MOTION REGARDING COUNT 1

March 6, 2008

I move that the Committee find by clear and convincing evidence that on or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by orally and in writing improperly and unethically soliciting Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing The Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was an officer of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for The Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

March 6, 2008

I move that the Committee find by clear and convincing evidence that on or about April 5, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by, orally and in writing, improperly, fraudulently, and unethically presenting to a representative of Coastal Federal Bank as a factor to consider in whether to loan $150,000.00 to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a corporation of which Wright was an officer, a letter from Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, falsely stating that the Office endorsed the Foundation's museum conversion effort and was committed to funding the project in the amount of $150,000.00 and that the award of the funding would occur by June 30, 2002. At the time Thomas E. Wright presented the letter to the representative of Coastal Federal Bank, he knew that the assertions in the letter were false, that the commitment of funds was not authorized, and that the award of funding would not be forthcoming. The $150,000.00 loan to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. obtained from Coastal Federal Bank was made in part relying on the contents of the fraudulent letter presented by Thomas E. Wright.

March 6, 2008

I move that the Committee find by clear and convincing evidence that on or about December 15, 2003, while a member of the House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP, requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented to be qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for various health related purposes, including but not limited to educational initiatives, a needs assessment, identification of trends and bridging the gap of minority health care for an underserved population in New Hanover County. Thereafter, when on December 15, 2003, a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Hlth Found Inc" in the amount of $2,400.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE CONSTITUTION

PREAMBLE

We, the people of the State of North Carolina, grateful to Almighty God, the Sovereign Ruler of Nations, for the preservation of the American Union and the existence of our civil, political and religious liberties, and acknowledging our dependence upon Him for the continuance of those blessings to us and our posterity, do, for the more certain security thereof and for the better government of this State, ordain and establish this Constitution.

ARTICLE I
DECLARATION OF RIGHTS

That the great, general, and essential principles of liberty and free government may be recognized and established, and that the relations of this State to the Union and government of the United States and those of the people of this State to the rest of the American people may be defined and affirmed, we do declare that:

Section 1. The equality and rights of persons.

We hold it to be self-evident that all persons are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, the enjoyment of the fruits of their own labor, and the pursuit of happiness.

Sec. 2. Sovereignty of the people.

All political power is vested in and derived from the people; all government of right originates from the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole.

Sec. 3. Internal government of the State.

The people of this State have the inherent, sole, and exclusive right of regulating the internal government and police thereof, and of altering or abolishing their Constitution and form of government whenever it may be necessary to their safety and happiness; but every such right shall be exercised in pursuance of law and consistently with the Constitution of the United States.

Sec. 4. Secession prohibited.

This State shall ever remain a member of the American Union; the people thereof are part of the American nation; there is no right on the part of this State to secede; and all attempts, from whatever source or upon whatever pretext, to dissolve this Union or to sever this Nation, shall be resisted with the whole power of the State.

Sec. 5. Allegiance to the United States.

Every citizen of this State owes paramount allegiance to the Constitution and government of the United States, and no law or ordinance of the State in contravention or subversion thereof can have any binding force.

Sec. 6. Separation of powers.

The legislative, executive, and supreme judicial powers of the State government shall be forever separate and distinct from each other.

Sec. 7. Suspending laws.

All power of suspending laws or the execution of laws by any authority, without the consent of the representatives of the people, is injurious to their rights and shall not be exercised.

Sec. 8. Representation and taxation.

The people of this State shall not be taxed or made subject to the payment of any impost or duty without the consent of themselves or their representatives in the General Assembly, freely given.

Sec. 9. Frequent elections.

For redress of grievances and for amending and strengthening the laws, elections shall be often held.

Sec. 10. Free elections.

All elections shall be free.

Sec. 11. Property qualifications.

As political rights and privileges are not dependent upon or modified by property, no property qualification shall affect the right to vote or hold office.

Sec. 12. Right of assembly and petition.

The people have a right to assemble together to consult for their common good, to instruct their representatives, and to apply to the General Assembly for redress of grievances; but secret political societies are dangerous to the liberties of a free people and shall not be tolerated.

Sec. 13. Religious liberty.

All persons have a natural and inalienable right to worship Almighty God according to the dictates of their own consciences, and no human authority shall, in any case whatever, control or interfere with the rights of conscience.

Sec. 14. Freedom of speech and press.

Freedom of speech and of the press are two of the great bulwarks of liberty and therefore shall never be restrained, but every person shall be held responsible for their abuse.

Sec. 15. Education.

The people have a right to the privilege of education, and it is the duty of the State to guard and maintain that right.

Sec. 16. Ex post facto laws.

Retrospective laws, punishing acts committed before the existence of such laws and by them only declared criminal, are oppressive, unjust, and incompatible with liberty, and therefore no ex post facto law shall be enacted. No law taxing retrospectively sales, purchases, or other acts previously done shall be enacted.

Sec. 17. Slavery and involuntary servitude.

Slavery is forever prohibited. Involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the parties have been adjudged guilty, is forever prohibited.

Sec. 18. Court shall be open.

All courts shall be open; every person for an injury done him in his lands, goods, person, or reputation shall have remedy by due course of law; and right and justice shall be administered without favor, denial, or delay.

Sec. 19. Law of the land; equal protection of the laws.

No person shall be taken, imprisoned, or disseized of his freehold, liberties, or privileges, or outlawed, or exiled, or in any manner deprived of his life, liberty, or property, but by the law of the land. No person shall be denied the equal protection of the laws; nor shall any person be subjected to discrimination by the State because of race, color, religion, or national origin.

Sec. 20. General warrants.

General warrants, whereby any officer or other person may be commanded to search suspected places without evidence of the act committed, or to seize any person or persons not named, whose offense is not particularly described and supported by evidence, are dangerous to liberty and shall not be granted.

Sec. 21. Inquiry into restraints on liberty.

Every person restrained of his liberty is entitled to a remedy to inquire into the lawfulness thereof, and to remove the restraint if unlawful, and that remedy shall not be denied or delayed. The privilege of the writ of habeas corpus shall not be suspended.

Sec. 22. Modes of prosecution.

Except in misdemeanor cases initiated in the District Court Division, no person shall be put to answer any criminal charge but by indictment, presentment, or impeachment. But any person, when represented by counsel, may, under such regulations as the General Assembly shall prescribe, waive indictment in noncapital cases.

Sec. 23. Rights of accused.

In all criminal prosecutions, every person charged with crime has the right to be informed of the accusation and to confront the accusers and witnesses with other testimony, and to have counsel for defense, and not be compelled to give self-incriminating evidence, or to pay costs, jail fees, or necessary witness fees of the defense, unless found guilty.

Sec. 24. Right of jury trial in criminal cases.

No person shall be convicted of any crime but by the unanimous verdict of a jury in open court. The General Assembly may, however, provide for other means of trial for misdemeanors, with the right of appeal for trial de novo.

Sec. 25. Right of jury trial in civil cases.

In all controversies at law respecting property, the ancient mode of trial by jury is one of the best securities of the rights of the people, and shall remain sacred and inviolable.

Sec. 26. Jury service.

No person shall be excluded from jury service on account of sex, race, color, religion, or national origin.

Sec. 27. Bail, fines, and punishments.

Excessive bail shall not be required, nor excessive fines imposed, nor cruel or unusual punishments inflicted.

Sec. 28. Imprisonment for debt.

There shall be no imprisonment for debt in this State, except in cases of fraud.

Sec. 29. Treason against the State.

Treason against the State shall consist only of levying war against it or adhering to its enemies by giving them aid and comfort. No person shall be convicted of treason unless on the testimony of two witnesses to the same overt act, or on confession in open court. No conviction of treason or attainder shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture.

Sec. 30. Militia and the right to bear arms.

A well regulated militia being necessary to the security of a free State, the right of the people to keep and bear arms shall not be infringed; and, as standing armies in time of peace are dangerous to liberty, they shall not be maintained, and the military shall be kept under strict subordination to, and governed by, the civil power. Nothing herein shall justify the practice of carrying concealed weapons, or prevent the General Assembly from enacting penal statutes against that practice.

Sec. 31. Quartering of soldiers.

No soldier shall in time of peace be quartered in any house without the consent of the owner, nor in time of war but in a manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 32. Exclusive emoluments.

No person or set of persons is entitled to exclusive or separate emoluments or privileges from the community but in consideration of public services.

Sec. 33. Hereditary emoluments and honors.

No hereditary emoluments, privileges, or honors shall be granted or conferred in this State.

Sec. 34. Perpetuities and monopolies.

Perpetuities and monopolies are contrary to the genius of a free state and shall not be allowed.

Sec. 35. Recurrence to fundamental principles.

A frequent recurrence to fundamental principles is absolutely necessary to preserve the blessings of liberty.

Sec. 36. Other rights of the people.

The enumeration of rights in this Article shall not be construed to impair or deny others retained by the people.

Sec. 37. Rights of victims of crime.

(1) Basic rights. Victims of crime, as prescribed by law, shall be entitled to the following basic rights:

- (a) The right as prescribed by law to be informed of and to be present at court proceedings of the accused.
- (b) The right to be heard at sentencing of the accused in a manner prescribed by law, and at other times as prescribed by law or deemed appropriate by the court.
- (c) The right as prescribed by law to receive restitution.
- (d) The right as prescribed by law to be given information about the crime, how the criminal justice system works, the rights of victims, and the availability of services for victims.
- (e) The right as prescribed by law to receive information about the conviction or final disposition and sentence of the accused.
- (f) The right as prescribed by law to receive notification of escape, release, proposed parole or pardon of the accused, or notice of a reprieve or commutation of the accused's sentence.
- (g) The right as prescribed by law to present their views and concerns to the Governor or agency considering any action that could result in the release of the accused, prior to such action becoming effective.
- (h) The right as prescribed by law to confer with the prosecution.

(2) No money damages; other enforcement. Nothing in this section shall be construed as creating a claim for money damages against the State, a county, a municipality, or any of the agencies, instrumentalities, or employees thereof. The General Assembly may provide for other remedies to ensure adequate enforcement of this section.

(3) No ground for relief in criminal case. The failure or inability of any person to provide a right or service provided under this section may not be used by a defendant in a criminal case, an inmate, or any other accused as a ground for relief in any trial, appeal, postconviction litigation, habeas corpus, civil action, or any similar criminal or civil proceeding. (1995, c. 438, s. 1.)

ARTICLE II LEGISLATIVE

Section 1. Legislative power.

The legislative power of the State shall be vested in the General Assembly, which shall consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives.

Sec. 2. Number of Senators.

The Senate shall be composed of 50 Senators, biennially chosen by ballot.

Sec. 3. Senate districts; apportionment of Senators.

The Senators shall be elected from districts. The General Assembly, at the first regular session convening after the return of every decennial census of population taken by order of Congress, shall revise the senate districts and the apportionment of Senators among those districts, subject to the following requirements:

(1) Each Senator shall represent, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants, the number of inhabitants that each Senator represents being determined for this purpose by dividing the population of the district that he represents by the number of Senators apportioned to that district;

(2) Each senate district shall at all times consist of contiguous territory;

(3) No county shall be divided in the formation of a senate district;

(4) When established, the senate districts and the apportionment of Senators shall remain unaltered until the return of another decennial census of population taken by order of Congress.

Sec. 4. Number of Representatives.

The House of Representatives shall be composed of 120 Representatives, biennially chosen by ballot.

Sec. 5. Representative districts; apportionment of Representatives.

The Representatives shall be elected from districts. The General Assembly, at the first regular session convening after the return of every decennial census of population taken by order of Congress, shall revise the representative districts and the apportionment of Representatives among those districts, subject to the following requirements:

(1) Each Representative shall represent, as nearly as may be, an equal number of inhabitants, the number of inhabitants that each Representative represents being determined for this purpose by dividing the population of the district that he represents by the number of Representatives apportioned to that district;

(2) Each representative district shall at all times consist of contiguous territory;

(3) No county shall be divided in the formation of a representative district;

(4) When established, the representative districts and the apportionment of Representatives shall remain unaltered until the return of another decennial census of population taken by order of Congress.

Sec. 6. Qualifications for Senator.

Each Senator, at the time of his election, shall be not less than 25 years of age, shall be a qualified voter of the State, and shall have resided in the State as a citizen for two years and in the district for which he is chosen for one year immediately preceding his election.

Sec. 7. Qualifications for Representative.

Each Representative, at the time of his election, shall be a qualified voter of the State, and shall have resided in the district for which he is chosen for one year immediately preceding his election.

Sec. 8. Elections.

The election for members of the General Assembly shall be held for the respective districts in 1972 and every two years thereafter, at the places and on the day prescribed by law.

Sec. 9. Term of office.

The term of office of Senators and Representatives shall commence on the first day of January next after their election.

Sec. 10. Vacancies.

Every vacancy occurring in the membership of the General Assembly by reason of death, resignation, or other cause shall be filled in the manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 11. Sessions.

(1) Regular Sessions. The General Assembly shall meet in regular session in 1973 and every two years thereafter on the day prescribed by law. Neither house shall proceed upon public business unless a majority of all of its members are actually present.

(2) Extra sessions on legislative call. The President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives shall convene the General Assembly in extra session by their joint proclamation upon receipt by the President of the Senate of written requests therefor signed by three-fifths of all the members of the Senate and upon receipt by the Speaker of the House of Representatives of written requests therefor signed by three-fifths of all the members of the House of Representatives.

Sec. 12. Oath of members.

Each member of the General Assembly, before taking his seat, shall take an oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution and laws of the United States and the Constitution of the State of North Carolina, and will faithfully discharge his duty as a member of the Senate or House of Representatives.

Sec. 13. President of the Senate.

The Lieutenant Governor shall be President of the Senate and shall preside over the Senate, but shall have no vote unless the Senate is equally divided.

Sec. 14. Other officers of the Senate.

(1) President Pro Tempore - succession to presidency. The Senate shall elect from its membership a President Pro Tempore, who shall become President of the Senate upon the failure of the Lieutenant Governor-elect to qualify, or upon succession by the Lieutenant Governor to the office of Governor, or upon the death, resignation, or removal from office of the President of the Senate, and who shall serve until the expiration of his term of office as Senator.

(2) President Pro Tempore - temporary succession. During the physical or mental incapacity of the President of the Senate to perform the duties of his office, or during the absence of the President of the Senate, the President Pro Tempore shall preside over the Senate.

(3) Other officers. The Senate shall elect its other officers.

Sec. 15. Officers of the House of Representatives.

The House of Representatives shall elect its Speaker and other officers.

Sec. 16. Compensation and allowances.

The members and officers of the General Assembly shall receive for their services the compensation and allowances prescribed by law. An increase in the compensation or allowances of members shall become effective at the beginning of the next regular session of the General Assembly following the session at which it was enacted.

Sec. 17. Journals.

Each house shall keep a journal of its proceedings, which shall be printed and made public immediately after the adjournment of the General Assembly.

Sec. 18. Protests.

Any member of either house may dissent from and protest against any act or resolve which he may think injurious to the public or to any individual, and have the reasons of his dissent entered on the journal.

Sec. 19. Record votes.

Upon motion made in either house and seconded by one fifth of the members present, the yeas and nays upon any question shall be taken and entered upon the journal.

Sec. 20. Powers of the General Assembly.

Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own members, shall sit upon its own adjournment from day to day, and shall prepare bills to be enacted into laws. The two houses may jointly adjourn to any future day or other place. Either house may, of its own motion, adjourn for a period not in excess of three days.

Sec. 21. Style of the acts.

The style of the acts shall be: "The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:".

Sec. 22. Action on bills.

(1) Bills subject to veto by Governor; override of veto. Except as provided by subsections (2) through (6) of this section, all bills shall be read three times in each house and shall be signed by the presiding officer of each house before being presented to the Governor. If the Governor approves, the Governor shall sign it and it shall become a law; but if not, the Governor shall return it with objections, together with a veto message stating the reasons for such objections, to that house in which it shall have originated, which shall enter the objections and veto message at large on its journal, and proceed to reconsider it. If after such reconsideration three-fifths of the members of that house present and voting shall agree to pass the bill, it shall be sent, together with the objections and veto message, to the other house, by which it shall likewise be reconsidered; and if approved by three-fifths of the members of that house present and voting, it shall become a law notwithstanding the objections of the Governor. In all such cases the votes of both houses shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the members voting shall be entered on the journal of each house respectively.

(2) Amendments to Constitution of North Carolina. Every bill proposing a new or revised Constitution or an amendment or amendments to this Constitution or calling a convention of the people of this State, and containing no other matter, shall be submitted to the qualified voters of this State after it shall have been read three times in each house and signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

(3) Amendments to Constitution of the United States. Every bill approving an amendment to the Constitution of the United States, or applying for a convention to propose amendments to the Constitution of the United States, and containing no other matter, shall be read three times in each house before it becomes law, and shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

(4) Joint resolutions. Every joint resolution shall be read three times in each house before it becomes effective and shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

(5) Other exceptions. Every bill:

- (a) In which the General Assembly makes an appointment or appointments to public office and which contains no other matter;
- (b) Revising the senate districts and the apportionment of Senators among those districts and containing no other matter;
- (c) Revising the representative districts and the apportionment of Representatives among those districts and containing no other matter; or
- (d) Revising the districts for the election of members of the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States and the apportionment of Representatives among those districts and containing no other matter, shall be read three times in each house before it becomes law and shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses.

(6) Local bills. Every bill that applies in fewer than 15 counties shall be read three times in each house before it becomes law and shall be signed by the presiding officers of both houses. The exemption from veto by the Governor provided in this subsection does not apply if the bill, at the time it is signed by the presiding officers:

(a) Would extend the application of a law signed by the presiding officers during that two year term of the General Assembly so that the law would apply in more than half the counties in the State, or

(b) Would enact a law identical in effect to another law or laws signed by the presiding officers during that two year term of the General Assembly that the result of those laws taken together would be a law applying in more than half the counties in the State.

Notwithstanding any other language in this subsection, the exemption from veto provided by this subsection does not apply to any bill to enact a general law classified by population or other criteria, or to any bill that contains an appropriation from the State treasury.

(7) Time for action by Governor; reconvening of session. If any bill shall not be returned by the Governor within 10 days after it shall have been presented to him, the same shall be a law in like manner as if he had signed it, unless the General Assembly shall have adjourned:

(a) For more than 30 days jointly as provided under Section 20 of Article II of this Constitution; or in which case it shall become a law unless, within 30 days after such adjournment, it is returned by the Governor with objections and veto message to that house in which it shall have originated. When the General Assembly has adjourned sine die or for more than 30 days jointly as provided under Section 20 of Article II of this Constitution, the Governor shall reconvene that session as provided by Section 5(11) of Article III of this Constitution for reconsideration of the bill, and if the Governor does not reconvene the session, the bill shall become law on the fortieth day after such adjournment. Notwithstanding the previous sentence, if the Governor prior to reconvening the session receives written requests dated no earlier than 30 days after such adjournment, signed by a majority of the members of each house that a reconvened session to reconsider vetoed legislation is unnecessary, the Governor shall not reconvene the session for that purpose and any legislation vetoed in accordance with this section after adjournment shall not become law.

(8) Return of bills after adjournment. For purposes of return of bills not approved by the Governor, each house shall designate an officer to receive returned bills during its adjournment. (1995, c. 5, s. 1.)

Sec. 23. Revenue bills.

No law shall be enacted to raise money on the credit of the State, or to pledge the faith of the State directly or indirectly for the payment of any debt, or to impose any tax upon the people of the State, or to allow the counties, cities, or towns to do so, unless the bill for the purpose shall have been read three several times in each house of the General Assembly and passed three several readings, which readings shall have been on three different days, and shall have been agreed to by each house respectively, and unless the yeas and nays on the second and third readings of the bill shall have been entered on the journal.

Sec. 24. Limitations on local, private, and special legislation.

(1) Prohibited subjects. The General Assembly shall not enact any local, private, or special act or resolution:

(a) Relating to health, sanitation, and the abatement of nuisances;

(b) Changing the names of cities, towns, and townships;

(c) Authorizing the laying out, opening, altering, maintaining, or discontinuing of highways, streets, or alleys;

(d) Relating to ferries or bridges;

(e) Relating to non-navigable streams;

(f) Relating to cemeteries;

(g) Relating to the pay of jurors;
(h) Erecting new townships, or changing township lines, or establishing or changing the lines of school districts;
(i) Remitting fines, penalties, and forfeitures, or refunding moneys legally paid into the public treasury;
(j) Regulating labor, trade, mining, or manufacturing;
(k) Extending the time for the levy or collection of taxes or otherwise relieving any collector of taxes from the due performance of his official duties or his sureties from liability;
(l) Giving effect to informal wills and deeds;
(m) Granting a divorce or securing alimony in any individual case;
(n) Altering the name of any person, or legitimating any person not born in lawful wedlock, or restoring to the rights of citizenship any person convicted of a felony.

(2) Repeals. Nor shall the General Assembly enact any such local, private, or special act by the partial repeal of a general law; but the General Assembly may at any time repeal local, private, or special laws enacted by it.

(3) Prohibited acts void. Any local, private, or special act or resolution enacted in violation of the provisions of this Section shall be void.

(4) General laws. The General Assembly may enact general laws regulating the matters set out in this Section.

ARTICLE III EXECUTIVE

Section 1. Executive power.

The executive power of the State shall be vested in the Governor.

Sec. 2. Governor and Lieutenant Governor: election, term, and qualifications.

(1) Election and term. The Governor and Lieutenant Governor shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State in 1972 and every four years thereafter, at the same time and places as members of the General Assembly are elected. Their term of office shall be four years and shall commence on the first day of January next after their election and continue until their successors are elected and qualified.

(2) Qualifications. No person shall be eligible for election to the office of Governor or Lieutenant Governor unless, at the time of his election, he shall have attained the age of 30 years and shall have been a citizen of the United States for five years and a resident of this State for two years immediately preceding his election. No person elected to the office of Governor or Lieutenant Governor shall be eligible for election to more than two consecutive terms of the same office.

Sec. 3. Succession to office of Governor.

(1) Succession as Governor. The Lieutenant Governor-elect shall become Governor upon the failure of the Governor-elect to qualify. The Lieutenant Governor shall become Governor upon the death, resignation, or removal from office of the Governor. The further order of succession to the office of Governor shall be prescribed by law. A successor shall serve for the remainder of the term of the Governor whom he succeeds and until a new Governor is elected and qualified.

(2) Succession as Acting Governor. During the absence of the Governor from the State, or during the physical or mental incapacity of the Governor to perform the duties of his office, the Lieutenant Governor shall be Acting Governor. The further order of succession as Acting Governor shall be prescribed by law.

(3) Physical incapacity. The Governor may, by a written statement filed with the Attorney General, declare that he is physically incapable of performing the duties of his office, and may thereafter in the same manner declare that he is physically capable of performing the duties of his office.

(4) Mental incapacity. The mental incapacity of the Governor to perform the duties of his office shall be determined only by joint resolution adopted by a vote of two-thirds of all the members of each house of the General Assembly. Thereafter, the mental capacity of the Governor to perform the duties of his office shall be determined only by joint resolution adopted by a vote of a majority of all the members of each house of the General Assembly. In all cases, the General Assembly shall give the Governor such notice as it may deem proper and shall allow him an opportunity to be heard before a joint session of the General Assembly before it takes final action. When the General Assembly is not in session, the Council of State, a majority of its members concurring, may convene it in extra session for the purpose of proceeding under this paragraph.

(5) Impeachment. Removal of the Governor from office for any other cause shall be by impeachment.

Sec. 4. Oath of office for Governor.

The Governor, before entering upon the duties of his office, shall, before any Justice of the Supreme Court, take an oath or affirmation that he will support the Constitution and laws of the United States and of the State of North Carolina, and that he will faithfully perform the duties pertaining to the office of governor.

Sec. 5. Duties of Governor.

(1) Residence. The Governor shall reside at the seat of government of this State.

(2) Information to General Assembly. The Governor shall from time to time give the General Assembly information of the affairs of the State and recommend to their consideration such measures as he shall deem expedient.

(3) Budget. The Governor shall prepare and recommend to the General Assembly a comprehensive budget of the anticipated revenue and proposed expenditures of the State for the ensuing fiscal period. The budget as enacted by the General Assembly shall be administered by the Governor.

The total expenditures of the State for the fiscal period covered by the budget shall not exceed the total of receipts during that fiscal period and the surplus remaining in the State Treasury at the beginning of the period. To insure that the State does not incur a deficit for any fiscal period, the Governor shall continually survey the collection of the revenue and shall effect the necessary economies in State expenditures, after first making adequate provision for the prompt payment of the principal of and interest on bonds and notes of the State according to their terms, whenever he determines that receipts during the fiscal period, when added to any surplus remaining in the State Treasury at the beginning of the period, will not be sufficient to meet budgeted expenditures. This section shall not be construed to impair the power of the State to issue its bonds and notes within the limitations imposed in Article V of this Constitution, nor to impair the obligation of bonds and notes of the State now outstanding or issued hereafter.

(4) Execution of laws. The Governor shall take care that the laws be faithfully executed.

(5) Commander in Chief. The Governor shall be Commander in Chief of the military forces of the State except when they shall be called into the service of the United States.

(6) Clemency. The Governor may grant reprieves, commutations, and pardons, after conviction, for all offenses (except in cases of impeachment), upon such conditions as he may think proper, subject to regulations prescribed by law relative to the manner of applying for pardons. The terms reprieves, commutations, and pardons shall not include paroles.

(7) Extra sessions. The Governor may, on extraordinary occasions, by and with the advice of the Council of State, convene the General Assembly in extra session by his proclamation, stating therein the purpose or purposes for which they are thus convened.

(8) Appointments. The Governor shall nominate and by and with the advice and consent of a majority of the Senators appoint all officers whose appointments are not otherwise provided for.

(9) Information. The Governor may at any time require information in writing from the head of any administrative department or agency upon any subject relating to the duties of his office.

(10) Administrative reorganization. The General Assembly shall prescribe the functions, powers, and duties of the administrative departments and agencies of the State and may alter them from time to time, but the Governor may make such changes in the allocation of offices and agencies and in the allocation of those functions, powers, and duties as he considers necessary for efficient administration. If those changes affect existing law, they shall be set forth in executive orders, which shall be submitted to the General Assembly not later than the sixtieth calendar day of its session, and shall become effective and shall have the force of law upon adjournment sine die of the session, unless specifically disapproved by resolution of either house of the General Assembly or specifically modified by joint resolution of both houses of the General Assembly.

(11) Reconvened sessions. The Governor shall, when required by Section 22 of Article II of this Constitution, reconvene a session of the General Assembly. At such reconvened session, the General Assembly may only consider such bills as were returned by the Governor to that reconvened session for reconsideration. Such reconvened session shall begin on a date set by the Governor, but no later than 40 days after the General Assembly adjourned:

(a) For more than 30 days jointly as provided under Section 20 of Article II of this Constitution; or

(b) Sine die. If the date of reconvening the session occurs after the expiration of the terms of office of the members of the General Assembly, then the members serving for the reconvened session shall be the members for the succeeding term. (1969, c. 932, s. 1; 1977, c. 690, s. 1; 1995, c. 5, s. 2.)

Sec. 6. Duties of the Lieutenant Governor.

The Lieutenant Governor shall be President of the Senate, but shall have no vote unless the Senate is equally divided. He shall perform such additional duties as the General Assembly or the Governor may assign to him. He shall receive the compensation and allowances prescribed by law.

Sec. 7. Other elective officers.

(1) Officers. A Secretary of State, an Auditor, a Treasurer, a Superintendent of Public Instruction, an Attorney General, a Commissioner of Agriculture, a Commissioner of Labor, and a Commissioner of Insurance shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State in 1972 and every four years thereafter, at the same time and places as members of the General Assembly are elected. Their term of office shall be four years and shall commence on the first day of January next after their election and continue until their successors are elected and qualified.

(2) Duties. Their respective duties shall be prescribed by law.

(3) Vacancies. If the office of any of these officers is vacated by death, resignation, or otherwise, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint another to serve until his successor is elected and qualified. Every such vacancy shall be filled by election at the first election for members of the General Assembly that occurs more than 60 days after the vacancy has taken place, and the person chosen shall hold the office for the remainder of the unexpired term fixed in this Section. When a vacancy occurs in the office of any of the officers named in this Section and the term expires on the first day of January succeeding the next election for members of the General Assembly, the Governor shall appoint to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term of the office.

(4) Interim officers. Upon the occurrence of a vacancy in the office of any one of these officers for any of the causes stated in the preceding paragraph, the Governor may appoint an interim officer to perform the duties of that office until a person is appointed or elected pursuant to this Section to fill the vacancy and is qualified.

(5) Acting officers. During the physical or mental incapacity of any one of these officers to perform the duties of his office, as determined pursuant to this Section, the duties of his office shall be performed by an acting officer who shall be appointed by the Governor.

(6) Determination of incapacity. The General Assembly shall by law prescribe with respect to those officers, other than the Governor, whose offices are created by this Article, procedures for determining the physical or mental incapacity of any officer to perform the duties of his office, and for determining whether an officer who has been temporarily incapacitated has sufficiently recovered his physical or mental capacity to perform the duties of his office. Removal of those officers from office for any other cause shall be by impeachment.

(7) Special Qualifications for Attorney General. Only persons duly authorized to practice law in the courts of this State shall be eligible for appointment or election as Attorney General.

Sec. 8. Council of State.

The Council of State shall consist of the officers whose offices are established by this Article.

Sec. 9. Compensation and allowances.

The officers whose offices are established by this Article shall at stated periods receive the compensation and allowances prescribed by law, which shall not be diminished during the time for which they have been chosen.

Sec. 10. Seal of State.

There shall be a seal of the State, which shall be kept by the Governor and used by him as occasion may require, and shall be called "The Great Seal of the State of North Carolina". All grants or commissions shall be issued in the name and by the authority of the State of North Carolina, sealed with "The Great Seal of the State of North Carolina", and signed by the Governor.

Sec. 11. Administrative departments.

Not later than July 1, 1975, all administrative departments, agencies, and offices of the State and their respective functions, powers, and duties shall be allocated by law among and within not more than 25 principal administrative departments so as to group them as far as practicable according to major purposes. Regulatory, quasi-judicial, and temporary agencies may, but need not, be allocated within a principal department.

ARTICLE IV JUDICIAL

Section 1. Judicial power.

The judicial power of the State shall, except as provided in Section 3 of this Article, be vested in a Court for the Trial of Impeachments and in a General Court of Justice. The General Assembly shall have no power to deprive the judicial department of any power or jurisdiction that rightfully pertains to it as a co-ordinate department of the government, nor shall it establish or authorize any courts other than as permitted by this Article.

Sec. 2. General Court of Justice.

The General Court of Justice shall constitute a unified judicial system for purposes of jurisdiction, operation, and administration, and shall consist of an Appellate Division, a Superior Court Division, and a District Court Division.

Sec. 3. Judicial powers of administrative agencies.

The General Assembly may vest in administrative agencies established pursuant to law such judicial powers as may be reasonably necessary as an incident to the accomplishment of the purposes for which the agencies were created. Appeals from administrative agencies shall be to the General Court of Justice.

Sec. 4. Court for the Trial of Impeachments.

The House of Representatives solely shall have the power of impeaching. The Court for the Trial of Impeachments shall be the Senate. When the Governor or Lieutenant Governor is impeached, the Chief Justice shall preside over the Court. A majority of the members shall be necessary to a quorum, and no person shall be convicted without the concurrence of two-thirds of the Senators present. Judgment upon conviction shall not extend beyond removal from and disqualification to hold office in this State, but the party shall be liable to indictment and punishment according to law.

Sec. 5. Appellate division.

The Appellate Division of the General Court of Justice shall consist of the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeals.

Sec. 6. Supreme Court.

(1) Membership. The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and six Associate Justices, but the General Assembly may increase the number of Associate Justices to not more than eight. In the event the Chief Justice is unable, on account of absence or temporary incapacity, to perform any of the duties placed upon him, the senior Associate Justice available may discharge those duties.

(2) Sessions of the Supreme Court. The sessions of the Supreme Court shall be held in the City of Raleigh unless otherwise provided by the General Assembly.

Sec. 7. Court of Appeals.

The structure, organization, and composition of the Court of Appeals shall be determined by the General Assembly. The Court shall have not less than five members, and may be authorized to sit in divisions, or other than en banc. Sessions of the Court shall be held at such times and places as the General Assembly may prescribe.

Sec. 8. Retirement of Justices and Judges.

The General Assembly shall provide by general law for the retirement of Justices and Judges of the General Court of Justice, and may provide for the temporary recall of any retired Justice or Judge to serve on the court or courts of the division from which he was retired. The General Assembly shall also prescribe maximum age limits for service as a Justice or Judge.

Sec. 9. Superior Courts.

(1) Superior Court districts. The General Assembly shall, from time to time, divide the State into a convenient number of Superior Court judicial districts and shall provide for the election of one or more Superior Court Judges for each district. Each regular Superior Court Judge shall reside in the district for which he is elected. The General Assembly may provide by general law for the selection or appointment of special or emergency Superior Court Judges not selected for a particular judicial district.

(2) Open at all times; sessions for trial of cases. The Superior Courts shall be open at all times for the transaction of all business except the trial of issues of fact requiring a jury. Regular trial sessions of the Superior Court shall be held at times fixed pursuant to a calendar of courts promulgated by the Supreme Court. At least two sessions for the trial of jury cases shall be held annually in each county.

(3) Clerks. A Clerk of the Superior Court for each county shall be elected for a term of four years by the qualified voters thereof, at the same time and places as members of the General Assembly are elected. If the office of Clerk of the Superior Court becomes vacant otherwise than by the expiration of the term, or if the people fail to elect, the senior regular resident Judge of the Superior Court serving the county shall appoint to fill the vacancy until an election can be regularly held.

Sec. 10. District Courts.

The General Assembly shall, from time to time, divide the State into a convenient number of local court districts and shall prescribe where the District Courts shall sit, but a District Court must sit in at least one place in each county. District Judges shall be elected for each district for a term of four years, in a manner prescribed by law. When more than one District Judge is authorized and elected for a district, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court shall designate one of the judges as Chief District Judge. Every District Judge shall reside in the district for which he is elected. For each county, the senior regular resident Judge of the Superior Court serving the county shall appoint from nominations submitted by the Clerk of the Superior Court of the county, one or more Magistrates who shall be officers of the District Court. The initial term of appointment for a magistrate shall be for two years and subsequent terms shall be for four years. The number of District Judges and Magistrates shall, from time to time, be determined by the General Assembly. Vacancies in the office of District Judge shall be filled for the unexpired term in a manner prescribed by law. Vacancies in the office of Magistrate shall be filled for the unexpired term in the manner provided for original appointment to the office, unless otherwise provided by the General Assembly. (2004-128, s. 16.)

Sec. 11. Assignment of Judges.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, acting in accordance with rules of the Supreme Court, shall make assignments of Judges of the Superior Court and may transfer District Judges from one district to another for temporary or specialized duty. The principle of rotating Superior Court Judges among the various districts of a division is a salutary one and shall be observed. For this purpose the General Assembly may divide the State into a number of judicial divisions. Subject to the general supervision of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, assignment of District Judges within each local court district shall be made by the Chief District Judge.

Sec. 12. Jurisdiction of the General Court of Justice.

(1) Supreme Court. The Supreme Court shall have jurisdiction to review upon appeal any decision of the courts below, upon any matter of law or legal inference. The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court over "issues of fact" and "questions of fact" shall be the same exercised by it prior to the adoption of this Article, and the Court may issue any remedial writs necessary to give it general supervision and control over the proceedings of the other courts. The Supreme Court also has jurisdiction to review, when authorized by law, direct appeals from a final order or decision of the North Carolina Utilities Commission.

(2) Court of Appeals. The Court of Appeals shall have such appellate jurisdiction as the General Assembly may prescribe.

(3) Superior Court. Except as otherwise provided by the General Assembly, the Superior Court shall have original general jurisdiction throughout the State. The Clerks of the Superior Court shall have such jurisdiction and powers as the General Assembly shall prescribe by general law uniformly applicable in every county of the State.

(4) District Courts; Magistrates. The General Assembly shall, by general law uniformly applicable in every local court district of the State, prescribe the jurisdiction and powers of the District Courts and Magistrates.

(5) Waiver. The General Assembly may by general law provide that the jurisdictional limits may be waived in civil cases.

(6) Appeals. The General Assembly shall by general law provide a proper system of appeals. Appeals from Magistrates shall be heard de novo, with the right of trial by jury as defined in this Constitution and the laws of this State.

Sec. 13. Forms of action; rules of procedure.

(1) Forms of action. There shall be in this State but one form of action for the enforcement or protection of private rights or the redress of private wrongs, which shall be denominated a civil action, and in which there shall be a right to have issues of fact tried before a jury. Every action prosecuted by the people of the State as a party against a person charged with a public offense, for the punishment thereof, shall be termed a criminal action.

(2) Rules of procedure. The Supreme Court shall have exclusive authority to make rules of procedure and practice for the Appellate Division. The General Assembly may make rules of procedure and practice for the Superior Court and District Court Divisions, and the General Assembly may delegate this authority to the Supreme Court. No rule of procedure or practice shall abridge substantive rights or abrogate or limit the right of trial by jury. If the General Assembly should delegate to the Supreme Court the rule-making power, the General Assembly may, nevertheless, alter, amend, or repeal any rule of procedure or practice adopted by the Supreme Court for the Superior Court or District Court Divisions.

Sec. 14. Waiver of jury trial.

In all issues of fact joined in any court, the parties in any civil case may waive the right to have the issues determined by a jury, in which case the finding of the judge upon the facts shall have the force and effect of a verdict by a jury.

Sec. 15. Administration.

The General Assembly shall provide for an administrative office of the courts to carry out the provisions of this Article.

Sec. 16. Terms of office and election of Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of the Court of Appeals, and Judges of the Superior Court.

Justices of the Supreme Court, Judges of the Court of Appeals, and regular Judges of the Superior Court shall be elected by the qualified voters and shall hold office for terms of eight years and until their successors are elected and qualified. Justices of the Supreme Court and Judges of the Court of Appeals shall be elected by the qualified voters of the State. Regular Judges of the Superior Court may be elected by the qualified voters of the State or by the voters of their respective districts, as the General Assembly may prescribe.

Sec. 17. Removal of Judges, Magistrates and Clerks.

(1) Removal of Judges by the General Assembly. Any Justice or Judge of the General Court of Justice may be removed from office for mental or physical incapacity by joint resolution of two-thirds of all the members of each house of the General Assembly. Any Justice or Judge against whom the General Assembly may be about to proceed shall receive notice thereof, accompanied by a copy of the causes alleged for his removal, at least 20 days before the day on which either house of the General Assembly shall act thereon. Removal from office by the General Assembly for any other cause shall be by impeachment.

(2) Additional method of removal of Judges. The General Assembly shall prescribe a procedure, in addition to impeachment and address set forth in this Section, for the removal of a Justice or Judge of the General Court of Justice for mental or physical incapacity interfering with the performance of his duties which is, or is likely to become, permanent, and for the censure and removal of a Justice or Judge of the General Court of Justice for wilful misconduct in office, wilful and persistent failure to perform his duties, habitual intemperance, conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude, or conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice that brings the judicial office into disrepute.

(3) Removal of Magistrates. The General Assembly shall provide by general law for the removal of Magistrates for misconduct or mental or physical incapacity.

(4) Removal of Clerks. Any Clerk of the Superior Court may be removed from office for misconduct or mental or physical incapacity by the senior regular resident Superior Court Judge serving the county. Any Clerk against whom proceedings are instituted shall receive written notice of the charges against him at least 10 days before the hearing upon the charges. Any Clerk so removed from office shall be entitled to an appeal as provided by law.

Sec. 18. District Attorney and Prosecutorial Districts.

(1) District Attorneys. The General Assembly shall, from time to time, divide the State into a convenient number of prosecutorial districts, for each of which a District Attorney shall be chosen for a term of four years by the qualified voters thereof, at the same time and places as members of the General Assembly are elected. Only persons duly authorized to practice law in the courts of this State shall be eligible for election or appointment as a District Attorney. The District Attorney shall advise the officers of justice in his district, be responsible for the prosecution on behalf of the State of all criminal actions in the Superior Courts of his district, perform such duties related to appeals therefrom as the Attorney General may require, and perform such other duties as the General Assembly may prescribe.

(2) Prosecution in District Court Division. Criminal actions in the District Court Division shall be prosecuted in such manner as the General Assembly may prescribe by general law uniformly applicable in every local court district of the State.

Sec. 19. Vacancies.

Unless otherwise provided in this Article, all vacancies occurring in the offices provided for by this Article shall be filled by appointment of the Governor, and the appointees shall hold their places until the next election for members of the General Assembly that is held more than 60 days after the vacancy occurs, when elections shall be held to fill the offices. When the unexpired term of any of the offices named in this Article of the Constitution in which a vacancy has occurred, and in which it is herein provided that the Governor shall fill the vacancy, expires on the first day of January succeeding the next election for members of the General Assembly, the Governor shall appoint to fill that vacancy for the unexpired term of the office. If any person elected or appointed to any of these offices shall fail to qualify, the office shall be appointed to, held and filled as provided in case of vacancies occurring therein. All incumbents of these offices shall hold until their successors are qualified.

Sec. 20. Revenues and expenses of the judicial department.

The General Assembly shall provide for the establishment of a schedule of court fees and costs which shall be uniform throughout the State within each division of the General Court of Justice. The operating expenses of the judicial department, other than compensation to process servers and other locally paid non-judicial officers, shall be paid from State funds.

Sec. 21. Fees, salaries, and emoluments.

The General Assembly shall prescribe and regulate the fees, salaries, and emoluments of all officers provided for in this Article, but the salaries of Judges shall not be diminished during their continuance in office. In no case shall the compensation of any Judge or Magistrate be dependent upon his decision or upon the collection of costs.

Sec. 22. Qualification of Justices and Judges.

Only persons duly authorized to practice law in the courts of this State shall be eligible for election or appointment as a Justice of the Supreme Court, Judge of the Court of Appeals, Judge of the Superior Court, or Judge of District Court. This section shall not apply to persons elected to or serving in such capacities on or before January 1, 1981.

ARTICLE V
FINANCE

Section 1. No capitation tax to be levied.

No poll or capitation tax shall be levied by the General Assembly or by any county, city or town, or other taxing unit.

Sec. 2. State and local taxation.

(1) Power of taxation. The power of taxation shall be exercised in a just and equitable manner, for public purposes only, and shall never be surrendered, suspended, or contracted away.

(2) Classification. Only the General Assembly shall have the power to classify property for taxation, which power shall be exercised only on a State-wide basis and shall not be delegated. No class of property shall be taxed except by uniform rule, and every classification shall be made by general law uniformly applicable in every county, city and town, and other unit of local government.

(3) Exemptions. Property belonging to the State, counties, and municipal corporations shall be exempt from taxation. The General Assembly may exempt cemeteries and property held for educational, scientific, literary, cultural, charitable, or religious purposes, and, to a value not exceeding $300, any personal property. The General Assembly may exempt from taxation not exceeding $1,000 in value of property held and used as the place of residence of the owner. Every exemption shall be on a State-wide basis and shall be made by general law uniformly applicable in every county, city and town, and other unit of local government. No taxing authority other than the General Assembly may grant exemptions, and the General Assembly shall not delegate the powers accorded to it by this subsection.

(4) Special tax areas. Subject to the limitations imposed by Section 4, the General Assembly may enact general laws authorizing the governing body of any county, city, or town to define territorial areas and to levy taxes within those areas, in addition to those levied throughout the county, city, or town, in order to finance, provide, or maintain services, facilities, and functions in addition to or to a greater extent than those financed, provided, or maintained for the entire county, city, or town.

(5) Purposes of property tax. The General Assembly shall not authorize any county, city or town, special district, or other unit of local government to levy taxes on property, except for purposes authorized by general law uniformly applicable throughout the State, unless the tax is approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the unit who vote thereon.

(6) Income tax. The rate of tax on incomes shall not in any case exceed ten percent, and there shall be allowed personal exemptions and deductions so that only net incomes are taxed.

(7) Contracts. The General Assembly may enact laws whereby the State, any county, city or town, and any other public corporation may contract with and appropriate money to any person, association, or corporation for the accomplishment of public purposes only.

Sec. 3. Limitations upon the increase of State debt.

(1) Authorized purposes; two-thirds limitation. The General Assembly shall have no power to contract debts secured by a pledge of the faith and credit of the State, unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the State who vote thereon, except for the following purposes:

(a) to fund or refund a valid existing debt;

(b) to supply an unforeseen deficiency in the revenue;

(c) to borrow in anticipation of the collection of taxes due and payable within the current fiscal year to an amount not exceeding 50 per cent of such taxes;

(d) to suppress riots or insurrections, or to repel invasions;

(e) to meet emergencies immediately threatening the public health or safety, as conclusively determined in writing by the Governor;

(f) for any other lawful purpose, to the extent of two-thirds of the amount by which the State's outstanding indebtedness shall have been reduced during the next preceding biennium.

(2) Gift or loan of credit regulated. The General Assembly shall have no power to give or lend the credit of the State in aid of any person, association, or corporation, except a corporation in which the State has a controlling interest, unless the subject is submitted to a direct vote of the people of the State, and is approved by a majority of the qualified voters who vote thereon.

(3) Definitions. A debt is incurred within the meaning of this Section when the State borrows money. A pledge of the faith and credit within the meaning of this Section is a pledge of the taxing power. A loan of credit within the meaning of this Section occurs when the State exchanges its obligations with or in any way guarantees the debts of an individual, association, or private corporation.

(4) Certain debts barred. The General Assembly shall never assume or pay any debt or obligation, express or implied, incurred in aid of insurrection or rebellion against the United States. Neither shall the General Assembly assume or pay any debt or bond incurred or issued by authority of the Convention of 1868, the special session of the General Assembly of 1868, or the General Assemblies of 1868-69 and 1869-70, unless the subject is submitted to the people of the State and is approved by a majority of all the qualified voters at a referendum held for that sole purpose.

(5) Outstanding debt. Except as provided in subsection (4), nothing in this Section shall be construed to invalidate or impair the obligation of any bond, note, or other evidence of indebtedness outstanding or authorized for issue as of July 1, 1973.

Sec. 4. Limitations upon the increase of local government debt.

(1) Regulation of borrowing and debt. The General Assembly shall enact general laws relating to the borrowing of money secured by a pledge of the faith and credit and the contracting of other debts by counties, cities and towns, special districts, and other units, authorities, and agencies of local government.

(2) Authorized purposes; two-thirds limitation. The General Assembly shall have no power to authorize any county, city or town, special district, or other unit of local government to contract debts secured by a pledge of its faith and credit unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the unit who vote thereon, except for the following purposes:

(a) to fund or refund a valid existing debt;

(b) to supply an unforseen deficiency in the revenue;

(c) to borrow in anticipation of the collection of taxes due and payable within the current fiscal year to an amount not exceeding 50 per cent of such taxes;

(d) to suppress riots or insurrections;

(e) to meet emergencies immediately threatening the public health or safety, as conclusively determined in writing by the Governor;

(f) for purposes authorized by general laws uniformly applicable throughout the State, to the extent of two-thirds of the amount by which the unit's outstanding indebtedness shall have been reduced during the next preceding fiscal year.

(3) Gift or loan of credit regulated. No county, city or town, special district, or other unit of local government shall give or lend its credit in aid of any person, association, or corporation, except for public purposes as authorized by general law, and unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters of the unit who vote thereon.

(4) Certain debts barred. No county, city or town, or other unit of local government shall assume or pay any debt or the interest thereon contracted directly or indirectly in aid or support of rebellion or insurrection against the United States.

(5) Definitions. A debt is incurred within the meaning of this Section when a county, city or town, special district, or other unit, authority, or agency of local government borrows money. A pledge of faith and credit within the meaning of this Section is a pledge of the taxing power. A loan of credit within the meaning of this Section occurs when a county, city or town, special district, or other unit, authority, or agency of local government exchanges its obligations with or in any way guarantees the debts of an individual, association, or private corporation.

(6) Outstanding debt. Except as provided in subsection (4), nothing in this Section shall be construed to invalidate or impair the obligation of any bond, note, or other evidence of indebtedness outstanding or authorized for issue as of July 1, 1973.

Sec. 5. Acts levying taxes to state objects.

Every act of the General Assembly levying a tax shall state the special object to which it is to be applied, and it shall be applied to no other purpose.

Sec. 6. Inviolability of sinking funds and retirement funds.

(1) Sinking funds. The General Assembly shall not use or authorize to be used any part of the amount of any sinking fund for any purpose other than the retirement of the bonds for which the sinking fund has been created, except that these funds may be invested as authorized by law.

(2) Retirement funds. Neither the General Assembly nor any public officer, employee, or agency shall use or authorize to be used any part of the funds of the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System or the Local Governmental Employees' Retirement System for any purpose other than retirement system benefits and purposes, administrative expenses, and refunds; except that retirement system funds may be invested as authorized by law, subject to the investment limitation that the funds of the Teachers' and State Employees' Retirement System and the Local Governmental Employees' Retirement System shall not be applied, diverted, loaned to, or used by the State, any State agency, State officer, public officer, or public employee.

Sec. 7. Drawing public money.

(1) State treasury. No money shall be drawn from the State treasury but in consequence of appropriations made by law, and an accurate account of the receipts and expenditures of State funds shall be published annually.

(2) Local treasury. No money shall be drawn from the treasury of any county, city or town, or other unit of local government except by authority of law.

Sec. 8. Health care facilities.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Constitution, the General Assembly may enact general laws to authorize the State, counties, cities or towns, and other State and local governmental entities to issue revenue bonds to finance or refinance for any such governmental entity or any nonprofit private corporation, regardless of any church or religious relationship, the cost of acquiring, constructing, and financing health care facility projects to be operated to serve and benefit the public; provided, no cost incurred earlier than two years prior to the effective date of this section shall be refinanced. Such bonds shall be payable from the revenues, gross or net, of any such projects and any other health care facilities of any such governmental entity or nonprofit private corporation pledged therefor; shall not be secured by a pledge of the full faith and credit, or deemed to create an indebtedness requiring voter approval of any governmental entity; and may be secured by an agreement which may provide for the conveyance of title of, with or without consideration, any such project or facilities to the governmental entity or nonprofit private corporation. The power of eminent domain shall not be used pursuant hereto for nonprofit private corporations.

Sec. 9. Capital projects for industry.

Nothwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, the General Assembly may enact general laws to authorize counties to create authorities to issue revenue bonds to finance, but not to refinance, the cost of capital projects consisting of industrial, manufacturing and pollution control facilities for industry and pollution control facilities for public utilities, and to refund such bonds.

In no event shall such revenue bonds be secured by or payable from any public moneys whatsoever, but such revenue bonds shall be secured by and payable only from revenues or property derived from private parties. All such capital projects and all transactions therefor shall be subject to taxation to the extent such projects and transactions would be subject to taxation if no public body were involved therewith; provided, however, that the General Assembly may provide that the interest on such revenue bonds shall be exempt from income taxes within the State.

The power of eminent domain shall not be exercised to provide any property for any such capital project.

Sec. 10. Joint ownership of generation and transmission facilities.

In addition to other powers conferred upon them by law, municipalities owning or operating facilities for the generation, transmission or distribution of electric power and energy and joint agencies formed by such municipalities for the purpose of owning or operating facilities for the generation and transmission of electric power and energy (each, respectively, "a unit of municipal government") may jointly or severally own, operate and maintain works, plants and facilities, within or without the State, for the generation and transmission of electric power and energy, or both, with any person, firm, association or corporation, public or private, engaged in the generation, transmission or distribution of electric power and energy for resale (each, respectively, "a co-owner") within this State or any state contiguous to this State, and may enter into and carry out agreements with respect to such jointly owned facilities. For the purpose of financing its share of the cost of any such jointly owned electric generation or transmission facilities, a unit of municipal government may issue its revenue bonds in the manner prescribed by the General Assembly, payable as to both principal and interest solely from and secured by a lien and charge on all or any part of the revenue derived, or to be derived, by such unit of municipal government from the ownership and operation of its electric facilities; provided, however, that no unit of municipal government shall be liable, either jointly or severally, for any acts, omissions or obligations of any co-owner, nor shall any money or property of any unit of municipal government be credited or otherwise applied to the account of any co-owner or be charged with any debt, lien or mortgage as a result of any debt or obligation of any co-owner.

Sec. 11. Capital projects for agriculture.

Notwithstanding any other provision of the Constitution the General Assembly may enact general laws to authorize the creation of an agency to issue revenue bonds to finance the cost of capital projects consisting of agricultural facilities, and to refund such bonds.

In no event shall such revenue bonds be secured by or payable from any public moneys whatsoever, but such revenue bonds shall be secured by and payable only from revenues or property derived from private parties. All such capital projects and all transactions therefor shall be subject to taxation to the extent such projects and transactions would be subject to taxation if no public body were involved therewith; provided, however, that the General Assembly may provide that the interest on such revenue bonds shall be exempt from income taxes within the State.

The power of eminent domain shall not be exercised to provide any property for any such capital project.

Sec. 12. Higher Education Facilities.

Notwithstanding any other provisions of this Constitution, the General Assembly may enact general laws to authorize the State or any State entity to issue revenue bonds to finance and refinance the cost of acquiring, constructing, and financing higher education facilities to be operated to serve and benefit the public for any nonprofit private corporation, regardless of any church or religious relationship provided no cost incurred earlier than five years prior to the effective date of this section shall be refinanced. Such bonds shall be payable from any revenues or assets of any such nonprofit private corporation pledged therefor, shall not be secured by a pledge of the full faith and credit of the State or such State entity or deemed to create an indebtedness requiring voter approval of the State or such entity, and, where the title to such facilities is vested in the State or any State entity, may be secured by an agreement which may provide for the conveyance of title to, with or without consideration, such facilities to the nonprofit private corporation. The power of eminent domain shall not be used pursuant hereto.

Sec. 13. Seaport and airport facilities.

(1) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Constitution, the General Assembly may enact general laws to grant to the State, counties, municipalities, and other State and local governmental entities all powers useful in connection with the development of new and existing seaports and airports, and to authorize such public bodies:

(a) to acquire, construct, own, own jointly with public and private parties, lease as lessee, mortgage, sell, lease as lessor, or otherwise dispose of lands and facilities and improvements, including undivided interest therein;

(b) to finance and refinance for public and private parties seaport and airport facilities and improvements which relate to, develop or further waterborne or airborne commerce and cargo and passenger traffic, including commercial, industrial, manufacturing, processing, mining, transportation, distribution, storage, marine, aviation and environmental facilities and improvements; and

(c) to secure any such financing or refinancing by all or any portion of their revenues, income or assets or other available monies associated with any of their seaport or airport facilities and with the facilities and improvements to be financed or refinanced, and by foreclosable liens on all or any part of their properties associated with any of their seaport or airport facilities and with the facilities and improvements to be financed or refinanced, but in no event to create a debt secured by a pledge of the faith and credit of the State or any other public body in the State.

Sec. 14. Project development financing.

Notwithstanding Section 4 of this Article, the General Assembly may enact general laws authorizing any county, city, or town to define territorial areas in the county, city, or town and borrow money to be used to finance public improvements associated with private development projects within the territorial areas, as provided in this section. The General Assembly shall set forth by statute the method for determining the size of the territorial area and the issuing unit. This method is conclusive. When a territorial area is defined pursuant to this section, the county shall determine the current assessed value of taxable real and personal property in the territorial area. Thereafter, property in the territorial area continues to be subject to taxation to the same extent and in like manner as property not in the territorial area, but the net proceeds of taxes levied on the excess, if any, of the assessed value of taxable real and personal property in the territorial area at the time the taxes are levied over the assessed value of taxable real and personal property in the territorial area at the time the territorial area was defined may be set aside. The instruments of indebtedness authorized by this section shall be secured by these set-aside proceeds. The General Assembly may authorize a county, city, or town issuing these instruments of indebtedness to pledge, as additional security, revenues available to the issuing unit from sources other than the issuing unit's exercise of its taxing power. As long as no revenues are pledged other than the set-aside proceeds authorized by this section and the revenues authorized in the preceding sentence, these instruments of indebtedness may be issued without approval by referendum. The county, city, or town may not pledge as security for these instruments of indebtedness any property tax revenues other than the set-aside proceeds authorized in this section, or in any other manner pledge its full faith and credit as security for these instruments of indebtedness unless a vote of the people is held as required by and in compliance with the requirements of Section 4 of this Article.

Notwithstanding the provisions of Section 2 of this Article, the General Assembly may enact general laws authorizing a county, city, or town that has defined a territorial area pursuant to this section to assess property within the territorial area at a minimum value if agreed to by the owner of the property, which agreed minimum value shall be binding on the current owner and any future owners as long as the defined territorial area is in effect. (2003-403, s.1.)

ARTICLE VI
SUFFRAGE AND ELIGIBILITY TO OFFICE

Section 1. Who may vote.

Every person born in the United States and every person who has been naturalized, 18 years of age, and possessing the qualifications set out in this Article, shall be entitled to vote at any election by the people of the State, except as herein otherwise provided.

Sec. 2. Qualifications of voter.

(1) Residence period for State elections. Any person who has resided in the State of North Carolina for one year and in the precinct, ward, or other election district for 30 days next preceding an election, and possesses the other qualifications set out in this Article, shall be entitled to vote at any election held in this State. Removal from one precinct, ward, or other election district to another in this State shall not operate to deprive any person of the right to vote in the precinct, ward, or other election district from which that person has removed until 30 days after the removal.

(2) Residence period for presidential elections. The General Assembly may reduce the time of residence for persons voting in presidential elections. A person made eligible by reason of a reduction in time of residence shall possess the other qualifications set out in this Article, shall only be entitled to vote for President and Vice President of the United States or for electors for President and Vice President, and shall not thereby become eligible to hold office in this State.

(3) Disqualification of felon. No person adjudged guilty of a felony against this State or the United States, or adjudged guilty of a felony in another state that also would be a felony if it had been committed in this State, shall be permitted to vote unless that person shall be first restored to the rights of citizenship in the manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 3. Registration.

Every person offering to vote shall be at the time legally registered as a voter as herein prescribed and in the manner provided by law. The General Assembly shall enact general laws governing the registration of voters.

Sec. 4. Qualification for registration.

Every person presenting himself for registration shall be able to read and write any section of the Constitution in the English language.

Sec. 5. Elections by people and General Assembly.

All elections by the people shall be by ballot, and all elections by the General Assembly shall be viva voce. A contested election for any office established by Article III of this Constitution shall be determined by joint ballot of both houses of the General Assembly in the manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 6. Eligibility to elective office.

Every qualified voter in North Carolina who is 21 years of age, except as in this Constitution disqualified, shall be eligible for election by the people to office.

Sec. 7. Oath.

Before entering upon the duties of an office, a person elected or appointed to the office shall take and subscribe the following oath:

"I, _____, do solemnly swear (or affirm) that I will support and maintain the Constitution and laws of the United States, and the Constitution and laws of North Carolina not inconsistent therewith, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of my office as _____, so help me God."

Sec. 8. Disqualifications for office.

The following persons shall be disqualified for office:

First, any person who shall deny the being of Almighty God.

Second, with respect to any office that is filled by election by the people, any person who is not qualified to vote in an election for that office.

Third, any person who has been adjudged guilty of treason or any other felony against this State or the United States, or any person who has been adjudged guilty of a felony in another state that also would be a felony if it had been committed in this State, or any person who has been adjudged guilty of corruption or malpractice in any office, or any person who has been removed by impeachment from any office, and who has not been restored to the rights of citizenship in the manner prescribed by law.

Sec. 9. Dual office holding.

(1) Prohibitions. It is salutary that the responsibilities of self-government be widely shared among the citizens of the State and that the potential abuse of authority inherent in the holding of multiple offices by an individual be avoided. Therefore, no person who holds any office or place of trust or profit under the United States or any department thereof, or under any other state or government, shall be eligible to hold any office in this State that is filled by election by the people. No person shall hold concurrently any two offices in this State that are filled by election of the people. No person shall hold concurrently any two or more appointive offices or places of trust or profit, or any combination of elective and appointive offices or places of trust or profit, except as the General Assembly shall provide by general law.

(2) Exceptions. The provisions of this Section shall not prohibit any officer of the military forces of the State or of the United States not on active duty for an extensive period of time, any notary public, or any delegate to a Convention of the People from holding concurrently another office or place of trust or profit under this State or the United States or any department thereof.

Sec. 10. Continuation in office.

In the absence of any contrary provision, all officers in this State, whether appointed or elected, shall hold their positions until other appointments are made or, if the offices are elective, until their successors are chosen and qualified.

ARTICLE VII
LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Section 1. General Assembly to provide for local government.

The General Assembly shall provide for the organization and government and the fixing of boundaries of counties, cities and towns, and other governmental subdivisions, and, except as otherwise prohibited by this Constitution, may give such powers and duties to counties, cities and towns, and other governmental subdivisions as it may deem advisable.

The General Assembly shall not incorporate as a city or town, nor shall it authorize to be incorporated as a city or town, any territory lying within one mile of the corporate limits of any other city or town having a population of 5,000 or more according to the most recent decennial census of population taken by order of Congress, or lying within three miles of the corporate limits of any other city or town having a population of 10,000 or more according to the most recent decennial census of population taken by order of Congress, or lying within four miles of the corporate limits of any other city or town having a population of 25,000 or more according to the most recent decennial census of population taken by order of Congress, or lying within five miles of the corporate limits of any other city or town having a population of 50,000 or more according to the most recent decennial census of population taken by order of Congress. Notwithstanding the foregoing limitations, the General Assembly may incorporate a city or town by an act adopted by vote of three-fifths of all the members of each house.

Sec. 2. Sheriffs.

In each county a Sheriff shall be elected by the qualified voters thereof at the same time and places as members of the General Assembly are elected and shall hold his office for a period of four years, subject to removal for cause as provided by law.

Sec. 3. Merged or consolidated counties.

Any unit of local government formed by the merger or consolidation of a county or counties and the cities and towns therein shall be deemed both a county and a city for the purposes of this Constitution, and may exercise any authority conferred by law on counties, or on cities and towns, or both, as the General Assembly may provide.

ARTICLE VIII CORPORATIONS

Section 1. Corporate charters.

No corporation shall be created, nor shall its charter be extended, altered, or amended by special act, except corporations for charitable, educational, penal, or reformatory purposes that are to be and remain under the patronage and control of the State; but the General Assembly shall provide by general laws for the chartering, organization, and powers of all corporations, and for the amending, extending, and forfeiture of all charters, except those above permitted by special act. All such general acts may be altered from time to time or repealed. The General Assembly may at any time by special act repeal the charter of any corporation.

Sec. 2. Corporations defined.

The term "corporation" as used in this Section shall be construed to include all associations and joint-stock companies having any of the powers and privileges of corporations not possessed by individuals or partnerships. All corporations shall have the right to sue and shall be subject to be sued in all courts, in like cases as natural persons.

ARTICLE IX EDUCATION

Section 1. Education encouraged.

Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, schools, libraries, and the means of education shall forever be encouraged.

Sec. 2. Uniform system of schools.

(1) General and uniform system: term. The General Assembly shall provide by taxation and otherwise for a general and uniform system of free public schools, which shall be maintained at least nine months in every year, and wherein equal opportunities shall be provided for all students.

(2) Local responsibility. The General Assembly may assign to units of local government such responsibility for the financial support of the free public schools as it may deem appropriate. The governing boards of units of local government with financial responsibility for public education may use local revenues to add to or supplement any public school or post-secondary school program.

Sec. 3. School attendance.

The General Assembly shall provide that every child of appropriate age and of sufficient mental and physical ability shall attend the public schools, unless educated by other means.

Sec. 4. State Board of Education.

(1) Board. The State Board of Education shall consist of the Lieutenant Governor, the Treasurer, and eleven members appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly in joint session. The General Assembly shall divide the State into eight educational districts. Of the appointive members of the Board, one shall be appointed from each of the eight educational districts and three shall be appointed from the State at large. Appointments shall be for overlapping terms of eight years. Appointments to fill vacancies shall be made by the Governor for the unexpired terms and shall not be subject to confirmation.

(2) Superintendent of Public Instruction. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be the secretary and chief administrative officer of the State Board of Education.

Sec. 5. Powers and duties of Board.

The State Board of Education shall supervise and administer the free public school system and the educational funds provided for its support, except the funds mentioned in Section 7 of this Article, and shall make all needed rules and regulations in relation thereto, subject to laws enacted by the General Assembly.

Sec. 6. State school fund.

The proceeds of all lands that have been or hereafter may be granted by the United States to this State, and not otherwise appropriated by this State or the United States; all moneys, stocks, bonds, and other property belonging to the State for purposes of public education; the net proceeds of all sales of the swamp lands belonging to the State; and all other grants, gifts, and devises that have been or hereafter may be made to the State, and not otherwise appropriated by the State or by the terms of the grant, gift, or devise, shall be paid into the State Treasury and, together with so much of the revenue of the State as may be set apart for that purpose, shall be faithfully appropriated and used exclusively for establishing and maintaining a uniform system of free public schools.

Sec. 7. County school fund; State fund for certain moneys.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, all moneys, stocks, bonds, and other property belonging to a county school fund, and the clear proceeds of all penalties and forfeitures and of all fines collected in the several counties for any breach of the penal laws of the State, shall belong to and remain in the several counties, and shall be faithfully appropriated and used exclusively for maintaining free public schools.

(b) The General Assembly may place in a State fund the clear proceeds of all civil penalties, forfeitures, and fines which are collected by State agencies and which belong to the public schools pursuant to subsection (a) of this section. Moneys in such State fund shall be faithfully appropriated by the General Assembly, on a per pupil basis, to the counties, to be used exclusively for maintaining free public schools. (2003-423, s.1.)

Sec. 8. Higher education.

The General Assembly shall maintain a public system of higher education, comprising The University of North Carolina and such other institutions of higher education as the General Assembly may deem wise. The General Assembly shall provide for the selection of trustees of The University of North Carolina and of the other institutions of higher education, in whom shall be vested all the privileges, rights, franchises, and endowments heretofore granted to or conferred upon the trustees of these institutions. The General Assembly may enact laws necessary and expedient for the maintenance and management of The University of North Carolina and the other public institutions of higher education.

Sec. 9. Benefits of public institutions of higher education.

The General Assembly shall provide that the benefits of The University of North Carolina and other public institutions of higher education, as far as practicable, be extended to the people of the State free of expense.

Sec. 10. Escheats.

(1) Escheats prior to July 1, 1971. All property that prior to July 1, 1971, accrued to the State from escheats, unclaimed dividends, or distributive shares of the estates of deceased persons shall be appropriated to the use of The University of North Carolina.

(2) Escheats after June 30, 1971. All property that, after June 30, 1971, shall accrue to the State from escheats, unclaimed dividends, or distributive shares of the estates of deceased persons shall be used to aid worthy and needy students who are residents of this State and are enrolled in public institutions of higher education in this State. The method, amount, and type of distribution shall be prescribed by law.

ARTICLE X
HOMESTEADS AND EXEMPTIONS

Section 1. Personal property exemptions.

The personal property of any resident of this State, to a value fixed by the General Assembly but not less than $500, to be selected by the resident, is exempted from sale under execution or other final process of any court, issued for the collection of any debt.

Sec. 2. Homestead exemptions.

(1) Exemption from sale; exceptions. Every homestead and the dwellings and buildings used therewith, to a value fixed by the General Assembly but not less than $1,000, to be selected by the owner thereof, or in lieu thereof, at the option of the owner, any lot in a city or town with the dwellings and buildings used thereon, and to the same value, owned and occupied by a resident of the State, shall be exempt from sale under execution or other final process obtained on any debt. But no property shall be exempt from sale for taxes, or for payment of obligations contracted for its purchase.

(2) Exemption for benefit of children. The homestead, after the death of the owner thereof, shall be exempt from the payment of any debt during the minority of the owner's children, or any of them.

(3) Exemption for benefit of surviving spouse. If the owner of a homestead dies, leaving a surviving spouse but no minor children, the homestead shall be exempt from the debts of the owner, and the rents and profits thereof shall inure to the benefit of the surviving spouse until he or she remarries, unless the surviving spouse is the owner of a separate homestead.

(4) Conveyance of homestead. Nothing contained in this Article shall operate to prevent the owner of a homestead from disposing of it by deed, but no deed made by a married owner of a homestead shall be valid without the signature and acknowledgement of his or her spouse.

Sec. 3. Mechanics' and laborers' liens.

The General Assembly shall provide by proper legislation for giving to mechanics and laborers an adequate lien on the subject-matter of their labor. The provisions of Sections 1 and 2 of this Article shall not be so construed as to prevent a laborer's lien for work done and performed for the person claiming the exemption or a mechanic's lien for work done on the premises.

Sec. 4. Property of married women secured to them.

The real and personal property of any female in this State acquired before marriage, and all property, real and personal, to which she may, after marriage, become in any manner entitled, shall be and remain the sole and separate estate and property of such female, and shall not be liable for any debts, obligations, or engagements of her husband, and may be devised and bequeathed and conveyed by her, subject to such regulations and limitations as the General Assembly may prescribe. Every married woman may exercise powers of attorney conferred upon her by her husband, including the power to execute and acknowledge deeds to property owned by herself and her husband or by her husband.

Sec. 5. Insurance.

A person may insure his or her own life for the sole use and benefit of his or her spouse or children or both, and upon his or her death the proceeds from the insurance shall be paid to or for the benefit of the spouse or children or both, or to a guardian, free from all claims of the representatives or creditors of the insured or his or her estate. Any insurance policy which insures the life of a person for the sole use and benefit of that person's spouse or children or both shall not be subject to the claims of creditors of the insured during his or her lifetime, whether or not the policy reserves to the insured during his or her lifetime any or all rights provided for by the policy and whether or not the policy proceeds are payable to the estate of the insured in the event the beneficiary or beneficiaries predecease the insured.

ARTICLE XI
PUNISHMENTS, CORRECTIONS, AND CHARITIES

Section 1. Punishments.

The following punishments only shall be known to the laws of this State: death, imprisonment, fines, suspension of a jail or prison term with or without conditions, restitution, community service, restraints on liberty, work programs, removal from office, and disqualification to hold and enjoy any office of honor, trust, or profit under this State. (1995, c. 429, s. 2.)

Sec. 2. Death punishment.

The object of punishments being not only to satisfy justice, but also to reform the offender and thus prevent crime, murder, arson, burglary, and rape, and these only, may be punishable with death, if the General Assembly shall so enact.

Sec. 3. Charitable and correctional institutions and agencies.

Such charitable, benevolent, penal, and correctional institutions and agencies as the needs of humanity and the public good may require shall be established and operated by the State under such organization and in such manner as the General Assembly may prescribe.

Sec. 4. Welfare policy; board of public welfare.

Beneficent provision for the poor, the unfortunate, and the orphan is one of the first duties of a civilized and a Christian state. Therefore the General Assembly shall provide for and define the duties of a board of public welfare.

ARTICLE XII
MILITARY FORCES

Section 1. Governor is Commander in Chief.

The Governor shall be Commander in Chief of the military forces of the State and may call out those forces to execute the law, suppress riots and insurrections, and repel invasion.

ARTICLE XIII
CONVENTIONS; CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT AND REVISION

Section 1. Convention of the People.

No Convention of the People of this State shall ever be called unless by the concurrence of two-thirds of all the members of each house of the General Assembly, and unless the proposition "Convention or No Convention" is first submitted to the qualified voters of the State at the time and in the manner prescribed by the General Assembly. If a majority of the votes cast upon the proposition are in favor of a Convention, it shall assemble on the day prescribed by the General Assembly. The General Assembly shall, in the act submitting the convention proposition, propose limitations upon the authority of the Convention; and if a majority of the votes cast upon the proposition are in favor of a Convention, those limitations shall become binding upon the Convention. Delegates to the Convention shall be elected by the qualified voters at the time and in the manner prescribed in the act of submission. The Convention shall consist of a number of delegates equal to the membership of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly that submits the convention proposition and the delegates shall be apportioned as is the House of Representatives. A Convention shall adopt no ordinance not necessary to the purpose for which the Convention has been called.

Sec. 2. Power to revise or amend Constitution reserved to people.

The people of this State reserve the power to amend this Constitution and to adopt a new or revised Constitution. This power may be exercised by either of the methods set out hereinafter in this Article, but in no other way.

Sec. 3. Revision or amendment by Convention of the People.

A Convention of the People of this State may be called pursuant to Section 1 of this Article to propose a new or revised Constitution or to propose amendments to this Constitution. Every new or revised Constitution and every constitutional amendment adopted by a Convention shall be submitted to the qualified voters of the State at the time and in the manner prescribed by the Convention. If a majority of the votes cast thereon are in favor of ratification of the new or revised Constitution or the constitutional amendment or amendments, it or they shall become effective January first next after ratification by the qualified voters unless a different effective date is prescribed by the Convention.

Sec. 4. Revision or amendment by legislative initiation.

A proposal of a new or revised Constitution or an amendment or amendments to this Constitution may be initiated by the General Assembly, but only if three-fifths of all the members of each house shall adopt an act submitting the proposal to the qualified voters of the State for their ratification or rejection. The proposal shall be submitted at the time and in the manner prescribed by the General Assembly. If a majority of the votes cast thereon are in favor of the proposed new or revised Constitution or constitutional amendment or amendments, it or they shall become effective January first next after ratification by the voters unless a different effective date is prescribed in the act submitting the proposal or proposals to the qualified voters.

ARTICLE XIV
MISCELLANEOUS

Section 1. Seat of government.

The permanent seat of government of this State shall be at the City of Raleigh.

Sec. 2. State boundaries.

The limits and boundaries of the State shall be and remain as they now are.

Sec. 3. General laws defined.

Whenever the General Assembly is directed or authorized by this Constitution to enact general laws, or general laws uniformly applicable throughout the State, or general laws uniformly applicable in every county, city and town, and other unit of local government, or in every local court district, no special or local act shall be enacted concerning the subject matter directed or authorized to be accomplished by general or uniformly applicable laws, and every amendment or repeal of any law relating to such subject matter shall also be general and uniform in its effect throughout the State. General laws may be enacted for classes defined by population or other criteria. General laws uniformly applicable throughout the State shall be made applicable without classification or exception in every unit of local government of like kind, such as every county, or every city and town, but need not be made applicable in every unit of local government in the State. General laws uniformly applicable in every county, city and town, and other unit of local government, or in every local court district, shall be made applicable without classification or exception in every unit of local government, or in every local court district, as the case may be. The General Assembly may at any time repeal any special, local, or private act.

Sec. 4. Continuity of laws; protection of office holders.

The laws of North Carolina not in conflict with this Constitution shall continue in force until lawfully altered. Except as otherwise specifically provided, the adoption of this Constitution shall not have the effect of vacating any office or term of office now filled or held by virtue of any election or appointment made under the prior Constitution of North Carolina and the laws of the State enacted pursuant thereto.

Sec. 5. Conservation of natural resources.

It shall be the policy of this State to conserve and protect its lands and waters for the benefit of all its citizenry, and to this end it shall be a proper function of the State of North Carolina and its political subdivisions to acquire and preserve park, recreational, and scenic areas, to control and limit the pollution of our air and water, to control excessive noise, and in every other appropriate way to preserve as a part of the common heritage of this State its forests, wetlands, estuaries, beaches, historical sites, openlands, and places of beauty.

To accomplish the aforementioned public purposes, the State and its counties, cities and towns, and other units of local government may acquire by purchase or gift properties or interests in properties which shall, upon their special dedication to and acceptance by a law enacted by a vote of three-fifths of the members of each house of the General Assembly for those public purposes, constitute part of the 'State Nature and Historic Preserve,' and which shall not be used for other purposes except as authorized by law enacted by a vote of three-fifths of the members of each house of the General Assembly. The General Assembly shall prescribe by general law the conditions and procedures under which such properties or interests therein shall be dedicated for the aforementioned public purposes. (1971, c. 630, s. 1; S.L. 1999-268, ss 3-5; S.L. 2001-217, s. 3; S.L. 2002-3 Extra Session.)

- Ronnie Burbank worked at Coastal Federal Credit Union from October, 2001 until February, 2007
- He recognized and recalls the grant letter from Torlen Wade to Thomas Wright indicating funding for The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.
- He can't remember whether he got the letter by fax, by mail, or by hand delivery by Wright. Coastal Federal put a lot of weight on the letter
- It was important that money would be forthcoming, and the primary repayment source was grant money
    - It played a part, but was not overwhelming
    - It was one factor considered in approving the loan
    - Burbank's gut instinct tells him that he would not have approved the loan without the letter
    - Burbank stated that he was repeatedly told by Wright that grant money was forthcoming
    - He thinks that he required the letter, and he may have told Wright that closing the loan was subject to getting a letter showing the funding
- Burbank recognized the bank document that showed that the primary source of repayment of the loan was grant money from State and federal government
- Conversion of assets was listed as the secondary source of repayment
- The tax value of $180,000.00 was higher than the loan value of $150,000.00
- There was no guarantor on the loan

Dear Mr. Wright:

On behalf of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, I am writing to enthusiastically endorse the Community's Health Foundation's effort to convert the building located on the 900 block of 4th Street into Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices and into a History Museum.

With this endorsement, the Office is committing $150,000 in funding toward the completion of this conversion project. The funding will be awarded by June 30, 2002.

We wish you all the best as you embark on this important project.

Sincerely,

Torlen L. Wade
Acting Director

- Dr. Gottovi stated that The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. was put together by Thomas Wright. It was Wright's idea
- Gottovi was not sure of the process
- Gottovi was supposed to be the treasurer
- The Board of Directors never met
- Gottovi never saw any by-laws for the Foundation
- Gottovi signed the loan papers at Coastal Federal Bank for the purchase of the Lofton property
- He understood that Wright intended to get some appropriations, federal funds, and corporate and private contributions to meet the needs of the Foundation
- A few days before the purchase of the property, Wright approached him
    - Wright already had everything set up at Coastal Federal
    - Gottovi was surprised that there was no guarantor
    - He asked Wright how he intended to repay the loan
    - Wright said that he was working on state, federal, corporate, and private funding
- Gottovi never knew about the Torlen Wade letter

Dear Mr. McKinney,

The Community's Health Foundation, Inc is requesting your support in the acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that will serve as a historical relic and museum about the 1898 Race Riot that occurred in Wilmington, North Carolina. The museum will exhibit historical events that took place and recapture these moments for future generations to explore, examine, and uncover the truth about such a horrific time in American History. This is a very important endeavor for the community of Wilmington, the state of North Carolina and our nation.

We are requesting your support to aid this foundation's efforts. Please make the check payable to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., in care of Thomas E. Wright. Contributions are tax deductible under the 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Our Tax Id# is 56-2252434.

If you need to contact me or need additional information, please do not hesitate to give me a call. Again, thanks for your support.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. Wright

- Mr. Shank was the Associate Director of State Government Affairs at AstraZeneca in 2002 and 2003
- He knew and was a good friend of Representative Wright
- He remembers a conversation with Wright about a health care center
- About six months later, he received a letter from Wright soliciting a charitable contribution
- He channeled the request through the company's approval process
    - It was approved
    - The $2400.00 check was sent to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. at the Foundation's address
- AstraZeneca's PAC donated to Wright's campaign.

8) Kimberly Westbrook Strach
N.C. State Board of Elections
506 N. Harrington Street
Raleigh, N.C. 27603 (919) 515-2334

- Kim Westbrook Strach is Deputy Director for the Campaign Finance Division of the North Carolina State Board of Elections ("State Board")
  - In that capacity, she was in charge of the State Board's investigation arising out of the complaint filed by Joe Sinsheimer alleging illegal campaign activity by the Thomas Wright campaign
  - In his complaint, Sinsheimer requested that the State Board investigate whether the Thomas Wright Campaign Committee filed false, incomplete or misleading campaign finance reports in 2006 to hide contributions from three sources: the developers of the proposed Hugo Neu landfill in Brunswick County, lobbyists for Atlanta-based CampuCredit, Inc., and the sub-prime consumer finance industry in general
- In the course of that investigation, Strach and her staff identified and reviewed activity in five back accounts related to Thomas Wright:
  - An interest checking account maintained by Thomas Wright at Bank of America from 7/14/1999 until the time of Strach's investigation;
  - A joint interest checking account maintained by Thomas Wright and his wife, Joyce N. Wright, at Bank of America from 7/14/1999 - 2/6/2001;
  - A business economy checking account maintained by the Thomas Wright campaign at Bank of America from 4/3/2000 - 11/4/2003;
  - A business checking account maintained by the Thomas Wright Campaign at First Citizen's bank from 4/23/2003 - 6/9/05; and
  - A Business Success account maintained by Thomas E. Wright dba Thomas Wright Campaign at Coastal Federal bank from 2/24/07 to the present
- Wright failed to disclose the existence of all of these campaign accounts in his filings with the Campaign Finance Division of the State Board, except for the business economy checking account maintained by the Thomas Wright campaign at Bank of America from 4/3/2000 - 11/4/2003
- In her investigation, Strach was unable to determine which of these accounts maintained by the Thomas Wright Campaign served the function of a campaign account because campaign contributions were deposited from time to time in each account and were commingled with personal monies deposited by Wright in those accounts
- Strach and her staff discovered that three checks from corporations and payable to the "The Community's Health Foundation:"
  - A check from AT&T in the amount of $1,500,
  - A check from AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals in the amount of $2,400, and
  - A check from Anheuser-Busch in the amount of $5,000 were deposited into the personal account maintained by Thomas Wright at Bank of America and were commingled with campaign contributions

- Likewise, both campaign and personal expenditures were made from these accounts; sometimes, it was difficult for Strach and her investigators to determine whether an expenditure was made for campaign purposes or personal purposes

- From 2000-2006, Strach and her staff identified at least $411,000 in expenditures that could not be determined to be for campaign purposes from accounts that were campaign accounts or commingled accounts
- The review of bank records made by Strach and her staff showed no expenditures on behalf of The Community's Health Foundation
- In their investigation, Strach and her staff identified approximately 408 contributions totaling $185,000 made to the Thomas Wright Campaign between January 1, 2000, and December 31, 2006, that were not reported to the State Board on any disclosure report filed by the Thomas Wright Campaign
    - Of this $185,000, $19,350 were monies transferred between the accounts maintained by Wright or his campaign and reviewed by Strach and her staff
    - Because the statutory definition of "contribution" includes "any . . . transfer of funds," these transfers should have been reported as contributions
    - These unreported contributions are delineated on a spreadsheet prepared by Strach and provided to Wright by special counsel to the committee (Ex. 9)
- Also, during their investigation, Strach and her staff identified $4,850 in contributions made by persons associated with the company Sims Hugo Neu in the second quarter of 2006 but not reported in that quarter
- In addition to the foregoing summary, Strach may testify as to any matter contained her testimony before the State Board at its May 15, 2007, hearing in In Re: Investigation of Complaint of Joe Sinsheimer Alleging Illegal Campaign Activity by the Thomas Wright Campaign and Additional Potential Violations Identified during the Investigation.

9) ASAC J.E. Umphlet
SBI
Greenville, N.C. (252) 756-4755

- On 9/20/07, Johnny Umphlet, Special Agent with the State Bureau of Investigation, spoke with Representative Wright by telephone
- Wright agreed to talk with Umphlet in person but said that he would be cautious, in case he was charged, so what he said could not be harmful to him in court
- Wright met with Agent Umphlet on 9/28/07 and video-taped the interview
  - Wright stated that the Community's Health Foundation was a fledgling organization and never really got going, there were
    - No by-laws,
    - No meetings, and
    - No minutes
  - Wright did not recall the conversation with Torlen Wade
    - He did not intend for Wade to be hurt
    - He intended for the loan to go over for a few year period until it could be paid off
    - He did not distribute to Torlen Wade letter to Coastal Federal Bank; the Bank did not need the letter
  - Wright did not recall sending the e-mail, though it was from his office
    - He would have had knowledge of it or would have authorized it
    - He saw nothing illegal about it
  - The $150,000.00 amount in the letter came from the amount that would be needed to retire the debt of the bank loan to purchase the Lofton property
    - The loan went into default because he was never able to obtain any grant money
    - He requested and received several extensions on the loan
    - He had hoped to get Special Projects money through the General Assembly to pay for the Lofton property, but was unable to do so, because of budget shortfalls
    - He stated that the Community Health Foundation, Inc. had no money at the time of the purchase of the Lofton property
    - The project went sour because the money was not there and he was unable to obtain funds; the project went belly-up
- Wright again met with Agent Umphlet on 10/5/07
  - He again video-taped the interview, at least most of it
  - Wright stated that he did submit a loan application to Coastal Federal Bank in the amount of $150,000.00 to cover the purchase of the Lofton property
  - He stated that the Bank never got the Torlen Wade letter and never needed the letter
  - Wright stated that he has found by-laws for the Foundation, and that he is keeping them in a safe place in case something happens to him
    - He stated that he tried to keep the Board informed of what was going on
  - Wright recognized and identified the letter to Brian Shank at AstraZeneca, and he stated that he wrote, signed, and sent that letter seeking a contribution from the company

    - He stated that he received and signed the $2400.00 check and deposited it in his personal account at Bank of America.
- Wright recognized and identified the letter to Lewis McKinney at Anheuser-Busch, and he stated that he wrote, signed, and sent that letter seeking a contribution from the company
    - He stated that he received and signed the $5000.00 check and deposited it in his personal account at Bank of America
- Wright did not recognize the invoice to AT&T that appeared to be on Foundation letterhead and believed that he would not have written it
    - He does not remember how he communicated with and solicited the $1500.00 contribution from AT&T
    - He stated that he received and signed the $1500.00 check and deposited it in his personal account at Bank of America
- Wright stated that the purpose of the solicitations to AstraZeneca, Anheuser-Busch, and AT&T was to begin to assist the Foundation's process and for the work of the Foundation
    - He stated that he deposited the checks in his account to reimburse himself for all of the work he had done with the Foundation
    - He said that the checks were not restricted as to how they were to be used
    - He called his reimbursement "sweat equity"
    - When asked what kind of work he had done, he stated that he would save that, that he did not want to incriminate himself, as it looked like the investigators were trying to build a case against him
- At some point during that interview, Wright turned off the video recorder and showed Agent Umphlet three IRS forms and a copy of an Offer to Purchase
    - The IRS forms were:
        - Form JR158,
        - Form SS-4, and
        - Form W-9
    - Wright would not give Agent Umphlet a copy of the forms
    - After showing Agent Umphlet the documents, Wright turned the video recorder back on
- Wright stated that he ought to be given a chance to amend his Board of Election campaign reports
    - He said that this was his first notice of $185,000.00 not being reported
    - When asked if he had ever commingle funds between his campaign and personal bank accounts, Wright stated that he would save that answer
    - He stated that it was not illegal, but may be improper
- Wright stated that he did not remember anything about the loan from the Southeast Community Credit Union

10) Torlen L. Wade
1622 Park Drive
Raleigh, N.C. (919) 834-2281

- Torlen Wade, former Director of the Office of Rural Health of DHHS has known Representative Wright since 1991 when Wright was on the City Council in Wilmington
- Wade knew that Wright had started The Community's Health Foundation to assist the underserved in the Wilmington area
- Wright had received grant funds in the past for work he did on projects
- On Wednesday, March 13, 2002, Wright called Wade at Wade's office
    - Wright asked Wade to provide him with a letter that would help him secure a loan to buy a building on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington that he wanted to turn into a History Museum
    - He asked Wade to direct the letter to him as Chairman of the Community's Health Foundation, Inc., indicating his agency's endorsement and commitment of $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of the museum conversion project
    - Wade knew that he did not have funding to commit to the project and knew that the project was not an appropriate project to which he could commit funds, and he so informed Wright
    - Wright told Wade that he knew that Wade could not actually commit the funding and that he would not actually need any funds from Wade, that he already had other funding lined up, and that he just needed the letter to help obtain funding from a financial institution
- The above phone conversation was followed shortly thereafter by an e-mail memorializing the conversation and providing details necessary for the endorsement and commitment desired
    - It was sent to "Torlen Wade (E-mail)" <torlen.wade@ncmail.net> from "Vanda Wilson-Wormack (Rep. Wright)" <wrightla2@ncleg.net> at 16:47:04 -0500 on Wed, 13 Mar 2002
    - The e-mail requested both a faxed and hard copy endorsement and indicated that if Wade had any questions, he could call him at "the office at (919) 733-5754 or (910) 1007"
    - The contents of the e-mail was addressed to "Torlen," used the reference, "[p]er our conversation," and was "signed" as "Thomas Wright"
- After receiving the e-mail from Wright, Torlen Wade had his secretary prepare on his office stationery a letter to Thomas E. Wright, Chairman, Community's Health Foundation, endorsing the History Museum project and "committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of this conversion project"
    - The letter committed to awarding the funding by June 30, 2002
    - After the letter was prepared at his request, Wade signed the letter and had it sent to Wright, as requested by Wright, on March 15, 2002
- Wade knew Wright as a legislator and as someone with whom he had worked on other community projects over the years
    - He agreed to write the letter because of his relationship with Wright and because Wright was a legislator
    - Wade would not have provided the letter to Wright if Wright had not been a legislator

- Wade felt pressured because Wright was a legislator and worked in health care
- The procedure to procure grant authorization was not followed

Dear Mr. Wright:

On behalf of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, I am writing to enthusiastically endorse the Community's Health Foundation's effort to convert the building located on the 900 block of 4th Street into Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices and into a History Museum.

With this endorsement, the Office is committing $150,000 in funding toward the completion of this conversion project. The funding will be awarded by June 30, 2002.

We wish you all the best as you embark on this important project.

Sincerely,

Torlen L. Wade
Acting Director

Subject: Per our conversation
Date: Wed, 13 Mar 2002 16:47:04 -0500
From: "Vanda Wilson-Wormack (Rep. Wright)" <wrightla2@ncleg.net>
To: "Torlen Wade (E-mail)" <torlen.wade@ncmail.net>

Torlen,

Per our conversation, the letter of endorsement should be addressed to Chairman Thomas E. Wright, Community's Health Foundation, Inc. 322 South 17th Street Wilmington, NC 28401.

The language should include $150,000 in funding to be received no later than July or August.

The building will be located on the 900 block of 4th Street and will be used as office space for the Community's Health Foundation, Inc. Upon completion of the expansion project of the New Hanover Community Health Center, an effort would be made to convert the building into a History Museum.

Please fax the letter of endorsement to (910) 343-3339 and mail the hard copy to Community's Health Foundation
322 South 17th Street
Wilmington, NC 28401.

If you have any further questions or comments, please call the office at (919) 733-5754 or (910) 232-1007.

Thanks

Thomas Wright

Date:	5/11/2007

Participants: Torlen Wade
Kim Strach
Amy Strange

After being advised of the identities of the interviewing parties and the nature of the interview, Torlen Wade provided the following information:

Mr. Wade advised that he is the Director of the Division of Rural Health and Community Care, which is a division of the Department of Health and Human Services. Over the years he has been very active in setting up community health centers. He was asked if he recalled a grant award letter from his office to The Community's Health Foundation for a building loan in 2002. Mr. Wade immediately stated that he did remember such a letter. He recalled that Representative Wright asked him for a letter to secure a loan for a building he wanted to utilize as a museum. Representative Wright told Mr. Wade that he didn't expect him to actually provide the money, but he needed him to provide a letter stating that the Division would allocate these funds. Representative Wright further told him he wouldn't use the letter. Mr. Wade stated that his Division did not have the funding nor could they use their funding for the purpose that Representative Wright wanted. Mr. Wade stated that he told Representative Wright that the activities of the museum were not the type of activities funded by Mr. Wade's office. Representative Wright indicated that he understood and that he had already secured the money he needed. However, he needed a letter to show he had the funding. Mr. Wade stated that he probably shouldn't have written it, but he knew he wouldn't have to provide the funding because Representative Wright assured him he wouldn't hold him to the letter. In order to clarify that there was no actual grant award intended, Mr. Wade was specifically asked if his Division provided any funding to The Community's Health Foundation. Mr. Wade stated that his Division did not provide any funding to The Community's Health Foundation. He stated that Representative Wright told him he didn't expect any money and that he didn't intend to use the letter.

Mr. Wade stated that he had worked with Wright and Dr. Dan Gottovi on the New Hanover Community Health Center and other projects. He stated that Wright had been extremely helpful in projects they had worked on.

Wade stated that he would provide a copy of the letter to our office. We provided him our fax number and expressed how we needed the letter for the May 15, 2007, hearing. He stated that he thought he had the letter in a file and would provide it to us.

Mr. Wade indicated that he would be out of town the week of May 15, 2007, attending a conference at Harvard University. He explained that his division was being considered for National recognition. He further indicated that he would be traveling with Secretary Hooker-Odom.

This memorandum was prepared on 5/15/2007, utilizing notes taken during the interview. I certify that this memorandum contains an accurate summary of all pertinent matters discussed during the interview.

Interviewed Thursday, October 11, 2007, 9:25am, by telephone by Bill Dowdy.

Strach was interviewed to determine what led her to interview TORLEN WADE and to determine if she was aware that THOMAS WRIGHT was seeking funding which included a museum.

Strach stated that she was attempting to find out about a loan from Coastal Federal Bank to The Community Health Foundation, Inc.

She stated in an interview on May 8, 2207, had stated that at Coastal Federal Bank, when questioned by about why the bank had made the loan to The Community Health Foundation, had shown Lofton a copy of some type of grant letter from a State agency.

When was interviewed on May 10, 2007 about Coastal Federal Bank's loan to The Community Health Foundation, stated there was a grant verification letter for the amount of the loan or higher and the letter was from the Golden Leaf Foundation or N. C. Rural Health.

As a result of the aforementioned information, TORLEN WADE was called in and interviewed by Strach and Amy Strange of the State Board of Elections on May 11, 2007.

The interview of TORLEN WADE began with Amy Strange asking TORLEN WADE if his agency had issued a grant award letter to The Community Health Foundation for a building loan in 2002. TORLEN WADE responded that he recalled a letter he had written as a result of THOMAS WRIGHT asking him to write a letter to secure a loan for a building he wanted to use as a museum. WADE, who became seemingly upset, stated that he should not have written the letter because N. C. Rural Health did not have the funding and N. C. Rural Health could not provide funding for a museum. and had both stated during interviews that THOMAS WRIGHT had an interest in using some portion of the building for a memorial or museum commemorating the 1898 race riots. WADE was not provided any information about WRIGHT'S purpose for the building, only that he had secured a loan for the building.

Strach stated that WADE related that WRIGHT said he did not expect WADE to provide any money but he just needed a letter that stated the funds would be allocated. WADE also stated that THOMAS WRIGHT indicated he had already secured the money he needed but he needed a letter to show he had the funds. WADE further stated that THOMAS WRIGHT told him that he did not intend on using TORLEN WADE'S letter.

According to TORLEN WADE, he had worked with THOMAS WRIGHT and Dr. Dan Gottovi on the New Hanover Community Health Center and other projects and he had found THOMAS WRIGHT to be very helpful.

Strach stated she did not recall any discussion with TORLEN WADE during this interview that the loan or funding in question involved the New Hanover Community Health Center or about the New Hanover Community Health Center moving its administrative offices to the Lofton property or about The Community Health Foundation, Inc. having its offices in the same building.

U. S. v. White
C.A.Ga., 1979.

United States Court of Appeals,Fifth Circuit.
UNITED STATES of America, Plaintiff-Appellee,
v.
William D. WHITE and Terry L. Keno, Defendants-Appellants.
No. 78-5083.

Feb. 26, 1979.

Two defendants were convicted in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia, Newell Edenfield, J., of conspiracy and mail fraud and they appealed. The Court of Appeals, Thornberry, Circuit Judge, held that: (1) uncounseled inculpatory testimony in a civil case given in ignorance of the Fifth Amendment privilege is not thereby inadmissible in a subsequent criminal case as violative of due process; (2) evidence of subsequent unexplained wealth was admissible; (3) compelling defendant to go to trial in the civil case while criminal charges arising out of same conduct were pending did not unconstitutionally force him to choose between preserving his Fifth Amendment privilege and losing his civil suit where there was no indication that invocation of the Fifth Amendment would necessarily result in an adverse civil judgment; (4) the trial judge did not take an improperly adversarial position when questioning an expert defense witness; (5) the judge's falling asleep during defense counsel's opening argument was not prejudicial error, and (6) the trial judge did not coerce the jury into reaching a verdict by denying their request for a recess after three hours on the second day of deliberations.

Affirmed.

Appeals from the United States District Court for the Northern District of Georgia.

Before BROWN, Chief Judge, and TUTTLE and THORNBERRY, Circuit Judges.
THORNBERRY, Circuit Judge:

Terry Keno was office manager for the Atlanta, Georgia, warehouse of Alside, Inc., a subsidiary of United States Steel Corporation. Alside manufactured and sold aluminum, steel, and fiberglass products for the home improvement industry. Ward Broussard was an Alside salesman working out of the Atlanta warehouse. William White was a close friend of Keno. In 1972 Keno and Broussard set up an account under the name of Georgia Remodeling, with White listed as firm president. Under Alside policy, Georgia Remodeling was entitled to a rebate on all purchases in order to offset discounts offered by Alside's competitors.

In 1976 Alside filed a state civil suit against Keno, Broussard, and White, alleging1285 that they had employed Georgia Remodeling as a dummy account in order to skim off the amount of the rebated competitive discount.[FN1] This scheme became the focus of a federal grand jury investigation, and fifty count indictments were returned against the three.[FN2] After a jury trial, Keno and White were convicted on all counts.[FN3] They now appeal asserting separate contentions. We affirm.

FN1. Keno contended that the Georgia Remodeling account was opened at the direction of a superior to provide a vehicle for extending credit to customers who had been denied credit by the main office of Alside in Akron, Ohio.

FN2. The indictments contained forty-nine counts of mail fraud in violation of 18 U.S.C. s 1341, and one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud under 18 U.S.C. s 371.

FN3. Keno received concurrent sentences of four years on each count. White received three year concurrent sentences on each count. Broussard pled nolo contendere; his sentence does not appear in this record.

I. White

A. White claims that his counsel in the civil trial, retained by Keno, failed to inform him of his fifth amendment right against self-incrimination and allowed him to testify in order to exculpate Keno, and that this amounted to ineffective assistance of counsel in violation of the sixth amendment [FN4] and deprivation of his fifth amendment right against self-incrimination. We fail to see any error in the admission of this testimony.

FN4. White has not adduced, nor have we found, a case in which the right to effective assistance of counsel has been extended under the aegis of the sixth or fourteenth amendment to a civil proceeding that was not analogous to a criminal prosecution. This case, in which private parties are litigating the possibility of civil liability, is not in furtherance of the criminal process, and we can perceive no justification for importing into such a civil case the stringent safeguards the Constitution provides in criminal or quasi-criminal proceedings. White's counsel at the criminal trial, Young, expressly disclaimed that he was attacking the competence of Garrett, the state trial counsel, during the suppression hearing. Record, Vol. I at 215. This assertion effectively foreclosed inquiry, under United States v. Woodall, 438 F.2d 1317 (5 Cir. 1970) (en banc), Cert. denied, 403 U.S. 933, 91 S.Ct. 2262, 29 L.Ed.2d 712 (1971), into Garrett's remembrance of the facts surrounding White's testimony. In light of our discussion of the merits, we need not determine whether counsel's actions amounted to a waiver of this contention.

[1] The crux of White's argument is that uncounseled inculpatory testimony in a civil case given in ignorance of the fifth amendment privilege is inadmissible in a subsequent criminal case as violative of due process. To the extent this argument could be construed to advocate Miranda -like warnings we reject it. See United States v. Vecchiarello, 187 U.S.App.D.C. 1, 569 F.2d 656 (1977); United States v. Cecil, 457 F.2d 1178 (8 Cir. 1972); Hale v. U. S., 406 F.2d 476 (10 Cir. 1969), Cert. denied, 395 U.S. 977, 89 S.Ct. 2129, 23 L.Ed.2d 765 (1970). In the absence of the special circumstances of custodial interrogation, the costs of such a prophylactic outweighs its utility. Moreover, the failure to inform White of his fifth amendment privilege in the civil context does not make the testimony given in the civil case involuntary. Cf. Cole v. Florida, 413 F.2d 1046 (5 Cir. 1969) (voluntariness of confession pre-Miranda based on totality of circumstances). White in fact admitted that he wanted to testify in order to rebut Alside's allegations.[FN5] He also was aware that an indictment was pending at the time of the civil trial, and he does not contend that he did not know that the testimony could be used against him in the criminal trial. Finally, there is no indication that White was in any way compelled to take the stand. Admission of testimony given under these circumstances is not violative of due process.[FN6]

FN5. Record, Vol. I at 211.

FN6. There is some question whether White was in fact ignorant of the privilege. His contention is that, although he did know he could invoke the privilege in a criminal context and although Garrett had invoked the fifth during depositions, he did not know he could invoke the privilege during a civil trial. White admitted at the suppression hearing, however, that he was not affirmatively stating that he was not informed, but that at the time of the hearing he Could not remember whether he had been informed. White's testimony is, at best, equivocal, and the district court could have properly discounted it.

[2] B. During the criminal trial, the United States introduced a passbook covering1286 a $50,000 savings account of which White was the beneficiary. This evidence was proffered as subsequent unexplained wealth.[FN7] White contends on appeal that the admission of such evidence was irrelevant to his guilt because he was merely a beneficiary of the savings account without a vested interest under state law, and therefore, he did not "possess" any subsequent unexplained wealth.

FN7. "Where there is other evidence of the guilt of the accused and the crime is of such a nature that the acquisition of money may be regarded as a natural or ordinary result of its perpetration, evidence is admissible of the sudden acquisition of money by the defendant . . . at or subsequent to the time the offense was committed, although the source of the money is not definitely traced or identified by the prosecution." United States v. Manning, 440 F.2d 1105, 1110 (5 Cir.), Cert. denied, 404 U.S. 837, 92 S.Ct. 125, 30 L.Ed.2d 69 (1971) (quoting Anno., 91 A.L.R.2d 1046, 1049;United States v. Jackskion, 102 F.2d 683 (2 Cir.), Cert. denied, 307 U.S. 635, 59 S.Ct. 1032, 83 L.Ed. 1517 (1939)).

In the present case, however, the United States charged that White and Keno conspired in a scheme to defraud, the natural consequence of which would be an increase in the wealth of the conspirators. The fact that Keno retained the legal title to the funds did not make such increase in wealth irrelevant to White's guilt, in light of the facts that White was the beneficiary, that Keno and White owned other property in common, that they were close friends and housemates, and that they were admitted, albeit professedly innocent, participants in the Georgia Remodeling ploy. See United States v. Crisp, 435 F.2d 354 (7 Cir. 1970), Cert. denied, 402 U.S. 947, 91 S.Ct. 1640, 29 L.Ed.2d 116 (1971); United States v. Smith, 428 F.2d 1183 (4 Cir.), Cert. denied, 400 U.S. 907, 91 S.Ct. 149, 27 L.Ed.2d 145 (1970). Cf. Self v. United States, 249 F.2d 32 (5 Cir. 1959). Although Keno was caught "holding" the money, the existence of this account was not irrelevant as to his coconspirator. Submission of this evidence to the jury did not amount to an abuse of discretion.

II. Keno

[3] A. Keno contends that being forced to go to trial in a civil case while criminal charges arising out of the same conduct were pending forced him to choose between preserving his fifth amendment privilege and losing the civil suit. It appears to us, however, that Keno overstates his dilemma. He was not forced to surrender his privilege against self-incrimination in order to prevent a judgment against him; although he may have been denied his most effective defense by remaining silent,[FN8] there is no indication that invocation of the fifth amendment would have necessarily resulted in an adverse judgment.

FN8. This is assuming that Keno's explanation and his credibility would have a positive effect on the jury.

The Supreme Court has recently addressed a similar problem in Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976). In Baxter, plaintiff asserted that a Rhode Island rule allowing the fact-finder in a prison disciplinary proceeding to draw an adverse inference from a failure to testify derogated his fifth amendment privilege. The Court rejected this argument, finding that this rule was not an invalid attempt to penalize the exercise of the privilege. Justice White wrote for the majority,

. . . a prison inmate in Rhode Island electing to remain silent during his disciplinary hearing, as respondent Palmigiano did here, is not in consequence of his silence automatically found guilty of the infraction with which he has been charged. Under Rhode Island law, disciplinary decisions "must be based on substantial evidence manifested in the record of the disciplinary proceeding."Morris v. Travisono, 310 F.Supp. 857, 873 (R.I.1970). It is thus undisputed that an inmate's silence in and of itself is insufficient to *1287 support an adverse decision by the Disciplinary Board. In this respect, this case is very different from the circumstances before the Court in the Garrity (V. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 17 L.Ed.2d 562)-Lefkowitz (V. Turley, 414 U.S. 70, 94 S.Ct. 316, 38 L.Ed.2d 274) decisions, where refusal to submit to interrogation and to waive the Fifth Amendment privilege, standing alone and without regard to the other evidence, resulted in loss of employment or opportunity to contract with the State. There, failure to respond to interrogation was treated as a final admission of guilt. Here, Palmigiano remained silent at the hearing in the face of evidence that incriminated him; and, as far as this record reveals, his silence was given no more evidentiary value than was warranted by the facts surrounding his case.

Similarly, there is no indication that invocation of the fifth amendment in this case would have resulted in an adverse judgment. Alside, as plaintiff, was put to the proof of its case, See Brown v. Techdata Corp., 238 Ga. 622, 234 S.E.2d 787 (1977), and there is no indication that under Georgia law silence on the part of defendant would compel a verdict for plaintiff. Since there is no forfeiture of any property or benefit, we can see no impermissible effect on Keno's fifth amendment privilege in the present case. See also Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477 (1 Cir. 1977), Cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978); DeVita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172 (3 Cir. 1970); United States v. Sloan, 388 F.Supp. 1062 (S.D.N.Y.1975); Keene v. Rodgers, 316 F.Supp. 217 (D.Me.1970).

[4] Keno also asserts that the state trial court effectively compelled waiver of self-incrimination in ordering him to respond to a motion for summary judgment. As an initial matter, we accept the proposition that a grant of summary judgment merely because of the invocation of the fifth amendment would unduly penalize the employment of the privilege. See 8, C. Wright & A. Miller, Federal Practice & Procedure s 2018, at 148 (1970). There is no indication in the federal or state court records that the state judge actually foreclosed invocation of the privilege. From what we can determine, the state judge merely ordered defendants to be more responsive to the affidavits of Alside. It does not appear that the judge was in fact hostile to the invocation of the fifth amendment. In fact, the record does reveal that the judge issued an order limiting discovery on the basis of possible self-incrimination, a stance clearly inconsistent with an antagonistic attitude toward the defendant's claim. We fail to perceive how the judge's order to respond compelled an abandonment of fifth amendment rights.

Once it is recognized that Keno was not compelled to testify, it becomes clear that his decision to do so was a product of trial strategy. Any "waiver" of the fifth amendment must be voluntary, but invocation of the privilege does not release defendant from any choice concerning the use of his or her testimony. The fifth amendment preserves the right to choose, and the voluntariness of the choice is always affected in some way by the exigencies of a particular situation. The voluntariness inquiry necessarily incorporates an understanding that defendant cannot be free from conflicting concerns, and in any case, defendant must weigh the relative advantages of silence and explanation. In the present case, the state court did not so unduly burden the employment of silence as to make the decision to testify involuntary.[FN9]

> FN9. Keno also asserts that the use of this testimony from the civil trial "forced" him to take the stand in the criminal trial to explain his prior statements. If, however, the testimony was not elicited unconstitutionally, then its use no more forced him to take the stand than does any strong prosecution case.

[5] B. The prosecution introduced evidence that Keno had acquired considerable assets on a limited income. Keno adduced evidence, based upon his own testimony, that much of his personal wealth had been accumulated through his skills as a real *1288 estate investor. Keno contends that submission of the prosecution's evidence of subsequent wealth [FN10] to the jury was error after his rebuttal. We can perceive no error in the trial judge's failure to instruct the jury to disregard the evidence. If there is a conflict of evidence concerning the source of defendant's wealth, the better rule is to leave the question of resolving such a conflict to the jury. See United States v. Michaelson, 453 F.2d 1248 (9 Cir. 1972); Sidders v. United States, 381 F.2d 513 (9 Cir.

1967). This is especially appropriate when the evidence rests in large part upon the credibility of a witness.

FN10. See note 7 Supra.

[6] C. Keno contends that conduct on the part of the prosecutor in relation to a defense witness irreparably prejudiced his defense. He contends that he called Tom Shaw [FN11] as a witness in reliance upon a purported grant of immunity by the United States Attorney. When it appeared during Shaw's testimony that the grant of immunity was fallacious, Keno contends Shaw invoked his fifth amendment privilege, and Keno therefore lost irreplaceable testimony upon which he had constructed his defense. Keno also contends that when Shaw invoked the fifth amendment, the jury necessarily projected an "obvious inference of guilt" onto Keno because of the similarity of positions occupied by him and Shaw. We reject this argument in all its permutations.

FN11. Shaw had worked in the Atlanta warehouse during the relevant time period. Keno contends that Shaw would have supported his version of the purpose behind Georgia Remodeling.

First, Keno does not contend nor does the record show that the United States Attorney erroneously represented to him the status of Shaw's immunity. Absent some showing that Keno in fact had reasonable grounds to rely upon this putative immunity, we fail to see how any erroneous impression possibly given to Shaw could rebound to Keno's benefit.[FN12]

FN12. It is somewhat unclear whether even Shaw was misled by this supposed grant of immunity, despite his protestations. In fact, Shaw testified:

THE WITNESS: Okay, So at that point, Mr. Dutch (Shaw's attorney) came and says, "This is not a formal immunity, this is from Miss McKenzie and her superior and the Postal Inspector that's involved in the case."And he said, "It's pretty strong and if you don't lie, they're going to have a hard time taking you to Court. We can sit here and touch (sic) it out for immunity or go on that."He left the decision up to me. I went and testified before the Grand Jury based on because Mr. Dutch felt secure with the document, and I testified before the Grand Jury based on that fact. And that's where I sit in this matter.

Record, Vol. III at 41-42.

Second, an examination of the criminal trial record raises some question concerning the fact of Keno's reliance. During cross-examination of Shaw, Keno's attorney interrupted, and the following exchange ensued:

MR. GARRETT: Your Honor, before we persue (sic) this any further, I would like to find out if Mr. Shaw's aware of his Constitutional rights in this particular question.

I think she's about to ask him some things we may have to need a hearing outside the jury on.

THE COURT: Well, I don't know how his Constitutional rights are involved.

You mean what Constitutional right did you have in mind?

MR. GARRETT: Well, sir, if she's about to ask him about his personal knowledge of this account and how it operated down there, and they're prosecuting Terry for it, I think it would be, what the State, or the Government would consider incriminating evidence against him, and I think he has a right to know about his rights in this case.

Record, Vol. III at 32. We believe that this discussion clearly indicates that even if the defense knew of Shaw's supposed immunity, they discounted it.

Third, we can perceive no prejudice arising out of the mid-trial discovery of the ineffectiveness of Shaw's protection. Despite Keno's present assertion of the crucial importance of Shaw's testimony, at trial, 1289 counsel described Shaw's testimony as cumulative. Record, Vol. III at 58. Also, Shaw did testify and his testimony was favorable to Keno's defense. Finally, even if we accept Keno's argument of prejudice arising out of imputation of an impermissible inference of guilt, Shaw did not invoke the fifth amendment during his testimony.

D. Finally, Keno complains of a number of instances of error on the part of the district court, which, in their totality, deprived him of a fair trial. We will deal with each separately.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

[7] (1) Keno contends that the trial judge took an improperly adversarial position when questioning his expert witness, Jolley. In examination of the judge's interrogation of Jolley, we cannot perceive that the trial judge so overstepped the requirement of impartiality that his actions reflected a bias to the jury.

In his questioning of Jolley, the judge was apparently attempting to clarify the points at which Jolley contradicted the prosecution's expert witness. His questioning might have disconcerted Jolley, and his line of questions was based in part upon his remembrance of the prosecution witness' testimony. The district court, however, instructed the jury to ignore any factual assertions made by him during the questioning, and his final charge instructed the jury that the fact of his questioning should not be considered in their deliberations. Also, his questioning was neither as lengthy nor as antagonistic as those instances that required reversal in United States v. Hoker, 483 F.2d 359 (5 Cir. 1973), and United States v. Lanham, 416 F.2d 1140 (5 Cir. 1969). Moreover, in our examination of the record as a whole, See United States v. James, 528 F.2d 999 (5 Cir. 1976), Cert. denied, 429 U.S. 959, 97 S.Ct. 382, 50 L.Ed.2d 326 (1977), it does not appear that the district judge was either overzealous or that his impartial attitude is open to question. See United States v. Siegel, 587 F.2d 721 (5 Cir. 1979).

[8] (2) Keno contends that the judge fell asleep during his counsel's opening argument, and that this gave rise to impermissible prejudice to his defense.[FN13] Keno does not assert that he was in fact deprived of a fundamental element of a criminal trial, Compare appellant's contention in United States v. Boswell, 565 F.2d 1338 (5 Cir. 1978); instead, he argues that such an occurrence during the initial presentation of his defense amounted to judicial disparagement of counsel's argument, which affected the jury. Although a judge falling asleep is unfortunate, we believe that any possible prejudice was so attenuated as to be nonexistent. We find it difficult to believe that the jury would infer from this judicial somnolence any judgment concerning the validity of counsel's arguments. This disbelief is buttressed by the fact that the judge informed the jury, in explanation of frequent recesses and short sessions, that he was under doctor's orders to "either quit entirely or cut down on my hours."Record, Vol. II at 167. Under these circumstances, it is far more likely that the jury would consider the sleeping incident as a manifestation of his reduced health, and not any comment upon the defense.

> FN13. This occurrence does not appear on the record, and counsel has not acted under F.R.A.P. 10(e) for correction of this purported omission. This failure by counsel, however, would not necessarily foreclose subsequent proceedings in order to complete the record. See 9 J. Moore & B. Ward, Moore's Federal Practice P 210.08(2) (2d ed. 1975). Cf. United States v. Garner, 581 F.2d 481 (5 Cir. 1978) (duty of district court to ensure that requirements of Court Reporters Act, 28 U.S.C. s 753, are complied with). Since we find that, even under the facts as asserted, there was no reversible error, we need not decide if a remand in this case would have been necessary to determine if the facts alleged actually occurred.

[9][10] (3) In ordering of closing arguments, the trial judge limited defense counsels to thirty minutes apiece. Keno complains that this limitation made it impossible for his counsel to adequately summarize his defense. It is clear that the ordering of argument rests within the sound discretion of the trial court. See, e. g., United States v. Owens, 453 F.2d 355 (5 Cir. 1971). We cannot perceive that that discretion was abused. Although the case was complex, 1290 limiting argument to thirty minutes does not appear to be unreasonable. Also, counsel acquiesced in the limitation without objection, even after the judge had shown himself amenable to extending the time for argument. Record, Vol. III at 226-27.

[11][12] (4) Keno also complains that the judge erred when he instructed the jury:

I instruct you, however, that the mere fact that Mr. Broussard has pled nolo contendere, which is on which the Court has found him guilty, the mere fact that he entered such a plea in his case is to be taken by you as no evidence whatsoever as to the guilt or innocence of the other two Defendants on trial. The mere fact that one Defendant has seen fit to plead guilty or nolo contendere and had his case disposed of in that fashion is not any evidence whatsoever against the two Defendants on trial. And they are entitled to have their guilt or innocence determined entirely on the evidence presented in this trial. And you are to draw no inferences whatsoever as to their guilt or innocence merely because of some plea entered by a third Defendant.

Record, Vol. III at 240. Keno asserts that conflating a plea of nolo contendere by a codefendant with a finding of guilt gave rise to prejudice. Keno apparently argues that the statement "on which the Court has found him guilty" gave rise to an inference of guilt by association that was not dissipated by the court's direction to disregard the Plea of nolo contendere.[FN14] The trial judge's comments, however, were in the context of explaining to the jury the nature of a plea of nolo contendere, and, the court previously had limited the equating of the plea and determination of guilt to the effects of such a plea in the sentencing process. Record, Vol. III at 240. It is unreasonable to assume that the jury would have relied upon this comment in this context as evidence of the defendant's guilt in direct disregard of the clear statement of the judge that they were to entirely ignore the fact of Broussard's plea.

FN14. A cautionary instruction is generally sufficient to dispel any prejudice that arises from informing the jury of a codefendant's plea of guilty. See United States v. King, 505 F.2d 602 (5 Cir. 1974); United States v. Davis, 487 F.2d 112 (5 Cir. 1973), Cert. denied, 415 U.S. 981, 94 S.Ct. 1573, 39 L.Ed.2d 878 (1974). Keno does not argue that the instructions in this case did not dispel the prejudice arising from the jury's knowledge of Broussard's plea of nolo contendere.
Counsel for Keno did not object to this wording in the instruction; counsel for White did. We believe objection by codefendant's counsel is sufficient to preserve any error. See United States v. Lefkowitz, 284 F.2d 310, 313 n.1 (2 Cir. 1960).

[13][14][15] (5) Keno asserts that after three hours on the second day of deliberations, the jury informed the trial judge that it was deadlocked and requested a recess.[FN15] The trial judge denied this request. Five minutes later, the jury returned a verdict of guilty on all counts. Keno argues that the court's failure to grant a recess amounted to coercion. As a general rule, the length of time of jury deliberations is a matter of trial court discretion.United States v. Caracci, 446 F.2d 173 (5 Cir. 1973). Absent some other circumstances, mere length of time cannot constitute coercion. In the present case, Keno asserts that the rendering of a verdict within five minutes of a request for a recess compels a conclusion that the recalcitrant jurors were overcome because of the denial of a recess. The trial judge's refusal, however, could not reasonably be perceived as a threat of extended deliberations. The record does not reveal nor does defendant contend that the judge had kept the jury at its deliberations an unreasonable amount of time. In light of these circumstances, the decision by the judge to make the jury continue deliberations was not an abuse of discretion.

FN15. This exchange does not appear in the record. See note 12 Supra.

Finding this trial free of reversible error, we AFFIRM.

Diebold v. Civil Service Commission of St. Louis County
C.A.Mo., 1979.

United States Court of Appeals,Eighth Circuit.
Roy F. DIEBOLD, Appellant,
v.
CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY, etc., et al., Appellees.
No. 79-1192.

Submitted Oct. 8, 1979.
Decided Dec. 10, 1979.

Former employee of county civil service commission who had been dismissed following his arrest for child molestation brought action to have commission enjoined from holding dismissal appeal hearing until after criminal case against plaintiff had been concluded. The United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri, 81 F.R.D. 631, James H. Meredith, Senior District Judge, denied relief and plaintiff appealed. The Court of Appeals, Ross, Circuit Judge, held that plaintiff was not deprived of Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination by being required to participate in administrative proceeding to contest loss of job, despite contention that he had been required to elect to remain silent while commission heard evidence of his criminal conduct, virtually guaranteeing loss of job, or to testify and waive Fifth Amendment privilege, where there was no indication that he was or would have been penalized for invoking Fifth Amendment at hearing at which chairman stated that employee's invocation of privilege would not provide separate grounds for dismissal under the commission's rules.

Affirmed.

ROSS, Circuit Judge.

This appeal poses the difficult constitutional question of whether an indicted individual's fifth amendment privilege against self-incrimination is threatened if he must participate in an administrative proceeding, as the sole means of contesting the loss of his job, which involves consideration of matters related to or similar to those for which a criminal indictment has been issued. Even where, as here, the accused employee is free to assert the privilege in the administrative proceeding, the choices available to him are still undesirable. He may either elect to remain silent while the administrative commission hears evidence of his criminal conduct, and virtually guarantee the loss of his job, or he may voluntarily testify and waive the fifth amendment privilege.

Preferring neither of these choices, the employee in this action filed suit in the district court [FN1] seeking injunctive relief under 28 U.S.C. s 1343, [FN2] declaratory relief 699 under 28 U.S.C. s 2201, reinstatement to his job, and alleging violation of his constitutional rights under 42 U.S.C. s 1983. The district court denied injunctive relief on November 8, 1978, and granted defendants' motion for summary judgment on February 6, 1979, holding that no case or controversy existed and that, as a matter of law, the administrative proceeding in this case was constitutionally sound. We agree with the district court that there existed no justiciable controversy over the employee's participation in the proceeding. Moreover, we agree that, as a matter of law, the dilemma forced upon the appellant was a constitutionally permissible one.

FN1. The Honorable James H. Meredith, Chief Judge, United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri.

FN2. Diebold sought to enjoin the Commission from holding a dismissal appeal hearing until after the criminal case had been concluded.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

The appellant in this action, Roy F. Diebold, was dismissed from his job with the St. Louis County Civil Service (Commission) on September 7, 1978, following his arrest for child molestation. The letter of dismissal listed both his alleged criminal and immoral conduct And his incompetency and inefficiency as reasons for termination of the employment relationship. It should be noted that either of these grounds would be sufficient for the dismissal of an employee under the Civil Service Commission's rules.

The following day, September 8, Diebold's attorney filed an appeal of the dismissal, requesting a hearing before the Commission. On October 4 he informed the Commission that his client would invoke his fifth amendment privilege until the criminal charges for child molestation were resolved, since it appeared that the Commission proceeding would cover allegations of child molestation similar to those for which he was indicted. Certain rules of the Commission, however, presented potential problems resulting from this approach:

(a) Rule XVIII Sec. 2(B)(5):

Unless incapacitated, the person placing an appeal before the Commission shall appear personally and may not be excused from answering questions and supplying information. Either party may have legal counsel at such a hearing.

(b) Rule XVIII Sec. 2(B)(8):

Employees in the Classified Service shall be required to attend and testify without subpoena. If any employee shall wilfully refuse to testify or answer any questions relative to the matter being heard by the Commission on any grounds, He may be dismissed from the classified service.

(Emphasis supplied.) Fearing that Diebold's invocation of the fifth amendment might provide separate grounds for dismissal, the attorney requested a policy statement from the Commission assuring Diebold that the assertion of the privilege would not prejudice his appeal.

On the same day that the Commission mailed its refusal to issue the policy statement, Diebold filed the complaint and motion for preliminary injunction with the district court. The preliminary injunction was denied, and the Commission began its administrative proceedings on November 9. It was during this session that the Commission's chairman stated that Diebold's refusal to answer a question on fifth amendment grounds would not provide "separate grounds for mandatory dismissal under our rules."On December 21, the Commission upheld Diebold's dismissal, and on February 6, the defendants' motion for summary judgment was granted.

On appeal, Diebold asserts that the granting of a summary judgment on the defendants' behalf was improper because genuine issues as to material facts were in existence at the time it was granted. In addition, Diebold contends that, as a matter of law, the Commission was not entitled to a judgment on the merits.

I.

[1][2] At the outset, we recognize that in reviewing a decision of a district court to grant a summary judgment, we apply the same standard as the trial court. Butler v. MFA Life Insurance Co., 591 F.2d 448, 451 (8th Cir. 1979). Under Fed.R.Civ.P. 56(c) a summary judgment should be granted only where there "is no genuine issue as to any material fact and * * * the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter of law."Furthermore, the facts must be viewed in the light most favorable to the party opposing the motion, and the court 700 must give that party the benefit of all reasonable inferences to be drawn from the facts. Butler v. MFA Life Insurance Co., supra, 591 F.2d at 451. Even viewed in this light, however, we are convinced that this case presents neither genuine factual issues nor a case and controversy.

[3][4] In denying Diebold's request for injunctive relief, the district court determined that there was no indication that Diebold was or would have been penalized for invoking the fifth amendment in the Commission's proceedings. There was not even a showing that Diebold would have been required to testify at the hearing. Furthermore, at a Commission hearing the following day, November 9, the chairman stated that Diebold's invocation of the privilege would not provide separate grounds for dismissal under the Commission's rules.[FN3] The Commission then moved for a summary judgment, claiming that no live controversy existed over the application of the rules to Diebold's case, and the motion was granted. We agree with the district court that no deprivation of constitutional rights has yet occurred. And since no further hearings are contemplated, we hold that no factual issues are presented to us for resolution.

FN3. At the hearing the chairman made the following statement:

We do not believe that there is anything in the rules which would require or mandate as a separate grounds for dismissal would not mandate Mr. Diebold's dismissal if he refused to answer a question invoking his Fifth Amendment privileges. In other words, we do not believe that would be a separate grounds for mandatory dismissal under our rules.

[5] Diebold nevertheless contends that he is at least entitled to a declaratory judgment since the Commission's rules are still in existence and could be enforced in spite of the chairman's intentions. We disagree with this argument. Diebold's position seems to ignore the clear message of this court in Cass County v. United States, 570 F.2d 737, 740 (8th Cir. 1978), wherein we stated that even under the Declaratory Judgment Act, 28 U.S.C. s 2201, "(i)n order to present a 'controversy,' a question must not be abstract but must define an issue which is concrete and specific."The mere threat that the Commission's rules might someday be enforced does not provide us with a concrete or specific issue, as was pointed out in United Public Workers of America (CIO) v. Mitchell, 330 U.S. 75, 91, 67 S.Ct. 556, 91 L.Ed. 754 (1947).

II.

[6] Even if this case presented a justiciable controversy or genuine factual issues, the Commission still would be entitled to a judgment as a matter of law. As the district court pointed out, the fifth amendment presents no obstacle to administrative proceedings such as the one we are examining in this appeal. It is well settled that as long as an employee such as Diebold is not faced with the decision to surrender either his job or his constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, his predicament, no matter how undesirable, does not raise constitutional questions. Sanitation Men v. Sanitation Comm'r, 392 U.S. 280, 284, 88 S.Ct. 1917, 20 L.Ed.2d 1089 (1968).

The Supreme Court has long held that the fifth amendment "not only protects the individual against being involuntarily called as a witness against himself in a criminal prosecution but also privileges him not to answer official questions put to him in any other proceeding, civil or criminal, formal or informal, where the answers might incriminate him in future criminal proceedings."Lefkowitz v. Turley, 414 U.S. 70, 77, 94 S.Ct. 316, 322, 38 L.Ed.2d 274 (1973). Although we feel that this same rationale applies to administrative proceedings such as the ones we are here dealing with, this position renders no support to Diebold's argument. The Supreme Court's major concern in this area has been in preventing testimony obtained from an employee under threat of dismissal from being used against that person in subsequent criminal proceedings. For example, in Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 500, 87 S.Ct. 616, 620, 17 L.Ed.2d 562 (1966), police officers who were being questioned about alleged ticket fixing *701 were informed that a refusal to answer questions on fifth amendment grounds would result in their dismissal. The Court held that "the protection of the individual under the Fourteenth Amendment against coerced statements prohibits use in subsequent criminal proceedings of statements obtained under threat of removal from office * * *." Similarly, in Sanitation Men v. Sanitation Comm'r, supra, 392 U.S. at 284, 88 S.Ct. at 1920, city employees who refused to sign waivers of fifth amendment immunity before a grand jury were fired from their jobs. The Court acknowledged that the possible ineffectiveness of the waiver did not diminish the impropriety of the state's action. The real constitutional controversy arose from the alternatives with which the employees were faced, because "the precise and plain impact of the proceedings * * * was to present them with a choice between their constitutional rights or their jobs."

We are dealing with an entirely different factual situation. There exists here no requirement that Diebold waive his immunity under the fifth amendment. Nor is there a threat that he will be fired simply for invoking that privilege. See Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 317-18, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 1557-1558, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1975). ("In this respect, this case is very different from the circumstances before the Court in the Garrity-Lefkowitz decisions, where refusal to submit to interrogation and to waive the Fifth Amendment privilege, Standing alone and without regard to the other evidence, resulted in loss of employment or opportunity to contract with the State.") (Emphasis added.) Since there is no showing that Diebold must either answer questions which might incriminate him in future criminal proceedings or forfeit his job, we find no impermissible sanction in the Commission's rules.

Finally, Diebold argues that his situation presents a special problem because he has already been indicted, and perhaps faces a greater threat to his fifth amendment rights. We feel that this distinction has no bearing on the constitutional issues involved. Furthermore, we agree with the position of the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in United States v. White, 589 F.2d 1283, 1286 (5th Cir. 1979), which was issued in response to the same arguments Diebold sets forth in this appeal:

Keno contends that being forced to go to trial in a civil case while criminal charges arising out of the same conduct were pending forced him to choose between preserving his fifth amendment privilege and losing the civil suit. It appears to us, however, that Keno overstates his dilemma. He was not forced to surrender his privilege against self-incrimination in order to prevent a judgment against him; although he may have been denied his most effective defense by remaining silent, there is no indication that invocation of the fifth amendment would have necessarily resulted in an adverse judgment.

We have examined Diebold's other arguments and find them similarly to be without merit. Accordingly, we affirm the decision of the district court.

SEC brought civil action challenging trading in securities of a specific company. On challenges to admissibility of evidence, the District Court, Milton Pollack, Senior District Judge, held that: (1) adverse inference could be drawn from civil defendant's assertion of privilege against self-incrimination, and (2) testimony of chief executive officer who had confided confidential information to civil defendant that officer considered confidant a European consultant to the company generally although there was no formal relationship, that he did not feel it was necessary to tell confidant the information being discussed was confidential because the confidant had been in management 20 years and he ought to know the rules, and that he called the confidant and questioned him as soon as the SEC initiated action against unknown purchasers was admissible.

Evidence ruled admissible in part and inadmissible in part.

Testimony by business partner to statements of copartner who was civil defendant in action by SEC regarding what copartner told partner about business telephone conversations between copartner and another civil defendant was admissible under coconspirator exclusion from hearsay rule, where statements were made while the civil defendant who was party to copartner's conversation was anticipating recompense of $200,000 for inside information supplied to copartner and used in purchasing securities, and statements copartner made to witness partner were intended to bring partner up-to-date and solicit partner's ratification of prior stock transactions and approval for further purchases. MEMORANDUM

MILTON POLLACK, Senior District Judge.

Evidentiary Rulings

During the course of the non-jury trial herein, motions were presented by the parties for evidentiary rulings on which decision was reserved. The questions raised by the parties relate to the effect to be given to defendant Tome's assertion of his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination and to the admissibility of portions of depositions and other exhibits submitted as evidence.

A. The Effect of Tome's Assertion of His Fifth Amendment Privilege Against Self-Incrimination

[1] The plaintiff SEC sought to obtain responses from defendant Tome to interrogatories to be addressed to him in Switzerland. In an affidavit, Tome asserted his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination and refused to answer any interrogatories related to the transactions at issue in this case. Tome contends, however, that it is constitutionally impermissible for this Court to draw an adverse inference from that assertion of the privilege. Implicitly conceding that an adverse inference may be drawn in a civil case between private parties, Tome contends that it is constitutionally impermissible for this Court to do so in a civil case in which the government is the plaintiff or in which the defendant invoking the privilege is also a defendant in a parallel criminal proceeding. He relies upon language in a dissent in Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 334, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976) (Brennan, J. dissenting) and some glancing dicta in SEC v. Musella, 578 F.Supp. 425, 431 (S.D.N.Y.1984). Tome's contention is contrary to the settled law. See United States v. Segal, 549 F.2d 1293, 1299 (9th Cir.)(Baxter "held that a negative, though not conclusive, inference can be drawn from the failure of a prisoner to testify ... even though the testimony if given could lead to criminal prosecution."), cert. denied, 431 U.S. 919, 97 S.Ct. 2187, 53 L.Ed.2d 231 (1977).

The authorities cited below would have fully justified drawing an adverse inference against Tome from his assertion of the privilege against self-incrimination herein. In the circumstances presented, however, it is unnecessary to utilize the inference to establish liability. Even if needed to establish liability, it would have been merely one inference among a number of evidentiary factors considered by this Court in reaching its conclusions. Tome's liability herein has been established by a preponderance of the credible evidence, without regard to the adverse inference.

Baxter, supra, established that the Constitution does not prohibit drawing an adverse inference from a party's assertion of the privilege in civil cases since "silence in the face of accusation is a relevant fact.... [and] 'is often evidence of the most persuasive character.' " Baxter, 425 U.S. at 319, 96 S.Ct. at 1558 (quoting United States ex rel. Bilokumsky v. Tod, 263 U.S. 149, 153-54, 44 S.Ct. 54, 56, 68 L.Ed.2d 221 (1923) (Brandeis, J.)). The next year, in 632Lefkowitz v. Cunningham,* 431 U.S. 801, 808 n. 5, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 2137 n. 5, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977), the Supreme Court read its Baxter decision to mean that:

> Baxter did no more than permit an inference to be drawn in a civil case from a party's refusal to testify. Respondent's silence in Baxter was only one of a number of factors to be considered by the finder of fact in assessing a penalty, and was given no more probative value than the facts of the case warranted[.]

The Second Circuit has interpreted the Baxter rule to apply to witnesses as well as parties and through these witnesses, former employees of a party, against a party. Brink's Inc. v. City of New York, 717 F.2d 700, 708-10 (2d Cir.1983).

Subsequent to Baxter and Lefkowitz, supra, decisions by federal courts have established that an adverse inference is equally to be drawn where the government is a party to the civil proceeding. see e.g., FTC v. Kitco of Nevada, Inc., 612 F.Supp. 1282, 1291 (D.Minn.1985) (adverse inference drawn in an FTC enforcement action); United States v. Local 560, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, 581 F.Supp. 279, 306 (D.N.J.1984) (adverse inference drawn in a civil RICO case brought by the government), rev'd as to this point on other grounds, 780 F.2d 267, 292-93 n.32 (3d Cir.1985); CFTC v. U.S. Metals Depositary Co., 468 F. Supp. 1149, 1162 & n. 56 (S.D.N.Y.1979). Particularly relevant hereto, courts have drawn an adverse inference in enforcement actions brought by the SEC. See e.g., SEC v. Netelkos, 592 F.Supp. 906, 917-18 (S.D.N.Y.1984); SEC v. Musella, 578 F.Supp. 425, 429-30 (S.D.N.Y.1984); SEC v. Scott, 565 F.Supp. 1513, 1533-34 (S.D.N.Y.1983), aff'd sub nom., SEC v. Cayman Islands Reinsurance Corp., 734 F.2d 118 (2d Cir.1984); SEC v. Gilbert, 79 F.R.D. 683, 686 (S.D.N.Y.1978). In addition, federal courts have held that the pendency of related criminal proceedings is irrelevant in determining whether to draw an adverse inference, see e.g., Diebold v. Civil Service Commission, 611 F.2d 697, 701 (8th Cir.1979) (holding that the fact that the defendant asserting the privilege in a civil action has already been indicted "has no bearing on the constitutional issues involved"); Roberts v. Taylor, 540 F.2d 540, 542 (1st Cir. 1976) (stating that the Baxter decision does not "accord leeway" for distinctions between a situation in which criminal charges are pending and a situation in which only a possibility of criminal charges are involved), cert. denied sub nom., Roberts v. Director, Department of Corrections, 429 U.S. 1076, 97 S.Ct. 819, 50 L.Ed.2d 796 (1977), and many decisions have drawn an adverse inference when criminal charges are pending. See e.g., Hoover v. Knight, 678 F.2d 578, 582 & n. 1 (5th Cir.1982); Book v. United States Postal Service, 675 F.2d 158, 160 n.4 (8th Cir. 1982) (per curiam); Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477, 478 (1st Cir.1977), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978); Rhode Island v. Cardillo, 592 F.Supp. 655, 658 (D.R.I.1984); Marcello v. Long Island Railroad, 465 F.Supp. 54, 61 (S.D.N.Y.1979).

The permissible adverse inference has been used, however, only for the purpose of determining the scope of Tome's liability, following a determination of his liability without use of that inference. It is used herein only for some of the transactions engaged in by those whom Tome tipped regarding the Seagram tender offer for St. Joe, specifically the transactions engaged in by Banque Gutzwiller and by Trade Development Bank.

B. Objections To Testimony and Exhibits

Except for two live witnesses testifying at trial, Marc Cohen, an analyst in mining industries for the brokerage firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co., and Kevin Feehan, the New York Stock Exchange specialist in St. Joe stock, all testimony in this case was received by deposition testimony. All parties appearing in this action stipulated that the deposition testimony would be admissible as though that person were testifying live at trial, and thus absence from the trial poses no hearsay objection because of that absence.

633 The testimony of some foreign nationals, Mrs. Patricia Arbucias, Mr. Riccardo Argenziano, and defendant Leati, all officers and/or directors of defendant Lombardfin S.p.A., was taken pursuant to a special Letter Rogatory procedure. The range of questions permitted in such proceedings is much narrower than the range permitted in our deposition procedure; thus the information obtained is much less complete.

After giving the parties an opportunity to object on the grounds of competency, relevancy, or hearsay, to the receipt by the Court of any portions of any of the deposition testimony, defendant Tome, joined by defendants NICO, TFCO, and Finvest Panama, objected to three isolated statements in Bronfman's deposition and to Csopey's deposition testimony to the extent that he repeated what Leati told him that Tome had said in telephone conversations between Leati and Tome on March 10, 1981. All other possible objections to the deposition testimony are waived.

In addition, both plaintiff and defendants objected to documents offered into evidence as exhibits. The SEC's objections are overruled and all of defendants' exhibits, including those offered after the trial on October 23, 1985, are received into evidence. The defendants' objections to the SEC's exhibits are sustained in part, overruled in part as discussed below in more detail.

1. Defendants' Hearsay Objections To Csopey's Testimony

Defendants object to Csopey's testimony on hearsay grounds to the extent that he testified concerning what his partner Leati had told him about business telephone conversations between Tome and Leati on March 10, 1981. Csopey was an interested party in the business. The SEC asserts that this contested testimony is not hearsay since it is "a statement by a coconspirator of a party during the course and in furtherance of the conspiracy." Rule 801(d)(2)(E), Fed.R.Evid. The SEC claims that since Leati was Tome's coconspirator in the illegal St. Joe purchases, Leati's statements to Csopey are admissible against Tome since they were made during the course of and in furtherance of the conspiracy. In the alternative, the SEC argues that even if the contested statements are hearsay, several exceptions to the hearsay rule are applicable. Since the coconspirator exclusion from hearsay, Rule 801(d)(2)(E), by itself permits receipt of the matter objected to, it is unnecessary to discuss the SEC's other grounds for admitting the contested testimony.

Although the vast majority of cases discussing the coconspirator exclusion from the hearsay rule are criminal cases, see generally Annot., Admissibility of Statement By Coconspirator Under Rule 801(d)(2)(E) of Federal Rules of Evidence, 44 A.L.R.Fed. 627 (1979) (collecting cases), it is clear that the rule is equally applicable to civil cases. Rule 1101(b), Fed.R.Evid.; see e.g., Filco v. Amana Refrigeration, Inc., 709 F.2d 1257, 1267 (9th Cir.) (discussing coconspirator exclusion in a civil case), cert. dismissed, 464 U.S. 956, 104 S.Ct. 385, 78 L.Ed.2d 331 (1983); Oreck Corp. v. Whirlpool Corp., 639 F.2d 75, 80-81 (2d Cir.1980) (same), cert. denied, 454 U.S. 1083, 102 S.Ct. 639, 70 L.Ed.2d 618 (1981). There is a paucity of civil cases involving the coconspirator exclusion, however, and it is not clear whether the same principles applicable to its use in the criminal area are equally applicable in the civil area. See generally Note, Reconciling The Conflict Between The Coconspirator Exemption From The Hearsay Rule and The Confrontation Clause of The Sixth Amendment, 35 Colum.L.Rev. 1294 (1985) (discussing possible Confrontation Clause problems on the criminal side). But see United States v. Inadi, 475 U.S. 387, 106 S.Ct. 1121, 89 L.Ed.2d 390 (1986) (holding that the Confrontation Clause does not require a showing that the declarant is unavailable as a condition to admission of out-of-court statements by a nontestifying coconspirator).[FN1] In addition, the coconspirator634 exemption, in effect, would be rendered a nullity on the civil side if courts required the same quantum of proof in civil actions that is presently applicable in criminal actions, i.e., the preponderance of the evidence standard, see United States v. Ciambrone, 787 F.2d 799, 807 (2d Cir.1986); United States v. Geaney, 417 F.2d 1116, 1120 (2d Cir.1969), cert. denied sub nom., Lynch v. United States, 397 U.S. 1028, 90 S.Ct. 1276, 25 L.Ed.2d 539 (1970), before the coconspirator's statement is admissible. Were a party to a civil action required to prove the existence of the conspiracy by a preponderance of the nonhearsay evidence before the coconspirator's statement is admissible, the coconspirator's statement would be merely corroborative evidence tending to reinforce the case already proved.[FN2] Perhaps this insight explains the dearth of civil cases addressing the coconspirator exclusion from the hearsay rule.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

FN1. The Inadi opinion did not purport to address another possible Confrontation Clause concern noted by commentators, i.e., whether the coconspirator's statements must be shown to be independently reliable before being admitted. Inadi, 106 S.Ct. at 1124 n. 3 ("The reliability of the out-of-court statements is not at issue in this case."). Compare United States v. Perez, 702 F.2d 33, 37 (2d Cir.) (indicating that an independent reliability determination must be made but stating that a declaration in furtherance of the conspiracy will often be sufficient to demonstrate reliability), cert. denied, 462 U.S. 1108, 103 S.Ct. 2457, 77 L.Ed.2d 1336 (1983) with United States v. Aboumoussallem, 726 F.2d 906, 910 (2d Cir.1984) ("Even if we were to require some indicia of reliability beyond the circumstance of a co-conspirator's making a report that furthers a conspiracy ...") (emphasis added). Whatever the eventual resolution of this Confrontation Clause concern may be for criminal cases, in a civil case, where Confrontation Clause concerns are not present, no independent reliability determination is required.

FN2. This dilemma does not occur in criminal cases because of the difference in the quantum of proof necessary for conviction, i.e., proof beyond a reasonable doubt, and for admission of the coconspirator's statement, i.e., preponderance of the evidence.

In this case, however, it is unnecessary to determine whether the predicate for admission of the coconspirator's statement is lower on the civil than on the criminal side since the SEC has proved the existence of a conspiracy by a preponderance of the independent evidence, i.e., by admissible evidence other than the contested coconspirator's statements.[FN3] The contested testimony of Csopey merely reinforces the credibility of circumstantial evidence already sufficient to hold defendants liable.

FN3. Of course, had the independent evidence of the conspiracy not met the preponderance standard, this Court could use the adverse inference drawn from Tome's assertion of his Fifth Amendment privilege as a factor to consider on the SEC's burden of proof as to the conspiracy's existence and as to the conspiracy's participants.

[2][3] It is not necessary to charge a conspiracy in the complaint in order to invoke the coconspirator exclusion from the hearsay rule. United States v. Doulin, 538 F.2d 466, 471 (2d Cir.), cert. denied, 429 U.S. 895, 97 S.Ct. 256, 50 L.Ed.2d 178 (1976); see United States v. Clark, 613 F.2d 391, 402-04 (2d Cir.1979) (even if acquitted on the conspiracy count, coconspirator's statements may be admissible on the substantive count), cert. denied, 449 U.S. 820, 101 S.Ct. 78, 66 L.Ed.2d 22 (1980). Charging a substantive violation is sufficient. United States v. Branker, 418 F.2d 378, 380 (2d Cir.1969). When conspiracy is not charged, however, participants in the conspiracy often are referred to instead as "joint venturers," see Clark, at 404, or as "acting in concert," see 4 J. Weinstein & M. Berger, Weinstein's Evidence ¶ 801(d)(2)(E)[01], at 801-230 & n. 5 (1985), and that language appears to be apposite herein.

In determining whether the prosecution has proved by a preponderance of the evidence the existence of a "joint venture" and the defendants' participation in it, "pieces of evidence must be viewed not in isolation but in conjunction." Geaney, 417 F.2d at 1121. Further, " 'each of the episodes gain[s] color from each of the others.' " United States v. Sliker, 751 F.2d 477, 494 (2d Cir.1984) (quoting United States v. Monica, 295 F.2d 400, 401 (2d Cir.1961), cert. denied, 368 U.S. 953, 82 S.Ct. 395, 7 L.Ed.2d 386 (1962)), cert. denied sub nom., 635 *Buchwald v. [4] Unquestionably, Tome and Leati were engaged in a joint venture to illegally trade on inside information concerning Seagram's unannounced bid for control of St. Joe. Without regard to the contested portions of Csopey's testimony, the evidence-particularly Bronfman's testimony, the BSI employees' affidavits, and Tome's trading activity-convincingly demonstrates that Tome misappropriated confidential non-public information regarding Seagram's acquisition plans and traded on it for his own benefit.

Tome also engaged in a joint venture with Leati to exploit this nonpublic information that Tome possessed. The personal relationship between Tome and Leati and, consequently, the close business relationship between Finvest Geneva and Lombardfin S.p.A. provided fertile ground for this illicit conduct. Leati had known Tome for years, even before Leati went into brokerage. As detailed in the accompanying Opinion in this case, at 8-9, because of this personal relationship, Tome's Finvest Group, particularly Finvest Geneva, had close business ties to Lombardfin S.p.A.; Lombardfin S.p.A.'s two principal foreign affiliates were renting their only office space, if it could be called that, from Finvest Geneva; Tome regularly visited Lombardfin S.p.A.'s domestic subsidiary's offices and used its facilities to conduct his business; a 100% owned Lombardfin S.p.A. affiliate executed Eurobond trades on Finvest Geneva's behalf because Finvest Geneva did not have the capacity to clear trades; Finvest Geneva had a securities trading account with a 100% owned Lombardfin S.p.A. affiliate.

Against this backdrop of interaction and familiarity, the joint venture flowered. After his telephone conversation with Bronfman on March 9, Tome on March 10 began his frantic trading and tipping to overseas clients and associates.[FN4]

> FN4. Tome's hotel only registered outgoing calls, and took messages if Tome was not in; no hotel records are kept of incoming calls if Tome was in to receive the call or if no message was left.

By the end of the day, Leati, acting on his discretionary authority, had purchased for Lombardfin S.p.A.'s clients, over 40,000 St. Joe shares, despite the fact that before March 10, 1981, Lombardfin S.p.A. had not traded even one single share of St. Joe stock. Leati's futile attempt to justify such enormous trading on a stock he had never previously traded, with Leati's trading beginning two minutes after speaking to Tome, by claiming that he engaged in some sort of independent analysis of the stock only adds an additional inference to the already overwhelming circumstantial evidence that Tome and Leati were engaged in an illicit joint venture to profit from the inside information Tome possessed concerning Seagram's plans to make a tender offer for St. Joe.

The statements Leati made to Csopey concerning the contents of Leati's conversations with Tome were made during the course of and in furtherance of the joint venture. Leati spoke to Csopey, Leati's partner in and co-founder of Lombardfin S.p.A., privately, in Leati's office, on the afternoon of March 10th, after speaking to Tome on the phone. While the outer temporal boundaries of a conspiracy's existence are often subject to debate, this conversation between Leati and Csopey took place right after this newly-formed illicit joint venture between Tome and Leati. Unquestionably, the contested statements took place during the course of the conspiracy. Leati made additional purchases of St. Joe securities for Lombardfin S.p.A.'s clients after the conversation with Csopey. Given the evidence in this case, it appears that the illicit association continued at least through the time that Tome was anticipating the recompense of $200,000 mentioned by Csopey (but denied by Leati) for the inside information Tome supplied to Leati for Lombardfin S.p.A.'s clients.

The statements Leati made to Csopey were also in furtherance of the illicit venture; they were intended to bring Leati's partner (who owned 12.5% of Lombardfin 636 S.p.A.'s stock) up-to-date on the significant news that had occurred while Csopey was out in the field visiting clients and to solicit his partner's ratification of the prior St. Joe transactions and approval for further purchases. After recounting the discussions between himself and Tome, and discussing the possible accuracy of Tome's information in light of Tome's confidential position as a Seagram advisor, Leati suggested even further purchases of St. Joe securities, saying "Let's give it a try."

In these circumstances, Leati's disclosures to Csopey were clearly in furtherance of the illicit association between Tome and Leati.

Csopey's testimony concerning what Leati told him about conversations between Tome and Leati is therefore admissible as "a statement by a coconspirator of a party during the course and in furtherance of the conspiracy." Rule 801(d)(2)(E), Fed.R.Evid.

2. Defendants' Objections To Bronfman's Testimony

[5] Defendants objected to three isolated statements in Bronfman's deposition on relevancy, materiality, and competency grounds. These objections are overruled. The Bronfman deposition, in its entirety, is admissible. Defendants objections are discussed below seriatim, with the underscored portion of the deposition testimony being the portion objected to:

Bronfman Transcript pages 14-15:

Q: Other than the two matters that you mentioned to us earlier, that is to advise on currency and to invest the 10 million dollars on behalf of Seagram, was there any other business or economic relationship between Mr. Tome and Seagram or any of its affiliates that you're aware of?

A: Well, Tome is also a friend of mine, and we see each other a great deal socially and naturally we see each other socially and we talk about a lot of things in a business nature. And I consider him sort of a European consultant to Seagram generally. It's not a formal relationship.

[6] Defendants object to the underscored portion of the testimony on the grounds that it is inappropriate opinion testimony by Bronfman and is inadmissible to prove that Tome was in fact a European consultant to Seagram. The relationship between Tome on the one hand and Bronfman and Seagram on the other, however, goes to the heart of this controversy. Bronfman's, and thus Seagram's, view of the employment and relationship with Tome, and the information disclosed within the parameters of that relationship, is extremely relevant and admissible to determine whether Bronfman and Seagram had an expectation that Tome would keep nonpublic information disclosed to him within the confines of the fiduciary or similar relationship confidential. Dirks v. SEC, 463 U.S. 646, 655 n.14, 103 S.Ct. 3255, 3262 n. 14, 77 L.Ed.2d 911 (1983). Moreover, Bronfman, as Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Seagram, had substantial control over the amount of confidential information disclosed to Tome. Bronfman's understanding of his (and Seagram's) relationship with Tome is therefore helpful in determining the scope of Tome's access to confidential information.

Bronfman Transcript pages 49-50

Q. In connection with this discussion, did you say in words or substance to Mr. Tome that the information you were discussing with him was confidential?

A. No. I didn't think that was necessary.

Q. Because?

A. Management 20 years in this business. He ought to know the rules. I assume he does know the rules.

[7] Defendants object to the underscored portions of the testimony on the grounds that Bronfman cannot testify as to the state of mind of Tome, nor as to what Tome understood his relationship with Seagram and Bronfman to be, since there is no evidence in this passage that Bronfman communicated his confidentiality concerns to Tome. This argument is a spurious one for several reasons. There is direct evidence emanating from Tome that he communicated*637 to Bronfman his understanding that the information Bronfman confided to Tome, solely for the corporate purposes of Seagram, was to be kept confidential. After this suit was filed by the SEC, naming Unknown Purchasers in Switzerland as having engaged in these illegal St. Joe transactions, Bronfman called Tome to make sure he was not involved in the St. Joe trades. Tome responded to Bronfman's inquiry by stating:

You know, I've been in this business [i.e., securities] for 20 years and I know what to do and what not to do. And clearly I certainly didn't do anything.

In addition, the relationship between the management of a corporation and its financial advisors and consultants regarding prospective hostile tender offers is inherently one which implies a duty of confidentiality. See Dirks, 463 U.S. at 655 n. 14, 103 S.Ct. at 3262 n. 14. Moreover, Bronfman's (and therefore Seagram's) understanding of their relationship with Tome is of course relevant because it bears on the expectation of Seagram and Bronfman that the information confided to Tome would be kept confidential. See id. Bronfman Transcript page 93

Q. Why did you call Mr. Tome?

A. I called him because the S.E.C. had initiated this suit and I was concerned that perhaps he had done something. I wanted to make doubly sure he hadn't. Because the only person I knew in Switzerland that would have any knowledge one way or another of anything that was going on, at least for me, was Mr. Tome.

Defendants object to the underscored portion of the testimony on the grounds that it is opinion testimony for which no proper foundation has been laid and that it is irrelevant to prove Tome's knowledge of Seagram's tender offer plans. These objections are overruled. The quoted passage explains Bronfman's motive for calling Tome in Switzerland as soon as Bronfman learned that the SEC had filed suit against Unknown Purchasers who purchased St. Joe securities through BSI, a Swiss bank. It is highly relevant that Bronfman, the person calling the shots in Seagram's search for an acquisition and the person through whom Tome wangled his way into Seagram's affairs, picked up the phone after learning of the suit to ask Tome whether he had done anything improper with the information Bronfman had confided to him. Bronfman's act of telephoning Tome speaks louder than any words could.

3. Defendants' Objections To Certain SEC Exhibits

After trial, both sides submitted additional exhibits into evidence and opposing counsel for each side objected to the other's offer. The SEC's objections to defendants' exhibits are overruled and all exhibits offered by defendants, both at and after trial, are received in evidence and have been reviewed.

[8] The SEC submitted certain exhibits after trial to which the defendants offered only generalized objection.[FN5] One of the objections was that the exhibits (as was other information) were furnished after the Court sessions and while matters that were anticipated but had not been lodged with the Court were forthcoming. In response to the objection, the Court advised defendants' counsel that permission had been granted to supply the data, that exhibits 700, 907, 908, 909, and 913 bore on the issues or contained matter not reasonably controvertible and that "If you or Mr. Schachner have any specific objection to any specific portion of these enumerated exhibits, the Court will entertain them if received within five days of receipt of this letter." No specific objection was presented. These exhibits are received in evidence.

FN5. Exhibits 900, 901, 902, 903, 904, 905, and 906 were received in evidence without objection.

[9] A further dispute arose as to the admissibility of certain trading records. Suffice it to say that the trading records of transactions so far as they refer to transactions in St. Joe call options or stock are received and those records referring to other stocks or transactions in other stocks or 638 options are excluded. Such records of St. Joe items were known to defendants well in advance of trial, data therefrom was incorporated in the agreed findings of fact, and compilations thereof may be received appropriately in evidence under Rules 803(6), (8), (17), and (24), Fed.R.Evid. The remaining exhibits offered by the SEC post-trial are excluded.

So Ordered.

Teresa G. HOOVER, Plaintiff-Appellee,
v.
Dewey W. KNIGHT, Jr., individually, and as interim county manager of Dade County, Florida, et al., Defendants-Appellants.
No. 80-5038.

FN* Former Fifth Circuit case, Section 9(1) of Public Law 96-452-October 14, 1980.
June 14, 1982.

Civil Rights Act suit was brought by former county police officer. The United States District Court for the Southern District of Florida, Wm. M. Hoeveler, J., ordered reinstatement, and defendants appealed. The Court of Appeals, Jones, Circuit Judge, held that failure to postpone administrative hearing pending resolution of related criminal charges, with officer refusing to testify, did not violate the privilege against compelled self-incrimination.

Reversed and remanded.

Judges.

JONES, Circuit Judge:

This action was brought under 42 U.S.C. s 1983 by Teresa G. Hoover, a former police officer of the Dade County, Florida, Public Safety Department. The case was submitted to the district court on stipulated facts. The appellee was employed by the Dade County Public Safety Department as a police officer. On April 15, 1975, she was served with a notice that she was being dismissed as of the close of business on that day. The dismissal was based upon the following asserted violations of the Personnel Rules of Metropolitan Dade County, Florida;

(a) That she had been guilty of conduct unbecoming an employee of the county, whether on or off duty;

(b) That she had violated the provisions of departmental rules; and

(c) That she had violated the Public Safety Department rule which requires that during the course of any investigation within the department, the employee is required to give full, complete, and truthful statements.

Four separate charges were made:(1) An illicit sexual involvement with a 15 year old female;

(2) Use of a narcotic drug with two juveniles;

(3) A conversation wherein the appellee stated to a private citizen that she would entrap him by placing narcotic drugs on his person and then arrest him for possession of those drugs, and

(4) Giving untruthful answers concerning the foregoing.

An administrative appeal was taken by the appellee as authorized by The Code of Metropolitan Dade County and a hearing was held at which the appellee was represented by counsel. At the hearing, appellee's counsel requested a continuance on the ground that criminal charges were pending in the state circuit court which were based upon the same events which gave rise to her dismissal from the county police force. Counsel for the appellee argued that proceeding with the administrative hearing would substantially violate appellee's fifth amendment privilege in that any testimony she might offer at the hearing could subsequently be used against her in the criminal prosecution. The hearing examiner denied the request, and proceeded with the hearing.

Pursuant to the Code of Metropolitan Dade County the hearing examiner submitted his report to the county manager. The report stated, in part:

Conclusions and Recommendations:

In light of the foregoing findings of fact, this hearing examiner has determined that Officer Teresa G. Hoover has violated Chapter VIII, Section 7, Paragraph 1, of the Personnel Rules of Metropolitan Dade County, Florida in that she did engage in conduct unbecoming an employee of the county whether on or off duty. It is also the finding of the undersigned that Officer Hoover violated 580 Chapter IV, Section B, Paragraph 7, of the Public Safety Department Rules and Regulations, in that she gave untruthful answers concerning her knowledge and use of a narcotic drug with two juveniles in her residence.

Individuals charged with the responsibility for enforcing the law must exhibit exemplary personal conduct and be beyond suspicion or reproach. Officer Hoover has failed to meet this standard and has demonstrated conduct unbecoming an employee of Dade County.

It is the recommendation of the undersigned examiner that Officer Teresa Hoover be suspended without pay for a period of ninety days. This examiner is of the opinion that the initial sanction imposed by the Department of Public Safety is too severe in light of all the circumstances heretofore discussed.

The county manager reviewed the findings and recommendations of the hearing examiner and, based on those findings and on the record of the appeal hearing, by letter dated November 20, 1975, confirmed the dismissal of the appellee from the county's employ. The appellee did not seek to have this decision of the county manager reviewed in state court by certiorari, as submitted by the Code of Metropolitan Dade County, Florida. During the week of March 22, 1976, the criminal trial of the appellee was held. At the conclusion of the criminal trial, a jury verdict was returned finding the appellee not guilty on all charges.

By letter dated August 12, 1976, counsel for the appellee requested Dewey W. Knight, Jr., the interim county manager, to reinstate her. The basis of this request was the plaintiff's acquittal in the criminal trial. The interim county manager refused reinstatement, basing the refusal upon his belief that the appellee had received a fair and thorough personnel hearing.

The appellee filed a complaint in which it was alleged that the failure of the hearing examiner to postpone her administrative hearing amounted to an unconstitutional burden upon her right to be free from compelled self-incrimination. The district court agreed, and entered summary judgment for the appellee, holding that the failure of the hearing examiner to postpone the administrative hearing "smacked of an invalid attempt to penalize the exercise of the fifth amendment privilege."This ruling was made notwithstanding the fact that the appellee had, in fact, asserted her fifth amendment privilege and refrained from testifying. The defendants were ordered to reinstate the appellee or retry the charges in a new administrative hearing. The defendants have appealed from this decision.

Before this Court for determination is the question of whether the appellee's fifth amendment privilege against compelled self-incrimination was unconstitutionally impaired by the refusal of the hearing examiner to postpone the administrative hearing pending the outcome of a related criminal prosecution.

[1][2] It has been decided that a state may not impose substantial penalties upon a witness who elects to exercise a fifth amendment privilege against compelled self-incrimination. In Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 17 L.Ed.2d 562 (1967), police officers under investigation were told that if they declined to answer potentially incriminating questions, they would be removed from office, but that any answers which they did give could be used against them in a criminal prosecution. It was held that statements given under such circumstances were involuntary and could not be used to convict the officers. The court has also held that a state may not discharge an employee for the sole reason of his refusal to waive his fifth amendment rights.Gardner v. Broderick, 392 U.S. 273, 88 S.Ct. 1913, 20 L.Ed.2d 1082 (1968); Uniformed Sanitation Men v. Sanitation Commissioner, 392 U.S. 280, 88 S.Ct. 1917, 20 L.Ed.2d 1089 (1968). See also Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, 431 U.S. 801, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977). Furthermore, a state cannot require, as a precondition to obtaining a public contract, the waiver of fifth amendment rights.Lefkowitz v. Turley, 414 U.S. 70, 94 S.Ct. 316, 38 L.Ed.2d 274 (1973). A common thread running through these cases is that "a refusal*581 to waive the fifth amendment privilege, standing alone and without regard to other evidence, resulted in loss of employment or opportunity to contract with the state."Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976). The direct imposition of sanctions against one who asserts the fifth amendment privilege has consistently been held by the Supreme Court to be in violation of the constitution.

As in the instant case, these fifth amendment issues frequently arise when parallel criminal, civil or administrative proceedings are pending. In Luman v. Tanzler, 411 F.2d 164 (5th Cir. 1969), cert. den., 396 U.S. 929, 90 S.Ct. 264, 24 L.Ed.2d 227 (1969), a police officer was suspended from the Jacksonville, Florida, Police Department for conduct prejudicial to the "efficiency, good name and reputation" of the department. Related state criminal charges were thereafter filed against the officer. He sought to have his administrative hearing continued in view of the pending state criminal proceedings. Upon the police department's refusal to postpone the administrative hearing, the officer sought an injunction in federal court. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals held that the police department's refusal to postpone the administrative hearing did not infringe any of the officer's constitutional rights. It was said that "At the administrative hearing (the officer) will have a free choice to admit, deny, or refuse to answer. This is full vindication of the fifth amendment privilege against self-incrimination."Luman v. Tanzler, 411 F.2d at 167.

In Diebold v. Civil Service Commission of St. Louis County, 611 F.2d 697 (8th Cir. 1979), a public employee was dismissed from his job following an arrest for a criminal offense. He was required to defend two related cases simultaneously, one criminal and the other administrative. In deciding that the employee's fifth amendment rights were not infringed as a result of the necessity of having to defend in the two parallel proceedings, the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals stated that "... as long as an employee such as Diebold is not faced with the decision to surrender either his job or his constitutional privilege against self-incrimination, his predicament, no matter how undesirable, does not raise constitutional questions. (citations omitted).... There exists no requirement that (the employee) waive his immunity under the fifth amendment. Nor is there a threat that he will be fired simply for invoking the privilege."(citations omitted).611 F.2d at 700-1. In accord, Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477 (1st Cir. 1977), cert. den., 434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978); DeVita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172 (3rd Cir. 1970).

Many cases have held that parallel criminal and civil trials or investigations do not raise questions of constitutional magnitude with respect to the privilege against self-incrimination. In United States v. White, 589 F.2d 1283 (5th Cir. 1979), a defendant in criminal proceeding contended that being forced to defend in a civil case while criminal charges arising out of the same conduct were pending forced him to choose between preserving his fifth amendment privilege and losing the civil suit. The Court of Appeals stated that "He was not forced to surrender his privilege against self-incrimination in order to prevent a judgment against him; although he may have been denied his most effective defense by remaining silent, there is no indication that invocation of the fifth amendment would have necessarily resulted in an adverse judgment."589 F.2d at 1286. See also, S.E.C. v. Dresser Industries, Inc., 628 F.2d 1368 (D.C.Cir.1980) (en banc), cert. den.449 U.S. 993, 101 S.Ct. 529, 66 L.Ed.2d 289 (1980).

In United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 90 S.Ct. 763, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 (1970) parallel civil and criminal suits were brought against various individual and corporate defendants, alleging violations of the Food, Drug & Cosmetic Act. In discussing these parallel civil and criminal proceedings, brought by the same agency, the Supreme Court stated that, "It would stultify enforcement of federal law to require a governmental agency such as the F.D.A. invariably to choose either to forego recommendation of a criminal prosecution once it seeks civil relief, or to defer civil proceedings pending the ultimate outcome of a criminal trial.

582 "We do not deal here with a case where the government has brought a civil action solely to obtain evidence for its criminal prosecution or has failed to advise the defendant in its civil proceeding that it contemplates his criminal prosecution; nor with a case where the defendant is without counsel or reasonably fears prejudice from adverse pretrial publicity or other unfair injury; ..."(citations omitted).397 U.S. at 11-12, 90 S.Ct. at 769-770.

In light of these precedents, we turn to the facts of this case. The appellee was faced with difficult choices to make regarding the manner of litigating her cases. However, she was not forced to waive her fifth amendment privilege or face an immediate job termination. Cf. Gardner v. Broderick, supra;Uniformed Sanitation Men v. Sanitation Commissioner, supra.She always had the right to assert her constitutional privilege, and did so. It does not appear that the state was unlawfully attempting to gather evidence for its pending criminal prosecution. The appellee was aware that criminal charges were pending against her. She was represented by counsel at all stages of the administrative hearing.

[3][4] The trial court noted that it cannot be ascertained from the record or the hearing examiner's opinion whether an adverse inference was drawn from the appellee's silence.[FN1] However, there is no indication that undue weight was given to her silence. The record indicates that there was direct evidence, some discredited by the hearing examiner, which tended to confirm the appellee's involvement in the alleged misbehavior. As in Baxter v. Palmigiano, supra, the appellee's silence was only one of a number of factors to be considered by the finder of fact.

FN1. We note that the hearing examiner would not be constitutionally forbidden from drawing adverse inferences from an invocation of the privilege against self-incrimination.Baxter v. Palmigiano, supra;Wehling v. Columbia Broadcasting System, 611 F.2d 1026 (5th Cir. 1980).

Finally, it should be noted that the police department had a strong interest in the prompt resolution of the charges against the appellee. Even though she was on suspension and the hearing examiner's discretion might better have been used in granting a continuance, a balancing of the police department's interest in the prompt resolution of the case against the appellee's interest in litigating her cause without risk to her position leads us to conclude that this controversy does not rise to the level of an impermissible burden on the exercise of her constitutional rights.[FN2]

> FN2. The Code of Metropolitan Dade County contemplates that some administrative hearings should be continued pending the outcome of related criminal proceedings. Section 2-47 of the code provides, in part: "All hearings pursuant to this section shall be commenced within sixty (60) days from the time the notice of appeal is received by the personnel director unless the employee requests additional time to prepare his appeal or requests that the hearing be continued pending the outcome of a related criminal proceeding, or requests additional time for other good reason."

We conclude that the district court should not have entered summary judgment for the appellee, and reverse and remand for the entry of judgment in favor of the appellants.

The BOARD OF EDUCATION OF SCHOOL DISTRICT NO. 1, DENVER PUBLIC SCHOOLS, Respondent.
No. 83SC321.

Dec. 9, 1985.
Rehearing Denied Jan. 13, 1986.

Teacher, who was subject of tenured teacher dismissal proceeding, petitioned for review of decision of hearing officer dismissing him. The Court of Appeals, 677 P.2d 348, affirmed teacher's dismissal, and certiorari was granted. The Supreme Court, Dubofsky, J., held that: (1) hearing officer did not abuse discretion by refusing to allow teacher to depose 12 witnesses; (2) hearing officer did not abuse discretion by refusing to allow teacher to depose 12-year-old male elementary student with whom he was alleged to have had improper sexual contact; and (3) hearing officer did not abuse discretion by refusing to allow continuance of proceeding pending outcome of parallel criminal proceedings.

Affirmed.

Neighbors, J., filed opinion dissenting in part and concurring in part.

DUBOFSKY, Justice.

We granted certiorari in Rosenberg v. Board of Education, 677 P.2d 348 (Colo.App.1983), to consider whether a hearing officer in a tenured teacher dismissal proceeding erred in refusing to allow the teacher to take a deposition of the student with whom the teacher was alleged to have had sexual contact and in denying the teacher a continuance to await the outcome of pending criminal charges. The court of appeals, holding that the teacher suffered no prejudice as a result of the hearing officer's denial of requested depositions [FN1] and that the hearing officer's refusal to grant a continuance was a proper exercise of discretion, upheld the teacher's dismissal. We affirm the judgment of the court of appeals.

FN1. The teacher initially requested twelve depositions and asserted to the court of appeals that the hearing officer erred in denying some of the depositions, including the student's deposition. Here, the teacher raises as error only the denial of one of the twelve requested depositions.

On June 13, 1980, the Superintendent of School District 1 in the City and County of Denver, under the provisions of the Teacher Employment, Dismissal, and Tenure Act, section 22-63-117, 9 C.R.S. (1973 & 1985 Supp.), recommended that the Denver Board of Education (school board) accept for review two charges against Lewis L. Rosenberg, a tenured teacher who was assigned to the Program for Pupil Assistance (P.P.A.), a program for students with behavioral problems. The superintendent requested that Rosenberg be dismissed from his employment with the school district for engaging in improper sexual contact with a twelve-year-old male elementary student and for failing to discharge properly his duties and responsibilities as a teacher.

Rosenberg requested a hearing before a hearing officer as provided in section 22-63-117(3).[FN2] After the prehearing conference held on August 19, 1980, the hearing officer issued a prehearing order setting the hearing for September 29 and 30, 1980, and requiring the school board to file a list of witnesses to be produced at the hearing, a brief description of the testimony to be elicited from each witness, and a list of exhibits. The hearing officer also required Rosenberg to submit a list of the persons he wished to depose, a brief statement of the subject or subjects to which each deposition would be directed, and a memorandum concerning his right to take depositions. The school board was to submit its 1097 objections to Rosenberg's request for depositions and a memorandum supporting them.

FN2. Ch. 202, sec. 3, section 22-63-117(3), 1979 Colo.Sess.Laws 800, 801, provides in part:

Such teacher shall be entitled to such a hearing if he files with said secretary a written request therefor within seven days after the date of receipt of the notice. Failure of said teacher to file such written request within said time is a waiver of his right to a hearing.

The general assembly has inserted additional language in this section regarding the teacher's compensation pending the school board's decision. Section 22-63-117(3), 9 C.R.S. (1985 Supp.).

On August 25, 1980, Rosenberg submitted the required memorandum and a list of twelve persons whom he wished to depose.[FN3] On September 11, 1980, after receiving the school board's memorandum and Rosenberg's reply, the hearing officer declined to authorize the taking of oral depositions because their transcription was impracticable given the time restraints.[FN4]

> FN3. Rosenberg requested that he be allowed to depose the victim, the victim's mother, the victim's sister, the school principal, the assistant principal, two teachers, the school nurse, two psychiatrists who had examined the victim, a physician who had examined the victim on May 28, 1980, the day of the second incident, and a social worker assigned to the case.

> FN4. After noting that the teacher had asserted that section 24-4-105(4), 9 C.R.S. (1982) authorized the taking of depositions, the hearing officer ruled:

The hearing officer must note that the deposition procedure set forth in C.R.C.P. 30 is in fact highly impracticable in the context of a hearing conducted pursuant to the Teacher Employment, Dismissal, and Tenure Act (citation omitted).... The hearing officer cannot compel the waiver of [the] time limits in order to accommodate the transcription of the deposition and its submission to the witness for signature pursuant to C.R.C.P. 30. The hearing officer must therefore decline to authorize the taking of the oral depositions in this case.

At the hearing on September 29 and 30, 1980, two teachers testified that on the morning of May 23, 1980, they saw Rosenberg in the P.P.A. classroom rocking the student on his lap. A child's moan came from the room, and Rosenberg and the student exchanged several kisses. Two teachers and a school nurse testified that on May 28, 1980, they saw Rosenberg and the student through the glass window in the door to the P.P.A. classroom, a narrow room that formerly served as a kitchen, silhouetted through a fairly sheer curtain covering a stage opening in a puppet house. The teachers testified that for approximately thirty minutes Rosenberg was rocking the student, the student caressed Rosenberg's face, there was repeated kissing on the lips, and the child moaned. When the principal's assistant unlocked the door and entered the room, the student and the teacher jumped up, and Rosenberg picked up his tie from the floor and put it on. A psychiatric consultant testified that such events would have a detrimental effect on the victim, who was an emotionally disturbed child who had a prior history of either being sexually abused or witnessing overt sexual activity.[FN5] After presenting several witnesses who testified to Rosenberg's compassionate qualities as a teacher and the appropriateness of physical contact with students in improving their self-esteem, Rosenberg's counsel stated that Rosenberg would be his final witness. However, because a criminal action was pending against Rosenberg as a result of statements made by the student, Rosenberg's counsel had advised his client not to testify until after the criminal matter was disposed of on January 5, 1981. Counsel therefore requested a continuance until after that date. Because Rosenberg's counsel could not cite any case law to support his request, the hearing officer denied the motion for a continuance.[FN6] Criminal charges against Rosenberg were dismissed on February 23, 1981, apparently because 1098 the student was deemed incompetent to testify.

> FN5. The school board's psychiatrist testified that the student had a history of behavioral problems including stealing, lying, disruptive behavior, and precocious sexual interest. The teacher was aware of the student's history. The student was enrolled in the P.P.A. program in November, 1979, but by May, 1980, when the incidents in question arose, the student was no longer assigned to the P.P.A. class.

> FN6. The hearing officer questioned Rosenberg's counsel about why no motion for a continuance was made earlier. When the hearing officer learned that counsel had not made the motion earlier because he thought that the statute required a hearing within a specific time and was unaware that the time limit had been waived, the hearing officer ruled:

[A]s I understand the law, however, it is against you.... [I]f there is authority to the contrary you have had ample time to look it up before the middle of the hearing today. Under the circumstances I must deny your motion.

The hearing officer found that Rosenberg had engaged in physical contact with the student that was "carnal in nature and motivation" and "was not designed to further the personal or academic interests" of the student and recommended that Rosenberg be dismissed for immoral conduct. After reviewing the hearing officer's findings of fact and recommendation, the school board dismissed Rosenberg on November 25, 1980.

Rosenberg petitioned for review, arguing that the denial of his request to take depositions of some of the witnesses, including the student, and the denial of his request for a continuance were improper. The court of appeals affirmed Rosenberg's dismissal, holding that Rosenberg suffered no prejudice from the hearing officer's refusal to allow the depositions and that, because of the school system's interest in an expeditious resolution of this case, the hearing officer did not abuse her discretion by refusing to grant a continuance. Rosenberg now alleges that the hearing officer's refusal to allow the student's deposition and refusal to grant a continuance cumulatively constituted an abuse of discretion. We disagree.

I.

Rosenberg contends that Ch. 202, sec. 3, section 22-63-117(6), 1979 Colo. Sess. Laws 800, 802,[FN7] and section 24-4-105(4), 10 C.R.S. (1982), permit the taking of depositions in teacher dismissal proceedings. Section 22-63-117(6) provides in part: "The hearing officer may receive or reject evidence and testimony, administer oaths, and, if necessary, subpoena witnesses.... The hearing officer may ... do all other acts normally performed by an administrative hearing officer." In addition to providing the hearing officer with enumerated powers, section 24-4-105(4) permits the hearing officer to "take any other action authorized by agency rule consistent with this article or in accordance, to the extent practicable, with the procedure in district courts." C.R.C.P. 26 through 37 authorize comprehensive pretrial discovery, including depositions, "to facilitate the simplification of issues and avoid surprises at trial." Ricci v. Davis, 627 P.2d 1111, 1122 (Colo.1981).

FN7. Section 22-63-117(6) was amended by section 22-63-117(6), 9 C.R.S. (1985 Supp.). The amendment is irrelevant to the issue before us.

Commentators support the use of discovery in administrative proceedings, including the limited use of depositions, although granting or denying the use of depositions is within the discretion of the hearing officer. See 3 K. Davis, Administrative Law Treatise § 14.8, at 35-38 (2d ed. 1980); 1 C. Koch, Administrative Law and Practice §§ 5.42, 5.44, at 389, 391 (1985); Tomlinson, Discovery in Agency Adjudication, 1971 Duke L.J. 89, 103-09, 143-44;[FN8] see also Shively v. Stewart, 65 Cal.2d 475, 421 P.2d 65, 55 Cal.Rptr. 217 (1966). After Rosenberg's hearing, this court held in Ricci, 627 P.2d at 1122, that depositions are permitted in administrative hearings but that the decision to allow depositions is within the discretion of the hearing officer.

FN8. Tomlinson recommends the limited use of depositions in order to prevent surprise based on the following conditions: (1) usually only after prehearing conference; (2) only through the presiding officer; (3) notice and opportunity to object to other parties; (4) presiding officer should not permit deposition to cause delay; (5) presiding officer should assure that good cause does not exist for not using depositions; and (6) no deposition of agency employees unless it is "seeking significant unprivileged information not discoverable by alternative means."

1 C. Koch, supra p. 6, at 391, citing Tomlinson, supra p. 6, § 5.44, at 103-09, 143-44.

[1][2] Because it was within the discretion of the hearing officer to allow discovery and because Rosenberg does not allege a deprivation of due process, our review is limited to whether the hearing officer's refusal to allow depositions was an abuse of discretion. A hearing officer's decision will not be reversed as an abuse of discretion unless, given the totality of the factual circumstances at the time of the decision, the hearing officer's decision exceeded1099 the bounds of reason. Bennett v. Price, 167 Colo. 168, 172-73, 446 P.2d 419, 421 (1968). In addition, because this court's inquiry is limited to the record, the record should clearly show such an abuse of discretion. Board of Adjustment v. Handley, 105 Colo. 180, 188, 95 P.2d 823, 826 (1939). In considering whether there has been an abuse of discretion, courts may consider whether the hearing officer misconstrued the law and whether the

[3] Rosenberg alleges that the hearing officer failed to exercise discretion because she misconstrued both law and fact. Rosenberg argues that the hearing officer felt compelled to deny the taking of the depositions because of time limitations in section 22-63-117(5)[FN9] and therefore did not apply discretion to resolve the deposition question. We determine that the hearing officer did exercise discretion in denying the taking of twelve depositions. The hearing officer's order makes it clear that the request to take the depositions was denied not only because the hearing officer felt she could not compel further waiver of the time limits, but also because the parties had agreed to the hearing date, and it was impracticable in view of the time constraints to allow the taking of twelve depositions and their transcription. There is no indication other than the hearing officer's colloquial use of the word "must" to indicate that the hearing officer felt herself compelled to decline the request for the depositions. See note 4, supra. The impracticability of taking and transcribing twelve depositions is a valid consideration in exercising discretion regarding the taking of depositions. See § 24-4-105(4); cf. South Dakota Trucking Ass'n, 305 N.W.2d at 686-87.

> FN9. In the order denying Rosenberg's request for twelve depositions, the hearing officer noted that the right "to grant continuances is specifically subordinated to the time limitations set forth in C.R.S.1973, 22-63-117(5), as amended." In fact, in September 1980 the only time limitations were a requirement that the hearing be held later than twenty-five days after the hearing officer was selected, Ch. 202, sec. 3, § 22-63-117(5), 1979 Colo.Sess.Laws 800, 802, and a requirement that the hearing officer make findings within thirty days of the officer's selection, Ch. 202, sec. 3, § 22-63-117(8), 1979 Colo.Sess.Laws 800, 802. The interrelationship of the time limits in subsections (5) and (8) gave the hearing officer five days to conduct the hearing and make findings. The parties to the proceeding before us waived the time restriction in subsection (8) at the prehearing conference. The statute has since been amended to require a hearing within 30 days of the officer's selection and to require that the findings of fact be adopted by the hearing officer within 30 days after the hearing. Section 22-63-117(5) and (8), 9 C.R.S. (1985 Supp.).

[4][5] Given the totality of the circumstances at the time Rosenberg requested the twelve depositions, we cannot say that the hearing officer's decision "exceed[ed] the bounds of reason." Bennett, 167 Colo. at 172, 446 P.2d at 421. In some cases fairness may require the production of records and the deposition of key witnesses, especially where a significant part of the case consists of sworn testimony from a few witnesses. See La Petite Auberge, Inc. v. Rhode Island Comm'n for Human Rights, 419 A.2d 274, 280-82 (R.I.1980). Depositions serve to prevent the unfairness that accompanies surprise. See Interboro Contractors, 432 F.2d at 860-61; La Petite Auberge, 419 A.2d at 282. In this case, however, Rosenberg was provided with a list of the school board's witnesses, a brief description of the testimony to be elicited from each, and a list of the school board's exhibits, including all the school and medical records of the student, all eyewitness statements, and reports on what the student said. The school board's witness list included six of the twelve people Rosenberg wanted to depose.

[6] Although Rosenberg originally requested twelve depositions, he now claims that only the denial of the student's deposition1100 was an abuse of discretion. Rosenberg has failed, however, to show that any prejudice resulted from the hearing officer's refusal to let him depose the student. Cf. Ricci, 627 P.2d at 1122 (due process right to deposition not infringed unless there is a showing of prejudice); McClelland v. Andrus, 606 F.2d 1278, 1286 (D.C.Cir.1979) (due process requires discovery if refusal would prejudice party); Interboro Contractors, 432 F.2d at 860 (no abuse of discretion if no showing of prejudice through admission of unforeseeable evidence or denial of cross-examination).

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

The student was not listed as a witness by the school district, and the student did not testify at the hearing. Indeed, at the time the hearing officer denied Rosenberg's request for depositions, the student was listed as a potential witness for the teacher. At the time the hearing officer denied the deposition request, she had no evidence concerning the student's emotional problems that might lead her to believe there would be difficulties interviewing the student or subpoenaing the student to testify. Given the totality of the circumstances, the hearing officer's refusal to allow Rosenberg to depose the student was not an abuse of discretion.

II.

The teacher also asserts that the failure of the hearing officer to permit a continuance created an intolerable tension between his right to testify in his own behalf at the dismissal hearing and his constitutional right to remain silent pending criminal charges. A hearing officer "may order a continuance" subject to section 22-63-117(5). Ch. 202, sec. 3, § 22-63-117(6), 1979 Colo.Sess.Laws 800, 802.[FN10] The word "may" in the statute makes it clear that it was within the hearing officer's discretion in this case to grant a continuance. See also Pickholz, Excerpt from Parallel Civil Cases in Global Settlements, in Parallel Grand Jury and Administrative Agency Investigations 950-53 (1981); Wilson and Matz, Obtaining Evidence for Federal Economic Crime Prosecutions: An Overview and Analysis of Investigative Methods, 14 Am.Crim.L.Rev. 651, 703-07 (1977).

FN10. Section 22-63-117(6) provides in part:

The hearing officer may order a continuance subject to subsection (5) of this section.

The general assembly has modified this language. Section 22-63-117(6), 9 C.R.S. (1985 Supp.). This section now requires that no continuance may be granted absent "a clear showing of good cause" and that the hearing officer make "[s]pecific findings of fact" when a continuance is granted.

Ch. 202, sec. 3, section 22-63-117(5), 1979 Colo.Sess.Laws 800, 801-02, provides in part:

Promptly after his selection, the hearing officer shall give the teacher at least seven days' written notice of the hearing, including the place and time therefor but in no event shall such hearing be held less than twenty-five days after the selection of the hearing officer.

The general assembly has modified this language. Section 22-63-117(5), 9 C.R.S. (1985 Supp.). See note 9, supra.

[7][8][9] Rosenberg does not assert here that the hearing officer's denial of a continuance pending the outcome of criminal charges violated his constitutional rights;[FN11] 1101 rather, he asserts that in creating a tension between his right to testify on his own behalf at the administrative hearing and his right not to provide evidence for a criminal proceeding, the denial of a continuance constituted an abuse of discretion, especially when considered with the hearing officer's refusal to allow the depositions.

FN11. There is no right to a continuance of administrative proceedings pending the outcome of parallel criminal proceedings. In United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 9-11, 90 S.Ct. 763, 768-769, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 (1970), because of the great public interest in protecting the public from mislabeled drugs, the Supreme Court affirmed the denial of a stay of civil discovery even though no one in the drug manufacturing corporation could respond without self incrimination. Several courts have determined that it is not repugnant to due process to give the party subject to discipline hearings the choice between giving testimony at disciplinary proceedings and keeping silent when there is a strong public interest in disciplining public employees or doctors. Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477 (1st Cir.1977), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978); Giampa v. Illinois Civil Serv. Comm'n, 89 Ill.App.3d 606, 44 Ill.Dec. 744, 411 N.E.2d 1110 (1980); Flickinger v. Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, 75 Pa.Commw. 84, 461 A.2d 336 (1983); Herberg v. State Board of Medical Educ. and Licensure, 65 Pa.Commw. 358, 442 A.2d 411 (1982). Courts generally have refused to find a fifth amendment violation when, as in this case, the refusal to testify does not automatically lead to sanctions. Wimmer v. Lehman, 705 F.2d 1402 (4th Cir.), cert. denied, 464 U.S. 992, 104 S.Ct. 484, 78 L.Ed.2d 681 (1983); Hoover v. Knight, 678 F.2d 578 (5th Cir.1982);

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

Diebold v. Civil Serv. Comm'n, 611 F.2d 697 (8th Cir.1979); United States v. Rilliet, 595 F.2d 1138 (9th Cir.1979); cf. Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976) (an adverse inference may be drawn from one's silence in a civil proceeding). A party's due process rights are violated, however, if his testimony in a criminal proceeding is burdened by the possibility that the prosecution may use his testimony against him in an habitual criminal proceeding, People v. Chavez, 621 P.2d 1362 (Colo.), cert. denied, 451 U.S. 1028, 101 S.Ct. 3019, 69 L.Ed.2d 398 (1981), or if he is denied a lawyer in a student disciplinary hearing when criminal charges are pending. Gabrilowitz v. Newman, 582 F.2d 100 (1st Cir.1978).

Courts have used a variety of considerations to determine whether civil or administrative proceedings should be stayed pending criminal proceedings. In Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U.S. 20, 52, 33 S.Ct. 9, 16, 57 L.Ed. 107 (1912), the United States Supreme Court upheld a lower court's refusal to delay civil proceedings under the Sherman Act because a rule requiring delay "might result in injustice or take from the statute a great deal of its power ... [and] would compel the postponement of the enforcement of the civil remedies until the exhaustion of criminal prosecutions or their expiration by lapse of time." Other courts have engaged in balancing tests in which they weigh the employer's interest in a prompt resolution of the case against the employee's interest in proceeding without risk. Hoover v. Knight, 678 F.2d 578, 582 (5th Cir.1982); Lang v. Lee, 639 S.W.2d 111, 114 (Mo.Ct.App.1982). Rosenberg suggests that we apply the factors outlined in In re Mid-Atlantic Toyota Anti-Trust Litigation, 92 F.R.D. 358, 359 (D.Md.1981), to determine whether the hearing officer's refusal of a continuance was an abuse of discretion: "(1) the interest of the plaintiff in proceeding expeditiously with the civil action as balanced against the prejudice to the plaintiffs [from] delay; (2) the burden on [the] defendants; (3) the convenience to the courts; (4) the interest of persons not parties to the civil litigation; and (5) the public interest." The Mid-Atlantic Toyota court refused a stay because it found that the plaintiffs would be prejudiced when their witnesses' memories faded or the witnesses were not available, and that the defendant would not be prejudiced because there were no criminal charges pending, self-incrimination does not apply to a corporation, someone in the company could respond to discovery, and the civil proceedings were not used to obtain evidence for a criminal trial. Id. at 359-60.

[10] In this case the school board could be prejudiced by the failure of witnesses' memories or the witnesses' unavailability if it became necessary to recall them to testify. Although the teacher here had criminal charges pending and no one else could testify in his stead, the public and the school board had a strong interest in expeditiously concluding the proceedings, and there is no indication that the civil proceedings were initiated to obtain evidence for the criminal trial. Moreover, Rosenberg waited until after the presentation of all the evidence to request a continuance. Granting a continuance at that point could result in the presentation of conflicting evidence months or perhaps years apart. Rosenberg's diligence in requesting a stay also should be considered in deciding whether the denial of that stay is an abuse of discretion. Even though Rosenberg agreed to forego pay during the period of the continuance, his request for a delay would impair the board's interest in prompt discipline of its teachers. Cf. Flickinger v. Commonwealth, 75 Pa.Commw. 84, 461 A.2d 336, 338 (1983); Herberg v. State Board of Medical Educ. and Licensure, 65 Pa.Commw. 358, 442 A.2d 411, 413 (1982). Accordingly, we hold that the hearing officer acted within the appropriate limits of her discretion in denying Rosenberg's requested continuance.[FN12]

FN12. Rosenberg refers to two cases in which courts found that stays should be granted, but these cases are distinguishable. Wehling v. Columbia Broadcasting System, 608 F.2d 1084 (5th Cir.1979), reh'g denied per curiam, 611 F.2d 1026 (1980) (automatic dismissal of libel case too severe a penalty for invoking the fifth amendment during oral depositions because of federal grand jury subpoena); Ott v. Board of Education, 160 N.J.Super. 333, 389 A.2d 1001 (App.Div.), certification denied, 78 N.J. 336, 395 A.2d 204 (1978) (court used equitable powers to stay hearing after school board requested teacher's sworn statement regarding charges against him).

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

1102 Taken separately, neither the denial of the request to take the student's deposition nor the denial of a continuance constituted an abuse of discretion. Considered together, given the facts that at the time the hearing officer ruled twelve depositions were requested and that the request for a continuance was not made until the close of evidence, the hearing officer's rulings did not exceed the bounds of reason.

Judgment affirmed.

NEIGHBORS, J., dissents in part and concurs in part.NEIGHBORS, Justice, dissenting in part and concurring in part:

I agree that the legal principles set forth in section I of the court's opinion are those pertinent here. However, I disagree with the application of those standards to the facts of this case and, therefore, respectfully dissent to that part of the opinion.

The deposition issue presented by the teacher and upon which we granted certiorari review is a narrow one: Whether the hearing officer abused her discretion in refusing to allow the teacher to take the deposition of the student with whom the teacher was alleged to have had sexual contact. In denying the teacher's request to depose twelve potential witnesses, including the student, the hearing officer stated:

The hearing officer must note that the deposition procedures set forth in C.R.C.P. 30 is in fact highly impracticable in the context of a hearing conducted pursuant to the Teacher Employment, Dismissal, and Tenure Act, C.R.S. 1973, 22-63-101, et seq., as amended. The right of the hearing officer to grant continuances is specifically subordinated to the time limitations set forth in C.R.S. 1973, 22-63-117(5), as amended. The hearing officer cannot compel the waiver of these time limits in order to accommodate the transcription of a deposition and its submission to the witness for signature pursuant to C.R.C.P. 30. The hearing officer must therefore decline to authorize the taking of oral depositions in this action.

This rationale is seriously flawed in view of the fact that the time requirements were waived by the parties. In her prehearing order, the hearing officer stated:Upon the ruling of hearing officer Lynn Davidson that the provisions of C.R.S. 1973, 22-63-117, as amended, concerning the holding of hearing within 25 days and adoption of findings within 30 days of the selection of the hearing officer, are waivable through the mutual agreement of the parties, it was so agreed that the provisions be waived.

Thus, the hearing officer abused her discretion by relying on time limitations which had been waived as a basis for denying the discovery deposition sought by the teacher.

Moreover, the teacher was prejudiced by the denial of his request to take the deposition of the student. The only testimony at the dismissal hearing concerning the alleged sexual contact was given by teachers who observed "silhouettes" of the teacher and the student. There was no testimony from either of the participants to the alleged misconduct. The teacher could not testify without waiving his privilege against self-incrimination. The student was not called to testify. The board contends that the teacher was not prejudiced because he could have called the student and, in fact, had listed him as a possible witness. This argument has little merit when one reviews the record. The student clearly was suffering from serious emotional problems and was continually lying and fabricating stories. Obviously, in these circumstances, no reasonable and competent attorney would have called the 1103 student as a witness without first deposing him for the purpose of evaluating his potential testimony. In my view, the denial of the deposition request constitutes a serious abuse of discretion which prejudiced the substantial rights of the teacher. Therefore, I would reverse the judgment of the court of appeals.

LEBANON SCHOOL DISTRICT.
No. 87-5862.

Submitted Pursuant to Third Circuit Rule 12(6) May 6, 1988.
Decided May 27, 1988.

School district maintenance employee who had been discharged brought civil rights action alleging violation of his Fifth and Fourteenth Amendment rights, based on school board's refusal to continue hearing on whether dismissal was warranted by conduct involving student until after resolution of criminal charges of assault and corruption of minor arising out of same incidents and on failure to grant employee testimonial immunity or guarantee his evidence would not be used against him. On former employee's summary judgment motion, the United States District Court for the Middle District of Pennsylvania, 673 F.Supp. 147, William W. Caldwell, J., entered judgment for school district, and employee appealed. The Court of Appeals, Greenberg, Circuit Judge, held that right against self-incrimination of employee was not infringed by failure to offer employee immunity if he testified at hearing before school board.

Affirmed.

GREENBERG, Circuit Judges.

*45 OPINION OF THE COURT

GREENBERG, Circuit Judge.

Plaintiff Robert Peiffer appeals from an order entered on November 9, 1987 granting summary judgment to defendant Lebanon School District dismissing this action.[FN1]

> FN1. Our standard of review in this case involving a summary judgment motion is plenary. Koshatka v. Philadelphia Newspapers, Inc., 762 F.2d 329, 333 (3d Cir.1985).

The facts germane to this appeal are not in dispute. As a result of allegations made against him by a student, on April 22, 1987 Peiffer, a maintenance employee of the school district working at a junior high school, was questioned by a Lebanon Police Detective, Russel Miller, regarding possible acts of sexual misconduct and the display of pornographic materials. On the same day he was suspended with pay by the school district and two days later was charged with assault on and the corruption of the minor. On or about May 18, 1987 Peiffer was notified by the school administration that as a result of the incidents with the student there would be a hearing before the school board which could result in his dismissal.

At the hearing of May 28, 1987 Peiffer appeared with an attorney, Timothy D. Sheffey. The school board and school administration were represented by separate attorneys, with the administration attorney presenting the case. Sheffey objected to the hearing being held but was advised by the school board attorney that it would go forward and that he could cross-examine witnesses against his client and present witnesses himself. Sheffey then argued that the proceedings were not being conducted in accordance with state law. He also pointed out that the criminal charges were pending and argued that if Peiffer was to defend himself he would have to testify and give evidence that could be used against him at a criminal trial even though he had a privilege not to incriminate himself. Thus, Sheffey asked that the hearing be postponed until after resolution of the criminal matter. He also said that Peiffer would not participate in the hearing. After Sheffey's objections were overruled, he and Peiffer left the hearing which was then completed without them.

At the hearing William D. Starr, the superintendent of schools, testified as to his conversations with Peiffer regarding the student which supported the allegations of misconduct. Specifically, Peiffer admitted to some misconduct and to making pornographic materials available to the student, but did not admit that his conduct was intended to have a sexual dimension. In addition, Detective Miller testified that he recovered certain materials apparently owned by Peiffer at the school. They are reprinted in the record and may be regarded as obscene.

After the receipt of the evidence, the attorney representing the administration argued in summation that because of Peiffer's conduct with the student and his display of the materials he should be discharged. The board then adopted a motion unanimously discharging him. On June 8, 1987 the dismissal was made formal by the board at a public meeting. There is no suggestion in the record that Peiffer was discharged because he failed to testify or refused to waive his privilege against self-incrimination or even that any inference was drawn against him because he did not testify.

Peiffer subsequently brought this action in the district court. In his complaint, after setting forth the background of the case, Peiffer alleged that the attorney representing him in the criminal case forbid him from testifying at the May 28, 1987 hearing because his testimony could be used against him. He also indicated that he unsuccessfully requested a continuance of the hearing. He further asserted that the board did not grant him testimonial immunity or guarantee that his evidence would not be used against him nor did any police officer or prosecuting official. He set forth that he was discharged "based upon the allegations of conduct which were the same allegations providing the basis for the pending criminal proceedings against" him. He charged his rights under the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments had *46 been violated. Peiffer sought reinstatement and damages.[FN2]

> FN2. Peiffer was later found not guilty of the criminal charges.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

Judge Caldwell decided the matter in a comprehensive opinion reported at 673 F.Supp. 147 (M.D.Pa.1987). He held that Peiffer's Fifth Amendment rights were not violated as he did not testify. Thus Peiffer really was complaining about the "chilling effect" on the exercise of his constitutional rights as in Peiffer's view the board had "imposed upon him an impermissible choice between constitutional rights-his right to protect his job, and his right to remain silent in the face of criminal charges." Id. at 149. The judge pointed out, however, that the board discharged Peiffer for the conduct described in the allegations against him and thus he was not terminated because he asserted his constitutional rights. Id. at 150. Indeed the judge noted that there was no indication that the board drew any inferences from Peiffer's failure to testify. Further his procedural rights were protected as he was given a full opportunity to participate in the hearing with or without counsel. Ibid. Judge Caldwell also held that Peiffer did not have a due process right to a continuance of the hearing until the criminal trial was completed and that there was nothing unreasonable in the decision reached on the merits at the hearing. Id. at 150-51. Judgment in favor of the district was entered on November 9, 1987.

[1][2] On this appeal Peiffer contends, as set forth in his complaint, that the school district violated his Fifth Amendment privileges by failing to offer him immunity if he testified at the May 28, 1987 hearing. Thus in his view he was faced "with an unconstitutional choice between remaining silent or retaining his employment." [FN3] We, however, reject this contention. It is, of course, clear that there was no constitutional requirement that the board grant him a postponement of the hearing pending disposition of the criminal charges. See Afro-Lecon, Inc. v. United States, 820 F.2d 1198, 1202 (Fed.Cir.1987); Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477 (1st Cir.1977), *cert. denied,*434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978); De Vita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172, 1181 (3d Cir.1970). Nevertheless the board did not compel Peiffer to testify as it did not threaten him with a penalty if he refused to relinquish his privilege against self-incrimination. See Minnesota v. Murphy, 465 U.S. 420, 434-35, 104 S.Ct. 1136, 1146, 79 L.Ed.2d 409 (1984).[FN4] Accordingly, if Peiffer had testified he would have done so voluntarily. Therefore rather than being a case in which a public employee or contractor has been penalized for asserting his Fifth Amendment privileges (see, e.g., Lefkowitz v. Turley, 414 U.S. 70, 94 S.Ct. 316, 38 L.Ed.2d 274 (1973)), the situation here is simply that Peiffer did not rebut evidence constituting grounds for his dismissal. Thus, we hold that his privileges were not infringed. See Williams v. Florida, 399 U.S. 78, 84, 90 S.Ct. 1893, 1897, 26 L.Ed.2d 446 (1970) ("That the defendant faces such a dilemma demanding a choice between complete silence and presenting a defense has never been thought an invasion of the privilege against compelled self-incrimination."). See also United States v. Babich, 785 F.2d 415 (3d Cir.1986), cert. denied,--- U.S. ----, 107 S.Ct. 123, 93 L.Ed.2d 69 (1986). Our result is not changed by the circumstance that Peiffer's choice as to how to proceed at the hearing could have impacted on the later criminal proceeding. Gniotek v. City of Philadelphia, 808 F.2d 241, 245 (3d Cir.1986), cert. denied,--- U.S. ----, 107 S.Ct. 2183, 95 L.Ed.2d 839 (1987).

FN3. Peiffer supplies us with no citation to Pennsylvania law authorizing the district to grant him immunity. But see Uniformed Sanitation Men Ass'n v. Commissioner of Sanitation, 426 F.2d 619, 626-27 (2d Cir.1970), *cert. denied,*406 U.S. 961, 92 S.Ct. 2055, 32 L.Ed.2d 349 (1972).

FN4. Inasmuch as no inference was drawn by reason of Peiffer's failure to testify the question of whether it could have been is not before us. See Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d at 478.

In view of the foregoing Peiffer was not entitled to an offer of immunity for any testimony that he might have given at the hearing for a grant of immunity need be no broader than the right a witness who is *47 compelled to testify would otherwise have under the privilege against self-incrimination. United States v. Apfelbaum, 445 U.S. 115, 122-23, 100 S.Ct. 948, 953, 63 L.Ed.2d 250 (1980); Gniotek v. City of Philadelphia, 808 F.2d at 245 n. 6. As the school district did not compel any testimony Peiffer's Fifth Amendment privileges were not implicated and accordingly he was not entitled to a grant of immunity. In the circumstances, the order of November 9, 1987 will be affirmed.

Herberg v. Com., State Bd. of Medical Ed. and Licensure
Pa.Cmwlth., 1982.

Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania.
James P. HERBERG, M.D., Petitioner,
v.
COMMONWEALTH of Pennsylvania, STATE BOARD OF MEDICAL EDUCATION AND LICENSURE, Respondent.
Argued Feb. 5, 1982.
Decided March 17, 1982.

Petition was filed for review of decision of State Board of Medical Education and Licensure affirming hearing examiner's order revoking petitioner's medical license as a consequence of guilty pleas to felony drug sale charges. The Commonwealth Court, No. 598 C.D.1981, Craig, J., held that: (1) even assuming that petitioner, who allegedly had drug dependency problems was no longer dangerous to his patients, revocation could be upheld in the public interest; (2) an admission of guilt, such as guilty pleas, constitutes a conviction and justifies revocation notwithstanding that guilty pleas remain subject to motions for leave to withdraw; and (3) petitioner's constitutional rights were not violated when, in anticipation of future criminal proceedings, he invoked his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination before the hearing examiner.

An admission of guilt, such as guilty plea to felony drug sale charges, constitutes a "conviction" for purpose of medical license suspension or revocation and if a conviction is overturned on appeal the practitioner then may initiate proceedings to have his license reinstated, and revocation is not premature on ground that guilty pleas remain subject to motions for leave to withdraw. 63 P.S. § 421.15(a)(3).

(Formerly 299k11.3(5) Physicians and Surgeons) State's Board of Medical Education and Licensure did not abuse its discretion in not admitting additional evidence that allegedly would have established that medical practitioner, whose license was sought to be suspended or revoked, had achieved control over his own drug dependency, enabling him to practice medicine safely, as licensing statute imposes no requirement that Board hear additional evidence in reviewing hearing examiner's decision and record revealed that practitioner was given a full opportunity to present evidence and legal argument before the examiner. 40 P.S. § 1301.905 et seq., 63 P.S. § 421.15(a)(3).

Before BLATT, WILLIAMS and CRAIG, JJ.

CRAIG, Judge.

Petitioner James P. Herberg, M.D., appeals from a decision of the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure, which affirmed an order of a hearing examiner of the Commission of Professional and Occupational Affairs, revoking petitioner's medical license under Section 15(a)(3) of the Medical Practice Act,[FN1] as a consequence of petitioner's guilty pleas to felony 360 drug sale charges in Centre County, Juniata County and Dauphin County, Pennsylvania.

> FN1. Act of July 20, 1974, P.L. 551, as amended, 63 P.S. s 421.15(a)(3).

Petitioner's first contention is that the hearing examiner revoked petitioner's license principally for deterrent purposes, disregarding substantial evidence that petitioner had become rehabilitated and is capable of practicing medicine without endangering his patients or the public.

(1) Even assuming that petitioner no longer is dangerous to his patients, this court has stated:

(T)he public interest served by a license suspension or revocation is not limited to the protection of patients. Equally important to the public interest is the necessity for regulation and discipline of the profession to prevent such unauthorized medical practices in the future.Ullo v. State Board of Nurse Examiners, 41 Pa. Commonwealth Ct. 204, 208, 398 A.2d 764, 766 (1979).

Petitioner next contends that his due process rights under the Fourteenth Amendment and Fifth Amendment of the United States Constitution were violated *413 because (1) the revocation of his license was premature in that his guilty pleas, on which the proceedings were predicated, remained subject to petitioner's motions for leave to withdraw,[FN2] and (2) petitioner was hindered in presenting his defense before the hearing examiner because he had invoked his constitutional privilege against self-incrimination to avoid giving testimony which might later be used in a criminal prosecution.

> FN2. Petitioner's motion for leave to withdraw guilty pleas has subsequently been denied by the Courts of Common Pleas of Juniata and Centre Counties. Petitioner was later tried and convicted on the charge pending in the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County.

(2) Recently, in 361Zimmerman v. State Board of Medical Education and Licensure, 55 Pa. Commonwealth Ct. 74, 423 A.2d 34 (1980), this court considered a similar challenge by a physician who, after being convicted of a felony, also had his license revoked under the same Section 15(a)(3) of the Act, which states:

(a) The board shall have authority to refuse, revoke or suspend the license of a physician for any or all of the following reasons:

(3) Being convicted of a felony in the courts of this Commonwealth or any other state, territory or country. Conviction as used in this paragraph shall include a finding or verdict of guilty, an admission of guilt or a plea of nolo contendere.63 P.S. s 421.15(a)(3).

We said:

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

For the purpose of Section 15(a)(3) 'conviction' is thus specifically defined to include a verdict of guilt. The legislature, by its language, indicates that it contemplated the various meanings 'convictions' could have, and decided that a verdict alone should suffice to constitute a conviction.Zimmerman, 55 Pa. Commonwealth Ct. at 76, 423 A.2d at 35.

Likewise, under the statute, an admission of guilt-such as the guilty pleas here-constitutes a conviction, and justifies the board's revocation of petitioner's license. If petitioner's felony conviction is overturned on appeal, petitioner may then initiate proceedings to have his license reinstated.Id. at 77, 423 A.2d at 36.

(3) Also, we reject petitioner's assertion that his constitutional rights were violated when, in anticipation of future criminal proceedings, he invoked his Fifth 362 Amendment privilege against self-incrimination in his testimony before the hearing examiner. Although petitioner has cited no authority, nor has our research uncovered a Pennsylvania decision on point, we are persuaded by the reasoning in Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477, 478-9 (1st Cir. 1977), that:

(T)here (is nothing) inherently repugnant to due process in requiring the doctor to choose between giving testimony at the disciplinary hearing, a course that may help the criminal prosecutors, and keeping silent, a course that may lead to the loss of his license.

Arthurs recognized the "strong public interest in promptly disciplining errant physicians taken as a class," and concluded that, absent a finding that a physician was forced to testify against himself, a medical disciplinary board was not constitutionally required to stay its proceedings until the criminal prosecutions against the doctor were over.[FN3]Id. at 480.

> FN3. See Flint v. Mullen, 499 F.2d 100 (1st Cir. 1974), where a court held that a state prisoner was not denied due process rights where, subsequent to his indictment for robbery, but before trial, he had to appear before an administrative body that was considering his alleged violation of a deferred sentencing agreement. The court explained that:
> (T)he government had to prove its case by extrinsic evidence and there is no indication that defendant was penalized for silence except to the degree that anyone who claims the privilege may be said to forego the possibility of persuading a court in his favor.Id. at 103.

(4) Finally, the petitioner contends that the board abused its discretion in not admitting additional evidence that, allegedly, would have established that the petitioner has now achieved control over his own drug dependence, enabling him to practice medicine*414 safely. However, section 905 of the Health Care Services Malpractice363 Act [FN4] imposes no requirement that the board hear additional evidence in reviewing a hearing examiner's decision. The record reveals that petitioner was given a full opportunity to present evidence and legal arguments before the examiner.

> (a) If the Application for Review is made to the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure, ... within twenty days from the date of any decision made as a result of a hearing held by a hearing examiner, the State Board of Medical Education and Licensure, ... shall review the evidence, and if deemed advisable by the board, hear argument and additional evidence.

Accordingly, we affirm the decision of the board.

Psi Upsilon of Philadelphia v. University of Pennsylvania

Superior Court of Pennsylvania.
The PSI UPSILON OF PHILADELPHIA and PSI Upsilon Fraternity Tau Chapter, Appellants, v.
The UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA and Kim M. Morrisson.
Argued March 14, 1991.
Decided May 16, 1991.

Fraternity sought preliminary injunction to enjoin university and vice provost from enforcing sanctions imposed on the fraternity following mistaken kidnapping and terrorizing of nonmember as part of the "hazing" process. Preliminary injunction was denied by the Court of Common Pleas, Philadelphia County, Civil Division, No. 7668 April T., 1990, Dellaporta, J., and fraternity appealed. The Superior Court, No. 02244 Philadelphia 1990, Montemuro, J., held that: (1) fraternity was not denied notice or opportunity to be heard despite contention that language relating to "collective responsibility" contained in fraternity's recognition contract and statement of charges was ambiguous or vague and overbroad; (2) fraternity was not denied due process on ground that certain members, against whom criminal charges were pending, invoked privilege against self-incrimination; (3) alleged bias on part of hearing board members was not sufficient to vitiate due process; (4) assertion that sanctions were too severe did not establish basis for relief in courts; and (5) imposing sanctions on fraternity under theory of "collective responsibility" did not abridge constitutional rights of association, assembly and free speech.

Imposing sanctions on fraternity under theory of "collective responsibility" did not abridge fraternity members' constitutional rights of association, assembly and free speech; fraternity was signatory to a recognition policy which established responsibility of fraternity as an entity for acts of its members, sanctions were imposed only on the fraternity as an entity by withdrawing university recognition, and no limitations were placed on its continued operation outside the university. *757*607John F. Ledwith, Philadelphia, for appellants.
Frank A. Roth, Philadelphia, for appellees.

Before MONTEMURO, JOHNSON and HESTER, JJ.

MONTEMURO, Judge:

This appeal arises from an order of the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas which denied appellants' request for a preliminary injunction. Appellants filed a complaint in equity seeking injunctive relief to enjoin appellees, the University of Pennsylvania and Kim M. Morrison, Vice Provost for University Life, from enforcing certain sanctions imposed by the University. Following the issuance of a temporary restraining order, a full evidentiary hearing was held and appellants' requested relief was denied. This appeal follows.

Psi Upsilon is a social fraternal organization, which at all times prior to May 1, 1990, was a recognized residential fraternity as defined by the University's Policy on Recognition and Governance of Undergraduate Social Fraternities and Sororities (the "Recognition Policy"). As a prerequisite to recognition as a fraternity on the University campus, appellants were required to enter into a written agreement with the University binding them to the principles, obligations and responsibilities set forth in the Recognition Policy.[FN1]

FN1. Appellants had participated in the drafting of this policy.

The basis of appellants' contentions on appeal arises from an incident that occurred on or about January 20, 1990. On that date, approximately twenty (20) officers, members and pledges of Psi Upsilon participated in the kidnapping and terrorizing of William O'Flanagan, Jr. ("O'Flanagan"), an undergraduate who was not a member of Psi Upsilon, as 608 part of the "hazing" process.[FN2] Immediately following the kidnapping, the facts of which are not in dispute in the instant appeal, O'Flanagan filed a complaint with the University's Department of Public Safety.[FN3] Following a hearing, sanctions were imposed from which appellants unsuccessfully sought injunctive relief. This appeal followed.

FN2. Apparently, O'Flanagan was not the intended victim, and had been abducted by mistake.

FN3. O'Flanagan also filed a criminal complaint with the Philadelphia Police Department and the Philadelphia District Attorney's Office against several members of Psi Upsilon.

[1] In reviewing a challenge to the denial of a preliminary injunction, "... appellant has a very heavy burden to overcome; such a decree will not be interfered with upon appellate review in the absence of a plain abuse of discretion by the court below." Safeguard Mutual Insurance Co. v. Williams, 463 Pa. 567, 577-78, 345 A.2d 664, 670 (1975). (citations omitted). "Only if it is plain that no grounds exist to support the decree or *758 that the rule of law relied upon was palpably erroneous or misapplied will we interfere with the decision of the Chancellor." Roberts v. Board of Directors of the School District of Scranton, 462 Pa. 464, 469, 341 A.2d 475, 478 (1975); (citations omitted).

Boehm v. University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, 392 Pa.Super. 502, 505-506, 573 A.2d 575, 577 (1990). In order to prevail on a petition for injunctive relief, the moving party must establish that:1) it is necessary to prevent immediate and irreparable harm not compensable in damages;

2) greater harm would result from denying it than from granting it;

3) the right to it is clear; and,

4) the status quo would be restored if it was granted.

Schulman v. Franklin & Marshall College, 371 Pa.Super. 345, 352, 538 A.2d 49, 52 (1988), citing 609Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, Inc. v. Greater Johnstown School District* 76 Pa.Commw. 65, 71-72, 463 A.2d 1198, 1201 (1983), (citations omitted) (emphasis added).

Appellants assert that all prerequisites for injunctive relief were met. In support, they place special emphasis on the "clear right to relief", which they contend exists by virtue of the University's denial of their due process right to a fair and impartial hearing, and its denial of their rights of association, assembly and free speech. We find these assertions without merit.

[2] Appellants initially argue that the University's Fraternity & Sorority Advisory Board (F.S.A.B.) hearing did not comport with minimum standards of due process. In the university context due process is defined according to whether the institution is public or private. As stated in Boehm, supra, the law is fairly well established that in a state owned college or university, due process requires notice and some opportunity for hearing before a student is disciplined. Boehm, supra, 392 Pa.Super. at 508, 573 A.2d at 578,citing Dixon v. Alabama State Board of Education, 294 F.2d 150 (5th Cir.1961), *cert. den.*368 U.S. 930, 82 S.Ct. 368, 7 L.Ed.2d 193 (1961). However,

[t]he law pertaining to judicial review of disciplinary proceedings at private colleges and universities is not so well settled. Generally, it has been said that courts are more reluctant to interfere in the disciplinary proceedings of a private college than those of a public college. (citations omitted.) A majority of the courts have characterized the relationship between a private college and its students as contractual in nature. Therefore, students who are being disciplined are entitled only to those procedural safeguards which the school specifically provides.

(emphasis added) (citations omitted).

The only caveat applied to this principle is that the disciplinary procedures established by the institution must *610 be fundamentally fair.[FN4] Id.

FN4. It has never been claimed that the University is a state actor.

In Boehm itself, this court found that basic principles of due process and fundamental fairness were adhered to where the students involved, who were accused of cheating, had been given notice of the charges and evidence against them, were allowed to be present and to participate in the hearing assisted by faculty, to call their own witnesses and to cross-examine the witnesses against them, and were fully apprised of the findings of the Hearing Panel. The parallel with the instant case is inescapable.

[3] Herein, in accordance with the F.S.A.B. Charter, contained in the University's Policies and Procedures manual, Patricia Phaup, Director of the Office of Fraternity and Sorority Affairs, and Constance Goodman, University Judicial Inquiry Officer, initiated an investigation, pursuant to which a detailed statement of charges and violations was presented to appellants. The statement contained the date, time and place for the hearing.

759 On April 11, 1990, a full evidentiary hearing was conducted before the F.S.A.B., a body comprised of: a Chair-person, two (2) faculty members, two (2) fraternity/sorority alumni representatives, two (2) university fraternity/sorority student members and one (1) non-fraternity/sorority student. At the hearing, appellants, represented by legal counsel [FN5], were afforded the opportunity to present evidence, although they chose not to do so owing to the pendency of criminal charges against several members. However, appellants did cross-examine all witnesses presented by the University. At the end of presentation of evidence, both Psi Upsilon and University participants gave closing arguments.

FN5. The University had no counsel present, nor did O'Flanagan.

The Board substantially adopted the findings presented, and sanctions were recommended. These findings and recommendations were then submitted to Dr. Morrisson who accepted them with minor modifications. All materials were thereafter sent to appellants, including the proposed *611 sanctions, which included: withdrawal of recognition of Psi Upsilon as a fraternal organization for three (3) years with no automatic right of return; dispossession from the Psi Upsilon house without compensation; and, the prohibition of any member or pledge of Psi Upsilon, Tau Chapter, as of January 20, 1990, from participation in any future application process. Based upon the above proceedings, we cannot find that Psi Upsilon was denied either notice or an opportunity to be heard. Psi Upsilon, however, raises several objections to the procedures as contained in the F.S.A.B. Judicial Charter.[FN6]

FN6. Appellants argument of constitution infringement is based mainly on Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity v. University of Pennsylvania, 10 Phila. 149, 165 (1983). There the court was called upon to determine whether the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity was afforded minimal due process in a disciplinary hearing conducted by the F.S.A.B. in 1983, which at that time had no set procedures for disciplinary hearings conducted against a fraternity or sorority on the University of Pennsylvania campus. The court suggested a list of procedures followed in other jurisdictions in order to afford Alpha Tau Omega minimal due process. Despite appellants insistence to the contrary, the only item suggested by the Alpha Tau Omega court not followed in this case, was preparation of a hearing transcript, an omission appellants also contend deprived them of a fair hearing. We are not bound by the trial court's decision.

[4] Initially, appellants question whether they received adequate notice of the charges pending against them. They contend that they were provided with "mere[ ] recitations of alleged acts, which in the aggregate were found to be a violation of the Tau Chapter's "collective responsibility." (Appellant's Brief at 11). It is contended that because the term "collective responsibility", contained in the statement of charges and violations is both vague and overbroad, and because no one testifying at the hearing provided an adequate definition, appellants were deprived of adequate notice. A review of the Recognition Policy, as well as the witnesses who offered definitions of "collective responsibility" reveals no support for appellants' claim.

The contractual provision, entered into by Psi Upsilon pursuant to the Recognition Policy and Annual Affirmation of Recognition Policy by Recognized Fraternity, states,

612A. Obligations of the Fraternity/Sorority to the University

By undertaking the process of recognition, the fraternity or sorority assumes certain obligations and responsibilities to the University community: ...

2. To accept collective responsibility for the activities of individual members of the undergraduate chapter as they relate to the following: ...

b. Conduct of members and conduct of guests of members which is knowingly tolerated by the members of the fraternity and is in violation of the University's Code of Conduct; ...

See Penn, "University Policies and Procedures 1989-1991", p. 32 (emphasis added). After reviewing the plain meaning of the language as espoused in the above contractual provision, and the statement of charges, we find the complained of provision to be neither ambiguous nor vague or *760 overbroad, and that appellants were not denied effective notice. See Rosen v. Empire Valve and Fitting, Inc., 381 Pa.Super. 348, 553 A.2d 1004 (1989) (Court should not give agreement construction which is in conflict with plain meaning of language used.)

Appellants' argument that the definitions provided by the hearing witnesses were inconsistent is similarly unwarranted. Given the consonance between the contract and the testimony, as well as appellants' involvement in the original drafting of the language defining the term, appellants were in no way deprived of notice as to the charges against them. The absence of any complaint in this regard during either the Board hearing or the court hearing makes their lack of confusion quite clear.

[5] Appellants also contend that they were denied a fair opportunity to be heard due to the fact that certain members, against whom criminal charges were pending, invoked their privilege against self-incrimination at the hearing before the F.S.A.B. They state that this exercise of privilege deprived them of the opportunity to present evidence, and that the University's failure to postpone the hearing until 613 after resolution of the criminal proceedings effectively denied them due process. We find this contention to be without merit.

As stated by the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit,

> ... the contention that an actual or potential defendant in a criminal case should not even be put to the difficult choice of having to assert the privilege in a related civil case was rejected in United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 90 S.Ct. 763, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 [1970]...
> Such a witness must either invoke his privilege against self-incrimination, or assume "the general duty to give what testimony one is capable of giving."

De Vita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172, 1178-79 (3rd Cir.1970), citing United States v. Simon 373 F.2d 649, 653 (2nd Cir.1967), cert. gr. Simon v. Wharton, 386 U.S. 1030, 87 S.Ct. 1485, 18 L.Ed.2d 591,vacated as moot,389 U.S. 425, 88 S.Ct. 577, 19 L.Ed.2d 653 (1967), (citation omitted). See also, Herberg v. Com., State Bd. of Medical Ed., 65 Pa.Commw. 358, 442 A.2d 411 (1982), citing Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477, 480 (1st Cir.1977) ("[T]here is [nothing] inherently repugnant to due process in requiring the doctor to choose between giving testimony at the disciplinary hearing, a course that may help the criminal prosecutors, and keeping silent, a course that may lead to the loss of his license.") We find, as did the federal court in Gabrilowitz v. Newman, 582 F.2d 100, 104 (1st Cir.1978), that the difficulty of the choice facing appellants did not render it of constitutional proportions. Due process simply is not implicated by the arduousness of the decision.

[6] Appellants also assert that bias on the part of the F.S.A.B. members prevented a fair and impartial hearing. Specifically, it is asserted that Ms. Phaup acted as both an investigator and a deliberator concerning the charges against Psi Upsilon, that Lisa Gross, a university sorority member sitting on the Board, was biased because of her acquaintance with the victim, O'Flanagan, and that Dr. Morrisson, the final decision maker, was biased as she was 614 a Co-Chair-person for a Committee to Diversify Locust Walk, the lane upon which Psi Upsilon's Charter

House was located.

[7] We first point out that the Board is not subject to strict rules of judicial procedure. Moreover, as this Court has stated previously, courts should not interfere with internal procedure and discipline unless real prejudice, bias or denial of due process is present. See Boehm, supra, 392 Pa.Super. at 514, 573 A.2d at 581,citing Schulman v. Franklin and Marshall College, supra, 371 Pa.Super. at 351, 538 A.2d at 52. In each of the instances cited, appellants' claim of unfairness is unsupported by the record: Mrs. Phaup did in fact make initial inquiries about the incident, but was not a voting member of the Board; Dr. Morrisson merely approved the Board's conclusions; Ms. Gross, the putative acquaintance of the victim, O'Flanagan, knew him only by sight. We find in none of these circumstances sufficient prejudice to vitiate due process.

[8]761 The same holds true with appellant's assertion that the University considered undisclosed evidence in making its determinations. Psi Upsilon states that Mr. Sluizer, a fraternity alumni representative on the Board, spoke with attorney friends after the hearing but before deliberations. They further allege that a typewritten statement made by Brian Hanstein, a witness, was "pilfered" from Mr. Hanstein's portfolio and utilized by the Board during deliberation. Finally, they assert that Ms. Goodman's charges concerning the "planning stages" of the incident against O'Flanagan were not presented at the hearing but were utilized by the Board during deliberations. Based upon the above, they conclude that they were denied a fair hearing. Such an assertion is incorrect. This evidence was presented to the trial judge who, as factfinder, could believe some, all or none of the proffered testimony. As there is nothing in the trial court's decision to indicate that he found this argument credible, we will not assume the role of factfinder to conclude otherwise.

*615[9] Appellant's final fairness assertion is that the sanctions imposed were too severe in light of prior disciplinary measures taken against other fraternities. Initially, an assertion that sanctions are too severe does not establish a basis for relief in Pennsylvania courts, as such a determination is within the sole province of that person designated within the contractual agreement to which the parties are signatory. Boehm, supra, 392 Pa.Super. at 521, 573 A.2d at 585. The F.S.A.B. and Vice Provost, Dr. Morrisson, fully considered all evidence presented and incorporated findings of fact and conclusions supported by law. As the determinations were within the sole province of the F.S.A.B. and Vice Provost, pursuant to the Recognition Policy and Fraternity/Sorority Advisory Judicial Charter, signed by Psi Upsilon, we will not disturb their decision.[FN7]

FN7. We note that no disciplinary measures were imposed upon individuals during these proceedings. No member was expelled, suspended from classes, or suffered alteration of his student status in any way.

[10] We next approach appellants' related assertion that by imposing sanctions under a theory of "collective responsibility," the University has abridged their constitutional rights of association, assembly and free speech, thus entitling them to injunctive relief.

In addressing this claim, we return to the premise that the University is a private institution, maintaining private property.

"Even when an owner of private property is constitutionally obligated to honor speech and assembly rights of others, private property rights themselves must nonetheless be protected. The owner of such private property, therefore, is entitled to fashion reasonable rules to control the mode, opportunity and site for the individual exercise of expressional rights upon his property. (footnote omitted) It is at this level of analysis-assessing the reasonableness of such restrictions-that weight may be given to whether there exist convenient and feasible alternative means to individuals to engage in substantially the same expressional activity."

616Commonwealth v. Tate,* 495 Pa. 158, 174, 432 A.2d 1382, 1390 (1981), citing State v. Schmid, 84 N.J. 535, 563, 423 A.2d 615, 630 (1980) (emphasis added) (footnote omitted).

The Recognition Policy to which appellant was signatory establishes the responsibility of the fraternity as an entity for acts of its members which have been determined to be improper. The result of such a conclusion is not appellants' inability to function as the social organization it, in fact, is, but only its inability to function under the auspices of that institution whose rules its members have broken. No limitations have been placed upon its continued operation outside the University. As its "right" to University recognition was contingent upon the compliance of all its members to the rules posited by the Recognition Policy, it no longer possesses this "right." However, its essential nature is unaffected by the sanctions.

Appellants finally argue that not only have they complied with the "clear right to *762 relief" prerequisite for injunctive relief, but they have also complied with all other prerequisites.

Pursuant to our determination that Psi Upsilon has not met the prerequisite of establishing a "clear right to relief", we need not address their remaining arguments in support of injunctive relief. See Schulman v. Franklin and Marshall College, supra, 371 Pa.Super. at 352, 538 A.2d at 52 (A preliminary injunction is an extraordinary remedy available only where the party seeking it establishes all four (4) prerequisites.) See also Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association, Inc. v. STATE OF OKLAHOMA, ex rel. OKLAHOMA BAR ASSOCIATION, Complainant,
v.
Don E. GASAWAY, Respondent.
No. OBAD 1033.
No. SCBD 3776.

Oct. 19, 1993.

Upon recommendation of trial panel of Professional Responsibility Tribunal that attorney be disbarred, the Supreme Court, Summers, J., held that: (1) attorney's resignation from bar association, which resignation was refused by Supreme Court, did not void disciplinary proceedings against attorney; (2) Court would not issue stay of attorney disciplinary proceedings pending completion of criminal proceedings arising from same matters; (3) trial panel properly considered information obtained through subpoenas issued for attorney's bank records; and (4) disbarment is appropriate sanction for attorney who receives clients' money and uses money for purposes other than those of clients.

Attorney disbarred.

Opala, J. concurred in disbarment only and filed opinion.

Hodges, C.J., and Kauger, J., concurred in result.

1192 Original Proceeding for Lawyer Discipline.
The Oklahoma Bar Association brought a complaint against the Respondent/lawyer alleging twenty-one counts of professional misconduct. A hearing was held before a trial panel of the Professional Responsibility Tribunal and the panel recommended that the lawyer be disbarred from the practice of law.

RESPONDENT DISBARRED AND COSTS IMPOSED.

John E. Douglas, Asst. Gen. Counsel, Oklahoma Bar Ass'n, Oklahoma City, for complainant.
Robert G. Green, Tulsa, for respondent.
SUMMERS, Justice.

The Bar Association petitions us to disbar an attorney who claims he is beyond the reach of discipline by reason of his unsuccessful effort at resignation. We conclude that Respondent stands subject to discipline, and disbar him from the practice of law.

The Professional Responsibility Tribunal filed its report recommending disbarment. The Bar Association has filed its brief. The Respondent was granted two extensions of time to file his brief, but has not filed any brief or response. He has not challenged the trial panel's report.

[1][2] This Court exercises original and exclusive jurisdiction in all matters involving the discipline of persons licensed to practice law. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Perkins, 827 P.2d 168, 169 (Okla.1992). In the exercise of this jurisdiction we examine the record of the disciplinary proceeding and the merits of the disciplinary charges against a Respondent even though he or she fails to file a brief. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Phillips, 786 P.2d 1242 (Okla.1990); State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. McCurtain, 767 P.2d 427 (Okla.1989); In re Cargill, 164 Okla. 265, 23 P.2d 693 (1933). An adjudication of the merits of a disciplinary claim against a lawyer necessarily includes an examination of affirmative defenses raised by that lawyer during the course of the disciplinary proceeding.

The Respondent challenges the authority of the trial panel to proceed. His challenge is based upon a pending criminal charge against him that involved acts related to those put in issue by the Bar Association. He claims that his resignation from the Bar Association made void these disciplinary proceedings against him, even though his resignation had been refused by this Court. He also claims that a Disciplinary Rule of the Bar Association may not be applied to him without violating his rights granted by the Fifth Amendment. Finally, he claims that subpoenas issued to examine his business and trust accounts should have been quashed and evidence obtained thereunder not considered.

I. RESPONDENT'S ATTEMPT TO RESIGN

[3] The Bar Association originally alleged that Respondent committed ten counts of professional misconduct. He filed no answer to the complaint as required by Rule 6.4.[FN1] The Bar prepared a proposed resignation from the Bar for his use. He declined to use the form provided by the Bar, and filed a "Resignation in Lieu of Answer" on October 22, 1991. The Bar Association objected to the resignation as submitted by the Respondent.

FN1. Rule 6.4 of the Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings, 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A states:

The respondent shall within twenty (20) days after the mailing of the complaint file an answer with the Chief Justice. The respondent may not challenge the complaint by demurrer or motion. In the event the respondent Fails to answer, the charges shall be deemed admitted, except that evidence shall be submitted for the purpose of determining the discipline to be imposed.

The procedure for resigning from the Bar is not complicated, and this Court has 1193 accepted numerous resignations pending disciplinary proceedings. A resignation from the Bar Association by a lawyer who is the subject of an investigation into, or a pending proceeding involving, allegations of professional misconduct is governed by Rule 8.1 of the Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings,[FN2] and this Court has refused to accept a resignation pending disciplinary proceedings that does not comply with Rule 8.1. See State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Perkins, 757 P.2d 825, 828 (Okla.1988), where we rejected a resignation stating a future effective date as contrary to Rule 8.1. In this case we declined to accept Respondent's resignation because it failed to specify with particularity the nature of the pending grievances, investigations, and other pending proceedings as required by Rule 8.1.[FN3]

FN2. Rule 8.1, 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A states:

A lawyer who is the subject of an investigation into, or a pending proceeding involving, allegations of misconduct may resign membership in the Oklahoma Bar Association, and thereby Relinquish the right to practice law, only by delivering to the Commission an affidavit stating that the lawyer desires to resign and that:

(a) The resignation is freely and voluntarily rendered, the lawyer is not being subjected to coercion or duress, and the lawyer is fully aware of the consequences of submitting the resignation;

(b) The lawyer is aware that there is presently pending an investigation into, or proceedings involving, allegations that there exist grounds for discipline, specifying particularly the misconduct alleged;

(c) The lawyer agrees that he may be reinstated only upon full compliance with the conditions procedures prescribed by these Rules, and no application for reinstatement may be filed prior to the lapse of five years from the effective date of the resignation. (Emphasis added).

FN3. This part of the Rule is consistent with the authority that in a disciplinary proceeding the court wants the entire record of an attorney's professional conduct before the court. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Warzyn, 624 P.2d 1068, 1071 (Okla.1981); State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Moss, 794 P.2d 403 (Okla.1990).

[4] The Respondent has alleged that his resignation showed substantial compliance with Rule 8.1, and that literal compliance with the Rule was not necessary. His argument on the resignation was limited to the claim that the reason for requiring a recitation of the pending proceedings, grievances, and investigations served no purpose except for later reinstatement proceedings, and was an insufficient reason to refuse the resignation.[FN4] Later at the trial panel hearing his counsel argued that the resignation "was proper and improperly rejected by the Supreme Court", and also that "Mr. Gasaway has resigned from this voluntary association ... [and] To require anything more would be unconstitutional." [FN5]

FN4. His petition for rehearing also raised, for the first time, an objection to subpoenas issued by the Professional Responsibility Commission. The Court's Order of April 7, 1992 denying rehearing noted that the Professional Responsibility Commission had denied his motion to quash the subpoenas and stated that the Court's Order on rehearing was without prejudice to the respondent presenting his objections on the subpoenas to the Professional Responsibility Tribunal.

FN5. Although the respondent presents the issue as one involving membership in an association, this characterization is imprecise. A member of the Bar is also a licensee and thereby subject to the regulations pertaining to that license to practice law. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Lobaugh, 781 P.2d 806, 809-810 (Okla.1988); State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Colston, 777 P.2d 920, 925 (Okla.1989); State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Downing, 804 P.2d 1120, 1122-1123 (Okla.1990).

[5][6][7][8] One often cited rule is that an individual may resign from an association as he or she sees fit, subject to financial obligations owing the association, where there are no rules or bylaws restricting the right to resign.[FN6] Where an association has bylaws and rules they constitute a contract between the members, and membership is regulated by the terms of the contract. 1194Oklahoma Association of Insurance* http://www.westlaw.com/Find/Default.wl?rs=dfa1.0&vr=2.0&DB=661&FindType=Y&ReferencePositionType=S&SerialNum=1963124611&ReferencePosition=455*Agents v. Hudson,* 385 P.2d 453, 455, 456 (Okla.1963). Thus, rules of an association governing resignation may be enforced against the member.[FN7] However, the rules of an association may not unconstitutionally preclude a resignation. Guinn v. Church of Christ of Collinsville, 775 P.2d 766, 776 (Okla.1989). Similarly, rules governing a resignation of a person from a non-religious association may not be enforced in an arbitrary or capricious manner. Haynes v.

In the context of a resignation from a Bar Association some courts have held that accepting a lawyer's resignation is within the discretion of the court when the lawyer is subject to discipline at the time of the resignation.[FN8] This view of a court's discretion is consistent with our Rule 8.2 governing resignations and providing that "the Supreme Court may enter an order approving the resignation pending disciplinary proceedings." [FN9] In the exercise of this discretion some courts have rejected a resignation even when the resignation was equivalent to disbarment.[FN10] Courts have also rejected a resignation when it did not comply with a rule of the association requiring a list or acknowledgment of the pending charges of misconduct.[FN11] Our refusal of the Respondent's resignation on this ground is consistent with authority involving associations generally and for Bar membership as well.

FN9. Rule 8.2, 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A, as amended effective Jan. 12, 1989, (emphasis added). The Rule states:

Upon receipt of the required affidavit, the Commission shall file it with the Clerk of the Supreme Court and the Supreme Court may enter an order approving the resignation pending disciplinary proceedings. A lawyer who so resigns shall only be permitted to apply for reinstatement after the lapse of five (5) years and under the provisions of Rule 11.

When a lawyer resigns from the Bar under a cloud of allegations of professional misconduct this Court requires the lawyer to set forth with particularity the allegations against the lawyer and any pending Bar investigations. This requirement results in the creation of a formal record in this Court that includes all pending disciplinary matters and investigations. Rule 5.7 of the Disciplinary Rules [FN12] states that 1195 investigations and grievances are confidential and are not made public unless authorized by the Supreme Court or under Rule 6.1, which sets forth the procedure for filing a formal complaint. Thus, the resignation not only memorializes the public matters in the formal complaint but also brings previously confidential matters before the Court and the public. It should be noted that Rule 8.1 in no way requires an attorney to make any admissions of culpability, but merely to state, with some particularity, the allegations presently pending against him.

FN12. Rule 5.7, 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A states:

Investigations by the General Counsel and the Commission shall be confidential, and the results thereof shall not be made public until authorized by the Supreme Court or as provided by Rule 6.1. However, when no formal complaint is filed in the Supreme Court, at the option of the respondent, the final disposition of a grievance by the Professional Responsibility Commission may be made public. In all cases the person who filed a grievance and the respondent shall be notified of the final disposition thereof.

[9] The Respondent's tendered resignation and the original complaint were filed simultaneously on a docket of this Court and made part of a public record. The resignation stated that the Bar Association was investigating other grievances against the Respondent, but did not indicate the nature of those grievances. Thus, the Respondent requested that a resignation pending discipline be approved when there was no record before the Court on those pending grievances and investigations. The complaint was later amended to add an additional eleven counts of alleged misconduct. The purposes of accepting a resignation during discipline do not include keeping allegations of unprofessional conduct from the Court or secreting the allegations from the public eye. The Respondent's resignation pending discipline was facially improper because it did not comply with the Association rule requiring a list or acknowledgment of the pending disciplinary charges and investigations.[FN13] This requirement serves important interests for the benefit of the resigning lawyer, the Bar Association, and the public.

FN13. We note that Rules 8.1 and 8.2 do not prohibit a lawyer from submitting a second resignation that conforms to the Rules. A result allowed by another court as well. See Matter of Sands, 86 App.Div.2d 96, 449 N.Y.S.2d 219, 220 (1982); Matter of Sands, 89 App.Div.2d 61, 454 N.Y.S.2d 715 (1982). The respondent was informed by the Court that his resignation did not comply with Rule 8.1 and he elected to stand on a deficient resignation instead of submitting a second proper resignation. We also note that respondent's tendered resignation was improper as it did not agree to pay the costs of the proceeding. This Court has routinely required a lawyer resigning during disciplinary proceedings to pay the reasonable costs of the investigation incurred prior to the resignation.

II. RESPONDENT'S MOTION TO CONTINUE OR STAY THE PROCEEDINGS

A hearing was held before the trial panel on July 1, 1992. Respondent was present with counsel, and asserted that he was making a "special appearance" at the hearing. Before any evidence was presented or witnesses called the Respondent presented three motions, two for a continuance and one to quash subpoenas issued by the Professional Responsibility Commission. The Bar Association also made a motion to have the allegations against Respondent deemed admitted because of the Respondent's failure to answer the allegations.

[10] Respondent's first motion was for a continuance based upon the argument that one of the three trial panel members was not available for the hearing, and the panel lacked "jurisdiction" to proceed. A trial panel is composed of three members called "Masters", and "Two of the three Masters shall constitute a quorum for the purposes of conducting hearings, ruling on and receiving evidence, and rendering Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law." Rule 6.6, Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings, 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A. A trial panel possesses the discretion to continue a date for a hearing when good cause is shown. Id. at Rule 6.7. The trial panel did not abuse its discretion when it denied this motion for a continuance.

[11] The second motion for continuance was based upon the statement made by Respondent's counsel that a week prior to the hearing: "... a criminal case or two cases were filed against Mr. Gasaway, 1196 which it is my understanding, and I've not looked at the information, that the allegations in those counts in those criminal cases concern the same matters that may be contained in the complaint filed by the Bar Association." He argued that he could not be compelled to give evidence against himself, and that the Complaint sought to impose discipline because he refused to give evidence against himself. Counsel later explained that "Mr. Gasaway, as we've stated earlier under Fifth Amendment Rights, is effectively precluded from testifying in this proceeding because there's a criminal case pending."

The U.S. Supreme Court has stated that simultaneous civil and related criminal proceedings do not constitute "unfairness and want of consideration for justice" so as to require the reversal of a criminal conviction. United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 11, 90 S.Ct. 763, 769, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 (1970).

It would stultify enforcement of federal law to require a governmental agency such as the FDA invariably to choose either to forego recommendation of a criminal prosecution once it seeks civil relief, or to defer civil proceedings pending the ultimate outcome of a criminal trial.

Id. 397 U.S. at 11, 90 S.Ct. at 769.

This view was also expressed in Abel v. United States, 362 U.S. 217, 229-230, 80 S.Ct. 683, 692-693, 4 L.Ed.2d 668 (1960) where the Court explained that the Constitution did not require an irrevocable choice on the part of the Government between pursuing an I.N.S. investigation and an F.B.I. investigation against an individual.

Consistent with this rule of not requiring the Government to choose between using a civil or criminal proceeding against a defendant, courts have explained that simultaneous civil and criminal proceedings do not necessarily run afoul of the Fifth and Fourteenth Amendments. One state court stated:

> There is nothing inherently repugnant to due process in requiring plaintiff to choose between giving testimony at the disciplinary hearing and keeping silent, even though giving testimony at the hearing may damage his criminal case and keeping silent will most likely lead to loss of his employment.

Giampa v. Illinois Civil Service Commission, 89 Ill.App.3d 606, 44 Ill.Dec. 744, 750, 411 N.E.2d 1110, 1116 (1980).

In United States v. Kordel, supra, a defendant, as does the Respondent herein, argued for a stay of the civil proceeding because of a pending criminal proceeding. Courts have cited Kordel as support for the proposition that the sole fact of simultaneous proceedings is insufficient to constitutionally require a stay. For example, in Oznemoc v. Alcoholic Beverages Cont. Comm., 412 Mass. 100, 587 N.E.2d 751 (1992) that court explained that: "Courts generally reject claims by parties to administrative proceedings that they are entitled to continuances until after their criminal trials because they will not testify for fear of self-incrimination." Id. 587 N.E.2d 751. Numerous cases from other jurisdictions support this rule.[FN14]

FN14. See, e.g., Psi Upsilon v. University of Pa., 404 Pa.Super. 613, 591 A.2d 755, 760 (1991), (where individuals invoked right against self-incrimination in disciplinary hearing the University did not deny their due process rights when it declined to postpone disciplinary hearing until completion of related criminal charges); Herberg v. Lebanon School Dist., 848 F.2d 44, 46 (3d Cir.1988), (party was not faced with an unconstitutional choice to testify and he was not constitutionally entitled to a postponement of civil proceeding pending the disposition of criminal charges); Hoover v. Knight, 678 F.2d 578, 581 (5th Cir.1982), (parallel civil and criminal trials or investigations do not raise a question of constitutional magnitude); U.S. v. White, 589 F.2d 1283, 1286-1287 (5th Cir.1979), (civil trial while criminal charges pending where invocation of the Fifth Amendment would not necessarily result in adverse judgment); Diebold v. Civil Service Commission of St. Louis County, 611 F.2d 697, 700-701 (8th Cir.1979), (Fifth Amendment not violated by simultaneous criminal and administrative proceedings). Cf. S.E.C. v. Tome, 638 F.Supp. 629, 631-632 (S.D.N.Y.1986), (adverse inference from defendant's silence in civil litigation is constitutional even when related criminal proceeding is pending).

1197[12] The rule has also been recognized in the context of lawyer discipline proceedings. For example in State v. Horton, 561 A.2d 488 (Me.1989) that court explained:

> Contrary to Horton's contention, the fact that a lawyer's decision to invoke the privilege and remain silent can be used as evidence in the disciplinary proceeding does not render the lawyer's decision to speak involuntary. Disciplinary proceedings are civil in nature, and a lawyer has no constitutional right to prevent the fact finder in that proceeding from considering the implications of his silence, along with other evidence against him, in making a determination. See Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 318, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976); Board of Overseers of the Bar v. Dineen, 481 A.2d 499, 503 (Me.1984). If he chooses to invoke his Fifth Amendment privilege and remain silent, a lawyer might be disciplined for the underlying misconduct charged by the Board, but that does not mean he is compelled to speak rather than assert his privilege.

Thus, simultaneous Bar disciplinary proceedings and related criminal proceedings do not necessarily require the staying of the disciplinary proceeding.

[13] It is true that a court may exercise its discretion and grant a stay when a strong public interest in proceeding expeditiously on a civil case is absent.[FN15] This policy is reflected in Disciplinary Rule 5.6 allowing the Professional Responsibility Commission to stay the processing of a grievance.[FN16] The high court has stated circumstances that may call for granting relief from simultaneous proceedings:

FN16.Rule 5.6 states:

Processing of grievances shall not be deferred or abated because of substantial similarity to the material allegations of pending criminal or civil litigation, or administrative proceedings, unless authorized by the Commission in its discretion, for good cause shown.

We do not deal here with a case where the Government has brought a civil action solely to obtain evidence for its criminal prosecution or has failed to advise the defendant in its civil proceeding that it contemplates his criminal prosecution; nor with a case where the defendant is without counsel or reasonably fears prejudice from adverse pretrial publicity or other unfair injury; nor with any other special circumstances that might suggest the unconstitutionality or even the impropriety of this criminal prosecution.

United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. at 11-12, 90 S.Ct. at 769-770. None of those circumstances have been alleged or raised by the Respondent in his request for a continuance.

The Respondent was suspended from the practice of law after the trial panel hearing 1198 and pending the outcome of this proceeding. This circumstance could weigh in favor of this Court granting a requested stay when related criminal charges have been filed and are pending against a lawyer subject to professional discipline. Although disciplinary proceedings may result in the suspension or disbarment of a lawyer this result is not the exclusive purpose of the disciplinary process. Thus, an interim suspension does not, by itself, show that the interests of the Bar Association and public in the disciplinary proceeding have been satisfied so as to require a continuance or stay of the disciplinary proceeding. We decline to issue a stay under the circumstances of this case.

III. THE MOTION TO QUASH THE SUBPOENAS

[14] The Respondent also requested the panel to quash the subpoenas issued pertaining to his bank records. The Bar Association asked the Respondent to provide information and documents relating to the financial transactions between himself and clients whom had filed grievances against him. Respondent declined to respond. The Bar again requested the records, and again the Respondent declined to respond.

The subpoenas were issued May 14, 1991, to the First Bank of Catoosa and Community Bank and Trust, and notice of the subpoenas was mailed to Gasaway on the same date. The Respondent mailed his motion to quash to the Professional Responsibility Tribunal on May 22, 1991. During a regularly scheduled meeting of the Commission on May 31, 1991 the motion to quash was denied by the Commission and the Respondent was informed of the denial.

On June 19, 1991 the Bar Association informed Respondent's counsel that the banks would comply with the subpoenas on July 2, 1991 unless the Respondent obtained a judicial order prohibiting the banks from proceeding. The Bar stated in its notice: "This agreement will allow Mr. Gasaway, if he has a legitimate objection to the subpoena, to raise it." Counsel for the Bar also provided the Respondent a copy of an order where this Court had assumed original jurisdiction to adjudicate a dispute between a lawyer and the Bar Association concerning the scope of a similar subpoena issued by the Professional Responsibility Commission. The Respondent did not seek judicial review, and the banks complied with the subpoenas.

At the hearing before the trial panel the Respondent moved to quash the subpoenas, and objected to the introduction of evidence obtained by the subpoenas. He argued that (1) the subpoenas were overbroad, (2) the Bar had not sought to enforce the subpoenas in a District Court, (3) no hearing was provided on the motion to quash, and (4) that the same entity that issued the subpoenas also adjudicated the motion to quash.

[15][16] In Nichols v. Council on Judicial Complaints, 615 P.2d 280 (Okla.1980) we stated that a subpoena duces tecum may be overbroad in scope and thus an unreasonable search and seizure within the meaning of the Fourth Amendment to the United States Constitution. Id. 615 P.2d at 284. exists with regard to the bank records.[FN18]

[17] The Respondent argued that the subpoenas were "overbroad" in scope under the Oklahoma Financial Privacy Act, 6 O.S.1991 1991 §§ 2201-2206, and that they sought material that is "incompetent, irrelevant, and immaterial for the purposes for 1199 which it is sought." [FN19] We find otherwise. Administrative subpoenas are to be "sufficiently limited in scope, relevant in purpose, and specific in directive so that compliance will not be unreasonably burdensome." See v. Seattle, 387 U.S. 541, 544, 87 S.Ct. 1737, 1739, 18 L.Ed.2d 943 (1967). In United States v. Powell, 379 U.S. 48, 57-58, 85 S.Ct. 248, 254-255, 13 L.Ed.2d 112 (1964) the Court examined the relevant statutory authority for the agency issuing the subpoena, and stated that in order to obtain enforcement of a subpoena the agency must have a legitimate purpose for the investigation, the inquiry must be relevant to that purpose, the agency must not possess the information sought, and the agency must have adhered to the administrative procedures.

FN19.6 O.S.1991 § 2204(c)(i) states that a motion to quash may be filed on the ground: "that the financial record sought is incompetent, irrelevant, or immaterial for the purpose or purposes for which it is sought;"

The subpoenas requested bank records from April 12, 1990 to May 1991. The record before us shows pre-subpoena complaints to the Bar Association involving financial transactions occurring in April and May 1991, April and November 1990, and the status of trust accounts during the period between April and November 1990. The Commission is given the authority to investigate any alleged ground for lawyer discipline. 5 O.S.1991 Ch. 1, App. 1-A, Rule 2.8. The Commission as a part of this investigation may issue subpoenas upon approval of the Commission by the chairman or vice-chairman of the Commission. Id. The subpoenas were not overbroad in scope with regard to the complaints. They were relevant to a legitimate inquiry by the Commission in its role of investigating lawyer misconduct.

The Respondent argued that the Oklahoma Financial Privacy Act, 6 O.S.1991 §§ 2201-2206, required quashing the subpoenas. He argued that under the Act the proper authority to hear the motion to quash was the District Court. This assertion is incorrect. Section 2204 of the Act states in part:

If the subpoena was issued by the district court, the motion to quash the subpoena shall be filed in the district court that issued the subpoena. If the subpoena was issued by a state agency or a legislative committee, the motion to quash the subpoena shall be filed with the state agency or legislative committee that issued the subpoena.

Under the Act the entity that issues the subpoena hears the motion to quash. However, as explained hereafter this provision does not apply to the Commission.

The Respondent also argued that a procedure is unconstitutional when the same entity issues a subpoena and also hears a motion to quash that subpoena. Standard agency practice appears to allow an agency to hear a motion to quash its own subpoena. 1 C. Koch, Administrative Law and Practice, § 5.36 (1985). *See e.g.,*75 O.S.Supp.1992 § 315(B)(2); 6 O.S.1991 § 2204(c). But we need not examine this argument because the controversy before us is a Bar disciplinary proceeding, and the procedures in this proceeding satisfy due process.

[18] The Professional Responsibility Commission is a part of the Oklahoma Bar Association and exercises a rule-granted power to consider and investigate alleged grounds for lawyer discipline. 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A, Rules 2.1, 2.8(a). The Oklahoma Bar Association was created by this Court, and the Association is an official arm of the Court acting for and on behalf of the Court in lawyer-discipline matters. 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1, Preamble; 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1, Art. 1 § 1. See also Stamper, Otis & Burrage v. Shaffer, 813 P.2d 1043 (Okla.1991); Tweedy v. Oklahoma Bar Association, 624 P.2d 1049, 1054-1055 (Okla.1981). This Court possesses exclusive and original jurisdiction in disciplinary proceedings. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Perkins, supra. This jurisdiction includes authority to adjudicate the propriety of subpoenas issued by the Professional Responsibility Commission to examine lawyer 1200 bank records for the purpose of a disciplinary proceeding.

The Respondent was provided with time to seek relief in this Court prior to the banks' divulging the information. Counsel for the Bar informed the Respondent of a case where this Court assumed original jurisdiction and adjudicated a similar claim in a similar procedural context, and he was provided a copy of this court's order in that case. The Respondent did not pursue that opportunity for judicial review, and cannot now successfully complain that he was denied an opportunity to be heard via judicial review when such was the result of his own inaction.

The Respondent also argued that the Oklahoma Financial Privacy Act required the Bar Association to enforce the subpoenas in the District Court before the banks complied with the subpoenas, because he filed a motion to quash with the Professional Responsibility Commission. The Respondent relied upon language in 6 O.S.1991 § 2204 providing that: "A subpoena issued by a state agency or legislative committee shall be enforced pursuant to Section 315 of Title 75 of the Oklahoma Statutes." Section 315 is part of the Administrative Procedures Act (75 O.S.1991 §§ 250-323), and provides a procedure for enforcing agency subpoenas in the District Court of the county where the recalcitrant witness resides.

The Oklahoma Supreme Court is not an "agency" for the purpose of the Oklahoma Administrative Procedures Act. 75 O.S.1991 § 250.3, nor is the Bar Association, as an arm of this court, such an agency for the purpose of that Act. This Court is amply empowered to enforce a subpoena issued in the course of Bar disciplinary proceeding. The Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings provide an enforcement procedure in the Supreme Court with the Chief Justice assigning a judge of the district court to try a contemptuous refusal to comply with a Commission subpoena. 5 O.S.1991, Ch. 1, App. 1-A, Rule 2.8.

Respondent argued that the motion to quash should be sustained by the trial panel because he received no hearing on his motion to quash before the Professional Responsibility Commission, and argued that "Failure to have a hearing is a denial of the minimum standards of due process." Not so, as we explained in Mott v. Carlson, 786 P.2d 1247, 1251 (Okla.1990) and State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Hornung, 813 P.2d 1041, 1042 (Okla.1991). Prior to the information being released in compliance with the subpoenas, the Respondent was afforded an opportunity to seek original-jurisdiction relief in this court, and present any legal arguments and facts he desired in support of quashing the subpoenas. The availability of this procedure satisfied due process. Mott v. Carlson, supra. Additionally, the Respondent was provided with an opportunity to make any legal arguments he desired by his motion to quash before the Commission, and he took that opportunity. Later when the Respondent was making his arguments before the trial panel he did not allege or argue that a material fact was in dispute on one of the grounds urged to quash, or that a hearing to adjudicate a fact had been necessary before the Commission or later before the trial panel. See State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Hornung, supra. We also note that in the exercise of this court's exclusive and original jurisdiction we have addressed the substance of the Respondent's claims on the motion to quash. The Respondent did not avail himself of his opportunity to present facts to the trial panel on the motion to quash or submit legal arguments by brief in this court after the panel report was filed. The Respondent was not denied procedural due process. Mott v. Carlson, supra, State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Hornung, supra.

The Respondent also argued that the trust account records necessarily included information concerning clients other than those filing grievances, and the trust account records were not subject to subpoena because "lawyers are required to keep confidential the affairs of their clients." The Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings and the Rules of Professional Conduct require*1201 a lawyer to maintain a trust account for the deposit of clients' funds entrusted to the lawyer. 5 O.S.Supp.1992 Ch. 1, App. 1-A, Rule 1.4 and 5 O.S.1991 Ch. 1, App. 3-A, Rule 1.15. A lawyer is required to maintain the records during representation of the client and continuing until five years after the termination of the representation. Rule 1.15.

[19] The mandated record-keeping is part of a State regulatory scheme for those licensed to practice law, and the regulation serves important public purposes in the administration of justice and the protection of the property of the citizens of the State. The regulatory nature of a Bar Association over these accounts for the purpose of lawyer discipline has been recognized when courts have determined that no Fifth Amendment self-incrimination privilege could be invoked by a lawyer with respect to the records of such accounts. Louisiana State Bar Association v. Chatelain, 513 So.2d 1178,1181 (La.1987). Cf. Baltimore City Dept. of Social Serv. v. Bouknight, 493 U.S. 549, 556, 110 S.Ct. 900, 905, 107 L.Ed.2d 992 (1990), (the Court recognized that the Fifth Amendment could not be invoked to resist compliance with a regulatory scheme unrelated to the enforcement of criminal laws). We hold that when the Commission is acting in an investigation relating to a lawyer's rule-mandated trust account, and issues a subpoena to examine the trust account, the lawyer may not resist the subpoena solely on the ground that the record may reveal information concerning the lawyer's clients.

IV. THE BAR ASSOCIATION'S MOTION TO DEEM ITS ALLEGATIONS ADMITTED

The Bar Association filed a motion to have the allegations against the Respondent deemed admitted pursuant to Rule 6.4, because he did not answer the formal Complaints.[FN20] The trial panel granted the motion. Granting the motion was erroneous, and we disregard the trial panel's action on the motion in the course of our de novo review of the proceeding.

FN20. See Rule 6.4 at note 1 supra.

In State v. Horton, 561 A.2d 488 (Me.1989), the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine explained that in Spevack v. Klein, 385 U.S. 511, 514, 87 S.Ct. 625, 627, 17 L.Ed.2d 574 (1967) the plurality opinion and the separate concurring opinion by Justice Fortas agreed that a lawyer could not be disciplined for asserting a Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination. Id. 561 A.2d at 490. This view is consistent with Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, 431 U.S. 801, 805, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 2135, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977), where the Court stated that "a State may not impose substantial penalties because a witness elects to exercise his Fifth Amendment right not to give incriminating testimony against himself."

[20] When a lawyer is called upon to answer allegations in a grievance that lawyer may refuse to answer upon "expressed constitutional grounds." Rule 5.2. Similarly, Rule 6.11(d) expressly provides for a Respondent to invoke a right against self-incrimination in the trial panel proceeding. State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Moss, 794 P.2d 403, 408-410 (Okla.1990). The construction placed upon the Rule by the Bar amounts to a finding of "guilty" by a Respondent's mere invocation of the Fifth Amendment. We decline to construe the Rule in this manner. When a lawyer timely invokes the Fifth Amendment in response to a formal Bar Complaint we will not deem the Bar's allegations admitted.

[21] The Rules require a Respondent to either answer a grievance (Rule 5.2), or testify (Rule 6.11), or expressly state a reliance upon a constitutional ground for not complying with the Rules. The Respondent did not answer the allegations in the grievances nor did he state that he was relying upon the Fifth Amendment or any other constitutional ground as a reason for not answering. Rule 5.2 provides a respondent with a fair opportunity to rely upon the Fifth Amendment and state such reliance in an answer to the Bar Association. Respondent's assertion of the Fifth Amendment*1202 at the trial panel hearing was sufficient to invoke the protection of that right in the context of the trial panel proceeding,[FN21] and was sufficient to prevent the Tribunal from deeming the Bar's complaints admitted.

FN21. In State ex rel. Oklahoma Bar Association v. Moss, 794 P.2d at 408-409, we explained that a respondent's written response to a grievance did not waive the protection of the Fifth Amendment at a subsequent trial panel proceeding.

After making his legal arguments before the Tribunal, Respondent and his counsel sought leave to withdraw from further participation in the proceedings. The presiding Master granted their request, and evidence was received on the merits of the complaints in the Respondent's absence. Counsel for the Bar presented the following evidence and then rested.

V. THE EVIDENCE

The Respondent received a check in the amount of $38,767.65 for the sale of his client's property during a divorce. The check was deposited into his trust account in December 1990. In May of 1991 opposing counsel in the divorce case requested that the Respondent deposit the $38,767.65 with the Court Clerk, and an order of the District Court was made to that effect. The Respondent did not deposit the amount within the time afforded by the order, and opposing counsel filed a motion to compel the Respondent to deposit the funds with the Court Clerk.

While the divorce case was on appeal a settlement occurred, with the opposing counsel's client receiving a cashier's check in the amount of $8,657.63, and the balance of $30,110.02 was paid to the Respondent's client by a check drawn on the First State Bank of Catoosa. The check was dated May 6, 1991 but not delivered to the client until June 6, 1991. The record shows that this account had a balance of $757.15 on May 7, 1991. The Respondent told his client that the check would be good on June 10, 1991. On June 7, 1991 the bank declined to pay on the check due to insufficient funds. The bank also declined to cash the check on June 10 and 11, 1991, for the same reason. The Respondent's client hired another lawyer to get the Respondent to pay the $30,110.02. One day after Respondent discussed the matter with this lawyer the client received from the Respondent a cashier's check drawn on the First State Bank of Catoosa for $30,110.02.

One of the exhibits is a statement from the Respondent's trust account for the month of December 1990. The exhibit shows the $38,767.65 deposit on December 11, 1990. The exhibit shows a balance for the account on December 31, 1990 in the amount of $19.96. None of the disbursements went to the parties in the divorce proceeding, nor were they made with the approval of the parties to the divorce.

The exhibits show on that on the same day the $38,765.62 was deposited an amount of $35,000 was moved from the trust account to a different special trust account in the same bank. The $35,000 was disbursed and included $6,000 in cash for a District Court suit where the Respondent was a defendant, and a $750 check to the Court Clerk for the same case. By December 20, 1990 this trust account had a negative balance of $51.74. None of the disbursements from this special trust account were for the benefit of the Respondent's client.

The testimony shows that the divorce proceeding was concluded in February of 1991. Approximately one week thereafter the Respondent's client informed him that she did not want to appeal and wanted the $38,765.62 disbursed. While waiting for her money she attempted three times to purchase a house, but could not do so because her anticipated funds were not timely remitted to her from the Respondent.

B.

A Texas law firm sent a check to Gasaway, and the check was made payable to Gasaway and Paul Polin in the amount of $25,147.29. The check was deposited to Respondent's trust account at the First 1203 Bank of Catoosa. Checks were written by Gasaway against the deposited check and the account was depleted to a minimum balance.

The check was drawn on a Texas bank. The Texas bank returned the check to the Catoosa bank because of an improper endorsement. The bank contacted Polin to endorse the check. Polin declined to endorse the check unless he received "his share" of the check. The bank contacted Gasaway and was informed that Gasaway and Polin were in the process of negotiating how much of the check belonged to Polin. The bank loaned Gasaway the money to cover the check. The bank was not repaid for this loan, and "charged the loan off."

C.

American Credit Indemnity (ACI) retained the Respondent to collect debts owed to ACI on different accounts. The Respondent sent a check to ACI in the amount of $22,942.67 for one account. The check was returned for insufficient funds. The check was again deposited and again returned for insufficient funds. After the check bounced the Respondent sent ACI a partial payment in the amount of $12,000 by a cashier's check. He then sent ACI a check in the amount of $11,500, but it also was returned for insufficient funds. When the Respondent did not remit the additional $10,942.70 a bonding company paid the deficit to ACI.

D.

On another account the Respondent received approximately sixty checks from the debtor, with each check in the amount of $400. The Respondent and ACI had an agreement under which he was authorized to deduct $52 as his fee from each $400 check he collected. The Respondent sent ACI twenty-one checks for $348. According to the Complaint the Respondent failed to remit $13,572 to ACI under the agreement. The testimony from a representative of ACI was that the Respondent owed ACI $12,400. The witness testified that the discrepancy could not be reconciled by ACI at the time of the hearing, but because the fee was based upon a percentage the discrepancy was probably due to giving the Respondent credit for attorney fees on amounts collected on the account by another attorney prior to the Respondent's involvement. ACI did not receive the $12,400 from the Respondent and suffered a loss in that amount.

A lawyer was employed by Gasaway as an associate, and the associate settled a case for a client. The associate received a check in the amount of $6,500. On April 12, 1990 the settlement check was deposited into Gasaway's trust account as he maintained the firm account and signed the trust account checks. The client received a check dated April 19, 1990 for $2,063.34 and the check was returned for insufficient funds. The client received her share of the proceeds one week thereafter. The client's medical bills went unpaid.

The record shows that on April 17, 1990 the account had a negative balance by as much as $1,493.75 and then on April 19, 1990 the trust account had a positive balance of $33.75. No funds had been paid to the client or her medical providers prior to April 19, 1990. The record shows that one medical provider was paid $465.00 in November 1990 and two other medical bills were paid with undated checks that were negotiated in March of 1991, one for $350.00 and one for $1,245.00.

The client filed a grievance against the associate lawyer with the Tulsa County Bar Association. The associate was mailed a request to respond to the grievance. The associate was not aware of the grievance and the request because the Respondent opened the mail and did not forward the grievance and request to his employee. The Respondent responded to the Tulsa County grievance without informing the associate. The Oklahoma Bar Association began investigating the same matter against the associate. The associate lawyer still did not know of the grievance until contacted*1204 by the Bar Association with a telephone call.

F.

Hudson & Keys retained the Respondent to collect an account from a credit union loan. The debtor, Willoughby, made an arrangement to make a payment to Gasaway to pay off the account. He paid Gasaway with a cashier's check in the amount of $2,334.10 and the check was deposited in Gasaway's account in the First Bank of Catoosa on February 1, 1991.

The Bar alleged that Hudson & Keyes received a check from Gasaway for this amount but that the check was twice returned for insufficient funds. This alleged check does not appear in the trial panel record. No witness from Hudson & Keyes testified. Willougby testified that he was not contacted by anyone regarding the debt after he delivered the cashier's check to Gasaway. We conclude that the evidence before us is not clear and convincing that Gasaway converted the $2,334.10, and that count is dismissed.

This evidence concluded the first day of the panel proceeding. After a discussion on the record concerning future witnesses for the same and additional Counts, the sufficiency of the evidence already presented, and the ruling which deemed the allegations admitted, the Bar rested its case.

VI. CONCLUSION

In summary, the Respondent's resignation was properly denied. His motion for continuance because of the absence of one trial panel member was properly denied, as was his motion for a continuance on the basis of a related pending criminal proceeding. His motion to quash the subpoenas issued to examine his bank accounts was likewise properly denied. Association's motion to deem its allegations admitted was erroneously sustained, and we do not consider them so admitted.

[22] The evidence is clear and convincing, however, that the Respondent has received clients' money and used the money for purposes other than for those clients. When a lawyer receives a client's funds for a specific purpose, he or she must apply those funds to that purpose. Rule 1.4(b) of the Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings.[FN22]

FN22. The version of Rule 1.4(b) applicable to this proceeding states in part:
Where money or other property has been entrusted to any attorney for a specific purpose, he must apply it to that purpose. He may avail himself of a counterclaim or setoff for fees against any money or other property of his client coming into his hands for such specific purpose, and a refusal to account for and deliver over such money or property upon demand shall be deemed a conversion.

The evidence shows acts of commingling. Client funds must be kept separate from the property of the lawyer. Rule 1.15(a) of the Rules of Professional Conduct.[FN23] ACI suffered a loss of $12,400 because the Respondent converted funds belonging to ACI. A lawyer may not convert the property of clients. Rule 1.4(c) of the Rules Governing Disciplinary Proceedings.[FN24] The Respondent deposited a check in the amount of $25,147.29 and wrote checks against that amount when he knew that another person had an interest in those funds. The funds were not preserved and kept separate until the dispute was resolved. This act violates Rule 1.15(c) of the Rules of Professional Conduct.[FN25]

FN23.Rule 1.15(a) states in part:
A lawyer shall hold property of clients or third persons that is in a lawyer's possession in connection with a representation separate from the lawyer's own property.

FN24.Rule 1.4(c) applicable herein states:
Theft by conversion or otherwise of the funds of a client shall, if proved, result in disbarment.

FN25.Rule 1.15(c) states:
When in the course of representation a lawyer is in possession of property in which both the lawyer and another person claim interests, the property shall be kept separate by the lawyer until there is an accounting and severance of their interests. If a dispute arises concerning their respective interests, the portion in dispute shall be kept separate by the lawyer until the dispute is resolved.

U. S. Trust Co. of New York v. Herriott
Mass.App.

Appeals Court of Massachusetts, Norfolk.
UNITED STATES TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK
v.
Richard L. HERRIOTT et al.[FN1]

FN1. Aloise B. Herriott and various corporations, trusts and partnerships in which Richard L. and Aloise B. Herriott had controlling interests.

Argued May 14, 1980.
Decided July 21, 1980.

Appeal was taken from the entry of a summary judgment by the Superior Court, Nolan, J., in favor of trust company which sought judgment against defendants on two promissory notes and also sought to set aside alleged fraudulent transfers, and from the assessment of attorney fees and expenses by the Superior Court, Beaudreau, J. The Appeals Court, Greaney, J., held that: (1) trial court did not abuse its discretion in refusing to continue summary judgment proceedings based on defendant's assertion that response to trust company's summary judgment motion would involve violation of his privilege aginst self-incrimination; (2) absence of any demonstration by defendants that triable issue existed on question of damages warranted entry of summary judgment for trust company on that issue; (3) award of attorney fees and expenses was proper; and (4) trial court did not abuse its discretion in determining that there was no just reason for delay in entry of judgment on trust company's claim on the notes and in directing entry of judgment accordingly.

Judgment affirmed.

In action wherein trust company sued on two promissory notes and to set aside alleged fraudulent transfers, trial judge, in deciding that certification of final summary judgment in favor of trust company on the promissory notes was appropriate, could have concluded that defendants' counterclaims had earmarks of afterthought, conceived in response to trust company's collection action, that nothing had been presented to demonstrate that the counterclaims had merit, that likelihood of recovery on the counterclaims was speculative, and that trust company was financially sound and in position to satisfy judgment on the counterclaims should any be entered, and therefore did not abuse its discretion in ordering entry of immediate judgment. GREANEY, Justice.

By its amended action, United States Trust Company of New York (Trust Company) sought judgment against Richard L. Herriott (Herriott) and his wife, Aloise B. Herriott, on two promissory notes,[FN2] aggregating $450,000, plus interest, attorney's fees and expenses of collection. The action also sought to set aside alleged fraudulent transfers of real and personal property made by one or the other of the Herriotts to various corporations or trusts under their control and to reach and apply the Herriotts' interests in certain of those corporations and trusts. After answering to the merits, the defendants set forth thirty-four counterclaims against the Trust Company which asserted that the plaintiff's315 action had intentionally or negligently interfered with the defendants' business relationships, that the suit constituted an abuse of process, and that the Trust Company's collection efforts violated G.L. c. 93A. Eighteen of the counterclaims were dismissed on the plaintiff's motion; the sixteen which survived are exclusively concerned with the Trust Company's action to reach and apply the interests of Herriott and his wife in the various business organizations under their control. The Trust Company filed a motion for summary judgment on the notes (Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(a), 365 Mass. 824 (1974)), supported by affidavits stating current indebtedness (with interest) and amounts due for attorney's fees and expenses. Neither Herriott (represented below by counsel other than their counsel on appeal) replied to the merits of the rule 56(a) motion. Instead, Richard Herriott moved for a continuance of the summary judgment proceedings on the ground that a response to the Trust Company's motion would violate his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination. That motion was denied and the plaintiff's motion for summary judgment allowed, with a certification by the judge that "there (is) no just reason for delay" in entering a judgment for the Trust Company.Mass.R.Civ.P. 54(b), 365 Mass. 821 (1974). After an evidentiary hearing on attorney's fees, a second judge ordered entry of a judgment for the plaintiff in the amount of $532,052.31.[FN3]The Herriotts' appeal from that judgment questions the propriety of the denial of the motion for a continuance; contends that they were improperly denied a jury trial on the assessment of damages; and challenges the sufficiency and correctness of the judicial certificate*385 under rule 54(b). We affirm the judgment.

FN2. The notes were made by Herriott and separately guaranteed by his wife.

FN3. The components of the judgment are as follows:

Damages (principal and interest on notes)	- $488,744.60
Attorney's fees	- $ 41,179.25
Expenses	- $ 2,128.46

1. Herriott argues that the judge abused his discretion in refusing to continue the summary judgment proceedings 316 based on the assertion that a response to the Trust Company's rule 56 motion would involve a violation of his privilege against self-incrimination. The motion requesting a continuance stated that Herriott was under investigation by a State grand jury in New York, that certain bank records, including records of the loans involved in this litigation, had been subpoenaed before that grand jury, that officers of the Trust Company "appear to have participated" in an investigation of Herriott's affairs by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and that, based on the criminal investigation, Herriott had received a protective order prohibiting the Trust Company from taking his deposition until September 10, 1979. The motion was signed by his attorney; a supporting affidavit setting forth these facts or other facts that might establish the claim of privilege was not filed as required by Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(f), 365 Mass. 825 (1974).

[1][2][3][4][5][6][7] There is no question that the Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination "applies alike to civil and criminal proceedings, wherever the answer might tend to subject to criminal responsibility him who gives it."McCarthy v. Arndstein, 266 U.S. 34, 40, 45 S.Ct. 16, 17, 69 L.Ed. 158 (1924). The scope of the application of the privilege is the same as in a criminal setting; that is, it "not only extends to (matters) that would in themselves support a conviction under a . . . criminal statute but likewise embraces (matters) which would furnish a link in the chain of evidence needed to prosecute the claimant for a . . . crime."Hoffman v. United States, 341 U.S. 479, 486, 71 S.Ct. 814, 818, 95 L.Ed. 1118 (1951). But the assertion of the privilege by a party in a civil case does not require the court to issue a blanket injunction staying the future course of the litigation. Nor is there a constitutional requirement that the civil proceeding must yield to the criminal one. See De Vita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172, 1181 (3d Cir.1970). See also Note, Resolving Tensions Between Constitutional Rights: Use Immunity in Concurrent or Related Proceedings, 76 Colum.L.Rev. 674, 701 (1976). Instead, the rights of the parties to the civil action are to be considered as equal. However, it would constitute a clear abuse of discretion for the judge to turn a deaf ear to 317 a serious claim of privilege. See generally Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, 431 U.S. 801, 805-806, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 2135-2136, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977). The judge's task is to balance any prejudice to the other civil litigants which might result from granting a stay, against the potential harm to the party claiming the privilege if he is compelled to choose between defending the civil action and protecting himself from criminal prosecution. See Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477, 478-480 (1st Cir.1977), cert. denied, 434 U.S. 1034, 98 S.Ct. 768, 54 L.Ed.2d 782 (1978). See also Flint v. Mullen, 499 F.2d 100 (1st Cir.), cert. denied, 419 U.S. 1026, 95 S.Ct. 505, 42 L.Ed.2d 301 (1974). As was well stated by the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit:

"There may be cases where the requirement that a criminal defendant participate in a civil action, at peril of being denied some portion of his worldly goods, violates concepts of elementary fairness in view of the defendant's position in an inter-related criminal prosecution. On the other hand, the fact that a man is indicted cannot give him a blank check to block all civil litigation on the same or related underlying subject matter. Justice is meted out in both civil and criminal litigation. The overall interest of the courts that justice be done may very well require that the compensation and remedy due a civil plaintiff should not be delayed (and possibly denied). The court, in its sound discretion, must assess and balance the nature and substantiality of the injustices claimed on either side."

Gordon v. Federal Deposit Ins. Corp., 427 F.2d 578, 580 (D.C.Cir.1970). The judge's actions should be supported by a statement of reasons or by a record which demonstrates the basis for his conclusion with *386 sufficient clarity to provide meaningful appellate review.

[8][9][10][11] When the privilege is asserted in a summary judgment proceeding, the policy behind rule 56 asserts itself and must be recognized. That policy seeks "to make possible the prompt 318 disposition of controversies on their merits without a trial, if in essence there is no real dispute as to the salient facts or if only a question of law is involved."Community Natl. Bank v. Dawes, 369 Mass. 550, 553, 340 N.E.2d 877, 879 (1976), quoting from 3 Barron & Holtzoff, Federal Practice and Procedure (Rules ed.) s 1231, at 96 (Wright rev.ed.1958). The rule itself expressly limits the judge's discretion to refuse summary judgment by providing that "(t)he judgment sought shall be rendered forthwith if the (materials) on file, together with the affidavits, if any, show that there is no genuine issue as to any material fact and that the moving party is entitled to a judgment as a matter or law."Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(c), 365 Mass. 824 (1974). To avoid summary judgment, an opposing party may not rely upon his pleadings or bald conclusions but "must set forth specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial."Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(e), 365 Mass. 825 (1974).Turner v. McCune, 4 Mass.App. 864, 865, 357 N.E.2d 942 (1976). If he is unable to do so, he is expected to file an affidavit pursuant to section (f), explaining "that he cannot for reasons stated present by affidavit facts essential to justify his opposition."Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(f), 365 Mass. at 825. In these circumstances "the court may refuse the application for judgment or may order a continuance or may make such other order as is just."Ibid. A party claiming his Fifth Amendment privilege ordinarily should file an affidavit invoking section (f) rather than relying upon a motion for continuance signed by his attorney, if he wishes to avoid the entry of judgment which is mandated when he does not respond as required by section (e). See also Inglett & Co. v. Everglades Fertilizer Co., 255 F.2d 342, 349-350 (5th Cir.1958) ("if it takes an oath to establish or affirm that which is a fact . . . we doubt that it is conducive to the orderly administration of justice for counsel to become the voice on summary judgment"). But see Brody v. United States, 243 F.2d 378, 387 n.5 (1st Cir.), cert. denied, 354 U.S. 923, 77 S.Ct. 1384, 1 L.Ed.2d 1438 (1957). Thus, at the stage of the case designed to ferret out and dispose of unsubstantiated claims, there is a need for sufficient specificity in the assertion of the privilege to permit a judge weighing a request319 for constitutional shelter to fashion a remedy which protects the rights of all parties and accommodates the policies underlying the privilege and the rule.

[12][13][14] Assuming that his counsel could raise Herriott's privilege in this case as his duly constituted agent (Brody, supra ; contrast Sousa v. Davenport, 3 Mass.App. 715, 323 N.E.2d 910 (1975)), Herriott has not shown an abuse of discretion by the judge in denying a continuance. In balancing the competing interests, the judge could have considered that Herriott had answered the merits of the Trust Company's claims and had stated multiple counterclaims, that portions of his answer raised some matters or defenses which could be supported by a rule 56(e) affidavit without the danger of self-incrimination, and that Herriott was obliged to file an affidavit under rule 56(e), at least as to those defenses stated in his answer where there could be no conceivable criminal implications. Also weighing against the defendant's motion were the facts that the records in the plaintiff's possession would not have been protected by the privilege (Couch v. United States, 409 U.S. 322, 330-336, 93 S.Ct. 611, 616-619, 34 L.Ed.2d 548 (1973)) and were open to full use by Herriott to resist summary judgment, that the continuance requested was generally open-ended and if allowed might have delayed the proceedings indefinitely, that the Trust Company's claims on the notes were strong, well corroborated and severable from the fraudulent conveyance claims (which more realistically might implicate the privilege), and that his motion for a continuance did not and could not apply to the responsibility of his wife on her separate guarantee. Moreover, Herriott *387 made no request of the judge to examine his materials in light of the privilege in in camera proceedings; nor did he seek an order impounding any information he might offer on the merits of the rule 56(a) motion or in support of his assertion of the privilege. The judge was not obligated to accept Herriott's subjective impression that he would be involuntarily compelled to testify if he responded to the Trust Company's materials. As has been stated in the context of a criminal prosecution, "That the defendant faces . . . a choice between complete 320 silence and presenting a defense has never been thought an invasion of the privilege against compelled self-incrimination."United States v. Hearst, 563 F.2d 1331, 1339 (9th Cir.1977), cert. denied, 435 U.S. 1000, 98 S.Ct. 1656, 56 L.Ed.2d 90 (1978). The constitutional protections in this context do not assure a civil litigant that he may remain silent and still enjoy the advantages that might have resulted from opposing the motion. On a sufficiently informative record and after giving a measure of deference to the judge's "personal perceptions of the peculiarities of the case," we feel that the judge acted properly. Hoffman v. United States, 341 U.S. at 486-487, 71 S.Ct. 814, 818.

[15][16][17] 2. The Herriotts next claim that they were denied their right to a jury trial on the question of damages and in the assessment of attorney's fees. We disagree. The plaintiff's motion was well documented on the matter of damages and included statements by a Trust Company vice president and one of its legal counsel setting out in detail the facts surrounding the execution of the notes; the overdue and unpaid principal and interest amounts; the amount of attorney's fees and expenses incurred in connection with attempts to enforce the Herriotts' obligations; the absence of any extension of time to repay; and the demands for payment. These assertions shifted to the defendants the burden of making a response setting forth specific facts showing that there was a genuine issue for trial. O'Brion, Russell & Co. v. LeMay, 370 Mass. 243, 245, 346 N.E.2d 861 (1976). The Herriotts failed to meet that burden. Actions to enforce promissory notes are especially suited to summary disposition because often "after pretrial, no issue remains as to execution of the note and the amount due, and no affirmative defenses have been pleaded." 6 Moore's Federal Practice, par. 56.17(8) at 56-759 (1980) (collecting cases). Community Natl. Bank v. Dawes, 369 Mass. at 553-556, 340 N.E.2d 877. The absence of any demonstration by the defendants that a triable issue existed on the question of damages warranted the entry of summary judgment for the plaintiff on that issue. Mass.R.Civ.P. 56(c), (e), (f), 365 Mass. 824, 825 (1974).

[18][19] The award of attorney's fees and expenses was also proper. The notes executed by Herriott expressly provided that the 321 borrower would be charged with all expenses (including a reasonable attorney's fee) incurred by the holder in connection with enforcement of the notes. The argument that the Trust Company had not yet "incurred" the expenses at the time of the hearing because its counsel had not billed for or received payment of fees at that time is frivolous. See Lincoln St. Realty Co. v. Green, 374 Mass. 630, --,[FNa]373 N.E.2d 1172 (1978). As with damages, nothing was filed by the defendants which showed a triable issue on the matter of counsel fees. The argument for a jury made before the judge who fixed the amount of the fees sought such a trial only on the question of damages. Our view of the transcript indicates that no argument was pressed for a jury to determine the reasonableness of the counsel fees. The amount of fees and expenses awarded was based on an extensive documentary record of time and charges supplied by the plaintiff's counsel, on the evidence at the hearing on the matter where counsel for the defendants was permitted to cross-examine on the question, and on the judge's consideration of the variables involved in fee setting discussed in the cases. See *388Cummings v. National Shawmut Bank, 284 Mass. 563, 569, 188 N.E. 489 (1933); Heller v. Silverbranch Constr. Corp., 376 Mass. --, --,[FNb]382 N.E.2d 1065 (1978); Perkins v. [20][21][22] 3. The remaining question concerns the propriety of the determination that there was no just reason for delay in the entry of judgment on the Trust Company's claim on the notes and in directing the entry of judgment accordingly.[FN4]"The entry of such a certificate presents a matter for the trial court's discretion"(Acme Engr. & Mfg. Corp. v. Airadyne Co., --Mass.App. --, --,[FNc]404 N.E.2d 693 (1980); the exercise of that 322 discretion is subject to appellate review. J. B. L. Constr. Co. v. Lincoln Homes Corp., --Mass.App. --, -- - --,[FNd]400 N.E.2d 871 (1980), Sears, Roebuck & Co. v. Mackey, 351 U.S. 427, 436, 437, 76 S.Ct. 895, 900, 100 L.Ed. 1297 (1956). The trial court's determination is entitled to a measure of deference, for that court is "the one most likely to be familiar with the case and with any justifiable reasons for delay."Sears, supra at 437, 76 S.Ct. at 901. Nevertheless, such a certificate should not be entered " 'routinely or as a courtesy or accommodation to counsel' " (Acme, supra at --,[FNe] 404 N.E.2d at 696 quoting from Panichella v. Pennsylvania R. R., 252 F.2d 452, 455 (3d Cir. 1958)), but only where, after balancing the competing factors, the judge in the trial court can say with assurance based on facts in the record that finality of judgment should be ordered to advance the interests of sound judicial administration (Sears, supra at 437, 76 S.Ct. at 900), and to prevent the " 'danger of hardship or injustice' " posed by delay. Acme, supra, at --,[FNf]404 N.E.2d 693, quoting from Campbell v. Westmoreland Farm, Inc., 403 F.2d 939, 942 (2d Cir. 1968). See Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. General Elec. Co., --U.S. --, 100 S.Ct. 1460, 64 L.Ed.2d 1 (1980).

FN4. The judge who allowed the motion for summary judgment made the certification under rule 54(b). A second judge ordered the entry of judgment after updating the interest due on the notes and determining the amount to be awarded as attorney's fees and expenses. Contrary to the Herriotts' contention, the judge's certification on the motion for summary judgment is not equivocal, and it is plain to us that he was directing the entry of an immediate judgment on the claims settled by the allowance of that [23][24][25] The Herriotts argue that the presence of their unadjudicated conuterclaims renders the certificate improper. The presence of counterclaims requires that the judge exercise special care before issuing the certificate, but their presence alone does not render a rule 54(b) certificate inappropriate. Curtiss-Wright, supra at --, 100 S.Ct. at 1465. Counterclaims, whether permissive or compulsory, are to be evaluated like other claims, and "their significance for Rule 54(b) purposes turns on their interrelationship with the claims on which certification is sought."Ibid. In deciding that certification was appropriate, the judge could have considered the matters already discussed in connection with the motion for a continuance and the fact that the remaining claims and counterclaims were factually and legally distinct from the claims which had been determined by the motion for summary judgment. The judge could have concluded that the defendants' counterclaims "had the earmarks of an afterthought, conceived in response to (the plaintiff's) collection 323 action," that nothing had been presented to demonstrate that the counterclaims had merit, and "that the likelihood of recovery on the counterclaim(s) was therefore speculative."Acme, supra --Mass.App. at --,[FNg]404 N.E.2d at 69. Finally, the judge could have considered the fact that the plaintiff was financially sound and in a position to satisfy a judgment on the counterclaims should any be entered. It has not been made to appear that the *389 judge abused his discretion in ordering the entry of an immediate judgment.

Commissioner of Social Services brought child abuse action. The Family Court, Bronx County, Zuckerman, J., denied parents' application for continuance, and parents appealed. The Supreme Court, Appellate Division, First Department, held that trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying parents' application for six-month continuance until the conclusion of related criminal proceeding charging them with manslaughter in the second degree and criminally negligent homicide in connection with the death of one of their children.

MEMORANDUM DECISION.

Order of the Family Court, Bronx County, entered September 9, 1981, denying application of respondents-appellants for a six-month continuance of a child abuse proceeding until the conclusion of related criminal 848 proceedings against them, unanimously affirmed, without costs.

Respondents-appellants, Alice B. and Henry R.B., parents of two children in a child abuse proceeding, appeal from an order of the Family Court denying their oral application for a six-month continuance of the proceedings against them until the conclusion of related criminal proceedings charging them with manslaughter in the second degree and criminally negligent homicide in connection with the death of a third child.

The principal issue is raised by the contention of respondents-appellants that their constitutionally protected right against self-incrimination will be violated if they are required to proceed to trial in the pending Family Court child abuse proceeding prior to the trial in the criminal case. In substance, respondents-appellants argue that it is impermissible to confront them with the choice of giving testimony in the Family Court proceeding that might thereafter be used against them in the criminal trial, or suffer the disadvantage arising from their failure to testify.

party is required to proceed in a civil proceeding before adjudication of related criminal charges. See Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810;*Diebold v. Civil Serv. The situation presented is clearly to be distinguished from those in which an automatic penalty follows the failure of a witness or party to testify in a proceeding. Cf. Gardner v. Broderick, 392 U.S. 273, 88 S.Ct. 1913, 20 L.Ed.2d 1082;Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 17 L.Ed.2d 562;*Spevack v. [2] The question thus is one addressed to the discretion of the Family Court, and we are not persuaded under the circumstances presented that the denial of the application constituted an abuse of discretion. The Family Court clearly had the right to consider the interests of the children in an expeditious determination of the child abuse proceedings.

In finding no abuse of discretion under the circumstances presented, we do not intend450 to minimize the possible disadvantage to those in the position of respondents-appellants in being required to proceed first with a child abuse proceeding intimately related to a pending criminal charge. We also appreciate that a just resolution of the Family Court proceeding might be furthered by the removal of an impediment to relevant testimony by critical witnesses.

Clearly the preferable resolution of the dilemma presented is, when reasonably possible, to try the criminal case so promptly that it would avoid any harmful delay in the determination of the important matters before the Family Court. What is urgently required is the close and active cooperation of the judges in charge of the separate proceedings, the counsel for the varied parties, and the parties themselves.

United States Court of Appeals,First Circuit.
Alexander T. ARTHURS, Plaintiff, Appellee,
v.
Chris O. STERN et al., Defendants, Appellants.
No. 77-1122.

Argued June 6, 1977.
Decided Aug. 16, 1977.
As Amended on Denial of Rehearing Sept. 23, 1977.

A physician accused of writing illegal prescriptions brought an action in federal district court to require that a state disciplinary board suspend disciplinary proceedings against him until criminal charges arising out of such activities were disposed of. The United States District Court for the District of Massachusetts, 427 F.Supp. 425, Joseph L. Tauro, J., enjoined the disciplinary board from refusing a continuance, and an appeal was taken. The Court of Appeals, Coffin, Chief Judge, held that self-incrimination principles did not require that the disciplinary proceedings be stayed.

*478 COFFIN, Chief Judge.

The plaintiff-appellee is a physician accused of writing illegal prescriptions. As a result of the charges, disciplinary proceedings were begun before the Board of Registration and Discipline in Medicine of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. A criminal investigation was also begun, and indictments were handed down. When the disciplinary hearing began, the plaintiff requested that proceedings be continued until after disposition of the criminal charges. The hearing officer refused, pointing to a state statute (s 63) that forbids continuances of that sort.[FN1]

FN1. "Said boards shall not defer action upon any charge before them until the conviction of the person accused . . ."Mass.Gen. Laws, ch. 112, s 63.

The plaintiff then brought this suit in federal district court. He pointed out that the disciplinary board would draw an adverse inference from his silence if he invoked his privilege against self-incrimination at the hearing. The threat of losing his license, he argued, would force him to testify, thus revealing his criminal defenses and making statements that might be used against him in the criminal trial. The district court, relying on the Fifth Amendment's privilege against self-incrimination and general notions of due process, enjoined the disciplinary board from using s 63 as a reason for refusing the plaintiff a continuance. The present appeal followed. After the appeal, but before this opinion issued, one set of criminal charges went to trial. Plaintiff testified at his trial and was acquitted.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

Other charges are pending, and the board has not attempted to go forward with its proceedings.

This case can be resolved on the merits [FN2] by reference to settled law. The board is not constitutionally forbidden from drawing an adverse inference if a doctor refuses to testify at a disciplinary hearing. The board is not conducting a criminal trial, and civil proceedings are governed by a different set of Fifth Amendment principles. In civil cases, the state may not force incriminating testimony from a citizen by threatening penalties or automatic unfavorable judgments. See, e. g., Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, 431 U.S. 801, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977). But this principle does not control when the only consequence of silence is the danger that the trier of fact will treat silence as evidence of guilt.[FN3]The distinction is drawn in Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976), which held that a prison disciplinary board may give weight to an accused inmate's silence when he stands mute for fear of a related criminal prosecution. The Baxter Court stated the principle broadly: the Fifth Amendment does not bar an adverse inference "where the privilege is claimed by a party to a civil cause."Id. at 318, 96 S.Ct. at 1558.We think it applies as forcefully in medical discipline cases as it does in prison discipline cases. The appellee's assertion that doctors have a stronger liberty and property interest in continuing their practice than prisoners have in avoiding discipline is not very persuasive. Moreover, while such distinctions may have a place in a procedural or substantive due process case, they are not relevant to Fifth Amendment analysis. Cf. Paul v. Davis, 424 U.S. 693, 96 S.Ct. 1155, 47 L.Ed.2d 405 (1976).

> FN2. On appeal, for the first time, the board urges several other grounds for reversal. We are reluctant to consider them at this late date. Because we reverse on the merits, we need not decide whether these belated arguments were properly before us.

> FN3. The Commonwealth has stated in its brief (p. 42) that "The Board's ultimate decision could not be based solely upon an adverse inference drawn from (the doctor's) presumed refusal to testify . . . (S)uch a determination would lack substantial evidence and be subject to sure invalidation upon judicial review."

Nor is there anything inherently repugnant to due process in requiring the doctor to choose between giving testimony at the disciplinary hearing, a course that may help the criminal prosecutors, and keeping silent, *479 a course that may lead to the loss of his license. The doctor's due process argument rests in part on the claim that the threat of an adverse inference unfairly forces him to reveal his criminal defense in advance of trial. He has some case support for his proposition. Silver v. McCamey, 95 U.S.App.D.C. 318, 221 F.2d 873 (1955).[FN4] To the extent that this argument rests on the broad ground that parties with something to lose in a proceeding may never be forced to make this choice, it is answered by United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 90 S.Ct. 763, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 (1970). In Kordel, the FDA began an in rem action against two products sold by a corporation whose officers were in serious danger of criminal prosecutions related to the products. The officers argued that it violated due process to hold the civil proceeding, with its attendant discovery, before the criminal trial. This the Court emphatically and unanimously denied:

> FN4. A related argument is that the threat of subsequent criminal proceedings unfairly forces him to remain silent and thus constitutes an unconstitutional restriction on the evidence the board accepts. Cf. Bowman Trans., Inc. v. Arkansas-Best Freight System, Inc., 419 U.S. 281, 288 n. 4, 95 S.Ct. 438, 42 L.Ed.2d 447 (1974). We see no merit in this claim. See generally Flint v. Mullin, 499 F.2d 100 (1st Cir. 1974). The cases on which appellee apparently relies on are inapposite; they deal with the limits of judicial notice and rest on notions of unfair surprise. See, e. g., Ohio Bell Telephone Co. v. Public Utilities Comm'n, 301 U.S. 292, 57 S.Ct. 724, 81 L.Ed. 1093 (1937).

"The public interest in protecting consumers throughout the Nation from misbranded drugs requires prompt action by the agency charged with responsibility for administration of the federal food and drug laws. But a rational decision whether to proceed criminally against those responsible for the misbranding may have to await consideration of a fuller record than that before the agency at the time of the civil seizure of the offending products. It would stultify enforcement of federal law to require a governmental agency such as FDA invariably to choose either to forego recommendation of a criminal prosecution once it seeks civil relief, or to defer civil proceedings pending the ultimate outcome of a criminal trial."Id. at 11,[FN5]90 S.Ct. at 769.

> FN5. The Kordel Court found no particular facts requiring a different result in that case. Nor do we find such facts here. The disciplinary proceeding was not brought solely to obtain evidence for the criminal prosecution; the doctor was aware during the hearing of the pending criminal actions; the doctor had counsel; and the doctor does not claim a danger of adverse publicity or any other special circumstances. See Kordel, supra, 397 U.S. at 11-12, 90 S.Ct. 763.

The defendants in Kordel raised one hypothetical that disturbed the Court. Suppose, they argued, no officer could answer the civil interrogatories without incriminating himself. The Court responded that "(f)or present purposes we may assume that in such a case the appropriate remedy would be a protective order under Rule 30(b), postponing civil discovery until after termination of the criminal action."Id. at 9, 90 S.Ct. at 768.

The doctor seizes on this cautiously tentative language, arguing that the Fifth Amendment may require the board to stay its proceedings until the criminal action ends. We disagree. Whatever suggestion that such an order is compelled might be read into this dictum would seem to be negated by the later decision in Baxter v. Palmigiano, supra.Indeed, the discussion in Kordel regarding protective orders is limited to the unique context in which corporate officers might be prevented from exercising their Fifth Amendment privilege because to do so would unacceptably extend the constitutional protection to the corporation which employed them. This is totally inapposite to the case before us. The remainder of the Kordel opinion is simply a recognition of the power of federal courts, after a balancing of interests in the particular case before them, to stay civil suits because of pending criminal charges. See, e. g., Gordon v. FDIC, 138 U.S.App.D.C. 308, 427 F.2d 578 (1968). The denial is 480 reviewed simply for abuse of discretion. See Iannelli v. Long, 487 F.2d 317 (3d Cir. 1973); General Dynamics Corp. v. Selb Mfg. Co., 481 F.2d 1204 (8th Cir. 1973). Given the strong public interest in promptly disciplining errant physicians taken as a class, we see no reason to hold that the board was or could be constitutionally required to stay its proceedings until the criminal prosecutions against any particular doctor were over[FN6]. De Vita v. Sills, 422 F.2d 1172 (3d Cir. 1970); United States v. Sloan, 388 F.Supp. 1062 (S.D.N.Y.1975); Keene v. Rodgers, 316 F.Supp. 217, 221 n. 4 (D.Me.1970).

> FN6. The district court took the view that s 63 impermissibly restricted the board's discretion to grant a continuance. We have concluded that the constitution does not require a stay in this case; we need not ask whether s 63 can be constitutionally applied in all cases. The statute is constitutional as applied, and we see no reason to create a variant of "overbreadth" analysis for cases of this sort.

No. 77-1565.

Argued March 8, 1978.
Decided June 21, 1978.

State university student, who was denied assistance of counsel at a student disciplinary hearing, sought injunctive relief restraining university from conducting such hearing unless he was allowed representation by attorney of choice. The United States District Court for the District of Rhode Island, Francis J. Boyle, J., entered preliminary injunction, and university appealed. The Court of Appeals, Bownes, Circuit Judge, held that because of pending criminal case against student, denial to student of right to have a lawyer of his own choice consult with him and advise him during student disciplinary hearing without participating further in such proceeding would deprive student of due process of law.

Where there was pending criminal case against state university student arising out of same facts giving rise to student disciplinary hearing, denial to student of right to have lawyer of his own choice consult with and advise him during student disciplinary hearing without participating further in such proceeding would deprive student of due process of law.

BOWNES, Circuit Judge.

This is an appeal by defendants-appellants, officials of the University of Rhode Island, pursuant to 28 U.S.C. s 1292(a) from an order of the United States District Court for the District of Rhode Island granting a preliminary injunction restraining appellants from conducting a disciplinary hearing against plaintiff-appellee, Steven A. Gabrilowitz, unless he is allowed to be represented by an attorney of his choice.

At the outset, we note that the issue before us is somewhat different than that presented by the terms of the injunction. We interpret the injunction to mean, as counsel did in their briefs, that appellee's attorney, if allowed to represent him at the hearing, would do so in the traditional sense, I. e., he would conduct direct and cross-examination. At oral argument, counsel for appellee stated in response to a question from the bench that it was not necessary for the lawyer to participate in direct or cross-examination; all that appellee wanted was that a lawyer be at his side during the hearing for consultation and advice. It is in this context, therefore, that we address ourselves to the case.

On November 11, 1977, the South Kingstown, Rhode Island, Police Department charged appellee, a senior at the University of Rhode Island (U.R.I.), with assault with intent to commit rape on another student on October 18, 1977.[FN1] While appellee was at the police station being charged, a U.R.I. employee delivered a letter to him notifying him that he had been suspended from the school and barred from entering the campus. On November 16, 1977, U.R.I. sent appellee another letter informing him that the campus police had charged him with violating the U.R.I. Community Standards of Behavior.[FN2] Gabrilowitz was directed to defend against the specific allegations of assault with intent to rape and an additional allegation of a later assault on the same student before the University Board on Student Conduct (U.B.S.C.). The letter outlined the procedures of the hearing and informed appellee of the existence of rules defining his rights at the hearing. One of the rules prohibits the existence or presence 102 of legal counsel at the hearing. Appellee, thereupon, petitioned the district court for an injunction pursuant to 42 U.S.C. s 1983.

FN1. R.I.Gen.Laws s 11-5-1 (1970).

FN2. Appellee was charged with violating Section 2.4, Part 2, of the Community Standards of Behavior : "Fighting, threats to, physical abuse of, or harrassment (Sic) which threatens to or endangers the health, safety, or welfare of a member of the university community."

The procedural guidelines for a disciplinary hearing are set forth in Section 23 of Part 2 of RamPages, a student's guide to the University. While the student is not "permitted to employ professional legal counsel or other persons from outside the University community to present the case before the hearing board," he "shall have the right to request the assistance of an advisor of his/her choice from the community."Section 23.6.

© 2008 Thomson/West. No Claim to Orig. U.S. Govt. Works.

"The technical rules of evidence applicable to civil and criminal trials are not applicable and the board shall rule on the admissibility of evidence."Section 23.8.

"During the hearing, the accused student and/or his/her advisor shall have the right to cross-examine all witnesses and to view and question all evidence presented to the judicial board. . . ." Section 23.9.

"Decisions shall be based only upon evidence and testimony introduced at the hearing."Section 23.10.

"In cases in which a student denies an allegation, the burden of proof shall rest upon the person bringing the charge."Section 23.11.

"All decisions made by a judicial board shall be by a majority vote. . . ." Section 23.12.

There is a right of appeal: "Such appeals shall be based only on specific evidence, presenting (Sic) in writing, of fraud, denial of rights, procedural error, or on the claim of new evidence not previously available which would have materially affected the decision of the board."Section 23.22.

After a two-day hearing, the district court found irreparable harm and, while noting that the weight of authority supported the position of appellant, decided that, under the circumstances of this case, there was a due process violation.

[1] We note preliminarily that this action is not barred by the doctrine of Younger v. Harris, 401 U.S. 37, 91 S.Ct. 746, 27 L.Ed.2d 669 (1971). Younger applies to some civil and administrative proceedings, Geiger v. Jenkins, 401 U.S. 985, 91 S.Ct. 1236, 28 L.Ed.2d 525 (1971), but is not a bar to a challenge to a state proceeding claimed to be constitutionally defective. Withrow v. Larkin, 421 U.S. 35, 44 n. 8, 95 S.Ct. 1456, 43 L.Ed.2d 712 (1975); Gibson v. Berryhill, 411 U.S. 564, 93 S.Ct. 1689, 36 L.Ed.2d 488 (1973). Younger presupposed the existence of a competent state forum. The U.R.I. Community Standards of Behavior prohibit legal counsel under all circumstances. There is no opportunity here to present the federal claim in a state judicial proceeding. Cf. Juidice v. Vail, 430 U.S. 327, 337 n. 15, 97 S.Ct. 1211, 51 L.Ed.2d 376 (1977).

[2] The issuance of a preliminary injunction lies within the sound discretion of the trial court and will not be reversed absent a clear abuse of that discretion, Grimard v. Carlston, 567 F.2d 1171 (1st Cir. 1978), or a clear error of law, Automatic Radio Mfg. Co. v. Ford Motor Company, 390 F.2d 113, 115 (1st Cir.), Cert. denied, 391 U.S. 914, 88 S.Ct. 1807, 20 L.Ed.2d 653 (1968). The power of a federal court to stay a civil proceeding because of a nexus between that proceeding and a pending criminal case is well established. United States v. Kordel, 397 U.S. 1, 12 n.25, n.27, 90 S.Ct. 763, 25 L.Ed.2d 1 (1970); Arthurs v. Stern, 560 F.2d 477, 479 (1st Cir. 1977); Silver v. McCamey, 95 U.S.App.D.C. 318, 221 F.2d 873 (1955).

Appellants' position is that the district court committed errors of law of such magnitude in issuing the injunction as to amount to an abuse of discretion. In addition to claiming that the order requiring the appointment of counsel in a student disciplinary hearing is contrary to authority, appellants also claim that it was error for the district court to take into consideration the effect that the disciplinary proceeding might have on the pending criminal action.

We deal first with the alleged error of considering the implications of the criminal case. We reject at the outset appellants' assertion that criminal and civil proceedings 103 arising out of the same facts are unrelated and must be treated as separate entities. Judicial deference to academic autonomy is not a before-the-fact policy. Rather, it emerges from a balancing of the interests of the parties. See e. g., Downing v. LeBritton, 550 F.2d 689 (1st Cir. 1977); Wasson v. Trowbridge, 382 F.2d 807 (2d Cir. 1967).

Were the appellee to testify in the disciplinary proceeding, his statement could be used as evidence in the criminal case either to impeach or as an admission if he did not choose to testify. Appellee contends that he is, therefore, impaled on the horns of a legal dilemma: if he mounts a full defense at the disciplinary hearing without the assistance of counsel and testifies on his own behalf, he might jeopardize his defense in the criminal case; if he fails to fully defend himself or chooses not to testify at all, he risks loss of the college degree he is within weeks of receiving and his reputation will be seriously blemished. Appellants respond that appellee risks nothing by mounting a full defense at the hearing because his words would be compelled testimony precluded from admission at the criminal case under the doctrine of Garrity v. New Jersey, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 17 L.Ed.2d 562 (1967). See also Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, 431 U.S. 801, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 53 L.Ed.2d 1 (1977). It is our opinion that neither Garrity nor Lefkowitz apply to the facts of this case.

In Garrity v. New Jersey, supra, 385 U.S. 493, 87 S.Ct. 616, 17 L.Ed.2d 562, police officers were questioned in the course of a state investigation of ticket fixing.

Before being questioned, each appellant was warned (1) that anything he said might be used against him in any state criminal proceeding; (2) that he had the privilege to refuse to answer if the disclosure would tend to incriminate him; but (3) that if he refused to answer he would be subject to removal from office.Id. at 494, 87 S.Ct. at 617.

In setting aside the convictions that resulted from testifying at the investigation, the Court focused on the fact that "(t)he choice imposed on petitioners was one between self-incrimination or job forfeiture."Id. at 496, 87 S.Ct. at 618. The Court found: "Where the choice is 'between the rock and the whirlpool,' duress is inherent in deciding to 'waive' one or the other."Id. at 498, 87 S.Ct. at 619.[FN3]

> FN3. Appellants misconstrue the reliance of the Vermont Supreme Court on Garrity in Nzuve v. Castleton State College, 133 Vt. 225, 232, 335 A.2d 321, 326 (1975), a case involving a factual situation nearly identical to the one at hand. The court in Nzuve concurred with the line of reasoning advanced in Furutani v. Ewigleben, 297 F.Supp. 1163 (N.D.Cal.1969), that any statement made under compulsion by students subject to disciplinary proceedings would not be admissible at a subsequent criminal proceeding. However, the court also found no compulsion to exist in Nzuve, and ruled that any statement made by the student would be voluntary and subsequently admissible at the criminal proceeding. We also note that the student in Nzuve was entitled to counsel at the disciplinary proceeding.Nzuve, supra, 133 Vt. at 232, 335 A.2d at 326.

Duress was also the key factor in Lefkowitz v. Cunningham, supra, 431 U.S. 801, 97 S.Ct. 2132, 53 L.Ed.2d 1. At issue was the constitutionality of a New York statute providing that, if an officer of a political party was subpoenaed by a grand jury to testify about the conduct of his office and refused to testify or waive immunity against criminal prosecution, his term of office would be terminated and he would be disqualified from holding any party or public office for five years. In holding the statute unconstitutional, the Court said: "These cases settle that government cannot penalize assertion of the constitutional privilege against compelled self-incrimination by imposing sanctions to compel testimony which has not been immunized."Id. at 806, 97 S.Ct. at 2137.

The case at bar does not involve compelled testimony. The U.R.I. standards governing a disciplinary hearing neither require nor prohibit the drawing of an adverse inference from the silence of the accused. The procedures outlined in Section 23.10 state simply: "Decisions shall be based only upon evidence and testimony 104 introduced at the hearing."The letter of suspension enclosed a list of procedures to be followed during the hearing which included the right "(t)o remain silent and not testify against himself/herself."The outline of procedures also stated: "Student(s) should remember that if they remain silent, the Board is compelled to hear the case and render a decision based on the evidence presented."Exhibit No. 4 at I(c)(5). There is no indication that the hearing board will consider the silence of an accused as either pointing to or being conclusive evidence of guilt. Appellee's testimony would be, therefore, entirely voluntary and subsequently admissible at the criminal case. Although the possibility of expulsion may make participation a wise choice, the hearing procedures do not place appellee "between the rock and the whirlpool."Garrity v. New Jersey, supra, 385 U.S. at 498, 87 S.Ct. at 619. He can, if he wishes, stay out of the stream and watch the proceedings from dry land. But, if he does so, he forfeits any opportunity to control the direction of the current. Appellee must decide whether or not to testify at the hearing with the knowledge that, if he does, his statements may be used against him in the criminal case.

[3] A factor which further complicates the choice is an awareness of his own inability to evaluate the effect his statements may have in the criminal case. Although the choice facing him is difficult, that does not make it unconstitutional. In McGautha v. California, 402 U.S. 183, 91 S.Ct. 1454, 28 L.Ed.2d 711 (1971), a case involving a convicted murderer faced with the Hobson's choice of testifying in the hope of a lenient sentence and risking self-incrimination or remaining silent and facing a harsh sentence, the Court said: "The criminal process, like the rest of the legal system, is replete with situations requiring the 'making of difficult judgments' as to which course to follow."Id. at 213, 91 S.Ct. at 1470. This court followed McGautha when considering the case of a convicted felon found in violation of a deferred sentence agreement.Flint v. Mullen, 499 F.2d 100 (1st Cir. 1974). In rejecting the contention that defendant was unconstitutionally forced to choose between testifying at the sentencing hearing and risking self-incrimination at a criminal trial arising out of the same facts, we noted the applicability of the principle applied in McGautha :

> A defendant at a criminal trial for a substantive offense may wish to speak in his own defense but refrain, fearing a subsequent conspiracy prosecution. The choice is a strategic one, within a setting which requires many strategic choices.
> We would view the choice as less strategic were an adverse finding to be based on the fact of defendant's silence, rather than independent evidence, as here.

Flint v. Mullen, supra, 499 F.2d at 103.

The issue is not whether it is unconstitutional to force appellee to decide whether or not to testify in the disciplinary proceeding. The issue is whether he is unconstitutionally deprived of due process of law because he is forced to make that choice, or other choices, without the benefit of a lawyer in the face of a pending criminal case arising from the same facts that triggered the disciplinary proceeding.

We recognize, as did the district court, that most courts have declined to grant students the right to counsel in disciplinary proceedings. But, with the exception of Nzuve v. Castleton State College, 133 Vt. 225, 232, 335 A.2d 321, 326 (1975), and Furutani v. Ewigleben, 297 F.Supp. 1163 (N.D.Cal.1969), these cases did not involve the specter of a pending criminal case hovering over the hearing. See e. g., Wasson v. Trowbridge, supra, 382 F.2d 807;Garshman v. Pennsylvania State University, 395 F.Supp. 912;Haynes v. Dallas County Junior College District, 386 F.Supp. 208 (N.D.Tex.1974); Barker v. Hardway, 283 F.Supp. 228 (S.D.W.Va.), Cert. denied, 394 U.S. 905, 89 S.Ct. 1009, 22 L.Ed.2d 217 (1969); Due v. Florida A. & M. University, 233 F.Supp. 396 (N.D.Fla.1963).

There are cases, however, holding that due process mandates the right to counsel at student expulsion proceedings.105Mills v. Board of Education of District of Columbia, 348 F.Supp. 866, 881 (D.D.C.1972); Givens v. Poe, 346 F.Supp. 202, 209 (W.D.N.C.1972); Esteban v. Central Missouri State College, 277 F.Supp. 649, 651 (W.D.Mo.1967).[FN4]

> FN4. We are aware, of course, of those cases holding that prisoners in disciplinary proceedings are not allowed counsel.Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976); Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 94 S.Ct. 2963, 41 L.Ed.2d 935 (1974). We do not find those cases controlling because of two key distinguishing features: (1) the absence of pending criminal charges in those cases, and (2) the exceptional nature of the prison context. In Baxter, the Court specifically noted that "(n)o criminal proceedings are or were pending against Palmigiano."425 U.S. at 317, 96 S.Ct. at 1557. The Court also observed that the "peculiar environment of the prison setting", Id. at 322 n. 5, 96 S.Ct. at 1560, made inappropriate certain procedural requirements. We do not read Palmigiano or Wolff as applying to situations outside the prison walls. Indeed, the Court observed that "one cannot automatically apply procedural rules designed for free citizens in an open society, or for parolees or probationers under only limited restraints, to the very different situation presented by a disciplinary proceeding in a state prison."418 U.S. at 560, 94 S.Ct. at 2977. Repeated references to the exigencies attending prison settings and the concomitant inappropriateness of applying inflexible due process standards are sprinkled throughout both Palmigiano and Wolff.

Cf. Mathis v. United States, 391 U.S. 1, 88 S.Ct. 1503, 20 L.Ed.2d 381 (1968), for an analysis by the Court of a situation where even a prisoner is entitled to counsel and the warning of his right to remain silent. Mathis involved a prisoner, incarcerated for one crime, who was interrogated by an I.R.S. agent concerning possible tax violations. As a result of the questioning, criminal charges were brought against the prisoner. The Court there held that, because the tax investigation was always colored by the possibility of a subsequent criminal prosecution, Miranda rights attached. The importance of Mathis is that it illustrates that, even within the prison setting, there are instances where the right to counsel is essential to ensure due process. The likelihood or pendency of criminal charges resulting from the interrogation presents such circumstances.
See also Gagnon v. Scarpelli, 411 U.S. 778, 93 S.Ct. 1756, 36 L.Ed.2d 656 (1973), for a discussion of the case-by-case approach to be taken in parole and probation revocation hearings on the issue of whether counsel should be permitted."The need for counsel at revocation hearings derives, not from the invariable attributes of those hearings, but rather from the peculiarities of particular cases."Id. at 789, 93 S.Ct. at 1763. In making the analysis of whether counsel is required, the "touchstone" should be "fundamental fairness." Id. at 790, 93 S.Ct. at 1763.

Because of the lack of compelling precedent, we apply the traditional due process balancing test as delineated by the Supreme Court in Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 334-335, 96 S.Ct. 893, 903, 47 L.Ed.2d 18 (1976):

More precisely, our prior decisions indicate that identification of the specific dictates of due process generally requires consideration of three distinct factors: First, the private interest that will be affected by the official action; second, the risk of an erroneous deprivation of such interest through the procedures used, and the probable value, if any, of additional or substitute procedural safeguards; and finally, the Government's interest, including the function involved and the fiscal and administrative burdens that the additional or substitute procedural requirement would entail.

See also Board of Curators of University of Missouri v. Horowitz, 435 U.S. 78, 99-100, 98 S.Ct. 948, 55 L.Ed.2d 124, 46 U.S.L.W. 4179, 4185 (1978); Goldberg v. Kelly, 397 U.S. 254, 263-271, 90 S.Ct. 1011, 25 L.Ed.2d 287 (1970).

The private interest and risk of erroneous deprivation that will be affected by the refusal of the hearing board to allow appellee the assistance of counsel depend upon the choice made at the hearing. If appellee chooses not to risk self-incrimination, he risks loss of his college degree. If he chooses to protect his degree, he risks self-incrimination and possible imprisonment of up to twenty years.[FN5] All that appellee asks is that he be allowed the advice of counsel when he throws his college degree into the balance against a possible loss of liberty. Appellee has not asked that the hearing be postponed until after the criminal case has been tried; he is willing to participate in the hearing provided he is accompanied by 106 counsel to advise and guide him. The role of his attorney could be analogized to that of counsel representing a client at a congressional investigative hearing. We echo the comments of the district judge:

FN5.R.I.Gen.Laws s 11-5-1 (1970).

Further, the charge of assault with intent to rape is decidedly a matter of legal construction. Indeed, the definition of assault by itself, known and applied by legal professionals, is markedly different from the concept of laymen of what actions constitute an assault. The consequences of this plaintiff's participation in what otherwise might be strictly a University affair, reaches well beyond the University walls in terms of potential effect upon this plaintiff.

In Flint v. Mullen, supra, 499 F.2d 100, we found the convicted felon not to be presented with an unconstitutional choice because, Inter alia, "(p)etitioner, however, was provided with counsel, and both petitioner and his counsel had full opportunity to cross-examine every adverse witness and could have called their own."Id. at 103. More recently, we reversed the enjoining of disciplinary proceedings against a physician until criminal charges arising out of the same actions were completed, finding: "The disciplinary proceeding was not brought solely to obtain evidence for the criminal prosecution; the doctor was aware during the hearing of the pending criminal actions; The doctor had counsel ; . . ." (emphasis added). Arthurs v. Stern, supra, 560 F.2d at 479 n.5. See also United States v. Kordel, supra, 397 U.S. at 12 n.25, n.27, 90 S.Ct. 763.

Appellee's need for an attorney at the hearing seems obvious. With the exception of the denial of counsel, the disciplinary proceedings are, in many respects, similar to that of a criminal trial. Only a lawyer is competent to cope with the demands of an adversary proceeding held against the backdrop of a pending criminal case involving the same set of facts. The risk involved in participation at the hearing is substantial with counsel present; without counsel, it is enormous. The presence of counsel will, of course, not remove all risks. It will, however, enable appellee to make an intelligent, informed choice between the risks presented.

Academic institutions have a significant interest in the promulgation of procedures for the resolution of student disciplinary problems. Healy v. James, 408 U.S. 169, 184, 92 S.Ct. 2338, 33 L.Ed.2d 266 (1972); Wasson v. Trowbridge, supra, 382 F.2d 807; Dixon v. Alabama State Board of Education, 294 F.2d 150 (5th Cir.), Cert. denied, 368 U.S. 930, 82 S.Ct. 368, 7 L.Ed.2d 193 (1961); Morales v. Grigel, 422 F.Supp. 988, 997 (D.N.H.1976); Furutani v. Ewigleben, supra, 297 F.Supp. 1163. The limited role of counsel that we are considering, however, would not be very intrusive. Counsel would be present only to safeguard appellee's rights at the criminal proceeding, [FN6] not to affect the outcome of the disciplinary hearing. Counsel's principal functions would be to advise appellee whether he should answer questions and what he should not say so as to safeguard appellee from self-incrimination; and to observe the proceeding first-hand so as to be better prepared to deal with attempts to introduce evidence from the hearing at a later criminal proceeding. [FN7] To fulfill these functions, counsel need speak to no one but appellee. Counsel should, however, be available to consult with appellee at all stages of the hearing, especially while appellee is being questioned. Appellee, or his chosen U.R.I. counsel, will conduct the defense. The board will be conscious of the presence of an outsider, but this will emphasize the potential as well as present gravity of the charge. The presence of counsel will not place any financial or administrative burden on the University. It will set a precedent only for a truly unusual situation. See Garshman v. Pennsylvania State University, 395 F.Supp. 912 (M.D.Pa.1975). The 107 most serious effect on the hearing of having counsel present that we can anticipate is that it will probably take longer to complete.

> FN6. We note that this relief is designed to protect his rights to due process. He has no constitutional right to counsel Per se in this context.
> FN7. For example, the presence of counsel may help ensure accuracy as well as identify points of inconsistency.

[4] We hold that, because of the pending criminal case, the denial to appellee of the right to have a lawyer of his own choice consult with and advise him during the disciplinary hearing without participating further in such proceeding would deprive appellee of due process of law.

The order of the district court as modified is affirmed.

LEVIN H. CAMPBELL, Circuit Judge (dissenting).

As the court points out, the pendency of serious criminal charges against him could complicate appellee's defense at the University's disciplinary hearing, perhaps making the presence of counsel more valuable to him than in the ordinary disciplinary proceeding. Confronted with a similar situation involving prison disciplinary proceedings against convicts facing possible criminal charges arising out of the same incident, this court once held that the potential for self-incrimination required the presence of counsel to assist those convicts. Palmigiano v. Baxter, 487 F.2d 1280 (1st Cir. 1973), Vacated and remanded, 418 U.S. 908, 94 S.Ct. 3200, 41 L.Ed.2d 1155 (1974), Reaffirmed, 510 F.2d 534 (1st Cir. 1974). The Supreme Court disagreed, ruling

"(n)either Miranda (V. Arizona, 384 U.S. 436, 86 S.Ct. 1602, 16 L.Ed.2d 694 (1966)), nor Mathis (V. United States, 391 U.S. 1, 88 S.Ct. 1503, 20 L.Ed.2d 381 (1968)), has any substantial bearing on the question whether counsel must be provided at

'(p)rison disciplinary hearings (which) are not part of a criminal prosecution.'Wolff v. McDonnell, 418 U.S. 539, 94 S.Ct. 2963, 41 L.Ed.2d 935 (1974). The Court has never held, and we decline to do so now, that the requirements of those cases must be met to render pretrial statements admissible in other than criminal cases."

Baxter v. Palmigiano, 425 U.S. 308, 315, 96 S.Ct. 1551, 1556, 47 L.Ed.2d 810 (1976). After Palmigiano, I think we must accept that the pendency of criminal charges is irrelevant to the question of whether the due process clause allows a person to insist upon having counsel present at a separate civil proceeding involving similar facts. Although the Supreme Court's decision in Palmigiano drew upon its earlier ruling in Wolff v. McDonnell, another prisoner case, I do not see how its rationale can be meaningfully limited to prison disciplinary proceedings only. All the key factors present here were present there.[FN*] Because I believe that Palmigiano applies here, and also because like my brothers I am not prepared to rule that due process requires the presence of retained counsel at all or most student disciplinary proceedings, I am unable to join the opinion of the court.

> FN* Although, as my brothers note, no actual charges had been filed against Palmigiano, he had been advised that charges might be filed and the Supreme Court did not rely on the absence of actual charges in discussing his right to counsel, but rather relied on the broader principle referred to above. The court referred to the fact that no charges were pending only in its discussion of Palmigiano's privilege against self-incrimination.

Not only does the court's decision run counter to the most directly applicable Supreme Court precedent, but I fear that it opens the door to a claim of right to counsel in almost all student disciplinary proceedings. Although the court stresses this case "will set a precedent only for a truly unusual situation,"Ante at 106. I do not see how the right recognized here can be so easily confined. Most conduct of a serious enough nature to merit disciplinary action will involve at least colorable misdemeanors, if not felonies, and a student very well might contend that the fact that criminal charges may be brought, even if they are not pending, requires the presence of counsel at his hearing. Furthermore, I believe most of the benefits of the passive assistance of counsel, the only right involved in the court's decision, can be realized through consultations between the student and his counsel before the proceeding begins or perhaps by periodic consultations outside the 108 room while the hearing is in progress. For these reasons, I respectfully dissent.

REPORT TO THE 2007 HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright

The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright, (hereafter referred to as the "Committee"), makes its report to the 2007 House of Representatives pursuant to the Committee Authorization issued by the Speaker of the House of Representatives on December 13, 2007.

In accordance with the Committee Authorization, the Committee conducted an investigation into the matters reflected in the indictments against Representative Wright and other allegations of possible unethical or unlawful conduct against him. The Committee met on eight separate days: December 18, 2007 to adopt rules, January 9, 2008 to conduct a probable cause hearing, February 11, 2008 to hear and rule on dispositive motions, February 25, 2008 to approve witnesses and authorize subpoenas, and March 3 through March 6, 2008 to conduct an evidentiary hearing.

At the evidentiary hearing, the Committee heard sworn testimony from seven witnesses, received 21 documents into evidence, and heard arguments from the Committee's Outside Counsel and counsel for Representative Wright. Representative Wright called no witnesses and offered no evidence for consideration.

Attached to and incorporated by reference as part of this Report are the transcriptions of the February 11 and March 3 through 6, 2008 meetings together with the exhibits admitted into evidence; dispositive motions made by Representative Wright, the legal briefs on those motions, and the rulings on those motions; the Second Revised Notice of Charges of Unethical Conduct by Representative Wright and Representative Wright's response to the charges;

Committee Rules; Committee authorization; and research on North Carolina legislative and other legislative bodies' disciplinary actions.

At the conclusion of its investigation, the Committee unanimously found by clear and convincing evidence the following findings:

COUNT 1

On or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by orally and in writing improperly and unethically soliciting Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing The Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was an officer of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for The Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

COUNT 3

On or about December 15, 2003, while a member of the House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP, requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented to be qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for various health related purposes, including but not limited to educational initiatives, a needs assessment, identification of trends and bridging the gap of minority health care for an underserved population in New Hanover County. Thereafter, when on December 15, 2003, a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Hlth Found Inc" in the amount of $2,400.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

On or about February 6, 2004, while a member of the House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented to be qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that would serve as a museum. Thereafter, on March 5, 2004, when a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation Inc" in the amount of $5,000, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 5

On or about April 1, 2004, while a member of the House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote an invoice on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AT&T Corp. as a solicitation of a charitable contribution to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented to be qualified to receive tax-deductible donations. Thereafter, on April 1, 2004, when a representative of AT&T Corp. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation I" in the amount of $1,500, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 7

Between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by intentionally failing to disclose approximately $180,000.00 in contributions received by his campaign during that time period, which disclosures are required by law and are intended to safeguard the public trust and to preserve the integrity of the electoral process, the integrity of the House of Representatives, and the integrity of the legislative process. The contributions that are the subject of this Court are set out in Exhibit 15 of the Committee hearing held March 3-6, 2008 as modified by the testimony of Kim Strach, Deputy Director of the State Board of Elections, and incorporated into this Count by reference.

Between on or about October, 2001 and on or about August, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, deceptively, and unethically soliciting a false document from a State agency and soliciting corporations for donations to a charitable corporation, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., and by converting to his own personal use money contributed to that charitable organization.

As to Count 2, evidence was presented at the hearing as to that Count but no finding was made by the Committee. As to Count 6, no evidence was presented at the hearing as to Count 6 and that Count was not considered by the Committee at that time. The Committee retained jurisdiction over Counts 2 and 6 for possible further consideration.

RECOMMENDATION

Based on its findings that the allegations in Counts 1, 3, 4, 5, 7, and 8, are true, following arguments by Committee Counsel as to the appropriate sanction, and after discussion by the Committee, the Committee unanimously recommends that Representative Wright be expelled as a member of the House of Representatives.

This report submitted on authority of the Committee this the 11th day of March, 2008.

THE CHAIR: This House Select Committee to Investigate the Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright is now in order. It is March 3rd, 2008, at approximately eleven-oh-three A.M. in Room 544 at the Legislative Office Building. This meeting is called to order.

Again, as everyone knows, the meeting is being recorded by a court reporter, so I am going to, for the record, ask the people who are on staff to introduce themselves, and as well so that Counsel know who they may need to go to at breaks or otherwise. And I'll begin on the back row with Mr. Gehron.

MR. GEHRON: Jake Gehron, office of Representative Glazier.

MS. HUNTLEY: Denise Huntley, research staff.

MR. REAGAN: Walker Reagan, Committee co-counsel.

MR. KREHELY: Brad Krehely, staff attorney with the Research Division, and Committee co-counsel.

MS. GOLDSMITH: Kory Goldsmith, Committee

co-counsel and staff attorney.

MS. FENNELL: Heather Fennell, Committee co-counsel and staff attorney.

THE CHAIR: Ms. Savel?

THE CLERK: Carin Savel, Committee clerk.

THE CHAIR: Members of the Committee?

REP. STAM: Paul Stam, Vice-Chair.

THE CHAIR: Rick Glazier, Chairman.

REP. WARREN: Edith Warren, Committee Member.

REP. McGEE: Bill McGee, Committee Member.

REP. LUCAS: Marvin Lucas, Committee Member.

REP. WILEY: Laura Wiley, Committee Member.

THE CHAIR: Counsel, please. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: William Hart, Special Counsel.

MR. PETERS: Alexander Peters, Special Counsel.

PROF. JOYNER: Irving Joyner, attorney for Representative Wright.

REP. WRIGHT: Representative Thomas Wright.

MR. HARRIS: Doug Harris, attorney for Representative Wright.

THE CHAIR: And to my right is Katherine Becker, court reporter, as has been at previous hearings.

All right. Members of the Committee, I'm going to give you some instructions now as we start our process. We have now reached the evidentiary stage of our investigation into the allegations against Representative Wright of unethical conduct. In accord with the Committee rules, I have asked Committee's outside legal counsel, Bill Hart and Alec Peters, to prepare the presentation of evidence against Representative Wright to be presented to you today.

In accord with the Rules, Representative Wright has been supplied with a list of witnesses Mr. Hart and Mr. Peters have considered calling. He has also been presented with a copy of all documents Mr. Hart and Mr. Peters might want to offer into evidence at this hearing.

Representative Wright was requested to present the Committee with a list of witnesses he might want to call in his defense, but has not done

Dear Mr. McKinney,

The Community's Health Foundation, Inc is requesting your support in the acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that will serve as a historical relic and museum about the 1898 Race Riot that occurred in Wilmington, North Carolina. The museum will exhibit historical events that took place and recapture these moments for future generations to explore, examine, and uncover the truth about such a horrific time in American History. This is a very important endeavor for the community of Wilmington, the state of North Carolina and our nation.

We are requesting your support to aid this foundation's efforts. Please make the check payable to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., in care of Thomas E. Wright. Contributions are tax deductible under the 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Our Tax Id# is 56-2252434.

If you need to contact me or need additional information, please do not hesitate to give me a call. Again, thanks for your support.

Mr. Brian Shank
AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals
104 Mancino Court
Morrisville, NC 27560

Dear Mr. Shank,

The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. is requesting your support in assisting the New Hanover Community Health Center, located in Wilmington, North Carolina, with our educational initiatives and projects. Our presentation of multidisciplinary perspectives will address critical clinical and care delivery issues, as well as, an exhaustive needs assessment that will survey the ongoing needs of the primary care physician, healthcare providers and the patients. Also, the identification of trends and changes in practices based on research data from surveys of our patients and constituents will enable the Center to maximize their healthcare services. In addition, the Community's Health Foundation is continuing the strides in bridging the health status gap between minorities that will improve access to public health services for the underserved population in New Hanover County.

$2400.00

We are requesting your support of ~~$1500.00~~ to support this foundation's efforts. Please make the check payable to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., in care of Thomas E. Wright. Contributions are tax deductible under the 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Our Tax Id# is 56-2252434.

If you need to contact me, please do not hesitate to give me a call. Again, thanks for your support.

Sincerely,

Thomas E. Wright

SECOND REVISED
NOTICE OF CHARGES OF UNETHICAL CONDUCT BY REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

(Amended February 11, 2008 and March 6, 2008)

The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright, having convened for hearing the report of preliminary investigative findings on questions of possible unethical and unlawful conduct, hereby finds that there is probable cause to believe that Representative Thomas E. Wright, a member of the House of Representatives, has engaged in unethical and unlawful conduct during his tenure as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives by committing the following acts specified in Counts 1 through 8 of this Notice, as amended. The Committee, by unanimous vote of the members present, hereby charges that the conduct specified in Counts 1 through 8, as amended, should be considered against Representative Thomas E. Wright:

Between on or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by orally and in writing improperly and unethically soliciting Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing The Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was an officer of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for The Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

On or about April 5, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by, orally and in writing, improperly, fraudulently, and unethically presenting to a representative of Coastal Federal Bank as a factor to consider in whether to loan $150,000.00 to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a corporation of which Wright was an officer, a letter from Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, falsely stating that the Office endorsed the Foundation's museum conversion effort and was committed to funding the project in the amount of $150,000.00 and that the award of the funding would occur by June 30, 2002. At the time Thomas E. Wright presented the letter to the representative of Coastal Federal Bank, he knew that the assertions in the letter were false, that the commitment of funds was not authorized, and that the award of funding would not be forthcoming. The $150,000.00 loan to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. obtained from Coastal Federal Bank was made in part relying on the contents of the fraudulent letter presented by Thomas E. Wright.

On or about December 15, 2003, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP, requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for various health related purposes, including but not limited to educational initiatives, a needs assessment, identification of trends and bridging the gap of minority health care for an underserved population in New Hanover County. Thereafter, when on December 15, 2003, a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Hlth Found Inc" in the amount of $2,400.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 4

On or about February 6, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that would serve as a museum. Thereafter, on March 5, 2004, when a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation Inc" in the amount of $5,000.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 5

On or about April 1, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote an invoice on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AT&T Corp. as a solicitation of a charitable contribution to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations. Thereafter, on April 1, 2004, when a representative of AT&T Corp. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation I" in the amount of $1,500.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 6

Between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting to his own personal use money loaned by South East Community Credit Union to a charitable organization, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. On or about October 28, 2001, without approval of the board of directors of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., Thomas E. Wright solicited and obtained from South East Community Credit Union, a business line of credit in the amount of $10,000.00 for The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. Thereafter, between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, he personally obtained funds three times based on that line of credit in the total amount of $9,910.27, which he failed to turn over to the Foundation, put into a bank account for the Foundation, or use for the benefit of the Foundation, instead converting those funds to his own use and benefit by depositing them in his own account without the knowledge and approval of the Board of Directors of the Foundation.

COUNT 7

Between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by intentionally failing to disclose approximately $180,000.00 in contributions received by his campaign during that time period, which disclosures are required by law and are intended to safeguard the public trust and to preserve the integrity of the electoral process, the integrity of the House of Representatives, and the integrity of the legislative process. The contributions that are the subject of this Court are set out in Exhibit 9 of the presentation by William P. Hart, Outside Committee Co-Counsel, dated January 9, 2008, and incorporated into this Count by reference.

COUNT 8

Between on or about October, 2001 and on or about ~~April~~ August, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, deceptively, and unethically soliciting a financial institution for a loan and corporations for donations to a charitable corporation, The Community's Health Foundations, Inc., and by converting to his own personal use money contributed to that charitable organization. As part of this pattern of conduct, Thomas E. Wright solicited a false document and used that false document in the loan solicitation.

Adopted January 9, 2008. Amended February 11, 2008 and March 6, 2008.

RESPONSE TO ETHICS COMPLAINT

The Respondent in the above captioned matter, Representative Thomas Wright, hereby responds to the ethics allegations contained in a complaint issued by the North Carolina House Select Committee regarding alleged conduct committed by Respondent which has been deemed by committee members to constitute unethical and unlawful on January 11, 2008 by showing the following:

COUNTS # 1 & 2

1. Respondent specifically denies that any contacts and interactions with Torlen Wade on either March 13, 2002 or March 15, 2002 occurred while Respondent was acting or serving in his capacity as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly and/or that his contacts and interactions with Torlen Wade were improper, illegal or unethical. Additionally, Respondent denies that the purported Wade letter was used to secure a loan from the Coastal Federal Bank in the amount of $150,000 for the Community Health Foundation

2. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Counts # 1 & 2 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the Legislative Ethics Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

3. Merely soliciting and/or obtaining a letter from a State employee which contains untrue information does not constitute a criminal and/or ethical violation.

4. Respondent did not use nor intend to use a letter which was obtained from a State Employee to obtain a loan, grant or other funding for the Community Health Foundation.

5. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

6. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 3 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 4

7. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

8. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 4 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 5

9. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the AT & T Corp. which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

10. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 5 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 6

11. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received as a "business line of credit" from the South East Community Credit Union which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

12. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 6 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 7

13. Respondent specifically denies that between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007 that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically failed to disclose contributions in the amount of $185,000 received by his campaign which were required by law.

14. This allegation is so vague and over-broad that it does not put Respondent on notice of the specific contributions which the House Select Committee contends were not reported and does not provide any information from which Respondent can make this determination. As such, this allegation violates Respondent's Due Process Rights under the Federal and State Constitutions.

COUNT # 8

15. This allegation, a purported summary of Counts 1 through 7 of this complaint, is denied.

FURTHER RESPONSES TO COUNTS 1 THROUGH 8

16. The allegations contained in the complaint does not constitute conduct committed by Respondent, who happens to be an elected Legislator, who was then acting within his official role or capacity as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly and a participant in the lawmaking process.

17. The House Select Committee is barred from considering the allegations contained in the complaint due to the expiration of its investigative and prosecutorial mandate and applicable Statute of Limitation and/or constitutes laches in that the House Select Committee has failed to allege and consider this matter in a timely manner pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 15A-120-102(a)(7).

18. The allegations contained in the complaint involves conduct which did not constitute a criminal and/or ethical violation at the time that it was allegedly committed and the House Select Committee's consideration of this complaint at this time is not authorized by N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102(a)(5) and (7) and violates the State and Federal Constitutions..

19. The conduct alleged in the complaint involves conduct which was allegedly committed during a past and closed session of the North Carolina General Assembly and said conduct did not violate any ethics rules and constitute criminal conduct at that time. The House Select Committee can not constitutionally be empowered to investigate conduct committed during past legislative sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly and the assumption of this authorization is contrary to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102 and the Federal and State Constitutions.

20. The creation of the House Select Committee and actions which it has taken in this matter by initiating misconduct allegations against the Respondent, prosecuting those allegations and determining their validity violate State and federal Constitutional Rights of Due Process and Equal Protection.

21. The creation of the House Select Committee and actions which it has taken in this matter by initiating misconduct allegations against the Respondent, prosecuting those allegations and determining their validity violates Article II, Section 20 of the North Carolina Constitution.

22. The actions of the House Select Committee violate Article VI, Section 8 by seeking to disqualify Respondent from a legislative office in the North Carolina House General Assembly to which he was duly elected where he has not been convicted or adjudged guilty, by any competent authority, of treason, a felony, corruption or malpractice in office nor has he been removed from office by impeachment.

WHEREFORE, the Respondent, after responding to the complaint issued by the House Select Committee, respectfully moves to dismiss this matter, or, in the alternative, suspend any further proceedings or actions regarding this matter until criminal charges which have been lodged against the Respondent in the Wake County Superior Court have been resolved.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT

MOTION TO CONTINUE AND MOTION TO HOLD IN ABEYANCE

COMES NOW the Respondent, Representative Thomas Wright, and hereby moves the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct to continue this matter and hold this matter in abeyance pending the resolution of the criminal charges. In support of said Motion, Respondent shows the following:

1. The additional charges being considered by The Committee against Representative Thomas Wright are the same and/or intricately linked to the charges pending against him in Wake County Superior Court. Those charges have a Constitutionally guaranteed right of a jury trial and will be determined by a jury later this year.

2. If the Legislative proceeding goes forward, the proceeding can and will do great harm to the criminal process and will raise substantial Constitutional issues.

3. The Legislative process would necessarily be an action taken by the State simultaneously with the action taken by the State in Wake County Superior Court. The Legislative proceeding would also necessarily involve massive adverse publicity which would undeniably pollute the jury pool and risk that a fair trial could not be conducted.

4. The Legislative Committee also risks a Constitutionally unaccepted dilemma in which the jury might vote to remove Thomas Wright for violations and then a jury might find him not guilty of precisely the same charges. This would raise due process issues under both the North Carolina and the United States Constitutions and would do grave damage to the democratic process.

WHEREFORE, the Respondent moves that the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct continue this matter and hold all charges in abeyance until after the criminal charges pending in Wake County Superior Court are heard by a jury..

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT,	)	ANSWER AND MOTION

NORTH CAROLINA GENERAL ASSEMBLY DOES NOT POSSESS CONSTITUTIONAL OR STATUTORY AUTHORITY TO DISCIPLINE OR REMOVE AN ELECTED MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

In the North Carolina Constitution, the powers and responsibilities of the North Carolina General are articulated. As such, actions taken by the General Assembly must be guided by the enumerated constitutional provisions. Those powers cannot be broadened nor can legislative actions diverge from the dictates of the State and Federal Constitutions.

With respect to the election of members of the North Carolina House of Representatives, the constitution provides: "Each Representative, at the time of his election, shall be a qualified voter of the State, and shall have resided in the district for which he is chosen for one year immediately preceding his election." Art. II, Sec. 7, North Carolina Constitution. Once a person has been qualified and elected, the constitution further provides: Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own members, . . ." Art. II, Sec.20, North Carolina Constitution. The judging of qualification relates back to Art. II, Sec 7 and allows the elected members of the House of Representatives to do no more than be the judge of whether the specific constitutional qualifications of the elected member which were established by the people of the State are satisfied. See, Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 89 S. Ct. 1944 (1969) and Bond v. Floyd, 385 U.S. 116, 87 S. Ct. 339 (1966)

North Carolina's Constitution declares that "[e]very qualified voter in [the State] who is 21 years of age, except as in this Constitution disqualified, shall be eligible for election by the people to office." (Emphasis Added) Art. VI, Sec. 6 of North Carolina Constitution. In Art. VI, Sec. 8, the people imposed specific disqualifications for office which are similar to those enacted in the 1868 and 1900 Constitutions. Among those which are pertinent to this action is:

> [A]ny person who has been adjudged guilty of treason or any other felony against this State or the United States, or any person who has been adjudged guilty of a felony in another State that also would be a felony if it had been committed in this State, or any person who has been adjudged guilty of corruption or malpractice in any office, or any person who has been removed by impeachment from any office, and who has not been restored to the rights of citizenship in the manner prescribed by law.

Art. VI, Sec 8 of the North Carolina Constitution can best be described as a prohibition from seeking elected office and not as a justification for removal from office. Once a person has ben elected to the General Assembly, that right which has been exercised by the people of that legislative district must be respected and protected by that body unless the people chooses not to re-elect that person.

In North Carolina, Constitutional provisions are in place for the impeachment of identified elected officials as was recognized by the North Carolina Supreme Court in State v. Spivey, 345 N.C. 404, 480 S.E.2d 693 (1997). There the Court discussed those elected officials who could constitutionally be subjected to impeachment by the General Assembly. Elected State Representatives and District Attorneys were not included in that listing. The listing included the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of State, Auditor, Treasurer, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Attorney General, Commissioner of Agriculture, Commissioner of Labor, and Commissioner of Insurance. Spivey at 412, 480 S.E.2d at 697. Although the Constitution gives the House of Representatives the sole power to impeach, that authorization does not identify another elected member of the House of Representatives as being a proper subject of impeachment. As such, since these elected officials are not specifically listed, they are to be excluded from this power under the maxim of inclusio unius est exclusio alterius (inclusion of one is exclusion of another) and the impeachment of an elected member of the House of Representative is not authorized by the Constitution. See, Spivey at 412, 480 S.E.2d at 697.

Consistent with the constitutional provisions cited above is Art. I, Sec 2 which provides that "[a]ll political power is vested in and derived from the people; all government of right originates from the people, is founded upon their will only, and is instituted solely for the good of the whole." By definition, this political power of the people is conveyed to elected officials only as dictated and authorized by the people. This interpretation is supported by the provisions of Art. I, Sec. 3 which provides:

> The people of this state have the inherent, sole, and exclusive right of regulating the internal government and police thereof, and of altering or abolishing their Constitution and the form of government whenever it may be necessary to their safety and happiness; but every such right shall be exercised in pursuance of law and consistently with the constitution of the United States. (Emphasis Added)

With respect to the rights and powers of the people, the Constitution further provides for frequent elections to be held in order for the people to "redress grievances and for amending and strengthening the laws." Art. I, Sec. 9, North Carolina Constitution. The frequent election provision is reinforced in Art. II, Section 4 where it is mandated that members of the House of Representatives are to be elected "biennially chosen by ballot" and their terms of office "shall commence on the first day of January next after their election. Art. II, Sec. 9, North Carolina Constitution. Each session of the General Assembly is required to "meet in regular session in 1973 and every two years thereafter on the day prescribed by law" or in extra sessions as directed by a petition signed by three-fifths of the members of that body. Art. II, Sec. 11(1) and (2), North Carolina Constitution.

There is no provision in the North Carolina Constitution which provides for or authorizes the North Carolina General Assembly and its House of Representatives, in particular, to discipline any of its members who are qualified for and elected to office by the people of the political district which they represent. The constitutional provisions discussed herein closely parallels the provisions of the 1868 constitution and two subsequent revisions. The notion that the North Carolina general Assembly has implied or inherent powers to discipline its members or to enlarge the constitutional qualifications was debunked by the United States Supreme Court's opinions in Powell v. McCormack and Bond v. Floyd.

The absence of any authorization to discipline members of the General Assembly differs from provisions in the constitutions of other States. For example, the Arizona Constitution, by an expressed provision, provides for its Legislature to punish members for disorderly behavior and/or expel members "with the concurrence of two-thirds of its members." Art. 4, Pt. 2 § 11 of the Arizona Constitution. In addition, in Maryland, the Legislature, pursuant to the plain meaning of its constitution, is authorized to "punish a member for disorderly or disrespectful behavior and with the consent of two-thirds of its whole number of members elected, expel a member; but no member shall be expelled a second time for the same offence." Art. 3, Sec. 19 of the Maryland Constitution. By similar provisions, the constitutions of Alabama, Alaska, Georgia, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and 36 other States allow for the disciplining and expelling of its elected representatives for misconduct while the elected person is in office. By a similar provision, the United States Constitution grants the House authority to discipline or expel a member "with the concurrence of two thirds. Art. I, Sec. 5 of United States Constitution. See also, Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 89 S. Ct. 1944 (1969)

The authorization to discipline and expel members of the legislative bodies in other States is not present in the North Carolina Constitution. North Carolina citizens have had, at least, two opportunities to amend its Constitution since 1868 and, in none of those efforts, did the people seek to include this authorization. It is, however, acknowledged that thirteen (13) elected law-makers have been expelled from the North Carolina General Assembly, but eleven (11) of those exclusions occurred before the enactment of the 1868 Constitution; the other two occurred in 1875 and 1880. The failure to include authority in the State Constitution to discipline and expel its elected members acts as a limitation on what this General Assembly is constitutionally allowed to do.

Despite the absence of a constitutional provision to remove or impeach an elected District Attorney, the North Carolina Supreme Court in State v. Spivey clearly concluded that the North Carolina General Assembly had the power to enact a statute which authorized the removal of a person from that position. In Spivey, the Court determined that a legislative enactment of the General Assembly is a valid expression of the will of the people even though there is no expressed constitutional authority for the it.

> As we have often noted, it is 'firmly established that our State Constitution is not a grant of power. All power which is not expressly limited by the people in our State Constitution remains with the people, and an act of the people through their representatives in the legislature is valid unless prohibited by that Constitution. (Cite omitted) Therefore, this Court gives acts of the General Assembly great deference, and a statute will not be declared unconstitutional under our Constitution unless the Constitution clearly prohibits that statute.

Since the North Carolina Constitution was silent on the authority to remove the elected District Attorney from office in Spivey, the Court determined that the legislative enactment which expressly authorized this removal and set out a detailed procedure for the Presiding Judge to follow when doing so deserved the "presumption of constitutionality" and that removal statute would control as long as the official was accorded due process of law. Id. In Spivey, N.C. Gen. Stat. § 7A-66 specifically identified the grounds for either the suspension or removal of the elected District Attorney from office. The grounds are:

> 1. Mental or physical incapacity interfering with the performance of his duties which is, or is likely to become, permanent;
> 2. Willful misconduct in office;
> 3. Willful and persistent failure to perform his duties;
> 4. Habitual intemperance;
> 5. Conviction of a crime involving moral urpitude;
> 6. Conduct prejudicial to the administration of justice which brings the office into disrepute; or > 7. Knowingly authorizing or permitting an assistant district attorney to commit any act constituting grounds for removal, as defined in subdivisions (1) through (7) hereof.

N.C. Gen. Stat. § 7A-66 (2007)

The statute specifically authorized a Superior Court Judge, upon a finding of relevant facts which supported the existence of one of the disabling provisions, to enter an order permanently removing the District Attorney from office.

With respect to the North Carolina General Assembly's ability to remove an elected member of the House of Representative from office, there is not a comparable statute which authorizes that removal. In 2007, the North Carolina General Assembly created the Legislative Ethics Committee and authorized it to investigate complaints of ethics violations, to conduct necessary hearing and "refer the matter to the appropriate house for appropriate action, which may include censure and expulsion, if the Committee finds substantial evidence of a violation of a criminal statute." N.C. Gen. Stat. §120-103.1 et. seq. (2007) The problem with this statute is that it does not authorize the General Assembly to discipline or remove an elected Legislator if a referral is received from the Legislative Ethics Committee. Even with this statute which create an investigative Committee, the General Assembly does not possess the same power and authority as was conveyed to Superior Court Judges under N.C. Gen. Stat. § 7A-66.

HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE DOES NOT POSSESS CONSTITUTIONAL OR STATUTORY AUTHORITY TO DISCIPLINE OR REMOVE AN ELECTED MEMBER OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

For the reasons discussed above, the House Select Committee does not have authority to discipline or remove an elected member of the General Assembly from office. The House Select Committee was recently appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives to investigate complaints of ethics violations against Representative Thomas Wright. The creation of this Committee was accomplished without a legislative enactment or action by the House and Senate and approval by the Governor. While this procedure is appropriate for internal activities of the House of Representatives, it does not confer any power or authority which remotely over-rides the constitutional and statutory infirmities discussed above.

To the extent that investigations of the House Select Committee is to "be governed by Article 5A, Committee Activity, of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes," the Committee is restricted to "alleged violations of the criminal law by a legislator while acting in the legislator's official capacity as a participant in the lawmaking process." N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120–103.1(a)(3) (2007) By definition, allegations of misconduct which occurred outside of the Legislator's lawmaking activities can not be the subject of scrutiny by this General Assembly.

In further reliance upon the dictates of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes, the work of the House Select Committee is restricted to an investigation of the "rules legislative ethics and conduct" adopted by the House of Representatives which create the standard of conduct for that legislative session. N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102(7)(2007) These legislative rules of ethics and conduct have not been established by the North Carolina General Assembly for this session or for those past legislative sessions in which the alleged conduct committed by Representative Wright is supposed to have occurred, namely 2001 through 2006.

In the landmark case of Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 89 S. Ct. 1944 (1969), the United States Supreme Court discussed the propriety of disciplining an elected Congressional Representative for conduct committed during a prior session of Congress. In its opinion, the Court noted that both houses of Congress "distrusted their power to punish" a member for conduct committed during a prior congressional session. Powell at 509, 89 S. Ct. at 1957.

> [I]t must be said that with practical uniformity the precedents in such cases are to the effect that the House will not expel a Member for reprehensible action prior to his election as a Member, not even for conviction for an offense. On May 23, 1884, Speaker Carlisle Decided that the House had no right to punish a Member for any offense alleged to have been committed previous to the time when he was elected a Member, and added, 'That has been so frequently decided in the House that it is no longer a matter of dispute.

Powell at 509, 89 S. Ct. at 1957.

In Powell, Adam Clayton Powell had been regularly elected as the Congressman from New York City' 18th Congressional District since 1945 and had served as and, based upon his seniority, was destined to continue in the position as the Chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor at the time of this challenge to his qualifications. Powell completed his service the 89th session of Congress and was returning to be sworn in for the 90th Congressional session following his re-election. During the 89th Congressional Session, claims arose and were presented in Congress that Powell had inappropriately used congressional funds for travel and salary for his wife during that session. Based upon this alleged conduct, an effort to prevent Powell from being sworn in for the 90th Congressional Session was successfully launched. From that exclusion, Powell filed an action in the federal court which ended-up in the United States Supreme Court.

Powell's claim before the Supreme Court that the only qualifications that he needed to present and satisfy was that he met the Constitutional qualifications to serve as a member of Congress and could not be excluded because of past claims of transgressions. It was noted in this opinion that neither Congress nor its committees are continuing bodies, but their powers and duties expire when the session for which they are elected expire. In Congress, that expiration occurs every two years just as the North Carolina General Assembly terms for members of the House expire every two years.

With respect to Congress' power and authority to expel Powers from the 90th Congressional session, the Supreme Court concluded that Congress could only review whether Powell possessed the qualifications at that moment in time which were articulated in the federal Constitution. The Powell Court reasoned: "A fundamental principle of our representative democracy is, in [Alexander] Hamilton's words, 'that the people should choose whom they please to govern them." Powell at 547, 89 S. Ct. at 1977. Equally instructive in this effort to discipline and/or expel Representative Wright from the North Carolina General Assembly is this conclusion:

> Unquestionably, Congress has an interest in preserving its institutional integrity, but in most cases, that interest can be sufficiently safe-guarded by the exercise of its power to punish its members for disorderly behavior and, in extreme cases, to expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds. In short, both the intention of the Framers, to the extent that it can be determined, and an examination of the basic principles of our democratic system persuade us that the Constitution does not vest in the Congress a discretionary power to deny membership by a majority vote.

The authority to expel an elected Congressional Representative for disorderly behavior in Powell was upheld because the Constitution specifically authorized that action upon a vote of two-thirds of its members. That is not the situation in North Carolina where the State's constitution does not authorize the exclusion of an elected House Member. The central lesson in Powell is that the people have the right to elect their own representatives as a fundamental principle of a representative democracy and the frequency of elections allows the people to speak often and regularly on this important and weighty issue. In the absence of specific authorization to expel or exclude an elected member, the only qualifications that can be utilized to determine the Legislator's ability to serve his constituents are those articulated within the Constitution.

> In judging the qualifications of its members Congress is limited to the standing qualifications prescribed in the Constitution. . . . Therefore, we hold that, since Adam Clayton Powell, Jr., was duly elected by the voters of the 18th Congressional District of New York and was not ineligible to serve under any provision of the Constitution, the House was without power to exclude him from its membership.

Powell at 550, 89 S. Ct. at 1979

Powell concerned claims of misappropriating federal funds which occurred during the previous Congressional Session. The Supreme Court held that conduct from that previous Congressional session, the 89th, could not serve as the basis for a determination of Powell's qualifications to serve in the next, the 90th, Congressional session. By contrast, the House Select Committee seeks to hold Representative Wright's alleged improper conduct from 2001 through 2006 as grounds or justification to discipline or expel him from the present legislative session. The time frame involved in Representative Wright's situation covers four separate and distinct legislative sessions rather than the one Congressional session involved in Powell. If the Powell ouster violated the federal Constitution, then certainly the effort to discipline or expel Representative Wright offends the same Constitutional protections and provisions.

HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE'S ADOPTED RULES AND PROCEDURE VIOLATE DUE PROCESS RIGHTS OF REPRESENTATIVE WRIGHT

Even in the context of proceedings in the North Carolina General Assembly, Due Process protections are implicated and must be complied with, particularly as here, where the General Assembly seeks to interfere with a property right and interest of Representative Thomas Wright. No State shall deprive any person of life, liberty, or property without due process of law. The constitutional inhibition against depriving any person of his property without due process of law is a 'restraint on the legislative as well as on the executive and judicial powers of the government and cannot be so construed as to leave the General Assembly free to make any process 'due process of law,' by its mere will." Den ex Dem. Murray v. Hoboken Land and Imp. Co., 59 U.S. 272, 276-277, 1855 WL 8216 (U.S.N.J.)(U.S. December Term 1855) Substantive due process is a guaranty against arbitrary legislation, demanding that the law shall not be unreasonable, arbitrary or capricious and that the law be substantially related to the valid object sought to be obtained. State v. Joyner, 286 N.C. 366, 371, 211 S.E.2d 320, 323 (1975)

The North Carolina Supreme Court articulated in In re: Hardy, 294 N.C. 90, 240 S.E.2d 367 (1978) that removal from office on the ground of misconduct in office is a matter of the most serious consequences and the person is subject to be deprived of the honor, power and emoluments of the office. Id. Other State Courts, as well as the federal courts, have concluded that election to public office imbues the office holder with a constitutionally protected property and/or liberty interests. See, McNeil v. Butz, 480 F.2d 314 (4th Cir. 1973); Crowe v. Lucas, 595 F.2d 985 (5th Cir. 1979); Gordon v. Leatherman, 450 F.2d 562 (5th Cir. 1971); Fredericks v. Vartanian, 529 F. Supp. 264 (D. Mass. 1981); Ludowici v. Stapleton, 375 S.E. 2d 855 (Ga.

1989); Errichetti v. Merlino, 457 A.2d 476 (N.J. Super. 1982)

The recently adopted rules of the House Select Committee impermissibly shifts to representative Wright the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that he should be exonerated of the charges which have been leveled against him. See, Paragraphs 14 & 15 of House Select Committee Rules. This requirement violates the fundamental fairness notion of Due Process to compel the charged party to establish, by an level of proof, his innocence. Not only is Due Process violated, but the legislator's Fifth Amendment rights are also implicated and surrendered by this requirement.

NORTH CAROLINA GENERAL ASSEMBLY,

v.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT

BRIEF OF SPECIAL COUNSEL

ARGUMENT

The arguments below correspond to arguments made by Representative Wright in his document entitled, Legal Memorandum in Support of Respondent's Answer and Motion, filed with the House Principal Clerk on January 30, 2008.

I. The North Carolina General Assembly has the authority to discipline or expel an elected member.

As one of the houses of the General Assembly, the House of Representatives "shall be the judge of the qualifications" of its members. Art. II, Sec. 20, Constitution of North Carolina.

It has been argued by Representative Wright that this provision of the Constitution relates to the qualifications for election to office in Article II, Section 7 of the Constitution. Although Article II, Section 20 is certainly related to Article II, Section 7 for purposes of determining qualifications for election to office, there is nothing in Article II that limits the application of Article II, Section 20 only to qualifications for election. In addition, Article VI, Section 8 sets forth disqualifications for office that must also be considered. Art. VI, Sec. 8, Constitution of North Carolina. And, a criminal conviction or having been adjudged guilty is not the only determination that may disqualify a person for public office. In re Peoples, 296 N.C. 109, 250 S.E.2d 890 (1978)(due process determination by Supreme Court by clear and convincing evidence that public official had engaged in willful misconduct in office is sufficient for disqualification from office), cert. denied, 442 U.S. 929, 61 L. Ed. 2d 297 (1979). Therefore, in North Carolina, either house of the General Assembly may take any action reasonably necessary for the proper administration of its business as the lawmaking body of the people of the State. This includes investigation into allegations of improper, illegal, or unethical actions by any of its members and taking action that is appropriate to punish such actions.

"An act of the General Assembly is legal unless the Constitution contains a prohibition against it." Plemmer v. Matthewson, 281 N.C. 722, 726, 190 S.E.2d 204, 207 (1972), citing McIntyre v. Clarkson, 254 N.C. 510, 119 S.E.2d 888 (1961). The Supreme Court of North Carolina has continuously stated as follows:

> it is "firmly established that our State Constitution is not a grant of power. All power which is not expressly limited by the people in our State Constitution remains with the people, and an act of the people through their representatives in the legislature is valid unless prohibited by that Constitution."

In re: Spivey, 345 N.C. 404, 413, 480 S.E.2d 693, 698 (1997); State ex rel. Martin v. Preston, 325 N.C. 438, 448-49, 385 S.E.2d 473, 478 (1989); Lassiter v. Board of Elections, 248 N.C. 102, 112, 102 S.E.2d 853, 861 (1958); McIntyre v. Clarkson, 254 N.C. at 515, 119 S.E.2d at 891; Airport Authority v. Johnson, 226 N.C. 1, 8, 36 S.E.2d 803, 809 (1946). This is consistent with Article I, Section 2 and Article II, Section 1 of the Constitution of North Carolina. Article I, Section 2 provides in pertinent part: "All political power is vested in and derived from the people . . . ." Article II, Section 1 describes how the people exercise that sovereignty: "The legislative power of the State shall be vested in the General Assembly, which shall consist of a Senate and a House of Representatives." Indeed, our legislature is called the General Assembly "because all the people are present there in the persons of their representatives." John V. Orth, The North Carolina State Constitution: With History And Commentary 78 (1993). The General Assembly's exercise of the sovereignty "vested in and derived from the people," then, is valid except where expressly limited by the Constitution. The pertinent inquiry is not whether the Constitution authorizes the House of Representatives to discipline its members for unethical conduct. Rather, the pertinent inquiry is whether the Constitution prohibits or limits the House's ability to do so.

Courts have the inherent power to do all things that are reasonably necessary for the proper administration of justice, State v. Gravette, 327 N.C. 114, 124, 393 S.E.2d 865, 871 (1990); Beard v. The North Carolina State Bar, 320 N.C. 126, 129, 357 S.E.2d 694, 696 (1987). In the same way, legislative bodies have the implied and inherent authority to investigate and discipline its members. French v. Senate, 146 Cal. 604,606, 80 P. 1031, 1032 (1905)(every legislative body has implied power to expel a member for any cause deemed sufficient); Hiss v. Bartlett, 69 Mass. 468, 473, 3 Gray 468, 473 (1855)(power of expulsion is a necessary and incidental power, to enable the house to perform its high functions, and the house is the sole judge of the exigency which may justify and require its exercise); Justice Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States, Vol. II, Section 835. That power has not been limited to offenses committed by the party as a member or committed during the same session as the inquiry. Id., Section 836.

The North Carolina House of Representatives has the inherent authority to investigate and to discipline or expel one of its members. That inherent authority has not been limited by the Constitution of North Carolina. And, that inherent authority has been acknowledged and protected by the General Assembly in the Legislative Ethics Act that it passed. The General Assembly has specifically provided that "[a]ny action or lack of action by the [Legislative Ethics] Committee," under N.C.G.S. § 120-103.1, "shall not limit the right of each house of the General Assembly to discipline or to expel its members." N.C.G.S. § 120-103.1(m). Indeed, the General Assembly has exercised that authority numerous times in the past: [1]

- James Carter - expelled from House in 1757 for mishandling public funds

- Francis Brown - expelled from House in 1758 for perjury, conduct unworthy

[1] Information gleaned from chart prepared by Research Division of the General Assembly and presented to the House Select Committee at hearing on January 9, 2008.

- Hermon Husband - expelled from House in 1770 for gross prevarication, falsehood, promoting riot and seditions

- William Gilbert - expelled from House in 1779 for intentionally defrauding public

- Edward Clay - expelled from House in 1784 for petit larceny (no criminal charge)

- Henry Montfort - expelled from House in 1786 for fraud in disbursement of public money

- John Bonds - expelled from House in 1787 for fraud

- John Roberts - expelled from Senate in 1816 for forgery and fraud committed during War of 1812

- Robert Potter - expelled from House in 1835 for engaging in fight after card game and drawing a pistol and a knife

- J. Wm. Thorne - expelled from House in 1875 for advocating and promulgating a "most sacrilegious doctrine, subversive of the principles of the constitution of the State of North Carolina and of sound morality

- Josiah Turner - censured, then expelled when he left House Chamber, for gross improprieties, disorderly conduct, defiant conduct, and disrespectful manner in 1880

- Ken Miller - censured by House in 1996 for making unsolicited and inappropriate sexual remarks to a female employee, a female lobbyist, and a female page

The unethical, improper, and, in most cases, criminal acts alleged in the charges pending against Representative Wright - conversion of money, soliciting false statements in documents with the intent to use those false representations to obtain a loan, and failing to disclose campaign contributions that are required to be disclosed to the voting public - constitute conduct at least as egregious as the acts that served the basis for the expulsions listed above.

II. The House Select Committee has authority to hold hearings and to recommend action by the full membership of the House of Representatives.

The General Assembly "cannot delegate its power to make a law; but it can make a law to delegate a power to determine some facts or state of facts upon which the law makes, or intends to make, its own action depend . . ." State v. Curtis, 230 N.C. 169, 171, 52 S.E.2d 364, 365

(1949)(citations omitted). Not only may the General Assembly delegate fact-finding power to agencies, it may delegate such power to committees. N.C.G.S. §§ 120-14; 120-19.1. Such committees have the power to hold hearings, compel attendance of witnesses, and compel testimony to make findings on any matter properly before them and to report any findings and recommendations to the appropriate house. Id.

Representative Wright contends in his legal memorandum that the House Select Committee is limited by N.C.G.S. § 120-103.1(a)(3) to "alleged violations of the criminal law by a legislator while acting in the legislator's official capacity as a participant in the lawmaking process." He also contends that N.C.G.S. § 120-102(7) limits the Committee to an investigation of the "rules of legislative ethics and conduct" adopted by the House of Representatives for the current term. Such arguments would apply to actions by the Legislative Ethics Committee. However, those arguments do not apply to actions by the House of Representatives and the House Select Committee.

Just as "[a]ny action or lack of action by the [Legislative Ethics] Committee," under N.C.G.S. § 120-103.1, "shall not limit the right of each house of the General Assembly to discipline or to expel its members," N.C.G.S. § 120-103.1(m), the limitations provided in the Legislative Ethics Act apply to actions by the Legislative Ethics Committee, not to either house or any authorized committee acting under the inherent authority of that house. Thus, the House and the House Select Committee are not limited to considering conduct that constitutes "alleged violations of the criminal law by a legislator while acting in the legislator's official capacity as a participant in the lawmaking process" or to considering conduct that violates "rules of legislative ethics and conduct" adopted by the House of Representatives for the current term. The House and the Committee may properly consider any conduct which is improper, unethical, criminal, or unbecoming and unfitting for a member of the House.

The North Carolina House of Representatives has the inherent authority to investigate and to discipline or expel one of its members. That inherent authority has not been limited by the Constitution of North Carolina. And, the House of Representatives has the authority by statute to delegate to a committee the investigation of facts surrounding allegations of unethical conduct of one of its members. N.C.G.S. § 120-14; N.C.G.S. § 120-19.1. In this case, the House Select Committee, then has the power to hold hearings to investigate and determine the facts, to report those findings to the full House, and to make appropriate recommendations on disciplinary action that the House should take. The role of the Committee is to determine facts and to make recommendations to the House, not to take action against Representative Wright. It is only the full House that has authority to take disciplinary action.

This same type of procedure is used for investigation of complaints of ethical violations made against judges. The Judicial Standards Commission conducts a hearing, determines the facts, and makes a recommendation to the Supreme Court of North Carolina on the appropriate sanctions for any unethical conduct found. The Supreme Court then reviews the findings below and the record to determine what violations, if any, it finds, and what sanctions to impose. N.C.G.S. § 7A-376; Rules of the Judicial Standards Commission; Rules for Supreme Court Review of Recommendations of the Judicial Standards Commission; In re Renfer, 345 N.C. 632, 634-35, 482 S.E.2d 540, 542 (1997); In re Hardy, 294 N.C. 90, 97, 240 S.E.2d 367, 372 (1978); In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 244, 237 S.E.2d 246, 252 (1977).

III. The House Select Committee has authority to recommend to the full House of Representatives that it discipline or expel an elected member of the House based on conduct that was committed during prior sessions of the General Assembly.

In North Carolina, either house of the General Assembly may take any action reasonably necessary for the proper administration of its business as the lawmaking body of the people of the State. This includes investigation into allegations of improper, illegal, or unethical actions by either house of any of its own members and taking action that is appropriate to punish such actions.

"An act of the General Assembly is legal unless the Constitution contains a prohibition against it." Plemmer v. Matthewson, 281 N.C. 722, 726, 190 S.E.2d 204, 207 (1972), citing

> it is "firmly established that our State Constitution is not a grant of power. All power which is not expressly limited by the people in our State Constitution remains with the people, and an act of the people through their representatives in the legislature is valid unless prohibited by that Constitution."

In re: Spivey, 345 N.C. 404, 413, 480 S.E.2d 693, 698 (1997); State ex rel. Martin v. Preston, 325 N.C. 438, 448-49, 385 S.E.2d 473, 478 (1989); Lassiter v. Board of Elections, 248 N.C. 102, 112, 102 S.E.2d 853, 861 (1958); McIntyre v. Clarkson, 254 N.C. at 515, 119 S.E.2d at 891; Airport Authority v. Johnson, 226 N.C. 1, 8, 36 S.E.2d 803, 809 (1946).

Courts have the inherent power to do all things that are reasonably necessary for the proper administration of justice, State v. Gravette, 327 N.C. 114, 124, 393 S.E.2d 865, 871 (1990); Beard v. The North Carolina State Bar, 320 N.C. 126, 129, 357 S.E.2d 694, 696 (1987). In the same way, legislative bodies have the implied and inherent authority to investigate and discipline its members. French v. Senate, 146 Cal. 604,606, 80 P. 1031, 1032 (1905)(every legislative body has implied power to expel a member for any cause deemed sufficient); Hiss v. Bartlett, 69 Mass. 468, 473, 3 Gray 468, 473 (1855)(power of expulsion is a necessary and incidental power, to enable the house to perform its high functions, and the house is the sole judge of the exigency which may justify and require its exercise); Justice Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States, Vol. II, Section 835. That power has not been limited to offenses committed by the party as a member or committed during the same session as the inquiry. Id., Section 836.

Representative Wright places much reliance in his argument to the contrary on the decision of the United States Supreme Court in Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486, 23 L. Ed. 2d 491 (1969). Powell is inapplicable here for three reasons. First, Powell dealt with the United States House of Representatives' power to exclude someone who had been elected on the grounds that he did not meet the qualifications for office, not the power to expel someone after he was seated in the House. Id., at 507, 23 L. Ed. 2d at 509, Fn. 27. Second, and more fundamentally, Powell dealt with the authority of the United States House of Representatives under the United States Constitution, not the power of the North Carolina House of Representatives under the North Carolina Constitution. Unlike the North Carolina Constitution, which is a limitation on the authority of the legislative branch, the federal Constitution is a grant of power to the federal government. Congress can only act as authorized by the federal Constitution. United States v. Butler, 297 U.S. 1, 63, 80 L. Ed. 477, 487 (1936). This being so, the Supreme Court's analysis in Powell has no bearing on the authority of the General Assembly under the North Carolina Constitution. Finally, the discussion in Powell about the power of Congress to expel extending to conduct during previous sessions was in the context of interpretation of authority granted by House Rules, and it is dicta, as the Court determined that the action taken was exclusion, not expulsion.

Because there are no limitations in the Constitution or in statutes applicable to the House on the conduct which it may consider or the time of occurrence of that conduct, the House and the House Select Committee may inquire into any allegations of improper conduct. The House has taken timely action once it became aware of the allegations it is considering, and the House Select Committee has proceeded expeditiously and with due process.

The House Select Committee, pursuant to the direction of the Speaker of the House, has authority to conduct a hearing into allegations of unethical conduct by one of the members of the House of Representatives, even if that conduct occurred prior to the current Session.

IV. The House Select Committee Rules do not violate the due process rights of Representative Wright.

The House Select Committee Rules do not impermissibly shift the burden of proof to Representative Wright. Rather, the Rules provide for three possible outcomes in the vote of the House Select Committee. By referencing both paragraph 14 and paragraph 15 of the Rules, it is clear that the Committee will have three possible outcomes on each charge:

(1) If the Committee finds the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall do one or both of the following:

a. Refer the matter to the Attorney General for investigation and referral to the district attorney for possible prosecution if the Committee finds substantial evidence of a violation of a criminal law that is not already the subject of an indictment.

b. Refer the matter to the House of Representatives for appropriate action, which may include admonishment, censure and expulsion.

(2) If the Committee fails to find the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and to the accused legislator.

(3) If the Committee finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges, the chair shall transmit this finding in writing to the accused legislator and to the House of Representatives.

The House Select Committee Rules do not impermissibly shift the burden of proof to Representative Wright. Rather, the Rules provide for an additional possible outcome that can benefit him. The Committee may find he committed ethical violations if convinced by clear and convincing evidence. The Committee may find that the allegations of ethical violations have not been proved by clear and convincing evidence. And, the Committee may decide that not only have the charges not been proved by clear and convincing evidence, but that he should be found to be exonerated of the charge of that violation. It may do so, rather than just finding the charges not proved, if it believes so by a preponderance of evidence. In contrast, in criminal courts there are only two possible verdicts, and a not guilty verdict or acquittal only denotes the failure of the prosecution to establish guilt beyond a reasonable doubt; it does not affirmatively establish innocence. Taylor v. Taylor, 257 N.C. 130, 134, 125 S.E.2d 373, 375 (1962). There is no violation of due process by the Committee in creating the additional possible outcome of exoneration that can actually benefit Representative Wright.

In addition, the Committee has provided Representative Wright with compulsory process, the right to be present and to confront witnesses, and the right to discovery.

Respectfully submitted this the 7th day of February, 2008.

Katherine M. Becker

THE CHAIR: All right. Good morning. This House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright is convened February 11th, 2008, approximately eleven-ten in the morning, Room 544, Legislative Office Building. We'll begin, because we are being recorded by the court reporter, Ms. Becker--and welcome again, Ms. Becker, and thank you--I'm going to ask everyone to quickly introduce themselves who are at these tables, and then at the three tables below the podium. So we'll start with the vice-chairman.

REP. STAM: Paul Stam, vice-chair.

MS. SAVEL: Carin Savel, Committee clerk.

THE CHAIR: We'll start over here--

MS. SMITH: Amanda Smith, staff.

MS. HUNTLEY: Denise Huntley, staff.

MR. REAGAN: Walker Reagan, Committee counsel.

MR. GOLDSMITH: Kory Goldsmith, Committee co-counsel.

MR. KREHELY: Brad Krehely, Committee co-counsel.

MS. FENNELL: Heather Fennell, Committee co-counsel.

THE CHAIR: Representative Warren?

REP. WARREN: Edith Warren, State Representative, 8th House District.

REP. LUCAS: Marvin Lucas, Committee member.

REP. WILEY: Laura Wiley, District 61.

REP. McGEE: Bill McGee, Committee member.

THE CHAIR: If we could, Representative Wright--

REP. WRIGHT: Representative Thomas Wright.

THE CHAIR: You'll--you'll need to hold the button down--

MR. HARRIS: Oh, okay.

THE CHAIR: --Mr. Harris. I'm sorry.

MR. HARRIS: I see. Thank you. No problem. All right. This is--I'm Doug Harris, the attorney for Thomas Wright, Representative Wright.

THE CHAIR: All right.

PROF. JOYNER: Irving Joyner and Heather Rattelade.

THE CHAIR: Also as counsel for Representative Wright?

PROF. JOYNER: Yes, sir.

THE CHAIR: Okay. Thank you. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: William Hart, Senior Deputy Attorney General from the Attorney General's Office, and Special Counsel.

MR. PETERS: Alexander Peters, Special Deputy Attorney General, and Special Counsel to the Committee.

THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you very much. All right. This meeting is called to order. We've introduced staff and legal counsel, and what we want to do today--and I'm going to review quickly the purpose of the meeting and the order of business that will follow.

This meeting is to hear dispositive motions filed by Representative Wright. The staff has prepared for all counsel, as well as for Committee members, the list of motions that the Chair intends to hear. This has been reviewed by the Committee's special counsel and by Mr. Joyner and Mr. Harris. The Chair's intent is to consider the motions in the order in which they were listed.

Under the Committee's rules, the Chair is to rule on the motions initially. And what I anticipate doing is a procedure that goes something like this: I'll call the motion and then ask Mr. Harris or Professor Joyner, whoever is going to argue the motion, to argue your point on the motion. Then I'll open it up to the Committee for questions that they would have of Counsel. Then, Mr. Hart or Mr. Peters, you'll argue the Committee and Counsel's position, and, again, the Committee can then follow your questions--or your comments with questions.

After we finish comments by Counsel and questions by any members of the Committee, then I will make the Chair's ruling and issue that ruling orally to the extent I'm able to do that, and at that point will then turn to the Committee and ask if any member of the Committee seeks to overrule the motion of the Chair or the ruling of the Chair, because ultimately, although the Chair makes the initial ruling, the Rules certainly allow the Committee to override the Chair should they choose to do that. And we'll go through motion by motion.

There are twelve motions pending. In addition, there is a request, and I think appropriately, from Professor Joyner to review the discovery matters that were filed and make sure we have those--and make sure we have those in order. So that will also be something that we'll do after we get through the--the list of motions.

Any questions on the procedure that we'll use for the hearing of the motions? All right.

Then the first motion--the first motion that I want to--

PROF. JOYNER: Mister--Mr. Chairman?

THE CHAIR: Yes?

PROF. JOYNER: I just--just want a clarification now. I apologize--

THE CHAIR: Sure.

PROF. JOYNER: --for interrupting you, but we initially received a one-count complaint from the Legislative Ethics Committee, which--to which we responded at an earlier point. Subsequent to that, we received complaints from the House Select Committee. So for my clarification, would you tell us what is the status of this Legislative Ethics Committee complaint, and how does that fit into the framework of where we are now?

THE CHAIR: Certainly. The Legislative Ethics Committee received the initial complaint, obviously, as--as you now know, with regard to the concerns as it relates to Representative Wright. That committee, in December, forwarded its recommendation on to the Speaker of the House, indicating it had significant concerns with the indicted conduct but felt that the indicted conduct jurisdictionally, because of the LEC statute, did not give the LEC jurisdictional basis to review that indicted conduct, but did give the LEC the opportunity to refer to the House of Representatives to act on its own disciplinary measures, independent of the joint LEC.

That recommendation went to Speaker Hackney, and Speaker Hackney immediately formed the House Select Committee which you're now appearing before. This House Select Committee will and did review all the evidence it--that was available to it and, as you may remember--I think it was January the 9th--determined probable cause existed as to eight specific counts, which you then got notice of in writing, and Representative Wright did, and gave two weeks to file the written response, which you have responded to.

The LEC retained jurisdiction over one count. That LEC count remains within the LEC's jurisdiction, not directly in our jurisdiction. However, that count seems to be included within the eight counts that we have, and so what the LEC would choose to do with that count is a determination they will have to make, and they, of course, meet in a different setting.

But this House Select Committee's job is to work through the eight counts that we now have probable cause on, and which I assume you've now responded and filed motions on, and those would be the eight counts, if they survived motions, that would be the form of the evidentiary hearing--the basis of the evidentiary hearing before this Committee.

It would be up to the LEC to determine whether they want to proceed independently on their one count. I can't speak for the LEC, since only part of the LEC essentially exists here. But that's the procedure of where we are. All right?

All right. The first motion to be heard today is a motion to dismiss filed by Representative Wright as to all counts generally for lack of jurisdiction. Who will be arguing that motion?

PROF. JOYNER: I will.

THE CHAIR: Okay. Professor Joyner--and--and you may go to the podium, which may be much easier than sitting there holding the button. If the sergeant-at-arms would assist, please--

(DISCUSSION OFF RECORD)

THE CHAIR: Professor Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, thank you for this opportunity, members of the House Select Committee. The first motion that--that's before you is the motion to dismiss all counts for lack of jurisdiction or authorization. And in support of that motion, we look at some of the--some of the law which I think is supposed to undergird our actions here today and in the days to come, if that occurs.

But I want to start with the fundamental document which gives to the General Assembly its power, and that is the North Carolina Constitution. And that Constitution is then supported by the federal Constitution, the United States Constitution, which is a Constitutional imperative in--under the North Carolina Constitution. There is a specific provision of the North Carolina Constitution, which says that the federal Constitution is supreme to the North Carolina Constitution. Decisions from the United States Supreme Court and other courts have upheld that--that notion.

So why don't we just start from the power, the grant of authority to--to the General Assembly, especially as it relates to the issue of disciplining or expelling a legislator from--from this body, and then look at North Carolina statutes in that regard, because those are the enactments by the North Carolina General Assembly which gives to various operating bodies the authority to--to proceed.

Starting first with the--our claim and the response from the North Carolina Attorney General's Office, it is crystal clear, and everyone seemingly is in agreement, that there is not a Constitutional provision which allows the General Assembly to discipline or expel a member from its body. Expressly stated, it's not there, nor is there a statute that's been enacted by the North Carolina General Assembly which provides authority to discipline or expel a legislator for any action.

There are provisions in the Constitution--in the Constitution and in statutes which allow for the impeachment of any number of elected officials in the state. But not included in that authorization is impeachment or any actions directed against a sitting member of the General Assembly, either in the Senate or in the House.

And in the two briefs that's--that you've been provided with, you don't find a claim that that power exists under either the Constitution or the North Carolina statutes. Now, I'm--I'm--I'm reporting. I'm not arguing this point. The--the law is what the law is.

In the absence of some authority, this General Assembly does not have the power to act. If the Constitution does not give to the General Assembly a power or--based on the United--the North Carolina Supreme Court's decision in State versus Spivey, if the General Assembly has not created a mechanism or an authorization for it or some other body to act, then it is without power to act.

Now, the Attorney General suggests that there is this thing called the inherent power of the General Assembly. And the inherent power of the General Assembly is something that sounds good. It conveys the notion that you can do any doggone thing you want to do. And, of course, that's the reason you have the Constitution and the statutes, is to circumscribe what, in fact, you can do.

So the Attorney General's office is arguing on your behalf that there is this inherent power. And in support of this inherent power, it cites two cases. It'll just take me a moment to just find--one is Hiss versus Bartlett. It's a Massachusetts case from 1855. It's a case originating in the days of slavery, a case that predates the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments of the United States Constitution, and a case which predates the 1868 North Carolina Constitution. And I say that to say that its validity or its impact on these proceedings ought to be nonexistent, because since 1855 all of the laws of the land have changed significantly.

Then they rely upon a California case, French versus Senate, and that is a case decided in 1905. And they state the proposition that "every legislative body has implied power to expel a member for any cause deemed sufficient."

And I--I direct your attention to the constitution of California, and, in fact, I want to direct your attention to the constitutions of just about every state in this country. And in those constitutions the law--or the constitution not only provides a section that members of the House are judges of the qualification of its members as is defined by the constitution, but it goes on to say in each of those instances that where a two-thirds majority so decides, and if there is sufficient grounds for it, a person can be disciplined or expelled from its body. North Carolina does not have that provision in its Constitution.

So in that sense, the California constitution and the French case that we've just made reference to, talking about inherent power, that decision flows from the grant of power that's contained in the California constitution. Obviously, that grant of power isn't present in the North Carolina Constitution.

An inherent power can only flow from expressed powers. In California, the expressed power is the power of two-thirds members of the majority to expel or to discipline. In North Carolina, that grant of authority is not there. Now, I didn't write the Constitution, so don't blame me for it. But it is a deficiency.

Well, it may not be a deficiency, because the North Carolina General Assembly has had any number of opportunities to come back and amend this Constitution. There was an amendment--in 1890 it was amended. There were--there have been subsequent amendments as late as 1969. In none of those instances did the North Carolina General Assembly see fit, in its infinite wisdom, to enact a provision in its Constitution to expel or discipline members of its body. And, again, that's not just the House, but it is the Senate, as well.

At the same time, by statute, the North Carolina General Assembly has codified several impeachment-like provisions in the state law. There is the Judicial Standards Commission, for instance, and a procedure set in place that allows for the expulsion and discipline--disciplining of judges, superior court judges, district court judges. And that process works, and there have been a number of judges who have been expelled from office or otherwise disciplined. And for the most part--well, in each of those instances, that is done pursuant to the grant of authority given by the state--by the General Assembly to the Judicial Standards Committee--Commission.

In the case of State versus Spivey, dealing with the expulsion of a district attorney from office, our Supreme Court noted in that opinion that the Constitution of North Carolina did not provide a basis to expel a--an elected district attorney from office. There was nothing in the Constitution that provided it, and based on that, our Court recognized that under the Constitution that could not happen.

But the Constitu--but the Supreme Court also saw that the General Assembly had enacted a specific provision, specific statute, in the state which provided for the removal of district attorneys where certain conduct had occurred. And the Court held that the act of the General Assembly in instituting that statute or enacting that statute was done on behalf of the people, since the legislature speaks for the people, that the act of creating this statute which provided for the removal was sufficient to give to the Superior Court judge, in that particular case, the authority to remove the sitting and elected district attorney from office down in--in Wilmington, of all places.

Wilmington's had a pretty glorious history--we always go back to 1898, but--and work our way on back up now that--a whole lot of people are removed from office seemingly down in Wilmington. It's kind of noted for that.

But our Supreme Court, in Spivey, said that because the General Assembly had enacted a statute which gave to the Superior Court judge the authority to remove, that that was sufficient to convey the sense of the people and the approval of the people for that process. And we've noted, I believe, the Hardy case and several other cases dealing with judicial impeachment.

My point is that in each of those instances where our Court, our Supreme Court, has upheld this removal power, it flows from the enactment of a statute by this General Assembly concurring with--concur--in concurrence with the Senate--and, of course, now signed and agreed to by the governor, but, of course, when these acts were enacted, the governor was not a part of the--of the equation--but that there had to be some specific, expressed power granted to allow for the discipline and removal of an elected official.

At no point in the history of North Carolina has this General Assembly acted to provide a similar provision dealing with the removal or disciplining of a state legislator, either a member of the House or a member of the Senate. And in the absence of that authorization, this General Assembly is without authority to do that.

Now, I mentioned the fact that there are more than thirty-six states that have provided and authorized the punishment of a member for disorderly or disrespectful conduct with the consent of two-thirds of its members. The United States Congress has a similar provision. And in the United States Congress, pursuant to the federal Constitution, there is an expressed provision which says that with two-thirds of the members of the House or the Senate, and upon a showing of disorderly or disrespectful behavior, a elected

Congressional representative or an elected U.S. senator can be removed from office. And that has happened from time to time, and it has happened in other states from time to time. But in every instance, it is pursuant to expressed authorization either contained in the Constitution itself or by some statute.

This notion of inherent power--and our Supreme Court has spoken to that, as well--flows from a grant of power, a grant of power specifically given by the General Assembly to some other agency or institution, or to itself, because the General Assembly can--can--can do that. In the absence of that, the General Assembly can't just take up and do anything that it wants to do. And even where there is a grant of authority to do that, then that grant must satisfy both the federal and state notion of due process.

An arbitrary ad hoc committee being constituted and given the power to discipline or expel a legislator is contrary to both the North Carolina Constitution--it is contrary to the notion of due process. Due process speaks to this notion of fundamental fairness, fundamental fairness, in a process that is open and transparent, that allows for a person to present their case and to attack the case that's being presented against them. The Rules that I've seen established for this Committee does not provide that, and as such would run afoul of the Court's pronouncement in Spivey that where you have this grant of authority, that grant of authority must also satisfy the Court's notion of due process, which is something that is missing in the effort that we have here.

Now, as I understand it, Mr. Chairman, this Committee is--this House Select Committee has been authorized by the Speaker of the House. It is not a committee that is authorized by the General Assembly. And as the Speaker of the House, rather than the Dictator of the House, he has no power to convey a power to any committee to discipline or dismiss any legislator in this body. Now--

THE CHAIR: You understand, do you not, Professor Joyner, that the power of this Committee is limited to recommendations, and that this Committee does not discipline or expel any member on its own, it only has the power to recommend to the full House?

PROF. JOYNER: I--I--I understand that, and that was my next--my next point.

You--you--you can't recommend to expel when the party that you are recommending it to doesn't have the power to do it. And--and--and it's clear there are some people who would like to do that. But in terms of the law as the law is established in this state, this General Assembly and its ad hoc Committee does not have the authority to--to go forward with an action to discipline or expel a legislator from this--from this body. I would certainly urge that this body consider--considers doing that and enacting appropriate legislation to do that.

And with that, I'll let the Attorney General's office come up and argue it--its inherent authority.

THE CHAIR: Let's see if we've got questions first for you, Professor Joyner, from any member of the Committee. The Chair has several.

Just so I'm clear on what the position is, do you argue that the House has no authority under the Constitution or statute to discipline in any manner any of its members for conduct in the House of Representatives?

PROF. JOYNER: That--that--that--that is what--what we're arguing.

THE CHAIR: So if someone was on the House floor and refused to sit down and to abide by the Speaker's ruling to be quiet and just kept talking, is it your view that the Speaker would have no ability under the Rules, because there is no statute or Constitutional provision, to ask the sergeant-at-arms to escort that person, as a matter of discipline, off the House floor?

PROF. JOYNER: There--there are rules of procedure, typically, for those sessions. Those rules and procedures have been adopted by the General Assembly, and where those rules and procedures have been adopted by the--by the General Assembly, then they are in action of the General Assembly. Those are rules in place prior to whatever misconduct you are--you're referring to.

But that--that's known, and that's--it's something that has been adopted by the General Assembly and is a grant of authority by the General Assembly to itself as a part of its internal operation and its internal proceeding. So yes, the Speaker would have the power in that instance to have the sergeant-at-arms to remove that person, which is significantly different than an action to discipline a legislator or to expel a legislator for that conduct.

THE CHAIR: Let's assume that the legislator--and--and for whatever reason--there isn't a criminal action pending, so let's not worry about any crime issues, but let's assume a legislator steals twenty-five times from legislative assistants' purses, simply goes around the building and takes money, no criminal charges brought. Would it be your position that because of the deficiency in the Constitution, as you suggest, and in the statute, that the House would have no capacity to discipline that legislator?

PROF. JOYNER: The House would have the authority to call the police in and have that person arrested and prosecuted for the crime for--which has been alleged, and that matter then be adjudicated in a--in a court of law. But in terms of--and I go back to the absence of this authority in the Constitution, and by statute, you've not given yourself that power to do that.

THE CHAIR: So if--if--if the particular witnesses did not want to seek criminal charges, then the House would be, in your view, not able to invoke any internal ethics discipline on that legislator; it's simply a matter of the police having to deal with it, and if they don't, or if the witnesses don't want to proceed in a criminal court, then the House would have no authority to discipline its member--

PROF. JOYNER: Right.

THE CHAIR: --right now?

PROF. JOYNER: The discipline--and--and--and this is the framework in which both our federal Constitution and our state Constitution has been established. The legislator represents people, and they are the embodiment of the people. They've been sent by those people here to do the people's business, and the discipline and expulsion of that legislator rests uniquely within the body of people who sent that legislator there. And that is, as it stands now, the only authority in North Carolina that can discipline or expel a legislator, by simply not voting that person back into office the next time he runs. That's one of the reasons the legislator has to run every two years.

THE CHAIR: Well, let's assume instead--and let's take it out of the criminal context, so that there's no ability to call police. Let's assume that a legislator sexually harasses pages or other members, female members, of the staff, and does so in a repeated manner that's reported. There is no crime of sexual harassment. There's a certainly a civil action that might be available, but there's no--

PROF. JOYNER: Well, there's--there's a crime.

THE CHAIR: Well, there's a--

PROF. JOYNER: There's a crime.

THE CHAIR: There's not a crime of verbal sexual harassment. Assume we're not talking about physical touching, that we're talking about verbal issues, and it's repeated. And again, assume with me that it's not a criminal action, but maybe, if someone wanted to process it, civil actions.

Again, my question comes in. Are you suggesting that because of this deficiency in this--in--in the Constitution, that the House would have no capacity to discipline and potentially expel its member who repeatedly sexually harassed women if--and assuming, again, that there's not a criminal charge that's available, understanding there may be a civil prosecution available? I mean, is that your position?

PROF. JOYNER: Well, the--the--the--the authority wouldn't have been based on the action or the result of the--of the action. I mean, that is a--that is--verbal sexual harassment is a crime, as well. They call it assaultive behavior, because placing one in fear and apprehension, even where there's not a touching, is sufficient to make out assaultive conduct.

But the question that you raised, the answer is--is--is the same. No, this--this body would not, because this body has never given itself the authority to do that, nor does the Constitution give to this body the authority to do that.

And even if the legislator walked in here and shot somebody dead right here in front of everybody on the World Wide Web, this body would not, as presently constituted, have that authority. Now, if you went to California and did that, then the legislature could expel the person, because they have an expressed grant of authority in its Constitution that says, "Upon two-thirds' vote, we can expel this person for misconduct."

But that is not the situation in North Carolina, and I'm sorry to say that.

THE CHAIR: I--I understand your position. Thank you. Any other--now, questions. Representative Stam?

REP. STAM: Thank you. I have two. And I--I appreciate you saying that, because that is the consequence of your position.

About a dozen times, the House or the Senate of North Carolina has expelled a member. Are you aware of any case authority in North Carolina questioning that authority by our appellate courts?

PROF. JOYNER: It's not been raised, as far as I've been able to--to research. The--it's not been raised in the context of the House and the Senate. It's been raised in the context of judicial officials--

REP. STAM: Well, that was my question, expelling a member of a House or Senate.

PROF. JOYNER: Right. No. It has never--it's never--it's never--it's never been raised.

REP. STAM: Okay. If I--

PROF. JOYNER: Now, when you talk about the expulsions, with the exception of one, they--they occurred prior to 1900.

REP. STAM: But let me ask you this on that, because I think I heard you saying that cases before 1868 were inadmissible because they were too old--did--

PROF. JOYNER: Well, that wasn't--that wasn't--I mean, I said that, but that wasn't the reason that I said it.

REP. STAM: Did the Constitution before 1868--there was one in 1835. There was one in about 1776. There was one from the Lord's Proprietors in the 1600s. Did any of those Constitutions under which the dozen or more expulsions occurred have an explicit grant of authority to expel a member?

PROF. JOYNER: I'm--I'm not sure. I've not sure. I've not seen--I've not seen--I just know that from 1868, which is the base year of the Constitution that we're dealing with now, which brought in significant changes to the Constitution of--of North Carolina, that has not--

REP. STAM: But on that item it didn't change. There wasn't an expressed grant before, there wasn't an expressed grant afterwards--is my question. And--

PROF. JOYNER: Well, before--

REP. STAM: --I guess the answer is you don't know.

PROF. JOYNER: Yeah, I--I don't know. I've not seen that.

THE CHAIR: All right. Other questions, members of the Committee? Representative Wiley? I'm sorry.

THE CHAIR: All right. For now, thank you, Professor Joyner. We may--may have some more after Mr. Hart--or--is it Mr. Hart or Mr. Peters going to argue? Mr. Hart.

MR. HART: Good morning, Mr. Chairman and members of the Committee.

THE CHAIR: Good morning.

MR. HART: Mr. Joyner and I have a fundamental difference of opinion on the law of what the General Assembly has the authority to do regarding anything in the State of North Carolina. Mr. Joyner believes that just like the United States Constitution, the North Carolina Constitution is a grant of authority to this body, the General Assembly, and without a specific grant of authority of the Constitution, that this body has no authority to act. That is not the law.

The law, as interpreted by the North Carolina Supreme Court, has specifically stated that the Constitution of North Carolina is a limitation of authority of the General Assembly, not a grant of authority of--and it is unlike the U.S. Constitution.

The United States is made up of fifty states. In order to provide for that joinder of states, the states wanted to have states' rights. They wanted certain rights left to the states, and they were willing to grant certain authority to the United States government. So the United States Constitution is a specific grant of authority to the Congress. And without a specific grant in the Constitution, Congress is limited and cannot pass statutes that affect the people of the United States.

However, the General Assembly of North Carolina, just like any other state in the union, has the authority of the people to do the people's business. Again, the North Carolina Supreme Court has said this in countless cases over the last hundred years. You have the authority to do what is--whatever is necessary to conduct the business of the people of the State of North Carolina, and the only limitation you have is if there is a specific provision in the Constitution that prohibits it, or unless this body, the General Assembly, has passed a specific statute limiting it. That is necessary.

In the same way, the courts have been held to have inherent authority to do the business of the courts. The courts, by Constitution of North Carolina, have been granted certain authority, but the U.S.--the North Carolina Supreme Court and the North Carolina Court of Appeals have both said over the years in countless cases that the courts have inherent authority to conduct the business of the courts and to enforce its judgments. And so it does have limited authority to do certain things, even if there is not a specific provision.

That is the same kind of authority that this body has. It has the authority of the people to do what is necessary to conduct the business of the people. There is no limitation in the North Carolina Constitution. Article I, Section 2 of the North Carolina Constitution says, "All political power vested in and derived from the people is granted to the General Assembly."

Article II, Section 20 provides the General Assembly has the authority to judge the qualifications of its members. Now, there's been an argument in the Respondent's brief that that is limited to simply what qualifications are necessary to file for and to be elected as a member of the legislature. Unfortunately, that argument does not account for Article VI, Section 8 of the North Carolina Constitution, which adds an additional disqualification as a member--as a public official.

Article VI, Section 8 provides that any public official, any elected official can be disqualified from office based on certain grounds, and amongst those are in a judgment of being guilty of a criminal offense. But the North Carolina

Supreme Court has said that that is not to be interpreted strictly, that there are times when a public official can be adjudicated as having been involved in inappropriate conduct that does not amount to necessarily a criminal offense and can be disqualified from public office.

In the case of In Re: Peoples that is noted in the Special Counsel's brief, the North Carolina Supreme Court, in deciding the case of a superior court judge, found that the due-process provisions of the Judicial Standards Commission and recommendation to the North Carolina Supreme Court that a judge had engaged in willful misconduct, and the finding by the North Carolina Supreme Court that those findings were appropriate and that that punishment was appropriate, that that expulsion fit within Article VI, Section 8 of the North Carolina Constitution. We argue to you that in the same way this body, with its inherent authority to do the people's business, can make similar adjudications of misconduct of its members.

I've noted that there's no limitation in the Constitution. I would also argue to you that there is no limitation by statute.

In Respondent's brief, there are a number of arguments raised about limitations provided by the Legislative Ethics Act, the creation of the Legislative Ethics Committee. I would argue to you that that passage of the Legislative Ethics Act and the creation of the Legislative Ethics Committee did not in any way limit the authority of the House of Representatives or the Senate to discipline or expel its members. And I specifically point you to Statute 120-103.1, Subsection M, by which in the Legislative Ethics Act this body, the General Assembly, specifically stated that it was--the Legislative Ethics Act was not intended to limit the authority of the General Assembly to discipline or expel its members.

One of the arguments that Mr. Joyner made regarding the constitutions of the United States and the Constitution of other states was that there are specific provisions both in the constitutions and in statutes that no member of the legislature could be removed without a two-thirds majority vote. And I would argue to you that those are limitations, and that if--if the General Assembly chose to, it could pass a limitation that this body could not discipline or expel a member without a two-thirds majority vote. That would be a limitation. That would--is not a grant of authority.

Also, Mr. Joyner cited to specific statutes and specific provisions in constitutions of other states that involve certain conduct as being inappropriate and subject to discipline or expulsion. Again, I would argue to you that those are limitations, not grants, of authority. Similar to North Carolina, every state has the inherent authority to discipline its members.

In fact, the General Assembly, as noted in a question by Representative Stam, and as you've, Members of Committee, heard on January 9th with a presentation by staff--heard that the General Assembly, and the House in particular, has chosen to discipline or expel numerous members in its history.

Mr. Peters and I have tried to, to the best that we have been able to so far, determine whether there was any provision in any constitutions that North Carolina has ever had that in any way did any more to provide specifically for conduct of legislators and methods by which the General Assembly may discipline or expel its members. And we have not been able to find any provision in any Constitution that--that we have been able to locate. We have--we have not exhausted our--our research, but at least at this point we have not found that previous constitutions did have that authority in--in any way specifically laid out as opposed to our current Constitution.

In pursuit of the inherent authority that the General Assembly has, it also has the ability to delegate investigation and fact-finding to a committee. And there are specific statutory provisions in G.S. 120-14, G.S. 120-19.1, and those--those have been cited in State v. Curtis, which is on Page 4 of the State's brief--and that is that a committee which is specifically delegated authority to find facts and to make recommendations--that that is within the power of the General Assembly or either of its houses.

And that's what this committee's role is. It has been designated to simply investigate, to make findings, and to make a recommendation to the House. That is within the authority of the statutes and the House rules, and it is within the authority of the House to so delegate to the Committee in pursuit of its authority to discipline or expel its members.

Again, I'd like to specifically point out that the General Assembly specifically, in passing the Legislative Ethics Act, retained its inherent authority to discipline or expel its members by specifically including the provision in G.S. 120-103.1, Subsection M.

THE CHAIR: Anything further, Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: Just a couple--just a couple points--

THE CHAIR: Certainly.

MR. HART: --Mr. Chair.

I listened carefully to Mr. Joyner's argument, and at several points in his argument he seemed to tell you that this legislature has never taken the opportunity to enact a statute to cover a situation like this. He spoke about the provisions of the Legislative Ethic--Ethics Act, which authorized certain actions that can be taken by the legislature, by the General Assembly. And he seemed to concede that the General Assembly had the authority to do that. That counters his argument that there is no inherent authority of the General Assembly to take this kind of action. If it has no authority, then it can't delegate to itself by statute the authority to take action.

If Mr. Joyner is correct that the General Assembly has no authority to discipline or expel its members, then the Legislative Ethics Act is unconstitutional, and that's just not the case. Again, there--there is an inherent authority that's been recognized for hundreds of years for state legislatures to discipline or expel its members.

THE CHAIR: Questions for Mr. Hart from any member of the Committee? Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: I--I would say the--the interesting question is whether that inherent authority is in the Assembly, or is it in the individual houses? And I wonder if you've come across any authority from other states that say that it has to be--that it has to be the Assembly as a whole rather than the individual houses. I would think the common law would be to allow any body to discipline its own members, but I don't know.

MR. HART: And it--I--I want to be careful, because it's been a few weeks since I read the two cases that I cited. But I believe that the actions that were taken in the French case and the Hiss versus Bartlett case involved specific houses of the general assembly of--of those states. And I--and I believe that the same argument would hold for the entire body as it would for a specific house. As--as--as you say, Representative Stam, it would seem that--and the courts have held that--that any particular body seems to have the inherent authority to discipline or expel its members.

REP. STAM: Well, if I could--one follow-up: Certainly in North Carolina the custom is for one house to do it. We know that. I was just wondering if you had found anything in the writings around the country that made that distinction.

MR. HART: I have not found that distinction.

THE CHAIR: Other questions by any member of the Committee? Thank you, Mr. Hart.

And rebuttal from Mr. Joyner--Professor Joyner, and then any final questions.

PROF. JOYNER: In--in response to--in response to what Mr. Hart has--has said, let me see if I can't frame this a little differently.

My argument and my reading of the law is not that this General Assembly is without the power to enact legislation that will allow for a legislator to be disciplined or expelled. That's not the position that I took, and it's not what I said. What I said was that this General Assembly had not done it. And because it has not enacted a law, like the Judicial Standards Commission, similar to the laws allowing for the removal of a district attorney from his or her position--that's a grant of authority. The General Assembly can do that. The General Assembly has the power to do that. And in those instances, the General Assembly did, in fact, do that. And in those instances, the Court upheld the exclusion of members from the judiciary and from the district attorney based on those acts.

And that is what is called doing the people's business, because the General Assembly is a legislative body, and it convenes for the purpose of enacting legislation. And in enacting legislation, they speak for the people. And in those instances, it spoke. And it is from those enactments that the inherent power of those bodies to act as they did was created.

Now, let me just go to the Spivey case. And this is the North Carolina Supreme Court in the case of Jerry Spivey. The Court said--and this is also in response to Representative Stam's question--the 1868 Constitution was unusual among the states because it did not list either the officers subject to impeachment or the proper grounds for impeachment. That's what it said. North Carolina was unusual. It was unusual with respect to the removal of district attorneys from office, and it's unusual with respect to the removal of or in discipline of state legislators from office.

I've already outlined for you--and there's no dispute about it--that the provisions are different in other states.

Then our Supreme Court went on to say prior to our Constitution of 1868, however, no such omissions were found in our state Constitution, Representative Stam. The omission dates from the 1868 Constitution--"the omissions date from." This inability to remove dates back to 1868.

Our Supreme Court said the 1835 Constitution, which in this respect simply elaborated the original language, listed both the offices subject to impeachment--governor, supreme court justice--supreme court justices, superior court justice--judges, and all other officers of this state--and the grounds were willful violation of the Constitution, maladministration, and corruption.

Now, our Supreme Court recognized that the 1835 Constitution did allow for the General Assembly to impeach or remove officers as listed in the Constitution from office. It says it right here, and it--and--and I'm reading it. I'm not making this up. But they recognized that the 1868 Constitution was deficient in that regard and did not give or provide the same authorization.

And that's why in Spivey the Court said "notwithstanding this omission," because the General Assembly has now enacted a statute which provides for the removal of a district attorney, then that speaks for the people, and the General Assembly had the inherent power to enact that legislation calling for that removal or providing for that removal, as long as those acts were consistent with due process. Now, that--now, that's what--that's what the case said.

So in 1868 the deficiency was created, and that deficiency in the power of this legislature to act continues. It continues not because it's not in the Constitution, but because this body has never enacted a statute which allows this body to discipline its members. Now, that's probably on purpose. It's probably not an oversight. I mean, it's probably not an oversight, because people want to protect their power.

They made--took pains to provide for the removal of judges. They took pains to provide for the removal of district attorneys. Don't you think that if they took powers--pains to provide for the removal of those elected officials, that the decision not to include legislators in that was on purpose, it was not an oversight? But our Supreme Court recognized that that's what happened in--in Spivey.

Now, in addition to that, Mr. Hart was talking about, you know, this--this discon-- disconnect between the federal Constitution and what the federal Constitution mandates and what the state Constitution mandates, and tries to prick up this states' rights argument. Our Constitution is also unique in the sense that it says, "Every citizen of this state"--

THE CHAIR: What provision are you looking at? I'm sorry.

PROF. JOYNER: Article I, Section 5.

THE CHAIR: Thank you.

PROF. JOYNER: Article I, Section 5: "Every citizen of this state owes paramount allegiance to the Constitution and government of the United States," not paramount allegiance to the Constitution of North Carolina, but paramount allegiance to the Constitution and government of the United States, "and no law or ordinance of the state in contravention or subversion thereof can have any binding force."

I didn't write this. I didn't write this. I didn't write this. These were people in 1868 who said that. And that would certainly belie this notion of this supreme states' rights argument that the Attorney General's office is making at--at this point.

In In Re: Peoples--and I've--I've read that case several times, forty-one-page opinion. And what the Court said in In Re: Peoples is no different than what the Court said in Spivey, in that this General Assembly created a Judicial Standards Commission to look at the conduct of judges, and in looking at the conduct of judges, when they find willful misconduct, it need not constitute a crime, but that body, based on what the General Assembly has provided to them, has the authority to remove that person from office. And that is all that happened in In Re: Peoples. And it happened in In Re: Peoples because the first step of that process was that this body, the General Assembly, passed a statute which authorized that to happen.

And the argument that I'm making to you, which is supported by the law, is that in the absence of that statute, in the absence of this body taking some positive and affirmative action to give to itself that grant of power, that grant of power does not exist so that it can be used willy-nilly from legislative session to legislative session. It doesn't happen that way. Due process--due process and fundamental fairness would argue against that.

And that's the position that we're taking, and not that this body does not have the authority to enact legislation, but in the absence of this body actually enacting legislation, then it doesn't have the authority that it now claims to have.

THE CHAIR: Thank you, Professor. Any final comments, Mr. Hart? All right. Any final questions from any Committee member for counsel? If not, the Chair will rule.

The specifics--rules that we operate under require me to enter into the record my ruling in as much detail as I can so that the Committee can then determine whether they want to proceed on that basis. I'm going to ask the Committee for a little leeway in that I'm issuing oral rulings. I will follow up with confirmatory written rulings that won't change the tenor of my ruling but may change a line or--grammatically or citation to--to apply. So I will do my best to give you the full breadth of what I intend to rule so that you can move on that.

All right. Number 1. This matter is before the Chair and the Committee on motion from Representative Wright to dismiss all counts pending before the House Select Committee generally for lack of jurisdiction. The issue has been expertly briefed by both sides and argued orally today. This motion is now ripe for disposition.

Number 2. The issue is whether the House Committee has jurisdiction to proceed to consider disciplinary action against Representative Wright on the counts that are pending before the Committee.

Number 3. Representative Wright's argument is essentially that no Constitutional provision exists to allow the General Assembly to discipline or expel a member from this body, nor has the legislature passed any statute allowing such action. Thus, there is no inherent power of the General Assembly available and no explicit or statutory or Constitutional authority available to proceed and provide a basis for jurisdiction to act today. Further, Counsel argues that an inherent power can only flow from an expressed power, and that since there is no expressed grant of such authority in the North Carolina Constitution or exercised by the General Assembly, no inherent authority can exist; in the absence of legislation, this Committee is without authority to do so.

Number 3 [sic]. Committee counsel argues instead that the North Carolina Constitution is, unlike the United States Constitution, a limitation on the General Assembly's authority, not a grant of that authority, and that no specific Constitutional power must exist to allow the General Assembly to exercise inherent powers necessary and proper to proceed under the Constitution or statutes of the state. Specifically, Mr. Hart also argues that there is no specific Constitutional provision limiting nor is there any statute limiting jurisdiction in the case today.

Number 5. For background, since we are dealing with inherent-authority issues, background of how we came to this position through the practice of Parliament, the practice of the common law, the practice of this state previously must be reviewed.

The House of Commons and English Parliamentary practice had the exclusive right to control its own proceedings, including the power to discipline its members. Criminal conduct and noncriminal conduct warranted expulsion. Members were expelled when they had been convicted of a crime or when their actions were viewed as criminal by the House, and specifically in the areas of corruption in office or bribery. Take a look at-- or see the case of John Trevor in 1621, the case of Edward Lord Howard in 1632, the case of Robert Walpole in 1712, the case of Thomas Vernon in 1721.

In addition, members were expelled for conduct which was essentially private in nature and which merely reflected upon the member's character as a whole, including private torts and fraudulent business practices. Again, take a look at the case of John Lord Barrington in 1723, the case of John Driffon [phonetic] in 1642 as examples.

In sum, the scope of Parliament's power to expel its members was not confined by statute or rule, and the practice strongly suggests that Parliament recognized no substantive limit on that power.

The--next number. The practice in the colonial legislatures assumed as broad a discretion to expel members as had the English Parliament. The colonial assemblies expelled for whatever they considered misconduct of sufficiently grave proportions, including at least one hundred persons who were expelled from assemblies in the Continental colonies. As was true in England, the basis of expulsion was not defined by statute or rule, and in practice, the grounds for expulsion ranged from crime to religious preference. Thus, colonial legislatures adopted unquestionably the Parliamentary view of the power to expel as a matter within the absolute discretion of the legislative body, without scrupulous regard to freedom of opinion, I might add.

Next number. The colonial legislatures also exercised the power to expel members even though the power was not enumerated in their charters. For example, the charters of Massachusetts and Virginia contain no reference to the power to expel, yet the legislatures of those colonies freely and repeatedly expelled offending members.

Next number. When it came to the Congress, Congress has also held, under the United States Constitution, that criminal conduct that has not yet led to conviction does not preclude expulsion or disciplinary action. Congress has assumed that the power to expel is not limited to punishing misconduct in office, and Congress has proceeded, as well, in a number of instances to discipline and censure members under the United States Constitution and under its statutory powers.

Next number. The practice in other states includes states that do not have a provision providing for disciplinary action for their members and do not have a two-thirds voting provision, and yet those states have, in fact, enacted discipline on their members, including, most recently, censure in Hawaii in 1989 of a member, and in 1983, the resignation of a member in the state of New York following committee recommendations for disciplinary proceedings.

Furthermore, in the most recent case available, the case of Gray versus Gienapp--G-I-E-N-A-P-P--at 727 Northwest Second 808 from South Dakota Supreme Court, January 18, 2007--a state senator who was facing disciplinary proceedings in the state applied for a writ of prohibition seeking to order the senate to refrain from holding any hearings and disciplining the senator regarding alleged sexual misconduct with a senate page. The Supreme Court of South Dakota declared consistent with the exact argument made by Mr. Hart and Mr. Peters today, and I quote as follows: "The South Dakota Constitution, unlike the Constitution of the United States, does not constitute a grant of a legislative power. Instead, our Constitution is but a limitation upon the legislative power, and the legislature may exercise that power in any manner not expressly or inferentially proscribed by the federal or state Constitutions. Thus, accept as limited by the state or federal Constitutions, the legislative power of the state legislature is unlimited. What the representatives of the people have not been forbidden to do by the organic law, they may do."

And in that case, the Supreme Court held that the trial court had no jurisdiction to halt the legislative disciplinary process nor any authority to preclude disclosure of that process.

Next number. In North Carolina, there have been a number of members expelled from the House and the Senate. They are listed in the brief of Mr. Hart: James Carter in 1757; Francis Brown in 1758; Hermon Husband in 1770; William Gilbert in 1779; Edward Clay in 1784; Henry Montfort in 1786; John Bonds in 1787; John Roberts in 1816; Robert Porter in 1835; and importantly, following the 1868 Constitutional change, J. William Thorne in 1875, and a censure that occurred followed by expulsion of Josiah Turner in 1880, both of those cases following the 1868 Constitution.

Most recently, this body has determined it had the capacity and jurisdiction to proceed to discipline a member in 1996 when it censured Representative Ken Miller.

Thus, North Carolina practice makes clear that the North Carolina legislature has always considered, under any of the Constitutional enactments that we have, that the power exists for the House and the Senate to discipline its members.

Furthermore, the legislature understood that in passing the Legislative Ethics Act, and specifically reserved in North Carolina General Statute 120-104(m), "any action or lack of action by the Committee"--meaning the LEC--"under this Section shall not limit the right of each house of the General Assembly to discipline or expel its members." Clearly the legislature understood when it passed this bill in 2006 that the right to discipline or expel its members was part of the process that existed under the law of the State of North Carolina.

Finally, it is my conclusion as a result of that information and those cases that the North Carolina courts have held that an inherent power exists for the legislature to do all things that are reasonably necessary for the proper administration of justice, and legislative bodies have the implied and inherent authority under that to investigate and discipline their members, similarly to the holdings in California and in Massachusetts.

Accordingly, I find that the North Carolina House of Representatives has the inherent authority to investigate and discipline, including the right to expel, one of its members. That authority has not been limited by the Constitution of the State of North Carolina nor by any state statute. The motion, therefore, is denied.

Professor Joyner, exception to my ruling is noted. And now I turn to the members of the Committee. Does any member of the Committee seek to overrule the motion and decision of the Chair?

REP. STAM: Not--

THE CHAIR: Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: Not for that purpose, but if I could just say why I don't--

THE CHAIR: That'd be fine.

REP. STAM: Since we last referred to the Constitution of 1835 or 1776, staff has gotten a copy of it, and I can't find in a quick read where there's any expressed power to either House or Senate to exclude members. And since a dozen of our precedences [phonetic] occurred during those Constitutions, it must not be required.

THE CHAIR: All right. We've been at it for an hour and a half, and although we've only handled one motion, it was an important motion. So I am going to suggest that we give the court reporter and the rest of us a ten-minute break, and we will reconvene in ten minutes. Thank you all very much.

(FIFTEEN-MINUTE RECESS)

THE CHAIR: Representative Warren is back, and weÆll--we'll head to our next motion in a moment. I want to add two findings to the ruling of the Chair, just to add in. The first is that the House has the capacity under House Rule--or House has the capacity to create its own rules of procedure. House Rule 26 specifically allows that the Speaker shall have the exclusive right and authority to establish select committees.

The second finding is that Luther Cushing, who is one of the preeminent commentators on the law and practice of legislative assemblies, specifically states that the power to expel a member is, quote, "naturally and even necessarily incidental to all aggregate and especially all legislative bodies, which without such power could not exist honorably and fulfill the object of their creation."

Those two additions are made. Does that cause any member of the Committee to have any concern? Seeing none--and again the exception to the additions is noted. All right.

We're moving to the second motion. This is a motion to dismiss Count 1. I think I'm right. Is that how we've got it, motion to dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct?

UNKNOWN SPEAKER: No.

THE CHAIR: No, that's not right. Sorry. I got a wrong sheet.

The second motion is the motion to dismiss all counts on statute-of-limitations grounds and in violation of N.C.G.S. 120-102(a)(7). Mr. Harris or Professor Joyner? Dr. Joyner. Okay.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, it seems to me that if we--if this Committee is not proceeding under General Statute 120 exec [phonetic] those provisions relating to the Legislative Ethics Committee, that an argument dealing with those is not proper--dealing with those provisions would not be appropriate before this Committee.

THE CHAIR: All right. Do--do you just withdraw the part of the argument on the statutory ground--

PROF. JOYNER: Well, I with--withdraw the portion dealing with anything referring to the Legislative Ethics Committee.

THE CHAIR: I understand. All right. That is withdrawn, and we'll--

PROF. JOYNER: And--and without--

THE CHAIR: --go forward with the motion to dismiss on statute-of-limitations grounds generally. Thank you.

PROF. JOYNER: This motion is supported mainly--and I use as--I guess our predicate cases for that is the Adam Clayton Powell versus McCormack, U.S. Supreme Court case--and that's cited in our memorandum to you--and Julian Bond versus Sloppy Floyd, U.S. Supreme Court case, in the one instance, the U.S. Supreme Court case with Adam Clayton Powell dealing with exclusion from Congress, and Julian Bond versus Sloppy Floyd dealing with the exclusion from a state legislature and the applicability of the federal Constitution to those actions. And in both of those actions, in both of those cases, one in 1966, the other in 1969, we look at this notion of how far back can the alleged action be considered by the Committee.

THE CHAIR: I'm--Dr. Joyner, I just want to interrupt you so I'm clear, because we've got listed--and that was unclear in the response, so I wanted to be--when I set this, I wanted to be sure. But Number 11, the motion which you specifically had later in your response, was to dismiss the counts on grounds that the legislature is not empowered to investigate, prosecute, or discipline conduct committed in past legislative sessions. So is this--are we--is this the same argument, or is there an independent SOL argument that we need to deal with?

PROF. JOYNER: No. No, I think all of them, each of those, if you look at 2, 3, and 11, they're essentially the same thing, whether this body, this General Assembly, whenever it meets can go back and consider conduct which allegedly occurred in past legislative sessions.

THE CHAIR: So would it be your preference to consolidate for argument Motions 2, 3, and 11?

PROF. JOYNER: If that's what you want to do, Mr. Chair--

THE CHAIR: Well, if it's the same argument, I'm inclined to do that.

Page 59

PROF. JOYNER: It's--it's essentially the same argument.

THE CHAIR: All right. Let me ask--Mr. Hart, any objection, Mr. Peters, to doing that?

MR. HART: No, sir.

THE CHAIR: All right. Let's go ahead and do that. So we're really hearing Motions 2, 3, and 11 consolidated. All right. I'm sorry. Go ahead.

PROF. JOYNER: All right. In--in the Bond and Powell cases, the U.S. Supreme Court talked about the ability of those legislative bodies to go back and to look at conduct from prior sessions. And legislative sessions are a little different than most other administrative proceedings. Every legislation--every legislative session has a beginning and an end. And that end, in North Carolina, covers a two-year frame, each legislative session. So you start out at the beginning of the session. At the end of the session, actions taken by the body during that time are dead. That's the end of it. They--they reach a conclusion.

We have in our laws citizens who vote every two years to create a new legislative body, and that new legislative body comes in fresh to deal with new matters which accrue or are presented to that body at that time.

In this situation, the claims raised against Representative Wright goes back as far as five--four or five legislative session--sessions ago. We're talking about conduct which is alleged to have occurred from 2000 to 2006. None of the claims deal with conduct which is alleged to have occurred during this legislative session.

Assuming that a court upholds your finding about being able to go forward, we question whether this Committee can now, consistent with the constitutions--and that question has not been one that's been raised in North Carolina, so there are no North Carolina cases on this point, although all of the actions against the legislators that Representative Stam identified occurred during session and not during past sessions.

It's a dangerous precedent that's being established for a future legislative body to look back on conduct that occurred or allegedly occurred in past sessions, in this instance, past sessions where some of the alleged conduct was perfectly proper during that time, but has recently been deemed to be improper.

Under this new Legislative Ethics Act that's been created last session, conduct--and I--and let's say specifically campaign contributions. I'll just use that as an example. There are things that you can do with campaign contributions--that you can't do with campaign contributions now as a result of the new law that was passed that you could do with campaign contributions in prior sessions, because those acts were perfectly legal. Although some people may not agree with them, they were perfectly legal within the North Carolina system. And some of the other allegations follow the same vein.

So we question whether this Committee or the legislature has the power to go back and make now unethical and/or criminal conduct which was not deemed to be unethical or criminal during the time that it is alleged to have occurred. And we think that to do so is in violation of the U.S. Supreme Court decisions in both Adam Clayton Powell and--and Julian Bond.

And I'm going to stop right there, because I know that much of this has already been determined. But we'll make that--those comments for--for the record and let Mr. Hart make his argument.

THE CHAIR: All right. We may have questions, but we'll go ahead--are there questions from the Committee, any Committee members? I will have some when we finish, but I want to hear Mr. Hart--let me hear--let's hear Mr. Hart first, and then we'll go ahead. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. First of all, the--Motion Number 2 deals with the statute of limitations, and that's exactly what it--it says, and that is a statute of limitations. There is no statute or Constitutional provision or House rule that limits the inquiry of this Committee or the inquiry of--of the House into the conduct of Representative Wright. The--the argument before--this Committee has the inherent authority to investigate and determine the conduct of Representative Wright, and there is no statute limiting that authority.

As far as laches, that really deals with unreasonable delay in taking action. And if--if the Committee goes back and looks at the history of how this was dealt with, the Board of Elections had a hearing on May 15th of 2007. Out of the hearing came information that was--became--that the--that was referred to the Legislative Ethics Committee. Staff did an analysis and presented on June 6th, 2007, a memo to the Chairs of the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Senator Clodfelter made a request to the Attorney General to have Special Counsel appointed on June 7th. The SBI began conducting an investigation pursuant to the request of the district attorney of the 10th Prosecutorial District, and this--the Legislative Ethics Committee, unfortunately, had to wait during that time period until that was--that was done.

However, there were three meetings, September 11th, October 4th, and December 18th, if--I believe I'm correct, where the Legislative Ethics Committee did try to deal with these matters and--and track the progress of the SBI investigation and the efforts of Special Counsel and staff. And finally, on December 18th, there was a referral to the House, and on January 9th this Committee met and--and investigated and made certain determinations of probable cause.

I think it's clear from that timetable that once the General Assembly became aware of the allegations of unethical and improper and criminal conduct by Representative Wright, it took all reasonable action it could take in as--in a reasonable manner of time. Although there was some delay, I think that was necessary delay, and I certainly see no basis for a finding that there was unreasonable delay in the action that either this Committee or the Legislative Ethics Committee took. And so I don't believe there could be any finding of--of laches.

As far as the Powell case that Mr. Joyner discusses, Powell was a U.S. Supreme Court case that dealt with provisions of the U.S. Constitution, statutes that had been passed by Congress, and Congressional rules. Ultimately, that case dealt with the fact that Mr. Powell was excluded as a member of Congress, and there was a specific finding by the Court--by the Supreme Court in Powell that he was not expelled from the Congress. So the discussion of expulsion was actually dicta in that case. And even so, what it dealt with was interpretation of Constitutional provisions--U.S. Constitutional provisions, U.S. statutes, and rules of the Congress, not anything to do with North Carolina law.

The actions by Representative Wright that are alleged in the charges that have been brought by this Committee involve unethical and improper and criminal conduct, certainly conduct that is not appropriate for a member of the House, if--if these allegations are true. And certainly, this Committee has the authority under the authority of the House to make appropriate investigation and to make appropriate recommendations regarding that conduct, even if that conduct occurred prior to the current session.

The conduct involved is the kind of conduct that would make Representative Wright unfit to continue to be a member of the House of Representatives of North Carolina. And for that reason, the arguments involving statute of limitations and laches is simply not appropriate.

THE CHAIR: Questions of Mr. Hart?

Representative Stam.
REP. STAM: This applies to arguments of laches and--and the other: How can a person who's concealed his conduct claim laches?
MR. HART: I don't--I don't think he can. I--again, I think this--the General Assembly and all of its committees that have dealt with this have acted in a perfectly reasonable and appropriate way once the conduct was discovered. It was only in May of last year that anybody became aware that these allegations were out there, and I think that since then all appropriate, deliberate speed has been taken to--to deal with this.
THE CHAIR: Other questions by any member? I just have--and not for you, Mr. Hart, right now, but Professor Joyner, I do have a question. And I--because I understand the argument, and I--and I do worry about the political ramifications of someone wanting to use this tool to go back in time to oust a political opponent. And I think that is a concern about how this is done if it's to be done here, so I recognize the problem.
But here's my--my question. Assume that we don't find out about conduct--and I'm going to change the type of conduct. But assume that the conduct occurred two years ago. It's hidden conduct. It simply becomes known through, let's just say, an anonymous complaint two years later. An investigation is done that verifies the conduct occurred.

Is your claim that even with conduct that was concealed, that the rule ought to be that if you've gone through one election cycle, that that obviates or--not obviates--eliminates the ability of the current House or current Senate to do anything about the prior conduct of which, with reasonable diligence, it wouldn't have known but has just become aware?
PROF. JOYNER: Well, first of all, Mr. Chairman and Mr. Vice-chair, I'm going to object to the conclusion that you both make and articulate here that someone has concealed some conduct. That goes to the heart of what these hearings are all about. And if you've already concluded that Representative Wright has concealed his conduct, then why are we going through a hearing to determine what the facts are if you've already concluded what the facts are?

THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner, I think that's not a correct interpretation of my question.
PROF. JOYNER: Well--
THE CHAIR: My question didn't assume anything. It was a hypothetical that said I'm concerned about how we deal with an issue, and my hypothetical was if someone concealed conduct that just came about to be known by a House, is it your view that that's the same circumstance as conduct, for example, in Powell, which was known and the voters still decided they wanted to re-elect Adam Clayton Powell? And I'm trying to find for precedential purposes where that dividing line is.
PROF. JOYNER: Well, I was responding to the comments that you made and the question that Representative Stam made previously. And they seemed to follow the same view that--somehow that Representative Wright had concealed, which implies to me some deliberate action to hide. Now, when you talk about the failure to discover, that's a different issue, and that's a different point. But when you start talking about somebody concealing something, that raises a conclusion about a person's actions. And notwithstanding your fact--that you raised the question in a hypothetical format, it leads us to the same place.

Now, in response to the--to the question, the Adam Clayton Powell case--and the Court discussed specifically whether the Congressional action taken by Congress at that time to exclude Adam Clayton Powell after he had been re-elected was an act based on the exclusion or the past conduct that was alleged to have occur--have occurred but not proven to have occurred in the immediately prior session of--of Congress. And the Court basically held that if we were looking back at that, then that would be outside of the scope of Congress' power at that point.
But a question as to Powell's qualifications and credentials to serve in the present or the session that was beginning at that point was an appropriate one for the general--for the Congress to make, but that he satisfied all of those prerequisites, and therefore the actions to exclude him was unconstitutional.
Now, there seems to be some argument here that North Carolina is so great that the Constitution of the United States makes no difference and that decisions made by the U.S. Supreme Court have no meaning in--in North Carolina. I beg to differ, because I've read too many opinions which says--and our own Constitution says that the Supreme Court Constitution--or the U.S. Constitution and its interpretation are supreme, even here in--in North Carolina. So to that extent, the decision in Powell does have meaning to what you're seeking to do here in this action.

Now, in this case, we're not talking about last legislative session. We're talking about, in Count 1, March 2002. In Count 2, we're talking about April 2002. That is, according to my count, about six years ago. And in Count 3, we're talking about December 2003. And in Count 4, we're talking about 2004; Count 5, 2004; Count 6, 2001.

THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner, does--under your argument, does it matter how far back? That is, isn't the argument that you're making that back even a session, let alone two, three, or four sessions, you reach the same conclusion?

PROF. JOYNER: That's correct. That is correct. But I--my point is that here we're not simply talking about alleged conduct from the last legislative session; we're talking about now going back three and four legislative sessions to try to make conduct at that point--and some of the things here deal with matters that were perfectly legal in those past sessions but now have been deemed to be improper--

THE CHAIR: Well, let me ask--

PROF. JOYNER: --during this legislative session.

THE CHAIR: Let me ask this question: Do you believe that it was proper in 2000 through 2006 if this occurred--but obviously we're at a probable--post-probable-cause stage--but do you believe it was legal for a House member not to report substantial contributions made during those periods of time?

PROF. JOYNER: Well, that's--that's not the issue. I mean--

THE CHAIR: Well, I think it is an issue. I think you've just raised it.

PROF. JOYNER: No, that's an issue--that's an issue for you. The--the issue is whether this Committee, based on Powell and Bond, has the right to go back four or five different--I don't--I don't care what you decide.

THE CHAIR: Well--

PROF. JOYNER: What--what I'm saying is that the question is, do you have the authority to go back in past sessions, sessions that have ended, sessions that have concluded all of the business, and now dredge that past history up? It falls under a notion at least that I've heard about in the Constitution or in our laws called ex post facto.

THE CHAIR: I'm going to again ask the question. My question is, do you believe that the law of the state from 2000 to 2006 is different in the sense that it didn't require reporting contributions when received--has that fundamental premise changed from 2000 through 2006 to now?

PROF. JOYNER: I'm--I'm not prepared to answer that question.

THE CHAIR: All right. Well, let me ask a second question.

PROF. JOYNER: I'm prepared to answer--answer questions dealing with the procedural matters--

THE CHAIR: Well, I think it--

PROF. JOYNER: --and not drawing judgments about--

THE CHAIR: I'm not drawing judgments, Dr. Joyner.

PROF. JOYNER: [inaudible]

THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner, I'm not drawing judgments, but you've raised an issue, and I'm going to ask the questions to try to get to my understanding of the issue, because I think it dramatically affects the issue. And that is, if there was an obligation then to report, and if there is an obligation now to report, do you believe there is no continuing obligation to correct mistakes from the past reports?

PROF. JOYNER: Let me--let me--let me answer it this way, if I may.

THE CHAIR: Sure.

PROF. JOYNER: In the Powell case, the U.S. Supreme Court looked at allegations that Adam Clayton Powell had misappropriated funds, federal funds, for travel, expenses, putting his wife on salary, a number of other things, conduct which most people would conclude would have been a violation of the law. In its analysis of whether they could go forward with an action to expel Representative Powell--Congressman Powell, that was not something that was at issue. Whether the conduct occurred, whether it was legal or not was irrelevant--

THE CHAIR: Was it known?

PROF. JOYNER: --to the Cons--to the Supreme Court's analysis of whether Congress had the power to go back and look at that.

THE CHAIR: Was the conduct--

PROF. JOYNER: And I would say that the same thing applies in this case.

THE CHAIR: Was the conduct in Adam Clayton Powell--prior to his re-election, it seems to me, the conduct was clearly known. In fact, there were pending proceedings in the prior session with regard to that conduct. And then while those proceedings were pending, the re-election occurred, we moved to the new session, and instead of trying to expel him, we now moved to an exclusion. But the conduct that formed the basis of the exclusion in Powell was known in the prior session.

The question I have, and what goes to the heart here of why I think there's an argument about Powell, is not that Powell may have no applicability in a general sense; it's that on its specific facts, Powell dealt with a case where the public knew the prior misconduct but still voted him in. There's no information that's before me, at least, on this motion that the public knew of any of the alleged prior misconduct before the 2006 election. And so we're not in the same situation as Powell, are we?

PROF. JOYNER: We are. We are, because the action taken by Congress was initially an action to expel, not an action to exclude. And the Court held that an action to exclude was improper. And the only thing left was an action to exclude [sic], because he had been re-elected. And on that basis--and on that basis, they did--there was no--there was nothing in the record that would support the decision to exclude. But the action to expel was the focus of the Congressional action. Even though there was an action started or an investigation started--because that's all that happened, was an investigation began in the prior session. It did not conclude. So when they had the--the vote, it was to expel and not to exclude. So to that extent, it applies in this case.

And in that analysis, my--my point was simply that the U.S. Supreme Court didn't look at whether he did or didn't commit these acts that he was alleged to have committed, and this was from the immediate prior session. I think that it is certainly applicable to this situation, where what we have now is going back three, four different legislative sessions to bring up conduct that is alleged to have been committed by--by Representative Wright.

THE CHAIR: Do the Chair's questions cause any questions from any Committee member? Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: Let me try this hypothetical. We had a--a former speaker who is in prison for giving and accepting bribes. Now I'll give--that's a fact. Hypothetically, suppose a news release was given today by--this is pure hypothetical--that Representative So-and-So had cooperated in that investigation, they'd given him immunity, but he had taken or received bribes. Is it your position that that--I understand your position now is that although we never knew about that, we could not expel that member, although it was demonstrated through transcripts before the grand jury that this person had taken or received bribes. Is that your position, really?

PROF. JOYNER: I mean, obviously, you don't want that to be my position, the way--

REP. STAM: I just want--

PROF. JOYNER: --that you phrased the question.

REP. STAM: --to know what your position is.

PROF. JOYNER: My--my--my position is that if it was conduct which occurred in a prior session, then this session, which is a new session, cannot look back at that conduct. And I think that that is consistent with both the--with the Supreme Court decisions in--in the Adam Clayton Powell case and in the Julian Bond case. And that's--that's the position that I take.

Now, whether it was--you know, when we look at this notion of laches, in--in our--in our laws today, there is an exception made for conduct that was concealed as opposed to conduct that was not discovered. You've both used the term "concealed." You have regular record--reporting, as far as I know, requirements for campaign contributions. And the fact that something wasn't discovered doesn't mean that it wasn't--that it was concealed and that there was some intent to conceal it. And laches has never drawn as an exception this notion of late discovery of some conduct which you allege to be improper.

THE CHAIR: All right.

PROF. JOYNER: Anything else?

THE CHAIR: No. Any further questions? Any further comment by Mr. Hart or Mr. Peters? All right. Give the Chair a minute to get his thoughts together.

All right. This matter--Number 1. This matter is before the Chair and the Committee on three consolidated motions to dismiss all counts on statute-of-limitations grounds, on grounds of laches, and on grounds that the legislature is not Constitutionally empowered to investigate, prosecute, and discipline for conduct committed in past legislative sessions, and therefore it violates state law and federal and state Constitutional provisions.

Number 2. The issue, thus, is whether the counts before the Committee are barred on either laches, statutes of limitations, or Constitutional grounds, and would therefore deprive us of any jurisdiction to proceed.

Number 3. The position of Representative Wright is that if conduct was committed in a previous session, this session of the legislature may not look back to that conduct committed in previous sessions and whether or not that is--excuse me--let's stop there--strike that--and that that position is grounded, says Representative Wright, on the Adam Clayton Powell and Julian Bond cases with Constitutional overtones, as well as on general grounds of laches and a general premise behind the statute-of-limitations defenses.

Number 4. The Committee's counsel's position is that there is no statute of limitations that has--exists in state or--Constitution or statute that bars proceeding, that the doctrine of laches is not available as an equitable doctrine in this case, and that Powell is fully distinguishable and does not bar or control these proceedings.

Number 5. I find that there is no statute of limitations that has been argued under the Constitution or state law by Representative Wright in his brief or orally, and thus no statute of limitations which is a creature directly of statute exists that would prohibit this action.

Number 6. The doctrine of laches is an affirmative defense in the civil law. It has been pled in this case. It is the burden on the moving party always to establish that laches exists. Laches is simply a doctrine that would bar proceeding as a result of unreasonable delay in prosecuting a particular claim such that it prejudices the defendant in the case.

In this matter--next number. Laches is a doctrine based on equitable circumstances and requires that the asserter of the doctrine come to the doctrine with clean hands, next, that the doctrine of laches also requires, for it to be used, that the presenter of the doctrine show that he is prejudiced either in the fact that witnesses no longer exist, memories have faded, documents are lost, or somehow he is unable to defend the claim against him in order for the doctrine to be used.

Next number. In this case, there has been no claim, let alone any evidentiary presentation, of any prejudice to Representative Wright under the doctrine of laches in terms of any lost witness, lost document, expired witness, or faded memory, and thus the doctrine is not available.

In addition, at this point in the proceedings, every institution that has reviewed the facts such as they are of this case has made the determination that there is probable cause to believe that there have been crimes that include fraudulent conduct at issue. That is not a proven fact in this case, but it is where we are at the motions hearing. For purposes of motions to dismiss, the facts as asserted by the governing body or the State are presumed to be true under the law for jurisdictional and motions purposes. At this point, since the charges include grounds of fraud, they would bar as an equitable matter the doctrine of laches proceeding, particularly where there is no evidence of prejudice.

Finally--next number--the Adam Clayton

Powell case has been argued as a basis to proceed to a holding that a future legislature may not look back to a prior--to prior misconduct committed before that legislative session. For a number of reasons, I find the Powell case fully distinguishable.

First, in Powell, Adam Clayton Powell had been regularly elected as a congressman from New York City's 18th Congressional District since 1945 and was destined to continue in his position as Chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor. Powell completed his service to the 89th session of Congress and was returning to be sworn for the 90th session following his re-election.

During the 89th session, claims arose and were presented in Congress that Powell had inappropriately used Congressional funds for travel and salary for his wife during that session. Based upon that alleged conduct, an effort to prevent Powell existed in the new session from being sworn in to the 90th session. It is that issue of exclusion that created the action in federal court which ended up in the United States Supreme Court.

Powell is distinguishable first because it dealt with and solely dealt with the issue of exclusion of a member in a following session, not expulsion of a member, which is at issue in this case.

Second, the Powell case dealt with an interpretation of the United States Constitutional provisions with regard to Congress and the rules of Congress, not an attempt to set for state legislatures federal Constitutional principles as to an interpretation of state law and state constitutional provisions.

Third, the discussion in the Powell case about the power of Congress to expel extending to conduct during previous sessions was in the context of interpretation of authority granted under the United States House Rules and was fully dicta, with the Court not having to determine that action since the action was one of exclusion and not expulsion.

Next number. As a policy matter, it seems to me that many of the claims alleged in the counts are ones that have a continuing duty, a continuing duty to report and a continuing duty to correct erroneous reports. And thus the conduct, to that extent, is a continuing misconduct if it is found by clear and convincing evidence that there has been an attempt to not report in a pattern-and-practice manner of campaign violations.

Next number. The Torlen Wade count is alleged to be a count where there was an active attempt to conduct a transaction where there was an understanding from the beginning that money being sought was not legally available, that money being sought was going to an organization that did not have legal viability, for a purpose that it was not intended to be used, and from an official who had no authority to issue the letter.

Again, for purposes of motions, we must assume for the motions that the allegations found at probable cause are true. To that extent, those allegations suggest, as do the campaign-law violations, that this is conduct that without--that was conduct that would constitute potential fraud and is further conduct that, even with reasonable diligence, would not have been known to the House of Representatives.

Next point. In fact, this conduct was not made public on any of the counts until after re-election in 2006, and therefore, the first action that could be taken has been taken in this session of the House of Representatives.

In addition, the electorate in Representative Wright's district have not had an opportunity to determine how they viewed the misconduct, and thus Powell is fully distinguishable, because Adam Clayton Powell's district knew of his misconduct and re-elected him. Representative Wright is not in that same position at this time, and thus Powell is distinguishable on that basis, as well.

For these reasons, I'm going to deny the motion to dismiss on grounds of statute of limitations, on grounds of laches, and on grounds the legislature is not Constitutionally empowered to investigate, prosecute, and discipline for conduct committed in past legislative sessions.

And I make this distinction, and will in the written order: I agree with Representative Wright's counsel that if conduct is known, not concealed, and with reasonable diligence could have been found and should have been found, that there are potential Constitutional issues in a legislature going back to that conduct.

But in a case where conduct is concealed, not disclosed when the law requires full disclosure, when that is the genesis of the crime or the count, that in that case, the Constitution, neither federal or state, would prohibit the legislature from acting once it has made with reasonable diligence its efforts to know and to proceed promptly after that point.

Your exception to the rulings on all three motions is noted. Do my rulings cause any member of the Committee to seek to override the ruling of the Chair?

Seeing none--all right. We are about, I hope, close to halfway through the motions, and everyone needs to get a little something to eat. And I don't want our court reporter keeling over over there. So we're going to take a lunch break, but make it short, and we're going to be breaking for half an hour. We'll be back, hopefully, to finish the motions fairly quickly thereafter, but as much time as needed, and then to--if counts remain, to look at discovery issues.

We'll be back in a half an hour. Thank you.

(LUNCH RECESS)
(1:30 P.M. - 2:09 P.M.)

THE CHAIR: All right. We are back in session. Thank you all, and I hope everyone had at least an opportunity to get something to eat.

That'll move us to the fourth motion, motion to dismiss Count Number 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct. Dr. Joyner? Mr. Harris? Dr. Joyner. Okay.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, I think that in your prior rulings you've really kind of already read that anyway.

THE CHAIR: All right. So there's no independent basis to--to move, other than that which you've already discussed?

PROF. JOYNER: No, no. Well--yeah. Okay. Let me--

THE CHAIR: All right. We're on motion to dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct. Okay.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee, obviously, you've already found probable cause on these, and now you sit as the judge of our motions. But Count 1 deals with obtaining a letter from Torlen Wade and--that was allegedly supposed to be used to obtain a hundred-and-fifty-thousand-dollar loan. And I'm not aware of any law which says that obtaining a letter which contains truthful or untruthful information is a criminal violation or an ethical violation.

To the extent that Count 1 intersects with Count 2, I would think that if there is--if you have some evidence that a person has obtained a letter and used it in a fraudulent matter, that that might state a criminal violation, if believed. But merely soliciting a letter is not a crime, at least in anything I've seen in North Carolina law or United States law, under the federal system. And so we would move on that grounds to dismiss Count 1 of--of this indictment.

I'm not dealing with the conclusory matters in the--in the count, which obviously speak to a finding of fact that you're supposed to make, but now to the raw request or solicitation of a--of a letter from Torlen Wade by Representative Wright.

THE CHAIR: Questions from any member of the Committee for Dr. Joyner? Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: Well, yes, the motion is not alleging criminal or unethical conduct. Could you address--you've hypothetically convinced me it doesn't allege criminal conduct. Are you saying that it's ethical to solicit a letter from an acting head of a department over whom--whose budget you have jurisdiction on a committee, knowing both--and this is what it alleges--"where both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for Community Health Foundation from other sources"? Is your contention that that is also ethical?

PROF. JOYNER: Representative Stam, you--you interjected facts and conclusions that's not a part of Count 1.

REP. STAM: I--I was reading--

PROF. JOYNER: There--there--

REP. STAM: --straight from Count 1.

PROF. JOYNER: Well, there's nothing in Count 1, unless I misread it, that said that--that alleged that Representative Wright had budgetary control over someone that they were soliciting a letter from--I--I--

REP. STAM: Well, that was--
PROF. JOYNER: --I don't--I don't--I don't--I don't see that.
REP. STAM: All right. Well, let's leave that-- PROF. JOYNER: That may be the conclusion that you--that you've reached.
REP. STAM: That was in the evidence we had. But leave that part of it to the side. Let's-- PROF. JOYNER: Well, I'm--I'm just talking about the count.
REP. STAM: All right. Just the count itself alleges-- PROF. JOYNER: And the count is--
REP. STAM: --that both of them knew that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for the Community Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions, and that these other organizations that make grants and that--and that--would believe and rely on the false representation in the letter.

Is--you--are you telling us that that is not unethical?
PROF. JOYNER: No, I was saying, first of all, that there is some overlap in the allegations in Count 1 and Count 2. One (1) speaks to obtaining a letter. The other parts of it is really the same thing as in Count 2. The only difference is--between Count 1 and Count 2 is that this letter was used to obtain a--a loan for a hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000).
And my position was that merely obtaining a letter which contains truthful or untruthful info is not a criminal violation nor an unethical violation.
REP. STAM: Well, if I could follow up one--one last time--
THE CHAIR: Follow-up?
REP. STAM: All right. Assume that obtaining the letter--two people just concoct a crazy letter, that both of them know it's not true. That's--for whatever reason they did it, maybe it's not unethical. But the count charges that both of them knew that Thomas Wright was going to use that letter to try to get money from other people. Does that not strike you as not a very ethical thing to do?

PROF. JOYNER: Well, Mister--Representative--
REP. STAM: That's the last part of the count.
PROF. JOYNER: Representative Stam, then there ought to be a merger, then, of Count 1 and Count 2 so there's one count, because the conduct would either have to be separated in terms of obtaining the letter and using the letter--the using the letter in a fraudulent way would go to the intent of obtaining the letter, if you had evidence to establish that. And obviously you have concluded that that is what occurred.
And I'm saying that either one or the other has to go, because it's duplicative as it's written at this point, because one part separates out--separates out the writing, and the other one separates out the use, and they ought to be either one--or--one ought to go, or they ought to be combined into one count.
THE CHAIR: Do--let me follow up on Representative Stam's question, Dr. Joyner.

Either, again, from a civil or criminal perspective, do you have any law that I need to look at talking about duplicative counts?
PROF. JOYNER: Well, no, I'm not prepared to present you with a case dealing with duplicative--as a lawyer, you're aware of the notion of prosecuting persons twice for the same conduct.
THE CHAIR: Certainly, from a jeopardy point of view, but that--I don't know that that-- PROF. JOYNER: I mean, so we've got two counts here that's alleging one half of the same thing.
THE CHAIR: I understand the argument. All right. Any other questions that members of the Committee have? Mr. Hart or Mr. Peters?
MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. As--as to the--Counsel's not contending that this charge is a crime, a criminal offense. What--what--what we are--charged in--in the draft that we presented to the Committee and the Committee approved is that Representative Wright improperly, unethically, conduct unbecoming and unfitting a legislator, improperly solicited a letter falsely stating a commitment of a hundred and fifty thousand for the purpose of submitting it to financial institutions to secure a loan. That is a fraudulent solicitation of a false document that, as the charge indicates, both parties knew was going to be used for an improper purpose, an illegal purpose.

I see that there's just no way to say that that is not unethical conduct, if proven. And we would submit that it is a proper charge and that there's no reason not to have that continue. It should not be dismissed.

THE CHAIR: Questions by members of the Committee? Thank you both. All right. Just give me one minute.

All right. As to Motion Number 4, this matter is before the Committee and the Chair in a motion to dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct. The matter has been argued and briefed and is now ripe for disposition.

Number 2. The defendant--Representative Wright's position is, number one, that the allegations in Count Number 1 and Count Number 2 overlap and are duplicative; number two, that a letter which contains even untruthful information may not be criminal--may not constitute a criminal violation or unethical conduct; and number three, that Counts 1 and 2 ought to be merged.

Next number. The Special Counsel for the Committee's position is that Count Number 1 does not allege a crime but alleges unethical conduct in that it alleges Representative Wright improperly solicited a letter falsely stating that the agency could commit one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) to a project knowing that the letter contained false information and knowing that the letter would then be used at a later time to seek additional funding for that project.

I find first that the Count Number 1 alleges specifically the fraudulent solicitation of the letter, while Count Number 2, which is criminal in nature, alleges then the use of the letter to obtain essentially the loan by false pretenses, and that they're alleging two entirely separate and distinct acts, in that Count 2 did not have to occur as a result of Count 1, but did, independently; that is, it was then used to obtain, or allegedly to obtain, the hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) from the bank. That is the allegation contained in Count 2. As such, on a motion to dismiss the counts, the counts on their merits, as written, do not overlap and are not duplicative.

The next finding is that it--if Count 1 is proven, should be true by clear and convincing evidence, it is painfully obvious that that constitutes unethical and fraudulent conduct, if proved.

Number 3 finding on my part is that for reasons that the counts stand on their own merits independently, allege independent acts, they are not duplicative and should not be merged.

Accordingly, the motion to dismiss Count Number 1 is denied. Any--an exception by Dr. Joyner and Representative Wright is noted. Any motion by any member of the Committee to overrule the ruling of the Chair? All right.

We'll move, then, to the fifth motion, which is a motion to dismiss Count 7 as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process of law as well as state Constitutional provisions.

And before we proceed, I do want to indicate in preliminarily reviewing the briefs in this I have concerns as well about the count, and have asked in a way to perhaps handle this motion before we have to argue it--I'm--you can certainly argue the motion, Dr. Joyner, but I would grant the bill of particulars, essentially, for this motion, and would ask that a motion be made by the panel to amend the count so that it is very clear that it only applies to the specific contributions of a hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) listed in the report made of probable cause by Special Counsel Peters, and that is the only contributions that may apply.

And with that, before--so before we move into any argument, I'm going to seek a motion from a member of the Committee to that effect. And if we could distribute the potential language to everybody, please--we'll be at ease until that's distributed.

(DISCUSSION OFF RECORD)

THE CHAIR: All right. First, to get this on our floor, is there a motion to amend Count 7 by any member? Representative McGee is recognized.

REP. McGEE: I move that Count 7 of the charges of unethical conduct by Representative Wright adopted by the Committee at its meeting on January 9, 2008, be amended by adding the following additional sentence to read: "The contributions that are subject of this count are set out in Exhibit 9 of the presentation by William P. Hart, Outside Committee Co-counsel, dated January 9, 2008, and incorporated into this count by reference," closed quote.

THE CHAIR: Representative McGee so moves. Is there a second? Representative Warren seconds. All right. Discussion and debate on the motion? I assume, Representative McGee, what this sentence is attempting to do is to incorporate that and make it specific that the count only relates to the specific allegations set out in Exhibit 9 and that this--your motion is to add that sentence at the end of Count 7. Is that correct?

REP. MCGEE: That is correct, Mr. Chairman.

THE CHAIR: Thank you. Any further discussion or debate?

All right. Seeing none, the question before the Committee is an amendment--a motion to amend Count Number 7 to add the sentence you have in front of you that reads as a last sentence to Count 7: "The contributions that are subject of this count are set out in Exhibit 9 of the presentation by William P. Hart, outside Committee co-counsel, dated January 9, 2008, and incorporated into this count by reference."

All those in favor will vote "aye." All those opposed will vote "no." The clerk will call the role.

THE CLERK: Chairman Glazier?

THE CHAIR: Aye.

THE CLERK: Vice-chairman Stam?

REP. STAM: Aye.

THE CLERK: Representative Lucas?

REP. LUCAS: Aye.

THE CLERK: Representative McGee?

REP. MCGEE: Aye.

THE CLERK: Representative Warren?

REP. WARREN: Aye.

THE CLERK: Representative Wiley?

REP. WILEY: Aye.

THE CHAIR: All right. That amendment has been adopted unanimously. And now I'll turn Dr. Joyner, to your argument. Does that limitation on the count, which seems to get at your motion that you had to make it clear that it is limited only to those matters that were looked at in probable cause--does that solve the motion, or do you still have a motion to dismiss that count as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process?

PROF. JOYNER: Yes, Mr. Chairman. I don't think this cures the problem. My recollection--I--I have seen something that I assume is Exhibit 9. I don't know. I don't have it before me. But if what I've seen, which I assume to be Exhibit 9--it contains something in the neighborhood of thirty or forty different items--

THE CHAIR: Well, let's hold for a minute to make sure you have Exhibit 9 and--and that your table has Exhibit 9. So we're--we're on hold until you get that. Members, in your notebooks it is Exhibit Number 9 on the "January 9, 2008" tab, near the end of the--next to the back. And it is a chart that lists the name of the contribution, the contributor, the bank account, the amount, the deposit date and the report contribution--that it should have appeared in but did not.

PROF. JOYNER: Right. Now--

THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: Right. Now, it--this is--this is the document that I saw. And it has considerably more items than I had recalled, something like--

THE CHAIR: It's about three hundred and ninety-five of them.

PROF. JOYNER: Yeah, three hundred--about four hundred items. Now, is it this Committee's contention that proof of one or all is necessary to satisfy Count 7, or do you have to have proof of fifty percent of them, or thirty percent of them?

These are all separate items, so you--you're putting us to the task of having to defend against four hundred different items which we've just received information about. So is it your intent that we be prepared to respond to each and every one, and that if there is a failure of proof as to any of them, that this count is not set out? Or is this like the machine-gun approach, where you allege everything under the sun that you can think of and require that--that we respond to everything under the sun? Because we have items here starting in 2000 and going up through 2006, and you are scheduling a hearing where you are ostensibly supposed to conclude facts about this thing in a couple of weeks, seemingly an impossible burden. So we--we object to that. And I don't think that this amendment cures the--the vagueness issue that we presented.

THE CHAIR: Mr. Peters? Mr. Hart? Actually, before I do that, questions for Dr. Joyner from any member of the panel? All right. Seeing none, Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: First of all, Mr. Chairman, I'd like to note for the record that although Counsel and Representative Wright were not present at the January 9th hearing, they were invited to attend, they were provided with all materials that were presented, and one of the documents that--that was provided to them was this particular document, Exhibit 9. Also, the same document has been provided to them in discovery by the District Attorney of the 10th Prosecutorial District, Colon Willoughby, as that is the document that is the subject of one of the indictments that has been pending against Mr. Wright for some substantial period of time.

The provision of--of this Exhibit 9 as an addendum to the charge by motion of the Committee is no different than in criminal court where the defendant asks for a bill of particulars and the State is required to provide the substance of--of the factual allegations that--that would be the basis of the charge.

Similar to an embezzlement count where the--a--a defendant might be charged with embezzling three hundred different items, whether they be three hundred checks or three hundred--three hundred different bonds or anything of that nature, this charge is an all-encompassing charge. And if--if--I would submit to the Committee that if--if Representative Wright is found to have not reported any of these contributions, that would be--that would be sufficient.

Conceivably, he could have been charged with three hundred or four hundred different counts. But the fact is, if he has intentionally engaged in--in not reporting his campaign contributions, then--then he is answerable to that.

I do have today a copy--a CD which has on it the digital copy of the chart that is Exhibit Number 9 and also has all of the permutations of that that Mr. Peters referenced in his presentation before the Committee on January 9th by which he presented what the different quarters and years showed as far as the campaign contributions. And those are all present on this, and I'm going to provide that to Counsel right now.

THE CHAIR: Any questions for Mr. Hart?

REP. STAM: May I ask just one quick question?

THE CHAIR: Yes, Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: And this is not directly appropriate to this motion, but just very briefly, have you made any success in finding out the source of the ones that are listed from Thomas E. Wright himself, these cashiers' checks?

MR. HART: We have--we have not yet. We're still in discussions with Kim Strach from the Board of Elections, but we have--we have not yet determined that.

THE CHAIR: Any further questions for

Page 105

Mr. Hart? Dr. Joyner, in rebuttal?

MR. HARRIS: I was curious to know--before Mr. Hart leaves, I was curious to know--

THE CHAIR: I'm sorry. Okay. Mister--I'm sorry. Mr. Harris?

MR. HARRIS: I was curious to know how he happens to know what was or was not provided by--by Colon Willoughby to myself and to Mister--and to Representative Wright, and I'm curious to know if--if the prosecution of this matter is being coordinated with Colon Willoughby.

THE CHAIR: Okay. Mr. Harris, I'm assuming that you're asking that through the Chair, since we're--

MR. HARRIS: I am.

THE CHAIR: --at a Committee meeting. Is that--

MR. HARRIS: I am.

THE CHAIR: All right. And--and at this point--we will be talking about discovery matters at the end of the motions, and we'll be talking potentially, if the counts survive, at a pretrial--pre-hearing conference. So let's hold that for that point, and let's stay on this motion.

Dr. Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: It's strange, really. Now we're going to criminal stan--standards for--in criminal court, you would have three hundred and ninety-five counts. You wouldn't have an omnibus claim involving three hundred and ninety-five different items. And then you're talking about here a failure to report that covers four different reporting cycles of the State Board of Elections, four different--

THE CHAIR: Actually, just so you know, it covers twenty-two reporting cycles over a four-year election--four--

PROF. JOYNER: Okay. Well--

THE CHAIR: --election periods.

PROF. JOYNER: Well, twelve--well, I meant four different terms. And--and--and you're right, Mr. Chairman, that we're talking about--and so what you're doing is that you're--you're putting us in a impossible position of having to deal with all of these matters in--in one count without--not--without being able to specify what particular one we will be responding to.

In addition to that, and more of--and--I did receive a packet of information last week from--from this Committee. And in that packet of information, there was this chart. At that time, there was no reference to that chart and this count. It was just now that the significance of this chart became apparent to me--that this was--that these were all of the items here that you were dealing--now, I could make some assumptions, but this is the first time that this matter has been properly calendared here.

It certainly still puts us in a position that we're having now to go out in a couple of weeks and deal with the preparation of a defense to three hundred and ninety-five different charges, because that's what you are providing us with here. That's three hundred and ninety-five charges, and it's not one charge. And that's an onerous burden for us to have to bear.

And--and, too--and I know you are already on schedule to move this thing on, and I know what--that the design is already set. But I just want to note our objection that you--you're putting us, with respect to this one, in an impossible--impossible position to properly investigate and prepare this--this matter for this body.

Now, Attorney Harris may have gotten whatever he got from the D.A.'s office. I'm not connected with the D.A.'s office. You know, that--that's not--I haven't looked at that. I'm looking at what I have. And what I have was something that was received either the first part of last week or the latter part of the week before that. So this is an unfair burden that's being posed--presented to us at the last minute.

THE CHAIR: I understand the argument. Any questions from--Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: Yes. Professor Joyner, isn't--aren't these the same hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) in contributions that the State Board of Elections itemized to your client last May?

PROF. JOYNER: I--I don't know.

REP. STAM: Have you asked him?

PROF. JOYNER: I don't know. No. I'm just seeing it for the first time. No, I haven't asked him. You just present me to this--present this to me now, and then you ask me if I've asked him about it? No, I haven't asked him about it.

Maybe if we had a five-minute recess, I might. I was not involved in the State Board of Election hearing.

THE CHAIR: The Committee is in recess for five minutes--

PROF. JOYNER: So I'm dealing--you know, I'm dealing with--

THE CHAIR: --so that you may consult with your client.

PROF. JOYNER: --with what I'm dealing with here, and not what somebody else dealt with--

THE CHAIR: Thank you, Dr. Joyner. The Committee is in recess for five minutes. We'll allow Dr. Joyner to consult with his client and then respond to Representative Stam's question. We're in recess for five minutes.

(SEVEN-MINUTE RECESS)

THE CHAIR: I forgot to do this. I do want to thank, and I know I extend the thanks of everyone in the room, to the sergeant-at-arms who are here today, to Mr. Brandon, Mr. Sills, Mr. Fingers, Mr. Rossi, and Mr. Perry. We really appreciate it very, very much. Thank you.

Now, I know that--I hope that was enough time to at least have a minute with your client. And, Dr. Joyner, I think Representative Stam's question was related to you, and you needed a moment to talk to your client about that.
PROF. JOYNER: The--the answer to the question is no. This is the first time Representative Wright has seen this list.
It appears--I don't know when this exhibit was prepared, but it was not presented at the State Board of Elections, nor were these individual checks, alleged checks, three hundred and ninety-five checks, presented at the State Board of Elections, nor is--my understanding is, was there any finding from the State Board of Elections regarding these three hundred and ninety-five checks individually or by identification or anything like that.
The--the date that I see on this exhibit is January 9th. I don't know if that was the date that this was assembled, or if that was the date that this document was presented to you for your--for your deliberation. But this is the first time that we have seen this document and these listings--this listing of checks that you have here.

But, you know, having answered that, I'm sure it's not going to change anything about the decision.
THE CHAIR: Well, I appreciate the answer very much, and--Mr. Peters, a question for you: The document that was Exhibit 9 is what I understood that you created as a work product to consolidate the information and present it at the probable-cause hearing. Was the information that is contained in Exhibit 9 presented at the State Board of Elections hearing?
MR. PETERS: The--the document that's Exhibit 9 itself, I did not create. I received that from Kim Strach at the State Board of Elections hearing. The other permutations of that that are on the CD that we've provided to Representative Wright's counsel, those are the ones that I created using the information from the original docu--document that Ms. Strach did.
I'm trying to recall from the transcript of the hearing whether the document itself was presented. I know Ms. Strach presented testimony regarding the contributions that were not reported during the time period, and actually identified more than a hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) in contributions at the time of the hearing. I was not present at the hearing, but my memory of the transcript and from conversations with Ms. Strach is that it was presented at that time. But that's based on my memory of that.

THE CHAIR: Thank you. Are you--well, let me ask a follow-up. But you are clear that in the testimony Ms. Strach presented to the Board of Elections that she presented evidence showing more than a hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) in non-reported contributions?
MR. PETERS: That's my recollection of the transcript.
THE CHAIR: All right. All right. Thank you. All right. Any--does that create any further questions by any member of the Committee? All right.
PROF. JOYNER: Mister--Mr. Chair?
THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner?
PROF. JOYNER: My objection was to each of these individual items. Each item was not presented at the State Board of Elections. There may have been a summary conclusion regarding an amount of money that--involving checks that were not reported, but--and Mr. Peters can speak to this--the transcript would not itemize these checks, these three hundred and ninety-five checks or more that we have here in this--in this exhibit, nor was this exhibit, as I understand it, presented as--as evidence, other than in summary form by somebody who testified about an amount of money that was not reported.

THE CHAIR: Mr. Peters?
MR. PETERS: Again, my memory of the transcript--and the last time I read the transcript was on Friday--there was not--in the testimony, Ms. Strach did not go through each of the examples that are listed in what is Exhibit 9. Excuse me. She did give a general overview and, I believe, gave some illustrative examples of contributions that were in there, and then the totals that were involved.
THE CHAIR: Were there--well, let me ask two questions. Was Representative Wright allowed to participate and be at that hearing?

MR. PETERS: Again, not having been present at the hearing, my understanding--I know he was present, and my understanding, he was allowed to participate or able to participate.
THE CHAIR: All right. My next question is-- PROF. JOYNER: Before--before you do, let me--let me just--
THE CHAIR: Well, let--let me finish--let the Chair finish his questions, and then we'll go back and forth, as opposed to counsel talking to each other.
My next question is: The data that you--or that is contained in Exhibit 9 was--had to, obviously, come from the Board of Elections; is that accurate?
MR. PETERS: That is correct.
THE CHAIR: So the data was accumulated by the Board of Elections in looking at all of the transactions and the reports?
MR. PETERS: That's correct. It was--
THE CHAIR: All right. Well, let me--let me--and--and each of those reports was filed--the reports themselves were filed by Representative Wright or his treasurer or campaign organization; is that correct?

MR. PETERS: That's correct.
THE CHAIR: All right. And the--how did the Board of Elections, as far as you understand the transcript, determine that the contributions of at least the hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000), in their mind, were accepted but not reported? What was the process of doing that?
MR. PETERS: My understanding is Kim Strach and her staff examined not only the disclosure reports that were filed during the period in question, but that they also examined the bank accounts, and they looked at basically every check that had been deposited into the bank account, compared those with the disclosure reports, making an effort as best they could to determine which checks were made for a contribution purpose and which ones may not have been.
THE CHAIR: All right. My next question, then: When you say "the bank accounts," are you talking about the bank accounts of Representative Wright or his campaign committee, bank accounts within his control?

MR. PETERS: Yes. That's correct.
THE CHAIR: And so the Exhibit 9 is simply a work product that accumulates the discrepancies--alleged discrepancies between what's contained in Representative Wright's bank accounts and what was disclosed on the campaign contribution forms; is that correct?
MR. PETERS: That is correct.
THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you. Now, Dr. Joyner?
PROF. JOYNER: Well, see, my--my information is that during that hearing there was a claim made of some amount of money that had not been reported and that at that time, Representative Wright, who was present and was represented by another--by another attorney, did request information detailing the origin of that--that conclusion and has not been provided with anything, was not provided then with anything by the people at the State Board of Elections, nor, subsequent to that, have I received anything until I got this thing in the mail within the last week or so. And so that's--you know, that's--that's--you know--

THE CHAIR: Thank--thank you.
PROF. JOYNER: Obviously, it's, well--
THE CHAIR: I appreciate the point. Now, the Chair has another question for Committee counsel staff. My recollection is that immediately following the probable-cause hearing on January the 9th, and by that I mean within forty-eight hours, the documents that were admitted on January the 9th were transmitted to counsel for Representative Wright. Is that accurate?
MR. REAGAN: Mr. Chairman, that's our recollection. We've asked Denise to check that for us. We have a transmittal letter that should have been dated and signed, and she's in the process of checking that. But that would be our understanding from what her recollection was.
THE CHAIR: All right. We're going to be on hold for a minute until I get that--to see that that transmittal letter occurred. All right. Thank you.
(DISCUSSION OFF RECORD)
THE CHAIR: All right. Let's come back into session. I know. I've got it. Thank you.

All right. I'm ready to rule on this motion.
Number 1. This matter is before the Committee and the Committee Chair on motion to dismiss Count 7 as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process of law and the state Constitution. The matter has been briefed by both sides and argued and is ripe for disposition.
Number 2. The argument by Representative Wright is two-fold, first, that the count as originally stated was vague, overbroad, and insufficient--provided insufficient notice to Representative Wright of what was being alleged to--to--that--to--what was alleged that he had violated; secondly, that once the count was amended that--to include the three hundred and--approximately three hundred and ninety-five specific allegations of a failure to report contained in Exhibit 9 at the probable-cause hearing, that then the count required an exceptional burden on the defense to investigate three hundred and ninety-five specific, independent violations of which there was no significant prior notice. For the reasons that follow, I'm going to deny the motion to dismiss Count 7.

Next number. As to the issue of vagueness, that issue was resolved sufficiently by the amendment to Count 7, which now specifically limits that count and the evidence related to it to the matters alleged with specificity and particularity in Exhibit Number 9. That exhibit contains the last name and first name of the alleged contributor, the bank account that it was found in, the amount of the check, the deposit date of the check, and when it should have appeared but allegedly did not appear as a reported contribution by Representative Wright.
That is a significant amount of information as to each specific check. Do not--and the Chair does not know what else could be provided to make that less vague. Therefore, I find that the count is, in fact, not vague, is not overbroad, in fact, is very specific and defined, and does not violate due process of law or any state Constitutional provision.
As to the issue of notice, Exhibit 9 contains simply information fully available for many, many, many months to Representative Wright on information accessible by simply looking at his personal and campaign accounts and the campaign contribution reports he filed. There is simply no independent evidence contained in the counts or in the Exhibit 9, and the Exhibit 9, in fact, is a work product that should make it easier to defend as opposed to more difficult.

Second, that information in its pure form was available for the Board of Elections hearings process, which Representative Wright was able to attend.
Number 3--or next number. The information contained in Exhibit 9 was presented in open hearing to which Representative Wright and his counsel were invited on January 9th and did not have to attend and chose not to. But that information was presented in open at that time. In addition, the next day Counsel was informed that they would be given copies of all of the material that was introduced at the January 9th probable-cause hearing.
And, in fact--next number--on January the 14th, 2008, at three-thirty-eight P.M., an e-mail was sent to Representative Wright, to Mr. Joyner at ijoyner@nccu.edu, and to dharris@triad.rr.com--this is January 14th, three-thirty-eight P.M.--containing a number of exhibits included--including the packet of materials, exhibits numbered 1 through 11 from Committee counsel Bill Hart and Alex Peters. That was sent by mail, as well, to Counsel.

Number--next numbered document--or next numbered finding. In addition, the information contained in Exhibit 9 is the subject, just as Count Number 7 is the subject, of a criminal count in the Wake County Superior Court for which Representative Wright stands trial. That count almost identically mirrors the criminal count, and therefore the information is not new information to Representative Wright and his counsel, since that information would have been contained within the discovery disclosed by the district attorney's office.
Next number. In the end, there should be absolutely no confusion at all over what the hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) refers to in the count and to which checks it applies.
Next number. However, the Chair does disagree with Committee counsel's statement that even if one of the three hundred and ninety-five checks were to have been unreported, it would meet the language of Count 7.

Count 7 was drafted by the Committee in an effort to be totally consistent with due process of law for Representative Wright and to not engage in a parsing of single counts, and specifically says that the count is violated only if Thomas E. Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a pattern of conduct. The pattern of conduct would certainly suggest there has be some showing of continuity and pervasiveness. The extent to which that occurs we'll leave for any motions that need to be heard during the trial of the evidence on the merits.

That being said, the motion to dismiss Count 7 as vague, overbroad, a violation of due process of law and the state Constitution is denied. Exception by Representative Wright and his counsel is noted.

Does anyone seek to overrule the Chair's ruling?

Seeing none, we move to Count Number--or the next motion. The motion now is to dismiss all counts on jurisdictional grounds and that the investigation is not authorized under G.S. 120-102(a)(5)(7)--(a)(5) and (a)(7).

And, Dr. Joyner, is this motion still viable given--

PROF. JOYNER: No.

THE CHAIR: --that it's not an LEC matter?

PROF. JOYNER: I was under the impression that we had pulled that--

THE CHAIR: Okay.

PROF. JOYNER: --and that we would go to--I believe, it's 8.

THE CHAIR: All right. So Motion Number 6 is withdrawn? Is that--am I correct?

PROF. JOYNER: It's not withdrawn. It's--it's--it's not appropriate before this Committee, because this is for the Legislative Ethics Committee.

THE CHAIR: Well, again--but since this is just the House Select Committee, for our purposes, I'm assuming you're withdrawing it from our consideration as the House Select Committee.

Page 124

We're not act--we don't act as the LEC. So you ca- certainly file that before the LEC, but for our purposes, the House Select Committee is not the LEC. Are--is the motion still up for our decision, or is it withdrawn from our consideration?

PROF. JOYNER: No. I had indicated--I was under the impression that we had made it clear that we were withdrawing anything that had to do with the Legislative Ethics Committee.

THE CHAIR: Okay. That--that's all my question is, is it withdrawn as to this Committee, and the answer is yes. All right. The motion is withdrawn as to this Committee.

Okay. And--and, Dr. Joyner, the court reporter has asked if you can speak up just a little bit, because she could not hear what you were saying earlier.

Okay. Number 7, motion to dismiss all counts for lack of jurisdiction on grounds the conduct was not committed in Representative Wright's law-making capacity. Dr. Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: This, I guess, goes to the notion of scope of review, or the scope of this Committee's responsibility.

Page 125

There are--as to Count Number 3, Count Number 4, Number 5, and Number 6, and Number 7--that the conduct alleged there, at best, deals with actions that Representative Wright is alleged to have taken in dealing with the Community Health Foundation, which is resident in Wilmington and has absolutely nothing to do with his duties or responsibility as a legislator, nor is the--nor are the allegations that--that these acts were committed as a part of his responsibilities or duties or using his position as a legislator. And we would think that it is outside of the scope of this General Assembly's work.

THE CHAIR: Questions by any member of the Committee by Dr. Joyner? All right. Mr. Hart? Mr. Peters?

MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The argument as to this particular motion is similar to what we have already been arguing, and that is that the--this Committee and the House of Representatives have inherent authority to inquire into, investigate the conduct of Representative Wright, regardless of whether it's in his official lawmaking capacity. Although the Legislative Ethics Committee is bound by the specific provisions of the Legislative Ethics Act, this Committee is not. The House of Representatives is not. And you can inquire into activity that would make him unfit to be a legislator and may act in accordance with your inherent authority.

THE CHAIR: Specific questions by any member of the Committee? All right. Thank you, Mr. Hart. All right. The Chair is ready to rule on this motion. Well, he thinks he is.

All right. This matter is before the Committee and the Chair on a motion to dismiss all count--well, I'm sorry--motion to dismiss Counts 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 for lack of jurisdiction on the ground that the conduct alleged was not committed in Representative Wright's lawmaking capacity. The matter has been briefed and argued and is now ripe for disposition.

Number 2. Number 2, the argument by Representative Wright is that Counts 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 involve conduct that deal with actions by Representative Wright in his work with the Community Health Foundation in Wilmington and not directly in his lawmaking capacity, and therefore exceed the scope of the jurisdiction allowed for the House Select Committee.

Next number. Mr. Hart argues, as Select Committee counsel, that the inherent authority of the House Select Committee is to investigate conduct--to investigate misconduct regardless of whether it is misconduct directly in the lawmaker's official capacity.

In reviewing what has occurred both at the Parliamentary level in England, at the colonies level, post-colonization in the United States, Congress, as well as in the states, it is clear that in every jurisdiction that has engaged in any discussion of the issue of legislative misconduct, that legislators have been disciplined by assemblies for private misconduct, fraud, corruption, criminal misconduct unrelated to their office, but criminal conduct nonetheless. And I will include in the final order that I sign for the Committee a citation to a number of those states and cases but will not include that in our discussion now.

The motion is denied.

All right. The next motion to be heard--I'm sorry. Exception to my ruling is noted by Representative Wright and Counsel. Does any member of the Committee wish to overrule the ruling of the Chair?

Seeing none, the next motion to be heard is the motion to dismiss all counts on the grounds that the creation of the House Select Committee and its actions generally violate due process and equal protection of the law. Dr. Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, we--this motion deals with the actions and procedures, not the creation of the House Select Committee, but more particularly, with the procedures that are set up to adjudicate this--this claim.

More specifically, we--we would object, on looking at the Rules of the House Select Committee adopted on December 18th and amended on January the 9th by someone--and it's not clear who adopted them or who amended them--but specifically to Item 14, which, as I read it, imposes for the first time in American history a requirement that a person who is charged with an offense has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that he should be exonerated of the charges. That provision flies in the face of the due-process clauses of the federal Constitution, the North Carolina Constitution, and every law and procedure anywhere in this country that I'm aware of. And again North Carolina has become the unusual instrument to now require a sitting legislator faced with a claim--that he has to come before this body and prove his innocence by a preponderance of the evidence rather than the traditional legal standard that the--this Committee, who serves now as the prosecutor, the grand jury, and the jury, find it by clear and convincing evidence that these allegations are true.

So we would certainly think that--I mean, not only are we having to go forward now before a committee who is involved in the instigation of these claims and the prosecution of these claims, and then we'll decide whether clear and convincing evidence exists to justify what they've already decided, but now the impossible burden of requiring the legislator to present evidence to prove that he's not guilty--that's--that's just unheard of.

REP. STAM: Mr. Chairman?

THE CHAIR: Questions, Representative Stam?

REP. STAM: Yes, I have a question. Professor Joyner, is your objection to Subsection 3 of 14 and also to 15(1), the sentence at the bottom of the page that carries over to the next page?

PROF. JOYNER: That's--that--that would be it, yes.

REP. STAM: A couple of follow-up questions, and I--I'm going to--

THE CHAIR: Follow-up?

REP. STAM: --tell you that that was my idea. And I would be willing to take those sentences out, and so move, as long as you understand the consequence of that.

With those out of there--of course, he has no burden to prove anything to anybody. Those are in there so if a--if an accused legislator actually wants to be exonerated and let that exoneration be known, there's a way for that to accomplish it. We could take that out, and then there's no way that your client could ever say, if it was dismissed prior to the hearing, "I was innocent." That was put in there for the protection of the innocent legislator. But if you really think that's a real problem, I will move to take it out.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Vice-chair, you--I mean, you can do what you want. You're going to do what you want to do, anyway. I'm saying that this--these provisions are not supported by any procedure in America, that a person accused of an offense has the obligation of coming before anybody anywhere, not even in church, and--to prove that they're not guilty of what they've been charged with. In other words, I don't see this as something that's going to help somebody. I see this as an unnecessary and illegal burden that this legislature is imposing on a elected member of--of this body.

THE CHAIR: Further questions by any member of the Committee? Mr. Hart? I'll--I'll--let me--

REP. STAM: Yeah.

THE CHAIR: --and then we'll get back to it. Thanks. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. My reading of Rules 14 and 15 of the Committee significantly differs from Mr. Joyner's. In criminal court, a defendant can either be found guilty beyond a reasonable doubt or found not guilty. There is no exoneration. Although many defendants leave court after being found not guilty and claim to have been exonerated or found to be innocent, there is no finding of innocence or exoneration in a not-guilty verdict.

What the Committee has done in its rules is clearly what Representative Stam has indicated, and that is create a third possible verdict for the Committee on each charge, that is, he is guilty by clear and convincing evidence of the charge, he is not--the charge is not proven, or the representative is exonerated.

And there's no indication in the Rules that the burden is on the representative to prove, be it by a preponderance of the evidence; it's simply if the Committee finds by a preponderance of the evidence that--the representative has been exonerated, it should so find.

So I don't find any violation of due process. I've indicated so in--in the brief that Mr. Peters and I presented to the Committee. And-- and I certainly see no due-process issue here. I think it's fine--if the Committee chooses to leave it, I don't see any problem in--in doing so. If the Committee chooses to take it out because the Representative is--is uncomfortable with it, I think it will still be fine either way.

THE CHAIR: Thank you, Mr. Hart. Any questions by any member of the Committee? If not, Representative Stam is recognized. Representative, do you wish to make a motion?

REP. STAM: I would, if he were the only person these would apply to. But since these apply to a hundred and sixty-nine other people who might want the opportunity for an exoneration, I will not make that motion unless Mister--Professor Joyner specifically asks us to do that.

THE CHAIR: All right. And I will just ask, for the record to be clear, are--Professor Joyner, do you ask the Committee to remove from the Rules those two sentences creating the exoneration option?

PROF. JOYNER: Mister--Mr. Chairman, you know--(pauses)--

MR. STAM: I'll withdraw the request if he doesn't want to--

PROF. JOYNER: Criminal--criminal--criminal court is no different than any other court. Civil court has the same procedure that if a person can't prove their claim, if they can't prove by a preponderance of the evidence in civil court--in criminal court it's by proof beyond a reasonable doubt--then the claim doesn't stand.

Now, it is--the U.S. Supreme Court, the North Carolina Supreme Court have all said you can't shift the burden on someone who is a defendant, or respondent in this case, to come forward to rebut or to prove their innocence. And that's the only position that we're taking on this.

THE CHAIR: Then I understand--

PROF. JOYNER: And that is--

THE CHAIR: --the argument.

PROF. JOYNER: --and that is unconstitutional as a violation of due process, even if somebody magnanimously feels that it's a gift. And it's not.

THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you. I understand the arguments. I'm going to make a comment as a member first, and then I'll rule as the Chair.

I think, Dr. Joyner, you're entirely accurate that In Re: Winship and the cases would clearly provide that when someone is accused, whether it's of a crime--well, let's just use the criminal context, with Winship, that if they're accused of a crime, due process would require that the burden of proof is on the charging party to prove beyond a reasonable doubt every element of the crime.

That having been said, I think you're fundamentally--fundamentally misreading this rule that's in the House Rules, and I think Mr. Hart is absolutely right that there is--there is--there is no--it's simply void of any argument that could reasonably be made, looking at these rules, that there's a shifting of the burden.

But as a defense lawyer who's represented criminal defendants in many, many cases, and as one who represented Lesley Jean, who, as you know, was a man imprisoned for eight and a half years for a crime he did not commit, and who got out of prison when the writ of habeas corpus issued, but--he got out of prison because the case was dismissed by the district attorney whenever it issued, but he was hardly exonerated. He was not guilty, but he was not an innocent man in the eyes of the law. He, in fact, spent the next eight and a half years trying to prove his innocence in order to get his back pay done through the military, in order to get his record cleared, in order to be able to find a job, because he was viewed as having gotten off because the State failed to meet its burden of proof. But he was not an exonerated man.

This provision was put in here predominantly by the lawyers in the Committee, but all of us voting on it, in an effort to make sure that even if the Committee finds that it fails to--to prove by clear and convincing evidence that a representative or senator has committed a wrong, that in order to make sure that if that representative wanted more than simply being found not guilty, if he wanted and could prove by affirmative evidence that he was completely innocent, that there was a mechanism for him to be able to do that, or her, to fully clear their name so that they wouldn't have to suffer any collateral consequences--that is the purpose of the provision.

That's my comment as a sole, individual legislator. That being said, it will follow and come as no surprise my ruling on the motion.

The motion to dismiss--the matter--Number 1. This matter is before the Committee and the Committee Chair on a motion to dismiss all counts on grounds that Rule 14 and Rule 15 of the Rules of the House Select Committee investigating Representative Wright violate due process of law. This matter has been briefed by counsel and the subject of oral argument and is ripe for disposition.

Number 2. Rule Number 14 of the House Rules states, and I quote, "After hearing evidence on the substantive issues of the alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by the accused legislator, the Committee shall address the following issues: Number 1, whether by clear and convincing evidence one or more of the charges against the accused legislator is true; Number 2, if so, what action will be taken by the Committee; and Number 3, whether by the preponderance of the evidence, the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges."

Rule 15 of the disposition--disposition of cases--Rule 15 of the Rules of the House Select Committee investigating Representative Wright, entitled "Disposition of Cases," reads, in part, as follows: "When the Committee has concluded its inquiries into alleged violations, the Committee, by majority vote of those present and voting, shall do one of the following: Number 1, if the Committee fails to find the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and the accused legislator." It further reads, "If the Committee finds by preponderance of the evidence the accused should be exonerated of the charges, the Chair shall transmit that finding to the accused legislator and the House of Representatives."

Next number. The Rules clearly provide that the burden of proof by clear and convincing evidence to show that the accused legislator has committed any unethical or unlawful conduct lies with the Committee and its counsel. There is no burden of proof placed on the charged representative.

Next number. There is no shifting on the burden of proof and, therefore, no violation of due process of law.

Final finding. The particular subparagraphs concerned and argued by Dr. Joyner simply provide a further option to allow and exonerate--to allow a legislator to seek full exoneration beyond simply being found not guilty of a charge because the Committee failed to meet its burden of proof. In that sense, this simply adds an additional layer, and a substantial one, of protection for the legislator and the legislator's representation. Accordingly, the motion is denied.

Exception to the motion ruling is noted. Does any member of the Committee seek to overrule the Chair? All right.

We're moving on to the ninth motion--only a couple more to go--motion to dismiss all counts on grounds the creation of the House Select Committee and its actions generally violate Article II, Section 20 of the North Carolina Constitution. Dr. Joyner?

PROF. JOYNER: We will withdraw--

THE CHAIR: All right.

PROF. JOYNER: --the--

THE CHAIR: I'm sorry. If you--if you can speak into the mike so the court reporter can--

PROF. JOYNER: We would withdraw any other motions which are still pending, except the motion to continue.

THE CHAIR: Okay. Then Motion Number 9 and Motion Number 10 are withdrawn. Motion Number 11 has already been ruled on in consolidation with Motions Number 2 and 3.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, let me just--

THE CHAIR: Go ahead, Dr. Joyner.

PROF. JOYNER: The substance of these two have already been dealt with--

THE CHAIR: Okay.

PROF. JOYNER: --in essence, so there's no point in just--

THE CHAIR: Rehash--

PROF. JOYNER: --beating a dead horse.

THE CHAIR: All right. That leaves us to Motion Number 12, and that is the motion to continue or hold in abeyance any hearing in this matter where the failure to do so would possibly prejudice Representative Wright's rights to a fair criminal trial and prejudice the possible jury pool. Dr. Joyner or Mr. Harris? All right.

MR. HARRIS: Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee, I am Doug Harris. I'm the attorney--

THE CHAIR: Mr. Harris, we're having a hard time, 'cause that mike's not picking you up.

MR. HARRIS: All right.

(DISCUSSION OFF RECORD)

MR. HARRIS: All right. Mr. Chairman, members of the Committee, I'm Doug Harris. I'm the attorney who's going to be trying the criminal case. The criminal case will be tried about four blocks south of where we sit right now, and it will be--it will consist of jurors who have been selected from this very county where you're holding this hearing. And that is my--that is my concern here.

I would like to cite a rather unusual example as to why you don't want to do this at this particular time. And that example is Dr. Richard Kimball, he of the Harrison Ford movie The Fugitive, the TV series, et cetera. Dr. Richard Kimball, you'll remember, was falsely convicted by--by a jury, and it turned out the one-armed man had really done it. But what a lot of people don't realize is that Dr. Richard Kimball was, in fact, based on an actual famous case, Dr. Sam Sheppard.

Both of them were doctors. Dr. Kimball was a doctor in Chicago. The real doctor, Dr. Sheppard, was a doctor in Ohio. Both of them were accused of killing of their wife. Both of them got convicted of killing their wife. But here the reality diverges from the fiction.

In the fiction, you'll remember, the one-armed man did it, and it was a big plot as to why he did it, that sort of thing. In the real case, the real Dr. Sam Sheppard, it was public officials who caused the problem. Public officials went out in the papers, and they said that Dr. Kimball did it, Dr. Kimball obviously killed his wife, Dr. Kimball was--was guilty, Doc--or rather, Dr. Sheppard had--had really killed his wife. This appeared on the front pages of paper, even as Representative Wright is appearing on the front page of the paper now. This appeared on the--this appeared on the TV news, even as Representative Wright is appearing on the TV news

And--and what happened was Dr. Sheppard was convicted. And--and we now know that he didn't do the crime. They--since there have been DNA tests, it turns out he didn't do the crime. But here's how it came out. This case went to the United States Supreme Court, and F. Lee Bailey of the O.J. Simpson case and many others--F. Lee Bailey represented Dr. Sheppard, and he successfully argued to the United States Supreme Court that the jury pool had been fatally polluted by--by--by the publicity, all the public officials--all the public officials talking about the case, all the public officials saying that he was guilty, all the public officials saying that he did the crime. By the time they finally had a jury pool, there was no jury in the whole area that could have possibly rendered a fair verdict.

And I respectfully say to you that that's pretty much what you're doing here, because it's been--has been said repeatedly here today these counts are the same as the criminal counts down the street. These counts that you're considering are exactly the same as what I'm going to have to argue to a jury a month, two months, three months down the road. I'm going to have to find twelve unbiased people who haven't made up their mind to sit in that jury and decide whether it's true or not true. And how am I going to do that with a bunch of public officials down here at the legislature saying my client's guilty?

Now, one of the first questions I ask when I seat a jury pool--when I'm trying to pick the jurors, I say, "Have you already made up your mind on the case?" Well, none of you could honestly say no, because you already have made up your mind on the case. I don't mean that as a criticism. I mean to say that you've already hold a hear--you've already held a hearing in the Legislative Ethics Committee, and you've already concluded that there was probable cause to believe that Representative Wright did something wrong. In--in other words, you've formed an opinion on the case, and that's fine. But that's not fine for a jury.

And I think what Dr. Joyner was getting at earlier when he talked about due-process problems, it's a due-process problem when somebody's already made up their mind and then they decide to hear the facts of the case. That's a due-process problem, because, after all, which one of you would like to hear people were hearing your case that already decided that you probably did it?

Now, I'd like to quote from what the Chairman said earlier. He said, "Every institution has concluded there is probable cause of the existence of fraud." That's what the Chairman said in this hearing just--just before lunch.

Well, you know, one of the institutions he's talking about is the Legislative Ethics Committee, of which you all are members. You all have committed--you all have concluded that there's probable cause to believe there's an existence of fraud. And now you're getting ready to hold a hearing as to whether or not there is fraud.

I respectfully suggest that what the--what the Speaker of the House should have done, rather than--rather than take the very same people off the Committee that had already reached conclusions meeting together with the Senate, and just stripped away the senators and then composed this Committee--what the Speaker should have done was composed a brand-new committee of legislators who had not heard it, who had not reached conclusions, and then held a hearing on these facts, because, unfortunately, you folks have polluted yourselves.

I know you didn't mean to. I know you--all you did was listen, which is what you're supposed to do. But you've obviously already reached some conclusions when you say there's probable cause.

In the--in the sheet that was passed out to you that was prepared by your staff, you were given the civil-law definition of probable cause. And what it says is--and this is from your staff, not from me--"a reasonable belief--"probable cause is a reasonable belief in existence of facts on which a claim is based and in the legal validity of the claim itself."

And that means, I presume, that you have already concluded, because you found probable cause, that there already exists facts upon which a claim is based, and there already is legal validity in the claim itself. How else--how else could it mean? And--and now--and now you're getting ready to make a whole lot of public pronouncements, and, indeed, the Chairman is already making public pronouncements, that--that my client probably did commit fraud; my client--which we vehemently deny, by the way--and my client--my client probably did commit violations of law, which we also vehemently deny. And the problem is, you see, this is polluting my jury pool.

I can't try a case like that. I can't go down there and pick a fair and unbiased jury with the legislature pounding the drum, saying, "He's guilty. He's guilty. He's guilty. We"--you know, "We've already made up our mind. Here's our conclusion." You can see where I couldn't. You wouldn't want to be in that position, either.

Now, it so happens that the Sam Sheppard case I was talking about earlier is studied in every law school in America. Professor Joyner and his colleagues teach it. Every law school in America studies how the public officials of Ohio screwed up that case and made it impossible for Sam Sheppard to get a fair trial, even though it turned out he was innocent.

And, ladies and gentlemen, unless you want to be studied by every law school in America, you ought to be cautious as to what you're doing here, because how would you like every law school in America to be studying the General Assembly about a hearing it conducted just before a criminal trial and how it polluted--how it polluted a trial so that a fair trial could not be had in Wake County on the criminal charges? How would you like every law professor in the United States that teaches Constitutional law talking about you the way they've been talking about Sam Sheppard and the way they've been talking the Ohio officials for the last forty-five years. How would you like that?

And this is not a casual thing. This is an important thing. I would suggest to you that we are gradually melding together the three branches of government here in an improper way that you, as legislators, ought to respect. Here we have members of the executive branch who also do prosecutions, and who also do the same kind of work as the district attorney in here in the legislature helping the legislature prosecute one of its own, where we've got a case going on in the judicial branch in which Representative Wright is going to have to stand up to criminal charges, and we're--and we've--we've picked those charges out of there, and we've stuck them in the legislative process. And we've got all three of these things all mixed in together now. Whatever happened to the balance of power?

What would be the harm, after all, in letting a jury decide this, letting it go to a jury and letting twelve people who are unbiased, who haven't made up their mind, decide this case for better or worse? And then if you want to revisit it after the jury, depending on what happens, revisit it. There'll be time enough. After all, these things come from 2001, 2002, 2003. You've heard that. What would be the ultimate danger if this is done--if you take your action, shall we say, in July or August of 2008 instead of March of 2008? What would be the ultimate harm, as opposed to the almost sure harm you will do to the criminal process if you forge ahead now?

Because this will be headlines every day. What you say will be quoted, just like what the Chairman said today will be quoted. And--and in the end, we'll have a jury pool that can't possibly consider this case, can't possibly give Representative Wright a fair trial, which he's entitled to under law.

So this is not--as some of the hypotheticals have said, this is not a matter that has not come to the attention of the courts. This is not a matter that won't be dealt with if you don't deal with it. This is a matter that is being dealt with by--by no less than the Wake County district attorney. Let him deal with it. Let the Justice Department deal with it. Let the--let the system of justice--let the courts deal with it. Don't embroil yourself in it, because if you do, you're going to create an impossible morass and mess.

And, lastly, I want you to think, too, about what would happen if your--if your decision is contrary to the jury. We must consider the possibility that you might vote that Representative Wright is guilty of one or more of these things and a jury might say that he's not guilty of one or more of these things. Who would have the most say-so? Surely the jury would have the last word on who's guilty and who's not guilty. Then wouldn't all of you look like fools? Wouldn't all of you be subject to embarrassment? Wouldn't all of you be subject to charges you'd--you'd acted prematurely and done something you should not have done?

So what I'm asking here for is not for you to say that Representative Wright did no wrong, not for you to say you have no suspicions, not for you to say you're going to sit on your hands and do nothing. I'm asking for you to simply defer this for a few months, long enough for me to try my case. That's all I'm asking.

Thank you very much.

THE CHAIR: Questions for Mr. Harris by members of the Committee? Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: Yes. Mr. Harris, I appreciate your thoughts. This motion actually interests me, maybe for different reasons. And I've heard you and Professor Joyner say several times that the Chair and I have made up our minds. As I understand it, we found probable cause, which is the same thing that the grand jury of Wake County did, a group of twelve people.

MR. HARRIS: Uh-huh (yes).

REP. STAM: If the finding of probable cause by a group of twelve people in Wake County pollutes the jury pool, then obviously all indictments pollute criminal trials, which is nonsensical.

Are you aware that the clear-and-convincing-evidence standard is higher than probable cause?

MR. HARRIS: I would ask you if you're aware that all grand jurors are disqualified from sitting on the regular jury, because nobody could reach their--nobody could make up their mind to a degree that a grand jury makes up its mind and then sit around and judge the case. So all of you would be--if--if you sat as a grand jury, which you just did--

REP. STAM: Let me--let me just--

MR. HARRIS: --all of you would be disqualified.

REP. STAM: Let me ask you the question again.

MR. HARRIS: Yes.

REP. STAM: Are you aware that the clear-and-convincing standard is higher than the probable-cause standard?

MR. HARRIS: Certainly. I'm aware that--I'm aware that there's a number of different standards, among them, beyond a reasonable doubt--

REP. STAM: Right.

MR. HARRIS: --is the criminal standard.

REP. STAM: And the second question, if I might, why should you not make this argument to the superior court, that that case be held in abeyance so that those proceedings don't pollute the deliberations of the House?

MR. HARRIS: The--

REP. STAM: Why--why should the--why should the superior-court action take precedence over the actions of the House of Representatives?

MR. HARRIS: The statutes that you passed establish precedence. And precedence is the first case--the first case in order is--is the U.S. Supreme Court. The next case in order is the federal courts, on down the line. The next court--case in order is the North Carolina Supreme Court, the Court of Appeals. The next case in line is criminal superior. The next case in line is civil superior. You, sir--

Page 154

REP. STAM: But we're not--
MR. HARRIS: --you, sir--
REP. STAM: Let me--
MR. HARRIS: --are way on down the line--
REP. STAM: The U.S. House is--
MR. HARRIS: --in superiority.
REP. STAM: The U.S. House is not in that--I mean, the North Carolina House is--those are court proceedings you're talking about. And I--you're talking about the Rules of Practice?
MR. HARRIS: Well, this is surely a civil proceeding, and a civil proceeding is ranked below, by you, by--by the legislature, below all criminal proceedings, all.
REP. STAM: All right.
MR. HARRIS: Even if I were to be in North Carolina District Court today, and I also had to be here, my duty would be in the North Carolina District Court. So there is no question that--that Wake County Superior Court is superior to your proceedings here, and that's by the laws that you have passed.
THE CHAIR: Let me ask a question, and this is a practical one. I understand that Judge

Hight has scheduled the criminal trial for March the 3rd, the same day that we're scheduled for. Is it your understanding that that trial date is firm and that you will proceed either by plea or by trial, absent some extraordinary circumstance, on that date?
MR. HARRIS: I--I wish to inform you that I have made a motion to continue that case off that date. And my reasons are that we are considering a large volume of evidence, you know, about eight thousand pages, and dozens of witnesses and things that the State had to consider over about a year and we've had about two months, I guess, now. And I have represented to the Court that we simply need more time. In truth, that applies in this hearing, as well, as Dr. Joyner alluded earlier. It's--it's an extraordinary volume of evidence and witnesses.
I--I--I don't think that Dr. Joyner and myself--I don't think that Dr. Joyner and myself aided by the Dream Team out in California or any group of attor--attorneys could prepare properly this case in this short amount of time.
THE CHAIR: Has the--has the State responded to that motion to continue yet?

Page 156

MR. HARRIS: They have not. I have not seen a formal response.
THE CHAIR: Do you have that motion scheduled for argument?
MR. HARRIS: Yes. It's scheduled on February 25th, along with some other motions.
THE CHAIR: Is that your motions deadline date for--
MR. HARRIS: That's correct. I've already filed that motion along with some motions to dismiss and some other motions.
THE CHAIR: All right.
MR. HARRIS: And that, along with Mr. Willoughby's motion to consolidate, are all on the 25th.
THE CHAIR: If the criminal trial does go on--
MR. HARRIS: Yes.
THE CHAIR: --the 3rd, then that--and--and--and, obviously, if we're both scheduled on the 3rd, that clearly--and I agree with your point--
MR. HARRIS: Yes.
THE CHAIR: --takes precedence, and you and--and Representative Wright would need to be in the criminal trial.

Page 157

MR. HARRIS: That's right.
THE CHAIR: That would effectively moot the issue we're facing if that happens. Correct?
MR. HARRIS: That's true.
THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you.
MR. HARRIS: All right.
THE CHAIR: All right. Mr. Hart?
MR. HART: Mr. Chairman, I have spoken with Colon Willoughby, the district attorney of the 10th Prosecutorial District. The--what--much of what Mr. Harris just said is what Colon Willoughby also told me. In fact, I believe it was--last Friday was the deadline for filing motions. I was not aware of what motions had been filed, but he told me that the motions will be heard on February 25th before Judge Hight, who was also the judge who was set to try the case on March 3rd.
Mr. Willoughby informed me last week that his intention is to proceed forward with trial on March 3rd, and will be urging the trial court to do so. He indicated to me also that he had provided discovery to Representative Wright back on the 1st of January, I believe, or just--right--right during that time period. And so they are--as far as the State--that is, the district attorney is concerned, he is--he is ready to proceed to trial on March 3rd.

I would say one thing that is--that I believe I disagree with Mr. Harris about, and that is that regardless what a jury does, this Committee still has valid charges before it. And even if a jury were to fail to find beyond a reasonable doubt that Representative Wright is guilty of the charges, that does not mean that this Committee could not find by clear and convincing evidence, a lesser burden, that--that Representative Wright is guilty of unethical conduct involving the same conduct alleged in--in the indictments.

And so the--the fact that a jury were to find him not guilty either before or after this Committee takes--takes action is simply irrelevant.

THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you. Questions for Mr. Hart from any member of the Committee? All right. I understand the motion and--and the position of the lawyers and the parties.

All right. This matter is before the Chair and the Committee on a motion to continue and to hold in abeyance the ethics proceedings with regard to Representative Wright. The issue has been briefed and argued by counsel and is ready for disposition in large part today.

Number 2. It is the Chair's understanding that the current criminal trial is scheduled by Superior Court Judge Hight for March 3rd. Further, my understanding is that there are motions to be heard on February 25th in the Wake County Superior Court, with one of those motions having been filed by Representative Wright to continue the trial date due to the large volume of evidence in the case.

Next numbered paragraph. The rights at issue in the ethics proceeding are complex. There are absolutely the rights of Representative Wright to a fair hearing and full due process of law. Likewise, there is the significant interest in the public to an assurance that all of the legislators in the House and the Senate are conducting the affairs of their office and are conducting their time in office in an ethical manner, that the perception of the public that any legislator may be--or series of legislators may be unethical can very quickly destroy the confidence of the public in the institution of government. And that is a substantial right at issue in any ethics proceeding.

Yet another interest are the interests of the constituents in Representative Wright's district to have a representative who does not have over his head ongoing ethics charges of which there is a question of whether or not he committed any violation so that they can have the full effort of that legislator to represent that district.

All of these rights are at issue in the balancing--and I think that's what it is--the balancing of how to proceed in these cases.

Next numbered paragraph. The history of this ethics proceeding is not one that has moved at anything other than a very deliberate rate of speed in order to protect all of the rights involved and most particularly and supremely that of Representative Wright. The ethics--the ethics proceedings began, as you alluded to, Mr. Harris, in the Legislative Ethics Committee, and the Legislative Ethics Committee determined--after withholding any movement in the ethics case for a number of months to allow the criminal prosecution to make its determination of whether to proceed, the Legislative Ethics Committee determined that there was--there were grounds to refer this matter to the House of Representatives for disciplinary considerations in December of 2007, and withheld judgment on one count that it retained jurisdiction over.

This matter came to the House, and the Speaker appointed this Committee in December of 2007. The Committee then met to establish its rules in two thousand--December of 2007, and a probable-cause hearing was scheduled and held on January 9th, 2008.

The Rules that have been established by the House Select Committee detail a time frame for the exchange of witnesses, the exchange of a summary of their testimony, the exchange of documents, the subpoenaing of witnesses, and the time to prepare for any hearing. Those rules are consistent with or more generous in every respect than nearly every set of state ethics rules that we could find in the United States of America.

Next numbered paragraph. If the criminal case is in trial or plea on March the 3rd, this case--the motion will be granted to that extent, and this case would be continued in the ethics committee on a week-to-week basis to be rescheduled on Monday, March the 10th, and again, if you were still in trial or in plea on that date, the following Monday.

If, however, the criminal trial is continued or for matters unrelated does not take place on March the 3rd and this issue is still pending, the motion to continue the ethics hearing on that date is denied. I believe that, number one, the protection of the criminal case can be assured, as it is in many cases with publicity, by change of venue, by curative or limiting jury instructions, by individual voir dire, and by continuation which would have occurred, obviously, by definition of the trial date.

There has been no evidence at all presented to this Committee beyond argument and pure conjecture and speculation that any holding by this body would in any way affect the criminal trial. We do not even have before us, other than our own individual knowledge, the press that has occurred in this area, which would be a minimum showing required to even look at this motion in the criminal context.

Finally, my concern on this is to agree with this motion in a vacuum and to say essentially that we will continue the ethics hearing, and then to have the criminal case continued and not to have any proceedings that try to get at what occurred here in March on a matter that was first brought to the attention of the State Board of Elections almost a year ago and that has been pending in multiple forums for the better part of that year, creates a perverse policy to me, that the more egregious the alleged misconduct, the more that it verges on criminal conduct, the more control the alleged actor has over the ethics process and its timing.

That is, if we had no criminal charges pending, there would be no argument that the House could proceed to its ethics hearing.

The fact, however, that the conduct is alleged to have criminal possibilities suggests in your argument that the person who has a criminal case pending therefore gets to delay in the ethics process simply because the criminal charges are pending, and therefore, the more dilatory tactics that might be taken to extend out each process circularly extends the other. I do not think--I believe that that policy is as unsound in practice as it would be unwise and unnecessary.

I believe that the balancing of the rights that must occur here include not only the rights of Representative Wright to a fair trial and a fair hearing in this jurisdiction, but the rights of the institution, the rights of the public, and the rights of the constituents in Representative Wright's district.

So because this matter has been pending for many months, counsel could have been retained many, many months ago. I feel for the amount of work that has been done. I have been there. But I am not going to continue this hearing unless Representative Wright is in trial or in plea. But one way or another, he will be one of those two places on March the 3rd. The motion is denied.

Exception is noted. Does any member of the Committee seek to overrule the decision of the Chair?

REP. STAM: Mr. Chair?

THE CHAIR: Representative Wright--or Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: I didn't know how you would handle this, but I think you've hit exactly the right resolution, and I have no motion.

THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you. All right. That is, at this point, all the motions I have pending at the Chair. Let me ask--and I'm going to kind of circle--Mr. Peters, Mr. Hart--I know we've got discovery matters that we've got to deal with. Are there any other motions outside the discovery pending that you're aware of?

MR. HART: No.

THE CHAIR: Professor--Dr. Joyner, Mr. Harris, are there other motions besides the discovery ones, which we're going to deal with after a short recess, to get those resolved--are there any other motions that I have neglected to cover?

PROF. JOYNER: No, there's not--there are no motions that you've neglected. We would make an additional motion that--that--that the House appoint a different fact-finding committee to review the factual allegations in this matter, in the sense that those persons who have engaged in the grand-jury process, those people who have already reached conclusions regarding probable cause are not impartial jurors to determine what the facts are, particularly in the next phase of this matter, or in the alternative, that--that Representative Wright be allowed to make his claim and present his evidence before the full House of Representatives, since they are to be the ones that will determine whether he is to be disciplined or expelled from this body.

THE CHAIR: I understand the motion. Questions by any member of the Committee to Dr. Joyner? Mr. Hart? Mr. Peters? And since this a new motion, do you need a moment to respond for any reason?

MR. HART: No. No reason for a response. I'll leave it up to the Committee to decide.

THE CHAIR: All right.

REP. STAM: Well, he said he--

THE CHAIR: Representative Stam.

REP. STAM: He said he will make a--he's not making that motion now, is he? Or he--

THE CHAIR: No, I understood it to be a motion.

REP. STAM: Oh. Well, I would like to hear a response--

THE CHAIR: I'm sorry. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: One thing that has occurred to Mr. Peters and myself is that--is that this Committee and this--and the Chair may not be the appropriate person to address this motion to. It may be that--that the motion can only be properly addressed to Representative Hackney, the Speaker of the House.

THE CHAIR: I think that the Chair is going to address the motion today, and then I'm going to refer it--the Committee's ruling by letter to the Speaker to see if he is inclined to hear it independently. But I think he would want at least a ruling by us and a decision, and may choose under the circumstances not to.

I think, again, ultimately any House committee as appointed by the Speaker is under the Speaker's direction, and the Speaker can certainly decide to change and to listen to that motion and to come to a different result. But I'm going to go ahead and rule on it, Mr. Hart.

MR. HART: In that case, I would like to just respond briefly.

THE CHAIR: Yes, sir.

MR. HART: There have been a lot of allegations thrown at the Committee by Mr. Joyner and Mr. Harris today about the fairness issue. And I think there have been mischaracterizations made about the role of the Committee and what it has done so far.

As special counsel, Mr. Peters and I have been involved in--in this case all along, and we have seen, as the Chair noted, that it--it has proceeded at a very deliberate pace. Both the LEC and the House Select Committee have done everything possible to await the outcome of the SBI investigation and the action by the district attorney, have been very careful to make sure that due-process provisions were put into the Rules, and that time was appropriately set out to deal with every aspect of the hearings before this Committee.

As--everything that has been done is--has been afforded the same kind of protections as have been afforded a criminal defendant in--in criminal court, and we see no reason that this Committee should not move forward.

As was noted earlier, the only thing that this Committee has done is make a finding of probable cause. This Committee has not reviewed all of the evidence that will presented at the hearing. It has simply made a preliminary probable-cause determination.

THE CHAIR: All right. And--

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, may I now respond?

THE CHAIR: Yes, Dr. Joyner, you may.

PROF. JOYNER: I know it's been a while since Mr. Hart's been in criminal court, so he may have forgotten some of the procedure over there.

This--this Committee, this House Select Committee is--has been in charge of the prosecution of this matter, the Attorney General's staff is assigned to this Committee to be the prosecutor. Members of this Committee have served as the grand jury to find probable cause. And there is simply no way that they could have been engaged in these roles without reaching some conclusion about the probable guilt of--of Representative Wright.

Now, this same Committee that is prosecuting it, that serves as grand jurors, will now sit as petit jurors where they will then make a finding of fact, a definitive finding of fact, which can either include or exclude any information that we provide or we present as evidence. And it is that finding of fact which will go before the full body for them to make a determination with any recommendations which they made.
Now, Stevie Wonder can see that there is a little problem with that. It is not a far stretch to conclude that the skids are already greased and the outcome--outcome of this matter is predetermined.
THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner--
PROF. JOYNER: And we--we would think that the--fair--fairness would allow us, if nothing else, to present our evidence before an impartial body or to the full House of Representatives, since the full House of Representatives will make a decision about this matter upon recommendation from this Committee. As the Rules are now established, this--this side of the aisle is precluded from ever making any type of presentation to the House of--to the full House of Representatives as to whether any disciplinary actions should be taken or Representative Wright should be expelled. And that is a clear violation of every rule of--that I know of under the federal and the state Constitution.

Now, if you want to call it fair, you can call it anything you want to. But the public will see it is not fair.
THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner, my question--and I understand the eloquence of the argument. My question is, do you have any evidence today that you wish to present that you have any evidence that any member of this Committee is biased, prejudiced or has otherwise made a final decision with respect to your client and is impaired from doing so?
And my question is evidence. I'm not talking about the fact that we may have heard probable cause. I'm asking so that I know is there a piece of evidence that you have that you want to present that members of the Committee, individually or combined, are prejudiced, biased, or otherwise impaired in their judgment with respect to the merits of this action?

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, I've presented the procedural history, the involvemen of members of this Committee in bringing us to where we are now, and I think that that evidence speaks for itself. I don't need to present anything else.
THE CHAIR: That's not my question, Dr. Joyner. My question-- PROF. JOYNER: Now, just--
THE CHAIR: --to you--no--no, sir. My question is yes or no, do you have any evidence that a member of the Committee is biased, prejudiced, or substantially impaired--I understand the legal argument. My question is whether there is a piece of evidence, because if there is, we need to consider that.
PROF. JOYNER: And I just said that the fact that these members of this Committee, including yourself, have sat through all of these proceedings and listened to all of these allegations and reached the conclusion--that that is evidence in and of itself. No, we do not have anything else to present, but I don't think we need to present anything else.

THE CHAIR: All right. I appreciate that.
MR. HARRIS: I'd like to speak to that, Mr. Chairman, if I may.
THE CHAIR: Well, now, I'm trying to--oh, Mr. Harris, I'm sorry. And then I'll get with Mr. Hart.
MR. HARRIS: Oh, pardon me, Mr. Hart. Mr. Chairman, I wanted to make it clear to all the members that I am in--since I was the one quoted, I am in no way, shape, or form impugning the integrity or the good intentions of anyone on this Committee. That's--I wouldn't want anyone to think that that was anything that I was saying.
What I was saying was merely this, that if you were now sitting in a jury box, potentially to be selected in a jury, and you were asked the question that every defense attorney asks, "Have you reached some conclusions about this case? Do you have some opinions about this case," all of you, I presume, would have to say yes, and that conclusion is that probably--just as the Chairman said earlier, probably some fraud has been committed here, probably there has been some wrongdoing here. In the words of the--Black's legal dictionary, probably there is some foundation of fact and some--some reason to believe that this--this does exist. That doesn't render you a bad person, any more than it renders a member of a--of a grand jury a bad person. That is the grand jury's honest opinion. That is your honest opinion.

The question before you now is quite different. It is whether having reached your conclusions--your preliminary conclusions, could you honestly reply that you don't have an opinion on this matter. I presume you could not say that. You would have to hold up your hand and say, "I'm sorry, Your Honor, I actually do have some conclusions." And at that point, the superior court judge would say, "Well, thank you very much for being so honest. You're excused for having an opinion." And that's where we are.

The fault does not lie with this Committee or any member. The fault lies--and I mean it in no mean way, but the fault lies with Speaker Hackney, because when he let the Joint Legislative Committee on Ethics investigate this matter--and you are all members of it--and then when it came time the Joint Legislative Committee said they had no jurisdiction to go any further on this, then what should have happened was instead of selecting a subgroup of that committee, of which you are, and all the very same members who had already voted and already reached conclusions--instead of selecting that subgroup, he should have selected a brand-new group out of the House that were unbiased, had not heard--had heard nothing and had reached no conclusions. So that is the point I'm making.

I hope no member of this Committee, including the Chair, thinks that I'm suggesting you're--that you are, you know, acting in some unethical or improper way. And I mean it in no improper way, but simply that all of you, including the Chair, have obviously reached certain conclusions. And the Chairman actually said so. So that's where we are. Thank you.

THE CHAIR: Thank you, Mr. Harris. Mr. Hart?

MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. First of all, I want to set the record straight on something. Mr. Joyner has indicated that the special--that the House Select Committee is prosecuting Representative Wright. That's not my understanding of the process. At the request of the Committee, the Attorney General has assigned Mr. Peters and myself to prosecute the matter for the--for the House Select Committee.

And I want to also state for the record that we are--have not been under your direction. In fact, there are many--been many times where we said we couldn't do some of the things that you wanted to do by the times you wanted to do them. We--we have been operating independently as special counsel, and it's my understanding that we are the ones who are prosecuting this case, not the Committee.

Second of all, Mr. Harris' point about jurors--there are many jurors who come into jury box having formed opinions. That's not the issue. The issue that the superior court judge must delve into is whether or not jurors can set aside opinions--any opinions that they have formed and make a decision based on the facts presented in the case. That's the ultimate determination. That's what this Committee must do, and I believe that this Committee can do that.

The procedure that's involved in the hearings in this Committee is the same as--as it is in the Judicial Standards Commission. The Judicial Standards Commission takes complaints from the public involving judges, makes a determination as to whether there's some probable cause to proceed with an investigation and charging, and then sits as a investigatory and fact-finding body to make decisions about whether or not facts have been proved, then makes its recommendations to the North Carolina Supreme Court. And the Supreme Court either adopts the findings or makes new findings and takes appropriate action, but it only does so based on the recommendations of the Judicial Standards Commission.

THE CHAIR: Thank you. All right. I think I understand the arguments. The Chair is ready to rule on the motion.

The motion that is now before the Chair and the Committee is to request that a different group of legislators be appointed to hear the merits of the evidentiary hearing in this case or that the process be bypassed and that the full evidentiary hearing be presented to the full House of Representatives. That is the motion, as I understand it, and the position of Representative Wright.

The response to the motion, now having been argued by Mr. Hart, is that the Attorney General's office, through the appointment of Mr. Hart and Mr. Peters, has been asked to prosecute the case, that the Committee function is to be a fact-finder in this process and make its determination of fact and recommendations to the House, and third, that the question is not whether or not any Committee member has an opinion, but whether they can make a decision based on all of the facts as presented at the hearing, such that their judgment can be fair, impartial, and not impaired by matters outside of the proceeding.

All right. The Chair denies the motion for the following reasons. First, the Attorney General's--Deputy Attorney General Mr. Hart is correct: The role of this Committee, as set out in the Rules, is a fact-finding and investigative role that has multiple levels of fact-finding in order to protect the charged representative; to ensure, first, that no charge proceeds past a private discussion if there is not probable cause; and second, once probable cause may be determined, to set in place an evidentiary hearing to look at all of the evidence, much of which, of course, is not presented necessarily at the probable-cause hearing.

Second, the recommendations of the Committee are simply that. The full transcript, all of the evidence presented, all of the documents, if there is a finding by the Committee adverse in any manner to Representative Wright, will go to the full House of Representatives. The full House of Representatives makes the determination in this case and is the judge and jury in this case, not the fact-finding committee.

Third, this process mirrors the Judicial Standards Commission and, in fact, was created to effectively mirror the Judicial Standards Commission, who acts in exactly the same role on its recommendation to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

Next, I know of no evidence, none has been presented, and Representative Wright's counsel concedes that they have no evidence that any mem of the Committee is biased, prejudiced, or otherwise impaired, other than their concern that the Committee members have already heard some evidence of probable cause and formed the probable-cause opinion at that stage of the proceedings. That in and of itself is hardly insufficient--or hardly sufficient to create a substantial impairment of legislators hearing this matter.

Finally, this process of the Committee fact-finding is mirrored in the process of at least forty other states and the United States Congress. It is not my understanding that any of those states--and you have not and Representative Wright has not pointed to any state or any other institution where the fact-finding committee changes simply because there's a probable-cause first step before the final evidentiary determination. If it is good enough in all of those other states, in Congress, and during the history of the United States, it is sufficient for the process to be fair here in North Carolina.

And finally, a personal note in the--in this: I understand fully the legal argument, and I do not take it that you made any personal--I understand completely. But I make this observation. I have dealt now with these five other members, and I have--and across partisan bounds--there are three Republicans and three Democrats who represent various geographic areas of the state--and the goal here--and I cannot state it enough--has been to create a process that is as fair as it could possibly be to Representative Wright, or to any charged representative, but to Representative Wright, and to assure that this Committee will act deliberately and fairly and thoroughly in its decision-making, however long that takes for us to do. The goal here is to restore public confidence across the board in whatever our decision and in the decision-making process, and this Committee intends to fulfill that responsibility.

The motion is denied. Exception is noted.

Do the Chair's comments or ruling seek to suggest to any member they wish to overrule the Chair? There is none.

I will, however, refer this motion as well as our finding immediately to the Speaker's office, should he decide to act independently on your motion. And I think that should be done.

All right. Now, I'm going to suggest that we take about just a five-minute, stand-up-and-get-something-to-drink break and come back. We have the discovery request to deal with and a few definite [phonetic] matters that we want to take up on the discovery request to finish up today.

Thank you. We'll be back in five minutes.

(TEN-MINUTE RECESS)

THE CHAIR: All right. We are back in--in session, and I appreciate everyone coming back quickly.

The remaining matter that we have for this that I'm aware of, other than an announcement of sort of the timelines at the end, is consideration of the discovery requests. And just so I'm clear, Dr. Joyner has filed the discovery requests, and there are seven discovery requests.

I'm going to suggest--just the way it breaks up in terms of who's kind of got material, going to ask--I guess the easiest thing is Bill and Alec, if you're prepared to respond to Requests 1 through 4, because I had previously directed Staff to be prepared to respond to Requests 5 through 7, since that material's really within their reach--so if you would start by responding to requests and go through them 1 through 4, please--that would be helpful. Just--thanks.

MR. HART: I had previously talked with Walker about this--

THE CHAIR: The discovery request is attached to Representative Wright's response in your--after--after the motion--after the motion to continue in your notebook. Thank you. I'm sorry, Mr. Hart. Go ahead.

MR. HART: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I had previously spoken with Walker Reagan about the discovery request, and we had--had discussed that Alec and I would be the best ones to talk about 1 through 4, and that the staff would really be more appropriate for 5 through 7.

As I have informed this Committee before, this is an unusual situation for me in that Representative Wright, Mr. Harris, and Professor Joyner have more discovery material than--than I have, and I actually ought to be here asking for discovery from them. And I'd be happy to make whatever provisions necessary to go and get their seven thousand pages of documents and make the copies at--at our expense. But they--they have more than we do. I haven't talked to Mr. Harris about this, but I have talked to Professor Joyner on the phone about this.

As--as I informed the Committee on January 9th, we do not have what the district attorney of Wake County has. We do not have the SBI investigation. We do not have what was turned over to the defense.

What we do have--we--we have had an opportunity to look at some of the interviews contained in the SBI investigation. We do have some documents that we requested and were turned over to us. And certainly we will be providing any documents that we intend to introduce at the hearing. Even though they already have copies of those, we will provide additional copies of--of whatever we do have and intend to introduce.

The interviews, we do not have copies of. They do. What we will be providing tomorrow is--my understanding of the timeline--we will be mailing to them and e-mailing each attorney a copy of our witness list and a summary of what we understand the testimony of that witness is likely to be. And that's based, again, upon our reading of some interviews and discussions with investigators and discussions with Colon Willoughby. But we do not have copies of those interviews, so we cannot provide them to them. As I said, though, my understanding is that all of that has been provided to--to Representative Wright.

Through a newspaper account, I saw that Mr. Harris said that he read those over January 1st. I can't remember what he said he was eating and drinking at the time, but there was a comment in the paper that he had had a day on January 1st where he had been reviewing some seven thousand pages of documents.

Again, we don't--we don't have interviews to turn over. We do have copies of the same things they do, that is, the Board of Elections report that was included in the discovery that they had--we also had the DHHS audit, which was part of the discovery materials that were turned over to them. And so they already have everything that we have and more.

But we certainly will be providing a--a witness list and summary of our witnesses tomorrow. And we will provide them--I believe it's on--the deadline is on the 22nd of February--we will be providing them copies of any documents that we have that we'll be introducing.

THE CHAIR: Just so I'm clear, then, for Number 1 on the discovery request, that, I think, tracks exactly what you're required to disclose under the Committee rules. And so you will be disclosing--

MR. HART: We will be complying with that.

THE CHAIR: You will be complying with Number 1. Number 2 also tracks essentially what is in the Committee rules, and you would--and--and would therefore be turning over to Representative Wright any information that a reasonable person might believe would exculpate him on any of the counts.

MR. HART: Yes, sir. So far we have not found any such information. And again, to the extent that there may be some of that type information in the SBI report that we have not examined, we assume that they have that, and so--so they--that would be available to them.

THE CHAIR: I understand.

MR. HART: But we--we do not have anything at this point.

THE CHAIR: All right. And as to Number 3, as to any--you have not interviewed any individuals as Committee counsel that you've got statements to turn over to Representative Wright's counsel?

MR. HART: We have--we have not.

THE CHAIR: All right.

MR. HART: We have discussed the matter with investigators. We have discussed it with Mr. Willoughby. We have, again, read some interview notes, but that's--those are the only folks that we have--have spoken with.

THE CHAIR: All right. And Number 4, you would certainly--again, to the extent that you had any interviews or you had statements for anyone who was going to be either testifying here or where the statement could be in any way thought to be exculpatory, you would have to turn that over. But there have been none to this point; is that what I understand?

MR. HART: Right. No question as to anything exculpatory. The--my understanding of Number 4 is that it actually exceeds the Rules, that if--that is, if we should talk to a witness and that witness simply gives us an oral statement and we don't prepare a report, I don't believe we have any obligation under the Rules to turn that over. To the extent that there's anything exculpatory, however, we certainly would do that.

THE CHAIR: All right. All right. Now let me turn to Dr. Joyner and--and Mr. Harris. You've obviously had conversation with Mr. Hart and heard his responses. Is there anything that I need to rule on on Numbers 1 through 4 that he hasn't either replied to or that you have concerns about?

PROF. JOYNER: Well, let me just say Mr. Hart's very generous in terms of what I've received. I've not received--Mr. Harris has received some information that's part of the criminal case. I have not received that information, nor have I reviewed it, so I'm trying to get the information that has been--that serves as the basis for these claims--the claims that have been made in--before this body. And Mr. Hart has, indeed, sent some information to me.

The exhibit--or the documents that was just handed out today with the Exhibit 9 in it--and I believe there was another document, as well--but we would certainly want that to be a continuing obligation on them to provide to me this information that will be specifically used and introduced in these proceedings to--to the extent that--and I'm not hung up with what's going to be presented in the criminal proceeding--

THE CHAIR: Right.

PROF. JOYNER: --you know, because they may not be the same.

I just need to know and receive that information that is--that serves as a basis for these claims and that will be introduced in--in these proceedings.

THE CHAIR: All right. I don't--

Page 190

MR. HART: My response--
THE CHAIR: Mr. Hart?
MR. HART: --Mr. Chairman, is this.
And that is if they want to play some kind of a Chinese wall game where Mr. Joyner says he doesn't have what Mr. Harris has, then I say that's not correct. The--the State of North Carolina, through Mr. Willoughby, has served Representative Wright with seven thousand pages of documents of what's in an SBI report, the Board of Elections, DHHS. If Mr. Joyner chooses not to avail himself of that to prepare for this hearing, I can't help that.
THE CHAIR: Well, I do agree that--that--and I want to be understood. I mean, both of you are Representative Wright's counsel. It's Representative Wright that the obligation is owed to to turn over the evidence, not to a specific attorney, but to Representative Wright. You both have functioned as his counsel here today.
I assume that when documents are sent to Mr. Harris, that Mr. Harris will share them with Dr. Joyner, and vice versa, since you are his counsel across the board and certainly have represented yourself in documents here and in the proceedings today.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chair--
THE CHAIR: So I'm at a--I do agree with Mr. Hart on that point. Dr. Joyner?
PROF. JOYNER: Let me--let me--let me be clear. There are items included in these protocol for proceedings in terms of the discovery items that we have requested, and we're asking that those items be turned over, irrespective of what Colon Willoughby has provided. That has nothing to do with this. The--you know, Colon Willoughby is not responding to the protocol for the House Select Committee. We are asking for the documents that buttress the claims here, not that buttress the claims in--in criminal court.
THE CHAIR: Sure.
PROF. JOYNER: So those two things are different. And so we--we're not trying to confuse them or get them mixed up or play Chinese wall games or anything like that. We're--if the protocols say that we are entitled to receive it, whether it's duplicatous [phonetic] or not, we ought to receive it, and that's what we're asking

THE CHAIR: Well, I--I understand. And again, I'm going to reiterate--the Chair understands that the--that the Rules--and I think, Mr. Hart, you understand that the Chair intends for the Rules to be explicitly complied with. But the--that--that compliance occurs when the documents, the witness list, the information, is disclosed to Representative Wright through his counsel. That is, the compliance is to Representative Wright.
So if those documents--and I've ordered from the beginning that they be--that things be sent--for example, e-mailing documents to both of you, so that there's not a--but if a set of documents is handed to you, one will assume if it is handed to you it is handed to Representative Wright, and that secondly, that information that you possess you possess as a team for Representative Wright. We can't do it any other way. You clearly both represent Representative Wright.
Nonetheless, in terms of the substance of what you're asking for, I don't disagree at all.

And I understand--and again, I'm going to ask if there's anything to rule on, but I understand that as to Number 1 and Number 2, those are tracking the Committee rules and the requirements that you get that information, regardless of whether you have it from another source. Any document, statement, or recorded evidence that this Committee's counsel intends to introduce, you need to be notified of, and will. Any exculpatory information that they possess, they have a duty to turn it over to you in that regard.
And Number 3, to the extent that they've interviewed anyone--and they've indicated they've not, so there's nothing at this point for me to rule on. And Number 4, as to the copy of every written or--statement--again, since there hasn't been any, there is again nothing to rule on, but again, to the extent it is information to be presented, it is a witness to be presented, or it is exculpatory, you are entitled to it. Your client is entitled to it. And my understanding is that that is the rules that Committee counsel understand to be operating under. Am I correct?
MR. HART: That's correct.

THE CHAIR: All right. So again, is there anything--given that, is there anything I have to rule on or the Committee has to rule on today on Numbers 1 through 4?

MR. HARRIS: Mr. Chairman--

THE CHAIR: Mr. Harris?

MR. HARRIS: --there is this point.

I heard several times Mr. Hart say that--that he assumed that Mr. Willoughby had--had given me certain things. And the difficulty in that would--would come about if--if it turned out that he assumed that and Mr. Willoughby hadn't.

And so I think what we're looking for here is independent assurances from--from Mr. Hart and from Mr. Peters that if they have come across something that fits in these categories, that they will supply it, because by its very nature, different opinion--different attorneys have different opinions. And it may be that Mr. Hart will look at something or Mr. Peters will look at something and he'll say, "Oh, that fits thus-and-so," and maybe Mr. Willoughby didn't. And so--

THE CHAIR: I understand.

MR. HARRIS: It--it--I think we'd get ourselves in a real mess here if--if we--if any of us assumed that something's been given by Mr. Willoughby when, in fact, it hasn't.

And so I'm--I--I don't know all the gentlemen, but they have excellent reputations. I know both of them do, and I'm not--I'm not looking for any intentional withholding, but I am looking for accidental withholding where they assume, just as Mr. Hart has said, that Mr. Willoughby had given it up. So I'd--I'd like the Chair to instruct both of the Special Counsel that should they run across things in preparing for this case, that fit these categories that they provide it and not assume that Mr. Willoughby has.

THE CHAIR: Well, and--and I think the instruction does exist that to the extent that you have information that meets the Committee rule requirements with regard to witnesses, documents, or exculpatory information that you view as exculpatory, regardless of whether the district attorney did, that that--that those all will be turned over consistent with the timeline. And I'm getting ready to set that timeline, as well, with those instructions. Okay.

Now, as to Numbers--thank you. And as to Numbers 5, 6, and 7, I think those are materials that actually are better left to the Committee counsel. And I asked them to prepare responses for you, since they--we have that access at the General Assembly better than Mr. Peters and Mr. Hart. So I'm going to turn that response over to Mr. Reagan.

MR. REAGAN: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Yes, at your request, we have put together a packet that we're prepared to give to Mr. Joyner and Mr. Harris today. As to Item Number 5, I would point out that there have been no rules of conduct adopted by either the General Assembly or the House or the Senate during the period of time 2001 through 2007. And this transmittal memo that we've got prepared to go with this information today will say that for them.

As to requests Number 6 and 7, it's a fairly broad request, asking for any information that any individual legislator has been given with regards to ethics information. I would point out that those are covered--many of those communications may be covered by legislative confidentiality as it relates to individual legislators, and we're not allowed to disclose that information unless the individual legislator themselves waives that or in the event that a court orders us to turn that over.

But what we are provided--able to provide to them today would be all public documents that we may have been able to identify that we can give to them with regards to those specific questions. And I think we've got a list of approximately twenty-four items that are documents that we're prepared to turn over today. Most of these are typical documents that we've given to legislators in the past, that we give as part of the ethics training. They include the ethical principles and guidelines that have been adopted by the LEC and the redacted versions of advisory opinions that have been handed out over the years since 1975-76, up to those that have been handed out through 2007.

Anyway, Mr. Chairman, that's the information we're prepared to turn over today.

THE CHAIR: All right. And if you would at this point, would you please pass out the packet to Representative Wright and his counsel? And if we--do we have copies?--excuse me? If we could go ahead and--okay. Let's go ahead and do that and get those handed out, and then what I'm going to ask you to do for a minute is look at the response and make sure that it--it is what you are seeking, so that if there's anything else that isn't on there, we can resolve that as--at least as fast as we can.

(DISCUSSION OF RECORD)

THE CHAIR: And I know you obviously can't sit and look through all that material now, but if you'll just look at the transmittal letter for a moment, and--and make sure that that's getting at the generic items that you wanted, and--and so that we haven't missed anything.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, I understand that--from Attorney Walker that the individual opinion or advisory explanations provided to individual legislators is not included--are not included here because of confidentiality.

THE CHAIR: And under the requirement of statute, that's right. The advisory opinion only goes back to that legislator. And until it's redacted, it is not published. We are in the process of redacting now. The State Ethics Commission has just finished redaction and has posted on their Web site those opinions they issued last year, and including some that we adopted. So those are on Web site and available to the extent they're redacted.

But there are--most of the advisory opinions issued this year are in the process of being redacted. They haven't issued, and therefore they're not guidance to anyone except that individual legislator until we get to that point.

PROF. JOYNER: Is--is there any way to list out the categories of those opinions over the time frame that we're requesting them?

THE CHAIR: Representative Stam? I'm sorry.

REP. STAM: Or would it violate anything if I were to inquire whether any of them have anything to do with anything remotely related to what Representative Wright is allegedly accused of doing?

THE CHAIR: Well, let's--let's just--first let me ask the predicate question that Dr. Joyner asked. Would it violate the confidentiality provision to give Representative Wright the generic category of what advisory opinions were on? And I--I'm just asking that--

MR. REAGAN: No, I don't think it would. I think we can go through those--we have not done that, but we can certainly give him a list of those seven or eight that are waiting for redaction right now by title, 'cause I think the title of the opinion at this point is not identifying any particular person. And to the extent it does, we can redact that or the particular subject matter.

THE CHAIR: Then that's ordered, and we'll do that.

All right. Anything else that--that's--that you have a question about assessment a result of the--the list?

PROF. JOYNER: No, that's all.

THE CHAIR: Thank you. Then that--that resolves--and I appreciate the staff's work on that. That resolves Numbers 5, 6, and 7 of the discovery request. That does resolve the consideration of the discovery requests today.

The next thing that we need to take up for a moment is the announcement of timeline in preparation for the evidentiary hearing. Although we're holding it--the lawyers will discuss a little bit afterwards some of the mechanics, but for public purposes, the date of the evidentiary hearing is scheduled--pending, again, being trumped by the--by the criminal proceeding, for March 3rd, and as needed, March 4th, 2008.

Based on that hearing date, under the Committee Rules, Mr. Hart, Mr. Peters, you've been asked to turn over to Representative Wright by tomorrow a list of all witnesses the Committee's Special Counsel will recommend that the Committee hear from, together with a summary of their expected testimony. Also, in accordance with the Rules, I'm directing that you--and I've already done that--that you provide Representative Wright a copy of all documents you plan to offer at the hearing no later than February 22nd.

In accordance, as well, with the Rules, Representative Wright, you have already received notice and are asked to turn over to the Committee no later than February 22nd the list of witnesses you would like to call to testify at the hearing.

In accordance with the Rules and statute, the Committee will then have to approve the witnesses that will be called to testify. And I intend to do that--since we'll have to have another meeting--but I intend to do that by teleconference as opposed to having everybody have to reconvene here and interrupt schedules. So we'll try to make a convenient teleconference time, since that--that may be--I don't know, but hopefully will be a fairly formal matter to approve the witnesses. If we have a problem, we'll deal with it on the phone.

The names of all witnesses that need to be subpoenaed are to be turned over to the Committee by counsel no later than February 22nd. We have to do that to meet the requirements of law and particularly the requirement that any witness in the state's entitled to five days notice prior to being compelled to testify.

So those are the guidelines, and they're set out in the Rules, and they have already been sent to you both by--by notice earlier, no changes in any of that. All right.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman?

THE CHAIR: Dr. Joyner.

PROF. JOYNER: We have--I would have a problem with that. In some--in some--some part, our ability to identify and determine or decide on particular witnesses would have to be in response to the witnesses that the Committee lists as possible witnesses.

THE CHAIR: Uh-huh (yes).

PROF. JOYNER: Since we're not going to get that until sometime after the 22nd--

THE CHAIR: No, sir. No, sir. The witnesses--they must turn their witnesses over tomorrow to you. You don't have to identify your witnesses till ten days later, till the 22nd.

PROF. JOYNER: Okay. All right. All right. I misunderstood the Chair.

THE CHAIR: All right. With that, I'm going to ask the question with some trepidation: Is there any further business to come before the Committee from Mr. Harris or Dr. Joyner?

MR. HARRIS: No, not from me.

PROF. JOYNER: Mr. Chairman, I won't say anything else.

THE CHAIR: Thank you. The Chair appreciates that. Mr. Hart, Mr. Peters, anything further? Mr. Reagan?

MR. REAGAN: No, sir, Mr. Chairman.

You're good.

THE CHAIR: All right. Thank you. I appreciate everyone being here. This case was scheduled for March the 3rd. And thank you all very much. We're adjourned.

Rulings of the Chair on Representative Wright's Dispositive Motions

Representative Wright, by and through his legal counsel, filed and made various dispositive motions with the Committee in response to the Notice of Charges of Unethical Conduct by Representative Thomas E. Wright adopted by the Committee on January 9, 2008. Counsel for Representative Wright and Outside Legal Counsel for the Committee (Committee Counsel) were asked to and did file legal briefs with regard to most of the motions. Oral arguments on the motions were heard by the Chair and the Committee on February 11, 2008. After reviewing the briefs and hearing oral arguments, the Chair has ruled on all outstanding motions not otherwise consolidated or withdrawn by Representative Wright. This document sets out the Chair's findings, conclusions of law, and dispositions on all outstanding dispositive motions.

MOTION 1

MOTION TO DISMISS ALL COUNTS GENERALLY FOR LACK OF JURISDICTION

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to dismiss all counts pending before the Committee generally for lack of jurisdiction. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys for both sides and argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. The issue is whether the Committee has jurisdiction to consider disciplinary action against Representative Wright on the eight counts pending before the Committee.
3. Representative Wright's argues that no constitutional provision or statute allows the General Assembly to discipline or expel a member. He argues that no inherent power of the General Assembly exists, and no explicit statutory or constitutional authority is available to authorize the General Assembly to proceed or to provide a basis for jurisdiction to act.

4. Representative Wright argues an inherent power can only flow from an express power, and since there is no express grant of such authority in the North Carolina Constitution or exercised by the General Assembly, no inherent authority can exist. He argues that in the absence of legislation, this Committee and the House of Representatives is without authority to discipline him.
5. Committee Counsel argues that the North Carolina Constitution, unlike the United States Constitution, is a limitation on the General Assembly's authority, not a grant of that authority, and therefore no specific constitutional power needs to exist to allow the General Assembly to exercise those implied or inherent powers necessary and proper to govern under the Constitution or statutes of the State. Specifically, Committee Counsel argues there is no constitutional provision or statute limiting jurisdiction in this matter.
6. The inherent authority of legislative bodies to discipline their members requires a review of the historical practice of the English Parliament, the practice of the common law in the United States, and the practice of this State previously.
7. The House of Commons, under the English parliamentary practice, always had the exclusive right to control its own proceedings, including the power to discipline its members. Criminal conduct and noncriminal conduct warranted expulsion. See Bowman and Bowman, Article I, Section 5: Congress' Power to Expel, 29 Syracuse Law Review 1072, 1073-76 (1978). No statute defined the circumstances in which expulsion was appropriate, and Parliament enacted no rules defining the acts which warranted expulsion. "The only limit to the exercise of the power to expel was Parliament's discretion." Id. at 1075. Several hundred members of Parliament were expelled in a 200-year period between 1581 and 1781. Members were expelled when they had been convicted of a crime or when their actions were viewed as criminal by the House of Commons, and specifically in the areas of corruption in office or bribery. See the cases of John Trevor, 1621, John Hungerford, 1621, Edward Lord Howard, 1632, John Ashburnham, 1667, Robert Walpole, 1712, Adam Cardonell, 1712, Thomas Vernon, 1721, and Robert Sutton, 1732. In addition, members of Parliament were expelled for conduct which was private in nature and which merely reflected upon the member's character as a whole, including private torts and fraudulent business practices. See the cases of John Lord Barrington, 1723, and John Griffin, 1642. The scope of Parliament's power to expel its members was not confined by statute or rule. Parliament recognized no substantive limit on that power.
8. Colonial legislatures had broad discretion to expel members as had the English Parliament. The colonial legislatures expelled for whatever they considered misconduct of sufficiently grave proportions, including at least one hundred persons who were expelled from legislatures in the Continental colonies. See M. Clarke, Parliamentary Privilege in the American Colonies, pg. 195, note 58 (1943). As was true in England, the basis of expulsion was not defined by statute or rule, and in practice, the grounds for expulsion ranged from commission of a crime to religious preference. Colonial legislatures adopted the parliamentary view of the power to expel as a matter within the absolute discretion of the legislative body without regard to freedom of opinion. See 29 Syracuse Law Review at 1083-85.

9. The colonial legislatures also exercised the power to expel members even though the power was not enumerated in their charters. The charters of Massachusetts and Virginia, for example, contain no reference to the power to expel, yet the legislatures of those colonies freely and repeatedly expelled offending members. See 3 F. Thorpe, Federal and State Constitutions 1827 (1909).
10. Furthermore, the Framers of the U.S. Constitution clearly "accepted the traditional assumption of Parliament and the colonial legislatures that a legislature's inherent power to expel its own is wholly discretionary and that the determination of what conduct justifies imposition of this severe sanction is to be made by the legislature itself." 29 Syracuse Law Review at 1090. See also T. Cooley, The General Principles of Constitutional Law 55 (4th ed. 1931); McLaughlin, Congressional Self-Discipline: The Power to Expel, to Exclude and to Punish, 41 Fordham Law Review 43 (1972).
11. The U.S. Congress has held that criminal conduct that has not yet led to conviction did not preclude expulsion or disciplinary action. Congress has assumed that the power to expel is not limited to punishing misconduct in office, and Congress has proceeded in a number of instances to discipline and censure members under the United States Constitution and its statutory powers. 29 Syracuse Law Review at 1100-1101.
12. The practice in states that do not have a constitutional provision providing for disciplinary action for their members and do not have a two-thirds voting provision has been to discipline their members, including recently, censure in Hawaii in 1989 of a member, and in 1983, the resignation of a member in the State of New York following committee recommendations for disciplinary proceedings.
13. In the most recent case available, Gray v. Gienapp, 727 NW 2nd 808 (2007) from the South Dakota Supreme Court, a state senator, who was facing disciplinary proceedings in the State applied for a writ of prohibition seeking to order the Senate to refrain from holding any hearings and disciplining the senator regarding alleged sexual misconduct with a Senate page. The Supreme Court of South Dakota declared, consistent with the exact argument made by Committee Counsel, that "[t]he South Dakota Constitution, unlike the Constitution of the United States, does not constitute a grant of a legislative power. Instead, our Constitution is but a limitation upon the legislative power, and the legislature may exercise that power in any manner not expressly or inferentially proscribed by the federal or state Constitutions. Thus, except as limited by the state or federal Constitutions, the legislative power of the state legislature is unlimited. What the representatives of the people have not been forbidden to do by the organic law, they may do." Gray, 727 SW 2nd at 813. In that case, the Supreme Court held the trial court had no jurisdiction to halt the legislative disciplinary process or any authority to preclude disclosure of that process.

14. In North Carolina there have been a number of members expelled from the House and the Senate. They are listed in the brief of Committee Counsel and include James Carter, 1757, Francis Brown, 1758, Hermon Husband, 1770, William Gilbert, 1779, Edward Clay, 1784, Henry Montfort, 1786, John Bonds, 1787, John Roberts, 1816, Robert Porter, 1835, and importantly, J. William Thorne, 1875, and a censure that occurred followed by expulsion of Josiah Turner in 1880, both following ratification of the 1868 Constitution.
15. In 1996, the North Carolina House of Representatives determined it had the capacity and jurisdiction to discipline one of its members when it censured Representative Ken Miller.
16. North Carolina practice makes clear the General Assembly has always considered, under any of our constitutions enacted, that the power exists for the House and the Senate to discipline its respective members, including the right to expel a legislator.
17. Decisions of the North Carolina Supreme Court establish "[a]n act of the General Assembly is legal unless the Constitution contains a prohibition against it." Plemmer v. Matthewson, 281 N.C. 722, 726, 190 SE 2d 207 (1972). See also In re Spivey, 345 N.C. 404, 413, 480 SE 2d 693, 698 (1997). This is consistent with Article I, Section 2 of the North Carolina Constitution which provides, in pertinent part, "[a]ll political power is vested in and derived from the people...."
18. Similarly, courts in other states have held that legislative bodies have implied and inherent authority to investigate and discipline members. E.g., French v. Senate, 146 Cal. 604, 606, 80 P2d 1031, 1032 (1905) and Hiss v. Bartlett, 69 Mass. 468, 473, 3 Gray 468, 473 (1855). See also Justice Joseph Story, Commentaries on the Constitution of the United States, Vol. II, Section 835 (1833); Cushing, The Law and Practice of Legislative Assemblies, Section 625, pages 250-51 (1874) ("[t]he power to expel a member is naturally and even necessarily incidental to all aggregate, and especially all legislative bodies; which without such power, could not exist honorably, and fulfill the object of their creation").
19. The General Assembly further acknowledged its inherent power to discipline its members in the enactment of Article 14 of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes, the Legislative Ethics Act, wherein G.S. 120-103.1(m), in spelling out the investigative authority of the Legislative Ethics Committee, the General Assembly specifically said "[a]ny action or lack of action by the Committee under this section shall not limit the right of each house of the General Assembly to discipline or expel its members." Clearly the legislature understood when it first enacted the Legislative Ethics Act in 1975 that the right to discipline or expel its members was part of the process that existed under the law of the State of North Carolina. Moreover, G.S. 120-103.1(m) provides a statutory basis for allowing each house of the General Assembly to discipline or expel its members.

Conclusions of Law

1. An inherit power exists for the legislature to do all things that are reasonably necessary for the proper administration of justice.
2. Legislative bodies have the inherent authority to investigate and discipline their members, similar to the holdings in California, Massachusetts and South Dakota, decisions of Parliament, colonial legislatures, and as evidenced by the practice of the General Assembly and the passage of the Legislative Ethics Act.
3. The North Carolina House of Representatives has the inherent authority to investigate and discipline, including the right to expel from the body, one of its members for unethical, criminal or corrupt behavior.
4. Neither the North Carolina Constitution nor state statutes limit the authority of the House of Representatives to discipline its members consistent with the constitutional rights to due process.
5. G.S, 120-103.1(m) provides a statutory basis for allowing each house of the General Assembly to discipline or expel its members.

Disposition

Motion 1 to dismiss all counts generally for lack of jurisdiction is DENIED.

MOTION 2

MOTION TO DISMISS ALL COUNTS AS BARRED BY THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS, LACHES, AND THE DUE PROCESS PROHIBITION AGAINST THIS GENERAL ASSEMBLY INVESTIGATING AND ACTING ON CONDUCT THAT OCCURRED IN A PRIOR GENERAL ASSEMBLY

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on three separate, yet intertwined motions by Representative Wright to dismiss all counts pending before the Committee generally on grounds the statute of limitations has run, the doctrine of laches precludes these proceedings, and the General Assembly is not constitutionally empowered to investigate, prosecute, and discipline a legislator for conduct committed while a member of a previous General Assembly. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys for both sides and argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. The issue is whether the counts before the Committee are barred by the statute of limitation, laches, or constitutional grounds, and would therefore deprive the Committee or the House of Representatives of any jurisdiction to proceed.
3. Representative Wright argues that the General Assembly may not look back to conduct committed by a member during a previous General Assembly. He relies primarily on the Supreme Court's decision in Powell v. McCormack, 395 U.S. 486 (1969).

4. Committee Counsel argues that no State or federal statute of limitations applies that bars proceeding, that the doctrine of laches is not available as an equitable doctrine in this case, and that Powell is fully distinguishable and does not bar or control these proceedings.
5. Adam Clayton Powell had been regularly elected as a congressman from New York's 18th Congressional District and had been Chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor. Powell, 395 U.S. at 495. Powell completed his service to the 89th Congress and was returning to be sworn for the 90th Congress following his re-election. Id. at 490. During the 89th Congress, claims arose regarding illegal salary payments to his wife and inappropriate use of congressional funds for travel by Powell's staff. Id. Based upon that alleged conduct, hearings were conducted in the 89th Congress to expel Powell, but they were not completed. Subsequently, there was an effort within the 90th Congress to prevent Powell from being sworn in. Id. at 491. That exclusion by the U.S. House of Representatives gave rise to the action in federal court that was then decided by the United States Supreme Court. Id. at 493.
6. Powell is distinguishable from this case for at least four reasons; first, it solely dealt with the issue of exclusion of a member in a subsequent session, not expulsion of a member in the present session in which the investigation arose, which is the issue in this case. Second, Powell dealt with an interpretation of the United States Constitution regarding Congress and congressional rules. It did not attempt to apply federal constitutional principles to state legislatures to interpret state law and state constitutional provisions. Third, the discussion in Powell regarding whether Congress' expulsion powers extend to conduct committed by a member during previous sessions interpreted authority granted under the rules of the United States House of Representatives, not state law or federal constitutional principles to be applied to state law, and was dicta in that the Court did not have to address that issue because the action before the Court was one of exclusion and not expulsion. Fourth, the conduct that is the subject of this Committee's investigation was not made public on any of the counts until after Representative Wright's re-election in 2006. Therefore, the first action that could be taken would have been by this General Assembly and action has been promptly taken in this session.
7. The electorate in Representative Wright's district has not had an opportunity to determine how it views the facts that are the subject of the alleged misconduct. Adam Clayton Powell's constituents knew of his misconduct and re-elected him. Representative Wright is not in that same position at this time. Therefore, Powell is fully distinguishable.
8. Many of the claims alleged in the counts are ones that have a continuing duty, such as a continuing duty to report campaign contributions and a continuing duty to correct erroneous campaign reports. If it is found by clear and convincing evidence that there has been a pattern-and-practice of not reporting campaign contributions, the failure to properly report would constitute continuing misconduct.
9. Count 1 alleges an active attempt to conduct a transaction where there was an understanding from the beginning that the money being sought was not legally available, would be going to an organization that did not have legal viability, would be used for a purpose that it was not intended to be used, and was being solicited from a State official who had no authority to issue the letter.

10. For purposes of motions, the allegations found at the probable cause hearing are assumed to be true. Those allegations suggest that the conduct would constitute fraud and is conduct that, even with reasonable diligence, would not have been known sooner by this House of Representatives.
11. No statute of limitations has been cited nor argued by Representative Wright and the Chair finds none exist under the North Carolina Constitution or statute which would bar this proceeding.
12. The doctrine of laches is an equitable defense that precludes an action if a party is meaningfully prejudiced from defending against the action because of the significant passage of time. The goal of the doctrine is to discourage stale claims.
13. Representative Wright has not shown that he has been prejudiced by any lost witness, lost document, expired witness, or faded memory.
14. Disciplinary actions have occurred in a number of states, and previously in North Carolina, against legislators for acts committed during prior sessions or before taking office. E.g., Alzo Riddick (reprimand by Florida House in 1997 for 6 years of violations of financial disclosure laws); Frederick Lippman (admonishment by Florida House in 1991 for failure to supervise staff of a committee, violating statute prohibiting outside employment of a full time staff, and improper behavior with a House staff member from 1983-86); Arnold Ragas (reprimand by Georgia House in 2000 for 4 years of failure to file mandatory campaign finance reports indicating personal wealth and campaign contributions and ignoring fines by the State Ethics Committee); Monte Geralds (expelled from Michigan House in 1978 for embezzling funds from a legal client before becoming a legislator); Speaker Gene Chandler (censured by the New Hampshire House in 2005 for 7 years of soliciting gifts from individuals with business before the legislature, using public position to obtain gifts, and failing to report gifts); Benjamin McCullock (expelled from North Carolina Senate in 1786 for previous fraud in disbursement of army accounts); John Roberts (expelled from North Carolina Senate in 1816 for forgery and fraud committed during the War of 1812).

Conclusions of Law

1. Statutes of limitations are statutory creations that superimpose a time limit on the privilege to litigate or act. Representative Wright has not identified in his brief or oral argument any statute of limitations under the State or federal Constitution or State law that bars this action, and the Chair concludes none exist that would prohibit this action.
2. The doctrine of laches is an affirmative defense in the civil law that bars proceeding if an unreasonable delay in prosecuting a claim unduly prejudices the opposing party in the case. See generally Larsen v. Sedberry, 54 N.C. App. 166, 167 (1968).

3. The moving party always has the burden to establish that laches exists.
4. Laches is a doctrine that mandates balancing of equitable circumstances and requires that the asserter of the doctrine come to the doctrine with clean hands.
5. Laches requires that the party asserting the doctrine show that the party is prejudiced in that witnesses no longer exist, memories have faded, documents are lost, or the party is unable to fairly defend himself or herself against the claim.
6. The doctrine of laches is not applicable to this matter since Representative Wright has not argued or proven prejudice.
7. In addition, allegations of fraud and a failure to disclose contributions as required by law, would bar as an equitable matter the doctrine of laches, particularly where there is no evidence of prejudice.
8. If conduct by a member in a prior General Assembly is known, not concealed, and with reasonable diligence could and should have been found, there may exist potential constitutional issues in a subsequent General Assembly going back and taking action on that conduct.
9. However, in a case where conduct is concealed or not disclosed when the law required full disclosure, and that is the genesis of the crime or the charge, then neither the federal nor State Constitution would prohibit this General Assembly from acting once it has made efforts with reasonable diligence to know and to proceed promptly. This patently is the case before the Committee.
10. Finally, Powell is fully distinguishable from this action on the grounds set forth above.

Disposition

Motion 2 to dismiss all counts on grounds that the statute of limitations has run, laches, and this General Assembly is not constitutionally empowered to investigate, prosecute, and discipline a legislator for conduct committed while a member of a previous General Assembly is DENIED.

MOTION 4

MOTION TO DISMISS COUNT 1 AS NOT ALLEGING CRIMINAL OR UNETHICAL CONDUCT

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys for both sides and argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. Representative Wright argues that the allegations in Count 1 and Count 2 overlap and are duplicative. Count 1 charges Representative Wright acted unethically by requesting a false letter from a State employee to assist Representative Wright obtaining a private bank loan for an alleged community foundation in Wilmington. Count 2 alleges use of the letter by Representative Wright to obtain the loan from the bank for one hundred fifty thousand dollars ($150,000), which was then converted to personal use and not for the Community Health Foundation. Representative Wright argues that a letter sought by a representative which contains untruthful information from a state employee, even if known to be false by the legislator, may not constitute a criminal violation or unethical conduct. Representative Wright also argues that Counts 1 and 2 should be merged into a single count.

3. Committee Counsel does not argue that Count 1 alleges a crime, but instead alleges unethical conduct in that Representative Wright improperly solicited a letter falsely stating that a State agency would commit one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) to a project knowing that the letter contained false information in that the State agency director had informed Representative Wright it had no jurisdictional basis to commit the funds nor any funds to so commit.
4. Count 1 alleges the fraudulent solicitation of the letter from DHHS, while Count 2, which is criminal in nature, alleges that the letter was then used to obtain a loan by false pretenses. Counts 1 and 2 allege two entirely separate and distinct acts, in that Count 2 did not have to occur as a result of Count 1, but that independently the letter was then allegedly used to obtain the one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000) from the bank. The counts as written do not overlap and are not duplicative.
5. Count 1, if proven by clear and convincing evidence, would constitute unethical and fraudulent conduct. Count 2, if proven, constitutes an independent unethical act - obtaining property by false pretenses from the bank. No factual or legal basis exists to merge the counts.

Conclusions of Law

1. Counts 1 and 2 each allege independent acts, stand on their own merits independently, and are not duplicative.

Disposition

Motion 4 to dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct, is DENIED.

MOTION 5

MOTION TO DISMISS COUNT 7, AS AMENDED, AS VAGUE, OVERBROAD, AND A VIOLATION OF DUE PROCESS OF LAW AND THE STATE CONSTITUTION

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to dismiss Count 7 as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process of law and the North Carolina Constitution. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys for both sides and argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. In response to Representative Wright's original motion, the Committee amended Count 7 to identify the specific campaign contributions that were allegedly not reported properly. The parties were asked to argue the motion in light of the amended Count.
3. The issue is (1) whether Count 7, as originally drafted, was vague, overbroad, and provided insufficient notice to Representative Wright regarding what he allegedly violated and (2) that once Count 7 was amended to include approximately 395 specific allegations of a failure to report, as set forth in Exhibit 9 at the probable-cause hearing, that the amended count created an exceptional burden on the defense to investigate 395 specific, independent violations for which there was no significant prior notice.
4. Representative Wright argues that Count 7, as amended, creates an impossible burden because it requires him to defend against 395 specific items for which he just received notice.
5. Committee Counsel argues that although Representative Wright and his counsel were not present at the January 9, 2008 probable-cause hearing, they were invited to attend and received all materials that were presented, including Exhibit 9. Committee Counsel also contends that Exhibit 9 was provided to Representative Wright in discovery by the district attorney prosecuting the pending criminal charges against Representative Wright as that document is the subject of one of the indictments that has been pending against Representative Wright for some substantial period of time. Finally, Committee Counsel argues that even if one of the 395 contributions was unreported, it would meet the language of Count 7.
6. As to the issue of vagueness, that issue was resolved by the amendment to Count 7, which now specifically limits that Count and the evidence related to it to the matters alleged with specificity and particularity in Exhibit 9. Exhibit 9 contains the last name and first name of the alleged contributor, the bank account where the contribution was found, the amount of the check, the deposit date of the check, and the date it should have been reported but allegedly did not appear as a reported contribution by Representative Wright.
7. As to the issue of notice, Exhibit 9 contains information fully available for many months to Representative Wright. Representative Wright could have accessed this information by simply looking at his personal and campaign accounts and the campaign contribution reports he filed. There is no independent evidence contained in the Count or in Exhibit 9. Exhibit 9 is a work product that should make it easier, rather than more difficult, to defend against the allegations.

8. The information contained in Exhibit 9 in its pure form was available from the Board of Elections hearings process which Representative Wright was able to attend in May of 2007.
9. The information contained in Exhibit 9 was presented in an open hearing on January 9, 2008. Representative Wright and his counsel were invited to the hearing, but chose not to attend. In addition, Counsel to Representative Wright was informed that they would be given copies of all of the material introduced at the January 9th probable cause hearing.
10. On January 14, 2008, at 3:38 P.M., an e-mail was sent to Representative Wright at his legislative email address, and his legal counsel, Irving Joyner at ijoyner@nccu.edu, and Douglas Harris at dharris@triad.rr.com. This email indicated that Committee staff did not have electronic access to Exhibits 1-11. However, hard copies of these exhibits, along with hard copies of all the other materials distributed at the probable cause hearing, were mailed to Representative Wright, Dr. Joyner, and Mr. Harris on the afternoon of January 14, 2008.
11. The information contained in Exhibit 9 and in Count 7 is the subject of a criminal count in the Wake County Superior Court for which Representative Wright stands trial. Count 7 almost identically mirrors the criminal count, and therefore, the information is not new information to Representative Wright and his counsel, since that information would have been contained within the discovery disclosed by the district attorney's office.
12. There should be no confusion over what the one hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars ($185,000) refers to in the Count and to which checks it applies. Any argument to the contrary is simply not credible.
13. Committee Counsel's argument that even if one of the 395 contributions was unreported, it would meet the language of Count 7 is not consistent with the language in the Count. The Committee drafted Count 7 in an effort to be totally consistent with due process of law for Representative Wright and to not engage in a parsing of single counts. Count 7 specifically says that the Count is violated only if Representative Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a "pattern of conduct." A "pattern of conduct" suggests that there must be a showing of continuity and pervasiveness.

Conclusions of Law

1. The amended count is not vague and is not overbroad. To the contrary, the count is now concise, particularized, and methodical in its presentation of information on each alleged unreported contribution. It does not violate due process of law or any State constitutional provision.

2. Proceeding on Court 7 as amended does not violate due process or the State Constitution because Representative Wright had adequate notice of the information contained in Exhibit 9, now incorporated into Count 7.

Disposition

Motion 5 to dismiss Count 7, as amended, as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process of law and the State Constitution is DENIED.

MOTION 7

MOTION TO DISMISS COUNTS 3, 4, 5, 6 AND 7 FOR LACK OF JURISDICTION ON GROUNDS THE CONDUCT ALLEGED WAS NOT COMMITTED IN REPRESENTATIVE WRIGHT'S LAWMAKING CAPACITY

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to dismiss Counts 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 for lack of jurisdiction on grounds the conduct alleged was not committed in Representative Wright's lawmaking capacity. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys on both sides and argued orally. The motion is now ripe for disposition.
2. Representative Wright argues that Counts 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7 involve conduct by Representative Wright in his work with the Community Health Foundation in Wilmington and not directly in his lawmaking capacity. Representative Wright argues that these counts exceed the scope of the Committee's jurisdiction.
3. Committee Counsel argues that the Committee has the inherent authority to investigate alleged misconduct by a legislator regardless of whether the misconduct occurred in the legislator's official capacity.
4. Based on precedents established by the English Parliament, in the American colonies, in Congress, as well as in other states, in every jurisdiction that has engaged in any discussion of the issue of legislative misconduct, legislators have been disciplined by legislatures for private misconduct, fraud, corruption and criminal misconduct unrelated to their office. Legislative discipline is not limited to actions committed in the lawmaking capacity. See cases collected in 29 Syracuse Law Review 1071 (1978) and the dozens of cases collated by staff counsel Kory Goldsmith, particularly from the states of Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, New Hampshire, New Mexico, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Utah that were disclosed to the Committee and counsel showing disciplinary actions, including expulsion, for the categories of misconduct set forth above. A copy of the Goldsmith charts are incorporated by reference to this ruling and attached to these final rulings as Exhibit A.

Conclusions of Law

1. The House of Representatives can discipline a member of the body for conduct unrelated to the member's office or position.

Disposition

Motion 7 to dismiss counts 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 for lack of jurisdiction on grounds the conduct alleged was not committed in Representative Wright's lawmaking capacity is DENIED.

MOTION 8

MOTION TO DISMISS ALL COUNTS ON GROUNDS THAT THE COMMITTEE AND ITS ACTIONS GENERALLY VIOLATE DUE PROCESS AND EQUAL PROTECTION

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to dismiss all counts on grounds that the Committee and its actions generally violate due process and equal protection. The issue has been expertly briefed by attorneys for both sides and argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. The issue is whether the Committee should dismiss all counts on grounds that Rules 14 and 15 of the rules of the Committee violate due process of law.
3. Representative Wright argues that Rules 14 and 15 impermissibly require him to prove his innocence by a preponderance of the evidence.
4. Committee Counsel argues that Rules 14 and 15 do not shift the burden to Representative Wright or force him to prove his innocence by a preponderance of the evidence. Committee Counsel contends that Rules 14 and 15 simply create a third possible disposition allowing Representative Wright to be exonerated of the charges. The three possible dispositions are: (1) the Committee fails to find the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, (2) the Committee finds the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, or (3) the Committee finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges.
5. Rule 14 of the Committee's rules, entitled "Division of Issues" states: "After hearing evidence on the substantive issues of the alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by the accused legislator, the Committee shall address the following issues: (1) Whether, by clear and convincing evidence, one or more of the charges against the accused legislator is true; (2) If so, what action will be taken by the Committee; (3) Whether by the preponderance of the evidence, the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges."

6. Rule 15 of the Committee's rules, entitled "Disposition of Cases" states in part: "When the Committee has concluded its inquiries into alleged violations, the Committee, by majority vote of those present and voting, shall do one of the following: If the Committee fails to find the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and the accused legislator." It further states, "If the Committee finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges, the chair shall transmit the finding in writing to the accused legislator and the House of Representatives." Finally, Rule 15 provides that if the Committee finds that the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall do one or both of the following: (1) refer possible criminal violations to the Attorney General for investigation and to the district attorney for possible prosecution or (2) refer the matter to the House of Representatives for appropriate actions, which may include admonishment, censure, or expulsion.

Conclusions of Law

1. Committee Counsel, at the direction of the Chair, has the burden of proving to the Committee clear and convincing evidence exists that an accused legislator has committed any unlawful or unethical conduct.
2. The Rules of the Committee place no burden of proof on an accused legislator to prove the legislator's innocence.
3. There is no shifting of the burden of proof to Representative Wright and, therefore, no violation of due process of law.
4. The rules provide that the accused legislator may be fully exonerated in addition to simply being found not guilty of a charge because the Committee Counsel failed to meet their burden of proof. This option provides an additional and substantive protection for Representative Wright.

Disposition

Motion 8 to dismiss all counts on grounds that the creation of the Committee and its actions generally violate due process of law and equal protection is DENIED.

MOTION 12

MOTION TO CONTINUE OR HOLD IN ABEYANCE ANY HEARING ON THIS MATTER WHERE THE FAILURE TO DO SO WOULD POSSIBLY PREJUDICE REPRESENTATIVE WRIGHT'S RIGHTS TO A FAIR CRIMINAL TRIAL AND PREJUDICE THE POSSIBLE JURY POOL

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to continue or hold in abeyance any hearing on this matter where the failure to do so would possibly prejudice Representative Wright's rights to a fair criminal trial and prejudice the possible jury pool. The issue has not been briefed but has been argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. The criminal trial on the six felony counts pending against Representative Wright is scheduled to be heard in Wake County Superior Court beginning on March 3, 2008.
3. A hearing on pending motions in the criminal proceedings against Representative Wright is scheduled in Wake County Superior Court before Judge Hight on February 25, 2008. Included in Representative Wright's motions is a motion to continue the criminal trial to a later date due to the large volume of evidence in the case.
4. The rights at issue in the House ethics proceeding are complex. There are the rights of Representative Wright to a fair hearing and full due process of law in both this proceeding and the criminal proceeding. There is the significant interest of the public to an assurance that all of the legislators in the House and the Senate are conducting the affairs of their offices and their time in office in an ethical manner. The perception of the public that any legislator, or a group of legislators, may be unethical can very quickly destroy the confidence of the public in the institution of government. That is a substantial right at issue in any ethics proceeding.
5. Another interest is the interest of the constituents in Representative Wright's district to have a representative who does not have pending ongoing ethics charges, of which there is a question of whether or not the representative committed any ethical violation, so that the constituents can have the full effort of that legislator to represent that district.
6. This ethics proceeding has moved at a very deliberate pace to protect the rights of all involved, and most particularly and supremely, those of Representative Wright. The ethics proceedings began in the Legislative Ethics Committee. The Legislative Ethics Committee withheld any action in the ethics case for a number of months to allow the criminal investigation and prosecution to make its determination of whether to proceed. The Legislative Ethics Committee determined there were grounds to refer this matter to the House of Representatives for disciplinary considerations and to withhold judgment on one count over which it retained jurisdiction. This matter came to the House, and the Speaker appointed this Committee in December, 2007. The Committee met to establish its rules on December 18, 2007, and a probable cause hearing was held on January 9, 2008. Representative Wright was provided a detailed list of the charges against him and a full opportunity to file a written response and prepare for any evidentiary hearing. The rules that have been established by the Committee detail a reasonable time frame for the exchange of witnesses, the exchange of a summary of their testimony, the exchange of documents, the subpoenaing of witnesses, and the time to prepare for any hearing. At the hearing, Representative Wright is assured the right to testify, present evidence, cross examine any witnesses against him and fully defend the charges. Those rules are consistent with or more generous in every respect than nearly every set of state ethics rules that were identified in the United States.

7. No evidence has been presented to this Committee beyond argument, pure conjecture, and speculation that any holding by this body would in any way affect the criminal trial.
8. Granting this motion at this time, in a vacuum, not knowing if the criminal case will be heard on March 3, 2008, would support an absurd result. Because this matter was first brought to the attention of the State Board of Elections almost a year ago and has been pending in multiple forums for the better part of that year, to grant this motion at this time supports a perverse policy that the more egregious the alleged misconduct and the more the conduct verges on criminal conduct, the more control the accused legislator has over the ethics process and its timing. If there were no criminal charges pending, there would be no argument that the House could proceed to its ethics hearing. To allow the mere existence of pending criminal charges to delay the ethics proceedings would foster a policy that would be as unsound in practice as it would be unwise and unnecessary.

Conclusions of Law

1. Protections from the adverse effects of pretrial publicity in Representative Wright's criminal case can be addressed as they are in any other case with publicity by a change of venue, curative or limiting jury instructions, individual voir dire, or by continuation of the trial date.
2. Representative Wright has not shown that these alternatives would be ineffectual and there has been no showing of likely prejudice to trigger any of these possible remedies.
3. The Committee must consider the rights of Representative Wright to a fair trial and a fair hearing in this jurisdiction, the rights of the institution, the rights of the public, and the rights of the constituents in Representative Wright's district as detailed above.
4. On balance, these rights strongly militate in favor of the March 3 hearing date or, if the criminal trial occurs that week, conduct of the ethics hearing the week thereafter.

Disposition

Motion 12 to continue or hold in abeyance any hearing on this matter where the failure to do so would possibly prejudice Representative Wright's rights to a fair criminal trial and prejudice the possible jury pool is denied in part and granted in part as follows:

1. If the criminal case pending against Representative Wright is in trial or for plea on March 3, 2008, this motion will be granted to the extent that this matter will be continued on a week-to-week basis, to be rescheduled on Monday, March 10, 2008, and again, if the matter is still in trial or in plea on that date, continued to the following Monday, March 17, 2008.
2. If the criminal trial is continued or does not take place on March 3, 2008, the evidentiary hearing will be held as scheduled beginning March 3, 2008 at 11 a.m.

MOTION 13

MOTION TO REQUEST THE HOUSE APPOINT A DIFFERENT FACT-FINDING COMMITTEE OR, IN THE ALTERNATIVE, THAT REPRESENTATIVE WRIGHT BE ABLE TO PRESENT HIS CASE BEFORE THE FULL HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to request the House appoint a different fact-finding committee, or in the alternative, that Representative Wright be allowed to present his case before the full House of Representatives. The issue was raised orally at the hearing on February 11, 2008. This issue has not been briefed by the parties, but has been argued orally. The motion is ripe for disposition.
2. The role of this Committee, as set out in its authorization, the statutes, and the rules adopted by the Committee, is a fact-finding and investigative role that has multiple levels of fact-finding to protect Representative Wright. First, the Committee must determine if probable cause exists to ensure that no charge proceeds past a mere accusation if there is not probable cause. Second, once probable cause is determined, the Committee must conduct an evidentiary hearing to look at all of the evidence, much of which is not necessarily presented at the probable cause hearing.
3. The full transcript of the Committee's proceedings, all of the evidence presented before the Committee, all documents offered into evidence, and all findings and recommendations by the Committee adverse in any manner to Representative Wright will go to the full House of Representatives for its consideration.
4. This process mirrors the Judicial Standards Commission and was created to effectively mirror the Judicial Standards Commission process, which acts in exactly the same role on its recommendation to the North Carolina Supreme Court.

5. No evidence has been presented, and Representative Wright's counsel concedes that he has no evidence to show, that any member of the Committee is biased, prejudiced, or otherwise substantially impaired in their ability to fairly hear the evidence in this matter, other than the fact that Committee members have already heard some evidence of probable cause, and formed the probable cause opinion at that stage of the proceedings.
6. This process of the Committee fact-finding mirrors the process of at least forty other states and the United States Congress. Representative Wright has not presented evidence showing that other states created new fact-finding committees simply because the original committee found probable cause before the final evidentiary determination.

Conclusions of Law

1. The House sits in judgment of the qualifications of its members and as such sits as the ultimate judge and jury in this matter.
2. The Committee is a duly authorized committee of the House of Representatives appointed by the Speaker of the House. The Committee is duly authorized under statute and is authorized to conduct an investigation into the conduct of Representative Wright and to report to the House of Representatives its findings and recommendations.
3. The authority of the Committee is limited to making findings and recommendations.
4. Hearing evidence sufficient to find probable cause of unethical conduct is insufficient to create a substantial impairment of Committee members and, in and of itself, will not prevent the Committee from conducting a fair hearing of sworn testimony that will serve as a basis for making a determination of whether there exists convinced by clear and convincing evidence that unethical conduct was committed by Representative Wright.

Disposition

Motion 13 to request the House appoint a different fact-finding committee or, in the alternative, that Representative Wright be allowed to present his case before the full House of Representatives is DENIED. Notwithstanding the denial of the motion, it is directed that a copy of this finding be referred to the Speaker for his consideration as to whether to act independently on the motion.

RESPONDENT'S RESPONSE TO NOTICE OF WITNESSES' REQUIREMENT

Based upon a time-line which has been established by the House Select Committee regarding the hearing of this matter, Respondent is required to provide the names of witnesses and summaries of their expected testimonies by February 22, 2008. Respondent acknowledges receipt of the Notice of Witness List which was filed and provided by its Special Counsel on February 12, 2008. (These summaries were provided without the accompanying written statements which the identified witnesses made and the House Select Committee purportedly reviewed when it determined that probable cause existed to pursue claims against Respondent.) Respondent also notes the widespread news media attention which surrounded the filing of this Committee's witness list and summaries along with the several news articles and television accounts which chose and provided selected portions of the submitted summaries for public consumption. In particular, those news accounts which purported to convey hearsay statements which were attributed to Respondent have had the effect of poisoning public opinion and negatively impacting the jury panel which may be summoned in the next week or so to participate in the criminal trial which this respondent faces in the Wake County Superior Court.

In addition to the hearing which the House Select Committee is aggressively pursuing, this Respondent also faces criminal charges in the Wake County Superior Court. For the most part, the criminal charges are carbon copies of the charges which the House Select Committee is prosecuting. In the criminal cases, Respondent enjoys constitutional protections which are guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment to the United States Constitution and Art. I, Sections 19 and 22 of the North Carolina Constitution. As such, the State of North Carolina and none of its agents or agencies are allowed to force Respondent to become a witness against himself or to prematurely provide the specifics of the defense and/or evidence which he may introduce during these criminal proceedings.

The House Select Committee Rules and time-lines seek to require respondent to provide, in this proceeding, the identities of possible witnesses which may be called in his defense and summaries of their expected testimonies. To compel the disclosure of the identities of witnesses and their expected testimonies, which this House Select Committee Rules require, has the effect, if not the intent, of abrogating Respondent's federal and state constitutional protections. The revelation of this information, at this time, provides the State of North Carolina and the Wake County District Attorney with discovery of Respondent's criminal case to which it is not entitled to receive. In addition, providing that information, at this time, to be filed with the Principle Clerk of the North Carolina General Assembly converts that, otherwise, privileged and confidential information into a public document which is immediately available to the news media for dissemination to the public-at-large. This media dissemination will further taint any jury pool which may be summoned to adjudicate the criminal charges which are pending against this Respondent in the Wake County Superior Court.

Respondent, an elected member of the North Carolina General Assembly, is the legislative representative from the House District from which he was elected. As such, the people in that House District have a constitutional right to his services as their representative. In addition, this Respondent has a legally protected property interest in that legislative position and can not be deprived of that property interest and position without Due Process of Law. As long as criminal charges are pending, this respondent also enjoy federal and state constitutional protections which can not be sacrificed or violated in the interest of satisfying the unreasonable determination and demands of the House Select Committee to proceed with its charges before the criminal charges have been resolved. The Hobson choice which this respondent now faces is created by the insistence of the House Select Committee in going forward with it prosecution and totally ignoring this Respondent's legal rights by forcing him to relinquish constitutional rights which the State of North Carolina is bound to protect.

As long as criminal charges are pending against Respondent, he is not in a position to provide free and unwarranted discovery directly to the Wake County District Attorney or indirectly through the House Select Committee.

HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGED MISCONDUCT

FILE NO. C-LEC-07-002

NORTH CAROLINA GENERAL ASSEMBLY,	)
v.	)	MOTION FOR CHAIRMAN TO RECUSE HIMSELF AND FOR THE COMMITTEE TO STAY THIS MATTER AND REFER TO THE SPEAKER FOR FURTHER ACTION
REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT	)

COMES NOW Representative Thomas Wright and asks the Chairman of this Committee, Rick Glazier, to recuse himself and for the Committee to stay further action and refer this matter to the Speaker of the House for an Appointment of a new Committee to cure the appearance and effects of racial discrimination and disparate treatment of similarly situated individuals who may only be differentiated by race. In support of said Motion, Representative Wright says the following:

1. This motion is based upon new information which came forward last Thursday when former State Representative and former State Senator Fern Shubert came forward and contacted the attorneys representing Thomas Wright saying that she felt compelled to come forward because of the extreme unfairness of what was being done to Representative Wright. Further, she had certain knowledge of information that revealed that Representative Wright was being treated differently than another representative, Pryor Gibson, against whom a complaint had been lodged by Fern Schubert.

2. The unfair treatment Fern Schubert was referring to was that two persons during 2007 had ethics complaints considered by the Legislative Ethics Committee – one was the Democratic Representative from Union County, Pryor Gibson who is white, and the other is the Democratic Representative from New Hanover County, Thomas Wright, who is black. In each instance, the complaints dated from a period before the current Legislative Session. In Representative Pryor's case, they dated from 2006, and in Representative Wright's case, they dated mostly from 2001 and 2002, but as late as 2006.

3. In each instance the correct determination by the Legislative Ethics Committee would have been that the Committee lacked jurisdiction under the law and under the rules to consider either complaint because the events complained of had occurred in a prior legislative session. This should have been the end of the inquiry by the Legislative Ethics Committee in both the instance of Representative Pryor and Representative Wright.

4. In the case of the white representative, Pryor Gibson, the jurisdictional ruling was the end of the matter. On July 24, 2007, in a decision signed by the current Chairman of this Committee who is also the Co-Chair of the Legislative Ethics Committee, Rick Glazier, it was correctly stated that the alleged conduct "even if true, would not be within the jurisdiction of the Committee."

5. In the case of the black representative, Thomas Wright, however, despite certain knowledge that Thomas Wright's matter would likewise not be within the jurisdiction of the Committee, Co-Chair Rick Glazier instead conducted a full hearing with the Legislative Ethics Committee. Rick Glazier directed the Committee to consider matters "on or about March 13, 2002, and on or about March 15, 2002," despite indicating only five months before in a letter signed by Rick Glazier that the Committee had no jurisdiction for matters that old.

6. Not only did Co-Chair Rick Glazier conduct a hearing for which he acknowledged having no jurisdiction, but on December 11, 2007, he signed "preliminary investigative findings on questions of possible criminal and/or ethical conduct" and found that there was "probable cause" that Thomas Wright had engaged in unethical conduct. There was no jurisdiction to make those findings either.

7. Co-Chair Rick Glazier released this conclusion of unethical conduct to the press and to the members of the General Assembly, despite knowing that the Committee who reached this conclusion had no jurisdiction. This was in vivid contrast to the charge against Pryor Gibson by Fern Schubert which, if left to the Legislative Committee, would have never been known to Thomas Wright or to his attorneys and would have never seen the light of day but for the courageous actions of Fern Schubert. Fern Schubert is a Republican whose interests do not coincide with those of Thomas Wright and her actions can only be seen as an act of decency and a respect for the United States Constitution. Meanwhile, Rick Glazier provided legal precedent to Thomas Wright going back to 1757, but did not see fit to provide legal precedent from 2007.

8. Only on December 12, 2007, after a hearing had been held by the Legislative Ethics Committee, Co-Chaired by Rick Glazier, and after accusatory conclusions had been released to the press did the Legislative Ethics Committee announce, "The Committee has concluded that under the Legislative Ethics Act as it existed at the time that the matters in these documents are alleged to have occurred, the Committee's jurisdiction under the then-existing law would not reach the matters alleged in the indictments." This was virtually the same language which occurs in the July 24, 2007, letter regarding Pryor Gibson which is also signed by Rick Glazier. Both letters were accurate, but the difference was that one legislator who is black had to go through a full hearing with a decision reached against him whereas the other legislator had the charges against him concealed; there was no hearing and no conclusion was reached. All of these disparate documents, despite the fact that they are diametrically opposed to one another, have one thing in common: they are all signed by Rick Glazier. They also have one dramatic difference. The more severe action with the most effort and trouble taken and the maximum adverse action taken under color of law is taken against a black representative, Thomas Wright, and the least severe and almost totally unobstrusive action is taken against the white representative, Pryor Gibson. The North Carolina Constitution, Article I, Declaration of Rights, Section 19 provides "No person shall be denied the equal protection of the laws; nor shall any person be subjected to discrimination by the State because of race, color, religion, or national origin." 42 U.S.C.A. §1983 prohibits racial discrimination by a State official under color of law.

9. A credible source, Fern Schubert, a former State representative and State senator, alleged that Pryor Gibson falsified a written document which was submitted to his colleagues in the House so that a local bill could be considered which would otherwise not be considered. No hearing was held on the truth or falsity of that charge.

10. Comparing Thomas Wright, a black representative, to Pryor Gibson, a white representative, presents a prima facie case of a state official acting under color of State Law treating two similarly situated individuals differently based on race. In each instance, the State Official acting under color of State law who has signed these documents is Chairman Rick Glazier.

11. It is difficult to believe that the rulings of the Chair and therefore the ongoing hearing have not both been tainted. This Committee is composed of exactly the same members as the Legislative Ethics Committee minus the Senate members. This Committee is chaired by the Co-Chair of Legislative Ethics Committee. The actions of this Committee clearly are founded on the prior actions of the Legislative Ethics Committee. It is the charge of this Committee to avoid not only impropriety, but the appearance of impropriety so that the actions of this Committee will not be suspect before the citizens of North Carolina. Unfortunately, that is now impossible.

WHEREFORE, Representative Thomas Wright respectively asks that Chairman Rick Glazier recuse himself as Chair and that the Committee vote to suspend the current hearing and to refer the matter to the Speaker of the House for the purpose of the Speaker appointing a new Committee which is not connected to the Legislative Ethics Committee or to the errors made by its Co-Chair Rick Glazier. Alternatively, this matter should be referred to the Full House for direction on how to proceed.

Respectfully submitted, this the 4th day of March, 2008.

Dear Sirs:

According to "Shubert says Gibson violated procedures when he introduced bill" (Jan 27): "Gibson said he regretted not speaking with his colleagues before filing the bill. He said he asked the chairman of the House local government committee to spike it immediately after learning about the opposition."

Gibson now admits he filed a false statement to introduce his bill to postpone the referendum on the Monroe meals tax, but he tries to avoid responsibility by telling a new whopper. If he had really "asked the chairman of the House local government committee to spike it immediately after learning about the opposition," the bill would have been killed at the beginning of June. It would not have been on the House Calendar on June 28th, taken up in the House local government committee, and rolled into a Senate bill in that House committee. Committee chairs do not put bills on the calendar against the wishes of the bill sponsor.

Gibson violated the House rules and filed a false statement so he wouldn't have to defend other lies told about the meals tax when he ran last year. If ethics are important to the leaders of the legislature, what will they do about Representative Gibson?

Sincerely,

Fern H. Shubert, CPA

Copy of article attached-

1. Describe the nature of the violation(s) you believe to be unethical. Be as specific as possible:

On May 17, 2006, Representative Gibson signed a local bill certificate for H2726 which he knew to be false. A copy of the signed document is attached.

(The document itself reminded Representative Gibson that the General Assembly rules prohibited the introduction of any bill that did not meet certain requirements. Representative Gibson signed the certification knowing that he had not obtained the approval of the Senator "whose district includes the area to which the bill applies" and that the bill was highly controversial. There could have even been a request for a public hearing since Representative Gibson had made no attempt to secure the concurrence of the other legislators from the affected county, but Speaker Black originally indicated the bill would not be heard since it was not eligible for introduction and when it was heard the contents were stripped and inserted in a different bill.)

Also attached is a copy of an email from Senator Eddie Goodall which makes it clear that Representative Gibson did not have his approval of the bill when he signed the certificate saying "the bill is approved for introduction" and an email from Representative Curtis Blackwood which clearly states "I want to register my objection in writing to hearing HB 2726, Local ETJs/Delay Monroe Vote."

In addition, attached is a copy of a letter from the Chairman of the Union County Commissioners, stating that he is writing on behalf of the Commissioners to "register with you the Board's strong opposition to Section 1 of House Bill 2726 pertaining to the exercise of extraterritorial jurisdiction.

There is no doubt that Representative Gibson knowingly filed a false certificate in order to introduce a bill that was ineligible for consideration under the Rules of the House.

2. Describe that information relating to the violation(s) which you know of your own personal knowledge:

The bill filed addressed two seemingly unrelated subjects. In my opinion, the first part was merely a smoke screen for the second part.

The first part of the bill granted extraterritorial jurisdiction over an area extending one mile from their respective limits to two towns that had never even filed a formal request with the county commissioners for ETJ or held any public hearings to solicit input from the affected property owners. The bill seemed to materialize with no prior notice to anyone; in fact, to date, the towns have not even sent notices to the owners of property affected by the change.

Regardless of the merits of permitting a small group of people to exercise zoning control over property outside the town limits, owned by people who cannot vote in town elections, it is hard to understand why Representative Gibson would want to arbitrarily give the Towns this control without so much as a public hearing or advance notice to the County Commissioners, the affected property owners or the other members of the delegation. Clearly, the grant was controversial, and it is hard to understand why Representative Gibson would willingly offend his fellow legislators and the County Commissioners without knowing the history of the other part of the bill, which I know from personal knowledge.

The other part of the bill permitted the Town of Monroe to delay a referendum on a prepared food tax to 2007. Even since 2001, the Town of Monroe has sought to obtain a tax on prepared foods. Until 2005, they had sought to obtain the tax without a referendum and without any meaningful restrictions on how the funds could be spent.

In fact, when legislation was originally introduced which would permit the tax, there was no restriction on how the funds could be spent. When I asked why, if the funds were for a civic center as the public was being told, there was not even a mention of a civic center, the bill was amended to mention a civic center, but the funds didn't have to be spent on it.

I opposed the tax, but I had an amendment drafted which would permit a referendum, because I was convinced that the overwhelming majority of Monroe residents would vote against the tax. Representative Gibson told me Monroe didn't want a referendum and would never agree to a referendum. I kept my amendment handy for weeks, and I was told that bill set a record for hanging around on the calendar.

One day I noticed Monroe officials in the balcony and Senator Plyler in the back of the Chamber and not surprisingly, the bill was taken up for debate. Representative Gibson was recognized and offered a referendum amendment, which passed. He had not shared his amendment with me, but I quickly spotted the trick and told the House that they had better take a close look at his "weasel-worded amendment" because if the bill passed with his amendment, there would not be a referendum. I made it very clear that he had tried to trick them, and a quick reading of the amendment proved my point to enough Representatives that the bill, with his amendment, failed.

For several years, Representative Gibson and his allies tried to slide the tax through without permitting a public vote but they were unable to do so. In 2005, there were people running against the incumbents in the Monroe municipal elections who opposed the tax and suddenly all of the officials who wanted the tax were claiming that they had always wanted a referendum, but they wanted it in 2006. To "prove" their long time desire for a referendum, the Town passed a resolution asking for a bill permitting a referendum (copy attached) and the legislature promptly authorized the referendum for 2006. Unfortunately for Representative Gibson, he found himself facing an unexpected and serious opponent in 2006 and he was desparate to postpone the referendum to 2007.

The people of Monroe have been lied to about the proposed prepared meals tax for five years now. Representative Gibson tried to trick the House of Representatives in 2001, and either he was acting contrary to the Town official's instructions in 2001 when he tried to avoid a referendum, or the public was being told some serious falsehoods in the 2005 municipal election.

In any event, while the extraterritorial jurisdiction issue may seem controversial, I believe the meals tax is really the reason for the whole bill, based on the history of Representative Gibson's attempts to impose the tax without a referendum and his clear desire to keep a vote on the tax off the 2006 ballot.

Re: Ethics Complaint Against Representative Pryor Gibson by Fern Shubert – January 9, 2007 – C-LEC-07-001

Dear Representative Gibson:

On January 9, 2007, Fern Shubert filed an ethics complaint with the Legislative Ethics Committee (Committee) by delivering copies of the complaint to Senator Dan Clodfelter and Representative Nelson Cole, cochairs of the Committee for the 2005 General Assembly. A copy of that complaint is attached.

The conduct described in the complaint allegedly occurred in 2006, and in accordance with S.L. 2006-201, the complaint is governed by the law in effect prior to January 1, 2007. Consistent with G.S. 120-103 and the rules of the Committee adopted in accordance with this law, the Committee reviewed the complaint to determine whether the alleged conduct, if true, would be considered unethical, and if so, whether the Committee had jurisdiction under Article 14 of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes to consider the complaint.

After review, the Committee dismissed the complaint against you because the complaint alleged conduct, that even if true, would not constitute an ethics violation, or alleged conduct, that even if true, would not be within the jurisdiction of the Committee. The Committee will take no further action with regards to this complaint.

Sincerely,

Senator Dan Clodfelter

It took the ethics committee roughly six months to figure out lying is unethical — but at least the guideline was clear- "knowingly submitting a falsified local bill certificate would be a matter of ethics and would be within the jurisdiction of the committee." "Filing a local bill certification knowing the certification is false is unethical."

So why did the "Ethics Committee" try to hide Kibler's unethical behavior? There is no doubt he filed a false certification - he admitted he did. Apparently the job of the committee is to provide a smokescreen for insiders to use to hide unethical behavior — or at least that's what the letter to Kibler looks like.

RE: In the Matter of Representative Thomas Wright
C-LEC-07-002

Dear Representative Wright:

You were notified on June 8, 2007 that the Legislative Ethics Committee was conducting an ethics inquiry and investigation into your conduct during your tenure as a member of the House of Representatives. After considering the findings of the preliminary investigation, the Committee has voted to consider an initial specific charge against you. The notice of charge is enclosed with this letter.

In accordance with G.S. 120-103.1 and the Rules of the Legislative Ethics Committee, you have an opportunity to file a response to the charge with the Committee within a time specified by the Committee. The Committee has voted to allow you to file your response on or before December 28, 2007. You may file your response with the Committee by sending the response to O. Walker Reagan, Committee Co-Counsel, Legislative Ethics Committee, 300 N. Salisbury Street, Suite 200, Raleigh, NC 27603. Please also send copies of your response to the Committee cochairs, Senator Dan Clodfelter and me.

Depending on your response, it is anticipated that the Committee will schedule a hearing on this charge either in late January or early February, 2008. You will be notified at least 30 days in advance of the scheduled hearing date. Your rights to present evidence and examine witnesses at the hearing are set forth in G.S. 120-103.1 and the Committee Rules.

The investigation into your conduct by the Committee is continuing and the Committee will be considering additional evidence that may lead to additional charges. You will be sent notice of any additional charges the Committee adopts.

Enclosed is a copy of Part C of the Rules of the Legislative Ethics Committee, "Outline of Procedure for Investigation of Complaints Alleging Unethical Activity." These rules will apply to this proceeding.

Bill Hart and Alec Peters, attorneys with the North Carolina Department of Justice, have been assigned as Investigative Counsel to the Committee and will be responsible for the duties set forth in Rules C.4.(g) and C.19.(c). Walker Reagan, Brad Krehely, Heather Fennell and Kory Goldsmith are advising the Committee as legislative staff on procedural and administrative matters under the Rules. You should feel free to contact any of these persons or me with any questions you might have with regards to these proceedings.

Sincerely yours,

NOTICE OF CHARGE OF UNETHICAL CONDUCT BY REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

The Legislative Ethics Committee, having convened for hearing on the report of preliminary investigative findings on questions of possible criminal and/or unethical conduct, hereby finds that there is probable cause to believe that Representative Thomas E. Wright, a member of the House of Representatives, has engaged in unethical conduct as a member of the House of Representatives during his tenure as a member of the House of Representatives, by committing the acts specified in Count 1 of this Notice.. The Committee, by unanimous vote of the members present, hereby charges that the conduct specified in Count 1 should be considered against Representative Thomas Wright:

Between on or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did orally and in writing improperly and unethically solicit Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing the Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was the Chairman of the Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for the Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGED MISCONDUCT AND OTHER MATTERS INCLUDED IN INDICTMENTS AGAINST REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

TO THE HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Whereas, the State Board of Elections conducted a hearing on May 15, 2007, to consider allegations and evidence of alleged violations by Representative Thomas E. Wright of campaign finance regulations and other possible criminal wrongdoing; and

Whereas, after that hearing the State Board of Elections referred the matter to the Wake County District Attorney to consider criminal charges against Representative Wright; and

Whereas, on May 21, 2007, the Speaker requested the Legislative Ethics Committee investigate the alleged violation of the Legislative Ethics Act or the criminal law, or both, by Representative Wright; and

Whereas, on December 10, 2007, the Wake County Grand Jury indicted Representative Wright on six felony charges: five of obtaining property by false pretenses and one of obstruction of justice; and

Whereas, on December 12, 2007, the Legislative Ethics Committee made to the House of Representatives and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives the following initial report of that Committee's findings in its ongoing investigation:

> "The Legislative Ethics Committee has considered the indictments rendered by the grand jury sitting in Wake County in the matter of State of North Carolina v. Thomas E. Wright, contained in criminal files 07 CRS 84372, 84373, 84374, 84375, 84376 and 84377, charging felonies of obtaining property by false pretenses and a felony of obstruction of justice with respect to campaign finance reports.
>
> Having considered the evidence presently available to it and having assumed that evidence to be true, the Committee has concluded that under the Legislative Ethics Act as it existed at the time the matters in these indictments are alleged to have occurred, the Committee's jurisdiction under the then existing law would not reach the matters alleged in the indictments.
>
> However, the Committee finds that, if true, the acts alleged in the indictments are unethical and warrant such action as the House of Representatives may determine.
> The Committee refers the specific matters contained in Wake County criminal files 07 CRS 84372, 84373, 84374, 84375, 84376 and 84377 to the North Carolina House of Representatives for such action as the House deems appropriate under Article II, § 20, of the North Carolina Constitution. The Committee notes that the jurisdiction of the House of Representatives in this matter is broader than that which is statutorily granted to the Committee under the former Legislative Ethics Act."; and

Whereas, the Legislative Ethics Committee continues to have jurisdiction over matters related to its powers under Article 14 of Chapter 120 and the conduct of Representative Wright and may make further reports to the House of Representatives and the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and

Whereas, Article II, Section 20, of the North Carolina Constitution requires each house of the General Assembly to be the judge of the qualifications of its members; and

Whereas, Article VI, Section 8, of the North Carolina Constitution provides that a member of the General Assembly is disqualified from his or her office if adjudged guilty of treason, any other felony, or corruption or malpractice in any office; and

Whereas, the House of Representatives possesses the inherent power of a legislative body to discipline its members for violations of its rules, for unlawful behavior, for unethical conduct, for corruption or malpractice in office, for violations of the oath of office, and for offenses injurious to the House; and

Whereas, it is now necessary for the House of Representatives to investigate the matters alleged in the indictments against Representative Wright and other allegations of misconduct in order to determine their truth and, if so, to determine his qualifications to continue to hold office as a member of the House of Representatives as required by the Constitution; and

Whereas, it is now necessary for the House of Representatives to investigate the matters alleged in the indictments against Representative Wright and other allegations of misconduct in order to determine their truth and, if so, to determine whether his conduct violates the rules of the House, violates his oath of office, is unlawful or unethical, is corrupt or constitutes malpractice in office, is abuse of office, or is injurious to the House, and whether within the inherent powers to discipline its members the House of Representatives shall impose any sanctions against Representative Wright;

Now, therefore:

Section 1. The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright is established by the Speaker as a select committee of the House pursuant to G.S. 120-19.6(a) and Rule 26(a) of the Rules of the House of Representatives of the 2007 General Assembly.

Section 2. The Select Committee consists of six House members. The individuals listed below are appointed as members of the Select Committee. Members serve at the pleasure of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Representative Rick Glazier, Chair

Representative Paul Stam, Vice Chair

Representative Marvin W. Lucas

Representative William C. McGee
Representative Edith D. Warren
Representative Laura I. Wiley

Section 3. The Select Committee shall investigate the matters reflected in the attached indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright and other allegations of possible unethical or unlawful conduct that are outside the jurisdiction of the Legislative Ethics Committee applying the substantive law in effect before January 1, 2007. The Select Committee shall also investigate any additional matters referred to it by the Speaker upon a report of the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Section 4. The Select Committee shall conduct a preliminary investigation to determine whether there is probable cause that Representative Wright has committed unethical or unlawful conduct. The Select Committee shall notify Representative Wright of its determination and any charges against him. If the Select Committee determines there is probable cause to proceed, it shall conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine whether Representative Wright's conduct was unethical or unlawful and constitutes grounds for sanctions by the House of Representatives. If the Select Committee finds that the conduct was not unethical or unlawful or that no sanctions are warranted, the Select Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and to Representative Wright. If the Select Committee determines that Representative Wright's conduct was unethical or unlawful and that sanctions should arise, the Select Committee shall report its Findings to the House of Representatives and to Representative Wright. The report shall also include recommended legislation for appropriate action, which may include reprimand, censure, or expulsion.

Section 5. The Select Committee shall promptly adopt rules of procedure, a copy of which shall be delivered to Representative Wright. To the extent practical, the Select Committee shall conduct its work in concert with the work of the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Section 6. Representative Wright has the right to be present, present evidence, cross-examine witnesses, and to be represented by legal counsel at any evidentiary hearing of the Select Committee.

Section 7. The Select Committee may meet during the interim period or during sessions upon the call of its chair.

Section 8. The Select Committee is vested with the authority contained in Article 5A of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes.

Section 9. The Legislative Services Officer shall assign professional and clerical staff to assist the Select Committee in its work. The Director of Legislative Assistants of the House of Representatives shall assign clerical support staff to the Select Committee.

Section 10. Members of the Select Committee shall receive per diem, subsistence, and travel allowance at the rate established in G.S. 120-3.1.

Section 11. The expenses of the Select Committee are considered expenses incurred for the operation of the House of Representatives and shall be paid pursuant to G.S. 120-35 from funds available to the House of Representatives for its operations. Individual expenses of $5,000 or less, including per diem, travel, and subsistence expenses of members of the Select Committee, and clerical expenses shall be paid upon the authorization of the chair of the Select Committee. Individual expenses in excess of $5,000 shall be paid upon the written approval of the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Select Committee may arrange for or contract for professional, clerical, or consultant services, as approved by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Section 12. The Select Committee shall continue until dissolved by the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Speaker of the House of Representatives may dissolve the Select Committee at any time.

Effective this ___ of December, 2007.

North Carolina General Assembly
Legislative Ethics Committee

IN RE: COMPLAINT AGAINST REPRESENTATIVE PRYOR GIBSON
BY FERN SHUBERT – JANUARY 9, 2007.
FILE NUMBER - C-LEC-07-001

COMPLAINT DISPOSITION

The Legislative Ethics Committee (Committee) met to consider the complaint filed by Fern Shubert on January 9, 2007 alleging unethical conduct by Representative Pryor Gibson. For the reasons set forth below, the Committee dismisses the complaint either for failure to state an allegation which rises to an ethical violation, or for lack of jurisdiction by the Committee on the matters alleged.

FINDINGS

1. Fern Shubert filed a complaint with the Committee on January 9, 2007 by delivery to Senator Dan Clodfelter and Representative Nelson Cole, Cochairs of the 2005 Committee. The complaint appears to be a properly executed complaint, alleging the nature of ethical violations and the general time of the occurrence of the unethical acts. The complaint is verified and sworn subject to prosecution for perjury.

2. The Complainant alleges that Representative Gibson acted unethically by filing House Bill 2726 on May 17, 2006. Specifically, the Complainant alleges that:

    A. Representative Gibson filed House Bill 2726 for his own personal benefit. The allegation of a conflict of interest was that Representative Gibson introduced the bill to move the date of the public referendum on the meals tax to a year in which he was not up for reelection, thereby possibly improving his chances of reelection.

    B. In conjunction with filing the bill, Representative Gibson falsified the local bill certificate for House Bill 2726 in that he said the bill was not controversial when it was, and said that each member of the local delegation approved the introduction of the bill when they did not.

3. The law defining the jurisdiction and investigative procedures of the Committee changed effective January 1, 2007. S.L. 2006-201, which changed the law in this area, provided that the new law would apply to offenses committed on or after January 1, 2007, and prosecutions for offenses or ethics violations committed before January 1, 2007 were not abated or affected by the new law. The statutes that were in effect prior to the effective date of the new law would remain applicable to prosecutions of actions arising on or before January 1, 2007. All of the allegations against Representative Gibson arise from conduct committed before January 1, 2007..

4. Representative Gibson introduced House Bill 2726 on May 17, 2006. The bill had two provisions:
   1. Section 1 would have allowed the Towns of Wingate and Marshville to exercise extraterritorial jurisdiction within one mile of their municipal borders without a vote of the Board of Commissioners of Union County.
   2. Section 2 would have allowed the Town of Monroe to hold a referendum on the prepared food and beverage tax authorized under S.L. 2005-261 in either 2006 or 2007. S.L. 2005-261 required the referendum to be held in 2006.

5. Representative Gibson represented the western part of Union County, which encompasses the entirety of the towns of Wingate and Marshall, and the western half of the City of Monroe. Representative Blackwood represented the eastern part of Union County, which encompasses the eastern half of the City of Monroe. Senator Goodall represented the entirety of Union County and is the only Senator to represent Union County.

6. The Complaint alleges that at the time the bill was filed, the other members of the Union County delegation did not approve the filing. Representative Blackwood wrote an email to the House Principal Clerk, on May 30, 2006 stating his opposition to the bill. Senator Goodall wrote an email to the House Principal Clerk, on June 5, 2006 stating his opposition to the bill. Roger Lane, Chairman of the Union County Board of Commissioners, wrote a letter to Representative Blackwood on June 20, 2006 stating the Union County Board of Commissioners opposed Section 1 of the bill.

7. Senate Joint Resolution 1184 of the 2005 Session, the adjournment resolution for the 2005 Session, provides in part:

   "During the regular session that reconvenes on Tuesday, May 9, 2006, only the following matters may be considered:

   ...

   (4) Any local bill that has been submitted to the Bill Drafting Division of the Legislative Services Office by 4:00 P.M. Wednesday, May 17, 2006, > is introduced in the House of Representatives or filed for introduction in the Senate by 4:00 P.M. Wednesday, May 24, 2006, and is accompanied by a certificate signed by the principal sponsor stating that no public hearing will be required or asked for by a member on the bill, the bill is noncontroversial, and that the bill is approved for introduction by each member of the House of Representatives and Senate whose district includes the area to which the bill applies."

8. The House Principal Clerk attached a "Local Bill Certificate" to House Bill 2726, which Representative Gibson signed. The certificate reads in part:

> "The undersigned, principal sponsor of the attached local bill, certifies that:
> (a) no public hearing will be required or asked for by a member on the bill;
> (b) the bill is noncontroversial;
> (c) the bill is approved for introduction by each member of the House of Representatives and Senate whose district includes the area to which the bill applies."

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The law in effect prior to January 1, 2007 would apply to this matter.

2. A conflict of interest under G.S. 120-88 is present when a legislator has an economic interest in the legislation. It would not be a conflict of interest under G.S. 120-88 for a legislator to act on legislation affecting issues on a ballot merely because the legislator is a candidate on the ballot. Acting on legislation that might result in a possible political gain, but no financial gain, to a legislator does not present a conflict of interest for the legislator.

3. The local bill certificate signed by Representative Gibson was required by a joint resolution of both the House and the Senate. The rule concerning the introduction of local bills in the Adjournment Resolution is a rule of procedure and not a rule of ethics. The Committee lacks jurisdiction to consider whether the violation of a rule of procedure would rise to an ethical violation.

4. G.S. 120-103(a) directs the Committee, on its own motion or in response to a signed and sworn complaint filed by an individual, to inquire into any alleged violation of the provisions of the Legislative Ethics Act (primarily the legislative bribery statute (120-86), the use of legislative position to affect personnel actions (120-86.1), the disclosure of confidential information statute (120-87), the conflict on interest statute (120-88)); the Statement of Economic Interest (Part 2 of Article 14 of Chapter 120); the rules of ethics adopted by the House and Senate (of which there are none); and the criminal law by a legislator while acting in the legislator's official capacity as a participant in the lawmaking process.

5. The jurisdiction of the Committee does not include the application and enforcement of rules of procedure of the houses. Issues arising from the application of rules of procedure are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the house of which the legislator is a member.

6. An alleged violation of a rule of procedure is subject to a point of order which is subject to appeal to the House or Senate, which is debatable and requires a vote of the chamber.

COMMITTEE ACTION

1. Allegation #1 is dismissed as alleging conduct that, even if true, would not constitute an ethics violation.

2. Allegation #2 is dismissed as not being within the jurisdiction of the Committee.

3. The complaint against Representative Pryor Gibson filed by Fern Shubert is dismissed with no further action by the Committee.

Adopted by the Committee, this the 10th day of July, 2007.

Ruling of the Chair on Representative Wright's Motion

Representative Wright, by and through his legal counsel, filed and made an oral motion with the Committee on March 3, 2008 for the Chair to recuse himself and for the Committee to stay this matter and refer the matter to the Speaker of the House of Representatives for further action. Counsel for Representative Wright was asked to and did file a written motion with the Committee on March 4, 2008. Counsel for Representative Wright and Outside Legal Counsel for the Committee (Committee Counsel) made oral arguments on the motions that were heard by the Chair and the Committee on March 4, 2008. After reviewing the written motion and hearing oral arguments, the Chair has ruled on the motion. This document sets out the Chair's findings, conclusions of law, and disposition on this motion.

MOTION FOR CHAIR TO RECUSE HIMSELF AND FOR THE COMMITTEE TO STAY THIS MATTER AND REFER TO THE SPEAKER FOR FURTHER ACTION

Findings

1. This matter is properly before the Chair and the Committee on motion by Representative Wright to have the Chair recuse himself and for the Committee to stay this matter and refer it to the Speaker of the House of Representatives for further action. The motion has been expertly argued by both sides and is ripe for disposition.
2. The issue is whether the prosecution of this action by the Committee against Representative Wright is disparately selective on the basis of race in violation of the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution, and similar North Carolina constitutional provisions, and whether the Chair, or the Committee as a whole, should be recused.
3. Representative Wright argues that he is being treated differently than another Representative, Pryor Gibson, against whom a complaint had been previously filed with the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Representative Wright argues that the complaint against Representative Gibson before the Legislative Ethics Committee was dismissed, but the complaint against Representative Wright before the Legislative Ethics Committee was not dismissed but referred to the House of Representatives. Representative Wright argues that he has been subjected to disparate treatment in this regard, and that the Chair, who was the Co-Chair of the Legislative Ethics Committee and the Chair of this Committee, should recuse himself.

4. Committee Counsel argues that the Chair does need to recuse himself for all the following reasons:
    a. The Gibson matter is not comparable to this matter.
    b. Under the law, there is no basis for recusal of the Chair or Committee members.
    c. There is no evidence that inappropriate decisions have been made and no evidence that racial bias or prejudice exists.
5. The only evidence presented in support of the motion is the evidence with regard to the complaint against Representative Gibson which was considered by the Legislative Ethics Committee.
6. Representative Gibson is Caucasian and Representative Wright is African-American.
7. No evidence has been proffered that any member of the Committee, including the Chair, is racially biased or prejudiced. The record indicates that previously, counsel for Representative Wright conceded that there was no evidence of racial prejudice or bias by any member of the Committee. Since counsel for Representative Wright's admission, there has been no evidence indicating that the Chair or any member of the Committee is racially biased or prejudiced.
8. In the present case, Representative Wright was charged with eight counts alleging conduct of fraud, corruption, and in most counts, a violation of the criminal law.
9. Representative Wright's conduct was found to be questionable after full and fair hearings before the State Board of Elections, which found probable cause to believe that Representative Wright had committed a number of State law violations. The State Board of Elections referred the matter to the Wake County district attorney for review for prosecution. No evidence suggests that any member of the State Board of Elections was racially biased, prejudiced, or in any way unfair or impartial.
10. The Department of Health and Human Services conducted a second investigation against Representative Wright. The results of its investigation were referred to the Wake County district attorney for possible prosecution. No evidence suggests that any member of the Department of Health and Human Services was racially biased, prejudiced, or in any way unfair or impartial.
11. The grand jury of Wake County, made up of diverse citizens of Wake County, found probable cause to believe that Thomas Wright should be charged with six counts of violations of the criminal law. No evidence suggests that any member of the grand jury of Wake County was racially biased, prejudiced, or in any way unfair or impartial.

12. The Legislative Ethics Committee, which is bipartisan, diverse, and consists of Senators and Representatives, found probable as to one count with regard to Representative Wright, and held that it did not have jurisdiction to consider the remaining counts against Representative Wright. It referred those remaining counts to the House of Representatives for action by the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Speaker then formed this Committee to proceed. The Legislative Ethics Committee's referral indicated that it believed that the alleged conduct, if proven, could constitute probable cause for further counts, which is what this Committee found.
13. This Committee consists of three Democrats and three Republicans and is diverse. It unanimously found probable cause on eight counts of alleged misconduct, seven of which are being considered in this hearing.
14. Based upon Representative Gibson partially waiving his statutory right to confidentiality of the Legislative Ethics Committee proceeding, the Committee has before it the decision of the Legislative Ethics Committee which explains how that determination was made.
15. The complaint against Representative Gibson was before the Legislative Ethics Committee on a complaint from former State Senator Fern Shubert. She filed a complaint with the Legislative Ethics Committee on January 9, 2007, by delivering it to Senator Dan Clodfelter and Representative Nelson Cole, who were co-chairs of the 2005 Legislative Ethics Committee. The complaint made allegations with respect to House Bill 2726 that was filed on May 17, 2006.
16. The complaint alleged that Representative Gibson had filed House Bill 2726 for personal benefit. The allegation was that Representative Gibson acted with a conflict of interest when he introduced the bill to move the date of a public referendum on the meals tax to a year in which he was not up for re-election. The complaint also alleged that in conjunction with the filing of the bill, Representative Gibson had falsified a local bill certificate for House Bill 2726 by representing that the bill was not controversial when, in fact, it was controversial. Finally, the complaint alleged that each member of the local legislative delegation had not approved the introduction of the bill, even though the certification indicated that they had approved.
17. With regards to the complaint against Representative Gibson, the law defining jurisdiction and investigative procedures of Legislative Ethics Committee changed effective January 1, 2007. S.L. 2006-201, which changed the law in this area, provided that the new law would apply to offenses committed on or after January 1, 2007, and prosecutions for offenses or ethics violations committed before January 1, 2007 were not abated or affected by the new law. The statutes that were in effect prior to the effective date of the new law would remain applicable to prosecutions arising on or before January 1, 2007. All of the allegations against Representative Gibson arose from conduct committed before January 1, 2007.
18. Representative Gibson introduced House Bill 2726 on May 17, 2006. The bill had two provisions. Section 1 of the bill would have allowed the Towns of Wingate and Marshville to exercise extraterritorial jurisdiction within one mile of their municipal borders without a vote of the Board of Commissioners of Union County. Section 2 of the bill would have allowed the Town of Monroe to hold a referendum on the prepared food and beverage tax authorized under S.L. 2005-261 in either 2006 or 2007. S.L. 2005-261 required the referendum to be in 2006.

19. Representative Gibson represented the western part of Union County, which encompassed the towns of Wingate and Marshville and the western half of Monroe. Representative Curtis Blackwood, represented the eastern part of Union County, which encompassed the eastern half of Monroe. Senator Edward Goodall represented the entirety of Union County and was the only senator to represent Union County.
20. The complaint against Representative Gibson alleged that at the time the bill was filed, the other members of the Union County delegation did not approve the filing. Representative Blackwood wrote an e-mail to the House Principal Clerk on May 30, 2006, stating his opposition to the bill. Subsequently, Senator Goodall also stated his opposition to the bill.
21. Senate Joint Resolution 1184 of the 2005 session, the Adjournment Resolution for the 2005 Session, stated in part that "[a]ny local bill that had been submitted to Bill Drafting must be accompanied by a certificate signed by the principal sponsor stating that no public hearing will be required or asked for by a member on the bill, that the bill is not controversial, and that the bill is approved for introduction by each member of the House of Representatives and Senate whose district includes the area to which the bill applies."
22. The House Principal Clerk attached a local bill certificate to House Bill 2726 which Representative Gibson signed.
23. The Legislative Ethics Committee concluded all of the following:
    a. The law in effect prior to January 1, 2007, would apply to the matter.
    b. A conflict of interest under G.S. 120-88 is present when a legislator has an economic interest in the legislation. It would not be a conflict of interest, as then defined under G.S. 120-88, for a legislator to act on legislation affecting issues on a ballot merely because the legislator is a candidate on the ballot. Acting on legislation that might result in possible political gain but no financial gain to a legislator did not present a conflict of interest under law for the legislator.
    c. The local bill certificate signed by Representative Gibson was required by a joint resolution of both the House and Senate. The rule concerning the introduction of local bills in the Adjournment Resolution was a rule of procedure and not a rule of ethics. The Committee lacked jurisdiction to consider whether a violation of a procedural rule would arise to an ethical violation under the old law.
24. G.S. 120-103(a) directs the Legislative Ethics Committee, on its own motion or in response to a sworn complaint, to inquire into any alleged violation of the provisions of the Legislative Ethics Act, which includes the legislative bribery statutes, the use of the legislative position to affect personnel actions, disclosure of confidential information, conflicts of interest, statements of economic interest violations, the rules of ethics adopted by the House and Senate, or violations of the criminal law by a legislator while acting as a participant in the lawmaking process.

25. The Legislative Ethics Committee found that its jurisdiction did not include application and enforcement of rules of procedure in each individual house. Issues instead arising from the application of rules of procedure are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the house of which the legislator is a member, and an alleged violation of a rule or procedure is subject to a point of order, which is subject to appeal in either the House or the Senate, and is an issue which is debatable and requires a vote of the chamber. The Legislative Ethics Committee, by a unanimous vote of all present and voting, which included Senators and Representatives, Republicans and Democrats, black and white, voted to dismiss the first allegation as alleging conduct that, even if true, would not constitute an ethics violation. It dismissed the second allegation as not being within the jurisdiction of the Committee. Finally, the complaint against Representative Gibson was dismissed with no further action by the Committee.
26. Representative Wright has not produced a scintilla of evidence indicating pretext, racial bias, or racial discrimination from any member of this Committee, from any member of the House of Representatives, or from the House leadership in pursuing this investigation.

Conclusions of Law

1. In a disparate-treatment case, the movant must demonstrate that he or she is the victim of intentional and often covert discrimination. That is, that the movant is being treated less favorably than others because of race or, in other cases, color, religion, sex, or national origin.
2. In a disparate-treatment case, proof of discriminatory intent is critical, and the ultimate factual inquiry in this type of case is whether the defendant or, in the present matter, whether the House of Representatives, or this Committee, intentionally discriminated against Representative Wright. Representative Wright maintains the burden of proof from which any fact-finder can infer that if the conduct remains unexplained, then it is more likely than not the action was based on discriminatory illegal activity. To establish discrimination on the basis of disparate treatment, it must be shown that the alleged discriminating official had a racially discriminatory animus against Representative Wright and that the animus manifested itself in the challenged action.
3. The analytical framework governing disparate treatment has been set forth by the United States Supreme Court in the case of McDonnell Douglas Corporation v. Green, 411 U.S. 792, as well as the cases that succeeded it including Furnco Const. Corp. v. Waters, 438 U.S. 567, Texas Dept. of Community Affairs v. Burdine, 450 U.S. 248, and U.S. Postal Service Bd. of Governors v. Aikens, 453 U.S. 902.
4. These cases suggest several ways that a plaintiff alleging discrimination may show and a court, or in this case a Committee, may find liability for disparate treatment. First, Representative Wright could show discriminatory intent through direct evidence of discrimination by introducing invidious statements of any one of the Committee members, the Chair, or a member of the House of Representatives. Second, since discriminatory intent is seldom capable of proof by direct evidence, indirect or circumstantial evidence can also be used to prove state of mind. The second method of establishing the prima facie case is through indirect evidence whose cumulative probative force, apart from the operation of any presumption, shows that as a reasonable probability, but for, in this case, Representative Wright's race, he would not have suffered an adverse action. The Supreme Court has also provided explicit guidance for the order of proof in that circumstance.

5. The plaintiff, and in the present case Representative Wright, has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence a prima facie case of discrimination. If he succeeds in proving the prima facie case, the burden shifts to the Committee and Committee Counsel to articulate some legitimate, nondiscriminatory reason for the Committee's action. If Committee Counsel met that burden, then the ultimate burden would be on Representative Wright to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that the legitimate reasons offered were pretextual.

6. The burden of going forward and establishing a prima facie case on behalf of Representative Wright is not a heavy one. He may satisfy that burden by raising an inference that the Committee acted with discriminatory intent and that adverse action occurred under conditions which, more likely than not, were based on impermissible racial considerations. Various circumstances can give rise to this inference of discrimination, including evidence of irregular or suspect procedures or evidence of a general pattern of racial discrimination within the decision-making process of the Committee. In addition, an inference of discrimination adequate to create prima facie case of disparate treatment can be shown by meaningful statistical evidence or by showing that decisions that were made by the Committee depended largely on excessively subjective factors. Most frequently, the basis is to show that Representative Wright is a member of the protected class, that he was treated differently because of his race, and that someone of a different race in a same category was treated in a different manner.

7. As a matter of law, the present matter against Representative Wright is clearly distinguishable from Representative Gibson's matter before the Legislative Ethics Committee. The Gibson matter involved a rule-making authority issue, while the matter against Representative Wright involves allegations of criminal misconduct, fraud, failure to report campaign contributions, and corruption in office. The Gibson matter involved one incident, in one legislative session, regarding one House bill. The Wright matter contains allegations of hundreds of campaign violations that spans twenty-two reporting periods and seven years. The Gibson matter involved an interpretation of an ambiguous requirement regarding what is non-controversial. Following its action in the Gibson matter, the Legislative Ethics Committee issued a Principal and Guideline, which was circulated to all members of the House and Senate, to clarify what is meant by "noncontroversial" and what the requirements are for all House and Senate members to respond. In the Wright matter, campaign-contribution reporting requirements are well-established. Further, the laws dealing with fraud and corruption have been in the civil law since the common law, and there is no ambiguity about their requirements. Therefore, the Gibson matter and the Wright matter are clearly distinguishable. Even a cursory review of the Gibson complaint would have revealed an utter lack of comparability.

8. Representative Wright has not met his prima facie case of showing disparate treatment. McDonnell Douglas Corporation v. Green, 411 U.S. 792.
9. Assuming arguendo that Representative Wright met his prima facie showing, the allegations are based on a patently legitimate, nondiscriminatory basis. There were probable-cause findings by three prior investigating groups, the State Board of Elections, the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Wake County grand jury. This further distinguishes the Wright matter from the Gibson matter.
10. No evidence of pretext has been produced against any member of this Committee, against the House, or against the House leadership in pursuing this investigation.
11. The law regarding recusal requires some showing that the presiding officer or the Committee has made or relied on evidence outside of the proceedings or that the officer or Committee was so unfair and impartial that their judgment is thus skewed and unable to give a fair hearing to the particular person involved. No such showing has been made in this case. State v. Fie, 320 N.C. 626 (1987), State v. Paulski, 417 S.E.2d 515 (1992), Love v. Pressley, 341 N.C. App. 503 (1977), disc. rev. denied, 294 N.C. 441 (1978).

Disposition

The motion seeking recusal of the Chair and for the Committee to stay this matter and refer it to the Speaker for further action is DENIED.

Issued this the 11th day of March, 2008.

Representative Rick Glazier, Chair
House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright

CHAIR'S ADDITIONAL COMMENTS

1. Racism and all its collateral effects is a doctrine abhorrent to any modern, civilized society. And at its core, it is an act of violence and a denial of another's right to equal dignity. Goodman v. Lukens Steel Co., 107 S.Ct.

2617 (1987) (Brennan, J., concurring in part, dissenting in part). In the not very distant past racism was openly acknowledged as an official policy of the United States and North Carolina governments, and laws designed to ensure the inferiority of black citizens remained on the books until well into the last century. R. Kluger, Simple Justice 84 (1977); Johnson v. Halifax County, 594 F.Supp. 161, (E.D.N.C. 1984); B.D. Adams, The Survival of Domination: Inferiorization and Everyday Life, 21-24 (1978).

2. The policy of both governments has changed. And notwithstanding that fact, significant effects and results of previous policies still linger. Prior state-condoned racism encouraged similar attitudes among our citizens which have persisted long after state policy has been reversed. Snell v. Suffolk County, 611 F.Supp. 521, (E.D.N.Y. 1985). Many claims of discrimination today deal with systemic, subtle, and stereotypical practices which developed when overt discrimination was lawful and remained embedded in basic institutional structures. Belton, Burdens of Pleading and Proof in Discrimination Cases: Toward a Theory of Procedural Justice, 34 Vand.L.Rev. 1205 (1981).
3. Invidious discrimination in the form of racial prejudice is the result of subjective, irrational perceptions which drain individuals of their dignity because of their perceived equivalence as members of a racial group and the misperception that lies at the heart of prejudice, and the animus formed of that ignorance shows malice and hatred wherever it operates without restriction. Shaare Tefila Congregation v. Cobb, 785 F. 2d 523 (4th Cir. 1986) (Wilkinson, J. dissenting).
4. Notwithstanding this, this nation can point with some pride to the remarkable progress made in the last decades in overcoming the effects of past discrimination, and some of that improvement is directly attributable to the anti-discrimination laws passed by this legislature and Congress, but more so from the educative institutions, substantially more powerful than the courts or the political branches of government, that is, schools and churches and synagogues of this nation, as well as enlightened public leaders representing all aspects of society. And with notable exceptions, widespread segregation in the nation's academic institutions, public facilities, in the legislature, and in places of employment has ended. Racial discrimination at the ballot box and in the halls of justice is not tolerated. And equal academic, equal employment opportunities, and this year, finally, in many respects, equal political opportunity, has become the rule rather than the exception. Harris v. Marsh, 679 F.Supp 1204 (E.D.N.C. 1987).
5. Race remains one of the most divisive problems in our society, despite all of that. And thus, whatever prejudice continues to manifest itself in society at large, we have all in the legislature and in Congress flatly ruled it will not be allowed with prejudice to operate, whether blatant or subtle, practiced by black or white, invoked by those wearing blue or white collars or wearing an officer's uniform or a gray flannel suit.
6. Having said that, I have been a lawyer as a defense lawyer and a civil-rights lawyer for many years, and I think I understand fairly well the issues of discrimination. I am a minority member of a religion and have been discriminated against in that capacity a number of times in my life, and I understand the pain that goes with it. And thus it is my view that it is up to all of us in public office to fight wherever bigotry exists, wherever hatred exists, and wherever intolerance exists by confronting that and educating. And I find acts of racism abhorrent and an utter denial of a person's right to equal protection and equal dignity.

7. But I find equally abhorrent racism labels tossed out capriciously, and discrimination allegations charged against people where no good-faith basis exists in law and fact to do so. An individual may hold the keys to the litigation door, but it does not imply that he or she may enter with disregard for their actions or distain for the rights of everyone else.
8. Charges of racism, if proved, carry an enormously stigmatizing effect, and they should only be leveled after careful investigation, thoughtful deliberation, and always with a reasonable basis in law and in fact.
9. The filing of this motion was patently without a good-faith basis in law and fact and is beneath the dignity of those who raise it. The motion should be denied as frivolous, groundless, and meritless

RULES OF THE HOUSE SELECT COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE ALLEGED MISCONDUCT AND OTHER MATTERS INCLUDED IN INDICTMENTS AGAINST REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

(Adopted December 18, 2007)
(Amended January 9, 2008)

PART A. – GENERAL PROVISIONS.

1. All proceedings of the House Select Committee To Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright (hereinafter referred to as the "Committee") shall be governed by Article 5A, Committee Activity, of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes; the authorization issued by the Speaker of the House of Representatives dated December 13, 2007 creating the Committee (hereinafter "Authorization"); and other applicable law. All other matters, not otherwise governed above, shall be subject to the procedures set forth in these Rules.

PART B. – [RESERVED]

PART C. - OUTLINE OF PROCEDURE FOR INVESTIGATIONS.

1. Meetings. –

   (a) The Committee shall meet upon the call of the chair.

   (b) A quorum of the Committee shall consist of four members.

2. Committee votes. – All votes of the Committee taken under Rules C.5.(b), C.5.(d), and C.15., shall be by roll call and included in the minutes.

3. Investigation Authorization. — The Committee shall conduct investigations into the matters contained in the Authorization.

4. Investigation. –

   (a) The chair shall be responsible for the preliminary investigation of alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator.

(b) The chair may do any of the following:

(1) Ask the Attorney General to provide outside legal counsel for the Committee and to direct the State Bureau of Investigation to conduct the preliminary investigation.

(2) Request that the Legislative Services Officer facilitate the hiring of an investigator to conduct the preliminary investigation. The Legislative Services Officer shall forward the request to employ a hired investigator to the Speaker of the House of Representatives for approval of the request and the allocation of funds for that purpose. If requested by the chair, the Legislative Services Officer shall furnish the chair with a list of at least three qualified investigators from whom the chair may select an investigator or investigators. The Legislative Services Officer shall employ as the hired investigator the person or persons whom the chair selects subject to the approval of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

(3) The chair shall request that the Legislative Services Officer facilitate the hiring of outside legal counsel at such time as the chair determines the assistance of outside counsel is necessary. Outside counsel services shall be used for the coordination of the investigation of alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator, preparation of proposed charges of alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator, and for presentment of evidence at hearings. The Legislative Services Officer shall forward the request to employ outside counsel to the Speaker of the House of Representatives for approval of the request and to allocate funds for that purpose. The Legislative Services Officer shall give the chair a list of at least three qualified attorneys willing to serve as outside counsel from whom the chair may select outside counsel. The Legislative Services Officer shall employ as the Committee's outside counsel the individual whom the chair selects, subject to the approval of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

(d) The person or persons directed to conduct the investigation shall:

(1) Present to the Committee, at the direction of the chair, all information relevant to the Committee's investigation.

(2) Research, as directed by the chair, allegations relevant to the alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator.

(3) Interview potential witnesses having information relevant to the inquiry.

(4) Obtain sworn statements from persons willing to give them.

(5) Prepare the presentation of information and the investigative findings to the Committee.

(6) Present to the Committee a list of recommended witnesses to be called.

(7) Provide, as authorized by the chair, to the accused legislator or the legislator's private legal counsel, copies of documents or other evidence to be presented to the Committee and any documents or other evidence which a reasonable person would believe might exculpate the accused legislator.

(8) Carry out other duties as directed by the chair.

5. Presentment of preliminary investigation findings –

(a) The chair shall arrange for the presentation to the Committee of the findings of the preliminary investigation and, if warranted, recommendations of specific charges of alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator.

(b) After the presentation of the findings of the preliminary investigation, the Committee shall determine by majority vote of the Committee members present and voting whether there is probable cause to believe that the accused legislator has committed unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator.

(c) If at the end of its preliminary inquiry, the Committee determines by majority vote of the Committee members present and voting that probable cause does not exist to proceed with further investigation, the Committee shall notify the accused legislator, the House of Representatives, and the Speaker of the House of Representatives of its findings.

(d) If at the end of its preliminary inquiry, the Committee determines that probable cause exists to proceed with further investigation, the Committee by a majority vote of the Committee members present and voting shall specify the charges of unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator to be considered against the accused legislator.

6. Notification of charges and scheduling of hearings. – The chair shall notify the accused legislator of the charges against the legislator and of the date of the hearing on the charges. The chair shall schedule a hearing on the matter as soon as is reasonable. The notice shall contain the time and place of the hearing on the matter, which shall be no less than 30 days after the date of the notice, unless waived by the accused legislator. The notice shall also inform the accused legislator of the legislator's right to respond to the Committee in writing to the charges against the accused legislator within a period of time specified by the Committee.

7. Rights of accused legislator. – The legislator against whom the charges are brought has the right to respond in writing to the charges within a period of time specified by the Committee, and to be present, present evidence, call and examine witnesses, cross-examine witnesses, introduce exhibits and be represented by private legal counsel paid for by the accused legislator at any evidentiary hearing. The Committee shall provide to the accused legislator, or the legislator's private legal counsel, copies of all documents or other evidence which are intended to be presented by the Committee's legal counsel to the Committee at the hearing, or which a reasonable person would believe might exculpate the accused legislator. All documents and other evidence to be provided to the accused legislator under this rule shall be furnished at least 10 days prior to the date of the hearing, except documents or other evidence discovered within 15 days of the hearing shall be furnished as soon as possible after discovery but prior to the hearing.

8. Ruling on Motions. – The accused legislator, the accused legislator's legal counsel, and counsel for the Committee may submit motions to the Committee for consideration, including prehearing motions, by submitting the motions to the chair of the Committee. The chair will render a ruling on any motion and inform the accused legislator, the accused legislator's legal counsel, counsel for the Committee, and members of the Committee of the ruling as soon as reasonable. All prehearing motions and rulings shall be read into the record at the next meeting of the Committee after the motions and rulings are made. Motions and rulings made during a meeting of the Committee shall be read into the record when made. The ruling of the chair on any motion shall be sustained unless overruled by a majority vote of the Committee members present and voting.

8a. House Principal Clerk as repository of official notices and prehearing motions. – Notices of the Committee and the response of the accused legislator to charges allowed under Rule C.6. and prehearing motions submitted by the accused legislator, the accused legislator's legal counsel, and counsel for the Committee allowed under Rule C.8., must be filed with the House Principal Clerk and served on opposing counsel. The House Principal Clerk will time date the notices and filings and serve as the custodian of the originals for the purpose of Chapter 132 - the Public Records Act.

9. Subpoenas. – The forms for subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum approved on November 2, 1973 by the Legislative Services Commission shall be the forms utilized by the Committee. The Committee may issue subpoenas to compel the attendance of witnesses or the production of documents, books or other records, as permitted by Article 5A of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes. The accused legislator may request that the Committee issue subpoenas and subpoenas duces tecum, and the chair shall issue subpoenas for witnesses requested by the accused legislator to be heard at the hearing as approved by the Committee in accordance with Rule C.10. The accused legislator shall notify the Committee of all requests for subpoenas at least ten days prior to the hearing, unless waived by the Committee.

10. Witnesses to take oath and all written statements to be sworn. –

(a) The chair shall notify the accused legislator of all witnesses who may appear at a hearing inquiring into alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator at least twenty days prior to the hearing, unless waived by the Committee. A copy of any affidavit of a witness setting forth matters on which the witness may testify shall be made available to the accused legislator at that time. If no affidavit of the witness exists, the Committee shall make available to the accused legislator a summary of the matters on which the witness may testify. Any information which would tend to clear or lessen from blame or fault the charges against the accused legislator shall be made available to the accused legislator or the legislator's private legal counsel as soon as is reasonable.

(b) The accused legislator shall notify the Committee chair of the names of the witnesses the accused legislator desires to have appear at a hearing inquiring into alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by a legislator at least ten days prior to the hearing, unless waived by the Committee. A copy of any affidavit of a witness setting forth matters on which the witness may testify shall be made available to the Committee at that time. If no affidavit of the witness exists, the accused legislator shall make available to the Committee a summary of the matters on which the witness may testify.

(c) The Committee shall determine by majority vote of the Committee members present and voting which witnesses shall be heard. All witnesses shall be sworn before testifying.

(d) All written statements to the Committee shall be by sworn affidavit before being considered by the Committee.

11. Counsel for witnesses permitted. – Any witness testifying before the Committee may have private legal counsel present. Participation by a witness's counsel at a hearing and while the witness is testifying is limited to advising the witness of the witness's legal rights. Counsel's failure to abide by these procedures is grounds for counsel's exclusion from the hearing.

12. Propounding of questions. –

(a) Committee members and staff, if requested by the chair or Committee, may question any witness. The chair shall recognize Committee members who wish to question a witness for a series of questions. The Committee member may ask the witness all questions without interruption so long as permitted by the chair. Upon completion of a series of questions by a Committee member, the chair may recognize another Committee member for questions in the order recognized. After all Committee members desiring to ask questions have been given an opportunity to ask a series of questions, the chair may give members additional opportunities to ask a series of questions in the same order.

(b) After receiving permission from the chair, all questions to be asked of any witness shall be directed to the witness. The chair may permit a series of questions to be asked without requiring specific consent for each individual question.

(c) A member of the Committee, the accused legislator, or the accused legislator's private legal counsel, may object to any question before the question is answered. All objections shall be directed to the chair. If an objection is raised, the chair shall determine whether the question is relevant and has probative value as to a substantive issue, and is not a waste of time or redundant, and whether the witness will be allowed to answer. The ruling of the chair, without objection from a member of the Committee, shall stand.

(d) If the chair's ruling is objected to by a member of the Committee, the motion shall be, "That the ruling of the chair be overruled." The chair's ruling shall be overruled if the motion is adopted by majority vote of the members of the Committee present and voting.

13. Meetings of Committee. –

(a) The Committee's meetings shall be held in open session, except for matters that could otherwise be considered in closed session under G.S. 143-318.11.

(b) All proceedings of any evidentiary hearings shall be transcribed.

(c) The accused legislator and the legislator's private legal counsel shall be permitted to attend any closed session held for the purpose of the presentation of evidence or taking testimony from a witness testifying as to matters related to allegations against the accused legislator.

(d) Private legal counsel of any witness shall be permitted in a closed session during the period of the witness's testimony. The parents or legal guardian of a minor witness shall be permitted in a closed session during the period of the minor witness's testimony.

14. Division of issues. – After hearing evidence on the substantive issues of the alleged unethical or unlawful conduct by the accused legislator, the Committee shall address the following issues:

(1) Whether, by clear and convincing evidence, one or more of the charges against the accused legislator is true.

(2) If so, what action will be taken by the Committee.

(3) Whether, by a preponderance of the evidence, the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges.

15. Disposition of cases. – When the Committee has concluded its inquiries into alleged violations, the Committee, by majority vote of those present and voting, shall do one of the following:

(1) If the Committee fails to find the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and to the accused legislator. If the Committee finds by a preponderance of the evidence that the accused legislator should be exonerated of the charges, the chair shall transmit this finding in writing to the accused legislator and to the House of Representatives.

(2) If the Committee finds the alleged violations are established by clear and convincing evidence, the Committee shall do one or both of the following:

a. Refer the matter to the Attorney General for investigation and referral to the district attorney for possible prosecution if the Committee finds substantial evidence of a violation of a criminal law that is not already the subject of an indictment.

b. Refer the matter to the House or Representatives for appropriate action, which may include admonishment, censure and expulsion.

16. Role of Committee members and staff. –

(a) The duties of staff assigned to the Committee shall be directed by the chair.

(b) Legislative staff may be authorized to do the following:

(1) Research any legal issues arising from the investigation.

(2) Help Committee members prepare for meetings.

(3) Consult with the Attorney General's staff or other outside legal counsel on matters arising from the investigation as necessary.

(4) Carry out other duties as directed by the chair.

(c) Other staff:

(1) All investigations, at the chair's discretion, may be performed by an investigator designated in accordance with the procedures set forth in Rule C.4.

(2) Outside counsel designated in accordance with the procedures set forth in Rule C.4. of these procedures shall be authorized to oversee the investigation in preparation for hearings and shall prepare and present evidence to the Committee, including the initial presentation of the evidence through the questioning of witnesses.

Raleigh, North Carolina 27601-1096

TO THE HONORABLE MEMBERS OF THE NORTH CAROLINA HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Whereas, the State Board of Elections conducted a hearing on May 15, 2007, to consider allegations and evidence of alleged violations by Representative Thomas E. Wright of campaign finance regulations and other possible criminal wrongdoing; and

Whereas, after that hearing the State Board of Elections referred the matter to the Wake County District Attorney to consider criminal charges against Representative Wright; and

Whereas, on May 21, 2007, the Speaker requested the Legislative Ethics Committee investigate the alleged violation of the Legislative Ethics Act or the criminal law, or both, by Representative Wright; and

Whereas, on December 10, 2007, the Wake County Grand Jury indicted Representative Wright on six felony charges: five of obtaining property by false pretenses and one of obstruction of justice; and

Whereas, on December 12, 2007, the Legislative Ethics Committee made to the House of Representatives and to the Speaker of the House of Representatives the following initial report of that Committee's findings in its ongoing investigation:

> "The Legislative Ethics Committee has considered the indictments rendered by the grand jury sitting in Wake County in the matter of State of North Carolina v. Thomas E. Wright, contained in criminal files 07 CRS 84372, 84373, 84374, 84375, 84376 and 84377, charging felonies of obtaining property by false pretenses and a felony of obstruction of justice with respect to campaign finance reports.
> Having considered the evidence presently available to it and having assumed that evidence to be true, the Committee has concluded that under the Legislative Ethics Act as it existed at the time the matters in these indictments are alleged to have occurred, the Committee's jurisdiction under the then existing law would not reach the matters alleged in the indictments.

However, the Committee finds that, if true, the acts alleged in the indictments are unethical and warrant such action as the House of Representatives may determine.

The Committee refers the specific matters contained in Wake County criminal files 07 CRS 84372, 84373, 84374, 84375, 84376 and 84377 to the North Carolina House of Representatives for such action as the House deems appropriate under Article II, § 20, of the North Carolina Constitution. The Committee notes that the jurisdiction of the House of Representatives in this matter is broader than that which is statutorily granted to the Committee under the former Legislative Ethics Act."; and

Whereas, the Legislative Ethics Committee continues to have jurisdiction over matters related to its powers under Article 14 of Chapter 120 and the conduct of Representative Wright and may make further reports to the House of Representatives and the Speaker of the House of Representatives; and

Whereas, Article II, Section 20, of the North Carolina Constitution requires each house of the General Assembly to be the judge of the qualifications of its members; and

Whereas, Article VI, Section 8, of the North Carolina Constitution provides that a member of the General Assembly is disqualified from his or her office if adjudged guilty of treason, any other felony, or corruption or malpractice in any office; and

Whereas, the House of Representatives possesses the inherent power of a legislative body to discipline its members for violations of its rules, for unlawful behavior, for unethical conduct, for corruption or malpractice in office, for violations of the oath of office, and for offenses injurious to the House; and

Whereas, it is now necessary for the House of Representatives to investigate the matters alleged in the indictments against Representative Wright and other allegations of misconduct in order to determine their truth and, if so, to determine his qualifications to continue to hold office as a member of the House of Representatives as required by the Constitution; and

Whereas, it is now necessary for the House of Representatives to investigate the matters alleged in the indictments against Representative Wright and other allegations of misconduct in order to determine their truth and, if so, to determine whether his conduct violates the rules of the House, violates his oath of office, is unlawful or unethical, is corrupt or constitutes malpractice in office, is abuse of office, or is injurious to the House, and whether within the inherent powers to discipline its members the House of Representatives shall impose any sanctions against Representative Wright;

Now, therefore:

Section 1. The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments Against Representative Thomas E. Wright is established by the Speaker as a select committee of the House pursuant to G.S. 120-19.6(a) and Rule 26(a) of the Rules of the House of Representatives of the 2007 General Assembly.

Section 2. The Select Committee consists of six House members. The individuals listed below are appointed as members of the Select Committee. Members serve at the pleasure of the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Representative Rick Glazier, Chair
Representative Paul Stam, Vice Chair
Representative Marvin W. Lucas
Representative William C. McGee
Representative Edith D. Warren
Representative Laura I. Wiley

Section 3. The Select Committee shall investigate the matters reflected in the attached indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright and other allegations of possible unethical or unlawful conduct that are outside the jurisdiction of the Legislative Ethics Committee applying the substantive law in effect before January 1, 2007. The Select Committee shall also investigate any additional matters referred to it by the Speaker upon a report of the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Section 4. The Select Committee shall conduct a preliminary investigation to determine whether there is probable cause that Representative Wright has committed unethical or unlawful conduct. The Select Committee shall notify Representative Wright of its determination and any charges against him. If the Select Committee determines there is probable cause to proceed, it shall conduct an evidentiary hearing to determine whether Representative Wright's conduct was unethical or unlawful and constitutes grounds for sanctions by the House of Representatives. If the Select Committee finds that the conduct was not unethical or unlawful or that no sanctions are warranted, the Select Committee shall report this to the House of Representatives and to Representative Wright. If the Select Committee determines that Representative Wright's conduct was unethical or unlawful and that sanctions should arise, the Select Committee shall report its Findings to the House of Representatives and to Representative Wright. The report shall also include recommended legislation for appropriate action, which may include reprimand, censure, or expulsion.

Section 5. The Select Committee shall promptly adopt rules of procedure, a copy of which shall be delivered to Representative Wright. To the extent practical, the Select Committee shall conduct its work in concert with the work of the Legislative Ethics Committee.

Section 6. Representative Wright has the right to be present, present evidence, cross-examine witnesses, and to be represented by legal counsel at any evidentiary hearing of the Select Committee.

Section 7. The Select Committee may meet during the interim period or during sessions upon the call of its chair.

Section 8. The Select Committee is vested with the authority contained in Article 5A of Chapter 120 of the General Statutes.

Section 9. The Legislative Services Officer shall assign professional and clerical staff to assist the Select Committee in its work. The Director of Legislative Assistants of the House of Representatives shall assign clerical support staff to the Select Committee.

Section 10. Members of the Select Committee shall receive per diem, subsistence, and travel allowance at the rate established in G.S. 120-3.1.

Section 11. The expenses of the Select Committee are considered expenses incurred for the operation of the House of Representatives and shall be paid pursuant to G.S. 120-35 from funds available to the House of Representatives for its operations. Individual expenses of $5,000 or less, including per diem, travel, and subsistence expenses of members of the Select Committee, and clerical expenses shall be paid upon the authorization of the chair of the Select Committee. Individual expenses in excess of $5,000 shall be paid upon the written approval of the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Select Committee may arrange for or contract for professional, clerical, or consultant services, as approved by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Section 12. The Select Committee shall continue until dissolved by the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The Speaker of the House of Representatives may dissolve the Select Committee at any time.

Effective this 13th of December, 2007.

From: Kory Goldsmith, Committee Co-counsel
Date: January 9, 2008
Re: Authority of Legislative Bodies to Discipline Members

Issues:

- What is the source of authority for a legislature to exclude, expel or discipline its members?
- What is the scope of that power?
- What types of behavior has been the subject of disciplinary sanctions?

Summary Points:

- A legisative body's authority to exclude, expel or discipline it members is constitutional.
- The scope of that authority includes the power to:
  1) Exclude a member, that is, to refuse to seat the member after an election; and
  2) Expel or discipline a member.
- The authority to expel or discipline members extends to conduct by a legislator that is public or private, civil or criminal, official or unofficial.

Discussion:

I. Constitutional Authority – A legislative body's authority to expel, discipline, or exclude a member has two constitutional basis.

A. First is in inherent in and organic to the principle of Separation of Powers.

B. Second, every state constitution as will as the federal constitution contains language that makes each house the sole judge of the "election and qualifications" of its members.

- North Carolina's Constitution provides "Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own members." [1] This language has been in the constitution since 1776 with only minor changes.[2]

[1] Art. II, Sec. 20, Constitution of 1971.
[2] Constitution of 1776 required concurrence of both chambers.

II. Scope of Authority.

A. Exclusion - Applies to whether a member will be seated after an election.

- Is governed by constitutionally specified qualifications, such as the requirements of age, citizenship and residence contained in the United States or other states' constitutions.
- Courts have held that Congress and state legislatures may not impose additional qualifications.[3]

B. Expulsion and Discipline

1. Separation of Powers.

- Courts and commentators have held that "every legislative body in which is vested the general legislative power of the state has the implied power to expel a member for any cause which it may deem sufficient."[4]

- The power is inherent in every legislative body because it is necessary to enable the body "to perform its high functions . . .[and] is necessary to the safety of the state."[5]

- "It is the power of self-protection" and the legislative body "must necessarily be the sole judge" of the circumstances which may justify and require its exercise.[6]

- The power to expel also includes the authority to impose lesser disciplines.[7]

2. Elections and Qualifications

- North Carolina's Constitution provides "Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own members." [8]

- The Supreme Court of Massachusetts examined its state's constitution and determined that the authority to be "judge of the returns, elections, and qualifications of its own members" did not limit the power of a legislative body. [T]hey are judges in other respects, in all respects."[9]

- Under a clause such as this, a legislative body could properly determine the grounds for an expulsion, including offenses that may not be punishable by a statute, but are inconsistent with a member's duty and trust.[10]

- 43 states and the federal constitution have additional language that requires a 2/3's vote of the body in order to expel a member. However, this has been held to be a limitation on the general power to expel, not a grant of power.

  > "If this provision were omitted, and there were no other constitutional limitations on the power [to expel], the power would nevertheless exist, and could be exercised by a majority."[11]

- The only effect of the provision is to make the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected necessary to its exercise. In all other respects the power to expel is absolute.[12]

3. Limitations on Power of Expulsion/Discipline

- Procedural due process – Courts have held that a legislative body must provide procedural due process to a member when considering whether to expel or discipline. This means the accused member must receive adequate notice, formal charges, and a public hearing with the right to cross-examine witnesses.[13]

- Because the authority to discipline legislators is exclusively committed to the legislative body, courts have no power to revise a disciplinary action taken by a legislature.[14]

  > "The oath of each individual member ...and [the member's] duty under it to act conscientiously for the general good, is the only safeguard to the fellow members against an unjust and causeless expulsion".[15]

III. Types of behavior that have been the subject of legislative sanctions

A. Generally

- Misconduct (civil, moral, official and unofficial) which may not strictly be an attack upon the house itself, but "is of such a nature as to render the individual a disgrace to the body of which he [or she] is a member."[16]
- Criminal indictments or convictions
- Violations of ethical standards
- Breaches of decorum or order

- Disobedience of the rules of the chamber

B. North Carolina

- Fraud/Larceny – 7 incidents
- Official Misconduct – 3 incidents
- Private Misconduct – 13 incidents
- Member under criminal indictment – 2 incidents
- Anti-social behavior – 2 incidents

C. Other States and Congress

- Data collected by the Connecticut's Office of Legislative Research and Legislative Commissioner's Office indicates that out of 86 disciplinary cases, 46 involved conduct that was the subject of a criminal investigation, charge or conviction. Of those 46 cases, there were 9 instances where the legislature commenced its investigation after the member was charged or arrested for a crime. In two additional cases the criminal investigations continued during the legislative investigation.[17]

Conclusion

- The North Carolina Constitution provides each chamber of the General Assembly with the authority to expel or discipline its members.
- That authority to expel or discipline is inherent to the body. It rests in the principle of Separation of Powers as well as the language of Article II, Section 20, which provides that each house the judge of the elections and qualifications of its members.
- The authority to expel or discipline members extends to conduct that is public or private, civil or criminal, official or unofficial.

(Art. II, Sec. 24, 1868 Constitution)
19	1875	J. Williams Thorne	Advocated and promulgated a "most sacrilegious doctrine, subversive of the principles of the constitution of the State of North Carolina and of sound morality."	Expelled from the House	Record is unclear as to what the doctrine was, but during the debate, one member offered a substitute resolution accusing Thorne of "denying the being of Almighty God and entertaining regious views at variance with those which should control the action of a representative." That substitute resolution was later withdrawn. Another member moved to amend the resolution to read: "[T]he said J. Williams Thorne has written and published a pamphlet calculated to encourage infideility and a want of confidence in the divine authenticity of the Holy Bible, thereby bringing it into contempt, and promoting vice and immorality." The amendment failed. Journal of the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the State of North Carolina at its Session of 1874-'75, pp. 261, 465-466, 489-490, 500-503 (p. 503; expelled February 24, 1875); 12 members of the House later submitted a letter of Protest explaining why they voted against the expulsion resolution and stating that "this action of the House is susceptable of being construed as indicative of a spirit of religious bigotry and persec

EXPULSION
ALASKA	In 1982, Sen. George H. Hohman, Jr. was convicted of felonious bribery and receiving a bribe for offering to share a $20,000 bribe with another legislator in return for a vote in favor of the state purchasing two Canadian firefighting planes. He was sentenced to three years in prison.	The 6-member Senate Rules Committee (3 private citizens and 3 senators) reviewed the record of the jury trial and took testimony from Sen. Hohman, witnesses on his behalf, and his attorney.	The committee found that the jury's verdict and the evidence presented to the committee clearly established that Sen. Hohman intentionally violated "the most fundamental of his duties, which are to safeguard the public trust and to preserve the integrity of this body."	Expulsion by adoption of Senate Resolution (16-4).
ARIZONA	In 1991, Sen. Carolyn Walker was one of 11 legislators indicted in a year-long undercover operation on vote selling. Sen. Walker was videotaped taking money from a paid informant for her support of legislation that would have legalized casino gambling. The legislation did not pass.	The Senate referred the matter to the five-member Ethics Committee, which adopted rules for receiving and investigating complaints. The Senate retained special counsel to advise the Senate and the committee and to conduct a preliminary investigation into the allegations against Sen. Walker. Counsel reported his findings and recommended that the committee issue a complaint charging Sen. Walker with unethical conduct. The committee issued the complaint, held two public hearings on it, and subsequently issued a report to the Senate.	The committee found that Sen. Walker engaged in unethical conduct in violation of Senate rules and personal and state campaign finance disclosure laws. It unanimously recommended that Sen. Walker, the majority whip, be expelled. Larry Young, chair of the Senate Subcommittee on Health, accepting gifts from health care companies and a state college, failing to disclose a contract with a state agency, mixing his legislative and private office budgets, and using the prestige of his office for personal gain. The legislature initiated an investigation that resulted in his expulsion in January 1998. In December 1998, he was indicted by a county grand jury on nine counts for demanding $52,000 in bribes and two computers from a health care company, extorting $74,493 and the computers from the companies and $8,000 for an aide, and filing a false state income tax return in 1995. They requested that the committee convene immediately to make a thorough review of allegations of improprieties on the part of Sen. Young. They asked the committee to investigate all aspects of the senator's business practices as they related to his position in the legislature and to report back before the 1998 legislative session. From the outset, the co-chairs of the committee limited their investigation and report to potential violations of public ethics laws. The committee met in closed session a total of four times. Its first meeting was on December 9, 1997. During the third session, it met to interview Sen. Young, who was represented by counsel (that hearing was closed to the public at the senator's request). Sen. Young called one witness. The committee's report appears to indicate that its last meeting, the fifth one, was not closed to the public. After a month-long investigation, the committee reported. The committee voted unanimously to recommend that the Senate: • remove Sen. Young immediately as a member of Senate leadership; chairman of any committee or subcommittee; and member of any standing, statutory, joint, or select committees or subcommittees; • adopt a censure resolution; and • consider an expulsion resolution based on its findings.

It is unclear from the legislative history whether the Senate president pro tempore appointed a select committee to investigate prior to the matter's referral to the Rules and Executive Nominations Committee. SOUTH CAROLINA	In 1994, Sen. Theo Mitchell pled guilty to a misdemeanor (the crime is now a felony) for violating federal tax laws and served a 90-day sentence. The legislature investigated in 1995 after his conviction.	The Senate debated a resolution to expel. A motion to refer the matter to the Senate Ethics Committee failed. ALASKA	In 1993, Sen. George Jacko used or attempted to use his position to gain sexual favors from a 17-year-old legislative page.	The 7-member Senate subcommittee of the Select Committee on Legislative Ethics (5 private citizens and 2 senators) held three public hearings on five charges of ethics violations by Sen. Jacko. The committee took two days to review the testimony and evidence, including briefs on Sen. Jacko's assertion that the ethics laws are silent on prohibiting or punishing attempted acts.	The committee found clear and convincing evidence against Sen. Jacko in three of the five charges. It also found that Sen. Jacko lied in parts of his sworn testimony before the committee and refused to accept responsibility for his actions. As a result, the committee issued a report recommending that Sen. Jacko be: 6. censured; 7. stripped of all committee chair positions and appointing authority during the remainder of his term; 8. prohibited from state-funded out-of-state travel during the remainder of his term; 9. required to complete, at his expense, a court-sanctioned Male Awareness Program; and 10. placed on probation for remainder of his term. The committee found that this rule did not apply to Thomas because (1) the federal crime must be comparable to a state felony for this provision to apply but the comparable state crime in this instance was a misdemeanor and (2) the convictions did not relate to responsibilities as a public officer. The committee report stated that it was not clear whether the conduct was illegal because the conviction was on appeal but Thomas' conduct shows "he was inattentive to matters that ultimately led to his federal convictions and have cast a shadow on the honor of the House of Representatives." The committee recommended censure (the least form of punishment available to the committee) because of 9. the complexity of the forms; 10. the bank's involvement in setting the loan amount; 11. a bank officer filling in some of the figures; 12. the personal financial statement was obviously incorrect and did not	109-6. One member of the committee moved for expulsion but was defeated. He argued

GEORGIA	In 1998, Sen. Ralph Abernathy III was detained at the Atlanta airport for smuggling a small amount of marijuana into the country.	Senators Madden, Cheeks, Oliver, and Middleton introduced a proposed resolution (Senate Resolution 459) censuring Sen. Abernathy. The Senate referred the resolution to the 13-member Senate Ethics Committee. As a standing committee, the Senate Ethics Committee could not vote on a matter before it without giving the sponsor the opportunity to appear and be heard (Senate Rule 2-1.9). It is unclear whether the committee held a hearing; however, Sen. Abernathy waived any notice and hearing with respect to the actions by the committee and Senate.	The committee returned the resolution with amendments that the Senate rejected.	Censure. (The senator also voluntarily resigned from his position as chairman of the Interstate Cooperation Committee.)
HAWAII	In March 1989, Sen. Steven Cobb was fined $500 for soliciting an undercover policewoman. He wrote the Senate a letter of apology and told them it was an isolated incident. He was embraced by the Senate until it was later reported that he was involved in two earlier cases of soliciting prostitutes. He asked to be put on leave to attend therapy. In July 1989, his therapist said he was ready to resume his Senate duties.	In September 1989, 17 senators met in a closed-door session to decide what action to take. The Senate president presented the senator with recommendations for sanctions and they were adopted.	The sanctions, for the 1990 session, were: (1) remove Sen. Cobb as committee chairperson and vice chairperson, (2) remove him as a member of the Judiciary Committee, (3) require him to submit a formal letter of apology to the Senate and the people of Hawaii, (4) subject him to a "public reprimand" for soliciting prostitution, (5) tell him that any repeat incidents could result in expulsion from the Senate, and (5) reassign him to a smaller office. MINNESOTA	In February 1996, several individuals claimed Rep. Jeff Bertram harassed them with anonymous calls, bullied them, and pressured them to make campaign contributions. In 1996, the legislature investigated Rep. Jeff Bertram for pressuring a businessman into giving a campaign contribution with the threat of doing business with a competitor; pressuring a store-owner to drop shoplifting charges filed against his brother, Sen. Joe Bertram; making false statements about several individuals; and engaging in other acts of intimidation, threats, and harassment. Law enforcement agencies were asked to investigate allegations of misusing state campaign funds and coercing people that surfaced in the ethics investigation. He was also later sued by a couple who said he told lies about them. The couple also received a restraining order against Bertram.	The House Ethics Committee received a complaint.	The committee found that Bertram harassed and intimidated critics and political opponents. The committee recommended censure by the House in open session; that he publicly admit on the House floor in open session to acts of misconduct specified in the committee report; that he apologize on the floor to the House, his constituents, and each of the victims named in the report; that he agree to undergo a psychological evaluation for anger and report the results to the speaker and the chairman and vice chairman of the Ethics Committee; and that he resign from all House committee chair or vice-chair positions and membership on legislative commissions.	Censure by a vote of 82-21. The full House adopted the recommendations in the committee's report. Rep. Bertram consented. A minority report recommending expulsion was presented to the full House, but failed to get 2/3 of the vote, failing 68-65. Bertram did not seek re-election.

The third occurred after the legislature initiated an investigation and while he was distraught over recent events and threatening suicide in calls from his car phone. His license had been revoked at the time. He said a severe bout of depression ended 14 years of sobriety. He pled guilty to all three DWIs (they appear to all be misdemeanors). On the first, he received a fine and probation. (The later DWI arrests violated his probation and he was sentenced to 20 days of electronic home monitoring after the 1996 legislative session ended, 40 hours of community service, and a one year license suspension.) For the 3rd, he pled guilty to habitual drunk driving and refusing a breath test (a gross misdemeanor) and received a one year sentence. He spent one month in jail with his days out on work release. He also spent 28 days in an alcoholism treatment		By a 7-3 vote, the committee asked Johnson to resign and to run in a special election if he wanted to continue. The committee also recommended censure; that he repay to the House the portion of his salary that was paid or that may be paid while he was or may be incarcerated or under house arrest for DWI convictions; 120 hours of community service; and random tests for alcohol with results forwarded to the speaker and Johnson paying for the testing. By a 7-3 vote, the committee voted to reconsider the recommendation to expel and laid the motion on the table, if Johnson did not resign. He did not seek re-election.
MINNESOTA	In 1986, Rep. Randy Staten pled guilty to felony theft charges, admitting that he wrote 76 bad checks. The original charge of theft of over $2,500 was reduced to theft of over $250. He was sentenced to one year's probation, a 90 day jail sentence which he would serve only if he violated probation, and continued treatment. Even though the crime was a felony, he was given a misdemeanor sentence and therefore it was considered a misdemeanor. Staten said he was chemically dependent and financially irresponsible, and had completed a residential treatment program. He made restitution before criminal charges were brought.	The speaker appointed a bipartisan four-member Select Committee on the Staten Case. The committee investigated Staten for writing $8,200 in bad checks and questionable campaign finance reporting.	The committee voted unanimously to recommend expulsion, based on the conviction and campaign report violations. The 24 member House Rules and Legislative Investigations Committee also recommended expulsion on a voice vote. The committee rejected censure.	Censure. An initial vote to censure failed. Then a vote to expel failed 80-52, short of the required 90 for a 2/3 vote. Then a vote to censure passed 99-31. The censure also ordered him to: donate 16% of his pay for the remainder of the year to a nonprofit chemical dependency program of his choice; perform 100 hours of volunteer service; undergo chemical dependency treatment; and, if campaign finance reporting problems continued, return all public financing money.

NEW HAMPSHIRE	For seven years, House Speaker Gene Chandler held a series of corn roast galas raising $64,000 from supporters, lobbyists, and others who had business before the legislature. Chandler used the money for personal expenses such as car repairs, hotel stays, and meals. In October 2004, the Legislative Ethics Committee received a complaint and in November it issued a statement of charges and notice of hearing. In March 2005, Chandler pled guilty to a misdemeanor for failing to report the gifts. He was fined $2,000 and required to perform 100 hours of community service. The attorney general did not find any evidence that he did political favors for those who donated. The committee held its first hearing in May 2005.	The Legislative Ethics Committee received a complaint. After reviewing the complaint, the committee conducted an extensive preliminary investigation and voted unanimously to begin formal proceedings. A formal statement of charges and notice of hearing was sent and a hearing was held. Chandler formally answered the statement of charges and appeared at the hearing to testify and present other evidence through his counsel.	The committee voted unanimously to recommend expulsion. The committee found that Chandler violated ethics provisions by (1) soliciting, accepting, or agreeing to accept gifts with an aggregate value over $250 while knowing or believing the givers were or were likely to be interested in matters pending at the legislature, (2) using his public position to obtain gifts with aggregate value over $250 for private benefit, and (3) disregarding the obligation to report gifts over $50 (which he acknowledged through his misdemeanor plea). The committee found that for seven years the annual corn roasts solicited and received cash from businesses, lobbyists, and individuals. They were organized by "friends" so that Chandler had income to continue in the legislature. Flyers advertising them were sent out and sometimes mentioned legislative issues. Chandler had sole discretion over how the funds were spent. He did not report the gifts except in one year.	Censure. The vote to expel failed 189-172 following a three-hour debate. The vote to amend the report and recommend censure passed 217-143. The vote to accept the report with the sanction of censure passed 274-86.

NEW MEXICO	In 1991, Rep. Ronald G. Olguin was charged with solicitation of bribery (a felony) and demanding a bribe by a public official and two other felony counts alleging that he sought $15,000 for his consulting services in exchange for state funding.	The House adopted rules establishing the Rules and Order of Business Committee. A subcommittee investigated, received certain evidence under a confidentiality agreement, and recommended that the committee find probable cause to move to a formal hearing. The full committee agreed and held an evidentiary hearing. The committee heard evidence, took testimony, questioned witnesses, allowed cross examination, and heard closing arguments.	The committee found that Olguin engaged in a course of conduct while seeking to sell his consulting services that violated his public trust as a legislator. • While agreeing to provide consulting services for a fee aimed at obtaining new program funding from a county, he also identified program needs at the state level, offered a legislative solution, and offered his assistance in obtaining that solution. • He either included an agreement to influence the state legislative process in a proposed contract for consulting services or proposed a contract for services at the county level with free services at the state legislative level. • His conduct was a serious breach of ethical responsibilities as a legislator. The committee voted 11-4 to censure. A minority report recommended expulsion.	Censure. (Floor debate included a motion for expulsion that was defeated.)
NORTH CAROLINA	In 1995-6, Rep. Ken Miller was investigated for improper advances toward a page, legislative employee, and lobbyist. In July 1995, Miller allegedly made a pass at a 16 year old page. PENNSYL-VANIA	In 1975, Sen. William Duffield admitted to misappropriating thousands of dollars from an estate for which he was executor and attorney. In October 1975, the chief justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court entered an order accepting the resignation of Sen. Duffield after the Disciplinary Board recommended a two-year suspension. The consent disbarment resulted from seven charges of professional misconduct against Sen. Duffield in his private law practice including: • improperly converting $7,500 from a client's estate to personal use, and • co-mingling $3,400 in funds between clients' estates.	The Senate president pro tempore appointed a Senate Select Committee to inquire into the circumstances surrounding the voluntary disbarment and advise the Senate as to what disciplinary action, if any, was warranted. The committee held a hearing on November 13, 1975 and four days later, on November 17, issued a report with its findings and recommendations. The Senate president pro tempore requested and received official documents containing specific allegations of misconduct from the Disciplinary Board of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania. Sen. Duffield was notified of the inquiry and afforded the right to counsel. The hearing was conducted under oath and Sen. Duffield was allowed to present testimony and rebut or explain the charges against him.	The Select Committee found, in part, that: • converting trust funds to personal use and compounding that act by co-mingling further trust funds to restore the converted amounts constituted a grave and serious matter and conduct unbecoming any public official and • five of the seven disciplinary charges against Sen. Duffield involved negligent acts in the conduct of his private law practice and should remain within the purview of the Bar for discipline. The committee recommended that the Senate: • remove Sen. Duffield for the balance of his term from his standing committee chairmanship and vice chairmanship, • bar him for the balance of his term from membership on any standing committee, and • adopt a censure resolution. The special session was cancelled. When the regular session convened, Sutton took the oath of office. The Senate voted to adopt the same rules as the previous session. It also adopted rules regarding discipline and expulsion of members as a new chapter in the rules. Sen. Sutton went to the circuit court and received an order prohibiting the Senate from holding any hearings about him under the rules. The state Supreme Court ruled that the courts had no jurisdiction to halt a legislative disciplinary process. They concluded that something serious involving unwanted touching of a sexual nature occurred in Sen. Sutton's motel room during the period of February 5 to February 7, 2006. In its dissent, the minority wrote, "[g]iven the serious nature of the allegations and given our belief that the evidence shows an unwanted touching of a sexual nature happened during the nights in question, we cannot agree that censure is a sufficiently serious response to what we see as the misconduct of Sen. Sutton. We believe the committee should have made a recommendation of expulsion from the South Dakota Senate." The committee voted 6-3 to recommend censure for conduct by a senator unbecoming the Senate.

FLORIDA	In 1997, the Ethics Commission found that Rep. Alzo J. Reddick violated constitutional provisions on ethics through financial disclosure violations in 21 separate instances.	The speaker received a final order and public report from the Ethics Commission and appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate.	In a consent decree, Reddick stipulated to findings of fact that in six years he committed various violations including failing to report a loan, underreporting a loan, failing to report the value of stock, overestimating the value of stock, failing to report certain income, not filing the address and amount of sources of income, and failing to accurately reporting his net worth. The committee's proposed order stated that Reddick apologizes for "any unintentional adverse effect his actions may have brought" on the House. FLORIDA	In 1992, Rep. Michael E. Langton was investigated for representing others before a state agency for compensation and seeking a benefit inconsistent with the proper performance of his public duties.	The speaker received a complaint and public report from the Ethics Commission. He appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate.	In a consent decree between Langton and the committee, Langton waived a hearing on the violations and penalty, stipulated to facts, and agreed to a penalty. The findings included the following: • Langton was a consultant to cities and counties applying for Department of Community Affairs for Community Development Block Grant funds before and after his election. • He asked the Ethics Commission for an opinion whether he could continue this consulting and was informed that he could as long as he did not represent anyone personally for compensation before an agency. • The House Community Affairs Committee chair asked Langton to work on changes to the grant program and he did so while continuing to consult with cities and counties who applied for grants. • Under new legislation, the department enacted a rule for application criteria. When it appeared that this interpretation was contrary to the legislative intent, Langton contacted the department to clarify the interpretation. • Langton recognized that his contact	Reprimand. Such conduct was prohibited when it benefited a member's client or business interest. • On behalf of his consulting company, Langton phoned a department employee to express concerns about misstated facts in monitoring reports the employee prepared. The committee's proposed order stated that contacting the employee was a violation and he was admonished to prevent recurrences. Langton agreed that he should avoid even the appearance of impropriety and he apologized for "any unintentional adverse effect his actions may have brought" on the House. The committee recommended a reprimand.
FLORIDA	In 1980, Rep. Gene Flinn was investigated for sexual discrimination and sexual harassment of two female aides and using aides for non-legislative duties.	The speaker appointed a select committee to investigate. The committee took depositions, conducted hearings, and gave Rep. Flinn an opportunity to appear and give testimony and evidence.	The committee found that Flinn violated House rules and a state statute. It recommended a reprimand.	The House adopted a resolution to reprimand Flinn by a vote of 109-4. Two legislators placed remarks in the journal arguing that expulsion was appropriate.
GEORGIA	In 2000, Rep. Arnold Ragas failed to file mandatory campaign finance reports indicating his person wealth and campaign contributions received between 1996 and 2000. GEORGIA	In 1993, Rep. Jimmy Benefield displayed a sex toy in the House chamber where it was allegedly showed to young pages. Benefield acknowledged bringing the toy into the chamber but denied intentionally showing it to children. A Georgia Bureau of Investigation report found insufficient evidence that criminal laws were violated. As a result, Benefield was never charged with a crime.	Rep. Posten filed an ethics complaint on behalf of a 14-year-old page who claimed a legislator showed him the toy and Benefield laughed. The House referred the complaint to the 11-member House Ethics Committee, which hired a prosecutor and held a hearing over two days. House pages, the mother of the 14-year-old, a lobbyist, and three house members testified. The hearings were open to the public, except when the pages testified. The committee limited its questions of Benefield to his role in the incident. It voted not to look into claims by two female lobbyists that Benefield showed them the toy.	The committee recommended a reprimand even though reprimand was not among the committee's official disciplinary options as spelled out in the state constitution. The committee's options were no action, censure, or expulsion.	Reprimand (129-25).
IDAHO	In 1990, Representative Ray Infanger, in a letter to the director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Services, threatened the agency's funding if the director did not grant Infanger's son an electrical contracting license.	The speaker appointed a six-member bipartisan committee to (1) review the letter of accusation written by the director of the Department of Labor and Industrial Services; (2) interview Rep. Infanger, the director, and one other knowledgeable person; and (3) report its findings and recommendations.	The committee found that a serious lack of judgment left the impression that Infanger used his position, contrary to public interest, to benefit a member of his family. Recommended a reprimand. ADMONISHMENT
FLORIDA	In 2000, Rep. Alzo J. Reddick, Sr. failed to timely file a financial disclosure form for 1998.	The speaker received a copy of a stipulation of fact and recommended order from the Ethics Commission and appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate. The Ethics Committee had not approved the stipulation and could not do so before the end of the legislative session. Reddick was not seeking re-election but asked the House to find a violation and impose a penalty.	In a consent decree, the committee stated that because the violation was inadvertent, a letter of admonishment from the speaker was an appropriate penalty. In addition, Reddick agreed to apologize to the House and the public and make a $500 contribution to a homeless shelter.	Admonishment: The House accepted the consent decree and the speaker's letter of admonishment was printed in the journal.
FLORIDA	In 2000, Rep. Gustavo Barreiro failed to report a liability of more than $1,000 on his disclosure of financial interests that he filed when qualifying to run for the House.	The speaker received a final order and public report from the Ethics Commission and appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate.	In a consent decree, the parties accepted the Ethics Committee's findings and agreed there was no evidence the violation was willful or intentional. The committee recommended a letter of admonishment from the speaker and	Admonishment: The House accepted the consent decree and the speaker's letter of admonishment was printed in the journal.

			Barreiro agreed to apologize to the House and the public and contribute $500 to a homeless shelter. The committee also recommended clarifying the law.
FLORIDA	In 1994, Rep. John Thrasher was investigated for violating the statutes on representing others before a state agency for compensation.	The speaker received a complaint and public report from the Ethics Commission and appointed a select committee to investigate.	In a consent decree entered into between Thrasher and the committee, Thrasher waived a hearing on the violations and penalty, stipulated to facts, and agreed to a penalty. The findings included the following. • As general counsel for the Florida Medical Association, he personally appeared on the association's behalf before a subcommittee of the Board of Medicine of the Department of Professional Regulation on a rule relating to surgery in doctors' offices. • Before his appearance, he had a phone conversation with a longtime friend who chaired the subcommittee and invited Thrasher to appear and address the rule. Thrasher had previously received a general notice about the meeting. • There was no indication that the appearance was intended to misuse his position to improperly influence a state agency, nothing indicated that his status was relevant to his appearance, and it was clear from the transcript that he appeared as a	The House adopted the report and a letter of admonishment from the speaker was printed in the journal.

The committee's proposed order stated that the appearance before the subcommittee was a violation and he was admonished to prevent recurrences. He agreed that he should avoid even the appearance of impropriety and he apologized for "any unintentional adverse effect his actions may have brought" on the House. The committee recommended admonishment by the speaker.
FLORIDA	In 1991, Rep. Frederick Lippman was investigated for (1) failing to properly supervise staff as chair of the Committee on Regulatory Reform from 1983 to 1986, (2) violating the statute that restricts outside employment of a full-time staff employee, and (3) improper behavior with a House staff member from 1983 to 1986. APOLOGY (MAY INCLUDE OTHER SANCTIONS)
MINNESOTA	In 2006, Sen. Dean Johnson made comments at a private meeting concerning alleged conversations he had with members of the state Supreme Court relating to the court's possible action on the state's Defense of Marriage Act. A tape of the comments surfaced.	The Senate Subcommittee on Ethical Conduct (a subcommittee of the Rules and Administration Committee) heard the matter.	The committee dismissed the complaint but voted unanimously to require a public apology to the Senate and a written apology to the group that held the meeting where the comments were made.	Required to apologize on the Senate Floor and to those at the meeting.
MINNESOTA	In 2004, Sen. Michael Jungbauer was accused of performing campaign activities from his Senate office. He sent a Senate e-mail to 1,700 people forwarding a media advisory about a press conference whose organizers were seeking to defeat senators of a particular party if they did not pass a same-sex marriage ban constitutional amendment. Senate rules prohibit use of equipment for commercial purposes or a political campaign.	A senator filed a complaint and the Senate Subcommittee on Ethical Conduct heard the matter.	The committee voted unanimously to require a written apology.	Required a written apology to each member of the Senate and the complaint was dismissed upon delivery of apologies.
MINNESOTA	In 1994 and 1996, Sen. Sam Solon was investigated for providing the Senate's long-distance access code to his ex-wife. He pled guilty to a misdemeanor charge relating to the use of the phone account in 1992 and 1993.	The Senate Subcommittee on Ethical conduct heard the matter.	The committee recommended voluntary resignation as chair of the Commerce and Consumer Protection Committee as an appropriate disciplinary action; that he be removed from membership on the Committee on Rules and Administration; that he make restitution to the Senate for the cost of the calls; that he apologize to the Senate in open session; and that the reprimand of March 24, 1994 (for giving telephone access code to lobbyists) be reaffirmed.	The Senate adopted the report by a vote of 57-6, after voting down an amendment seeking his resignation 17-48.

The police investigated and Chandler asked them to charge him and stated he would plead guilty to 5th degree assault (a misdemeanor). He was charged with that crime and two counts of disorderly conduct (all misdemeanors). In September 1995, he pled guilty to 5th degree assault for slapping his estranged wife and the other charges were dropped. He was placed on probation for one year and fined $210. OHIO	In January 1996, Rep. Michael A. Fox accepted an airline ticket and lodging from a lobbyist. Fox said he thought he had repaid the lobbyist for the ticket and he thought staying at the home owned by the lobbyist was not a gift that had to be reported.	In 1997, the legislative inspector general investigated and presented findings to the Joint Legislative Ethics Committee.	The committee recommended that Fox be removed as chairman of the Education Committee and apologize.	The House voted 89-7 and the Senate voted 31-0 to remove Fox as chairman of the Education Committee and require him to apologize.
OTHER SANCTIONS
INDIANA	In September 1997, Sen. Steven Johnson had an affair with his Senate intern.	The Senate Committee on Legislative Ethics considered a complaint filed by Sen. Kent Adams. Sen. Johnson acknowledged a "moral and ethical" failure and apologized to the Senate.	The committee found Sen. Johnson to be immoral and unethical "In contradiction to the high moral and ethical standards expected of members of the Indiana State Senate under the Rules of the Senate." OHIO	In 2006, Sen. Jeffry Armbruster was investigated after requesting a workers' compensation rate discount for his business. Term limits barred him from seeking reelection. The ethics committee held hearing after Armbruster left office.	The Joint Legislative Ethics Committee investigated (a bipartisan 12 member committee). The committee served him with a complaint in December 2006. Based on a preliminary investigation, he was accused of meeting with Bureau of Workers' Compensation officials at his legislative office to discuss the premium rate of his company. In 2007, after he left office, the committee held formal hearings with the legislative inspector general acting similar to a prosecutor.	The committee found that he violated a prohibition against using his position to represent his personal business interests before a state agency.	The matter was referred to the county prosecutor.
OHIO	In 2005, Reps. Jim Raussen, Diana M. Fessler, and Michelle G. Schneider failed to disclose gifts of dinner and pro football tickets on disclosure forms.	The Joint Legislative Ethics Committee investigated.	The committee cleared them of any "wrongful intent" but required them to reimburse the costs to the lobbyist and attend one hour of ethic training.	Reimbursement of costs and training.

ALABAMA	In 2007, Sen. Charles Bishop punched Sen. Lowell Barron on the Senate floor.	The Senate president appointed a five-member bipartisan Senate Ethics and Conduct Committee to review the complaint.	The committee hired an attorney to assist it in the review.	Investigation is on-going.

NORTH CAROLINA	In 2007, an investigation of Rep. Thomas Wright by the state Board of Elections discovered evidence that Wright did not report hundreds of thousands of dollars in campaign contributions and he reportedly used a letter awarding a bogus grant to secure a bank loan for a foundation he controlled. In August, prosecutors stated that they hoped to finish their investigation by October 1. A search warrant for bank records indicated a suspicion of obtaining property by false pretences. The Board of Elections suspended Wright's reelection campaign for failing to file the required campaign disclosure report for the first six months of 2007.	The Joint Legislative Ethics Committee began an investigation.	N/A	Committee investigation is not yet complete.

ARKANSAS	In 1999, Sen. Nick Wilson was convicted in federal court on felony charges of conspiring to evade taxes on $325,000. CALIFORNIA	In 1994, Sen. Frank Hill was one of several legislators ensnared in an FBI sting operation focused on legislative corruption. He was convicted of extortion, conspiracy, and money laundering after accepting $25,000 in exchange for his support on Louisiana shrimp boat legislation. He was sentenced to 46 months in prison and ordered to pay a fine of $2,500. At least some convictions were felonies.	A demand was made on the Senate floor for Hill's expulsion. The Rules Committee put aside consideration after receiving Hill's resignation letter, but he did not set a resignation date	The 5-member Rules Committee later voted 4-0 to expel Hill. COLORADO	In 2006, Sen. Deanna Hanna allegedly requested a $1,400 campaign contribution as a "reparations request" from a group that backed her election opponent. After his arrest based on a domestic dispute, he expressed his concern about the press since the election was in 10 days. He made requests to speak to the police chief. • Atkins was sentenced to probation after pleading guilty to offensive touching for supposedly grabbing his wife's arm during a fight. Staff found that the fight involved greater physical contact than described in the police complaint. The committee unanimously found that Atkins violated House rules and brought the chamber into "disrepute" by using his position in an effort to be treated leniently during the traffic stop and ensuing events culminating in his arrest. In voting to censure, the committee recommended he surrender his legislative identification car and license tag, pay a $550 fine, forego any committee chairmanships, undergo an alcohol abuse evaluation, and complete court-ordered domestic violence counseling.

IDAHO	In 2005, Sen. Jack Noble introduced legislation to change the method of measurement of the required distance between a liquor store and a school after he and his wife were denied a license to sell liquor from their store.	Pursuant to Senate Rule 53, a six-member bipartisan Ethics Committee appointed by the Senate president pro tempore held four public hearings. He relinquished his broker's and insurance agent's licenses after the state Commerce Department found he mishandled funds. He allegedly invested money for a client after he resigned from his job. NEW YORK	From 1983 to 1986, Queens County Democratic Organization Secretary Richard Rubin placed no-show employees on the legislative payroll of Assemblywoman Gerdi E. Lipschutz. She was granted immunity in criminal proceeding.	In 1987, the Committee on Ethics conducted a five-week investigation that included testimony given in Rubin's trial in which he was found guilty of mail-fraud in that he caused a no-show secretary to be placed on the assemblywoman's payroll. The committee reviewed the state constitution, the proceedings of two constitutional conventions, and constitutional case law to determine if Article 3, Sections 7 and 9 authorize the Assembly to expel a member.	The committee found Lipschutz guilty of (1) falsely certifying personal service vouchers, (2) approving the hiring of a "no-show" employee knowing that the employee did not perform any official duties, and (3) committing the acts to obtain a political benefit. Assemblywoman Lipschutz cooperated with the U.S. Attorney in the Rubin trial and provided essential testimony after receiving a grant of immunity. The committee found that no member has ever been expelled and that the Assembly does not have the constitutional authority to expel a member. TENNESSEE	In 2005, Sen. John Ford was investigated on charges including whether he resided outside his district, used campaign funds for his daughter's wedding, received consulting fees to help companies get state business, and failed to disclose his sources of income as required by Senate rules. (Other entities also investigated misconduct by Ford, including the FBI in a bribery scandal called Operation Tennessee Waltz.)	A complaint was filed with the Senate's Ethics Committee (a standing committee). The committee issued a subpoena and a subcommittee investigated and found probable cause for the full committee to investigate the issue of failing to disclose income. The full committee voted to bring in a special counsel to expand its investigation regarding consulting fees and deals. The special counsel presented a report of the investigation. The committee was preparing a six-count charge for ethical violations when Ford resigned.	Ford resigned before the committee issued its report. TEXAS	In 1957, Rep. Cox was indicted for consenting to accept a bribe. He was censured by a House committee but the censure came after the member had resigned.	An investigatory committee was appointed pursuant to a resolution.	The committee recommended that the entire House censure Rep. Cox but take no other action in view of the fact that he had already resigned. The committee vote appears to have been 9-0.	Resigned. It is unclear whether the entire House ever acted on censure.

FLORIDA	In 1996, Rep. Marvin Couch failed to report one liability of more than $1,000 on his 1992 financial disclosure form and two liabilities of more than $1,000 on his 1993 form.	The speaker received a final order and public report from the Ethics Commission and appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate.	In a consent decree, the parties (1) accepted the Ethics Commission's findings on violations, (2) found no evidence that the violations were willful or intentional, and (3) found that the Ethics Commission became aware of the debt because Couch revealed it in an amended disclosure in 1993. Because of the inadvertent nature of the violations, the parties agreed that no additional penalty was warranted.	No action.
FLORIDA	In 1995, Rep. Evelyn J. Lynn was investigated for failing to report certain assets and income on various financial disclosure forms over a four year period.	The speaker received a complaint and public report from the Ethics Commission and appointed a Select Committee on Standards of Official Conduct to investigate.	In a consent decree, the parties agreed that the Ethics Commission already found a violation and imposed a penalty and the House should take no action. They also recommended that the legislature consider clarifying jurisdiction over a member's conduct before taking office.	No action.

All payments to Orrock and Henson came from privately raised money in the Scott Fund. The committee recommended no action.
IDAHO	In 1990, Sen. John Peavey took another senator's outgoing mail from the sergeant at arm's desk to determine if the mail volume limit was exceeded.	A six-member special committee determined facts, reached conclusions, and reported recommendations.	The committee found that the senator did not violate any Senate rules; however, his conduct showed a lack of good judgment. Unanimously recommended no formal action and an apology.	No formal action.
IOWA	In 2006, Sen. Stewart Iverson took a position with a political action committee before his term ended.	The Senate Ethics Committee, a standing committee, received a complaint.	Before the committee took any action, Iverson returned his pay and quit the job. The committee dismissed the complaint.	None.
IOWA	In 2001, a complaint against Sen. Mike Sexton alleged conflict of interest for (1) sitting in on an environmental protection commission meeting regarding a fine of his employer and (2) quashing legislation as chairman of the Natural Resources Committee to prevent new regulations that would affect his employer.	The Senate Ethics Committee received a complaint.	The committee dismissed the complaint but required senators to ask for an ethics ruling in the future before taking jobs that might be a conflict of interest.	None
MINNESOTA	In 2003, Rep. Arlon Lindner made controversial statements about gays in the Holocaust and AIDS in Africa.	Eight representatives filed a complaint and the House Ethics Committee (a bipartisan standing committee) heard the matter.	The committee failed to find probable cause for a violation by a 2-2 vote.	None.
MINNESOTA	In 2001, a conflict of interest complaint was filed against Rep. Jim Abeler based on his vote on a funding measure dealing with charter school leases. He owned and leased	The House Ethics Committee heard the matter.	The complaint was dismissed.	None.

MINNESOTA	In 1996, Sen. Florian Chmielewski was accused of abusing Senate phone privileges. Previously, in December 1995, he pled guilty to misconduct of a public officer, a gross misdemeanor (it is unclear whether he faced other charges). He was accused of letting family and friends use his Senate phone access code for more than $3,800 in personal long distance calls. He was sentenced to two years probation and 100 hours of community service.	A senator filed a complaint with the Senate Subcommittee on Ethical Conduct.	The sub-committee recommended removal from two committees; no use of the Senate phone code; no reimbursement for lodging expenses outside his district; and loss of seniority.	None. The Ethics Committee recommendations had to be approved by the Senate Rules Committee which had no scheduled meetings until the following year. The recommendations expired and the senator was defeated in a primary election.
MINNESOTA	In 1996, Sen. LeRoy Stumpf requested an investigation of a possible conflict of interest relating to consultant contract. A newspaper article reported that Stumpf sponsored a bill in 1994 that provided $50,000 to a coalition of six counties to control beavers whose dams caused floods. Two weeks after the bill became law, he was hired as a consultant by the Red Lake Watershed District, which was picked by the counties to administer the program. He was paid $14,000, with the money coming from the district's account which is derived from property taxes.	Stumpf requested that the Senate ethics subcommittee (a bipartisan subcommittee) review the situation.	The Special Subcommittee on Ethical Conduct unanimously found that it was not a conflict of interest. The subcommittee report stated that no money appropriated as a result of Stumpf's legislative work was used directly or indirectly to pay him and he took reasonable steps to avoid a conflict of interest, such as consulting Senate counsel on the matter. It also found no evidence that Stumpf discussed the job while the bill was pending.	None.

NOTICE OF CHARGES OF UNETHICAL CONDUCT BY REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright, having convened for hearing the report of preliminary investigative findings on questions of possible unethical and unlawful conduct, hereby finds that there is probable cause to believe that Representative Thomas E. Wright, a member of the House of Representatives, has engaged in unethical and unlawful conduct during his tenure as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives by committing the following acts specified in Counts 1 through 8 of this Notice. The Committee, by unanimous vote of the members present, hereby charges that the conduct specified in Counts 1 through 8 should be considered against Representative Thomas E. Wright:

Between on or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by orally and in writing improperly and unethically soliciting Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing The Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was an officer of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for The Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

COUNT 2

On or about April 5, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by, orally and in writing, improperly, fraudulently, and unethically presenting to a representative of Coastal Federal Bank as a factor to consider in whether to loan $150,000.00 to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a corporation of which Wright was an officer, a letter from Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, falsely stating that the Office endorsed the Foundation's museum conversion effort and was committed to funding the project in the amount of $150,000.00 and that the award of the funding would occur by June 30, 2002. At the time Thomas E. Wright presented the letter to the representative of Coastal Federal Bank, he knew that the assertions in the letter were false, that the commitment of funds was not authorized, and that the award of funding would not be forthcoming. The $150,000.00 loan to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. obtained from Coastal Federal Bank was made in part relying on the contents of the fraudulent letter presented by Thomas E. Wright.

On or about December 15, 2003, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP, requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for various health related purposes, including but not limited to educational initiatives, a needs assessment, identification of trends and bridging the gap of minority health care for an underserved population in New Hanover County. Thereafter, when on December 15, 2003, a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Hlth Found Inc" in the amount of $2,400.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 4

On or about February 6, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that would serve as a museum. Thereafter, on March 5, 2004, when a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation Inc" in the amount of $5,000.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 5

On or about April 1, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas E. Wright wrote an invoice on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AT&T Corp. as a solicitation of a charitable contribution to the Foundation, a charitable organization that Thomas E. Wright represented as qualified to receive tax-deductible donations. Thereafter, on April 1, 2004, when a representative of AT&T Corp. signed and sent to Thomas E. Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation I" in the amount of $1,500.00, Thomas E. Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 6

Between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting to his own personal use money loaned by South East Community Credit Union to a charitable organization, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. On or about October 28, 2001, without approval of the board of directors of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., Thomas E. Wright solicited and obtained from South East Community Credit Union, a business line of credit in the amount of $10,000.00 for The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. Thereafter, between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, he personally obtained funds three times based on that line of credit in the total amount of $9,910.27, which he failed to turn over to the Foundation, put into a bank account for the Foundation, or use for the benefit of the Foundation, instead converting those funds to his own use and benefit by depositing them in his own account without the knowledge and approval of the Board of Directors of the Foundation.

COUNT 7

Between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by intentionally failing to disclose approximately $185,000.00 in contributions received by his campaign during that time period, which disclosures are required by law and are intended to safeguard the public trust and to preserve the integrity of the electoral process, the integrity of the House of Representatives, and the integrity of the legislative process.

COUNT 8

Between on or about October, 2001 and on or about April, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, deceptively, and unethically soliciting financial institutions and corporations for loans and donations to a charitable corporation, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., and by converting to his own personal use money loaned or contributed to that charitable organization. As part of this pattern of conduct, Thomas E. Wright solicited a false document and used that false document in one of his loan solicitations.

V.	)	RESPONSE TO ETHICS
	)	COMPLAINT
REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT,	)
Respondent.	)

The Respondent in the above captioned matter, Representative Thomas Wright, hereby responds to the ethics allegations contained in a complaint issued by the North Carolina House Select Committee regarding alleged conduct committed by Respondent which has been deemed by committee members to constitute unethical and unlawful on January 11, 2008 by showing the following:

COUNTS # 1 & 2

1. Respondent specifically denies that any contacts and interactions with Torlen Wade on either March 13, 2002 or March 15, 2002 occurred while Respondent was acting or serving in his capacity as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly and/or that his contacts and interactions with Torlen Wade were improper, illegal or unethical. Additionally, Respondent denies that the purported Wade letter was used to secure a loan from the Coastal Federal Bank in the amount of $150,000 for the Community Health Foundation

2. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Counts # 1 & 2 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the Legislative Ethics Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

3. Merely soliciting and/or obtaining a letter from a State employee which contains untrue information does not constitute a criminal and/or ethical violation.

4. Respondent did not use nor intend to use a letter which was obtained from a State Employee to obtain a loan, grant or other funding for the Community Health Foundation.

5. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

6. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 3 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 4

7. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

8. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 4 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 5

9. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received from the AT & T Corp. which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

10. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 5 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 6

11. Respondent specifically denies that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically solicited and converted money received as a "business line of credit" from the South East Community Credit Union which was intended for the work of the Community Health Foundation to his own use

12. The conduct alleged in the Ethics complaint as Count # 6 does not constitute ethical and/or criminal conduct over which the House Select Committee has jurisdiction to consider.

COUNT # 7

13. Respondent specifically denies that between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007 that he improperly, fraudulently and unethically failed to disclose contributions in the amount of $185,000 received by his campaign which were required by law.

14. This allegation is so vague and over-broad that it does not put Respondent on notice of the specific contributions which the House Select Committee contends were not reported and does not provide any information from which Respondent can make this determination. As such, this allegation violates Respondent's Due Process Rights under the Federal and State Constitutions.

COUNT # 8

15. This allegation, a purported summary of Counts 1 through 7 of this complaint, is denied.

FURTHER RESPONSES TO COUNTS 1 THROUGH 8

16. The allegations contained in the complaint does not constitute conduct committed by Respondent, who happens to be an elected Legislator, who was then acting within his official role or capacity as a member of the North Carolina General Assembly and a participant in the lawmaking process.

17. The House Select Committee is barred from considering the allegations contained in the complaint due to the expiration of its investigative and prosecutorial mandate and applicable Statute of Limitation and/or constitutes laches in that the House Select Committee has failed to allege and consider this matter in a timely manner pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 15A-120-102(a)(7).

18. The allegations contained in the complaint involves conduct which did not constitute a criminal and/or ethical violation at the time that it was allegedly committed and the House Select Committee's consideration of this complaint at this time is not authorized by N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102(a)(5) and (7) and violates the State and Federal Constitutions..

19. The conduct alleged in the complaint involves conduct which was allegedly committed during a past and closed session of the North Carolina General Assembly and said conduct did not violate any ethics rules and constitute criminal conduct at that time. The House Select Committee can not constitutionally be empowered to investigate conduct committed during past legislative sessions of the North Carolina General Assembly and the assumption of this authorization is contrary to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102 and the Federal and State Constitutions.

20. The creation of the House Select Committee and actions which it has taken in this matter by initiating misconduct allegations against the Respondent, prosecuting those allegations and determining their validity violate State and federal Constitutional Rights of Due Process and Equal Protection.

21. The creation of the House Select Committee and actions which it has taken in this matter by initiating misconduct allegations against the Respondent, prosecuting those allegations and determining their validity violates Article II, Section 20 of the North Carolina Constitution.

22. The actions of the House Select Committee violate Article VI, Section 8 by seeking to disqualify Respondent from a legislative office in the North Carolina House General Assembly to which he was duly elected where he has not been convicted or adjudged guilty, by any competent authority, of treason, a felony, corruption or malpractice in office nor has he been removed from office by impeachment.

WHEREFORE, the Respondent, after responding to the complaint issued by the House Select Committee, respectfully moves to dismiss this matter, or, in the alternative, suspend any further proceedings or actions regarding this matter until criminal charges which have been lodged against the Respondent in the Wake County Superior Court have been resolved.

REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS WRIGHT

MOTION TO CONTINUE AND MOTION TO HOLD IN ABEYANCE

COMES NOW the Respondent, Representative Thomas Wright, and hereby moves the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct to continue this matter and hold this matter in abeyance pending the resolution of the criminal charges. In support of said Motion, Respondent shows the following:

1. The additional charges being considered by The Committee against Representative Thomas Wright are the same and/or intricately linked to the charges pending against him in Wake County Superior Court. Those charges have a Constitutionally guaranteed right of a jury trial and will be determined by a jury later this year.

2. If the Legislative proceeding goes forward, the proceeding can and will do great harm to the criminal process and will raise substantial Constitutional issues.

3. The Legislative process would necessarily be an action taken by the State simultaneously with the action taken by the State in Wake County Superior Court. The Legislative proceeding would also necessarily involve massive adverse publicity which would undeniably pollute the jury pool and risk that a fair trial could not be conducted.

4. The Legislative Committee also risks a Constitutionally unaccepted dilemma in which the jury might vote to remove Thomas Wright for violations and then a jury might find him not guilty of precisely the same charges. This would raise due process issues under both the North Carolina and the United States Constitutions and would do grave damage to the democratic process.

WHEREFORE, the Respondent moves that the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct continue this matter and hold all charges in abeyance until after the criminal charges pending in Wake County Superior Court are heard by a jury..

COMES NOW the Respondent, Representative Thomas Wright, and hereby moves the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct to continue this matter and hold this matter in abeyance pending the resolution of the criminal charges. In support of said Motion, Respondent shows the following:

The additional charges being considered by The Committee against Representative Thomas Wright are the same and/or intricately linked to the charges pending against him in Wake County Superior Court. Those charges have a Constitutionally guaranteed right of a jury trial and will be determined by a jury later this year.

2. If the Legislative proceeding goes forward, the proceeding can and will do great harm to the criminal process and will raise substantial Constitutional issues.

3. The Legislative process would necessarily be an action taken by the State simultaneously with the action taken by the State in Wake County Superior Court. The Legislative proceeding would also necessarily involve massive adverse publicity which would undeniably pollute the jury pool and risk that a fair trial could not be conducted.

6th Amendment right to move to dismiss instead to jury

4. The Legislative Committee also risks a Constitutionally unaccepted dilemma in which the jury might vote to remove Thomas Wright for violations and then a jury might find him not guilty of precisely the same charges. This would raise due process issues under both the North Carolina and the United States Constitutions and would do grave damage to the democratic process.

WHEREFORE, the Respondent moves that the House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct continue this matter and hold all charges in abeyance until after the criminal charges pending in Wake County Superior Court are heard by a jury.

This the 25th day of January, 2008.

1) Motion to Dismiss all counts generally for lack of jurisdiction

   a. Walker Reagan
      i. No issue of jurisdiction for the House committee
      ii. Only jurisdiction issues would be whether the House has the authority to discipline its member for these matters under this process
      iii. Even if the Committee was acting outside its authorization, I think that is only relevant as to whether the House wants to consider its recommendations

   b. LEC has jurisdiction to investigate Representative Wright
      i. N.C. Const. Art. II § 20 – Each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own members ii. General Assembly of North Carolina, Session 2007, RULE 28.1(c)(4) – After the committee has concluded its inquiries into the alleged violations, the Committee shall dispose of the matter by taking one of the following actions…Refer the matter to the House for appropriate action.
      iii. The General Assembly has inherent authority under the N.C. Constitution to govern/investigate its own members
      iv. LEC has explicit authority to conduct investigation into the conduct of any member and upon completion, LEC may refer the matter to the House for appropriate action
      v. If this motion calls to question the jurisdiction of:
         1. General Assembly – fails for lack of ripeness
         2. LEC – fails for explicit authority granted by the Legislative Rules availability of the meeting room and that no conflicts will exist with the meetings of other bodies. All standing committee and permanent subcommittee meetings shall adjourn no later than:

(1) 15 minutes preceding a regular session of the House, and

(2) 10 minutes preceding the hour of the next regularly scheduled standing committee or permanent subcommittee meeting.

(g) Any call or notice of a standing committee or permanent subcommittee meeting between legislative sessions shall be mailed to each member of the standing committee or permanent subcommittee at least five days prior to such meeting. If a member of the body so requests in writing to the chair of the standing committee or permanent subcommittee, the member shall be notified by certified mail of the meetings.

(h) During standing committee and permanent subcommittee meetings, the chair may exercise the right to vote, or may reserve this right until there is a tie, in which event the chair may vote, but in no instance may the chair vote twice on the same question.

RULE 28.1. Ethics Committee Investigations Into Violations of the Open Meetings Law. – (a) On its own motion, or in response to signed and sworn complaint of any individual filed with the Standing Committee on Ethics, the Committee shall inquire into any alleged violation by members of the House of the Open Meetings Law (Article 33C of Chapter 143 of the General Statutes), as the same may be amended in the future.

(b) If, after such preliminary investigation as it may make, the Committee determines to proceed with an inquiry into the conduct of any individual, the Committee shall notify the individual as to the fact of the inquiry and the charges against the individual and shall schedule one or more hearings on the matter. The individual shall have the right to present evidence, cross-examine witnesses, and be represented by counsel at any hearings.

(c) After the Committee has concluded its inquiries into the alleged violations, the Committee shall dispose of the matter by taking one of the following actions:

(1) Dismiss the complaint and take no further action.

(2) Issue a private letter of reprimand to the legislator, if the legislator unintentionally violated the provisions of the Open Meetings Law.

(3) Issue a public letter of reprimand if the violation of the Open Meetings Law was intentional or if the legislator has previously received a private letter of reprimand. The Chair of the Committee on Ethics shall have the public letter of reprimand spread on the pages of the House Journal.

(4) Refer the matter to the House for appropriate action.

RULE 29. Notice of Standing Committee and Permanent Subcommittee Meetings and Hearings. – Public notice of all standing committee and permanent subcommittee meetings shall be given in the House. The chair of the standing committee or permanent subcommittee shall notify or cause to be notified the sponsor Article 33C.

Meetings of Public Bodies.

§ 143-318.9. Public policy.

Whereas the public bodies that administer the legislative, policy-making, quasi-judicial, administrative, and advisory functions of North Carolina and its political subdivisions exist solely to conduct the people's business, it is the public policy of North Carolina that the hearings, deliberations, and actions of these bodies be conducted openly. (1979, c. 655, s. 1.)

§ 143-318.10. All official meetings of public bodies open to the public.

(a) Except as provided in G.S. 143-318.11, 143-318.14A, 143-318.15, and 143-318.18, each official meeting of a public body shall be open to the public, and any person is entitled to attend such a meeting.

(b) As used in this Article, "public body" means any elected or appointed authority, board, commission, committee, council, or other body of the State, or of one or more counties, cities, school administrative units, constituent institutions of The University of North Carolina, or other political subdivisions or public corporations in the State that (i) is composed of two or more members and (ii) exercises or is authorized to exercise a legislative, policy-making, quasi-judicial, administrative, or advisory function. In addition, "public body" means the governing board of a "public hospital" as defined in G.S. 159-39 and the governing board of any nonprofit corporation to which a hospital facility has been sold or conveyed pursuant to G.S. 131E-8, any subsidiary of such nonprofit corporation, and any nonprofit corporation owning the corporation to which the hospital facility has been sold or conveyed.

(c) "Public body" does not include (i) a meeting solely among the professional staff of a public body, or (ii) the medical staff of a public hospital or the medical staff of a hospital that has been sold or conveyed pursuant to G.S. 131E-8.

(d) "Official meeting" means a meeting, assembly, or gathering together at any time or place or the simultaneous communication by conference telephone or other electronic means of a majority of the members of a public body for the purpose of conducting hearings, participating in deliberations, or voting upon or otherwise transacting the public business within the jurisdiction, real or apparent, of the public body. However, a social meeting or other informal assembly or gathering together of the members of a public body does not constitute an official meeting unless called or held to evade the spirit and purposes of this Article.

(e) Every public body shall keep full and accurate minutes of all official meetings, including any closed sessions held pursuant to G.S. 143-318.11. Such minutes may be in written form or, at the option of the public body, may be in the form of sound or video and sound recordings. When a public body meets in closed session, it shall keep a general account of the closed session so that a person not in attendance would have a reasonable understanding of what transpired. Such accounts may be a written narrative, or video or audio recordings. Such minutes and accounts shall be public records within the meaning of the Public Records Law, G.S. 132-1 et seq.; provided, however, that minutes or an account of a closed session conducted in compliance with G.S. 143-318.11 may be withheld from public inspection so long as public inspection would frustrate the purpose of a closed session. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 4; 1991, c. 694, ss. 1, 2; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 1; 1995, c. 509, s. 135.2(p); 1997-290, s. 1; 1997-465, s. 27.)

§ 143-318.11. Closed sessions.

(a) Permitted Purposes. – It is the policy of this State that closed sessions shall be held only when required to permit a public body to act in the public interest as permitted in this section. A public body may hold a closed session and exclude the public only when a closed session is required:

(1) To prevent the disclosure of information that is privileged or confidential pursuant to the law of this State or of the United States, or not considered a public record within the meaning of Chapter 132 of the General Statutes.

(2) To prevent the premature disclosure of an honorary degree, scholarship, prize, or similar award.

(3) To consult with an attorney employed or retained by the public body in order to preserve the attorney-client privilege between the attorney and the public body, which privilege is hereby acknowledged. General policy matters may not be discussed in a closed session and nothing herein shall be construed to permit a public body to close a meeting that otherwise would be open merely because an attorney employed or retained by the public body is a participant. The public body may consider and give instructions to an attorney concerning the handling or settlement of a claim, judicial action, mediation, arbitration, or administrative procedure. If the public body has approved or considered a settlement, other than a malpractice settlement by or on behalf of a hospital, in closed session, the terms of that settlement shall be reported to the public body and entered into its minutes as soon as possible within a reasonable time after the settlement is concluded.

(4) To discuss matters relating to the location or expansion of industries or other businesses in the area served by the public body, including agreement on a tentative list of economic development incentives that may be offered by the public body in negotiations. The action approving the signing of an economic development contract or commitment, or the action authorizing the payment of economic development expenditures, shall be taken in an open session.

(5) To establish, or to instruct the public body's staff or negotiating agents concerning the position to be taken by or on behalf of the public body in negotiating (i) the price and other material terms of a contract or proposed contract for the acquisition of real property by purchase, option, exchange, or lease; or (ii) the amount of compensation and other material terms of an employment contract or proposed employment contract.

(6) To consider the qualifications, competence, performance, character, fitness, conditions of appointment, or conditions of initial employment of an individual public officer or employee or prospective public officer or employee; or to hear or investigate a complaint, charge, or grievance by or against an individual public officer or employee. General personnel policy issues may not be considered in a closed session. A public body may not consider the qualifications, competence, performance, character, fitness, appointment, or removal of a member of the public body or another body and may not consider or fill a vacancy among its own membership except in an open meeting. Final action making an appointment or discharge or removal by a public body having final authority for the appointment or discharge or removal shall be taken in an open meeting.

(7) To plan, conduct, or hear reports concerning investigations of alleged criminal misconduct.

(8) To formulate plans by a local board of education relating to emergency response to incidents of school violence.

(9) To discuss and take action regarding plans to protect public safety as it relates to existing or potential terrorist activity and to receive briefings by staff members, legal counsel, or law enforcement or emergency service officials concerning actions taken or to be taken to respond to such activity.

(b) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 694, s. 4.

(c) Calling a Closed Session. – A public body may hold a closed session only upon a motion duly made and adopted at an open meeting. Every motion to close a meeting shall cite one or more of the permissible purposes listed in subsection (a) of this section. A motion based on subdivision (a)(1) of this section shall also state the name or citation of the law that renders the information to be discussed privileged or confidential. A motion based on subdivision (a)(3) of this section shall identify the parties in each existing lawsuit concerning which the public body expects to receive advice during the closed session.

(d) Repealed by Session Laws 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 2. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 1981, c. 831; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 5; 1991, c. 694, ss. 3, 4; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 2; 1995, c. 509, s. 84; 1997-222, s. 2; 1997-290, s. 2; 2001-500, s. 2; 2003-180, s. 2.)

§ 143-318.12. Public notice of official meetings.

(a) If a public body has established, by ordinance, resolution, or otherwise, a schedule of regular meetings, it shall cause a current copy of that schedule, showing the time and place of regular meetings, to be kept on file as follows:

(1) For public bodies that are part of State government, with the Secretary of State;

(2) For the governing board and each other public body that is part of a county government, with the clerk to the board of county commissioners;

(3) For the governing board and each other public body that is part of a city government, with the city clerk;

(4) For each other public body, with its clerk or secretary, or, if the public body does not have a clerk or secretary, with the clerk to the board of county commissioners in the county in which the public body normally holds its meetings.

If a public body changes its schedule of regular meetings, it shall cause the revised schedule to be filed as provided in subdivisions (1) through (4) of this subsection at least seven calendar days before the day of the first meeting held pursuant to the revised schedule.

(b) If a public body holds an official meeting at any time or place other than a time or place shown on the schedule filed pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, it shall give public notice of the time and place of that meeting as provided in this subsection.

(1) If a public body recesses a regular, special, or emergency meeting held pursuant to public notice given in compliance with this subsection, and the time and place at which the meeting is to be continued is announced in open session, no further notice shall be required.

(2) For any other meeting, except an emergency meeting, the public body shall cause written notice of the meeting stating its purpose (i) to be posted on the principal bulletin board of the public body or, if the public body has no such bulletin board, at the door of its usual meeting room, and (ii) to be mailed or delivered to each newspaper, wire service, radio station, and television station, which has filed a written request for notice with the clerk or secretary of the public body or with some other person designated by the public body. The public body shall also cause notice to be mailed or delivered to any person, in addition to the representatives of the media listed above, who has filed a written request with the clerk, secretary, or other person designated by the public body. This notice shall be posted and mailed or delivered at least 48 hours before the time of the meeting. The public body may require each newspaper, wire service, radio station, and television station submitting a written request for notice to renew the request annually. The public body shall charge a fee to persons other than the media, who request notice, of ten dollars ($10.00) per calendar year, and may require them to renew their requests quarterly.

(3) For an emergency meeting, the public body shall cause notice of the meeting to be given to each local newspaper, local wire service, local radio station, and local television station that has filed a written request, which includes the newspaper's, wire service's, or station's telephone number, for emergency notice with the clerk or secretary of the public body or with some other person designated by the public body. This notice shall be given either by telephone or by the same method used to notify the members of the public body and shall be given immediately after notice has been given to those members. This notice shall be given at the expense of the party notified. An "emergency meeting" is one called because of generally unexpected circumstances that require immediate consideration by the public body. Only business connected with the emergency may be considered at a meeting to which notice is given pursuant to this paragraph.

(c) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 694, s. 6. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 1991, c. 694, ss. 5, 6.)

§ 143-318.13. Electronic meetings; written ballots; acting by reference.

(a) Electronic Meetings. – If a public body holds an official meeting by use of conference telephone or other electronic means, it shall provide a location and means whereby members of the public may listen to the meeting and the notice of the meeting required by this Article shall specify that location. A fee of up to twenty-five dollars ($25.00) may be charged each such listener to defray in part the cost of providing the necessary location and equipment.

(b) Written Ballots. – Except as provided in this subsection or by joint resolution of the General Assembly, a public body may not vote by secret or written ballot. If a public body decides to vote by written ballot, each member of the body so voting shall sign his or her ballot; and the minutes of the public body shall show the vote of each member voting. The ballots shall be available for public inspection in the office of the clerk or secretary to the public body immediately following the meeting at which the vote took place and until the minutes of that meeting are approved, at which time the ballots may be destroyed.

(c) Acting by Reference. – The members of a public body shall not deliberate, vote, or otherwise take action upon any matter by reference to a letter, number or other designation, or other secret device or method, with the intention of making it impossible for persons attending a meeting of the public body to understand what is being deliberated, voted, or acted upon. However, this subsection does not prohibit a public body from deliberating, voting, or otherwise taking action by reference to an agenda, if copies of the agenda, sufficiently worded to enable the public to understand what is being deliberated, voted, or acted upon, are available for public inspection at the meeting. (1979, c. 655, s. 1.)

§ 143-318.14. Broadcasting or recording meetings.

(a) Except as herein below provided, any radio or television station is entitled to broadcast all or any part of a meeting required to be open. Any person may photograph, film, tape- record, or otherwise reproduce any part of a meeting required to be open.

(b) A public body may regulate the placement and use of equipment necessary for broadcasting, photographing, filming, or recording a meeting, so as to prevent undue interference with the meeting. However, the public body must allow such equipment to be placed within the meeting room in such a way as to permit its intended use, and the ordinary use of such equipment shall not be declared to constitute undue interference; provided, however, that if the public body, in good faith, should determine that the size of the meeting room is such that all the members of the public body, members of the public present, and the equipment and personnel necessary for broadcasting, photographing, filming, and tape-recording the meeting cannot be accommodated in the meeting room without unduly interfering with the meeting and an adequate alternative meeting room is not readily available, then the public body, acting in good faith and consistent with the purposes of this Article, may require the pooling of such equipment and the personnel operating it; and provided further, if the news media, in order to facilitate news coverage, request an alternate site for the meeting, and the public body grants the request, then the news media making such request shall pay any costs incurred by the public body in securing an alternate meeting site. (1979, c. 655, s. 1.)

§ 143-318.14A. Legislative commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (e) below, all official meetings of commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees of the General Assembly (including, without limitation, joint committees and study committees), shall be held in open session. For the purpose of this section, the following also shall be considered to be "commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees of the General Assembly":

(1) The Legislative Research Commission;
(2) The Legislative Services Commission;
(3) (Repealed effective July 1, 2007) The Advisory Budget Commission;
(4) The Joint Legislative Utility Review Committee;
(5) The Joint Legislative Commission on Governmental Operations;
(6) The Joint Legislative Commission on Municipal Incorporations;
(7) Repealed by Session Laws 1997, c. 443, s. 12.30, effective August 28, 1997.
(8) The Joint Select Committee on Low-Level Radioactive Waste;
(9) The Environmental Review Commission;
(10) The Joint Legislative Transportation Oversight Committee;
(11) The Joint Legislative Education Oversight Committee;
(12) The Joint Legislative Commission on Future Strategies for North Carolina;
(13) The Commission on Children with Special Needs;
(14) The Legislative Committee on New Licensing Boards;
(15) The Agriculture and Forestry Awareness Study Commission;
(16) The North Carolina Study Commission on Aging; and
(17) The standing Committees on Pensions and Retirement.

(b) Reasonable public notice of all meetings of commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees of the General Assembly shall be given. For purposes of this subsection, "reasonable public notice" includes, but is not limited to:

(1) Notice given openly at a session of the Senate or of the House; or

(2) Notice mailed or sent by electronic mail to those who have requested notice, and to the Legislative Services Office, which shall post the notice on the General Assembly web site.

G.S. 143-318.12 shall not apply to meetings of commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees of the General Assembly.

(c) A commission, committee, or standing subcommittee of the General Assembly may take final action only in an open meeting.

(d) A violation of this section by members of the General Assembly shall be punishable as prescribed by the rules of the House or the Senate.

(e) The following sections shall apply to meetings of commissions, committees, and standing subcommittees of the General Assembly: G.S. 143-318.10(e) and G.S. 143-318.11, G.S. 143-318.13 and G.S. 143-318.14, G.S. 143-318.16 through G.S. 143-318.17. (1991, c. 694, s. 7; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 785, s. 4; c. 1030, s. 42; 1993, c. 321, s. 169.2(f); 1997-443, s. 12.30; 2003-374, s. 1; 2006-203, s. 93.)

§ 143-318.15. (Repealed effective July 1, 2007) Advisory Budget Commission and appropriation committees of General Assembly; application of Article.

(a) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to meetings of the Advisory Budget Commission held for the purpose of actually preparing the budget required by the provisions of the Executive Budget Act (Article 1, Chapter 143, General Statutes of North Carolina), but nothing in this Article shall be construed to amend, repeal or supersede the provisions of G.S. 143-10 (or any similar statutes hereafter enacted) requiring public hearings to secure information on any and all estimates to be included in the budget and providing for other procedures and practices incident to the preparation and adoption of the budget required by the State Budget Act.

(b) This Article does not amend, repeal or supersede the provisions of G.S. 143-14, relating to the meetings of the appropriations committees and subcommittees of the General Assembly. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 2006-203, s. 94.)

§ 143-318.16. Injunctive relief against violations of Article.

(a) The General Court of Justice has jurisdiction to enter mandatory or prohibitory injunctions to enjoin (i) threatened violations of this Article, (ii) the recurrence of past violations of this Article, or (iii) continuing violations of this Article. Any person may bring an action in the appropriate division of the General Court of Justice seeking such an injunction; and the plaintiff need not allege or prove special damage different from that suffered by the public at large. It is not a defense to such an action that there is an adequate remedy at law.

(b) Any injunction entered pursuant to this section shall describe the acts enjoined with reference to the violations of this Article that have been proved in the action.

(c) Repealed by Session Laws 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 3, effective October 1, 1986. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 3.)

§ 143-318.16A. Additional remedies for violations of Article.

(a) Any person may institute a suit in the superior court requesting the entry of a judgment declaring that any action of a public body was taken, considered, discussed, or deliberated in violation of this Article. Upon such a finding, the court may declare any such action null and void. Any person may seek such a declaratory judgment, and the plaintiff need not allege or prove special damage different from that suffered by the public at large. The public body whose action the suit seeks to set aside shall be made a party. The court may order other persons be made parties if they have or claim any right, title, or interest that would be directly affected by a declaratory judgment voiding the action that the suit seeks to set aside.

(b) A suit seeking declaratory relief under this section must be commenced within 45 days following the initial disclosure of the action that the suit seeks to have declared null and void; provided, however, that any suit for declaratory judgment brought pursuant to this section that seeks to set aside a bond order or bond referendum shall be commenced within the limitation periods prescribed by G.S. 159-59 and G.S. 159-62. If the challenged action is recorded in the minutes of the public body, its initial disclosure shall be deemed to have occurred on the date the minutes are first available for public inspection. If the challenged action is not recorded in the minutes of the public body, the date of its initial disclosure shall be determined by the court based on a finding as to when the plaintiff knew or should have known that the challenged action had been taken.

(c) In making the determination whether to declare the challenged action null and void, the court shall consider the following and any other relevant factors:

(1) The extent to which the violation affected the substance of the challenged action;

(2) The extent to which the violation thwarted or impaired access to meetings or proceedings that the public had a right to attend;

(3) The extent to which the violation prevented or impaired public knowledge or understanding of the people's business;

(4) Whether the violation was an isolated occurrence, or was a part of a continuing pattern of violations of this Article by the public body;

(5) The extent to which persons relied upon the validity of the challenged action, and the effect on such persons of declaring the challenged action void;

(6) Whether the violation was committed in bad faith for the purpose of evading or subverting the public policy embodied in this Article.

(d) A declaratory judgment pursuant to this section may be entered as an alternative to, or in combination with, an injunction entered pursuant to G.S. 143-318.16.

(e) The validity of any enacted law or joint resolution or passed simple resolution of either house of the General Assembly is not affected by this Article. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 1; 1991, c. 694, s. 8.)

§ 143-318.16B. Assessments and awards of attorneys' fees.

When an action is brought pursuant to G.S. 143-318.16 or G.S. 143-318.16A, the court may make written findings specifying the prevailing party or parties, and may award the prevailing party or parties a reasonable attorney's fee, to be taxed against the losing party or parties as part of the costs. The court may order that all or any portion of any fee as assessed be paid personally by any individual member or members of the public body found by the court to have knowingly or intentionally committed the violation; provided, that no order against any individual member shall issue in any case where the public body or that individual member seeks the advice of an attorney, and such advice is followed. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 932, s. 2; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 3.)

§ 143-318.16C. Accelerated hearing; priority.

Actions brought pursuant to G.S. 143-318.16 or G.S. 143-318.16A shall be set down for immediate hearing, and subsequent proceedings in such actions shall be accorded priority by the trial and appellate courts. (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 4.)

§ 143-318.16D. Local acts.

Any reference in any city charter or local act to an "executive session" is amended to read "closed session". (1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 570, s. 4.)

§ 143-318.17. Disruptions of official meetings.

A person who willfully interrupts, disturbs, or disrupts an official meeting and who, upon being directed to leave the meeting by the presiding officer, willfully refuses to leave the meeting is guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor. (1979, c. 655, s. 1; 1993, c. 539, s. 1028; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

§ 143-318.18. Exceptions.

This Article does not apply to:

(1) Grand and petit juries.

(2) Any public body that is specifically authorized or directed by law to meet in executive or confidential session, to the extent of the authorization or direction.

(3) The Judicial Standards Commission.

(3a) The North Carolina Innocence Inquiry Commission.

(4) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 694, s. 9.

(4a) The Legislative Ethics Committee.

(4b) A conference committee of the General Assembly.

(4c) A caucus by members of the General Assembly; however, no member of the General Assembly shall participate in a caucus which is called for the purpose of evading or subverting this Article.

(5) Law enforcement agencies.

(6) A public body authorized to investigate, examine, or determine the character and other qualifications of applicants for professional or occupational licenses or certificates or to take disciplinary actions against persons holding such licenses or certificates, (i) while preparing, approving, administering, or grading examinations or (ii) while meeting with respect to an individual applicant for or holder of such a license or certificate. This exception does not amend, repeal, or supersede any other statute that requires a public hearing or other practice and procedure in a proceeding before such a public body.

(7) (Effective until July 1, 2007) Any public body subject to the Executive Budget Act (G.S. 143-1 et seq.) and exercising quasi-judicial functions, during a meeting or session held solely for the purpose of making a decision in an adjudicatory action or proceeding.

(7) (Effective July 1, 2007) Any public body subject to the State Budget Act, Chapter 143C of the General Statutes and exercising quasi-judicial functions, during a meeting or session held solely for the purpose of making a decision in an adjudicatory action or proceeding.

2) Motion to Dismiss Count 1 as not alleging criminal or unethical conduct

a. Walker Reagan
   i. Denies constitutes conduct over which the LEC has jurisdiction. Not clear if intended to say the HSC or the House, or just a carry over from the response to the LEC charge
   ii. Case law, commentaries and historical precedent holds that legislative bodies have inherent authority to discipline their members
      1. Contained within that authority to discipline is the authority to determine what acts will be subject to discipline
      2. Put another way, the absence of an articulated code of conduct does not preclude the body taking action against a member
      3. Likewise, the existence of some articulated standards (like Article 14 of Chapter 120) is not exclusive

If fraud conduct = fraud, is your claim fraud is not unethical because we do not say so in a Leg. code? What has to be in the Code?

b. Allegation of criminal conduct is not required / Unethical conduct has been alleged
   i. Although most, if not all, of the expulsions and exclusions of House of Representatives members on the Federal level have resulted due to criminal conduct, such conduct is not required by the U.S. Constitution
   ii. The N.C. Constitution does not explicitly grant expulsion power in Art. II
      1. The omission can be argued as a limitation on the House's power to expel or exclude a member
      2. Ambiguity that "each house shall be judge of the qualifications and elections of its own" could also be interpreted to give the House a wide berth in the investigations→expulsions of its members
   iii. The counts facing Rep. Wright all involve inherently "unethical" conduct
      1. Use of position to commit fraud (per se unethical/bad faith)
      2. Habitual failing to disclose campaign contributions

3) Motion to Dismiss Count 7 as vague, overbroad, and a violation of due process of law and the state constitution

   a. Walker Reagan
      i. I have some concerns that this allegation may have some merit. While I think Alec presented sufficient evidence to find probable cause, I am not sure the wording of the Count is sufficient to give the necessary minimal notice. Bill and Alec may be able to argue it is adequate.
      ii. One possible solution would be for the Committee on the 11th to amend Count 7, possible by incorporating by reference the chart Alec had which I understood delineated the specific contributions that were not properly reported.
      iii. I think if Wright is provided with a list of specific contributions it will defuse this argument.

   b. Evidence is not required in a complaint
      i. This information would be readily available during the discovery period of a civil action
      ii. Arguably, Rep. Wright has this information since it was gleaned from his own banking records
      iii. Amending Count 7 to incorporate the spreadsheet detailing the undisclosed contributions would render this motion moot

4) Motion to Dismiss Counts 1-8 for lack of jurisdiction on grounds the conduct was not committed in Wright's lawmaking capacity

   a. Walker Reagan
      i. I think this argument may be relevant to jurisdiction of the LEC but I do not believe it is applicable, based on our research, to the broader jurisdiction of the House.
      ii. We believe the House can discipline for conduct committed outside the lawmaking process.

   b. Capacity as a Legislator v. Lawmaking Process
      i. The alleged conduct was not committed during the lawmaking process but due to Rep. Wright's capacity as a lawmaker
      ii. Rep. Wright's position as a legislator, and the knowledge of others that he is a representative, enabled the alleged conduct to take place
      iii. Again the N.C. Const. is silent as to a power of expulsion and therefore the grounds for expulsion
         1. U.S. House – "the impeachment provisions were aimed at preventing 'the possibility of tyrannical, oppressive, corrupt and willful use of the power connected with a public office.'" 41 Fordham L. Rev. 49
         2. The Counts allege that Rep. Wright's misconduct stemmed from his position as a N.C. House member
            a. Fraudulently acquired a loan and "tax-deductible" contributions from corporations
            b. Very nature of receiving campaign contributions is contingent on the fact that Rep. Wright is an incumbent member receiving contributions for reelection

5) Motion to Dismiss all counts on statute of limitations grounds and violation of 15A-120-102(a)(7)

a. Walker Reagan
   i. There is no statute with a citation of 15A-120-102(a)(7). I presume this is intended to refer to G.S. 120-102(a)(7)
   ii. 120-102(a)(7) refers to the permissible power of the LEC to propose rules of legislative ethics and conduct, and when these rules are adopted by the House and Senate, the rules shall be the standard for that term.
   iii. No rules have been proposed by the LEC nor adopted by the House and Senate. But in any event, this statutory section does not set out any time limitations, other than possibly the term during which these rules are adopted.
   iv. I don't think that this statute is relevant to this argument since this matter is not before the LEC.

b. N.C. Gen. Stat. §§ 15A-102 through 15A-130. Reserved for future codification purposes.
   i. Under N.C. Gen. Stat. § 120-102(a)(7) the Committee may "propose rules of legislative ethics and conduct."
   ii. No statute of limitations is present in this subsection
   iii. However, traditionally the US Congress has distrusted their power to expel a member for misconduct committed either during prior Congresses or before entering Congress
      1. Congress (again at the Federal level) will probably not expel a member for prior misconduct, except in extreme cases. 81 Harv. L. Rev. 673, 684 (1968).
      2. Discovery Doctrine? LEC did not know of Rep. Wright's alleged misconduct until criminal indictment

NO SOL in Constitution
no SOL in state law

~~SOL is~~

§ 120-102. Powers and duties of Committee.

(a) In addition to the other powers and duties specified in this Article, the Committee may:

(1) through (4) Repealed by Session Laws 2006-201, s. 10, effective January 1, 2007.

(5) Prepare a list of ethical principles and guidelines to be used by legislators and legislative employees to identify potential conflicts of interest and prohibited behavior, and to suggest rules of conduct that shall be adhered to by legislators and legislative employees.

(5a) Advise each General Assembly committee of specific danger areas where conflicts of interest may exist and to suggest rules of conduct that should be adhered to by committee members in order to avoid conflict.

(6) Advise General Assembly members or render written opinions if so requested by the member about questions of ethics or possible points of conflict and suggested standards of conduct of members upon ethical points raised.

(6a) Review, modify, or overrule advisory opinions issued to legislators by the State Ethics Commission under G.S. 138A-13.

(7) Propose rules of legislative ethics and conduct. The rules, when adopted by the House of Representatives and the Senate, shall be the standards adopted for that term.

(8) Upon receipt of information that a legislator owes money to the State and is delinquent in making repayment of such obligation, investigate and dispose of the matter according to the terms of this Article.

(9) Investigate alleged violations in accordance with G.S. 120-103.1 and hire separate legal counsel, through the Legislative Services Commission, for these purposes.

(10) Adopt procedures to implement this Article.

(11) Perform other duties as may be necessary to accomplish the purposes of this Article.

(b) G.S. 120-19.1 through G.S. 120-19.8 shall apply to the proceedings of the Legislative Ethics Committee as if it were a joint committee of the General Assembly, except that both cochairs shall sign all subpoenas on behalf of the Committee. Notwithstanding any other law, every State agency, local governmental agency, and units and subdivisions thereof shall make available to the Committee any documents, records, data, statements or other information, except tax returns or information relating thereto, which the Committee designates as being necessary for the exercise of its powers and duties. (1975, c. 564, s. 1; 1979, c. 864, s. 3; 1991, c. 700, s. 1; 2006-201, s. 10.)

6) Motion to Dismiss all counts on grounds of laches
   a. Walker Reagan
      i. While it is not unreasonably to raise the issue of laches for a delayed prosecution based on old information that may now be less available to the respondent and that thereby impairs his ability to defend himself, I am not sure how that applies in this case.
      ii. It is probably true that the some of the campaign reporting irregularities have been in the public domain for as many as 5 or 6 years. But the board of elections only made that finding recently.
         1. I don't know what the SOL is for the election law violations. — what is SOL to Elect Comm viol?
         2. If they were misdemeanors, the 2-year SOL may have run on those.
         3. If they are felonies, there is not SOL.
      iii. Clearly not all of the allegations deal with conduct that is now stale. And I am not sure how Wright can show that he is prejudiced by the delay in prosecuting the action.
   b. Doctrine of Laches
      i. Question – What is the law of the doctrine of laches
         1. Does the asserter of the doctrine have to have clean hands
         2. If the asserter has by fraud kept the deception from being uncovered does that bar him from then asserting the doctrine as a defense to an action because of the age of the case once uncovered?
         3. Does the asserter of the doctrine need to show proof or evidence of prejudice from the delay in proceeding
            a. Memories faded of key witnesses,
            b. Death of witnesses or
            c. Evisceration of critical proof?

prejudice

      ii. Answer
         1. Laches is recognized in NC as an affirmative defense, N.C. Gen. Stat. § 1-1A Rule 8(c)
         2. Like any other affirmative defense (contributory negligence, duress, assumption of risk), laches must be plead in the responsive pleading or it is waived as a defense
         3. The burden of proof to establish and unreasonable delay is on the asserter
         4. Laches is based on grounds of public policy, requiring for peace the discouragement of stale demands
         5. Statutes of Limitations are binding on courts, but doctrine of laches is not, 51 Am. Jur. 2d, Limitation of Actions § 8 (West 2000)
            a. Laches is open to a reasonableness interpretation
            b. Laches involves a balancing of the equitable circumstances of each case; differing from SOL's mechanical application of a time bar
         6. Larsen v. Sedberry, 54 N.C. App. 166, 167 (1981). Laches applies where:

a. Difficulty of doing entire justice due to
    i. Death of principal witness or witnesses, or
    ii. From the original transaction having become obscured by time
b. And the difficulty is attributable to
    i. Gross negligence, or
    ii. Deliberate delay of the opposing party

7. Analysis
    a. Conscience, god faith, and reasonable diligence is required to bring a claim
        i. Presumably there is no difficulty to do "entire justice"
        ii. If there is difficulty, it cannot be attributed to any gross negligence or deliberate delay on the part of the LEC
        iii. LEC could argue discovery doctrine for any delay in bringing this matter
    b. The doctrine of laches should not bar LEC from moving forward with the probable cause hearing of Rep. Wright

7) Motion to Dismiss all counts on jurisdictional grounds in that the investigation is not authorized under 120-102 (a) (5) and (7)

   a. Walker Reagan
      i. 120-102(a)(5) and (7) again refer to the powers of the LEC to recommend rules of conduct.
      ii. This statute does not apply to the HSC and I do not believe it serves as a limitation on the jurisdiction of the House to act to discipline its members

   b. LEC jurisdictional grounds are identified in House Rule 28.1
      i. General Assembly authorized to make its own rules
      ii. General Assembly may on its own motion…

8) Motion to Dismiss all counts on grounds the legislature is not constitutionally empowered to investigate, prosecute and discipline for conduct committed in past legislative sessions and violates 120-102 as well as the federal and state constitutions

   a. Walker Reagan
      i. Refers to authority of the HSC, when reference should be to powers of the House. Again, 120-102 applies to powers of the LEC, not the House.
         1. Presumably Wright may be trying to argue that the only matters he can be sanctioned for are violations of duly adopted rules of ethical conduct and since no rules have been adopted under 120-102 he cannot be disciplined for actions that do not constitute violations of duly adopted rules.
         2. I don't believe that is true for the reasons set forth in our answer to #2 above.
      ii. The issue of whether the 2007 General Assembly can discipline for acts committed in prior General Assemblies is an interesting question.
         1. The Powell case seems to address that. There is also precedent in other states for doing so.
         2. I think it is a good argument for him to make but I think is a fundamental question that the courts in NC have not decided so I think you are free to proceed on.
      iii. As to the federal constitution coming into play, I think Wright can only get there on the due process issue under a property right concept. Otherwise, the federal constitution is not going to override the State's constitution on who can be a legislator and the power of the legislature to judge the qualifications of its members.
   b. Prior Misconduct
      i. The tendency of the US Congress has been to not expel a current member for indiscretions that took place prior to his or her election to the position.
      ii. However, the violations discussed in case law were known, or should have been known, by the electorate prior to the member's election.
      iii. Here, although the alleged acts took place as far back as 2001, arguably nobody in Rep. Wright's district was aware of this misconduct until he was indicted
      iv. Extenuating Circumstances
         1. The fraudulent nature of the misconduct alleged here does not lend itself to be discovered and thoroughly investigated within a 2-year term
         2. Additionally, the individual instances of failing to disclose campaign contributions may not rise pass the level of misconduct; however, over time, analyzing the collective non-disclosed contributions shows the habitual nature of the misconduct
         3. Lastly, the fraudulent acquisition of a loan and corporate contributions was not discovered immediately and therefore not brought to the LEC's attention continuous.

v. Together these extenuating circumstances can go to the "fitness" of Rep. Wright to participate as a member of the N.C. House; an area of qualification historically reserved for Houses of parliament to investigate

9) Motion to Dismiss all counts on grounds the creation of the House Select Committee and its actions generally violate due process and equal protection

a. Walker Reagan
   i. I don't think there are any arguments about the HSC's right to investigate this matter.
   ii. The question should be whether the House can sanction a member for this conduct, and if so, how.
      1. The HSC is established under House Rules. The right to challenge its existence or jurisdiction is procedural under the Rules of the House and can only be raised by a member of the body to the House itself.
      2. The HSC is only advisory to the House and has no independent power to sanction. Any violation of due process would be for actions or failure to act by the House.
      3. To the extent that the House relies on the actions of its committee, if the committee's process does not provide for adequate due process, and the House does not otherwise grant minimal due process, then that might be a problem.
      4. Again the argument should be to actions and procedures followed by the House, and not specifically actions or procedures of the HSC.

b. Due Process and Equal Protection challenges
   i. Due Process – prohibits a house of Congress from expelling a member on grounds that bear "no rational relation to legitimate concerns of the legislature."[1]
   ii. Equal Protection – prohibits a house of Congress from arbitrarily expelling certain members on the grounds of wealth, age, race or profession.[2]
   iii. LEC is merely adhering to its explicit authority under the House Rules to inquire into alleged violations
      1. LEC has notified Rep. Wright and given him opportunity to appear with counsel at hearings
      2. No specific allegations have been made by Rep. Wright concerning arbitrary treatment due to his wealth, age, race, or progession
      3. LEC may proceed with an inquiry into the conduct and shall schedule one or more hearings[3]
      4. LEC has not yet taken any action authorized under House Rule 28.1(c) therefore this motion is not yet ripe
      5. The inquiry is still in the LEC, not yet in the House, therefore this motion is not ripe no evid. presented to support argument.

[2] 41 Fordham L. Rev. 43, 51 (1972).
[3] House Rule 28.1(b)

10) Motion to Dismiss all counts on grounds the creation of the House Select Committee and its actions generally violate Article II, Section 20 of the NC Constitution

a. Walker Reagan
    i. Again the issue is not whether the HSC is improperly constituted or its actions are unconstitutional, but whether the House has acted properly.
    ii. Again the HSC is purely advisory and has no independent authority to sanction
    iii. As to whether the House acts properly under Art. II, Sec. 20, the question is whether the House's constitutional authority to sit in judgment of the qualifications of its members applies to expulsion or just exclusion.
    iv. It also goes to the issue whether the House's ability to sanction a member is limited to this constitutional grant, or whether the common law right of legislative bodies to discipline its members also applies. There are unchallenged precedents in NC, and court cases in other states, that have upheld this inherent power of a legislature.

b. Again this motion fails for ripeness
    i. The HSC was properly created and has yet to complete its inquiry, has not yet acted
    ii. Discussions of expulsion, exclusion, or other sanctions are premature
    iii. Although in civil suits the matter of whether a remedy is available is a factor of the claim's justiciability, to dismiss these Counts because the issue of possible sanctions is unclear would allow the accused to disable the authority of the HSC despite probable cause of misconduct
    iv. A bifurcated approach could be appropriate
        1. Determination of misconduct
            a. Yes→proceed to recommendations for House to act
            b. No→drop the matter

11) Motion to Dismiss all counts on grounds the Select Committee's actions violate Article VI, Section 8 of the NC Constitution by seeking expulsion where the legislator has not been adjudged guilty or convicted of a felony or corruption or malpractice by a competent authority
    a. Walker Reagan
        i. The power to remove by impeachment only applies to the Executive and Judicial branch, not the legislative branch.
        ii. The question is whether Art. VI, Sec. 8 applies to legislators, and if so, is it a limiting power, i.e. the only reason a person can be removed?
            1. If so, then the question is whether Wright's actions constitute corruption or malpractice in office.
            2. I am not sure, other than the Wade matter, that Wright's actions were corruption or malpractice in office, unless you argue that it constitutes a violation of his oath of office.
            3. Our research on the oath of office seems to show that the House oath does not include a promise to uphold the laws of the State, only the US constitution and federal laws, and the State constitution.
        iii. The other question is whether Art. VI, Sec. 8 limits the common law authority of a legislature to discipline its members. We have no cases in NC on point, but other states have upheld the common law authority when not otherwise restricted by the constitution.
        iv. The other issue inherent in this motion to dismiss is whether the House can act on conduct other than criminal convictions.
            1. The NC cases interpreting Art. VI, Sec. 8 seem to say that conviction of a crime in a criminal court is not required, but that an adjudication of criminal misconduct by a duly constituted body other than a criminal court is all that is required.
            2. Another process with adequate due process that makes a finding or an adjudication of criminal misconduct is sufficient. I think there are precedents in other states as well where a legislator has been expelled for criminal misconduct prior to a criminal conviction.
    b. Expulsion has not yet been recommended to the House
        i. Motion not ripe unless Committee refers expulsion/exclusion to the House under House Rule 28.1(c)(4)
        ii. Criminal conviction is not required for an adjudication:
            1. "Under N.C. Const. Art. VI § 8, the word 'adjudged' means 'to decide or rule upon as a judge or with judicial or quasi-judicial powers'..."[1]
            2. "...the word 'guilty' denotes evil and intentional wrongdoing, and refers to conscious and culpable acts, but it does not necessarily mean or require a criminal conviction or a jury finding."[2]

[2] Id.

12) Motion to Continue or Hold in Abeyance any hearing in this matter where the failure to do so would possibly prejudice Wright's rights to a fair criminal trial and prejudice the possible jury pool.
    a. Walker Reagan
        i. I think there are good fairness arguments here but I am not sure these go to the House's authority to act before a criminal conviction.
            1. If anything, it seems that by the House proceeding before the criminal trial, it might jeopardize a conviction, and give more credence to Wright's arguments that a conviction should be thrown out.
        ii. On the fairness argument, I think Wright can argue that he cannot adequately defend himself before the House without the risk of incriminating himself and that he should not have to give up his constitutional right against self-incrimination in order to save his legislative seat.
            1. I think an argument could be made that he can still defend himself without testifying himself.
            2. His arguments that he should not have to show his hand in the criminal case before trial by showing it in the House proceeding doesn't hold much water with me since some, if not all, of the evidence may have to be disclosed prior to trial in the criminal proceeding anyway.
        iii. As to prejudicing the jury pool, while the House proceedings might have some impact, I am not sure how much attention this matter is getting in Wake County outside the General Assembly. Even if it does, Wright can always make a motion to move the trial to another county.
        iv. The bottom line might be whether the House feels that a criminal conviction is more important than any earlier expulsion and, therefore, in order to be sure not to undermine a possible criminal conviction, the House delays acting until the criminal process is concluded. Otherwise, I don't know of any constitutional arguments as to why the House has to defer to or is contingent upon action in the criminal case.

    b. Balancing Test
        i. One side – possibly removing a representative thereby eventually providing the citizens of his district to be represented
        ii. Other side – going into uncharted legal territory regarding the expulsion of a NC House member prior to a criminal conviction
            1. Possibly hindering the process of the criminal trial and/or providing grounds for appeal in the criminal adjudication iii. It seems to me that a recommendation to the House to pursue a vote for expulsion, prior to a criminal conviction, could open a can of worms
            1. In the criminal trial
                a. Right against self-incrimination
                b. Jury pool tainting

c. At least enough so to preserve for appeal, i.e. further draw out criminal adjudication

2. In the General Assembly
    a. If Rep. Wright is acquitted at the trial level after being expelled from the General Assembly this could open another can of worms
    b. Previous questions again arise
        i. What is "adjudication"
        ii. Fairness – less difficult standard of review for NCGA to met than for Wake County DA
3. However, all the while, the citizens of Rep. Wright's district are not effectively represented at the General Assembly
    a. Public policy – is it worth potentially elongating the criminal process and breaking new ground in the area of member expulsion…This is the question
    b. Wake DA has to make a case – if Rep. Wright is not sanctioned under a standard that is less than a reasonable doubt it will be difficult to convict at the trial court
    c. Time considerations
        i. Date of criminal trial, continuances, etc.
        ii. Date of session starting
        iii. Time to replace Rep. if expelled

NOTICE OF CHARGES OF UNETHICAL CONDUCT
BY REPRESENTATIVE THOMAS E. WRIGHT

The House Select Committee to Investigate Alleged Misconduct and Other Matters Included in Indictments against Representative Thomas E. Wright, having convened for hearing on the report of preliminary investigative findings on questions of possible unethical conduct, hereby finds that there is probable cause to believe that Representative Thomas E. Wright has engaged in unethical conduct during his tenure as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives by committing the following acts:

COUNT 1

Between on or about March 13, 2002 and on or about March 15, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by orally and in writing improperly and unethically soliciting Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, to write and mail to him a fraudulent letter stating that such Office was endorsing The Community's Health Foundation's project to convert a building located on the 900 block of 4th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina into Community's Health Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices, and a History Museum and committing $150,000.00 in funding toward the completion of that project. At the time of the solicitation, Thomas E. Wright was the Chairman of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., located at 322 South 17th Street in Wilmington, North Carolina. Thomas E. Wright confirmed his earlier oral solicitation by having his legislative assistant type the necessary details needed in the commitment letter in an e-mail that was sent to Torlen L. Wade by use of his State e-mail account and on a State computer, both of which were authorized for him based on his position as a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives. At the time of the oral solicitation, the typing and sending of the e-mail, and the typing and sending of the Torlen L. Wade letter, both Thomas E. Wright and Torlen L. Wade knew that the Office of Rural Health would not make such a grant and that Thomas E. Wright would use the letter in seeking to fraudulently obtain funding for The Community's Health Foundation from other sources such as financial institutions and other organizations that make grants and that would believe and rely on the false representations in Torlen L. Wade's letter.

On or about April 5, 2002, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by, orally and in writing, improperly, fraudulently, and unethically presenting to a representative of Coastal Federal Bank as a factor to consider in whether to loan $150,000.00 to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a corporation of which Wright was the President, a letter from Torlen L. Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development of the North Carolina Department of Health and Human Services, falsely stating that the Office endorsed the Foundation's museum conversion effort and was committed to funding the project in the amount of $150,000.00 and that the award of the funding would occur by June 30, 2002. At the time Thomas Wright presented the letter to the representative of Coastal Federal Bank, he knew that the assertions in the letter were false, that the commitment of funds was not authorized, and that the award of funding would not be forthcoming. The $150,000.00 loan to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. obtained from Coastal Federal Bank was made in part relying on the contents of the fraudulent letter presented by Thomas Wright.

COUNT 3

On or about December 15, 2003, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP, requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for various health related purposes, including but not limited to educational initiatives, a needs assessment, identification of trends and bridging the gap of minority health care for an underserved population in New Hanover County. Thereafter, when on December 15, 2003, a representative of AstraZeneca Pharmaceuticals, LP signed and sent to Thomas Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Hlth Found Inc" in the amount of $2,400.00, Thomas Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 4

On or about February 6, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas Wright wrote a letter on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc., requesting as the Foundation's president a donation to the Foundation, a charitable organization qualified to receive tax-deductible donations, that would be used by the Foundation for acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that would serve as a museum. Thereafter, on March 5, 2004, when a representative of Anheuser-Busch Companies, Inc. signed and sent to Thomas Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation Inc" in the amount of $5,000.00, Thomas Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 5

On or about April 1, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting money intended to be a charitable contribution to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to his own personal use. Thomas Wright wrote an invoice on the letterhead stationery of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. to a representative of AT&T Corp. as a solicitation of a charitable contribution to the Foundation, a charitable organization qualified to receive tax-deductible donations. Thereafter, on April 1, 2004, when a representative of AT&T Corp. signed and sent to Thomas Wright and The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., a check made out to "Communitys Health Foundation I" in the amount of $1,500.00, Thomas Wright deposited that check into his own personal account rather than into the account of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc.

COUNT 6

Between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, and unethically converting to his own personal use money loaned by South East Community Credit Union to a charitable organization, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. On or about October 28, 2001, without approval of the other incorporators of The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., Thomas E. Wright solicited and obtained from South East Community Credit Union, a business line of credit in the amount of $10,000.00 for The Community's Health Foundation, Inc. Thereafter, between October 28, 2001 and November 21, 2001, he personally obtained funds three times based on that line of credit in the total amount of $9,910.27, which he failed to turn over to the Foundation, put into a bank account for the Foundation, or use for the benefit of the Foundation, instead converting those funds to his own use and benefit by depositing them in his own account without the knowledge and approval of the Board of Directors of the Foundation.

COUNT 7

Between January 1, 2000 and January 31, 2007, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did improperly, fraudulently, and unethically engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by intentionally failing to disclose approximately $185,000.00 in contributions received by his campaign during that time period, which disclosures are required by law and are intended to safeguard the public trust and to preserve the integrity of the electoral process, the integrity of the House of Representatives, and the integrity of the legislative process.

COUNT 8

Between on or about October, 2001 and on or about April, 2004, while a member of the North Carolina House of Representatives, Thomas E. Wright did engage in a pattern of conduct unbecoming and unfitting a member of the House of Representatives by improperly, fraudulently, deceptively, and unethically soliciting financial institutions and corporations for loans and donations to a charitable corporation, The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., and by converting to his own personal use money loaned or contributed to that charitable organization. As part of this pattern of conduct, Thomas E. Wright solicited a false document and used that false document in one of his loan solicitations.

Dear Mr. McKinney,

The Community's Health Foundation, Inc is requesting your support in the acquisition and development of a building in Wilmington, North Carolina that will serve as a historical relic and museum about the 1898 Race Riot that occurred in Wilmington, North Carolina. The museum will exhibit historical events that took place and recapture these moments for future generations to explore, examine, and uncover the truth about such a horrific time in American History. This is a very important endeavor for the community of Wilmington, the state of North Carolina and our nation.

We are requesting your support to aid this foundation's efforts. Please make the check payable to The Community's Health Foundation, Inc., in care of Thomas E. Wright. Contributions are tax deductible under the 501 (c) (3) of the Internal Revenue Code. Our Tax Id# is 56-2252434.

If you need to contact me or need additional information, please do not hesitate to give me a call. Again, thanks for your support.

MEMORANDUM OF INTERVIEW

In re:	Thomas Wright	Location:	State Board of Elections
Case #:	2006-CF-051		4:15pm
Date:	5/11/2007

Participants: Torlen Wade
Kim Strach
Amy Strange

After being advised of the identities of the interviewing parties and the nature of the interview, Torlen Wade provided the following information:

Mr. Wade advised that he is the Director of the Division of Rural Health and Community Care, which is a division of the Department of Health and Human Services. Over the years he has been very active in setting up community health centers. He was asked if he recalled a grant award letter from his office to The Community's Health Foundation for a building loan in 2002. Mr. Wade immediately stated that he did remember such a letter. He recalled that Representative Wright asked him for a letter to secure a loan for a building he wanted to utilize as a museum. Representative Wright told Mr. Wade that he didn't expect him to actually provide the money, but he needed him to provide a letter stating that the Division would allocate these funds. Representative Wright further told him he wouldn't use the letter. Mr. Wade stated that his Division did not have the funding nor could they use their funding for the purpose that Representative Wright wanted. Mr. Wade stated that he told Representative Wright that the activities of the museum were not the type of activities funded by Mr. Wade's office. Representative Wright indicated that he understood and that he had already secured the money he needed. However, he needed a letter to show he had the funding. Mr. Wade stated that he probably shouldn't have written it, but he knew he wouldn't have to provide the funding because Representative Wright assured him he wouldn't hold him to the letter. In order to clarify that there was no actual grant award intended, Mr. Wade was specifically asked if his Division provided any funding to The Community's Health Foundation. Mr. Wade stated that his Division did not provide any funding to The Community's Health Foundation. He stated that Representative Wright told him he didn't expect any money and that he didn't intend to use the letter.

Mr. Wade stated that he had worked with Wright and Dr. Dan Gottovi on the New Hanover Community Health Center and other projects. He stated that Wright had been extremely helpful in projects they had worked on.

Wade stated that he would provide a copy of the letter to our office. We provided him our fax number and expressed how we needed the letter for the May 15, 2007, hearing. He stated that he thought he had the letter in a file and would provide it to us.

Mr. Wade indicated that he would be out of town the week of May 15, 2007, attending a conference at Harvard University. He explained that his division was being considered for National recognition. He further indicated that he would be traveling with Secretary Hooker-Odom.

This memorandum was prepared on 5/15/2007, utilizing notes taken during the interview. I certify that this memorandum contains an accurate summary of all pertinent matters discussed during the interview.

KIMBERLY WESTBROOK STRACH, Deputy Director, State Board of Elections, 506 North Harrington Street, Raleigh, NC, Telephone: (919) 715-2334

Interviewed Thursday, October 11, 2007, 9:25am, by telephone by Bill Dowdy.

Strach was interviewed to determine what led her to interview TORLEN WADE and to determine if she was aware that THOMAS WRIGHT was seeking funding which included a museum.

Strach stated that she was attempting to find out about a loan from Coastal Federal Bank to The Community Health Foundation, Inc.

She stated in an interview on May 8, 2207, had stated that at Coastal Federal Bank, when questioned by about why the bank had made the loan to The Community Health Foundation, had shown Lofton a copy of some type of grant letter from a State agency.

When was interviewed on May 10, 2007 about Coastal Federal Bank's loan to The Community Health Foundation, stated there was a grant verification letter for the amount of the loan or higher and the letter was from the Golden Leaf Foundation or N. C. Rural Health.

As a result of the aforementioned information, TORLEN WADE was called in and interviewed by Strach and Amy Strange of the State Board of Elections on May 11, 2007.

The interview of TORLEN WADE began with Amy Strange asking TORLEN WADE if his agency had issued a grant award letter to The Community Health Foundation for a building loan in 2002. TORLEN WADE responded that he recalled a letter he had written as a result of THOMAS WRIGHT asking him to write a letter to secure a loan for a building he wanted to use as a museum. WADE, who became seemingly upset, stated that he should not have written the letter because N. C. Rural Health did not have the funding and N. C. Rural Health could not provide funding for a museum. and had both stated during interviews that THOMAS WRIGHT had an interest in using some portion of the building for a memorial or museum commemorating the 1898 race riots. WADE was not provided any information about WRIGHT'S purpose for the building, only that he had secured a loan for the building.

Strach stated that WADE related that WRIGHT said he did not expect WADE to provide any money but he just needed a letter that stated the funds would be allocated. WADE also stated that THOMAS WRIGHT indicated he had already secured the money he needed but he needed a letter to show he had the funds. WADE further stated that THOMAS WRIGHT told him that he did not intend on using TORLEN WADE'S letter.

According to TORLEN WADE, he had worked with THOMAS WRIGHT and Dr. Dan Gottovi on the New Hanover Community Health Center and other projects and he had found THOMAS WRIGHT to be very helpful.

Strach stated she did not recall any discussion with TORLEN WADE during this interview that the loan or funding in question involved the New Hanover Community Health Center or about the New Hanover Community Health Center moving its administrative offices to the Lofton property or about The Community Health Foundation, Inc. having its offices in the same building.

North Carolina House of Representatives
Raleigh 27601-1096

JOE HACKNEY
SPEAKER

The Honorable Daniel G. Clodfelter, Cochair
The Honorable Rick Glazier, Cochair
Legislative Ethics Committee

Dear Senator Clodfelter and Representative Glazier:

As Speaker, I have the solemn responsibility of protecting the integrity of the House of Representatives as an institution. Therefore, I am asking you to convene the Legislative Ethics Committee (LEC) so that it can investigate the alleged violation of the Legislative Ethics Act or the criminal law, or both, by Representative Thomas Wright.

As you know, the State Board of Elections (SBOE) conducted a hearing May 15, 2007, to consider allegations and evidence of alleged violations of campaign finance regulations and of other possible criminal wrongdoing. At the end of the hearing, the SBE referred the matter to the Wake County District Attorney to consider criminal charges against Representative Wright.

Due to the grave nature of the allegations and evidence, particularly that which indicates Representative Wright may have used his political office for personal financial gain, I believe it is essential that the General Assembly, through the LEC, also must conduct an investigation into this matter. As part of its investigation, I ask the LEC to review the attached order from the SBOE and the attached SBOE summary of the information analyzed for the investigation, and to consider any evidence that is available.

I ask that your committee expeditiously conduct this investigation.

Very truly yours,

Joe Hackney
Speaker

VIA HAND DELIVERY

Dear Mr. Willoughby:

The State Board of Elections conducted an investigation into alleged violations of campaign finance regulations as identified in a complaint filed by Joe Sinsheimer and additional violations identified during the investigation of the complaint. The attached order reflects the vote of the State Board members at a hearing held on May 15, 2007 to refer Representative Thomas Wright and his political committees for consideration and possible prosecution. The transcript setting forth the factual basis for the referral will be forwarded as soon as we receive it.

The State Board is very appreciative of your willingness to accept responsibility for sifting through the evidence in this matter and working with the district attorney from New Hanover County in determining whether campaign finance and related violations should be prosecuted. We will be happy to provide any records we have obtained for prosecutorial review.

Finally, the State Board respectfully requests that should criminal action be pursued against Representative Wright or his committee, that an effort be made pursuant to N.C. G.S. 163-278.27(d) to obtain reimbursement for this Board and the State of the costs of this investigation as part of any criminal penalty assessed.

Please feel free to contact either me or Kim Strach with any questions you may have concerning this referral or any other matters related to this investigation. Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

Gary O. Bartlett

BEFORE THE STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS

IN RE: INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINT OF JOE SINSHEIMER ALLEGING ILLEGAL CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY BY THE THOMAS WRIGHT CAMPAIGN AND ADDITIONAL POTENTIAL VIOLATIONS IDENTIFIED DURING THE INVESTIGATION	)	ORDER

THIS MATTER CAME BEFORE THE STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS on May 15, 2007, on the complaint of Joe Sinsheimer. Christopher Brook represented Thomas Wright and the Thomas Wright Campaign. Upon review of the complaint of Joe Sinsheimer, information gathered by the staff of this Board, the reports of the staff, campaign reports filed with this Board, and testimony and other evidence of witnesses called by this Board, the State Board orders as follows:

By unanimous vote, IT IS NOW ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, that this complaint and the matters developed during the investigation, including the commingling of political monies with the personal funds of Thomas Wright, the failure to timely and accurately file reports which reflect an accurate accounting of the campaign contributions received or expenditures made by Thomas Wright or his Committee, possible perjury with respect to those reports, and the possible willful receipt of illegal campaign contributions, be referred to the District Attorney of Wake County for consultation with the District Attorney of New Hanover County and evaluation, review and subsequent prosecution if deemed appropriate. The staff shall provide the information it has gathered in the course of this investigation to these authorities if requested to do so.

This the 24th day of May, 2007.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS
CAMPAIGN FINANCE INVESTIGATION

OVERVIEW

In re:	Investigation of Complaint of Joe Sinsheimer alleging illegal campaign activity by the Thomas Wright Campaign and additional potential violations identified during the investigation
Case #:	2006-CF-051
Assigned to:	Kim Strach/Campaign Finance Audit and Compliance Staff

The following documents provide a summary of the information analyzed for the investigation of the Sinsheimer complaint about the Thomas Wright Campaign. The investigation of the complaint was expanded after irregularities were discovered in the audit of the financial records. Financial records were obtained for the years 2000 through early March 2007. The financial records included three bank accounts maintained by the Thomas Wright Campaign, Thomas Wright, and Thomas and Joyce Wright at Bank of America, one account at First Citizens Bank and one account at Coastal Federal Bank. Additionally, the bank records for the Community's Health Foundation were obtained and analyzed. The Community's Health Foundation was incorporated by Representative Thomas Wright.

The pertinent information is as follows and includes:

1. Complaint filed by Joe Sinsheimer

2. Sims Hugo Neu contributions and information regarding their receipt by Representative Wright.

   - Allegations of willfully delaying disclosure of contributions. Investigation found delay of reporting numerous contributions including those of Sims Hugo Neu employees. Wright was in a competitive primary and the landfill that Sims Hugo Neu was attempting to place in the Town of Navassa was extremely controversial. Wright deposited checks prior to the primary but did not report their receipt until seven days before the general election. A sworn affidavit from Curtis Wright, talk show host, states that Wright told him in October of 2006 that he had not received contributions from employees of Sims Hugo Neu.

3. Summary of bank accounts analyzed
   - Wright had several bank accounts from 2000-2006. He commingled campaign contributions in accounts with personal receipts. Often, the campaign contributions that were deposited into commingled accounts funded personal expenditures that he would not have had the personal funds to cover. It was extremely difficult to determine the exact amount of expenditures that should have been reported by his political committee due to the commingling.

4. Campaign Finance history of the Thomas Wright Campaign (1997-present)
   - Wright has had a history of non-compliance with the Board. Even when he had designated another treasurer, he signed the campaign finance reports. Daryl Parker, treasurer of record during most of the period under investigation, never signed a disclosure report. His ex-wife was the Secretary on the bank account and did sign some checks. She indicated to staff during a telephone interview that she wrote checks at the direction of Thomas Wright without any supporting documentation. Mr. Parker was unwilling to meet and answer questions during the staff investigation. Both Parkers testified at the hearing but recalled very little specific information about the Committee.

5. Contributions not disclosed on any campaign finance report filed by the Thomas Wright Campaign
   - Wright has failed to provide disclosure of more than $211,000 since the year 2000. Using reports filed by PACs with this office, we were able to determine more than $30,000 in contributions he received from PACs that he didn't report on any campaign finance disclosure report during 1992-1999.

6. Contributions incorrectly reported
   - Of the contributions that he does disclose, over $68,000 were reported in a reporting period other than when he deposited the contribution.

7. Expenditures not disclosed on any campaign finance report filed by the Thomas Wright Campaign
   - The disclosure of expenditures was analyzed to identify those made from a "campaign" account or which were obviously campaign expenditures from a commingled account. More than $122,000 of these campaign expenditures were not reported since 2000. Because campaign contributions were deposited into accounts with personal receipts, it is difficult to determine whether more than $400,000 in expenditures were campaign expenses or were personal expenses paid for with campaign funds. Until October 1, 2006, it was permissible for personal expenses to be paid from campaign funds so long as those expenditures were disclosed.

8. Summary of prohibited contributions
   - More than $14,000 of prohibited contributions (including checks made payable to the Community's Health Foundation) were received by Thomas Wright and deposited into one of his accounts.

9. Background information regarding legislation affecting nurse anesthetists and contributions made by nurse anesthetists in connection with a November 2005 fundraiser for Rep. Thomas Wright. This information was available to Board members as a result of the staff investigation but was not brought out at the hearing.
   - House Bill 503-Authorize Licensure/Anesthesiologist Assts. was filed on March 3, 2005. The bill among other things would require nurse anesthetists to be supervised by a physician. Nurse anesthetists were strongly opposed to this bill. House Bill 503 was referred to the Committee on Health. Rep. Wright served as Chair of this Committee. Beginning May 12, 2005, House Bill 503 was on the agenda of five meetings of the Committee on Health. On July 26, 2005, a motion was made for a favorable report to the committee substitute and for the bill to be referred to the Committee on Finance. Motion carried. Rep. Wright, Chairman of the Committee on Health, did not report the bill out of Committee. Thereafter, CRNA's approached Rep. Wright to ask him if they could plan and organize a fundraiser in his honor. Rep. Wright agreed and a fundraiser was held on November 12, 2005 at the Seaside Club in Wrightsville Beach. CRNA's and their lobbyists made contributions to the Thomas Wright Campaign at this event in the amount of $18,075.00. Rep. Wright failed to disclose $13,375.00 of these contributions. Daryl Parker testified that he remembered attending a fundraiser organized by nurses but he did not remember details.

10. The Community's Health Foundation background and summary of findings.
    - On April 18, 2001, Thomas E. Wright filed Articles of Incorporation for the Community's Health Foundation with the Secretary of State as a Non Profit Corporation. Thomas E. Wright is named as the initial registered agent and the street address of the corporation is disclosed as 925 North 4th St. Wilmington, NC 28401. The Articles of Incorporation indicate that the Corporation was set up as a 501(c)(3) not for profit corporation. However, our research indicates that the IRS "does not show an exemption by virtue of an approved application." We have found no record of this corporation receiving the tax exempt status.
    - On March 15, 2002, Torlen Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Developments, signed a letter drafted at the request of Rep. Wright stating that the Office was committing $150,000 in funding toward the completion of the Community's Health Foundation's effort to convert the building located on the 900 block of 4th Street into Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices and into a History Museum. The letter further states that the funding would be awarded by June 30, 2002. Mr. Wade provided this letter knowing his Office was not going to fund this project because they didn't have the money and could not use the money for the purpose of a Race Riot museum. Wright told him he didn't need him to provide the money because he had already secured the needed money, but he needed the letter to show he had funding. Wade stated that in retrospect he should not have written the letter.

- On April 5, 2002, The Community's Health Foundation signed a Promissory Note to Coastal Federal Bank for $150,000, due in six months (October 5, 2002). The note was signed by Thomas Wright and Dr. Dan Gottovi. Additionally, the Community's Health Foundation signed a note to Helyn Rogers Lofton for $150,000 also due on October 5, 2002. The Community's Health Foundation received no grants or other contributions at this time.
- Thomas E. Wright withdraws cash in the amount of $4,900 from his Campaign Account and purchases a cashier's check on October 31, 2002, to make a payment toward the Promissory Note to Coastal Federal Bank.
- Dr. Dan Gottovi wrote two checks totaling $4,324.18 between March 13th and March 18th of 2003 to Coastal Federal Bank after he received letters stating the building was in foreclosure status. His checks were an attempt to keep the building from going through foreclosure.
- No other payments are made on the Promissory Notes.
- Thomas E. Wright sent a letter on Feburary 6, 2004 to Lewis McKinney, employee of Anheuser-Busch Companies, soliciting money for the development of a building. He provided a federal tax id number and states that contributions are tax deductible. We can find no evidence that the Community's Health Foundation obtained a determination that it was a tax exempt corporation to which contributions were tax deductable. Anheuser-Busch cuts a check to the Community's Health Foundation on March 5, 2004, in the amount of $5,000. Thomas Wright deposited this check into one of his personal/campaign accounts on August 11, 2004.
- The Notice of Foreclosure for the building of The Community's Health Foundation was filed on June 22, 2004.
- Thomas Wright also deposits checks into his personal/campaign account from AT &T (corporate account) in the amount of $1,500 and Astra Zeneka (corporate account) in the amount of $2,400 on July 26, 2004 and August 11, 2004, respectively. The date on the AT&T check is April 1, 2004, and the check from Astra Zeneka was dated December 15, 2003.
- There is no transaction after the deposit of those checks in the account to which they were deposited indicating these funds were used in any way for The Community's Health Foundation.

- The bank account for The Community's Health Foundation was closed due to "charge off" on June 28, 2004.

11. Potential Election Law statutory violations
    - False certification of campaign reports is perjury:

1. § 163-278.32. Statements under oath.

Any statement required to be filed under this Article shall be signed and certified as true and correct by the, media, candidate, treasurer or others required to file it, and shall be certified as true and correct to the best of the knowledge of the individual, media, candidate, treasurer or others filing the statement; provided further that the candidate shall certify as true and correct to the best of his knowledge the organizational report and appointment of treasurer filed for the candidate or the candidate's principal campaign committee. Any person making a certification under this Article knowing the information to be untrue may be prosecuted for perjury under G.S. 14-209.

2. Intentional failure of a political committee to report contributions received and expenditures made within seven days prior to the date a report is due is a violation of GS 163-278.9(b) and is misdemeanor under GS 163-278.27 (a). The statute of limitations for a criminal violation runs from the day the last report is due to be filed for the election cycle during which the violation occurred.

3. Intentional acceptance by a political committee of corporate contributions is a violation of GS 163-278.15 and violation of it is a misdemeanor as set forth in #2 above. Commingling corporate funds with individual and political committee contributions is improper.

4. The treasurer of a political committee shall keep detailed accounts, current within no more than seven days after the date of receiving a contribution or making an expenditure, of all contributions received and all expenditures made by or on behalf of the candidate, political committee, or referendum committee. G.S. 163-278.8(a). Intentional violation of this statute is a misdemeanor as set forth in #2 above.

Principal Amount: $150,000.00 Initial Rate: 8.250% Date of Note: April 5, 2002

PROMISE TO PAY. THE COMMUNITY HEALTH FOUNDATION INC ("Borrower") promises to pay to Coastal Federal Bank ("Lender"), or order, in lawful money of the United States of America, the principal amount of One Hundred Fifty Thousand & 00/100 Dollars ($150,000.00), together with interest on the unpaid principal balance from April 5, 2002, until paid in full.

PAYMENT. Borrower will pay this loan in one principal payment of $150,000.00 plus interest on October 5, 2002. This payment due on October 5, 2002, will be for all principal and all accrued interest not yet paid. Unless otherwise agreed or required by applicable law, payments will be applied first to accrued unpaid interest, then to principal, and any remaining amount to any unpaid collection costs and late charges. The annual interest rate for this Note is computed on a 365/360 basis; that is, by applying the ratio of the annual interest rate over a year of 360 days, multiplied by the outstanding principal balance, multiplied by the actual number of days the principal balance is outstanding. Borrower will pay Lender at Lender's address shown above or at such other place as Lender may designate in writing.

VARIABLE INTEREST RATE. The interest rate on this Note is subject to change from time to time based on changes in an independent index which is the Prime Rate as published in the "Money Rates" section of The Wall Street Journal (the "Index"). The Index is not necessarily the lowest rate charged by Lender on its loans. If the Index becomes unavailable during the term of this loan, Lender may designate a substitute index after notice to Borrower. Lender will tell Borrower the current Index rate upon Borrower's request. The interest rate change will not occur more often than each day after any change in the Index. Borrower understands that Lender may make loans based on other rates as well. The Index currently is 4.750% per annum. The interest rate to be applied to the unpaid principal balance of this Note will be at a rate of 1.500 percentage points over the Index, rounded up to the nearest 0.125 percent, resulting in an initial rate of 6.250% per annum. NOTICE: Under no circumstances will the interest rate on this Note be more than the maximum rate allowed by applicable law.

PREPAYMENT. Borrower agrees that all loan fees and other prepaid finance charges are earned fully as of the date of the loan and will not be subject to refund upon early payment (whether voluntary or as a result of default), except as otherwise required by law. Except for the foregoing, Borrower may pay without penalty all or a portion of the amount owed earlier than it is due. Early payments will not, unless agreed to by Lender in writing, relieve Borrower of Borrower's obligation to continue to make payments under the payment schedule. Rather, early payments will reduce the principal balance due. Borrower agrees not to send Lender payments marked "paid in full", "without recourse", or similar language. If Borrower sends such a payment, Lender may accept it without losing any of Lender's rights under this Note, and Borrower will remain obligated to pay any further amount owed to Lender. All written communications concerning disputed amounts, including any check or other payment instrument that indicates that the payment constitutes "payment in full" of the amount owed or that is tendered with other conditions or limitations or as full satisfaction of a disputed amount must be mailed or delivered to: Coastal Federal Bank, 3810 Oak Street Myrtle Beach, SC 29577.

LATE CHARGE. If a payment is 15 days or more late, Borrower will be charged 4.000% of the unpaid portion of the regularly scheduled payment. This late charge shall be paid to Lender by Borrower to compensate Lender for Lender's extra costs and expenses caused by the late payment.

INTEREST AFTER DEFAULT. Upon default, including failure to pay upon final maturity, at Lender's option, and if permitted by applicable law, Lender may add any unpaid accrued interest to principal and such sum will bear interest therefrom until paid at the rate provided in this Note (including any increased rate). Upon default, Lender, at its option, may, if permitted under applicable law, increase the variable interest rate on this Note to 8.500 percentage points over the Index. The interest rate will not exceed the maximum rate permitted by applicable law.

DEFAULT. Each of the following shall constitute an event of default ("Event of Default") under this Note:

Payment Default. Borrower fails to make any payment when due under this Note.

Other Defaults. Borrower fails to comply with or to perform any other term, obligation, covenant or condition contained in this Note or in any of the related documents or to comply with or to perform any term, obligation, covenant or condition contained in any other agreement between Lender and Borrower.

Default in Favor of Third Parties. Borrower or any Grantor defaults under any loan, extension of credit, security agreement, purchase or sales agreement, or any other agreement, in favor of any other creditor or person that may materially affect any of Borrower's property or Borrower's ability to repay this Note or perform Borrower's obligations under this Note or any of the related documents.

False Statements. Any warranty, representation or statement made or furnished to Lender by Borrower or on Borrower's behalf under this Note or the related documents is false or misleading in any material respect, either now or at the time made or furnished or becomes false or misleading at any time thereafter.

Insolvency. The dissolution or termination of Borrower's existence as a going business, the insolvency of Borrower, the appointment of a receiver for any part of Borrower's property, any assignment for the benefit of creditors, any type of creditor workout, or the commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency laws by or against Borrower.

Creditor or Forfeiture Proceedings. Commencement of foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings, whether by judicial proceeding, self-help, repossession or any other method, by any creditor of Borrower or by any governmental agency against any collateral securing the loan. This includes a garnishment of any of Borrower's accounts, including deposit accounts, with Lender. However, this Event of Default shall not apply if there is a good faith dispute by Borrower as to the validity or reasonableness of the claim which is the basis of the creditor or forfeiture proceeding and if Borrower gives Lender written notice of the creditor or forfeiture proceeding and deposits with Lender monies or a surety bond for the creditor or forfeiture proceeding, in an amount determined by Lender, in its sole discretion, as being an adequate reserve or bond for the dispute.

Events Affecting Guarantor. Any of the preceding events occurs with respect to any guarantor, endorser, surety, or accommodation party of any of the Indebtedness or any guarantor, endorser, surety, or accommodation party dies or becomes incompetent, or revokes or disputes the validity of, or liability under, any guaranty of the Indebtedness evidenced by this Note.

Change in Ownership. Any change in ownership of twenty-five percent (25%) or more of the common stock of Borrower.

Adverse Change. A material adverse change occurs in Borrower's financial condition, or Lender believes the prospect of payment or performance of this Note is impaired.

Insecurity. Lender in good faith believes itself insecure.

LENDER'S RIGHTS. Upon default, Lender may declare the entire unpaid principal balance on this Note and all accrued unpaid interest immediately due, and then Borrower will pay that amount.

ATTORNEYS' FEES; EXPENSES. Lender may hire or pay someone else to help collect this Note if Borrower does not pay. Borrower will pay Lender that amount. This includes, subject to any limits under applicable law, Lender's attorneys' fees and Lender's legal expenses, whether or not there is a lawsuit, including attorneys' fees, expenses for bankruptcy proceedings (including efforts to modify or vacate any automatic stay or injunction), and appeals. If not prohibited by applicable law, Borrower also will pay any court costs, in addition to all other sums provided by law.

JURY WAIVER. Lender and Borrower hereby waive the right to any jury trial in any action, proceeding, or counterclaim brought by either Lender or Borrower against the other.

GOVERNING LAW. This Note will be governed by, construed and enforced in accordance with federal law and the laws of the State of North Carolina. This Note has been accepted by Lender in the State of North Carolina.

RIGHT OF SETOFF. To the extent permitted by applicable law, Lender reserves a right of setoff in all Borrower's accounts with Lender (whether checking, savings, or some other account). This includes all accounts Borrower may open in the future. However, this does not include any IRA or Keogh accounts, or any trust accounts for which setoff would be prohibited by law. Borrower authorizes Lender, to the extent permitted by applicable law, to charge or setoff all sums owing on the Indebtedness against any and all such accounts, and, at Lender's option, to administratively freeze all such accounts to allow Lender to protect Lender's charge and setoff rights provided in this paragraph.

COLLATERAL. Borrower acknowledges this Note is secured by the following collateral described in the security instruments listed herein, all the terms and conditions of which are hereby incorporated and made a part of this Note.

(A) a Deed of Trust dated April 5, 2002, to a trustee in favor of Lender on real property located in NEW HANOVER County, State of North Carolina.

Loan No [redacted]

(B) an Assignment of All Rents to Lender on real property located in NEW HANOVER County, State of North Carolina.

SUCCESSOR INTERESTS. The terms of this Note shall be binding upon Borrower, and upon Borrower's heirs, personal representatives, successors and assigns, and shall inure to the benefit of Lender and its successors and assigns.

GENERAL PROVISIONS. Lender may delay or forgo enforcing any of its rights or remedies under this Note without losing them. Borrower and any other person who signs, guarantees or endorses this Note, to the extent allowed by law, waive presentment, demand for payment, and notice of dishonor. Upon any change in the terms of this Note, and unless otherwise expressly stated in writing, no party who signs this Note, whether as maker, guarantor, accommodation maker or endorser, shall be released from liability. All such parties agree that Lender may renew or extend (repeatedly and for any length of time) this loan or release any party or guarantor or collateral; or impair, fail to realize upon or perfect Lender's security interest in the collateral; and take any other action deemed necessary by Lender without the consent of or notice to anyone. All such parties also agree that Lender may modify this loan without the consent of or notice to anyone other than the party with whom the modification is made. The obligations under this Note are joint and several.

PRIOR TO SIGNING THIS NOTE, BORROWER READ AND UNDERSTOOD ALL THE PROVISIONS OF THIS NOTE, INCLUDING THE VARIABLE INTEREST RATE PROVISIONS. BORROWER AGREES TO THE TERMS OF THE NOTE.

BORROWER ACKNOWLEDGES RECEIPT OF A COMPLETED COPY OF THIS PROMISSORY NOTE.

DEED OF TRUST SECURING FUTURE ADVANCES

THIS DEED OF TRUST is dated April 5, 2002, among THE COMMUNITY HEALTH FOUNDATION INC, whose address is 322 S. 17TH STREET, WILMINGTON, NC 28401 ("Grantor"); Coastal Federal Bank, whose address is Wilmington Central Business District, 109 Market Street, Wilmington, NC 28401 (referred to below sometimes as "Beneficiary"); and Michael C. Gerald, whose address is 2619 Oak Street, Myrtle Beach, SC 29577 (referred to below as "Trustee").

CONVEYANCE AND GRANT. NOW, THEREFORE, as security for the Indebtedness, advancements and other sums expended by the Beneficiary pursuant to this Deed of Trust and costs of collection (including attorneys' fees as provided in the Note) and other valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, Grantor has bargained, sold, given, granted and conveyed and does by these presents bargain, sell, give, grant and convey to Trustee, and Trustee's heirs or successors and assigns, for the benefit of Lender as Beneficiary, all of Grantor's right, title, and interest in and to the following described real property, together with all existing or subsequently erected or affixed buildings, improvements and fixtures; all easements, rights of way, and appurtenances; all water, water rights and ditch rights (including stock in utilities with ditch or irrigation rights); and all other rights, royalties, and profits relating to the real property, including without limitation all minerals, oil, gas, geothermal and similar matters, (the "Real Property") located in NEW HANOVER County, State of North Carolina:

grantor awards all of its rights to the property to trustee as security for indebtedness on the property.

See "EXHIBIT A", which is attached to this Deed of Trust and made a part of this Deed of Trust as if fully set forth herein.

The Real Property or its address is commonly known as 926 N. 4TH STREET, WILMINGTON, NC 28401.

To have and to hold said Real Property with all privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging, to the Trustee, his heirs, successors and assigns forever, upon the trusts, terms and conditions and for the uses hereinafter set forth.

Grantor presently assigns to Lender (also known as Beneficiary in this Deed of Trust) all of Grantor's right, title, and interest in and to all present and future leases of the Property and all Rents from the Property. In addition, Grantor grants to Lender a Uniform Commercial Code security interest in the Personal Property and Rents.

grantor gives bank present + future leases/rents + UCC security interest

THIS DEED OF TRUST, INCLUDING THE ASSIGNMENT OF RENTS AND THE SECURITY INTEREST IN THE RENTS AND PERSONAL PROPERTY, IS GIVEN TO SECURE (A) PAYMENT OF THE INDEBTEDNESS AND (B) PERFORMANCE OF ANY AND ALL OBLIGATIONS UNDER THIS DEED OF TRUST. THIS DEED OF TRUST IS GIVEN AND ACCEPTED ON THE FOLLOWING TERMS:

FUTURE ADVANCES. The Indebtedness secured by this Deed of Trust is for present and future obligations and this Deed of Trust is given to secure all present and future obligations of Grantor to Beneficiary. The period in which future obligations may be incurred and secured by this Deed of Trust is the period between the date hereof and that date which is fifteen (15) years from the date hereof. The amount of present obligations secured by this Deed of Trust is One Hundred Fifty Thousand & 00/100 Dollars ($150,000.00) and the maximum principal amount, including present and future obligations, which may be secured by this Deed of Trust at any one time is One Hundred Fifty Thousand & 00/100 Dollars ($150,000.00.) Any additional amounts advanced by Beneficiary pursuant to the provisions of this Deed of Trust shall be deemed necessary expenditures for the protection of the security. Each future advance need not be evidenced by a written instrument or notation signed by Grantor or any other person evidencing or stipulating that such advance is secured by this Deed of Trust. All future obligations shall be considered to be made pursuant to the requirements of North Carolina General Statutes Sections 45-67, et. seq., or any amendments thereto.

indebtedness for 15 yrs.

PAYMENT AND PERFORMANCE. Except as otherwise provided in this Deed of Trust, Grantor shall pay to Lender all amounts secured by this Deed of Trust as they become due, and shall strictly and in a timely manner perform all of Grantor's obligations under the Note, this Deed of Trust, and the Related Documents.

POSSESSION AND MAINTENANCE OF THE PROPERTY. Grantor agrees that Grantor's possession and use of the Property shall be governed by the following provisions:

Possession and Use. Until the occurrence of an Event of Default, Grantor may (1) remain in possession and control of the Property; (2) use, operate or manage the Property; and (3) collect the Rents from the Property.

Duty to Maintain. Grantor shall maintain the Property in tenantable condition and promptly perform all repairs, replacements, and maintenance necessary to preserve its value.

Hazardous Substances. Grantor represents and warrants that the Property never has been, and never will be so long as this Deed of Trust remains a lien on the Property, used for the generation, manufacture, storage, treatment, disposal, release or threatened release of any Hazardous Substance in violation of any Environmental Laws. Grantor authorizes Lender and its agents to enter upon the Property to make such inspections and tests as Lender may deem appropriate to determine compliance of the Property with this section of the Deed of Trust. Grantor hereby (1) releases and waives any future claims against Lender for indemnity or contribution in the event Grantor becomes liable for cleanup or other costs under any such laws, and (2) agrees to indemnify and hold harmless Lender against any and all claims and losses resulting from a breach of this paragraph of the Deed of Trust. This obligation to indemnify shall survive the payment of the Indebtedness and the satisfaction of this Deed of Trust.

DUE ON SALE - CONSENT BY LENDER. Lender may, at Lender's option, declare immediately due and payable all sums secured by this Deed of Trust upon the sale or transfer, without Lender's prior written consent, of all or any part of the Real Property, or any interest in the Real Property. A "sale or transfer" means the conveyance of Real Property or any right, title or interest in the Real Property; whether legal, beneficial or equitable; whether voluntary or involuntary; whether by outright sale, deed, installment sale contract, land contract, contract for deed, leasehold interest with a term greater than three (3) years, lease-option contract, or by sale, assignment, or transfer of any beneficial interest in or to any land trust holding title to the Real Property, or by any other method of conveyance of an interest in the Real Property. If any Grantor is a corporation, partnership or limited liability company, transfer also includes any change in ownership of more than twenty-five percent (25%) of the voting stock, partnership interests or limited liability company interests, as the case may be, of such Grantor. However, this option shall not be exercised by Lender if such exercise is prohibited by federal law or by North Carolina law.

TAXES AND LIENS. The following provisions relating to the taxes and liens on the Property are part of this Deed of Trust:

Payment. Grantor shall pay when due (and in all events prior to delinquency) all taxes, special taxes, assessments, charges (including water and sewer), fines and impositions levied against or on account of the Property, and shall pay when due all claims for work done on or for services rendered or material furnished to the Property. Grantor shall maintain the Property free of all liens having priority over or equal to the interest of Lender under this Deed of Trust, except for the lien of taxes and assessments not due and except as otherwise provided in this Deed of Trust.

PROPERTY DAMAGE INSURANCE. The following provisions relating to insuring the Property are a part of this Deed of Trust.

Maintenance of Insurance. Grantor shall procure and maintain policies of fire insurance with standard extended coverage endorsements on a replacement basis for the full insurable value covering all Improvements on the Real Property in an amount sufficient to avoid application of any coinsurance clause, and with a standard mortgagee clause in favor of Lender. Grantor shall also procure and maintain comprehensive general liability insurance in such coverage amounts as Lender may request with Trustee and Lender being named as additional insureds in such liability insurance policies. Additionally, Grantor shall maintain such other insurance, including but not limited to hazard, business interruption, and boiler insurance, as Lender may reasonably require. Policies shall be written in form, amounts, coverages and basis reasonably acceptable to Lender and issued by a company or companies reasonably acceptable to Lender. Grantor, upon request of Lender, will deliver to Lender from time to time the policies or certificates of insurance in form satisfactory to Lender, including stipulations that coverages will not be cancelled or diminished without at least ten (10) days prior written notice to Lender. Each insurance policy also shall include an endorsement providing that coverage in favor of Lender will not be impaired in any way by any act, omission or default of Grantor or any other person. Should the Real Property be located in an area designated by the Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency as a special flood hazard area, Grantor agrees to obtain and maintain Federal Flood Insurance, if available, within 45 days after notice is given by Lender that the Property is located in a special flood hazard area, for the full unpaid principal balance of the loan and any prior liens on the property securing the loan, up to the maximum policy limits set under the National Flood Insurance Program, or as otherwise required by Lender, and to maintain such insurance for the term of the loan.

LENDER'S EXPENDITURES. If any action or proceeding is commenced that would materially affect Lender's interest in the Property or if Grantor fails to comply with any provision of this Deed of Trust or any Related Documents, including but not limited to Grantor's failure to discharge or pay when due any amounts Grantor is required to discharge or pay under this Deed of Trust or any Related Documents, Lender on Grantor's behalf may (but shall not be obligated to) take any action that Lender deems appropriate on the Property and paying all costs for insuring, maintaining and preserving the Property. All such expenditures incurred or paid by Lender for such purposes will then bear interest at the rate charged under the Note from the date incurred or paid by Lender to the date of repayment by Grantor. All such expenses will become a part of the Indebtedness and, at Lender's option, will (A) be payable on demand; (B) be added to the balance of the Note and be apportioned among and be payable with any installment payments to become due during either (1) the term of any applicable insurance policy; or (2) the remaining term of the Note; or (C) be treated as a balloon payment which will be due and payable at the Note's maturity.

WARRANTY; DEFENSE OF TITLE. The following provisions relating to ownership of the Property are a part of this Deed of Trust:

Title. Grantor warrants that: (a) Grantor holds good and marketable title of record to the Property in fee simple, free and clear of all liens and encumbrances other than those set forth in the Real Property description or in any title insurance policy, title report, or final title opinion issued in favor of, and accepted by, Lender in connection with this Deed of Trust, and (b) Grantor has the full right, power, and authority to execute and deliver this Deed of Trust to Lender.

Defense of Title. Subject to the exception in the paragraph above, Grantor warrants and will forever defend the title to the Property against the lawful claims of all persons.

DEFAULT. Each of the following, at Lender's option, shall constitute an Event of Default under this Deed of Trust:

Payment Default. Grantor fails to make any payment when due under the Indebtedness.

Default on Other Payments. Failure of Grantor within the time required by this Deed of Trust to make any payment for taxes or insurance, or any other payment necessary to prevent filing of or to effect discharge of any lien.

Other Default. Grantor fails to comply with any other term, obligation, covenant or condition contained in this Deed of Trust, or in any of the Related Documents.

Compliance Default. Failure to comply with any other term, obligation, covenant or condition contained in this Deed of Trust, the Note or in any of the Related Documents.

Default in Favor of Third Parties. Should Grantor default under any loan, extension of credit, security agreement, purchase or sales agreement, or any other agreement, in favor of any other creditor or person that may materially affect any of Grantor's property or Grantor's ability to repay the Indebtedness or perform Grantor's obligations under this Deed of Trust or any related document.

Insolvency. The dissolution or termination of Grantor's existence as a going business, the insolvency of Grantor, the appointment of a receiver for any part of Grantor's property, any assignment for the benefit of creditors, any type of creditor workout, or the commencement of any proceeding under any bankruptcy or insolvency laws by or against Grantor.

Events Affecting Guarantor. Any of the preceding events occurs with respect to any guarantor, endorser, surety, or accommodation party of any of the Indebtedness or any guarantor, endorser, surety, or accommodation party dies or becomes incompetent, or revokes or disputes the validity of, or liability under, any Guaranty of the Indebtedness.

Adverse Change. A material adverse change occurs in Grantor's financial condition, or Lender believes the prospect of payment or performance of the Indebtedness is impaired.

Insecurity. Lender in good faith believes itself insecure.

RIGHTS AND REMEDIES ON DEFAULT. Upon the occurrence of any Event of Default under any Indebtedness, or should Grantor fail to comply with any of Grantor's obligations under this Deed of Trust, Trustee or Lender may exercise any one or more of the following rights and remedies:

Election of Remedies. Election by Lender to pursue any remedy shall not exclude pursuit of any other remedy, and an election to make expenditures or to take action to perform an obligation of Grantor under this Deed of Trust, after Grantor's failure to perform, shall not affect Lender's right to declare a default and exercise its remedies.

Accelerate Indebtedness. Lender shall have the right at its option without notice to Grantor to declare the entire Indebtedness immediately due and payable, including any prepayment penalty which Grantor would be required to pay.

Express Power of Sale Provision. Upon the application or request of Lender, it shall be lawful for and the duty of the Trustee, and the Trustee is hereby authorized and empowered, to expose to sale and to sell the Property at public auction for cash, after having first complied with all applicable requirements of North Carolina law with respect to the exercise of powers of sale contained in deeds of trust or such other sales appropriate under the circumstances; and upon any such sale, the Trustee shall convey title to the purchaser in fee simple. In the event of any sale under this Deed of Trust by virtue of the exercise of the powers granted in this Deed of Trust, or pursuant to any order and any judicial proceeding or otherwise, the Property may be sold as an entirety or in separate parcels and in such manner or order as Lender in its sole discretion may elect. Trustee shall be authorized to hold a sale pursuant to North Carolina General Statute Chapter 45. If Trustee so elects, Trustee may sell the Property covered by this Deed of Trust at one or more separate sales in any manner permitted by applicable North Carolina law, and any exercise of the powers granted in this Deed of Trust shall not extinguish or exhaust such powers, until the entire Property is sold or the Indebtedness is paid in full. If such Indebtedness is now or hereafter further secured by any chattel mortgages, pledges, contracts of guaranty, assignments of lease or other security instruments, Lender may at its option exercise the remedies granted under any of the security agreements either concurrently or independently and in such order as Lender may determine.

Foreclosure. With respect to all or any part of the Real Property, the Trustee shall have the right to foreclose by notice and sale, and Lender shall have the right to foreclose by judicial foreclosure, in either case in accordance with and to the full extent provided by applicable law.

Other Remedies. Trustee or Lender shall have any other right or remedy provided in this Deed of Trust or the Note or by law.

Sale of the Property. To the extent permitted by applicable law, Grantor hereby waives any and all rights to have the Property marshalled. In exercising its rights and remedies, the Trustee or Lender shall be free to sell all or any part of the Property together or separately, in one sale or by separate sales. Lender shall be entitled to bid at any public sale on all or any portion of the Property.

Attorneys' Fees; Expenses. If Lender institutes any suit or action to enforce any of the terms of this Deed of Trust, Lender shall be entitled to recover such sum as the court may adjudge reasonable as attorneys' fees at trial and upon any appeal. Whether or not any court action is involved, and to the extent not prohibited by law, all reasonable expenses Lender incurs that in Lender's opinion are necessary at any time for the protection of its interest or the enforcement of its rights shall become a part of the Indebtedness payable on demand and shall bear interest at the Note rate from the date of the expenditure until repaid. Expenses covered by this paragraph include, without limitation, however subject to any limits under applicable law, Lender's attorneys' fees and Lender's legal expenses, whether or not there is a lawsuit, including attorneys' fees and expenses for bankruptcy proceedings (including efforts to modify or vacate any automatic stay or injunction), appeals, and any anticipated post-judgment collection services, the cost of searching records, obtaining title reports (including foreclosure reports), surveyors' reports, and appraisal fees, title insurance, and fees for the Trustee, to the extent permitted by applicable law. Grantor also will pay any court costs, in addition to all other sums provided by law.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS. The following miscellaneous provisions are a part of this Deed of Trust:

NORTH CAROLINA DEED OF TRUST

THIS DEED of TRUST made this 5th day of April, 2002, by and between:

GRANTOR	TRUSTEE	BENEFICIARY
THE COMMUNITY HEALTH FOUNDATION, INC. 322 S. 17TH STREET WILMINGTON, NC 28401	ALAN M. SOLANA 210 PRINCESS STREET WILMINGTON, NC 28401	HELEN ROGERS LOFTON 117 AVANT DRIVE WILMINGTON, NC 28405

Enter in appropriate block for each party: name, address, and, if appropriate, character of entity, e.g. corporation or partnership.

The designation Grantor, Trustee, and Beneficiary as used herein shall include said parties, their heirs, successors, and assigns, and shall include singular, plural, masculine, feminine or neuter as required by context.

WITNESSETH, That whereas the Grantor is indebted to the Beneficiary in the principal sum of One Hundred Fifty Thousand and 00/100-- Dollars ($150,000.00), as evidenced by a Promissory Note of even date herewith, the terms of which are incorporated herein by reference. The final due date for payment of said Promissory Note, if not sooner paid, is October 5, 2002

NOW, THEREFORE, as security for said indebtedness, advancements and other sums expended by Beneficiary pursuant to this Deed of Trust and costs of collection (including attorneys fees as provided in the Promissory Note) and other valuable consideration, the receipt of which is hereby acknowledged, the Grantor has bargained, sold, given, granted and conveyed and does by these presents bargain, sell, give, grant and convey to said Trustee, his heirs, or successors, and assigns, the parcel(s) of land situated in the City of WILMINGTON, _____ Township, NEW HANOVER County, North Carolina, (the "Premises") and more particularly described as follows:

SEE EXHIBIT "A" ATTACHED HERETO AND INCORPORATED HEREIN BY THIS REFERENCE.

TO HAVE AND TO HOLD said Premises with all privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging to said Trustee, his heirs, successors, and assigns forever, upon the trusts, terms and conditions, and for the uses hereinafter set forth.

If the Grantor shall pay the Note secured hereby in accordance with its terms, together with interest thereon, and any renewals or extensions thereof in whole or in part, all other sums secured hereby and shall comply with all of the covenants, terms and conditions of this Deed of Trust, then this conveyance shall be null and void and may be cancelled of record at the request and the expense of the Grantor if, however, there shall be any default (a) in the payment of any sums due under the Note, this Deed of Trust or any other instrument securing the Note and such default is not cured within ten (10) days from the due date, or (b) if there shall be default in any of the other covenants, terms or conditions of the Note secured hereby, or any failure or neglect to comply with the covenants, terms or conditions contained in this Deed of Trust or any other instrument securing the Note and such default is not cured within fifteen (15) days after written notice, then and in any of such events, without further notice, it shall be lawful for and the duty of the Trustee, upon request of the Beneficiary, to sell the land herein conveyed at public auction for cash, after having first giving such notice of hearing as to commencement of foreclosure proceedings and obtained such findings or leave of court as may then be required by law and giving such notice and advertising the time and place of such sale in such manner as may then be provided by law, and upon such and any resales and upon compliance with the law then relating to foreclosure proceedings under power of sale to convey title to the purchaser in as full and ample manner as the Trustee is empowered. The Trustee shall be authorized to retain an attorney to represent him in such proceedings.

The proceeds of the Sale shall after the Trustee retains his commission, together with reasonable attorneys fees incurred by the Trustee in such proceeding, be applied to the costs of sale, including, but not limited to, costs of collection, taxes, assessments, costs of recording, service fees and incidental expenditures, the amount due on the Note hereby secured and advancements and other sums expended by the Beneficiary according to the provisions hereof and otherwise as required by the then existing law relating to foreclosures. The Trustee's commission shall be five percent (5%) of the gross proceeds of the sale or the minimum sum of $ _____, whichever is greater, for a completed foreclosure. In the event foreclosure is commenced, but not completed, the Grantor shall pay all expenses incurred by Trustee, including reasonable attorneys fees, and a partial commission computed as five per cent (5%) of the outstanding indebtedness or the above stated minimum sum, whichever is greater, in accordance with the following schedule, to-wit: one-fourth (¼) thereof before the Trustee issues a notice of hearing on the right to foreclosure; one-half (½) thereof after issuance of said notice; three-fourths (¾) thereof after such hearings and the greater of the full commission or minimum sum after the initial sale.

And the said Grantor does hereby covenant and agree with the Trustee as follows:

1. INSURANCE. Grantor shall keep all improvements on said land, now or hereafter erected, constantly insured for the benefit of the Beneficiary against loss by fire, windstorm and such other casualties and contingencies, in such manner and in such companies and for such amounts, not less than that amount necessary to pay the sum secured by this Deed of Trust, and as may be satisfactory to the Beneficiary. Grantor shall purchase such insurance, pay all premiums therefor, and shall deliver to Beneficiary such policies along with evidence of premium payment as long as the Note secured hereby remains unpaid. If Grantor fails to purchase such insurance, pay premiums therefor or deliver said policies along with evidence of payment of premiums thereon, then Beneficiary, at his option, may purchase such insurance. Such amounts paid by Beneficiary shall be added to the principal of the Note secured by this Deed of Trust, and shall be due and payable upon demand of Beneficiary. All proceeds from any insurance so maintained shall at the option of Beneficiary be applied to the debt secured hereby and if payable in installments, applied in the inverse order of maturity of such installments or to the repair or reconstruction of any improvements located upon the Property.

2. TAXES, ASSESSMENTS, CHARGES. Grantor shall pay all taxes, assessments and charges as may be lawfully levied against said Premises within thirty (30) days after the same shall become due. In the event that Grantor fails to so pay all same, assessments and charges as herein required, then Beneficiary, at his option, may pay the same and the amounts so paid shall be added to the principal of the Note secured by this Deed of Trust, and shall be due and payable upon demand of Beneficiary.

3. ASSIGNMENTS OF RENTS AND PROFITS. Grantor assigns to Beneficiary, in the event of default, all rents and profits from the land and any improvements thereon, and authorizes Beneficiary to enter upon and take possession of such land and improvements, to rent same, at any reasonable rate of rent determined by Beneficiary, and after deducting from any such rents the cost of collecting and collection, to apply the remainder to the debt secured hereby.

4. PARTIAL RELEASE. Grantor shall not be entitled to the partial release of any of the above described property unless a specific provision providing therefor is included in this Deed of Trust. In the event a partial release provision is included in this Deed of Trust, Grantor must strictly comply with the terms thereof. Notwithstanding anything herein contained, Grantor shall not be entitled to any release of property unless Grantor is not in default and is in full compliance with all of the terms and provisions of the Note, this Deed of Trust, and any other instrument that may be securing said Note.

5. WASTE. The Grantor covenants that he will keep the Premises herein conveyed in as good order, repair and condition as they are now, reasonable wear and tear excepted, and will comply with all governmental requirements respecting the Premises or their use, and that he will not commit or permit any waste.

6. CONDEMNATION. In the event that any or all of the Premises shall be condemned and taken under the power of eminent domain, Grantor shall give immediate written notice to Beneficiary and Beneficiary shall have the right to receive and collect all damages awarded by reason of such taking, and the right to such damages hereby is assigned to Beneficiary who shall have the discretion to apply the amount so received, or any part thereof, to the indebtedness due hereunder and if payable in installments, applied in the inverse order of maturity of such installments, or to any alteration, repair or restoration of the Premises by Grantor.

7. WARRANTIES. Grantor covenants with Trustee and Beneficiary that he is seized of the premises in fee simple, has the right to convey the same in fee simple, that title is marketable and free and clear of all encumbrances, and that he will warrant and defend the title against the lawful claims of all persons whomsoever, except for the exceptions hereinafter stated. Title to the property hereinabove described is subject to the following exceptions:

Easements and Restrictions of record.

2002 ad valorem taxes.

8. SUBSTITUTION OF TRUSTEE. Grantor and Trustee covenant and agree to and with Beneficiary that in case the said Trustee, or any successor trustee, shall die, become incapable of acting, renounce his trust, or for any reason the holder of the Note desires to replace said Trustee, then the holder may appoint, in writing, a Trustee to take the place of the Trustee; and upon the probate and registration of the same, the Trustee thus appointed shall succeed to all rights, powers and duties of the Trustee.

[X] THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPH, 9. SALE OF PREMISES, SHALL NOT APPLY UNLESS THE BLOCK TO THE LEFT MARGIN OF THIS SENTENCE IS MARKED AND/OR INITIALED.

9. SALE OF PREMISES. Grantor agrees that if the Premises or any part thereof or interest therein is sold, assigned, transferred, conveyed or otherwise alienated by Grantor, whether voluntarily or involuntarily or by operation of law (other than: (a) the creation of a lien or other encumbrance subordinate to this Deed of Trust which does not relate to a transfer of rights of occupancy in the Premises; (b) the creation of a purchase money security interest for household appliances; (c) a transfer by devise, descent, or operation of law on the death of a joint tenant or tenant by the entirety; (d) the grant of a leasehold interest of three (3) years or less not containing an option to purchase; (e) a transfer to a relative, resulting from the death of a Grantor; (f) a transfer where the spouse or children of the Grantor become the owner of the Premises; (g) a transfer resulting from a decree of dissolution of marriage, legal separation agreement, or from an incidental property settlement agreement, by which the spouse of the Grantor becomes an owner of the Premises; (h) a transfer into an inter vivos trust in which the Grantor is and remains a beneficiary and which does not relate to a transfer of rights of occupancy in the Premises), without the prior written consent of Beneficiary, Beneficiary, at his own option, may declare the Note secured hereby and all other obligations hereunder to be forthwith due and payable. Any change in the legal or equitable title of the Premises, including the sale, conveyance or dissolution of a majority interest in the Grantor if a corporation or partnership, whether or not of record and whether or not for consideration, shall be deemed to be the transfer of an interest in the Premises.

10. ADVANCEMENTS. If Grantor shall fail to perform any of the covenants or obligations contained herein or in any other instrument given as additional security for the Note secured hereby, the Beneficiary may, but without obligation, make advances to perform such covenants or obligations, and all such sums so advanced shall be added to the principal sum, shall bear interest at the rate provided in the Note secured hereby for sums due after default and shall be due Grantor on demand of the Beneficiary. No advancement or anything contained in this paragraph shall constitute a waiver by Beneficiary or prevent such failure to perform from constituting an event of default.

11. INDEMNITY. If any suit or proceeding be brought against the Trustee or Beneficiary or if any suit or proceeding be brought which may affect the value or title of the Premises, Grantor shall defend, indemnify and hold harmless and on demand reimburse Trustee or Beneficiary from any loss, cost, damage or expense and any sums expended by Trustee or Beneficiary shall bear interest as provided in the Note secured hereby for sums due after default and shall be due and payable on demand.

12. WAIVERS. Grantor waives all rights or requirements of notice by the Trustee or Beneficiary, no delay or omission of the Trustee or Beneficiary in the exercise of any right, power or remedy arising under the Note or this Deed of Trust shall be deemed a waiver of any default or acquiescence therein or shall impair or waive the exercise of such right, power or remedy by Trustee or Beneficiary at any other time.

13. CIVIL ACTION. In the event that the Trustee is named as a party to any civil action as Trustee in this Deed of Trust, the Trustee shall be entitled to employ an attorney at law, including himself if he is a licensed attorney, to represent him in said action and the reasonable attorney's fee of the Trustee in such action shall be paid by the Beneficiary and added to the principal of the note secured by this Deed of Trust and bear interest at the rate provided in the Note for sums due after default.

14. PRIOR LIENS. Default under the terms of any instrument secured by a lien to which this Deed of Trust is subordinate shall constitute default hereunder.

15. OTHER TERMS.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the Grantor has hereunto set his hand and seal, or if corporate, has caused this instrument to be signed in its corporate name by its duly authorized officers and its seal to be hereunto affixed by authority of its Board of Directors, the day and year first above written.

Thomas E. Wright, Chairman
Community's Health Foundation
322 South 17th Street
Wilmington, NC 28401

Dear Mr. Wright:

On behalf of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Development, I am writing to enthusiastically endorse the Community's Health Foundation's effort to convert the building located on the 900 block of 4th Street into Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices and into a History Museum.

With this endorsement, the Office is committing $150,000 in funding toward the completion of this conversion project. The funding will be awarded by June 30, 2002.

We wish you all the best as you embark on this important project.

Sincerely,

Torlen L. Wade

Speaker Hackney.

As you will see from Mark Schreiner's article below, Rep. Wright failed to report more than $13,000 of the CRNA money that he received shortly before killing legislation that the CRNA lobby opposed. I think this is supportive of my argument that Rep. Wright (and perhaps others) killed the bill in a pay-to-play scheme. I am not going to embarrass your office by resubmitting my request for an investigation of this issue but it deserves examination by the legislature or the state ethics commission.

More allegations against Wright brought to light

By Mark Schreiner
Raleigh Bureau Chief mark.schreiner@starnewsonline.com

Raleigh | According to the N.C. State Board of Elections, Rep. Thomas Wright failed to report more than $13,000 in contributions from nurse anesthetists in 2005.

That new detail was included in a five-page "findings summary" that the board sent Monday to prosecutors in Raleigh and Wilmington seeking an investigation of the Port City Democrat.

In an interview Tuesday, Wright said he might have made mistakes on his reports but did not purposely fail to report those contributions.

It is a crime to purposely fail to disclose contributions, and it is perjury to knowingly file a false campaign finance report. Last week, the elections board alleged that Wright failed to disclose $220,000 in contributions and $234,000 in expenses. The board charged that he knowingly filed false reports, and its members voted unanimously to refer Wright's case to the Wake County prosecutor.

An earlier Star-News analysis of disclosure reports revealed that Wright has not reported receiving 273 donations totaling $119,607 that political committees have said they sent to him.

While the nurse group's effort to give contributions to Wright was mentioned at the elections board's

May 15 meeting, and nurses were available in the room to testify, the contributions got little more than a mention during the five-hour hearing.

After the May 15 hearing, investigator Kim Strach said, the board had Wright's banking records as well as information provided by the nurse contributors.

"They have been very helpful," she said.

The contributions were given legally, she said.

Strach refused a request to provide the list of nurse contributions, saying that information was part of the closed file of information the board would hand over to prosecutors.

Through its attorney, the nurses' trade association also refused a request for the list. The lawyer, Michael Crowell, said that was the best course of action because the information was part of a file of information that may become part of a criminal investigation.

In the board's summary, investigators said Wright received $18,075 from nurse anesthetists at a fundraiser held at the Seaside Club in Wrightsville Beach on Nov. 12, 2005, and that Wright failed to disclose $13,375 collected at that event.

What Wright did disclose receiving from nurses is spread across three quarterly reports.

He reported receiving a $2,000 donation from the N.C. Association of Nurse Anesthetists political committee on Nov. 16, 2005.

In his first 2006 campaign disclosure, Wright reported receiving $5,950 from individuals with occupations listed as CRNA, the industry acronym for a nurse anesthetist. The report doesn't indicate which contributions were given at the fundraiser and which might have been given before or after.

Making it harder to pinpoint when they were given is the fact that all of the contributions are listed as being received in February 2006. Other than those contributions, Wright reported one other contribution from a CNRA in 2006 - a $125 donation disclosed in his second quarter 2006 report.

"I recall submitting everything coming from" the nurses, he said. But if the list is not complete, he said, then "that is a mistake."

Joe Sinsheimer, who filed the original complaint against Wright to the elections board, charged that contributions were reported late to avoid controversy.

In summer 2005, Wright's health committee approved House Bill 503, a bill opposed by nurse anesthetists. Wright failed to bring the bill to the floor of the House, a move which effectively killed the bill.

Wright has said he did so because he felt the bill would hurt rural hospitals.

JOE HACKNEY
SPEAKER

The Honorable Daniel G. Clodfelter, Cochair
The Honorable Rick Glazier, Cochair
Legislative Ethics Committee

Dear Senator Clodfelter and Representative Glazier:

As Speaker, I have the solemn responsibility of protecting the integrity of the House of Representatives as an institution. Therefore, I am asking you to convene the Legislative Ethics Committee (LEC) so that it can investigate the alleged violation of the Legislative Ethics Act or the criminal law, or both, by Representative Thomas Wright.

As you know, the State Board of Elections (SBOE) conducted a hearing May 15, 2007, to consider allegations and evidence of alleged violations of campaign finance regulations and of other possible criminal wrongdoing. At the end of the hearing, the SBE referred the matter to the Wake County District Attorney to consider criminal charges against Representative Wright.

Due to the grave nature of the allegations and evidence, particularly that which indicates Representative Wright may have used his political office for personal financial gain, I believe it is essential that the General Assembly, through the LEC, also must conduct an investigation into this matter. As part of its investigation, I ask the LEC to review the attached order from the SBOE and the attached SBOE summary of the information analyzed for the investigation, and to consider any evidence that is available.

I ask that your committee expeditiously conduct this investigation.

Very truly yours,

Joe Hackney
Speaker

VIA HAND DELIVERY

Dear Mr. Willoughby:

The State Board of Elections conducted an investigation into alleged violations of campaign finance regulations as identified in a complaint filed by Joe Sinsheimer and additional violations identified during the investigation of the complaint. The attached order reflects the vote of the State Board members at a hearing held on May 15, 2007 to refer Representative Thomas Wright and his political committees for consideration and possible prosecution. The transcript setting forth the factual basis for the referral will be forwarded as soon as we receive it.

The State Board is very appreciative of your willingness to accept responsibility for sifting through the evidence in this matter and working with the district attorney from New Hanover County in determining whether campaign finance and related violations should be prosecuted. We will be happy to provide any records we have obtained for prosecutorial review.

Finally, the State Board respectfully requests that should criminal action be pursued against Representative Wright or his committee, that an effort be made pursuant to N.C. G.S. 163-278.27(d) to obtain reimbursement for this Board and the State of the costs of this investigation as part of any criminal penalty assessed.

Please feel free to contact either me or Kim Strach with any questions you may have concerning this referral or any other matters related to this investigation. Thank you for your assistance in this matter.

Sincerely,

BEFORE THE STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS

IN RE: INVESTIGATION OF COMPLAINT OF JOE SINSHEIMER ALLEGING ILLEGAL CAMPAIGN ACTIVITY BY THE THOMAS WRIGHT CAMPAIGN AND ADDITIONAL POTENTIAL VIOLATIONS IDENTIFIED DURING THE INVESTIGATION	)	ORDER

THIS MATTER CAME BEFORE THE STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS on May 15, 2007, on the complaint of Joe Sinsheimer. Christopher Brook represented Thomas Wright and the Thomas Wright Campaign. Upon review of the complaint of Joe Sinsheimer, information gathered by the staff of this Board, the reports of the staff, campaign reports filed with this Board, and testimony and other evidence of witnesses called by this Board, the State Board orders as follows:

By unanimous vote, IT IS NOW ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED, that this complaint and the matters developed during the investigation, including the commingling of political monies with the personal funds of Thomas Wright, the failure to timely and accurately file reports which reflect an accurate accounting of the campaign contributions received or expenditures made by Thomas Wright or his Committee, possible perjury with respect to those reports, and the possible willful receipt of illegal campaign contributions, be referred to the District Attorney of Wake County for consultation with the District Attorney of New Hanover County and evaluation, review and subsequent prosecution if deemed appropriate. The staff shall provide the information it has gathered in the course of this investigation to these authorities if requested to do so.

This the 21st day of May, 2007.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE BOARD OF ELECTIONS
CAMPAIGN FINANCE INVESTIGATION

OVERVIEW

In re:	Investigation of Complaint of Joe Sinsheimer alleging illegal campaign activity by the Thomas Wright Campaign and additional potential violations identified during the investigation
Case #:	2006-CF-051
Assigned to:	Kim Strach/Campaign Finance Audit and Compliance Staff

The following documents provide a summary of the information analyzed for the investigation of the Sinsheimer complaint about the Thomas Wright Campaign. The investigation of the complaint was expanded after irregularities were discovered in the audit of the financial records. Financial records were obtained for the years 2000 through early March 2007. The financial records included three bank accounts maintained by the Thomas Wright Campaign, Thomas Wright, and Thomas and Joyce Wright at Bank of America, one account at First Citizens Bank and one account at Coastal Federal Bank. Additionally, the bank records for the Community's Health Foundation were obtained and analyzed. The Community's Health Foundation was incorporated by Representative Thomas Wright.

The pertinent information is as follows and includes:

1. Complaint filed by Joe Sinsheimer

2. Sims Hugo Neu contributions and information regarding their receipt by Representative Wright.

    - Allegations of willfully delaying disclosure of contributions. Investigation found delay of reporting numerous contributions including those of Sims Hugo Neu employees. Wright was in a competitive primary and the landfill that Sims Hugo Neu was attempting to place in the Town of Navassa was extremely controversial. Wright deposited checks prior to the primary but did not report their receipt until seven days before the general election. A sworn affidavit from Curtis Wright, talk show host, states that Wright told him in October of 2006 that he had not received contributions from employees of Sims Hugo Neu.

3. Summary of bank accounts analyzed
   - Wright had several bank accounts from 2000-2006. He commingled campaign contributions in accounts with personal receipts. Often, the campaign contributions that were deposited into commingled accounts funded personal expenditures that he would not have had the personal funds to cover. It was extremely difficult to determine the exact amount of expenditures that should have been reported by his political committee due to the commingling.

4. Campaign Finance history of the Thomas Wright Campaign (1997-present)
   - Wright has had a history of non-compliance with the Board. Even when he had designated another treasurer, he signed the campaign finance reports. Daryl Parker, treasurer of record during most of the period under investigation, never signed a disclosure report. His ex-wife was the Secretary on the bank account and did sign some checks. She indicated to staff during a telephone interview that she wrote checks at the direction of Thomas Wright without any supporting documentation. Mr. Parker was unwilling to meet and answer questions during the staff investigation. Both Parkers testified at the hearing but recalled very little specific information about the Committee.

5. Contributions not disclosed on any campaign finance report filed by the Thomas Wright Campaign
   - Wright has failed to provide disclosure of more than $211,000 since the year 2000. Using reports filed by PACs with this office, we were able to determine more than $30,000 in contributions he received from PACs that he didn't report on any campaign finance disclosure report during 1992-1999.

6. Contributions incorrectly reported
   - Of the contributions that he does disclose, over $68,000 were reported in a reporting period other than when he deposited the contribution.

7. Expenditures not disclosed on any campaign finance report filed by the Thomas Wright Campaign
   - The disclosure of expenditures was analyzed to identify those made from a "campaign" account or which were obviously campaign expenditures from a commingled account. More than $122,000 of these campaign expenditures were not reported since 2000. Because campaign contributions were deposited into accounts with personal receipts, it is difficult to determine whether more than $400,000 in expenditures were campaign expenses or were personal expenses paid for with campaign funds. Until October 1, 2006, it was permissible for personal expenses to be paid from campaign funds so long as those expenditures were disclosed.

8. Summary of prohibited contributions
   - More than $14,000 of prohibited contributions (including checks made payable to the Community's Health Foundation) were received by Thomas Wright and deposited into one of his accounts.

9. Background information regarding legislation affecting nurse anesthetists and contributions made by nurse anesthetists in connection with a November 2005 fundraiser for Rep. Thomas Wright. This information was available to Board members as a result of the staff investigation but was not brought out at the hearing.
   - House Bill 503-Authorize Licensure/Anesthesiologist Assts. was filed on March 3, 2005. The bill among other things would require nurse anesthetists to be supervised by a physician. Nurse anesthetists were strongly opposed to this bill. House Bill 503 was referred to the Committee on Health. Rep. Wright served as Chair of this Committee. Beginning May 12, 2005, House Bill 503 was on the agenda of five meetings of the Committee on Health. On July 26, 2005, a motion was made for a favorable report to the committee substitute and for the bill to be referred to the Committee on Finance. Motion carried. Rep. Wright, Chairman of the Committee on Health, did not report the bill out of Committee. Thereafter, CRNA's approached Rep. Wright to ask him if they could plan and organize a fundraiser in his honor. Rep. Wright agreed and a fundraiser was held on November 12, 2005 at the Seaside Club in Wrightsville Beach. CRNA's and their lobbyists made contributions to the Thomas Wright Campaign at this event in the amount of $18,075.00. Rep. Wright failed to disclose $13,375.00 of these contributions. Daryl Parker testified that he remembered attending a fundraiser organized by nurses but he did not remember details.

10. The Community's Health Foundation background and summary of findings.
   - On April 18, 2001, Thomas E. Wright filed Articles of Incorporation for the Community's Health Foundation with the Secretary of State as a Non Profit Corporation. Thomas E. Wright is named as the initial registered agent and the street address of the corporation is disclosed as 925 North 4th St. Wilmington, NC 28401. The Articles of Incorporation indicate that the Corporation was set up as a 501(c)(3) not for profit corporation. However, our research indicates that the IRS "does not show an exemption by virtue of an approved application." We have found no record of this corporation receiving the tax exempt status.
   - On March 15, 2002, Torlen Wade, Acting Director of the Office of Research, Demonstrations, and Rural Health Developments, signed a letter drafted at the request of Rep. Wright stating that the Office was committing $150,000 in funding toward the completion of the Community's Health Foundation's effort to convert the building located on the 900 block of 4th Street into Foundation offices, New Hanover Community Health Center offices and into a History Museum. The letter further states that the funding would be awarded by June 30, 2002. Mr. Wade provided this letter knowing his Office was not going to fund this project because they didn't have the money and could not use the money for the purpose of a Race Riot museum. Wright told him he didn't need him to provide the money because he had already secured the needed money, but he needed the letter to show he had funding. Wade stated that in retrospect he should not have written the letter.

- On April 5, 2002, The Community's Health Foundation signed a Promissory Note to Coastal Federal Bank for $150,000, due in six months (October 5, 2002). The note was signed by Thomas Wright and Dr. Dan Gottovi. Additionally, the Community's Health Foundation signed a note to Helyn Rogers Lofton for $150,000 also due on October 5, 2002. The Community's Health Foundation received no grants or other contributions at this time.
- Thomas E. Wright withdraws cash in the amount of $4,900 from his Campaign Account and purchases a cashier's check on October 31, 2002, to make a payment toward the Promissory Note to Coastal Federal Bank.
- Dr. Dan Gottovi wrote two checks totaling $4,324.18 between March 13th and March 18th of 2003 to Coastal Federal Bank after he received letters stating the building was in foreclosure status. His checks were an attempt to keep the building from going through foreclosure.
- No other payments are made on the Promissory Notes.
- Thomas E. Wright sent a letter on Feburary 6, 2004 to Lewis McKinney, employee of Anheuser-Busch Companies, soliciting money for the development of a building. He provided a federal tax id number and states that contributions are tax deductible. We can find no evidence that the Community's Health Foundation obtained a determination that it was a tax exempt corporation to which contributions were tax deductable. Anheuser-Busch cuts a check to the Community's Health Foundation on March 5, 2004, in the amount of $5,000. Thomas Wright deposited this check into one of his personal/campaign accounts on August 11, 2004.
- The Notice of Foreclosure for the building of The Community's Health Foundation was filed on June 22, 2004.
- Thomas Wright also deposits checks into his personal/campaign account from AT &T (corporate account) in the amount of $1,500 and Astra Zeneka (corporate account) in the amount of $2,400 on July 26, 2004 and August 11, 2004, respectively. The date on the AT&T check is April 1, 2004, and the check from Astra Zeneka was dated December 15, 2003.
- There is no transaction after the deposit of those checks in the account to which they were deposited indicating these funds were used in any way for The Community's Health Foundation.

- The bank account for The Community's Health Foundation was closed due to "charge off" on June 28, 2004.

11. Potential Election Law statutory violations
    - False certification of campaign reports is perjury:

1. § 163-278.32. Statements under oath.

Any statement required to be filed under this Article shall be signed and certified as true and correct by the, media, candidate, treasurer or others required to file it, and shall be certified as true and correct to the best of the knowledge of the individual, media, candidate, treasurer or others filing the statement; provided further that the candidate shall certify as true and correct to the best of his knowledge the organizational report and appointment of treasurer filed for the candidate or the candidate's principal campaign committee. Any person making a certification under this Article knowing the information to be untrue may be prosecuted for perjury under G.S. 14-209.

2. Intentional failure of a political committee to report contributions received and expenditures made within seven days prior to the date a report is due is a violation of GS 163-278.9(b) and is misdemeanor under GS 163-278.27 (a). The statute of limitations for a criminal violation runs from the day the last report is due to be filed for the election cycle during which the violation occurred.

3. Intentional acceptance by a political committee of corporate contributions is a violation of GS 163-278.15 and violation of it is a misdemeanor as set forth in #2 above. Commingling corporate funds with individual and political committee contributions is improper.

4. The treasurer of a political committee shall keep detailed accounts, current within no more than seven days after the date of receiving a contribution or making an expenditure, of all contributions received and all expenditures made by or on behalf of the candidate, political committee, or referendum committee. G.S. 163-278.8(a). Intentional violation of this statute is a misdemeanor as set forth in #2 above.
