false in any material representation, all the officers who signed the same, knowing it to be false, are jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the corporation contracted while they were stockholders or officers thereof, as a penalty enforceable in the courts of this state only. (Rev., ss. 1154, 1163; 1901, c. 2, ss. 27, 56; C. S. 1151.)

§ 55-56. Liability for fraud.—In case of fraud by the president, directors, managers, or stockholders, in a corporation, the court shall adjudge personally liable to creditors and others injured thereby the directors and stockholders who were concerned in the fraud. (Rev., s. 1155; Code, s. 686; 1901, c. 2, s. 107; C. S. 1152.)

While directors of a corporation are not insurers or guarantors and therefore liable for its debts, yet they are trustees and liable as such for losses attributable to their bad faith, misconduct, or want of care. Townsend v. Williams, 117 N. C. 330, 23 S. E. 461.

Officer Cannot Appropriate Corporate Business.—A corporate officer cannot for himself take business from the corporation. Brite v. Penny, 157 N. C. 110, 72 S. E. 964.

Action by Creditor or Stockholder.—It is settled that an action can be brought by a creditor or stockholder against the officers, including directors, of a corporation, for losses resulting from their fraud or negligence, without having first applied to the corporation to bring such action. Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478; White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 63 S. E. 109; Braswell v. Pamlico Ins., etc., Co., 159 N. C. 628, 75 S. E. 813.

Action in Alleged Fraudulent Merger. — In an action against a corporation charged to be fraudulently in possession of the assets of another corporation which had been merged into it, the officers of the corporation are not necessary parties. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco Works, 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

§ 55-57. Joint and several liability of officers, etc., contribution.—When the officers, directors or stockholders of a corporation are liable to pay its debts, or any part thereof, any person to whom they are liable has a right of action against any one or more of them. And any such officer, director or stockholder has the right of equitable contribution in any action for that purpose against any other officer, director or stockholder who is liable with him for any amount which he has been compelled to pay as provided in this section. (Rev., s. 1156; 1901, c. 2, s. 90; C. S. 1153.)

Corporation Need Not Be Joined.—The directors of a corporation are jointly and severally liable for their torts, and the corporation itself can be joined or not, at the election of the plaintiff, in an action to enforce that liability. Solomon v. Bates, 118 N. C. 311, 24 S. E. 478.

Neither a corporation nor its trustee in bankruptcy was a necessary party defendant to a suit for the defendants' wrong as officers of the corporation in misappropriating the plaintiff's money and notes. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. v. Floyd, 158 N. C. 455, 74 S. E. 465.

§ 55-58. Officers paying may enforce exoneration against corporation.—An officer, director or stockholder who pays a debt of a corporation for which he is made liable by the provisions of this chapter may recover the amount paid, in an action against the corporation for money paid for its use, in which action only the property of the corporation is liable to be taken, and not the property of any stockholder, except as provided in the preceding section. (Rev., s. 1157; 1901, c. 2, s. 91; C. S. 1154.)

§ 55-59. Assets of corporation first exhausted.—No sale or other satisfaction shall be had of the property of a director or stockholder for a debt of the corporation of which he is director or stockholder until judgment be obtained therefor against the corporation and execution thereon returned unsatisfied, or until it is shown to the court that the corporation has no property available for the satisfaction of the indebtedness. (Rev., s. 1158; 1901, c. 2, s. 92; C. S. 1155.)

§ 55-60. No personal liability on corporate manager of partnership.—Any corporation created under this chapter which is a member of a partnership may have its interests in such partnership managed, and may be engaged in or have charge of the management and affairs of such partnership, by and through any of its officers, directors, stockholders, agents and servants, and no such person acting as manager of the interests of any corporation in such partnership, or engaged in or having charge of the management and affairs of such partnership, whether as executive, member of an executive committee or board, employee or otherwise, shall be personally subject to any liability for the debts of such partnership or such corporation. (1933, c. 354, s. 2.)

Art. 6. Capital Stock.

§ 55-61. Classes of stock.—Every corporation has power to create two or more kinds of stock of such classes, with such designations, preferences, and voting powers or restrictions or qualifications thereof as are prescribed by those holding a majority of its outstanding capital stock entitled to vote; and the power to increase or decrease the stock as herein elsewhere provided applies to all or any of the classes of stock; and the preferred stock may, if desired, be made subject to redemption in whole or in part on a pro rata basis at not less than par, at a fixed time or times and price, to be expressed in the certificate thereof; and the holders thereof are entitled to receive, and the corporation is bound to pay thereon, a fixed yearly dividend, to be expressed in the certificate, payable quarterly, half-yearly or yearly, before any dividend is set apart or paid on the common stock, and such dividends may be made cumulative. In case of insolvency, its debts or other liabilities shall be paid in preference to the preferred stock. No corporation shall create preferred stock except by authority given to the board of directors by a vote of at least a majority of the stock entitled to vote at a meeting of the stockholders, duly called for that purpose. Provided, that no new class of stock shall hereafter be created entitled to dividends or shares in distribution of assets in priority to any class of preferred stock already outstanding except with the consent of the holders of record of two-thirds (or such greater amount as may be specified in the charter) of the number of shares of such outstanding preferred stock having voting powers. The terms "general stock" and "common stock" are synonymous. (Rev., s. 1159; 1901, c. 2, s. 19; 1903, c. 660, ss. 2, 3; 1923, c. 155; 1925, c. 118, ss. 2, 2a; 1939, c. 199; C. S. 1156.)

Cross Reference.—As to capital stock without nominal or par value, see § 55-73 et seq.

Editor's Note.—This section was amended by ch. 118, Laws of 1925 by substituting the words "a majority" for the words "two-thirds" in the two places dealing with the vote of stockholders except in the case of banks and building and loan associations. The proviso was also added by the same chapter. This change is in accordance with the change made in section 55-31 by the same act. See editor's note under sec. 55-31. See also, 3 N. C. Law Review 134, 137, for a discussion of this amendment.

The 1939 amendment inserted in the first sentence the words "in whole or in part on a pro rata basis," also the words "or times."

Capital Stock—As Distinguished from Capital. — The capital stock of a corporation, strictly speaking, is the amount in money or property subscribed and paid in or secured to be paid in by the shareholders, and always remains the same unless changed by proper legal authority, while its capital is a broader term and includes all funds, securities, credits, and property of every kind whatever belonging to the corporation, though the words are often used interchangeably in revenue statutes. Person v. Board, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336.

A Trust Fund for Creditors.—The capital stock and property of a corporation, in case of its insolvency, constitute a fund, first, for the satisfaction of its creditors, and next, for its stockholders. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107; Gilmore v. Smathers, 167 N. C. 440, 83 S. E. 823.

Generally speaking, the property and assets of a corporation become, upon its insolvency, a "trust fund" for the benefit of its stockholders and creditors. Mellen v. Moline, etc., Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 366, 9 S. Ct. 781, 33 L. Ed. 178.

Meaning of "Trust Fund."—The term "trust fund," as used in various decisions of the courts in reference to the assets of a corporation, does not imply that upon the insolvency of a corporation, its assets will be administered strictly as a trust for the benefits of all creditors pro rata, but that whenever proceedings under the statute are had, and the court takes charge of the assets through its receiver, it will make equitable distribution, among all the creditors, of all the assets not subject to prior liens or rights. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 20 S. E. 765.

The preferred stock forms a part of the capital stock of the corporation, under this section, entitling the holders to all rights of the stockholder subject to the terms and conditions on which their stock was issued. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 813, 172 S. E. 373.

A preferred stockholder of a corporation is not a creditor of the corporation, and must be confined to his rights as a stockholder. Weaver Power Co. v. Elk Mountain Mill Co., 154 N. C. 76, 69 S. E. 747.

Lien of Preferred Stockholders—Rights of Creditors.—This section fixes the authority of the corporation to issue its preferred stock and the priorities thereof are always subject to the rights of creditors. So an attempt of the corporation to give the preferred stockholders a lien upon its realty in the nature of a mortgage or deed of trust under the provisions of its charter is ineffectual as to the prior rights of creditors. Ellington v. Supply Co., 196 N. C. 784, 147 S. E. 307.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 61, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 55-62. Stock to be paid in money or money's worth; issue for labor or property.—Nothing but money shall be considered as payment for any part of the capital stock of any corporation organized under this chapter, except as herein provided in case of the purchase of property or labor performed. Any corporation may issue stock for labor done or personal property or real estate, or leases thereof, and, in the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the directors as to the value of such labor, property, real estate or leases shall be conclusive. (Rev., ss. 1159, 1160; 1901, c. 2, ss. 19, 53; 1903, c. 660, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 1157.)

Cross Reference.—As to non par value stock issued for services, see § 55-74.

Purposes to Prevent Fraud.—This section was passed in order that such subscriptions may be protected in their integrity and not become a means of deceiving those who deal with the corporation. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906.

Effect of Charter Provision.—A provision in the charter of an incorporated company that the capital stock "shall be issued as full-paid stock," does not permit shares of stock to be issued to stockholders without payment for it by them in money, or its equivalent in property at an honest valuation. Clayton v. Ore Knob Co., 109 N. C. 385, 14 S. E. 36.

Judgment of Directors Arbitrary.—This section makes the judgment of the board of directors, in fixing the value of property of its subscribers to its shares of stock to be accepted in lieu of money, arbitrary and of artificial weight, in the absence of fraud; and where there is no evidence of fraud therein, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly granted. Gover v. Malever, 187 N. C. 774, 122 S. E. 841.

Cash Payment Unnecessary.—It is not essential to a bona fide subscription to stock in a corporation that there be a present payment in cash by the subscriber or that he be solvent; a subscription is considered bona fide whenever made by one who subscribes in good faith, with reasonable expectation and apparent prospect of being able to pay assessments on his stock as they may thereafter be called for. Boushall v. Myatt, 167 N. C. 328, 83 S. E. 352.

Conditional Subscription.—A subscription to stock of a corporation may be made on condition that there shall be no liability until the corporation has received actual subscriptions to its capital stock to a specified amount. Alexander v. North Carolina, etc., Trust Co., 155 N. C. 124, 71 S. E. 69; citing Queen City Printing, etc. Co. v. McAden, 131 N. C. 178, 183, 42 S. E. 575; Perriman v. Alexander, 111 N. C. 427, 428, 16 S. E. 408; Kelly v. Oliver, 113 N. C. 442, 443, 18 S. E. 698.

Illegal Payment.—Under this section a transaction whereby the defendant borrowed a certain sum and bought a half interest in a company, and let the company that he was promoting take it over as soon as it was incorporated, and pay his note, and also issue to him stock as the consideration, was illegal. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 93 S. E. 906.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 61, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 55-63. Stock issued for property; how value ascertained; how stock reported.—Any corporation formed under this chapter may purchase any property necessary for its business, and issue stock to the amount of the value thereof in payment therefor. The stock so issued shall be full-paid stock, and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payment under any of the provisions of this chapter; and in the absence of actual fraud the judgment of the directors as to the value of the property shall be conclusive. In all statements and reports of the corporation to be published or filed, this stock shall not be stated or reported as being issued for cash paid to the corporation, but shall be reported in this respect according to the facts. (Rev., s. 1161; 1901, c. 2, s. 54; C. S. 1158.)

Cross Reference.—As to non par value stock issued for property, see § 55-74.

Evidence of Fraud.—In an action by the receivers of an insolvent corporation to compel the payment of a subscription to stock issued for property acquired by the corporation for the conduct of the business, evidence tending to show a grossly excessive valuation of the property by the directors, knowingly made, is strong evidence of fraud, and may be conclusive thereof. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 76 S. E. 538.

Proceedings Where Property Overvalued. — Although a margin may be allowed for an honest difference of opinion as to value, a valuation grossly excessive, knowingly made, while its acceptance may bind the corporation, is a fraud on creditors, and they may proceed against the stockholders individually who sell the property, as for an unpaid subscription. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906; Hobgood v. Ehlen, 141 N. C. 344, 345, 53 S. E. 857.

Burden of Proof.—The burden of proving that the property was taken in payment at its true value, and, further, that such value was approved by a board of directors acting independently in the interest of the corporation is upon the person who alleges payment. Goodman v. White, 174 N. C. 399, 401, 93 S. E. 906.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 61, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 55-64. Construction companies building railroads, etc., may take stock therein; how issued, valued, and reported.—Corporations having for their object the building or repairing of railroads, water, gas or electric works, tunnels, bridges, viaducts, canals, hotels, wharves, piers, or any like works of internal improvement or public use, may subscribe for, take, pay for, hold, use and dispose of stock or bonds in any corporation formed for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating any such public works; and the directors of any such corporation formed for the purpose of constructing, maintaining and operating any public work of the description aforesaid may accept in payment of any such subscription, or purchase, real or personal property, necessary for the purposes of such corporation, or work, labor and services performed, or materials furnished to, or for, such corporation to the amount of the value thereof, and from time to time issue upon any such subscription or purchase, in such installments or proportions as such directors may agree upon, full-paid stock, in full or partial performance of the whole, or any part of such subscription or purchase, and the stock so issued shall be full-paid stock, and not liable to any further call, nor shall the holder thereof be liable for any further payments. And in all statements and reports of the corporation to be published or filed, this stock shall not be stated, or reported, as being issued for cash paid to the corporation, but shall be reported and published in this respect according to the fact. (Rev., s. 1172; 1901, c. 2, s. 55; C. S. 1159.)

§ 55-65. Liability for unpaid stock.—Where the capital stock of a corporation has not been paid in and the assets are insufficient to satisfy its debts and obligations, each stockholder is bound to pay on each share held by him the sum necessary to complete the amount of such share, as fixed by the charter, or such proportion of that sum as is required to satisfy such debts and obligations; but no person holding stock in any corporation in this state as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, or as collateral security, is personally subject to any liability as a stockholder of the corporation; but the person pledging the stock is considered as holding the same, and is liable as a stockholder accordingly, and the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee, is liable in like manner, and to the same extent, as the testator or intestate, or the ward, or the person interested in such fund, would have been had he been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name. (Rev., s. 1162; 1893, c. 471; 1901, c. 2, s. 22; C. S. 1160.)

In General.—Both under general principles of corporate law, appertaining to the subject, and by this section, stockholders of an insolvent corporation are liable pro rata for their unpaid subscriptions to an amount necessary to liquidate the corporate debts. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 76 S. E. 538; McIver v. Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 57 S. E. 169; Claypoole v. McIntosh, 182 N. C. 109, 111, 108 S. E. 433.

Unpaid Balances to Be Collected.—The capital stock, paid or unpaid, of a corporation being a trust fund for the benefit of creditors, it is the duty of the courts, at the suit of creditors, to require unpaid subscriptions to be collected at least to the extent necessary to pay the unpaid debts of the corporation. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770.

In case of insolvency any unpaid balance may, by proper proceedings, be made available to the extent required for the settlement of outstanding claims. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 468, 76 S. E. 538.

Suspension of Enterprise.—The mere fact, alone, that a proposed corporate enterprise has been suspended affords a subscriber to the capital stock no excuse for not paying his subscription according to his agreement. Raleigh Impr. Co. v. Andrews, 176 N. C. 280, 96 S. E. 1032. Decree affirmed, 178 N. C. 328, 100 S. E. 514.

Agreement Contrary to Section.—No agreement or arrangement between a corporation and its stockholders, whereby the latter are to be released from indebtedness on their subscriptions, will be valid or of any force as against creditors. Marshall Foundry Company v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680; Heggie v. Building and Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 591, 12 S. E. 275. See also, Gilmore v. Smathers, 167 N. C. 440, 83 S. E. 823.

Stockholder Estopped. — Where a person has agreed to become a stockholder in a corporation and has enjoyed the benefits and privileges of membership he cannot, in a suit by the corporation to recover his unpaid subscription, set up as a defense that the corporation was not legally organized. Wadesboro Cotton Mills Co. v. Burns, 114 N. C. 353, 19 S. E. 238; Academy v. Lindsey, 28 N. C. 476; Navigation Co. v. Neal, 10 N. C. 520, 537; R. R. v. Thompson, 52 N. C. 387; Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680.

Same—Preliminary Agreement Broken.—Except in cases of fraud, and then only in restricted instances (Chamberlain v. Trogden, 148 N. C. 139, 61 S. E. 628), a subscriber to stock in a corporation, absolute in terms, may not be relieved of his obligation by reason of nonperformance of conditions attached to a preliminary agreement among some of the members prior to incorporation, a position especially insistent where the rights of creditors have supervened. Marshall Foundry Co. v. Killian, 99 N. C. 501, 6 S. E. 680; North Carolina R. Co. v. Leach, 49 N. C. 340.

Set-Offs.—In a receiver's action to collect unpaid stock subscriptions, a subscriber can not set off a debt due him by the corporation. Vaughan-Robertson Drug Co. v. Grimes-Mills Drug Co., 173 N. C. 502, 92 S. E. 376. Nor can he credit himself with amounts he paid on another subscription. Id.

§ 55-66. Decrease of capital stock.—The decrease of capital stock may be effected by—

1. Retiring or reducing any class of the stock.
2. Drawing the necessary number of shares by lot for retirement.
3. The surrender by every stockholder of his shares and the issue to him in place thereof of a decreased number of shares.
4. The purchase at not above par of certain shares for retirement.
5. Retiring shares owned by the corporation.
6. Reducing the par value of shares.

When a corporation decreases the amount of its capital stock as above provided, the certificate decreasing the same shall be published at least once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper published in the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, the first publication to be made within fifteen days after the decrease has been regularly authorized by the stockholders. In default of such publication the directors of the corporation are jointly and severally liable for all debts of the corporation contracted before the filing of the certificate, and the stockholders are also liable for such sums as they respectively receive of the amount so reduced. No such decrease of capital stock decreases the liability of any stockholder whose shares have not been fully paid, for debts of the corporation theretofore contracted. (Rev., s. 1164; 1901, c. 2, s. 32; 1939, c. 221; C. S. 1161.)

Cross References.—As to decreasing or increasing the amount of capital stock by amendment to the charter, see § 55-31. As to directors' liability for impairing capital stock, see § 55-116. As to capital stock being a trust fund for creditors, see note to § 55-61. As to lack of power of corporation to vote its own stock, see § 55-111.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment struck out the words "filing of the certificate" formerly appearing in the seventh sentence and inserted in lieu thereof the words "decrease has been regularly authorized by the stockholders."

Bona Fide Creditors Protected. — The right to buy in and cancel its own stock may sometimes be exercised by a corporation, but not in derogation of the rights of bona fide creditors. Heggie v. Peoples Building and Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Purpose of Provision for Notice. — This provision as to notice is only necessary to afford the stockholders of a corporation protection against creditors. As between the stockholders the reduction, if otherwise lawful and valid and pursuant to resolutions properly passed, will bind the members, and may be enforced by corporate action. Meisenheimer v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 226, 235, 78 S. E. 161.

While Debts Unpaid.—No part of capital stock can be withdrawn for the purpose of reimbursing the principal of the capital stock until the debts of the corporation are paid. Weaver Power Co. v. Elk Mountain Mill Co., 154 N. C. 76, 69 S. E. 747.

Repurchase of Stock.—This section was held inapplicable to suit by receiver against directors for repurchase of stock by corporation in Thompson v. Shepherd, 203 N. C. 310, 165 S. E. 796.

§ 55-67. Certificates and duplicates. — Every stockholder shall be entitled to have a certificate signed by the president or a vice-president and by the treasurer or an assistant treasurer or the secretary or an assistant secretary of the corporation certifying the number of shares owned by him in such corporation. A corporation may issue a new certificate of stock in the place of any certificate theretofore issued by it, alleged to have been lost or destroyed, and the directors authorizing such issue of a new certificate may require the owner of the lost or destroyed certificate, or his legal representatives, to give the corporation a bond, in such sum as they may direct, as an indemnity against any claim that may be made against the corporation. A new certificate may be issued without requiring any bond when, in the judgment of the directors, it is proper to do so. (Rev., ss. 1165, 1166; 1885, c. 265; 1901, c. 2, s. 94; 1927, c. 173; C. S. 1162.)

Cross References.—As to action to compel issuance of duplicate certificate, see § 55-97. As to procedure when corporation in which lost stock is held merges with another, see § 55-166.

Editor's Note.—The first sentence in this section formerly read, "Every stockholder shall have a certificate signed by the president and treasurer, or secretary, certifying the number of shares owned by him." The present first sentence was added by ch. 173, Public Laws 1927.

Nature of Stock Certificate.—A certificate of stock is simply a written acknowledgment by a corporation of the interest of the holder in its property and franchises. It has no value except that derived from the company issuing it; and its legal status is in the nature of a chose in action. Person v. Board, 184 N. C. 499, 115 S. E. 336.

Evidence of Ownership of Stock.—A certificate for shares is not the stock itself, but constitutes only prima facie evidence of the ownership of that number of shares. Misenheimer v. Alexander, 162 N. C. 226, 78 S. E. 161, citing Cook on Corporations (6th Ed.) § 13; Clark on Corporations, p. 260.

Certificate Unnecessary.—Issuance of stock certificates is unnecessary either to the existence of the corporation or to confer title to the stockholder. Powell Bros. v. McMullan Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 52, 68 S. E. 926.

Reissue—Application of Last Sentence.—The last sentence of this section, relative to the reissue of stock to supply lost certificates, is valid and applies to all incorporated companies, and interferes with the chartered rights of none. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 125 N. C. 124, 34 S. E. 227.

§§ 55-68 and 55-69: Repealed by Public Laws 1941, c. 353, s. 24. Deleted by authority of Session Laws 1943, c. 15, s. 3.

§ 55-70. Assessments, sale, and notice.—The directors of a corporation may, from time to time, make assessments upon the shares of stock subscribed for, not exceeding, in the whole, the par value thereof, remaining unpaid; and the sums assessed shall be paid to the treasurer at such times and by such installments as the directors direct, the directors having given thirty days notice of the assessment and of the time and place of payment, either personally, by mail, or by publication in a newspaper published in the county where the corporation is established. If the owner of any share or shares neglects to pay a sum assessed thereon for thirty days after the time appointed for payment, the treasurer, when ordered by the board of directors, shall sell, at public auction, such share or shares of the delinquent owner as will pay any assessment due from him, with interest, and all necessary incidental charges, and shall transfer the share or shares sold to the purchaser, who is entitled to a certificate therefor. The treasurer shall give notice of the time and place appointed for the sale, and of the sum due on each share, by advertising the same once a week for three successive weeks before the sale in a newspaper published in the county where the principal office of the corporation is located, at the courthouse door, and by mailing a notice thereof to the last known postoffice address of the delinquent stockholder. (Rev., ss. 1169, 1170, 1171; 1901, c. 2, ss. 23, 24, 25; C. S. 1165.)

Assessment as Incumbrance.—Acceptance of an offer of sale of corporation stock cannot be enforced when the proposed purchaser was unaware at the time that there had been an assessment made upon the shares; the usual implied warranty of title applies to such sales. Martin v. McDonald, 168 N. C. 232, 84 S. E. 258.

Setting Aside Sale.—Where the plaintiff's stock has been wrongfully sold, after a legal tender, he is entitled to a mandamus for the issue to him of his certificate of stock upon payment of the amount due on the stock with interest to the date of tender and cost of advertisement. Wilson v. Tel. Co., 139 N. C. 395, 52 S. E. 62.

Cited in Windsor Redrying Co. v. Gurley, 197 N. C. 56, 58, 147 S. E. 676.

§ 55-71. One corporation may purchase stock, etc., of another.—A corporation may purchase stock, securities or other evidences of indebtedness created by any other corporation or corporations of this or any other state, and while owner of such may exercise all the rights, powers and privileges of ownership. (Rev., s. 1173; 1903, c. 660, s. 3; C. S. 1166.)

Cross References.—As to power of corporation to purchase its own stock, see § 55-66. As to lack of power to vote its own stock, see § 55-111.

Corporation May Purchase Its Own Stock.—A corporation, unless restrained by some provision of its organic law, may purchase its own stock from holders thereof, and the latter are entitled to all rights of other creditors of the corporation for the protection and enforcement of their demand for payment. Blalock v. Kernersville Mfg. Co., 110 N. C. 99, 100, 14 S. E. 501.

§ 55-72. Mutual corporations may create stock.—A mutual corporation, upon the consent in writing of all its members, may provide for and create a capital stock and may provide for the payment of the stock, and fix and prescribe the rights and privileges of the stockholders therein not inconsistent with law. (Rev., s. 1245; 1901, c. 2, s. 105; C. S. 1167.)

Art. 7. Capital Stock without Nominal or Par Value.

§ 55-73. Corporations which may create shares without nominal or par value. Classes of stock or debentures.—Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State, whether under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, except banks, trust companies and insurance companies, may, in its original certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter or any amendment thereof, create shares of stock with or without nominal or par value, and may create two or more classes of stock or debentures, any class or classes of which may be with or without nominal or par value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, restrictions and qualifications as shall be fixed in such certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter or amendment thereof, or by resolution adopted by those holding two-thirds of the outstanding capital stock entitled to vote. Subject to any provisions so fixed, every share without nominal or par value shall equal every other such share. (1921, c. 116, s. 1; 1925, c. 262, s. 1; C. S. 1167(a).)

Editor's Note.—This law as passed in 1921 was the first legislation in this state permitting the issuance of non-par stock in corporations. It grew out of a pressing demand to overcome the difficulties in financing corporations, whose stock is either above or below par value, resulting from misrepresentations and misunderstandings arising through the difference between the actual value and face value of stock, and from the blue sky laws which prohibit the sale of new stock unless the actual value and par value correspond, and require that new stock be sold at its actual value. (For a detailed description of these hardships, see 1 N. C. L. Rev. 26.)

New York was the first state to pass such laws (1912), but since that time over half of the states have enacted them. Along with the many advantages of the law are many objections to it and it might be said that the wisdom of such legislation is yet speculative. The article in the Law Review, cited supra, gives an excellent discussion of such problems.

The N. C. Law Review, vol. 3, p. 136, gives an interesting discussion of the changes effected by the 1925 amendment. The first section was stricken and reenacted in the form in which it now appears, several changes having been made.

The provision permitting two thirds of those holding the outstanding capital stock entitled to vote, to create stock with or without par value and fix its status with respect to voting, preference, etc., was inserted. It is pertinent to point out here an apparent inconsistency between this provision and section 55-61 as amended by the acts of 1925 seven days before this statute was passed.

Prior to the 1925 amendment, section 55-61 provided that a two-thirds vote of the outstanding capital stock was necessary to create new stock, including preferred stock. The 1925 amendment changed the two-thirds requirement to a majority vote, (except as to banks and building and loan associations) and further provided that no stock should be created in priority to any existing preferred stock without a two-thirds vote. Therefore, there is an apparent conflict between the provisions of section 55-61, requiring a majority vote, and the provisions of this section, requiring a two-thirds vote for the creation of stock "with or without per value."

The 1925 amendment also inserted the provision that "any class or classes may be with or without par value," the reference to "special acts of the legislature" and the words "charter" and "designations."

§ 55-74. Stock issues; payment for stock; terms and manner of disposition.—The provisions of law relating to the issuance of stock with par value shall apply to the issuance of stock without nominal or par value, and such corporation may issue and dispose of its authorized shares without nominal or par value for such consideration and on such terms and in such manner as may be determined or approved from time to time by the board of directors, subject to such conditions or limitations as may be contained in the certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter, or any amendment thereof or as may be contained in any vote of the holders of a majority of the stock of the corporation, such consideration to be in the form of cash, property, tangible or intangible, services or expenses. Any and all shares without nominal or par value issued for the consideration determined or approved in accordance with the provisions of this section shall be fully paid and not liable to any further call or assessment thereon, nor shall the subscriber or holder be liable for any further payments. (1921, c. 116, s. 2; 1925, c. 262, s. 2; C. S. 1167(b).)

Editor's Note.—The 1925 amendment struck out this section as enacted in 1921 and revised it. While the section is made more comprehensive generally, it would seem the most important change is that the stockholders are now given power to prescribe the consideration, terms and manner of issue and disposal of the stock whereas formerly they exercised such power only with respect to an increase in capital stock.

In some respects, at least, this section is very similar to the corresponding section of the New Jersey Statute. Respecting the similar provision of the New Jersey Statute which provides for fixing the selling price of the stock. Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value" on page 16, says, "This provision is important. The corporation may now issue its stock for what it can get for it, provided proper corporate action is taken. It is no longer bound by the par consideration rule, nor to seek evasions of that rule for its legitimate purposes."

Although the consideration for the stock is fixed as prescribed in this section, it must be remembered that the right to fix such values is statutory and therefore subject to the statutory limitation. The price must be fixed with at least some relation to value and courts of equity would probably interfere to protect stockholders from the issuance of stock for such inadequate consideration as to jeopardize their rights by unduly reducing the value of their stock. For a general treatment of this subject see Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value," section 30-38.

§ 55-75. Statements as to value of shares; reports of amount of stock.—In any case in which the law requires that the par value of the shares of stock of a corporation be stated, it shall be stated, in respect to shares without nominal or par value, that such shares are without nominal or par value, and wherever the amount of stock authorized or issued is required to be stated, if any shares without nominal or par value are authorized, the number of shares authorized or issued of the several classes shall be stated, and it shall also be stated whether such shares are with or without nominal or par value, and what the par value is of such shares as have par value. (1921, c. 116, s. 3; C. S. 1167(c).)

§ 55-76. Amendments to existing charters.—Any corporation, whether organized under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, having outstanding shares either with or without nominal or par value, may amend its certificate of incorporation, articles of association or charter, as follows:

(a) So as to change its shares with nominal or par value or any class thereof into an equal number of shares without nominal or par value; or

(b) So as to provide for the exchange of its shares with nominal or par value, or any class thereof, for an equal or different number of shares without nominal or par value; but all outstanding shares in any class shall be exchanged on the same basis; or

(c) So as to provide for the exchange of its shares without nominal or par value, or any class thereof, for a different number of shares without nominal or par value; but all outstanding shares in any class shall be exchanged on the same basis:

Provided, however, the preferences on liquidation, redemption price, dividend rate and like preferences or limitations lawfully granted or imposed with respect to any class of outstanding stock so changed or exchanged under the provisions hereof, shall not be impaired, diminished or changed as to any nonassenting holders thereof. Such preferences, rights and limitations, however, may be expressed in dollars, or in cents, per share rather than by reference to par value. Whenever such a corporation has heretofore issued shares without nominal or par value, in exchange for an equal or different number of shares with par value, such exchange and the issue of an equal or different number of shares without nominal or par value in consummation of such exchange are hereby validated, ratified and confirmed. (1921, c. 116, s. 4; 1925, c. 262, s. 3; 1931, c. 59; C. S. 1167(d).)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1925 revision this section merely provided that any such corporation "may amend its certificate of incorporation so as to change its certificate of stock from certificates with par value to certificates with non-par or nominal value, or vice versa." All the other provisions making the section more comprehensive are new. The revisal also subdivided the section into paragraphs.

The Act of 1931 struck out the words "such" and "heretofore organized" formerly appearing before and after the word corporation in line one of this section, and inserted after the word "whether" the word "organized."

As to the rights of minority stockholders who object to the exchange of stock with, for stock without, par value, see Wickersham on "Stock without Par Value," sections 24-29, pages 58-73.

§ 55-77. Tax on certificate of incorporation or amendments.—The tax upon the certificate of incorporation, or extension or renewal or corporate existence, or increase of capital stock without nominal or par value shall be the same as if each share of stock had a par or face value of one hundred dollars. (1921, c. 116, s. 5; C. S. 1167(e).)

Cross References.—As to the taxes required, see § 55-158. As to provision for taxing the non par value shares of a foreign corporation, see § 55-118.

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of problems arising in connection with the constitutionality of this section, see Wickersham, "Stock without Par Value," and 17 N. C. L. Rev. 346.

§ 55-78. Intent or purpose of law.—The intent and purpose of this article is to require a share of stock to be treated and represented, subject to lawful preferences, rights, limitations, privileges, and restrictions as a mere evidence of an aliquot part or divisional interest in the assets and earnings of the corporation issuing the same, whatever the extent or value of such assets or earnings may be, to the end that misrepresentation or misunderstanding arising through the difference between actual value of a share of stock and the value appearing on the face of the certificate therefor may be eliminated. (1921, c. 116, s. 6; C. S. 1167(f).)

§ 55-79. Laws applicable to corporations.—Except as otherwise provided by this article, corporations issuing shares without any par or face value under the provisions hereof shall be and remain subject to the laws of the state now or hereafter in force relating to the formation, regulation, or reorganization rights, powers, and privileges of such corporations, and all other laws applicable thereto. (1921, c. 116, s. 7; C. S. 1167(g).)

§ 55-80. Provision for future exchange of par value stock for non-par value stock.—Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under the laws of this State, whether under a special act of Legislature or otherwise, except banks, trust companies, and insurance companies, may, in its original certificate of incorporation, articles of association, charter, or any amendment thereof, provide for the exchange of its shares to be issued with nominal or par value for an equal or different number of outstanding shares without nominal or par value. (1929, c. 338, s. 1.)

Cross Reference.—As to railroads, see also § 60-11.

Art. 8. Uniform Stock Transfer Act.

§ 55-81. How title to certificates and shares may be transferred.—Title to a certificate and to the shares represented thereby can be transferred only:

(a) By delivery of the certificate indorsed either in blank or to a specified person by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner of the shares represented thereby, or

(b) By delivery of the certificate and a separate document containing a written assignment of the certificate or a power of attorney to sell, assign, or transfer the same or the shares represented thereby, signed by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner of the shares represented thereby. Such assignment or power of attorney may be either in blank or to a specified person.

The provisions of this section shall be applicable although the charter or articles of incorporation or code of regulations or by-laws of the corporation issuing the certificate and the certificate itself, provide that the shares represented thereby shall be transferable only on the books of the corporation or shall be registered by a registrar or transferred by a transfer agent. (1941, c. 353, s. 1.)

Cross References.—As to the sale of shares of stock of a foreign corporation held by a life tenant, see § 55-119. See also § 55-69.

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 469. The cases annotated here were decided under former § 1164.

In General.—Although shares of stock are personal property and are transferable on the books of the corporation as provided by the by-laws, such provision, it is held, can be of no practical benefit to those not connected with the corporation, because they have "no means of knowing whether the transfer has been made or not." Castelloe v. Jenkins, 186 N. C. 166, 172, 119 S. E. 202.

Transfer on Books Not Necessary.—It is well settled that the requirement of this section as to entering transfers of stock upon the books of the corporation is for the protection of the corporation, and that the failure to enter such transfer upon the corporate books has no effect upon the legality of the transfer as between the parties themselves. Grissom v. Sternberger, 10 Fed. (2d) 765, 766 citing numerous cases.

Duty of the Corporation.—It is the duty of the corporation to protect persons interested, such as contingent remaindermen or legatees when the corporation has knowledge of the contents of the will, from an unauthorized transfer of stock. Wooten v. Railroad, 128 N. C. 119, 38 S. E. 298; Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 92 S. E. 170.

Requests by Representatives.—If an agent makes a demand for a transfer the corporation must look to the power of attorney; if an executor, to the will; if an administrator to his letters, because these are the sources of power. Baker v. Railroad, 173 N. C. 365, 369, 92 S. E. 170.

Holder Has Preference.—The holder of the stock either as a purchaser or a pledgee has the preference over an attaching creditor although the transfer of the stock has not been entered on the books of the corporation. Bleakly v. Candler, 169 N. C. 16, 20, 84 S. E. 1039.

Corporation May Trade in Own Stock.—Shares of stock are declared by this section to be personal property, and may be sold or purchased by the corporation which has created them. Byrd v. Tidewater Power Co., 205 N. C. 589, 591, 172 S. E. 183.

Transfer of Title.—Where the holder and owner of stock surrenders the certificates to the corporation and directs the corporation to transfer same on its books, the transferee acquires title which is perfected by the surrender or delivery of the new certificate to him. Jones v. Waldroup, 217 N. C. 178, 7 S. E. (2d) 366.

§ 55-82. Powers of those lacking full legal capacity and of fiduciaries not enlarged.—Nothing in this article shall be construed as enlarging the powers of an infant or other person lacking full legal capacity, or of a trustee, executor or administrator, or other fiduciary, to make a valid indorsement, assignment or power of attorney. (1941, c. 353, s. 2.)

§ 55-83. Corporation not forbidden to treat registered holder as owner.—Nothing in this article shall be construed as forbidding a corporation;

(a) To recognize the exclusive right of a person registered on its books as the owner of shares to receive dividends, and to vote as such owner, or

(b) To hold liable for calls and assessments a person registered on its books as the owner of shares. (1941, c. 353, s. 3.)

§ 55-84. Title derived from certificate extinguishes title derived from a separate document.—The title of a transferee of a certificate under a power of attorney or assignment not written upon the certificate, and the title of any person claiming under such transferee, shall cease and determine if, at any time prior to the surrender of the certificate to the corporation issuing it, another person, for value in good faith, and without notice of the prior transfer, shall purchase and obtain delivery of such certificate with the indorsement of the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner thereof, or shall purchase and obtain delivery of such certificate and the written assignment or power of attorney of such person, though contained in a separate document. (1941, c. 353, s. 4.)

§ 55-85. Delivery of certificate by one without authority or right of possession.—The delivery of a certificate to transfer title in accordance with the provisions of § 55-81, is effectual, except as provided in § 55-87, though made by one having no right of possession and having no authority from the owner of the certificate or from the person purporting to transfer the title. (1941, c. 353, s. 5.)

§ 55-86. Indorsement effectual in spite of fraud, duress, mistake, revocation, death, incapacity or lack of consideration or authority.—The indorsement of a certificate by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner of the shares represented thereby is effectual, except as provided in § 55-87, though the indorser or transferor;

(a) was induced by fraud, duress or mistake, to make the indorsement or delivery, or

(b) has revoked the delivery of the certificate, or the authority given by the indorsement or delivery of the certificate, or

(c) has died or become legally incapacitated after the indorsement, whether before or after the delivery of the certificate, or

(d) has received no consideration. (1941, c. 353, s. 6.)

§ 55-87. Rescission of transfer.—If the indorsement or delivery of a certificate.

(a) was procured by fraud or duress, or

(b) was made under such mistake as to make the indorsement or delivery inequitable; or

If the delivery of a certificate was made

(c) without authority from the owner, or

(d) after the owner's death or legal incapacity, the possession of the certificate may be reclaimed and the transfer thereof rescinded, unless,

(1) The certificate has been transferred to a purchaser for value in good faith without notice of any facts making the transfer wrongful, or

(2) The injured person has elected to waive the injury, or has been guilty of laches in endeavoring to enforce his rights.

Any court of appropriate jurisdiction may enforce specifically such right to reclaim the possession of the certificate or to rescind the transfer thereof and, pending litigation, may enjoin the further transfer of the certificate or impound it. (1941, c. 353, s. 7.)

§ 55-88. Rescission does not invalidate subsequent transfer by transferee in possession.—Although the transfer of a certificate or of shares represented thereby has been rescinded or set aside, nevertheless, if the transferee has possession of the certificate or of a new certificate representing part or the whole of the same shares of stock, a subsequent transfer of such certificate by the transferee, mediately or immediately, to a purchaser for value in good faith, without notice of any facts making the transfer wrongful, shall give such purchaser an indefeasible right to the certificate and the shares represented thereby. (1941, c. 353, s. 8.)

§ 55-89. Delivery of unindorsed certificate imposes obligation to indorse.—The delivery of a certificate by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner thereof without the indorsement requisite for the transfer of the certificate and the shares represented thereby, but with intent to transfer such certificate or shares, shall impose an obligation, in the absence of an agreement to the contrary, upon the person so delivering, to complete the transfer by making the necessary indorsement. The transfer shall take effect as of the time when the indorsement is actually made. This obligation may be specifically enforced. (1941, c. 353, s. 9.)

§ 55-90. Ineffectual attempt to transfer amounts to a promise to transfer.—An attempted transfer of title to a certificate or to shares represented thereby without delivery of the certificate shall have the effect of a promise to transfer and the obligation, if any, imposed by such promise shall be determined by the law governing the formation and performance of contracts. (1941, c. 353, s. 10.)

§ 55-91. Warranties on sale of certificate.—A person who for value transfers a certificate, including one who assigns for value a claim secured by a certificate, unless a contrary intention appear, warrants;

(a) that the certificate is genuine,

(b) that he has a legal right to transfer it, and

(c) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair the validity of the certificate.

In the case of an assignment of a claim secured by a certificate, the liability of the assignor upon such warranty shall not exceed the amount of the claim. (1941, c. 353, s. 11.)

§ 55-92. No warranty implied from accepting payment of a debt.—A mortgagee, pledgee, or other holder for security of a certificate who in good faith demands or receives payment of the debt for which such certificate is security, whether from a party to a draft drawn for such debt, or from any other person, shall not by so doing be deemed to represent or to warrant the genuineness of such certificate, or the value of the shares represented thereby. (1941, c. 353, s. 12.)

§ 55-93. No attachment or levy upon shares unless certificate surrendered or transfer enjoined.—No attachment or levy upon shares of stock for which a certificate is outstanding shall be valid until such certificate be actually seized by the officer making the attachment or levy, or be surrendered to the corporation which issued it, or its transfer by the holder be enjoined. Except where a certificate is lost or destroyed, such corporation shall not be compelled to issue a new certificate for the stock until the old certificate is surrendered to it. (1941, c. 353, s. 13.)

Cross Reference.—As to attachment of shares of stock, see §§ 1-458 to 1-460.

§ 55-94. Creditor's remedies to reach certificate.—A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a certificate shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction and otherwise, in attaching such certificate or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity, in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (1941, c. 353, s. 14.)

§ 55-95. No lien or restriction unless indicated on certificate.—There shall be no lien in favor of a corporation upon the shares represented by a certificate issued by such corporation and there shall be no restriction upon the transfer of shares so represented by virtue of any by-laws of such corporation, or otherwise, unless the right of the corporation to such lien or the restriction is stated upon the certificate. (1941, c. 353, s. 15.)

§ 55-96. Alteration of certificate does not divest title to shares.—The alteration of a certificate, whether fraudulent or not and by whomsoever made, shall not deprive the owner of his title to the certificate and the shares originally represented thereby, and the transfer of such a certificate shall convey to the transferee a good title to such certificate and to the shares originally represented thereby. (1941, c. 353, s. 16.)

§ 55-97. Lost or destroyed certificate.—Where a certificate has been lost or destroyed, a court of competent jurisdiction may order the issue of a new certificate therefor on service of process upon the corporation and on reasonable notice by publication, and in any other way which the court may direct, to all persons interested, and upon satisfactory proof of such loss or destruction and upon the giving of a bond with sufficient surety to be approved by the court to protect the corporation or any person injured by the issue of the new certificate from any liability or expense, which it or they may incur by reason of the original certificate remaining outstanding. The court may also in its discretion order the payment of the corporation's reasonable costs and counsel fees.

The issues of a new certificate under an order of the court as provided in this section, shall not relieve the corporation from liability in damages to a person to whom the original certificate has been or shall be transferred for value without notice of the proceedings or of the issuance of the new certificate: Provided, nothing in this section shall prevent the issuance of a new stock certificate in the place of a lost or destroyed certificate in accordance with the provisions of § 55-67. (1941, c. 353, s. 17.)

Cross References.—As to the issuance of duplicate certificates, see also §§ 55-67 and 55-68. As to procedure when corporation in which stock is held merges with another, see § 55-166.

Editor's Note.—The case annotated here was decided under former § 1163.

Loss Question of Fact.—Where a stockholder in an unincorporated company loses his certificate of stock and sues his company for a reissue and the allegation of loss is denied, an issue of fact is raised for trial by jury and it must be submitted to them. Hendon v. North Carolina R. Co., 125 N. C. 124, 34 S. E. 227.

§ 55-98. Rules for cases not provided for by this article.—In any case not provided for by this article, the rules of law and equity, including the law merchant, and in particular the rules relating to the law of principal and agent, executors, administrators and trustees, and to the effect of fraud, misrepresentation, duress or coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other invalidating cause, shall govern. (1941, c. 353, s. 18.)

§ 55-99. Interpretation of article.—This article shall be so interpreted and construed as to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform the law of those states which enact it. (1941, c. 353, s. 19.)

§ 55-100. Definition of indorsement.—A certificate is indorsed when an assignment or a power of attorney to sell, assign, or transfer the certificate or the shares represented thereby is written on the certificate and signed by the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner of the shares represented thereby, or when the signature of such person is written without more upon the back of the certificate. In any of such cases a certificate is indorsed though it has not been delivered. (1941, c. 353, s. 20.)

§ 55-101. Definition of person appearing to be the owner of certificate.—The person to whom a certificate was originally issued is the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner thereof, and of the shares represented thereby, until and unless he indorses the certificate to another specified person, and thereupon such other specified person is the person appearing by the certificate to be the owner thereof until and unless he also indorses the certificate to another specified person. Subsequent special indorsements may be made with like effect. (1941, c. 353, s. 21.)

§ 55-102. Other definitions.—(1) In this article, unless the context or subject matter otherwise requires—

"Certificate" means a certificate of stock in a corporation organized under the laws of this state or of another state whose laws are consistent with this article.

"Delivery" means voluntary transfer of possession from one person to another.

"Person" includes a corporation or partnership or two or more persons having a joint or common interest.

To "purchase" includes to take as mortgagee or as pledgee.

"Purchaser" includes mortgagee and pledgee.

"Shares" means a share or shares of stock in a corporation organized under the laws of this state or of another state whose laws are consistent with this article.

"State" includes state, territory, district and insular possession of the United States.

"Transfer" means transfer of legal title.

"Title" means legal title and does not include a merely equitable or beneficial ownership or interest.

"Value" is any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract. An antecedent or pre-existing obligation, whether for money or not, constitutes value where a certificate is taken either in satisfaction thereof or as security therefor.

(2) A thing is done "in good faith" within the meaning of this article, when it is in fact done honestly, whether it be done negligently or not. (1941, c. 353, s. 22.)

§ 55-103. Article does not apply to existing certificates.—The provisions of this article apply only to certificates issued after March 15, 1941. (1941, c. 353, s. 23.)

Editor's Note.—This act became effective March 15, 1941.

§ 55-104. Name of article.—This article may be cited as the Uniform Stock Transfer Act. (1941, c. 353, s. 26.)

Art. 9. Meetings, Elections and Dividends.

§ 55-105. Place of stockholders' and directors' meetings.—The meetings of the stockholders of every corporation of this state shall be held at the principal office in this state. The directors may hold their meetings, and have an office and keep the books of the corporation (except the stock and transfer books) outside the state. Every corporation shall maintain a principal office in this state, and have an agent in charge thereof. (Rev., s. 1179; 1901, c. 2, s. 49; C. S. 1168.)

Cross References.—As to first meeting of a corporation, see § 55-6. As to the stock and transfer books, see § 55-107. As to power of court to compel corporation to bring its books into the state, see § 55-109. As to changing the location of the principal office, see § 55-34.

Where Charter Provision Contrary.—Although the act incorporating a company provided that Norfolk, Virginia, should be the place of its principal office, it was held in Simmons v. Norfolk & Baltimore, etc., Co., 113 N. C. 147, 18 S. E. 117, that it is the duty of a corporation to keep its principal place of business, its books and records and its principal officers within the state which incorporates it, to an extent necessary to the fullest jurisdiction and visitorial power of the state and its courts, and the efficient exercise thereof in all proper cases which concern said corporations. Roberson v. Johnson Lumber Co., 153 N. C. 120, 122, 68 S. E. 1064.

Scope of Meetings.—The scope of a special meeting of stockholders is limited to the purpose stated in the notice thereof; business action beyond this scope is void unless all stockholders are present, consent, or subsequently ratify it. Asbury v. Mooney, 173 N. C. 454, 92 S. E. 267.

Must Act in Meeting.—It is essential to the validity of the acts of stockholders of a corporation that they should be assembled in their representative capacity as they are not permitted to discharge any of their duties as stockholders unless so organized. Hill v. Railroad, 143 N. C. 539, 55 S. E. 854, citing Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 131, 10 S. E. 1017.

Same—Individual Assent Invalid. — The assent of a majority of stockholders, expressed elsewhere than at a meeting of the stockholders, as where the assent of each is given separately and at different times to a person who goes around to them privately, does not bind the company. Duke v. Markham, 105 N. C. 131, 10 S. E. 1017.

Necessity for Notice.—In order to protect the rights of minorities the law requires that notice of the meetings of the stockholders of a corporation shall be given to every shareholder, either by the method prescribed in the charter or by-laws or by express notice; but where it appears that every person interested had express notice and participated in a meeting, there is no necessity for proving a compliance with section 55-6 as to such notice. Benbow v. Cook, 115 N. C. 325, 20 S. E. 453.

Meetings of Directors.—To make the proceedings of a meeting of the directors of a corporation regular, it must be at a stated time provided for in the charter or by-laws or held after notice to all of the directors. First Nat. Bank v. Asheville, etc., Lumber Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948.

Same—Necessity for Notice.—The acts of the majority of the directors at a meeting held at an unusual time and place, without notice to the other directors, are not valid. First Nat. Bank v. Asheville, etc., Lumber Co., 116 N. C. 827, 21 S. E. 948.

§ 55-106. Meeting called by three stockholders.—When, for any reason, a legal meeting of the stockholders of any corporation cannot be otherwise called, three stockholders with voting power may call such meeting by publishing in a newspaper published in the county in which the principal office in this state is located ten days notice of the time, place and purposes of the meeting, and mailing this notice to all stockholders whose postoffice addresses are known or can be ascertained. A meeting so called is a legal meeting of the corporation, and if there are no officers present, the stockholders may elect officers for the meeting; and the secretary of the meeting shall record the proceedings thereof in the minute book of the corporation. (Rev., s. 1190; 1901, c. 2, s. 51; C. S. 1169.)

§ 55-107. Transfer and stock books.—Every corporation shall keep at its principal and registered office in this state the transfer books, in which the transfer of stock shall be registered, and the stock books, which shall contain the names and addresses of the stockholders, and the number of shares held by them respectively, and shall at all times during the usual hours for business be open to the examination of every stockholder. These books shall be the only evidence as to who are the stockholders entitled to examine them, and to vote at elections. In case the right to vote upon any share of stock is questioned, the stock books of the corporation shall be referred to, to ascertain who are the stockholders, and in case of a discrepancy between the books, the transfer book shall control and determine who are entitled to vote. (Rev., ss. 1180, 1181; 1901, c. 2, ss. 38, 45; C. S. 1170.)

§ 55-108. Directors to produce books at election.—The board of directors shall produce at the time and place of elections the transfer books and the stock books, there to remain during the election, and the neglect or refusal of the directors to produce the same after a demand therefor shall render them ineligible to any office at such election. All elections of directors held under this chapter prior to February 28, 1913, where these books were not produced, and no demand was made therefor, are ratified and confirmed and given full legal force and effect. (Rev., s. 1180; 1901, c. 2, s. 38; 1913, c. 14; C. S. 1171.)

§ 55-109. Superior court may require production.—The superior court may, upon proper cause shown, order any or all of the books of the corporation to be forthwith brought within this state, and kept therein at such place and for such time as is designated in such order. The charter of any corporation failing to comply with such order may be declared forfeited by the court making the order, and all its directors and officers shall be liable to be punished for contempt of court for disobedience of the order. (Rev., s. 1179; 1901, c. 2, s. 49; C. S. 1172.)

Cross References.—As to jurisdiction of superior court upon dissolution of corporation, see § 55-134. As to jurisdiction of superior court over elections, see § 55-114.

§ 55-110. Votes stockholders entitled to; cumulative voting.—Unless otherwise provided in the charter or by-laws of a corporation, at every election each stockholder is entitled to one vote in person, or by proxy duly authorized in writing, for each share of the capital stock held by him, but no proxy may be voted after three years from its date; nor may there be voted at any election a share of stock which has been transferred on the books of the corporation within twenty days prior to the election. The certificate of incorporation of any corporation authorized to issue shares of capital stock may provide that at all elections of directors, managers, or trustees, each stockholder is entitled to as many votes as equal the number of his shares of stock multiplied by the number of directors, managers, or trustees to be elected, and that he may cast all of his votes for a single director, manager, or trustee, or may distribute them among the number to be voted for, or any two or more of them, as he sees fit. This right of cumulative voting may be exercised in the absence of charter provision when at the time of the election the stock transfer book of such corporation discloses, or it otherwise appears, that more than one-fourth of the capital stock of the corporation is owned or controlled by one person. A stockholder owning or controlling more than twenty-five per cent of the stock has the same right to vote cumulatively as any other stockholder; and no amendment of the charter or by-laws of a corporation can abrogate or abridge any right herein conferred. The right to vote cumulatively cannot be exercised unless some stockholder announces in open meeting, before the voting for directors, trustees, or managers begins, his purpose to exercise such right, and then every other stockholder may likewise vote cumulatively. (Rev., ss. 1183, 1184; 1907, c. 457, s. 1; 1909, c. 827, s. 1; C. S. 1173.)

When Cumulative Voting Applies.—It is impossible for a person to vote cumulative upon a single proposition. It is only when several persons are voted for at the same time that the voter can "cumulate" his votes. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 218, 63 S. E. 892.

The right to cumulative voting is not given generally, but only in the election of officers. It could not apply to other matters, as the motion to adjourn, for instance, where there is only one proposition and nothing to "cumulate" upon. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 220, 63 S. E. 892.

Voting Trust Illegal.—An agreement which deprives the stockholders of the right to vote is contrary to public policy and void. Harvey v. Improvement Co., 118 N. C. 693, 24 S. E. 489; Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 778, 64 S. E. 894.

Same—Not a Proxy.—An agreement pooling stock in a corporation which creates a voting trust, with absolute powers to decide upon matters arising for a period exceeding three years cannot be considered as a proxy authorized by this section for a proxy is only good for the period of three years. Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 777, 64 S. E. 894.

A proxy cannot be made irrevocable. Sheppard v. Rockingham Power Co., 150 N. C. 776, 777, 64 S. E. 894.

§ 55-111. Stock held by fiduciary, pledgor, life tenant, or corporation. — Every person holding stock as executor, administrator, guardian or trustee, or in any other representative or fiduciary capacity, may represent it at all meetings of the corporation, and may vote it as a stockholder, with the same effect as if the absolute owner thereof, unless the instrument creating the trust provides to the contrary. Every person who has pledged his stock as collateral security may represent it at all such meetings, and may vote it as a stockholder, unless in the transfer to the pledgee on the books of the corporation he has expressly empowered the pledgee to vote it, in which case only the pledgee or his proxy may represent and vote said stock. Where stock is owned by, or has been transferred on its record books to, one for life and remainder over, the life tenant at all meetings of the corporation may represent and vote the stock in person or by proxy, in the same manner and with the same effect as if he were the absolute owner thereof. Shares of stock of a corporation belonging to the corporation cannot be voted directly or indirectly. (Rev., ss. 1185, 1186, 1187; 1901, c. 2, ss. 42, 43; 1901, c. 474, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1174.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of a corporation to purchase its own stock, see §§ 55-66 and 55-71.

When Trustee May Vote.—When the terms and provisions of a will, bequeathing a life interest in certain shares of stock in a corporation, are construed to be that the shares are to be held and controlled by trustees therein named as executors and trustees, the trustees may vote the same in stockholders' meetings under this section and the provisions for voting of the shares by the life tenant has no application. Haywood v. Wright, 152 N. C. 421, 422, 67 S. E. 982.

Assignee Empowered to Vote.—A written agreement assigning stock in a corporation with authority to vote, reserving to the assignors who retain possession the right to all dividends, amounts only to a proxy. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 63 S. E. 892.

Applied in Wolf v. Citizens Bank, etc., Co., 92 F. (2d) 233.

§ 55-112. Election of directors.—All elections for directors shall be by ballot, unless otherwise provided in the charter or by-laws, and a majority of the issued and outstanding stock must be present in person or by proxy; the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be the directors. (Rev., s. 1182; 1901, c. 2, s. 39; 1927, c. 138; C. S. 1175.)

Cross Reference.—As to directors in general, see § 55-48, and cross references and annotations thereunder.

Editor's Note.—This section formerly contained this additional provision: "The polls must remain open one hour, unless all the stockholders are present in person or by proxy and have sooner voted, or unless all the stockholders waive this provision in writing." This sentence was stricken out by ch. 138, Public Laws 1927.

Effect of Motion of Adjournment.—When a motion to adjourn a stockholders' meeting has been carried, and a sufficient number have withdrawn to reduce the number of those present below a majority of all the stock issued and outstanding, an election of officers cannot be lawfully held thereafter at that meeting, though the adjournment was carried by an illegal vote. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 63 S. E. 892.

§ 55-113. Failure to hold election.—If the election for directors of a corporation is not held on the day designated by the charter or by-laws, the directors shall cause the election to be held as soon thereafter as is convenient. No failure to elect directors at the designated time shall work any forfeiture or dissolution of the corporation; and if the directors fail or refuse for thirty days after receiving a written request for such election from those owning one-tenth of the outstanding stock, to call a meeting for the election, the judge of the district, or the judge presiding in the courts of the district, in which the principal office of the corporation is located, may, upon the application of any stockholder, and on notice to the directors, order an election or make such other order as justice requires. The proceedings governing the issuance and hearing of injunctions shall, as far as applicable, govern such hearing. (Rev., s. 1188; 1901, c. 2, s. 46; C. S. 1176.)

Mandamus Cannot Issue.—A mandamus sought under the provisions of this and the following section cannot issue to compel the reconvening of the stockholders for the election of directors because of an illegal adjournment to a certain date by unlawful voting of stock, when that date has passed but the provisions of this section should be followed. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

When Meeting Ordered by Judge.— A meeting of the stockholders of a corporation, ordered, upon application, by the judge in accordance with the provisions of this section, must be composed of a majority of shares held twenty days before such meeting, as it appears from the stock book, or, in case of a discrepancy, the transfer book of the corporation. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

Notice.—The notice of a meeting called under this section by custom and by analogy to section 55-106 should be mailed to all stockholders whose addresses are known. Bridgers v. Staton, 150 N. C. 216, 217, 63 S. E. 892.

Stated in In re Hotel Raleigh, 207 N. C. 521, 527, 177 S. E. 648.

§ 55-114. Jurisdiction of superior court over corporate elections.—Whenever there shall be any dispute with reference to the election of directors by the stockholders of any corporation in the hands of a receivership, or whenever there shall be any dispute with reference to the election of officers of any corporation by directors or stockholders, if the stockholders elect the officers, the resident or presiding judge of the district may, after ten days' notice to the stockholders, or to the directors as the case may be, hear at chambers, in the county in which the principal office of the corporation is situated, evidence in the form of affidavits as to dispute, and may continue from time to time such hearing for the purpose of establishing facts with reference thereto to his satisfaction; and upon the completion of his hearing may order a new election or may declare the result of the election so held, or may continue the directors or officers, as the case may be, until a new election shall be held: Provided, however, that no order shall be entered temporarily affecting the status of the corporation. With reference to notice, evidence, and the findings by the judge hearing the same, the proceedings shall be, as far as possible, the same as in injunctions. (Rev., s. 1189; 1901, c. 2, s. 47; 1935, c. 413; 1937, c. 347; C. S. 1177.)

Cross References.—As to power of superior court to compel production of books, see § 55-109. As to superior court's jurisdiction upon dissolution of corporation, see § 55-134.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1937 amendment this section contained a provision for the appointment of receivers, which was inserted by the 1935 amendment.

Failure to Elect Directors.—A proceeding based upon the failure of stockholders of a corporation to elect directors at the annual meeting held for that purpose is a proceeding under this section, and notice in writing signed by complainant served on the adverse parties by the sheriff ten days before the date designated for the hearing of the complaint confers jurisdiction upon the judge of the Superior Court over the parties and subject-matter of the proceeding, and the conditions precedent to proceedings under section 55-113, are not applicable. In re Hotel Raleigh, 207 N. C. 521, 177 S. E. 648.

In this proceeding the corporation is neither a necessary nor a proper party, nor may its rights be affected, and the judge of the Superior Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver for the corporation in such proceeding. Id.

§ 55-115. When dividend declared.—The directors of every corporation created under this chapter shall, in January of each year, unless some specific time for that purpose is fixed in its charter, or by-laws, and in that case at the time so fixed, after reserving, over and above its capital stock paid in, as a working capital for the corporation, whatever sum has been fixed by the stockholders, declare a dividend among its stockholders of the whole of its accumulated profits exceeding the amount reserved, and pay it to the stockholders on demand. The corporation may, in its certificate of incorporation or by-laws, give the directors power to fix the amount to be reserved as a working capital. (Rev., s. 1191; 1901, c. 2, s. 52; C. S. 1178.)

Profits Must Be Earned.—Stock dividends may be declared by a solvent corporation from its profits, where the total amount of the stock is kept within the charter limits and the profits have really been earned. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 466, 76 S. E. 538.

Dividend Must Not Impair Capital Stock or Working Capital.—Neither the capital stock of the corporation, paid in and outstanding, nor its working capital as fixed pursuant to the provisions of this section, may be impaired by the payment of a dividend, under any circumstances. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Determining Accumulated Profits Available for Dividend.—For the purpose of determining the amount of accumulated profits to be declared and paid as a dividend, it is necessary that the true value of the assets, in cash, and not the mere book value should be ascertained in view of the restrictions of § 55-116. There should be deducted from such amount the capital stock, the working capital, and all other liabilities of the corporation. For this purpose the amount reserved for depreciation is a liability. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Where, in a suit to require that dividends be paid stockholders, it was not error for the court to refuse to order all profits, as shown by the company's statements for the years 1940-41, paid out in cash dividends, such profits being subject to deductions for income taxes, allowance for bad debts, and inventory adjustments; but the court erred in allowing a ten per cent deduction from such profits to cover probable expense, and the order should have directed the payment in dividends of the full net profits, the company showing at the end of 1941 a surplus of $38,000 on a capital of $7,800. Amick v. Coble, 222 N. C. 484, 23 S. E. (2d) 854.

Mandamus to Compel Dividends.—Where, under the provisions of this section, the accumulated profit of a private corporation in excess of the working capital has been ascertained, the directors are without authority to carry it to the surplus fund, and upon the demand of the stockholders it must be distributed into dividends in accordance with the requirements of the statute, and mandamus will lie to compel such distribution. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 141 S. E. 344.

Stock Dividend May Be Declared.—The issuance of paid-up stock as a dividend cannot be attacked by an existent creditor, nor by one who has notice of the facts, since it withdraws nothing from the corporation or in any way depletes its assets. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 466, 76 S. E. 538.

Effect of Sale.—A sale of corporate stock carries dividends not yet payable. Burroughs v. North Carolina R. Co., 67 N. C. 376.

Declared Dividend Is Debt.—A dividend declared by and due from a private corporation is a debt due to the shareholder, and is recoverable as such. Trustees v. North Carolina R. Co., 76 N. C. 103.

Debt Can Not Be Deducted from Dividend.—A bank has no right to retain out of the dividends upon the stock a debt due from the stockholder. Attorney General v. State Bank, 21 N. C. 545.

An action to compel declaration of a dividend can not be maintained where the stockholder has not applied to the directors, and he must allege that the directors refused to entertain such application. Winstead v. Hearne Bros. & Co., 173 N. C. 606, 611, 92 S. E. 613, citing 2 Cook on Corps., § 684, p. 209.

§ 55-116. Dividends from profits only; directors' liability for impairing capital. — No corporation may declare and pay dividends except from the surplus or net profits arising from its business, or when its debts, whether due or not, exceed two-thirds of its assets, nor may it reduce, divide, withdraw, or in any way pay to any stockholder any part of its capital stock except according to this chapter; provided, a public service corporation may declare and pay such dividends from the surplus or net profits arising from its business except when its debts, whether due or not, exceed three-fourths of its assets; provided, further, that any corporation, other than a public service corporation, which is a member of a partnership may declare and pay dividends from the surplus or net profits arising from its business when the sum of the corporation's separate debts, whether due or not, and that part of the partnership debts which is the same proportion of all the partnership debts, whether due or not, as the corporation's interest in the partnership assets is of all such assets, does not exceed two-thirds of the corporation's assets, and in such calculation the amount of its interest in the partnership assets shall be considered assets of the corporation. In case of a violation of any provision of this section, the directors under whose administration the same occurs are jointly and severally liable, at any time within six years after paying such dividend, to the corporation and its creditors, in the event of its dissolution or insolvency, to the full amount of the dividend paid, or capital stock reduced, divided, withdrawn, or paid out, with interest on the same from the time such liability accrued. Any director who was absent when the violation occurred, or who dissented from the act or resolution by which it was effected, may exonerate himself from such liability by causing his dissent to be entered at large on the minutes of the directors at the time the action was taken or immediately after he has had notice of it. (Rev., s. 1192; Code, s. 681; 1901, c. 2, ss. 33, 52; 1927, c. 121; 1933, c. 354, s. 1; C. S. 1179.)

Cross References.—As to officer's liability for fraud, see § 55-56. As to joint and several liability of directors, see § 55-57.

Editor's Note.—The first proviso in the first sentence was added by ch. 121, Public Laws of 1927.

The second proviso, relating to dividends by corporation holding membership in partnership, was inserted by Public Laws 1933, c. 354.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 212, for criticism of this section.

Surplus or net profits, as used in this section, are what remains after deducting from the present value of all the assets of a corporation the amount of all the liabilities, including the capital stock. Cannon v. Wiscassett Mills Co., 195 N. C. 119, 125, 141 S. E. 344.

Where Charter Exempts Stockholder from Liability. — The charter provisions, that "no stockholder of the corporation shall be individually liable for debt, liability, contract, tort, omission, or engagement of the corporation or any other stockholder therein," does not interfere with the just and equitable principle embodied in this section holding the stockholders who are directors liable for a joint tort or misfeasance committed by them to the prejudice of creditors. McIver v. Young Hardware Co., 144 N. C. 478, 479, 57 S. E. 169.

Fraudulent Representation that Dividend is Earned.—Evidence that the agent for the sale of shares of stock in a corporation had induced the defendant to purchase, by falsely representing that a dividend would be credited upon his notes given for the shares, is in effect a representation that the corporation had earned the dividend as represented in this section; and it may be received as a circumstance of fraud, together with other evidence tending to establish it. Seminole Phosphate Co. v. Johnson, 188 N. C. 419, 124 S. E. 859.

The declaration of a dividend and issuance of stock for it, by an excessive overvaluaton of property or by an excessive and entirely unwarranted estimate of profits or the unearned increment would be evidence from which fraud could be inferred, and in extreme cases it might be regarded as conclusive. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 473, 76 S. E. 538.

Liability of Director.—A director of a corporation who has not brought himself within the provisions of this section, exonerating him from liability for the payment of dividends to the stockholders when the profits of the business did not justify it, or its debts exceeded two-thirds of its assets, etc., is liable, in the action of the trustee in bankruptcy of such corporation, for the amount of such debts, and the proper court costs and charges, not exceeding the amount of the dividends unlawfully declared. Claypoole v. McIntosh, 182 N. C. 109, 108 S. E. 433.

Question of Fraud for Jury.—The question as to actual fraud in issuing a stock dividend must be referred to a jury. Whitlock v. Alexander, 160 N. C. 465, 473, 76 S. E. 538.

Repurchase of Stock.—This section was held inapplicable to suit by receiver against directors for repurchase of stock by corporation in Thompson v. Shepherd, 203 N. C. 310, 165 S. E. 796.

Art. 10. Foreign Corporations.

§ 55-117. Powers existing independently of permission to do business.—A corporation created by another state of the United States, or by any foreign state, kingdom, or government may acquire by devise or otherwise, and may hold, mortgage, lease, and convey real estate in this state for the purpose of prosecuting its business or objects, or such real estate as it may acquire by way of mortgage or otherwise in the payment of debts due to it, but is not eligible or entitled to qualify in this state as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee under the will of any person domiciled in this state at the time of his death. The right to acquire, hold and convey real estate exists only where at the time of the acquisition, the foreign state, government, or kingdom under whose laws the corporation was created is not at war with the United States. (Rev., s. 1193; 1901, c. 2, s. 93; 1915, c. 196, s. 1; C. S. 1180.)

Cross Reference.—As to power of nonresident corporation licensed by the insurance commissioner to act as fiduciary, see § 58-113.

In General.—The Legislature of this State has not undertaken to regulate by statute the powers and methods of business of foreign corporations, nor to prescribe how their contracts shall be executed; and the general principles of law applicable to corporations apply. Rumbough v. Southern Improvement Co., 106 N. C. 461, 466, 11 S. E. 528.

A Matter of Comity Only.—A corporation of one state may do business in another only by comity of the latter state, when not so permitted by a valid Federal statute, as in matters of interstate commerce, and may be prohibited from doing business therein entirely, or may be restricted with conditions made a prerequisite by statute. Lunceford v. Commercial Travelers Mutual Asso., 190 N. C. 314, 129 S. E. 805; Blackwells Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 145 N. C. 367, 59 S. E. 123, citing Range Co. v. Carver, 118 N. C. 328, 329, 24 S. E. 352.

Internal Management. — The courts of North Carolina have not the power and will not interfere with the internal management of the business matters of foreign corporations. Howard v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 125 N. C. 49, 34 S. E. 199; Reid v. Norfolk, etc., R. Co., 162 N. C. 355, 78 S. E. 306.

Power to Acquire and Sell Land.—Foreign corporations, having a right under their charters to acquire and sell land, can exercise such rights in this State to the same extent that corporations of this State can do so. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 713, 24 S. E. 124.

Capacity to Sue and Be Sued.—A foreign corporation can sue in the courts of another state by comity only, and the Legislature may deny to a foreign corporation that right, or may impose conditions on its exercise. Exchange Bank v. Tiddy, 67 N. C. 169.

Not Restricted to Authority Conferred in Home State.—A corporation incorporated in another State with authority to conduct business in North Carolina, which has complied with the statutes of this State, can maintain an action in the courts of this State although its charter may not authorize it to do business in the State of its incorporation. Troy, etc., Co. v. Snow Lumber Co., 173 N. C. 593, 92 S. E. 494.

§ 55-118. Requisites for permission to do business.—Every foreign corporation before being permitted to do business in this state, insurance companies excepted, shall file in the office of the secretary of state a copy of its charter or articles of agreement, attested by its president and secretary, under its corporate seal, and a statement attested in like manner of the amount of its capital stock authorized, the amount actually issued, the principal office in this state, the name of the agent in charge of such office, the character of the business which it transacts, and the names and post-office addresses of its officers and directors. And such corporation shall pay to the secretary of state, for the use of the state, forty cents for every one thousand dollars of the total amount of the capital stock authorized to be issued by such corporation, but in no case less than forty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars: and also a filing fee of five dollars. Provided that the tax upon shares of stock without nominal or par value shall be the same as if each share of stock had a par or face value of one hundred dollars. Such corporation may withdraw from the state upon filing in the office of the secretary of state a statement signed by its president and secretary and attested by its corporate seal, setting forth the fact that such corporation desires to withdraw, and upon payment to the secretary of state of a fee of five dollars. Every corporation failing to comply with the provisions of this section shall forfeit to the state five hundred dollars, to be recovered, with costs, in an action to be prosecuted by the attorney-general, who shall prosecute such actions whenever it appears that this section has been violated. This section does not apply to railroad, banking, express or telegraph companies which, prior to March 9, 1915, had been licensed to do business in this state, or were engaged in business in this state, having a regularly appointed agent upon whom service of process could be made, located in this state.

All acts of the Secretary of State domesticating foreign corporations without nominal or par value shares of stock and taxing the same as provided in the proviso are hereby validated. (Rev., s. 1194; 1901, c. 2, s. 57; 1903, c. 76; 1915, c. 263; 1935, c. 44; 1939, c. 57; C. S. 1181.)

Cross References—As to service of process and appointment of agent, see §§ 1-97, paragraph 1, 1-98, 55-38, and 7-143 As to venue, see § 1-80. As to foreign insurance companies, see § 58-149 et seq. As to foreign building and loan associations, see § 54-34 et seq. As to foreign security and loan corporations in this state, see § 55-10. As to taxation, see §§ 105-122 and 105-250.

Editor's Note.—One extremely important question which has arisen under this section is in regard to the effect of compliance by foreign corporations, particularly whether after compliance they have a right to sue in the federal courts on the ground of diverse citizenship. This question arose in 1900 in the case of Debnam v. Tel. Co., 126 N. C. 831, 36 S. E. 269 and it was decided that the purpose of this section was to require all corporations doing business in the state to become domesticated and that the result of this domestication was that the corporation could not remove a cause, when sued in the state courts, to a federal court, on the ground of diverse citizenship. This ruling was upheld the following year in Allison v. Southern Ry. Co., 129 N. C. 336, 40 S. E. 91, and again in 1903 in Beach v. Southern Ry. Co., 131 N. C. 399, 42 S. E. 856. The Allison case, supra, was appealed to the U. S. Supreme Court and was pending at the time the Beach case, supra, was decided. In 1903 the U. S. Supreme Court handed down its opinion, reversing the N. C. Supreme Court and holding that a foreign corporation, by compliance with this section did not lose its right to remove to the federal courts. Southern Ry. v. Allison, 190 U. S. 326, 23 S. Ct. 713, 47 L. Ed. 1078. This decision reverses Allison v. R. R., supra, and overrules Debnam v. Tel. Co., supra, and Beach v. R. R., supra.

The amendment of 1935 increases the amount payable on every one thousand dollars of capital stock from twenty to forty cents and placed the minimum at forty instead of twenty-five dollars and the maximum as five hundred instead of two hundred and fifty dollars. The changes occur in the second sentence of the section.

The 1939 amendment, which added the proviso after the second sentence, provided: "All acts of the secretary of state domesticating foreign corporations without nominal or par value shares of stock and taxing the same as provided in this act are hereby validated."

For comment on 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 346.

In General.—Although this section excludes insurance companies from its operation, the statutes will be construed in relation to their subject-matter. The exception in this section is because insurance companies are exclusively dealt with elsewhere. Occidental Life Ins. Co. v. Lawrence, 204 N. C. 707, 169 S. E. 636.

Exercise of Police Power.—There is nothing in the U. S. or State Constitution which prohibits the state, in the exercise of its police power, from making the transaction of business by a foreign corporation prior to procuring a license an indictable offense. State v. Agency, 171 N. C. 831, 834, 88 S. E. 726.

The only restriction of the constitution is that the license tax must not interfere with interstate commerce or be otherwise invalid. Pittsburg Life, etc., Co. v. Young, 172 N. C. 470, 90 S. E. 568.

Property Not Removed to State.—This section requiring "domestication" enables plaintiffs to get personal service upon a foreign corporation, but does not remove its property to the State nor the situs of its debts created elsewhere. Stause Bros. v. Aetna Fire Ins. Co., 126 N. C. 223, 35 S. E. 471.

Effect of Non-Compliance.—From the character of this section and its evident purpose the contracts of a foreign corporation doing business in the State without compliance are not avoided, but the penalty alone is enforceable, and by action as the statute prescribes. Miller v. Howell, 184 N. C. 119, 122, 113 S. E. 621; Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, 160 N. C. 439, 76 S. E. 476. And in such a case the State sues for the penalty. Blackwell's Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 144 N. C. 352, 363, 57 S. E. 5; Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, supra.

If the State, in addition to the penalty, has desired to render invalid the contract and to deny a recovery thereon, it would have so enacted, as it has done in regard to gambling and other illegal contracts. Ober & Sons Company v. Katzenstein, 160 N. C. 439, 441, 76 S. E. 476.

How Charter Proven.—The charter of a foreign corporation may be proven in this State by exhibiting a copy duly certified by the Secretary of State of the State in which the corporation was created. Barcello v. Hapgood, 118 N. C. 712, 714, 24 S. E. 124.

Right to Sue and Be Sued.—Where a foreign corporation has submitted to domestication in this State by filing its certificate of incorporation with the Secretary of State and by otherwise complying with the provisions of this section, it thereby acquires the right to sue and be sued in the courts of this State as a domestic corporation, and where it brings action on a note in the county of its designated residence the defendants are not entitled to removal to the county of their residence as a matter of right. Smith-Douglass Co. v. Honeycutt, 204 N. C. 219, 167 S. E. 810.

Cited in Ward v. Southern Sand & Gravel Co., 33 F. (2d) 773.

§ 55-119. Sale of shares of stock held by life tenant.—The shares of the capital stock of a foreign corporation, in which any person owns a life estate, may be sold by an order in a special proceeding, unless prohibited by the instrument under which such title was acquired. All persons in esse who are interested in the property aforesaid shall be made parties to the proceedings. Whenever it appears from the petition, or otherwise, that among those interested are persons not in being, or who, because of some contingency, cannot be presently ascertained, such persons shall be made parties defendant by publication of notice of the proceeding, according to the usual practice, and a guardian ad litem shall be appointed for them, and he shall file answer, as provided by §§ 1-66 and 1-67. The clerk of the Superior Court shall have power to make, from time to time, appropriate orders for the sale of said shares of stock, and for handling, securing and investing the net proceeds of sale. In lieu of the payment to the life tenant of the income and profits on the net proceeds of sale, the clerk may order the present cash value of the life tenant's share, ascertained as by law provided, to be paid to the life tenant absolutely, out of said proceeds, and order the balance thereof to be invested and kept invested for the remaindermen, or paid over to a trustee appointed for the purpose, after the trustee shall have qualified by filing with the clerk an undertaking, to be approved by him, payable to the State of North Carolina, for the benefit of the remaindermen, in a sum double the amount of the balance of the net proceeds aforesaid, and conditioned for the prompt forthcoming and payment of the principal and interest or income thereof, and the faithful performance of duty and compliance with the orders of court relating thereto. The orders aforesaid shall be approved by the judge of the Superior Court residing in or holding the courts of the district, where such approval is now required by law. (1925, c. 59.)

§ 55-120. Secretary of state directed to require domestication of all foreign corporations doing business in state.—The secretary of state is hereby directed to require that every foreign corporation doing business in North Carolina, as permitted under the provisions of § 55-117, shall file in the office of the secretary of state a copy of its charter or articles of agreement, in the manner required by § 55-118, and all amendments thereto, and otherwise fully comply with the provisions of said law, including the payment to the secretary of state of fees fixed by said law for the privilege of doing business in this state and domestication therein. The secretary of state is authorized and empowered to employ such assistants as shall be deemed necessary in his office for the purpose of carrying out and enforcing the provisions of this section, and for making such investigations as shall be necessary to ascertain foreign corporations now doing business in North Carolina which may have failed or hereafter fail to domesticate as required by law. (1937, c. 343.)

Art. 11. Dissolution.

§ 55-121. Voluntary, generally.—When in the judgment of the board of directors it is deemed advisable and for the benefit of a corporation that it be dissolved, the board, within ten days after the adoption of a resolution to that effect by a majority of the whole board, at a meeting called for that purpose, of which meeting every director shall have received three days notice, shall cause notice of adoption of such resolution to be mailed to each stockholder residing in the United States, to his last known postoffice address, and also, beginning within said ten days, cause a like notice to be published in a newspaper published in the county wherein the corporation has its principal office, at least once a week for four successive weeks, next preceding the time appointed for the same, of a meeting of the stockholders to be held at the office of the corporation, to take action upon the resolution. The stockholders' meeting thus called may, on the day appointed, by consent of a majority in interest of the stockholders present, be adjourned from time to time for not less than eight days at one time, of which adjourned meeting notice by advertisement in said newspaper shall be given. If at such meeting two-thirds in interest of all the stockholders consent in writing that a dissolution take place, their consent, together with the list of the names and residences of the directors and officers, certified by the president and the secretary or treasurer, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, who, upon being satisfied by due proof that the requirements aforesaid have been complied with, shall issue a certificate that the consent has been filed, and the board of directors shall cause this certificate to be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, and published once a week for four successive weeks in a newspaper published in said county. Upon the filing in the office of the secretary of state of an affidavit of the manager or publisher of such newspaper that the certificate has been so published, the corporation is dissolved, and the board shall proceed to settle up and adjust its business and affairs.

Whenever all the stockholders consent in writing to a dissolution, no meeting or notice thereof is necessary, but on filing the consent in the office of the Secretary of State, he shall issue a certificate showing that such consent in writing has been filed in his office, and said certificate shall be published as above provided in cases without unanimous consent, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located. Upon the filing in the office of the Secretary of State of an affidavit of the manager or publisher of the newspaper in which publication is made, showing that said certificate has been so published, the Secretary of State shall forthwith issue a certificate of dissolution of the said corporation.

The Secretary of State shall withhold issuance of final certificate of dissolution of or withdrawal of any corporation, domestic or foreign, until the receipt by him of a notice from the Commissioner of Revenue to the effect that such corporation has met the requirements with respect to reports and taxes required by the Revenue Laws of the State of North Carolina. (Rev., s. 1195; 1901, c. 2, s. 34; 1941, c. 195; C. S. 1182.)

Cross References.—As to status of debts due and actions pending at time of dissolution, see § 55-138. As to fees, see § 55-158. As to voluntary dissolution of a bank, see § 53-18. As to voluntary dissolution of a credit union, see § 54-92.

Editor's Note.—The 1941 amendment substituted the second and third paragraphs in lieu of the former last sentence of the section which reads as follows: "Whenever all the stockholders consent in writing to a dissolution, no meeting or notice thereof is necessary, but on filing the consent in the office of the secretary of state he shall forthwith issue a certificate of dissolution, which shall be published as above provided, and recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located."

Section Settles Mooted Questions.—As far as North Carolina is concerned, this statute settles the question formerly much mooted in the courts as to whether, and under what circumstances, a corporation could be dissolved by the stockholders, when no time was fixed for its duration, upholding and extending this power of voluntary dissolution as established by the better considered decisions on the subject. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 419, 63 S. E. 109.

A Part of Every Charter.—The provision of this section enters into every charter, and unless otherwise enacted by the Legislature, every stockholder takes and holds his stock subject to this power of voluntary dissolution, by resolution of the directors concurred in by two-thirds in interest of the stockholders. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 419, 63 S. E. 109.

Motive Generally Immaterial. — When a corporation lawfully proceeds to wind up its affairs in accordance with this section the motive prompting the act, however reprehensible or malicious, is not, as a rule, relevant to the inquiry; and the courts will not undertake to interfere with the honest exercise of discretionary powers vested by statute in the management of a corporation, however unwise or improvident it may seem in a given instance. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 416, 63 S. E. 109.

Same—Directors Are Trustees.—The directors of a corporation in proceedings for dissolution, under this section, are trustees in the sense that they must act faithfully in their judgment for the benefit of the corporation and in furtherance of its interest, and not for the purpose of unjustly oppressing the holders of the minority stock, or to attain their own personal ends. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 63 S. E. 109.

Liquidation to Escape Judgment.—An attempted liquidation by a corporation, to escape judgment for the refund of money wrongfully distributed, is in fraud of creditors. Chatham v. Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 105 S. E. 329.

Suits Pending Dissolution.—Where it appears in an action that the indebtedness sought to be recovered was claimed to be due a corporation, and that the suit was instituted by the individual stockholders, a judgment as of nonsuit is properly entered, though proceedings in dissolution of the corporation were being had under this section, the proper party plaintiff being the corporation or a receiver appointed therefor. Worthington v. Gilmers, 190 N. C. 128, 129 S. E. 153.

§ 55-122. Liability of stockholders.—The stockholders of a corporation chartered under the laws of this state are individually liable for all taxes, costs and fees for the dissolution of the corporation, and the attorney-general is authorized to enforce the provisions of this section by suit before a justice of the peace or in the superior court in the county where such corporation had its principal place of business, whenever it appears upon report from the secretary of state that the corporation has ceased to transact business and fails to pay the taxes due the state or to file annual statements or to dissolve itself as provided by law. If a nonresident stockholder of the corporation refuses to sign the certificate of dissolution the resident stockholders shall make affidavit to that effect, and the written assent of such resident stockholders, accompanied by such affidavit, is sufficient to dissolve the corporation. If no stockholder of such corporation is found within the state the secretary of state has authority to declare the charter of the corporation forfeited, and shall publish annually in his corporation report a list of the corporations whose charters have been so forfeited. (1909, c. 730, s. 1; C. S. 1183.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability for unpaid stock, see § 55-65.

Cited in Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 411, 174 S. E. 96.

§ 55-123. Voluntary, before payment of stock.—The incorporators named in a certificate of incorporation, before the payment of any part of the capital stock, and before beginning the business for which the corporation was created, may surrender all their corporate rights and franchises, by filing in the office of the secretary of state a certificate, verified by oath, that no part of the capital stock has been paid and such business has not been begun, and surrendering all rights and franchises. Thereupon the corporation is dissolved. (Rev., s. 1177; 1901, c. 2, s. 35; C. S. 1184.)

§ 55-124. Involuntary, at instance of private persons.—Corporations may be dissolved by civil action, instituted by the corporation, a stockholder, or creditor, or by authority of the attorney-general in the name of the state, in the following cases:

1. For any abuse of its powers to the injury of the public or of its stockholders, creditors, or debtors.

2. For nonuser of its powers for two or more consecutive years.

3. When it is insolvent, or suspends its ordinary business for want of funds, or is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights.

4. Upon any conviction of the company of a persistent criminal offense. (Rev., s. 1196; Code, s. 694; 1901, c. 2, s. 73; C. S. 1185.)

Cross Reference.—As to involuntary dissolution of a bank, see § 53-19.

Editor's Note.—The provision in the next section, that the stockholder instituting the dissolution proceeding must own one-fifth or more of the stock, does not apply to proceedings under this section. Lasley v. Mercantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 103 S. E. 213.

Nor is it necessary that the stockholder allege or prove that he first made application to the directors or management to take action in the matter for this relates to suits concerning corporate management. Id.

Failure to Maintain Principal Place of Business in State.—The persistent failure of a corporation chartered in this State to maintain its principal place of business within the State as required by its charter, and the withdrawing of all its agencies from the State, will authorize the courts to decree a dissolution of such corporation upon the suit of a stockholder, under this section. Simmons v. Norfolk etc., Steamboat Co., 113 N. C. 147, 18 S. E. 117.

Direct Proceeding Necessary.—A cause of forfeiture cannot be taken advantage of collaterally or otherwise than by a direct proceeding for that purpose so that the corporation may be heard in answer. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579, 585.

Amount of Stock Held by Plaintiff Immaterial.—In a suit to dissolve a corporation for nonuser of the powers the right to proceed is conferred on the individual stockholder by express provision of the statute, and without regard to the amount of his holdings. Lasley v. Mercantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 577, 103 S. E. 213.

Proceedings May Be in Equity.—While it is more orderly to proceed under this section to appoint a receiver for a corporation, this could have been done in the courts of equity, wherein, under the decree, all parties were before the court or thereunder could be brought in, and the same relief awarded as if the provision of the statute had been complied with. Greenleaf v. Land & Lumber Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 S. E. 424.

Bankruptcy Proceedings Not Authorized.—The fact that minority stockholders have instituted a suit in the State court under this section, and that a receiver has been appointed under sec. 55-147, does not entitle creditors to avail themselves of the relief provided for them in the federal bankruptcy statute until the corporation has become insolvent and committed an act of bankruptcy. Bank v. Gudger, 212 Fed. 49, 54.

Where Creditors Estopped.—Where a provision in a deed of trust is to the effect that upon default in the payment of the interest, etc., the trustee shall have the power to foreclose upon request of the holders of a certain part of the par value of the bonds, those who hold such a proportionate part are bound by the valid provision of their contract, and without complying therewith a permanent receiver may not be appointed by the court under the provisions of this section in their suit for the purpose, though the corporation itself may be insolvent. Jones v. A. & W. Ry. Co., 193 N. C. 590, 137 S. E. 707.

§ 55-125. Involuntary, by stockholders.—When stockholders owning one-fifth or more in amount of the paid-up stock of any corporation organized under the laws of and doing business in this state, except corporations organized for religious, charitable, fraternal, and educational purposes, and except banking and public-service corporations, apply in term or vacation to the judge of the superior court holding the courts for the county in which the principal place of business of the corporation is situated, by petition containing a statement that for three years next preceding the filing of the petition, which time shall begin to run from three years after it has begun business, the net earnings of the corporation have not been sufficient to pay in good faith an annual dividend of four per cent upon the paid stock of the corporation, over and above the salaries and expenses authorized by its by-laws and regulations, or that the corporation has paid no dividend for six years preceding said application; or whenever stockholders owning one-tenth or more in amount of the paid-up common stock of any such corporation apply to the judge of the superior court as aforesaid by petition containing a statement that the corporation has paid no dividend on the common stock for ten years preceding said application, and that they desire a dissolution of the corporation, the judge shall make an order requiring the officers of the corporation to file in court, within a reasonable time, inventories showing all the real and personal estate of the corporation, a true account of its capital stock, the names of the stockholders, their residences, the number of shares belonging to each, the amount paid in upon said shares and the amount still due thereon, and a statement of all the encumbrances on the property of the corporation and all its contracts which have not been fully satisfied and canceled, specifying the place and residence of each creditor, the sum owing to each, the nature of the debt or demand, and the consideration therefor, and the books and papers of the corporation. Upon the filing of the inventories, accounts and statements, the court shall enter an order requiring all persons interested in the corporation to appear before a referee to be appointed by the court, at a time and place named in the order, service of which may be made by publication for such time as may be deemed proper by the court, and show cause why the corporation should not be dissolved. If it appears to the court that the statements contained in the petition are true, the court may adjudge a dissolution of the corporation and shall appoint one or more receivers, who shall have all powers of receivers conferred by this chapter for the winding up the affairs and distribution of the assets of the corporation. If it appears to the court that the corporation is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, the court may appoint a temporary receiver of the corporation pending dissolution. No suit shall be brought for the dissolution of a corporation under the provisions of this section until each and all of the petitioners have owned their stock for the term of two years prior to the institution of the action; nor shall any such suit be brought for the period of three years after a final judgment upon a prior petition as herein provided. (1913, c. 147; 1915, c. 137, s. 1; C. S. 1186.)

Editor's Note.—The provision for dissolution, upon the application of stockholders owning one-tenth or more of the paid up common stock, when the corporation has paid no dividends for ten years preceding, was added by Laws of 1915, ch. 137. In regard to this amendment the court said in Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 610, 92 S. E. 613: "This amendment would appear to be inconsistent with the six-year clause of the original act, and to require ten years complete suspension of dividends on the common stock of a corporation before application can be made for a receiver on that ground."

The constitutionality of this section providing for the dissolution of corporations in certain instances, cannot be successfully assailed in an action thereunder to dissolve a corporation organized subsequent to its enactment. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

A Remedial Statute.—This section is a remedial statute, and intended to remedy an abuse of power by the majority shareholders by a suspension of dividends, a method at times resorted to for the purpose of freezing out minority holders or depressing the market value of the shares. Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 92 S. E. 613.

Applies to "A Going Concern."—This section is intended to control and regulate suits for the dissolution of a corporation doing business as "a going concern," and by reason of the fact that they have not earned for three years next preceding the filing of the petition a net dividend of 4 per cent, or who have not paid a dividend for six years, and clearly has no application to an action under the preceding section to dissolve a corporation for nonuse of its powers. Lasley v. Mercantile Co., 179 N. C. 575, 577, 103 S. E. 213.

When Stockholders Estopped. — Where a stockholder in a corporation has actively participated in its management and consented to the increase in its capital stock from the earnings of a profitable concern, which has proven decidedly advantageous, he is thereafter estopped to assert the right given a holder of a certain amount of the stock to throw the corporation into a receiver's hands for nonpayment of dividends within a certain period. Winstead v. Hearne Bros., 173 N. C. 606, 92 S. E. 613.

Construed with Art. 15 on Reorganization. — Standing alone, this section might be considered as confining the court, in such a proceeding, to a decree strictly of dissolution, involving a destruction of the corporate franchise, but when construed as it should be (Keith v. Lockhart, 171 N. C. 451, 457, 88 S. E. 640), in connection with other provisions of our statute law on the subject, namely Art. 15 of this chapter, the court has ample power to enter a decree for a sale of franchise with the corporate property, transferring the same to the purchasers and conferring upon them the right to recognize and carry on the business as a new corporation. Coal and Ice Co. v. R. R., 144 N. C. 732, 57 S. E. 444; Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 250, 93 S. E. 794.

Paid-Up Stock Refers to Common and Preferred.—It is not required that stockholders suing for its dissolution under this section should own one-fifth of its common stock in order to maintain the action, it being sufficient if they own common and preferred stock constituting one-fifth or more of the total paid-in capital stock of the corporation, and their right to maintain the action is not affected by the fact that holders of preferred stock are given no vote in the management of the corporation. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

Dividend Must Equal 4%.—The fact that a corporation has earned net income sufficient to pay in good faith dividends on its preferred stock within three years prior to the institution of an action for its dissolution under this section, is not sufficient to resist the action for dissolution if the earned dividends do not amount to four per cent on its total capital stock, preferred and common. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 172 S. E. 373.

When Order for Inventories Proper.—Where a petition in an action for dissolution of a corporation meets all requirements of this section, it is not error for the court to require the defendant corporation to file inventories as provided. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 810, 172 S. E. 373.

Dissolution in Discretion of Court.—Whether the court will order dissolution upon the final hearing is to be determined in its discretion according to whether, from all facts shown, the failure of the corporation to earn the required dividends was due to temporary conditions or to its management. Kistler v. Caldwell Cotton Mills Co., 205 N. C. 809, 810, 172 S. E. 373.

§ 55-126. Involuntary, by attorney-general.—An action may be brought by the attorney-general in the name of the state against a corporation for the purpose of annulling its charter upon the ground that it was procured upon a fraudulent suggestion, or concealment of a material fact, by the persons incorporated or by some of them, or with their knowledge or consent; or for the purpose of annulling the existence of a corporation, other than municipal, when such corporation—

1. Offends against the act creating, altering, or renewing it.

2. Violates any law by which it has forfeited its charter by abuse of its power.

3. Has forfeited its privileges or franchises by failure to exercise its power.

4. Has done or omitted any act which amounts to a surrender of its corporate rights, privileges and franchises.

5. Has exercised a franchise or privilege not conferred upon it by law.

6. Has failed to use its powers for two or more consecutive years.

7. Has become insolvent as manifested by the return of an execution unsatisfied upon a judgment against the corporation docketed in the superior court of the county where it has its principal place of business.

It is the duty of the attorney-general, whenever he has reason to believe that any of these acts or omissions can be established by proof, to bring an action in every case of public interest, and also in every other case in which satisfactory security is given to indemnify the state against the costs and expenses to be incurred thereby. (Rev., s. 1198; Code, ss. 604, 605; 1889, c. 533; C. S. 1187.)

Cross Reference.—As to action in the nature of quo warranto by the attorney general against corporations, see § 1-515.

Editor's Note.—Formerly this section provided that an action might be brought against a corporation by the Attorney-General, "whenever the Legislature shall so direct." Under this wording it was held that the Attorney-General could not bring an action to vacate the charter of a corporation of his own motion, but that the authority of the Legislature was necessary. Attorney General v. R. Co., 134 N. C. 481, 46 S. E. 959.

Forfeiture without Proceedings.—A corporation cannot endure longer than the time prescribed by its charter, and no judicial proceedings are necessary to declare a forfeiture for such a cause but for any other cause of forfeiture a direct proceedings must be instituted by the sovereign to enforce the forfeiture. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579.

An information in the nature of a writ of quo warranto against a corporation, to have its privileges declared forfeited because of neglect and abuse in the exercise of them, must be filed in the name of the Attorney-General of the state, and can not be instituted in the name of a solicitor of a judicial circuit. Houston v. Neuse River Nav. Co., 53 N. C. 476.

An information, filed by the Attorney-General, for the purpose of having the charter of an incorporation declared to be forfeited, though it need not be expressed in technical language, yet it must set out the substance of a good cause of forfeiture in its essential circumstances of time, place and overt acts. Attorney General v. Petersburg, etc., R. Co., 28 N. C. 456.

Area of Rural Community Misrepresented.—The right of action is given the Attorney-General, on the relation of the State, to annul a certificate of incorporation of a rural community when the petition upon which the Secretary of State has issued the certificate misrepresents that the area of the community to be incorporated extended only to that of "one school district," under the provisions of this section authorizing the Attorney-General to bring action when a certificate of incorporation has been procured upon "a fraudulent suggestion or concealment of a material fact by the persons incorporated, or by some of them, or with their knowledge or consent," etc. State v. Rural Community, 182 N. C. 861, 109 S. E. 576.

§ 55-127. Forfeiture or dissolution for failure to organize or act. — When a charter has been granted creating a corporation, and the incorporators for two years neglect to organize and carry into effect the intent of the charter, or when organized, if they for two consecutive years cease to act, then this disuse of their corporate privileges and powers is a forfeiture of the charter. If, after thirty days notice by the secretary of state, the corporation fails to surrender its corporate rights or to dissolve, in the manner provided in this chapter, the secretary of state shall report it to the attorney-general, who shall institute an appropriate action for its dissolution. (Rev., s. 1246; Code, s. 688; 1901, c. 2, s. 106; C. S. 1188.)

State Must Bring Action.—The fact that a bank failed to organize within two years after it was chartered cannot affect the validity of whatever lien the bank may, by its charter, have on the shares of stock of a stockholder indebted to it. Such defect in the organization of the bank can be taken advantage of only by a direct proceeding by the state for that purpose. Boyd v. Redd, 120 N. C. 335, 27 S. E. 35.

§ 55-128. Forfeiture for nonuser by hydro-electric companies. — All waterpower, hydro-electric power, and water companies or corporations organized in this state shall be required to begin active work in making their proposed development within two years after their organization and diligently to prosecute their work on the same until it has been completed; and a failure to begin the work or development within the time, and to diligently prosecute work on the same until its completion, as herein provided, shall be legal grounds for declaring their charter rights, privileges and franchises forfeited, by the state, acting through its attorney-general, upon the recommendation of the utilities commission of this state: Provided, this section shall not apply to any company which is supplying the public and is meeting the demands of the public for its services. (1913, c. 133, s. 2; 1933, c. 134, s. 8; 1941, c. 97, s. 5; C. S. 1189.)

§ 55-129. Involuntary, by bankruptcy.—When a corporation chartered under the laws of this state is adjudged bankrupt under the laws of the United States or when it shall be made to appear to a judge of the superior court that all of the assets of the corporation of whatever kind or character have been lost to the stockholders by reason of foreclosure, assignment, or execution under judgment, and that the corporation is therefore unable to conduct the business for which it was organized, the charter of the corporation is forfeited without further action, unless the stockholders determine by appropriate resolutions to continue the corporate existence of the corporation after the adjudication in bankruptcy, foreclosure, assignment, or sale under execution, and furnish the secretary of state with a duly certified copy of the resolutions, all within six months after the adjudication, foreclosure, assignment or final sale under execution. The stockholders of a bankrupt corporation whose existence is continued by the foregoing procedure must pay all privilege taxes which have accrued against the corporation since the adjudication, together with a fee of one dollar allowed the secretary of state for recording and filing the certificate provided for in this section. (1915, c. 134, ss. 2, 3; 1931, c. 310; C. S. 1190.)

Editor's Note.—Under this section prior to the Act of 1931, corporate charters were automatically forfeited by an adjudication of bankruptcy unless the stockholders took certain specified action within six months. The amendment extends a like forfeiture to a corporation which is shown in the superior court to have lost its entire assets either through foreclosure, assignment or execution. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 363.

This section must be read in pari materia with § 55-132, the application of which also is necessary to determine the status of a corporation suffering a forfeiture of its charter by reason of bankruptcy. Sisk v. Old Hickory Motor Freight, 222 N. C. 631, 632, 24 S. E. (2d) 488.

§ 55-130. When franchises forfeited by neglect, etc., corporation dissolved; costs. — If it is adjudged that a corporation against which an action has been brought has forfeited by neglect, abuse, or surrender, its corporate rights, privileges and franchises, judgment shall be rendered that the corporation be excluded from such rights, privileges and franchises, and that it be dissolved. If judgment is rendered in such action against a corporation, or against persons claiming to be a corporation, the court may cause the costs to be collected by execution against the persons making the claim, or by attachment or process against the directors or other officers of the corporation. (Rev., ss. 1209, 1210; Code, ss. 617, 618; C. S. 1191.)

§ 55-131. Service of summons in action for dissolution.—In an action for the dissolution of a corporation, or for the appointment of a receiver thereof, the summons must be served on the corporation by service on an officer or agent upon whom other process can be served, and shall be served on the stockholders, creditors, dealers and any others interested in the affairs of the company by publishing a copy at least weekly for two successive weeks in some newspaper printed in the county in which the corporation has its principal place of business, or if there is no such newspaper published, by posting a copy of the summons at the door of the courthouse of such county, and publishing a copy for the time and in the manner aforesaid in a newspaper published nearest the county seat of the county in which the corporation has its principal place of business or in a newspaper published in the city of Raleigh. This publication is sufficient service on all the stockholders, creditors of, or dealers with, the corporation, and upon the corporation, if no officer can after due diligence be found in the state and it has no process agent in the state; and all such stockholders, creditors or dealers or other parties interested may intervene in said proceedings and become parties thereto for themselves, or for others in like interest, under such rules as the court for the purpose of justice prescribes. (Rev., s. 1199; Code, s. 695; 1911, c. 173, s. 1; C. S. 1192.)

Cross References.—As to service of summons generally, see §§ 1-97, paragraph 1, 55-38, and 55-39. As to appointment of receiver, see § 55-147.

§ 55-132. Corporate existence continued three years. — All corporations whose charters expire by their own limitation, or are annulled by forfeiture or otherwise, shall continue to be bodies corporate for three years after the time when they would have been so dissolved, for the purpose of prosecuting and defending actions by or against them, and of enabling them gradually to settle and close their concerns, to dispose of their property, and to divide their assets; but not for the purpose of continuing the business for which the corporation was established. The superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located may, upon petition of said corporation, continue the corporate existence for the purposes of winding up the affairs, for such time as the court may deem proper. The provisions hereof shall also apply to corporations whose affairs have not on March 30, 1939, been wound up. (Rev., s. 1200; Code, s. 667; 1901, c. 2, s. 58; 1939, c. 250, s. 1; C. S. 1193.)

Cross Reference.—As to the status of corporation which has been merged with another, see § 55-166.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment substituted the last two sentences for the former last sentence in this section.

In General.—This section expressly extends the life of the corporation for three years after dissolution, for the purpose of winding up its affairs. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893.

It covers cases of forfeiture not nearly so horrendous as bankruptcy. Sisk v. Old Hickory Motor Freight, 222 N. C. 631, 634, 24 S. E. (2d) 488.

Purpose.—The provisions of this section are free from any ambiguity. The mischief to be remedied was the confusion possibly resulting from the abrupt dissolution of the corporation from any cause. The plan adopted was the continuation of the corporate character solely for the purpose of winding up its affairs. General Electric Co. v. West Asheville Imp. Co., 73 Fed. 386, 388.

Construed with § 55-129.—It was not the intention of this section and § 55-129 to bring about a situation in which a corporation could be alive to its assets, but dead to its obligations, or enjoy the security of an indefeasible non est inventus during the time corporate existence is continued by statute for the purpose of suing and being sued. Sisk v. Old Hickory Motor Freight, 222 N. C. 631, 634, 24 S. E. (2d) 488.

Applies to All Corporations.—This section is not a provision of the charter of a particular corporation but a general provision of law applying to all corporations, and the repeal of this particular charter does not repeal this section pro tanto. Indeed, the repeal makes it applicable actively to the particular corporation, as a sort of statutory letters of administration; whereas before the repeal it was a passive provision. General Electric Co. v. West Asheville Imp. Co., 73 Fed. 386, 388.

Under this section, a corporation continues for three years to be a body corporate for the purpose of disposing of its property and dividing its assets, and the section is applicable to any corporation. Burnet v. Lexington Ice, etc., Co., 62 F. (2d) 906, 909.

Remedy Must Be Pursued within Three Years. — The statutory remedy is exclusive of all others, and must be pursued within the three years, and a failure to proceed within that period will be a complete defense, not only to the corporation, but to the stockholders, who by its charter, are made individually responsible in the event of its insolvency. VonGlahn v. DeRosset, 81 N. C. 468.

Where a corporation is actually dissolved, the lapse of more than three years from dissolution, will serve as a complete defense to actions against it. Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial National Bank, 240 Fed. 303, 306.

Same—Only Applies Where Charter Expired.—This provision has no application to a case where a corporation had ceased to do business but its charter had not expired or been annulled. Heggie v. Building & Loan Assn., 107 N. C. 581, 592, 12 S. E. 275.

Hence the action of a judgment creditor is not barred in three years after the corporation has ceased to do its regular business. Heggie v. Building & Loan Assn., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Deed from Dissolved Corporation.—Where the certificate of the probate of a deed from a corporation, dissolved upon certificate of the secretary of state, made within the time allowed by this section, recites as a fact judicially found that the deed was made in the name of the corporation by the order of the directors, the trustee's objection that it was not executed in the method required by sec. 55-133, is untenable; and the signature of the agent in charge, if made upon the mistake that he was in law the assignee of the mortgage, is only surplusage, and harmless. Lowdermilk v. Butler, 182 N. C. 502, 109 S. E. 571.

Liquidation by National Bank.—See Standard Trust Co. v. Commercial Nat. Bank, 240 Fed. 303.

Section Does Not Apply to Merger.—Where an old corporation is, by a transfer of all its property, franchises and privileges, merged into a new corporation, with the same stockholders and directors as the old, and assumes all the liabilities of the old corporation, this section does not apply so as to make the old corporation a necessary party to the action against the new. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

No Equity Jurisdiction.—This section and the two following sections, which continue the existence of defunct corporations for three years after the expiration of their charters for the purpose of bringing and defending suits and closing their general business, oust the former equity jurisdiction for the appointment of a receiver, at the instance of creditors to wind up the corporate affairs. VonGlahn v. DeRossett, 81 N. C. 468.

Cited in Smith v. Dicks, 197 N. C. 355, 148 S. E. 464.

§ 55-133. Directors to be trustees; powers and duties. — On the dissolution in any manner of a corporation, unless otherwise directed by an order of the court, the directors are trustees thereof, with full power to settle the affairs, collect the outstanding debts, sell and convey the property, and, after paying its debts, divide any surplus money and other property among the stockholders. The trustees have power to meet and act under the by-laws of the corporation, and, under regulations to be made by a majority, to prescribe the terms and conditions of the sale of such property, and they may sell all or any part for cash or partly on credit, or take mortgages or bonds for part of the purchase price for all or any part of the property. They have power to sue for and recover the said debts and property in the name of the corporation, and are suable in the same name for the debts owing by it, and are jointly and severally responsible for such debts only to the amount of property of the corporation which comes into their possession as trustees. Vacancies in the board of directors may be filled in accordance with the provisions of the by-laws of the corporation or the stockholders may fill such vacancies at a regular or duly called meeting. (Rev., ss. 1201, 1202; Code, s. 687; 1901, c. 2, ss. 59, 60; 1939, c. 250, s. 2; C. S. 1194.)

Cross Reference.—As to directors in general, see § 55-48.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added the last sentence of this section.

Trustees Sell in Corporate Name.—The certificate of the secretary of state for the dissolution of a corporation continues the corporation for three years, and the provisions of this section, that the directors as trustees may sell and convey the corporate property, does not exclude the idea that they may do so in the name of the corporation in whom the original legal title was originally vested. Lowdermilk v. Butler, 182 N. C. 502, 109 S. E. 571.

Confession of Judgment in Director's Favor.—A confession of judgment by an insolvent corporation in favor of a director who is a creditor, and upon a debt theretofore existing, is void as against other creditors. Hill v. Lumber Co., 113 N. C. 173, 18 S. E. 107.

Cited in Smith v. Dicks, 197 N. C. 355, 148 S. E. 464; Life Ins. Co. v. Edgerton, 206 N. C. 402, 411, 174 S. E. 96.

§ 55-134. Jurisdiction of superior court.—When a corporation is dissolved, in any manner whatsoever, the superior court, on application of a creditor or stockholder, may either continue the directors as trustees or appoint one or more persons receivers of the corporation. The court has jurisdiction of the application, and of all questions arising in the proceedings thereon, and may make, at any place in the district, any orders, injunctions, or decrees therein as justice and equity require. The powers of such trustees or receivers are as elsewhere given in this chapter, and may be continued as long as the court thinks necessary. (Rev., ss. 1203, 1204; Code, ss. 619, 668, 669; 1901, c. 2, ss. 61, 62; C. S. 1195.)

Cross References.—As to appointment of receiver, see § 55-147. As to powers and duties of receivers, see § 55-148.

When Section Applies.—Although by section 55-133 the directors, unless otherwise determined by order of some court having jurisdiction, are made trustees with power to settle or wind up the corporate business under this section, this entire matter of winding up the corporate business after dissolution may be taken charge of by the court, and must be at the instance of either the creditors or stockholders, or any one of them. White v. Kincaid, 149 N. C. 415, 422, 63 S. E. 109.

Who Is a "Creditor".—Any one who has a debt or demand against an insolvent corporation upon a contract, express or implied, comes within the meaning of the word "creditor" used in the statute, and may apply to the courts and obtain, in proper instances, the appointment of a receiver for the corporation. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 422, 70 S. E. 820.

Property In Custodia Legis.—The property of an insolvent corporation in a receiver's hands is in custodia legis, and the court has jurisdiction by virtue of its general equitable powers, and by express provision of this section. Lasley v. Scales, 179 N. C. 578, 103 S. E. 214.

Jurisdiction Over Foreign Corporation.—An insolvent corporation, with its property or plant located in this state, is subject to the appointment by our courts of a receiver to take charge of its assets here and administer them as a trust fund for its creditors, though it is incorporated under the laws of another state. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 422, 70 S. E. 820, approving Holshouser v. Copper Co., 138 N. C. 248, 50 S. E. 650.

Authority to Adjust Claims.—While in the statute relating to the winding up of the affairs of an insolvent corporation no specific directions are given as to mutual debts and credits, yet, under this section which provides that the court shall make such orders as justice and equity shall require and direct how claims shall be approved, the claims may be adjusted. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371.

When Receiver Appointed.—When a corporation is insolvent or in imminent danger of insolvency, and especially when its business operations have practically been suspended owing to its financial condition, the court may, upon proper application of a creditor or stockholder, appoint a receiver of its assets to be administered for the benefit of all of its creditors. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 70 S. E. 820.

Judgment against Corporation.—Judgments against a corporation rendered upon process issued after it ceased to exist are of no validity. Dobson v. Simonton, 86 N. C. 492.

§ 55-135. Injunction; notice and undertaking.—An injunction to suspend the general and ordinary business of a corporation or to appoint a receiver shall not be granted without due notice of the application therefor to the corporation, except where the state is a party to the proceeding, unless the plaintiff gives a written undertaking, executed by two sufficient sureties to be approved by the judge, to the effect that the plaintiff will pay all damages, not exceeding the sum mentioned in the undertaking, which the corporation may sustain by reason of the injunction, or the appointment of the receiver, if the court finally decides that the plaintiff was not entitled thereto. The damages may be ascertained by a reference, or otherwise, as the court directs. (Rev., s. 1205; Code, s. 343; C. C. P., s. 194; C. S. 1196.)

Cross References.—As to injunctions generally, see § 1-485 et seq. As to receivers, see §§ 55-134 and 55-147 to 55-157.

§ 55-136. Wages for two months lien on assets.—In case of the insolvency of a corporation, partnership or individual, all persons doing labor or service of whatever character in its regular employment have a lien upon the assets thereof for the amount of wages due to them for all labor, work, and services rendered within two months next preceding the date when proceedings in insolvency were actually instituted and begun against the corporation, partnership or individual, which lien is prior to all other liens that can be acquired against such assets: Provided, that the lien created by this section shall not apply to multiple unit dwellings, apartment houses, or other buildings for family occupancy except as to labor performed on the premises upon which the lien is claimed. This section shall not apply to any single unit family dwelling. (Rev., s. 1206; 1901, c. 2, s. 87; 1937, c. 223; 1943, c. 501; C. S. 1197.)

Cross Reference.—As to mortgaged property subject to execution for labor, see § 55-44.

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment inserted the words "partnership or individual" twice in this section. Before this amendment it had been held that the section did not apply to the employee of an insolvent individual but only to the employee of an insolvent corporation. See In re Reade, 206 N. C. 331, 173 S. E. 342.

The 1943 amendment added the proviso.

An Ancillary Remedy.—This section, giving to laborers of insolvent corporations a specific lien upon the assets of the company for two months' wages at least, was not intended to militate against rights that they might otherwise have under the existing law for debts due them, but gives them a special lien for certain wages. Union Trust Co. v. Southern Sawmills etc., Co., 166 Fed. 193, 204.

Clear Expression of Intent.—The language used in this section is admirably fitted to give expression to the legislative intent with respect to the favored class of creditors to which it undertakes to accord preferential treatment in the distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation, and small latitude is afforded for speculation. The favored creditors are "laborers and workmen and all persons doing labor or service of whatever character in the regular employment of certain corporations." Phoenix Iron Co. v. Roanoke Bridge Co., 169 N. C. 512, 513, 86 S. E. 184.

Prior Lien Holders Protected.—Property acquired by a private corporation subject to a valid and registered mortgage does not become an asset of the corporation except as subject to the prior lien; and the lien given to laborers on the assets of an insolvent corporation for work done under the conditions stated in this section cannot affect the vested rights obtained by the prior lien holders. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

When Mortgagee Takes Subject to Laborer's Lien.—One who takes a mortgage upon corporation property for money loaned to operate it or to secure other debt does so with the knowledge that the lien of his mortgage is subject to be displaced in favor of laborers' liens . . . in case of insolvency. Humphrey Bros. v. Buell-Crocker Lbr. Co., 174 N. C. 514, 93 S. E. 971.

Contractor Not Included.—A contractor, furnishing his own teams, labor, etc., in hauling materials for the building of a bridge by a corporation, which has since become insolvent, within the two months next preceding the date of the institution of the proceedings in insolvency, is not engaged in doing labor or performing "service of whatever character" within the meaning of this section. Phoenix Iron Co. v. Roanoke Bridge Co., 169 N. C. 512, 86 S. E. 184.

Agent Having Authority to Deduct Salary.—Under this section an agent with authority to make collections and to deduct his salary and expenses from the sums collected, has no lien for claims for salary and expenses owing before his appointment to the position. Cummer Lumber Co. v. Seminole Phosphate Co., 189 N. C. 206, 126 S. E. 511.

Notice Need Not Be Filed.—Under this section the laborer is not required to file a notice of his claim. Walker v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 87 S. E. 331.

Service after Receivership.—This section is not intended to destroy the lien for such wages and services performed after the company goes into the hands of a receiver. The word "within" means "subsequent," that is, that after 60 days prior to the insolvency the laborers and workmen shall have a first lien for their wages. Walker v. Lumber Co., 170 N. C. 460, 462, 87 S. E. 331.

§ 55-137. Distribution of funds.—After payment of all allowances, expenses and costs, and the satisfaction of all general and special liens upon the funds of the corporation to the extent of their lawful priority, the creditors shall be paid proportionately to the amount of their respective debts, and shall be entitled to distribution on debts not due, making in such case a rebate of interest when interest is not accruing on the same. Any surplus funds, after payment of the creditors and costs, expenses and allowances, shall be paid to the preferred stockholders according to their respective shares, and if there still be a surplus, it shall be divided and paid to the general stockholders proportionately, according to their respective shares. Upon the distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation, judgment of dissolution shall be entered and a certified copy of the judgment filed in the office of the secretary of state, and also in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the corporation is located, and the same shall be recorded in the Corporation Book and in the Record of Incorporations in these offices respectively. Thereupon the corporation is dissolved without being required to comply with § 55-121. (Rev., s. 1207; Code, s. 670; 1901, c. 2, ss. 63, 89; 1909, c. 15, s. 1; C. S. 1198.)

In General.—When the receiver shall have collected the assets he is required to pay all the debts, if the funds shall be sufficient, and, if not sufficient, to distribute the same ratably, among all the creditors who shall prove their claims. When once the court of equity, through its receiver, takes charge of the assets, they are to be distributed pro rata among the creditors, subject to such priorities as have already accrued. Merchants National Bank v. Newton Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 507, 515, 20 S. E. 765.

No Conflict with Constitution.—The enactment of statutes regulating the manner in which corporations shall equitably discharge the claims of their creditors, or to subject all or a portion of their property to sale at the instance and for the benefit of creditors, is not in conflict with the constitutional provisions in respect to vested rights or the obligation of contracts. Bass v. Roanoke Navigation Co., 111 N. C. 439, 16 S. E. 402.

Real Property Does Not Revert.—Upon the dissolution or extinction of a corporation for any cause, the real property conveyed to it in fee does not revert to the original grantors or their heirs, and its personal property does not escheat to the state; and this is so whether or not the duration of the corporation was limited by its charter or general statute. Wilson v. Leary, 120 N. C. 90, 26 S. E. 630, overruling Fox v. Horah, 36 N. C. 358.

Creditors Come before Stockholders.—A corporation can not settle with its members, by the application of assets to the retirement or redemption of the stock of the shareholders, until it has first settled and discharged all its liabilities, and any agreement among the shareholders looking to such arrangement will be void as to creditors. Heggie v. Building & Loan Asso., 107 N. C. 581, 12 S. E. 275.

Costs.—It is error to tax the costs against first-mortgage creditors, who have established the priority of their lien over the rights of general creditors, in statutory proceedings to wind up the affairs of an insolvent corporation and to distribute its assets. Hickston Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 63 S. E. 1048.

Cited in Smith v. Dicks, 197 N. C. 355, 148 S. E. 464.

§ 55-138. Debts not extinguished nor actions abated.—In case of the dissolution of a corporation, the debts due to and from it are not thereby extinguished, nor do actions against a corporation which is dissolved before final judgment abate by reason thereof, but no judgment shall be entered therein without notice to the trustees or receivers of the corporation. (Rev., ss. 1201, 1208; Code, s. 687; 1901, c. 2, ss. 59, 64; C. S. 1199.)

Cross Reference.—As to directors becoming trustees upon dissolution, see § 55-133.

Where a corporation has been served with summons and has filed answer, the action against it does not abate upon its subsequent dissolution, and its directors are made trustees of its property by §§ 55-132 and 55-133. Lertz v. Hughes Bros., 208 N. C. 490, 181 S. E. 342.

§ 55-139. Copy of judgment to be filed with secretary of state; costs.—A copy of every judgment dissolving a corporation or forfeiting its charter shall be forthwith filed by the clerk of the court in the office of the secretary of state, and a note thereof shall be made by the secretary of state on the charter or certificate of incorporation and in the index thereof, and be published by him in the annual report hereinafter provided for, the cost of which shall be taxed by the clerk of the superior court in the action wherein the corporation is dissolved. (Rev., s. 1211; 1901, c. 2, s. 65; C. S. 1200.)

Art. 12. Execution.

§ 55-140. How issued; property subject to execution.—If a judgment is rendered against a corporation, the plaintiff may sue out such executions against its property as is provided by law to be issued against the property of natural persons, which executions may be levied as well on the current money as on the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of such corporation. (Rev., s. 1212; 1901, c. 2, s. 66; C. S. 1201.)

Cross References.—As to execution in general, see § 1-302 et seq. As to incorporation by purchaser at execution sale of railroad, see §§ 60-62 and 55-161. As to incorporation by purchaser generally, see § 55-161.

Editor's Note—Levy on Franchise.—Prior to the enactment of the Revised Code, the franchise of a corporation, such as that of a railroad or navigation company, could not be levied upon and sold under a writ of fieri facias, or any other writ of execution known either to our common or statute law. Taylor v. Jerkins, 51 N. C. 315, 318; State v. Rives, 27 N. C. 297, 306.

To this section the Revised Code added the following: "And if the judgment or decree be against a railroad or other corporation authorized to receive fares or tolls, the franchise of such corporation, with all the rights and privileges thereof, so far as relates to the receiving of fares or tolls, and also all other corporate property, real or personal, may be taken on execution and sold, under rules regulating the sale of real estate." Rev. Code, ch. 26, sec. 9. See Taylor v. Jerkins. 51 N. C. 315, 317, 319; Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60, 66.

As will be seen this provision no longer constitutes a part of the section, and it is now held that the franchise and corporate property must go together. They cannot be separated. There cannot be a corporation without a franchise. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 527, 28 S. E. 537.

So the real estate acquired by a public corporation in exercise of a delegated right of eminent domain, and necessary for uses in which the public is concerned, cannot be sold under execution apart from the franchise and its incidents, so as to give the purchaser a title to the property divested of all the duties and obligations assumed by the company. Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60.

The franchise of a water company is inseparable from its plant and property. The public necessity requires that they should be sold together, for, in this case, the purchaser will take cum onere and the public will be protected. Pipe Co. v. Howland, 111 N. C. 615, 625, 16 S. E. 857.

Proceedings supplemental to execution lie against a private corporation created by a special act of the Legislature and organized for purposes of private gain for its shareholders. LaFountain v. Southern Underwriters' Asso., 79 N. C. 514.

Cited in Carolina Coach Co. v. Hartness, 198 N. C. 524, 527, 152 S. E. 489.

§ 55-141. Agent must furnish information as to property to officer.—Every agent or person having charge or control of any property of the corporation, on request of a public officer having for service a writ of execution against it, shall furnish to him the names of the directors and officers thereof, and a schedule of all its property, including debts due or to become due, so far as he has knowledge of the same. (Rev., s. 1213; 1901, c. 2, s. 67; C. S. 1202.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalty for failure to furnish information, see § 55-144.

§ 55-142. Shares of stock subject to; agent must furnish information. — Any share or interest in any bank, insurance company, or other joint stock company, that is or may be incorporated under the authority of this state, or incorporated or established under the authority of the United States, belonging to the defendant in execution, may be taken and sold by virtue of such execution in the same manner as goods and chattels. The clerk, cashier, or other officer of such company who has at the time the custody of the books of the company shall, upon being shown the writ of execution, give to the officer having it a certificate of the number of shares or amount of the interest held by the defendant in the company; and if he neglects or refuses to do so, or if he willfully gives a false certificate, he shall be liable to the plaintiff for the amount due on the execution, with costs. (Rev., ss. 1214, 1215; 1901, c. 2, ss. 69, 70; C. S. 1203.)

Cross Reference.—As to shares of stock being liable for attachment, see § 1-458.

Editor's Note.—Before this section was passed it was held that shares of stock, not being goods or chattels, lands or tenements within the sense of the writ, could not be sold under a fi. fa. See Pool v. Glover, 24 N. C. 129.

§ 55-143. Debts due corporation subject to; duty and liability of agent.—If an officer holding an execution is unable to find other property belonging to the corporation liable to execution, he or the judgment creditor may elect to satisfy such execution in whole or in part out of any debts due the corporation; and it is the duty of any agent or person having custody of any evidence of such debt to deliver it to the officer, for the use of the creditor, and such delivery, with a transfer to the officer in writing, for the use of the creditor, and notice to the debtor, shall be a valid assignment thereof; and the creditor may sue for and collect the same in the name of the corporation, subject to such equitable setoffs on the part of the debtor as in other assignments. Every agent or person who neglects or refuses to comply with the provisions of this section and § 55-141 is liable to pay to the execution creditor the amount due on the execution, with costs. (Rev., s. 1216; 1901, c. 2, s. 68; C. S. 1204.)

§ 55-144. Violations of three preceding sections misdemeanor. — If any agent or person having charge or control of any property of a corporation, or any clerk, cashier, or other officer of a corporation, who has at the time the custody of the books of the company, or if any agent or person having custody of any evidence of debt due to a corporation, shall, on request of a public officer having in his hands for service an execution against the said corporation, willfully refuse to give to such officer the names of the directors and officers thereof, and a schedule of all its property, including debts due or to become due, or shall willfully refuse to give to such officer a certificate of the number of shares, or amount of interest held by such corporation in any other corporation, or shall willfully refuse to deliver to such officer any evidence of indebtedness due or to become due to such corporation, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. (Rev., s. 3690; 1901, c. 2, ss. 67, 68, 70; C. S. 1205.)

§ 55-145. Proceedings when custodian of corporate books is a nonresident. — When the clerk, cashier, or other officer of any corporation incorporated under the laws of this state, who has the custody of the stock-registry books, is a nonresident of the state, it is the duty of the sheriff receiving a writ of execution issued out of any court of this state against the goods and chattels of a defendant in execution holding stock in such company to send by mail a notice in writing, directed to the nonresident clerk, cashier, or other officer at the postoffice nearest his reputed place of residence, stating in the notice that he, the sheriff, holds the writ of execution, and out of what court, at whose suit, for what amount, and against whose goods and chattels the writ has been issued, and that by virtue of such writ he seizes and levies upon all the shares of stock of the company held by the defendant in execution on the day of the date of such written notice. It is also the duty of the sheriff on the day of mailing the notice to affix and set upon any office or place of business of such company, within his county, a like notice in writing, and on the same day to serve like notice in writing upon the president and directors of the company, or upon such of them as reside in his county, either personally or by leaving the same at their respective places of abode. The sending, setting up, and serving of such notices in the manner aforesaid constitutes a valid levy of the writ upon all shares of stock in such company held by the defendant in execution, which have not at the time of the receipt of the notice by the clerk, cashier, or other officer, who has custody of the stock-registry books, been actually transferred by the defendant; and thereafter any transfer or sale of such shares by the defendant in execution is void as against the plaintiff in the execution, or any purchaser of such stock at any sale thereunder. (Rev., s. 1217; 1901, c. 2, s. 71; C. S. 1206.)

§ 55-146. Duty and liability of nonresident custodian.—The nonresident clerk, cashier, or other officer in such corporation, to whom notice in writing is sent as prescribed in § 55-145, shall send forthwith to the officer having the writ, a statement of the time when he received the notice and a certificate of the number of shares held by the defendant in the corporation at the time of the receipt, not actually transferred on the books of the corporation; and the sheriff, or other officer, on receipt by him of this certificate, shall insert the number of shares in the inventory attached to the writ. If the clerk, cashier, or other officer in such corporation neglects to send the certificate as aforesaid or willfully sends a false one, he is liable to the plaintiff for double the amount of damages occasioned by his neglect, or false certificate, to be recovered in an action against him; but the neglect to send, or miscarriage of the certificate, does not impair the validity of the levy upon the stock. (Rev., s. 1218; 1901, c. 2, s. 72; C. S. 1207.)

Art. 13. Receivers.

§ 55-147. Appointment and removal.—When a corporation becomes insolvent or suspends its ordinary business for want of funds, or is in imminent danger of insolvency, or has forfeited its corporate rights, or its corporate existence has expired by limitation, a receiver may be appointed by the court under the same regulations that are provided by law for the appointment of receivers in other cases; and the court may remove a receiver or trustee and appoint another in his place, or fill any vacancy. Everything required to be done by receivers or trustees is valid if performed by a majority of them. (Rev., ss. 1219, 1223; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 73, 79; C. S. 1208.)

Cross References.—As to receivers in general, see §§ 1-501 to 1-507. As to powers and bonds of corporate receiver, see § 55-148. As to statute making this section applicable to banks, see § 53-22. As to service of summons in action for appointment of receiver, see § 55-131. As to jurisdiction of superior court over the appointment of receivers, see § 55-134. As to abatement of actions upon death of receiver, see § 1-74.

Broad Powers Conferred.—This article is so broad and comprehensive in its provisions regarding the appointment of receivers that it was not necessary to refer to the general power of a court of equity in such cases. Summit Silk Co. v. Kinston Spinning Co., 154 N. C. 421, 425, 70 S. E. 820.

Nature of Receivership.—Upon the insolvency of a corporation and the appointment of a receiver under the provisions of this section, the receiver represents the creditors as well as the owners, excluding the general creditors from taking any separate or effective steps on their account in furtherance of their claims; and the proceeding for the receivership is in the nature of a judicial process by which the rights of the general creditors are "fastened upon the property." Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 94 S. E. 526.

Discretion of Court.—The selection of a receiver for an insolvent corporation is a matter largely in the discretion of the trial judge and will not generally be reviewed unless this discretionary power has been greatly abused, and though the practice of appointing the plaintiff attorney as such receiver is not commended, he will not be removed, as a matter of law, on appeal, though, as any other receiver, he may be removed upon application to the proper judge of the superior court. Mitchell v. Realty Co., 169 N. C. 516, 86 S. E. 358; Fisher v. Trust Co., 138 N. C. 90, 102, 50 S. E. 592, cited and approved. Mitchell v. Aulander Realty Co., 169 N. C. 516, 86 S. E. 358.

Effect of Appointment.—The appointment of a receiver for a company, who is directed to take control of all the property of the company, and to assume entire management of its affairs, has the effect of suspending all the officers of the company; and they can not interfere with the business of the company, and are entitled to no salaries during the continuance of the receivership. Lenoir v. Linville Improvement Co., 126 N. C. 922, 36 S. E. 185.

Title of Receiver Relates Back.—The courts have now, as a rule, come to the conclusion that the title of the receiver on his appointment dates back to the time of granting the order, even though certain preliminary conditions must first be performed and the receiver remains out of possession pending such performance. Worth v. Bank, 122 N. C. 397, 29 S. E. 775; Pelletier v. Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 596, 31 S. E. 855; Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 775, 44 S. E. 601.

Continuance of Receivership.—A receivership continues as long as the court may think it necessary to the performance of the duties pertaining thereto. Young v. Rollings, 90 N. C. 125.

Directors Duty When Receiver Appointed.—An order appointing a receiver of a defunct corporation with power to receive into possession all the effects of the company, and also investing him with the usual rights and powers of receivers, involves the correlative duty of delivering the same to him by the late officers of the company in whose hands the funds are, although not expressly required in the decretal order. Young v. Rollings, 90 N. C. 125.

Valid Liens Not Divested.—The title of a receiver relates only to the time of his appointment, and valid liens existing at that time are not divested thereby. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

Where Assignee Appointed Receiver.—One to whom an insolvent bank made an assignment of its assets, and who on the same day, and at the suit of creditors, was appointed receiver, held the assets after such adjudication, not by virtue of the deed of assignment but as an officer of the court appointed to settle and wind up the affairs of such insolvent bank. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371.

Receiver Appointed after Reorganization.—The organization of a new corporation at once dissolves the old one, and if there are creditors of the dissolved corporation they may cause the property of the defunct corporation to be applied to their debts by means of a receiver. Marshall v. Western N. C. R. R. Co., 92 N. C. 322.

Dissolution.—Assuming that a bank which had never been duly incorporated had a corporate existence as to those who bona fide dealt with it as a corporation, a receiver should be appointed to take charge of and preserve its effects, where it has voluntarily dissolved, and no one claims to own its stock, and all its supposed officers disclaim their offices. Dobson v. Simonton, 78 N. C. 63.

Fraudulent Disposal of Property.—If, during the existence of a corporation, its officers fraudulently or unlawfully disposed of any of its property, the creditors are entitled to have a receiver appointed to sue for and recover it. Latta v. Catawba Elect. Co., 146 N. C. 285, 59 S. E. 1028.

Cessation of Business.—Where a corporation had ceased operation, a stockholder had the right to maintain an action for the appointment of a receiver, although the corporation had not been dissolved in accordance with the provisions of the statute. Greenleaf v. Land, etc., Co., 146 N. C. 505, 60 S. E. 424.

Not Available in Federal Courts.—This section does not confer upon a stockholder or a creditor a substantive right, but merely gives a new remedy and such remedy is not available in the federal courts. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Adjudication of Bankruptcy during Insolvency Proceeding.—Proceedings against an insolvent corporation under this section do not preclude creditors from petitioning to have the corporation adjudged a bankrupt, notwithstanding the action of the state courts. In Re McKinnon Co., 237 Fed. 869, 872.

When Receiver Unnecessary.—It is unnecessary to have a receiver appointed in order for the assignee of a judgment creditor, and those thereunder beneficially interested, to maintain an action against officers and stockholders for misapplication of funds in distribution among the shareholders as dividends. Chatham v. Mecklenburg Realty Co., 180 N. C. 500, 105 S. E. 329.

Cited in Harris v. Hilliard, 221 N. C. 329, 20 S. E. (2d) 278.

§ 55-148. Powers and bond.—The receiver has power and authority to—

1. Demand, sue for, collect, receive and take into his possession all the goods and chattels, rights and credits, moneys and effects, lands and tenements, books, papers, choses in action, bills, notes, and property of every description of the corporation.

2. Foreclose mortgages, deeds of trust, and other liens executed to the corporation.

3. Institute suits for the recovery of any estate, property, damages, or demands existing in favor of the corporation, and he shall, upon application by him, be substituted as party plaintiff in the place of the corporation in any suit or proceeding pending at the time of his appointment.

4. Sell, convey, and assign all of the said estate, rights, and interest.

5. Appoint agents under him.

6. Examine persons and papers, and pass on claims as elsewhere provided in this article.

7. Do all other acts which might be done by the corporation, if in being, that are necessary for the final settlement of its unfinished business.

The powers of the receiver may be continued as long as the court thinks necessary, and the receiver shall hold and dispose of the proceeds of all sales of property under the direction of the court, and, before acting, must enter into such bond and comply with such terms as the court prescribes. (Rev., ss. 1222, 1231; Code, s. 668; 1901, c. 2, ss. 74, 84; C. S. 1209.)

Cross Reference.—As to foreclosure by receiver, see § 55-150.

Directors Superseded.—Appointment of receivers of a corporation on a creditors' bill supersedes the power of the directors to carry on the business of the corporation and the receivers take possession of the corporation until further order of the court. Abm. S. See & Depew Inc. v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235.

Power to Bring All Actions.—The receiver represents and, in a certain sense, succeeds to the rights of the corporation. There is no valid reason why he may not, representing the corporation and its creditors, bring any and all actions in respect to its assets, or rights of action, which it or its creditors could have brought. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 415, 47 S. E. 893.

May Sue in Own Name.—The receiver may sue either in his own name or that of the corporation. In whichever name he may elect to bring the action, it is essentially a suit by the corporation, prosecuted by order of the court, for the collection of the assets. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371, 23 L. R. A. 322; Gray v. Lewis, 94 N. C. 392.

Receiver May Plead Usury.—The plea of usury may be made by a receiver of an insolvent corporation against which a usurious contract is sought to be enforced. Riley v. Sears, 154 N. C. 509, 510, 70 S. E. 997.

Valid Existing Liens Protected.—The title of a receiver of a private corporation to the corporate property relates back only to the time of his appointment, and it cannot divest the property of valid liens existing at that time. Roberts v. Bowen Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 85 S. E. 45.

All Rights May Be Adjusted.—In the suit by the receivers may be adjudicated all the rights of the bank, its creditors and the defendant debtor, both legal and equitable, pertaining to the matters set out in the pleadings, and such judgment may be entered as will enforce the rights of the general creditors and also protect any equities that the defendant may be entitled to. Smathers v. Bank, 135 N. C. 410, 413, 47 S. E. 893; Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 19 S. E. 371, 23 L. R. A. 322; Gray v. Lewis, 94 N. C. 392.

No Extraterritorial Power.—A receiver, appointed in a stockholder's action to sequester assets of the corporation against mismanagement of its officers and directors, has no extraterritorial power. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Priority of Receivers.—One receiver has no priority over another receiver previously appointed in another district on a creditors' bill. See & Depew v. Fisheries Products Co., 9 Fed. (2d) 235, 236.

Power after Charter Has Expired.—A receiver, appointed under the preceding section, to wind up the affairs of a corporation, can proceed to collect the assets and to prosecute and defend suits, after the corporation has ceased to exist by the expiration of its charter. Asheville Division v. Aston, 92 N. C. 579.

Same—Effect of Judgment.—Judgments against a corporation rendered upon process issued after it ceased to exist are of no validity; and the same may be impeached by a party interested in the administration of its assets. Dobson v. Simonton, 86 N. C. 492.

Conveyances.—While subsection 4 empowers receivers to convey the estate, the receiver of a corporation may not ordinarily dispose of a substantial part of the assets entrusted to him without authority of court, and sales are subject to confirmation unless authority to convey on specified terms is expressly given. Harrison v. Brown, 222 N. C. 610, 24 S. E. (2d) 470.

Sufficiency to Pass Title.—Where, under a court order, the receiver of an insolvent has conveyed lands according to the terms of a deed of trust by which the bank held the land, applying this and the following section the deed was sufficient in law to pass title. Wachovia Bank, etc., Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 688, 158 S. E. 244.

Cited in Harris v. Hilliard, 221 N. C. 329, 20 S. E. (2d) 278.

§ 55-149. Title and inventory.—All of the real and personal property of an insolvent corporation, wheresoever situated, and all its franchises, rights, privileges and effects, upon the appointment of a receiver, forthwith vest in him, and the corporation is divested of the title thereto. Within thirty days after his appointment he shall lay before the court a full and complete inventory of all estate, property, and effects of the corporation, its nature and probable value, and an account of all debts due from and to it, as nearly as the same can be ascertained, and shall make a report of his proceedings to the superior court at every civil term during the continuance of the trust. (Rev., ss. 1224, 1225; 1901, c. 2, ss. 75, 80; C. S. 1210.)

Cross Reference.—As to liability of property in receiver's hands for taxes, see § 55-160.

Prior Liens Not Divested.—It has been held, and is a generally accepted doctrine, that the appointment of a receiver does not divest the property of prior existing liens, but the court, through its receiver, receives such property impressed with all existing rights and equities, and the relative ranks of claims and standing of liens remain unaffected by the receivership. Pelletier v. Lumber Co., 123 N. C. 596, 31 S. E. 855; Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 127 N. C. 432, 37 S. E. 461; Fisher v. Western Carolina Bank, 132 N. C. 769, 44 S. E. 601; Garrison v. Vermont Mills, 154 N. C. 1, 69 S. E. 743; Witherell v. Murphy, 154 N. C. 82, 90, 69 S. E. 748.

Insurance Policies Not Forfeited.—The vesting of the property of a corporation in the receiver under this section does not constitute such a change in the "interest, title or possession," of the property as to forfeit insurance policies on the property. Southern Pants Co. v. Insurance Co., 159 N. C. 78, 74 S. E. 812.

Effect of Subsequent Judgment against Corporation.—The title to the property of a corporation vests in the receiver at the time he was duly appointed by the court, from which time the corporation is divested thereof, and a judgment against the corporation entered thereafter, but before the docketing of the order or the qualifying of the receiver thereunder, can acquire no lien in favor of the judgment creditor. Odell Hardware Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Same—Does Not Relate Back. — A judgment rendered against a corporation does not relate back, by implication of law, to the beginning of the term, so as to create a lien on the corporate property as against the vesting of the title in a receiver, under this section, who had in the meanwhile been appointed. Odell Hardware Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Effect of Unrecorded Conditional Sale Contract.—A receiver has the power of creditors armed with process to disregard or avoid the unrecorded condition in a contract of conditional sale. Observer Co. v. Little, 175 N. C. 42, 45, 94 N. C. 526.

Receiver Made Defendant.—"In an action brought by creditors, depositors or stockholders to recover assets belonging to the corporation, the title to which has vested in the receiver, upon his refusal to bring the action the receiver may properly be made a defendant, to the end that the recovery may be subject to orders and decrees by the court, in the judgment as to its application to the claims of creditors and depositors, or to its distribution among stockholders." Douglass v. Dawson, 190 N. C. 458, 463, 130 S. E. 195.

Applied in Teague v. Teague Furniture Co., 201 N. C. 803, 161 S. E. 530.

§ 55-150. Foreclosure by receivers and trustees of corporate mortgagees or grantees.—Where real estate has been conveyed by mortgage deed, or deed of trust to any corporation in this State authorized to accept such conveyance for the purpose of securing the notes or bonds of the grantor, and such corporation thereafter shall be placed in the hands of a receiver or trustee in properly instituted court proceedings, then such receiver or trustee under and pursuant to the orders and the decrees of the said court or other court of competent jurisdiction may sell such real property pursuant to the orders and the decrees of the said court or may foreclose and sell such real property as provided in such mortgage deed, or deed of trust, pursuant to the orders and decrees of such court.

All such sales shall be made as directed by the court in the cause in which said receiver is appointed or the said trustee elected, and for the satisfaction and settlement of such notes and bonds secured by such mortgage deed or deed of trust or in such other actions for the sales of the said real property as the said receiver or trustee may institute and all pursuant to the orders and decrees of the court having jurisdiction therein.

All sales of real property made prior to April 10, 1931 by such receiver or trustee of and pursuant to the orders of the courts of competent jurisdiction in such cases, are hereby validated. (1931, c. 265.)

Editor's Note.—This statute, which became effective April 10, 1931, excepted pending litigation. The need for the statute is not apparent, in view of §§ 55-148 and 55-149, as construed in Wachovia Bank and Trust Co. v. Hudson, 200 N. C. 688, 158 S. E. 244, decided shortly after the act was ratified, unless it was because those statutes are limited to receiverships and are inapplicable, as the new statute is, to trusteeships as well. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 401.

§ 55-151. May send for persons and papers; penalty for refusing to answer.—The receiver has power to send for persons and papers, to examine any persons, including the creditors, claimants, president, directors, and other officers and agents of the corporation, on oath or affirmation (which oath or affirmation the receiver may administer), respecting its affairs and transactions and its estate, money, goods, chattels, credits, notes, bills, choses in action, real and personal estate and effects of every kind; and also respecting its debts, obligations, contracts, and liabilities, and the claims against it; and if any person refuses to be sworn or affirmed, or to make answers to such questions as may be put to him, or refuses to declare the whole truth touching the subject-matter of the examination, the court may, on report of the receiver, commit such person as for contempt. (Rev., s. 1227; 1901, c. 2, s. 78; C. S. 1211.)

§ 55-152. Proof of claims; time limit. — All claims against an insolvent corporation must be presented to the receiver in writing; and the claimant, if required, shall submit himself to such examination in relation to the claim as the receiver directs, and shall produce such books and papers relating to the claim as shall be required. The receiver has power to examine under oath or affirmation all witnesses produced before him touching the claim, and shall pass upon and allow or disallow the claims or any part thereof, and notify the claimants of his determination. The court may limit the time within which creditors may present and prove to the receiver their respective claims against the corporation, and may bar all creditors and claimants failing to do so within the time limited from participating in the distribution of the assets of the corporation. The court may also prescribe what notice, by publication or otherwise, must be given to creditors of such limitation of time. (Rev., ss. 1228, 1229; 1901, c. 2, ss. 81, 82; C. S. 1212.)

Court May Extend Time for Filing.—The court has the discretion to permit the filing of claims subsequent to the time fixed after the appointment of the receiver. Odell Hdw. Co. v. Holt-Morgan Mills, 173 N. C. 308, 92 S. E. 8.

Creditor May Assign Claim.—After the appointment of a receiver a creditor may assign his claim, but such assignment is subject to the receiver's right to set off claims the bank may have against the creditor, and if the assignee of a claim is himself a debtor of the bank he cannot use the assigned claim as a set-off. Davis v. Industrial Mfg. Co., 114 N. C. 321, 322, 19 S. E. 371.

Cited in Kenny Co. v. Hinton Hotel Co., 208 N. C. 295, 180 S. E. 696.

§ 55-153. Report on claims to court; exceptions and jury trial.—It is the duty of the receiver to report to the term of the superior court subsequent to a finding by him as to any claim against the corporation, and exceptions thereto may be filed by any person interested, within ten days after notice of the finding by the receiver, and not later than within the first three days of the said term; and, if, on an exception so filed, a jury trial is demanded, it is the duty of the court to prepare a proper issue and submit it to a jury; and if the demand is not made in the exceptions to the report the right to a jury trial is waived. The judge may, in his discretion, extend the time for filing such exceptions. (Rev., s. 1230; 1901, c. 2, s. 83; C. S. 1213.)

§ 55-154. Property sold pending litigation.—When the property of an insolvent corporation is at the time of the appointment of a receiver incumbered with mortgages or other liens, the legality of which is brought in question, and the property is of a character materially to deteriorate in value pending the litigation, the court may order the receiver to sell the same, clear of incumbrance, at public or private sale, for the best price that can be obtained, and pay the money into the court, there to remain subject to the same liens and equities of all parties in interest as was the property before sale, to be disposed of as the court directs. And the receiver or receivers making such sale is hereby authorized and directed to report to the resident judge of the district or to the judge holding the courts of the district in which the property is sold, the said sale for confirmation, the said report to be made to the said judge in any county in which he may be at the time; but before acting upon said report, the said receiver or receivers shall publish in some newspaper published in the county or in some newspaper of general circulation in the county, where there is no newspaper published in the county, a notice directed to all creditors and persons interested in said property, that the said receiver will make application to the judge (naming him) at a certain place and time for the confirmation of his said report, which said notice shall be published at least ten days before the time fixed therein for the said hearing. And the said judge is authorized to act upon said report, either confirming it or rejecting the sale; and if he rejects the sale it shall be competent for him to order a new sale and the said order shall have the same force and effect as if made at a regular term of the Superior Court of the county in which the property is situated. (Rev., s. 1238; 1901, c. 2, s. 86; Ex. Sess. 1924, c. 13; C. S. 1214.)

Editor's Note.—Previous to 1924 this section consisted of the first sentence only of the present section. The addition was made by sec. 13, Extra Sess. Public Laws of 1924.

The amendment to this section effected by the Act of 1924 is applicable to suits pending at the time it took effect. Martin v. Vanlaningham, 189 N. C. 656, 127 S. E. 695.

Applicable to Pending Litigation.—The statute is a remedial one and relates only to the method of procedure in dealing with certain assets of an insolvent corporation. Such statutes, unless otherwise limited, are usually held to be applicable to pending litigation, where the language used clearly indicates that such construction was intended by the Legislature, and especially where no hardship or injustice results, and the rights of the parties are thereby better secured and protected. Martin v. Vanlaningham, 189 N. C. 656, 127 S. E. 695, 696.

§ 55-155. Compensation and expenses.—Before distribution of the assets of an insolvent corporation among the creditors or stockholders, the court shall allow a reasonable compensation to the receiver for his services, not to exceed five per cent upon receipts and disbursements, and the costs and expenses of administration of his trust and of the proceedings in said court, to be first paid out of said assets. (Rev., s. 1226; 1901, c. 2, s. 88; C. S. 1215.)

In General.—The effect of this section is to take from the funds of the insolvent corporation a sufficient sum to pay all the costs, allowances and legitimate expenses, and then to distribute what is left according to priority. Hickson Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 282, 63 S. E. 1048.

Commissions Limited.—A rate not exceeding 5 per cent on receipts and 5 per cent. on disbursements is the statutory limit of a receiver's commissions. Battery Park Bank v. Western Carolina Bank, 126 N. C. 531, 36 S. E. 39.

Commissions Part of Costs.—Commissions payable to a receiver are part of the costs and expenses of the suit in which he is appointed, and should be paid as such instead of being classed as a debt payable pro rata with other debts. Wilson Cotton Mills v. Randleman Cotton Mills, 115 N. C. 475, 20 S. E. 770.

Same—Discretion of Court.—An allowance to a receiver is a part of the costs of the action and usually taxable against the losing party, but the court below, may, in its discretion, divide it between the parties, as in case of referees' fees. Simmons v. Allison, 119 N. C. 556, 26 S. E. 171.

First Assets Applied to Costs.—Under this section the first assets that are the property of the corporation must be applied to the costs of the proceedings in court, including the fees of the receiver and referee, and (except as to private corporations, Roberts v. Brown Mfg. Co., 169 N. C. 27, 33, 85 S. E. 45) receivers' certificates issued in operation of the plant, under the orders of the court, and liabilities incurred for labor, and torts. Hickson Lumber Co. v. Gay Lumber Co., 150 N. C. 281, 282, 63 S. E. 1048; Humphrey Bros. v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 521, 93 S. E. 971.

When Costs Prior to Mortgage.—One who takes a mortgage upon corporation property for money loaned to operate it or to secure other debts, past or prospective, does so with the knowledge that, under this section, the lien of his mortgage is subject to be displaced in favor of the expenses of receivership, but when the corporation has acquired the property subject to a valid registered mortgage then the costs of receivership are not prior to that mortgage. Humphrey Bros. v. Buell-Crocker Lumber Co., 174 N. C. 514, 519, 93 S. E. 971.

Work Completed First.—The allowance of commissions to receivers appointed by the court, by consent, to finish the completed water-works, is premature before the work is finished, as it cannot be determined until then whether such allowance is excessive or too little. Delafield v. Mercer Constr. Co., 118 N. C. 105, 24 S. E. 10.

Appeal. — When the order of the court below allowing commissions to a receiver for services as such is appealed from, and there is no suggestion that the amount was excessive or based upon a wrong principle, the order will not be disturbed. Talbot v. Tyson, 147 N. C. 273, 60 S. E. 1125.

The allowance of commissions and counsel fees to a receiver by the superior court is prima facie correct, and the Supreme Court will alter the same only when they are clearly inadequate or excessive. Graham v. Carr, 133 N. C. 449, 45 S. E. 847.

§ 55-156. Debts provided for, receiver discharged.—When a receiver has been appointed, and it afterwards appears that the debts of the corporation have been paid, or provided for, and that there remains, or can be obtained by further contributions, sufficient capital to enable it to resume its business, the court may, in its discretion, a proper case being shown, discharge the receiver, and decree that the property, rights, and franchises of the corporation revert to it, and thereafter the corporation may resume control of the same, as fully as if the receiver had never been appointed. (Rev., s. 1220; 1901, c. 2, s. 76; C. S. 1216.)

Discharged Receiver Not a Party.—Where the receiver of an insolvent railroad company is discharged, he is not a proper party to an action against a foreclosure purchaser to recover for personal injuries received after his discharge. Howe v. Harper, 127 N. C. 356, 37 S. E. 505.

§ 55-157. Reorganization.—When a majority in interest of the stockholders of the corporation have agreed upon a plan for its reorganization and a resumption by it of the management and control of its property and business, the corporation may, with the consent of the court, upon the reconveyance to it of its property and franchises, either by deed or decree of the court, mortgage the same for an amount necessary for the purposes of the reorganization; and may issue bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, or additional stock, or both, and use the same for the full or partial payment of the creditors who will accept the same, or otherwise dispose of the same for the purposes of the reorganization. (Rev., s. 1221; 1901, c. 2, s. 77; C. S. 1217.)

Cross Reference.—As to reorganization in general, see § 55-161 et seq.

Duty of Fiduciaries.—In the reorganization of a corporation under this section, executors, trustees, and other fiduciaries, holding stock in the corporation, not only have the right, but it is their duty to assert whatever legal rights they may have, which in their opinion will be for the best interest of the estates involved. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Mooresville Cotton Mills, 222 N. C. 305, 22 S. E. (2d) 913.

Readjustment of Capital Structure.—This section gives the superior court, in a receivership, power to approve a plan for the reorganization of a corporation, which provides for the readjustment of the company's capital structure, when approved by a majority in interest of the stockholders; but it cannot affect either the rights of dissenting stockholders not parties to the receivership, or the vested rights of parties to the proceedings unless they fail to appear. Commercial Nat. Bank v. Mooresville Cotton Mills, 222 N. C. 305, 22 S. E. (2d) 913.

Consent of Creditors Unnecessary.—Where a corporation engaged in business transfers its entire property rights and franchises to a new company incorporated and organized by the same stockholders and directors as the old, and the new company continues the business and adopts the contracts of its predecessor, the effect of such a merger is to create a novation so far as the creditors of the old company are concerned and to substitute the new one as debtor, and in such case it is not necessary to obtain the consent of the creditors of the old company to the change. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

New Corporation Assumes Contracts of Old.—Where, by merger of an old into a new corporation, a novation of the debts of the old is created, the new corporation is, to all intents and purposes, the same body and answerable for its own contracts made under a different name. Friedenwald Co. v. Asheville Tobacco, etc., Co., 117 N. C. 544, 23 S. E. 490.

Art. 14. Taxes and Fees.

§ 55-158. Taxes for filing; secretary of state not to file corporate papers until prescribed fees, etc., paid.—On filing any certificate or paper relative to corporations in the office of the Secretary of State, the following tax shall be paid to the State Treasurer for the use of the State:

1. For certificates of incorporation, forty cents for each thousand dollars of the total amount of capital stock authorized but in no case less than forty dollars.

2. Increase of capital stock, forty cents for each thousand dollars of the total increase authorized, but in no case less than forty dollars.

3. Extension or renewal of corporate existence of any corporation, the same as required for the original certificate of incorporation by this section.

4. Change of name, change of nature of business, amended certificate of incorporation (other than those authorizing increase of capital stock), decrease of capital stock, increase or decrease of par value of, or number of shares, forty dollars.

5. For filing of officers and directors, two dollars.

6. Dissolution of corporation, change of principal place of business, five dollars.

7. For certificates of incorporation for any benevolent, religious, educational, charitable or social society or association having no capital stock, fifteen dollars.

Provided, no tax shall be required by corporations created by virtue of § 55-11 relating to public parks and drives; and these taxes shall not be cumulative, but when two or more taxes have been incurred at the same time the tax for all shall be the largest single tax.

The secretary of state shall not file any articles, certificates, applications, amendments, reports, or other papers relating to any corporation, domestic or foreign, organized under or subject to the provisions of this chapter until all fees, taxes, and charges provided to be paid in connection therewith shall have been paid to him. (Rev., s. 1233; 1901, c. 2, s. 96; 1911, c. 155, s. 5; 1929, c. 36; 1935, c. 10; 1937, c. 171; C. S. 1218.)

Cross References.—As to the requirements of the certificate of incorporation, see § 55-3. As to errors or omissions in the certificate, see § 55-8. As to amending the certificate before payment of stock, see § 55-30. As to tax upon certificate of incorporation or amendments when capital stock is without nominal or par value, see § 55-77. As to fees to be collected from merging corporations, see § 55-170. As to franchise or privilege tax on domestic and foreign corporations, see § 105-122.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 amended this section to make it conform to Public Laws, Extra. Sess. 1920, c. 1, which increased the taxes provided for in the original section.

For an article dealing with taxation of North Carolina corporations in general, see 1 N. C. Law Rev. 203-215. This section is mentioned in the article on p. 205.

Prior to the amendment of 1935 no taxes were required of benevolent, religious, educational or charitable societies or associations having no capital stock, the same being exempted by the proviso at the end of the section. Thus subsection (7) is new.

The 1937 amendment added the last paragraph.

§ 55-159. Fees to secretary of state and clerk of superior court.—The secretary of state shall collect and retain the following fees: For recording the certificate of incorporation, one dollar for the first three copy sheets and ten cents for each copy sheet in excess thereof, and for official seal one dollar; for copying, the same fees as for recording. There shall be paid the clerk of the superior court for recording the certificate of incorporation a fee of three dollars. (Rev., s 1234; Code, s. 680; 1893, c. 318, s. 4; 1901, c. 2, s. 96; 1917, c. 231, s. 84; C. S. 1219.)

§ 55-160. Property in receiver's hands liable for taxes.—When listed or unlisted taxes are duly assessed and charged against and are due and unpaid by a corporation with chartered rights, doing business or with property in this state, or against a person residing in, doing business, or having property in this state, it is competent for an officer or tax collector who has the tax list to levy upon, seize, and take possession of that part of the property belonging to the corporation or person necessary to pay such taxes, even though the property is in the hands of a receiver duly appointed; and the officer or collector need not apply to the court appointing the receiver, or with jurisdiction of the property or the receiver, for an order for the payment of said taxes. This section applies to all taxes, whether state, county, town or municipal, and shall be liberally construed in favor of and in furtherance of the collection of such taxes. (Rev., ss. 1236, 1237; Code, ss. 699, 670; C. S. 1220.)

Cross References.—As to duty of state board of assessment to prepare and keep record of the assessed valuation of the property of corporations, see § 105-349. As to liability of foreign corporations, see § 105-396.

Failure to Pay Taxes. — The State and county having, through the boards of commissioners sitting with the justices of the peace, assessed the property of a corporation for taxation and placed the tax list in the hands of the sheriff, who cannot find any property of the corporation upon which to levy, are creditors holding a debt against such corporation and are entitled to bring a proceeding in the nature of a creditor's bill against such corporation, with or without proceedings for its dissolution. State v. Georgia Co., 112 N. C. 34, 17 S. E. 10.

Attachment and Continuance of Lien.—The lien for taxes attaches to the real property taxed from the date provided in the statute, and the lien continues thereon until the taxes are paid, regardless into whose hands the property has passed, unless barred by some statute of limitations. Reichland Shale Products Co. v. Southern Steel, etc., Co., 200 N. C. 226, 156 S. E. 777.

Where City and County Have No Lien on Proceeds of Sale. — Where the receiver of a corporation sold personal property of the corporation, comprising its sole assets, under orders of the court, and deposited the proceeds of sale to his credit as receiver, and the city and county in which the corporation was located levied executions on the funds on deposit, claiming that they, respectively, were entitled to preferred claims against the funds for personal property taxes for several years prior to the appointment of the receiver, it was held that since under old § 7986 a lien for personal property taxes does not attach until levy thereon and no lien for taxes was created prior to the sale of the property free from tax liens by the receiver, the city and county have no lien on the proceeds of sale of the property and are not entitled to a preferred claim against the funds. Currie v. Southern Manufacturers Club, 210 N. C. 150, 185 S. E. 666.

Art. 15. Reorganization.

§ 55-161. Corporations whose property and franchises sold under order of court or execution.—When the property and franchises of a public-service corporation are sold under a judgment or decree of a court of this state, or of the district court of the United States, or under execution, to satisfy a mortgage debt or other encumbrance thereon, such sale vests in the purchaser all the right, title, interest and property of the parties to the action in which such judgment or decree was made, to said property and franchise, subject to all the conditions, limitations and restrictions of the corporation; and the purchaser and his associates, not less than three in number, thereupon become a new corporation, by such name as they select, and they are the stockholders in the ratio of the purchase money by them contributed; and are entitled to all the rights and franchises and subject to all the conditions, limitations and penalties of the corporation whose property and franchises have been so sold. In the event of the sale of a railroad in foreclosure of a mortgage or deed of trust, whether under a decree of court or otherwise, the corporation created by or in consequence of the sale succeeds to all the franchises, rights and privileges of the original corporation only when the sale is of all the railroad owned by the company and described in the mortgage or deed of trust, and when the railroad is sold as an entirety. If a purchaser at any such sale is a corporation, such purchasing corporation shall succeed to all the properties, franchises, powers, rights, and privileges of the original corporation: Provided, that this shall not affect vested rights and shall not be construed to alter in any manner the public policy of the state now or hereafter established with reference to trusts and contracts in restraint of trade. (Rev., s. 1238; Code, ss. 697, 698; 1897, c. 305; 1901, c. 2, s. 99; 1913, c. 25, s. 1; 1919, c. 75; C. S. 1221.)

Cross References.—As to reorganization, see also § 55-157. As to purchaser of railroad property, see also §§ 60-62 and 60-63.

Railroad Property and Franchise Must Be Together. — The property of railroads must be kept in association with their franchises to preserve their value; to give credit to such corporations; to secure creditors and keep railroads in operation for the benefit of the public, which was the primary object of the Legislature in bestowing such corporate franchises. Such legislative purpose is clearly manifested in this section. Bradley v. Ohio River, etc., Co., 119 N. C. 918, 927, 26 S. E. 169; citing Gooch v. McGee, 83 N. C. 60, 67.

New Corporation Must Be Provided.—In order that the sale of the franchise and property of a corporation under the mortgage shall have the effect of a dissolution of such corporation as provided in this section, another corporation must be provided, as contemplated in section 60-62, to take its place, and assume and discharge the obligations to the public growing out of the grant of the franchise, and until that is done the old corporation continues to exist, and when it is done the new corporation will be a domestic corporation. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 28 S. E. 537.

Meaning of "Encumbrance."—In this section the word "encumbrance" is not restricted, as in cases of real estate alone, to claims having specific liens on the property, but is extended to include any and all claims importing a liability to sale as a whole under a judicial decree. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Effect of Sale of Railroad.—The sale of a railroad under a second mortgage and a conveyance thereunder subject to the first mortgage upon its franchise and corporate property did not extinguish the corporate existence of the company, nor release it from liability to the public for the manner in which it is operated. James v. Western N. C. R. Co., 121 N. C. 523, 28 S. E. 537.

Rights of Purchaser.—On the foreclosure of a mortgage given by a railroad company, the purchaser takes the rights that the company had acquired in relation to its right of way under its charter. Barker v. Railroad, 137 N. C. 214, 49 S. E. 115.

The purchaser of a railroad under this section takes the rights acquired by the former company under its charter, and also becomes liable for damages and assessments on account of the appropriation of lands for the right of way. Hendrick v. R. R., 101 N. C. 617, 8 S. E. 236.

Rights of Old Stockholders.—When the property, including the franchise, of a corporation is sold under judicial sale, conferring on the purchaser the right to reorganize, etc., the old stockholders have a right to share in the assets if there is a surplus; but the decree itself shuts off all their rights as such stockholders in the new corporation. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

Debts.—The principle that a corporation taking over another by reorganization, consolidation, amalgamation, or union is subject to the debts and liabilities of such corporation, rests upon the ground that the corporation so taken over either has not been paid a consideration, that the transaction was in fraud of creditors, or upon the presumption of a trust for creditors; consequently, the principle does not apply to the bona fide sale of only a part of the assets of a corporation which continues to exist and exercise its functions under its franchise. McAlister v. Express Co., 179 N. C. 556, 103 S. E. 129.

Use of Former Name.—Where a corporation has been practically reorganized under a different name, the fact that persons in negotiating for the sale of shares of stock in the reorganized corporation used the former name is immaterial, it appearing that the purchaser received the certificates he had contracted to purchase, and held them without objection, and must have known of the fact. Pritchard v. Daily, 168 N. C. 330, 84 S. E. 392.

Cited in Carolina Coach Co. v. Hartness, 198 N. C. 524, 528, 152 S. E. 489.

§ 55-162. New owners to meet and organize.— The persons for whom the property and franchises have been purchased shall meet within thirty days after the delivery of the conveyance made by virtue of said process or decree, and organize the new corporation, ten days written notice of the time and place of the meeting having been given to each of the said persons. At this meeting they shall adopt a corporate name and seal, determine the amount of the capital stock of the corporation, and shall have power and authority to make and issue certificates of stock in shares of such amounts as they see fit. The corporation may then, or at any time thereafter, create and issue preferred stock to such an amount, and at such time, as they may deem necessary. (Rev., ss. 1239, 1240; 1901, c. 2, ss. 100, 101, 102; C. S. 1222.)

Change of Name and Seal Not Required.—Where the purchasers of the entire property of a defunct corporation under the decree of a court have in other respects complied with the requirements of the statute as to reorganization, the fact that they have assumed to continue operations without changing the seal, or determining upon a different amount of capitalization, does not necessarily affect the fact of proper reorganization, there being no statutory requirement that they change them. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C 245, 93 S. E. 794.

§ 55-163. Certificate to be filed with secretary of state.—It is the duty of the new corporation, within one month after its organization to make certificate thereof, under its common seal, attested by the signature of its president, specifying the date of the organization, the name adopted, the amount of capital stock, and the names of its president and directors, and transmit the certificate to the secretary of state, to be filed and recorded in his office, and there remain of record. A certified copy of this certificate so filed shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which is located the principal office of the corporation, and is the charter and evidence of the corporate existence of the new corporation. (Rev., s. 1241; 1901, c. 2, s. 103; C. S. 1223.)

Failure to File with Secretary of State.—Where the purchasers reorganize within the requirements of this article except they failed to file the certificate with the Secretary of State within one month from its reorganization (as required by this section) as to whether the corporation was one de jure, the purchasers having acted in good faith, Quaere? But, it became at least a corporation de facto, and the individuals cannot be held to personal liability for debts contracted in the name of the corporation, except to the extent the charter or act of incorporation provides. Wood v. Staton, 174 N. C. 245, 93 S. E. 794.

§ 55-164. Effect on liens and other rights.—Nothing contained in this article in any manner impairs the lien of a prior mortgage, or other encumbrance, upon the property or franchises conveyed under the sale, when by the terms of the process or decree under which the sale was made, or by operation of law, the sale was made subject to the lien of any such prior mortgage or other encumbrance. No such sale and conveyance or organization of such new corporation in any way affects the rights of any person, body politic, or corporate, not a party to the action in which the decree was made, nor of the said party except as determined by the decree. When a trustee has been made a party to such action and his cestui que trust, for reason satisfactory to the court, has not been made a party thereto, the rights and interest of the cestui que trust are concluded by the decree. (Rev., s. 1241; 1901, c. 2, s. 103; C. S. 1224.)

Art. 16. Consolidation or Merger.

§ 55-165. Consolidation or merger; proceedings for.—Any two or more corporations organized under the provisions of this chapter or existing under the laws of this state, for the purpose of carrying on any kind of business, may, as shall be specified in the agreement hereinafter required, be merged into one of such constituent corporations, herein designated as the surviving corporation, or may be consolidated into a new corporation to be formed by means of such consolidation of the constituent corporations, which new corporation is herein designated as the resulting or consolidated corporation; and the directors, or a majority of them, of such corporations as desire to consolidate or merge, may enter into an agreement signed by them and under the corporate seals of the respective corporations, prescribing the terms and conditions of consolidation or merger, the mode of carrying the same into effect, and stating such other facts required or permitted by the provisions of this chapter to be set out in certificates of incorporation, as can be stated in the case of a consolidation or merger, stated in such altered form as the circumstances of the case require, as well as the manner of converting the shares of each of the constituent corporations into shares of the surviving or consolidated corporation, with such other details and provisions as are deemed necessary. The agreement of merger or consolidation may also provide for the distribution of cash, property, or securities, in whole or in part, in lieu of shares of the surviving or consolidated corporation, to stockholders of the constituent corporations or any class of them.

Said agreement shall be submitted to the stockholders of each constituent corporation, at a separate meeting thereof, called for the purpose of taking the same into consideration; of the time, place and object of which meeting due notice shall be given by publication at least once a week for four successive weeks in one or more newspapers published in the county wherein each such corporation either has its principal office or conducts its business (and if there be no newspaper published in such county then in a newspaper published in an adjoining county), and a copy of such notice shall be mailed to the last known post office address of each stockholder of each such corporation, at least twenty days prior to the date of such meeting, and at said meeting said agreement shall be considered and a vote by ballot, in person or by proxy, taken for the adoption or rejection of the same; and if the votes of stockholders of each such corporation representing a majority of the outstanding shares of stock entitled to vote shall be for the adoption of the said agreement, then that fact shall be certified on said agreement by the secretary of each such corporation, under the seal thereof; and the agreement so adopted and certified shall be signed by the president or vice president and secretary or assistant secretary of each of such corporations under the corporate seals thereof and acknowledged by the president or vice president of each such corporation before any officer authorized by the laws of this state to take acknowledgments of deeds to be the respective act, deed and agreement of each of said corporations, and the agreement so certified and acknowledged shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, and shall thence be taken and deemed to be the agreement and act of consolidation or merger of the said corporations; and a copy of said agreement and act of consolidation or merger, duly certified by the secretary of state under the seal of his office, shall also be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county of this state in which the principal office of the surviving or consolidated corporation is, or is to be established, and in the offices of the clerks of the superior court of the counties of this state in which the respective corporations so merging or consolidating shall have their original certificates of incorporation recorded, or if any of the corporations shall have been specially created by a public act of the legislature, then said agreement shall be recorded in the county where such corporation shall have had its principal office, and also in the office of the register of deeds in each county in which either or any of the corporations entering into the merger or consolidation owns any real estate, and such record, or a certified copy thereof, shall be evidence of the agreement and act of consolidation or merger of said corporations, and of the observance and performance of all acts and conditions necessary to have been observed and performed precedent to such consolidation or merger.

Any one or more corporations organized under the provisions of this chapter, or existing under the laws of this state, may consolidate or merge with one or more other corporations organized under the laws of any other state or states of the United States of America, if the laws under which said other corporation or corporations are formed shall permit such consolidation or merger. The constituent corporations may merge into a single corporation, which may be any one of said constituent corporations, or they may consolidate to form a new corporation, which may be a corporation of the state of incorporation of any one of said constituent corporations as shall be specified in the agreement hereinafter required. All the constituent corporations shall enter into an agreement in writing which shall prescribe the terms and conditions of the consolidation or merger, the mode of carrying the same into effect, the manner of converting the shares of each of said constituent corporations into shares or other securities or obligations of the corporation resulting from or surviving such consolidation or merger and such other details and provisions as shall be deemed necessary or proper. There shall also be set forth in said agreement such other facts as shall then be required to be set forth in certificates of incorporation, or other similar document, by the laws of the state, under which the resulting corporation is to be formed or the surviving corporation is to continue to exist, as provided by said agreement, stated in such form as may be required or permitted by the laws of such state. Said agreement shall be authorized, adopted, approved, signed and acknowledged by each of said constituent corporations in accordance with the laws under which it was formed and, in the case of a North Carolina corporation, in the manner hereinbefore provided. The agreement so authorized, adopted, approved, signed and acknowledged shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state and said agreement shall thenceforth be taken and deemed to be the agreement and act of consolidation or merger of said constituent corporations for all purposes of the laws of this state. A copy of said agreement, duly certified by the secretary of state under the seal of his office, shall also be recorded as provided in this section with respect to the consolidation or merger of corporations of this state.

If the corporation resulting or surviving such consolidation or merger is to be governed by the laws of any state other than the laws of this state, it shall agree that it may be served with process or notice in this state in any proceeding for enforcement of any obligation of any constituent corporation of this state, including any amount to be paid dissatisfied stockholders of any corporation of this state as such amount may be determined pursuant to the provisions of § 55-167, and shall irrevocably appoint the secretary of state as its agent to accept service of process or notice in an action or proceeding for the enforcement of payment of any such obligation or any amount to be paid such dissatisfied stockholders and shall specify the address to which a copy of such process or notice shall be mailed by the secretary of state. Service of such process or notice shall be made by delivering to and leaving with the secretary of state duplicate copies thereof. The secretary of state shall forthwith send by registered mail one of such copies to such address so specified, unless such resulting or surviving corporation shall thereafter have designated in writing to the secretary of state a different address for such purpose, in which case it shall be mailed to the last address so designated. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1939, c. 5; 1943, c. 270.)

Editor's Note.—The North Carolina Law Review (Volume 3, page 133) has the following to say concerning this statute: "The whole enactment furnishes definite machinery for merger and consolidation, which heretofore has been lacking in our statutes. While the language in the first section, permitting any corporations, engaging in any kind of business, to merge, will have to be interpreted in its relation to competing and non-competing companies, and its relation to statutes covering trusts, monopolies, and combinations in restraint of trade under the Sherman Law, etc., the court will, perhaps, have an easier task of interpretation under the present language of the Act than would have been the case if the Legislature had attempted to define and restrict specifically."

In considering this statute in respect to the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, reference should be had to the full and comprehensive treatment of the interpretation, construction and operation of that act in 8 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 430 et seq.; 12 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 429 et seq.; 13 U. S. Encyc. Dig. (U. S. E.) 431 et seq.

The 1939 amendment changed the first paragraph of this section. For comment on the 1939 amendatory act, see 17 N. C. L. Rev. 346.

The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

The statutes in this article prior to the 1943 amendment did not observe the distinction between "consolidation" and "merger," the terms being loosely applied. For a discussion of the distinction, see Carolina Coach Co. v. Hartness, 198 N. C. 524, 152 S. E. 489. See also 17 N. C. L. Rev. 346.

Statute Controls as to Merger or Consolidation.—Where two corporations enter into an agreement for their union and the continuation of business under the name of one with the combined assets of both, the statute controls as to whether there is a merger or a consolidation; and since the statute expresses the primary purpose of creating a new corporation it authorizes a consolidation and not a merger. Carolina Coach Co. v. Hartness, 198 N. C. 524, 152 S. E. 489, decided prior to the 1943 amendment.

Rights and Properties of Constituent Bodies.—Where an agreement of merger consolidating two corporations was executed and filed in the office of the secretary of state in proceedings conforming to the pertinent provisions of this and the following section, the result was that the merged corporations ceased to exist and the consolidated corporation came into being possessed of all the rights and vested with all the property of the constituent bodies. Morgan Mfg. Co. v. Commissioner of Internal Revenue, 124 F. (2d) 602, decided prior to the 1943 amendment.

§ 55-166. Consolidation or merger; status of old and new corporations.—When an agreement shall have been signed, acknowledged, filed and recorded, as in the preceding section is required, for all purposes of the laws of this state, the separate existence of all the constituent corporations, parties to said agreement, or of all such constituent corporations except the one into which the other or others of such constituent corporations have been merged, as the case may be, shall cease and the constituent corporations shall become a new corporation, or be merged into one of such corporations, as the case may be, in accordance with the provisions of said agreement, possessing all the rights, privileges, powers and franchises as well of a public as of a private nature, of each of said constituent corporations, and all and singular, the rights, privileges, powers and franchises of each of said corporations, and all property, real, personal and mixed, and all debts due to any of said constituent corporations on whatever account, as well for stock subscriptions as all other things in action or belonging to each of such corporations, shall be vested in the corporation resulting from or surviving such consolidation or merger; and all property, rights, privileges, powers and franchises, and all and every other interest shall be thereafter as effectually the property of the resulting or surviving corporation as they were of the several and respective constituent corporations, and the title to any real estate, whether vested by deed or otherwise, under the laws of this state, vested in any of such constituent corporations, shall not revert or be in any way impaired by reason of such consolidation or merger: Provided, however, that all rights of creditors and all liens upon the property of either or any of said constituent corporations shall be preserved unimpaired, limited in lien to the property affected by such lien at the time of the merger or consolidation, and all debts, liabilities and duties of the respective constituent corporations shall thenceforth attach to said resulting or surviving corporation, and may be enforced against it to the same extent as if said debts, liabilities and duties had been incurred or contracted by it.

If the surviving or resulting corporation be a corporation of this state, then upon the agreement of merger or consolidation being signed, acknowledged, filed and recorded, as is provided in the preceding section, the certificate of incorporation, of the surviving corporation shall be deemed to be amended to the extent, if any, that changes in its certificate of incorporation are stated in the agreement of merger; and, in cases of consolidation, the statements set forth in the agreement of consolidation, and which are required or permitted to be set forth in certificates of incorporation of corporations organized under the laws of this state, shall be deemed to be the certificate of incorporation of the consolidated or resulting corporation: Provided, that such resulting or surviving corporation, if it be a corporation of this state, shall not, by reason of any merger or consolidation with any corporation formed under the laws of any other state, acquire authority to engage in any business or exercise any right or privilege which may not be engaged in or exercised by a corporation organized under the laws of this state.

The shares of stock of any of the constituent corporations, which are to be converted into shares or other securities or obligations of the surviving or resulting corporation, or for which cash is to be distributed, must be surrendered by the holders thereof to the surviving or resulting corporation before receiving the shares or other securities or obligations of such surviving or resulting corporation, or such cash distributions, and the shares so surrendered shall be cancelled by the surviving or resulting corporation, unless the agreement of merger or consolidation otherwise provides. If any certificate of stock in any of the constituent corporations shall have been lost, destroyed or misplaced, the owner thereof shall have the right to receive from the surviving or resulting corporation shares or other securities or obligations of the surviving or resulting corporation, or such cash distribution, as may be provided in said agreement of merger or consolidation, upon indemnifying such surviving or resulting corporation against loss, in the manner provided by law for the reissue of lost stock. If the person owning such lost, destroyed or misplaced certificate in one of the constituent corporations shall be dissatisfied with the terms of the merger and shall object thereto, he shall have the same right to have the value of his stock appraised and paid for, and to appeal to the courts, as is provided herein for other dissatisfied stockholders, upon giving security and indemnifying the surviving or resulting corporation against loss on account of the payment for such lost, destroyed or misplaced certificate of stock. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1943, c. 270.)

Cross Reference.—As to reissue of lost stock, see §§ 55-67, 55-68 and 55-97.

§ 55-167. Consolidation or merger; payment for stock of dissatisfied stockholder.—If any stockholder, entitled to vote, in any corporation of this state consolidating or merging as aforesaid shall vote against the same, or if any stockholder in any such corporation, not entitled to vote, shall, at or prior to the taking of the vote, object in writing to such merger or consolidation, and if any such stockholder shall, within twenty days after the agreement of consolidation or merger has been filed and recorded in the office of the secretary of state, as hereinbefore provided, demand in writing from the surviving or resulting corporation payment of his stock, such surviving or resulting corporation shall, within thirty days thereafter, pay to him the fair value of his stock without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of the merger or consolidation. In case the fair value of said stock is not paid within said thirty-day period, or such stockholder and the surviving or resulting corporation do not within said period enter into a written agreement for the payment of said stock, then such stockholder, within thirty days after the expiration of the aforesaid thirty-day period, shall apply by petition to the superior court of the county wherein the principal office of the constituent corporation, in which he is or was a stockholder, is or was located for the appointment of three appraisers to appraise the fair value of such stock. A summons as in other cases of special proceedings, together with a copy of the petition, must be served on the surviving or resulting corporation at least ten days prior to the hearing of the petition by the court. The award of the appraisers (or a majority of them), if no exceptions be filed thereto within ten days after the award shall have been filed in court, shall be confirmed by the court, and when confirmed shall be final and conclusive. If either party file exceptions to said award within said ten days, the case shall be transferred to the civil issue docket of the superior court for trial during term and shall be there tried in the same manner, as near as may be practicable, as is provided in chapter forty for the trial of cases under the eminent domain law of this state, and with the same right of appeal to the supreme court as is permitted in said chapter. The court shall assess the cost of said proceedings as it shall deem equitable.

On the making of said demand in writing, as aforesaid, any such stockholder shall cease to be a stockholder in said constituent corporation and shall have no rights with respect to such stock, except the right to receive payment therefor, as aforesaid, and upon payment of the agreed value of said stock, or the value thereof as fixed by final judgment of the court, such stockholder shall surrender the certificate or certificates representing his shares of stock to the surviving or resulting corporation. In the event the surviving or resulting corporation shall fail to pay the amount of said judgment within ten days after the same becomes final, said judgment may be collected and enforced in the manner prescribed by law for the enforcement of judgments.

Any stockholder in either or any of the constituent corporations, entitled to vote, who does not vote against the merger or consolidation, and any stockholder, not entitled to vote, who does not object thereto in writing as aforesaid, shall cease to be a stockholder in such constituent corporation and shall be deemed to have assented to the merger or consolidation, as the case may be, together with stockholders voting in favor of the merger or consolidation, in the manner and on the terms specified in the agreement of merger or consolidation; and any stockholder in either or any of said constituent corporations voting against said merger or consolidation, or objecting thereto in writing as hereinbefore provided, but who does not demand payment for his stock within the twenty-day period, as hereinbefore provided, or who does not apply to the court to have the value thereof determined as hereinbefore provided, shall likewise cease to be a stockholder in such constituent corporation and shall likewise be deemed to have consented to said merger or consolidation. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1943, c. 270.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

§ 55-168. Consolidation or merger; pending actions saved.—Any action or proceeding pending by or against any of the corporations consolidated or merged may be prosecuted to judgment, as if such consolidation or merger had not taken place or the corporation resulting from or surviving such consolidation or merger may be substituted in its place. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1943, c. 270.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

§ 55-169. Liability of corporations and rights of others unimpaired by consolidation or merger.—The liability of corporations created under this chapter, or existing under the laws of this state, or the stockholders or officers thereof, or the rights or remedies of the creditors thereof, or of persons doing or transacting business with such corporations, shall not, in any way, be lessened or impaired by the consolidation or merger of two or more of such corporations under the provisions of this article. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1943, c. 270.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the words "or merger."

§ 55-170. Powers of corporation resulting from or surviving consolidation or merger.—When two or more corporations are consolidated or merged, the corporation resulting from or surviving such consolidation or merger shall have power and authority to issue bonds or other obligations, negotiable or otherwise, and with or without coupons or interest certificates thereto attached, to an amount sufficient with its capital stock to provide for all the payments it will be required to make, or obligations it will be required to assume, in order to effect such consolidation or merger; to secure the payment of which bonds and obligations it shall be lawful to mortgage its corporate franchise, rights, privileges and property, real, personal, and mixed; and may issue its capital stock, with or without par value, or in classes, any class of which may be with or without par value, to the stockholders of such constituent corporations in exchange or payment for the original shares, in such amount as shall be necessary in accordance with the terms of the agreement of consolidation or merger in order to effect such consolidation or merger in the manner and on the terms specified in such agreement; provided, that the only fees that shall be collected from said surviving or resulting corporation shall be office or filing fees and charter fees upon any increase in the authorized capital stock of the surviving or resulting corporation in excess of that provided for in the charters of the constituent corporations when the authorized capital stock of said constituent corporations shall be added together. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1931, c. 209; 1943, c. 270.)

Cross Reference.—As to fiduciary powers and liabilities of merged banks or trust companies, see § 53-17.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the 1943 amendment this section related only to powers of consolidated corporations.

§ 55-171. Merger of charitable and other corporations not under control of state.—Any two or more charitable, educational, social, ancestral, historical, penal or reformatory corporations not under the patronage and control of the state, and any two or more corporations without capital stock organized for the purpose of aiding in the work of any church, religious society or organization, or fraternal order, whether organized under special act or general laws, may consolidate into a single corporation, which shall be deemed the successor of each and all corporations joining in such consolidation, in the following manner:

(a) When authorized to do so by the conference, synod, convention or other body owning and/or controlling such corporation, the trustees or directors of such corporation by resolution adopted by majority vote at a meeting duly called and convened in accordance with the present charter, by-laws or other regulations for the conduct of such meetings of such corporation, and in the absence of such charter provision, by-laws or other regulations upon ten days' notice to each trustee or director of the time, place and object of the meeting, may authorize such corporation to make, enter into and execute a consolidation agreement with one or more other such corporations; that such consolidation agreement shall prescribe the terms and conditions of consolidation, the mode of carrying same into effect, and shall set forth in full the certificate of incorporation of the consolidated corporation; and the consolidation agreement so authorized shall be executed in the name and behalf of each such corporation entering into the consolidation by its president or vice-president, attested by its secretary or assistant secretary and its corporate seal thereto affixed, and the due execution thereof shall be acknowledged in the manner and before a notary public or other officer required by the general laws of North Carolina for the acknowledgment of corporate deeds; and there shall be attached to such agreement of consolidation the written consent of a majority of the trustees or directors of each corporation entering into the consolidation.

(b) The agreement of consolidation, when authorized and executed as provided above and having attached thereto the aforesaid written consent, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state. When so filed, the separate legal existence of each of the corporations joining in the consolidation thereupon shall be merged into the consolidated corporation, and thereafter there shall be only one corporation having as its charter the certificate of incorporation fully set forth in the agreement of consolidation.

(c) A copy of said agreement of consolidation, duly certified by the secretary of state under the seal of his office, shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the consolidated corporation as fixed by its certificate of incorporation is located, and a like certified copy of the agreement of consolidation shall be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of each county where any one or more of the corporations joining in the consolidation theretofore has had its principal office or place of business; and such certified copy shall be evidence of the existence of the consolidated corporation created by such agreement of consolidation and of the observance and performance of all antecedent acts and conditions necessary to the creation thereof. (1933, c. 408, s. 1.)

§ 55-172. Rights and powers of consolidated charitable, etc., corporations.—The consolidated corporation shall succeed to and be vested with all rights, privileges and powers, and all property, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, and the title thereto, of each and all of the corporations joining in the consolidation as fully and effectually as the same were theretofore owned and held by each of the separate corporations, and the consolidated corporation shall be liable for the payment of all debts and liabilities of each and all of the separate corporations: Provided, such consolidation shall not affect liens or the priority of liens established against the separate property of any corporation prior to the consolidation. (1933, c. 408, s. 2.)

§ 55-173. Trust properties vested in new charitable, etc., corporation.—The consolidated corporation shall succeed to and be vested with all money, securities, property, real, personal and mixed, tangible and intangible, and the title thereto, theretofore owned, held and/or administered by each separate corporation upon the uses and trusts declared in any will, deed or other instrument, and the consolidated corporation shall handle, use and administer such trust funds upon the same uses and trusts and not otherwise; and the consolidated corporation shall be deemed to embrace each separate corporation and to constitute a continuation thereof, and no trust fund or other asset of a separate corporation shall be construed to revert and/or pass to other ownership on the ground that such separate corporation has ceased to exist for the purpose of administering such trust or otherwise. (1933, c. 408, s. 3.)

Art. 17. Severance of Certain Partially Merged Charitable, Educational or Social Corporations.

§ 55-174. Application of article.—This article shall apply only to a charitable, educational or social corporation, not under the patronage or control of the state nor under the patronage or control of any religious denomination, which has been formed by the de jure merger of two or more corporations of such character, the merger having been brought about either under §§ 55-165 to 55-173, or under other special or general laws, but where for any reason the merger has not been carried out in fact to the extent of the actual surrender of shares of stock or of other evidences of membership in the respective corporations and the issuance of new stock or new evidences of membership in the merged corporation. A charitable, educational or social corporation, organized by the merger of two such corporations, may be severed and restored to the status of the merging or original corporations by complying with the provisions of this article, with the exceptions above set out. (1937, c. 256, s. 1.)

§ 55-175. Resolution providing for severance; accounting.—At any regular or duly called meeting of the board of directors or other governing body of such merged corporation, a resolution may be adopted providing for the severance of the corporations and restoration to each of the original corporations of the properties owned by each at the time of the merger, and the restoration to the stockholders or members of the stock, rights and privileges owned by them in the merging corporations at the time of the merger, and providing for an accounting as between the respective corporations of their receipts, disbursements and obligations incurred since the attempted merger, the accounting to be on the assumption the corporations had never been merged. (1937, c. 256, s. 2.)

§ 55-176. Stockholders' meeting; notice; ratification of resolution.—Upon the adoption by the board of directors or other governing body of the merged corporations of such resolution of severance, a meeting shall be called by the said governing body of the members or stockholders of the merged corporation. A notice shall be sent to each stockholder or member of the merged corporation by registered mail at least ten days before the date of the stockholders' or members' meeting. Such notice shall be mailed to the last address of the stockholder or member as it appears on the records of the merged corporation. Such notice shall also be published once in a newspaper of general circulation in the county in which the corporation has its principal office at least ten days before the meeting, stating the substance of the resolution of severance and giving the time and place of the meeting. If at such meeting of stockholders or members a resolution shall be adopted ratifying the resolution of the board of directors or governing body, and providing for the severance of the merged corporation into its constituent corporations as they existed immediately prior to the merger, and such resolution shall be adopted by a majority of three-fourths of the total membership or total number of stockholders by shares, as the voting privilege may be exercised in the merged corporation, then the merged corporation shall be severed, on compliance with the further procedural provisions of this article. (1937, c. 256, s. 3.)

§ 55-177. Election of officers for severed corporations.—On the adoption of such resolution of severance by the stockholders or members, the president of the merged corporation shall, either at said meeting or within ten days thereafter, appoint an acting chairman of the membership or stockholders of each corporation, and shall call a meeting of the members or stockholders of each corporation for the purpose of electing officers of each of the severed corporations, such meetings to be held in accordance with the charter and by-laws of the severed corporations as they existed prior to the merger. (1937, c. 256, s. 4.)

§ 55-178. Agreement between officers and directors for division and accounting.—The officers and directors of the several corporations shall thereupon enter into an agreement setting out in substantial detail the division of the properties of the merged corporation and providing for the accounting of all receipts and disbursements as between the severed corporations on the same basis as if the respective corporations had never been merged. Such agreement shall thereupon be submitted to the stockholders or members of the severed corporations at a meeting to be called in accordance with the charter or by-laws of the severed corporations. At such meeting such agreement shall become effective when approved by a majority of the stockholders or members. Thereupon said agreement shall be executed by the respective officers of the severed corporations, and deeds and other appropriate instruments shall be executed by the officers of the respective corporations to carry out the terms of the agreement. (1937, c. 256, s. 5.)

§ 55-179. Certificates of severance.—Upon the approval of the terms of the severance agreement, as provided in the preceding section, the president and board of directors of the respective corporations shall execute a certificate under the seal of the corporation setting forth in substance the terms of the resolution of severance adopted by the stockholders or members of the merged corporation provided for by § 55-176, and also setting forth the fact and date of the ratification of such severance agreement by the majority of the members or stockholders of the severed corporations, and shall file the same with the secretary of the state of North Carolina. Such certificate, duly certified by the secretary of state under the seal of his office, shall also be recorded in the office of the clerk of the superior court of the county in this state in which the principal office of the merged corporation was established, and also in the offices of the clerks of the superior court for each of the counties in which the respective severed corporations shall have or shall establish their principal offices. On the filing of such certificates in the office of the clerk or clerks of the superior courts, as herein provided, said severance shall be complete to all intents and purposes as if the merger had never taken place. Upon the recording of such certificate it shall be presumptive evidence of the statements of fact contained in said certificate, and after sixty days it shall be conclusive evidence of such statements of fact, except as to any stockholder or member who shall have demanded the value of his stock or membership. (1937, c. 256, s. 6.)

§ 55-180. Original rights restored; liabilities unaffected.—On the completion of the procedure set out in the previous section the stockholders or members in the respective corporations, or their representatives or assigns, as the case may be, shall to all intents and purposes be restored to the same rights and privileges which they, or their predecessors in interest, held in the original corporations: Provided, that any member or stockholder who has conveyed or for any reason forfeited his rights in the merged corporation shall not, by reason of the severance of the merged corporations, be restored to the rights he had in the original corporations at the time of the merger. Nothing contained in this article, however, shall be deemed to affect any debts, liabilities or obligations assumed or incurred by the merged corporation during the period of the merger, but each of the severed corporations shall, with respect to such debts or other obligations, remain liable jointly and severally. (1937, c. 256, s. 7.)

§ 55-181. Objection to severance and demand for payment for stock; failure to object deemed assent.—If any stockholder or member entitled to vote in the merged corporation shall vote against the severance at the stockholders' or members' meeting provided in § 55-176, or shall, prior to the taking of the vote at such meeting, object thereto in writing, and if such dissenting or objecting stockholder or member shall, within twenty days after such meeting, demand in writing from the merged corporation payment of his stock or of his interest in the merged corporation by reason of his membership therein, the merged corporation shall, within thirty days thereafter, pay to him the value of his stock or membership at the date of the adoption of the resolution of severance at the stockholders' or members' meeting. In case of disagreement as to the value thereof, it shall be lawful for any such stockholder or member, within thirty days after he has made demand in writing as aforesaid, or has voted against the resolution as aforesaid, and upon written notice to the merged corporation to appeal by petition to the superior court of the county in which the principal office of the merged corporation is located to appoint three appraisers to appraise the value of his stock or membership. The award of the appraisers, or a majority of them, if not opposed within ten days after the same shall have been filed in court, shall be confirmed by the court or clerk, and when confirmed shall be final and conclusive. If such report is opposed and excepted to, the exceptions shall be transferred to the civil issue docket of the superior court, and there tried in the same manner, as nearly as may be practicable, as is provided in § 40-20 for the trial of exceptions to the appraisal of land condemned for public purposes. The court shall assess against the merged corporation the costs of said proceeding. On the making of such demand in writing, as aforesaid, any such stockholder or member shall cease to be a stockholder or member in said merged corporation, and shall have no rights with respect thereto, except the right to receive payment for the value of his stock or membership. Each stockholder or member in the merged corporation entitled to vote, who does not vote against the severance, and each stockholder or member at the time of the adoption of the resolution of severance provided in § 55-176 not entitled to vote, who does not object thereto in writing, as aforesaid, shall be deemed to have assented to the severance. (1937, c. 256, s. 8.)

§ 55-182. Pending litigation not affected.—Any action or proceeding pending by or against the merged corporation may be prosecuted to judgment as if such severance had not taken place, or the severed corporation, or either of them, may be substituted in its place. (1937, c. 256, s. 9.)

§ 55-183. Fees of secretary of state.—The fees to be charged by the secretary of state for filing the certificate of severance and the issuance of his certificate thereon shall be the same as provided by law for the filing of an original certificate of incorporation of charitable, educational or social corporations. (1937, c. 256, s. 10.)

Cross Reference.—As to fees charged for filing on original certificate of incorporation, see § 55-158.

Chapter 56. Electric, Telegraph, and Power Companies.

Art. 1. Acquisition and Condemnation of Property.

Art. 2. Intrastate Telegraph Messages.

Art. 1. Acquisition and Condemnation of Property.

§ 56-1. Use of public highways.—Any person, firm or co-partnership operating electric power lines for lights or power, or authorized by law to establish such lines, or any duly incorporated company possessing the power to construct telegraph or telephone lines, lines for the conveying of electric power or for lights, either or all, has the right to construct, maintain and operate such lines along any railroad or other public highway, but such lines shall be so constructed and maintained as not to obstruct or hinder the usual travel on such railroad or other highway. (Rev., s. 1571; Code, s. 2007; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 2; 1899, c. 64, s. 1; 1903, c. 562; 1939, c. 228, s. 1; C. S. 1695.)

Cross Reference.—See also § 55-45.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment added that part of this section preceding the words "any duly incorporated company."

Constitutionality.—The provisions of secs. 56-1 to 56-10, empowering electric power or lighting companies, etc., to condemn lands for the erection of poles, establishment of offices, and other appropriate purposes, are constitutitonal and valid. Wissler v. Yadkin River Power Co., 158 N. C. 465, 74 S. E. 460.

Application to Foreign Companies.—The right to construct and operate telegraph lines along any railroad or other public highway in the State, and to obtain the right of way therefor by a condemnatory proceeding, is expressly conferred upon any telegraph company incorporated by this or by any other State. North Carolina, etc., R. Co. v. Carolina Cent., etc., R. Co., 83 N. C. 489, 496; Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 271, 76 S. E. 267.

No Rights over Private Land.—This section applies to constructing lines along the highway and not to constructing the lines over private land. Wade v. Carolina Tel., etc., Co., 147 N. C. 219, 60 S. E. 987.

An Additional Burden.—A telegraph line along a railroad and on the right of way of the railroad is an additional burden upon the land, for which the landowner is entitled to just compensation. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022; Query v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 178 N. C. 639, 101 S. E. 390; Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572 and cases cited. The same rule applies to electric light wires placed along the street. Brown v. Electric Co., 138 N. C. 533, 51 S. E. 62. But the construction of a street passenger railway does not impose any additional servitude upon the property fronting on the street so occupied. Hester v. Traction Co., 138 N. C. 288, 50 S. E. 411 and cases cited.

Cited in Hildebrand v. Southern Bell Tel., etc., Co., 216 N. C. 235, 4 S. E. (2d) 439.

§ 56-2. Electric and hydro-electric power companies may appropriate highways; conditions.—Every electric power or hydro-electric power corporation, person, firm or co-partnership which may exercise the right of eminent domain under the chapter Eminent Domain, where in the development of electric or hydro-electric power it shall become necessary to use or occupy any public highway, or any part of the same, after obtaining the consent of the public road authorities having supervision of such public highway, shall have power to appropriate said public highway for the development of electric or hydro-electric power: Provided, that said electric power or hydro-electric power corporation shall construct an equally good public highway, by a route to be selected by and subject to the approval and satisfaction of the public road authorities having supervision of such public highway: Provided further, that said company shall pay all damages to be assessed as provided by law, by the damming of water, the discontinuance of the road, and for the laying out of said new road. (1911, c. 114; 1939, c. 228, s. 2; C. S. 1696.)

Cross Reference.—As to what corporations, etc., may exercise the right of eminent domain, see § 40-2.

Editor's Note.—The 1939 amendment inserted the words

"person, firm or co-partnership" near the beginning of this section.

Where under the provisions of this section, a hydro-electric power company has appropriated a section of a public highway and built another section in lieu thereof, the provisions of the statute that the company pay all damages assessed as provided by law does not entitle the plaintiff to recover damages for the slight change in the road causing inconvenience to him in hauling wood, etc., to and from his market town. Crowell v. Tallassee Power Co., 200 N. C. 208, 156 S. E. 493.

§ 56-3. Powers granted corporations under chapter exercisable by persons, firms or co-partnerships.—All the rights, powers and obligations given, extended to, or that may be exercised by any corporation or incorporated company under this chapter shall be extended to and likewise be exercised and are hereby granted unto all persons, firms or co-partnerships engaged in or authorized by law to engage in the business herein described. Such persons, firms, co-partnerships and corporations engaging in such business shall be subject to the provisions and requirements of the public laws which are applicable to others engaged in the same kind of business. (1939, c. 228, s. 3.)

§ 56-4. Acquisition of right of way by contract. — Such telegraph, telephone, or electric power or lighting company has power to contract with any person or corporation, the owner of any lands or of any franchise or easement therein, over which its lines are proposed to be erected, for the right of way for planting, repairing and preservation of its poles or other property, and for the erection and occupation of offices at suitable distances for the public accommodation. This section shall not be construed as requiring electric power or lighting companies to erect offices for public accommodation. (Rev., s. 1572; Code, s. 2008; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 3; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562, ss. 1, 2; C. S. 1697.)

Cross References.—As to recording deeds of easement, see § 47-27. As to right of directors of the various state institutions to grant easements to telegraph, telephone or power companies, see § 143-151.

Owner Must Grant Easement.—A railroad company, not being the owner of the soil, can not grant an easement to a telegraph company. Hodges v. Western Union Tel. Co., 133 N. C. 225, 45 S. E. 572. See also Narron v. Wilmington etc., R. Co., 122 N. C. 856, 29 S. E. 356.

Easement by Adverse Possession.—Right of easement may be acquired by adverse and continuous user for the period of twenty years. Teeter v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 172 N. C. 783, 90 S. E. 941.

§ 56-5. Grant of eminent domain; exception as to mills and water-powers.—Such telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting company shall be entitled, upon making just compensation therefor, to the right of way over the lands, privileges and easements of other persons and corporations, and to the right to erect poles and towers, to establish offices, and to take such lands as may be necessary for the establishment of their reservoirs, ponds, dams, works, railroads, or sidetracks, or power-houses, with the right to divert the water from such ponds or reservoirs and conduct the same by flume, ditch, conduit, waterway or pipe line, or in any other manner, to the point of use for the generation of power at its said power-houses, returning said water to its proper channel after being so used. Nothing in this section authorizes interference with any mill or power plant actually in process of construction or in operation; or the taking of water-powers, developed or undeveloped, with the land adjacent thereto necessary for their development: Provided, however, that if the court, upon filing of the petition by such electric power or lighting company, shall find that any mill, excepting cotton mills now in operation, whether operated by water-power or otherwise, together with the lands and easements adjacent thereto or used in connection therewith, or that any water-power, developed or undeveloped, with land adjacent thereto necessary for its development, excepting any water-power, right or property of any person, firm or corporation engaged in the actual service of the general public where such water-power, right or property is being used or held to be used or to be developed for use in connection with or in addition to any power actually used by such person, firm or corporation serving the general public, is necessary for the development of any hydro-electric power plant which is to be operated for the purpose of generating electric power for sale to the general public, and that said electric power or lighting company is unable to agree for the purchase of such property with the owners thereof, and that the failure to acquire such property will affect the ability of such electric power or lighting company to supply power to the general public, and that the taking of such mill or water-power will be greatly more to the benefit of the public than the continued existence of such mill or the continuation of the existing ownership of such water-power, then the court, upon such finding, shall make an order authorizing the condemnation of such property and easements in all respects as in the cases of other property referred to in this section. Any provisions in conflict with this chapter in any special charters granted before January thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and seven, in respect to the exercise of the right of eminent domain are repealed. (Rev., s. 1573; Code, s. 2009; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 4; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562; 1907, c. 74; 1921, c. 115; 1923, c. 60; 1925, c. 175; C. S. 1698.)

Cross Reference.—As to the right of eminent domain in general, see chapter 40.

Editor's Note.—This section as it stood in 1919 expressly prohibited interference with any mill or power plant actually in process of construction or operation, also the taking of water powers, developed or undeveloped with the necessary adjacent land.

By ch. 60, Laws of 1923, the provision for condemning mills, when to the best interests of the public, was added. Cotton mills are excepted.

Ch. 175, Laws of 1925, added the power to condemn any waterpower developed or undeveloped which is not being held for use or actually used in the furnishing of power to the public. The 1925 act, which was ratified March 7, 1925, provided that it should not affect pending litigation.

Thus by these two amendments the Legislature has practically abolished the restrictions which existed in the section in 1919. See 1 N. C. Law Rev. 290; 3 N. C. Law Rev. 144.

The General Assembly originally inserted the proviso "water powers, developed or undeveloped, with the necessary land adjacent thereto for their development, shall not be taken," for the purpose of preventing the acquisition of all of the water powers by one or more of the great aggregations of capital. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 169 N. C. 471, 86 S. E. 296.

Right Granted for Public Benefit.—This power of eminent domain is conferred upon corporations affected with public use, not so much for the benefit of the corporations themselves, but for the use and benefit of the people at large. Wissler v. Yadkin River Power Co., 158 N. C. 465, 466, 74 S. E. 460.

Limitation of Right of Eminent Domain.—This section limits the right of eminent domain and any special power claimed by the charter must clearly appear. Yadkin River

Power Co. v. Whitney Co., 150 N. C. 31, 63 S. E. 188. See Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 169 N. C. 471, 86 S. E. 296.

A Continuing Right.—The right of eminent domain is not necessarily exhausted by a single exercise of the power, but, within the limits established by the general law or special charter, a subsequent or further exercise of the power may be permissible. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 273, 76 S. E. 267; Thomason v. Railroad, 142 N. C. 318, 55 S. E. 205.

Effect of Federal Statute.—The Act of Congress, entitled "An act to aid in the construction of telegraphs and to secure to the government the use of the same for postal, military and other purposes," approved 24 July, 1866, does not give authority to enter private property without consent of the owner, but provides that where consent is obtained, no State legislation shall prevent the use of such postroads for telegraph purposes by such corporations as avail themselves of its privileges. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Quasi-Public Corporations Have Power.—Where a charter is granted a corporation, conferring quasi-public as well as private powers, the corporation may proceed to condemn lands when so empowered, in pursuance of its business of a quasi-public nature, and this will not be denied it because it was authorized to conduct a business of a private character. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Compensation Essential.—Private property may not be taken for public use, directly or indirectly, without just compensation. Phillips v. Postal Tel. Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022. See secs. 40-16, 40-17 as to fixing compensation.

Conflict of Claims.—Where the claims of two companies conflict the prior right belongs to that company which first defines and marks its route. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Effect of Subsequent Charter.—Where a legislative charter has been granted since this section was passed, the powers given therein are not subject to the restriction of this section. Carolina-Tennessee Power Co. v. Hiawassee River Power Co., 171 N. C. 248, 88 S. E. 349.

Extent of Rights Usually Determined by Companies.—The extent and limit of the rights to be acquired are primarily and very largely referred to the companies or grantees of the power, and only becomes an issuable question, usually determinable by the court, on allegation of facts tending to show bad faith on the part of the companies, or an oppressive or manifest abuse of their discretion. Love v. R. R., 81 N. C. 432, cited and distinguished. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 76 S. E. 267.

Burden of Proof on Defendant.—Where a quasi-public corporation brings action for condemnation, and the defendant resists upon the ground that the lands or power sought to be taken are protected by the statute, the burden of proof is upon the defendant to bring the lands or water power within the provision of the statute excepting them. Blue Ridge Interurban, R. Co. v. Hendersonville Light, etc., Co., 171 N. C. 314, 88 S. E. 245.

§ 56-6. Residences, etc., may be taken under certain cases.—Residence property or vacant lots adjacent thereto in towns or cities, or other residences, gardens, orchards, graveyards or cemeteries, may be taken under § 56-5 only when the company alleges, and upon the proceedings to condemn makes it appear to the satisfaction of the court, that it owns or otherwise controls not less than seventy-five per cent of the fall of the river or stream on which it proposes to erect its works, from the location of its proposed dam to the head of its pond or reservoir; or when the utilities commission, upon the petition filed by the company, shall, after due inquiry, so authorize. Nothing in this section repeals any part or feature of any private charter, but any firm or corporation acting under a private charter may operate under or adopt any feature of this section. (1907, c. 74; 1917, c. 108; 1933, c. 134, ss. 7, 8; C. S. 1699.)

§ 56-7. Condemnation on petition; parties' interests only taken; no survey required.—When such telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting company fails on application therefor to secure by contract or agreement such right of way for the purposes aforesaid over the lands, privilege or easement of another person or corporation, it is lawful for such company, first giving security for costs, to file its petition before the superior court for the county in which said lands are situate, or into or through which such easement, privilege or franchise extends, setting forth and describing the parcels of land, privilege or easement over which the way, privilege or right of use is claimed, the owners of the land, easement or privilege, and their place of residence, if known, and if not known that fact shall be stated, and such petition shall set forth the use, easement, privilege or other right claimed, and must be sworn to, and if the use or right sought be over or upon an easement or right of way, it shall be sufficient to give jurisdiction if the person or corporation owning the easement or right of way be made a party defendant.

Only the interest of such parties as are brought before the court shall be condemned in any such proceedings, and if the right of way of a railroad or railway company sought to be condemned extends into or through more counties than one, the whole right and controversy may be heard and determined in one county into or through which such right of way extends.

It is not necessary for the petitioner to make any survey of or over the right of way, nor to file any map or survey thereof, nor to file any certificate of the location of its line by its board of directors. (Rev., s. 1574; Code, s. 2010; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 5; 1899, c. 64, s. 2; 1903, c. 562; C. S. 1700.)

The Petition.—Under this section it is not necessary that a petition asking for the condemnation of a right of way over the right of way of a railroad should state by what tenure the railroad company holds. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Same—Company Alone Can File.—The company alone has the right to file petition in condemnation proceedings. The landowner is not given such right. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Condemnation Not Confined to Right of Way.—The power of condemnation granted to these companies is not confined to a right of way, delimited by surface boundaries, but may be extended to cutting of trees or removing obstructions outside of these boundaries when required for the reasonable preservation and protection of their lines and other property. Yadkin River Power Co. v. Wissler, 160 N. C. 269, 275, 76 S. E. 267.

No Entry Until Damage Paid.—Under this section a telegraph company seeking to condemn a right of way for its line cannot be authorized to enter into possession and construct its line until the damages have been assessed and paid into court. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Subsequent Purchaser May Recover.—A purchaser of land subsequent to the taking and erection thereon of a telegraph line may recover permanent damages for the easement taken, and the telegraph company thereby acquires the easement and right to maintain its line thereon. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Permanent Damage Awarded.—Permanent damages may be awarded a landowner who is injured by telegraph poles placed on his land. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022; Lamberth v. Southern Power Co., 152 N. C. 371, 372, 67 S. E. 921. And the company then acquires an easement. Ibid.

Limitation of City Authority.—Authority granted by a city to the defendant electric company to remove a shade tree in front of the plaintiff's home in order to put up its poles and wires does not justify the act of the defendant in removing the tree, the city has no power to deprive the plaintiff of his property for such purpose without compensation. Brown v. Electric Co., 138 N. C. 533, 51 S. E. 62.

When Jury Trial Necessary.—While ordinarily a jury trial is not required in condemnation proceedings, except as to the assessment of damages, the general rule does not apply where the pleadings put at issue the question as to whether the character of the lands is such as to be embraced within the right conferred, or within an exception to that right under the terms of a statute. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

Judgment under Prior Act Necessary.—In order to acquire a vested right under a statute to condemn lands, which has subsequently been repealed, it is necessary to show a finality by judgment in the proceedings before the later act has become effective. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

Condemnation of Railroad Right of Way.—The words "right of way," as used in the second paragraph of this section, are not used as synonymous with "easement," but, as applied to railroads, they include in their meaning the strip of land over which the track is laid through the country, and which is used in connection therewith, whether the railroad company owns only an easement therein or the title in fee. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 90 Fed. 30.

Same—Proceeding against Railroad Does Not Affect Owner.—Condemnation proceedings by a telegraph company against a railroad company to condemn the right of way, to which the landowner is not a party, gives no rights against the landowner, but gives rights only against the parties before the court. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 41 S. E. 1022.

Same—Limitation of Federal Statute.—Rev. St. sec. 5263, authorizing telegraph companies to construct their lines over and along any military or post roads of the United States, does not give such companies the right to build their lines over the right of way of a railroad or other private property without the consent of the owner, or the condemnation of the right of way over such property in accordance with the laws of the state where situated. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

§ 56-8. Copy of petition to be served.—A copy of such petition, with a notice of the time and place the same will be presented to the superior court, must be served on the persons whose interests are to be affected by the proceeding at least ten days prior to the presentation of the same to the said court. (Rev., s. 1575; Code, s. 2011; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 6; 1899, c. 64, s. 3; C. S. 1701.)

Failure to Give Prosecution Bond.—Where it appears that the summons was served in time, but that the prosecution bond, made a prerequisite by sec. 1-109, was not, no vested right in the former statute can be acquired by the further prosecution of the condemnation proceedings. Blue Ridge Interurban R. Co. v. Oates, 164 N. C. 167, 80 S. E. 398.

§ 56-9. Proceedings as under eminent domain.—The proceedings for the condemnation of lands, or any easement or interest therein, for the use of telegraph, telephone, electric power or lighting companies, the appraisal of the lands, or interest therein, the duty of the commissioners of appraisal, the right of either party to file exceptions, the report of commissioners, the mode and manner of appeal, the power and authority of the court or judge, the final judgment, and the manner of its entry and enforcement, and the rights of the company pending the appeal, shall be as prescribed in Article 2, entitled "Condemnation Proceedings," of the chapter Eminent Domain. (Rev., s. 1576; Code, s. 2012; 1899, c. 64; 1903, c. 562; C. S. 1702.)

Subsequent Provisions Not Incorporated.—The reference in this section to article 2 of the chapter on eminent domain incorporates into the telegraph statute the provisions of the railroad statute referred to, only as they existed at the time of the enactment, and not as thereafter amended. Postal Tel. Cable Co. v. Southern R. Co., 89 Fed. 190.

Proceedings Subsequent to Filing.—This section evidently refers to the proceedings subsequent to the filing of the petition and the service of the required notices. In other words, it refers to the proceedings after the parties are all before the court. Phillips v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 130 N. C. 513, 525, 41 S. E. 1022. Hence sec. 40-12, as to filing and service, does not apply. Id.

§ 56-10. Commissioners to inspect premises.—In considering the question of damages when the interest sought is over an easement, privilege or right of way, the commissioners may inspect the premises or rest their finding on such testimony as to them may be satisfactory. (Rev., s. 1577; Code, s. 2013; 1874-5, c. 203, s. 9; C. S. 1703.)

Art. 2. Intrastate Telegraph Messages.

§ 56-11. Penalty for nondelivery of intrastate telegraph message.—Any telegraph company doing business in this state that shall fail to transmit and deliver any intrastate message within a reasonable time shall forfeit and pay to any one who may sue for same a penalty of twenty-five dollars. Such penalty shall be in addition to any right of action that any person may have for the recovery of damages. Proof of the sending of any message from one point in this state to another point in this state shall be prima facie evidence that it is an intrastate message. (1919, c. 175; C. S. 1704.)

Editor's Note.—Statutes in other states, similar to this section, have been held highly penal and not capable of being extended by implication to cases which do not come plainly within their terms.

It is generally held that "cipher" messages must be transmitted promptly, but that a regulation requesting that messages delivered for transmission must be in writing is reasonable. However, the sender is not bound by regulations to which he has not consented.

Ordinary Diligence Required.—Telegraph companies are only bound to the exercise of that degree of diligence which a man of ordinary prudence would use under like or similar circumstances. Betts v. Western Union Tel. Co., 167 N. C. 75, 83 S. E. 164; Barnes v. Postal Tel.-Cable Co., 156 N. C. 150, 72 S. E. 78 and cases cited.

Form of Action.—A party entitled to recover damages from a telegraph company for its failure in its duty to transmit and deliver a message may bring his action either in contract or in tort. Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 307, 75 S. E. 16.

Mental Anguish.—Mental anguish caused by the negligent delay or failure to deliver a telegram is allowed in intrastate messages, as an element of damage. Betts v. Western Union Tel. Co., 167 N. C. 75, 83 S. E. 164; Lawrence v. Western Union Tel. Co., 171 N. C. 240, 88 S. E. 226 and cases cited. And formerly mental anguish was allowed in interstate messages. Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 75 S. E. 16. But, by Act of Congress, 18th June, 1910, no recovery is allowed for mental anguish alone in interstate messages whether the negligence occurred in the State or elsewhere. Norris v. Western Union Tel. Co., 174 N. C. 92, 93 S. E. 465.

Sending Message Through Another State Does Not Avoid Liability.—A telegraph company accepting a telegram to be transmitted between points in this State, where a recovery for mental anguish is allowed, may not avoid such liability under the federal decisions by unnecessarily sending the message through another state, when it could have reasonably been otherwise transmitted. Speight v. Western Union Tel. Co., 178 N. C. 146, 100 S. E. 351.

Same—Burden of Proof.—Where a telegraph company has direct available facilities for transmitting an intrastate telegram altogether within the state, and relays it at offices in another state, the burden of proof is upon it to show that it was not done to evade the jurisdiction of the state court. Speight v. Western Union Tel. Co., 178 N. C. 146, 100 S. E. 351.

Validity of Company's Regulation.—A stipulation on the back of the message that in the case of unrepeated messages the sender cannot recover more than $50 is invalid in this state. Young v. Western Union Tel. Co., 168 N. C. 36, 84 S. E. 45; Brown v. Postal Tel. Co., 111 N. C. 187, 16 S. E. 179, citing numerous cases and text books.

Same—Sixty Day Limitation.—The regulations of a telegraph company requiring presentation of claims for damages within sixty days, etc., are valid, and enforceable, Penn v. Western Union Tel. Co., 159 N. C. 306, 75 S. E. 16, since this is not an attempt to restrict the liability of the company for negligence, Sherrill v. Western Union Tel. Co., 109 N. C. 527, 531, 14 S. E. 94.

Chapter 57. Hospital and Medical Service Corporations.

§ 57-1. Regulation and definition; application of other laws; profit and foreign corporations prohibited.—Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized under the general corporation laws of the state of North Carolina for the purpose of maintaining and operating a non-profit hospital and/or medical service plan whereby hospital care and/or medical service may be provided in whole or in part by said corporation or by hospitals and/or physicians participating in such plan, or plans, shall be governed by this chapter and shall be exempt from all other provisions of the insurance laws of this state, heretofore enacted, unless specifically designated herein, and no laws hereafter enacted shall apply to them unless they be expressly designated therein.

The term "hospital service plan" as used in this chapter includes the contracting for certain fees for, or furnishing of, hospital care, laboratory facilities, X-ray facilities, drugs, appliances, anesthesia, nursing care, operating and obstetrical equipment, accommodations and/or any and all other services authorized or permitted to be furnished by a hospital under the laws of the state of North Carolina and approved by the North Carolina Hospital Association and/or the American Medical Association.

The term "medical service plan" as used in this chapter includes the contracting for the payment of fees toward, or furnishing of, medical, obstetrical, surgical and/or any other professional services authorized or permitted to be furnished by a duly licensed physician.

The term "hospital service corporation" as used in this chapter is intended to mean any non-profit corporation operating a hospital and/or medical service plan, as herein defined. Any corporation heretofore or hereafter organized and coming within the provisions of this chapter, the certificate of incorporation of which authorizes the operation of either a hospital or medical service plan, or both, may, with the approval of the commissioner of insurance, issue subscribers contracts or certificates approved by the commissioner of insurance, for the payment of either hospital or medical fees, or the furnishing of such services, or both, and may enter into contracts with hospitals or physicians, or both, for the furnishing of fees or services respectively under a hospital or medical service plan, or both.

No hospital service corporation within the meaning of this chapter shall be converted into a corporation organized for pecuniary profit. Every such corporation shall be maintained and operated for the benefit of its members and subscribers as a coöperative corporation.

No foreign or alien hospital or medical service corporation as herein defined shall be authorized to do business in this state. (1941, c. 338, s. 1; 1943, c. 537, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 487.

The '1943 amendment, which made this section applicable to medical service corporations, changed the first, fourth and sixth paragraphs and inserted the second and third paragraphs.

Cited in Cato v. Hospital Care Ass'n, 220 N. C. 479, 17 S. E. (2d) 671.

§ 57-2. Incorporation. — Any number of persons not less than seven, desiring to form a non-profit hospital service corporation, shall incorporate under the provisions of the general laws of the state of North Carolina governing corporations, but subject to the following provisions:

1. The certificate of incorporation of each such corporation shall have endorsed thereon or attached thereto, the consent of the commissioner of insurance, if he shall find the same to be in accordance with the provisions of this chapter.

2. A statement of the services to be rendered by the corporation and the rates currently to be charged therefor which said statement shall be accompanied by two copies of each contract for services which the corporation proposes to make with its subscribers, and two copies of the type of contract which said corporation purposes to make with participating hospitals, shall have been furnished the commissioner of insurance; provided, however, that if the articles of incorporation of any such corporation within the meaning of this chapter, shall have been filed with the secretary of state prior to the effective date of this chapter, the approval thereof by the commissioner of insurance shall be evidenced by a separate instrument in writing filed with the secretary of state. (1941, c. 338, s. 2.)

Cross Reference.—As to general laws governing incorporation, see chapter 55.

§ 57-3. Hospital and physician contracts.—Any corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter may enter into contracts for the rendering of hospital service to any of its subscribers by hospitals approved by the American Medical Association and/or the North Carolina Hospital Association, and may enter into contracts for the furnishing of, or the payment in whole or in part for, medical services rendered to any of its subscribers by duly licensed physicians. All obligations arising under contracts issued by such corporations to its subscribers shall be satisfied by payments made directly to the hospital or hospitals and/or physicians rendering such service, unless otherwise authorized by the commissioner of insurance. Nothing herein shall be construed to discriminate against hospitals conducted by other schools of medical practice. (1941, c. 338, s. 3; 1943, c. 537, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the provisions relating to contracts with physicians.

§ 57-4. Supervision of commissioner of insurance; form of contract with subscribers; schedule of rates.—No hospital service corporation shall enter into any contract with subscribers unless and until it shall have filed with the commissioner of insurance a specimen copy of the contract or certificate and of all applications, riders, and endorsements for use in connection with the issuance or renewal thereof to be formally approved by him as conforming to the section of this chapter entitled "Subscribers Contracts," and conforms to all rules and regulations promulgated by the commissioner of insurance under the provisions of this chapter. The commissioner of insurance shall, within a reasonable time after the filing of any such form, notify the corporation filing the same either of his approval or of his disapproval of such form.

No corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall enter into any contract with a subscriber after the enactment hereof unless and until it shall have filed with the commissioner of insurance a full schedule of rates to be paid by the subscribers to such contracts and shall have obtained the commissioner's approval thereof. The commissioner may refuse approval if he finds that such rates are excessive, inadequate or discriminatory or if he finds the form of subscriber's contract is unfair or discriminatory. At all times such rates and form of subscriber's contract shall be subject to modification and approval of the commissioner of insurance under rules and regulations adopted by the commissioner, in conformity to this chapter. (1941, c. 338, s. 4.)

§ 57-5. Application for certificate of authority or license.—No corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall issue contracts for the rendering of hospital or medical service to subscribers, until the commissioner of insurance has, by formal certificate or license, authorized it to do so. Application for such certificate of authority or license, shall be made on forms to be supplied by the commissioner of insurance, containing such information as he shall deem necessary. Each application for such certificate of authority or license, as a part thereof shall be accompanied by duplicate copies of the following documents duly certified by at least two of the executive officers of such corporation:

(a) Certificate of incorporation with all amendments thereto.

(b) By-laws with all amendments thereto.

(c) Each contract executed or proposed to be executed by and between the corporation and any participating hospital, and/or physicians under the terms of which hospital and/or medical service is to be furnished to subscribers to the plan.

(d) Each form of contract, application, rider, and endorsement, issued or proposed to be issued to subscribers to the plan, or in renewal of any of contracts with subscribers to the plan, together with a table of rates charged or proposed to be charged to subscribers for each form of such contract.

(e) Financial statement of the corporation which shall include the amounts of each contribution paid or agreed to be paid to the corporation for working capital, the name or names of each contributor and the terms of each contribution. (1941, c. 338, s. 5; 1943, c. 537, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the words "or medical" in line three. And it inserted in subsection (c) the words "and/or physicians," also the words "and/or medical."

§ 57-6. Issuance of certificate. — Before issuing any such license or certificate the commissioner of insurance may make such an examination or investigation as he deems expedient. The commissioner of insurance shall issue a certificate of authority or license upon the payment of an annual fee of one hundred dollars ($100.00) and upon being satisfied on the following points:

(a) The applicant is established as a bona fide non-profit hospital service corporation.

(b) The rates charged and benefits to be provided are fair and reasonable.

(c) The amounts provided as working capital of the corporation are repayable only out of earned income in excess of amounts paid and payable for operating expenses and hospital and medical expenses and such reserve as the department of insurance deems adequate, as provided hereinafter.

(d) That the amount of money actually available for working capital be sufficient to carry all acquisition costs and operating expenses for a reasonable period of time from the date of the issuance of the certificate. (1941, c. 338, s. 6; 1943, c. 537, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the words "and medical" in line four of subsection (c).

§ 57-7. Subscriber contracts; required and prohibited provisions.—1. Every contract made by a corporation subject to the provisions of the chapter shall be for a period not to exceed twelve months, and no contract shall be made providing for the inception of benefits at a date later than one year from the date of the contract. Any such contract may provide that it shall be automatically renewed for a similar period unless there shall have been one month's prior written notice of termination by either the subscriber or the corporation.

2. No contract between any such corporation and a subscriber, shall entitle more than one person to benefits except that a contract issued and marked as a "family contract" may provide that benefits will be furnished to a husband and wife, or husband, wife and their child or children not over eighteen years of age.

3. Every contract entered into by any such corporation with any subscriber thereto shall be in writing and a certificate stating the terms and conditions thereof shall be furnished to the subscriber to be kept by him. No such certificate form shall be made, issued or delivered in this state unless it contains the following provisions:

(a) A statement of the amount payable to the corporation by the subscriber and the times at which and manner in which such amount is to be paid; this provision may be inserted in the application rather than in the certificate. Application need not be attached to certificate.

(b) A statement of the nature of the benefits to be furnished and the period during which they will be furnished.

(c) A statement of the terms and conditions, if any, upon which the contract may be cancelled or otherwise terminated at the option of either party.

(d) A statement that the contract includes the endorsements thereon and attached papers, if any, and together with the application contains the entire contract.

(e) A statement that if the subscriber defaults in making any payment, under the contract, the subsequent acceptance of a payment by the corporation at its home office shall reinstate the contract, but with respect to sickness and injury, only to cover such sickness as may be first manifested more than ten days after the date of such acceptance.

4. In every such contract made, issued or delivered in this state:

(a) All printed portions shall be plainly printed;

(b) The exceptions from the contract shall appear with the same prominence as the benefits to which they apply; and

(c) If the contract contains any provision purporting to make any portion of the articles, constitution or by-laws of the corporation a part of the contract, such portion shall be set forth in full.

5. A hospital service corporation may issue a master group contract with the approval of the commissioner of insurance provided such contract and the individual certificates issued to members of the group, shall comply in substance to the other provisions of this chapter. Any such contract may provide for the adjustment of the rate of the premium or benefits conferred with the approval of the commissioner of insurance, based upon the experience thereunder at the end of the first year or any subsequent year of insurance thereunder and such readjustment may be made retroactive only for such policy year. If such master group contract is issued, altered or modified, the subscribers' contracts issued in pursuance thereof are altered or modified accordingly, all laws and clauses in subscribers' contracts to the contrary notwithstanding. Nothing in the chapter shall be construed to prohibit or prevent the same. Forms of such contract shall at all times be furnished upon request of subscribers thereto. (1941, c. 338, s. 7.)

§ 57-8. Investments and reserves. — No hospital service corporation shall invest in any securities other than securities permitted by the laws of this state for the investment of assets of life insurance companies, banks, trust companies, executors, administrators and guardians.

Every such corporation after the first full year of doing business after the passage of this chapter shall accumulate and maintain, in addition to proper reserves for current administrative liabilities and whatever reserves are deemed adequate and proper by the commissioner of insurance for unpaid hospital and/or medical bills, and unearned membership dues, a special contingent surplus or reserve at the following rates annually of its gross annual collections from membership dues, exclusive of receipts from cost plus plans, until said reserve shall equal three times its average monthly expenditures for hospital and/or medical claims and administrative and selling expenses.

1. 1st $200,000.00 .....4%
2. Next $200,000.00 .....2%
3. All above $400,000.00 ....1%

Any such corporation may accumulate and maintain a contingent reserve in excess of the reserve hereinabove provided for, not to exceed an amount equal to three times the average monthly expenditures for hospital and/or medical claims and administrative and selling expenses.

In the event the commissioner of insurance finds that special conditions exist warranting an increase or decrease in the reserves or schedule of reserves, hereinabove provided for, it may be modified by the commissioner of insurance accordingly, provided however, when special conditions exist warranting an increase in said schedule of reserves, said schedule shall not be increased by the commissioner of insurance until a reasonable length of time shall have elapsed after notice of such increase. (1941, c. 338, s. 8; 1943, c. 537, s. 5.)

Cross References.—As to investments by banks, see §§ 53-44, 53-45 and 53-60. As to investments by executors, administrators and guardians, see §§ 36-1 to 36-5.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the words "and/or medical" in the second and third paragraphs.

§ 57-9. Reports filed with commissioner of insurance.—Every such corporation shall annually on or before the first day of March of each year, file in the office of the commissioner of insurance a sworn statement verified by at least two of the principal officers of the said corporation showing its condition on the thirty-first day of December, then next preceding; which shall be in such form and shall contain such matter as the commissioner of insurance shall prescribe. In case any such corporation shall fail to file any such annual statement as herein required, the said commissioner of insurance shall be authorized and empowered to suspend the certificate of authority issued to such corporation until such statement shall be properly filed. (1941, c. 338, s. 9.)

§ 57-10. Visitations and examinations. — The commissioner of insurance or any deputy or examiner or other person whom he may appoint, shall have the power of visitations and examination into the affairs of any such corporation and free access to all the books, papers and documents that relate to the business of the corporation, and may summon and qualify witnesses under oath to examine its officers, agents, or employees or other persons in relation to the affairs, transactions and conditions of the corporation, the actual expense of which shall be paid by the association so examined. (1941, c. 338, s. 10.)

§ 57-11. Expenses. — All acquisition expenses in connection with the solicitation of subscribers to such hospital and/or medical service plan and administration costs including salaries paid to officers of the corporations, if any, shall at all times be subject to inspection by the commissioner of insurance. (1941, c. 338, s. 11; 1943, c. 537, s. 6.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted the words "and/or medical" in line three.

§ 57-12. Licensing of agents. — Every agent of any hospital service corporation authorized to do business in this state under the provisions of this chapter shall be required to obtain annually from the commissioner of insurance a license under the seal of his office showing that the company for which he is agent is licensed to do business in this state and that he is an agent of such company and duly authorized to do business for it. And every such agent, on demand, shall exhibit his license to any officer or to any person from whom he shall solicit hospital service. For said license, each agent shall annually pay the sum of one ($1.00) dollar. Before a license is issued to an agent, hereunder, the agent and the company for which he desires to act, shall apply for the license on forms to be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance, and before he issues a license to such agent, the commissioner of insurance shall satisfy himself by examination, or otherwise, that the person applying for a license as an agent is a person of good moral character, that he intends to hold himself out in good faith as a hospital and/or medical service agent and has sufficient knowledge of the business proposed to be done; that he has not wilfully violated any of the insurance laws of the state, and that he is a proper person for such position, and that such license, if issued, shall serve the public's interest. For said examination applicant shall pay the sum of ten ($10.00) dollars: Provided, that where an applicant has already paid the ten ($10.00) dollar examination fee prescribed in sub-section three of section 105-121, such applicant shall not be required to pay an additional examination fee. All agents operating as such for corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter on the date of its ratification are deemed qualified to act as such without the examination herein provided for. Licenses issued hereunder shall be subject to revocation by the commissioner of insurance for cause and if any person shall assume to act as an agent or broker without obtaining the license herein provided for, or makes any false statements or representations concerning the said hospital and/or medical service, knowingly or wilfully, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred ($100.00) dollars nor more than five hundred ($500.00) dollars for each offense. (1941, c. 338, s. 12; 1943, c. 537, s. 7.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in the fourth sentence the words "or otherwise," and also the words "and/or medical." It added the proviso to the fifth sentence, and inserted in the last sentence the words "and/or medical."

§ 57-13. Revocation of certificate of authority; dissolution.—Whenever the commissioner of insurance shall find as a fact that any corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter, is being operated for profit or fraudulently conducted, or is not complying with the provisions of this chapter, he shall be authorized to revoke the certificate of authority or license theretofore granted and may at any time thereafter institute or cause to be instituted the necessary proceedings under the laws of this state looking to the dissolution of such corporation, and any dissolution, liquidation, merger, or reorganization of a corporation or corporations subject to the provisions of this chapter shall be under the supervision of the commissioner of insurance who shall have all powers with respect thereto granted to him under the insurance laws of this state. If, at any time, a corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter is financially unable to comply with the provisions of this chapter or to comply with any of the provisions of any of the hospital contracts or subscribers' contracts issued by said corporation in pursuance of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance shall have the right without court action, to transfer all its assets, liabilities, and obligations, to any other corporation, whether organized under the provisions of this chapter, or not, under such contract of reinsurance with such transferee corporation, that he deems to the best interests of the corporation, its members and creditors whose assets, obligations and liabilities, are transferred. This action on the part of the commissioner of insurance is without prejudice to the rights of the corporations whose assets, liabilities and obligations are so transferred, to institute other and proper legal remedies, and to question the action so taken by the commissioner of insurance as herein provided, provided, however, that the action taken by the commissioner of insurance herein shall not be affected pending a final determination by the court with reference thereto. (1941, c. 338, s. 13; 1943, c. 537, s. 8.)

Editor's Note.—The word "affected" in the next to the last line of this section erroneously appeared as "effected" in the 1941 act. The proper correction was made in codifying the act and subsequently the 1943 act also made the correction.

§ 57-14. Taxation. — Every corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter is hereby declared to be a charitable and benevolent corporation and all of its funds and property shall be exempt from every state, county, district, municipal and school tax or assessment, and all other taxes and license fees, from the payment of which charitable and/or benevolent institutions are now or shall be hereafter exempt. For the purpose of raising revenues sufficient to defray the expenses of the administration of this chapter, and in lieu of all other taxes an annual franchise or privilege tax is hereby levied upon every corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter at the rate of one-third of one per cent of the gross annual collections from membership dues exclusive of receipts from cost plus plans. The general assembly of North Carolina does hereby appropriate the sum of four thousand dollars ($4,000.00) annually from its general funds to be paid over to the department of insurance of this state for its use in the discharge of the duties by this chapter imposed upon the commissioner of insurance of this state. (1941, c. 338, s. 14.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this provision, see 19 N. C. L. Rev. 518.

§ 57-15. Amendments to certificate of incorporation.—Every such corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall, prior to any amendments of its certificate of incorporation, file with the commissioner of insurance, two copies of the proposed amendment. Every amendment to a certificate of incorporation of any corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter, shall have annexed thereto the approval of the commissioner of insurance before the same shall be filed with the secretary of state. (1941, c. 338, s. 15.)

Cross Reference.—As to amendments generally, see § 55-31.

§ 57-16. Cost plus plans. — Any corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter shall be authorized as agent of any other corporations, firm, group, partnership, or association, doing business in this state, to administer on behalf of such corporation, firm, group, partnership, or association, doing business in this state, any employee group hospitilization or medical service plan, promulgated by such corporation, firm, group, partnership, or association, on a cost plus administrative expense basis, provided only that administrative costs of such a cost plus plan administered by a corporation organized under the provisions of this chapter, acting as an agent as herein provided, shall not exceed the remuneration received therefor, and provided further that the corporation organized under this chapter administering such a plan shall have no liability to the subscribers or to the hospitals for the success or failure, liquidation or dissolution of such group hospitalization or medical service plan and provided further, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to require of said corporation, firm, group, partnership, or association, conformity to the provisions of this chapter if such employee group hospitalization is administered by a corporation organized under this chapter, on a cost plus expense basis. The administration of any cost plus plans as herein provided, shall not be subject to regulation or supervision by the commissioner of insurance. (1941, c. 338, s. 16; 1943, c. 537, s. 9.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted in line twenty-one the words "or medical service plan."

§ 57-17. Pre-existing hospital service corporations.—No corporations organized under the laws of this state prior to the ratification of this chapter, for the purposes herein provided, shall be required to reincorporate as provided for herein, and the provisions of this chapter shall apply to said corporations only with regard to operations by said corporations with respect to subscribers' contracts, participating hospital contracts, reserves, investments, reports, visitations, expenses, taxation, amendments to charters, supervision of commissioner of insurance, application for certificate, issuance of certificates, licensing of agents after the date of the passage of this chapter, provided, however, as soon as practical hereafter and in accordance with rules and regulations adopted by the commissioner of insurance said corporations shall conform to this chapter as near as practical with respect to subscribers' contracts, endorsements, riders, and applications entered into prior to the ratification of this chapter. (1941, c. 338, s. 17.)

§ 57-18. Construction of chapter as to single employer plans; associations exempt.—Nothing in this chapter shall be construed to affect or apply to hospital or medical service plans which limit their membership to employees and the immediate members of the families of the employees of a single employer and which plans are operated by such employer or such limited group of the employees; nor shall this chapter be construed to affect or apply to any non-stock, non-profit medical service association which was, on January first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-three, organized solely for the purpose of, and actually engaged in, the administration of any medical service plan in this state upon contracts and participating agreements with physicians, surgeons, or medical societies, whereby such physicians or surgeons underwrite such plan by contributing their services to members of such association upon agreement with such association as to the schedule of fees to apply and the rate and method of payment by the association from the common fund paid in periodically by the members for medical, surgical and obstetrical care; and such hospital service plans, and such medical service associations as are herein specifically described, are hereby exempt from the provisions of this chapter. The commissioner of insurance may require from any such hospital service plan or medical service association such information as will enable him to determine whether such hospital service plan or medical service association is exempt from the provisions of this chapter. (1941, c. 338, s. 18; 1943, c. 537, s. 10.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment extended the exemption to the specified medical service plans and medical service associations.

SUBCHAPTER I. INSURANCE DEPARTMENT.

Art. 1. Title and Definitions.

§ 58-1. Title of the chapter.—This chapter may be cited and shall be known as the Insurance Law. (Rev., s. 4677; 1899, c. 54; C. S. 6260.)

Purpose of Chapter. — Our statute-law makes elaborate and minute provisions for the protection of its people from imposition under the guise of insurance, and our insurance department is created and charged with the special duty of seeing that these provisions are complied with. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 73 S. E. 122.

§ 58-2. Terms defined.—When consistent with the context and not obviously used in a different sense, the term "company" or "insurance company," as used in this chapter, includes all corporations, associations, partnerships, or individuals engaged as principals in the business of insurance; the word "domestic" designates those companies incorporated or formed, and with home office, in this state; and the word "foreign," when used without limitation, includes all those formed by authority of any other state or government, and whose home office is not located in this state. (Rev., s. 4678; 1899, c. 54, s. 1; C. S. 6261.)

Insurances Contemplated. — The insurance law clearly contemplates both incorporated and unincorporated companies. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 73 S. E. 122.

§ 58-3. Contract of insurance.—A contract of insurance is an agreement by which one party for a consideration promises to pay money or its equivalent or to do some act of value to the insured upon, and as an indemnity for, the destruction, loss, or injury of something in which the other party has an interest. (Rev., s. 4679; 1899, c. 54, s. 2; C. S. 6262.)

Cited in Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 207 N. C. 408, 413, 177 S. E. 9.

Art. 2. Commissioner of Insurance.

§ 58-4. Department established. — The insurance department is hereby established as a separate and distinct department, which is charged with the execution of laws relating to insurance and other subjects placed under the department. (Rev., s. 4680; 1899, c. 54, s. 3; 1901, c. 391, s. 1; C. S. 6263.)

Cited in O'Neal v. Wake County, 196 N. C. 184, 189, 145 S. E. 28.

§ 58-5. Commissioner's election and term of office.—The chief officer of the insurance department shall be called the commissioner of insurance; whenever in the statutes of this state the words "insurance commissioner" appear, they shall be deemed to refer to and to be synonymous with the term "commissioner of insurance." He shall be elected by the people in the manner prescribed for the election of members of the general assembly and state officers, and the result of the election shall be declared in the same manner and at the same time as the election of state officers is now declared. His term of office begins on the first day of January next after his election, and is for four years or until his successor is elected and qualified. If a vacancy occurs during the term, it shall be filled by the governor for the unexpired term. (Rev., ss. 4680, 4681; 1907, c. 868; 1943, c. 170; C. S. 6264.)

Cross References.—As to commissioner taking oath and being inducted into office, see § 147-4. As to oaths prescribed for public officers, see §§ 11-6, 11-7, 11-11, Const. Art. VI, s. 7. As to penalty for failure, see § 128-5.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendments substituted "commissioner of insurance" for "insurance commissioner" in the first sentence, and added the part of the sentence appearing after the semi-colon. By virtue of this amendatory act the words "insurance commissioner" wherever appearing in this chapter have been changed to "commissioner of insurance."

§ 58-6. Salary of commissioner.—The salary of the commissioner of insurance shall be six thousand dollars a year, payable monthly. (Rev., s. 2756; 1899, c. 54, ss. 3, 8; 1901, c. 710; 1903, c. 42; 1903, c. 771, s. 3; 1907, c. 830, s. 10; 1907, c. 994; 1909, c. 839; 1913, c. 194; 1915, cc. 158, 171; 1917, c. 70; 1919, c. 247, s. 4; 1921, c. 25, s. 1; 1933, c. 282, s. 5; 1935, c. 293; 1937, c. 342, C. S. 3874.)

§ 58-7. Bond of commissioner.—The commissioner of insurance, before he enters upon the execution of his official duties, must give a bond to the state in the sum of twenty-five thousand dollars, with sufficient surety, to be approved by the state treasurer, conditioned upon the faithful performance of the duties of his office during his term of office; this bond extends to the faithful execution of the office of commissioner of insurance by the person elected or appointed thereto until a new election or appointment of commissioner of insurance is made and a new bond given. (Rev., s. 293; 1899, c. 54, s. 55; 1905, c. 430, s. 2; C. S. 6265.)

§ 58-8. Seal of department.—The commissioner of insurance, with the approval of the governor, shall devise a seal, with suitable inscription, for his office, a description of which, with the certificate of approval by the governor, shall be filed in the office of the secretary of state, with an impression thereof, which seal shall thereupon become the seal of office of the commissioner of the insurance department. The seal may be renewed whenever necessary. (Rev., s. 4682; 1899, c. 54, s. 11; C. S. 6266.)

§ 58-9. Duties of commissioner.—The commissioner of insurance shall:

(1) See that all laws relating to the companies, associations, and orders under the insurance department are faithfully executed.

(2) Furnish to each of the companies incorporated by this state and to the attorneys or general agents of companies and associations incorporated by other states and foreign governments, doing business in this state, printed forms for all statements required by law.

(3) Perform all duties now imposed upon him by law in regard to the examination, supervision, and conduct of companies and associations and orders.

(4) Upon a proper application by any citizen of this state, give a statement or synopsis of the provisions of any insurance contract offered or issued to such citizen.

He may administer the oaths in the discharge of his official duty. (Rev., s. 4689; 1899, c. 54, s. 8; 1905, c. 430, s. 3; C. S. 6269.)

Cross References.—As to control of insurance commissioner over building and loan associations, see §§ 54-24 to 54-33. As to duties with regard to Fireman's Relief Fund, see § 118-1 et seq. As to certain duties with regard to fire inspection and prevention, see §§ 69-1 to 69-7. As to approval for merger of building and loan or insurance corporation, see § 53-15.

§ 58-10. Commissioner to provide books; make inspection; compensation.—The commissioner of insurance shall provide all books and blanks of every kind required to carry out the provisions of the law for inspection of buildings in towns and cities, and he or his deputy shall make inspections of the cities and towns of the state. Whenever the commissioner has reason to believe that the local inspectors are not doing their duty he or his deputy shall make special trips of inspection and take proper steps to have all the provisions of law relative to the investigation of fires and the prevention of fire waste enforced. (Rev., s. 4690; 1905, c. 506, s. 6; 1925, c. 89; C. S. 6270.)

§ 58-11. Reports and records kept for public inspection.—The commissioner of insurance shall keep on file in his office, for the inspection of the public, all the reports received by him in obedience to law. He shall keep and preserve in a permanent form a record of his proceedings, including a concise statement of the result of all official examinations of companies, a report of the condition of receiverships of insolvent companies, an exhibit of the financial condition and business methods as disclosed by the official examinations of the same, or by their several statements; and such other information and comments in relation to insurance and the public interest therein as he deems fit and proper to preserve. He shall keep the records of fires and matters connected therewith as required by § 69-1 of the chapter on Fire Protection, a record of the policies insuring property of the state, as required by § 58-189 of this chapter, and a record of the proceedings attending the service of process on him as agent for a foreign insurance company, as required by § 58-154. (Rev., s. 4683; 1899, c. 54, ss. 9, 77; 1907, c. 1000, s. 1; C. S. 6271.)

§ 58-12. Original documents and certified copies as evidence.—Every certificate, assignment, or conveyance executed by the commissioner, in pursuance of any authority conferred on him by law and sealed with his seal of office, may be used as evidence and may be recorded in the proper recording offices, in the same manner and with like effect as a deed regularly acknowledged or proved before an officer authorized by law to take the probate of deeds; and all copies of papers in the office of the commissioner, certified by him and authenticated by his official seal, shall be evidence as the original. (Rev., s. 4684; 1899, c. 54, s. 11; C. S. 6272.)

§ 58-13. Admissibility as evidence of agent's authority.—In any case or controversy arising in any court of original jurisdiction within this state wherein it is necessary to establish the question as to whether any insurance or other corporation or agent thereof is or has been licensed by the state insurance department to do business in this state, the certificate of the commissioner of insurance under the seal of his office shall be admissible in evidence as proof of such corporation or agent's authority as conferred by the state insurance department. (1929, c. 289, s. 1.)

§ 58-14. Reports of commissioner to the governor and general assembly.—The commissioner shall biennially submit to the general assembly, through the governor, a report of his official acts. The commissioner shall, from time to time, report to the general assembly any change which in his opinion should be made in the laws relating to insurance and other subjects pertaining to his department. On or before the first day of February of each year in which the general assembly is in session he shall make to the governor the recommendations called for in this section, to be transmitted to the general assembly, with the last annual report of this department, including receipts and disbursements. (Rev., ss. 4687, 4688; 1899, c. 54, ss. 6, 7, 10; 1901, c. 391, s. 2; 1911, c. 211, s. 2; 1927, c. 217, s. 5; C. S. 6273.)

Editor's Note.—Before the amendment of 1927 the commissioners by this section were required to submit annually to the governor a report of their official acts, etc.

§ 58-15. Authority over all insurance companies; no exemptions from license.—Every insurance company, association or order, as well as every bond, investment, dividend, guarantee, registry, title guarantee, debenture, or such other like company (not strictly an insurance company, as defined in the general insurance laws), must be licensed and supervised by the commissioner of insurance, and must pay all licenses, taxes, and fees as prescribed in the insurance laws of the state for the class of company, association, or order to which it belongs. No provision in any statute, public or private, may relieve any company, association, or order from the supervision prescribed for the class of companies, associations, or orders of like character, or release it from the payment of the licenses, taxes, and fees prescribed for companies, associations, and orders of the same class; and all such special provisions or exemptions are hereby repealed. It is unlawful for the commissioner of insurance to grant or issue a license to any company, association, or order, or agent for them, claiming such exemption from supervision by his department and release for the payment of license, fees, and taxes. (Rev., s. 4691; 1903, c. 594, ss. 1, 2, 3; C. S. 6274.)

A fraternal insurance order incorporated under the laws of another state, but with branch offices in this state, comes within the meaning of this section and must be licensed and supervised by the insurance commissioner. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 73 S. E. 122.

Cited in Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 182 S. E. 733.

§ 58-16. Examinations to be made. — Before granting certificates of authority to an insurance company to issue policies or make contracts of insurance the commissioner shall be satisfied, by such examination and evidence as he sees fit to make and require, that the company is otherwise duly qualified under the laws of the state to transact business therein. As often as once in three years he shall personally or by his deputy visit each domestic insurance company and thoroughly inspect and examine its affairs, especially as to its financial condition and ability to fulfill its obligations and whether it has complied with the laws. He shall also make an examination of any such company whenever he deems it prudent to do so, or upon the request of five or more of the stockholders, creditors, policyholders, or persons pecuniarily interested therein, who shall make affidavit of their belief, with specifications of their reasons therefor, that the company is in an unsound condition. Whenever the commissioner deems it prudent for the protection of policyholders in this state he shall in like manner visit and examine, or cause to be visited and examined by some competent person appointed by him for that purpose, any foreign insurance company applying for admission or already admitted to do business in this state, and such company shall pay the proper charges incurred in this examination, including the expenses of the commissioner or his deputy and the expenses and compensation of his assistants employed therein. For these purposes the commissioner or his deputy or persons making the examination shall have free access to all the books and papers of the insurance company that relate to its business, and to the books and papers kept by any of its agents, and may summon, administer oaths to, and examine as witnesses, the directors, officers, agents, and trustees of any such company, and any other person, in relation to its affairs, transactions, and condition. (Rev., s. 4692; 1899, c. 54, s. 13; C. S. 6275.)

§ 58-17. Oath required for compliance with law.—Before issuing license to any insurance company to transact the business of insurance in this state, the commissioner of insurance shall require, in every case, in addition to the other requirements provided for by law, that the company file with him the affidavit of its president or other chief officer that it has not violated any of the provisions of this chapter for the space of twelve months last past, and that it accepts the terms and obligations of this chapter as a part of the consideration of the license. (Rev., s. 4693; 1899, c. 54, s. 110; 1901, c. 391, s. 8; C. S. 6276.)

§ 58-18. Investigation of charges.—Upon complaint being filed by a citizen of this state that a company authorized to do business in the state has violated any of the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance shall diligently investigate the matter, and, if necessary, examine, under oath, by himself or his accredited representatives, at the head office located in the United States, the president and such other officer or agents of such companies as may be deemed proper; also all books, records, and papers of the same. He or his deputies shall have power to summon witnesses, and to compel them to appear before him, or either of them, and to testify under oath in relation to any matter which is, by the provisions of this law, a subject of inquiry and investigation, and may require the production of any book, paper, document, or other matter whatsoever deemed pertinent or necessary to such inquiry with the same force and effect as is possessed by courts of record in this state. (Rev., s. 4694; 1899, c. 54, s. 111; 1903, c. 438, s. 11; 1921, c. 136, s. 4; 1925, c. 275, s. 6; C. S. 6277.)

Cross Reference.—As to penalties for using funds of insurance companies for political purposes, see § 163-206.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1921 this section provided that a bond to secure expense or cost could be required by the commissioner from the complaining party. By the amendment of 1921, $5000 was appropriated to carry out this section. By the amendment of 1925 the provisions for a bond and for an appropriation were omitted.

§ 58-19. Collection of expenses of examination.—If any company, authorized to do business in this state under this chapter, fails or refuses to pay the expenses of examination upon the presentation of a bill therefor by the commissioner of insurance, the commissioner shall at once institute appropriate action against the company for the recovery of the same. (Rev., s. 4695; 1899, c. 54, s. 113; C. S. 6278.)

§ 58-20. Commissioner to prescribe forms and furnish blanks for returns.—The commissioner of insurance shall furnish blank forms for statements in order to secure full information as to the standing, condition, and other information desired of companies under his department. These forms shall contain such questions and be in such form as the commissioner may prescribe. (Rev., s. 4708; 1899, c. 54, s. 104; C. S. 6279.)

§ 58-21. Annual statements to be filed with commissioner.—Every insurance company, association, or order—domestic, through its officers, and foreign, through its general agent—shall file in the office of the commissioner of insurance, on or before the first day of March in each year, in form and detail as the commissioner of insurance prescribes, a statement showing the business standing and financial condition of such company, association, or order on the preceding thirty-first day of December, signed and sworn to by the chief managing agent or officer thereof, before the commissioner of insurance or some officer authorized by law to administer oaths. The commissioner of insurance shall, in December of each year, furnish to each of the insurance companies authorized to do business in the state two or more blanks adapted for their annual statements. (Rev., s. 4698; 1899, c. 54, ss. 72, 73, 83, 90, 97; 1901, c. 706, s. 2; 1903, c. 438, s. 9; C. S. 6280.)

§ 58-22. Punishment for making false statement.—If any insurance company in its annual or other statement required by law shall wilfully misstate the facts, the insurance company and the person making oath to or subscribing the same shall severally be punished by a fine of not less than five hundred nor more than one thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 3493; 1899, c. 54, s. 97; C. S. 6281.)

§ 58-23. Commissioner to examine statements and publish abstracts.—It is the duty of the commissioner of insurance to receive and thoroughly examine each annual statement required by this chapter, and, if made in compliance with the laws of this state, to publish, at the expense of the company, an abstract of the same in one of the newspapers of the state, which newspaper may be selected by the general agent making the statement, if within thirty days after the filing of the statement he notifies the commissioner of insurance, in writing, of the name of the paper selected by him. (Rev., s. 4699; 1899, c. 54, s. 74; 1901, c. 391, s. 6; C. S. 6282.)

§ 58-24. Commissioner to file reports of companies; copy to superior court clerk; certified list of licenses.—The commissioner of insurance shall keep on file in his office, for the inspection of the public, all the reports received by him in obedience to this chapter, and shall certify to the clerk of the superior court of each county an abstract of each annual statement at the expense of the company making the same, and receive therefor from each company the sum of four dollars: Provided, the commissioner of insurance may, in lieu of said abstract, file with the clerks of the courts a copy of the advance sheets of his report or the full report, or both; and he shall also certify, at like expense, to such clerks, on the first day of May of each year, a list of the licenses in force at such dates and those that have expired without renewal or that have been revoked, and each clerk shall file such certified abstracts and lists in stub books, to be kept for that purpose, furnished by the commissioner of insurance, which books shall be open for the inspection of the public. There shall be no tax for any seal on the certificates required by this section. (Rev., s. 4700; 1899, c. 54, s. 77; 1901, c. 391, s. 6; 1903, c. 438, s. 7; 1915, c. 166, s. 9; 1931, c. 74; C. S. 6283.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the words "each alternate month" formerly appearing in lines fourteen and fifteen of this section and inserted in lieu thereof "May each year."

§ 58-25. Record of business kept by companies and agents; commissioner may inspect.—All companies, agents, or brokers doing any kind of insurance business in this state must make and keep a full and correct record of the business done by them, showing the number, date, term, amount insured, premiums, and the persons to whom issued, of every policy or certificate or renewal. Information from these records must be furnished to the commissioner of insurance on demand, and the original books of records shall be open to the inspection of the commissioner, his deputy or clerk, when demanded. (Rev., s. 4696; 1899, c. 54, s. 108; 1903, c. 438, s. 11; C. S. 6284.)

§ 58-26. Commissioner may employ actuary or accountant.—It is the duty of the commissioner of insurance, when in his judgment it is necessary in order that he may be fully advised as to the exact financial condition of any insurance company and the manner in which its business has been or is being conducted, to employ an independent actuary to make a technical calculation of the business and policies of the company, or a skilled accountant to examine and check up the books of the company, and the services shall be paid for as other bills against the state, out of the treasury, where payment is not otherwise provided for. (1907, c. 1000, s. 2; C. S. 6285.)

§ 58-27. Books and papers required to be exhibited.—It is the duty of any person having in his possession or control any books, accounts, or papers of any company, order, or person licensed under this chapter, to exhibit the same to the commissioner of insurance or to any deputy, actuary, accountant, or persons acting with or for the commissioner of insurance. Any person who shall refuse, on demand, to exhibit the books, accounts, or papers, as above provided, or who shall knowingly or wilfully make any false statement in regard to the same, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., ss. 3494, 4697; 1899, c. 54, s. 76; 1907, c. 1000, s. 3; C. S. 6286.)

Art. 3. General Regulations for Insurance.

§ 58-28. State law governs insurance contracts.—All contracts of insurance on property, lives, or interests in this state shall be deemed to be made therein; and all contracts of insurance the applications for which are taken within the state shall be deemed to have been made within this state and are subject to the laws thereof. (Rev., s. 4806; 1899, c. 54, s. 2; 1901, c. 705, s. 1; C. S. 6287.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 213, for note on "Validity of Statutes Localizing Insurance Contracts." See also page 41 for the law of contracts in general.

General Consideration. — The section is constitutional. Williams v. Life Ass'n, 145 N. C. 128, 28 S. E. 802. It did not have a retroactive effect. Id.

Application Taken out of State.—When neither party was a resident of the state at the time of the contract of insurance and the application was taken out of the state the rule of lex loci contractu will apply. Keesler v. Mutual Ben. Life Ins. Co., 177 N. C. 394, 99 S. E. 97.

Place Determined by Application. — Policies of insurance issued by foreign companies, the applications for which are taken in this State, are to be construed in accordance with the laws of this State. Horton v. Life Ins. Co., 122 N. C. 498, 29 S. E. 944. True although the insurance company may under its charter be allowed privileges which are contrary to statutes of this state. Wilson v. Supreme Conclave, 174 N. C. 628, 94 S. E. 443. See Cordell v. Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, etc., 208 N. C. 632, 182 S. E. 141.

A contract of insurance based upon the application of insured made while residing in this state, must be construed in accordance with the laws of this state rather than the laws in force at the time of the inception of the contract in the state in which insurer is incorporated. Pace v. New York Life Ins. Co., 219 N. C. 451, 14 S. E. (2d) 411.

Effect of Stipulation Making Policy a Foreign Contract.—A provision in a contract of insurance that, "This contract shall be governed by, subject to, and construed only according to the laws of the State of New York, the home office of said association," is void in so far as the courts of this State are concerned. Blackwell v. Life Ass'n, 141 N. C. 117, 53 S. E. 833. See Cordell v. Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, etc., 208 N. C. 632, 182 S. E. 141.

Laws in Force Become Part of Insurance Contract. — Laws in force at the time of executing a policy of insurance are binding on the insurer and become a part of the insurance contract. Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 182 S. E. 733.

Applied in Fountain v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 55 F. (2d) 120; Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 190 S. E. 744; Petty v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 157, 193 S. E. 228.

§ 58-29. No insurance contracts except under this chapter.—It is unlawful for any company to make any contract of insurance upon or concerning any property or interest or lives in this state, or with any resident thereof, or for any person as insurance agent or insurance broker to make, negotiate, solicit, or in any manner aid in the transaction of such insurance, unless and except as authorized under the provisions of this chapter. (Rev., s. 4807; 1899, c. 54, s. 2; C. S. 6288.)

Application to Foreign Contract Insuring Local Property.—The issuance of one or more policies of fire insurance, by a corporation, created and existing under the laws of another State, not by or through any agent, does not constitute "doing business" in the State of North Carolina, so as to require a resident process agent under section 55-38. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Co., 192 N. C. 115, 119, 133 S. E. 424.

Contract Valid as to Insured.—When a statute or valid regulation in restraint only of the company's action is made for protection of the policy holder, a recovery may ordinarily be had, though the contract is in breach of the regulation. Robinson v. Life, etc., Co., 163 N. C. 415, 79 S. E. 681; Blount v. Fraternal Ass'n, 163 N. C. 167, 79 S. E. 299; Morgan v. Fraternal Ass'n, 170 N. C. 75, 86 S. E. 975.

The statute does not impose on the insured the duty of showing the authority of the company or its agent, as the statute is for the protection of the policy holder, and a recovery can be had by the insured although as to the insurer the contract may be void. Gazzam v. Ins. Co., 155 N. C. 330, 71 S. E. 434.

Applied in Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 190 S. E. 744.

Cited in Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 207 N. C. 408, 413, 177 S. E. 9; Petty v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 157, 193 S. E. 228.

§ 58-30. Statements in application not warranties.—All statements or descriptions in any application for a policy of insurance, or in the policy itself, shall be deemed representations and not warranties, and a representation, unless material or fraudulent, will not prevent a recovery on the policy. (Rev., s. 4808; 1901, c. 705, s. 2; C. S. 6289.)

Purpose.—The purpose of the statute is to prevent insurance companies from escaping the payment of honest losses upon technicalities and strict construction of contracts. Cottingham v. Maryland Motor Car Ins. Co., 168 N. C. 259, 261, 84 S. E. 274.

Material Representations.—In an application for a policy of life insurance every fact stated will be deemed material, which would materially influence the judgment of the insurance company either in accepting the risk or in fixing the premium rate. Bryant v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 147 N. C. 181, 60 S. E. 983; Gardner v. North State Mut. Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 367, 79 S. E. 806.

"The company is entitled to have the policy canceled on bringing suit within the proper time, especially where, even if the misrepresentations are not intentional, the policy, when delivered, plainly discloses the untruthfulness of the representations." Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Leaksville Woolen Mills, 172 N. C. 534, 90 S. E. 574, 576, citing Hancock Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Houpt, (C. C.) 113 Fed. 572; New York Life Ins. Co. v. Fletcher, 117 U. S. 519, 6 Sup. Ct. 837, 29 L. Ed. 934.

It is not necessary, to defeat a recovery, that a material misrepresentation by the applicant must contribute in some way to the loss for which indemnity is claimed. Bryant v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 147 N. C. 181, 60 S. E. 963.

The false representation of the relationship between insured and beneficiary is, as a matter of law, immaterial. Howell v. American Nat. Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 212, 218, 126 S. E. 603.

Where the application declares that the statements the applicant makes below are true and there is no evidence that the company or its agents were aware of any facts to the contrary, all of the misrepresentations made as to the prior attendance of physicians, disease, surgical operations, and the like, are deemed material. Mutual Life Ins. Co. v. Leaksville Woolen Mills, 172 N. C. 534, 90 S. E. 574; Alexander v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 150 N. C. 536, 64 S. E. 432.

Answers made in response to questions in the application as to applications for other insurance, where the applicant declares that they are true and offers them as an inducement to the issuance of the policy, are deemed material as a matter of law. Fountain v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 55 F. (2d) 120, 123.

A statement in an application for reinstatement of an insurance policy that applicant, in the year previous, had not had any injury, sickness, or ailment of any kind, and had not required the services of a physician, being a statement of fact within the knowledge of applicant, is a material representation as a matter of law. Petty v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 157, 193 S. E. 228.

A representation by insured that he had never consulted a physician or been in a hospital is material, and testimony of physicians that insured was not in sound health at the date of the delivery of the policy is competent on the issue of fraud. Potts v. Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 257, 174 S. E. 123.

Misrepresentations admitted, of which the court will take judicial notice, must be deemed material as a matter of law; and their making is sufficient ground for canceling of the policy, whatever may be proved in extenuation of the conduct of insured in making them. Jeffress v. New York Life Ins. Co., 74 F. (2d) 874, 876.

A treatment for a mere temporary indisposition may well be regarded as immaterial where an applicant fully discloses medical treatment for a serious ailment administered at or about the same time. Id.

Under this section, a failure to disclose the fact that insured had had some time previous to her application one-half degree of fever due to a mild form of malaria and from which she had entirely recovered, taken in connection with the further fact that she was at the time of the application in sound health and otherwise insurable, was held not material. Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 430, 190 S. E. 744.

Same—Question for Jury.—Where the insured had hernia at the time of his application, and, without specific question as to this, stated he was in sound physical and mental condition, "no exceptions," and there is evidence tending to show that the hernia did not affect the soundness of his health, it was for the jury to determine whether his representation was false and material. Hines v. New England Casualty Co., 172 N. C. 225, 90 S. E. 131.

Whether a misrepresentation is made with fraudulent intent by insured, or whether it is material, so that insurer would not have issued the policy had it known the truth, are ordinarily questions for the jury. Harrison v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 207 N. C. 487, 177 S. E. 423.

Sufficiency of Evidence.—Where the evidence shows that insured was suffering with an incurable disease, but the uncontradicted evidence shows he was ignorant of this fact, and that he had been assured by a physician whom he had consulted, that there was nothing the matter with him at the date of application, there is no evidence from which the jury could find that the statement made by the applicant in the application was fraudulent and this section is applicable. Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hardin, 208 N. C. 22, 179 S. E. 2.

Fraud is not essential under this section and as a general rule recovery will not be allowed if the statements made and accepted as inducements to the contract of insurance are false and material. Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 429, 190 S. E. 744.

False Material Representations, Although Not Fraudulent, Void Policy.—For the reason that the representations were material to the issuance of the certificate and notwithstanding the evidence for the plaintiff which tended to show that the representations, although false, were not fraudulent, under the provisions of this section, and of the certificate, the certificate of insurance was null and void and of no effect. Inman v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 179, 181, 189 S. E. 496.

False Representations Known to Insurer.—If the insurance company knew that the representations made by the insured were false, it cannot take advantage of the misrepresentations and set this policy aside on the grounds that the representations were material or fraudulent. Gardner v. North State Mut. Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 367, 368, 79 S. E. 806.

Suppression of Material Facts.—Where insured, in her application failed to disclose that she had been treated within five years prior to the application by a physician, and the policy provided that insurer might cancel same for misleading statements in the application, the failure of plaintiff to disclose the treatment by the physician on the application was not a suppression of material fact in light of the evidence, and was not adequate cause for cancellation of the policy. Anthony v. Teachers' Protective Union, 206 N. C. 7, 173 S. E. 6.

Fraudulent Representations. — A material representation shall avoid the policy if it is also false and calculated to influence the company, if without notice of its falsity, in making the contract at all, or in estimating the degree and character of the risk, or in fixing the premiums. Gardner v. North State Mut. Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 367, 375, 79 S. E. 806.

After a contract of life insurance has become effective, its terms may not be contradicted so as to affect its continued validity; but it may be shown that the delivery of the policy was made upon false representations in the application therefor, as to the health of the insured and as to his not having been subjected to contagious diseases for a prior period of one year, and the like, for such matters bear upon the question as to whether the policy had ever taken effect as a contract of insurance. Gardner v. North State Mut. Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 367, 79 S. E. 806.

Same—Effect on Binding Slips.—Where an insurance company has given a "binding slip" to an applicant for insurance, it only protects the applicant against the contingency of his sickness intervening its date and the delivery of the policy, if the application for insurance is accepted, and as such slip does not insure of itself, it does not affect the right of the insurer to avail itself of all defenses it may have, under the policy, after its delivery, to avoid payment thereof by reason of material misrepresentations made in the application for it. Gardner v. North State Mut. Life Ins. Co., 163 N. C. 367, 79 S. E. 806.

Where insured stated she was not pregnant and died of childbirth in less than nine months, it is held that this statement does not preclude recovery, in view of the evidence that insurer issued its policies on the life of the insured when it knew she was 33 years of age, had been married about a year, and that ordinarily pregnancy might be expected, and it required an additional premium on that account. Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 430, 190 S. E. 744.

Burden Is on Insurer to Prove Misrepresentation. — By offering in evidence the policy of insurance and the insurer's admission of its execution and delivery and of the death of the insured, the beneficiaries made out a prima facie case, and the burden was then upon the insurer to rebut it by proof of the alleged misrepresentation. And though the beneficiaries, in anticipation of the defense, elected to offer testimony as to misrepresentations, this did not change this rule as to the burden of proof. Wells v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 211 N. C. 427, 431, 190 S. E. 744.

Fraternal Benefit Associations.—Fraternal benefit associations fall within the provision of this section as to representations. Gray v. Woodmen of the World, 179 N. C. 210, 102 S. E. 195.

§ 58-31. Stipulations as to jurisdiction and limitation of actions.—No company or order, domestic or foreign, authorized to do business in this state under this chapter, may make any condition or stipulation in its insurance contracts concerning the court or jurisdiction wherein any suit or action thereon may be brought, nor may it limit the time within which such suit or action may be commenced to less than one year after the cause of action accrues or to less than six months from any time at which a plaintiff takes a nonsuit to an action begun within the legal time. All conditions and stipulations forbidden by this section are void. (Rev., s. 4809; 1899, c. 54, ss. 23, 106; 1901, c. 391, s. 8; C. S. 6290.)

Editor's Note.—The provision that limits the time to not less than one year after the cause of action accrues is construed by the court to mean not twelve months after loss but twelve months after all restrictions preventing suit are removed. If sixty days are allowed for proof of loss the insured would have twelve months after the expiration of the sixty days in which to bring suit. Any restriction in the policy preventing the insured from bringing action prevents the twelve month limit in which action must be brought from running against him.

Limitations Not in Conflict.—A stipulation in a policy as to time of bringing action is a contractual limitation, and has been held by the Supreme Court to be valid when it does not conflict with any provision of the statute. Parker v. Insurance Co., 143 N. C. 339, 344, 55 S. E. 717.

Construed with Standard Fire Insurance Policy.—The provisions of a standard fire insurance policy, as set out in section 58-177, must be construed with the provision of this section, and when the action is brought within the time herein prescribed it will not be barred. Modlin v. Atlantic Fire Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 35, 45, 65 S. E. 605. Under this policy the insured has sixty days to file his proof of loss and then, according to the provisions of this section and section 58-177, he has twelve months within which to commence his suit. Muse v. London Assur. Corp., 108 N. C. 240, 13 S. E. 94; Dibbrell v. Georgia Home Ins. Co., 110 N. C. 193, 14 S. E. 783; Lowe v. United States Mut. Acci. Ass'n, 115 N. C. 18, 20 S. E. 169; Gerringer v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 133 N. C. 407, 414, 45 S. E. 773.

Not Construed as a Statute of Limitations.—The standard policy is not regulated by the statute of limitations, and the disabilities which stop the running of the statute, have no effect upon it. Hence, the imprisonment of the insured will not give him right to recover when he has delayed his action for more than a year. This rule applies likewise to minors. Holly v. London Assur. Co., 170 N. C. 4, 86 S. E. 694.

As the stipulation of the standard policy is a contract, and not a statute of limitations, it may be waived, or the party for whose benefit it was provided may be estopped by his conduct from insisting upon its enforcement. Dibbrell v. Georgia Home Ins. Co., 110 N. C. 193, 14 S. E. 783.

Construed with Accident Policies. — The stipulations in accident insurance policies that proceedings shall not be begun until ninety days after proof of loss do not contravene this section, when the policy also states that the insured may bring his action within 12 months after the accident, this being construed to mean that he will have twelve months after the cause of action accrues. Heilig v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 152 N. C. 358, 67 S. E. 927.

Fraternal Orders.—Provisions of the constitution and by-laws of a fraternal order of insurance, that suits shall not be brought or maintained for any cause or claim arising out of the benefit certificate of a member unless within one year from the time the right of action accrues, are valid. Faulk v. Fraternal Mystic Circle, 171 N. C. 301, 88 S. E. 431.

Surety Bond.—Contracts of indemnity against loss or surety bonds for the faithful performance of a building contract are regarded in the nature of contracts of insurance and any conflicting restriction in such contract as to the time of bringing an action to recover damages for the breach of the contract is void. Guilford Lumber Mfg. Co. v. Johnson, 177 N. C. 44, 97 S. E. 732.

Limitation Must Be Plead.—A limitation in a surety bond as to the time in which an action may be maintained against the surety thereon, after notice of default, is contractual, and affects the remedy, and it is necessary that the surety plead it in the action for it to be available as a defense. Ideal Brick Co. v. Gentry, 191 N. C. 636, 132 S. E. 800.

Nonsuit.—In case a nonsuit is entered and it does not appear on record when the nonsuit was entered it will be presumed that it was within six months prior to the date on which action was commenced. Parker v. Insurance Co., 143 N. C. 339, 55 S. E. 717.

§ 58-32. Insurance as security for a loan by the company. — Where an insurance company, as a condition for a loan by such company, of money upon mortgage or other security, requires that the borrower insure either his life or that of another, or his property, or the title to his property, with the company, and assign or cause to be assigned to it a policy of insurance as security for the loan, and agree to pay premiums thereon during the continuance of the loan, whether the premium is paid annually, semiannually, quarterly, or monthly, such premiums shall not be considered as interest on such loans, nor will any loan be rendered usurious by reason of any such requirements, where the rate of interest charged for the loan does not exceed the legal rate and where the premiums charged for the insurance do not exceed the premiums charged to other persons for similar policies who do not obtain loans. (1915, c. 8; 1917, c. 61; C. S. 6291.)

Does Not Exempt from Usury Laws.—This section was held not to exempt insurance companies from the provisions of § 24-1 and § 24-2, relating to usury, the purport and effect of the section being merely to allow insurance companies to require as a condition precedent to the loan of money that the borrower take out a policy of insurance and assign same as security for the loan. Cowan v. Security Life, etc., Co., 211 N. C. 18, 188 S. E. 812.

If this section did provide that insurance companies should be exempt from § 24-1 and § 24-2, it would be void as in violation of Art. I, sec. 7, of the Constitution. Id.

A ten-year endowment policy comes within the provisions of this section, when such endowment policy provides that the face amount thereof shall be paid to the beneficiary if insured dies during the ten-year period while the policy is in force. Id.

§ 58-33. Companies must do business in own name.—Every insurance company, foreign or domestic, must conduct its business in the state in, and the policies and contracts of insurance issued by it shall be headed or entitled only by, its proper or corporate name. (Rev., s. 4811; 1899, c. 54, s. 18; C. S. 6292.)

§ 58-34. Publication of assets and liabilities; penalty for failure.—When any company publishes its assets it must in the same connection and with equal conspicuousness publish its liabilities computed on the basis allowed for its annual statements; and any publications purporting to show its capital must exhibit only the amount of such capital as has been actually paid in cash. Any company or agent thereof violating the provision of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., ss. 3492, 4812; 1899, c. 54, ss. 18, 96; C. S. 6293.)

§ 58-35. Liabilities and reserve fund determined. —To determine the liability of an insurance company, other than life and real estate title insurance, upon its contracts, and thence the amount such company must hold as a reserve for reinsurance, the commissioner of insurance shall take the actual unearned portion of the premiums written in its policies. In case of the insolvency of any company, the reserve on outstanding policies may, with the consent of the commissioner, be used for the reinsurance of its policies to the extent of their pro rata part thereof. (Rev., s. 4704; 1899, c. 54, s. 67; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; 1907, c. 1000, s. 4; C. S. 6294.)

Section Constitutional.—This section in no way impinges on the Constitution. Hardware Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Stinson, 210 N. C. 69, 78, 185 S. E. 449.

Unearned premiums are a liability of the company. Hardware Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Stinson, 210 N. C. 69, 78, 185 S. E. 449.

§ 58-36. Corporation or association maintaining office in state required to qualify and secure license.—Any corporation or voluntary association, other than an association of companies, the members of which are licensed in this state, issuing contracts of insurance and maintaining a principal, branch, or other office within this state, whether soliciting business in this state or in foreign states, shall qualify under the insurance laws of this state applicable to the type of insurance written by such corporation or association and secure license from the commissioner of insurance as provided under this chapter on insurance, as amended, and the officers and agents of any such corporation or association maintaining offices within this state and failing to qualify and secure license as herein provided shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined or imprisoned, or both, at the discretion of the court. (1937, c. 39.)

§ 58-37. Revocation of license of foreign company; publication of notice.—If the commissioner of insurance is of the opinion, upon examination or other evidence, that a foreign insurance company is in an unsound condition, or, if a life insurance company, that its actual funds, exclusive of its capital, are less than its liabilities; or that it has failed to comply with the law, or if it, its officers or agents, refuse to submit to examination or to perform any legal obligation in relation thereto, he shall revoke or suspend all certificates of authority granted to it or its agents, and shall cause notification thereof to be published in one or more newspapers published in this state; and no new business may thereafter be done by it or its agents in this state while such default or disability continues, or until its authority to do business is restored by the commissioner. (Rev., s. 4701; 1899, c. 54, s. 14; 1901, c. 176, s. 1; C. S. 6295.)

§ 58-38. Revocation of license of domestic company; injunction and receiver.—If, upon examination, the commissioner of insurance is of the opinion that any domestic insurance company is insolvent, or has exceeded its powers, or failed to comply with any provision of law, or that its condition is such as to render its further proceeding hazardous to the public or to its policyholders, he shall revoke its license, and, if he deems it necessary, shall apply to a judge of the superior court to issue an injunction restraining it in whole or in part from further proceeding with its business. The judge may issue the injunction forthwith, or upon notice and hearing thereon, and after a full hearing of the matter may dissolve or modify the injunction or make it permanent, and may make all orders and judgments needful in the matter, and may appoint agents or a receiver to take possession of the property and effects of the company and to settle its affairs, subject to such rules and orders as the court from time to time prescribes. (Rev., s. 4702; 1899, c. 54, s. 14; C. S. 6296.)

§ 58-39. Revocation of license for violation of law or impaired assets.—1. The authority of a domestic or foreign insurance company may be revoked if it violates or neglects to comply with any provision of law obligatory upon it, and whenever in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance its condition is unsound, or its assets above its liabilities, exclusive of capital and inclusive of reserve or unearned premiums estimated as provided by this chapter, are less than the amount of its original capital or required unimpaired funds.

2. If the commissioner of insurance is satisfied at any time that any statements made by any company licensed under this chapter are untrue, or if a general agent fails or refuses to obey the provisions of this chapter, the commissioner of insurance may revoke and cancel the license of such company or agent.

An insurance company violating any provision of this chapter, or refusing to submit to the examination provided for in § 58-18, when requested, forfeits its right to do business in this state for twelve months thereafter, and the commissioner of insurance shall immediately revoke the license issued to such insurance company to do business in this state. (Rev., ss. 4703, 4705; 1899, c. 54, ss. 66, 75, 112; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; C. S. 6297.)

§ 58-40. Agents and adjusters must procure license.—Every agent or adjuster of any insurance company authorized to do business in this state shall be required to obtain annually from the commissioner of insurance a license under the seal of his office, showing that the company for which he is agent or proposes to adjust is licensed to do business in this state, and that he is an agent of such company and duly authorized to do business for it. And every such agent or adjuster, on demand, shall exhibit his license to any officer or to any person from whom he shall solicit insurance. (Rev., s. 4706; 1899, c. 54, s. 81; 1901, c. 391, s. 7; 1903, c. 438, s. 8, c. 774; 1915, c. 109, s. 7, c. 166, s. 1; C. S. 6298.)

Cross Reference.—As to punishment for violating this section, see § 58-47.

Validity of Contract When Agent Not Licensed.—Where a foreign insurance company, authorized to do business here under our laws, issues its policy on property situated within the State, but through an agency in another State which is unauthorized to write it here, because of not having obtained the license required by law the policy is valid as to the right of action of the insured thereon. Hay v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 82, 83 S. E. 241.

Agent of Fraternal Insurance Order.—This section is applicable to all agents including an organizer of a fraternal insurance order operating in North Carolina. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 643, 73 S. E. 122.

Cited in Charleston, etc., Ry. Co. v. Lassiter & Co., 207 N. C. 408, 413, 177 S. E. 9.

§ 58-41. Application for license.—Before a license is issued to an insurance agent or adjuster in this state, the agent or adjuster and the company for which he desires to act shall apply for the license on forms to be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance; and before he issues a license to such agent or adjuster, the commissioner of insurance shall satisfy himself that the person applying for license as an agent or adjuster is a person of good moral character, that he intends to hold himself out in good faith as an insurance agent or adjuster, and has sufficient knowledge of the business proposed to be done, that he has not wilfully violated any of the insurance laws of this state, and that he is a proper person for such position, and that such license, if issued, shall serve the public's interests. (1913, c. 79, s. 1; 1915, c. 109, ss. 6, 7, c. 166, s. 7; 1931, c. 185; C. S. 6299.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added at the end of this section the following: "and that such license, if issued, shall serve the public's interests."

Agent Is within Unemployment Compensation Act, see Unemployment Compensation Comm. v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 215 N. C. 479, 2 S. E. (2d) 584.

§ 58-42. Revocation of agent's or adjuster's license.—When the commissioner of insurance is satisfied that any insurance agent or adjuster licensed by this state has wilfully violated any of the insurance laws of this state, or has wilfully overinsured property of any of the citizens of the state, or has wilfully misrepresented any policy of insurance, or has dealt unjustly with or wilfully deceived any citizen of this state in regard to any insurance policies, or has exercised coercion in obtaining an application for or in selling insurance, or has failed or refused to pay over to the company which he represents, or has represented, any money or property in the hands of such agent or adjuster belonging to the company, when demanded, or has become in any way disqualified according to any of the provisions necessary for obtaining or holding such license as set out in § 58-41, or has in any other way become unfit for such position, the commissioner may revoke, and it shall be his duty to revoke, the license of such agent or adjuster for all the companies which he represents in this state for such length of time as he may decide, not exceeding one year. The commissioner of insurance shall give to the agent or adjuster ten days' notice of the revocation of such license, and shall give the reasons therefor; and the agent or adjuster shall have the right to have such revocation reviewed by any judge of the superior court of Wake county upon appeal. For the purpose of investigation under this section, the commissioner of insurance shall have all the power conferred upon him by § 58-171. (1913, c. 79, ss. 2, 3; 1915, c. 166, s. 7; 1929, c. 301, s. 1; 1943, c. 434; C. S. 6300.)

Cross Reference.—As to insurance agents and brokers wrongfully converting money being guilty of larceny, see § 14-96.

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1929 added disqualification because of nonresidence as set out in section 58-43, to the grounds for revocation.

The 1943 amendment inserted after the word "policies" in line nine the words "or has exercised coercion in obtaining an application for or in selling insurance."

§ 58-43. Nonresident agents forbidden; exception.—No nonresident of the state shall be licensed to do business in the state, except as a special agent or organizer, and then only when he reports his business for record as North Carolina business to some general or district agent of his company in the state, or having territory within the state. (Rev., s. 4707; 1899, c. 54, s. 108; 1903, c. 438, s. 11; C. S. 6301.)

§ 58-44. Resident agents required; discrimination.—All business done in this state by steam-boiler, liability, accident, health, live-stock, marine, leakage, credit, plate-glass, and fidelity insurance companies shall be by their regularly authorized agents residing in the state, or transacted through applications of such agents; and all policies so issued must be countersigned by such agents, who may pay not exceeding fifty per centum of the regular commissions allowed on the premiums collected on such business to a licensed nonresident broker. It shall be unlawful for any salaried officer, manager, or other representative of any company, unless a bona fide resident agent, to do or perform for or on behalf of his company any act which by the insurance laws of this State is required to be performed by a licensed resident agent. It shall be unlawful for the commissioner of insurance to license as a resident agent any person unless he is fully satisfied that such a person is a bona fide resident of this State, and is not being licensed for the purpose of evading the resident agent's law. No such companies nor their agents may make any discrimination in favor of individuals or insurants, and the provisions hereafter set forth in this chapter with respect to discrimination by life insurance companies shall apply to the companies above named and their agents. (Rev., s. 4810; 1899, c. 54, ss. 107, 108; 1903, c. 438, s. 11; 1911, c. 196, s. 5; 1913, c. 140, s. 3; 1921, c. 136, s. 3; 1925, c. 70, s. 1; C. S. 6302.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to amendment of 1921, Public Laws, c. 136, section 3, no provision was made as to what brokerage fee should be paid by a resident agent. By amendment of 1921 five per cent was allowed for such fee.

The Public Laws of 1925 in amending this statute states that the section as amended by section 3 shall be changed without further designation of the amending act. Obviously this refers to section 3 of the Act of 1921, supra. This later amendment allowed fifty per cent commission as brokerage fee, and required that the local agent be a resident of the state, making it unlawful for the insurance commissioner to license as a resident agent anyone unless he is fully satisfied that such person is a bona fide resident of the state.

§ 58-45. Agents personally liable, when.—An insurance agent is personally liable on all contracts of insurance unlawfully made by or through him, directly or indirectly, for any company not authorized to do business in the state. A person or citizen of the state who fills up or signs any open policy, certificate, blank or coupon of, or furnished by, an unlicensed company, agent, or broker, the effect of which is to bind any insurance in an unlicensed company on property in this state, is the agent of such company, and personally liable for all licenses and taxes due on account of such transaction. (Rev., s. 4813; 1899, c. 54, s. 70; 1903, c. 438, s. 7; C. S. 6303.)

§ 58-46. Payment of premium to agent valid; obtaining by fraud a crime.—An insurance agent or broker who acts for a person other than himself negotiating a contract of insurance is, for the purpose of receiving the premium therefor, the company's agent, whatever conditions or stipulations may be contained in the policy or contract. Such agent or broker knowingly procuring by fraudulent representations payment, or the obligation for the payment, of a premium of insurance, shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned for not more than one year. (Rev., ss. 3486, 4814; 1899, c. 54, s. 69; C. S. 6304.)

Where Broker Fails to Deliver Funds.—Where the insurer has credited the amount of the unearned premium to its broker's account, who in turn has credited the amount to account of the broker who has procured the employer's application for the insurance, the insurer is liable to the employer for the amount of the unearned premium not actually paid to the employer by the broker. Hughes v. Lewis, 203 N. C. 775, 166 S. E. 909.

Where Policy Requires Receipt.—Where a policy provided that premiums were payable to a duly authorized agent only in exchange for insurer's official receipt and where plaintiff's evidence showed payment of a note given for a premium to insurer's agent without obtaining the note or insurer's official receipt, and there was no evidence that insurer received any part of the payment, in insured's action to recover the premium paid after insurer had declared the policy forfeited, it was held that insurer's motion to nonsuit was properly allowed, payment to the agent under the circumstances not constituting payment to insurer. Mills v. New York Life Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 296, 183 S. E. 289.

§ 58-47. Punishment for violating this chapter or for agent acting without license.—If any person shall assume to act as insurance agent or broker without license therefor as required by law, or shall act in any manner in the negotiation or transaction of unlawful insurance with a foreign insurance company not admitted to do business in this state, or as principal or agent shall violate any provisions of law contained in this chapter, the punishment for which is not provided for elsewhere, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars for each offense. (Rev., s. 3484; 1899, c. 54, s. 94; 1907, c. 1000, s. 8; C. S. 6305.)

Purpose of Section.—The entire, certainly the chief, purpose of this legislation is to protect people from harmful imposition in contracts and dealings of this character, and the evil which the statute is designed to prevent is as threatening in the case of a bogus as a real company, perhaps more so. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 646, 73 S. E. 122.

Applicability to Fraternal Insurance Agents.—The agent of a fraternal insurance order is punishable under this section. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 643, 73 S. E. 122.

Same—Acts Constituting Violation.—The conduct of a person in publishing advertisements circulating his cards, taking money, issuing receipts, assuming to represent a fraternal insurance order, comes within the permissible and proper meaning of the words used in the statute and clearly within the mischief contemplated. State v. Leeper, 146 N. C. 655, 61 S. E. 585; State v. Harrison, 145 N. C. 408, 417, 59 S. E. 867; State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 646, 73 S. E. 122.

Same—Indictment.—A bill of indictment for the offences provided for by this section will not be held fatally defective because it contains no direct averment that a fraternal order for which the business has been solicited is a company subject to the insurance regulations, when otherwise sufficient. State v. Arlington, 157 N. C. 640, 641, 73 S. E. 122.

§ 58-48. Agent failing to exhibit license.—If any agent of any insurance company shall, on demand of any person from whom he shall solicit insurance, fail to exhibit a certificate from the commissioner of insurance bearing the seal of his office, and dated within one year from such demand, he shall be fined five dollars or imprisoned ten days for each offense. (Rev., s 3485; 1899, c. 54, s. 81; C. S. 6306.)

§ 58-49. Agents making false statements. — If any solicitor, agent, examining physician, or other person shall knowingly or willfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any publication for insurance, or shall make any such statement for the purpose of obtaining fee, commission, money, or benefit in any corporation transacting business in this state, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisonment in the county jail for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3487; 1899, c. 54, s. 60; C. S. 6307.)

§ 58-50. Agents signing certain blank policies.— If any agent, commissioned or otherwise, of any fire, marine, health, live-stock, leakage, credit, steam-boiler, liability, accident, plate-glass, or fidelity insurance company shall sign any blank contract or policy of insurance, upon conviction thereof he shall be fined for each offense not less than one hundred dollars nor more than two hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3488; 1899, c. 54, ss. 108, 109; 1911, c. 196, s. 6; C. S. 6308.)

§ 58-51. Adjuster acting for unauthorized company.—If any person shall act as adjuster on a contract made otherwise than as authorized by the laws of this state, or by any insurance company or other person not regularly licensed to do business in the state, or shall adjust or aid in the adjustment, either directly or indirectly, of a loss by fire on property located in this state, incurred on a contract not authorized by the laws of the state, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction, be fined not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or imprisoned not less than six months nor more than two years, or both, in the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3482; 1899, c. 54, s. 114; C. S. 6309.)

§ 58-52. Agent violating insurance law.—If any person, either as principal or agent, or pretending to be such, shall solicit, examine, or inspect any risk, or shall examine into, adjust, or aid in adjusting any loss, or shall receive, collect, or transmit any premium of insurance, or shall do any other act in the soliciting, making, or executing any contract of insurance of any kind otherwise than the law permits, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and on conviction shall pay a fine of not less than two hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars, or be imprisoned not less than one nor more than two years, or both, at the discretion of the court. (Rev., s. 3490; 1899, c. 54, s. 115; C. S. 6310.)

§ 58-53. Informer to receive half of penalty. —The person, if other than the commissioner of insurance or his deputy, upon whose complaint a conviction is had for violation of the law prohibiting insurance in or by foreign companies not authorized to do business in the state, or for soliciting, examining, inspecting any risk, or receiving, collecting, or transmitting any premium, or adjusting or aiding in the adjustment of a loss, under a contract made otherwise than as authorized by the laws of this state, is entitled to one-half of the penalty recovered therefor. (Rev., s. 4831; 1899, c. 54, s. 93; C. S. 6311.)

§ 58-54. Forms to be approved by commissioner of insurance.—It is unlawful for any insurance company, association, order or society doing business in this state to issue, sell, or dispose of any policy, contract, or certificate, or use applications in connection therewith, until the forms of the same have been submitted to and approved by the commissioner of insurance of North Carolina, and copies filed in the insurance department. (1907, c. 879; 1913, c. 139; C. S. 6312.)

Validity of Unapproved Policy.—The statute does not purport to deal with the validity of the contract of insurance, but with the insurance company. It does not say a policy shall be void unless approved by the Insurance Commissioner, but that it shall be unlawful for the company to issue such policy, and the reason for the language used is obvious. Blount v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 163 N. C. 167, 170, 79 S. E. 299.

Art. 4. Deposit of Securities.

§ 58-55. Deposits held in trust by commissioner or treasurer. — 1. Deposits by domestic company.—The commissioner of insurance or the treasurer, in their official capacity, shall take and hold in trust deposits made by any domestic insurance company for the purpose of complying with the laws of any other state to enable the company to do business in that state. The company making the deposits is entitled to the income thereof, and may, from time to time, with the consent of the commissioner of insurance or treasurer, and when not forbidden by the law under which the deposit was made, change in whole or in part the securities which compose the deposit for other solvent securities of equal par value. Upon request of any domestic insurance company such officer may return to the company the whole or any portion of the securities of the company held by him on deposit, when he is satisfied that they are subject to no liability and are not required to be longer held by any provision of law or purpose of the original deposit.

2. Deposits by foreign company.—The commissioner or treasurer may return to the trustees or other representatives authorized for that purpose any deposit made by a foreign insurance company, when it appears that the company has ceased to do business in the state and is under no obligation to policyholders or other persons in the state for whose benefit the deposit was made.

3. Action to enforce or terminate the trust.—An insurance company which has made a deposit in this state pursuant to this chapter, or its trustees or resident managers in the United States, or the commissioner of insurance, or any creditor of the company, may at any time bring an action in the superior court of Wake county against the state and other parties properly joined therein, to enforce, administer, or terminate the trust created by the deposit. The process in this action shall be served on the officer of the state having the deposit, who shall appear and answer in behalf of the state and perform such orders and judgments as the court may make in such action. (Rev., s. 4709; 1899, c. 54, s. 17; 1901, c. 391, s. 2; 1903, c. 438, s. 1; 1903, c. 536, s. 4; C. S. 6313.)

Cross Reference.—As to Workmen's Compensation Security Fund, see §§ 97-105 to 97-122.

§ 58-56. Deposits subject to approval and control of commissioner.—The deposits of securities required to be made by any insurance company of this state shall be approved by the commissioner of insurance of the state, and he may examine them at all times, and may order all or any part thereof changed for better security, and no change or transfer of the same may be made without his assent. (Rev., s. 4710; 1903, c. 536, s. 5; C. S. 6314.)

§ 58-57. Deposits by foreign companies required and regulated.—A foreign company, if incorporated or associated under the laws of any government or state other than the United States or one of the United States, shall not be admitted to do business in this state until, in addition to complying with the conditions by law prescribed for the licensing and admission of such companies to do business in this state, it has made a deposit with the treasurer or commissioner of insurance of this state, or with the financial officer of some other state of the United States, of a sum not less than the capital required of like companies under this chapter. This deposit must be in exclusive trust for the benefit and security of all the company's policyholders and creditors in the United States, and may be made in the securities, but subject to the limitations, specified in this chapter with regard to the investment of the capital of domestic companies formed and organized under the provisions of this chapter. The deposit shall be deemed for all purposes of the insurance law the capital of the company making it. (Rev., s. 4711; 1899, c. 54, s. 64; 1903, c. 438, s. 6; C. S. 6315.)

§ 58-58. Deposits by life companies not chartered in United States. — Every life insurance company organized under the laws of any other country than the United States must have and keep on deposit with some state insurance department or in the hands of trustees, in exclusive trust for the security of its contracts with policyholders in the United States, funds of an amount equal to the net value of all its policies in the United States and not less than two hundred thousand dollars. (Rev., s. 4712; 1899, c. 54, s. 56; C. S. 6316.)

§ 58-59. Registration of bonds deposited in name of treasurer.—The commissioner of insurance is hereby empowered, upon the written consent of any insurance company depositing with the commissioner or the state treasurer under any law of this State, any state, county, city, or town bonds or notes which are payable to bearer, to cause such bonds or notes to be registered as to the principal thereof in lawful books of registry kept by or in behalf of the issuing state, county, city or town, such registration to be in the name of the treasurer of North Carolina in trust for the company depositing the notes or bonds and the State of North Carolina, as their respective interest may appear, and is further empowered to require of any and all such companies the filing of written consent to such registration as a condition precedent to the right of making any such deposit or right to continue any such deposit heretofore made. (1925, c. 145, s. 2.)

§ 58-60. Notation of registration; release. — Bonds or notes so registered shall bear notation of such registration on the reverse thereof, signed by the registering officer or agent, and may be released from such registration and may be transferred on such books of registry by the signature of the State Treasurer. (1925, c. 145, s. 3.)

§ 58-61. Expenses of registration. — The necessary expenses of procuring such registration and any transfer thereof shall be paid by the company making the deposits. (1925, c. 145, s. 4.)

Art. 5. License Fees and Taxes.

§ 58-62. Commissioner to report and pay monthly. — On or before the tenth day of each month the commissioner of insurance shall furnish to the auditor a statement in detail of the taxes and license fees received by him during the previous month, and shall pay to the treasurer the amount in full of such taxes and fees. The auditor may examine the accounts of the commissioner of insurance and check them up with said statement. (Rev., s. 4714; 1899, c. 54, s. 82; 1901, c. 391, s. 7; 1905, c. 430, s. 4; C. S. 6317.)

§ 58-63. Schedule of fees and charges.—The commissioner of insurance shall collect and pay into the state treasury fees and charges as follows:

1. For filing and examining statement preliminary to admission, twenty dollars; for filing and auditing annual statement, ten dollars; for filing any other papers required by law, one dollar; for each certificate of examination, condition, or qualification of company or association, two dollars; for each seal when required, one dollar; for filing charter and other papers of a fraternal order, preliminary to admission, twenty-five dollars.

2. To be paid to the publisher, for the publication of each financial statement, nine dollars.

3. The commissioner shall receive for copy of any record or paper in his office ten cents per copy sheet and one dollar for certifying same, or any fact or data from the records of his office; for making and mailing abstracts to the clerks of the superior courts in the counties of the state, four dollars; for examination of any foreign company, twenty-five dollars per diem and all expenses, and for examining any domestic company, actual expenses incurred; for the examination and approval of charters of companies, five dollars; also, to defray the expense of computing the value of the policies of domestic life insurance companies, one cent for every thousand dollars of the whole amount insured by its policies so valued. The traveling and other expenses of accountants, and other examiners when engaged in the work of examination shall be paid by the companies, associations, or orders under investigation. For the investigation of tax returns and the collection of any delinquent taxes disclosed by such investigation, the commissioner may, in lieu of the above per diem charge, assess against any such delinquent company the expense of the investigation and collection of such delinquent tax, a reasonable percentage of such delinquent tax, not to exceed ten per centum (10%) of such delinquency, and in addition thereto.

4. He shall collect all other fees and charges due and payable into the state treasury by any company, association, order, or individual under his department. (Rev., s. 4715; 1899, c. 54, ss. 50, 68, 80, 81, 82, 87, 90, 92; 1901, c. 391, s. 7; c. 706, s. 2; 1903, c. 438, ss. 7, 8; 1903, c. 536, s. 4; 1903, cc. 680, 774; 1905, c. 588, s. 68; 1913, c. 140, s. 1; 1919, c. 186, s. 6; 1921, c. 218; 1935, c. 334; 1939, c. 158, s. 208; C. S. 6318.)

Cross Reference.—As to franchise and license taxes on insurance companies, see § 105-121.

§ 58-64. License fees for more than one class of insurance.—No insurance company admitted to do business in the state shall be authorized to transact more than one class or kind of insurance therein, unless it pays the license fees for each class. But upon the payment of the largest license fees provided for any one business done a life insurance company may do a health business, and a fire insurance company may insure against loss or damage to property by lightning, wind, hail, or tornado, use and occupancy, and for non-occupancy, and may insure vessels, freights, goods, money, effects, and money lent on bottomry or respondentia against the perils of the sea and other perils usually insured against by marine insurance, including risks of inland navigation and transportation; and may also insure against loss or damage by water to any goods or premises arising from leakage of sprinklers and water pipes. No insurance company may be required to pay license fees amounting in the aggregate to more than three hundred and fifty dollars per annum. (Rev., s. 4717; 1899, c. 54, s. 65; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; 1903, c. 438, s. 6; C. S. 6320.)

§ 58-65. Licensing of underwriters reinsurance agencies.—An underwriters agency, composed of two or more companies, proposing to do a reinsurance business only in the state may be licensed without a separate license for each company, upon filing with the commissioner of insurance a statement of each company, the amount proposed to be assumed by them, and such other information as he may call for, showing that the companies are solvent and propose to conduct the business in a way that would be safe and fair to the citizens of the state. (1919, c. 186, s. 6; C. S. 6318.)

§ 58-66. Licenses run from April first; pro rata payment.—The license required of insurance companies shall continue for the next ensuing twelve months after April first of each year, unless revoked as provided in this chapter; but the commissioner of insurance may, when the annual license tax exceeds twenty-five dollars, receive from applicants after April first so much of the license fee required by law as may be due pro rata for the remainder of the year, beginning with the first day of the current month. (Rev., s. 4718; 1899, c. 54, s. 78; C. S. 6321.)

Cross Reference.—For franchise and license taxes on insurance companies, see § 105-121.

§ 58-67. Statements of gross receipts filed and tax paid.—Every general agent shall, within the first thirty days of January and July of each year, make a full and correct statement, under oath of himself and of the president, secretary, or some officer at the home or head office of the company in this country, of the amount of the gross receipts derived from the insurance business under this chapter obtained from residents of this state, or on property located therein during the preceding six months, and shall, within the first fifteen days of February and August of each year, pay to the commissioner of insurance the tax imposed upon such gross receipts. (Rev., s. 4719; 1899, c. 54, s. 79; 1901, c. 391, s. 7; 1903, c. 438, s. 8; C. S. 6322.)

Cross Reference.—The gross receipts tax referred to is imposed by § 105-121.

§ 58-68. Policyholders to furnish information.—To enable the commissioner of insurance the better to enforce the payment of the taxes imposed by this chapter and by § 105-121 every corporation, firm, or individual doing business in the state shall, upon demand of the commissioner, furnish to him, upon blanks to be provided by him, a statement of the amount of all insurance held by them, giving the name of the company, number, and amount of policies and the premiums paid on each, and such other information as the commissioner calls for, or shall file an affidavit with the commissioner that all their insurance is placed in companies licensed to do business in this state. (Rev., s. 4720; 1899, c. 54, s. 79; 1901, c. 391, s. 7; 1903, c. 438, s. 8; C. S. 6323.)

SUBCHAPTER II. INSURANCE COMPANIES.

Art. 6. General Domestic Companies.

§ 58-69. Application of this chapter and general laws.—The general provisions of law relative to the powers, duties, and liabilities of corporations apply to all incorporated domestic insurance companies where pertinent and not in conflict with other provisions of law relative to such companies or with their charters. All insurance companies of this state shall be governed by this chapter, notwithstanding anything in their special charters to the contrary, provided notice of the acceptance of this chapter is filed with the commissioner of insurance. (Rev., s. 4721; 1899, c. 54, s. 19; C. S. 6324.)

§ 58-70. Extension of existing charters.—Domestic insurance companies incorporated by special acts, whose charters are subject to limitation of time, shall, after the limitation expires, and upon filing statement and paying the taxes and fees required for an amendment of the charter, continue to be bodies corporate, subject to all general laws applicable to such companies. (Rev., s. 4722; 1899, c. 54, s. 20; C. S. 6325.)

§ 58-71. Certificate required before issuing policies.—No domestic insurance company may issue policies until upon examination of the commissioner of insurance, his deputy or examiner, it is found to have complied with the laws of the state, and until it has obtained from the commissioner of insurance a certificate setting forth that fact and authorizing it to issue policies. The issuing of policies in violation of this section renders the company liable to the forfeiture prescribed by law, but such policies are binding upon the company. (Rev., s. 4723; 1899, c. 54, ss. 21, 99; 1903, c. 438, s. 10; C. S. 6326.)

§ 58-72. Purposes of organization. — Insurance companies, associations, or orders may be formed as provided in §§ 58-73 and 58-74 for any one of the following purposes:

1. Fire and Storm.—To insure against loss or damage to property by fire, lightning, wind, hail, or tornado, use and occupancy, and for nonoccupancy, upon the stock or mutual plan.

2. Marine.—To insure, upon the stock or mutual plan, vessels, freights, goods, money, effects, and money lent on bottomry or respondentia against the perils of the sea and other perils usually insured against by marine insurance, including risks of inland navigation and transportation.

3. Life.—To carry on the business commonly known as life insurance on the stock or mutual plan, contract for the payment of endowments or annuities, or make and enter into such other contracts conditioned upon the continuance or cessation of human life.

4. Sickness. — Against disablement resulting from sickness and every insurance appertaining thereto.

5. Accident. — Against injury, disablement, or death resulting from traveling or general accident and every insurance appertaining thereto.

6. Fidelity and Surety.—Guaranteeing the fidelity of persons holding places of public or private trust, and guaranteeing the performance of contracts other than insurance policies, and guaranteeing and executing all bonds, undertakings, and contracts of suretyship. And a company is authorized to execute such bonds, undertakings, and contracts of suretyship by itself, though a statute requires two or more sureties.

7. Plate-glass.—Upon glass against breakage.

8. Liability.—Insuring any one against loss or damage resulting from accident to or injury, fatal or nonfatal, suffered by an employee or other person, for which the person insured is liable.

9. Boiler and Machinery.—Upon steam boilers and upon pipes, engines, and machinery connected therewith or operated thereby, against explosion and accident and against loss or damage to life, person, or property resulting therefrom. And a company is authorized to make inspection of and to issue certificates of inspection upon such boilers, pipes, engines, and machinery.

10. Burglary.—Against loss by burglary or theft, or both.

11. Credit.—To carry on the business commonly known as credit insurance or guaranty, either by agreeing to purchase uncollectible debts or otherwise to insure against loss or damage from the failure of persons indebted to the insured to meet their liabilities.

12. Sprinkler.—To insure against loss or damage by water to any goods or premises arising from the breakage or leakage of sprinklers and water-pipes. And a company is authorized to make inspection of and to issue certificates of inspection upon such sprinklers and pipes.

13. Accidents to Vehicles.—To insure against loss or damage to property arising from accidents to elevators, automobiles, bicycles, and vehicles, except rolling stock of railways.

14. Live-stock. — To insure horses and other live-stock against death and damage.

15. Real estate title.—For the purpose of examining titles to real estate and furnishing information in relation thereto, and of insuring owners and others interested therein against loss by reason of encumbrances and defective title.

16. Miscellaneous.—Against any other casualty authorized by the charter of the company, not included under the heads of life, fire, marine, or title insurance, which is a proper subject of insurance. No corporation so formed may transact any other business than that specified in its charter and articles of association. (Rev., s. 4726; 1899, c. 54, ss. 24, 26; 1903, c. 438, s. 1; 1911, c. 111, s. 1; C. S. 6327.)

§ 58-73. Manner of creating such corporations. —The procedure for organizing such corporations is as follows: The proposed incorporators, not less than ten in number, a majority of whom must be residents of the state, shall subscribe articles of association setting forth their intention to form a corporation; its proposed name, which must not so closely resemble the name of an existing corporation doing business under the laws of this state as to be likely to mislead the public, and must be approved by the commissioner of insurance; the class of insurance it proposes to transact and on what business plan or principle; the place of its location within the state, and if on the stock plan, the amount of its capital stock. The words "insurance company," "insurance association," or "insurance society" must be a part of the title of any such corporation, and also the word "mutual," if it is organized upon the mutual principle. The certificate of incorporation must be subscribed and sworn to by the incorporators before an officer authorized to take acknowledgment of deeds, who shall forthwith certify the certificate of incorporation, as so made out and signed, to the commissioner of insurance of the state at his office in the city of Raleigh. The commissioner of insurance shall examine the certificate, and if he approves of it and finds that the requirements of the law have been complied with, shall certify such facts, by certificate on such articles, to the secretary of state. Upon the filing in the office of the secretary of state of the certificate of incorporation and attached certificates, and the payment of a charter fee in the amount required for private corporations, and the same fees to the secretary of state, the secretary of state shall cause the certificate and accompanying certificates to be recorded in his office, and shall issue a certificate in the following form:

Be it known that, whereas (here the names of the subscribers to the articles of association shall be inserted) have associated themselves with the intention of forming a corporation under the name of (here the name of the corporation shall be inserted), for the purpose (here the purpose declared in the articles of association shall be inserted), with a capital (or with a permanent fund) of (here the amount of capital or permanent fund fixed in the articles of association shall be inserted), and have complied with the provisions of the statute of this state in such case made and provided, as appears from the following certified articles of association: (Here copy articles of association and accompanying certificates). Now, therefore, I (here the name of the secretary shall be inserted), secretary of state, hereby certify that (here the names of the subscribers to the articles of association shall be inserted), their associates and successors, are legally organized and established as, and are hereby made, an existing corporation under the name of (here the name of the corporation shall be inserted), with such articles of association, and have all the powers, rights, and privileges and are subject to the duties, liabilities, and restrictions which by law appertain thereto.

Witness my official signature hereunto subscribed, and the seal of the state of North Carolina hereunto affixed, this the ..... day of ....., in the year ..... (in these blanks the day, month, and year of execution of this certificate shall be inserted; and in the case of purely mutual companies, so much as relates to capital stock shall be omitted).

The secretary of state shall sign the certificate and cause the seal of the state to be affixed to it, and such certificate of incorporation and certificate of the secretary of state has the effect of a special charter and is conclusive evidence of the organization and establishment of the corporation. The secretary of state shall also cause a record of his certificate to be made, and a certified copy of this record may be given in evidence with the same effect as the original certificate. (Rev., s. 4727; 1899, c. 54, s. 25; 1903, c. 438, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 6328.)

§ 58-74. First meeting; organization; license.—The first meeting for the purpose of organization under such charter shall be called by a notice signed by one or more of the subscribers to the certificate of incorporation, stating the time, place, and purpose of the meeting; and at least seven days before the appointed time a copy of this notice shall be given to each subscriber, left at his usual place of business or residence, or duly mailed to his postoffice address, unless the signers waive notice in writing. Whoever gives the notice must make affidavit thereof, which affidavit shall include a copy of the notice and be entered upon the records of the corporation. At the first meeting, or any adjournment thereof, an organization shall be effected by the choice of a temporary clerk, who shall be sworn; by the adoption of by-laws; and by the election of directors and such other officers as the by-laws required; but at this meeting no person may be elected director who has not signed the certificate of incorporation. The temporary clerk shall record the proceedings until the election and qualification of the secretary. The directors so chosen shall elect a president, secretary, and other officers which under the by-laws they are so authorized to choose. The president, secretary, and a majority of the directors shall forthwith make, sign, and swear to a certificate setting forth a copy of the certificate of incorporation, with the names of the subscribers thereto, the date of the first meeting and of any adjournments thereof, and shall submit such certificate and the records of the corporation to the commissioner of insurance, who shall examine the same, and who may require such other evidence as he deems necessary. If upon his examination the commissioner of insurance approves of the by-laws and finds that the requirements of the law have been complied with, he shall issue a license to the company to do business in the state, as is provided for in this chapter. (Rev., s. 4728; 1899, c. 54, s. 25; 1903, c. 438, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 6329.)

§ 58-75. By-laws; classification and election of directors.—A domestic company may adopt by-laws for the conduct of its business not repugnant to law or its charter, and therein provide for the division of its board of directors into two, three, or four classes, and the election thereof at its annual meetings so that the members of one class only shall retire and their successors be chosen each year. Vacancies in any such class may be filled by election by the board for the unexpired term. (Rev., s. 4724; 1899, c. 54, s. 22; C. S. 6330.)

§ 58-76. Power to purchase, hold, and convey real estate.—Any company organized by special charter or under the provisions of the general insurance laws of this state may purchase, hold, and convey real estate for the sole purposes and in the manner herein set forth:

1. Such as is necessary for its immediate use in the transaction of its business.

2. Property mortgaged to it in good faith as security for loans previously contracted or for money due.

3. Property conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of its dealings, or purchased at sales upon judgments, decrees, or mortgages obtained or made for such debts.

3½. (A) Real estate acquired for the purpose of leasing the same to any person, firm, or corporation for a period not exceeding thirty years, or real estate already leased for an unexpired period not exceeding thirty years, under an agreement (1) that the lessee shall at its own cost erect, or where under the lessee or its predecessor in title has at its own cost already erected thereon, free of liens, a building or other improvements satisfactory to the owner; (2) that the said improvements shall remain on the said property during the period of the lease, with provision that at the termination of the lease the ownership of such improvements, free of liens, shall vest in the owner of the real estate; and (3) that during the term of the lease the tenant shall keep and maintain the said improvements in good repair. Real estate acquired pursuant to the provisions of this subsection (A) shall not be treated as an admitted asset unless and until the improvements herein required shall have been constructed and the lease agreement entered into in accordance with the terms of this subsection, nor shall real estate acquired pursuant to this subsection (A) be treated as an admitted asset in an amount exceeding the amount actually invested reduced each year by equal decrements sufficient to write off at least seventy-five per cent of the investment at the normal termination of the lease. The total investments of any company under this subsection (A) shall not exceed three per cent of its assets.

(B) Subject to approval of the commissioner of insurance, real estate for recreation, hospitalization, convalescent and retirement purposes of its employees only. Such investment under this subsection (B) shall not exceed five per cent of the company's surplus.

No investment shall be made by any company pursuant to this subdivision 3½ which will cause such company's investment in all real property owned by it to exceed ten per cent of its assets.

4. It is unlawful for any such incorporated company to purchase or hold real estate in any other case or for any other purpose; and such real estate acquired, and not necessary for the accommodation of the company in the convenient transaction of its business, shall be sold and disposed of within five years after the company has acquired title, and it is not lawful for it to hold the real estate for a longer period than that mentioned, unless it acquired such real estate prior to March sixth, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-nine, or procures a certificate from the commissioner of insurance that the interest of the company will suffer materially by a forced sale of such real estate, in which event the time for the sale may be extended to such a time as the commissioner of insurance directs in the certificate. Nothing contained herein prevents any insurance company from improving and conveying its real estate, notwithstanding the lapse of five years from its acquisition thereof, without having procured such certificate from the commissioner of insurance. (Rev., s. 4725; 1899, c. 54, s. 22; 1903, c. 536, s. 2; 1943, c. 385; C. S. 6331.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment inserted subdivision 3½.

§ 58-77. Amount of capital required. — The amount of capital requisite to the formation and organization of companies under the provisions of this subchapter is as follows: Companies to insure plate-glass, not less than twenty-five thousand dollars. Companies issuing health policies, policies against damage by hail, or insuring marine risks or inland risks upon the stock plan, or insuring live-stock, not less than fifty thousand dollars. Companies for the purpose of transacting life or fire insurance on the stock plan, fidelity insurance, accident insurance, steamboiler insurance, credit insurance, sprinkler insurance, and insurance against loss by accident to vehicles, not less than one hundred thousand dollars; but life or accident companies on the industrial plan, issuing policies not over five hundred dollars, may be allowed to transact business with as little capital as fifty thousand dollars. Companies may be so formed to insure mechanics' tools and apparatus against loss by fire for an amount not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars in a single risk, with a capital of not less than ten thousand dollars, divided into shares of the par value of ten dollars each. (Rev., s. 4729; 1899, c. 54, s. 26; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; 1907, c. 1000, s. 5; 1913, c. 140, s. 2; 1929, c. 284, s. 1; C. S. 6332.)

Editor's Note.—By the amendment of 1929 the capital stock required was materially increased.

§ 58-78. Capital stock fully paid in cash.—The capital stock shall be paid in cash within twelve months from the date of the charter or certificate of organization, and no certificate of full shares and no policies may be issued until the whole capital is paid in. A majority of the directors shall certify on oath that the money has been paid by the stockholders for their respective shares and is held as the capital of the company invested or to be invested as required by § 58-79. (Rev., s. 4730; 1899, c. 54, s. 27; C. S. 6333.)

§ 58-79. Investment of capital.—Such capital shall be invested only as follows:

1. In first mortgages of real estate in this state.

2. In bonds of the United States or of any of the states whose bonds do not sell for less than par.

3. In the bonds or notes of any city, county, or town of this state whose net indebtedness does not exceed five per centum of the last preceding valuation of the property therein for purposes of taxation. The term "net indebtedness" excludes any debt created to provide an electric light plant and equipment, sewerage system, and a supply of water for general domestic use, and allows credit for the sinking fund of a county, city, town, or district available for the payment of its indebtedness.

4. Any insurance company having a capital stock of more than one hundred thousand dollars may, with the consent of the commissioner of insurance, after investing one hundred thousand dollars of the capital as provided in this section, invest the balance in such other securities or in such safe manner as may be approved by the commissioner.

5. Any real-estate title insurance company organized for any of the purposes set forth in article fourteen of this chapter, and having a capital stock of more than fifty thousand dollars, may, with the consent of the commissioner of insurance, after investing fifty thousand dollars of the capital, as provided in this section, invest the balance thereof in any such other securities including preferred stock in solvent corporations and including a reasonable investment not to exceed one-fourth of the total capital stock in abstract or title plants; and no such company shall guarantee or insure in any one risk more than forty per cent of its combined capital and surplus without first having the approval of the commissioner of insurance of North Carolina, which approval shall be endorsed upon the policy. If the capital stock of such company does not exceed fifty thousand dollars, it may, with the consent of the commissioner of insurance, after having invested three-fourths of its capital stock as now provided by law, invest the balance thereof in abstracts of titles of property situated in one or more of the cities or counties of this state. (Rev., s. 4731; 1899, c. 54, s. 27; 1907, c. 798; 1907, c. 998; 1911, c. 32; 1913, c. 200; 1923, c. 73; 1925, c. 187; C. S. 6334.)

As to authority to invest in bonds or notes secured by mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration, see § 53-45. See also § 53-60 as to investments in Federal Farm Loan bonds, and see § 142-29 as to investments in refunding bonds of North Carolina.

§ 58-80. Valuation of bonds and other evidences of debt; discretion of commissioner of insurance.—All bonds or other evidences of debt having a fixed term and rate held by any life insurance company, assessment life association, or fraternal beneficiary association authorized to do business in this state may, if amply secured and not in default as to principal and interest, be valued as follows: If purchased at par, at the par value; if purchased above or below par, on the basis of the purchase price adjusted so as to bring the value to par at maturity, and so as to yield in the meantime the effective rate of interest at which the purchase was made: Provided, that the purchase price shall in no case be taken at a higher figure than the actual market value at the time of purchase; and provided further, that the commissioner of insurance shall have full discretion in determining the method of calculating values according to the foregoing rule. (1921, c. 220; C. S. 6334(a).)

§ 58-81. Authority to increase or reduce capital stock.—The commissioner of insurance shall, upon application, examine the proceedings of domestic companies to increase or reduce their capital stock, and when found conformable to law shall issue certificates of authority to such companies to transact business upon such increased or reduced capital. He shall not allow stockholders' obligations of any description as part of the assets or capital of any stock insurance company unless the same are secured by competent collateral. (Rev., s. 4732; 1899, c. 54, s. 15; C. S. 6335.)

§ 58-82. Assessment of shares; revocation of license.—When the net assets of a company organized under this article do not amount to more than three-fourths of its original capital, it may make good its capital to the original amount by assessment of its stock. Shares on which such an assessment is not paid within sixty days after demand shall be forfeitable and may be canceled by vote of the directors and new shares issued to make up the deficiency. If such company does not, within three months after notice from the commissioner of insurance to that effect, make good its capital or reduce the same, as allowed by this article, its authority to transact new business of insurance shall be revoked by the commissioner. (Rev., s. 4733; 1899, c. 54, s. 28; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; C. S. 6336.)

§ 58-83. Increase of capital stock.—Any company organized under this article may issue pro rata to its stockholders certificates of any portion of its actual net surplus it deems fit to divide, which shall be considered an increase of its capital to the amount of such certificates. The company may, at a meeting called for the purpose, vote to increase the amount and number of shares of its capital stock, and to issue certificates therefor when paid for in full. In whichever method the increase is made, the company shall, within thirty days after the issue of such certificates, submit to the commissioner of insurance a certificate setting forth the amount of the increase and the facts of the transaction, signed and sworn to by its president and secretary and a majority of its directors. If the commissioner of insurance finds that the facts conform to the law, he shall endorse his approval thereof; and upon filing such certificate so endorsed with the secretary of state, and the payment of a fee of five dollars for filing the same, the company may transact business upon the capital as increased, and the commissioner of insurance shall issue his certificate to that effect. (Rev., s. 4734; 1899, c. 54, s. 29; C. S. 6337.)

§ 58-84. Reduction of capital stock.—When the capital stock of a company organized under this article is impaired, the company may, upon a vote of the majority of the stock represented at a meeting legally called for that purpose, reduce its capital stock and the number of shares thereof to an amount not less than the minimum sum required by law, but no part of its assets and property shall be distributed to its stockholders. Within ten days after such meeting the company must submit to the commissioner of insurance a certificate setting forth the proceedings thereof and the amount of the reduction and the assets and liabilities of the company, signed and sworn to by its president, secretary, and a majority of its directors. The commissioner of insurance shall examine the facts in the case, and if they conform to law, and in his judgment the proposed reduction may be made without prejudice to the public, he shall endorse his approval upon the certificate. Upon filing the certificate so endorsed with the secretary of state and paying a filing fee of five dollars, the company may transact business upon the basis of the reduced capital as though it were original capital, and its charter shall be deemed to be amended to conform thereto, and the commissioner of insurance shall issue his certificate to that effect. The company may, by a majority vote of its directors, after the reduction, require the return of the original certificates of stock held by each stockholder in exchange for new certificates it may issue in lieu thereof for such number of shares as each stockholder is entitled to in the proportion that the reduced capital bears to the original capital. (Rev., s. 4735; 1899, c. 54, s. 30; C. S. 6338.)

§ 58-85. Dividends declared; liability of stockholders for unlawful dividends.—No stock company organized under this article may pay a cash or stock dividend except from its actual net surplus computed as required by law in its annual statements, nor may any such company which has ceased to do new business of insurance divide any portion of its assets, except surplus, to its stockholders, until it has performed or canceled its policy obligations. No dividend shall be paid by any company incorporated in this state when its capital stock is impaired, or when such payment would have the effect of impairing its capital stock; and any dividend so paid subjects the stockholders receiving it to a joint and several liability to the creditors of said company to the extent of the dividend so paid. (Rev., s. 4736; 1899, c. 54, s. 31; 1903, c. 536, s. 3; C. S. 6339.)

§ 58-86. Loans insufficiently secured. — Whenever it appears by examination, as authorized by law, that an insurance company, organized under the laws of this state, holds, as collateral security for the payment of any loan, any stock, bond, or security of whatever description, which has not a cash market value of at least twenty-five per centum more than the amount of such loan, the commissioner of insurance may require the reduction of the loan or an increase of the collateral security, so that the security shall be at least twenty-five per centum in excess of the amount loaned. If the company fail to comply with this requirement within ten days after receiving written notice thereof from the commissioner, it is the duty of the commissioner to disallow the loan and to deduct the amount thereof from the assets of the company. If it appears, upon examination, that any such insurance company holds, as security for any loan, a mortgage upon real estate which is not a first lien, or that the value of the real estate is less than fifty per centum in excess of the loan which it is mortgaged to secure, the commissioner of insurance may disallow the loan and deduct the amount thereof from the assets of the company holding it, after having given the company at least twenty days notice, in writing, to change or conform the loan to the requirements of this section. (Rev., s. 4737; 1903, c. 536, ss. 6, 7, 8; C. S. 6340.)

Art. 7. Guaranty Fund for Domestic Companies.

§ 58-87. Guaranty fund established.—Any insurance company formed as provided in the preceding article, or now existing by virtue of any of the laws of North Carolina, may establish a guaranty fund of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars nor more than two hundred thousand dollars, in the following manner: The company may receive from any person, firm, or corporation, money, bonds, or other securities, in such amount as may be agreed upon, for the purpose of providing a guaranty fund, to be used as hereinafter provided, for payment of the claims of policyholders. Upon the receipt of such bonds, money, or other securities by an insurance company, it shall issue its certificate, in writing, authenticated as required by law for certificates of stock, stating the amount, terms, and conditions of repayment of such money or the return of such bonds or other securities, the name of the payee or depositor, and the certificate shall also state upon its face that it is issued under the provisions of this section. The money, bonds, or other securities, when so paid to or deposited with such insurance company, become a part of the guaranty fund of the company, and are liable for all the claims of policyholders after the general assets of the company have been exhausted. This guaranty fund is not liable for the claims or debts due to stockholders or the general creditors of such insurance company. No insurance company shall create a guaranty fund, as provided in this article, except upon the approval of a majority of its stockholders authorized at any regular or special meeting called for the purpose. (1909, c. 922, s. 1; C. S. 6341.)

§ 58-88. Separate accounts; application of fund.—Every insurance company which establishes a guaranty fund under the provisions of this article must keep a separate account of the same on its books, together with a full and true list of any securities held therefor. The money and securities belonging to the guaranty fund must be invested in the same manner as is now provided by law for the investment of other assets of insurance companies; but any bond or other securities received by any such insurance company as a part of its guaranty fund may be deposited with the commissioner of insurance, as is now allowed by law, subject to the further provisions of this article. An insurance company receiving said money or securities as a part of its guaranty fund, as herein provided, may pay to the person, firm, or corporation from whom the same is received a semi-annual dividend of not more than three and one-half per cent on the amount of said money or securities. The guaranty fund herein provided for shall be applied to the payment of claims of policyholders only when the insurance company has exhausted its cash on hand and the invested assets, exclusive of uncollected premium; and when the guarantee is in any way impaired the directors may make good the whole or any part of such impairment, by assessment upon the contingent funds of the company at the date of such impairment, if any are available. (1909, c. 922, s. 1; C. S. 6342.)

§ 58-89. Reduction or retirement of fund.—The guaranty fund shall be retired when the permanent fund of the company equals two per centum of the amount insured upon all policies in force; and such guaranty fund may be reduced or retired by vote of the directors of the company and the assent of the commissioner of insurance, if the net assets of the company above the reinsurance reserve and all other claims and obligations, exclusive of the guaranty fund, for two years immediately preceding and including the date of its last annual statement, are not less than twenty-five per centum of the fund. Due notice of this proposed action on the part of the directors of the company must be mailed to each director of the company not less than thirty days before the meeting when such action may be taken, and must also be advertised in two newspapers of general circulation, to be approved by the commissioner of insurance, not less than twice a week for a period of not less than four weeks before the meeting. No insurance company with a guaranty fund, as hereinbefore provided, which has ceased to do new business, may return or retire any part of the guaranty fund or divide to its stockholders any part of its general assets, except incomes from its investments, until it shall have performed, reinsured, or canceled its policy obligations. (1909, c. 922, s. 1; C. S. 6343.)

§ 58-90. Insolvency; return of fund. — In the event of insolvency or voluntary liquidation of any such insurance company, the amount of the guaranty fund shall be returned to the persons, firms, or corporations, their heirs, executors, administrators, successors, or assigns, from which the same was received, in full or pro rata, as the case may be, before any amount shall be paid from the assets of said company to its stockholders. The intention of this section is that the liability of the company for the repayment or the return of its guaranty fund, as evidenced by its certificates therefor, as hereinbefore provided, shall be preferred in the distribution of its assets to the stockholders and general creditors of the company, other than its policy obligations. (1909, c. 922, s. 1; C. S. 6344.)

§ 58-91. Conversion to guaranty fund.—Any insurance company now doing business as a domestic insurance company under the laws of this state which has received any money or securities to be held as a guaranty capital, guaranty surplus, or guaranty fund, may convert the same into a guaranty fund, as hereinbefore provided, by mutual agreement between the board of directors of the insurance company and the parties from whom the money or securities have been received, subject, however, to the approval of the commissioner of insurance, and thereupon certificates shall be issued therefor, as hereinbefore provided, and the same shall thereafter be held subject to the rights and liabilities provided in this article. (1909, c. 922, s. 2; C. S. 6345.)

Art. 8. Mutual Insurance Companies.

§ 58-92. Mutual fire insurance companies organized; requisites for doing business.—Mutual fire insurance companies may be formed under this article, but no policy may be issued by a purely mutual fire insurance company, or by a mutual fire insurance company with a guaranty capital of less than fifty thousand dollars, until not less than two hundred thousand dollars of insurance, in not less than two hundred separate risks upon property located in North Carolina, has been subscribed for and entered on its books: but in the formation of mutual fire insurance companies to operate in no more than two counties of this state, whether town or farmers' mutuals, the requirement as to amount of insurance shall be twenty-five thousand dollars in risks owned by at least twenty-five adult residents of such towns or counties; but where there is an association or corporation for the purpose of interinsurance or mutual protection between members of said association or corporation, which members or stockholders are engaged in the same line of business, the requirement shall be fifty instead of two hundred separate risks. No policy may be issued under this section until the president and the secretary of the company have certified under oath that every subscription for insurance in the list presented to the commissioner of insurance for approval is genuine, and made with an agreement with every subscriber for insurance that he will take the policies subscribed for by him within thirty days after the granting of a license to the company by the commissioner of insurance to issue policies. (Rev., s. 4738; 1899, c. 54, ss. 25, 32, 34; 1901, c. 391, s. 3; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; 1911, c. 93; C. S. 6346.)

Cross Reference.—Mutual life and health insurance companies are largely governed by this article. See § 58-101.

§ 58-93. Assessments kept in treasury; certain officers debarred from commissions.—Every mutual or assessment company or association organized or doing business in the state on the assessment plan shall keep in its treasury at least one assessment sufficient to pay one average loss. No officer or other person whose duty it is to determine the character of the risk, and upon whose decision the application shall be accepted or rejected by a mutual fire insurance company, shall receive as any part of his compensation a commission upon the premiums, but his compensation shall be a fixed salary and such share in the net profits as the directors may determine. Nor shall such officer or person be an employee of any officer or agent of the company. (Rev., s. 4738; 1899, c. 54, s. 32; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; C. S. 6347.)

§ 58-94. Policyholders are members of mutual fire companies.—Every person insured by a mutual fire insurance company is a member while his policy is in force, entitled to one vote for each policy he holds, and must be notified of the time and place of holding its meetings by a written notice or by an imprint upon the back of each policy, receipt, or certificate of renewal, as follows:

The insured is hereby notified that by virtue of this policy he is a member of the ..... insurance company, and that the annual meetings of the company are held at its home office on the ..... day of ....., in each year, at ..... o'clock.

The blanks shall be duly filled in print and are a sufficient notice. A corporation which becomes a member of such company may authorize any person to represent it, and this representative has all the rights of an individual member. A person holding property in trust may insure it in such company, and as trustee assume the liability and be entitled to the rights of a member, but is not personally liable upon the contract of insurance. Members may vote by proxies, dated and executed within three months, and returned and recorded on the books of the company three days or more before the meeting at which they are to be used; but no person as proxy or otherwise may cast more than twenty votes. (Rev., s. 4739; 1899, c. 54, s. 33; C. S. 6348.)

This section is an enabling statute to protect a trustee from liability. Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 70, 182 S. E. 733.

The policyholders in a mutual fire insurance company are not stockholders therein, and are in no way liable for the debts of the company beyond the contingent liability fixed in the policy. Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 70, 182 S. E. 733.

This and § 58-97 do not indicate legislative intent to prohibit county boards of education insuring property in mutual companies by failing to expressly grant such authority. Id.

§ 58-95. Directors in mutual fire companies.—Every mutual fire insurance company shall elect by ballot a board of not less than seven directors, who shall manage and conduct its business and hold office for one year or for such term as the by-laws provide and until their successors are qualified. Two-thirds at least of the directors must be citizens of the state, and after the first election members only are eligible, but no director is disqualified from serving the term he was chosen for by reason of the expiration or cancellation of his policy. In companies with a guaranty capital, one-half of the directors shall be chosen by and from the stockholders. (Rev., s. 4739; 1899, c. 54, s. 33; C. S. 6349.)

§ 58-96. Mutual fire companies with a guaranty capital.—A mutual fire insurance company formed as provided in this article, or a mutual fire insurance company now existing, may establish a guaranty capital or surplus of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars nor more than two hundred thousand dollars, divided into shares of one hundred dollars each, which shall be invested in the same manner as is provided in this subchapter for the investment of the capital stock of certain insurance companies. The stockholders of the guaranty capital of a company or owners of guaranty surplus are entitled to a semiannual dividend of not more than three and one-half per centum on their respective shares, if the net profits or unused premiums left after all expenses, losses, and liabilities then incurred, together with the reserve for reinsurance, as provided for, are sufficient to pay the same. The guaranty capital or surplus shall be applied to the payment of losses only when the company has exhausted its cash in hand and the invested assets, exclusive of uncollected premiums, and when thus impaired, the directors may make good the whole or any part of it by assessments upon the contingent funds of the company at the date of such impairment. Shareholders and members of such companies are subject to the same provisions of law in respect to their right to vote as apply respectively to shareholders in stock companies and policyholders in purely mutual companies. This guaranty capital or surplus shall be retired when the permanent fund of the company equals two per centum of the amount insured upon all policies in force, and may be reduced or retired by vote of the policyholders of the company and the assent of the commissioner of insurance, if the net assets of the company above its reinsurance reserve and all other claims and obligations, exclusive of guaranty capital or surplus, for two years immediately preceding and including the date of its last annual statement, is not less than twenty-five per centum of the guaranty capital or surplus. Due notice of such proposed action on the part of the company must be mailed to each policyholder of the company not less than thirty days before the meeting when the action may be taken, and must also be advertised in two papers of general circulation, approved by the commissioner of insurance, not less than three times a week for a period of not less than four weeks before such meeting. No insurance company with a guaranty capital or surplus, which has ceased to do new business, shall divide to its stockholders any part of its assets or guaranty capital or surplus, except income from investments, until it has performed or canceled its policy obligations. (Rev., s. 4740; 1899, c. 54, s. 34; 1911, c. 196, s. 3; C. S. 6350.)

§ 58-97. Dividends and assessments; liability of policyholders.—The directors of a mutual fire insurance company may from time to time, by vote, fix and determine the amount to be paid as a dividend upon policies expiring during each year. Each policyholder is liable to pay his proportional share of any assessments which are made by the company in accordance with law and his contract on account of losses incurred while he was a member, if he is notified of such assessments within one year after the expiration of his policy. Any mutual fire insurance company doing business with a fixed annual premium may in its by-laws and policies fix the contingent liability of its members for the payment of losses and expenses not provided for by its cash funds, which contingent liability must not be less than a sum equal to the cash premium written in his policy and in addition thereto. The by-laws may also provide for policies to be issued for cash premiums without contingent liability of policyholders; provided, that no mutual fire insurance company shall issue any policy without contingent liability until and unless it possesses a surplus of at least one hundred thousand dollars. The total amount of the liability of the policyholder must be plainly and legibly stated upon the back of each policy. Whenever any reduction is made in the contingent liability of members, it applies proportionally to all policies in force: Provided this section shall not apply to farmers mutual fire insurance companies. (Rev., s. 4741; 1899, c. 54, s. 35; 1935, c. 89; C. S. 6351.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment the contingent liability was required to be not less than a sum equal to five times the cash written in its policy. The third from the last sentence of this section relating to provisions in by-laws was added by the amendment. The proviso at the end of the section was also added.

This section provides the terms and method of how mutual insurance can operate in this state. Those who purchase mutual insurance have their rights fixed. Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 70, 182 S. E. 733.

§ 58-98. Waiver of forfeiture in policies assigned or pledged; notice of assignment; payment of assessment or premium by assignee or mortgagee.—When any policy of insurance is issued by any mutual insurance company or association organized under the laws of this state and such policy is assigned or pledged as collateral security for the payment of a debt, such company or association, by its president and secretary or other managing officers, may insert in such policy so assigned or pledged, or attach thereto as a rider thereon, a provision or provisions to be approved by the commissioner of insurance, whereby any or all conditions of the policy which work a suspension or forfeiture and especially the provisions of the statute which limits such corporation to insure only property of its members, may be waived in such case for the benefit of the assignee or mortgagee. In case any such company or association shall consent to such assignment of any policy or policies, or the proceeds thereof, it may nevertheless at any time thereafter, by its president and secretary or such other officer as may be authorized by the board of directors, cancel such policy by giving the assignee or mortgagee not less than ten days notice in writing: Provided, however, a longer period may be agreed upon by the company or association and such assignee or mortgagee. And the president and secretary of such company or association, with the approval of the commissioner of insurance, may agree with the assignee or mortgagee upon an assessment or premium to be paid to the insurer in case the insured shall not pay the same, which shall not be less than such a rate or sum of money as may be produced by the average assessments or premiums made or charged by like company or association during a period of five years next preceding the year of such agreement and assignment. When an assignment is made as herein provided the policy or policies so assigned or pledged, subject to the conditions herein, shall remain in full force and effect for the benefit of the assignee or mortgagee, notwithstanding the title or ownership of the assured to the property insured, or to any interest therein, shall be in any manner changed, transferred or encumbered. (Ex. Sess. 1920, c. 79; C. S. 6351(a).)

§ 58-99. Guaranty against assessments prohibited.—If any director or other officer of a mutual fire insurance company, either officially or privately, shall give a guarantee to a policyholder thereof against an assessment to which such policyholder would otherwise be liable, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense. (Rev., s. 3496; 1899, c. 54, s. 100; C. S. 6352.)

Cited in Paramore v. Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Ass'n, 207 N. C. 300, 306, 176 S. E. 585.

§ 58-100. Manner of making assessments; rights and liabilties of policyholders.—When a mutual fire insurance company is not possessed of cash funds above its reinsurance reserve sufficient for the payment of insured losses and expenses, it must make an assessment for the amount needed to pay such losses and expenses upon its members liable to assessment therefor in proportion to their several liabilities. The company shall cause to be recorded in a book kept for that purpose the order for the assessment, together with a statement which must set forth the condition of the company at the date of the order, the amount of its cash assets and deposits, notes, or other contingent funds liable to the assessment, the amount the assessment calls for, and the particular losses or liabilities it is made to provide for. This record must be made and signed by the directors who voted for the order before any part of the assessment is collected, and any person liable to the assessment may inspect and take a copy of the same. When, by reason of depreciation or loss of its funds or otherwise, the cash assets of such company, after providing for its other debts, are less than the required premium reserve upon its policies, it must make good the deficiency by assessment in the manner above provided. If the directors are of the opinion that the company is liable to become insolvent they may, instead of such assessment, make two assessments, the first determining what each policyholder must equitably pay or receive in case of withdrawal from the company and having his policy canceled; the second, what further sum each must pay in order to reinsure the unexpired term of his policy at the same rate as the whole was insured at first. Each policyholder must pay or receive according to the first assessment, and his policy shall be canceled unless he pays the sum further determined by the second assessment, in which case his policy continues in force; but in neither case may a policyholder receive or have credited to him more than he would have received on having his policy canceled by a vote of the directors under the by-laws. (Rev., s. 4742; 1899, c. 54, ss. 36, 37; C. S. 6353.)

Forfeiture and Waiver.—It is clear that failure to pay assessments, in accordance with the terms of a contract works a forfeiture of the policy. It is equally well settled that a company may by acts of unequivocal character waive such forfeiture. Perry v. Farmers Mut. Life Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 283, 287, 43 S. E. 837.

An acceptance of an overdue assessment by a fire insurance company, after the property is burned, the company having notice thereof, is a waiver of the forfeiture of the policy. Perry v. Farmers Mut. Life Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 283, 43 S. E. 837.

Where mutual fire insurance company relies on failure to pay assessment in order to defeat recovery on policy, it must show that the assessment was legally made in conformity with the provisions of this section, and where it fails to so show and plaintiff insurer testifies that she did not get notice of the assessment or of the cancellation of the policy, peremptory instructions against insurer on the affirmative defense are without error. Abernethy v. Mecklenburg Farmers' Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 213 N. C. 23, 195 S. E. 30.

Right of Insured to Withdraw.—Where the members of mutual insurance companies have enjoyed the protection which membership affords, they cannot, after a loss has been sustained, withdraw and refuse to pay their portion of the loss. Perry v. Farmers Mut. Fire Ass'n, 139 N. C. 374, 51 S. E. 1025.

Payments of Claims.—The right of each policyholder in the defendant company is to have an assessment made to pay his loss, and he has no claim upon an amount paid to another policyholder. Perry v. Farmers Mut. Fire Ass'n, 139 N. C. 374, 51 S. E. 1025.

§ 58-101. Mutual life and health companies.—Life and health insurance companies and associations organized in this state to do business on the mutual plan shall be governed as to the commencement of business, election of members, guaranty capital, dividends, and assessments as provided in this article for mutual fire insurance companies, where applicable. (Rev., s. 4743; 1903, c. 536, s. 1; C. S. 6354.)

§ 58-102. Dividends on, and redemption of, guaranty capital of life companies.—The stockholders of the guaranty capital of any domestic life insurance company are entitled to such annual dividends not exceeding eight per centum, payable from the net surplus, as have been agreed upon in the subscription thereof. Such company may redeem its guaranty capital by appropriation of net surplus for that purpose whenever its members so vote. (Rev., s. 4744; 1899, c. 54, s. 58; 1903, c. 438, s. 5; C. S. 6355.)

Art. 9. Conversion of Stock Corporations into Mutual Corporations.

§ 58-103. Domestic stock life insurance corporations authorized to convert into mutual corporations; procedure.—Any domestic stock life insurance corporation may become a mutual life insurance corporation, and to that end may carry out a plan for the acquisition of shares of its capital stock: Provided, however, that such plan (first) shall have been adopted by a vote of a majority of the directors of such corporation; (second) shall have been approved by a vote of the holders of two-thirds of the stock outstanding at the time of issuing the call for a meeting for that purpose; (third) shall have been submitted to the commissioner of insurance and shall have been approved by him in writing, and (fourth) shall have been approved by a majority vote of the policyholders (including, for the purpose of this article, the employer or the president, secretary or other executive officer of any corporation or association to which a master group policy has been issued, but excluding the holders of certificates or policies issued under or in connection with a master group policy) voting at said meeting, called for that purpose, at which meeting only such policyholders whose insurance shall then be in force and shall have been in force for at least one year prior to such a meeting shall be entitled to vote; notice of such a meeting shall be given by mailing such notice, postage prepaid, from the home office of such corporation at least thirty days prior to such meeting to such policyholders at their last known post-office addresses: Provided, that personal delivery of such written notice to any policyholder may be in lieu of mailing the same; and such meeting shall be otherwise provided for and conducted in such manner as shall be provided in such plan: Provided, however, that policyholders may vote in person, by proxy, or by mail; that all such votes shall be cast by ballot, and a representative of the commissioner of insurance shall supervise and direct the methods and procedure of said meeting and appoint an adequate number of inspectors to conduct the voting at said meeting who shall have power to determine all questions concerning the verification of the ballots, the ascertainment of the validity thereof, the qualifications of the voters, and the canvass of the vote, and who shall certify to the said representative and to the corporation the results thereof, and with respect thereto shall act under such rules and regulations as shall be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance; that all necessary expenses incurred by the commissioner of insurance or his representative shall be paid by the corporation as certified to by said commissioner. Every payment for the acquisition of any shares of the capital stock of such corporation, the purchase price of which is not fixed by such plan, shall be subject to the approval of the commissioner: Provided, that neither such plan, nor any payment thereunder, nor any payment not fixed by such plan, shall be approved by the commissioner, if the making of such payment shall reduce the assets of the corporation to an amount less than the entire liabilities of the corporation, including therein the net values of its outstanding contracts according to the standard adopted by the commissioner of insurance, and also all other funds, contingent reserves and surplus which the corporation is required by order or direction of the commissioner of insurance to maintain, save so much of the surplus as shall have been appropriated or paid under such plan. (1937, c. 231, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—For a discussion of act from which this article is codified, see 15 N. C. Law Rev. 359.

§ 58-104. Stock acquired to be turned over to voting trust until all stock acquired; dividends repaid to corporation for beneficiaries.—If a domestic stock life insurance corporation shall determine to become a mutual life insurance corporation it may, in carrying out any plan to that end under the provisions of § 58-103, acquire any shares of its own stock by gift, bequest or purchase. And until all such shares are acquired, any shares so acquired shall be acquired in trust for the policyholders of the corporation as hereinafter provided, and shall be assigned and transferred on the books of the corporation to not less than three nor more than five trustees, and be held by them in trust and be voted by such trustees at all corporate meetings at which stockholders have the right to vote until all of the capital stock of such corporation is acquired, when the entire capital stock shall be retired and canceled; and thereupon, unless sooner incorporated as such, the corporation shall be and become a mutual life insurance corporation without capital stock. Said trustees shall be appointed and vacancies shall be filled as provided in the plan adopted under § 58-103. Said trustees shall file with the corporation and with the commissioner of insurance a verified acceptance of their appointments and declaration that they will faithfully discharge their duties as such trustees. After the payment of such dividends to stockholders or former stockholders as may have been provided in the plan adopted under § 58-103, all dividends and other sums received by said trustees on said shares of stock so acquired, after paying the necessary expenses of executing said trust, shall be immediately repaid to said corporation for the benefit of all who are or may become policyholders of said corporation and entitled to participate in the profits thereof, and shall be added to and become a part of the surplus earned by said corporation, and be apportionable accordingly as a part of said surplus among said policyholders. (1937, c. 231, s. 2.)

Art. 10. Assessment Companies.

§ 58-105. Copies of charter and by-laws filed.—Every corporation, society, or organization of this or any other state or country, transacting business under this department upon the coöperative or assessment plan, must file with the commissioner of insurance, before beginning to do business in this state, a copy of its charter or articles of association, and the by-laws, rules, or regulations referred to in its policies or certificates and made a part of such contract. By-laws or regulations not so filed with the commissioner of insurance will not avoid or affect any policy or certificate issued by such company or association. (Rev., s. 4790; 1899, c. 54, s. 86; C. S. 6356.)

Cross Reference.—As to fraternal orders and societies, see § 58-263 et seq.

§ 58-106. Contracts must accord with charter and by-laws.—Every policy or certificate or renewal receipt issued to a resident of this state by any corporation, association, or order transacting therein the business of insurance upon the assessment plan must be in accord with the provisions of the charter and by-laws of such corporation, association, or order, as filed with the commissioner of insurance. It is unlawful for any such domestic or foreign insurance company or fraternal order to transact or offer to transact any business not authorized by the provisions of its charter and the terms of its by-laws, or, through an agent or otherwise, to offer or issue any policy, renewal certificate, or other contract whose terms are not in clear accord with the powers, terms, and stipulations of its charter and by-laws. (Rev., s. 4791; 1899, c. 54, s. 84; 1903, c. 438, s. 9; C. S. 6357.)

Duty and Liability under By-laws.—The by-laws of an assessment association when assented to by the members, as provided in this chapter, constitute the measure of duty and liability of the parties, provided they are reasonable and not in violation of any principle of public law. Duffy v. Fidelity Mut. Life Ins. Co., 142 N. C. 103, 55 S. E. 79.

Duty and Liability under Charter.—The contract of insurance must conform to the charter and by-laws, and these are as authorized by the state of its origin. Hollingsworth v. Supreme Council, 175 N. C. 615, 96 S. E. 81; Caldwell Land, etc., Co. v. Board, 174 N. C. 634, 94 S. E. 406, cited and distinguished.

Assessment companies are prohibited from issuing policies or transacting business not authorized by their charters. Brenizer v. Royal Arcanum, 141 N. C. 409, 418, 53 S. E. 835.

§ 58-107. "Assessment plan" printed on application and policy; waiver by commissioner.—Every policy or certificate issued to a resident of the state by any corporation transacting in the state the business of life insurance upon the assessment plan, or admitted to do business in this state on the assessment plan, shall print in bold type and in red ink, near the top of the front page of the policy, upon every policy or certificate issued upon the life of any such resident of the state, the words "issued upon the assessment plan"; and the words "assessment plan" shall be printed conspicuously in red ink in and upon every application, circular, card, and any and all printed documents issued, circulated, or caused to be circulated by such corporation within the state, save and except, however, in advertising in newspapers within the state, in which case the words may be printed in black. The commissioner of insurance may waive the provisions of this section as to assessment companies or associations who conduct their business on an annual premium basis and maintain a full reserve of at least four per cent, based on any recognized table of mortality, and at all times maintain a net surplus over and above all liabilities and available for the payment of claims, sufficient to preclude the possibility of an extra assessment being levied against policyholders. Said waiver must be in writing and the commissioner of insurance may revoke it at any time for cause. (1913, c. 159, s. 1; 1929, c. 93, s. 1; 1933, c. 34; C. S. 6358.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1929 added the last sentence of this section.

Public Laws 1933, c. 34, changed the waiver provision of this section to apply to associations maintaining a reserve of four per cent, rather than three and one-half per cent, based on any recognized Mortality Table, rather than the American Experience Mortality Table.

§ 58-108. Revocation for noncompliance.—If any corporation or association transacting insurance business in this state on the assessment plan or issuing any policy upon the life of a resident of North Carolina upon the assessment plan shall fail or refuse to comply with the foregoing section, the commissioner of insurance shall forthwith suspend or revoke all authority of such corporation or association and of its agents to do business in this state. (1913, c. 159, s. 2; C. S. 6359.)

§ 58-109. Deposits and advance assessments required.—Every domestic insurance company, association, order, or fraternal benefit society doing business on the assessment plan shall collect and keep at all times in its treasury one regular loss assessment sufficient to pay one regular average loss; and no such company, association, order, or fraternal benefit society shall be licensed by the commissioner of insurance unless it makes and maintains with him for the protection of its obligations at least five thousand dollars in United States or North Carolina bonds, in farm loan bonds issued by federal loan banks, or in the bonds of some city, county, or town of North Carolina to be approved by the commissioner of insurance, or deposit with him a good and sufficient bond, secured by a deed of trust on real estate situated in North Carolina and approved by him, or by depositing with the commissioner of insurance a bond in an amount of not less than five thousand ($5,000) dollars, issued by any corporate surety company authorized to do business in this state. Such companies, associations, orders, or societies now doing business in this state and not issuing policies or certificates for more than two hundred dollars, shall be permitted to deposit five hundred dollars on the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen, and five hundred dollars each six months thereafter until the required amount is deposited; and the last named association when hereafter organized may be allowed by the commissioner of insurance to make such deposit in like installments. The commissioner of insurance may increase the amount of deposit to the amount of reserve on the contracts of the association or society. The provisions of this section shall not apply to the farmers mutual fire insurance associations now doing business in the state and restricting their activities to not more than two adjacent counties. (Rev., s. 4792; 1913, c. 119, s. 1; 1917, c. 191, s. 2; 1933, c. 47; C. S. 6360.)

Cross References.—As to other bonds insurance companies are authorized to invest in, see §§ 53-44, 53-45. As to investments in refunding bonds of North Carolina, see § 142-29.

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 47, inserted the clause at the end of the first sentence of the section and also added the sentence appearing at the end of the section.

§ 58-110. Deposits by foreign assessment companies or order.—Each foreign insurance company, association, order, or fraternal benefit society doing business in this state on the assessment plan shall keep at all times deposited with the commissioner of insurance or in its head office in this state, or in some responsible banking or trust company, one regular assessment sufficient to pay the average loss or losses occurring among its members in this state during the time allowed by it for the collection of assessments and payment of losses. It shall notify the commissioner of insurance of the place of deposit and furnish him at all times such information as he requires in regard thereto; and no such company, association, order, or fraternal benefit society shall be licensed by the commissioner unless it makes and maintains with him for the protection of its obligations at least five thousand dollars in United States or North Carolina bonds, in farm loan bonds issued by federal land banks, or in the bonds of some county, city, or town in North Carolina to be approved by the commissioner of insurance, or a good and sufficient bond or note, secured by deed of trust on real estate situate in North Carolina, and approved by the commissioner. The provisions of this section do not apply to associations, orders, or fraternal benefit societies operating in not more than two adjacent counties in the state and paying a benefit of not exceeding two hundred dollars, but the amount to be deposited by said societies is within the discretion of the commissioner of insurance, but must be not less than one hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 4713; 1899, c. 54, s. 84; 1903, c. 438, s. 9; 1913, c. 119, ss. 2, 3; 1917, c. 191, s. 2; C. S. 6361.)

Cross References.—As to other bonds insurance companies are authorized to invest in, see §§ 53-44, 53-45. As to investments in refunding bonds of North Carolina, see § 142-29.

§ 58-111. Must pay death benefits in coin instead of services.—No corporation, society, or organization now doing business in this state or that may hereafter be authorized to do business in this state upon a mutual or assessment insurance plan and issuing contracts to its members providing benefits in excess of one hundred dollars ($100) in the event of death of its members or policy holders shall issue any contract to such members providing for the payment of benefits in merchandise or service to be rendered to such member or his beneficiary; but all contracts hereafter issued by any such corporation, society, or organization, shall provide by the terms of its contract for the payment of such benefits only in lawful currency or coin. (1931, c. 71.)

Cross Reference.—As to mutual burial associations in which benefits do not exceed $100.00, see § 58-224 et seq.

§ 58-112. Revocation of license.—If any such corporation, association, or order at any time fails to comply with the provisions of §§ 58-109 and 58-110 or shall issue policies or certificates not in accord with its charter and by-laws, as provided in this article, the commissioner of insurance shall forthwith suspend or revoke all authority to it, and of all its agents or officers, to do business in this state, and shall publish such revocation in some newspaper published in this state. (Rev., s. 4793; 1899, c. 54, s. 85; C. S. 6362.)

Art. 11. Fidelity Insurance Companies.

§ 58-113. May act as fiduciaries.—Any corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance, where such powers or privileges are granted it in its charter, may be guardian, trustee, assignee, receiver, executor or administrator in this state without giving any bond; and the clerks of the superior courts or other officers charged with the duty, or clothed with the power of making such appointments, are authorized to appoint such corporation to any such office, whether the corporation is a resident of this state or not. (Rev., s. 4799; 1899, c. 54, s. 47; 1903, c. 438, s. 5; C. S. 6376.)

Cross References.—As to fiduciaries in general, see § 32-1 et seq. See § 58-116 and note.

Applied in Quinton v. Cain, 203 N. C. 162, 165 S. E. 543.

§ 58-114. License to do business.—Before any such corporation is authorized to execute any bond, obligation, or undertaking, or act in any fiduciary capacity without bond, it must be licensed by the commissioner of insurance of the state, which the commissioner is authorized to do when satisfied that such company or corporation is safe and solvent and has complied with the laws of this state applicable to such companies, and if a foreign company, that it has also complied with the conditions, rules, and regulations governing the admission of foreign insurance companies to do business in this state; but if such corporation be engaged in the business of commercial banking then such license shall be issued by the Commissioner of Banks and all other provisions of this article pertaining to corporations engaged in the business of banking shall apply to such corporations but shall be exercised and enforced by the Commissioner of Banks. For such license the licensee shall pay to the Banking Commission an annual license fee of two hundred ($200.00) dollars, which shall be remitted to the State Treasurer for the use of the Commissioner of Banks in the supervision of banks acting in a fiduciary capacity in so far as it may be necessary and the surplus, if any, shall remain in the State treasury for the use of the general fund of the State. (Rev., s. 4800; 1899, c. 54, s. 46; 1901, c. 706, s. 1; 1931, c. 387; C. S. 6377.)

Cross Reference.—See § 58-116 and note.

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 added all of this section beginning with the word "but" in line thirteen.

Applied in Quinton v. Cain, 203 N. C. 162, 165 S. E. 543.

§ 58-115. Examination as to solvency. — The commissioner shall examine into the solvency of such corporation, and shall, if he deem it necessary, at the expense of the corporation, make or cause to be made an examination at its home office of its assets and liabilities. (Rev., s. 4801; 1899, c. 54, s. 46; 1901, c. 706; C. S. 6378.)

Cross Reference.—See § 58-116 and note.

§ 58-116. Certificate of solvency equivalent to justification. — After any such corporation has been licensed by the commissioner, the certificate of the commissioner that it has been admitted to do business in the state and is licensed by the commissioner of insurance and is solvent to an amount not less than one hundred thousand dollars, shall be, until revoked by him, equivalent to the justification of sureties, and full evidence of its authority to give such bonds or undertakings. There shall be no charge for the seal of this certificate. (Rev., s. 4802; 1899, c. 54, s. 46; 1901, c. 706; C. S. 6379.)

There is a presumption that the Insurance Commissioner has complied with the law in licensing a bank to act as administrator, and where there is evidence that a bank, on the date it was appointed administrator, was solvent in an amount in excess of $100,000, the contention of an administrator d. b. n. appointed upon the bank's insolvency that the bank had not complied with the provisions of this section and those preceding it cannot be sustained. Security Nat. Bank v. Bridgers, 207 N. C. 91, 176 S. E. 295.

§ 58-117. Clerk of superior court notified of license and revocation.—The commissioner of insurance, upon granting license to any such corporation, shall immediately notify the clerk of the superior court of each county in the state that such corporation has been licensed under this chapter; and whenever the commissioner is satisfied that any corporation licensed by him has become insolvent, or is in imminent danger of insolvency, he shall revoke the license granted to it, and notify the clerk of the superior court of each county of such revocation; and after such notification the right of such corporation to hold any office, or be surety on any bond, as permitted by this chapter, ceases. (Rev., s. 4803; 1899, c. 54, s. 50; C. S. 6380.)

§ 58-118. Resident agents required.—All business done in this state by any fidelity insurance company must be done through regularly authorized agents residing in this state, or through applications of such agents; and all policies so issued must be countersigned by such agents. (Rev., s. 4804; 1899, c. 54, s. 108; 1903, c. 438, s. 11; C. S. 6381.)

§ 58-119. Limitation of liability assumed.—No stock corporation transacting fidelity or surety business in this State shall expose itself to any loss on any one fidelity or surety risk or hazard in an amount exceeding ten per centum of its capital and surplus, unless it shall be protected in excess of that amount by

(a) Reinsurance in a corporation authorized to transact a fidelity and surety business in this State: Provided, that such reinsurance is in such form as to enable the obligee or beneficiary to maintain an action thereon against the company reinsured jointly with such reinsurer and, upon recovering judgment against such reinsured, to have recovery against such reinsurer for payment to the extent in which it may be liable under such reinsurance and in discharge thereof; or

(b) The co-suretyship of such a corporation similarly authorized; or

(c) By deposit with it in pledge or conveyance to it in trust for its protection of property; or

(d) By conveyance or mortgage for its protection; or

(e) In case a suretyship obligation was made on behalf or on account of a fiduciary holding property in a trust capacity, by deposit or other disposition of a portion of the property so held in trust that no future sale, mortgage, pledge or other disposition can be made thereof without the consent of such corporation; except by decree or order of a court of competent jurisdiction;

Provided: (1) That such corporation may execute what are known as transportation or warehousing bonds for United States Internal Revenue taxes to an amount equal to fifty per centum of its capital and surplus; (2) that, when the penalty of the suretyship obligation exceeds the amount of a judgment described therein as appealed from and thereby secured, or exceeds the amount of the subject matter in controversy or of the estate in the hands of the fiduciary for the performance of whose duties it is conditioned, the bond may be executed if the actual amount of the judgment or the subject matter in controversy or estate not subject to supervision or control of the surety is not in excess of such limitation; and (3) that, when the penalty of the suretyship obligation executed for the performance of a contract exceeds the contract price, the latter shall be taken as the basis for estimating the limit of risk within the meaning of this section.

No such corporation shall, anything to the contrary in this section notwithstanding, execute suretyship obligations guaranteeing the deposits of any single financial institution in an aggregate amount in excess of ten per centum of the capital and surplus of such corporate surety, unless it shall be protected in excess of that amount by credits in accordance with sub-division (a), (b), (c) or (d) of this section: Provided, nothing in this section shall be construed to make invalid any contract entered into by such corporation with another person, firm, corporation or municipal corporation notwithstanding any provisions of this section. (1911, c. 28; 1931, c. 285; C. S. 6382.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1931 struck out the former section and substituted in lieu thereof the above. That Act, which was ratified April 16, 1931, provided that nothing therein should affect, modify or qualify the liability of any such fidelity or surety company with respect to any contract of such company in force at the time of its ratification. The old statute placed the limit at ten per centum of the capital and surplus of the surety company, unless "suitable and sufficient collateral agreements of indemnity" were made, mentioning ostensibly as such "suitable agreements" a pledge deposit or conveyances in trust. The 1931 enactment provided the same per centum limit, but made specific the necessary protective arrangement for a liability in excess of said per centum: reinsurance, co-suretyship, pledge deposits, or conveyance in trust on mortgage. It also provided that the actual amount involved in three types of secured transactions—appeal bond, executor's bond, and bond for performance contract—shall be the basis for estimating the risk, for the purpose of the statutory limitation, although the professed penalty of the suretyship obligation exceeds such actual amount. Depository bonds are specifically mentioned as coming witnin the limits set down. It seems advisable to have cleared up the ambiguity of the loose phrase in the old statute describing the conditions under which the limited liability could be exceeded and to have furnished a test for determining the amount of the risk in at least three transactions. But as to the test for the risk assumed in other types, quaere. 9 N. C. Law Rev. 394.

Joint-Control Agreements.—It would seem that in cases coming within the purview of this section, and perforce to the extent thereof, joint-control agreements between fiduciaries and their sureties are sanctioned in this State by act of Assembly. Pierce v. Pierce, 197 N. C. 348, 148 S. E. 438; Leonard v. York, 202 N. C. 704, 706, 163 S. E. 878.

Art. 12. Promoting and Holding Companies.

§ 58-120. Terms defined.—As the terms are used in this article, "promoting corporation" means a corporation or joint-stock association, engaged in the business of organizing or promoting or endeavoring to organize or promote the organization of an insurance corporation or corporations, or in any way assisting therein; "holding corporation" means a corporation or joint-stock association, which holds or is engaged in the acquisition of the capital stock or a major portion thereof of one or more insurance corporations for the purpose of controlling the management thereof, as voting trustee or otherwise; and "securities" means the shares of capital stock, subscription, certificates, debenture bonds, and any and all other contracts or evidences of ownership of or interest in insurance corporations, or in promoting or holding corporations. (1913, c. 182, s. 1; C. S. 6383.)

§ 58-121. Certificate of authority to sell securities required.—No individual, partnership, association, or corporation, as the agent of another or as a broker, shall sell or offer for sale, or in any way assist in the sale in this state of the securities of any promoting or holding corporation, or of any insurance corporation, which is not at that time lawfully engaged or authorized to engage in the transaction of the business of insurance in this state, without first procuring, as hereinafter provided, a certificate of authority from the insurance department to sell such securities; nor shall any individual, partnership, association, or corporation sell or offer for sale in this state the securities of any promoting or holding corporation, or of any insurance corporation which is not at the time of such sale or offer of sale lawfully engaged or authorized to engage in the transaction of the business of insurance in the state, unless such corporation has first procured from the commissioner of insurance, as hereinafter provided, a certificate that the corporation has fully complied with the provisions of this article, and is authorized to sell the securities. Every certificate issued by the commissioner of insurance pursuant to the provisions of this article shall state in bold type that the commissioner in no way recommends the securities thereby authorized to be sold, and shall be renewable annually, upon written application, filed on or before the first day of April of each year, and may be revoked for cause at any time by the commissioner. The commissioner shall prepare and furnish upon request suitable blank forms of application for the certificates required by this article. (1913, c. 182, s. 2; C. S. 6384.)

§ 58-122. Application for certificate by agent.—Every individual, partnership, association, or corporation desiring or intending to sell or to offer for sale in this state the securities of insurance corporations or of any holding or promoting corporation shall file with the commissioner of insurance an application for a certificate of such authority. This application must contain a statement, verified by oath, setting forth the name and address of the applicants' previous business experience, date and place of birth or organization, and such other information as the commissioner requires. It is the duty of the commissioner to examine the application and to make any further inquiry or examination of the applicant as he deems advisable. If upon examination the commissioner finds the applicant, or if a corporation, the officers and directors thereof, to be trustworthy persons of good business credit, he may issue to the applicant a certificate of authority to sell or offer for sale in this state the securities of any insurance corporation, and of any promoting or holding corporation previously authorized under this article, which shall be mentioned therein. (1913, c. 182, s. 3; C. S. 6385.)

§ 58-123. Application for certificate by corporation.—Every such unauthorized insurance corporation, and every promoting or holding corporation, whose securities are offered for sale in this state, must file with the commissioner of insurance copies of all securities to be offered for sale, and an application for certificate of authority under this article which shall contain a statement in detail of the plans and purposes of such corporation, the amount and par value of the securities to be offered for sale, and the selling price thereof, the manner in which the money paid in therefor is to be spent or employed, the rate of commission to be paid for the sale of such securities, the salaries to be paid to the officers of such corporation, and such other information as the commissioner of insurance requires. No change shall thereafter be made in the form or character of the securities to be offered for sale, or in the plans or purposes of any such corporation, without the approval thereof in writing by the commissioner. It is the duty of the commissioner to examine the application and other documents filed, and to make any further inquiry or examination of the corporation as he deems advisable. If upon examination the commissioner finds that the plans and purposes of the corporation are proper, that its condition is satisfactory, that the amount of its securities is reasonable, that the price at which such securities are to be sold is adequate, and that the manner in which the money is paid in therefor, the rate of commissions to be paid and the salaries of officers are fair, he may issue a certificate that the corporation has complied with all the provisions of this article, and is authorized to sell or offer its securities for sale in this state. (1913, c. 182, s. 4; C. S. 6386.)

§ 58-124. Approval of advertising matter; misrepresentation.—No printed matter may be used in connection with the sale of securities of any such promoting, holding, or insurance corporation, for advertising purposes, or in the dissemination of information with reference thereto, unless it is first submitted to the commissioner of insurance and approved by him in writing. No such corporation, and no officer, director, or agent thereof, or any other person, copartnership, association, or corporation may issue, circulate, or employ or cause or permit to be used, issued, circulated, or employed any circular or statement, whether printed or oral, misrepresenting or exaggerating the earnings of insurance corporations or the value of their corporate stock or other securities, or the profits to be derived either directly or indirectly from the organization and management of insurance corporations, or of organizing or holding corporations. No insurance or other corporation, and no individual, copartnership, or association transacting business in this state shall place or offer to place insurance in any corporation in connection with the sale or purchase of the securities of any insurance corporation or of any promoting or holding corporation. (1913, c. 182, s. 5; C. S. 6387.)

Art. 13. Rate-Making Companies.

§ 58-125. Information to be filed with commissioner of insurance. — Every corporation, association, board, or bureau which now exists or hereafter may be formed, and every person who maintains, or hereafter may maintain, a bureau or office for the purpose of suggesting, approving or making rates to be used by more than one underwriter for insurance, including surety bonds, on property or risks of any kind located in this state, shall file with the commissioner of insurance a copy of the articles of agreement, association or incorporation and the by-laws and all amendments thereto under which such person, association, or bureau operates or proposes to operate, together with his or its business address and a list of the members or insurance corporations represented or to be represented by him or it, as well as such other information concerning such rating organization and its operations as may be required by the commissioner of insurance. (1913, c. 145, s. 1; 1915, c. 166, s. 8; C. S. 6388.)

Cross References.—As to certain insurance contracts exempt from this article, see § 58-131. As to compensation rating and inspection bureau for Workmen's Compensation Insurance, see §§ 97-102 to 97-104.

§ 58-126. Examination by commissioner of insurance; reports.—Every such person, corporation, association, or bureau, whether before or after the filing of the information specified in the preceding section, shall be subject to the visitation, supervision, and examination of the commissioner of insurance, who shall cause to be made an examination thereof as often as he deems it expedient, and at least once in three years. For such purpose he may appoint as examiners one or more competent persons, and upon such examination he, his deputy, or any examiner authorized by him shall have all the powers given to the commissioner of insurance, his deputy, or any examiner authorized by him by law, including the power to examine under oath the officers and agents and all persons deemed to have material information regarding the business or manner of operation by every such person, corporation, association, bureau, or board. The commissioner of insurance shall make public the results of such examination, and shall report to the legislature in his annual report on the methods of such rating organization and the manner of its operation. (1913, c. 145, s. 2; C. S. 6389.)

§ 58-127. Schedule of rates filed.—Every such person, corporation, association, or bureau, as well as every insurance company doing business in the state, shall file with the commissioner of insurance, whenever he may call therefor, any and every schedule of rates or such other information concerning such rates as may be suggested, approved, or made by any such rating organization for the purposes specified in § 58-125, or by such company for its own use. (1913, c. 145, s. 3; 1915, c. 166, s. 8; C. S. 6890.)

§ 58-128. Certain conditions forbidden; no discrimination.—No such person, corporation, association, or bureau shall fix or make any rate or schedule of rates which is to or may apply to any risk within this state, on the condition that the whole amount of insurance on such risk or any specified part thereof shall be placed at such rates, or with the members of or subscribers to such rating organization; nor shall any such person, association, or corporation authorized to transact the business of insurance within this state, fix or make any rate or schedule of rates or charge a rate which discriminates unfairly between risks within this state of essentially the same hazard, or if such rate be a fire insurance rate, which discriminates unfairly between the risks in the application of like charges or credits or which discriminates unfairly between risks of essentially the same hazards and having substantially the same degree of public protection against fire. Whenever it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the commissioner of insurance that such discrimination exists, he may, after a full hearing, either before himself or before any salaried employee of the insurance department whose report he may adopt, order such discrimination removed; and all such persons, corporations, associations, or bureaus affected thereby shall immediately comply therewith; nor shall such persons, corporations, associations, or bureaus remove such discrimination by increasing the rates on any risk or class of risks affected by such order unless it is made to appear to the satisfaction of the commissioner of insurance that such increase is justifiable. (1913, c. 145, s. 4; C. S. 6391.)

§ 58-129. Record to be kept; hearing on rates.—Every such rating organization shall keep a careful record of its proceedings and shall furnish upon demand to any person upon whose property or risk a rate has been made, or to his authorized agent, full information as to such rate, and if such property or risk be rated by schedule, a copy of such schedule; it shall also provide such means as may be approved by the commissioner of insurance whereby any person affected by such rate may be heard, either in person or by agent, before the governing or rating committee or other proper executive of such rating organization on an application for a change in such rate. (1913, c. 145, s. 5; C. S. 6392.)

§ 58-130. Hearing on rates before commissioner of insurance.—Any person, firm, or corporation aggrieved by any rating of a fire insurance company, bureau, or board, may file a complaint in writing with the commissioner of insurance stating in detail the grounds upon which the complainant asks relief. The commissioner shall set a time, not earlier than seven days after the date of the notice, and a place for a hearing upon the complaint. After due hearing the commissioner shall make a finding as to whether the established rate is excessive or unfair, and shall make such recommendations as he deems advisable. The finding and recommendations in each case shall be made a matter of record, and shall be open to public inspection. (1915, c. 166, s. 8; C. S. 6393.)

§ 58-131. Certain insurance contracts excepted.—This article shall not apply to any contract of life insurance, nor to any contract of insurance upon or in connection with marine or transportation risks or hazards other than contracts for automobile insurance, nor to contracts of insurance upon property or risks located without this state, nor title and credit insurance. (1913, c. 145, s. 6; 1935, c. 152; C. S. 6394.)

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1935 this section excepted contracts made on a mutual or coöperative plan. The act further provided that nothing therein shall authorize the Commissioner of Insurance to raise the rates of any mutual insurance company doing business in North Carolina, and that farmers mutual fire insurance companies shall not be required to file such rates.

Art. 14. Real Estate Title Insurance Companies.

§ 58-132. Purpose of organization.—Companies may be formed in the manner provided in this subchapter, with a capital of not less than fifty thousand dollars, for the purpose of examining titles to real estate, of furnishing information in relation thereto, and of insuring owners and others interested therein against loss by reason of encumbrances and defective title. Such companies shall not be subject to the provisions of this chapter except as regards the manner of their formation and as provided in this article. (Rev., s. 4745; 1899, c. 54, s. 38; 1901, c. 391, s. 3; 1923, c. 71; C. S. 6395.)

Notice to Agent.—Where the agent for the insurer was notified prior to the issuance of the renewal policy sued on that the property had been sold by the former owner to another and was requested to issue the renewal policy in the name of the new owner, the policy containing a standard loss payable clause in favor of the holder of the mortgage on the property, the mortgagee was not required to notify the insurer of the change in ownership, it appearing to the mortgagee that such notice had been given the insurer's agent prior to the inception of the policy, the agent in such case being the insurer's alter ego. Mahler v. Milwaukee Mechanics' Ins. Co., 205 N. C. 692, 172 S. E. 204.

§ 58-133. Certificate of authority to do business.—Before any such company may issue any policy or make any contract or guarantee of insurance, it shall file with the commissioner of insurance a certified copy of the record or the certificate of its organization in the office of the secretary of state, and obtain from the commissioner of insurance his certificate that it has complied with the laws applicable to it and that it is authorized to do business. (Rev., s. 4745; 1899, c. 54, s. 38; 1901, c. 391, s. 3; C. S. 6396.)

§ 58-134. Annual statement and license required.—Every such corporation shall, on or before the thirtieth day of January of each year, file in the office of the commissioner of insurance a statement, such as he may require, showing its condition and its affairs for the year ending on the preceding thirty-first day of December, signed and sworn to by its president or secretary or treasurer and one of its directors. For neglect to file such annual statement or for making a wilfully false statement it shall be liable to the same penalties imposed upon other insurance companies. The commissioner of insurance shall annually license such companies and their agents, and have the same power and authority to visit and examine such corporations as he has in the case of other domestic insurance companies; and the duties and liabilities of such corporations and their agents in reference to such examinations are the same as those of other domestic insurance companies. (Rev., s. 4745; 1899, c. 54, s. 38; 1901, c. 391, s. 3; C. S. 6397.)

Cross Reference.—As to examinations to be made by the commissioner, see § 58-16.

Art. 15. Title Insurance Companies and Land Mortgage Companies Issuing Collateral Loan Certificates.

§ 58-135. Issuance of collateral loan certificates; security.—Any domestic land mortgage company or title insurance company having a paid in capital and surplus of at least two hundred thousand ($200,000.00) dollars, may, under the supervision and control of the commissioner of insurance, issue collateral loan certificates, or other certificates of indebtedness secured by the deposit of first mortgages on real estate with the commissioner, or under his direction, or secured by the deposit with the commissioner, or under his direction, of collateral trust bonds secured by first mortgages, the principal and interest of which said mortgages is guaranteed by a surety company having assets of at least ten million ($10,000,000.00) dollars, upon a basis not to exceed one hundred ($100.00) dollars for each one hundred ($100.00) dollars of liability under the collateral loan certificates or other certificates of indebtedness outstanding and secured by such first mortgages or collateral trust bonds. (1927, c. 204, s. 1.)

§ 58-136. Licenses.—Any domestic land mortgage company, or title insurance company, wishing to do business under the provisions of this article upon making written application and submitting proof satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance that its business, capital and other qualifications comply with the provisions of this article, upon paying to the commissioner of insurance, the sum of two hundred dollars as a license fee and all other fees assessed against such company may be licensed to do business in this State under the provisions of this article until the first day of the following April and may have its license renewed for each year thereafter so long as it complies with the provisions of this article and such rules and regulations as may be promulgated by the commissioner of insurance. For each such renewal such company shall pay to the commissioner of insurance the sum of two hundred dollars and all other fees assessed against such company and such renewal shall continue in force and effect until a new license be issued or specifically refused unless revoked for good cause. The commissioner of insurance, or any person appointed by him, shall have the power and authority to make such rules and regulations and examinations not inconsistent with the provisions of this article, as may be in his discretion necessary or proper to enforce the provisions hereof and secure compliance with the terms of this article. For any examination made hereunder the commissioner of insurance shall charge the land mortgage companies or title insurance companies examined with the actual expense of such examination. (1927, c. 204, s. 2.)

§ 58-137. Annual statements furnished. — Every such domestic land mortgage company or title insurance company doing business in this State under this article shall annually file with the commissioner of insurance on or before the first day of March in each year a full and complete sworn statement of its financial condition on the thirty-first day of December next preceding. Such statement shall plainly exhibit all real and contingent assets and liabilities and a complete account of its income and disbursements during the year and shall also exhibit the amount of real estate mortgages deposited by such land mortgage company or title insurance company for the protection of the certificates issued under this article. The commissioner of insurance is hereby empowered to require such further information as may be reasonably necessary to satisfy him that the statements contained in the sworn statements are true and correct. (1927, c. 204, s. 3.)

Art. 16. Reciprocal or Inter-Insurance Exchanges.

§ 58-138. Exchange of insurance contracts authorized; power of attorney.—Individuals, partnerships, and corporations of this state hereby designated as subscribers, are authorized to exchange reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts with each other, or with individuals, partnerships, and corporations of other states and countries, providing indemnity among themselves from any loss which may be insured against under other provisions of the laws, excepting life insurance. Such contracts may be executed by an attorney, agent, or other representative, herein designated attorney, duly authorized and acting for such subscribers.

The attorney in fact for each of such exchanges shall be required to obtain a written power of attorney executed by each of the subscribers and have the same in his or its possession before any contracts of insurance of any kind or description shall be issued or renewed to subscribers, and a full copy of the provisions of the power of attorney used at the exchange and on file with the commissioner of insurance under the requirements of § 58-139, subsection four, shall be incorporated into and made a part of all contracts or policies issued to subscribers in this state. (1913, c. 183, ss. 1, 2; 1937, c. 130; C. S. 6398.)

Editor's Note.—The 1937 amendment added the second paragraph.

§ 58-139. Statement to be filed with commissioner of insurance.—The subscribers, so contracting among themselves, shall, through their attorney, file with the commissioner of insurance of this state a declaration verified by oath of such attorney, setting forth:

1. The name or title of the office at which such subscribers propose to exchange such indemnity contracts. This name or title shall not be so similar to any other name or title previously adopted by a similar organization, or by any insurance corporation or association, as in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance is calculated to result in confusion or deception. The office or offices through which such indemnity contracts shall be exchanged shall be classified as reciprocal or inter-insurance exchanges.

2. The kind or kinds of insurance to be effected or exchanged.

3. A copy of the form of policy, contract, or agreement under or by which the insurance is to be effected or exchanged.

4. A copy of the form of power of attorney or other authority of such attorney under which the insurance is to be effected or exchanged.

5. The location of the office or offices from which such contracts or agreements are to be issued.

6. That applications have been made for indemnity upon at least one hundred separate risks, aggregating not less than one and one-half million dollars as represented by executed contracts or bona fide applications, to become concurrently effective, or, in case of liability or compensation insurance, covering a total pay roll of not less than one and one-half million dollars: Provided, that when the attorney maintains the central office in this state the commissioner of insurance may authorize an exchange with a less number of risks and a smaller amount of indemnity to be exchanged and an amount of cash deposits less than twenty-five thousand dollars.

7. That there is on deposit with such attorney and available for payment of losses a sum of not less than twenty-five thousand dollars. (1913, c. 183, s. 3; C. S. 6399.)

§ 58-140. Agreement for service of process.—At the time of filing the declaration provided for by the preceding section, the attorney shall file with the commissioner of insurance an instrument in writing, executed by him for the subscribers, conditioned that upon the issuance of certificate of authority provided for in this article, service of process may be had upon the commissioner of insurance in all suits in this state arising out of such policies, contracts, or agreements, which service shall be valid and binding upon all subscribers exchanging at any time reciprocal or inter-insurance contracts through such attorney. Three copies of such process shall be served, and the commissioner of insurance shall file one copy, forward one copy to the attorney, and return one copy with his admission of service. (1913, c. 183, s. 4; C. S. 6400.)

§ 58-141. Statement as to amount of risks.—There shall be filed with the commissioner of insurance of this state by such attorney a statement under his oath showing the maximum amount of indemnity upon any single risk, and the attorney shall, whenever and as often as the same shall be required, file with the commissioner of insurance a statement verified by his oath to the effect that he has examined the commercial rating of such subscribers as shown by the reference book of a commercial agency having at least one hundred thousand subscribers, and that from such examination or from other information in his possession it appears that no subscriber has assumed on any single risk an amount greater than ten per cent of the net worth of such subscriber. (1913, c. 183, s. 5; C. S. 6401.)

§ 58-142. Certificate issued by commissioner.—Upon the filing of the foregoing papers, and upon the payment of fees as provided for in this article, the commissioner of insurance shall examine and pass upon the same, and if found correct, and in accordance with this article, issue a certificate of authority, which shall expire on the first day of April next succeeding. (1913, c. 183, s. 6; C. S. 6402.)

§ 58-143. Reserve fund.—There shall at all times be maintained as a reserve a sum in cash or convertible securities equal to fifty per centum of the aggregate net annual deposits collected and credited to the accounts of the subscribers on policies having one year or less to run and pro rata on those for longer periods. For the purpose of said reserve, net annual deposits shall be construed to mean the advance payments of subscribers after deducting therefrom the amounts specifically provided in the subscribers' agreements, for expenses. Said sum shall at no time be less than twenty-five thousand dollars, and if at any time fifty per cent of the aggregate deposits so collected and credited shall not equal that amount, then the subscribers, or their attorney for them, shall make up any deficiency. (1913, c. 183, s. 7; C. S. 6403.)

§ 58-144. Annual reports; examination by commissioner.—The attorney shall make an annual report to the commissioner of insurance for each calendar year, showing the financial condition of affairs at that office where such contracts are issued, and shall furnish such additional information and reports as may be required; but the attorney shall not be required to furnish the names and addresses of any subscribers. The business affairs and assets of the reciprocal or inter-insurance exchanges shall be subject to examination by the commissioner of insurance. (1913, c. 183, s. 8; C. S. 6404.)

§ 58-145. Corporations empowered to exchange insurance.—Any corporation now or hereafter organized under the laws of this state shall, in addition to the rights, powers, and franchises specified in its articles of incorporation, have full power and authority to exchange insurance contracts of the kind and character herein mentioned through exchanges complying with this article. (1913, c. 183, s. 9; C. S. 6405.)

§ 58-146. Punishment for failing to comply with law.—Any attorney or representative who shall, except for the purpose of applying for certificate of authority as herein provided, exchange any contracts of indemnity of the kind and character specified in this article, or directly or indirectly solicit or negotiate any applications for same without first complying with the foregoing provisions, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be subject to a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than five hundred dollars. (1913, c. 183, s. 10; C. S. 6406.)

§ 58-147. Certificate to attorney; revocation.—Each attorney by or through whom are issued any policies or contracts for indemnity of the character referred to in this article shall procure from the commissioner of insurance annually a certificate of authority, stating that all the requirements of this article have been complied with, and upon such compliance and the payment of the fees and taxes required by this article, the commissioner of insurance shall issue such certificate of authority. The commissioner of insurance may revoke or suspend any certificate of authority issued hereunder in case of breach of any of the conditions imposed by this article after reasonable notice has been given the attorney in writing so that he may appear and show cause why such action should not be taken. (1913, c. 183, s. 11; C. S. 6407.)

§ 58-148. Application of general insurance law.—Nothing in the general insurance laws, except as herein provided and as may specifically apply to such contracts and exchanges, shall be construed to extend to inter-insurance or reciprocal exchanges licensed under this article. (1913, c. 183, s. 13; C. S. 6409.)

Art. 17. Foreign Insurance Companies.

§ 58-149. Admitted to do business.—Foreign insurance companies, upon complying with the conditions herein set forth applicable to them, may be admitted to transact in this state, by constituted agents resident herein, any class of insurance authorized by the laws in force relative to the duties, obligations, prohibitions, and penalties of insurance companies, and subject to all laws applicable to the transaction of such business by foreign insurance companies and their agents. (Rev., s. 4746; 1899, c. 54, s. 61; C. S. 6410.)

Rights of Insurer after Admission.—When a foreign insurance company has complied with all the laws of the state, the courts of this state are open to it for the purpose of enforcing liabilities of policy holders. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 32 S. E. 404.

§ 58-150. Conditions of admission. — A foreign insurance company may be admitted and authorized to do business when it:

1. Deposits with the commissioner of insurance a certified copy of its charter or certificate of organization and a statement of its financial condition and business, in such form and detail as he requires, signed and sworn to by its president and secretary or other proper officer, and pays for the filing of this statement the sum required by law.

2. Satisfies the commissioner of insurance that it is fully and legally organized under the laws of its state or government to do the business it proposes to transact; that it has, if a stock company, a fully paid-up and unimpaired capital, exclusive of stockholders' obligations of any description, of an amount not less than $100,000 (but nothing in this subsection applies to companies now authorized to do business in this state); and if a mutual company, other than life, that its net cash assets are equal to the capital required of like companies on the stock plan; or that it possesses net cash assets of not less than $100,000 or net cash assets of not less than $50,000, with, also, invested assets of not less than $100,000, and in each case with additional contingent assets of not less than $300,000, and that such capital or net assets are well invested and immediately available for the payment of losses in this state; and that it insures on any single hazard a sum no larger than one-tenth of its net assets.

3. By a duly executed instrument filed in his office constitutes and appoints the commissioner of insurance and his successor its true and lawful attorney, upon whom all lawful processes in any action or legal proceeding against it may be served, and therein agrees that any lawful process against it which may be served upon such attorney shall be of the same force and validity as if served on the company; and the authority thereof shall continue in force irrevocable so long as any liability of the company remains outstanding in this state. Copies of this instrument, certified by the commissioner of insurance, are sufficient evidence thereof, and service upon such attorney is sufficient service upon the principal.

4. Appoints as its agent or agents in this state some resident or residents thereof.

5. Obtains from the commissioner of insurance a certificate that it has complied with the laws of the state and is authorized to make contracts of insurance. It must also comply with the provisions of this chapter as to deposits and reinsurance by such companies. (Rev., s. 4747; 1899, c. 54, s. 62; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; 1903, c. 438, s. 6; C. S. 6411.)

Cross Reference.—As to deposits required of foreign companies, see §§ 58-57, 58-110, 58-182.

Subsection 3—Power of Attorney Is Irrevocable.—The statute requires the power of attorney executed to the State Insurance Commissioner appointing him attorney upon whom process may be served to be irrevocable not "as long as the company continues to do business" in this State, but as long as "any liability of the company remains outstanding" in this State, and the contract with the State as expressed in the power of attorney filed by the company so specifies. No amount of authorities having a more or less fancied analogy can overcome these plain words of the statute and of the power of attorney drawn and filed in conformity thereto. Biggs v. Life Ass'n, 128 N. C. 7, 37 S. E. 955; Insurance Co. v. Scott, 136 N. C. 157, 48 S. E. 581.

Service of process upon State Commissioner is valid notwithstanding the insurance company attempted to annul the power of attorney conferred upon him under this section. Biggs v. Life Ass'n, 128 N. C. 5, 37 S. E. 955.

Same—Non-Resident Insured.—This section was intended to protect residents of this state and does not apply to policies issued before the statute and transferred to a resident of another state. The service on the commissioner is not valid when the insurance company has ceased doing business in the state and had no further liabilities therein. Williams v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ins. Ass'n, 145 N. C. 128, 58 S. E. 802.

Subsection 4—Brokerage Makes Agency.—Where a citizen of this State applies for a policy in a foreign company through a broker here, and the application is accepted and the policy is delivered, the broker will be deemed to be the agent of the company, and the contract to be made here, subject to the laws of this State. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 32 S. E. 404.

Power of Corporation to Sue and Be Sued.—Where a foreign insurance corporation has fully complied with the provisions of this section, and has moved its head office to this State and has domesticated here, it acquires the right to sue and be sued in the courts of this State as a domestic corporation. Occidental Life Ins. Co. v. Lawrence, 204 N. C. 707, 169 S. E. 636.

Cited in Fuller v. Lockhart, 209 N. C. 61, 182 S. E. 733.

§ 58-151. Limitation as to classes of business.—No insurance company admitted to do business in the state may be authorized to transact more than one class or kind of insurance therein, unless it has the requisite capital for such business engaged in, and such a company may undertake two or more of the classes of insurance set out in article six, § 58-72, of this chapter, upon providing for each additional kind at least fifty thousand dollars additional capital. But if life, fire, and credit insurance is added to any other line or lines, the additional capital shall be one hundred thousand dollars each, and the company shall pay the license taxes and fees for each class or kind of insurance provided by this chapter. (Rev., s. 4748; 1899, c. 54, s. 65; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; 1903, c. 438, s. 6; 1911, c. 111, s. 2; C. S. 6412.)

§ 58-152. Retaliatory laws.—When, by the laws of any other state or nation, any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money or of securities, or other obligations or prohibitions are imposed upon insurance companies of this state doing business in such other state or nation or upon their agents therein greater than those imposed by this state upon insurance companies of such other state, then, so long as such laws continue in force, the same taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits, obligations and prohibitions, of whatever kind, shall be imposed upon all such insurance companies of such other state or nation doing business within this state and upon their agents here. Nothing herein repeals or reduces the license, fees, taxes, and other obligations now imposed by the laws of this state or to go into effect with the companies of any other state or nation unless some company of this state is actually doing or seeking to do business in such state or nation. When an insurance company organized under the laws of any state or country is prohibited by the laws of such state or country or by its charter from investing its assets other than capital stock in the bonds of this state, then and in such case the commissioner of insurance is authorized and directed to refuse to grant a license to transact business in this state to such insurance company. (Rev., s. 4749; 1899, c. 54, s. 71; 1903, c. 536, s. 11; 1927, c. 32; C. S. 6413.)

Editor's Note.—The Public Laws of 1927 inserted in the first sentence of this section the clause reading: "greater than those imposed by this state upon insurance companies of such other state."

Not Repealed by Implication. — This section was not impliedly repealed by the Revenue Acts of 1923 or 1925 (Pub. Laws 1923, c. 4, § 903; 1925 c. 101, § 903). The amendment of the section by Pub. Laws 1927, c. 32 was legislative recognition that it is still in force. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. v. Wade, 195 N. C. 424, 142 S. E. 474.

§ 58-153. Service of legal process upon commissioner of insurance.—The service of legal process upon any insurance, bonding and/or surety company, admitted and authorized to do business in this state under the provisions of this chapter, shall be made by leaving the same in the hands or office of the commissioner of insurance, and no service upon a company that is licensed to do business in this state is valid unless made upon the commissioner of insurance, the general agent for service, or some officer of the company. As a condition precedent to a valid service of process and of the duty of the commissioner in the premises, the plaintiff shall pay to the commissioner of insurance at the time of service the sum of one dollar, which the plaintiff shall recover as taxable costs if he prevails in his action. In any action of which a justice of the peace has jurisdiction, summons may be served on any licensed agent of such company, returnable in not less than ten days from date of service; if there is no such agent in the county, then the summons may be served as provided for in other actions against foreign corporations in a court of a justice of the peace. (Rev., s. 4750; 1899, c. 54, ss. 16, 62; 1903, c. 438, s. 6; 1927, c. 167, s. 1; 1931, c. 287; C. S. 6414.)

Cross Reference.—As to other ways in which a foreign insurance company may be served with a copy of process, see §§ 1-97, 55-38.

Editor's Note.—Prior to the amendment of 1927 this section applied only to foreign insurance companies. By this amendment the word "foreign" was struck out.

There are three ways in which a foreign insurance corporation may be served with a copy of process. Sections 1-97, 55-38 and 58-153. The cases which follow in this note indicate when the method provided by the particular section shall be employed. Reference should be made to secs. 1-97 and 55-38 and the annotations thereto.

The Act of 1931 inserted the words "bonding and/or surety" in line three of this section.

Conditions Precedent to Doing Business in the State.—One of the conditions precedent upon which a foreign insurance company is authorized to do business in this State is that such company will file a duly executed instrument with the Insurance Commissioner, appointing him its attorney, upon whom all lawful process against said company can be served. Biggs v. Life Ass'n, 128 N. C. 5, 6, 37 S. E. 955.

Annullment of Power of Attorney.—The service of a licensed insurance company made upon the commissioner is valid although the insurance company may have attempted to annul the power of attorney, for the statute requires power of attorney to be irrevocable so long as the insurance company has any liabilities in the state. Biggs v. Life Ass'n, 128 N. C. 5, 37 S. E. 955; Moore v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 129 N. C. 31, 39 S. E. 637; Hinton v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Ass'n, 135 N. C. 314, 47 S. E. 474.

Section Provides Cumulative Method.—Service of summons on a foreign insurance company doing business in this State is not restricted to the method prescribed by this section but may be made in the manner stated in section 55-38 or section 1-97. Pardue v. Absher, 174 N. C. 676, 94 S. E. 414.

Unlicensed Companies.—Service can be made under this section only on licensed insurance companies. If it does not affirmatively appear that the insurance company is licensed, service under section 1-97 may be made. Parker v. Insurance Co., 143 N. C. 339, 55 S. E. 717. And service under section 55-38 or section 1-97 will not be invalid because of this section. Fisher v. Traders Mut. Life Ins. Co., 136 N. C. 217, 48 S. E. 667.

However, a foreign insurance company that has no agent in this state and is not licensed or transacting business here cannot be served with process either under this section or § 55-38. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., 192 N. C. 115, 116, 133 S. E. 424. For this section only provides for service on licensed companies doing business in the state and sec. 55-38 only provides for unlicensed companies doing business in the state.

Service on Fraternal Society.—In an action against a foreign fraternal insurance society doing business in this state, service of summons on the commissioner of insurance brings the corporation into court. Brenizer v. Royal Arcanum, 141 N. C. 409, 53 S. E. 835.

§ 58-154. Commissioner to notify company of service of process.—When legal process is served upon the commissioner of insurance as attorney for an insurance company under the provisions of this chapter, he shall immediately notify the company of such service by registered letter directed to its secretary and shall state whether or not complaint was served with the process, or, in case of a foreign country, to its resident manager, if any in the United States; and must within two days after such service forward in the same manner a copy of the process, together with copy of complaint, if any, served on him to such secretary or manager designated by the company by written notice filed in the office of the commissioner: Provided, that the thirty days fixed by statute within which to file answer when complaint is served with summons shall not begin to run until ten days after such service on the commissioner of insurance. The commissioner must keep a record of all such proceedings which shall show the day and hour of such service of process on such commissioner, and whether complaint was served with such process. (Rev., s. 4751; 1899, c. 54, s. 16; 1927, c. 167, s. 2; C. S. 6415.)

§ 58-155. Action to enforce compliance with this chapter.—Compliance with the provisions of this chapter as to deposits, obligations, and prohibitions, and the payment of taxes, fines, fees, and penalties by foreign insurance companies, may be enforced in the ordinary course of legal procedure by action brought in the superior court of Wake county by the attorney-general in the name of the state upon the relation of the commissioner of insurance. (Rev., s. 4752; 1899, c. 54, s. 102; 1903, c. 438, s. 10; C. S. 6416.)

SUBCHAPTER III. FIRE INSURANCE.

Art. 18. General Regulations of Business.

§ 58-156. Riders insuring against damage to sprinkler systems, water damage, etc., permitted. — All insurance companies authorized to transact fire insurance business in this state may, in addition to the business which they are now authorized by law to do, insure sprinklers, pumps, and other apparatus erected or put in position for the purpose of extinguishing fires, against damage, loss, or injury resulting from accidental causes other than fire; and may also insure any property which such companies are authorized to insure against loss or damage by fire, against damage, loss, or injury by water or otherwise, resulting from the accidental breaking of or injury to such sprinklers, pumps, or other apparatus, arising from causes other than fire. Contracts of insurance of this kind, provided for in this section, shall not be incorporated in any contract of insurance against loss or damage by fire, but may be contained in riders attached thereto, the conditions of which shall be prescribed by the commissioner of insurance. (Rev., s. 4754; 1899, c. 54, s. 24; 1907, c. 1000, s. 6; C. S. 6417.)

§ 58-157. Performance of contracts as to devices not prohibited.—Nothing contained in this chapter shall be construed as prohibiting the performance of any contract hereafter made for the introduction or installation of automatic sprinklers or other betterments or improvements for reducing the risk by fire or water on any property located in this State, and containing provisions for obtaining insurance against loss or damage by fire or water, for a specified time at a fixed rate; provided, every policy issued under such contract shall be as provided by law. (1929, ch. 145, s. 1.)

§ 58-158. Policies limited as to amount and term.—No insurance company or agent shall knowingly issue any fire insurance policy upon property within this state for an amount which, together with any existing insurance thereon, exceeds the fair value of the property, nor for a longer term than seven years. Policies issued in violation of this section are binding upon the company issuing them, but the company is liable for the forfeitures by law prescribed for such violation. (Rev., s. 4755; 1899, c. 54, ss. 39, 99; 1903, c. 438, s. 10; C. S. 6418.)

Cross Reference.—As to forfeiture prescribed, see § 58-173.

Determining Amount of Loss.—A statement of an agent acting for his company in writing fire insurance, made after an inspection of the property to be insured, is competent upon the question of the amount of the loss, in the action of the insured to recover upon the policy issued, especially as this section requires that the insurer should know the true value of the property, etc., to be insured before issuing the policy thereon. Queen v. Dixie Fire Ins. Co., 177 N. C. 34, 97 S. E. 741.

Construction of Policy.—Where plaintiffs' property consisted of one building containing three stores, and the insurer contended that the policy issued covered only one of the stores and not the entire building, it appearing that that amount of the policy was greatly in excess of the value of the one store, but was about the value of the entire building, and that insured paid the premium based upon the amount for which the policy was issued, it was held that in construing the policy it would not be presumed that insurer charged a premium based upon a valuation greatly in excess of the value of the property insured in violation of this and § 58-175, but that the policy covered the entire building. Williams v. Greensboro Fire Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 765, 185 S. E. 21.

§ 58-159. Limit of liability on total loss.—When buildings insured against loss by fire and situated within the state are totally destroyed by fire, the company is not liable beyond the actual cash value of the insured property at the time of the loss or damage; and if it appears that the insured has paid a premium on a sum in excess of the actual value, he shall be reimbursed the proportionate excess of premium paid on the difference between the amount named in the policy and the ascertained values, with interest at six per centum per annum from the date of issue. (Rev., s. 4756; 1899, c. 54, s. 40; C. S. 6419.)

§ 58-160. Policies for the benefit of mortgagees.—Where by an agreement with the insured, or by the terms of a fire insurance policy taken out by a mortgagor, the whole or any part of the loss thereon is payable to a mortgagee of the property for his benefit, the company shall, upon satisfactory proof of the rights and title of the parties, in accordance with such terms or agreement, pay all mortgagees protected by such policy in the order of their priority of claim, as their claims appear, not beyond the amount for which the company is liable, and such payments are, to the extent thereof, payment and satisfaction of the liabilities of the company under the policy. (Rev., s. 4757; 1899, c. 54, s. 41; C. S. 6420.)

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 98.

Two or More Mortgages. — Where the owner of lands borrows money thereon under two separate mortgages from different persons, one registered prior to the other, and the mortgagor contracts with each to take out certain policies of fire insurance for their benefit, the rights of the mortgagees to the proceeds under the policies will be determined by the contracts as executed in the loss payable clauses in the policies, and where they are of the New York standard form, and made payable to the mortgagees "as interest may appear," the mortgagee under the prior registered mortgage has a superior lien on the proceeds to the one having the later registered security. Wayne Nat. Bank v. National Bank, 197 N. C. 68, 147 S. E. 691.

Where mortgagor procured insurance for benefit of mortgagee, whose mortgage was registered December 14, 1920, and for the benefit of subsequent mortgagee whose mortgage was not executed until May 11, 1925, claim of first mortgagee should first be paid out of funds derived from policy under this section, providing that where, by terms of fire policy taken out by mortgagor, loss is payable to mortgagee for his benefit, company shall pay all mortgages in order of their priority of claim, and in view of section 47-20, by which priority is given to mortgage which was first recorded. Wayne Nat. Bank v. National Bank, 197 N. C. 68, 147 S. E. 691.

Where Neither Mortgagee Has Claim to Priority.—If neither of two mortgagees, for whom insurance has been procured, has any priority of claim or of liens, the proceeds of the policies will ordinarily be divided between them in proportion to their respective claims. Wayne Nat. Bank v. National Bank, 197 N. C. 68, 147 S. E. 691.

Cited in Peeler v. United States Casualty Co., 197 N. C. 286, 291, 148 S. E. 261.

§ 58-161. Fire loss reported to commissioner before payment.—Every insurance company transacting business in this state shall, upon receiving notice of loss by fire of property in North Carolina, on which it is liable under a policy of insurance, notify the commissioner of insurance thereof, either directly or through some bureau or association approved by the commissioner, and no insurance upon any such property shall be paid by any company until one week after this notification. A company violating this section may be fined by the commissioner of insurance the sum of ten dollars for each offense, and for refusal to comply with its provisions its license may be canceled by the commissioner. (Rev., s. 4822; 1899, c. 54, s. 40; 1903, c. 438, s. 4; 1915, c. 166, s. 4; C. S. 6421.)

§ 58-162. Reinsurance restricted and regulated.—When an application for license, renewal of license, or for admission to this state, is made by a company, whether of this state, of another state of the United States, or of a foreign country, for the transaction of business of fire insurance herein, the company shall, as one of the prerequisites of license and admission, file a sworn declaration signed by its president and secretary, or officers corresponding thereto, that it will not reinsure any risk or part thereof taken by it on any property located in this state with any company not authorized to transact the business of fire insurance in the state. Every fire insurance company admitted shall annually and at such other times as the commissioner of insurance requires, in addition to all returns now required by law of it or its agents or managers, make a return to the commissioner of insurance, in such form and detail as is prescribed by him, of all reinsurance contracted for or effected by it directly or indirectly upon property located in this state, this return to be certified by the oath of its president and secretary, if a company of one of the United States, and if a company of a foreign country, by its president and secretary or by officers corresponding thereto, as to such reinsurance contracted for or effected through the foreign office, and by the United States manager as to such reinsurance effected by the United States branch. If any company, domestic or foreign, directly or indirectly, reinsure any risk taken by it on any property located in this state in any company not duly authorized to transact business herein, or if it refuses or neglects to make the returns required by this section, the commissioner of insurance shall revoke its authority to transact business in this state. The provisions of this section also apply to companies licensed to do reinsurance business only. It is unlawful for any company reinsuring risks on property located in this state to reinsure such risks or parts thereof except in companies authorized by the laws of this state to do business. (Rev., s. 4770; 1899, c. 54, s. 63; 1901, c. 391, s. 5; C. S. 6422.)

§ 58-163. Penalty for reinsuring in unauthorized company.—If any fire insurance company shall, directly or indirectly, reinsure any risk taken by it on any property located in North Carolina in any company not duly authorized to transact business herein, the insurance agent and the company effecting or acting in the negotiation of such reinsurance shall severally be punished by a fine of five hundred dollars. (Rev., s. 3495; 1899, c. 54, ss. 63, 98; C. S. 6423.)

§ 58-164. No action lies on policy of unlicensed company.—No action may be maintained in any court in the state upon a policy or contract of fire insurance issued upon property situated in the state by any company, association, partnership, individual, or individuals that have not been authorized by the commissioner of insurance to transact such insurance business. (Rev., s. 4763; 1899, c. 54, s. 105; C. S. 6424.)

Action by the Insured.—"The statute does not make the policy void in the hands of the assured. The defendant company could not take advantage of its own wrong by receiving the premium and not being responsible." Hay & Bro. v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 82, 83, 85 S. E. 241.

Action by Licensed Companies.—When such foreign corporation has complied with our laws, our courts are open to it for the enforcement of its rights—and should it become insolvent and pass into the hands of a receiver—he, by comity, will be allowed to sue here to enforce the liability of a policy holder. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 32 S. E. 404.

Policies Issued by Brokers.—This section allows an outside company, that is, one that has not complied with our laws, to be sued but not to sue. Its evident purpose was to allow such companies to adjust their fire losses without thereby making themselves liable for penalties or taxes. It certainly never intended to permit such companies to practically nullify our insurance laws by the legal fiction of doing business through a broker instead of an agent. Our insurance laws, applicable equally to domestic and to foreign corporations, are intended not simply for purposes of revenue, but primarily for the protection of our people. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 119, 32 S. E. 404.

§ 58-165. Citizens authorized to procure policies in unlicensed foreign companies.

1. What applicant must show.—The commissioner of insurance, upon the annual payment of a fee of twenty dollars, may issue licenses to citizens of this state, subject to revocation at any time, permitting the person named therein to procure policies of fire insurance on property in this state in foreign insurance companies not authorized to transact business in the state. Before the person named in such a license may procure any insurance in such companies or on any property in this state, he must execute and file with the commissioner of insurance an affidavit that he is unable to procure in companies admitted to do business in the state the amount of insurance necessary to protect such property, and may only procure insurance under such license after he has procured insurance in companies admitted to do business in this state to the full amount which those companies are willing to write on the property; but such licensed person shall not be required to offer any portion of such insurance to any company which is not possessed of cash assets amounting to at least twenty-five thousand dollars, or one which has, within the preceding twelve months, been in an impaired condition.

2. Account and report.—Each person so licensed must keep a separate account of the business done under the license, a certified copy of which account he shall forthwith file with the commissioner of insurance, showing the exact amount of such insurance placed by any person, firm, or corporation, the gross premium charged thereon, the companies in which the same is placed, the date and terms of the policies, and also a report in the same detail of all such policies canceled and the gross return premium thereon.

3. Bond filed.—Before receiving such license the applicant therefor shall execute and deliver to the commissioner of insurance a bond in the penal sum of one thousand dollars, with such sureties as the commissioner of insurance may approve, with a condition that the licensee will faithfully comply with all the requirements of this section, and will file with the commissioner of insurance, in January of each year, a sworn statement of the gross premiums charged for insurance procured or placed, and the gross returned premiums on such insurance canceled under such license during the year ending on the thirty-first day of December next preceding, and at the time of filing such statement will pay into the treasury of the state a sum equal to five per centum of such gross premiums, less return premiums, so reported, or pay such tax at the time of taking out and delivering such policy or policies.

4. Broker may obtain license.—Any broker licensed under this section may, upon application to the commissioner of insurance, be allowed to place policies of insurance with any mutual fire insurance company not doing or licensed to do business in this state, not paying commissions upon business, not having agents to solicit business, and doing only one class of fire insurance business, if he files with the insurance department a certified copy of the charter of each such company, a statement of its financial condition on a blank of the department, and certificate of its authority to do business at its home office, and also receives from the commissioner of insurance a license for each company to do business through him on the payment by him of the license, taxes, and fees required by law. All such contracts of insurance placed through any such broker are valid and legal, and the risks upon which such policies are placed may be examined and inspected by regular agents or inspectors licensed by the insurance department upon the application of the broker writing the insurance.

5. Each resident broker, authorized to procure insurance in nonadmitted companies, shall pay an annual license tax of twenty dollars, and also a tax of five per cent on his gross premium receipts. (Rev., ss. 4715, 4769; 1899, c. 54, ss. 68, 95; 1903, c. 438, s. 7, c. 680; C. S. 6425.)

Liability of the Insurer.—Where a citizen of this State applies for a policy in a foreign company through a broker here, and the application is accepted and the policy is delivered, the broker will be deemed to be the agent of the company, and the contract to be made here, subject to the laws of this State. Commonwealth Mut. Fire Ins. Co. v. Edwards, 124 N. C. 116, 32 S. E. 404.

An insurance company that issues policies to residents of this state, but does not issue them through a broker in this state is not subject to an action under this section. Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 133 S. E. 424.

§ 58-166. Punishment for failure to file affidavit and statements.—If any person licensed to procure insurance in an unauthorized foreign company shall procure, or act in any manner in the procurement or negotiation of, insurance in any unauthorized foreign company, and shall neglect to make and file the affidavit and statements required by the preceding section, he shall forfeit his license and be punished by a fine of not less than one hundred nor more than five hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one year, or by both. (Rev., ss. 3483, 4769; 1899, c. 54, ss. 68, 95; C. S. 6426.)

Referred to in Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 115, 133 S. E. 424.

§ 58-167. Tax deducted from premium; reports filed.—When any person or corporation shall insure any property located in this state with an insurance company not licensed to do business in this state, it shall be the duty of such person or corporation to deduct from the premium charged on the policy or policies issued for such insurance five per centum of the premium and remit the same to the commissioner of insurance of the state, at the same time reporting to the commissioner of insurance the name of the company or companies issuing the policy or policies, the location of the property insured, and the premium charged. The commissioner of insurance shall pay the said amounts to the treasurer of the state. If such report is not made on or before the thirtieth days of July and January of each year for the business done prior to July first and January first preceding, there shall be added to the amount of taxes thereon the sum of one per centum on the first day of each month thereafter. (1915, c. 109, s. 8; C. S. 6427.)

Referred to in Ivy River Land, etc., Co. v. National Fire, etc., Co., 192 N. C. 115, 133 S. E. 424.

§ 58-168. Resident agents required. — Foreign fire insurance companies legally authorized to do business in this state through regularly commissioned and licensed agents located in the state shall not make contracts of fire insurance on property herein, except through such resident agents as are regularly commissioned by them and licensed to write policies of fire insurance in this state. This section does not apply to direct insurance covering the rolling stock of railroad corporations or property in transit while in the possession and custody of railroad corporations or other common carriers. (Rev., s. 4764; 1899, c. 54, s. 107; 1901, c. 391, s. 8; C. S. 6428.)

§ 58-169. Policies through nonresident agent prohibited.—Every fire insurance company authorized to do business in the state is prohibited from authorizing or allowing any person, agent, firm, or corporation who is a nonresident of this state, to issue or cause to be issued, except through a licensed agent, any policy of insurance on property located in the state. (Rev., s. 4765; 1903, c. 488, s. 1; 1905, c. 170; C. S. 6429.)

Validity as to Insured.—Where a foreign insurance company, authorized to do business here under our laws, issues its policy on property situated within the State, but through an agency in another State which is unauthorized to write it here, because of this section, the policy is valid as to the right of action of the insured thereon. Hay & Bros. v. Union Fire Ins. Co., 167 N. C. 82, 83 S. E. 241.

§ 58-170. Licensed agents not to pay commissions to nonresident or unlicensed persons.—Any person, firm, or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance to act as a fire insurance agent in this state is prohibited from paying directly or indirectly any commission, brokerage, or other valuable consideration on account of any policy covering property in this state, to any person, firm, or corporation who is a nonresident of the state, or to any person, firm, or corporation not duly licensed by the commissioner of insurance as a fire insurance agent; but a fire insurance agent licensed in the state may pay a commission not exceeding fifty per centum of the regular commissions allowed upon the issuance of such policies to a licensed nonresident broker. The commissioner of insurance is authorized to license a non-resident as a broker when he applies therefor on a proper blank of the department and makes affidavit that he will not during the fiscal year place directly or indirectly any fire insurance on any property located in North Carolina except through licensed resident agents of the state, that he is a broker in good faith and proposes to hold himself out as such. The fee for this license and seal is ten dollars. (Rev., s. 4766; 1903, c. 488, s. 2; 1905, c. 170, s. 2; 1923, c. 4, s. 70; 1925, c. 70, s. 6; C. S. 6430.)

§ 58-171. Revocation of license for violation; power of commissioner.—When the commissioner of insurance has information of a violation of any of the provisions of §§ 58-169 and 58-170, he shall immediately investigate or cause to be investigated such violation, and if a fire insurance company has violated any of such provisions he shall immediately revoke its license for not less than three nor more than six months for a first offense, and for each offense thereafter for not less than one year. If a person, firm, or corporation licensed by the commissioner of insurance as a fire insurance agent violates or causes to be violated any of the provisions of those sections, he shall for the first offense have his license revoked for all companies for which he has been licensed for not less than three nor more than six months, and for the second offense he shall have his license revoked for all companies for which he is licensed, and he shall not thereafter be licensed for any company for one year from the date of the revocation. For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of those sections the commissioner of insurance is authorized and empowered to examine persons, administer oaths, and send for papers and records. A failure or refusal on the part of any fire insurance company, person, firm, or corporation licensed to do business in this state to appear before the commissioner of insurance when requested to do so, or to produce records and papers, or answer under oath, subjects such company, person, firm, or corporation to the penalties of this section. (Rev., s. 4767; 1903, c. 488, ss. 3, 4; C. S. 6431.)

§ 58-172. Agreements restricting agent's compensation; penalty.—It is unlawful for any fire insurance company, association, or partnership doing business in this state employing an agent who is employed by another fire insurance company, association, or partnership, either directly or through any organization or association, to enter into, make or maintain any stipulation or agreement in restraint of or limiting the compensation which said agent may receive from any other fire insurance company, association, or partnership, or forbidding or prohibiting reinsurance of the risks of a domestic fire insurance company in whole or in part by any company holding membership in or coöperating with such bureau or board. The penalty for any violation of this section shall be a fine of not less than two hundred and fifty dollars nor more than five hundred dollars and the forfeiture of license to do business in this state for a period of twelve months thereafter. (Rev., ss. 3491, 4768; 1905, c. 424; 1915, c. 166, ss. 2, 3; C. S. 6432.)

§ 58-173. Punishment for issuing fire policies contrary to law.—Any insurance company or agent who makes, issues, or delivers a policy of fire insurance in wilful violation of the provisions of this chapter which prohibit a domestic insurance company from issuing policies before obtaining certificate and authority from the commissioner of insurance; or which prohibit the issuing of a fire insurance policy for more than the fair value of the property or for a longer term than seven years; or which prohibit stipulations in insurance contracts restricting the jurisdiction of courts, or limiting the time within which an action may be brought to less than one year after the cause of action accrues or to less than six months after a nonsuit by the plaintiff, shall forfeit for each offense not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars; but the policy shall be binding upon the company issuing it. (Rev., s. 4832; 1899, c. 54, s. 99; 1903, c. 438, s. 10; C. S. 6433.)

Art. 19. Fire Insurance Policies.

§ 58-174. Terms and conditions must be set out in policy.—In all insurance against loss by fire the conditions of insurance must be stated in full, and the rules and by-laws of the company are not a warranty or a part of the contract, except as incorporated in full into the policy. (Rev., s. 4758; 1899, c. 54, s. 42; C. S. 6434.)

§ 58-175. Items to be expressed in policies; agent to inspect risks.—Upon request there shall be printed, stamped, or written on each fire policy issued in this state the basis rate, deficiency charge, the credit for improvements, and the rate at which written, and whenever a rate is made or changed on any property situated in this state upon request a full statement thereof showing in detail the basis rate, deficiency charges and credits, as well as rate proposed to be made, shall be delivered to the owner or his representative having the insurance on the property in charge, by the company, association, their agent or representative, with a notice to the effect that the rate is promulgated and filed with the insurance department. Every agent of a fire insurance company shall, before issuing a policy of insurance on property situated in a city or town, inspect the same, informing himself as to its value and insurable condition. (1915, c. 109, s. 3; 1925, c. 70, s. 3; C. S. 6435.)

§ 58-176. Standard policy adopted.—No fire insurance company shall issue fire insurance policies on property in this state other than those of the standard form filed in the office of the commisioner of insurance of the state, known and designated as the standard fire insurance policy of the state of North Carolina, except as follows: (a) A company may print on or in its policies its name, location, and date of incorporation, the amount of its paid-up capital stock, the names of its officers and agents, the number and date of the policy, and if it is issued through an agent, the words: "This policy shall not be valid until countersigned by the duly authorized manager or agent of the company at .....," and after the words "Standard Fire Insurance Policy of the State of North Carolina," on the back of the form, the names of such other states as have adopted this standard form. (b) A company may use in its policies written or printed forms of description and specification of the property insured. (c) A company insuring against damage by lightning may print in the clause enumerating the perils insured against, the additional words, "also any damage by lightning, whether fire ensues or not," and in the clause providing for an apportionment of loss in case of other insurance, the words, "whether by fire, lightning, or both." (d) A company insuring against damage by windstorm, cyclones and tornadoes may print in the clause enumerating the perils insured against, the additional words, "also any damage by windstorm, cyclones and tornadoes, whether fire ensues or not," and in the clause providing for apportionment of loss in case of other insurance, the words, "whether by fire, windstorm, cyclones, tornadoes or all." Such company may also print after the other conditions of the standard fire policy such provisions and conditions especially applicable to windstorms, cyclones, and tornadoes. The company may also make such change in the heading and preliminary statements of such combined policy form as may be necessary, all in such form as may be approved by the commissioner of insurance. (e) A company may write or print upon the margin or across the face of a policy, or write or print in type not smaller than long primer or ten point Roman-faced, upon separate slips or riders to be attached thereto, provisions adding to or modifying those contained in the standard form, and all such slips, riders, and provisions must be signed by the officers or agents of the company so using them. The iron safe or any similar clause requiring the taking of inventories, the keeping of books and producing the same in the adjustment of any loss, shall not be used or operative in the settlement of losses on buildings, furniture and fixtures, or any property not subject to any change in bulk and value. (f) Every mutual company shall cause to appear in the body of its policy the total amount for which the assured may be liable under the charter of the company. (g) The company may print on or in its policy, with the approval of the commissioner of insurance, if the same is not already included in such standard form, any provision which any such corporation is required by law to insert in its policies not in conflict with the provisions of such standard form. Such provisions shall be printed apart from the other provisions, agreements, or conditions of the policy, under a separate title, as follows: "Provisions Required by Law to be Inserted in This Policy." (Rev., s. 4759; 1899, c. 54, s. 43; 1901, c. 391, s. 4; 1907, c. 800, s. 1; 1915, c. 109, s. 10; 1925, c. 70, s. 5; C. S. 6436.)

Cross Reference.—See § 58-177 and notes thereto.

Validity and Binding Effect.—The terms and conditions of the standard form of a fire insurance policy, as provided for in this section and the section following, and the stipulations as to a valid waiver thereof, are valid and binding on the parties. Midkiff v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 139, 147 S. E. 812.

§ 58-177. Form of standard policy.—The standard form of policy must be plainly printed, no part of it may be in type smaller than that used in printing the form on file in the office of the commissioner of insurance, and shall be as follows:

[Space for insertion of name of company or companies issuing the policy and other matter permitted to be stated at the head of the policy.]

Amount $.... Rate .... Premium $ ....

In consideration of the stipulations herein named and of .... dollars premium does insure .... and legal representatives, to the extent of the actual cash value (ascertained with proper deductions for depreciation) of the property at the time of loss or damage, but not exceeding the amount which it would cost to repair or replace the same with material of like kind and quality within a reasonable time after such loss or damage, without allowance for any increased cost of repair or reconstruction by reason of any ordinance or law regulating construction or repair and without compensation for loss resulting from interruption of business or manufacture, for the term of ..... from the ..... day of ....., 19 ...., at noon, to the ..... day of ....., 19 ...., at noon, against all direct loss and damage by fire and by removal from premises endangered by fire except as herein provided, to an amount not exceeding ..... dollars to the following described property while located and contained as described herein, or pro rata for five days at each proper place to which any of the property shall necessarily be removed for preservation from fire, but not elsewhere, to wit:

[Space for description of property.]

This policy is made and accepted subject to the foregoing stipulations and conditions, and to the stipulations and conditions printed on the back hereof, which are hereby made a part of the policy, together with such other provisions, stipulations, and conditions as may be endorsed hereon or added hereto as herein provided.

In witness whereof, this company has executed and attested these presents.

[Space for date and for signatures and titles of officers and agents.]

Fraud, misrepresentation, etc.—This entire policy is void if the insured has concealed or misrepresented any material fact or circumstance concerning this insurance or the subject thereof; or in case of any fraud or false swearing by the insured touching any matter relating to this insurance or the subject thereof, whether before or after a loss.

Property which cannot be insured.—This policy shall not cover accounts, bills, currency, deeds, evidences of debt, money, notes or securities.

Hazards not covered.—This company shall not be liable for loss or damage caused directly or indirectly by invasion, insurrection, riot, civil war, or commotion, or military or usurped power, or by order of any civil authority; or by theft; or by neglect of the insured to use all reasonable means to save and preserve the property at and after a fire or when the property is endangered by fire in neighboring premises.

This entire policy is void, unless otherwise provided by agreement in writing added hereto—

Ownership, etc.—(a) if the interest of the insured is other than unconditional and sole ownership; or (b) if the subject of insurance is a building on ground not owned by the insured in fee simple; or (c) if, with the knowledge of the insured, foreclosure proceedings are commenced or notice given of sale of any property insured hereunder by reason of any mortgage or trust deed; or (d) if any change, other than by the death of an insured, takes place in the interest, title, or possession of the subject of insurance (except change of occupants without increase of hazard); or (e) if this policy is assigned before a loss.

Unless otherwise provided by agreement in writing added hereto, this company is not liable for loss or damage occurring—

Other insurance.—(a) while the insured has any other contract of insurance, whether valid or not, on property covered in whole or in part by this policy; or

Increase of hazard.—(b) while the hazard is increased by any means within the control or knowledge of the insured; or

Repairs, etc.—(c) while mechanics are employed in building, altering, or repairing the described premises beyond a period of fifteen days; or

Explosives, gas, etc.—(d) while illuminating gas or vapor is generated on the described premises; or while (any usage or custom to the contrary notwithstanding) there is kept, used, or allowed on the described premises fireworks, greek fire, phosphorus, explosives, benzine, gasoline, naphtha, or any other product of petroleum of greater inflammability than kerosene oil, gunpowder exceeding twenty-five pounds, or kerosene oil exceeding five barrels; or

Factories.—(e) if the subject of insurance is a manufacturing establishment while operated in whole or in part between the hours of ten p. m. and five a. m., or while it ceases to be operated beyond a period of ten days; or

Unoccupancy.—(f) while a described building, whether intended for occupancy by owner or tenant, is vacant or unoccupied beyond a period of ten days; or

Excepted property.—(g) to bullion, manuscripts, mechanical drawings, dyes, or patterns; or

Explosion, lightning.—(h) by explosion or lightning, unless fire ensues, and, in that event, for loss or damage by fire only.

Chattel mortgage.—Unless otherwise provided by agreement in writing added hereto this company is not liable for loss or damage to any property insured hereunder while encumbered by a chattel mortgage, and during the time of such encumbrance this company is liable only for loss or damage to any other property insured hereunder.

Fall of building.—If a building, or any material part thereof, falls, except as the result of fire, all insurance by this policy on such building or its contents immediately ceases.

Added clauses.—The extent of the application of insurance under this policy and of the contribution to be made by this company in case of loss or damage, and any other agreement not inconsistent with or a waiver of any of the conditions or provisions of the policy, may be provided for by rider added hereto.

Waiver.—No one has power to waive any provision or condition of this policy except such as by the terms of the policy is the subject of agreement added hereto, nor shall any such provision or condition be waived unless the waiver is in writing added hereto, nor shall any provision or condition of this policy or any forfeiture be waived by any requirement, act, or proceeding on the part of this company relating to appraisal or to any examination herein provided for; nor shall any privilege or permission affecting the insurance hereunder exist or be claimed by the insured unless granted herein or by rider added hereto.

Cancellation of policy.—This policy will be canceled at any time at the request of the insured, in which case the company shall, upon demand and surrender of the policy, refund the excess of paid premium above the customary short rates for the expired time. The policy may be canceled at any time by the company by giving to the insured a five days written notice of cancellation with or without tender of the excess of paid premium above the pro rata premium for the expired time, which excess, if not tendered, shall be refunded on demand. Notice of cancellation must state that the excess premium (if not tendered) will be refunded on demand.

Pro rata liability.—This company will not be liable for a greater proportion of any loss or damage than the amount hereby insured bears to the whole insurance covering the property, whether valid or not and whether collectible or not.

Noon.—The word "noon" herein means noon of standard time at the place of loss or damage.

Mortgagee.—If loss or damage is made payable, in whole or in part, to a mortgagee, this policy may be canceled as to such interest by giving to the mortgagee a ten days written notice of cancellation. Upon failure of the insured to render proof of loss, such mortgagee shall, as if named as insured hereunder, but within sixty days after such failure, render proof of loss and be subject to the provisions hereof as to appraisal and time of payment. On payment to a mortgagee of any sum for loss or damage hereunder, if this company claims that as to the mortgagor or owner no liability existed, it shall, to the extent of such payment, be subrogated to the mortgagee's right of recovery and claim upon the collateral to the mortgage debt, but without impairing the mortgagee's right to sue; or it may pay the mortgage debt and require an assignment thereof and of the mortgage. Except as stated in this paragraph, the agreement between a mortgagee and this company shall be only as stated by rider added hereto.

Requirements in case of loss.—The insured shall give immediate notice, in writing, to this company, of any loss or damage, protect the property from further damage, forthwith separate the damaged and undamaged personal property, put it in the best possible order, furnish a complete inventory of the destroyed, damaged and undamaged property, stating the quantity and cost of each article and the amount claimed thereon; and the insured shall, within sixty days after the fire, unless such time is extended in writing by this company, render to this company a proof of loss, signed and sworn to by the insured, stating the knowledge and belief of the insured as to the time and origin of the fire; the interest of the insured and of all others in the property; the cash value of each item thereof, and the amount of loss or damage thereto; all encumbrances thereon; all other contracts of insurance, whether valid or not, covering any of said property; and a copy of all the descriptions and schedules in all policies; any changes in the title, use, occupation, location, possession, or exposures of said property since the issuing of this policy; and by whom and for what purpose any building herein described and the several parts thereof were occupied at the time of fire; and shall furnish, if required, verified plans and specifications of any building, fixtures, or machinery destroyed or damaged. The insured, as often as is reasonably required, shall exhibit to any person designated by this company all that remains of any property herein described, and submit to examinations under oath by any person named by this company, and subscribe the same; and, as often as is reasonably required, shall produce for examination all books of account, bills, invoices, and other vouchers, or certified copies thereof, if originals are lost, at such reasonable time and place as is designated by this company or its representative, and shall permit extracts and copies thereof to be made.

Appraisal.—In case the insured and this company fail to agree as to the amount of loss or damage, each shall, on the written demand of either, select a competent and disinterested appraiser. The appraisers shall first select a competent and disinterested umpire; and failing for fifteen days to agree upon such umpire, then, on request of the insured or this company, the umpire shall be selected by a judge of a court of record in the state in which the property insured is located. The appraisers shall then appraise the loss and damage, stating separately sound value and loss or damage to each item; and failing to agree, shall submit their differences only to the umpire. An award in writing, so itemized, of any two, when filed with this company, shall determine the amount of sound value and loss or damage. Each appraiser shall be paid by the party selecting him, and the expenses of appraisal and umpire shall be paid by the parties equally.

Company's options.—It is optional with this company to take all, or any part, of the articles at the agreed or appraised value, and also to repair, rebuild, or replace the property lost or damaged with other of the like kind and quality within a reasonable time, on giving notice of its intention so to do within thirty days after the receipt of the proof of loss herein required; but Abandonment.—There can be no abandonment to this company of any property.

When loss payable.—The amount of loss or damage for which this company may be liable shall be payable sixty days after proof of loss, as herein provided, is received by this company and ascertainment of the loss or damage is made either by agreement between the insured and this company expressed in writing or by the filing with this company of an award as herein provided.

Suit.—No suit or action on this policy, for the recovery of any claim, shall be sustainable in any court of law or equity unless the insured has complied with all the requirements of this policy, nor unless commenced within twelve months next after the fire.

Subrogation. — This company may require from the insured an assignment of all right of recovery against any party for loss or damage to the extent that payment therefor is made by this company.

It is important that the written portions of all policies covering the same property read exactly alike. If they do not, they should be made uniform at once. (Rev., s. 4760; 1899, c. 54, s. 43; 1901, c. 391, s. 4; 1915, c. 109, s. 9; C. S. 6437.)

I. THE APPLICATION AND CONTRACT IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 98.

Part of Law.—The material provisions of the standard form of a fire insurance policy written in accordance with this section are those of the law. Greene v. Insurance Co., 196 N. C. 335, 145 S. E. 616.

Rights of Parties Determined from Instrument.—When a policy of insurance, in the form prescribed by this section, has been issued by an insurance company and accepted by the insured, and has thereby become effective for all purposes as their contract, the rights and liabilities of both the insurer and the insured, under the policy, must be ascertained and determined in accordance with its terms and provisions. These terms and provisions have been prescribed by statute, and are valid in all respects; they are just both to the insurer and to the insured. Each is presumed to know all the terms, provisions and conditions which are included in the policy. Both are ordinarily bound by them. Lancaster v. Ins. Co., 153 N. C. 285, 69 S. E. 214; Midkiff v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 139, 141, 147 S. E. 812.

Same—Loss—Payable Clause.—The rights of the parties under a loss-payable clause in a policy of fire insurance will be determined in accordance with the terms and provisions of the contract, which derive no extra validity by reason of the fact that the form is prescribed by law. Atlantic Joint Stock Land Bank v. Foster, 217 N. C. 415, 8 S. E. (2d) 235.

Agreements in the policy contrary to statutory provisions are void. Buckner v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 640, 184 S. E. 520.

Binder Slips Not Contrary to Law.—Our statute, by establishing a standard form of fire insurance, does not prevent the binding effect of a parol agreement of insurance, looking to the delivery of the policy according to the form prescribed and evidenced by a written memorandum thereof, called a binder; and when such is shown to have been made in a manner to bind the company, it is in force from that time, and thereafter the insured is responsible for the loss in accordance with the terms of the statutory form of policy. Lea v. Atlantic Fire Ins. Co., 168 N. C. 478, 84 S. E. 813.

Oral Contract with Agent.—In the absence of fraud an insurance company cannot be held liable upon a parol contract alleged to have been made by its agent, which is contradictory of and totally inconsistent with the standard form prescribed by statute. Hardin v. Liverpool, etc., Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 423, 127 S. E. 353.

Right to Cancel.—Either party to the contract may cancel the standard form policies without the consent of the other, by following the provisions of the policy applicable; the expression in other forms of policies that the policy "may be canceled" is construed as reading, "shall be canceled." Roberta Mfg. Co. v. Royal Exch. Assur. Co., 161 N. C. 88, 76 S. E. 865.

The provision in this section is for the protection of the insured, and the insurer cannot effect cancellation until the expiration of five days from the receipt of the written notice by plaintiff, and whether plaintiff intends to waive this provision and does waive it by returning the policy as requested is for the determination of the jury. Wilson v. National Union Fire Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 635, 174 S. E. 745.

Applied in Pettit v. Wood-Owen Trailer Co., 214 N. C. 335, 199 S. E. 279.

II. TITLE OR INTEREST OF INSURED.

Unconditional Ownership.—The provision in a policy of fire insurance written in accordance with the standard statutory form, that the policy should be void if the insured was not the unconditional owner of the property in fee simple is not waived by a written agreement providing that the agreement was solely for the purpose of determining the loss and to save time to the parties and that it should not operate as a waiver of any conditions or provisions of the policy. Sasser v. Pilot Fire Ins. Co., 203 N. C. 232, 165 S. E. 684.

The requirement of "unconditional and sole ownership" in a policy of fire insurance in the standard form as required by this section, is statutory as well as contractual. Roberts v. American Alliance Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 1, 192 S. E. 873, 113 A. L. R. 310.

Right of Insurer to Know of Encumbrances.—"In referring to this principle of law in Weddington v. Piedmont Fire Ins. Co., 141 N. C. 234, 54 S. E. 271, Mr. Justice Walker says: 'The validity of a provision in a policy of insurance against the creating of encumbrances without the consent of the insurer can hardly be contested at this late day. It has now become the settled doctrine of the courts that the facts in regard to title, ownership, encumbrances, and possession of the insured property are all important to be known by the insurer, as the character of the hazard is often affected by these circumstances.'" Watson v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 159 N. C. 638, 640, 75 S. E. 1105.

Misrepresentations as to Title.—Misrepresentations as to title of part of the premises insured avoids the entire contract of insurance. Cuthberton v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 96 N. C. 480, 2 S. E. 258, citing note in 19 L. R. A. 212.

Existing Lien Will Not Violate Provision.—The stipulation in a fire policy for sole and unconditional ownership is not violated by the existence of a lien on the property. Lancaster v. Southern Ins. Co., 153 N. C. 285, 69 S. E. 214.

Mortgagee Not Liable for Premiums.—The provision in the loss payable clause of a fire insurance policy taken out by the mortgagor that the mortgagee will pay the premium on demand should the mortgagor not do so, is held to be a condition upon which the mortgagee may receive the benefit of the protection afforded by the policy as a special contract made in his favor, and not as a covenant that he will pay the premium on demand of the insurer, upon the mortgagor's default; and upon the mortgagee's refusal or neglect to pay the premiums in default upon the insurer's demand, the latter may after ten days' written notice cancel the policy. Whitehead v. Wilson Knitting Mills, 194 N. C. 281, 139 S. E. 456, 56 A. L. R. 674, and cases there cited.

Title under Executory Contract.—A vendee of land occupying it under an executory contract, on which he has paid a portion of the price, and on which he has erected a building is an "unconditional and sole owner" in fee simple within the conditions of a fire policy providing that it shall be void if the interest of the insured is other than sole ownership of fee title. Jordan v. Hanover Fire Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 341, 66 S. E. 206.

Mortgage Invalidates Policy.—Where the insured fails to state that the property was mortgaged, when in fact it was mortgaged, the policy providing that the contract of insurance would be void if the insured property was mortgaged, invalidates the policy, though the omission was made without the intent to deceive. Hayes v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 702, 44 S. E. 404.

Execution of a mortgage on the insured property so affects title, as will avoid an insurance policy then existing thereon and forfeit its benefit, if made without the knowledge or consent of the insurance company, and not attested as prescribed by the policy contract, unless the company thereafter, by its acts, conduct and statements has waived the effect of the mortgage and is estopped to assert its forfeiture. Modlin v. Atlantic Fire Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 35, 65 S. E. 605.

Assignment for Creditors.—Making an assignment for creditors avoids a policy containing an unconditional ownership clause. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869.

The commencement of foreclosure against insured property terminates the policy, there being in the policy a provision to that effect. Hayes v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 702, 44 S. E. 404.

Removal of Encumbrance before Loss.—Where the owner of an unencumbered automobile insures it under a statutory form of policy, stipulating, among other things, that the policy would be void if the interest of the assured be other than unconditional or sole ownership, or if the property be or become encumbered by a chattel mortgage, and thereafter gives a mortgage thereon which is canceled four days before the destruction of the machine by fire, this loss coming within the terms of the policy, the cancellation of the mortgage revives the original status of the policy, the temporary violation of the stipulation being immaterial, and puts the policy again in force, the effect of the mortgage being to invalidate the policy during the continuance of the lien, or to suspend the obligation of the insurance company during the violation of the stipulation. Cottingham v. Maryland Motor Car Ins. Co., 168 N. C. 259, 84 S. E. 274.

Waiver.—Where a policy of fire insurance has been issued under the statutory standard form, the condition therein of sole and unconditional ownership of the insured cannot be held to have been waived by the insurer or its agent in the absence of knowledge that the insured's ownership was otherwise than stated in the policy contract. Hardin v. Liverpool, etc., Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 423, 127 S. E. 353. But where the agent issues the policy with full knowledge of the state of the title the condition is waived. Gerringer v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 133 N. C. 407, 45 S. E. 773. As to waiver of other conditions, see the next succeeding analysis line of this note.

A breach of the condition that the policy is void if the insured has not the sole and unconditional title is valid and enforceable by the company without the necessity of disclaiming liability upon notice or knowledge of its infraction, and inaction on its part in this respect is not a waiver thereof. Smith v. National Ben Franklin Fire Ins. Co., 193 N. C. 446, 137 S. E. 310.

III. CERTAIN OTHER CONDITIONS.

Additional Insurance—In General.—The condition against additional insurance on the property is valid and enforceable. Black v. Atlantic Home Ins. Co., 148 N. C. 169, 61 S. E. 672.

And when under a fire insurance policy the insured has violated the provision of the policy by placing more concurrent insurance on the property than the policy permits, the policy is invalid in accordance with the statutory form. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869.

Where a standard fire insurance policy under this section, provides that the policy should be void if the insured procures other contemporaneous insurance on the same property during the term covered, unless the insurer agrees thereto and a writing to that effect is attached to the policy contract, the provision is valid and binding. Johnson v. Aetna Ins. Co., 201 N. C. 362, 160 S. E. 454.

A policy of fire insurance was issued to the devisee of the fee in property subject to a charge in favor of other beneficiaries under the will. Thereafter the guardian of such other beneficiaries took out a policy to protect the interest of his wards. It was held that the insurer issuing the policy to the guardian may not avoid liability thereon, on the ground of the additional insurance issued to the owner of the fee, since such additional insurance was not issued to or for the benefit of those insured under its policy. Bryan v. Old Colony Ins. Co., 213 N. C. 391, 196 S. E. 345.

Same—Waiver of Condition by Agent.—Where the insured before taking out additional insurance mentioned his intention to the companies' subagent who had issued its policy to the insured, and was told that it was all right, this constituted a waiver of the condition. Grubbs v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 108 N. C. 472, 13 S. E. 236.

The Iron-Safe Clause.—The "iron-safe clause" in policies of insurance is upheld by the courts as a reasonable contract limitation upon the insurer's risk. Coggins v. Aetna Ins. Co., 144 N. C. 7, 56 S. E. 506.

A substantial compliance with this provision will suffice. Arnold v. Indemnity Fire Ins. Co., 152 N. C. 232, 67 S. E. 574. And an inventory of a stock of general merchandise containing the number of articles and cost of each class at a date made about one month before the fire, and testified to as being practically the same as on the date of the fire, is a substantial compliance with the inventory provision in the standard form of a fire insurance policy, and is competent as evidence upon the trial. Mortt v. Liverpool, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 8, 133 S. E. 337. See also, Coggins v. Aetna Ins. Co., 144 N. C. 7, 56 S. E. 506.

Same—Waiver.—If the company, knowing the insured has not complied with this provision, collects the premiums and recognizes the validity and binding force and effect of the policy it has issued, it should not be heard to insist upon the introduction of records, the keeping of which it has thus tacitly waived. Bullard v. Pilot Fire Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 34, 37, 126 S. E. 179.

Proof of Loss.—A clause in a policy requiring proof of loss and forbidding the bringing of any suit upon the policy until sixty days thereafter is a continuing one, and does not mean that failure to file proof within sixty days of the fire works a forfeiture of the policy. Higson v. North River Ins. Co., 152 N. C. 206, 209, 67 S. E. 509.

The insurer's denial of liability upon its fire insurance policy is a waiver of its right to require the proof of loss therein specified. Profitt Mercantile Co. v. State Mut. Fire Ins. Co., 176 N. C. 545, 97 S. E. 476.

As to limitations, see post, this note, "Liability of Company in Case of Loss," IV.

Operating Mill at Night.—Where an insured mill was operated at night, in violation of a policy, but under a permit from the insurance agent, such operation was no defense to an action on the policy for a loss happening three months after the violation had ceased. Strause v. Palatine Ins. Co., 128 N. C. 64, 38 S. E. 256, cited in note in 45 L. R. A., N. S., 126.

Permit When House Unoccupied.—The statutory form of a standard fire insurance policy requiring a permit to be issued for the house insured when unoccupied for more than ten days is a provision materially affecting the risk, and must be obtained in accordance with the requirements of the policy to make the insurer liable for damages by fire occurring after ten days vacancy, and after the policy has been issued and is in binding effect, the local agent of the insurer is without authority to bind his principal by acts and parol representations made contrary to the terms of the written instrument. Greene v. Insurance Co., 196 N. C. 335, 145 S. E. 616.

Waiver of Stipulations.—Argall v. Old North State Ins. Co., 84 N. C. 355, holds that a breach of a condition in the policy will not avoid it, if the insurer has knowledge thereof, and does not object, in which case the breach is considered as waived. Scottish Fire Ins. Co. v. Stuyvesant Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 485, 489, 76 S. E. 728.

An agent of a fire insurance company whether general or local, cannot waive the requirements of a standard policy except in the form prescribed by the statute. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869.

"The rule applying to a state of facts is thus stated in Bullard v. Pilot Fire Ins. Co., 189 N. C. 34, 126 S. E. 179: 'The provision restricting the agent's power to waive conditions does not, as a general rule, refer to or include conditions existing at the inception of the contract, but to those arising after the policy is issued. Conditions which form a part of the contract of insurance at its inception may be waived by the agent of the insurer, although they are embraced in the policy when it is delivered; and the local agent's knowledge of such conditions is deemed to be the knowledge of his principal.' Hayes v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 702, 44 S. E. 404; Weddington v. Piedmont Fire Ins. Co., 141 N. C. 234, 54 S. E. 271; Johnson v. Rhode Island Ins. Co., 172 N. C. 142, 90 S. E. 124; Fireman's Fund Ins. Co. v. Rowland Lumber Co., 186 N. C. 269, 119 S. E. 362." Smith v. National Ber. Franklin Fire Ins. Co., 193 N. C. 446, 448, 137 S. E. 310.

Sending a check in payment of the claim may constitute a waiver, whether received or not, of unfulfilled conditions. Roper v. National Fire Ins. Co., 161 N. C. 151, 76 S. E. 869. As to waiver of stipulations as to title of property insured, see ante, this note, "Title or Interest of Insured," II.

The terms and conditions of standard form of a fire insurance policy and the stipulations as to a valid waiver thereof are valid and binding on the parties. Midkiff v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 197 N. C. 139, 147 S. E. 812.

IV. LIABILITY OF COMPANY IN CASE OF LOSS.

Companies Option.—A provision in a policy of fire insurance, by which, in case of loss, it is made optional with the insurer to repair, rebuild, or replace the property destroyed, by giving notice within a certain time, constitutes a contract exclusively between insurer and insured; and neither a judgment creditor nor a mortgagee can interpose to prevent its performance; and if the insurer has not given notice of an intention to repair, etc., within the time specified, no one but the insured can take advantage of it and require the payment of the insurance money instead. Stamps v. Commercial Fire Ins. Co., 77 N. C. 209, 24 Am. Rep. 443, cited in note in 26 L. R. A. 857.

Damage by Water—An insurance company is liable on a fire insurance policy for damages done to goods by water used in saving them from destruction by fire. Whitehurst v. Fayetteville Mut. Ins. Co., 51 N. C. 352.

Loss by Theft.—Losses by theft consequent on the removal of goods are fairly within the contract to insure against fire. Whitehurst v. Fayetteville Mut. Ins. Co., 51 N. C. 352, cited in note in 35 L. R. A., N. S., 892.

Amount Recoverable.—In an action on a policy of insurance, the measure of the amount the insured is entitled to recover is the fair cash value of the property at the time and place of the loss. Fowler v. Old North State Ins. Co., 74 N. C. 89; Grubbs v. North Carolina Home Ins. Co., 108 N. C. 472, 13 S. E. 236, 23 Am. St. Rep. 62; Boyd v. Royal Ins. Co., 111 N. C. 372, 16 S. E. 389.

Limitations.—Under the valid provision of a standard fire insurance policy, approved by statute, the period limited to twelve months from the time of loss by fire in which an action may be maintained is not waived by the time taken under an agreement for an appraisal and award for the damage sustained by the insured. Tatham & Co. v. Liverpool, etc., Ins. Co., 181 N. C. 434, 107 S. E. 450.

Subrogation.—"It is held in Phoenix Ins. Co. v. Erie, etc., Transp. Co., 117 U. S. 312, 6 Sup. Ct. 750, 29 L. Ed. 873, that when goods injured are totally lost, actually, or constructively, by perils insured against, the insurer, upon payment of the loss, doubtless becomes subrogated to all the assured's rights of action against third persons who have caused or are responsible for the loss. No express stipulation in the policy of insurance, or abandonment by the assured, is necessary to perfect the title of the insurer. From the very nature of the contract of insurance as a contract of indemnity, the insurer, when he has paid to the assured the amount of the indemnity agreed on between them, is entitled, by law of salvage, to the benefit of anything that may be received, either from the remnants of the goods, or from damages paid by third persons for the same loss. But the insurer stands in no relation of contract or privity with such person. His title arises out of the contract of insurance, and is derived from the assured alone, and can only be enforced in the right of the latter. In the court of common law, it can only be asserted in his name; and even in a court of equity, or of admiralty, it can only be asserted in his right. In any form of remedy, the insurer can take nothing by subrogation but the rights of the assured." Lumberman's Mut. Ins. Co. v. Southern R. Co., 179 N. C. 255, 262, 102 S. E. 417; Cunningham v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co., 139 N. C. 427, 51 S. E. 1029; Fidelity Ins. Co. v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co., 165 N. C. 136, 80 S. E. 1069; Powell v. Wake Water Co., 171 N. C. 290, 88 S. E. 426.

Upon paying the loss by fire, insurer is entitled to subrogation to the rights of insured against the third person tort-feasor causing the loss, to the extent of the amount paid, both by provision of this section and under equitable principles. Buckner v. United States Fire Ins. Co., 209 N. C. 640, 184 S. E. 520.

This section does not provide that insurer should be subrogated to rights of the mortgagee against the mortgagor, and under the facts of this case insurer is not entitled to the subrogation claimed upon any equitable principle, and insurer's subrogation receipt from the mortgagee is not valid or binding as against the owner mortgagor. Id.

Where the mortgagee has insured the mortgaged property, and where the mortgagor has assumed the risk of loss under his contract of purchase, the insurer having paid the loss is subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee. Stuyvesant Ins. Co. v. Reid, 171 N. C. 513, 88 S. E. 779.

V. LIABILITY OF AGENT.

Where the general agent of a fire insurance company for a limited territory, through the negligence of an employee, fails to write into the policy a statement required to make it valid, the agents are liable in damages to the insured for loss by fire, in an action based solely on that ground, and not upon the invalid contract of insurance negligently issued by them. Case v. Ewbanks, Ewbanks & Co., 194 N. C. 775, 140 S. E. 709.

Where a nonresident defendant fire insurance company has upon petition removed a cause from the State to the Federal Court upon a policy of insurance that was void in that jurisdiction, but not in the jurisdiction of the court of this State, and the Federal Court has adjudicated that the plaintiff could not recover under the contract for a loss by fire, the plaintiff may thereafter bring action in the State court against the agents and recover damages from them occasioned by their own neglect in not inserting a provision in the policy that would have rendered it valid, the subject-matter of the latter action being based upon negligence and not on the policy contract, and the application of the doctrine of the election of remedies has no force. Case v. Ewbanks, Ewbanks & Co., 194 N. C. 775, 140 S. E. 709.

§ 58-178. Size of policy; notice; umpire; statement and blanks; policy issued to husband or wife on joint property.—No provisions of this chapter limit insurance companies to use of any particular size or manner of folding the paper upon which their policies are issued. If notice in writing signed by the insured, or his agent, is given before loss or damage by fire to the agent of the company of any fact or condition stated in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), of the standard form of policy set out in § 58-177, it is equivalent to an agreement in writing added thereto, and has the force of the agreement in writing referred to in the foregoing form of policy with respect to the liability of the company and the waiver; but this notice does not affect the right of the company to cancel the policy as therein stipulated.

The resident judge of the superior court of the district in which the property insured is located is designated as the judge of the court of record to select the umpire referred to in the foregoing form of policy. When any company demands or requires the insured, under any fire insurance policy, to furnish a statement in writing as prescribed in the standard policy form, after a fire or loss occurs, the company or its representative shall furnish to the insured a blank or blanks in duplicate to be used for the purpose, which blanks shall be of standard form such as the commissioner of insurance has approved. The failure to furnish these blanks is a waiver of the provision requiring such statement. Any policy of fire insurance issued to husband or wife, on buildings and household furniture owned by the husband and wife, either by entirety, in common, or jointly, either name of one of the parties in interest named as the assured or beneficiary therein, shall be sufficient and the policy shall not be void for failure to disclose the interest of the other, unless it appears that in the procuring of the issuance of such policy, fraudulent means or methods were used by the insured or owner thereof. (Rev., s. 4761; 1899, c. 54, s. 43; 1907, c. 578, s. 1; 1915, c. 109, s. 11; 1929, c. 60, s. 1; C. S. 6438.)

Editor's Note.—The amendment of 1929 added the last sentence to this section.

§ 58-179. Penalty for issuing policy not of standard form.—Any insurance company which causes to be issued, and any agent who makes, issues, or delivers a policy of fire insurance other than of the standard form, in wilful violation of this chapter, shall forfeit for each offense not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars; but the policy shall be binding upon the company issuing it. (Rev., ss. 4762, 4833; 1899, c. 54, s. 44; C. S. 6439.)

§ 58-180. Effect of failure to give notice of encumbrance.—No policy of insurance issued upon any property shall be held void because of the failure to give notice to the company of a mortgage or deed of trust existing thereon or thereafter placed thereon, except during the life of the mortgage or deed of trust. (1915, c. 109, s. 4; C. S. 6440.)

Cross Reference.—See § 58-177 and notes thereto.

§ 58-181. Additional or coinsurance clause.—No fire insurance company licensed to do business in this state may issue any policy or contract of insurance covering property in this state which shall contain any clause or provision requiring the insured to take out or maintain a larger amount of insurance than that expressed in such policy, nor in any way provide that the insured shall be liable as a co-insurer with the company issuing the policy for any part of the loss or damage which may be caused by fire to the property described in such policy, and any such clause or provision shall be null and void, and of no effect: Provided, the coinsurance clause or provision may be written in or attached to a policy or policies issued when there is stamped on the face of such policy the words "coinsurance contract." The rate for the insurance with and without the coinsurance clause shall be furnished the owner upon request. (1915, c. 109, s. 5; 1925, c. 70, s. 4; C. S. 6441.)

Cross Reference.—See § 58-177 and notes thereto.

Art. 20. Deposits by Foreign Fire Insurance Companies.

§ 58-182. Amount and nature of deposits required.—Unless otherwise provided in this article, every fire insurance company chartered by any other state or foreign government shall, by their general agent or through some authorized officer, deliver under oath to the commissioner of insurance of this state a statement of the amount of capital stock of the company, and deposit with him bonds of the United States, or of the state of North Carolina, or of the cities or counties of this state, or first mortgages on real estate situated in this state to be approved by the commissioner of insurance, as follows: Companies whose capital stock is five hundred thousand dollars or less, ten thousand dollars; companies whose capital stock is more than five hundred thousand dollars and not over one million dollars, twenty thousand dollars; companies whose capital stock is in excess of one million dollars, twenty-five thousand dollars; and every insurance company writing a fidelity, surety or casualty business in this state shall be required to deposit with the state securities of the same class enumerated above in the following amounts: Companies whose premium income derived from this state is less than $100,000.00 per annum, $25,000.00; companies whose premium income is in excess of $100,000.00 per annum, $50,000.00; and the commissioner of insurance shall thereupon give the agent a receipt for the same. With securities so deposited the company shall at the same time deliver to the commissioner of insurance a power of attorney authorizing him to transfer said securities or any part thereof for the purpose of paying any of the liabilities provided for in this article. The commissioner of insurance shall require each company to make good any depreciation or reduction in value of the securities. The securities required to be deposited by each insurance company in this article shall be delivered for safekeeping by the commissioner of insurance to the treasurer of the state, who shall receipt him therefor. For securities so deposited the faith of the state is pledged that they shall be returned to the parties entitled to receive them or disposed of as hereinafter provided for. The securities deposited by any company under this article shall not, on account of such securities being in this state, be subjected to taxation, but shall be held exclusively and solely for the protection of contract holders. (1909, c. 923, s. 1; 1911, c. 164, s. 1; Ex. Sess. 1913, c. 62, ss. 1, 2, 3; 1915, c. 166, s. 6; 1933, c. 60; C. S. 6442.)

Editor's Note.—Public Laws of 1933, c. 60, inserted the clause, about the middle of the section, requiring special deposits from casualty and surety companies.

See 11 N. C. Law Rev. 234, for brief review of this section as amended in 1933.

§ 58-183. Right of company to receive interest on deposits.—The commissioner of insurance, at the time of receiving the securities, shall give to the company authority to draw the interest thereon, as the same may become due and payable, for the use of the company, and this authority shall continue in force until the company fails to pay any liability arising upon any policy made in favor of any person, firm, or corporation which shall be, at the time the liability arises, a resident of this state, or which shall own property in the state covered by policies issued. In case of such failure the corporation charged with the payment of such interest shall be forthwith notified, and thereafter the interest, so long as the liability exists, shall be payable to the commissioner of insurance, to be applied, if necessary, to the payment of such liability. (1909, c. 923, s. 2; C. S. 6443.)

§ 58-184. Sale of deposits for payment of liabilities.—If the company fails to pay any of its liabilities on its contracts according to the terms thereof, after the liabilities have been adjusted between the parties in the manner prescribed by the contracts, if any manner is prescribed thereby, or after the same have been ascertained in any manner agreed upon by the parties or by the judgment, order, or decree of the court having jurisdiction of the subject, the commissioner of insurance shall, upon application of the party to whom the debt or money is due, and upon satisfactory proof that the notice herein required has been given to the company, proceed to sell at public auction such an amount of the securities as, with the interest in his hands, will pay the sum due and expenses of sale, and out of the proceeds of sale pay said sums and expenses; and the company shall be required forthwith to make good any deficit in the amount of the deposit caused by such sale. The party making application shall give to the company or to its agent in this state twenty days notice of his intention to apply to the commissioner of insurance for the sale of securities. The commissioner of insurance shall advertise the sale of the securities for thirty days prior to the day of the sale in some daily newspaper published in the city of Raleigh, and shall state in the advertisement the securities to be sold and the company depositing them, and shall mail a copy to the company. (1909, c. 923, s. 3; C. S. 6444.)

§ 58-185. Lien of policyholders; action to enforce.—Upon the securities deposited with the commissioner of insurance by any such insurance company, the holders of all contracts of the company who are citizens or residents of this state at such time, or who hold policies issued upon property in the state, shall have a lien for the amounts due them, respectively, under or in consequence of such contracts for losses, equitable values, return premiums, or otherwise, and shall be entitled to be paid ratably out of the proceeds of said securities, if such proceeds be not sufficient to pay all of said contract holders. When any company depositing securities as aforesaid becomes insolvent or bankrupt or makes an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, any holder of such contract may begin an action in the superior court of the county of Wake to enforce the lien for the benefit of all the holders of such contracts. The commissioner of insurance shall be a party to the suit, and the funds shall be distributed by the court, but no cost of such action shall be adjudged against the commissioner of insurance. (1909, c. 923, s. 4; C. S. 6445.)

Cited in Boney v. Central Mut. Ins. Co., 213 N. C. 470, 196 S. E. 837, 117 A. L. R. 231.

§ 58-186. Substitution for securities paid. — Where the principal of any of the securities so deposited is paid to the commissioner of insurance, he shall notify the company or its agent in this state, and pay the money so received to the company upon receiving other securities of the character named in this article to an equal amount, or, upon the failure of the company for thirty days after receiving notice to deliver such securities to an equal amount to the commissioner of insurance, he may invest the money in any such securities and hold the same as he held those which were paid. (1909, c. 923, s. 5; C. S. 6446.)

§ 58-187. Return of deposits.—If such company ceases to do business in this state, and its liabilities, whether fixed or contingent upon its contracts, to persons residing in this state or having policies upon property situated in this state have been satisfied or have been terminated, upon satisfactory evidence of this fact to the commissioner of insurance the state treasurer shall deliver to such company, upon the order of the commissioner of insurance, the securities in his possession belonging to it, or such of them as remain after paying the liabilities aforesaid. (1909, c. 923, s. 6; C. S. 6447.)

§ 58-188. Deposit required before license granted; exception.—When any fire insurance company files an application with the commissioner of insurance to be admitted to do business in this state, he shall require of it a compliance with the provisions of this article before issuing a license to such company; but this article shall not apply to companies licensed to do a reinsurance business only. (1909, c. 923, s. 7; 1915, c. 166, s. 6; C. S. 6448.)

Art. 21. Insuring State Property.

§ 58-189. Commissioner of insurance to procure insurance.—It is the duty of the commissioner of insurance to prepare a schedule of the different properties of the state and to procure policies of insurance thereon according to these schedules for such amounts as he is able to provide for with the provisions and appropriations for the insurance of state property, and to inspect and pass upon all policies of insurance issued upon the public buildings or other property belonging to the state, as regards the form of contract, rate, description, and such other things as are necessary to have the policies in proper form. He shall keep a record in his department, showing the number and date of policy, the name of company, the amount insured, the amount of premium, date of expiration, the property insured, and its location. (Rev., s. 4825; 1901, c. 710, ss. 1, 2; 1903, c. 771, s. 1; 1905, c. 441; C. S. 6449.)

§ 58-190. Payment of premiums by state treasurer.—When the commissioner of insurance has placed the insurance on state property as provided for in this article and approved the bill for the same, the bill shall be paid out of the insurance appropriation of the department for which the insurance is effected, in an amount sufficient to insure the property up to fifty per centum of the scheduled value of such property, but this shall not apply to insurance on property of, or in charge of, the agricultural department and state prison. (Rev., s. 4827; 1905, c. 441, s. 2; 1919, c. 155; Ex. Sess. 1921, c. 61; 1923, c. 248; 1929, c. 100; C. S. 6450.)

§ 58-191. Payment of premiums by officers in charge.—The insurance on the property of, or in charge of, the agricultural department and the state's prison shall be for the amount agreed upon by the commissioner of insurance and the officer or officers having such property in charge, and the premiums shall be paid out of the special funds of the agricultural department and state's prison on the order of the commissioner of insurance. Before such board, public officer, or other person charged with the custody or safekeeping of any public building or other property of the state may pay any sum of money as premium for a policy of insurance thereon, they shall receive and file among their records a certificate of the commissioner of insurance that he has examined and approved of the policies of insurance, giving the number, amount, date, and term of such policies, the property covered, and the names of the companies in which they are written. (Rev., ss. 4826, 4827; 1901, c. 710, ss. 1, 2; 1903, c. 771, ss. 2, 3; 1905, c. 441, s. 2; C. S. 6451.)

§ 58-192. Information furnished commissioner by officers in charge.—It is the duty of the different officers or boards having in their custody any property belonging to the state to inform the commissioner, giving him in detail a full description of same, and to keep him informed of any changes in such property or its location or surroundings. (Rev., s. 4828; 1901, c. 710, ss. 1, 2; 1903, c. 771, s. 2; C. S. 6452.)

§ 58-193. Commissioner to inspect state property; plans submitted.—It is the duty of the commissioner at least once in each year, or oftener, if deemed necessary, to visit, inspect, and thoroughly examine each state institution or other state property with a view to its protection from fire, as well as to the safety of its inmates or the property therein in case of fire, and call to the attention of the board or officer having the same in charge any defect noted by him or any improvement deemed necessary. No board, commission, superintendent, or other person or persons authorized and directed by law to select plans and erect buildings for the use of the state of North Carolina or any institution thereof or for the use of any county, city, or incorporated town or school district shall receive and approve of any plans until they are submitted to and approved by the commissioner of insurance of the state as to the safety of the proposed buildings from fire, as well as the protection of the inmates in case of fire. (Rev., s. 4829; 1901, c. 710, ss. 1, 2; 1903, c. 771, s. 3; 1909, c. 880; 1919, c. 186, s. 3; C. S. 6453.)

§ 58-194. Report required of commissioner.—The commissioner of insurance must submit annually to the governor a full report of his official action under this article, with such recommendations as commend themselves to him, and it shall be embodied in or attached to his biennial report to the general assembly. (Rev., s. 4830; 1901, c. 710, ss. 1, 2; 1903, c. 771, s. 4; C. S. 6454.)

SUBCHAPTER IV. LIFE INSURANCE.

Art. 22. General Regulations of Business.

§ 58-195. Life insurance company defined; requisites of contract.—All corporations, associations, partnerships, or individuals doing business in this state, under any charter, compact, agreement, or statute of this or any other state, involving the payment of money or other thing of value to families or representatives of policy and certificate holders or members, conditioned upon the continuance or cessation of human life, or involving an insurance, guaranty, contract, or pledge for the payment of endowments or annuities, or who employ agents to solicit business, are life insurance companies, in all respects subject to the laws herein made and provided for the government of life insurance companies, and shall not make any such insurance, guaranty, contract, or pledge in this state with any citizen, or resident thereof, which does not distinctly state the amount of benefits payable, the manner of payment, and the consideration therefor. (Rev., s. 4773; 1899, c. 54, s. 55; C. S. 6455.)

Editor's Note.—Many of the decided cases pertaining to life insurance are necessarily determined by construing the particular policy issued in a given case, others depend upon the adjudication of certain principles of the law of contracts and agency. None of these cases directly construes any provision of this code and are consequently not set out here. The searcher will find a complete and comprehensive treatment of the subject in the digests.

§ 58-196. Foreign companies; requirements for admission.—A company organized under the laws of any other of these United States for the transaction of life insurance may be admitted to do business in this state if it complies with the other provisions of this chapter regulating the terms and conditions upon which foreign life insurance companies may be admitted and authorized to do business in this state, and, in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance, is in sound financial condition and has policies in force upon not less than five hundred lives for an aggregate amount of not less than five hundred thousand dollars. Any life company organized under the laws of any other country than the United States, in addition to the above requirements, must make and maintain the deposit required of such companies by article four of this chapter. (Rev., s. 4774; 1899, c. 54, s. 56; C. S. 6456.)

§ 58-197. Soliciting agent represents the company.—A person who solicits an application for insurance upon the life of another, in any controversy relating thereto between the insured or his beneficiary and the company issuing a policy upon such application, is the agent of the company and not of the insured. (1907, c. 958, s. 1; C. S. 6457.)

This section does not attempt to prescribe the extent of the agent's authority or to convert a special or limited agency into one with general powers. Fountain v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 55 F. (2d) 120, 125. See also Provident Mut. Life Ins. Co. v. Parsons, 70 F. (2d) 863.

Insurer Liable for Delay of Agent.—"If the defendant's agent wrongfully failed to deliver the policy within a reasonably short time after its receipt, during which time the plaintiff's intestate was in good health and ready, able, and willing to pay the premium on delivery, as stipulated, and plaintiff's intestate having thereafter become ill, the defendant could not withhold the delivery so as to release it from responsibility. American Trust Co. v. Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 558, 563, 92 S. E. 706." Fox v. Volunteer State Life Ins. Co., 185 N. C. 121, 124, 116 S. E. 266.

§ 58-198. Discrimination between insurants forbidden.—A life insurance company doing business in this state shall not make any distinction or discrimination in favor of individuals between insurants of the same class and equal expectation of life in the amount of payment of premiums or rates charged for policies of life or endowment insurance, or in the dividends or other benefits payable thereon, or in any of the terms and conditions of the contracts it makes; nor shall any such company or any agent thereof make any contract of insurance or agreement as to such contract other than as plainly expressed in the policy issued thereon, nor pay or allow as inducement to insurance any rebate of premium payable on the policy, or any special favor or advantage in the dividends or other benefit to accrue thereon, or any valuable consideration or inducement whatever not specified in the policy contract of insurance; nor give, sell, or purchase, or offer to give, sell, or purchase as inducement to insurance or in connection therewith any stocks, bonds, or other securities of any insurance company or other corporation, association, or partnership, or any dividends or profits to accrue therein, or anything of value whatsoever not specified in the policy. (Rev., s. 4775; 1899, c. 54, s. 57; 1903, c. 438, ss. 5, 10; 1911, c. 196, s. 7; C. S. 6458.)

Purpose of Section.—"The express provision and obvious purpose and policy of the statute are to prevent discrimination among policy holders of like class and expectancy, and, in aid and furtherance of this desirable purpose, to secure publicity by requiring that all the stipulations of the contract and all agreements between the insurant and the company in reference thereto shall be plainly expressed in the policy." Smathers v. Bankers Life Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 98, 102, 65 S. E. 746.

The purpose of the statute is to require the parties to incorporate in the contract of insurance anything which may pertain to the validity of the contract at the time it is written. New York Life Ins. Co. v. Guyes, 22 F. Supp. 454, 457.

Collateral Agreements with Agents of Insurer.—Transactions up to the issuance of a policy of life insurance merge therein upon its issuance and acceptance by the insured, and, under this section, the terms and conditions of the insurance must be plainly expressed in the policy as issued, and collateral agreements with local agents are not binding unless included in the policy. Graham v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 176 N. C. 313, 97 S. E. 6.

A valid contract or policy of life insurance is severable from an invalid collateral agreement made at one and the same time, respecting a benefit prohibited by statute. Security Life, etc., Co. v. Costner, 149 N. C. 293, 63 S. E. 304.

When a collateral agreement delivered to insured with his policy of life insurance provided for the reduction of his premiums to be paid thereon, and is claimed to be the sole inducement moving him to take the policy, it is necessary for these inducements so claimed to be specified in the policy contract. Otherwise the collateral agreement is prohibited by the statute and not enforceable. Smathers v. Bankers Life Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 98, 65 S. E. 746.

It would seem that an agreement by a local agent that the policy would be in effect from the date of application and payment of the first premium where the policy provided it would be effective from delivery would be in contravention of this section. Jones v. Gate City Life Ins. Co., 216 N. C. 300, 4 S. E. (2d) 848.

Same—Effect on Note Given in Payment of Policy. — When the insured has given his note for the premiums on his life insurance policy, and has received for one year, in this manner, the benefits of the insurance, he cannot avoid paying his note upon the ground of his having collaterally contracted with the company for deduction of certain amount by way of renewal commissions in violation of the provisions of this section. Security Life, etc., Co. v. Costner, 149 N. C. 293, 63 S. E. 304.

Contract Not Void under Statute.—This section does not declare that contracts, made in violation of its provisions, shall be void. Security Life, etc., Co. v. Costner, 149 N. C. 293, 297, 63 S. E. 304.

"It would seem that the insured has a right to presume that the insurer has complied with all the requirements of law. Accordingly, it is held by the great weight of authority that when the insured attempts to enforce such a contract, made in good faith, against the unlicensed insurer, the latter will be estopped to escape liability under the contract by pleading his own infraction of law." Robinson v. Security Life, etc., Co., 163 N. C. 415, 421, 79 S. E. 681.

But a policyholder cannot enforce against the insurance company a severable collateral agreement to his policy contract of life insurance which is prohibited by this statute, upon the principle that the law was not passed for the benefit of the company resisting recovery, but for the protection of the policyholders when it appears that the agreement is executory in character and gives him a preference over the general body of policyholders for whose benefit the statute was passed. In such cases, the parties are in pari delicto. Smathers v. Bankers Life Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 98, 65 S. E. 746.

"In Security Life, etc., Co. v. Costner, 149 N. C. 293, 63 S. E. 304, the Court held that when a policy had been issued in connection with a contract of this character and retained by the beneficiary for a year, an action by the company on the notes executed for the annual premiums could be sustained, and this on the ground that, on the facts there appearing, the policy and the contract, which it was claimed conferred illegal benefits, were severable, and that defendant, having received the benefits of the policy as an executed consideration, could be made to pay the stipulated price." Smathers v. Bankers Life Ins. Co., 151 N. C. 98, 102, 65 S. E. 746.

The exercise of an option given by a mutual life insurance company to one of its policyholders of greater value than that given to the others is an illegal and void discrimination, prohibited by our statute and general principles of law. Graham v. Mutual Life Ins. Co., 176 N. C. 313, 97 S. E. 6.

Oral Contract.—"Under the law of North Carolina as declared by the supreme court of this state, it is held that an oral contract of insurance would be upheld as a general rule, yet when such contract is in the form of a written policy subsequently accepted by the insured, the oral contract merges into the written one and the written policy stands as embodying the contract, the rights of the parties must be determined by its terms and conditions." New York Life Ins. Co. v. Guyes, 22 F. Supp. 454, 456.

§ 58-199. Misrepresentations of policy forbidden.—No life insurance company doing business in this state, and no officer, director, solicitor, or other agent thereof, shall make, issue, or circulate, or cause to be made, issued, or circulated any estimate, illustration, circular, or statement of any sort misrepresenting the terms of the policy issued by it or the dividends or share of surplus to be received thereon, or shall use any name or title of any policy or class of policies misrepresenting the true nature thereof. Nor shall any such company, agent, or broker make any misrepresentation to any person insured in said company or in any other company for the purpose of inducing or tending to induce such person to lapse, forfeit, or surrender his said insurance. (1913, c. 95; C. S. 6459.)

§ 58-200. Medical examination required.—No life insurance company organized under the laws of or doing business in this State shall enter into any contract of insurance in any twelve months' period in an amount in excess of five thousand dollars ($5,000) upon any one life within this State without having previously made or caused to be made a prescribed medical examination of the insured by a registered medical practitioner; and provided further, that where there has been no medical examination the policy shall not be rendered void nor shall payment be resisted on account of any misrepresentation as to the physical condition of the applicant, except in cases of fraud; and provided further, that this section shall not apply to contracts of insurance issued under the group plan. (Rev., s. 4779; 1899, c. 54, s. 58; 1903, c. 438, s. 5; 1919, c. 186, s. 5; 1925 c. 82; 1927, c. 13, s. 1; C. S. 6460.)

It was not the purpose of this section to permit a recovery on an insurance policy issued without medical examination irrespective of the facts surrounding the transaction; otherwise the expression "except in cases of fraud" would have neither meaning nor significance. Potts v. Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 257, 260, 174 S. E. 123.

"In cases of fraud" a policy issued without medical examination stands upon the same footing as policies issued upon such examination. Id.

Statute a Part of Contract.—The provisions of this section, that where a policy of life insurance in a sum less than $5,000 is issued without a medical examination, insurer may not avoid same for insured's misrepresentations as to health except in cases of fraud, enter into and become a part of all such policies written in this State after the enactment of the statute. Headen v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 270, 173 S. E. 349.

Scope of Section.—Where the application contained false representations as to matters other than the physical condition of the applicant, this section, if applicable at all, is not determinative of the question whether the insurer was liable on a policy issued in reliance on false though not fraudulent representations. Inman v. Sovereign Camp, W. O. W., 211 N. C. 179, 181, 189 S. E. 496.

Policy Cannot Be Avoided unless Misrepresentations Were Fraudulently Made.—Where the jury finds that insured in a policy issued without medical examination was suffering with certain diseases stipulated in the policy as grounds for avoidance, but that insured did not procure the policy by false and fraudulent statements, insurer may not avoid liability under the policy, the provisions of the policy in conflict with the statute being unavailing to insurer. Eckard v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 210 N. C. 130, 185 S. E. 671.

But Fraud Need Not Be Alleged in Direct Terms.—Where in an action upon an insurance policy it was conceded without deciding that the provisions of this section cover an application for reinstatement of a lapsed policy as well as an initial contract, it was held that the insurer's answer set out elements of fraudulent misrepresentation sufficient to raise an issue, it not being necessary that fraud be alleged in direct terms. Petty v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co., 210 N. C. 500, 187 S. E. 816.

Fraud Need Not Be Proved if Policy Not Issued under This Section.—A policy not issued under the provisions of this section may be avoided for material misrepresentations which induce insurer to take the risk which it would not otherwise have taken, even in the absence of fraud, and therefore insurer need not prove that the misrepresentations were intentionally made. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Ashby, 215 N. C. 280, 1 S. E. (2d) 830.

Policy Not Void.—The law is thus declared by Justice Hoke in Morgan v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 170 N. C. 75, 86 S. E. 975: "But the authorities are to the effect that, when a statute or valid regulation in restraint only of the company's action is made for the protection of the policyholder, a recovery may ordinarily be had, though the contract is in breach of the regulation."

In Blount v. Royal Fraternal Ass'n, 163 N. C. 167, 79 S. E. 299, Justice Allen says, referring to section 58-54: "The statute does not purport to deal with the validity of the contract of insurance, but with the insurance company." This section does not purport to invalidate the policy, but is a regulation of law imposed upon the insurance company. If it had been the intention of the Legislature, in enacting this section, to invalidate the contract and to deny recovery thereon, it would have so enacted. Ober v. Katzenstein, 160 N. C. 439, 440, 76 S. E. 476; Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co., 144 N. C. 352, 57 S. E. 5; Robinson v. Security Life, etc., Co., 163 N. C. 415, 79 S. E. 681; McNeal v. Life, etc., Ins. Co., 192 N. C. 450, 452, 135 S. E. 300.

The fact that the insured was not in sound health at the time the policy was issued (without medical examination) contrary to a provision in the policy is insufficient, to avoid the policy under this section. Holbrook v. Insurance Co., 196 N. C. 333, 145 S. E. 609.

Except in cases of fraud, the insurer may not declare a forfeiture under the provisions of a policy that the insurer should not be liable if insured was not in sound health at the time of the delivery of the policy, or had not been in good health for two years prior thereto, etc., since such provisions of the policy are in conflict with this section and therefore void. Headen v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 206 N. C. 270, 173 S. E. 349.

Death by Apoplexy within One Year.—A provision in a policy of life insurance that the insurer would not be liable except for the return of the premium paid in case the insured died from apoplexy within one year from the date of the issuance of the policy is valid and enforceable in the insurer's favor, this section not being applicable to the facts of this case. Holbrook v. American Nat. Ins. Co., 196 N. C. 333, 145 S. E. 609, cited and distinguished. Gilmore v. Imperial Life Ins. Co., 199 N. C. 632, 155 S. E. 566.

Section Not Applicable.—The policy in suit was issued for less than $5,000 after medical examination of insured. After it had lapsed for nonpayment of premiums, it was reinstated on written application of insured without a medical examination. Held: Although the policy was reinstated without a medical examination, the original policy was issued after medical examination, and this section has no application, and insurer is not required to show fraud, but is entitled to cancellation of the policy upon a showing of material misrepresentations in the application for reinstatement. Petty v. Pacific Mut. Life Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 157, 193 S. E. 228.

Applied in Missouri State Life Ins. Co. v. Hardin, 208 N. C. 22, 179 S. E. 2; Butler v. New York Life Ins Co., 213 N. C. 384, 196 S. E. 317; Pugh v. Prudential Ins. Co., 212 N. C. 372, 193 S. E. 278.

§ 58-201. Domestic companies to report outstanding policies; reinsurance fund calculated.—It is the duty of every life insurance company incorporated by the laws of this state to make returns in January of each year to the commissioner of insurance, showing all its policies and annuity bonds in force on the first day of that month, with such particulars of the same as are necessary for the valuation thereof as hereinafter directed. The commissioner of insurance shall thereupon compute, or cause to be computed, the value of such policies and bonds, or what is known as the reinsurance fund therefor, according to the American experience table of mortality and interest at the rate of four and a half per centum, or according to the actuaries' mortality and four per centum interest, or according to any other recognized standard of valuation as he deems best for the security of the business and the safety of the persons insured. Upon this valuation being made and a certificate thereof furnished by the commissioner of insurance, each company shall pay to such officer, to defray the expenses thereof, the sum of one cent for every thousand dollars of the whole amount insured by its policies so valued. The reserve fund hereinbefore provided for shall not be available for or used for any other purpose than the discharge of policy obligations, but is a trust fund to be held and expended only for the benefit of policyholders. In case of the insolvency of the company, the reserve on outstanding policies may, with the consent of the commissioner of insurance, be used for the reinsurance of its policies to the extent of their pro rata part thereof. (Rev., s. 4777; 1903, c. 536, s. 4; 1905, c. 410; 1907, c. 1000, s. 7; C. S. 6461.)

§ 58-202. Reinsurance of risks regulated.—No domestic life insurance company may reinsure its risks without the permission of the commissioner of insurance, except to the extent of one-half of any individual risk. The receiver of any life insurance company organized under the laws of this state, when the assets of the company are sufficient for that purpose, and the consent of two thirds of its policyholders has been secured in writing, may reinsure all the policy obligations of such company in some other solvent life insurance company, or, when the assets are insufficient to secure the reinsurance of all the policies in full, he may reinsure such a percentage of each and every policy outstanding as the assets will secure; but there must be no preference or discrimination as against any policyholder, and the contract for such reinsurance by the receiver must be approved by the commissioner of insurance of this state before it has effect. (Rev., s. 4778; 1899, c. 54, s. 58; 1903, c. 536, s. 9; C. S. 6462.)

§ 58-203. Punishment for violation of law as to reinsurance and medical examination.—If any domestic life insurance company shall reinsure its risks, except by permission of the commissioner of insurance, exceeding one-half of any individual risk, or if any life insurance company organized under the laws of, or doing business in, this state shall enter into any contract of insurance upon lives within this state without having previously made or caused to be made a prescribed medical examination of the insured by a registered medical practitioner, such insurance company, or any officer, agent, or other person soliciting or effecting or attempting to effect, a contract of insurance contrary to this section, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one hundred dollars for each offense. (Rev., s. 3497; 1899, c. 54, s. 58; C. S. 6463.)

§ 58-204. Insurable interest as between stockholders, partners, etc.—Where two or more persons own stock or interests in the same corporation, partnership or business association and have heretofore contracted or hereafter contract with one another for the purchase, at the death of one, by the survivor or survivors of the stock, share or interest of the deceased, the person or persons making the contract of purchase shall be deemed to have, and are hereby declared to have, an insurable interest in the life or lives of the person or persons contracting to sell. (1941, c. 201.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 19 N. C. Law Rev. 490.

§ 58-205. Rights of beneficiaries.—When a policy of insurance is effected by any person on his own life, or on another life in favor of some person other than himself having an insurable interest therein, the lawful beneficiary thereof, other than himself or his legal representatives, is entitled to its proceeds against the creditors and representatives of the person effecting the insurance. The person to whom a policy of life insurance is made payable may maintain an action thereon in his own name. Every policy of life insurance made payable to or for the benefit of a married woman, or after its issue assigned, transferred, or in any way made payable to a married woman, or to any person in trust for her or for her benefit, whether procured by herself, her husband, or by any other person, and whether the assignment or transfer is made by her husband or by any other person, inures to her separate use and benefit and to that of her children, if she dies in his lifetime. (Rev., ss. 4771, 4772; Const., Art. X, s. 7; 1899, c. 54, s. 59; C. S. 6464.)

Cross References.—As to wife insuring life of husband, see § 52-9. As to payment of sum due minor insurance beneficiary, see § 2-52.

See § 58-206 and notes thereto.

Editor's Note.—See 13 N. C. Law Rev. 95.

Change of Beneficiary by Insolvent Insured. — While formerly an insolvent insured could not change, according to a provision in his policy, the beneficiary of his policy of life insurance from his estate to his wife, without consideration, against the rights of his creditors, this is now changed by this section. Pearsall v. Bloodworth, 194 N. C. 628, 140 S. E. 303; Meadows Fert. Co. v. Godley, 204 N. C. 243, 167 S. E. 816.

A beneficiary in a policy of life insurance has only a contingent interest therein, and where the insured retains the right to change the beneficiary by the terms of the policy, he may do so, and where upon the death of the beneficiary the insured changes the beneficiary, in accordance with the terms of the policy, to a trustee for the use of certain creditors and heirs at law of the insured, the other creditors may not claim that the change in the beneficiary was void as being fraudulent as to them. Teague v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 200 N. C. 450, 157 S. E. 421.

Rights Vest on Delivery of Policy.—"A policy of insurance is essentially like a gift by will, the only difference being that in the case of a policy of insurance the beneficiary acquires a vested interest when the policy is delivered, which becomes vested in possession or enjoyment at the death of the assured; while in the case of a gift by will the interest does not vest until the death of the testator. In other respects, and for all practical purposes, they are alike. If a bequest is made to A. for life, with remainder to his children, those in esse at the death of the testator take a vested estate, which will open, however, and let in any after-born child during the life of A; and so it is with a policy of insurance payable to children: the interests of the beneficiaries become vested at the time of the delivery of the policy or when it takes effect, as a contract between the company and the assured, as to those then in esse, but will open and let in any after-born children, and, in this case, whether of the first or second marriage. If they come within the general description, they will share under the policy." And in case of death of one of the children his or her share will go to the personal representative of that child. Scull v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 132 N. C. 30, 31, 43 S. E. 504.

Same—Beneficiary Dead.—When A. insured his life for the benefit of "his wife and children," and at the time the policy was issued he had no wife, but did have two children, one of whom died before A.: Held, that upon A.'s death the money due on the policy should be divided between the surviving child and the administrator of the dead child. The insertion of "his wife" as a beneficiary, when he had no wife living, was a nullity. Hooker v. Sugg, 102 N. C. 115, 8 S. E. 919.

Relation of Beneficiary to Insurer.—The terms of the policy constitute a contract of the company to pay the specified amount to the beneficiary, and create direct legal relations between them. Hooker v. Sugg, 102 N. C. 115, 8 S. E. 919; Simmons v. Biggs, 99 N. C. 236, 5 S. E. 235.

Under an ordinary policy the beneficiary has such an interest as entitled her to recover upon the death of the insured if the premiums have been paid and the policy is otherwise in force, unless the insurance company can show it had been lawfully surrendered by her consent, or that the insured had duly and legally exercised the power reserved in the clause quoted, entitled "Change of Beneficiary." Lanier v. Eastern Life Ins. Co., 142 N. C. 14, 18, 54 S. E. 786.

Applied in Russell v. Owen, 203 N. C. 262, 165 S. E. 687.

§ 58-206. Creditors deprived of benefits of life insurance policies except in cases of fraud.—If a policy of insurance, is effected by any person on his own life or on another life, in favor of a person other than himself, or, except in cases of transfer with intent to defraud creditors, if a policy of life insurance is assigned or in any way made payable to any such person, the lawful beneficiary or assignee thereof, other than the insured or the person so effecting such insurance, or his executors or administrators, shall be entitled to its proceeds and avails against creditors and representatives of the insured and of the person effecting same, whether or not the right to change the beneficiary is reserved or permitted, and whether or not the policy is made payable to the person whose life is insured if the beneficiary or assignee shall predecease such person: Provided, that subject to the statute of limitations, the amount of any premiums for said insurance paid with the intent to defraud creditors, with interest thereon, shall inure to their benefit from the proceeds of the policy; but the company issuing the policy shall be discharged of all liability thereon by payment of its proceeds in accordance with its terms unless, before such payment, the company shall have written notice by or in behalf of the creditor, of a claim to recover for transfer made or premiums paid with intent to defraud creditors, with specifications of the amount claimed. (1931, c. 179, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—This section, in form an independent statute, is actually an amendment of § 58-205. It makes six changes in the statutory exemption of the beneficiary of a life insurance policy from the claims of creditors of the insured. It leaves out the requirement of § 58-205 that the beneficiary to be so protected must have an insurable interest. This is undesirable in the case where the insurance is effected by one on the life of another for a third person. Vance, Insurance, (2d ed.) p. 154, n. 1. It extends the exemption to include beneficiaries made such by a change of beneficiaries (compare Pearsall v. Bloodworth, 194 N. C. 628, 140 S. E. 303, change of beneficiary from estate to wife while insolvent), and to include assignees of the policy. Compare, as to the need for an insurable interest in the assignee, Powell v. Dewey, 123 N. C. 103, 31 S. E. 381 (partnership); Hinton v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assn., 135 N. C. 314, 47 S. E. 474 (wife assigned insurance payable to her estate to her husband's creditors); Hardy v. Aetna Life Ins. Co., 152 N. C. 286, 67 S. E. 767; s. c., 154 N. C. 430, 70 S. E. 828 (uncle assigned insurance payable to his estate to nephew); Johnson v. Mutual Benefit & Ins. Co., 157 N. C. 106, 72 S. E. 847 (bona fide sale); McNeal v. Life & Cas. Ins. Co. of Tenn., 192 N. C. 450, 135 S. E. 300. The creditors, where there has been an attempt to defraud them, may recover the premiums with interest, out of the proceeds of the policy. As to the confused state of the decisions, clarified by this clause, see Vance, note 1, at 621. The statute does not of course deal with the case where the premiums have been paid out of stolen funds and the victim of the theft seeks to reach the entire proceeds of the policy. As to that, see Vance, note 1, 618-621. The new statute expressly applies to policies of insurance heretofore or hereafter written. The courts, however, will not permit it to prejudice the rights of existing creditors in previously issued policies. Bank of Minden v. Clement, 256 U. S. 126, 41 Sup. Ct. 408, 65 L. Ed. 857, 9 N. C. Law Rev. 377.

Statute Not Retroactive.—This section cannot affect policies written before the effective date of the statute. Com'r of Banks v. Yelverton, 204 N. C. 441, 168 S. E. 505.

§ 58-207. Notice of nonpayment of premium required before forfeiture.—No life insurance corporation doing business in this state shall, within one year after the default in payment of any premium, installment, or interest, declare forfeited or lapsed any policy hereafter issued or renewed and not issued upon the payment of monthly or weekly premiums, or unless the same is a term insurance contract for one year or less, nor shall any such policy be forfeited or lapsed by reason of nonpayment, when due, of any premium, interest, or installment or any portion thereof required by the terms of the policy to be paid, within one year from the failure to pay such premium, interest, or installment, unless a written or printed notice stating the amount of such premium, interest, installment, or portion thereof due on such policy, the place where it shall be paid, and the person to whom the same is payable has been duly addressed and mailed, postage paid, to the person whose life is insured or the assignee of the policy, if notice of the assignment has been given to the corporation, at his or her last known postoffice address in this state, by the corporation or by any officer thereof or person appointed by it to collect such premium, at least fifteen and not more than forty-five days prior to the day when the same is payable, as regards policies which do not contain a provision for grace or are not entitled to grace in the payment of premiums and at least five and not more than forty-five days prior to the day when the same is payable as regards policies which do contain a provision for grace or are entitled to grace in the payment of premiums. The notice shall also state that unless such premium, interest, installment, or portion thereof then due shall be paid to the corporation or to the duly appointed agent or person authorized to collect such premium, by or before the day it falls due, the policy and all payments thereon will become forfeited and void, except as to the right to a surrender value or paid-up policy, as in the contract provided. If the payment demanded by such notice shall be made within its time limit therefor, it shall be taken to be in full compliance with the requirements of the policy in respect to the time of such payment; and no such policy shall in any case be forfeited or declared forfeited or lapsed until the expiration of thirty days after the mailing of such notice. The affidavit of any officer, clerk, or agent of the corporation, or of any one authorized to mail such notice, that the notice required by this section has been duly addressed and mailed by the corporation issuing such policy, shall be presumptive evidence that such notice has been duly given. No action shall be maintained to recover under a forfeited policy unless the same is instituted within three years from the day upon which default was made in paying the premium, installment, interest, or portion thereof for which it is claimed that forfeiture ensued.

No insurance company doing business in this State and issuing health and/or accident insurance policies, other than contracts of group insurance or disability and/or accidental death benefits in connection with policies of life insurance, the premium for which is to be collected in weekly, monthly, or other periodical installments by authority of a payroll deduction order executed by the assured and delivered to such insurance company or the assured's employer authorizing the deduction of such premium installments from the assured's salary or wages, shall, during the period for which such policy is issued, declare forfeited or lapsed any such policy hereafter issued or renewed until and unless a written or printed notice of the failure of the employer to remit said premium or installment thereof stating the amount or portion thereof due on such policy and to whom it must be paid, has been duly addressed and mailed to the person who is insured under such policy at least fifteen days before said policy is cancelled or lapsed. (1909, c. 884; 1929, c. 308, s. 1; 1931, c. 317; C. S. 6465.)

Editor's Note.—The Act of 1929 added the last two sentences to the first paragraph of this section. The Act of 1931 added the second paragraph.

Construction of Provision for Forfeiture.—If there is any real ambiguity in the provisions of a policy for forfeiture for nonpayment of premiums, they will be resolved against the insurer; but, if their meaning to the ordinary reader is plain, there is no reason why they should not be enforced. Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. 339.

Forfeiture by Unpaid Check.—"An agreement that a check is received in satisfaction of a note is not implied from the surrender or cancellation of the note. Until the check was paid the note was in force, and unless it was paid at the time to which it was extended, the policy was by its terms forfeited. Forfeitures, it is true, are not favored in the law, but promptness of payment is essential in the business of life insurance." Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. 339, 343.

Notice of Forfeiture.—It is incumbent upon the insurance company to give notice that the premiums are due and the policy is not subject to forfeiture until 30 days after such notice is given. Aiken v. Atlantic Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 400, 92 S. E. 184.

Same—Policy Issued before Statute.—Where an old policy issued before this statute was withdrawn and a new policy issued after this statute, notice must be given in accordance with the statute in order to have a legal forfeiture. Garland v. Jefferson Standard Life Ins. Co., 179 N. C. 67, 101 S. E. 616.

Same—After Reinstatement.—Where there has been a default and forfeiture and the insured was furnished a health certificate and secured a reinstatement and an extension of time for payment, it is not necessary to again give the statutory notice of the time when the extension notes will become due. Philadelphia Life Ins. Co. v. Hayworth, 296 Fed. 339.

Waiver of Forfeiture.—Where a policy of life insurance is forfeited for failure to pay at maturity a note given for extension of payment of premium, the mailing of notice of the next regular quarterly premium by the insurer in compliance with this section, which notice does not demand payment of the balance due on the extended premium, is not a waiver by the insurer of forfeiture. Sellers v. Life Ins. Co., 205 N. C. 355, 171 S. E. 328.

Making Sufficient Tender.—After tender and failure of insurer to accept the tender the insured does not have to keep the tender open. An application for reinstatement does not alter the insured's rights, if the policy has not been forfeited. Aiken v. Atlantic Life Ins. Co., 173 N. C. 400, 92 S. E. 184.

Three Year Limitation.—In an action for the recovery of premiums paid on forfeited policies issued on the lives of relatives, where the evidence was to the effect that these policies were canceled for the nonpayment of premiums on 19 March, 1936, and that summons was issued 17 February, 1942, the action was barred by this section and § 1-52. Bynum v. Life Ins. Co. of Virginia, 222 N. C. 742, 743, 24 S. E. (2d) 613.

§ 58-208. Minimum premium rates for assessment life insurance companies.—No assessment life insurance corporation, organization or association of any kind issuing policies or contracts upon the life of any resident of this state shall hereafter be organized or licensed by the commissioner of insurance unless such corporation, organization or association adopt premium rates based upon the attained age of the assured at the time of issuance of the contract and such rates shall not be less than those fixed by the American Experience Table of Mortality or any other recognized table of mortality approved by the commissioner of insurance. Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to affect burial associations regulated under §§ 58-224 to 58-241, or railroad burial associations. (1939, c. 161.)

Editor's Note.—For comment on this enactment, see 17 N. C. Law Rev. 362.

§ 58-209. Distribution of surplus in mutual companies.—Every life insurance company doing business in this state upon the principle of mutual insurance, or the members of which are entitled to share in the surplus funds thereof, may distribute the surplus annually, or once in two, three, four, or five years, as its directors determine. In determining the amount of the surplus to be distributed there shall be reserved an amount not less than the aggregate net value of all the outstanding policies, this value to be computed by the American Experience Table of Mortality with interest not exceeding four and one-half per cent. (Rev., s. 4776; 1903, c. 536, s. 10; C. S. 6466.)

§ 58-210. Definition of group life insurance.—Group life insurance is hereby declared to be that form of life insurance covering not less than fifty employees with or without medical examination, written under a policy issued to the employer, the premium on which is to be paid by the employer or by the employer and employees jointly, and insuring only all of his employees, or all of any class or classes thereof determined by conditions pertaining to the employment, for amounts of insurance based upon some plan which will preclude individual selection, for the benefit of persons other than the employer: Provided, however, that when the premium is to be paid by the employer and employees jointly and the benefits of the policy are offered to all eligible employees, not less than seventy-five per centum of such employees may be so insured. Such group policy may provide that the term "employees" shall include the officers, managers and employees of subsidiary or affiliated corporations and the individual proprietors, partners and employees of affiliated individuals and firms, when the business of such subsidiary or affiliated corporations, firms or individuals is controlled by the common employer through stock ownership, contract or otherwise.

The following form of life insurance is hereby declared to be group life insurance within the meaning of this law: Life insurance issued to a creditor or vendor, who or which shall be deemed to be the policyholder and for the purpose of this section the employer, insuring only all of the members, or only all of the members except those as to whom the evidence of insurability submitted is not satisfactory to the insurer, of a group of debtors or vendees, defined as follows: All of the borrowers, or borrowers and guarantors of borrowers, from one financial or other institution or from such institution and its subsidiary or affiliated companies, or all of the purchasers of securities, merchandise or other property from one vendor, or all of any class or classes of such debtors or purchasers determined by conditions pertaining to the type of indebtedness or purchase, under agreements by such debtors or such purchasers for the payment of the sum borrowed or the balance of the purchase price, as the case may be, in installments over a period of not more than ten years; when the premium, or any part thereof, for such insurance is to be paid, either directly or indirectly, by the insured debtors, guarantors, or debtors or vendees and the benefits of the policy are offered to all eligible debtors, guarantors of debtors or vendees, not less than seventy-five per centum of such debtors, guarantors of debtors or vendees may be so insured; no such group shall be eligible for insurance hereunder unless the new entrants to such group number at least one hundred persons annually; such policy may be issued to an assignee to whom such creditor or vendor has transferred or agreed to transfer all of its right, title, and interest to the unpaid indebtedness, or to the unpaid purchase price, under all such agreements made by it; the amount of insurance thereunder on any person insured shall not at any time exceed the amount of unpaid indebtedness due from such person or the amount of the purchase price unpaid by such person, nor the sum of ten thousand dollars, whichever is less; the premium on such insurance shall be remitted by the policyholder to the insurer; the benefits thereof shall be payable to the policyholder, and the receipt of such benefits by the policyholder shall release the insurer from all obligations under the policy to the extent of the benefits so paid; the amount of any death benefit received by the policyholder thereunder shall be applied by the policyholder to the discharge of any obligation of the person insured, or his personal representatives, to the policyholder. (1925, c. 58, s. 1; 1931, c. 328; 1943, c. 597, s. 1.)

Editor's Note.—Group life insurance is comparatively new, but seems to be increasing in favor. Its attractiveness lies largely in the fact that no medical examination is necessary. This is because the mortality rate in any given homogeneous group is only the average mortality rate as shown by the mortality tables. If the ordinary life insurance were issued without physical examination, the sickly and feeble would apply in great numbers, thus raising the death rate, as based on experience. This would not be so in a selected group and this is what group insurance does. For instance a business establishment might take out a group life insurance policy on all its employees, insuring them against death, total and partial disability and old age. The average in this group would be about the same as the general average and, therefore, no unusual losses would result to the Company, even though they had required no medical examination.

This idea embodied in the New York Law in 1918 and Massachusetts in 1921, now appears in the North Carolina Law.

This section was copied verbatim from the New York Law requiring the group to include not less than fifty employees and that 75 per cent of them shall be insured where they pay the premium jointly with the insurer. See 3 N. C. Law Rev. 145.

The Act of 1931 added the last sentence in the first paragraph.

The 1943 amendment added the second paragraph.

See 12 N. C. Law Rev., 167, for note "Recent Trends in Group Insurance."

§ 58-211. Standard provisions for policies of group life insurance.—No policy of group life insurance shall be issued or delivered in this State unless and until a copy of the form thereof has been filed with the commissioner of insurance and formally approved by him; nor shall such policy be so issued or delivered unless it contains in substance the following provisions:

(a) A provision that the policy shall be incontestable after two years from its date of issue, except for nonpayment of premium and except for violation of the conditions of the policy relating to military or naval service in time of war.

(b) A provision that the policy, the application of the employer and the individual applicants, if any, of the employees insured, shall constitute the entire contract between the parties, and that all statements made by the employer or by the individual employees shall, in the absence of fraud, be deemed representations and not warranties, and that no such statement shall be used in defense to a claim under the policy, unless it is contained in a written application.

(c) A provision for the equitable adjustment of the premiums or the amount of insurance payable in the event of a misstatement in the age of the employee.

(d) A provision that the company will issue to the employer for delivery to the employee whose life is insured under such policy, an individual certificate setting forth a statement as to the insurance protection to which he is entitled, to whom payable, together with provision to the effect that in case of the termination of the employment for any reason whatsoever the employee shall be entitled to have issued to him by the company, without evidence of insurability, and upon application made to the company within thirty-one days after such termination, and upon the payment of the premium applicable to the class of risk to which he belongs and to the form and amount of the policy at his then attained age, a policy of life insurance in any one of the forms customarily issued by the company, except term insurance, in an amount equal to the amount of his protection under such group insurance policy at the time of such termination. The provisions of this subsection shall not apply to policies described in the second paragraph of § 58-210.

(e) A provision that to the group or class thereof originally insured shall be added from time to time all new employees of the employer eligible to insurance in such group or class.

Except as provided in this chapter it shall be unlawful to make a contract of life insurance covering a group in this State. Policies of group life insurance, when issued in this State by any company not organized under the laws of this State, may contain, when issued, any provision required by the law of the state, territory, or district of the United States under which the company is organized; and policies issued in other states or countries by companies organized in this State, may contain any provision required by the laws of the State, territory, district or county in which the same are issued, anything in this section to the contrary notwithstanding. Any such policy may be issued or delivered in this State which in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance contains provisions on any one or more of the several foregoing requirements more favorable to the employer or to the employee than hereinbefore required. (1925, c. 58, s. 2; 1943, c. 597, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second sentence of subsection (d).

§ 58-212. Voting power under policies of group life insurance.—In every group policy issued by a domestic life insurance company, the employer shall be deemed to be the policyholder for all purposes within the meaning of this chapter, and, if entitled to vote at meetings of the company, shall be entitled to one vote thereat. (1925, c. 58, s. 3.)

§ 58-213. Exemption from execution. — No policy of group insurance, nor the proceeds thereof, when paid to any employee or employees thereunder, shall be liable to attachment, garnishment, or other process, or to be seized, taken, appropriated or applied by any legal or equitable process or operation of law, to pay any debt or liability of such employee, or his beneficiary, or any other person who may have a right thereunder, either before or after payment; nor shall the proceeds thereof, when not made payable to a named beneficiary, constitute a part of the estate of the employee for the payment of his debts. (1925, c. 58, s. 4.)

Art. 23. Registered Policies.

§ 58-214. Deposits to secure registered policies.—Any life insurance company, incorporated under the laws of this state, may deposit with the commissioner of insurance securities of the kind described in article six of this chapter, for the investment of the capital of insurance companies, or farm loan bonds issued by the federal land banks, or notes secured by real estate situated in another state approved by the committee hereinafter designated, to any amount not less than ten thousand dollars, which shall be legally transferred by it to him as commissioner of insurance and his successors for the common benefit of all the holders of its "registered" policies and annuity bonds issued under the provisions of this article; and these securities shall be held by him and his successors in office in trust for the purposes and objects specified herein.

All securities offered to the commissioner of insurance for deposit under this section shall, before acceptance by him, be approved by a committee, composed of the commissioner, the state treasurer, and the attorney-general; and when the securities are of the character prescribed by law and approved by a majority of the committee, the commissioner of insurance shall list them in a book of records kept in his department for that purpose. The committee shall endorse on the record, at the end of the list of the securities, its approval of the securities named in the list. The record shall contain a separate list or account of the securities deposited by each insurance company, so kept as to show at all times the total value of all securities on deposit for each company. No security may be withdrawn or substituted except upon the approval of the committee. All the securities, after being approved and listed, shall be deposited with the state treasurer, who shall give his receipt to the commissioner of insurance for them. The committee shall, twice a year, in the months of June and December, review and assess the value of all securities on deposit under this section. (Rev., s. 4780; 1905, c. 504, s. 12; 1009, c. 920, ss. 1, 2; 1911, c. 140, s. 1; 1917, c. 191, s. 2; C. S. 6467.)

See also § 53-60 as to investments in Federal Farm loan bonds, and see § 142-29 as to investments in refunding bonds of North Carolina.

§ 58-215. Additional deposits may be required.—Each company which has made deposits herein provided for shall make additional deposits from time to time, as the commissioner of insurance prescribes, in amounts of not less than five thousand dollars and of such securities as are described in the preceding section, so that the market value of the securities deposited shall always equal the net value of the registered policies and annuity bonds issued by the company, less such liens not exceeding such value as the company has against it. No company organized under this chapter shall be required to make such deposit until the net value of the policies in force, as ascertained by the commissioner of insurance, exceeds the amount deposited by said company under the preceding section. As long as any licensed company maintains its deposits as herein prescribed at an amount equal to or in excess of the net value of its registered policies and annuity bonds, as aforesaid, it is the duty of the commissioner of insurance to sign and affix his seal to the certificates, as required in this article, on every policy and annuity bond presented to him for that purpose by any company so depositing. (Rev., s. 4781; 1905, c. 504, s. 15; 1909, c. 920, s. 3; 1911, c. 140, s. 2; 1917, c. 191, s. 3; C. S. 6468.)

§ 58-216. Withdrawal of deposits.—Any such company whose deposits exceed the net value of all registered policies and annuity bonds it has in force, less such liens not exceeding such value as the company holds against them, may withdraw such excess or it may withdraw any of such securities at any time by depositing in their place others of equal value and of the character authorized by law; and as long as such company remains solvent and keeps up its deposits, as herein required, it may collect the interest and coupons on the securities deposited as they accrue; and any life insurance company may withdraw such securities by and with the consent of the policyholder only; and in case of such withdrawal, the certificate of registration in each case must be surrendered for cancellation, or a receipt from the policyholder, satisfactory to the commissioner of insurance, must be produced before such withdrawal of deposits shall be allowed. (Rev., s. 4782; 1905, c. 504, s. 18; 1911, c. 134; C. S. 6469.)

§ 58-217. Manner of keeping deposits.—The securities deposited under this article shall be deposited and kept in the manner required by law for the keeping of other deposits of insurance companies, but separate from other deposits of the company. (Rev., s. 4783; 1905, c. 504, s. 19; C. S. 6470.)

§ 58-218. Record of securities kept by commissioner; deficit made good.—The commissioner of insurance shall keep a careful record of the securities deposited by each company, and when furnishing the annual certificates of value hereafter required in this article, he may enter thereon the face and market value of the securities deposited by such company. If at any time it appears from such certificate or otherwise that the value of securities held on deposit is less than the net value of the registered policies and annuity bonds issued by such companies, it is not lawful for the commissioner of insurance to execute the certificate on any additional policies or annuity bonds of such company until it has made good the deficit. If any company fails or neglects to make such deposits for sixty days it shall be deemed to be insolvent and shall be proceeded against in the manner provided by law in such cases. (Rev., s. 4784; 1905, c. 504, s. 16; C. S. 6471.)

§ 58-219. Registered policies certified. — After making the deposits provided for in this article no company may issue a policy of insurance or endowment or an annuity bond known or designated as "registered" unless it has upon its face a certificate in the following words: "This policy or annuity bond is registered and secured by pledge of bonds, stocks, or securities deposited with this department as provided by law," which certificate shall be signed by the commissioner of insurance and sealed with the seal of his office. Such policies and bonds shall be known as "registered" policies and annuity bonds, and a sample copy of such kind, class, and issue shall be kept in the office of the commissioner of insurance. All policies and bonds of each kind and class issued, and the copies thereof, filed in the office of the commissioner of insurance must have imprinted thereon some appropriate designating letter, combination of letters or terms identifying the special forms of contract, together with the year of adoption of such form, and whenever any change or modification is made in the form of contracts, policy, or bond, the designating letters or terms and year of adoption thereon shall be changed accordingly. (Rev., s. 4785; 1905, c. 504, s. 13; C. S. 6472.)

§ 58-220. Deposit for, and registration of, unregistered policies.—Every company which has made the deposit herein provided for may, at any time after the date on which it was made, deposit with the commissioner of insurance securities of the kind herein mentioned and in accordance with the provisions hereof, in an amount, inclusive of any amount deposited under the provisions of this law, equal to the net value of any nonregistered policies and annuity bonds which it has in force at that time, less such liens not exceeding such actual cash value as the company has against them, and the commissioner of insurance shall, when requested so to do, furnish such company with a certificate of the description mentioned in § 58-219, to be attached to each of said policies and annuity bonds. The commissioner of insurance shall enter upon each of such certificates the number of the policy or annuity bond to which it belongs and make a record of the same in his department. (Rev., s. 4786; 1905, c. 504, s. 17; C. S. 6473.)

§ 58-221. Record to be kept by commissioner; valuation; mutilated policies.—The commissioner of insurance shall prepare and keep such registers of registered policies of insurance or endowment and of annuity bonds as will enable him to compute their value at any time. Upon sufficient proof, attested by the president or vice-president and secretary of the company which has issued such policies or annuity bonds, that any of them have been commuted or terminated, the commissioner of insurance shall commute or cancel them upon such register. The net present value of every policy or annuity bond according to the standard prescribed in the laws of this state for the valuation of policies of life insurance companies when the first premium shall have been paid thereon, less the amount of such liens, not exceeding such value as the company has against it, shall be entered opposite the record of said policy or annuity bond in the register aforesaid at the time the record is made. On the thirty-first day of December of each year or within sixty days thereafter the commissioner of insurance shall cause the registered policies and annuity bonds of each company to be carefully revalued, and the net present value thereof at the time fixed for such valuation, less such liens, not exceeding such value as the company has against it, shall be entered upon the register opposite the record of such policy or bond, and the commissioner of insurance shall furnish a certificate of the aggregate of such value to the company. For the purpose of making this valuation the commissioner of insurance may employ a competent actuary, who shall be paid by the company for which the services are rendered, but nothing herein shall prevent any company from having made such valuation herein contemplated, which may be received by the commissioner of insurance upon such proof as he determines. Upon application of an insurance company, subject to the provisions of this article, it is the duty of the commissioner of insurance to receive mutilated policies and annuity bonds issued by said companies and certify in lieu thereof other policies or bonds of like tenor and date. (Rev., s. 4787; 1905, c. 504, s. 14; C. S. 6474.)

§ 58-222. Power of commissioner in case of insolvency.—If at any time the affairs of a life insurance company which has deposited securities under the provisions of this article, in the opinion of the commissioner of insurance, appear in such condition as to render the issuing of additional policies and annuity bonds by such company injurious to the public interest, the commissioner of insurance may take such proceedings against the company as are authorized by law to be taken against other insolvent companies, and said companies are in all respects subject to the provisions of law affecting other companies. (Rev., s. 4788; 1905, c. 504, s. 20; C. S. 6475.)

§ 58-223. Fees for registering policies.—Every company making deposits under the provisions of this article must pay to the commissioner of insurance for each certificate on registered policies or annuity bonds, including seal, a fee of fifty cents for those exceeding ten thousand dollars in amount and twenty-five cents for all under ten thousand dollars in amount, except policies for one hundred dollars and not exceeding five hundred dollars the fee shall be fifteen cents; for policies of one hundred dollars or less the fee shall be ten cents; for each certificate, including seal, for nonregistered policies issued in accordance with the provisions of this article, the fee shall be twenty-five cents. (Rev., s. 4789; 1905, c. 504, s. 21; C. S. 6476.)

Art. 24. Mutual Burial Associations.

§ 58-224. Mutual burial associations placed under supervision of burial association commissioner.—All mutual burial associations now organized and operating in the state of North Carolina, and all mutual burial associations hereafter organized and operating within said state, shall be under the general supervision of a burial association commissioner to be appointed by the governor of the state of North Carolina, whose term shall be for a period of four years and his salary to be fixed by the governor. (1941, c. 130, s. 2.)

Editor's Note.—This and the following sections down through § 58-241 are effective from July 1, 1941.

§ 58-225. Maintenance of separate branches, when operated for benefit of both races.—All burial associations now operating in the state of North Carolina and all burial associations hereafter organized and operated in the state of North Carolina, for the benefit of both races, shall maintain and operate two separate branches, and the provisions of article 24 shall apply to each branch as a separate association, except as hereinafter provided. (1941, c. 130, s. 3.)

§ 58-226. Requirements as to rules and by-laws.—All burial associations now operating within the state of North Carolina, and all burial associations hereafter organized and operating within the state of North Carolina shall have and maintain rules and by-laws embodying in substance the following:

Article 1. The name of this association shall be ....., which shall indicate that said association is a mutual burial association.

Article 2. The objects and purposes for which this association is formed and the purposes for which it has been organized, and the methods and plan of operation of any association already organized, shall be to provide a plan for each member of this association for the payment of one funeral benefit for each member, which benefit shall consist of a funeral in merchandise and service, with no free embalming or free ambulance service included in such benefits; and in no case shall any cash be paid. That no other free service or any other thing free shall be held out, promised or furnished in any case. Such funeral benefit shall be in the amount of one hundred dollars ($100.00) of merchandise and service, without free embalming or free ambulance service, for persons of the age of ten years and over, and in the amount of fifty dollars ($50.00) for persons under the age of ten years.

Article 3. Any person of either the white or colored race who has passed his or her first birthday, and who has not passed his or her sixty-fifth birthday, and who is in good health and not under treatment of any physician, nor confined in any institution for the treatment of mental or other disease, may become a member of such burial association by the payment of a membership fee by such person, or for such person, of twenty-five cents. Applicant's birthday must be written in the application and subject to verification by any record the burial association commissioner may deem necessary to prove or establish a true date of the birth of any applicant.

Article 4. The annual meeting of the association shall be held at ..... (here insert the place, date and hour); each member shall have one vote at said annual meeting and fifteen members of the association shall constitute a quorum. There shall be elected at the annual meeting of said association a board of directors of seven members, each of whom shall serve for a period of from one to five years as the membership may determine and until his or her successor shall have been elected and qualified. Any member of the board of directors who shall fail to maintain his or her membership, as provided in the rules and by-laws of said association, shall cease to be a member of the board of directors and a director shall be appointed by the president of said association for the unexpired term of such disqualified member. There shall be at least an annual meeting of the board of directors, and such meeting shall be held immediately following the annual meeting of the membership of the association. The directors of the association may, by a majority vote, hold other meetings of which notice shall be given to each member by mailing such notice five days before the meeting to be held. At the annual meetings of the directors of the association, the board of directors shall elect a president, a vice-president, and a secretary-treasurer. The president and vice-president shall be elected from among the directors, but the secretary-treasurer may be selected from the director membership or from the membership of the association, it being provided that it is not necessary that the secretary-treasurer shall be a member of the board of directors. The secretary-treasurer shall be the only paid officer of the association and his compensation shall be fixed by the board of directors. Among other duties that the secretary-treasurer may perform, he shall be chargeable with keeping an accurate and faithful roll of the membership of this association at all times and he shall be chargeable with the duty of faithfully preserving and faithfully applying all moneys coming into his hands by virtue of his said office. The president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer shall constitute a board of control who shall direct the affairs of the association in accordance with these articles and the by-laws of the association, and subject to such modification as may be made or authorized by an act of the general assembly. The secretary-treasurer shall keep a record of all assessments made, dues collected and benefits paid. The books of the association, together with all records and bank accounts shall be at all times open to the inspection of the burial association commissioner or his duly constituted auditors or representatives. It shall be the duty of the secretary or secretary-treasurer of each association to keep the books of the association posted up to date so that the financial standing of the association may be readily ascertained by the burial association commissioner or any auditor or representative employed by him. Upon the failure of any secretary or secretary-treasurer to comply with this provision, it shall be the duty of the burial association commissioner to employ an auditor or bookkeeper to take charge of the books of the association and do whatever work is necessary to bring the books up to date. The burial association commissioner shall have the power and authority to set a fee sufficient to pay the said auditor or bookkeeper for the work done upon the books of said association and the secretary or secretary-treasurer of the association shall pay the fees as specified by the burial association commissioner out of the funds of the burial association. This fee must be included in the twenty-five per cent allowed by law for the operation of the burial associations.

Article 5. Upon the death of any officer, his successor shall be elected by the board of directors for the unexpired term. The president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer shall be elected for a term of from one to five years, and shall hold office until his successor is elected and qualified, subject to the power of the board of directors to remove any officer for good cause shown: Provided, that any officer removed by the board of directors shall have the right of appeal to the membership of the association, such appeal to be heard at the next ensuing annual meeting of said membership.

Article 6. Each member shall be assessed according to the following schedule (or in multiples thereof) at the age of entry of the member: Provided, those members joining at ages under ten shall be charged with the assessment for age ten when they reach their tenth birthday:

Assessment Rate for Age Groups:

First to tenth birthday .....five cents (5c)
Tenth to thirtieth birthday .....ten cents (10c)
Thirtieth to fiftieth birthday ...twenty cents (20c)
Fiftieth to sixty-fifth birthday ..thirty cents (30c)

(Ages shall be defined as having passed a certain birthday instead of nearest birthday.) Assessment shall always be made on the entire membership in good standing.

Article 7. No benefit will be paid for natural death occurring within thirty days from the date of the certificate of membership, which certificate shall express the true date such person becomes a member of this association, and the certificate issued shall be in acknowledgment of membership in this association. Benefits will be paid for death caused by accidental means occurring any time after date of membership certificate. No benefits will be paid in case of suicidal death of any member within one year from the date of the membership certificate. No agent or other person shall have authority to issue membership certificates in the field, but such membership certificates shall be issued at the home office of the association by duly authorized officers: The president, vice-president or secretary, and a record thereof duly made.

Article 8. Any member failing to pay any assessment within thirty days after notice shall be in bad standing, and unless and until restored, shall not be entitled to benefits. Notice shall be presumed duly given when mailed, postage paid, to the last known address of such members: Provided, moreover, that notice to the head of a family shall be construed as notice to the entire membership of such family in said association. Any member or head of a family changing his or her address shall give notice to the secretary-treasurer in writing of such change, giving the old address as well as the new, and the head of a family notifying the secretary-treasurer of change in address shall list with the secretary in such notice all the members of his or her family having membership in said association. Any member in bad standing may, within ninety days after the date of an assessment notice, be reinstated to good standing by the payment of all delinquent dues and assessments: Provided such person shall at the same time submit to the secretary-treasurer satisfactory evidence of good health, in writing, and no benefit will be paid for natural death occurring within thirty days after reinstatement. In case of death caused by accidental means, benefit will be in force immediately after reinstatement. Any person desiring to discontinue his membership for any reason shall communicate such desire to the secretary-treasurer immediately and surrender his or her certificate of membership. Any adult member who is the head of a family, and who, with his family, has become in bad standing, shall furnish to the secretary-treasurer satisfactory evidence of the good health of each member desired to be reinstated in writing.

Article 9. The benefits herein provided are for the purpose of furnishing a funeral and burial service for a deceased member. The service shall be in keeping with the services and casket, sold at the same price, similar to that provided and charged by reputable funeral directors of this or other like communities.

Article 10. It is understood and stipulated that the funeral and burial service provided in article nine hereof shall be rendered by (give name of funeral director and town), which funeral director is designated in these rules and by-laws as the official funeral director of this association, and such funeral director shall be, by the secretary-treasurer of this association, immediately notified upon the death of any member, and upon the death of any member it shall be the duty of his or her nearest relative to notify the secretary-treasurer of the association of the death of such member. In the event a member in good standing shall die at a place beyond the territory served by the above named funeral director, the secretary of this association, being notified of such death, shall cause the deceased to receive a funeral and burial service equal to that provided for in these by-laws. The benefits provided for are to be payable to the funeral director rendering such funeral and burial service, which payment the secretary-treasurer is authorized to make. If the secretary-treasurer of the association shall fail, on demand, to provide the benefits as listed in article nine of these rules and by-laws by arrangement with the official funeral director serving the community in which the services are required, then the benefits shall be paid in cash to the representative of the deceased qualified under law to receive such payments.

Article 11. If the proceeds of one assessment on the entire membership produces more than enough for burial or burials, on account of which said assessment is made, the balance shall be placed in the treasury of the association to apply on future burials. Assessments shall be made in such multiples of the assessment rate as is necessary to provide a fund to take care of anticipated deaths. Whenever possible, assessments will be made at definitely stated intervals so as to reduce the cost of collection and to prevent lapse.

Article 12. In the event the proceeds of one assessment on the entire membership does not prove sufficient at any time to yield the benefit provided for in these by-laws, then the secretary-treasurer shall notify the burial association commissioner who shall be authorized, unless the membership is increased to that point where such assessment is sufficient, to cause liquidation of said association, and may transfer all members in good standing to a like organization or association.

Article 13. All legitimate operating expenses of the association shall be paid out of the assessments, but in no case shall the entire expenses exceed twenty-five per cent of the assessments collected. In the expenses of operation shall be included an amount sufficient to pay burial association commissioner and two or more auditors, with office expenses, all not to exceed an outlay of twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00) per year.

Article 14. Special meetings of the association membership may be called by the secretary-treasurer when by him deemed necessary or advisible, and he shall call a meeting when petitioned to do so by sixty-six and two-thirds per cent of the members of said association who are in good standing.

Article 15. The secretary-treasurer shall, upon satisfactory evidence that membership was granted to any person not qualified at the time of entry as provided under article three of these by-laws, refund any amounts paid as assessment, and shall remove the name from the membership roll.

Article 16. Any member may pay any number of assessments in advance, in which case such member will not be further assessed until a like number of assessments shall have been levied against the remaining membership.

Article 17. No person may maintain active membership in two separate burial associations and, upon evidence that membership is maintained contrary to this article, the secretary-treasurer may call upon such member to forfeit all benefits and fees paid in either one or the other of the associations. That any person who is found to have maintained membership in two associations shall forfeit all benefits and fees paid in the second association of which he became a member, unless the membership in the original association was discontinued or such association had been placed in liquidation.

Article 18. Each year before the annual meeting of the membership of this association, the association shall cause to be mailed to each member in good standing a statement showing total income collected, expenses paid and burial benefits provided for by such association during the next preceding year (giving the names of each person buried and the amount expended by the association in such burial). A statement mailed to the head of a family shall be regarded as notice to each member of such family holding membership in such association. The secretary or secretary-treasurer shall keep a faithful list of all notices mailed each year and shall note opposite the name of each member on the list of membership the date of mailing said statement.

Article 19. These rules and by-laws shall not be modified, cancelled or abridged by any association or other authority except by act of the general assembly of North Carolina. (1941, c. 130, s. 4; 1943, c. 272, ss. 1, 2.

Cross Reference.—As to payment in cash where benefits exceed $100.00, see § 58-111.

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the last four sentences of article 4 and changed the fifth sentence from the end of the article. And the amendment struck out the words "and the frequency of the assessments will be governed by the death rate within the association," formerly appearing at the end of article 6. It also struck out the words "until the next assessment period" formerly appearing as the latter part of the second sentence of article 11. The amendment increased the amount stated in article 13 from $17,000 to $25,000.

§ 58-227. Limitation of soliciting agents; licensing and qualifications; officers exempt from license; issuance of membership certificates.—Each burial association shall have not more than five agents or representatives soliciting members other than the secretary-treasurer and president, and before any agent or representative shall or may represent any burial association in North Carolina, he or she shall first apply to the burial association commissioner of North Carolina for a license, and the burial association commissioner shall have full power and authority to issue such license upon proof satisfactory to such commissioner that such person is capable of soliciting burial association memberships, is of good moral character and recommended by the association in behalf of which such membership solicitations are to be made. The burial association commissioner may reject the application of any person who does not meet the requirements set out by him, as to capacity and moral fitness on recommendations by the association. Upon the issuing of a license to solicit membership in any burial association, such person shall be required to pay in cash, at the time of issuing license to such applicant, to the burial association commissioner, the sum of ten dollars ($10.00); moneys derived from this fee or charge to be and remain in the department or office of such burial association commissioner, for supervision of burial associations in this state, subject to withdrawal for expenses of supervision by authority of the burial association commissioner. It shall not be necessary that the president or secretary-treasurer of any burial association shall obtain a license for soliciting membership in any association, of which such person is president or secretary-treasurer. Membership certificates shall not be issued by a solicitor in the field, but shall be reported to the office of the association and there issued and a record made of such issuance at the time such certificate is so issued. (1941, c. 130, s. 5.)

§ 58-228. Assessments against associations for supervision expense.—In order to meet the expense of supervision, the burial association commissioner shall prorate the amount of supervisory cost over and above any other funds in his hands for this purpose and assess each association on a pro rata basis in accordance with the number of members of each association, which assessment shall in no case exceed twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00), and such association shall remit to the burial association commissioner his pro rata part of the assessment as fixed by the burial association commissioner, which expense shall be included in the twenty-five per cent expense allowance as provided in article thirteen. This assessment shall be made on the first day of July of each and every year and said assessment shall be paid within thirty days thereafter. In case any association shall fail or refuse to pay such assessment within thirty days, it shall be the duty of the burial association commissioner to transfer all memberships and assets of every kind and description to the nearest next association that is found by the burial association commissioner to be in good sound financial condition. (1941, c. 130, s. 6; 1943, c. 272, s. 3.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment added the second and third sentences, and inserted in the first sentence the words "which assessment shall in no case exceed twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000.00)."

§ 58-229. Unlawful to operate without written authority of commissioner.—It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation, association or organization to organize, operate, or in any way solicit members for a burial association, or for participation in any plan, scheme, or device similar to burial associations, without the written authority of the burial association commissioner, and any person, firm or corporation violating the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) or imprisoned not less than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court: Provided, however, the burial association commissioner shall not withhold authority for the organization or operation of a bona fide burial association, meeting the requirements of this act, unless it shall be found and established to the satisfaction of the burial association commissioner that the person or persons applying for authority to organize and operate such bona fide burial association is disqualified or does not meet the requirements of article 24. (1941, c. 130, s. 7.)

§ 58-230. Penalty for failure to operate in substantial compliance with article 24.—If any burial association or other organization or official thereof, or any person operates or allows to be operated a burial association on any plan, scheme or by-laws not in substantial compliance with the by-laws set forth in § 58-226, the burial association commissioner may revoke any authority or license granted for the operation of such burial association, and any person, firm or corporation or association convicted of the violation of this section shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) or imprisoned not less than one year in jail, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 130, s. 8.)

§ 58-231. Penalty for wrongfully inducing person to change membership.—Any burial association official, agent or representative thereof or any person who shall use fraud or make any promise not part of the printed by-laws, or who shall offer any rebate, gratuity or refund to cause a member of one association to change membership to another association, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) or imprisoned not less than one year in jail, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 130, s. 9.)

§ 58-232. Penalty for making false and fraudulent entries.—Any burial association official who makes or allows to be made any false entry on the books of the association with intent to deceive or defraud any member thereof, or with intent to conceal from the burial association commissioner or his deputy or agent, or any auditor authorized to examine the books of such association, under the supervision of the burial association commissioner, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00), or imprisoned in the common jail for not less than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 130, s. 10.)

§ 58-233. Accepting application without collecting fee.—Any burial association official, agent or representative, or any other person who shall accept an application for membership in any association without collecting the fee from any such person making such application for membership, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00), or imprisoned not less than twelve months in the common jail, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 130, s. 11.)

§ 58-234. Removal of secretary-treasurer for failure to maintain proper records.—Any burial association secretary or secretary-treasurer who fails to maintain records to the minimum standards required by the burial association commissioner shall be by such commissioner removed from office and another elected in his stead, such election to be immediate and by the board of directors of said burial association upon notice of such removal. (1941, c. 130, s. 12.)

§ 58-235. Acceptance of donations, failure to make proper assessments, etc., made misdemeanor.—Any person or persons who accept donations from any source, or who contribute money or funeral services or free embalming, free ambulance service or any other thing free of charge, acting for any burial association, directly or indirectly, or who so acting shall in any way fail to assess for the amount needed to pay death losses and allowable expenses, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined not less than two hundred and fifty dollars ($250.00) or imprisoned in the common jail for not less than twelve months, or both, in the discretion of the court. (1941, c. 130, s. 13.)

§ 58-236. Right of appeal upon revocation of license.—Upon the revocation of any license or authority by the burial association commissioner, under any of the provisions of article 24, the said association or individual whose license has been revoked, shall have right of appeal from the action of said burial association commissioner revoking such license or authority to the superior court of the county in which such burial association may be located: Provided, said association shall give notice of appeal in writing to the burial association commissioner within ten days from the date of order revoking the said license and the said association giving notice of appeal shall deposit with the burial association commissioner an amount sufficient to cover appeal fees, which the burial association commissioner shall pay to the clerk of the superior court. Upon receipt of said notice of appeal, the burial association commissioner shall file with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the burial association is located the decision of the burial association commissioner and the clerk of the superior court shall transfer the appeal to the civil issue docket as in cases of appeal from a justice of the peace and the same shall be heard de novo. If upon the revocation of a license of a burial association by the burial association commissioner and where the burial association gives the proper notice of appeal, the burial association shall be permitted to operate until a final decision has been made by the higher court. (1941, c. 130, s. 14; 1943, c. 272, s. 4.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment struck out the words "as in other cases of appeal, and the matter shall be heard de novo," formerly ending the first sentence, and inserted in place thereof all of the section beginning with the proviso.

§ 58-237. Bond of secretary or secretary-treasurer of burial associations.—The secretary or secretary-treasurer of any burial association shall, before entering upon the duties of his office and for the faithful performance thereof, execute a bond payable to the association in some bonding company licensed to do business in this state, to be approved by the burial association commissioner, in a sum not less than twenty-five per cent of the surplus of the said association as shown by the financial statement rendered December thirty-first of each year, but in no event shall said bond be less than one thousand dollars ($1,000.00) and the said bond shall be deposited with the burial association commissioner for safekeeping: Provided, that if any association operates a branch for members of a colored race and the officers of both associations are the same, then the provisions of this section shall apply as of one association: Provided, further, however, that any burial association, with the consent and approval of the burial association commissioner, may give a bond secured by deed of trust on real estate situated in North Carolina, in lieu of procuring said bond from a bonding company; and the bond thus given is not to exceed tax value for the current year of the real estate securing the same. The said deed of trust is to be deposited with the burial association commissioner and the said deed of trust must constitute a first lien on the property secured by the deed of trust. (1941, c. 130, s. 15; 1943, c. 272, s. 5.)

Editor's Note.—The 1943 amendment rewrote this section.

§ 58-237.1. Number of assessments; reduction and increase.—Each association shall make not less than eight single or four double assessments per annum until such association shall have on hand a surplus of three dollars ($3.00) per member as shown on the annual statement herein required to be filed by the association. When any association has accumulated such surplus, the association, with the consent of the burial association commissioner may reduce the number of assessments to be made in any one year, which number shall be fixed by the burial association commissioner: Provided, however, that the burial association commissioner shall have the power to increase the number of assessments to be made in any one year when in his opinion the same shall be necessary in order to take care of the death loss. (1943, c. 272, s. 6.)

§ 58-237.2. Minimum membership required.—Each burial association shall at all times maintain an active membership of at least eight hundred members and should any association fail to secure the same within ninety days from the date of the granting of its charter, or at any time allow its active membership to fall below eight hundred members, the burial association commissioner shall revoke its license and transfer its membership to another association. (1943, c. 272, s. 6.)

§ 58-237.3. Procedure where burial association official or employee transacts business fraudulently, etc.—When after examination the burial association commissioner is satisfied that any burial association official, employee, or representative has failed to comply with any provision of § 58-226, or is exceeding its powers, or is not carrying out its contracts in good faith, or is transacting business fraudulently, the burial association commissioner shall call a meeting of all officers of said association and present the facts and the officers of said association shall immediately call a meeting of the said association membership. A meeting of the said association membership shall constitute a quorum when as many as fifteen of the members are present. When the membership shall meet, it shall be the duty of the burial association commissioner to submit all of the facts relative thereto to the officers and membership present in the said meeting. It shall then become the duty of the membership to proceed to the election of a new officer to fill the unexpired term of the officer whom the charges have been brought against by the burial association commissioner. If the membership of the burial association fails and refuses to elect a new officer, then it shall be the duty of the burial association commissioner to cancel the license of the said burial association and transfer its membership, together with all of its assets to another association that is found by the burial association commissioner to be in good sound financial condition. The burial association shall have the right of appeal from this decision as set up in § 58-236. (1943, c. 272, s. 6.)

§ 58-237.4. Making false or fraudulent statement a misdemeanor.—Any officer or employee of any burial association authorized to do business under this article, who shall knowingly or wilfully make any false or fraudulent statement or representation in or with reference to any application for membership or for the purpose of obtaining money from or benefit any burial association transacting business under this article, or who shall make any false financial statement to the burial association commissioner or to its membership shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined or imprisoned in the discretion of the court. (1943, c. 272, s. 6.)

§ 58-238. State-wide organization of associations.—It shall be lawful for the several mutual burial associations of the state of North Carolina, in good standing, to organize and provide for a state-wide organization of mutual burial associations, which organization shall be for the mutual and general suggestive control of mutual burial associations in the state of North Carolina. Such organization shall have such name as agreed upon by the membership in meetings, and to be composed of members as are lawfully operating in the state and who pay their dues to such association. (1941, c. 130, s. 16.)

§ 58-239. Article 24 deemed exclusive authority for organization, etc., of mutual burial associations.—Article 24 shall be deemed and held exclusive authority for the organization and operation of mutual burial associations within the state of North Carolina, and such associations shall not be subject to any other laws respecting insurance companies of any class. (1941, c. 130, s. 17.)

§ 58-240. Operation of association in violation of law prohibited.—No person, firm or corporation shall operate as a burial association in this state unless incorporated under the laws of the state of North Carolina, or be composed of a membership constituting an association complying with all the rules, regulations, sections and articles of article 24; and licensed and approved by the burial association commissioner of the state of North Carolina. (1941, c. 130, s. 18.)

§ 58-241. Appointment and removal of burial association commissioner; bond.—The burial association commissioner provided for in this act shall be appointed by the governor for a term of four years, subject to removal for cause, and shall hold office until his successor is appointed and qualified. Such burial association commissioner shall give bond approved by the insurance commissioner of the state of North Carolina in the sum of ten thousand dollars ($10,000.00), conditioned for his faithful application of all funds coming into his hands by virtue of his office. (1941, c. 130, s. 19.)

§ 58-241.1. Election for benefits or return of assessments on death of member in armed forces.—If any member of a burial association who is in good standing should die while serving in the military or naval forces of the United States, the spouse, if there is one, or the next of kin in the event there is no spouse, shall be entitled to elect between the benefits prescribed in the by-laws of the burial association and the return of assessments paid into the burial association by the deceased member. Such election must be made within one year from the official notification of death. Acceptance by the spouse or the next of kin of paid-in assessments shall be a complete release to the burial association. In the event the spouse or next of kin shall not elect to receive the paid-in assessments as settlement of all claims against the burial association, then the spouse or next of kin shall be entitled to the benefits prescribed by the by-laws of the burial association at any time the body of the deceased is returned for burial to the territory served by the burial association. (1943, c. 732, s. 1.)

§ 58-241.2. Member in armed forces failing to pay assessments; reinstatement.—If a member of a burial association who is in the military or naval forces of the United States fails to pay any assessment, he shall be in bad standing, and unless and until restored, shall not be entitled to benefits. However, the said member shall be reinstated in the burial association upon application made by him at any time until twelve months after his discharge from the military or naval forces of the United States, notwithstanding his physical condition and without the payment of assessments which have become due during his service in the military or naval forces of the United States. Benefits will be in force immediately after such reinstatement. (1943, c. 732, s. 2.)

§ 58-241.3. Prior death of member in armed forces.—If a member of a burial association who was in good standing has, before March 9, 1943, died while serving in the military or naval forces of the United States, the provisions of § 58-241.1 shall be applicable: Provided, the spouse, if there is one, or the next of kin in the event there is no spouse, must elect to receive the paid-in assessments within one year after March 9, 1943, or be deemed to have elected to receive benefits provided by the by-laws of the burial association. (1943, c. 732, s. 3.)

SUBCHAPTER V. AUTOMOBILE LIABILITY INSURANCE.

Art. 25. Regulation of Automobile Liability Insurance Rates.
