"§ 15A-1340.13A. ~~Persons defined as habitual~~ Habitual felons.

~~Any person who has been convicted of or pled guilty to three felony offenses in any federal court or state court in the United States or combination thereof is declared to be an habitual felon. For the purpose of this Article, a felony offense is defined as an offense which is a felony under the laws of the State or other sovereign wherein a plea of guilty was entered or a conviction was returned regardless of the sentence actually imposed. Provided, however, that federal offenses relating to the~~

~~manufacture, possession, sale and kindred offenses involving intoxicating liquors shall not be considered felonies for the purposes of this Article. For the purposes of this Article, felonies committed before a person attains the age of 18 years shall not constitute more than one felony. The commission of a second felony shall not fall within the purview of this Article unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the first felony. The commission of a third felony shall not fall within the purview of this Article unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the second felony. Pleas of guilty to or convictions of felony offenses prior to July 6, 1967, shall not be felony offenses within the meaning of this Article. Any felony offense to which a pardon has been extended shall not for the purpose of this Article constitute a felony. The burden of proving such pardon shall rest with the defendant and the State shall not be required to disprove a pardon.~~

(a) Definitions. -- The following definitions shall apply in this section when determining a person's status as an habitual felon:

(1) Felony. -- An offense that is a felony under the laws of the State or or other sovereign wherein a plea of guilty was entered or a conviction was returned regardless of the sentence actually imposed. The term does not include, however, federal offenses relating to the manufacture, possession, sale of, and kindred offenses involving intoxicating liquors. For the purposes of this section, felonies committed before a person attains the age of 18 years shall not constitute more than one felony. The commission of a second felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the first felony. The commission of a third felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the second felony. Pleas of guilty to or convictions of felonies before July 6, 1967, are not felonies for the purposes of this section. A felony offense to which a pardon has been extended is not a felony for the purposes of this section. The burden of proving the pardon shall rest with the defendant; the State is not required to disprove a pardon.

(2) Habitual felon. -- A person who has been convicted of or pled guilty to three or more felony offenses in any federal court or state court in the United States or combination thereof prior to committing the current offense.

(b) Sentencing of Habitual Felons. -- When a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to any felony under the laws of this State, the district attorney may, upon sentencing, submit to the trial judge, as an enhanced sentencing factor, the determination of the person's status as an habitual felon. If the trial judge determines, upon submission by the district attorney of the defendant's status as an habitual felon, that the felony was committed by an habitual felon, the trial judge shall sentence the person as a Class C felon, except where the felon has been sentenced as a Class A, B1, or B2 felon. In determining the prior record level of the person sentenced as an habitual felon, the convictions used to establish the person's status as an habitual felon shall not be used. A sentence imposed on an habitual felon pursuant to this section shall run consecutively with and shall commence at the expiration of any sentence being served by the person sentenced under this section.

(c) Disclosure of Habitual Felon Status.-- If the district attorney fails to serve notice upon the defendant no later than 20 working days before trial of the defendant's status as an habitual felon and the district attorney's intention to submit to the trial judge the defendant's status as an habitual felon, the defendant may not be sentenced as an habitual felon under this section.

(d) Evidence of Prior Convictions. -- In sentencing a person under this section, the record or records of prior convictions of felony offenses may be used by the court to determine if the person has been convicted of former felony offenses. A prior conviction may be shown by stipulation of the parties or by the original or a certified copy of the court record of the prior conviction. The original or certified copy of the court record, bearing the same name as that by which the defendant is charged, shall be sufficient to show that the defendant named therein is the same as the defendant before the court and to show the facts set out in the record, and the burden of any showing to the contrary shall be upon the defendant."

Section 3. G.S. 14-7.7 is recodified as G.S. 15A-1340.13B; the remainder of Article 2B of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 4. G.S. 14-7.7, as recodified by Section 3 of this act, reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-1340.13B. ~~Persons defined as violent~~ Violent habitual felons.

~~(a) Any person who has been convicted of two violent felonies in any federal court, in a court of this or any other state of the United States, or in a combination of these courts is declared to be a violent habitual felon. For purposes of this Article, "convicted" means the person has been adjudged guilty of or has entered a plea of guilty or no contest to the violent felony charge, and judgment has been entered thereon when such action occurred on or after July 6, 1967. This Article does not apply to a second violent felony unless it is committed after the conviction or plea of guilty or no contest to the first violent felony. Any felony to which a pardon has been extended shall not, for the purposes of this Article, constitute a felony. The burden of proving a pardon shall rest with the defendant, and this State shall not be required to disprove a pardon. Conviction as an habitual felon shall not, for purposes of this Article, constitute a violent felony.~~

~~(1) All Class A through E felonies.~~

~~(2) Any repealed or superseded offense substantially equivalent to the offenses listed in subdivision (1).~~

~~(3) Any offense committed in another jurisdiction substantially equivalent to the offenses set forth in subdivision (1) or (2).~~

(a) Definitions.-- The following definitions shall apply in this section when determining a person's status as a violent habitual felon:

(1) Violent felony.-- An offense that is one of the following:

a. All Class A through E felonies.

b. Any repealed or superseded offense substantially equivalent to the offenses listed in sub-subdivision a.

c. Any offense committed in another jurisdiction substantially equivalent to the offenses set forth in sub-subdivisions a. or b.

A person is convicted of a violent felony if he or she has been adjudged guilty of or has entered a plea of guilty to a violent felony charge, and a judgment has been entered on or after July

6, 1967. This section does not apply to a second violent felony unless it is committed after the conviction or plea of guilty or no contest to the first violent felony. Any felony to which a pardon has been extended shall not, for the purposes of this section, constitute a violent felony. The burden of proving a pardon shall rest with the defendant, and the State shall not be required to disprove a pardon. Conviction and punishment as an habitual felon shall not, for the purposes of this section, constitute a violent felony.

(2) Violent habitual felon.-- Any person who has been convicted of two violent felonies in any federal court, in a court of this or any other state of the United States, or in a combination of these courts.

(b) Sentencing of Violent Habitual Felons.-- When a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to any violent felony under the laws of this State, the district attorney may, upon sentencing, submit to the trial judge, as an enhanced sentencing factor, the determination of the person's status as a violent habitual felon. If the trial judge determines, upon the submission by the district attorney of the person's status as a violent habitual felon, that the violent felony was committed by a violent habitual felon, the trial judge shall sentence the person to life imprisonment without parole, except where the death penalty is imposed. Life imprisonment without parole means that the person will spend the remainder of the person's natural life in prison. The sentencing judge may not suspend the sentence and may not place the person sentenced on probation. Sentences for violent habitual felons imposed under this Article shall run consecutively with and shall commence at the expiration of any other sentence being served by the person.

(c) Disclosure of Violent Habitual Felon Status.-- If the district attorney fails to serve notice upon the defendant no later than 20 working days before trial of the defendant's status as a violent habitual felon and the district attorney's intention to submit to the trial judge the defendant's status as a violent habitual felon, the defendant may not be sentenced as a violent habitual felon under this section.

(d) Evidence of Prior Convictions.-- In sentencing a person under this section, the records of prior convictions of violent felonies may be used by the court to determine if the person has been convicted of former violent felonies. A prior conviction may be shown by stipulation of the parties or by the original or a certified copy of the court record of the prior conviction. The original or certified copy of the court record, bearing the same name as that by which the defendant is charged, shall be prima facie evidence that the defendant named therein is the same as the defendant before the court, and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts set out therein, and the burden of any showing to the contrary shall be upon the defendant."

Sec. 6. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO LIMIT, TO MODIFY, AND ENHANCE TO ATTEMPTING TO ELUDE ARREST STATUTES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 20 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 20-141.5. Speeding to elude arrest.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a motor vehicle or knowingly allow a vehicle owned by him, or under his control, to be operated on a street, highway, or public vehicular area while fleeing or attempting to elude a law enforcement officer who is in the lawful performance of his duties.

(b) If two or more of the following aggravating factors are present at the time the violation occurs, the person operating the vehicle shall be guilty of a Class H felony.

(1) Speeding in excess of 15 miles per hour over the legal speed limit.

(2) Gross impairment of the person's faculties while driving due to:

a. Consumption of an impairing substance; or

b. A blood alcohol concentration of 0.14 or more within a relevant time after the driving.

(3) Especially reckless or dangerous driving.

(4) Negligent driving leading to an accident causing:
a. Property damage in excess of one thousand dollars ($1,000); or
b. Personal injury.
(5) Driving when his drivers license is revoked.
(6) Driving through a marked school zone or work zone.
(7) Passing a stopped school bus.
(8) Driving with a child under 12 years of age in the vehicle.

Any other violation of this section shall be punished as a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(c) Whenever evidence is presented in any court or administrative hearing of the fact that a vehicle was operated in violation of this section, it shall be prima facie evidence that the vehicle was operated by the person in whose name the vehicle was registered at the time of the violation, according to the Division's records. If the vehicle is rented, then proof of that rental shall be prima facie evidence that the vehicle was operated by the renter of the vehicle at the time of the violation.

(d) The Division shall revoke, for one year, the drivers license of any person convicted of a misdemeanor under this section. The Division shall revoke, for three years, the drivers license of any person convicted of a felony under this section. In the case of a first felony conviction under this section, the licensee may apply to the sentencing court for a limited driving privilege after a period of 18 months of revocation, provided the operator's license has not also been revoked or suspended under any other provision of law. A limited driving privilege issued under this subsection shall be valid for the period of revocation remaining in the same manner and under the terms and conditions prescribed in G.S. 20-16.1(b). If the person's license is revoked under any other statute, the limited driving privilege issued pursuant to this subsection is invalid.

(e) When the probable cause of the law enforcement officer is based on the prima facie evidence rule set forth in subsection (c) above, the officer shall make a reasonable effort to contact the registered owner of the vehicle prior to initiating criminal process."

Section 2. G.S. 20-141(j) and G.S. 20-17(10) are repealed.

Section 3. G.S. 20-179(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) Aggravating Factors to Be Weighed. -- The judge must determine before sentencing under subsection (f) whether any of the aggravating factors listed below apply to the defendant. The judge must weigh the seriousness of each aggravating factor in the light of the particular circumstances of the case. The factors are:

(1) Gross impairment of the defendant's faculties while driving or an alcohol concentration of 0.16 or more within a relevant time after the driving.

(2) Especially reckless or dangerous driving.

(3) Negligent driving that led to a reportable accident.

(4) Driving by the defendant while his driver's license was revoked.

(5) Two or more prior convictions of a motor vehicle offense not involving impaired driving for which at least three points are assigned under G.S. 20-16 or for which the convicted person's license is subject to revocation, if the convictions occurred within five years of the date of the offense for which the defendant is being sentenced, or one or more prior convictions of an offense involving impaired driving that occurred more than seven years before the date of the offense for which the defendant is being sentenced.

(6) Conviction under ~~G.S. 20-141(j)~~ G.S. 20-141.5 of speeding by the defendant while fleeing or attempting to elude apprehension.

(7) Conviction under G.S. 20-141 of speeding by the defendant by at least 30 miles per hour over the legal limit.

(8) Passing a stopped school bus in violation of G.S. 20-217.

(9) Any other factor that aggravates the seriousness of the offense.

Except for the factor in subdivision (5) the conduct constituting the aggravating factor must occur during the same transaction or occurrence as the impaired driving offense."

Section 4. G.S. 58-36-75(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The subclassification plan promulgated pursuant to G.S. 58-36-65(b) shall provide for facility recoupment surcharges pursuant to G.S. 58-37-40(f) and G.S. 58-37-75, in addition to premium surcharges, for convictions for the following moving traffic violations:

General Statute	Description of Offense

20-12.1	Being impaired while accompanying a permittee who is learning to drive
20-28	Driving while license is suspended or revoked
20-138.1	Driving a vehicle while impaired
20-138.2	Driving a commercial vehicle while impaired
20-138.3	Driving by provisional licensee after consuming alcohol or drugs
20-140(a)	Driving carelessly and heedlessly in willful or wanton disregard of the rights of others
20-140(b)	Driving without due caution in a manner so as to endanger other people or property
20-141(a)	Only driving at least 11 miles per hour over the posted speed limit
~~20-141(j)~~	~~Driving in excess of 55 mph and at least 15 mph over legal limit, while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest by a law enforcement officer~~
20-141(j1)	Driving more than 15 mph over legal limit
20-141.1	Speeding in a school zone
20-141.3(a)	Engaging in prearranged speed competition with another motor vehicle
20-141.3(b)	Willfully engaging in speed competition with another motor vehicle (not prearranged)
20-141.3(c)	Allowing or authorizing others to use one's motor vehicle in prearranged speed competition or placing or receiving a bet or wager on a prearranged speed competition
20-141.4(a1)	Death by vehicle (unintentionally causing death of another while engaged in impaired driving)
20-141.4(a2)	Death by vehicle (unintentionally causing death of another as a result of a violation of motor vehicle law intended to regulate traffic or used to control operation of a vehicle)

20-141.5	Speeding while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest
20-166(a)	Failure to stop by driver who knew or should have known he was involved in accident and that accident caused death or injury to any person
20-166(c)	Failure of driver involved in accident causing property damage or personal injury or death (if driver did not know of injury or death) to stop at scene of accident
20-175.2	Failure to yield right-of-way to blind person at crossings, intersections, and traffic control signal points
20-217	Failure to stop and remain stopped when approaching a stopped school bus engaged in receiving or discharging passengers and while bus has mechanical stop signal displayed
14-18	Voluntary manslaughter
14-18	Involuntary manslaughter".

Section 5. G.S. 143-116.8(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) (1) It shall be unlawful for a person to operate a vehicle in the State parks and forests road system at a speed in excess of twenty-five miles per hour (25 mph). When the Secretary of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources determines that this speed is greater than reasonable and safe under the conditions found to exist in the State parks and forests road system, the Secretary may establish a lower reasonable and safe speed limit. No speed limit established by the Secretary pursuant to this provision shall be effective until posted in the part of the system sought to be affected.

(2) Any person convicted of violating this subsection by operating a vehicle on the State parks and forests road system ~~in excess of twenty-five miles per hour (25 mph) and at least fifteen miles per hour (15 mph) over the legal limit~~ while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest or apprehension by a law enforcement officer with authority to enforce the motor vehicle laws, shall be punished as provided in ~~G.S. 20-141(j).~~ G.S. 20-141.5.

(3) For the purposes of enforcement and administration of Chapter 20, the speed limits stated and authorized to be adopted by this section are speed limits under Chapter 20.

(4) The Secretary may designate any part of the State parks and forests road system for one-way traffic and shall erect appropriate signs giving notice thereof. It shall be a violation of G.S. 20-165.1 for any person to willfully drive or operate any vehicle on any part of the State parks and forests road system so designated except in the direction indicated.

(5) The Secretary shall have power, equal to the power of local authorities under G.S. 20-158 and G.S. 20-158.1, to place vehicle control signs and signals and yield-right-of-way signs in the State parks and forests road system; the Secretary also shall have power to post such other signs and markers and mark the roads in accordance with Chapter 20 as the Secretary may determine appropriate for highway safety and traffic control. The failure of any vehicle driver to obey any vehicle control sign or signal, or any yield-right-of-way sign placed under the authority of this section in the State parks and forests road system shall be an infraction and shall be punished as provided in G.S. 20-176."

Section 6. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997.

SPEEDING TO ELUDE

PURPOSE

This legislation attempts to address the problem of police chases and pursuits by: (1) reducing the incentive to flee attempted vehicle stops by law enforcement, and (2) providing law enforcement officers tools to reduce the number of prolonged chases without foregoing apprehension and prosecution of the offender.

Incentive to flee. The penalty for attempting to elude a lawful police signal to stop is presently a Class 1 Misdemeanor (minimum 45 days community punishment to a maximum of 120 days active imprisonment). This current penalty sends the wrong message to those who endanger the general motoring public by attempting to elude arrest, usually by speeding recklessly.

Incentive to terminate chase. If officers have a means to proceed against the presumed operator (the owner) officers will be willing to let the offender go...for the moment. Officers will know that they have not let the offender go free, but following an effort to discuss the violation with the registered owner, will be able to initiate criminal process. The owner's rights are not compromise because the proposed legislation establishes a proceeding to determine whether or not the registered driver was the operator at the time of the offense.

Appropriate penalties. The proposed legislation scales the penalty to the amount of danger the offender poses to the motoring public and others. Absent clear proof of the aggravating circumstances, the offense would be a misdemeanor. Gross endangerment of the public, however, would subject the driver to a more severe penalty. In other words, less serious offenders would be charged with a misdemeanor while the most serious offenders who endanger the public would be subject to the felony penalty.

SUPPORT

This legislation has the support of the Attorney General and the 18 associations which comprise the Law Enforcement Association Presidents (LEAP) Council. (NC Association of Chiefs of Police, NC Sheriffs' Association, NC Law Enforcement Officers' Association, NC Police Executives' Association, NC Association of Police Attorneys, NC Law Enforcement Women's Association, North State Law Enforcement Officers' Association, NC Law Enforcement Planners' Association, NC Law Enforcement Training Officers' Association, NC Juvenile Officers' Association, NC Crime Prevention Officers' Association, NC Division of the Int'l Assoc. for Identification, Fraternal Order of Police, NC ABC Law Enforcement Officers' Association, NC Wildlife Officers' Association, NC Narcotic Officers Assoc., NC Retired Peace Officers' Association, NC Assoc. of Campus Law Enforcement Admin.)

THE SPECIFICS OF HB 584

1. New Statutory Provision. This bill creates a new section in Chapter 20 (Motor Vehicle Laws), specifically G.S. § 20-141.5, to divide the criminal offense of speeding to elude arrest by law enforcement into misdemeanor and felony categories. It repeals G.S. 20-141(j) (current misdemeanor speeding to elude provision) and § 20-17(10) (current license revocation provision relating to § 20-141(j)).

2. Unlawful Acts. It makes it unlawful to operate a motor vehicle, and flee or attempt to elude a law enforcement officer in the performance of his duties. Also make it unlawful for a person to knowingly allow another to operate his vehicle or one under his control in such a manner.

3. Punishment Levels. It is important to note that this law makes a distinction in punishment levels based upon the level of danger posed by the operator's behavior. The presence or absence of specified aggravating factors determines the level of danger for purposes of charging the operator under this section.

4. The violation becomes a felony only if two (2) or more of the eight (8) listed aggravating factors occur. Otherwise, the violation is Class 1 misdemeanor.

5. Prima Facie* Evidence. Subsection (c), the prima facie evidence provision, is a key feature to this bill. This provision enables the officer chasing the vehicle to terminate the chase once he has the license tag number, and a description of the vehicle, driver, and other occupants, if any. Prima facie evidence does not change the legal principle that the accused is presumed innocent until proven guilty in a court of law (presumption of innocence), but merely establishes what constitutes a prima facie case (refer to Jane Gray's memo). Since vehicle registration creates merely prima facie evidence, which a jury can disregard if it chooses to do so and introduction of the registration does not shift the burden of proof to the defendant to disprove he was the driver of the fleeing vehicle, the proposed provision is constitutional.

6. The prima facie rule of evidence is not new. The General Assembly has used this prima facie rule on numerous occasions. (See attachment to Jane Gray's memo).

7. License Revocation. Upon conviction for misdemeanor, a person's license is revoked for one (1) year. Upon conviction for felony, the license revocation is for three (3) years (if first felony - can get limited driving privilege after 18 months of revocation)

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO LIMIT, TO MODIFY, AND ENHANCE ATTEMPTING TO ELUDE ARREST STATUTES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 20 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 20-141.5. Speeding to elude arrest.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person to operate a motor vehicle or knowingly allow a vehicle owned by him, or under his control, to be operated on a street, highway, or public vehicular area while fleeing or attempting to elude a law enforcement officer who is in the lawful performance of his duties.

(b) If two or more of the following aggravating factors are present at the time the violation occurs, the person operating the vehicle shall be guilty of a Class H felony.

(1) Speeding in excess of 15 miles per hour over the legal speed limit.

(2) Gross impairment of the person's faculties while driving due to:

a. Consumption of an impairing substance; or

b. A blood alcohol concentration of 0.14 or more within a relevant time after the driving.

(3) Especially reckless or dangerous driving.

(4) Negligent driving leading to an accident causing:

a. Property damage in excess of one thousand dollars ($1,000); or

b. Personal injury.

(5) Driving when the person's drivers license is revoked.
(6) Driving through a marked school zone or work zone.
(7) Passing a stopped school bus.
(8) Driving with a child under 12 years of age in the vehicle.

Any other violation of this section shall be punished as a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(c) Whenever evidence is presented in any court or administrative hearing of the fact that a vehicle was operated in violation of this section, it shall be prima facie evidence that the vehicle was operated by the person in whose name the vehicle was registered at the time of the violation, according to the Division's records. If the vehicle is rented, then proof of that rental shall be prima facie evidence that the vehicle was operated by the renter of the vehicle at the time of the violation.

(d) The Division shall revoke, for one year, the drivers license of any person convicted of a misdemeanor under this section. The Division shall revoke, for three years, the drivers license of any person convicted of a felony under this section. In the case of a first felony conviction under this section, the licensee may apply to the sentencing court for a limited driving privilege after a period of 18 months of revocation, provided the operator's license has not also been revoked or suspended under any other provision of law. A limited driving privilege issued under this subsection shall be valid for the period of revocation remaining in the same manner and under the terms and conditions prescribed in G.S. 20-16.1(b). If the person's license is revoked under any other statute, the limited driving privilege issued pursuant to this subsection is invalid.

(e) When the probable cause of the law enforcement officer is based on the prima facie evidence rule set forth in subsection (c) above, the officer shall make a reasonable effort to contact the registered owner of the vehicle prior to initiating criminal process."

Section 2. G.S. 20-141(j) and G.S. 20-17(10) are repealed.

Section 3. G.S. 20-179(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) Aggravating Factors to Be Weighed. -- The judge must determine before sentencing under subsection (f) whether any of the aggravating factors listed below apply to the defendant. The judge must weigh the seriousness of each aggravating factor in the light of the particular circumstances of the case. The factors are:

(1) Gross impairment of the defendant's faculties while driving or an alcohol concentration of 0.16 or more within a relevant time after the driving.
(2) Especially reckless or dangerous driving.
(3) Negligent driving that led to a reportable accident.
(4) Driving by the defendant while his driver's license was revoked.
(5) Two or more prior convictions of a motor vehicle offense not involving impaired driving for which at least three points are assigned under G.S. 20-16 or for which the convicted person's license is subject to revocation, if the convictions occurred within five years of the date of the offense for which the defendant is being sentenced, or one or more prior convictions of an offense involving impaired driving that occurred more than seven years before the date of the offense for which the defendant is being sentenced.

(6) Conviction under ~~G.S. 20-141(j)~~ G.S. 20-141.5 of speeding by the defendant while fleeing or attempting to elude apprehension.

(7) Conviction under G.S. 20-141 of speeding by the defendant by at least 30 miles per hour over the legal limit.

(8) Passing a stopped school bus in violation of G.S. 20-217.

(9) Any other factor that aggravates the seriousness of the offense.

Except for the factor in subdivision (5) the conduct constituting the aggravating factor must occur during the same transaction or occurrence as the impaired driving offense."

Section 4. G.S. 58-36-75(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The subclassification plan promulgated pursuant to G.S. 58-36-65(b) shall provide for facility recoupment surcharges pursuant to G.S. 58-37-40(f) and G.S. 58-37-75, in addition to premium surcharges, for convictions for the following moving traffic violations:

General Statute	Description of Offense
20-12.1	Being impaired while accompanying a permittee who is learning to drive
20-28	Driving while license is suspended or revoked
20-138.1	Driving a vehicle while impaired
20-138.2	Driving a commercial vehicle while impaired
20-138.3	Driving by provisional licensee after consuming alcohol or drugs
20-140(a)	Driving carelessly and heedlessly in willful or wanton disregard of the rights of others
20-140(b)	Driving without due caution in a manner so as to endanger other people or property
20-141(a)	Only driving at least 11 miles per hour over the posted speed limit
~~20-141(j)~~	~~Driving in excess of 55 mph and at least 15 mph over legal limit, while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest by a law enforcement officer~~
20-141(j1)	Driving more than 15 mph over legal limit
20-141.1	Speeding in a school zone
20-141.3(a)	Engaging in prearranged speed competition with another motor vehicle
20-141.3(b)	Willfully engaging in speed competition with another motor vehicle (not prearranged)
20-141.3(c)	Allowing or authorizing others to use one's motor vehicle in prearranged speed competition or placing or receiving a bet or wager on a prearranged speed competition

20-141.4(a1)	Death by vehicle (unintentionally causing death of another while engaged in impaired driving)
20-141.4(a2)	Death by vehicle (unintentionally causing death of another as a result of a violation of motor vehicle law intended to regulate traffic or used to control operation of a vehicle)
20-141.5	Speeding while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest
20-166(a)	Failure to stop by driver who knew or should have known he was involved in accident and that accident caused death or injury to any person
20-166(c)	Failure of driver involved in accident causing property damage or personal injury or death (if driver did not know of injury or death) to stop at scene of accident
20-175.2	Failure to yield right-of-way to blind person at crossings, intersections, and traffic control signal points
20-217	Failure to stop and remain stopped when approaching a stopped school bus engaged in receiving or discharging passengers and while bus has mechanical stop signal displayed
14-18	Voluntary manslaughter
14-18	Involuntary manslaughter".

Section 5. G.S. 143-116.8(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) (1) It shall be unlawful for a person to operate a vehicle in the State parks and forests road system at a speed in excess of twenty-five miles per hour (25 mph). When the Secretary of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources determines that this speed is greater than reasonable and safe under the conditions found to exist in the State parks and forests road system, the Secretary may establish a lower reasonable and safe speed limit. No speed limit established by the Secretary pursuant to this provision shall be effective until posted in the part of the system sought to be affected.

(2) Any person convicted of violating this subsection by operating a vehicle on the State parks and forests road system ~~in excess of twenty-five miles per hour (25 mph) and at least fifteen miles per hour (15 mph) over the legal limit~~ while fleeing or attempting to elude arrest or apprehension by a law enforcement officer with authority to enforce the motor vehicle laws, shall be punished as provided in ~~G.S. 20-141(j).~~ G.S. 20-141.5.

(3) For the purposes of enforcement and administration of Chapter 20, the speed limits stated and authorized to be adopted by this section are speed limits under Chapter 20.

(4) The Secretary may designate any part of the State parks and forests road system for one-way traffic and shall erect appropriate signs giving notice thereof. It shall be a violation of G.S. 20-165.1 for any person to willfully drive or operate any vehicle on any part of the State parks and forests road system so designated except in the direction indicated.

(5) The Secretary shall have power, equal to the power of local authorities under G.S. 20-158 and G.S. 20-158.1, to place vehicle control signs and signals and yield-right-of-way signs in the State parks and forests road system; the Secretary also shall have power to post such other signs and markers and mark the roads in accordance with Chapter 20 as the Secretary may determine appropriate for highway safety and traffic control. The failure of any vehicle driver to obey any vehicle control sign or signal, or any yield-right-of-way sign placed under the authority of this section in the State parks and forests road system shall be an infraction and shall be punished as provided in G.S. 20-176."

Section 6. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT REGARDING THE CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS OF SPOUSES, THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY AND INCOME WITHHOLDING TO ENFORCE SUPPORT ORDERS, AND THE AWARDING OF ALIMONY, AS RECOMMENDED BY THE FAMILY LAW SECTION OF THE NORTH CAROLINA BAR ASSOCIATION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 52-2 reads as rewritten:

"§ 52-2. Capacity to contract.

(a) Subject to the provisions of G.S. 52-10 or 52-10.1, G.S. 39-7 and other regulations and limitations now or hereafter prescribed by the General Assembly, every married person is authorized to contract and deal so as to affect his or her real and personal property in the same manner and with the same effect as if he or she were unmarried.

(b) Except as otherwise provided by this section or by other State law, a spouse shall not be responsible for the other spouse's contract liability to a third party, whether the liability arose before or after the marriage. The doctrine of necessaries as it existed at common law, however, shall apply and shall apply equally to both spouses, except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, but shall in no event create any liability between the spouses as to each other.

(c) The doctrine of necessaries shall not apply to either spouse when the spouses are living separate and apart with the intent on behalf of one of them to cease marital cohabitation, unless one of the following applies:

(1) The nondebtor spouse has willfully created the appearance of not being separated and has requested that the creditor extend credit to the estranged debtor spouse; or

(2) The debt is for medical expenses and the nondebtor spouse carries medical insurance on the debtor spouse, provided that the nondebtor spouse shall be liable only for the debt that is or will be discharged under the terms of the medical insurance."

Section 2. G.S. 50-13.4(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) Payment for the support of a minor child shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property of any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property in payment of arrearages of child support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which payment for the support of a minor child is ordered and alimony or postseparation support is also ordered, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance."

Section 3. G.S. 50-16.7(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Alimony or postseparation support shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, income withholding, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property or any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property in payment of lump-sum payments of alimony or postseparation support or in payment of arrearages of alimony or postseparation support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which either alimony or postseparation support is allowed and provision is also made for support of minor children, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance."

Section 4. G.S. 50-16.7 is amended by adding the following new subsection to read:

"(11) The dependent spouse may apply to the court for an order of income withholding for current or delinquent payments of alimony or postseparation support or for any portion of the payments. If the court orders income withholding, a notice of obligation to withhold shall be served on the payor as required by G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, Rules of Civil Procedure. Copies of the notice shall be filed with the clerk of court and served upon the supporting spouse by first-class mail."

Section 5. G.S. 110-136.6 is amended by adding the following new subsection to read:

"(b1) When there is an order of income withholding for current or delinquent payments of alimony or postseparation support or for any portion of the payments, the total amount withheld under this Article and under G.S. 50-16.7 shall not exceed the amounts allowed under section 303(b) of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1673(b)."

Section 6. G.S. 110-136.8(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Payor's responsibilities. A payor who has been properly served with a notice to withhold is required to:

(1) Withhold from the obligor's disposable income and, within 10 days of the date the obligor is paid, send to the clerk of superior court specified in the notice, the amount specified in the notice and the date the amount was withheld, but in no event more than the amount allowed by G.S. 110-136.6; however, if a lesser amount of disposable income is available for any pay period, the payor shall either: (a) compute and send the appropriate amount to the clerk of court, using the percentages as provided in G.S. 110-136.6, or (b) request the initiating party to inform the payor of the proper amount to be withheld for that period;

(2) Continue withholding until further notice from the IV-D agency or the clerk of superior court;

(3) Withhold for child support before withholding pursuant to any other legal process under State law against the same disposable income;

(4) Begin withholding from the first payment due the obligor in the first pay period that occurs 14 days following the date the notice of the obligation to withhold was served on the payor;

(5) Promptly notify the obligee in a IV-D case, or the clerk of superior court in a non-IV-D case, in writing:

a. If there ~~is more than one child support withholding for the obligor;~~ are one or more orders of child support withholding for the obligor;

a1. If there are one or more orders of alimony or postseparation support withholding for the obligor;

b. When the obligor terminates employment or otherwise ceases to be entitled to disposable income from the payor, and provide the obligor's last known address, and the name and address of his new employer, if known;

c. Of the payor's inability to comply with the withholding for any reason; and

(6) Cooperate fully with the initiating party in the verification of the amount of the obligor's disposable income."

Section 7. G.S. 50-16.1A is amended by adding the following new subdivision to read:

"(4a) 'Payor' means any payor, including any federal, State, or local governmental unit, of disposable income to an obligor. When the payor is an employer, payor means employer as defined under 20 U.S.C. § 203(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act."

Section 8. G.S. 110-129(11) reads as rewritten:

"(11) 'Obligee', in a IV-D case, means the child support enforcement agency, and in a non-IV-D case means the individual to whom a duty of ~~support~~ support, whether child support, alimony, or postseparation support, is owed or the individual's legal representative."

Section 9. G.S. 110-129(12) reads as rewritten:

"(12) 'Obligor' means the individual who owes a duty to make child support payments or payments of alimony or postseparation support under a court order."

Section 10. G.S. 50-16.3A(b) is amended by adding the following new subdivision to read:

"(16) Income being received by either party that was previously considered by the court in determining the value of a marital asset in an equitable distribution of the parties' marital property."

Section 11. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997. Section 1 of this act applies to contracts entered into and transactions occurring on and after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT REGARDING THE CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS OF SPOUSES, THE TRANSFER OF PROPERTY AND INCOME WITHHOLDING TO ENFORCE SUPPORT ORDERS, AND THE AWARDING OF ALIMONY, AS RECOMMENDED BY THE FAMILY LAW SECTION OF THE NORTH CAROLINA BAR ASSOCIATION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 52-2 reads as rewritten:

"§ 52-2. Capacity to contract.

(a) Subject to the provisions of G.S. 52-10 or 52-10.1, G.S. 39-7 and other regulations and limitations now or hereafter prescribed by the General Assembly, every married person is authorized to contract and deal so as to affect his or her real and personal property in the same manner and with the same effect as if he or she were unmarried.

(b) Except as otherwise provided by this section or by other State law, a spouse shall not be responsible for the other spouse's contract liability to a third party, whether the liability arose before or after the marriage. The doctrine of necessaries as it existed at common law, however, shall apply and shall apply equally to both spouses, except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, but shall in no event create any liability between the spouses as to each other.

(c) The doctrine of necessaries shall not apply to either spouse when the spouses are living separate and apart with the intent on behalf of one of them to cease marital cohabitation, unless one of the following applies:

(1) The nondebtor spouse has willfully created the appearance of not being separated and has requested that the creditor extend credit to the estranged debtor spouse; or

(2) The debt is for medical expenses and the nondebtor spouse carries medical insurance on the debtor spouse, provided that the nondebtor spouse shall be liable only for the debt that is or will be discharged under the terms of the medical insurance."

Section 2. G.S. 50-13.4(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) Payment for the support of a minor child shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property of any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property in payment of arrearages of child support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which payment for the support of a minor child is ordered and alimony or postseparation support is also ordered, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance."

Section 3. G.S. 50-16.7(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Alimony or postseparation support shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, income withholding, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property or any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property in payment of lump-sum payments of alimony or postseparation support or in payment of arrearages of alimony or postseparation support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which either alimony or postseparation support is allowed and provision is also made for support of minor children, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance."

Section 4. G.S. 50-16.7 is amended by adding the following new subsection to read:

"(l1) The dependent spouse may apply to the court for an order of income withholding for current or delinquent payments of alimony or postseparation support or for any portion of the payments. If the court orders income withholding, a notice of obligation to withhold shall be served on the payor as required by G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, Rules of Civil Procedure. Copies of the notice shall be filed with the clerk of court and served upon the supporting spouse by first-class mail."

Section 5. G.S. 110-136.3(b) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(3) In the enforcement of alimony or postseparation support orders pursuant to G.S. 110-130.2, and obligor shall become subject to income withholding on the earlier of:

a. The date on which the obligor fails to make legally obligated alimony or postseparation payments; or

b. The date on which the obligor or obligee requests withholding."

Section 6. G.S. 110-136.4(a)(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) Contents of advance notice. The advance notice to the obligor shall contain, at a minimum, the following information:

a. Whether the proposed withholding is based on the obligor's failure to make legally obligated ~~payments in an amount equal to the support payable for one month~~ alimony or postseparation support payments or on the obligor's request for withholding or on the obligee's request for withholding;

b. The amount of overdue child support, overdue alimony or postseparation support payments, the total amount to be withheld, and when the withholding will occur;

c. The name of each child or person for whose benefit the child ~~support is~~ support, alimony or postseparation support payments are due and information sufficient to identify the court order under which the obligor has a duty to support the ~~child;~~ child, spouse, or former spouse;

d. The amount and sources of disposable income;

e. That the withholding will apply to the obligor's wages or other sources of disposable income from current payors and all subsequent payors once the procedures under this section are invoked;

f. An explanation of the obligor's rights and responsibilities pursuant to this section;

g. That withholding will be continued until terminated pursuant to G.S. 110-136.10."

Section 7. G.S. 110-136.6 is amended by adding the following new subsection to read:

"(b1) When there is an order of income withholding for current or delinquent payments of alimony or postseparation support or for any portion of the payments, the total amount withheld under this Article and under G.S. 50-16.7 shall not exceed the amounts allowed under section 303(b) of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1673(b)."

Section 8. G.S. 110-136.8(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Payor's responsibilities. A payor who has been properly served with a notice to withhold is required to:

(1) Withhold from the obligor's disposable income and, within 10 days of the date the obligor is paid, send to the clerk of superior court specified in the notice, the amount specified in the notice and the date the amount was withheld, but in no event more than the amount allowed by G.S. 110-136.6; however, if a lesser amount of disposable income is available for any pay period, the payor shall either: (a) compute and send the appropriate amount to the clerk of court, using the percentages as provided in G.S. 110-136.6, or (b) request the initiating party to inform the payor of the proper amount to be withheld for that period;

(2) Continue withholding until further notice from the IV-D agency or the clerk of superior court;

(3) Withhold for child support before withholding pursuant to any other legal process under State law against the same disposable income;

(4) Begin withholding from the first payment due the obligor in the first pay period that occurs 14 days following the date the notice of the obligation to withhold was served on the payor;

(5) Promptly notify the obligee in a IV-D case, or the clerk of superior court in a non-IV-D case, in writing:

a. If there ~~is more than one child support withholding for the obligor;~~ are one or more orders of child support withholding for the obligor;

a1. If there are one or more orders of alimony or postseparation support withholding for the obligor;

b. When the obligor terminates employment or otherwise ceases to be entitled to disposable income from the payor, and provide the obligor's last known address, and the name and address of his new employer, if known;

c. Of the payor's inability to comply with the withholding for any reason; and

(6) Cooperate fully with the initiating party in the verification of the amount of the obligor's disposable income."

Section 9. G.S. 50-16.1A is amended by adding the following new subdivision to read:

"(4a) 'Payor' means any payor, including any federal, State, or local governmental unit, of disposable income to an obligor. When the payor is an employer, payor means employer as defined under 20 U.S.C. § 203(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act."

Section 10. G.S. 110-129(11) reads as rewritten:

"(11) 'Obligee', in a IV-D case, means the child support enforcement agency, and in a non-IV-D case means the individual to whom a duty of ~~support~~ support, whether child support, alimony, or postseparation support, is owed or the individual's legal representative."

Section 11. G.S. 110-129(12) reads as rewritten:

"(12) 'Obligor' means the individual who owes a duty to make child support payments or payments of alimony or postseparation support under a court order."

Section 12. G.S. 50-16.3A(b) is amended by adding the following new subdivision to read:

"(16) Income being received by either party that was previously considered by the court in determining the value of a marital asset in an equitable distribution of the parties' marital property."

Section 13. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997. Section 1 of this act applies to contracts entered into and transactions occurring on and after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE THAT FIREFIGHTERS WHO ENGAGE IN SOME FIRE INSPECTION ACTIVITIES AS A SECONDARY RESPONSIBILITY ARE NOT COVERED BY THE LAW PROHIBITING CONFLICTS OF INTEREST BY INSPECTION DEPARTMENTS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 160A-415 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-415. Conflicts of interest.

No member of an inspection department or other individual contracting with a city to conduct inspections shall be financially interested or employed by a business that is financially interested in the furnishing of labor, material, or appliances for the construction, alteration, or maintenance of any building within the city's jurisdiction or any part or system thereof, or in the making of plans or specifications therefor, unless he is the owner of the building. No member of an inspection department or other individual contracting with a city to conduct inspections shall engage in any work that is inconsistent with his duties or with the interest of the city. The provisions of this section do not apply to firefighters whose primary duties are fire protection and rescue, but who engage in some fire inspection activities as a secondary responsibility of their employment."

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 915—Firefighters/No Conflict (Mercer)

House Bill 915 amends G.S. 160A-415 which governs conflicts of interest of inspections departments. Under current law, a member of an inspections department or an individual contracting with a city to conduct inspections may not be financially interested in the furnishing of labor, material, or appliances for construction, alteration, or maintenance of any building within the city's jurisdiction, unless he or she owns the building.

The bill would create an exception from this provision for firefighters whose primary duties are fire protection and rescue, but who engage in some fire inspection activities as a secondary responsibility of employment.

House Bill 915 is effective when it becomes law.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY AND EXPAND THE CLASSIFICATION OF PERSONS WHO MAY OBTAIN A PROTECTIVE ORDER; TO CLARIFY THE CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH MAGISTRATES MAY ISSUE PROTECTIVE ORDERS; AND TO IMPOSE A CRIMINAL PENALTY FOR VIOLATION OF A PROTECTIVE ORDER.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 50B-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 50B-1. Domestic violence; definition.

(a) Domestic violence means the commission of one or more of the following acts upon an aggrieved party or upon a minor child residing with or in the custody of the aggrieved party by a person with whom the aggrieved party has or has had a ~~familial~~ personal relationship, but does not include acts of self-defense:

(1) Attempting to cause bodily injury, or intentionally causing bodily injury; or

(2) Placing the aggrieved party or a member of the aggrieved party's family or household in fear of imminent serious bodily injury; or

(3) Committing any act defined in G.S. 14-27.2 through G.S. 14-27.7.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term ~~'familial~~ 'personal relationship' means a relationship wherein the parties involved:

(1) Are current or former spouses;

(2) Are persons of opposite sex who live together or have lived together;

(3) ~~Are parents, grandparents, or others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or children and grandchildren;~~ Are related as parents and children, including others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or as grandparents and grandchildren. For purposes of this subdivision, an aggrieved party may not obtain an order of protection against a child or grandchild under the age of 16;

(4) Have a child in ~~common.~~ common;

(5) Are current or former household members;

(6) Are persons of the opposite sex who are dating or have dated. For purposes of this subdivision, a dating relationship is one wherein the parties are romantically involved over time and on a continuous basis during the course of the relationship. A casual acquaintance or ordinary fraternization between persons in a business or social context is not a dating relationship."

Section 2. G.S. 50B-2(c1) reads as rewritten:

"(c1) Ex Parte Orders by Authorized Magistrate. -- The chief district court judge may authorize a magistrate or magistrates to hear any motions for emergency relief ex parte. Prior to the hearing, if the magistrate determines that at the time the party is seeking emergency relief ex parte ~~the clerk of superior court is not available,~~ the district court is not in ~~session,~~ session and a district court judge is not and will not be available to hear the motion for a period of four or more hours, the motion may be heard by the magistrate. If it clearly appears to the magistrate from specific facts shown that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the magistrate may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts, except that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the magistrate finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse. An ex parte order entered under this subsection shall expire and the magistrate shall schedule an ex parte hearing before a district court judge within 72 hours of the filing for relief under this subsection, or by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed, whichever occurs first. A party who has paid court costs due for seeking an order from the magistrate under this subsection shall not be liable for court costs for a hearing before the district court judge scheduled and heard pursuant to an order entered by the magistrate under this subsection. Ex parte orders entered by the district court judge pursuant to this subsection shall be entered and scheduled in accordance with subsection (c) of this section."

Section 3. Chapter 50B is amended by adding the following new section to read:

"§ 50B-4A. Violation of valid protective order a misdemeanor.

A person who violates a valid protective order entered pursuant to this Chapter shall be guilty of a Class A1 misdemeanor."

Section 4. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

RE: House Bill 929 - Domestic Violence Changes

House Bill 929 amends Chapter 50B of the general statutes regarding domestic violence protective orders. Specifically, it makes the following changes:

1) Adds 2 new categories of persons to the definition of "familial relationship" to include "current or former household members" and also persons who are "dating or have dated". A dating relationship is defined as one where the parties are romantically involved over time and on a continuous basis, and does not include casual acquaintance or socialization. Also allows protective orders between parents and children (including persons acting in loco parentis to a minor child) and grandparents and grandchildren, but prohibits issuance of an order of protection against a child under the age of 16.

2) Clarifies when an ex parte protective order may be issued by removing the requirement that the clerk of superior court by unavailable. An ex parte protective order may be granted by a magistrate if the district court is not in session.

3) Creates a new G.S. 50B-4A to make it a Class 1 misdemeanor to violate a valid protective order.

This act is effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

§ 50B-1. Domestic violence; definition.

(a) Domestic violence means the commission of one or more of the following acts upon an aggrieved party or upon a minor child residing with or in the custody of the aggrieved party by a person with whom the aggrieved party has or has had a familial relationship, but does not include acts of self-defense:

(1) Attempting to cause bodily injury, or intentionally causing bodily injury; or

(2) Placing the aggrieved party or a member of the aggrieved party's family or household in fear of imminent serious bodily injury; or

(3) Committing any act defined in G.S. 14-27.2 through G.S. 14-27.7.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term "familial relationship" means a relationship wherein the parties involved:

(1) Are current or former spouses;

(2) Are persons of opposite sex who live together or have lived together;

(3) Are parents, grandparents, or others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or children and grandchildren;

(4) Have a child in common.

§ 50B-2. Institution of civil action; motion for emergency relief; temporary orders.

(b) Emergency Relief. - A party may move the court for emergency relief if he or she believes there is a danger of serious and immediate injury to himself or herself or a minor child. A hearing on a motion for emergency relief, where no ex parte order is entered, shall be held after five days' notice of the hearing to the other party or after five days from the date of service of process on the other party, whichever occurs first, provided, however, that no hearing shall be required if the service of process is not completed on the other party. If the party is proceeding pro se and does not request an ex parte hearing, the clerk shall set a date for hearing and issue a notice of hearing within the time periods provided in this subsection, and shall effect service of the summons, complaint, notice, and other papers through the appropriate law enforcement agency where the defendant is to be served, upon payment of the required service fees.

(c) Ex Parte Orders. - Prior to the hearing, if it clearly appears to the court from specific facts shown, that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the court may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts provided, however, that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the court finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse. Upon the issuance of an ex parte order under this subsection, a hearing shall be held within 10 days from the date of issuance of the order or within seven days from the date of service of process on the other party, whichever occurs later. If an aggrieved party acting pro se requests ex parte relief, the clerk of superior court shall schedule an ex parte hearing with the district court division of the General Court of Justice within 72 hours of the filing for said relief, or by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed, whichever shall first occur. If the district court is not in session in said county, the aggrieved party may contact the clerk of superior court in any other county within the same judicial district who shall schedule an ex parte hearing with the district court division of the General Court of Justice by the end of the next day on which said court division is in session in that county. Upon the issuance of an ex parte order under this subsection, if the party is proceeding pro se, the Clerk shall set a date for hearing and issue a notice of hearing within the time periods provided in this subsection, and shall effect service of the summons, complaint, notice, order and other papers through the appropriate law enforcement agency where the defendant is to be served, upon payment of the required service fees.

facts shown that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the magistrate may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts, except that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the magistrate finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse. An ex parte order entered under this subsection shall expire and the magistrate shall schedule an ex parte hearing before a district court judge within 72 hours of the filing for relief under this subsection, or by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed, whichever occurs first. A party who has paid court costs due for seeking an order from the magistrate under this subsection shall not be liable for court costs for a hearing before the district court judge scheduled and heard pursuant to an order entered by the magistrate under this subsection. Ex parte orders entered by the district court judge pursuant to this subsection shall be entered and scheduled in accordance with subsection (c) of this section.

(c2) The authority granted to authorized magistrates to award temporary child custody to pursuant subsection (c1) of this section and pursuant to G.S. 50B-3(a)(4) is granted subject to custody rules to be established by the supervising chief district judge of each judicial district.

(d) Pro Se Forms. - The clerk of superior court of each county shall provide to pro se complainants all forms which are necessary or appropriate to enable them to proceed pro se pursuant to this section. The Clerk shall provide a supply of pro se forms to authorized magistrates who shall make the forms available to complainants seeking relief under subsection (c1) of this section.

AN ACT TO CLARIFY AND EXPAND THE CLASSIFICATION OF PERSONS WHO MAY OBTAIN A PROTECTIVE ORDER; TO CLARIFY THE CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH MAGISTRATES MAY ISSUE PROTECTIVE ORDERS; AND TO IMPOSE A CRIMINAL PENALTY FOR VIOLATION OF A PROTECTIVE ORDER.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 50B-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 50B-1. Domestic violence; definition.

(a) Domestic violence means the commission of one or more of the following acts upon an aggrieved party or upon a minor child residing with or in the custody of the aggrieved party by a person with whom the aggrieved party has or has had a ~~familial~~ personal relationship, but does not include acts of self-defense:

(1) Attempting to cause bodily injury, or intentionally causing bodily injury; or

(3) Committing any act defined in G.S. 14-27.2 through G.S. 14-27.7.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term '~~familial~~ 'personal relationship' means a relationship wherein the parties involved:

(1) Are current or former spouses;

(2) Are persons of opposite sex who live together or have lived together;

(3) ~~Are parents, grandparents, or others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or children and grandchildren;~~ Are related as parents and children, including others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or as grandparents and grandchildren. For purposes of this subdivision, an aggrieved party may not obtain an order of protection against a child or grandchild under the age of 16;

(4) Have a child in ~~common.~~ common;

(5) Are current or former household members;

(6) Are persons of the opposite sex who are dating or have dated. For purposes of this subdivision, a dating relationship is one wherein the parties are romantically involved over time and on a continuous basis during the course of the relationship. A casual acquaintance or ordinary fraternization between persons in a business or social context is not a dating relationship."

Section 2. G.S. 50B-2(c1) reads as rewritten:

"(c1) Ex Parte Orders by Authorized Magistrate. -- The chief district court judge may authorize a magistrate or magistrates to hear any motions for emergency relief ex parte. Prior to the hearing, if the magistrate determines that at the time the party is seeking emergency relief ex parte ~~the clerk of superior court is not available,~~ the district court is not in ~~session,~~ session and a district court judge is not and will not be available to hear the motion for a period of four or more hours, the motion may be heard by the magistrate. If it clearly appears to the magistrate from specific facts shown that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the magistrate may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts, except that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the magistrate finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse. An ex parte order entered under this subsection shall expire and the magistrate shall schedule an ex parte hearing before a district court judge within 72 hours of the filing for relief under this subsection, or by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed, whichever occurs first. Ex parte orders entered by the district court judge pursuant to this subsection shall be entered and scheduled in accordance with subsection (c) of this section."

Section 3. Chapter 50B is amended by adding the following new section to read:

"§ 50B-4A. Violation of valid protective order a misdemeanor.

A person who violates a valid protective order entered pursuant to this Chapter shall be guilty of a Class A1 misdemeanor."

Section 4. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

AN ACT TO RECODIFY THE LAW CONCERNING HABITUAL FELONS AND VIOLENT HABITUAL FELONS, TO PROVIDE THAT THE ISSUE OF WHETHER A DEFENDANT IS AN HABITUAL FELON OR A VIOLENT HABITUAL FELON SHALL BE DETERMINED BY THE TRIAL JUDGE, AND TO MAKE OTHER CHANGES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-7.1 is recodified as G.S. 15A-1340.13A; the remainder of Article 2A of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 2. G.S. 14-7.1, as recodified by Section 1 of this act, reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-1340.13A. ~~Persons defined as habitual~~ Habitual felons.

~~Any person who has been convicted of or pled guilty to three felony offenses in any federal court or state court in the United States or combination thereof is declared to be an habitual felon. For the purpose of this Article, a felony offense is defined as an offense which is a felony under the laws of the State or other sovereign wherein a plea of guilty was entered or a conviction was returned regardless of the sentence actually imposed. Provided, however, that federal offenses relating to the~~

(a) Definitions. -- The following definitions shall apply in this section when determining a person's status as an habitual felon:

(1) Felony. -- An offense that is a felony under the laws of the State or or other sovereign wherein a plea of guilty was entered or a conviction was returned regardless of the sentence actually imposed. The term does not include, however, federal offenses relating to the manufacture, possession, sale of, and kindred offenses involving intoxicating liquors. For the purposes of this section, felonies committed before a person attains the age of 18 years shall not constitute more than one felony. The commission of a second felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the first felony. The commission of a third felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the second felony. Pleas of guilty to or convictions of felonies before July 6, 1967, are not felonies for the purposes of this section. A felony offense to which a pardon has been extended is not a felony for the purposes of this section. The burden of proving the pardon shall rest with the defendant; the State is not required to disprove a pardon.

(2) Habitual felon. -- A person who has been convicted of or pled guilty to three or more felony offenses in any federal court or state court in the United States or combination thereof prior to committing the current offense.

(b) Sentencing of Habitual Felons. -- When a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to any felony under the laws of this State, the district attorney may, upon sentencing, submit to the trial judge, as an enhanced sentencing factor, the determination of the person's status as an habitual felon. If the trial judge determines, upon submission by the district attorney of the defendant's status as an habitual felon, that the felony was committed by an habitual felon, the trial judge shall sentence the person as a Class C felon, except where the felon has been sentenced as a Class A, B1, or B2 felon. In determining the prior record level of the person sentenced as an habitual felon, the convictions used to establish the person's status as an habitual felon shall not be used. A sentence imposed on an habitual felon pursuant to this section shall run consecutively with and shall commence at the expiration of any sentence being served by the person sentenced under this section.

(c) Disclosure of Habitual Felon Status.-- If the district attorney fails to serve notice upon the defendant no later than 20 working days before trial of the defendant's status as an habitual felon and the district attorney's intention to submit to the trial judge the defendant's status as an habitual felon, the defendant may not be sentenced as an habitual felon under this section.

(d) Evidence of Prior Convictions. -- In sentencing a person under this section, the record or records of prior convictions of felony offenses may be used by the court to determine if the person has been convicted of former felony offenses. A prior conviction may be shown by stipulation of the parties or by the original or a certified copy of the court record of the prior conviction. The original or certified copy of the court record, bearing the same name as that by which the defendant is charged, shall be sufficient to show that the defendant named therein is the same as the defendant before the court and to show the facts set out in the record, and the burden of any showing to the contrary shall be upon the defendant."

Section 3. G.S. 14-7.7 is recodified as G.S. 15A-1340.13B; the remainder of Article 2B of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 4. G.S. 14-7.7, as recodified by Section 3 of this act, reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-1340.13B. ~~Persons defined as violent~~ Violent habitual felons.

~~(a) Any person who has been convicted of two violent felonies in any federal court, in a court of this or any other state of the United States, or in a combination of these courts is declared to be a violent habitual felon. For purposes of this Article, "convicted" means the person has been adjudged guilty of or has entered a plea of guilty or no contest to the violent felony charge, and judgment has been entered thereon when such action occurred on or after July 6, 1967. This Article does not apply to a second violent felony unless it is committed after the conviction or plea of guilty or no contest to the first violent felony. Any felony to which a pardon has been extended shall not, for the purposes of this Article, constitute a felony. The burden of proving a pardon shall rest with the defendant, and this State shall not be required to disprove a pardon. Conviction as an habitual felon shall not, for purposes of this Article, constitute a violent felony.~~

~~(1) All Class A through E felonies.~~

~~(2) Any repealed or superseded offense substantially equivalent to the offenses listed in subdivision (1).~~

~~(3) Any offense committed in another jurisdiction substantially equivalent to the offenses set forth in subdivision (1) or (2).~~

(a) Definitions.-- The following definitions shall apply in this section when determining a person's status as a violent habitual felon:

(1) Violent felony.-- An offense that is one of the following:

a. All Class A through E felonies.

b. Any repealed or superseded offense substantially equivalent to the offenses listed in sub-subdivision a.

c. Any offense committed in another jurisdiction substantially equivalent to the offenses set forth in sub-subdivisions a. or b.

A person is convicted of a violent felony if he or she has been adjudged guilty of or has entered a plea of guilty to a violent felony charge, and a judgment has been entered on or after July

6, 1967. This section does not apply to a second violent felony unless it is committed after the conviction or plea of guilty or no contest to the first violent felony. Any felony to which a pardon has been extended shall not, for the purposes of this section, constitute a violent felony. The burden of proving a pardon shall rest with the defendant, and the State shall not be required to disprove a pardon. Conviction and punishment as an habitual felon shall not, for the purposes of this section, constitute a violent felony.

(2) Violent habitual felon.-- Any person who has been convicted of two violent felonies in any federal court, in a court of this or any other state of the United States, or in a combination of these courts.

(b) Sentencing of Violent Habitual Felons.-- When a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to any violent felony under the laws of this State, the district attorney may, upon sentencing, submit to the trial judge, as an enhanced sentencing factor, the determination of the person's status as a violent habitual felon. If the trial judge determines, upon the submission by the district attorney of the person's status as a violent habitual felon, that the violent felony was committed by a violent habitual felon, the trial judge shall sentence the person to life imprisonment without parole, except where the death penalty is imposed. Life imprisonment without parole means that the person will spend the remainder of the person's natural life in prison. The sentencing judge may not suspend the sentence and may not place the person sentenced on probation. Sentences for violent habitual felons imposed under this Article shall run consecutively with and shall commence at the expiration of any other sentence being served by the person.

(c) Disclosure of Violent Habitual Felon Status.-- If the district attorney fails to serve notice upon the defendant no later than 20 working days before trial of the defendant's status as a violent habitual felon and the district attorney's intention to submit to the trial judge the defendant's status as a violent habitual felon, the defendant may not be sentenced as a violent habitual felon under this section.

(d) Evidence of Prior Convictions.-- In sentencing a person under this section, the records of prior convictions of violent felonies may be used by the court to determine if the person has been convicted of former violent felonies. A prior conviction may be shown by stipulation of the parties or by the original or a certified copy of the court record of the prior conviction. The original or certified copy of the court record, bearing the same name as that by which the defendant is charged, shall be prima facie evidence that the defendant named therein is the same as the defendant before the court, and shall be prima facie evidence of the facts set out therein, and the burden of any showing to the contrary shall be upon the defendant."

Sec. 6. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

Any felony offense to which a pardon has been extended shall not for the purpose of this Article constitute a felony. The burden of proving such pardon shall rest with the defendant and the State shall not be required to disprove a pardon.~~

(a) Definitions. -- The following definitions shall apply in this section when determining a person's status as an habitual felon:

(1) Felony. -- An offense that is a felony under the laws of the State or other sovereign wherein a plea of guilty was entered or a conviction was returned regardless of the sentence actually imposed. The term does not include, however, federal offenses relating to the manufacture, possession, sale of, and kindred offenses involving intoxicating liquors. For the purposes of this section, felonies committed before a person attains the age of 18 years shall not constitute more than one felony. The commission of a second felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the first felony. The commission of a third felony shall not fall within the purview of this section unless it is committed after the conviction of or plea of guilty to the second felony. Pleas of guilty to or convictions of felonies before July 6, 1967, are not felonies for the purposes of this section. A felony offense to which a pardon has been extended is not a felony for the purposes of this section. The burden of proving the pardon shall rest with the defendant; the State is not required to disprove a pardon.

(2) Habitual felon. -- A person who has been convicted of or pled guilty to three or more felony offenses in any federal court or state court in the United States or combination thereof prior to committing the current offense.

(b) Sentencing of Habitual Felons. -- When a person is convicted of or pleads guilty to any felony under the laws of this State, the district attorney may, upon sentencing, submit to the trial judge, as an enhanced sentencing factor, the determination of the person's status as an habitual felon. If the trial judge determines, upon submission by the district attorney of the defendant's status as an habitual felon that the felony was committed by an habitual felon, the trial judge shall sentence the person as a Class C felon, except where the felon has been sentenced as a Class A, B1, or B2 felon. In determining the prior record level of the person sentenced as an habitual felon, the convictions used to establish the person's status as an habitual felon shall not be used. A sentence imposed on an habitual felon pursuant to this section shall run consecutively with and shall commence at the expiration of any sentence being served by the person sentenced under this section.

(c) Disclosure of Habitual Felon Status. -- If the district attorney fails to serve written notice upon the defendant no later than 20 working days before trial of the defendant's status as an habitual felon and the district attorney's intention to submit to the trial judge the defendant's status as an habitual felon, the defendant may not be sentenced as an habitual felon under this section.

(d) Evidence of Prior Convictions. -- In sentencing a person under this section, the record or records of prior convictions of felony offenses may be used by the court to determine if the person has been convicted of former felony offenses. A prior conviction may be shown by stipulation of the parties or by the original or a certified copy of the court record of the prior conviction. A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE THAT CONFISCATED WEAPONS MAY BE KEPT FOR DEPARTMENTAL USE BY LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-269.1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-269.1. Confiscation and disposition of deadly weapons.

Upon conviction of any person for violation of G.S. 14-2.2, 14-269, 14-269.7, or any other offense involving the use of a deadly weapon of a type referred to in G.S. 14-269, the deadly weapon with reference to which the defendant shall have been convicted shall be ordered confiscated and disposed of by the presiding judge at the trial in one of the following ways in the discretion of the presiding judge.

(1) By ordering the weapon returned to its rightful owner, but only when such owner is a person other than the defendant and has filed a petition for the recovery of such weapon with the presiding judge at the time of the defendant's conviction, and upon a finding by the presiding judge that petitioner is entitled to possession of same and that he was unlawfully deprived of the same without his consent.

(2), (3) Repealed by Session Laws 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 16, s. 2.

(4) By ordering such weapon turned over to the sheriff of the county in which the trial is held or his duly authorized agent to be destroyed. The sheriff shall maintain a record of the destruction thereof.

(4a) By ordering the weapon turned over to a law-enforcement agency in the county of trial for the use of such agency or to be transferred by the agency to a licensed firearm dealer in exchange for other law enforcement supplies, but only upon the written request by the head or chief of such agency. The receiving law-enforcement agency shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received.

(4b) By ordering the weapon turned over to the sheriff of the county in which the trial is held to be sold as herein provided. Under the direction of the sheriff, the weapon shall be sold at public auction after one advertisement in a newspaper having general circulation in the county, which advertisement shall be at least seven days prior to sale. The proceeds of such sale shall go to the general fund of the county in which such weapons are sold. The sheriff shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received and sold by him. Sales of such weapons by the sheriff shall be held at least once each year.

(5) By ordering such weapon turned over to the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation's Crime Laboratory Weapons Reference Library for official use by that agency. The State Bureau of Investigation shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received.

(6) By ordering such weapons turned over to the North Carolina Justice Academy for official use by that agency. The North Carolina Justice Academy shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received."

RE: House Bill 523 - Confiscated Gun/Law Officer Use - Proposed Committee Substitute

House Bill 523 amends 14-269.1 to provide a judge two additional alternatives when ordering disposition of weapons confiscated for violation of certain offenses. The judge would be allowed to order the weapon turned over to a local law-enforcement agency for their use or transfer to a licensed dealer in return for law-enforcement supplies. Also, the judge would be allowed to order the weapon turned over to the sheriff to be sold, the proceeds to be remitted to the county's general fund.

This act becomes effective when it becomes law.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

§ 14-2.2. Sentencing of a person convicted of a Class A, B, B1, B2, C, D, or E felony who used, displayed, or threatened to use or display a firearm during the commission of the crime; confiscation and disposition of a firearm used in a felony.

(a) If a person is convicted of a Class A, B, B1, B2, C, D, or E felony and the person used, displayed, or threatened to use or display a firearm during the commission of the felony, the person shall, in addition to the punishment for the underlying felony, be sentenced to a minimum term of imprisonment for 60 months as provided by G.S. 15A-1340.16A.

The court shall not suspend any sentence imposed under this section and shall not place a person sentenced under this section on probation for the sentence imposed under this section. Sentences imposed pursuant to this section shall be consecutive to all other sentences imposed and shall begin at the expiration of any other sentence being served by the person.

(b) Subsection (a) of this section does not apply in any of the following circumstances:

(1) The person is not sentenced to an active term of imprisonment.

(2) The evidence of the use, display, or threatened use or display of a firearm is needed to prove an element of the underlying Class A, B, B1, B2, C, D, or E felony.

(3) The person did not actually possess a firearm about his or her person.

(c) When a person is found to have personally used a firearm in the commission or attempted commission of a felony and the firearm is owned by that person, or the serial number on the firearm has been defaced such that ownership is not traceable, the court shall order that the firearm be confiscated and disposed of in any of the ways provided by G.S. 14-269.1 that the court in its discretion deems appropriate.

(d) Repealed by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 22, s. 19(b), effective October 1, 1994.

Cross References. - As to structured sentencing of persons convicted of crimes, effective October 1, 1994, see § 15A-1340.10 et seq.

Editor's Note. - The above section was enacted as § 15A-1340.5 by Session Laws 1979, c. 760, s. 2 and was amended, transferred and renumbered as § 14-2.2 by Session Laws 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1316, s. 34. The section became effective July 1, 1981, and is applicable to offenses committed on or after that date. See Session Laws 1979, c. 760, s. 6; 1979, 2nd Sess., c. 1316, ss. 47, 48; 1981, c. 63; c. 179, s. 14.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 22, which amended this section, in s. 19(c) repealed Session Laws 1993, c. 538, s. 4, which as amended by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 24, s. 14(b), would have repealed this section effective October 1, 1994.

Subsection (a) was amended by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 22, s. 19(a), in the coded bill drafting format provided by § 120-20.1. Without engrossing the amendment added a sentence to the end of the first paragraph in subsection (a) which read "Evidence of the use, display, or threatened use or display of a firearm that is needed to prove an element of the underlying felony shall not be used to establish the enhancement under this section." This language is similar to present subsection (b)(2). The section has been set out in the form above at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 22, which amended this section, in s. 1 provides: "This act shall be known as the Crime Control Act of 1994."

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 22, which amended this section, in s. 24 provides: "Prosecution for, or sentences based on, offenses committed before the effective dates of this Part are not abated or affected by this Part, and the statutes that would be applicable to those prosecutions or sentences but for the provisions of this Part remain applicable to those prosecutions or sentences."

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, which amended this section, made the amendment by c. 22, s. 18, effective May 1, 1994, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, which amended this section, made the amendment by c. 22, s. 19(a) and (b), which was effective on the date that Section 56 of Chapter 538 of the 1993 Session Laws became effective (October 1, 1994), and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date.

§ 14-269. Carrying concealed weapons.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person willfully and intentionally to carry concealed about his person any bowie knife, dirk, dagger, slung shot, loaded cane, metallic knuckles, razor, shurikin, stun gun, or other deadly weapon of like kind, except when the person is on the person's own premises.

(a1) It shall be unlawful for any person willfully and intentionally to carry concealed about his person any pistol or gun except in the following circumstances:

(1) The person is on the person's own premises.

(2) The deadly weapon is a handgun, and the person has a concealed handgun permit issued in accordance with Article 54B of this Chapter.

(b) This prohibition shall not apply to the following persons:

(1) Officers and enlisted personnel of the armed forces of the United States when in discharge of their official duties as such and acting under orders requiring them to carry arms and weapons;

(2) Civil officers of the United States while in the discharge of their official duties;

(3) Officers and soldiers of the militia and the national guard when called into actual service;

(4) Officers of the State, or of any county, city, or town, charged with the execution of the laws of the State, when acting in the discharge of their official duties;

(5) Sworn law-enforcement officers, when off-duty, if:

a. Written regulations authorizing the carrying of concealed weapons have been filed with the clerk of superior court in the county where the law-enforcement unit is located by the sheriff or chief of police or other superior officer in charge; and

b. Such regulations specifically prohibit the carrying of concealed weapons while the officer is consuming or under the influence of alcoholic beverages.

(b1) It is a defense to a prosecution under this section that:

(1) The weapon was not a firearm;

(2) The defendant was engaged in, or on the way to or from, an activity in which he legitimately used the weapon;

(3) The defendant possessed the weapon for that legitimate use; and

(4) The defendant did not use or attempt to use the weapon for an illegal purpose.

The burden of proving this defense is on the defendant.

(c) Any person violating the provisions of subsection (a) of this section shall be guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor. Any person violating the provisions of subsection (a1) of this section shall be guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor for the first offense. A second or subsequent offense is punishable as a Class I felony.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(d) This section does not apply to an ordinary pocket knife carried in a closed position. As used in this section, "ordinary pocket knife" means a small knife, designed for carrying in a pocket or purse, that has its cutting edge and point entirely enclosed by its handle, and that may not be opened by a throwing, explosive, or spring action.

Cross References. - As to counties still governed by a former subdivision (b) of this section, which was eliminated by the 1965 amendment, see note to § 14-269.1.

As to going armed on Sunday, see § 103-2.

Editor's Note. - Session Laws 1993, c. 539, s. 163, which amended this section, in s. 1359, as amended by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 24, s. 14(c), provides: "This act becomes effective October 1, 1994, and applies to offenses occurring on or after that date. Prosecutions for offenses committed before the effective date of this act are not abated or affected by this act, and the statutes that would be applicable but for this act remain applicable to those prosecutions."

Effect of Amendments. - The 1995 amendment, effective December 1, 1995, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, in subsection (a) deleted "except when on his own premises" preceding "willfully and intentionally", deleted "pistol, gun" following "stun gun", added "except when the person is on the person's own premises", and deleted the second and third sentences regarding ordinary pocket knives; added subsection (a1); in subdivision (b)(5) deleted "Full-time" preceding "Sworn", and deleted "in the jurisdiction where they are assigned" following "off-duty"; in subsection (c) substituted "subsection (a) of this section" for "this section" in the first sentence, and added the second and third sentences; and added subsection (d).

§ 14-269.7. Prohibitions on handguns for minors.

(a) Any minor who possesses or carries a handgun is guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor.

(b) This section does not apply:

(1) To officers and enlisted personnel of the armed forces of the United States when in discharge of their official duties or acting under orders requiring them to carry handguns.

(2) To a minor who possesses a handgun for educational or recreational purposes while the minor is supervised by an adult who is present.

(3) To an emancipated minor who possesses such handgun inside his or her residence.

(4) To a minor who possesses a handgun while hunting or trapping outside the limits of an incorporated municipality if he has on his person written permission from a parent, guardian, or other person standing in loco parentis.

(c) The following definitions apply in this section:

(1) Handgun. - A firearm that has a short stock and is designed to be fired by the use of a single hand, or any combination of parts from which such a firearm can be assembled.

(2) Minor. - Any person under 18 years of age.

(1993, c. 259, s. 1; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 14, s. 5; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 597, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. - Session Laws 1993, c. 259, s. 4 makes this section effective September 1, 1993, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 14, s. 73 provides: "Prosecutions for offenses committed before the effective date of this act are not abated or affected by this act, and the statutes that would be applicable but for this act remain applicable to those prosecutions."

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, which amended this section, was effective on the same date that Chapter 539 of the 1993 Session Laws became effective (October 1, 1994), and applicable to offenses occurring on or after that date.

Effect of Amendments. - The 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994) amendment, effective January 1, 1995 and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, in subdivision (c)(1) substituted "A" for "Any dangerous," substituted "that has a short stock and is" for "including a pistol or revolver" and added at the end "or any combination of parts from which such a firearm can be assembled"; and in subdivision (c)(2) deleted "the age of" preceding "18."

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE THAT CONFISCATED WEAPONS MAY BE KEPT FOR DEPARTMENTAL USE BY LAW ENFORCEMENT OFFICERS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-269.1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-269.1. Confiscation and disposition of deadly weapons.

Upon conviction of any person for violation of G.S. 14-2.2, 14-269, 14-269.7, or any other offense involving the use of a deadly weapon of a type referred to in G.S. 14-269, the deadly weapon with reference to which the defendant shall have been convicted shall be ordered confiscated and disposed of by the presiding judge at the trial in one of the following ways in the discretion of the presiding judge.

(1) By ordering the weapon returned to its rightful owner, but only when such owner is a person other than the defendant and has filed a petition for the recovery of such weapon with the presiding judge at the time of the defendant's conviction, and upon a finding by the presiding judge that petitioner is entitled to possession of same and that he was unlawfully deprived of the same without his consent.

(2), (3) Repealed by Session Laws 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 16, s. 2.

(4) By ordering such weapon turned over to the sheriff of the county in which the trial is held or his duly authorized agent to be destroyed. The sheriff shall maintain a record of the destruction thereof.

(4a) By ordering the weapon turned over to a law enforcement agency in the county of trial for the use of such agency or to be transferred by the agency to a licensed firearm dealer in exchange for other law enforcement supplies, but only upon the written request by the head or chief of such agency. The receiving law enforcement agency shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received.

(4b) By ordering the weapon turned over to the sheriff of the county in which the trial is held to be sold as herein provided. Under the direction of the sheriff, the weapon shall be sold at public auction after one advertisement in a newspaper having general circulation in the county, which advertisement shall be at least seven days prior to sale. The proceeds of such sale shall go to the general fund of the county in which such weapons are sold. The sheriff shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received and sold by him. Sales of such weapons by the sheriff shall be held at least once each year.

(5) By ordering such weapon turned over to the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigation's Crime Laboratory Weapons Reference Library for official use by that agency. The State Bureau of Investigation shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received.

(6) By ordering such weapons turned over to the North Carolina Justice Academy for official use by that agency. The North Carolina Justice Academy shall maintain a record and inventory of all such weapons received."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO EXEMPT SOME CORPORATIONS FROM THE APPLICABILITY OF THE PROFESSIONAL CORPORATION ACT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 55B-15 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55B-15. Applicability of Chapter.

(a) This Chapter shall not apply to the following:

(1) ~~any~~ A corporation which prior to June 5, 1969, was permitted by law to render professional services ~~as herein defined~~ or ~~to~~ the corporate successor of ~~any such~~ that corporation by merger or otherwise by operation of law, provided there is no substantial change in the direct or indirect beneficial ownership of the shares of ~~such~~ that corporation as the result of ~~such~~ the merger or other ~~transaction;~~ transaction. ~~for~~ For purposes of this ~~section,~~ subdivision, a change of twenty percent (20%) or less shall not be considered substantial.

(2) A corporation that renders integral services defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E that are related to the planning and design of utilities, structures, buildings, machines or equipment to be manufactured, installed, constructed, or serviced by the employees of the corporation or firm. For purposes of this subdivision, 'integral services' means services subordinate to and reasonably necessary to support the primary services offered or rendered by a corporation. This subdivision does not limit or modify the applicability of G.S. 55B-8.

(b) ~~Any such corporation or successor corporation rendering "professional service" as defined in G.S. 55B-2(6)~~ A corporation or its successor exempt under subsection (a) of this section may be brought within the provisions of this Chapter by the filing of an amendment to its articles of incorporation declaring that its shareholders have elected to bring the corporation within the provisions of this Chapter and to make the same conform to all of the provisions of this Chapter."

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chariman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 530-Professional Corporation Act Amendment (Neely)

House Bill 530 amends G.S. 55B-15 to exempt corporations which render services through licensed engineers, landscape architects, and geologists from the Professional Corporation Act. The Professional Corporation Act does not allow these firms to offer design services unless they are organized as professional corporations. A firm can only organize as a professional corporation if at least two-thirds of the stock is owned by a licensed design professional. However, many contracting firms cannot fail to meet this stock requirement. The bill would allow these firms to offer such services without meeting this requirement. The services must be integral to and in connection with the planning and design of utilities, structures, engineering components, and engineering systems of buildings, machines, or equipment to be manufactured, installed, constructed or serviced by the corporation.

House Bill 530 is effective when it becomes law.

ARTICLE 3.

The Supreme Court.

(a) The Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice and six associate justices, elected by the qualified voters of the State for terms of eight years. Before entering upon the duties of his office, each justice shall take an oath of office. Four justices shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of the business of the court. Sessions of the court shall be held in the city of Raleigh, and scheduled by rule of court so as to discharge expeditiously the court's business.

(b) The Chief Justice and each of the associate justices shall receive the annual salary provided in Current Operations Appropriations Act. Each justice is entitled to reimbursement for travel and subsistence expenses at the rate allowed State employees generally.

(c) In lieu of merit and other increment raises paid to regular State employees, the Chief Justice and each of the Associate Justices shall receive as longevity pay an annual amount equal to four and eight-tenths percent (4.8%) of the annual salary set forth in the Current Operations Appropriations Act payable monthly after five years of service, nine and six-tenths percent (9.6%) after 10 years of service, fourteen and four-tenths percent (14.4%) after 15 years of service, and nineteen and two-tenths percent (19.2%) after 20 years of service. "Service" means service as a justice or judge of the General Court of Justice or as a member of the Utilities Commission. Service shall also mean service as a district attorney or as a clerk of superior court. (1967, c. 108, s. 1; 1983, c. 761, s. 242; 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1034, s. 165; c. 1109, ss. 11, 13.1; 1985, c. 698, s. 10(a).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 333 requests the Supreme Court of North Carolina to develop and implement a case flow management plan designed to administer justice without delay and to increase efficiency in the handling of cases in the state's trial courts. The Supreme Court is requested to make a report detailing the plan to the 1995 General Assembly, Regular Session 1996, by May 1, 1996.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 997—Notary Commission Amendment (Neely)

House Bill 997 deletes the requirement that a notary public obtain a recommendation from one publicly elected official in the State when submitting an application to the Secretary of State for notarial commission.

House Bill 997 becomes effective October 1, 1997 and applies to applications submitted on or after that date.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Chapter 10A.

Notaries.

Sec.
10A-4. Commissioning.
10A-6. Recommissioning.
10A-12. Enforcement and penalties.
10A-13. Change of status.

§ 10A-4. Commissioning.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (c) of this section, the Secretary of State shall commission as a notary any qualified person who submits an application in accordance with this Chapter.

(b) A person qualified for a notarial commission shall meet all of the following requirements:

(1) Be at least 18 years of age.

(2) Reside or work in this State.

(3) Satisfactorily complete a course of study that is approved by the Secretary of State and consists of not less than three hours nor more than six hours of classroom instruction provided by community colleges throughout the State, unless the person is a licensed member of the Bar of this State.

(4) Purchase and keep as a reference a manual approved by the Secretary of State that describes the duties, authority, and ethical responsibilities of notaries public.

(5) Submit an application containing no significant misstatement or omission of fact. The application form shall be provided by the Secretary of State and be available at the register of deeds office in each county. Every application shall bear the signature of the applicant written with pen and ink, and the signature shall be acknowledged by the applicant before a person authorized to administer oaths. The applicant shall also obtain the recommendation of one publicly elected official in North Carolina whose recommendation shall be contained on the application.

(c) The Secretary of State may deny an application if any of the following applies to the applicant:

(1) The applicant has been convicted of a crime involving dishonesty or moral turpitude.

(2) The applicant has had a notarial commission or professional license revoked, suspended, or restricted by this or any other state.

(3) The applicant has engaged in official misconduct, whether or not disciplinary action resulted.

(d) The course of study required by subsection (b) of this section shall be taught by an instructor certified in accordance with rules adopted by the Secretary of State. An instructor must meet the following requirements to be certified to teach a course of study for notaries public:

(1) Complete and pass a six-hour instructor's course taught by the notaries public director or other person approved by the Secretary of State.

(2) Have six months of active experience as a notary public.

(3) Maintain a current commission as a notary public.

(4) Purchase the current notary public guidebook.

Registers of deeds, assistant and deputy registers of deeds, clerks of court, and assistant and deputy clerks of court are exempt from the requirements set forth in subdivisions (2) and (3) of this subsection while they remain actively employed in the capacities named.

(e) Certification to teach a course of study shall be effective for two years and may be renewed by passing a recertification course taught by the notaries public director or other person approved by the Secretary of State. (Code, ss. 3304, 3305; Rev., ss. 2347, 2348; C.S., s. 3172; 1927, c. 117; 1959, c. 1161, s. 2; 1969, c. 563, s. 1; c. 912, s. 1; 1973, c. 680, s. 1; 1983, c. 427, ss. 1, 2; c. 713, s. 22; 1991, c. 683, s. 2; 1995, c. 226, s. 1.)

Effect of Amendments. — The 1995 amendment, effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to applications for recommission on or after that date, added subsections (d) and (e).

CASE NOTES

§ 10A-6. Recommissioning.

An applicant for recommissioning as a notary shall submit a new application and comply anew with the provisions of G.S. 10A-4, except that the applicant shall not be required to complete the course of study described in subdivision (b)(3) nor to obtain the recommendation of a publicly elected official. (1991, c. 683, s. 2; 1995, c. 226, s. 2.)

Effect of Amendments. — The 1995 amendment, effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to applications for recommission on or after that date, substituted "that the applicant shall not be required to complete the course of study described in subdivision (b)(3) nor to obtain the recommendation of a publicly elected official" for "for subdivision (b)(3)" at the end of the section.

§ 10A-9. Powers and limitations.

HOUSE BILL 415

Short Title: Grandparents' Child Support Clarification. (Public)

Sponsors: Representatives Berry; and Culp.

Referred to: Judiciary II.

March 6, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY THE LAW REGARDING GRANDPARENTS' LIABILITY FOR CERTAIN CHILD SUPPORT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 50-13.4(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, the father and mother shall be primarily liable for the support of a minor child. In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, parents of a minor, unemancipated child who is the custodial or noncustodial parent of a child shall share this primary liability for their grandchild's support with the minor parent, the court determining the proper share, until the minor parent reaches the age of 18 or becomes emancipated. If both the parents of the child requiring support were unemancipated minors at the time of the child's conception, the parents of both minor parents share primary liability for their grandchild's support until both minor parents reach the age of 18 or become emancipated. If only one parent of the child requiring support was an unemancipated minor at the time of the child's conception, the parents of both parents are liable for any arrearages in child support owed by the adult or emancipated parent until the other parent reaches the age of 18 or becomes emancipated. In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, any other person, agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis shall be secondarily liable for ~~such~~ this support. Such other circumstances may include, but shall not be limited to, the relative ability of all the above-mentioned parties to provide support or the inability of one or more of them to provide support, and the needs and estate of the child. The judge may enter an order requiring any one or more of the above-mentioned parties to provide for the support of the child as may be appropriate in the particular case, and if appropriate the court may authorize the application of any separate estate of the child to his support. However, the judge ~~may~~ shall not order support to be paid by a person who is not the child's ~~parent~~ parent, grandparent, or an agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis absent evidence and a finding that ~~such~~ the person, agency, organization or institution has voluntarily assumed the obligation of support in writing. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to prevent any court from ordering the support of a child by an agency of the State or county which agency may be responsible under law for ~~such~~ the support."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law.

Referred to: Judiciary II.

April 10, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODIFY THE RIGHTS OF A DECEDENT'S SPOUSE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 1 of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 2. Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Article to read:

"ARTICLE 1A.

"§ 30-3.1. Right of elective share.

(a) Elective Share. -- The surviving spouse of a decedent who dies domiciled in this State has a right to claim an 'elective share', which means an amount equal to (i) the applicable share of the Total Net Assets, as defined in G.S. 30-3.2(c), less (ii) the value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, as defined in G.S. 30-3.3(a). The applicable share of the Total Net Assets is as follows:

(1) If the decedent is not survived by any lineal descendants, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(2) If the decedent is survived by one child, or lineal descendants of one deceased child, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(3) If the decedent is survived by two or more children, or by one or more children and the lineal descendants of one or more deceased children, or by the lineal descendants of two or more deceased children, one-third of the Total Net Assets.

(b) Reduction of Applicable Share. -- In those cases in which the surviving spouse is a second or successive spouse, and the decedent has one or more lineal descendants surviving by a prior marriage but there are no lineal descendants surviving by the surviving spouse, the applicable share as determined in subsection (a) of this section shall be reduced by one-half.

(c) Minimum Applicable Share. -- In no event shall the applicable share of the Total Net Assets be less than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000).

(d) Death Taxes. -- Death taxes shall be taken into account as a claim against the estate in determining Total Net Assets only to the extent that such taxes are increased because the assets received by the surviving spouse do not qualify for the federal estate tax marital deduction pursuant to section 2056 of the Code, the North Carolina exemption from inheritance and estate tax pursuant to G.S. 105-3(10) and (11), or similar provisions under the laws of any other applicable taxing jurisdiction.

"§ 30-3.2. Definitions.

(a) 'Code' means the Internal Revenue Code in effect at the time of the decedent's death.

(b) 'Death taxes' means any estate, inheritance, succession, and similar taxes imposed by any taxing authority, reduced by any applicable credits against those taxes.

(c) 'Total Net Assets' means, after the payment or provision for payment of the decedent's funeral expenses, year's allowances to persons other than to the surviving spouse, debts, claims, and administration expenses, the sum of the following:

(1) All property to which the decedent had legal and equitable title immediately prior to death;

(2) All property received by the decedent's personal representative by reason of the decedent's death;

(3) All proceeds of insurance on the life of the decedent of which the decedent is the owner, or which is payable to the surviving spouse;

(4) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety, or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(5) The entire value of any property held by the decedent and another person, other than the surviving spouse, as joint tenants with right of survivorship, except to the extent that contribution can be proven by clear and convincing evidence;

(6) The value of any property which would be included in the taxable estate of the decedent pursuant to sections 2033, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, or 2042 of the Code;

(7) Any donative transfers of property made by the decedent to donees other than the surviving spouse within three years of the decedent's death, excluding:

a. Any gifts within the annual exclusion provisions of section 2503 of the Code; and

b. Any gifts to which the surviving spouse consented. A signing of a deed, or income or gift tax return reporting such gift shall be considered consent;

(8) Any proceeds of any individual retirement account, pension or profit-sharing plan, or any private or governmental retirement plan or annuity of which the decedent controlled the designation of beneficiary, excluding any benefits under the federal Social Security system;

(9) Any other Property Passing to Surviving Spouse under G.S. 30-3.3; and

(10) In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once under the provision yielding the greatest value.

"§ 30-3.3. Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(a) Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. -- For purposes of this Article, 'Property Passing to Surviving Spouse' means the sum of the following:

(1) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(2) The value of any interest in property (outright or in trust, including any interest subject to a general power of appointment held by the surviving spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code) devised by the decedent to the surviving spouse, or which passes to the surviving spouse by intestacy, or by beneficiary designation, or by exercise of or in default of the exercise of the decedent's testamentary general or limited power of appointment, or by operation of law or otherwise by reason of the decedent's death, excluding any benefits under the federal social security system.

(3) Any year's allowance awarded to the surviving spouse;

(4) The value of any property renounced by the surviving spouse;

(5) The value of the surviving spouse's interest, outright or in trust, in any life insurance proceeds on the life of the decedent; and

(6) The value of any interest in property, outright or in trust, transferred from the decedent to the surviving spouse during the lifetime of decedent for which (i) a gift tax return is timely filed reporting such gift, or (ii) the surviving spouse signs a statement acknowledging such a gift. For purposes of this subdivision, any gift to the surviving spouse by the decedent of the decedent's interest in any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with right of survivorship shall be valued at one-half of the entire value of that property at the time the gift is made.

(b) Death Taxes. -- The value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse shall be reduced by any death taxes that are a charge against or apportioned against the surviving spouse on property interests included in Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(c) No Duplication. -- In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once, under the provision yielding the greatest value.

"§ 30-3.4. Procedure for determining the elective share.

(a) Exercisable Only During Lifetime. -- The right of the surviving spouse to file a claim for an elective share must be exercised during the lifetime of the surviving spouse, by the surviving spouse, the surviving spouse's agent under a power of attorney, or the guardian of the surviving spouse's estate. If a surviving spouse dies before the claim for an elective share has been settled, the surviving spouse's personal representative shall succeed to the surviving spouse's rights to an elective share.

(b) Time Limitations. -- A claim for an elective share must be made within six months after the issuance of letters testamentary or letters of administration by (i) filing a petition with the clerk of superior court of the county in which the primary administration of the decedent's estate lies, and (ii) mailing or delivering a copy of that petition to the personal representative of the decedent's estate. A surviving spouse's incapacity shall not toll the six-month period of limitations.

(c) Time for Hearing. -- Unless waived by the personal representative and the surviving spouse, the clerk shall set the matter for hearing no earlier than two months and no later than six months after the filing of the petition. However, the clerk may extend the time of hearing as the clerk sees fit. The clerk shall give notice of the hearing to the surviving spouse, personal representative, and to any person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share.

(d) Preparation of Tax Form. -- In every case in which a petition to determine an elective share has been filed, and within two months of the filing of the petition, the personal representative shall prepare and submit to the clerk a proposed Form 706, federal estate tax return, for the estate, regardless of whether that form is required to be filed with the Internal Revenue Service. The clerk may extend the time for submission of the proposed Form 706 as the clerk sees fit.

(e) Valuation. -- The valuation of interests in property for purposes of G.S. 30-3.2 and G.S. 30-3.3 shall be determined as follows:

(1) Basic principles. -- Each interest shall be valued at its fair market value, reduced by all liens, claims or encumbrances against the interest. For interests passing at the decedent's death, valuation shall be as of the date of death, and for interests transferred during the decedent's lifetime, valuation shall be as of the date of transfer.

(2) Valuation of partial and contingent interests in property. -- The valuation of interests in property, outright or in trust, which are limited to commence or terminate upon the death of one or more persons, upon the expiration of a period of time, or upon the occurrence of one or more contingencies, shall be determined by computations based upon the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, and upon the basis of six percent (6%) of the gross value of the underlying property in which those interests are limited. However, in valuing interests passing to the surviving spouse, the following special rules apply:

a. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the exercise of discretion by a fiduciary, the interest shall have no value unless the spouse is serving as that fiduciary and the power to distribute the trust property constitutes a general power of appointment held by the spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code;

b. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the occurrence of any contingency that is not subject to the control of the surviving spouse and that is not subject to valuation by reference to the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, the contingency will be conclusively presumed to result in the lowest possible value passing to the surviving spouse. However, a life estate or income interest that will terminate only upon the earlier of the surviving spouse's death or remarriage will be valued without regard to the possibility of termination upon remarriage; and

c. To the extent that the valuation of an interest is dependent upon the life expectancy of the surviving spouse, that life expectancy shall be conclusively presumed to be no less than 10 years, regardless of the actual attained age of the surviving spouse at the decedent's death.

(3) Determination of fair market value. -- The fair market value of each asset comprising Total Net Assets shall be determined as follows:

a. Probate assets and assets passing to spouse. -- The value of each probate asset and Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, other than assets held in trust, shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the personal representative, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the personal representative, or (ii) the clerk determines that the personal representative may not be able to represent the estate adversely to the surviving spouse.

b. Trust assets. -- The value of each trust asset shall be established by good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the trustee, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the trustee, or (ii) the clerk determines that the trustee may not be able to represent the trust adversely to the surviving spouse.

c. Other assets. -- The value of any other asset shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and each person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share because of that person's interest in the asset, unless the clerk determines that valuation under sub-subdivision d. of this subdivision is more appropriate.

d. Use of disinterested persons. -- If the value of any asset is not established by agreement, the clerk shall appoint one or more qualified and disinterested persons to determine a value of each asset. That determination of the value of an asset shall be final for the exclusive purposes of this Article.

(f) Findings and Conclusions. -- After notice and hearing, the clerk shall determine whether or not the surviving spouse is entitled to an elective share, and if so, the clerk shall then determine the elective share and shall order the personal representative to transfer that amount to the surviving spouse. The clerk's order shall recite specific findings of fact and conclusions of law in arriving at the decedent's Total Net Assets, Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, and the elective share.

(g) Appeals. -- Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the superior court, and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law. If an appeal is taken from the decision of the clerk, that appeal shall have the effect of staying the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the superior court upon the appeal taken. Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the superior court, the judge may review the findings of fact by the clerk and may find the facts or take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the Appellate Division.

"§ 30-3.5. Recovery of assets by personal representative.

(a) Recovery of Assets. -- The personal representative is entitled to recover proportionately from all persons, other than the surviving spouse, receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets a sufficient amount to enable the personal representative to pay the elective share. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each person receiving or in possession of any of Total Net Assets bears to Total Net Assets, excluding any Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. The only persons subject to contribution to make up the elective share are (i) original recipients of property comprising the decedent's Total Net Assets, and subsequent gratuitous inter vivos donees or persons claiming by testate or intestate succession to the extent those persons have the property or its proceeds on or after the date of decedent's death, and (ii) a fiduciary, as to the property under the fiduciary's control at or after the time a fiduciary receives notice that a surviving spouse has claimed an elective share. A fiduciary shall not be considered to have notice until it receives notice at its address as shown in the decedent's estate papers in the clerk's office or, if there are no such papers or no such address is shown in those papers, at the fiduciary's residence or the office of its registered agent.

The personal representative may withhold from any property of the decedent in his possession, distributable to any person subject to apportionment, the amount of the elective share apportioned to such person. If the property in possession of the personal representative and distributable to any person subject to apportionment is insufficient to satisfy the proportionate amount of the elective share determined to be due from that person, the personal representative may recover the deficiency from that person. If the property is not in possession of the personal representative, the personal representative may recover from the person the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person in accordance with this Article. If the personal representative cannot reasonably collect from any person subject to apportionment the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person, the amount not reasonably recoverable shall, with the approval of the clerk, be apportioned among the other persons who are subject to apportionment. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each remaining person bears to the total value of the interests of all remaining persons.

(b) Standstill Order. -- After the filing of the petition demanding an elective share, either the personal representative or surviving spouse may request the clerk to issue an order that any recipients not dispose of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets pending the hearing. The decision to issue such an order shall be in the discretion of the clerk.

(c) Satisfaction of Liability. -- A person receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets may pay his proportionate elective share liability with respect to that property by any of the following methods:

(1) Conveyance of the property included in the decedent's Total Net Assets;

(2) Payment of the value of his liability in cash or, upon agreement of the surviving spouse, other property; or

(3) Partial conveyance and partial payment under subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection, provided the value conveyed and paid is equal to his liability.

(d) Expenses. -- The expenses reasonably incurred by the personal representative in connection with the appraisal or recovery of assets shall be apportioned as provided for the elective share under this Article. If the personal representative finds that it is inequitable to apportion the expenses because those expenses were incurred because of the fault of one or more persons subject to apportionment, the personal representative may direct other more equitable apportionment, with the approval of the clerk.

(e) Bond. -- If property held by the personal representative is distributed prior to final apportionment of the elective share, the personal representative may require the distributee to provide a bond or other security for the apportionment liability in the form and amount prescribed by the personal representative, with the approval of the clerk.

"§ 30-3.6. Waiver of rights.

(a) The right of a surviving spouse to claim an elective share may be waived, wholly or partially, before or after marriage, with or without consideration, by a written waiver signed by the surviving spouse.

(b) A waiver is not enforceable if the surviving spouse proves that:

(1) The waiver was not executed voluntarily; or

(2) The surviving spouse was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property and financial obligations of the decedent, unless the surviving spouse waived, in writing, the right to that disclosure."

Section 3. G.S. 29-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 29-30. Election of surviving spouse to take life interest in lieu of intestate share provided.

(a) In lieu of the intestate share provided in G.S. 29-14 or ~~29-21,~~ G.S. 29-21, or of the elective share provided in G.S. 30-3.1, the surviving spouse of an intestate or the surviving spouse who ~~dissents from the will of a testator~~ has petitioned for an elective share shall be entitled to take as his or her intestate share or elective share a life estate in one third in value of all the real estate of which the deceased spouse was seised and possessed of an estate of inheritance at any time during coverture, except that real estate as to which the surviving spouse:

(1) Has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in a conveyance thereof, or

(2) Has release or quitclaimed his or her interest therein in accordance with G.S. 52-10, or

(3) Was not required by law to join in conveyance thereof in order to bar the elective life estate, or

(4) Is otherwise not legally entitled to the election provided in this section.

(b) Regardless of the value thereof and despite the fact that a life estate therein might exceed the fractional limitation provided for in subsection (a), the life estate provided for in subsection (a) shall at the election of the surviving spouse include a life estate in the usual dwelling house occupied by the surviving spouse at the time of the death of the deceased spouse if such dwelling house were owned by the deceased spouse at the time of his or her death, together with the outbuildings, improvements and easements thereunto belonging or appertaining, and lands upon which situated and reasonably necessary to the use and enjoyment thereof, as well as a fee simple ownership in the household furnishings therein.

(c) The election provided for in subsection (a) shall be made by the filing of a notice thereof with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the administration of the estate is pending, or, if no administration is pending, then with the clerk of the superior court of any county in which the administration of the estate could be commenced. Such election shall be made:

(1) At any time within one month after the expiration of the time fixed for the filing of ~~a dissent,~~ the petition for elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30, or

(2) In case of intestacy, then within 12 months after the death of the deceased spouse if letters of administration are not issued within that period, or

(3) If letters of administration are issued within 12 months after the date of the death of the deceased spouse, then within one month after the expiration of the time limited for filing claims against the estate, or

(4) If litigation that affects the share of the surviving spouse in the estate is pending, then within such reasonable time as may be allowed by written order of the clerk of the superior court.

The notice of election shall:

(1) Be directed to the clerk with whom filed;

(2) State that the surviving spouse making the same elects to take under this section rather than under the provisions of ~~G.S. 29-14 or 29-21,~~ G.S. 29-14, G.S. 29-21, or G.S. 30-3.1, as applicable;

(3) Set forth the names of all heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons in possession of or claiming an estate or an interest in the property described in subsection (a); and

(4) Request the allotment of the life estate provided for in subsection (a).

The notice of election may be in person, or by attorney authorized in a writing executed and duly acknowledged by the surviving spouse and attested by at least one witness. If the surviving spouse is a minor or an incompetent, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a general guardian or by the guardian of the person or estate of the minor or incompetent spouse. If the minor or incompetent spouse has no guardian, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a next friend appointed by the clerk. The notice of election, whether in person or by attorney, shall be filed as a record of the court, and a summons together with a copy of the notice shall be served upon each of the interested persons named in the notice of election.

(d) In case of election to take a life estate in lieu of an intestate ~~share,~~ share or elective share, as provided in either G.S. 29-14, 29-21, or ~~30-3(a),~~ 30-3.3(a), the clerk of superior court, with whom the notice of election has been filed, shall summon and appoint a jury of three disinterested persons who being first duly sworn shall promptly allot and set apart to the surviving spouse the life estate provided for in subsection (a) and make a final report of such action to the clerk.

(e) The final report shall be filed by the jury not more than 60 days after the summoning and appointment thereof, shall be signed by all jurors, and shall describe by metes and bounds the real estate in which the surviving spouse shall have been allotted and set aside a life estate. It shall be filed as a record of court and a certified copy thereof shall be filed and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of each county in which any part of the real property of the deceased spouse, affected by the allotment, is located.

(f) In the election and procedure to have the life estate allotted and set apart provided for in this section, the rules of procedure relating to partition proceedings shall apply except insofar as the same would be inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

(g) Neither the household furnishings in the dwelling house nor the life estates taken by election under this section shall be subject to the payment of debts due from the estate of the deceased spouse, except those debts secured by such property as follows:

(1) By a mortgage or deed of trust in which the surviving spouse has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in the making thereof; or

(2) By a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust, or by a conditional sales contract of personal property in which title is retained by the vendor, made prior to or during the marriage; or

(3) By a mortgage or deed of trust made prior to the marriage; or

(4) By a mortgage or deed of trust constituting a lien on the property at the time of its acquisition by the deceased spouse either before or during the marriage.

(h) If no election is made in the manner and within the time provided for in subsection (c) the surviving spouse shall be conclusively deemed to have waived his or her right to elect to take under the provisions of this section, and any interest which the surviving spouse may have had in the real estate of the deceased spouse by virtue of this section shall terminate."

Section 4. G.S. 30-15 reads as rewritten:

"§ 30-15. When spouse entitled to allowance.

Every surviving spouse of an intestate or of a testator, whether or not he has petitioned for an elective share, ~~dissented from the will,~~ shall, unless he has forfeited his right thereto, as provided by law, be entitled, out of the personal property of the deceased spouse, to an allowance of the value of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for his support for one year after the death of the deceased spouse. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien, by judgment or execution, acquired against the property of the deceased spouse, and shall, in cases of testacy, be charged against the share of the surviving spouse."

Section 5. G.S. 31-5.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31-5.3. Will not revoked by marriage; dissent from will made prior to marriage.

A will is not revoked by a subsequent marriage of the maker; and the surviving spouse may ~~dissent from such~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made prior to the marriage in the same manner, upon the same conditions, and to the same extent, as a surviving spouse may ~~dissent from~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made subsequent to marriage."

Section 6. G.S. 31A-1(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The rights lost as specified in subsection (a) of this section shall be as follows:

(1) All rights of intestate succession in the estate of the other spouse;
(2) All right to claim or succeed to a homestead in the real property of the other spouse;
(3) All right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share of the estate of the other spouse and take either the elective intestate share provided or the life interest in lieu thereof;
(4) All right to any year's allowance in the personal property of the other spouse;
(5) All right to administer the estate of the other spouse; and
(6) Any rights or interests in the property of the other spouse which by a settlement before or after marriage were settled upon the offending spouse solely in consideration of the marriage."

Section 7. G.S. 31C-3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31C-3. Disposition of community property upon death.

Upon death of a married person, one half of the property to which this Chapter applies is the property of the surviving spouse and is not subject to testamentary disposition by the decedent or distribution under the laws or succession of this State. One half of that property is the property of the decedent and is subject to testamentary disposition or distribution under the laws of succession of this State. With respect to property to which this Chapter applies, the one half of the property of the decedent is not subject to the surviving spouse's right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share under the provisions of Article ~~1~~ 1A of Chapter 30, and is not subject to the right to elect a life estate under the provisions of Article 8 of Chapter 29."

Section 8. G.S. 84-5(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) When any of the following acts are to be performed in connection with the fiduciary activities of such a corporation, said acts shall be performed for the corporation by a duly licensed attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained to perform legal services required in connection with the particular estate, trust or other fiduciary matter:
a. Offering wills for probate.
b. Preparing and publishing notice of administration to creditors.
c. Handling formal court proceedings.
d. Drafting legal papers or giving legal advice to spouses concerning ~~dissent from their spouses' will.~~ rights to an elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes.
e. Resolving questions of domicile and residence of a decedent.
f. Handling proceedings involving year's allowances of widows and children.
g. Drafting deeds, notes, deeds of trust, leases, options and other contracts.

h. Drafting instruments releasing deeds of trust.
i. Drafting assignments of rent.
j. Drafting any formal legal document to be used in the discharge of the corporate fiduciary's duty.
k. In matters involving estate and inheritance taxes, gift taxes, and federal and State income taxes:
1. Preparing and filing protests or claims for refund, except requests for a refund based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
2. Conferring with tax authorities regarding protests or claims for refund, except those based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
3. Handling petitions to the tax court.
l. Performing legal services in insolvency proceedings or before a referee in bankruptcy or in court.
m. In connection with the administration of an estate or trust:
1. Making application for letters testamentary or letters or administration.
2. Abstracting or passing upon title to property.
3. Handling litigation relating to claims by or against the estate or trust.
4. Handling foreclosure proceedings of deeds of trust or other security instruments which are in default."

Section 9. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to estates of decedents dying on or after that date.

An Act to Modify the Rights of a Decedent's Spouse: The Elective Share Statute

This bill repeals North Carolina's dissent statute (Article 1 of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes) and replaces it with an "elective share" statute. The elective share statute solves two problems: (1) the failure of the dissent statute and the Intestate Succession Act to provide a surviving spouse with rights in a decedent's non-probate property, and (2) an anomaly, explained below, in the dissent statute's determination of how much property the spouse may claim. The elective share statute: includes rules for determining the value of property; provides the procedure for claiming and determining the elective share; apportions the liability for satisfaction of the elective share among the beneficiaries of the probate and non-probate assets; and provides a method for spouses to waive their elective share rights by agreement.

The Treatment of Non-probate Property

North Carolina's current dissent statute and Intestate Succession Act (Chapter 29 of the General Statutes) provide a decedent's spouse with certain rights in the decedent's property. The dissent statute applies if the decedent dies with a will; the Intestate Succession Act applies if the decedent dies without a will. Both statutes appear to have been enacted to prevent the decedent from disinheriting his or her spouse and to protect the spouse against the loss of support upon the decedent's death.

Each statute, however, gives the spouse rights only to the decedent's probate property. Probate property is generally all property that the decedent owns other than non-probate property. Non-probate property includes life insurance, IRAs, employee retirement plan accounts, annuities, revocable or "living" trusts, irrevocable trusts, and property owned jointly with one or more other persons with right of survivorship.

Both statutes were enacted in 1959. Since then, the "non-probate revolution" has occurred. Federal tax and employee benefit law has encouraged huge investments of wealth in employee qualified retirement plan accounts, IRAs, tax-deferred annuities and life insurance, all of which are non-probate property. At the same time, an increased awareness of the costs, publicity and delay imposed by court jurisdiction over probate property has motivated many people to transfer large amounts of property into revocable or "living" trusts and joint with right of survivorship property.

Today, it is commonplace for a decedent to die owning a substantial amount of non-probate property, yet very little probate property. Neither the Intestate Succession Act nor the dissent statute, however, provides a decedent's spouse with any rights in the decedent's non-probate property. Accordingly, a decedent can bypass his or her spouse and leave all his or her property to someone else by placing all the property in non-probate form: either owning it jointly with the non-spousal beneficiaries with right of survivorship; or investing it in life insurance, annuities, IRAs, employee benefit plan accounts, or irrevocable trusts that designate the non-spousal persons as beneficiaries.

The elective share statute restores to the surviving spouse the protection that the dissent statute and Intestate Succession Act originally intended to provide. The elective share statute gives the surviving spouse the right to an "elective share" of the decedent's "Total Net Assets", whether the decedent dies with or without a will.

How Much Property the Surviving Spouse May Claim

The current dissent statute determines a surviving spouse's rights in two steps. The statute first determines whether the spouse has the right to dissent at all (§ 30-1 of the dissent statute). If the spouse has the right to dissent, then the statute determines how much probate property the spouse may receive (§ 30-3 of the dissent statute). The two steps are inconsistent. The first step takes into account the non-probate property that the spouse receives. Generally, the spouse has a right to dissent if the amount of property, probate and non-probate, that the spouse is entitled to receive is less than a threshold amount. If the spouse passes this first step and thus has the right to dissent, the second step generally gives the spouse a share of the probate property equal to the step-one threshold amount without regard to how much non-probate property the spouse receives. Because the first step takes the spouse's share of non-probate property into account and the second step does not, an anomaly results:

> Example 1. Decedent dies survived by a spouse (sole marriage) and three children. Decedent owns $600,000 of probate property and $200,000 of non-probate property. Decedent's will leaves all the probate property to the children. All the non-probate property passes to the spouse.
> Example 2. The facts are the same as Example 1 except that Decedent's probate property is worth $600,001.

Assume that the step-one threshold amount and the step-two dissent share amount are both equal to one-third of the probate property. In Example 1, the step-one threshold is $200,000. Decedent's spouse may not dissent, as that share is not less than the threshold amount. The spouse receives $200,000 in non-probate property but receives none of the probate property.

In Example 2, the step-one threshold is $200,000.33. Accordingly, Decedent's spouse may dissent. The spouse then receives not only $200,000 in non-probate property, but also $200,000.33 worth of the probate property, for a total of $400,000.33.

The elective share statute avoids this unfairness by eliminating the dissent statute's first step, while maintaining a similar distribution under the second step. § 30-3.1 simply provides that a spouse always has the right to claim an elective share; and that the elective share amount is equal to a defined share of the decedent's probate and non-probate property ("Total Net Assets") reduced by the amount of probate and non-probate property that the spouse is already entitled to receive ("Property Passing to Surviving Spouse").

Comparing the Shares Under the Dissent Statute and the Elective Share Statute

The elective share amount is:

1. If the decedent has no surviving descendants, one-half of Total Net Assets less Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

2. If the decedent's only surviving descendants are either one child or the issue of one deceased child, one-half of Total Net Assets less Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

3. Otherwise, one-third of Total Net Assets less Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

Under the current dissent statute, if the surviving spouse has the right to dissent (passes the "step one" threshold described above) the dissent share equals:

A If the decedent has no surviving descendants or parents, approximately one-half of the decedent's net probate property.

B Otherwise, the spouse's share under the Intestate Succession Act if the decedent had died without a will. Under the Intestate Succession Act, the spouse's share equals:

   i. If the decedent's only surviving descendants are either one child or the issue of one deceased child, approximately one-half of the decedent's net probate property.

   ii. Otherwise, approximately one-third of the decedent's net probate property.

Thus, a similar distribution system is maintained. Like the current dissent statute, under the elective share statute, if the decedent has surviving descendants by a prior marriage and no descendants by the marriage to the surviving spouse, then the elective share amount is determined by reducing the prescribed share of Total Net Assets by one-half. (So, in #2 above, the elective share is one-fourth of Total Net Assets less Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, and in #3 one-sixth.)

An Act to Modify the Rights of a Decedent's Spouse

North Carolina's current dissent statute (Article 1 of Chapter 30) and Intestate Succession Act (Chapter 29) provide a decedent's spouse with certain rights in the decedent's property. The dissent statute applies if the decedent dies with a will; the Intestate Succession Act applies if the decedent dies without a will. Each statute gives the spouse rights only to the decedent's probate property and property held in a revocable or living trust. Today, it is commonplace for a decedent to die owning a substantial amount of non-probate property, yet very little probate property. Examples of non-probate property are life insurance, IRAs, employee retirement plan accounts, annuities, irrevocable trusts and property owned jointly with one or more other persons with right of survivorship. Therefore, a decedent can bypass his or her spouse by leaving property to someone else in non-probate form by owning property jointly with non-spousal beneficiaries with right of survivorship, or investing it in life insurance, annuities, IRAs, employee benefit plan accounts or irrevocable trusts that designate non-spousal persons as beneficiaries. Under the current statute, if a surviving spouse has a right to dissent, the share that the surviving spouse takes is a share of the probate property without regard to how much non-probate property the spouse receives.

The elective share statute gives the surviving spouse the right to an "elective share" of the decedent's "total net assets" whether the decedent dies with or without a will. The elective share amount is equal to the applicable share of the decedent's total net assets to which the surviving spouse is entitled less the value of property passing to the surviving spouse. The applicable share parallels the fraction of probate assets prescribed by the current dissent statute. The decedent's total net assets include probate, non-probate property and certain property given away during the decedent's lifetime. The value of property passing to the surviving spouse includes the spouse's interest in the decedent's probate and non-probate property and certain gifts made by the decedent to the spouse during life. The elective share is satisfied proportionately from the non-spousal beneficiaries' shares.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO USE PHOTOGRAPHIC IMAGES AS PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF A TRAFFIC VIOLATION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 160A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 160A-300.1. Use of traffic control photographic systems.

(a) Traffic control photographic systems.

(1) A traffic control photographic system is an electronic system consisting of a photographic, video, or electronic camera and a vehicle sensor installed to work in conjunction with an official traffic control device to automatically produce photographs, video, or digital images of each vehicle violating a standard traffic control statute or ordinance.

(2) Any traffic control photographic system, as described in subdivision (1) of this subsection or any device which is a part of that system deployed on a street or highway which is a part of the State highway system shall meet requirements established by the North Carolina Department of Transportation. Any traffic control system deployed on a municipal street shall meet standards established by the municipality and shall be consistent with any standards set by the Department of Transportation.

(b) Municipalities and counties may adopt ordinances for the enforcement of G.S. 20-141, 20-141.1, 20-143, or 20-158 by means of a traffic control photographic system, as described in subsection (a) of this section. An ordinance authorized by this subsection shall provide that:

(1) The owner of a vehicle shall be responsible for a violation under this section unless the owner can furnish evidence that the vehicle was, at the time of the violation, in the care, custody, or control of another person. In those instances, the owner of the vehicle shall, within 21 days after notification of the violation, furnish the officials or agents of the municipality or county which issued the citation, the name and address of the person or company who leased, rented, or otherwise had the care, custody, and control of the vehicle. The owner of the vehicle shall not be responsible for the violation if the vehicle involved was, at the time, stolen or in the care, custody, or control of some person who did not have permission of the owner to use the vehicle.

(2) The violation of this section detected by a traffic control photographic system shall be deemed a noncriminal violation for which a civil penalty of fifty dollars ($50.00) shall be assessed and a violation for which no points authorized by G.S. 20-16(c) shall be assigned to the owner or driver of the vehicle.

(3) The owner of the vehicle shall be issued a citation and shall comply with the directions on the citation. The citation shall be processed by officials or agents of the municipality or county and shall be forwarded by first-class mail to the address given on the motor vehicle registration. Personal service on the owner of the vehicle shall not be required. In the event that payment of the civil penalty is not received or a response to the citation is not made within the time period specified on the citation, the owner shall be deemed to have waived his right to pay the civil penalty, and the officials or agents making the original mailing of the citation shall submit a copy of the citation to the district attorney for submission to the district court. The court shall find that failing to make payment of the civil penalty the owner shall be deemed to have been convicted of a violation under this section and shall be subject to a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00), and the court shall take appropriate measures to enforce collection of the fine. A municipality or county may substitute a nonjudicial administrative hearing for the process of submittal to the district attorney and the court. The owner of the vehicle issued the citation under this section shall have a right to appeal from the administrative hearing to the district court.

(4) Any person who elects to appear before a district court to present evidence shall be deemed to have waived his right to pay a civil penalty. A certificate sworn to or affirmed by a technical employed by or under contract to the municipality or county where the violation occurred, or a facsimile of that certificate, based on the inspection of photographs or other recorded images produced by a traffic control photographic system shall be prima facie evidence of the facts contained in the sworn certificate. The court, after a hearing, shall make a determination as to whether a violation of this section has been committed and, if a violation is determined, shall impose a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00) and additional court costs. If the fine and court costs have not been paid within the time specified by the court, the court shall take appropriate measures to enforce collection."

RE: House Bill 1045 - Red Light Photo Citations

House Bill 1045 would allow cities and counties to adopt local ordinances to enforce traffic offenses such as speeding and running a red light through the use of a "traffic control photographic system". A traffic control photographic system is an electronic system consisting of a photographic, video or electronic camera and a vehicle sensor which works in conjunction with a traffic control device to automatically produce photographs, video or digital images of vehicles violating these types of statutes or ordinances.

The owner of a vehicle photographed would be responsible for the violation, unless they can furnish evidence that at the time of the offense, the vehicle was under the care, custody or control of another person. The violation is noncriminal and a civil penalty of $50 shall be assessed. The citation will be mailed to the owner, with no personal service required. If the owner fails to provide evidence or pay the civil penalty, the matter will be referred to the district attorney who will submit the matter to the district court. The court shall convict the owner of the violation and assess a fine not to exceed $100. The city or county may choose to use a nonjudicial administrative hearing instead of the district court proceeding, but the owner has the right to appeal to the district court. A sworn certificate by a technical employee of the city or county constitutes a prima facie case of the facts in the certificate.

This act is effective when it becomes law.

Stoplight violators cannot be tolerated

A traffic light turns from red to green and a driver pulls forward into the intersection only to be slammed in the side by an oncoming vehicle.

It happened at U.S. 74's intersection with Waxhaw-Indian Trail Road on March 17 with deadly consequences and that wasn't the first time. Less than a month before, it happened at the Unionville-Indian Trail Road intersection and landed a senior citizen in intensive care.

Four years ago, a similar accident at the took the life of the director of the Union County Community Arts Council.

These accidents involved tractor-trailer trucks running red lights. But it isn't just truck drivers who are creating such a danger, it's all kinds of arrogant leadfoots who seem to think traffic lights don't apply to them. Or maybe they simply see yellow as a signal to floor it and race through before the light turns to red rather than as a warning to slow down.

Whichever the case, the situation cannot be tolerated.

Monroe Public Safety officers write between 650 and 700 tickets in a month's time, but only 50 to 60 for failure to stop at red lights.

We think that number should be higher and we're calling on Public Safety, the North Carolina Highway Patrol and the Union County Sheriff's Office's new traffic unit to make traffic light enforcement a priority.

A few well-placed officers along Roosevelt Boulevard shouldn't have trouble catching dozens of violaters in just a day's time.

And while the traffic tickets themselves won't keep these speed demons off the road for long, they should serve as a deterrent to the drivers who receive them and to passing motorists who see cars being pulled over.

Lawmakers in Raleigh are right now considering taking away vehicles of habitual drunken drivers or perhaps even labeling their cars with an "I've been convicted of DWI" sign. We support these measures, but before we go too far with additional laws, we need to fully enforce the most basic of traffic rules — for all of you who don't seem to have noticed, red means stop.

Red Light Violation Monitoring

FACT SHEET

- In Charlotte, at the intersection of Albemarle Road and Harris Boulevard, the Charlotte Department of Transportation recorded 170 motorists running the red light during a six hour period from 7:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., March 6, 1997. The light had been red for 3 seconds prior to car entering.
- Twenty-five percent (25%), about 7,829, of Charlotte's 1995's total traffic accidents occurred at signalized intersections -- A majority of those 7,829 accidents occurred from illegal red-light running

- A violation occurs when a motorist enters an intersection after the signal light has turned red, not on yellow.

- No photographs will be taken of vehicles that have entered the intersection on a yellow light. Also, if a motorist is in an intersection waiting to make a turn and the light turns red, they would not be photographed.

- All photographs of the violations are taken of the rear of the vehicle. Occupants are not photographed.

- All photographs are reviewed by trained technical personnel to verify vehicle information and ensure the vehicle is in violation

- The red-light violation would be considered a civil penalty and therefore does not add points to the driver's driving record or affect insurance rates (Insurance companies are not given access to these violation records.)

- The program would have a new customer friendly hearing process, in addition to the standard recourse of appeal to the court system.

- The Program is self-supporting.

- New York City has installed monitoring cameras at 18 intersections:
  - Red-light running has decreased by 20% since 1993
  - Accidents at these intersections have decreased by up to 30%.
  - 80% of violators pay their fines ($50)

RED LIGHT CAMERAS

Q&A: GENERAL

Red light cameras can help communities enforce traffic laws by automatically photographing the license plates of vehicles whose drivers run red lights. A red light camera system is connected to the traffic signal and to sensors buried in the pavement at the crosswalk or stop line. The system continuously monitors the traffic signal, and the camera itself is triggered by any vehicle passing over the sensors above a pre-set minimum speed and a specified time after the signal has turned red. A second photograph is taken that typically shows the red light violator in the intersection. The camera records the date, time of day, time elapsed since the beginning of the red signal, and the speed of the vehicle. Electronic flash produces clear images of vehicles under all light and weather conditions. Tickets typically are sent by mail to owners of violating vehicles, based on review of photographic evidence.

What is red light running? A violation occurs when a motorist deliberately enters an intersection after the signal light has turned red. Motorists inadvertently in an intersection when the signal changes to red — when waiting to turn, for example — aren't red light runners.

Is red light running a big problem? Institute research shows that running red lights and other traffic controls like stop and yield signs is the most frequent type of urban crash. Researchers studied police reports of crashes on public roads in four urban areas during 1990 and 1991. Of 13 crash types researchers identified, running traffic controls accounted for 22 percent of all crashes. Among crashes involving running traffic controls, 24 percent involved running red lights. The same study shows that motorists are more likely to be injured in crashes involving red light running than in other types of crashes. Occupant injuries occurred in 45 percent of the red light running crashes studied, compared with 30 percent for other crash types.

How often do drivers run red lights? A study conducted over several months at a busy intersection in Arlington County, Virginia, an urban area outside Washington, D.C., indicates that motorists frequently run red lights. On average, a motorist ran a red light every 12 minutes. During peak travel times, red light running was more frequent. For example, between 8 and 9 a.m., a motorist ran a red light every 5 minutes.

Isn't conventional police enforcement sufficient? Enforcing traffic laws in dense urban areas by traditional means poses special difficulties for police, who in most cases must follow a violating vehicle through a red light to stop it. This can endanger motorists and pedestrians as well as officers, and police can't be everywhere at once. Communities don't have the resources to allow police to patrol intersections as often as would be needed to ticket all motorists who run red lights. The cameras allow police to focus on other enforcement needs.

What safety benefits do red light cameras provide? They've been shown to reduce red light violations and intersection crashes. Victoria, Australia began using them at traffic signal intersections in 1983 and posted signs alerting motorists of the cameras' presence. A sub-

The Insurance Institute for Highway Safety is an independent, nonprofit, scientific and educational organization. It is dedicated to reducing the losses — deaths, injuries, and property damage — resulting from crashes on the nation's highways. The Institute is supported by the American Insurance Highway Safety Association, the American Insurers Highway Safety Alliance, the National Association of Independent Insurers Safety Association, and a number of individual insurance companies. 1005 North Glebe Road, Arlington, VA 22201 703-247-1500 October 1995

sequent report by the Road Traffic Authority found a 32 percent decrease in right-angle collisions and a 10 percent reduction in injuries after the cameras were installed.

Who runs red lights? The Institute created a profile of red light runners by studying driver behavior at an Arlington County, Virginia intersection equipped with a red light camera. The study compared red light runners to motorists who had an opportunity to run a red light but didn't. As a group, red light runners were younger, less likely to use safety belts, had poorer driving records, and drove smaller and older vehicles than drivers who stopped for red lights. Red light runners were more than three times as likely to have multiple speeding convictions on their driver records. No gender differences were found between violators and drivers who didn't run red lights.

Do the cameras photograph every vehicle passing through an intersection? No. The cameras typically are set so only those vehicles that enter an intersection after the light has turned red are photographed. Drivers who enter on yellow and find themselves in an intersection when the light changes to red aren't photographed. This technology is intended to catch vehicles driven by motorists who intentionally enter an intersection well after the signal has turned red.

Does someone review the photographs before motorists are ticketed? Yes. Trained police officers or other officials review every picture to verify vehicle information and ensure that the vehicle is in violation. Tickets are mailed to vehicle owners only in cases where it's clear the vehicle ran the red light.

Do red light cameras violate motorists' privacy? No. Driving is a regulated activity on public roads. By obtaining a license, motorists agree to abide by certain rules — to obey traffic signals, for example. Neither the law nor common sense suggests drivers shouldn't be observed on the road or have their violations documented. In addition, most red light camera systems photograph only a vehicle's rear license plate — not vehicle occupants.

Are special laws needed to allow localities to use red light cameras to cite violators? In order for localities to use the cameras for law enforcement purposes, laws must authorize enforcement agencies to cite red light violators by mail. The legislation also must make the vehicle owner responsible for the ticket, establishing a presumption that the registered owner is the vehicle driver at the time of the offense. Violations photographed by red light cameras are most commonly treated in two ways — as traffic violations or as the equivalent of parking tickets, depending on state law. If, as in New York, red light camera violations are treated like a parking citation, the law can make the registered vehicle owner responsible without regard to who is driving at the time of the offense. Virginia makes red light camera violations a civil offense like New York, but unlike New York, it allows the registered owner to avoid the citation by filing an affidavit swearing that he or she wasn't driving at the time of the violation.

Are red light camera programs expensive? A red light camera costs about $50,000. Installation and sensors cost about $5,000. A single red light camera can be used at several locations once the sites are equipped to work with the camera, allowing communities to move cameras between sites without drivers knowing which ones are active at any given time. Startup costs can be offset by fines paid by violators, savings from crashes prevented, and by freeing police to focus on other enforcement efforts.

Does the American public support the use of red light cameras? The U.S. public strongly supports red light cameras, two 1995 surveys sponsored by the Institute reveal. Nationwide, 66 percent of 1,006 people surveyed said they favor the use of red light cameras, compared with 28 percent who opposed. A survey of 500 northern Virginia residents shows similar results. Sixty-three percent of those interviewed said they favor red light cameras, compared with 35 percent opposed. Virginia respondents also were asked to rate the extent to which red light running is a traffic safety problem in their communities. Forty-seven percent said it's a big problem, 30 percent rated it as medium, and 21 percent said it's not much of one.

What U.S. communities use red light cameras? They're used for law enforcement in New York City and at railroad crossings in Los Angeles. Other communities including Fort Meade, Florida; Arlington, Virginia; and Jackson, Michigan are experimenting with them, and some are using them to issue warning notices to vehicle owners.

What other countries use red light cameras? Photographic detection devices are used extensively in many other countries including Australia, Austria, Belgium, Germany, Israel, the Netherlands, Singapore, South Africa, Switzerland, Taiwan, and the United Kingdom.

HOUSE JUDICIARY II COMMITTEE

April 24, 1997

The North Carolina House of Representatives Judiciary II Committee met on April 24, 1997, at 10:00 A.M. in Room 421 of the Legislative Office Building. Representative Neely, Chairman, called the meeting to order.

Those in attendance were Representatives Neely, Kiser, Baddour, Cansler, Bowie, Cansler, Creech, Culpepper, Decker, Gardner, Goodwin, Hackney, Hensley, McMahan, Nesbitt, Russell, Saunders, Shubert and Sutton. A list of visitors is attached.

The following bills were discussed:

HB-908 MODIFY RIGHTS OF DECEDENT'S SPOUSE
HB-1028 TOWING PROCEDURES
HB-1045 RED LIGHT PHOTO CITATIONS

Representative Shubert was recognized to review HB-1045 and answer questions of committee members.

Representative McMahan spoke in support of the bill.

No action was taken on HB-1045.

Representative Baddour was recognized to present a proposed committee substitute for HB-908. Representative Cansler moved the proposed committee substitute be adopted for purpose of discussion; motion passed. A copy of the proposed committee substitute is attached.

Representative Culpepper was recognized to send forth an amendment and moved it be adopted; motion failed. A copy of the amendment is attached.

Representative Russell moved for a favorable report as to committee substitute bill, unfavorable as to original bill; motion passed.

Representative Owens was recognized to explain HB-1028 and answer questions of committee members. A copy of the bill and bill explanation prepared by Mr. Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel, are attached.

No action was taken on HB-1028.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:50 A.M.

Respectfully submitted,

Representative Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman

Betty Harrison, Committee Clerk

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO USE PHOTOGRAPHIC IMAGES AS PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF A TRAFFIC VIOLATION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 160A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 160A-300.1. Use of traffic control photographic systems.

(a) Traffic control photographic systems.

(1) A traffic control photographic system is an electronic system consisting of a photographic, video, or electronic camera and a vehicle sensor installed to work in conjunction with an official traffic control device to automatically produce photographs, video, or digital images of each vehicle violating a standard traffic control statute or ordinance.

(2) Any traffic control photographic system, as described in subdivision (1) of this subsection or any device which is a part of that system deployed on a street or highway which is a part of the State highway system shall meet requirements established by the North Carolina Department of Transportation.

Any traffic control system deployed on a municipal street shall meet standards established by the municipality and shall be consistent with any standards set by the Department of Transportation.

(b) Municipalities and counties may adopt ordinances for the enforcement of G.S. 20-141, 20-141.1, or 20-158 by means of a traffic control photographic system, as described in subsection (a) of this section. An ordinance authorized by this subsection shall provide that:

(1) The owner of a vehicle shall be responsible for a violation under this section unless the owner can furnish evidence that the vehicle was, at the time of the violation, in the care, custody, or control of another person. In those instances, the owner of the vehicle shall, within 21 days after notification of the violation, furnish the officials or agents of the municipality or county which issued the citation, the name and address of the person or company who leased, rented, or otherwise had the care, custody, and control of the vehicle. The owner of the vehicle shall not be responsible for the violation if the vehicle involved was, at the time, stolen or in the care, custody, or control of some person who did not have permission of the owner to use the vehicle.

(2) The violation of this section detected by a traffic control photographic system shall be deemed a noncriminal violation for which a civil penalty of fifty dollars ($50.00) shall be assessed and a violation for which no points authorized by G.S. 20-16(c) shall be assigned to the owner or driver of the vehicle.

(3) The owner of the vehicle shall be issued a citation and shall comply with the directions on the citation. The citation shall be processed by officials or agents of the municipality or county and shall be forwarded by first-class mail to the address given on the motor vehicle registration. Personal service on the owner of the vehicle shall not be required. In the event that payment of the civil penalty is not received or a response to the citation is not made within the time period specified on the citation, the owner shall be deemed to have waived his right to pay the civil penalty, and the officials or agents making the original mailing of the citation shall submit a copy of the citation to the district attorney for submission to the district court. The owner shall be provided notice of the date the citation is to be presented to the district court. If the owner does not appear or fails to provide sufficient evidence to the contrary, the court shall find the owner responsible for violation under this section and shall impose a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00). If the owner is not present, the court shall take appropriate measures to enforce collection of the fine. A municipality or county may substitute a nonjudicial administrative hearing for the process of submittal to the district attorney and the court. The owner must be notified of any administrative hearing. The owner of the vehicle issued the citation under this section shall have a right to appeal from the administrative hearing to the district court.

(4) Any person who elects to appear before a district court to present evidence shall be deemed to have waived his right to pay a civil penalty. A certificate sworn to or affirmed by a technical employed by or under contract to the municipality or county where the violation occurred, or a facsimile of that certificate, based on the inspection of photographs or other recorded images produced by a traffic control photographic system shall be prima facie evidence of the facts contained in the sworn certificate. The court, after a hearing, shall make a determination as to whether a violation of this section has been committed and, if a violation is determined, shall impose a fine not to exceed one hundred dollars ($100.00) and additional court costs. If the fine and court costs have not been paid within the time specified by the court, the court shall take appropriate measures to enforce collection."

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODIFY THE RIGHTS OF A DECEDENT'S SPOUSE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 1 of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 2. Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Article to read:

"ARTICLE 1A.

"Elective Share.

"§ 30-3.1. Right of elective share.

(a) Elective Share. -- The surviving spouse of a decedent who dies domiciled in this State has a right to claim an 'elective share', which means an amount equal to (i) the applicable share of the Total Net Assets, as defined in G.S. 30-3.2(c), less (ii) the value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, as defined in G.S. 30-3.3(a). The applicable share of the Total Net Assets is as follows:

(1) If the decedent is not survived by any lineal descendants, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(2) If the decedent is survived by one child, or lineal descendants of one deceased child, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(3) If the decedent is survived by two or more children, or by one or more children and the lineal descendants of one or more deceased children, or by the lineal descendants of two or more deceased children, one-third of the Total Net Assets.

(b) Reduction of Applicable Share. -- In those cases in which the surviving spouse is a second or successive spouse, and the decedent has one or more lineal descendants surviving by a prior marriage but there are no lineal descendants surviving by the surviving spouse, the applicable share as determined in subsection (a) of this section shall be reduced by one-half.

(c) Minimum Applicable Share. -- In no event shall the applicable share of the Total Net Assets be less than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000).

(d) Death Taxes. -- Death taxes shall be taken into account as a claim against the estate in determining Total Net Assets only to the extent that such taxes are increased because the assets received by the surviving spouse do not qualify for the federal estate tax marital deduction pursuant to section 2056 of the Code, the North Carolina exemption from inheritance and estate tax pursuant to G.S. 105-3(10) and (11), or similar provisions under the laws of any other applicable taxing jurisdiction.

"§ 30-3.2. Definitions.

(a) 'Code' means the Internal Revenue Code in effect at the time of the decedent's death.

(b) 'Death taxes' means any estate, inheritance, succession, and similar taxes imposed by any taxing authority, reduced by any applicable credits against those taxes.

(c) 'Total Net Assets' means, after the payment or provision for payment of the decedent's funeral expenses, year's allowances to persons other than to the surviving spouse, debts, claims, and administration expenses, the sum of the following:

(1) All property to which the decedent had legal and equitable title immediately prior to death;

(2) All property received by the decedent's personal representative by reason of the decedent's death;

(3) All proceeds of insurance on the life of the decedent of which the decedent is the owner, or which is payable to the surviving spouse;

(4) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety, or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(5) The entire value of any property held by the decedent and another person, other than the surviving spouse, as joint tenants with right of survivorship, except to the extent that contribution can be proven by clear and convincing evidence;

(6) The value of any property which would be included in the taxable estate of the decedent pursuant to sections 2033, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, or 2042 of the Code;

(7) Any donative transfers of property made by the decedent to donees other than the surviving spouse within three years of the decedent's death, excluding:

a. Any gifts within the annual exclusion provisions of section 2503 of the Code; and

b. Any gifts to which the surviving spouse consented. A signing of a deed, or income or gift tax return reporting such gift shall be considered consent;

(8) Any proceeds of any individual retirement account, pension or profit-sharing plan, or any private or governmental retirement plan or annuity of which the decedent controlled the designation of beneficiary, excluding any benefits under the federal Social Security system;

(9) Any other Property Passing to Surviving Spouse under G.S. 30-3.3; and

(10) In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once under the provision yielding the greatest value.

(d) 'Nonadverse trustee' means a trustee who would be deemed nonadverse under section 672 of the Code.

"§ 30-3.3. Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(a) Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. -- For purposes of this Article, 'Property Passing to Surviving Spouse' means the sum of the following:

(1) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(2) The value of any interest in property (outright or in trust, including any interest subject to a general power of appointment held by the surviving spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code) devised by the decedent to the surviving spouse, or which passes to the surviving spouse by intestacy, or by beneficiary designation, or by exercise of or in default of the exercise of the decedent's testamentary general or limited power of appointment, or by operation of law or otherwise by reason of the decedent's death, excluding any benefits under the federal social security system.

(3) Any year's allowance awarded to the surviving spouse;

(4) The value of any property renounced by the surviving spouse;

(5) The value of the surviving spouse's interest, outright or in trust, in any life insurance proceeds on the life of the decedent;

(6) The value of any interest in property, outright or in trust, transferred from the decedent to the surviving spouse during the lifetime of decedent for which (i) a gift tax return is timely filed reporting such gift, or (ii) the surviving spouse signs a statement acknowledging such a gift. For purposes of this subdivision, any gift to the surviving spouse by the decedent of the decedent's interest in any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with right of survivorship shall be valued at one-half of the entire value of that property at the time the gift is made; and

(7) The entire value of any property held in trust for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse during the surviving spouse's lifetime, where the trust requires a Nonadverse Trustee to utilize the principal and income of the trust for the support and maintenance of the surviving spouse.

(b) Death Taxes. -- The value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse shall be reduced by any death taxes that are a charge against or apportioned against the surviving spouse on property interests included in Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(c) No Duplication. -- In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once, under the provision yielding the greatest value.

"§ 30-3.4. Procedure for determining the elective share.

(a) Exercisable Only During Lifetime. -- The right of the surviving spouse to file a claim for an elective share must be exercised during the lifetime of the surviving spouse, by the surviving spouse, the surviving spouse's agent under a power of attorney, or the guardian of the surviving spouse's estate. If a surviving spouse dies before the claim for an elective share has been settled, the surviving spouse's personal representative shall succeed to the surviving spouse's rights to an elective share.

(b) Time Limitations. -- A claim for an elective share must be made within six months after the issuance of letters testamentary or letters of administration by (i) filing a petition with the clerk of superior court of the county in which the primary administration of the decedent's estate lies, and (ii) mailing or delivering a copy of that petition to the personal representative of the decedent's estate. A surviving spouse's incapacity shall not toll the six-month period of limitations.

(c) Time for Hearing. -- Unless waived by the personal representative and the surviving spouse, the clerk shall set the matter for hearing no earlier than two months and no later than six months after the filing of the petition. However, the clerk may extend the time of hearing as the clerk sees fit. The clerk shall give notice of the hearing to the surviving spouse, personal representative, and to any person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share.

(d) Preparation of Tax Form. -- In every case in which a petition to determine an elective share has been filed, and within two months of the filing of the petition, the personal representative shall prepare and submit to the clerk a proposed Form 706, federal estate tax return, for the estate, regardless of whether that form is required to be filed with the Internal Revenue Service. The clerk may extend the time for submission of the proposed Form 706 as the clerk sees fit.

(e) Valuation. -- The valuation of interests in property for purposes of G.S. 30-3.2 and G.S. 30-3.3 shall be determined as follows:

(1) Basic principles. -- Each interest shall be valued at its fair market value, reduced by all liens, claims or encumbrances against the interest. For interests passing at the decedent's death, valuation shall be as of the date of death, and for interests transferred during the decedent's lifetime, valuation shall be as of the date of transfer.

(2) Valuation of partial and contingent interests in property. -- The valuation of interests in property, outright or in trust, which are limited to commence or terminate upon the death of one or more persons, upon the expiration of a period of time, or upon the occurrence of one or more contingencies, shall be determined by computations based upon the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, and upon the basis of six percent (6%) of the gross value of the underlying property in which those interests are limited. However, in valuing interests passing to the surviving spouse, the following special rules apply:

a. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the exercise of discretion by a fiduciary, the interest shall have no value unless the spouse is serving as that fiduciary and the power to distribute the trust property constitutes a general power of appointment held by the spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code or the fiduciary is a Nonadverse Trustee required to utilize the income and principal for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse during the surviving spouse's lifetime;

b. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the occurrence of any contingency that is not subject to the control of the surviving spouse and that is not subject to valuation by reference to the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, the contingency will be conclusively presumed to result in the lowest possible value passing to the surviving spouse. However, a life estate or income interest that will terminate only upon the earlier of the surviving spouse's death or remarriage will be valued without regard to the possibility of termination upon remarriage; and

c. To the extent that the valuation of an interest is dependent upon the life expectancy of the surviving spouse, that life expectancy shall be conclusively presumed to be no less than 10 years, regardless of the actual attained age of the surviving spouse at the decedent's death.

(3) Determination of fair market value. -- The fair market value of each asset comprising Total Net Assets shall be determined as follows:

a. Probate assets and assets passing to spouse. -- The value of each probate asset and Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, other than assets held in trust, shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the personal representative, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the personal representative, or (ii) the clerk determines that the personal representative may not be able to represent the estate adversely to the surviving spouse.

b. Trust assets. -- The value of each trust asset shall be established by good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the trustee, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the trustee, or (ii) the clerk determines that the trustee may not be able to represent the trust adversely to the surviving spouse.

c. Other assets. -- The value of any other asset shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and each person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share because of that person's interest in the asset, unless the clerk determines that valuation under sub-subdivision d. of this subdivision is more appropriate.

d. Use of disinterested persons. -- If the value of any asset is not established by agreement, the clerk shall appoint one or more qualified and disinterested persons to determine a value of each asset. That determination of the value of an asset shall be final for the exclusive purposes of this Article.

(f) Findings and Conclusions. -- After notice and hearing, the clerk shall determine whether or not the surviving spouse is entitled to an elective share, and if so, the clerk shall then determine the elective share and shall order the personal representative to transfer that amount to the surviving spouse. The clerk's order shall recite specific findings of fact and conclusions of law in arriving at the decedent's Total Net Assets, Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, and the elective share.

(g) Appeals. -- Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the superior court, and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law. If an appeal is taken from the decision of the clerk, that appeal shall have the effect of staying the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the superior court upon the appeal taken. Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the superior court, the judge may review the findings of fact by the clerk and may find the facts or take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the Appellate Division.

"§ 30-3.5. Recovery of assets by personal representative.

(a) Recovery of Assets. -- The personal representative is entitled to recover proportionately from all persons, other than the surviving spouse, receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets a sufficient amount to enable the personal representative to pay the elective share. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each person receiving or in possession of any of Total Net Assets bears to Total Net Assets, excluding any Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. The only persons subject to contribution to make up the elective share are (i) original recipients of property comprising the decedent's Total Net Assets, and subsequent gratuitous inter vivos donees or persons claiming by testate or intestate succession to the extent those persons have the property or its proceeds on or after the date of decedent's death, and (ii) a fiduciary, as to the property under the fiduciary's control at or after the time a fiduciary receives notice that a surviving spouse has claimed an elective share. A fiduciary shall not be considered to have notice until it receives notice at its address as shown in the decedent's estate papers in the clerk's office or, if there are no such papers or no such address is shown in those papers, at the fiduciary's residence or the office of its registered agent.

The personal representative may withhold from any property of the decedent in his possession, distributable to any person subject to apportionment, the amount of the elective share apportioned to such person. If the property in possession of the personal representative and distributable to any person subject to apportionment is insufficient to satisfy the proportionate amount of the elective share determined to be due from that person, the personal representative may recover the deficiency from that person. If the property is not in possession of the personal representative, the personal representative may recover from the person the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person in accordance with this Article. If the personal representative cannot reasonably collect from any person subject to apportionment the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person, the amount not reasonably recoverable shall, with the approval of the clerk, be apportioned among the other persons who are subject to apportionment. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each remaining person bears to the total value of the interests of all remaining persons.

(b) Standstill Order. -- After the filing of the petition demanding an elective share, either the personal representative or surviving spouse may request the clerk to issue an order that any recipients not dispose of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets pending the hearing. The decision to issue such an order shall be in the discretion of the clerk.

(c) Satisfaction of Liability. -- A person receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets may pay his proportionate elective share liability with respect to that property by any of the following methods:

(1) Conveyance of the property included in the decedent's Total Net Assets;

(2) Payment of the value of his liability in cash or, upon agreement of the surviving spouse, other property; or

(3) Partial conveyance and partial payment under subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection, provided the value conveyed and paid is equal to his liability.

(d) Expenses. -- The expenses reasonably incurred by the personal representative in connection with the appraisal or recovery of assets shall be apportioned as provided for the elective share under this Article. If the personal representative finds that it is inequitable to apportion the expenses because those expenses were incurred because of the fault of one or more persons subject to apportionment, the personal representative may direct other more equitable apportionment, with the approval of the clerk.

(e) Bond. -- If property held by the personal representative is distributed prior to final apportionment of the elective share, the personal representative may require the distributee to provide a bond or other security for the apportionment liability in the form and amount prescribed by the personal representative, with the approval of the clerk.

"§ 30-3.6. Waiver of rights.

(a) The right of a surviving spouse to claim an elective share may be waived, wholly or partially, before or after marriage, with or without consideration, by a written waiver signed by the surviving spouse.

(b) A waiver is not enforceable if the surviving spouse proves that:

(1) The waiver was not executed voluntarily; or

(2) The surviving spouse was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property and financial obligations of the decedent, unless the surviving spouse waived, in writing, the right to that disclosure."

Section 3. G.S. 29-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 29-30. Election of surviving spouse to take life interest in lieu of intestate share provided.

(a) In lieu of the intestate share provided in G.S. 29-14 or ~~29-21,~~ G.S. 29-21, or of the elective share provided in G.S. 30-3.1, the surviving spouse of an intestate or the surviving spouse who ~~dissents from the will of a testator~~ has petitioned for an elective share shall be entitled to take as his or her intestate share or elective share a life estate in one third in value of all the real estate of which the deceased spouse was seised and possessed of an estate of inheritance at any time during coverture, except that real estate as to which the surviving spouse:

(1) Has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in a conveyance thereof, or

(2) Has release or quitclaimed his or her interest therein in accordance with G.S. 52-10, or

(3) Was not required by law to join in conveyance thereof in order to bar the elective life estate, or

(4) Is otherwise not legally entitled to the election provided in this section.

(b) Regardless of the value thereof and despite the fact that a life estate therein might exceed the fractional limitation provided for in subsection (a), the life estate provided for in subsection (a) shall at the election of the surviving spouse include a life estate in the usual dwelling house occupied by the surviving spouse at the time of the death of the deceased spouse if such dwelling house were owned by the deceased spouse at the time of his or her death, together with the outbuildings, improvements and easements thereunto belonging or appertaining, and lands upon which situated and reasonably necessary to the use and enjoyment thereof, as well as a fee simple ownership in the household furnishings therein.

(c) The election provided for in subsection (a) shall be made by the filing of a notice thereof with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the administration of the estate is pending, or, if no administration is pending, then with the clerk of the superior court of any county in which the administration of the estate could be commenced. Such election shall be made:

(1) At any time within one month after the expiration of the time fixed for the filing of ~~a dissent,~~ the petition for elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30, or

(2) In case of intestacy, then within 12 months after the death of the deceased spouse if letters of administration are not issued within that period, or

(3) If letters of administration are issued within 12 months after the date of the death of the deceased spouse, then within one month after the expiration of the time limited for filing claims against the estate, or

(4) If litigation that affects the share of the surviving spouse in the estate is pending, then within such reasonable time as may be allowed by written order of the clerk of the superior court.

The notice of election shall:

(1) Be directed to the clerk with whom filed;

(2) State that the surviving spouse making the same elects to take under this section rather than under the provisions of ~~G.S. 29-14 or 29-21,~~ G.S. 29-14, G.S. 29-21, or G.S. 30-3.1, as applicable;

(3) Set forth the names of all heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons in possession of or claiming an estate or an interest in the property described in subsection (a); and

(4) Request the allotment of the life estate provided for in subsection (a).

The notice of election may be in person, or by attorney authorized in a writing executed and duly acknowledged by the surviving spouse and attested by at least one witness. If the surviving spouse is a minor or an incompetent, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a general guardian or by the guardian of the person or estate of the minor or incompetent spouse. If the minor or incompetent spouse has no guardian, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a next friend appointed by the clerk. The notice of election, whether in person or by attorney, shall be filed as a record of the court, and a summons together with a copy of the notice shall be served upon each of the interested persons named in the notice of election.

(d) In case of election to take a life estate in lieu of an intestate ~~share,~~ share or elective share, as provided in either G.S. 29-14, 29-21, or ~~30-3(a),~~ 30-3.3(a), the clerk of superior court, with whom the notice of election has been filed, shall summon and appoint a jury of three disinterested persons who being first duly sworn shall promptly allot and set apart to the surviving spouse the life estate provided for in subsection (a) and make a final report of such action to the clerk.

(e) The final report shall be filed by the jury not more than 60 days after the summoning and appointment thereof, shall be signed by all jurors, and shall describe by metes and bounds the real estate in which the surviving spouse shall have been allotted and set aside a life estate. It shall be filed as a record of court and a certified copy thereof shall be filed and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of each county in which any part of the real property of the deceased spouse, affected by the allotment, is located.

(f) In the election and procedure to have the life estate allotted and set apart provided for in this section, the rules of procedure relating to partition proceedings shall apply except insofar as the same would be inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

(g) Neither the household furnishings in the dwelling house nor the life estates taken by election under this section shall be subject to the payment of debts due from the estate of the deceased spouse, except those debts secured by such property as follows:

(1) By a mortgage or deed of trust in which the surviving spouse has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in the making thereof; or

(2) By a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust, or by a conditional sales contract of personal property in which title is retained by the vendor, made prior to or during the marriage; or

(3) By a mortgage or deed of trust made prior to the marriage; or

(4) By a mortgage or deed of trust constituting a lien on the property at the time of its acquisition by the deceased spouse either before or during the marriage.

(h) If no election is made in the manner and within the time provided for in subsection (c) the surviving spouse shall be conclusively deemed to have waived his or her right to elect to take under the provisions of this section, and any interest which the surviving spouse may have had in the real estate of the deceased spouse by virtue of this section shall terminate."

Section 4. G.S. 30-15 reads as rewritten:

"§ 30-15. When spouse entitled to allowance.

Every surviving spouse of an intestate or of a testator, whether or not he has petitioned for an elective share, ~~dissented from the will,~~ shall, unless he has forfeited his right thereto, as provided by law, be entitled, out of the personal property of the deceased spouse, to an allowance of the value of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for his support for one year after the death of the deceased spouse. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien, by judgment or execution, acquired against the property of the deceased spouse, and shall, in cases of testacy, be charged against the share of the surviving spouse."

Section 5. G.S. 31-5.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31-5.3. Will not revoked by marriage; dissent from will made prior to marriage.

A will is not revoked by a subsequent marriage of the maker; and the surviving spouse may ~~dissent from such~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made prior to the marriage in the same manner, upon the same conditions, and to the same extent, as a surviving spouse may ~~dissent from~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made subsequent to marriage."

Section 6. G.S. 31A-1(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The rights lost as specified in subsection (a) of this section shall be as follows:

(1) All rights of intestate succession in the estate of the other spouse;

(2) All right to claim or succeed to a homestead in the real property of the other spouse;

(3) All right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share of the estate of the other spouse and take either the elective intestate share provided or the life interest in lieu thereof;

(4) All right to any year's allowance in the personal property of the other spouse;

(5) All right to administer the estate of the other spouse; and

(6) Any rights or interests in the property of the other spouse which by a settlement before or after marriage were settled upon the offending spouse solely in consideration of the marriage."

Section 7. G.S. 31C-3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31C-3. Disposition of community property upon death.

Upon death of a married person, one half of the property to which this Chapter applies is the property of the surviving spouse and is not subject to testamentary disposition by the decedent or distribution under the laws or succession of this State. One half of that property is the property of the decedent and is subject to testamentary disposition or distribution under the laws of succession of this State. With respect to property to which this Chapter applies, the one half of the property of the decedent is not subject to the surviving spouse's right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share under the provisions of Article ~~1~~ 1A of Chapter 30, and is not subject to the right to elect a life estate under the provisions of Article 8 of Chapter 29."

Section 8. G.S. 84-5(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) When any of the following acts are to be performed in connection with the fiduciary activities of such a corporation, said acts shall be performed for the corporation by a duly licensed attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained to perform legal services required in connection with the particular estate, trust or other fiduciary matter:

a. Offering wills for probate.

b. Preparing and publishing notice of administration to creditors.
c. Handling formal court proceedings.
d. Drafting legal papers or giving legal advice to spouses concerning ~~dissent from their spouses' will.~~ rights to an elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes.
e. Resolving questions of domicile and residence of a decedent.
f. Handling proceedings involving year's allowances of widows and children.
g. Drafting deeds, notes, deeds of trust, leases, options and other contracts.
h. Drafting instruments releasing deeds of trust.
i. Drafting assignments of rent.
j. Drafting any formal legal document to be used in the discharge of the corporate fiduciary's duty.
k. In matters involving estate and inheritance taxes, gift taxes, and federal and State income taxes:
    1. Preparing and filing protests or claims for refund, except requests for a refund based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
    2. Conferring with tax authorities regarding protests or claims for refund, except those based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
    3. Handling petitions to the tax court.
l. Performing legal services in insolvency proceedings or before a referee in bankruptcy or in court.
m. In connection with the administration of an estate or trust:
    1. Making application for letters testamentary or letters or administration.
    2. Abstracting or passing upon title to property.

3. Handling litigation relating to claims by or against the estate or trust.
4. Handling foreclosure proceedings of deeds of trust or other security instruments which are in default."

Section 9. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to estates of decedents dying on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODIFY THE RIGHTS OF A DECEDENT'S SPOUSE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 1 of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is repealed.

Section 2. Chapter 30 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Article to read:

"ARTICLE 1A.

"Elective Share.

"§ 30-3.1. Right of elective share.

(a) Elective Share. -- The surviving spouse of a decedent who dies domiciled in this State has a right to claim an 'elective share', which means an amount equal to (i) the applicable share of the Total Net Assets, as defined in G.S. 30-3.2(c), less (ii) the value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, as defined in G.S. 30-3.3(a). The applicable share of the Total Net Assets is as follows:

(1) If the decedent is not survived by any lineal descendants, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(2) If the decedent is survived by one child, or lineal descendants of one deceased child, one-half of the Total Net Assets.

(3) If the decedent is survived by two or more children, or by one or more children and the lineal descendants of one or more deceased children, or by the lineal descendants of two or more deceased children, one-third of the Total Net Assets.

(b) Reduction of Applicable Share. -- In those cases in which the surviving spouse is a second or successive spouse, and the decedent has one or more lineal descendants surviving by a prior marriage but there are no lineal descendants surviving by the surviving spouse, the applicable share as determined in subsection (a) of this section shall be reduced by one-half.

(c) Minimum Applicable Share. -- In no event shall the applicable share of the Total Net Assets be less than twenty-five thousand dollars ($25,000).

(d) Death Taxes. -- Death taxes shall be taken into account as a claim against the estate in determining Total Net Assets only to the extent that such taxes are increased because the assets received by the surviving spouse do not qualify for the federal estate tax marital deduction pursuant to section 2056 of the Code, the North Carolina exemption from inheritance and estate tax pursuant to G.S. 105-3(10) and (11), or similar provisions under the laws of any other applicable taxing jurisdiction.

"§ 30-3.2. Definitions.

(a) 'Code' means the Internal Revenue Code in effect at the time of the decedent's death.

(b) 'Death taxes' means any estate, inheritance, succession, and similar taxes imposed by any taxing authority, reduced by any applicable credits against those taxes.

(c) 'Total Net Assets' means, after the payment or provision for payment of the decedent's funeral expenses, year's allowances to persons other than to the surviving spouse, debts, claims, and administration expenses, the sum of the following:

(1) All property to which the decedent had legal and equitable title immediately prior to death;

(2) All property received by the decedent's personal representative by reason of the decedent's death;

(3) All proceeds of insurance on the life of the decedent of which the decedent is the owner, or which is payable to the surviving spouse;

(4) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety, or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(5) The entire value of any property held by the decedent and another person, other than the surviving spouse, as joint tenants with right of survivorship, except to the extent that contribution can be proven by clear and convincing evidence;

(6) The value of any property which would be included in the taxable estate of the decedent pursuant to sections 2033, 2035, 2036, 2037, 2038, 2039, 2040, or 2042 of the Code;

(7) Any donative transfers of property made by the decedent to donees other than the surviving spouse within three years of the decedent's death, excluding:

a. Any gifts within the annual exclusion provisions of section 2503 of the Code; and

b. Any gifts to which the surviving spouse consented. A signing of a deed, or income or gift tax return reporting such gift shall be considered consent;

(8) Any proceeds of any individual retirement account, pension or profit-sharing plan, or any private or governmental retirement plan or annuity of which the decedent controlled the designation of beneficiary, excluding any benefits under the federal social security system;

(9) Any other Property Passing to Surviving Spouse under G.S. 30-3.3; and

(10) In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once under the provision yielding the greatest value.

(d) 'Nonadverse trustee' means a trustee who would be deemed nonadverse under section 672 of the Code.

"§ 30-3.3. Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(a) Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. -- For purposes of this Article, 'Property Passing to Surviving Spouse' means the sum of the following:

(1) One-half of the value of any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship;

(2) The value of any interest in property (outright or in trust, including any interest subject to a general power of appointment held by the surviving spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code) devised by the decedent to the surviving spouse, or which passes to the surviving spouse by intestacy, or by beneficiary designation, or by exercise of or in default of the exercise of the decedent's testamentary general or limited power of appointment, or by operation of law or otherwise by reason of the decedent's death, excluding any benefits under the federal social security system;

(3) Any year's allowance awarded to the surviving spouse;

(4) The value of any property renounced by the surviving spouse;

(5) The value of the surviving spouse's interest, outright or in trust, in any life insurance proceeds on the life of the decedent;

(6) The value of any interest in property, outright or in trust, transferred from the decedent to the surviving spouse during the lifetime of decedent for which (i) a gift tax return is timely filed reporting such gift, or (ii) the surviving spouse signs a statement acknowledging such a gift. For purposes of this subdivision, any gift to the surviving spouse by the decedent of the decedent's interest in any property held by the decedent and the surviving spouse as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with right of survivorship shall be valued at one-half of the entire value of that property at the time the gift is made; and

(7) The entire value of any property held in trust for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse during the surviving spouse's lifetime, where the trust requires a Nonadverse Trustee to utilize the principal and income of the trust for the support and maintenance of the surviving spouse.

(b) Death Taxes. -- The value of Property Passing to Surviving Spouse shall be reduced by any death taxes that are a charge against or apportioned against the surviving spouse on property interests included in Property Passing to Surviving Spouse.

(c) No Duplication. -- In case of overlapping application of the same property under more than one provision, the property shall be included only once, under the provision yielding the greatest value.

"§ 30-3.4. Procedure for determining the elective share.

(a) Exercisable Only During Lifetime. -- The right of the surviving spouse to file a claim for an elective share must be exercised during the lifetime of the surviving spouse, by the surviving spouse, the surviving spouse's agent under a power of attorney, or the guardian of the surviving spouse's estate. If a surviving spouse dies before the claim for an elective share has been settled, the surviving spouse's personal representative shall succeed to the surviving spouse's rights to an elective share.

(b) Time Limitations. -- A claim for an elective share must be made within six months after the issuance of letters testamentary or letters of administration by (i) filing a petition with the clerk of superior court of the county in which the primary administration of the decedent's estate lies, and (ii) mailing or delivering a copy of that petition to the personal representative of the decedent's estate. A surviving spouse's incapacity shall not toll the six-month period of limitations.

(c) Time for Hearing. -- Unless waived by the personal representative and the surviving spouse, the clerk shall set the matter for hearing no earlier than two months and no later than six months after the filing of the petition. However, the clerk may extend the time of hearing as the clerk sees fit. The clerk shall give notice of the hearing to the surviving spouse, personal representative, and to any person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share.

(d) Preparation of Tax Form. -- In every case in which a petition to determine an elective share has been filed, and within two months of the filing of the petition, the personal representative shall prepare and submit to the clerk a proposed Form 706, federal estate tax return, for the estate, regardless of whether that form is required to be filed with the Internal Revenue Service. The clerk may extend the time for submission of the proposed Form 706 as the clerk sees fit.

(e) Valuation. -- The valuation of interests in property for purposes of G.S. 30-3.2 and G.S. 30-3.3 shall be determined as follows:

(1) Basic principles. -- Each interest shall be valued at its fair market value, reduced by all liens, claims, or encumbrances against the interest. For interests passing at the decedent's death, valuation shall be as of the date of death, and for interests transferred during the decedent's lifetime, valuation shall be as of the date of transfer.

(2) Valuation of partial and contingent interests in property. -- The valuation of interests in property, outright or in trust, which are limited to commence or terminate upon the death of one or more persons, upon the expiration of a period of time, or upon the occurrence of one or more contingencies, shall be determined by computations based upon the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, and upon the basis of six percent (6%) of the gross value of the underlying property in which those interests are limited. However, in valuing interests passing to the surviving spouse, the following special rules apply:

a. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the exercise of discretion by a fiduciary, the interest shall have no value unless the spouse is serving as that fiduciary and the power to distribute the trust property constitutes a general power of appointment held by the spouse, as defined in section 2041 of the Code or the fiduciary is a Nonadverse Trustee required to utilize the income and principal for the exclusive benefit of the surviving spouse during the surviving spouse's lifetime;

b. To the extent that the interest is dependent upon the occurrence of any contingency that is not subject to the control of the surviving spouse and that is not subject to valuation by reference to the mortuary and annuity tables set forth in G.S. 8-46 and G.S. 8-47, the contingency will be conclusively presumed to result in the lowest possible value passing to the surviving spouse. However, a life estate or income interest that will terminate only upon the earlier of the surviving spouse's death or remarriage will be valued without regard to the possibility of termination upon remarriage; and

c. To the extent that the valuation of an interest is dependent upon the life expectancy of the surviving spouse, that life expectancy shall be conclusively presumed to be no less than 10 years, regardless of the actual attained age of the surviving spouse at the decedent's death.

(3) Determination of fair market value. -- The fair market value of each asset comprising Total Net Assets shall be determined as follows:

a. Probate assets and assets passing to spouse. -- The value of each probate asset and Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, other than assets held in trust, shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the personal representative, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the personal representative, or (ii) the clerk determines that the personal representative may not be able to represent the estate adversely to the surviving spouse.

b. Trust assets. -- The value of each trust asset shall be established by good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and the trustee, unless either (i) the surviving spouse is the trustee, or (ii) the clerk determines that the trustee may not be able to represent the trust adversely to the surviving spouse.

c. Other assets. -- The value of any other asset shall be established by the good faith agreement of the surviving spouse and each person described in G.S. 30-3.5 who may be required to contribute toward the satisfaction of the elective share because of that person's interest in the asset, unless the clerk determines that valuation under sub-subdivision d. of this subdivision is more appropriate.

d. Use of disinterested persons. -- If the value of any asset is not established by agreement, the clerk shall appoint one or more qualified and disinterested persons to determine a value of each asset. That determination of the value of an asset shall be final for the exclusive purposes of this Article.

(f) Findings and Conclusions. -- After notice and hearing, the clerk shall determine whether or not the surviving spouse is entitled to an elective share, and if so, the clerk shall then determine the elective share and shall order the personal representative to transfer that amount to the surviving spouse. The clerk's order shall recite specific findings of fact and conclusions of law in arriving at the decedent's Total Net Assets, Property Passing to Surviving Spouse, and the elective share.

(g) Appeals. -- Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the superior court, and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law. If an appeal is taken from the decision of the clerk, that appeal shall have the effect of staying the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the superior court upon the appeal taken. Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the superior court, the judge may review the findings of fact by the clerk and may find the facts or take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the Appellate Division.

"§ 30-3.5. Recovery of assets by personal representative.

(a) Recovery of Assets. -- The personal representative is entitled to recover proportionately from all persons, other than the surviving spouse, receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets a sufficient amount to enable the personal representative to pay the elective share. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each person receiving or in possession of any of Total Net Assets bears to Total Net Assets, excluding any Property Passing to Surviving Spouse. The only persons subject to contribution to make up the elective share are (i) original recipients of property comprising the decedent's Total Net Assets, and subsequent gratuitous inter vivos donees or persons claiming by testate or intestate succession to the extent those persons have the property or its proceeds on or after the date of decedent's death, and (ii) a fiduciary, as to the property under the fiduciary's control at or after the time a fiduciary receives notice that a surviving spouse has claimed an elective share. A fiduciary shall not be considered to have notice until it receives notice at its address as shown in the decedent's estate papers in the clerk's office or, if there are no such papers or no such address is shown in those papers, at the fiduciary's residence or the office of its registered agent.

The personal representative may withhold from any property of the decedent in his possession, distributable to any person subject to apportionment, the amount of the elective share apportioned to such person. If the property in possession of the personal representative and distributable to any person subject to apportionment is insufficient to satisfy the proportionate amount of the elective share determined to be due from that person, the personal representative may recover the deficiency from that person. If the property is not in possession of the personal representative, the personal representative may recover from the person the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person in accordance with this Article. If the personal representative cannot reasonably collect from any person subject to apportionment the amount of the elective share apportioned to that person, the amount not reasonably recoverable shall, with the approval of the clerk, be apportioned among the other persons who are subject to apportionment. The apportionment shall be made in the proportion that the value of the interest of each remaining person bears to the total value of the interests of all remaining persons.

(b) Standstill Order. -- After the filing of the petition demanding an elective share, either the personal representative or surviving spouse may request the clerk to issue an order that any recipients not dispose of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets pending the hearing. The decision to issue such an order shall be in the discretion of the clerk.

(c) Satisfaction of Liability. -- A person receiving or in possession of any of the decedent's Total Net Assets may pay his proportionate elective share liability with respect to that property by any of the following methods:

(1) Conveyance of the property included in the decedent's Total Net Assets;

(2) Payment of the value of his liability in cash or, upon agreement of the surviving spouse, other property; or

(3) Partial conveyance and partial payment under subdivisions (1) and (2) of this subsection, provided the value conveyed and paid is equal to his liability.

(d) Expenses. -- The expenses reasonably incurred by the personal representative in connection with the appraisal or recovery of assets shall be apportioned as provided for the elective share under this Article. If the personal representative finds that it is inequitable to apportion the expenses because those expenses were incurred because of the fault of one or more persons subject to apportionment, the personal representative may direct other more equitable apportionment, with the approval of the clerk.

(e) Bond. -- If property held by the personal representative is distributed prior to final apportionment of the elective share, the personal representative may require the distributee to provide a bond or other security for the apportionment liability in the form and amount prescribed by the personal representative, with the approval of the clerk.

"§ 30-3.6. Waiver of rights.

(a) The right of a surviving spouse to claim an elective share may be waived, wholly or partially, before or after marriage, with or without consideration, by a written waiver signed by the surviving spouse.

(b) A waiver is not enforceable if the surviving spouse proves that:

(1) The waiver was not executed voluntarily; or

(2) The surviving spouse was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property and financial obligations of the decedent, unless the surviving spouse waived, in writing, the right to that disclosure."

Section 3. G.S. 29-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 29-30. Election of surviving spouse to take life interest in lieu of intestate share provided.

(a) In lieu of the intestate share provided in G.S. 29-14 or ~~29-21,~~ G.S. 29-21, or of the elective share provided in G.S. 30-3.1, the surviving spouse of an intestate or the surviving spouse who ~~dissents from the will of a testator~~ has petitioned for an elective share shall be entitled to take as his or her intestate share or elective share a life estate in one third in value of all the real estate of which the deceased spouse was seised and possessed of an estate of inheritance at any time during coverture, except that real estate as to which the surviving spouse:

(1) Has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in a conveyance thereof, or

(2) Has release or quitclaimed his or her interest therein in accordance with G.S. 52-10, or

(3) Was not required by law to join in conveyance thereof in order to bar the elective life estate, or

(4) Is otherwise not legally entitled to the election provided in this section.

(b) Regardless of the value thereof and despite the fact that a life estate therein might exceed the fractional limitation provided for in subsection (a), the life estate provided for in subsection (a) shall at the election of the surviving spouse include a life estate in the usual dwelling house occupied by the surviving spouse at the time of the death of the deceased spouse if such dwelling house were owned by the deceased spouse at the time of his or her death, together with the outbuildings, improvements and easements thereunto belonging or appertaining, and lands upon which situated and reasonably necessary to the use and enjoyment thereof, as well as a fee simple ownership in the household furnishings therein.

(c) The election provided for in subsection (a) shall be made by the filing of a notice thereof with the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the administration of the estate is pending, or, if no administration is pending, then with the clerk of the superior court of any county in which the administration of the estate could be commenced. Such election shall be made:

(1) At any time within one month after the expiration of the time fixed for the filing of ~~a dissent,~~ the petition for elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30, or

(2) In case of intestacy, then within 12 months after the death of the deceased spouse if letters of administration are not issued within that period, or

(3) If letters of administration are issued within 12 months after the date of the death of the deceased spouse, then within one month after the expiration of the time limited for filing claims against the estate, or

(4) If litigation that affects the share of the surviving spouse in the estate is pending, then within such reasonable time as may be allowed by written order of the clerk of the superior court.

The notice of election shall:

(1) Be directed to the clerk with whom filed;

(3) Set forth the names of all heirs, devisees, legatees, personal representatives and all other persons in possession of or claiming an estate or an interest in the property described in subsection (a); and

(4) Request the allotment of the life estate provided for in subsection (a).

The notice of election may be in person, or by attorney authorized in a writing executed and duly acknowledged by the surviving spouse and attested by at least one witness. If the surviving spouse is a minor or an incompetent, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a general guardian or by the guardian of the person or estate of the minor or incompetent spouse. If the minor or incompetent spouse has no guardian, the notice of election may be executed and filed by a next friend appointed by the clerk. The notice of election, whether in person or by attorney, shall be filed as a record of the court, and a summons together with a copy of the notice shall be served upon each of the interested persons named in the notice of election.

(d) In case of election to take a life estate in lieu of an intestate ~~share,~~ share or elective share, as provided in either G.S. 29-14, 29-21, or ~~30-3(a),~~ 30-3.3(a), the clerk of superior court, with whom the notice of election has been filed, shall summon and appoint a jury of three disinterested persons who being first duly sworn shall promptly allot and set apart to the surviving spouse the life estate provided for in subsection (a) and make a final report of such action to the clerk.

(e) The final report shall be filed by the jury not more than 60 days after the summoning and appointment thereof, shall be signed by all jurors, and shall describe by metes and bounds the real estate in which the surviving spouse shall have been allotted and set aside a life estate. It shall be filed as a record of court and a certified copy thereof shall be filed and recorded in the office of the register of deeds of each county in which any part of the real property of the deceased spouse, affected by the allotment, is located.

(f) In the election and procedure to have the life estate allotted and set apart provided for in this section, the rules of procedure relating to partition proceedings shall apply except insofar as the same would be inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

(g) Neither the household furnishings in the dwelling house nor the life estates taken by election under this section shall be subject to the payment of debts due from the estate of the deceased spouse, except those debts secured by such property as follows:

(1) By a mortgage or deed of trust in which the surviving spouse has waived his or her rights by joining with the other spouse in the making thereof; or

(2) By a purchase money mortgage or deed of trust, or by a conditional sales contract of personal property in which title is retained by the vendor, made prior to or during the marriage; or

(3) By a mortgage or deed of trust made prior to the marriage; or

(4) By a mortgage or deed of trust constituting a lien on the property at the time of its acquisition by the deceased spouse either before or during the marriage.

(h) If no election is made in the manner and within the time provided for in subsection (c) the surviving spouse shall be conclusively deemed to have waived his or her right to elect to take under the provisions of this section, and any interest which the surviving spouse may have had in the real estate of the deceased spouse by virtue of this section shall terminate."

Section 4. G.S. 30-15 reads as rewritten:

"§ 30-15. When spouse entitled to allowance.

Every surviving spouse of an intestate or of a testator, whether or not he has petitioned for an elective share, ~~dissented from the will,~~ shall, unless he has forfeited his right thereto, as provided by law, be entitled, out of the personal property of the deceased spouse, to an allowance of the value of ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for his support for one year after the death of the deceased spouse. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien, by judgment or execution, acquired against the property of the deceased spouse, and shall, in cases of testacy, be charged against the share of the surviving spouse."

Section 5. G.S. 31-5.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31-5.3. Will not revoked by marriage; dissent from will made prior to marriage.

A will is not revoked by a subsequent marriage of the maker; and the surviving spouse may ~~dissent from such~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made prior to the marriage in the same manner, upon the same conditions, and to the same extent, as a surviving spouse may ~~dissent from~~ petition for an elective share when there is a will made subsequent to marriage."

Section 6. G.S. 31A-1(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The rights lost as specified in subsection (a) of this section shall be as follows:

(1) All rights of intestate succession in the estate of the other spouse;

(2) All right to claim or succeed to a homestead in the real property of the other spouse;

(3) All right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share of the estate of the other spouse and take either the elective intestate share provided or the life interest in lieu thereof;

(4) All right to any year's allowance in the personal property of the other spouse;

(5) All right to administer the estate of the other spouse; and

(6) Any rights or interests in the property of the other spouse which by a settlement before or after marriage were settled upon the offending spouse solely in consideration of the marriage."

Section 7. G.S. 31C-3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 31C-3. Disposition of community property upon death.

Upon death of a married person, one half of the property to which this Chapter applies is the property of the surviving spouse and is not subject to testamentary disposition by the decedent or distribution under the laws or succession of this State. One half of that property is the property of the decedent and is subject to testamentary disposition or distribution under the laws of succession of this State. With respect to property to which this Chapter applies, the one half of the property of the decedent is not subject to the surviving spouse's right to ~~dissent from the will~~ petition for an elective share under the provisions of Article ~~1~~ 1A of Chapter 30, and is not subject to the right to elect a life estate under the provisions of Article 8 of Chapter 29."

Section 8. G.S. 84-5(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) When any of the following acts are to be performed in connection with the fiduciary activities of such a corporation, said acts shall be performed for the corporation by a duly licensed attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained to perform legal services required in connection with the particular estate, trust or other fiduciary matter:

a. Offering wills for probate.

b. Preparing and publishing notice of administration to creditors.

c. Handling formal court proceedings.

d. Drafting legal papers or giving legal advice to spouses concerning ~~dissent from their spouses' will.~~ rights to an elective share under Article 1A of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes.
e. Resolving questions of domicile and residence of a decedent.
f. Handling proceedings involving year's allowances of widows and children.
g. Drafting deeds, notes, deeds of trust, leases, options and other contracts.
h. Drafting instruments releasing deeds of trust.
i. Drafting assignments of rent.
j. Drafting any formal legal document to be used in the discharge of the corporate fiduciary's duty.
k. In matters involving estate and inheritance taxes, gift taxes, and federal and State income taxes:
1. Preparing and filing protests or claims for refund, except requests for a refund based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
2. Conferring with tax authorities regarding protests or claims for refund, except those based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
3. Handling petitions to the tax court.
l. Performing legal services in insolvency proceedings or before a referee in bankruptcy or in court.
m. In connection with the administration of an estate or trust:
1. Making application for letters testamentary or letters or administration.
2. Abstracting or passing upon title to property.
3. Handling litigation relating to claims by or against the estate or trust.
4. Handling foreclosure proceedings of deeds of trust or other security instruments which are in default."

Section 9. This act is effective October 1, 1997, and applies to estates of decedents dying on or after that date.

HOUSE BILL 1028

Short Title: Towing Procedures. (Public)

Sponsors: Representatives Owens; and Wainwright.

Referred to: Judiciary II, if favorable, Finance.

April 21, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE CERTAIN REQUIREMENTS ON TOWING OPERATORS TO PROVIDE PROTECTION FOR MEMBERS OF THE PUBLIC.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 20 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 20-219.4. Towing procedures.

(a) Any towing company operating in this State shall:

(1) Provide for reclaiming of towed vehicles within one hour during all hours of operations.

(2) Provide on each tow vehicle a schedule of fees for services which shall be uniformly applied to all operations involving that tow vehicle.

(3) Not charge storage fees in excess of fifteen dollars ($15.00) for each day or any part thereof.

(4) Before towing a vehicle, insure that the location from which the vehicle is being towed has signs at the entrance or entrances, if there is more than one, at least 24 inches by 24 inches in size, indicating:

a. That vehicles illegally parked will be towed at the owner's or operator's expense;

b. Providing the name, location, and telephone number of the towing company removing the vehicles; and

c. If parking is by permit only, the hours during which permits are required to be displayed.

If the signs are not present, do not contain the required information, or are damaged or unreadable, the towing company shall not remove the vehicle.

(5) The towing company shall maintain a written record of all towing operations for at least one year. Except for those operations authorized by law enforcement authorities pursuant to Article 7A of this Chapter, the written record shall show the time, date, place, fees charged, and the name and telephone number of the person authorizing the tow. Blanket authority for towing shall not be authorized except for spaces properly marked in accordance with G.S. 20-219.2(a).

(b) Any person violating any of the provisions of this section shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be only fined not more than five hundred dollars ($500.00) in the discretion of the court."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 1028—Towing Procedures (Owens)

House Bill 1028 creates a new section in Chapter 20 of the General Statutes to provide automobile towing procedures.

The bill requires towing companies operating in the State to operate within certain guidelines including:

(1) Provide for reclaiming towed vehicles within one hour during all hours of operations;

(2) Provide on each tow vehicle a schedule of fees for services to be uniformly applied;

(3) Charge maximum storage fees of fifteen dollars per day;

(4) Refuse to tow from locations which fail to have signs at the entrances indicating that illegally parked vehicles will be towed, providing the name and number of the towing company, and the hours during which parking permits must be displayed; and

(5) Maintain a written record of all towing operations for at least one year including the date, time and place of the tow and the person authorizing the tow. The bill prohibits the use of a blanket authoirty for towing except for individually marked parking spaces.

A violation of the new section is a Class 3 misdemeanor which is punishable by a fine of not more than $500.

House Bill 1028 is effective when it becomes law.

HOUSE BILL 1100

Short Title: Register of Deeds' Matters. (Public)

Sponsors: Representative Russell.

Referred to: Judiciary II, if favorable, Finance.

April 21, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CHANGE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR ACTIONS UPON OFFICIAL BONDS FROM SIX YEARS TO THREE YEARS, TO AUTHORIZE THE REMOVAL AND DESTRUCTION OF CERTAIN DEATH AND BIRTH CERTIFICATES, TO IMPROVE THE PROCEDURES FOR RECORDING MAPS AND PLATS, AND TO AUTHORIZE THE STUDY OF LAND TITLE REGISTRATION PROCEDURES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1-50(a)(1) is repealed.

Section 2. G.S. 1-52 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-52. Three years.

Within three years an action --

(1) Upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract, express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections or in G.S. 1-53(1).

(2) Upon a liability created by statute, either state or federal, unless some other time is mentioned in the statute creating it.

(3) For trespass upon real property. When the trespass is a continuing one, the action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter.

(4) For taking, detaining, converting or injuring any goods or chattels, including action for their specific recovery.

(5) For criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not hereafter enumerated.

(6) Against the sureties of any executor, administrator, collector or guardian on the official bond of their principal; within three years after the breach thereof complained of.

(7) Against bail; within three years after judgment against the principal; but bail may discharge himself by a surrender of the principal, at any time before final judgment against the bail.

(8) For fees due to a clerk, sheriff or other officer, by the judgment of a court; within three years from the rendition of the judgment, or the issuing of the last execution thereon.

(9) For relief on the ground of fraud or mistake; the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

(10) Repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 886, s. 1.

(11) For the recovery of any amount under and by virtue of the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and amendments thereto, said act being an act of Congress.

(12) Upon a claim for loss covered by an insurance policy which is subject to the three-year limitation contained in lines 158 through 161 of the Standard Fire Insurance Policy for North Carolina, G.S. 58-44-15(c).

(13) Against a public officer, for a trespass, under color of his office.

(14) An action under Chapter 75B of the General Statutes, the action in regard to a continuing violation accrues at the time of the latest violation.

(15) For the recovery of taxes paid as provided in G.S. 105-267 and G.S. 105-381.

(16) Unless otherwise provided by statute, for personal injury or physical damage to claimant's property, the cause of action, except in causes of actions referred to in G.S. 1-15(c), shall not accrue until bodily harm to the claimant or physical damage to his property becomes apparent or ought reasonably to have become apparent to the claimant, whichever event first occurs. Provided that no cause of action shall accrue more than 10 years from the last act or omission of the defendant giving rise to the cause of action.

(17) Against a public utility, electric or telephone membership corporation, or a municipality for damages or for compensation for right-of-way or use of any lands for a utility service line or lines to serve one or more customers or members unless an inverse condemnation action or proceeding is commenced within three years after the utility service line has been constructed or by October 1, 1984, whichever is later.

(18) Against any registered land surveyor as defined in G.S. 89C-3(9) or any person acting under his supervision and control for physical damage or economic or monetary loss due to negligence or a deficiency in the performance of surveying or platting as defined in G.S. 1-47(6).

(19) Upon the official bond of a public officer."

Section 3. G.S. 130A-99 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-99. Register of deeds to preserve copies of birth and death records.

(a) The register of deeds of each county shall file and preserve the copies of birth and death certificates furnished by the local registrar under the provisions of G.S. 130A-97, and shall make and keep a proper index of the certificates. These certificates shall be open to inspection and examination. Copies or abstracts of these certificates shall be provided to any person upon request. Certified copies of these certificates shall be provided only to those persons described in G.S. 130A-93(c).

(b) The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of birth certificates for persons born in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located. The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of death certificates for persons who died in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located."

Section 4. G.S. 132-3(a) reads as rewritten:

"§ 132-3. Destruction of records regulated.

(a) Prohibition. -- No public official may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record, except in accordance with ~~G.S. 121-5,~~ G.S. 121-5 and G.S.130A-99, without the consent of the Department of Cultural Resources. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, defaces, mutilates or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00)."

Section 5. G.S. 121-5(b) reads as rewritten:

"§ 121-5. Public records and archives.

(b) Destruction of Records Regulated. -- No person may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record without the consent of the Department of Cultural ~~Resources.~~ Resources, except as provided in G.S. 130A-99. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, mutilates, or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined at the discretion of the court.

When the custodian of any official State records certifies to the Department of Cultural Resources that such records have no further use or value for official and administrative purposes and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them.

When the custodian of any official records of any county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government certifies to the Department that such records have no further use or value for official business and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be authorized by the governing body of said county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them. A record of such certification and authorization shall be entered in the minutes of the governing body granting the authority.

The North Carolina Historical Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to make such orders, rules, and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry into effect the provisions of this section. When any State, county, municipal, or other governmental records shall have been destroyed or otherwise disposed of in accordance with the procedure authorized in this subsection, any liability that the custodian of such records might incur for such destruction or other disposal shall cease and determine."

Section 6. G.S. 39-32.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 39-32.3. Recordation of plat showing control corners.

Upon designating a control corner and affixing a permanent marker, said person, firm or corporation shall cause to be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the real estate development is located a map or plat showing the location of the control corner or corners and permanent marker or markers with adequate and sufficient description to enable a surveyor to locate such control corner or marker. ~~The register of deeds shall not accept for registration or record any map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, unless the location of such control corner or corners is shown thereon.~~ No map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, shall be certified for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 unless the location of control corners is shown thereon."

Section 7. G.S. 47-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 47-30. Plats and subdivisions; mapping requirements.

(a) Size Requirements. -- All land plats presented to the register of deeds for recording in the registry of a county in North Carolina after September 30, 1991, having an outside marginal size of either 18 inches by 24 inches, 21 inches by 30 inches, or 24 inches by 36 inches, and having a minimum one and one-half inch border on the left side and a minimum one-half inch border on the other sides shall be deemed to meet the size requirements for recording under this section. Where size of land areas, or suitable scale to assure legibility require, plats may be placed on two or more sheets with appropriate match lines. Counties may specify either:

(1) Only 18 inches by 24 inches;

(2) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 21 inches by 30 inches;

(3) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 24 inches by 36 inches; or

(4) A combination of all three sizes.

Provided, that all registers of deeds where specific sizes other than the combination of all three sizes have been specified, shall be required to submit said size specifications to the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds for inclusion on a master list of all such counties. The list shall be available in each register of deeds office by October 1, 1991. For purposes of this section, the terms 'plat' and 'map' are synonymous.

(b) Plats to Be Reproducible. -- Each plat presented for recording shall be a reproducible plat, either original ink on polyester film (mylar), or a reproduced drawing, transparent and archival (as defined by the American National Standards Institute), and submitted in this form. The recorded plat must be such that the public may obtain legible copies. A direct or photographic copy of each recorded plat shall be placed in the plat book or plat file maintained for that purpose and properly indexed for use. In those counties in which the register has made a security copy of the plat from which legible copies can be made, the original may be returned to the person who presented it for recording.

(c) Information Contained in Title of Plat. -- The title of each plat shall contain the following information: property designation, name of owner (the name of owner shall be shown for indexing purposes only and is not to be construed as title certification), location to include township, county and state, the date or dates the survey was made; scale or scale ratio in words or figures and bar graph; name and address of surveyor or firm preparing the plat.

(d) Certificate; Form. -- There shall appear on each plat a certificate by the person under whose supervision such survey or such plat was made, stating the origin of the information shown on the plat, including recorded deed and plat references shown thereon. The ratio of precision before any adjustments must be shown. Any lines on the plat that were not actually surveyed must be clearly indicated and a statement included revealing the source of information. ~~The execution of such certificate shall be acknowledged before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments by the registered land surveyor preparing the plat. All plats to be recorded shall be probated as required by law for the registration of deeds.~~ Where a plat consists of more than one sheet, only one sheet must contain the certification and all other sheets must be signed and sealed.

The certificate required above shall include the source of information for the survey and data indicating the ratio of precision of the survey before adjustments and shall be in substantially the following form:

'I, ..., certify that this plat was drawn under my supervision from an actual survey made under my supervision (deed description recorded in Book ....., page ....., etc.) (other); that the boundaries not surveyed are clearly indicated as drawn from information found in Book ....., page .....; that the ratio of precision as calculated is 1:.....; that this plat was prepared in accordance with G.S. 47-30 as amended. Witness my original signature, registration number and seal this ..... day of ....., A.D., ~~19~~.....

Seal or Stamp

Surveyor

.....
Registration Number'

~~The certificate of the Notary shall read as follows:~~

~~'North Carolina, ...County.~~

~~I, a Notary Public of the County and State aforesaid, certify that....., a registered land surveyor, personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the execution of the foregoing instrument. Witness my hand and official stamp or seal, this..... day of ....., 19.....~~

~~Seal or Stamp~~

~~Notary Public.....~~
~~My Commission expires.....~~'

Nothing in this requirement shall prevent the recording of a map that was prepared in accordance with a previous version of G.S. 47-30 as amended, properly signed, and notarized under the statutes applicable at the time of the signing of the map. However, it shall be the responsibility of the person presenting the map to prove that the map was so prepared.

(e) Method of Computation. -- An accurate method of computation shall be used to determine the acreage and ratio of precision shown on the plat. Area by estimation is not acceptable nor is area by planimeter, area by scale, or area copied from another source, except in the case of tracts containing inaccessible sections or areas. In such case the surveyor may make use of aerial photographs or other appropriate aids to determine the acreage of such inaccessible areas when such areas are bounded by natural and visible monuments. In such case the methods used must be stated on the plat and all accessible areas of the tract shall remain subject to all applicable standards of this section.

(f) Plat to Contain Specific Information. -- Every plat shall contain the following specific information:

(1) An accurately positioned north arrow coordinated with any bearings shown on the plat. Indication shall be made as to whether the north index is true, magnetic, North Carolina grid ('NAD 83' or 'NAD 27'), or is referenced to old deed or plat bearings. If the north index is magnetic or referenced to old deed or plat bearings, the date and the source (if known) such index was originally determined shall be clearly indicated.

(2) The azimuth or course and distance of every property line surveyed shall be shown. Distances shall be in feet or meters and decimals thereof. The number of decimal places shall be appropriate to the class of survey required.

(3) All plat distances shall be by horizontal or grid measurements. All lines shown on the plat shall be correctly plotted to the scale shown. Enlargement of portions of a plat are acceptable in the interest of clarity, where shown as inserts. Where the North Carolina grid system is used the grid factor shall be shown on the face of the plat. If grid distances are used, it must be shown on the plat.

(4) Where a boundary is formed by a curved line, the following data must be given: actual survey data from the point of curvature to the point of tangency shall be shown as standard curve data, or as a traverse of bearings and distances around the curve. If standard curve data is used the bearing and distance of the long chord (from point of curvature to point of tangency) must be shown on the plat.

(5) Where a subdivision of land is set out on the plat, all streets and lots shall be accurately plotted with dimension lines indicating widths and all other information pertinent to reestablishing all lines in the field. This shall include bearings and distances sufficient to form a continuous closure of the entire perimeter.

(6) Where control corners have been established in compliance with G.S. 39-32.1, 39-32.2, 39-32.3, and 39-32.4, as amended, the location and pertinent information as required in the reference statute shall be plotted on the plat. All other corners which are marked by monument or natural object shall be so identified on all plats, and where practical all corners of adjacent owners along the boundary lines of the subject tract which are marked by monument or natural object shall be shown.

(7) The names of adjacent landowners, or lot, block, parcel, subdivision designations or other legal reference where applicable, shall be shown where they could be determined by the surveyor.

(8) All visible and apparent rights-of-way, watercourses, utilities, roadways, and other such improvements shall be accurately located where crossing or forming any boundary line of the property shown.

(9) Where the plat is the result of a survey, one or more corners shall, by a system of azimuths or courses and distances, be accurately tied to and coordinated with a horizontal control monument of some United States or State Agency survey system, such as the North Carolina Geodetic Survey where such monument is within 2,000 feet of the subject property. Where the North Carolina Grid System coordinates of said monument are on file in the North Carolina Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources, the coordinates of both the referenced corner and the monuments used shall be shown in X (easting) and Y (northing) coordinates on the plat. The coordinates shall be identified as based on 'NAD 83,' indicating North American Datum of 1983, or as 'NAD 27,' indicating North American Datum of 1927. The tie lines to the monuments shall also be sufficient to establish true north or grid north bearings for the plat if the monuments exist in pairs. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has been tied to grid control, control monuments within the subdivision may be used in lieu of additional ties to grid control. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has not been tied to grid control, if horizontal control monuments are available within 2,000 feet, the above requirements shall be met; but in the interest of bearing consistency with previously recorded plats, existing bearing control should be used where practical. In the absence of Grid Control, other appropriate natural monuments or landmarks shall be used. In all cases, the tie lines shall be sufficient to accurately reproduce the subject lands from the control or reference points used.

(11) Notwithstanding any other provision contained in this section, it is the duty of the surveyor, by a certificate on the face of the plat, to certify to one of the following:

a. That the survey creates a subdivision of land within the area of a county or municipality that has an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

b. That the survey is located in such portion of a county or municipality that is unregulated as to an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

c. That the survey is of an existing parcel or parcels of land;

d. That the survey is of another category, such as the recombination of existing parcels, a court-ordered survey, or other exception to the definition of subdivision;

e. That the information available to the surveyor is such that the surveyor is unable to make a determination to the best of his or her professional ability as to provisions contained in (a) through (d) above.

However, if the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in a., d., or e. above, then the plat shall have, in addition to said surveyor's certificate, a certification of approval, or no approval required, as may be required by local ordinance from the appropriate government authority before the plat is presented for recordation. If the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in b. or c. above, nothing shall prevent the recordation of the plat if all other provisions have been met.

(g) Recording of Plat. -- ~~For purposes of recording, the register of deeds shall not be responsible for:~~ In certifying a plat for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, the Review Officer shall not be responsible for reviewing or certifying as to the following requirements of this section:

(1) ~~The provisions of subsection~~ Subsection (b), as to archival;

~~(2) The provisions of subsection (d), except for the notary certificate;~~

(3) ~~The provisions of subsection~~ Subsection (e); or

(4) ~~The provisions of subdivisions~~ Subdivisions (2) through (9) of subsection (f).

A plat, when ~~proven and probated as provided herein for deeds and other conveyances, when~~ certified pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and presented for recording, shall be recorded in the plat book or plat file and when so recorded shall be duly indexed. Reference in any instrument hereafter executed to the record of any plat herein authorized shall have the same effect as if the description of the lands as indicated on the record of the plat were set out in the instrument.

(h) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the filing of any plat prepared by a registered land surveyor but not recorded prior to the death of the registered land surveyor. However, it is the responsibility of the person presenting the map to the Review Officer pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 to prove that the plat was so prepared. For preservation these plats may be filed without ~~signature, notary acknowledgement or probate,~~ signature in a special plat file.

(i) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to invalidate any instrument or the title thereby conveyed making reference to any recorded plat.

(j) The provisions of this section shall not apply to boundary plats of areas annexed by municipalities nor to plats of municipal boundaries, whether or not required by law to be recorded.

(k) The provisions of this section shall apply to all counties in North Carolina. ~~Where local law is in conflict with this section, the provisions in this section shall apply. Failure of a plat to conform in all requirements of this statute shall be sufficient grounds for the register of deeds to refuse to accept the plat for recordation.~~

(l) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the registration of highway right-of-way plans provided for in G.S. 136-19.4 nor to registration of roadway corridor official maps provided in Article 2E of Chapter 136.

(m) Except as provided in subsection (n), any map submitted for inclusion on the public record, whether submitted alone or attached to a deed or other instrument, shall be prepared by a registered land surveyor. Such a map shall either (i) have an original personal signature and original seal as approved by the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors or (ii) be a copy of a map, already on file in the public record, that is certified by the custodian of the public record to be a true and accurate copy of a map bearing an original personal signature and original seal. The presence of the original personal signature and seal shall constitute a certification that the map conforms to the standards of practice for land surveying in North Carolina, as defined in the rules of the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors.

(n) A map that does not meet the requirements of subsection (m) of this section may be attached to a deed or other instrument submitted for inclusion in the public record only for illustrative purposes and only if the map is conspicuously labelled, 'THIS MAP IS NOT A CERTIFIED SURVEY AND NO RELIANCE MAY BE PLACED IN ITS ACCURACY.'"

Section 8. Chapter 47 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 47-30.2. Review Officer.

(a) The board of commissioners of each county shall, by resolution, designate by name a person experienced in mapping or land records management as Review Officer to review each map and plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording. The person designated Review Officer shall, if possible, be certified as a property mapper pursuant to G.S. 147-54.4. The resolution designating the Review Officer shall be recorded in the county registry and indexed on the grantor index in the name of the Review Officer.

(b) The Review Officer shall review each map or plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording and certify that it complies with all statutory requirements for recording. The certification shall be in substantially the following form:

'State of North Carolina
County of

I, _____ Review Officer of _____ County, certify that the map or plat to which this certification is affixed meets all statutory requirements for recording.

_____

Review Officer

Date'

(c) The register of deeds shall not accept for recording any map or plat that does not have affixed a certification as provided in subsection (b) of this section."

Section 9. G.S. 136-102.6(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) The right-of-way and construction plans for such public streets in residential subdivisions, including plans for street drainage, shall be submitted to the Division of Highways for review and approval, prior to the recording of the subdivision plat in the office of the register of deeds. The plat or map required by this section shall not be recorded by the register of deeds without a certification pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and, if determined to be necessary by the Review Officer, a certificate of approval by the Division of Highways of the plans for the public street as being in accordance with the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation for acceptance of the subdivision street on the State highway system for maintenance. The Review Officer shall not certify a map or plat subject to this section unless the new streets or changes in existing streets are delineated either public or private. The certificate of approval shall not be deemed an acceptance of the dedication of such streets on the subdivision plat or map. Final acceptance by the Division of Highways of such public streets and placing them on the State highway system for maintenance shall be conclusive proof that the streets have been constructed according to the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation."

Section 10. G.S. 153A-332 reads as rewritten:

"§ 153A-332. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

(a) A subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat before its registration.

(b) The ordinance shall provide that the following agencies be given an opportunity to make recommendations concerning an individual subdivision plat before the plat is approved:

(1) The district highway engineer as to proposed streets, highways, and drainage systems;

(2) The county health director as to proposed water or sewerage systems;

(3) Any other agency or official designated by the board of commissioners.

(c) The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by:

(1) The board of commissioners,

(2) The board of commissioners on recommendation of a planning agency, or

(3) A designated planning agency.

(d) From the time that a subdivision ordinance is filed with the register of deeds of the county, no subdivision plat of land within the county's jurisdiction may be filed or recorded until it has been submitted to and approved by the appropriate board or agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval is entered in writing on the face of the plat by the chairman or head of the board or agency. The ~~register of deeds may not file or record~~ Review Officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of the county that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, and the clerk of superior court may not order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether any land shown thereon is within the subdivision-regulation jurisdiction of the county."

Section 11. G.S. 160A-373 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-373. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

Any subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat prior to its registration.

The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by

(1) The city council,

(2) The city council on recommendation of a planning agency, or

(3) A designated planning agency.

From and after the time that a subdivision ordinance is filed with the register of deeds of the county, no subdivision plat of land within the city's jurisdiction shall be filed or recorded until it shall have been submitted to and approved by the appropriate agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval shall have been entered on the face of the plat in writing by the chairman or head of the agency. The ~~register of deeds shall not file or record~~ Review Officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of a city that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, nor shall the clerk of superior court order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether or not any land shown thereon is within the subdivision-regulation jurisdiction of any city."

Section 12. G.S. 161-10(a)(3) reads as rewritten:

"(3) Plats. -- For each original or revised plat recorded ~~nineteen dollars ($19.00);~~ twenty-one dollars ($21.00) per sheet or page; for furnishing a certified copy of a plat three dollars ($3.00)."

Section 13. G.S. 89C-26 is repealed.

Section 14. The Legislative Research Commission may study the procedures for land title registration pursuant to Chapter 43 of the General Statutes and make recommendations for revision and improvement. The Commission shall submit its report to the 1998 Regular Session of the 1997 General Assembly.

Section 15. Sections 3 through 6 of this act become effective January 1, 1997. The removal and destruction by a register of deeds of any out-of-county birth or death certificates prior to January 1, 1997, is declared valid and not in violation of G.S. 121-5 or G.S. 132-3. Sections 7 through 13 of this act become effective October 1, 1997. The remaining sections of this act are effective when they became law. Section 2 of this act applies to claims that accrue on or after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 1100—Register of Deeds' Matters (Russell)

House Bill 1100 makes several changes as requested by the Registers of Deeds.

Section 1 of the bill repeals G.S. 1-50(a)(1). This section provides for a six year statute of limitations for actions upon the official bonds of a public officer. Section 2 of the bill creates a three year statute of limitations for these actions.

Section 3 of the bill allows registers of deeds to remove and destroy birth and death certificates for persons who were born or who died in counties other than the county in which the register of deeds is located. Sections 4 and 5 of the bill make a conforming changes allowing the clerk to remove these records.

Sections 6 through 13 of the bill address the procedures for recording maps and plats with the register of deeds. Under current law, a map or plat must be accompanied by a certificate by the surveyor which states the name of the surveyor and the origin of information contained on the plat. This certificate must be acknowledged or notarized by an officer authorized to take acknowledgments by the surveyor. The bill removes the requirement of acknowledgment of the certificate. Section 8 of the bill creates a "review officer" to be designated by the county board of commissioners to review each map and plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording. The review officer certifies to the register of deeds that the map or plat is suitable for recording.

Section 9 of the bill requires that each map or plat delineate clearly any changes in existing streets and the creation of new streets before it is certified by the review officer.

Section 12 of the bill increases the fee charged for recordation of the map or plat from nineteen dollars to twenty-one dollars per sheet or page.

Section 13 of the bill repeals G.S.89C-26 which requires a notarized certificate of the surveyor before a plat may be recorded.

Section 14 of the bill authorizes the Legislative Research Commission to study procedures for land title registration and report to the 1998 Session of the 1997 General Assembly.

Norton v. McDevitt, 122 N.C. 755, 30 S.E. 24 (1898).

Action Barred by Laches. — Where, in an action instituted 14 years after testator's death, plaintiff claimed the proceeds of an insurance policy payable to testator's estate, and contended that the policy was taken out by him to secure him for funds advanced to the testator, it was held that the rights of creditors having intervened, the record disclosed conduct on the part of the plaintiff barring the action for laches. Strayhorn v. Aycock, 215 N.C. 43, 200 S.E. 912 (1939).

As to prior law, see Godley v. Taylor, 14 N.C. 178 (1831); Cooper v. Cherry, 53 N.C. 323 (1861); McKeithan v. McGill, 83 N.C. 517 (1880); Morris v. Syme, 88 N.C. 453 (1883); Syme v. Badger, 96 N.C. 197, 2 S.E. 61 (1887), overruled on other grounds, Lee v. McKoy, 118 N.C. 518, 24 S.E. 210 (1896).

§ 1-50. Six years.

(a) Within six years an action —

(1) Upon the official bond of a public officer.

(2) Against an executor, administrator, collector, or guardian on his official bond, within six years after the auditing of his final account by the proper officer, and the filing of the audited account as required by law.

(3) For injury to any incorporeal hereditament.

(4) Against a corporation, or the holder of a certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation, on account of any dividend, either a cash or stock dividend, paid or allotted by the corporation to the holder of the certificate or duplicate certificate of stock in the corporation.

(5)a. No action to recover damages based upon or arising out of the defective or unsafe condition of an improvement to real property shall be brought more than six years from the later of the specific last act or omission of the defendant giving rise to the cause of action or substantial completion of the improvement.

b. For purposes of this subdivision, an action based upon or arising out of the defective or unsafe condition of an improvement to real property includes:

1. Actions to recover damages for breach of a contract to construct or repair an improvement to real property;
2. Actions to recover damages for the negligent construction or repair of an improvement to real property;
3. Actions to recover damages for personal injury, death or damage to property;
4. Actions to recover damages for economic or monetary loss;
5. Actions in contract or in tort or otherwise;
6. Actions for contribution indemnification for damages sustained on account of an action described in this subdivision;
7. Actions against a surety or guarantor of a defendant described in this subdivision;
8. Actions brought against any current or prior owner of the real property or improvement, or against any other person having a current or prior interest therein;
9. Actions against any person furnishing materials, or against any person who develops real property or who performs or furnishes the design, plans, specifications, surveying, supervision, testing or observation of construction, or construction of an improvement to real property, or a repair to an improvement to real property.

c. For purposes of this subdivision, "substantial completion" means that degree of completion of a project, improvement or specified area or portion thereof (in accordance with the contract, as modified by any change orders agreed to by the parties) upon attainment of which the owner can use the same for the purpose for which it was intended. The date of substantial completion may be established by written agreement.

d. The limitation prescribed by this subdivision shall not be asserted as a defense by any person in actual possession or control, as owner, tenant or otherwise, of the improvement at the time the defective or unsafe condition constitutes the proximate cause of the injury or death for which it is proposed to bring an action, in the event such person in actual possession or control either knew, or ought reasonably to have known, of the defective or unsafe condition.

e. The limitation prescribed by this subdivision shall not be asserted as a defense by any person who shall have been guilty of fraud, or willful or wanton negligence in furnishing materials, in developing real property, in performing or furnishing the design, plans, specifications, surveying, supervision, testing or observation of construction, or construction of an improvement to real property, or a repair to an improvement to real property, or to a surety or guarantor of any of the foregoing persons, or to any person who shall wrongfully conceal any such fraud, or willful or wanton negligence.

f. This subdivision prescribes an outside limitation of six years from the later of the specific last act or omission or substantial completion, within which the limitations prescribed by G.S. 1-52 and 1-53 continue to run. For purposes of the three-year limitation prescribed by G.S. 1-52, a cause of action based upon or arising out of the defective or unsafe condition of an improvement to real property shall not accrue until the injury, loss, defect or damage becomes apparent or ought reasonably to have become apparent to the claimant. However, as provided in this subdivision, no action may be brought more than six years from the later of the specific last act or omission or substantial completion.

g. The limitation prescribed by this subdivision shall apply to the exclusion of G.S. 1-15(c), G.S. 1-52(16) and G.S. 1-47(2).

(6) No action for the recovery of damages for personal injury, death or damage to property based upon or arising out of any alleged defect or any failure in relation to a product shall be brought more than six years after the date of initial purchase for use or consumption.

(7) Recodified as G.S. 1-47(6) by Session Laws 1995 (Regular Session, 1996), c. 742, s. 1, effective June 21, 1996.

(b) This section applies to actions brought by a private party to actions brought by the State or a political subdivision of the S (C.C.P., s. 33; Code, s. 154; Rev., s. 393; C.S., s. 439; 1931, c. 1963, c. 1030; 1979, c. 654, s. 2; 1981, c. 644, s. 1; 1991, c. 268, 1995, c. 291, s. 1; 1995 (Reg. OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Preparation of Construction Drawings. — A town may not, under its land use ordinance, require that all construction drawings submitted for approval be prepared and sealed by a licensed professional engineer, to the exclusion of licensed professional architects. Such a restriction would be in excess of the powers granted the town. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. Michael B. Brough, Carrboro Town Attorney, 59 N.C.A.G. 58 (1989).

§ 89C-25.1. Supervision of unregistered individuals by registered person.

In all circumstances in which unregistered individuals are permitted under this Chapter to perform engineering or land surveying work, or both, under the supervision of a registered engineer, land surveyor, or both, the Board may by regulation establish a reasonable limit on the number of unregistered individuals which a registrant of the Board may directly or personally supervise at one time. (1979, c. 819, s. 5.)

§ 89C-25.2. Program of licensure by discipline.

The Board shall submit to the legislative committees of reference by July 1, 1981, a program of licensure by discipline and an analysis of the costs and merits thereof in order to permit the General Assembly to make a decision on the establishment of such a program. The "committees of reference" shall be the Senate and House Committees on State Government respectively or such other committees as the respective presiding officers may determine. § 89C-26. Duties of register of deeds.

The register of deeds or any other county or proper public authority may not file or record any map, plat, survey, or other documents, within the definition of land surveying, which do not contain an original personal signature and original seal of a registered land surveyor by whom, or under whose responsible charge, the map, plat, survey, or other documents were prepared, except as provided in G.S. 47-30(m) and (n). (1975, c. 681, s. 1; 1993, c. 119, s. 3.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 1030, s. 51.16 provides: "The General Statutes Commission will study the requirements of G.S. 47-30(m) and G.S. 89C-26 to determine whether it is possible to provide for a photographic copy of a map to be attached to a deed or other instrument without requiring an original personal signature and original seal as approved

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CHANGE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR ACTIONS UPON OFFICIAL BONDS FROM SIX YEARS TO THREE YEARS, TO AUTHORIZE THE REMOVAL AND DESTRUCTION OF CERTAIN DEATH AND BIRTH CERTIFICATES, TO IMPROVE THE PROCEDURES FOR RECORDING MAPS AND PLATS, AND TO AUTHORIZE THE STUDY OF LAND TITLE REGISTRATION PROCEDURES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1-50(a)(1) is repealed.

Section 2. G.S. 1-52 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-52. Three years.

Within three years an action --

(1) Upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract, express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections or in G.S. 1-53(1).

(2) Upon a liability created by statute, either state or federal, unless some other time is mentioned in the statute creating it.
(3) For trespass upon real property. When the trespass is a continuing one, the action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter.
(4) For taking, detaining, converting or injuring any goods or chattels, including action for their specific recovery.
(5) For criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not hereafter enumerated.
(6) Against the sureties of any executor, administrator, collector or guardian on the official bond of their principal; within three years after the breach thereof complained of.
(7) Against bail; within three years after judgment against the principal; but bail may discharge himself by a surrender of the principal, at any time before final judgment against the bail.
(8) For fees due to a clerk, sheriff or other officer, by the judgment of a court; within three years from the rendition of the judgment, or the issuing of the last execution thereon.
(9) For relief on the ground of fraud or mistake; the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.
(10) Repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 886, s. 1.
(11) For the recovery of any amount under and by virtue of the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and amendments thereto, said act being an act of Congress.
(12) Upon a claim for loss covered by an insurance policy which is subject to the three-year limitation contained in lines 158 through 161 of the Standard Fire Insurance Policy for North Carolina, G.S. 58-44-15(c).

(13) Against a public officer, for a trespass, under color of his office.
(14) An action under Chapter 75B of the General Statutes, the action in regard to a continuing violation accrues at the time of the latest violation.
(15) For the recovery of taxes paid as provided in G.S. 105-267 and G.S. 105-381.
(16) Unless otherwise provided by statute, for personal injury or physical damage to claimant's property, the cause of action, except in causes of actions referred to in G.S. 1-15(c), shall not accrue until bodily harm to the claimant or physical damage to his property becomes apparent or ought reasonably to have become apparent to the claimant, whichever event first occurs. Provided that no cause of action shall accrue more than 10 years from the last act or omission of the defendant giving rise to the cause of action.
(17) Against a public utility, electric or telephone membership corporation, or a municipality for damages or for compensation for right-of-way or use of any lands for a utility service line or lines to serve one or more customers or members unless an inverse condemnation action or proceeding is commenced within three years after the utility service line has been constructed or by October 1, 1984, whichever is later.
(18) Against any registered land surveyor as defined in G.S. 89C-3(9) or any person acting under his supervision and control for physical damage or economic or monetary loss due to negligence or a deficiency in the performance of surveying or platting as defined in G.S. 1-47(6).
(19) Upon the official bond of a public officer."

Section 3. G.S. 130A-99 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-99. Register of deeds to preserve copies of birth and death records.

(a) The register of deeds of each county shall file and preserve the copies of birth and death certificates furnished by the local registrar under the provisions of G.S. 130A-97, and shall make and keep a proper index of the certificates. These certificates shall be open to inspection and examination. Copies or abstracts of these certificates shall be provided to any person upon request. Certified copies of these certificates shall be provided only to those persons described in G.S. 130A-93(c).

(b) The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of birth certificates for persons born in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located. The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of death certificates for persons who died in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located."

Section 4. G.S. 132-3(a) reads as rewritten:

"§ 132-3. Destruction of records regulated.

(a) Prohibition. -- No public official may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record, except in accordance with ~~G.S. 121-5,~~ G.S. 121-5 and G.S.130A-99, without the consent of the Department of Cultural Resources. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, defaces, mutilates or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00)."

Section 5. G.S. 121-5(b) reads as rewritten:

"§ 121-5. Public records and archives.

(b) Destruction of Records Regulated. -- No person may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record without the consent of the Department of Cultural ~~Resources.~~ Resources, except as provided in G.S. 130A-99. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, mutilates, or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined at the discretion of the court.

When the custodian of any official State records certifies to the Department of Cultural Resources that such records have no further use or value for official and administrative purposes and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them.

When the custodian of any official records of any county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government certifies to the Department that such records have no further use or value for official business and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be authorized by the governing body of said county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them. A record of such certification and authorization shall be entered in the minutes of the governing body granting the authority.

The North Carolina Historical Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to make such orders, rules, and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry into effect the provisions of this section. When any State, county, municipal, or other governmental records shall have been destroyed or otherwise disposed of in accordance with the procedure authorized in this subsection, any liability that the custodian of such records might incur for such destruction or other disposal shall cease and determine."

Section 6. G.S. 39-32.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 39-32.3. Recordation of plat showing control corners.

Upon designating a control corner and affixing a permanent marker, said person, firm or corporation shall cause to be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the real estate development is located a map or plat showing the location of the control corner or corners and permanent marker or markers with adequate and sufficient description to enable a surveyor to locate such control corner or marker. ~~The register of deeds shall not accept for registration or record any map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, unless the location of such control corner or corners is shown thereon.~~ No map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, shall be certified for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 unless the location of control corners is shown thereon."

Section 7. G.S. 47-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 47-30. Plats and subdivisions; mapping requirements.

(a) Size Requirements. -- All land plats presented to the register of deeds for recording in the registry of a county in North Carolina after September 30, 1991, having an outside marginal size of either 18 inches by 24 inches, 21 inches by 30 inches, or 24 inches by 36 inches, and having a minimum one and one-half inch border on the left side and a minimum one-half inch border on the other sides shall be deemed to meet the size requirements for recording under this section. Where size of land areas, or suitable scale to assure legibility require, plats may be placed on two or more sheets with appropriate match lines. Counties may specify either:

(1) Only 18 inches by 24 inches;

(2) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 21 inches by 30 inches;

(3) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 24 inches by 36 inches; or

(4) A combination of all three sizes.

Provided, that all registers of deeds where specific sizes other than the combination of all three sizes have been specified, shall be required to submit said size specifications to the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds for inclusion on a master list of all such counties. The list shall be available in each register of deeds office by October 1, 1991. For purposes of this section, the terms 'plat' and 'map' are synonymous.

(b) Plats to Be Reproducible. -- Each plat presented for recording shall be a reproducible plat, either original ink on polyester film (mylar), or a reproduced drawing, transparent and archival (as defined by the American National Standards Institute), and submitted in this form. The recorded plat must be such that the public may obtain legible copies. A direct or photographic copy of each recorded plat shall be placed in the plat book or plat file maintained for that purpose and properly indexed for use. In those counties in which the register has made a security copy of the plat from which legible copies can be made, the original may be returned to the person indicated on the plat.

(c) Information Contained in Title of Plat. -- The title of each plat shall contain the following information: property designation, name of owner (the name of owner shall be shown for indexing purposes only and is not to be construed as title certification), location to include township, county and state, the date or dates the survey was made; scale or scale ratio in words or figures and bar graph; name and address of surveyor or firm preparing the plat.

(d) Certificate; Form. -- There shall appear on each plat a certificate by the person under whose supervision such survey or such plat was made, stating the origin of the information shown on the plat, including recorded deed and plat references shown thereon. The ratio of precision before any adjustments must be shown. Any lines on the plat that were not actually surveyed must be clearly indicated and a statement included revealing the source of information. ~~The execution of such certificate shall be acknowledged before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments by the registered land surveyor preparing the plat. All plats to be recorded shall be probated as required by law for the registration of deeds.~~ Where a plat consists of more than one sheet, only one sheet must contain the certification and all other sheets must be signed and sealed.

The certificate required above shall include the source of information for the survey and data indicating the ratio of precision of the survey before adjustments and shall be in substantially the following form:

'I, ..., certify that this plat was drawn under my supervision from an actual survey made under my supervision (deed description recorded in Book ....., page ....., etc.) (other); that the boundaries not surveyed are clearly indicated as drawn from information found in Book ....., page .....; that the ratio of precision as calculated is 1:.....; that this plat was prepared in accordance with G.S. 47-30 as amended. Witness my original signature, registration number and seal this ..... day of ....., A.D., ~~19~~.....

Seal or Stamp

Surveyor

~~.....~~
Registration Number'

~~The certificate of the Notary shall read as follows:~~

~~'North Carolina,~~
~~.....County.~~

~~I, a Notary Public of the County and State aforesaid, certify that....., a registered land surveyor, personally appeared before me this day and acknowledged the execution of the foregoing instrument. Witness my hand and official stamp or seal, this..... day of ....., 19.....~~

~~Seal or Stamp~~

~~Notary Public.....~~
~~My Commission expires.....'~~

Nothing in this requirement shall prevent the recording of a map that was prepared in accordance with a previous version of G.S. 47-30 as amended, properly signed, and notarized under the statutes applicable at the time of the signing of the map. However, it shall be the responsibility of the person presenting the map to prove that the map was so prepared.

(e) Method of Computation. -- An accurate method of computation shall be used to determine the acreage and ratio of precision shown on the plat. Area by estimation is not acceptable nor is area by planimeter, area by scale, or area copied from another source, except in the case of tracts containing inaccessible sections or areas. In such case the surveyor may make use of aerial photographs or other appropriate aids to determine the acreage of ~~such~~ inaccessible areas when ~~such~~ the areas are bounded by natural and visible monuments. In such case the methods used must be stated on the plat and all accessible areas of the tract shall remain subject to all applicable standards of this section.

(f) Plat to Contain Specific Information. -- Every plat shall contain the following specific information:

(1) An accurately positioned north arrow coordinated with any bearings shown on the plat. Indication shall be made as to whether the north index is true, magnetic, North Carolina grid ('NAD 83' or 'NAD 27'), or is referenced to old deed or plat bearings. If the north index is magnetic or referenced to old deed or plat bearings, the date and the source (if known) ~~such~~ the index was originally determined shall be clearly indicated.

(2) The azimuth or course and distance of every property line surveyed shall be shown. Distances shall be in feet or meters and decimals thereof. The number of decimal places shall be appropriate to the class of survey required.

(3) All plat distances shall be by horizontal or grid measurements. All lines shown on the plat shall be correctly plotted to the scale shown. Enlargement of portions of a plat are acceptable in the interest of clarity, where shown as inserts. Where the North Carolina grid system is used the grid factor shall be shown on the face of the plat. If grid distances are used, it must be shown on the plat.

(4) Where a boundary is formed by a curved line, the following data must be given: actual survey data from the point of curvature to the point of tangency shall be shown as standard curve data, or as a traverse of bearings and distances around the curve. If standard curve data is used the bearing and distance of the long chord (from point of curvature to point of tangency) must be shown on the plat.

(5) Where a subdivision of land is set out on the plat, all streets and lots shall be accurately plotted with dimension lines indicating widths and all other information pertinent to reestablishing all lines in the field. This shall include bearings and distances sufficient to form a continuous closure of the entire perimeter.

(6) Where control corners have been established in compliance with G.S. 39-32.1, 39-32.2, 39-32.3, and 39-32.4, as amended, the location and pertinent information as required in the reference statute shall be plotted on the plat. All other corners which are marked by monument or natural object shall be so identified on all plats, and where practical all corners of adjacent owners along the boundary lines of the subject tract which are marked by monument or natural object shall be shown.

(7) The names of adjacent landowners, or lot, block, parcel, subdivision designations or other legal reference where applicable, shall be shown where they could be determined by the surveyor.

(8) All visible and apparent rights-of-way, watercourses, utilities, roadways, and other such improvements shall be accurately located where crossing or forming any boundary line of the property shown.

(9) Where the plat is the result of a survey, one or more corners shall, by a system of azimuths or courses and distances, be accurately tied to and coordinated with a horizontal control monument of some United States or State Agency survey system, such as the North Carolina Geodetic Survey where ~~such~~ the monument is within 2,000 feet of the subject property. Where the North Carolina Grid System coordinates of said monument are on file in the North Carolina Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources, the coordinates of both the referenced corner and the monuments used shall be shown in X (easting) and Y (northing) coordinates on the plat. The coordinates shall be identified as based on 'NAD 83,' indicating North American Datum of 1983, or as 'NAD 27,' indicating North American Datum of 1927. The tie lines to the monuments shall also be sufficient to establish true north or grid north bearings for the plat if the monuments exist in pairs. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has been tied to grid control, control monuments within the subdivision may be used in lieu of additional ties to grid control. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has not been tied to grid control, if horizontal control monuments are available within

2,000 feet, the above requirements shall be met; but in the interest of bearing consistency with previously recorded plats, existing bearing control should be used where practical. In the absence of Grid Control, other appropriate natural monuments or landmarks shall be used. In all cases, the tie lines shall be sufficient to accurately reproduce the subject lands from the control or reference points used.

(10) A vicinity map (location map) shall appear on the plat.

(11) Notwithstanding any other provision contained in this section, it is the duty of the surveyor, by a certificate on the face of the plat, to certify to one of the following:

a. That the survey creates a subdivision of land within the area of a county or municipality that has an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

b. That the survey is located in ~~such~~ a portion of a county or municipality that is unregulated as to an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

c. That the survey is of an existing parcel or parcels of land;

d. That the survey is of another category, such as the recombination of existing parcels, a court-ordered survey, or other exception to the definition of subdivision;

e. That the information available to the surveyor is such that the surveyor is unable to make a determination to the best of ~~his or her~~ the surveyor's professional ability as to provisions contained in (a) through (d) above.

However, if the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in a., d., or e. above, then the plat shall have, in addition to said surveyor's certificate, a certification of approval, or no approval required, as may be required by local ordinance from the appropriate government authority before the plat is presented for recordation. If the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in b. or c. above, nothing shall prevent the recordation of the plat if all other provisions have been met.

(g) Recording of Plat. -- ~~For purposes of recording, the register of deeds shall not be responsible for:~~ In certifying a plat for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, the Review Officer shall not be responsible for reviewing or certifying as to the following requirements of this section:

(1) ~~The provisions of subsection (b),~~ Subsection (b) of this section, as to archival;

~~(2) The provisions of subsection (d), except for the notary certificate;~~

~~(3)~~ (2) ~~The provisions of subsection (e);~~ Subsection (e) of this section; or

~~(4)~~ (3) ~~The provisions of subdivisions (2) through (9)~~ Subdivisions (1) through (10) of subsection (f).

A plat, when ~~proven and probated as provided herein for deeds and other conveyances, when~~ certified pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and presented for recording, shall be recorded in the plat book or plat file and when so recorded shall be duly indexed. Reference in any instrument hereafter executed to the record of any plat herein authorized shall have the same effect as if the description of the lands as indicated on the record of the plat were set out in the instrument.

(h) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the filing of any plat prepared by a registered land surveyor but not recorded prior to the death of the registered land surveyor. However, it is the responsibility of the person presenting the map to the Review Officer pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 to prove that the plat was so prepared. For preservation these plats may be filed without signature, notary acknowledgement or probate, in a special plat file.

(i) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to invalidate any instrument or the title thereby conveyed making reference to any recorded plat.

(j) The provisions of this section shall not apply to boundary plats of areas annexed by municipalities nor to plats of municipal boundaries, whether or not required by law to be recorded.

(k) The provisions of this section shall apply to all counties in North Carolina. ~~Where local law is in conflict with this section, the provisions in this section shall apply. Failure of a plat to conform in all requirements of this statute shall be sufficient grounds for the register of deeds to refuse to accept the plat for recordation.~~

(l) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the registration of highway right-of-way plans provided for in G.S. 136-19.4 nor to registration of roadway corridor official maps provided in Article 2E of Chapter 136.

(m) Except as provided in subsection (n), any map submitted for inclusion on the public record, whether submitted alone or attached to a deed or other instrument, shall be prepared by a registered land surveyor. Such a map shall either (i) have an original personal signature and original seal as approved by the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors or (ii) be a copy of a map, already on file in the public record, that is certified by the custodian of the public record to be a true and accurate copy of a map bearing an original personal signature and original seal. The presence of the original personal signature and seal shall constitute a certification that the map conforms to the standards of practice for land surveying in North Carolina, as defined in the rules of the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors.

(n) A map that does not meet the requirements of subsection (m) of this section may be attached to a deed or other instrument submitted for inclusion in the public record only for illustrative purposes and only if the map is conspicuously labelled, 'THIS MAP IS NOT A CERTIFIED SURVEY AND NO RELIANCE MAY BE PLACED IN ITS ACCURACY.'"

Section 8. Chapter 47 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 47-30.2. Review Officer.

(a) The board of commissioners of each county shall, by resolution, designate by name a person experienced in mapping or land records management as Review Officer to review each map and plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording. The person designated Review Officer shall, if possible, be certified as a property mapper pursuant to G.S. 147-54.4. The resolution designating the Review Officer shall be recorded in the county registry and indexed on the grantor index in the name of the Review Officer.

(b) The Review Officer shall review each map or plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording and certify that it complies with all statutory requirements for recording. The certification shall be in substantially the following form:

'State of North Carolina
County of

I, Review Officer of County, certify that the map or plat to which this certification is affixed meets all statutory requirements for recording.

Review Officer

Date'

(c) The register of deeds shall not accept for recording any map or plat that does not have affixed a certification as provided in subsection (b) of this section."

Section 9. G.S. 136-102.6(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) The right-of-way and construction plans for such public streets in residential subdivisions, including plans for street drainage, shall be submitted to the Division of Highways for review and approval, prior to the recording of the subdivision plat in the office of the register of deeds. The plat or map required by this section shall not be recorded by the register of deeds without a certification pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and, if determined to be necessary by the Review Officer, a certificate of approval by the Division of Highways of the plans for the public street as being in accordance with the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation for acceptance of the subdivision street on the State highway system for maintenance. The Review Officer shall not certify a map or plat subject to this section unless the new streets or changes in existing streets are delineated either public or private. The certificate of approval shall not be deemed an acceptance of the dedication of such streets on the subdivision plat or map. Final acceptance by the Division of Highways of such public streets and placing them on the State highway system for maintenance shall be conclusive proof that the streets have been constructed according to the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation."

Section 10. G.S. 153A-321 reads as rewritten:

"§153A-321. Planning agency.

A county may by ordinance create or designate one or more agencies to perform the following duties:

(1) Make studies of the county and surrounding areas;

(2) Determine objectives to be sought in the development of the study area;

(3) Prepare and adopt plans for achieving these objectives;

(4) Develop and recommend policies, ordinances, administrative procedures, and other means for carrying out plans in a coordinated and efficient manner;

(5) Advise the board of commissioners concerning the use and amendment of means for carrying out plans;

(6) Exercise any functions in the administration and enforcement of various means for carrying out plans that the board of commissioners may direct;

(7) Perform any other related duties that the board of commissioners may direct.

An agency created or designated pursuant to this section may include but shall not be limited to one or more of the ~~following, with any staff that the board of commissioners considers appropriate:~~ following:

(1) A planning board or commission of any size (not less than three members) or composition considered appropriate, organized in any manner considered appropriate;

(2) A joint planning board created by two or more local governments according to the procedures and provisions of Chapter 160A, Article 20, Part 1.

Section 11. G.S. 153A-332 reads as rewritten:

"§ 153A-332. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

(a) A subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat before its registration.

(b) The ordinance shall provide that the following agencies be given an opportunity to make recommendations concerning an individual subdivision plat before the plat is approved:

(1) The district highway engineer as to proposed streets, highways, and drainage systems;

(2) The county health director as to proposed water or sewerage systems;

(3) Any other agency or official designated by the board of commissioners.

(c) The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by:

(1) The board of commissioners,

(2) The board of commissioners on recommendation of a planning agency, or

(3) A designated planning agency.

(d) From the ~~time that~~ effective date of a subdivision ordinance that is ~~filed with the register of deeds of the~~ adopted by the county, no subdivision plat of land within the county's jurisdiction may be filed or recorded until it has been submitted to and approved by the appropriate board or agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval is entered in writing on the face of the plat by ~~the chairman or head of the board or agency.~~ an authorized representative of the county. The ~~register of deeds may not file or record~~ Review Officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of the county that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, and the clerk of superior court may not order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. ~~The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether any land shown thereon is within the subdivision-regulation jurisdiction of the county.~~"

Section 12. G.S. 160A-361 reads as rewritten:

"§160A-361. Planning agency.

Any city may by ordinance create or designate one or more agencies to perform the following duties:

(1) Make studies of the area within its jurisdiction and surrounding areas;
(2) Determine objectives to be sought in the development of the study area;
(3) Prepare and adopt plans for achieving these objectives;
(4) Develop and recommend policies, ordinances, administrative procedures, and other means for carrying out plans in a coordinated and efficient manner;
(5) Advise the council concerning the use and amendment of means for carrying out plans;
(6) Exercise any functions in the administration and enforcement of various means for carrying out plans that the council may direct;
(7) Perform any other related duties that the council may direct.

An agency created or designated pursuant to this section may include, but shall not be limited to, one or more of the ~~following, with such staff as the council may deem appropriate:~~ following:

(1) A planning board or commission of any size (with not ~~less~~ fewer than three members) or composition deemed appropriate, organized in any manner deemed appropriate;
(2) A joint planning board created by two or more local governments pursuant to Article 20, Part 1, of this Chapter."

Section 13. G.S. 160A-373 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-373. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

Any subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat prior to its registration.

The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by

(1) The city council,
(2) The city council on recommendation of a planning agency, or
(3) A designated planning agency.

From and after the ~~time that~~ effective date of a subdivision ordinance that is ~~filed with the register of deeds of the county,~~ adopted by the city, no subdivision plat of land within the city's jurisdiction shall be filed or recorded until it shall have been submitted to and approved by the council or appropriate agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval shall have been entered on the face of the plat in writing by ~~the chairman or head of the agency.~~ an authorized representative of the city. The ~~register of deeds shall not file or record~~ Review Officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of a city that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, nor shall the clerk of superior court order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. ~~The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether or not any land shown thereon is within the subdivision-regulation jurisdiction of any city.~~"

Section 14. G.S. 161-10(a)(3) reads as rewritten:

"(3) Plats. -- For each original or revised plat recorded ~~nineteen dollars ($19.00);~~ twenty-one dollars ($21.00) per sheet or page; for furnishing a certified copy of a plat three dollars ($3.00)."

Section 15. G.S. 89C-26 is repealed.

Section 16. The Legislative Research Commission may study the procedures for land title registration pursuant to Chapter 43 of the General Statutes and make recommendations for revision and improvement. The Commission shall submit its report to the 1998 Regular Session of the 1997 General Assembly.

Section 17. Sections 3 through 5 of this act become effective January 1, 1997. The removal and destruction by a register of deeds of any out-of-county birth or death certificates prior to January 1, 1997, is declared valid and not in violation of G.S. 121-5 or G.S. 132-3. Sections 6 through 15 of this act become effective October 1, 1997. The remaining sections of this act are effective when they became law. Section 2 of this act applies to claims that accrue on or after that date.

NORTH CAROLINA ASSOCIATION REGISTERS OF DEEDS

House Bill 1100 addresses four issues:

- A proposal to improve the review process for recorded plats. An enclosed cover sheet explains the reasons and effects our proposal would have on county offices. We have consulted with the N. C. Planners Assn., the Association of Property Mappers, and the Surveyor's Assn. in trying to come up with a document that would benefit all parties. Jim Blackburn with the County Commissioners Assn. has indicated his support for the proposed changes. We feel that the idea of a Review Officer will work hand in hand with the commissioner's goal of establishing land use planning in each county.

- A curative statute authorizing registers of deeds to dispose of certain birth and death certificates. From 1949 to around 1985, many registers received from Vital Records and various health departments photostatic copies of birth and death certificates for persons who lived in their respective counties but were born or died outside the county. While these certificates proved to be a source of information for researchers, they have presented problems for registers of deeds. We have never been allowed to issue certified copies from these photostats from other counties because they do not contain any amended information that might appear on the original which is filed in the county of birth or death. On January 6, 1992, a memorandum from Torrey McLean, State Registrar, requested registers of deeds statewide to remove these out of county records from their files and forward them to Vital Records in Raleigh. Many registers complied, and in order to insure that the State Registrar had the authority to ask for this removal, we are asking for this curative statute that would relieve registers of deeds from any liability for their actions.

- Ask for a Legislative Study Commission to study procedures for land title registration. G.S. 43 addresses the cumbersome and inequitable process for acquiring property through torrens. This is a statute that has not been reviewed in many years. The process of administering torrens has posed problems for registers of deeds in the eastern part of the state particularly, but could possibly affect every county in the state.

- A proposal to change the statute of limitations for actions on official bonds. This proposal addresses reducing from six to three the number of years of liability registers of deeds and other officials carry on their official bonds after leaving office. We feel that six years places unfair restrictions on, not only the officials, but also on their insurers.

Proposal to Improve Procedures for Recording Maps and Plats

This proposal grew out of a concern by registers of deeds over increasing difficulty in determining that all of the legal requirements for recording plats under G.S. 47-30 and compliance with local subdivision ordinances are being met. Registers are not trained or qualified to review some of the technical aspects that are part of a valid survey.

Changes to current process:

- Original plat may be returned to the person who recorded it if the register of deeds can provide legible copies from a security copy of the plat.

- Requires that the board of commissioners in each county appoint a sufficient number of Review Officers to promptly review each plat for compliance with G.S. 47-30, any applicable subdivision ordinance, and Department of Transportation requirements before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording. The number of people authorized to act as the Review Officer will vary based on the volume of plats recorded in a given county. If the property is within a municipality's jurisdiction, the Review Officer will certify that the proper authority within that municipality has approved the plat for compliance with that municipality's subdivision ordinance.

Advantages of the changes:

- Each county will have the opportunity to appoint qualified Review Officers from the appropriate department who are familiar with the technicalities of property surveys and who can insure compliance with that county's subdivision ordinance thereby giving the county more control over the approval process.

- The appointment of Review Officers will allow the person recording the plat a single point of approval. Because of discrepancies between G.S. 47-30 and local ordinances, it is currently possible to have a plat approved by a planning department and refused for recording in the register of deeds office.

- Registers of deeds will have the option of eliminating the cost and space required in the storage of the original plats.

- The appointment of the Review Officers should encourage counties that currently have no form of land records or planning department to establish one.

Check List for Plats
Randolph Co., N. C.

- Size: 18" x 24"
- Material: Original ink on mylar or archival reproduction. Must be legible.
- Title Block: Name of project
  Owner's name
  Township, county, and state
  Date of survey
  Scale ratio
  Surveyor's name and address
- Surveyor's certificate and seal.
- Notary's certificate and seal.
- North arrow: True, magnetic, N. C. grid, or old deed bearing
- Vicinity map
- Surveyor's statement: One of these five must be on plat:
  1. This survey creates a subdivision of land within the area of a county or municipality that has an ordinance that regulates parcels of land.
  2. This survey is located in such a portion of a county or municipality that is unregulated as to an ordinance that regulates parcels of land.
  3. This survey is of an existing parcel or parcels of land.
  4. This survey is of another category, such as the recombination of existing parcels, a court-ordered survey, or other exception to the definition of subdivision.
  5. The information available to the surveyor is such that the surveyor is unable to make a determination to the best of his or her professional ability as to provisions contained above.

  If the statement is anything other than #3, the plat requires approval of Planning and Zoning.
- Unless the plat is labeled as an existing parcel (#3 above) or marked as exempt by Planning & Zoning, control corners must be shown.
- If that property is in a municipality other than Seagrove or Staley, the plat must be approved by that municipality's planning department. The county planning department administers property in Seagrove and Staley.
- If the plat contains a new road or right of way labeled "public", it must have an approval stamp from DOT. If the road or right of way is labeled "private", no approval is required. If the road or right of way is not labeled, there are no guidelines so we will not require DOT approval.
- If the surveyor has indicated that the plat is in a watershed zone, the plat must have an extra approval from Planning and Zoning, unless the watershed is within the city limits of Asheboro, Archdale, or Randleman. These 3 municipalities approve their own watershed restrictions so there should be an extra approval from them.
- The following are exempt from the recording requirements for plats: Annexation maps for municipalities, boundary maps for municipalities, highway right-of-way maps, and highway corridor maps.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CHANGE THE STATUTE OF LIMITATIONS FOR ACTIONS UPON OFFICIAL BONDS FROM SIX YEARS TO THREE YEARS, TO AUTHORIZE THE REMOVAL AND DESTRUCTION OF CERTAIN DEATH AND BIRTH CERTIFICATES, TO IMPROVE THE PROCEDURES FOR RECORDING MAPS AND PLATS, AND TO AUTHORIZE THE STUDY OF LAND TITLE REGISTRATION PROCEDURES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1-50(a)(1) is repealed.

Section 2. G.S. 1-52 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-52. Three years.

Within three years an action --

(1) Upon a contract, obligation or liability arising out of a contract, express or implied, except those mentioned in the preceding sections or in G.S. 1-53(1).

(2) Upon a liability created by statute, either state or federal, unless some other time is mentioned in the statute creating it.

(3) For trespass upon real property. When the trespass is a continuing one, the action shall be commenced within three years from the original trespass, and not thereafter.

(4) For taking, detaining, converting or injuring any goods or chattels, including action for their specific recovery.

(5) For criminal conversation, or for any other injury to the person or rights of another, not arising on contract and not hereafter enumerated.

(6) Against the sureties of any executor, administrator, collector or guardian on the official bond of their principal; within three years after the breach thereof complained of.

(7) Against bail; within three years after judgment against the principal; but bail may discharge himself by a surrender of the principal, at any time before final judgment against the bail.

(8) For fees due to a clerk, sheriff or other officer, by the judgment of a court; within three years from the rendition of the judgment, or the issuing of the last execution thereon.

(9) For relief on the ground of fraud or mistake; the cause of action shall not be deemed to have accrued until the discovery by the aggrieved party of the facts constituting the fraud or mistake.

(10) Repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 886, s. 1.

(11) For the recovery of any amount under and by virtue of the provisions of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 and amendments thereto, said act being an act of Congress.

(12) Upon a claim for loss covered by an insurance policy which is subject to the three-year limitation contained in lines 158 through 161 of the Standard Fire Insurance Policy for North Carolina, G.S. 58-44-15(c).

(13) Against a public officer, for a trespass, under color of his office.

(14) An action under Chapter 75B of the General Statutes, the action in regard to a continuing violation accrues at the time of the latest violation.

(15) For the recovery of taxes paid as provided in G.S. 105-267 and G.S. 105-381.

(16) Unless otherwise provided by statute, for personal injury or physical damage to claimant's property, the cause of action, except in causes of actions referred to in G.S. 1-15(c), shall not accrue until bodily harm to the claimant or physical damage to his property becomes apparent or ought reasonably to have become apparent to the claimant, whichever event first occurs. Provided that no cause of action shall accrue more than 10 years from the last act or omission of the defendant giving rise to the cause of action.

(17) Against a public utility, electric or telephone membership corporation, or a municipality for damages or for compensation for right-of-way or use of any lands for a utility service line or lines to serve one or more customers or members unless an inverse condemnation action or proceeding is commenced within three years after the utility service line has been constructed or by October 1, 1984, whichever is later.

(18) Against any registered land surveyor as defined in G.S. 89C-3(9) or any person acting under his supervision and control for physical damage or economic or monetary loss due to negligence or a deficiency in the performance of surveying or platting as defined in G.S. 1-47(6).

(19) Upon the official bond of a public officer."

Section 3. G.S. 130A-99 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-99. Register of deeds to preserve copies of birth and death records.

(a) The register of deeds of each county shall file and preserve the copies of birth and death certificates furnished by the local registrar under the provisions of G.S. 130A-97, and shall make and keep a proper index of the certificates. These certificates shall be open to inspection and examination. Copies or abstracts of these certificates shall be provided to any person upon request. Certified copies of these certificates shall be provided only to those persons described in G.S. 130A-93(c).

(b) The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of birth certificates for persons born in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located. The register of deeds may remove from the records and destroy copies of death certificates for persons who died in counties other than the county in which the office of the register of deeds is located."

Section 4. G.S. 132-3(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Prohibition. -- No public official may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record, except in accordance with ~~G.S. 121-5,~~ G.S. 121-5 and G.S. 130A-99, without the consent of the Department of Cultural Resources. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, defaces, mutilates or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined not less than ten dollars ($10.00) nor more than five hundred dollars ($500.00)."

Section 5. G.S. 121-5(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Destruction of Records Regulated. -- No person may destroy, sell, loan, or otherwise dispose of any public record without the consent of the Department of Cultural ~~Resources.~~ Resources, except as provided in G.S. 130A-99. Whoever unlawfully removes a public record from the office where it is usually kept, or alters, mutilates, or destroys it shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor and upon conviction only fined at the discretion of the court.

When the custodian of any official State records certifies to the Department of Cultural Resources that such records have no further use or value for official and administrative purposes and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them.

When the custodian of any official records of any county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government certifies to the Department that such records have no further use or value for official business and when the Department certifies that such records appear to have no further use or value for research or reference, then such records may be authorized by the governing body of said county, city, municipality, or other subdivision of government to be destroyed or otherwise disposed of by the agency having custody of them. A record of such certification and authorization shall be entered in the minutes of the governing body granting the authority.

The North Carolina Historical Commission is hereby authorized and empowered to make such orders, rules, and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry into effect the provisions of this section. When any State, county, municipal, or other governmental records shall have been destroyed or otherwise disposed of in accordance with the procedure authorized in this subsection, any liability that the custodian of such records might incur for such destruction or other disposal shall cease and determine."

Section 6. G.S. 39-32.3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 39-32.3. Recordation of plat showing control corners.

Upon designating a control corner and affixing a permanent marker, said person, firm or corporation shall cause to be filed in the office of the register of deeds of the county in which the real estate development is located a map or plat showing the location of the control corner or corners and permanent marker or markers with adequate and sufficient description to enable a surveyor to locate such control corner or marker. ~~The register of deeds shall not accept for registration or record any map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, unless the location of such control corner or corners is shown thereon.~~ No map or plat of a real estate subdivision or development made after July 1, 1947, shall be certified for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 unless the location of control corners is shown thereon."

Section 7. G.S. 47-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 47-30. Plats and subdivisions; mapping requirements.

(a) Size Requirements. -- All land plats presented to the register of deeds for recording in the registry of a county in North Carolina after September 30, 1991, having an outside marginal size of either 18 inches by 24 inches, 21 inches by 30 inches, or 24 inches by 36 inches, and having a minimum one and one-half inch border on the left side and a minimum one-half inch border on the other sides shall be deemed to meet the size requirements for recording under this section. Where size of land areas, or suitable scale to assure legibility require, plats may be placed on two or more sheets with appropriate match lines. Counties may specify either:

(1) Only 18 inches by 24 inches;
(2) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 21 inches by 30 inches;
(3) A combination of 18 inches by 24 inches and 24 inches by 36 inches; or
(4) A combination of all three sizes.

Provided, that all registers of deeds where specific sizes other than the combination of all three sizes have been specified, shall be required to submit said size specifications to the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds for inclusion on a master list of all such counties. The list shall be available in each register of deeds office by October 1, 1991. For purposes of this section, the terms 'plat' and 'map' are synonymous.

(b) Plats to Be Reproducible. -- Each plat presented for recording shall be a reproducible plat, either original ink on polyester film (mylar), or a reproduced drawing, transparent and archival (as defined by the American National Standards Institute), and submitted in this form. The recorded plat must be such that the public may obtain legible copies. A direct or photographic copy of each recorded plat shall be placed in the plat book or plat file maintained for that purpose and properly indexed for use. In those counties in which the register has made a security copy of the plat from which legible copies can be made, the original may be returned to the person indicated on the plat.

(c) Information Contained in Title of Plat. -- The title of each plat shall contain the following information: property designation, name of owner (the name of owner shall be shown for indexing purposes only and is not to be construed as title certification), location to include township, county and state, the date or dates the survey was made; scale or scale ratio in words or figures and bar graph; name and address of surveyor or firm preparing the plat.

(d) Certificate; Form. -- There shall appear on each plat a certificate by the person under whose supervision such survey or such plat was made, stating the origin of the information shown on the plat, including recorded deed and plat references shown thereon. The ratio of precision before any adjustments must be shown. Any lines on the plat that were not actually surveyed must be clearly indicated and a statement included revealing the source of information. ~~The execution of such certificate shall be acknowledged before any officer authorized to take acknowledgments by the registered land surveyor preparing the plat. All plats to be recorded shall be probated as required by law for the registration of deeds.~~ Where a plat consists of more than one sheet, only one sheet must contain the certification and all other sheets must be signed and sealed.

The certificate required above shall include the source of information for the survey and data indicating the ratio of precision of the survey before adjustments and shall be in substantially the following form:

'I, ..., certify that this plat was drawn under my supervision from an actual survey made under my supervision (deed description recorded in Book ....., page ....., etc.) (other); that the boundaries not surveyed are clearly indicated as drawn from information found in Book ....., page .....; that the ratio of precision as calculated is 1:.....; that this plat was prepared in accordance with G.S. 47-30 as amended. ~~My Commission expires.....'~~

Nothing in this requirement shall prevent the recording of a map that was prepared in accordance with a previous version of G.S. 47-30 as amended, properly signed, and notarized under the statutes applicable at the time of the signing of the map. However, it shall be the responsibility of the person presenting the map to prove that the map was so prepared.

(e) Method of Computation. -- An accurate method of computation shall be used to determine the acreage and ratio of precision shown on the plat. Area by estimation is not acceptable nor is area by planimeter, area by scale, or area copied from another source, except in the case of tracts containing inaccessible sections or areas. In such case the surveyor may make use of aerial photographs or other appropriate aids to determine the acreage of ~~such~~ inaccessible areas when ~~such~~ the areas are bounded by natural and visible monuments. In such case the methods used must be stated on the plat and all accessible areas of the tract shall remain subject to all applicable standards of this section.

(f) Plat to Contain Specific Information. -- Every plat shall contain the following specific information:

(1) An accurately positioned north arrow coordinated with any bearings shown on the plat. Indication shall be made as to whether the north index is true, magnetic, North Carolina grid ('NAD 83' or 'NAD 27'), or is referenced to old deed or plat bearings. If the north index is magnetic or referenced to old deed or plat bearings, the date and the source (if known) ~~such~~ the index was originally determined shall be clearly indicated.

(2) The azimuth or course and distance of every property line surveyed shall be shown. Distances shall be in feet or meters and decimals thereof. The number of decimal places shall be appropriate to the class of survey required.

(3) All plat distances shall be by horizontal or grid measurements. All lines shown on the plat shall be correctly plotted to the scale shown. Enlargement of portions of a plat are acceptable in the interest of clarity, where shown as inserts. Where the North Carolina grid system is used the grid factor shall be shown on the face of the plat. If grid distances are used, it must be shown on the plat.

(4) Where a boundary is formed by a curved line, the following data must be given: actual survey data from the point of curvature to the point of tangency shall be shown as standard curve data, or as a traverse of bearings and distances around the curve. If standard curve data is used the bearing and distance of the long chord (from point of curvature to point of tangency) must be shown on the plat.

(5) Where a subdivision of land is set out on the plat, all streets and lots shall be accurately plotted with dimension lines indicating widths and all other information pertinent to reestablishing all lines in the field. This shall include bearings and distances sufficient to form a continuous closure of the entire perimeter.

(6) Where control corners have been established in compliance with G.S. 39-32.1, 39-32.2, 39-32.3, and 39-32.4, as amended, the location and pertinent information as required in the reference statute shall be plotted on the plat. All other corners which are marked by monument or natural object shall be so identified on all plats, and where practical all corners of adjacent owners along the boundary lines of the subject tract which are marked by monument or natural object shall be shown.

(7) The names of adjacent landowners, or lot, block, parcel, subdivision designations or other legal reference where applicable, shall be shown where they could be determined by the surveyor.

(8) All visible and apparent rights-of-way, watercourses, utilities, roadways, and other such improvements shall be accurately located where crossing or forming any boundary line of the property shown.

(9) Where the plat is the result of a survey, one or more corners shall, by a system of azimuths or courses and distances, be accurately tied to and coordinated with a horizontal control monument of some United States or State Agency survey system, such as the North Carolina Geodetic Survey where ~~such~~ the monument is within 2,000 feet of the subject property. Where the North Carolina Grid System coordinates of said monument are on file in the North Carolina Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources, the coordinates of both the referenced corner and the monuments used shall be shown in X (easting) and Y (northing) coordinates on the plat. The coordinates shall be identified as based on 'NAD 83,' indicating North American Datum of 1983, or as 'NAD 27,' indicating North American Datum of 1927. The tie lines to the monuments shall also be sufficient to establish true north or grid north bearings for the plat if the monuments exist in pairs. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has been tied to grid control, control monuments within the subdivision may be used in lieu of additional ties to grid control. Within a previously recorded subdivision that has not been tied to grid control, if horizontal control monuments are available within 2,000 feet, the above requirements shall be met; but in the interest of bearing consistency with previously recorded plats, existing bearing control should be used where practical. In the absence of Grid Control, other appropriate natural monuments or landmarks shall be used. In all cases, the tie lines shall be sufficient to accurately reproduce the subject lands from the control or reference points used.

(11) Notwithstanding any other provision contained in this section, it is the duty of the surveyor, by a certificate on the face of the plat, to certify to one of the following:

a. That the survey creates a subdivision of land within the area of a county or municipality that has an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

b. That the survey is located in ~~such~~ a portion of a county or municipality that is unregulated as to an ordinance that regulates parcels of land;

c. That the survey is of an existing parcel or parcels of land;

d. That the survey is of another category, such as the recombination of existing parcels, a court-ordered survey, or other exception to the definition of subdivision;

e. That the information available to the surveyor is such that the surveyor is unable to make a determination to the best of ~~his or her~~ the surveyor's professional ability as to provisions contained in (a) through (d) above.

However, if the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in a., d., or e. above, then the plat shall have, in addition to said surveyor's certificate, a certification of approval, or no approval required, as may be required by local ordinance from the appropriate government authority before the plat is presented for recordation. If the plat contains the certificate of a surveyor as stated in b. or c. above, nothing shall prevent the recordation of the plat if all other provisions have been met.

(g) Recording of Plat. -- ~~For purposes of recording, the register of deeds shall not be responsible for:~~ In certifying a plat for recording pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, the Review Officer shall not be responsible for reviewing or certifying as to the following requirements of this section:

(1) ~~The provisions of subsection (b),~~ Subsection (b) of this section, as to archival;

~~(2) The provisions of subsection (d), except for the notary certificate;~~

(3) ~~The provisions of subsection (e);~~ Subsection (e) of this section; or

(4) ~~The provisions of subdivisions (2) through (9)~~ Subdivisions (1) through (10) of subsection (f).

A plat, when ~~proven and probated as provided herein for deeds and other conveyances, when~~ certified pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and presented for recording, shall be recorded in the plat book or plat file and when so recorded shall be duly indexed. Reference in any instrument hereafter executed to the record of any plat herein authorized shall have the same effect as if the description of the lands as indicated on the record of the plat were set out in the instrument.

(h) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to prevent the filing of any plat prepared by a registered land surveyor but not recorded prior to the death of the registered land surveyor. However, it is the responsibility of the person presenting the map to the Review Officer pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 to prove that the plat was so prepared. For preservation these plats may be filed without signature, notary acknowledgement or probate, in a special plat file.

(i) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to invalidate any instrument or the title thereby conveyed making reference to any recorded plat.

(j) The provisions of this section shall not apply to boundary plats of areas annexed by municipalities nor to plats of municipal boundaries, whether or not required by law to be recorded.

(k) The provisions of this section shall apply to all counties in North Carolina. ~~Where local law is in conflict with this section, the provisions in this section shall apply. Failure of a plat to conform in all requirements of this statute shall be sufficient grounds for the register of deeds to refuse to accept the plat for recordation.~~

(l) The provisions of this section shall not apply to the registration of highway right-of-way plans provided for in G.S. 136-19.4 nor to registration of roadway corridor official maps provided in Article 2E of Chapter 136.

(m) Except as provided in subsection (n), any map submitted for inclusion on the public record, whether submitted alone or attached to a deed or other instrument, shall be prepared by a registered land surveyor. Such a map shall either (i) have an original personal signature and original seal as approved by the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors or (ii) be a copy of a map, already on file in the public record, that is certified by the custodian of the public record to be a true and accurate copy of a map bearing an original personal signature and original seal. The presence of the original personal signature and seal shall constitute a certification that the map conforms to the standards of practice for land surveying in North Carolina, as defined in the rules of the North Carolina State Board of Registration for Professional Engineers and Land Surveyors.

(n) A map that does not meet the requirements of subsection (m) of this section may be attached to a deed or other instrument submitted for inclusion in the public record only for illustrative purposes and only if the map is conspicuously labelled, 'THIS MAP IS NOT A CERTIFIED SURVEY AND NO RELIANCE MAY BE PLACED IN ITS ACCURACY.'"

Section 8. Chapter 47 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 47-30.2. Review Officer.

(a) The board of commissioners of each county shall, by resolution, designate by name a person experienced in mapping or land records management as Review Officer to review each map and plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording. The person designated Review Officer shall, if possible, be certified as a property mapper pursuant to G.S. 147-54.4. The resolution designating the Review Officer shall be recorded in the county registry and indexed on the grantor index in the name of the Review Officer.

(b) The Review Officer shall review each map or plat before it is presented to the register of deeds for recording and certify that it complies with all statutory requirements for recording. The certification shall be in substantially the following form:

'State of North Carolina
County of

I, _____ Review Officer of _____ County, certify that the map or plat to which this certification is affixed meets all statutory requirements for recording.

_____

Review Officer

Date'

(c) The register of deeds shall not accept for recording any map or plat that does not have affixed a certification as provided in subsection (b) of this section."

Section 9. G.S. 136-102.6(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) The right-of-way and construction plans for such public streets in residential subdivisions, including plans for street drainage, shall be submitted to the Division of Highways for review and approval, prior to the recording of the subdivision plat in the office of the register of deeds. The plat or map required by this section shall not be recorded by the register of deeds without a certification pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2 and, if determined to be necessary by the Review Officer, a certificate of approval by the Division of Highways of the plans for the public street as being in accordance with the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation for acceptance of the subdivision street on the State highway system for maintenance. The Review Officer shall not certify a map or plat subject to this section unless the new streets or changes in existing streets are delineated either public or private. The certificate of approval shall not be deemed an acceptance of the dedication of such streets on the subdivision plat or map. Final acceptance by the Division of Highways of such public streets and placing them on the State highway system for maintenance shall be conclusive proof that the streets have been constructed according to the minimum standards of the Board of Transportation."

Section 10. G.S. 153A-321 reads as rewritten:

"§ 153A-321. Planning agency.

A county may by ordinance create or designate one or more agencies to perform the following duties:

(1) Make studies of the county and surrounding areas;
(2) Determine objectives to be sought in the development of the study area;
(3) Prepare and adopt plans for achieving these objectives;
(4) Develop and recommend policies, ordinances, administrative procedures, and other means for carrying out plans in a coordinated and efficient manner;
(5) Advise the board of commissioners concerning the use and amendment of means for carrying out plans;
(6) Exercise any functions in the administration and enforcement of various means for carrying out plans that the board of commissioners may direct;
(7) Perform any other related duties that the board of commissioners may direct.

An agency created or designated pursuant to this section may include but shall not be limited to one or more of the ~~following, with any staff that the board of commissioners considers appropriate:~~ following:

(1) A planning board or commission of any size (not less than three members) or composition considered appropriate, organized in any manner considered appropriate;
(2) A joint planning board created by two or more local governments according to the procedures and provisions of Chapter 160A, Article 20, Part 1."

Section 11. G.S. 153A-332 reads as rewritten:

"§ 153A-332. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

A subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat before its registration.

The ordinance shall provide that the following agencies be given an opportunity to make recommendations concerning an individual subdivision plat before the plat is approved:

(1) The district highway engineer as to proposed streets, highways, and drainage systems;
(2) The county health director as to proposed water or sewerage systems;
(3) Any other agency or official designated by the board of commissioners.

The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by:

(1) The board of commissioners,
(2) The board of commissioners on recommendation of a planning agency, or
(3) A designated planning agency.

From the ~~time that~~ effective date of a subdivision ordinance that is ~~filed with the register of deeds of the~~ adopted by the county, no subdivision plat of land within the county's jurisdiction may be filed or recorded until it has been submitted to and approved by the appropriate board or agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval is entered in writing on the face of the plat by ~~the chairman or head of the board or agency.~~ an authorized representative of the county. The ~~register of deeds may not file or record~~ Review officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of the county that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, and the clerk of superior court may not order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. ~~The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether any land shown thereon is within the subdivision regulation jurisdiction of the county.~~"

Section 12. G.S. 160A-361 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-361. Planning agency.

Any city may by ordinance create or designate one or more agencies to perform the following duties:

(1) Make studies of the area within its jurisdiction and surrounding areas;
(2) Determine objectives to be sought in the development of the study area;
(3) Prepare and adopt plans for achieving these objectives;
(4) Develop and recommend policies, ordinances, administrative procedures, and other means for carrying out plans in a coordinated and efficient manner;
(5) Advise the council concerning the use and amendment of means for carrying out plans;
(6) Exercise any functions in the administration and enforcement of various means for carrying out plans that the council may direct;
(7) Perform any other related duties that the council may direct.

An agency created or designated pursuant to this section may include, but shall not be limited to, one or more of the ~~following, with such staff as the council may deem appropriate:~~ following:

(1) A planning board or commission of any size (with not ~~less~~ fewer than three members) or composition deemed appropriate, organized in any manner deemed appropriate;

(2) A joint planning board created by two or more local governments pursuant to Article 20, Part 1, of this Chapter."

Section 13. G.S. 160A-373 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-373. Ordinance to contain procedure for plat approval; approval prerequisite to plat recordation; statement by owner.

Any subdivision ordinance adopted pursuant to this Part shall contain provisions setting forth the procedures to be followed in granting or denying approval of a subdivision plat prior to its registration.

The ordinance may provide that final approval of each individual subdivision plat is to be given by

(1) The city council,

(2) The city council on recommendation of a planning agency, or

(3) A designated planning agency.

From and after the ~~time that~~ effective date of a subdivision ordinance that is ~~filed with the register of deeds of the county,~~ adopted by the city, no subdivision plat of land within the city's jurisdiction shall be filed or recorded until it shall have been submitted to and approved by the council or appropriate agency, as specified in the subdivision ordinance, and until this approval shall have been entered on the face of the plat in writing by ~~the chairman or head of the agency.~~ an authorized representative of the city. The ~~register of deeds shall not file or record~~ Review Officer, pursuant to G.S. 47-30.2, shall not certify a plat of a subdivision of land located within the territorial jurisdiction of a city that has not been approved in accordance with these provisions, nor shall the clerk of superior court order or direct the recording of a plat if the recording would be in conflict with this section. ~~The owner of land shown on a subdivision plat submitted for recording, or his authorized agent, shall sign a statement on the plat stating whether or not any land shown thereon is within the subdivision regulation jurisdiction of any city.~~"

Section 14. G.S. 161-10(a)(3) reads as rewritten:

"(3) Plats. -- For each original or revised plat recorded ~~nineteen dollars ($19.00);~~ twenty-one dollars ($21.00) per sheet or page; for furnishing a certified copy of a plat three dollars ($3.00)."

Section 15. G.S. 89C-26 is repealed.

Section 16. The Legislative Research Commission may study the procedures for land title registration pursuant to Chapter 43 of the General Statutes and make recommendations for revision and improvement. The Commission shall submit its report to the 1998 Regular Session of the 1997 General Assembly.

Section 17. Sections 3 through 5 of this act become effective January 1, 1997. The removal and destruction by a register of deeds of any out-of-county birth or death certificates prior to January 1, 1997, is declared valid and not in violation of G.S. 121-5 or G.S. 132-3. Sections 6 through 15 of this act become effective October 1, 1997. The remaining sections of this act are effective when they became law. Section 2 of this act applies to claims that accrue on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE LOCAL GOVERNMENTS TO USE PHOTOGRAPHIC IMAGES AS PRIMA FACIE EVIDENCE OF A TRAFFIC VIOLATION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 160A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 160A-300.1. Use of traffic control photographic systems.

(a) Traffic control photographic systems.

(1) A traffic control photographic system is an electronic system consisting of a photographic, video, or electronic camera and a vehicle sensor installed to work in conjunction with an official traffic control device to automatically produce photographs, video, or digital images of each vehicle violating a standard traffic control statute or ordinance.

(2) Any traffic control photographic system, as described in subdivision (1) of this subsection or any device which is a part of that system deployed on a street or highway which is a part of the State highway system shall meet requirements established by the North Carolina Department of Transportation.

Any traffic control system deployed on a municipal street shall meet standards established by the municipality and shall be consistent with any standards set by the Department of Transportation.

(b) Municipalities and counties may adopt ordinances for the enforcement of G.S. 20-141, 20-141.1, or 20-158 by means of a traffic control photographic system, as described in subsection (a) of this section. An ordinance authorized by this subsection shall provide that:

(1) The owner of a vehicle shall be responsible for a violation under this section unless the owner can furnish evidence that the vehicle was, at the time of the violation, in the care, custody, or control of another person. The owner of the vehicle shall not be responsible for the violation if the owner of the vehicle, within twenty-one (21) days after notification of the violation, furnishes the officials or agents of the municipality which issued the citation:

a. the name and address of the person or company who leased, rented, or otherwise had the care, custody, and control of the vehicle; or

b. an affidavit stating that the vehicle involved was, at the time, stolen or in the care, custody, or control of some person who did not have permission of the owner to use the vehicle.

(2) The violation of this section detected by a traffic control photographic system shall be deemed a noncriminal violation for which a civil penalty of fifty dollars ($50.00) shall be assessed and for which no points authorized by G.S. 20-16(c) shall be assigned to the owner or driver of the vehicle.

(3) The owner of the vehicle shall be issued a citation which shall clearly state the manner in which the violation may be challenged, and the owner shall comply with the directions on the citation. The citation shall be processed by officials or agents of the municipality and shall be forwarded by personal service or first class mail to the address given on the motor vehicle registration. If the owner fails to pay the civil penalty or to respond to the citation within the time period specified on the citation, the owner shall have waived the right to contest responsibility for the violation, and may be subject to an additional penalty, not to exceed an additional fifty dollars ($50.00). The municipality may establish procedures for the collection of these penalties and may enforce the penalties by civil action in the nature of debt.

(4) The municipality shall institute a non-judicial administrative hearing to review objections to citations or penalties issued or assessed under this section."

HOUSE BILL 1023

Short Title: Pretrial Release & Bond Forfeiture. (Public)

Referred to: Judiciary II.

April 21, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODERNIZE THE PRETRIAL RELEASE AND BOND FORFEITURE PROCEDURE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 15A-533 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-533. Right to pretrial release in capital and noncapital cases.

(a) A defendant charged with any crime, whether capital or noncapital, who is alleged to have committed this crime while still residing in or subsequent to his escape or during an unauthorized absence from involuntary commitment in a mental health facility designated or licensed by the Department of Human Resources, and whose commitment is determined to be still valid by the judge or judicial officer authorized to determine pretrial release to be valid, has no right to pretrial release. In lieu of pretrial release, however, the individual shall be returned to the treatment facility in which he was residing at the time of the alleged crime or from which he escaped or absented himself for continuation of his treatment pending the additional proceedings on the criminal offense.

(b) A defendant charged with a noncapital offense other than an offense that constitutes 'trafficking' in a controlled substance, as that term is defined by the Controlled Substances Act, must have conditions of pretrial release determined, in accordance with G.S. 15A-534.

(c) Subject to rebuttal by the person, it shall be presumed that no condition of release will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of the community if a judicial official finds that there is probable cause to believe that the person committed ~~A judge may determine in his discretion whether a defendant~~

~~charged with~~ a capital offense or an offense involving trafficking in a controlled substance. Such persons may only be released by a district or superior court judge upon a finding that there is a reasonable assurance that the person will appear and release does not pose an unreasonable risk of harm to the community. ~~may be released before trial.~~ If he determines release is warranted, the judge must authorize release of the defendant in accordance with G.S. 15A-534."

Section 2. G.S. 15A-534 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-534. Procedure for determining conditions of pretrial release.

(a) In determining conditions of pretrial release a judicial official must impose one of the following conditions:

(1) Release the defendant on his written promise to appear.

(2) Release the defendant upon his execution of an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judicial official.

(3) Place the defendant in the custody of a designated person or organization agreeing to supervise him.

(4) Require the execution of an appearance bond in a specified amount secured by a cash deposit of the full amount of the bond, by a mortgage pursuant to G.S. 58-74-5, or by at least one solvent surety.

If condition (3) is imposed, however, the defendant may elect to execute an appearance bond under subdivision (4). The judicial official may also place restrictions on the travel, associations, conduct, or place of abode of the defendant as conditions of pretrial release.

(b) The judicial official in granting pretrial release must impose condition (1), (2), or (3) in subsection (a) above unless he determines that such release will not reasonably assure the appearance of the defendant as required; will pose a danger of injury to any ~~person;~~ person or to the community; or is likely to result in destruction of evidence, subornation of perjury, or intimidation of potential witnesses. Upon making the determination, the judicial official must then impose condition (4) in subsection (a) above instead of condition (1), (2), or (3), and must record the reasons for so doing in writing ~~to the extent provided in the policies or requirements issued~~ in such form as may be required by the senior resident superior court judge pursuant to G.S. 15A-535(a).

(c) In determining which conditions of release to impose, the judicial official must, on the basis of available information, take into account the nature and circumstances of the offense charged; the weight of the evidence against the defendant; the defendant's family ties, employment, financial resources, character, and mental condition; whether the defendant is intoxicated to such a degree that he would be endangered by being released without supervision; the length of his residence in the community; his record of convictions; his history of flight to avoid prosecution or failure to appear at court proceedings; and any other evidence relevant to the issue of pretrial release.

(c1) If a secured appearance bond is required by a magistrate or clerk of court as a condition of pretrial release, the defendant, unless sooner released, shall be entitled to have his conditions of release reviewed by a district court judge within 96 hours after the defendant is taken into custody.

(d) The judicial official authorizing pretrial release under this section must issue an appropriate order containing a statement of the conditions imposed, if any; inform the defendant in writing of the penalties applicable to violations of the conditions of his release; and advise him that his arrest will be ordered immediately upon any violation. The order of release must be filed with the clerk and a copy given the defendant.

(e) A magistrate or a clerk may modify his pretrial release order at any time prior to the first appearance before the district court judge. At or after such first appearance, except when the conditions of pretrial release have been reviewed by the superior court pursuant to G.S. 15A-539, a district court judge may modify a pretrial release order of the magistrate or clerk or any pretrial release order entered by him at any time prior to:

(1) In a misdemeanor case tried in the district court, the noting of an appeal; and

(2) In a case in the original trial jurisdiction of the superior court, the binding of the defendant over to superior court after the holding, or waiver, of a probable-cause hearing.

After a case is before the superior court, a superior court judge may modify the pretrial release order of a magistrate, clerk, or district court judge, or any such order entered by him, at any time prior to the time set out in G.S. 15A-536(a).

(f) For good cause shown any judge may at any time revoke an order of pretrial release. Upon application of any defendant whose order of pretrial release has been revoked, the judge must set new conditions of pretrial release in accordance with this Article.

(g) In imposing conditions of pretrial release and in modifying and revoking orders of release under this section, the judicial official must take into account all evidence available to him which he considers reliable and is not strictly bound by the rules of evidence applicable to criminal trials.

(h) A bail bond posted pursuant to this section is effective and binding upon the obligor throughout all stages of the proceeding in the trial division of the General Court of Justice until the entry of judgment in the district court from which no appeal is taken or the entry of judgment in the superior court. The obligation of an obligor, however, is terminated at an earlier time if:

(1) A judge authorized to do so releases the obligor from his bond; or

(2) The principal is surrendered by a surety in accordance with G.S. 15A-540; or

(3) The proceeding is terminated by voluntary dismissal by the State before forfeiture is ordered under G.S. 15A-544(b); or

(4) Prayer for judgment has been continued indefinitely in the district court."

Section 3. G.S. 15A-535(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the senior resident superior court judge for each district or set of districts as defined in G.S. 7A-41.1(a) in consultation with the chief district court judge or judges of all the district court districts in which are located any of the counties in the senior resident superior court judge's district or set of districts, must devise and issue recommended policies to be followed within each of those counties in determining whether, and upon what conditions, a defendant may be released before trial, and ~~may~~ shall include in such policies, or issue separately, a requirement that each judicial official who imposes condition (4) in G.S. 15A-534(a) must record the reasons for doing so in writing."

"§ 15A-544. Forfeiture.

(a) By entering into a bail bond the obligor submits to the jurisdiction of the court and irrevocably appoints the clerk as the obligor's agent for any proceedings with reference to the bond. The obligor's liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action. Each obligor, including the principal, bail agent, and the surety represented by the bail agent, shall enter on the bond the obligor's mailing address, street address, and telephone number for the service of any process required by this section or other provision of law. If the address or telephone number of the obligor changes during the pendency of any proceeding with reference to the bond, it shall be the duty of the obligor to notify the clerk of the obligor's new address and telephone number.

(b) If the principal does not comply with the conditions of the bail bond, the court having jurisdiction must enter an order declaring the bail to be forfeited. If forfeiture is ordered by the court, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice that judgment will be entered upon the order after 60 days must be served on each obligor. Service is to be made by the clerk mailing by certified mail, return receipt requested, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice to each obligor at each obligor's address as noted on the bond and note on the original the date of mailing. Service is complete three days after the mailing.

(c) Except as provided in subsection (c1) of this section, at any time within 60 days following the date of service, or on the first presentment of the forfeiture calendar more than 60 days after the date of service, the principal or surety may move the court having jurisdiction of the matter, orally or in writing, to strike the order of forfeiture and recall the notice of forfeiture. If the principal or surety appears and moves within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's failure to appear on the date set was impossible or that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, the order of forfeiture must be set aside. If the principal or surety does not satisfy the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible or that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, the court must then enter judgment for the State against the principal and surety for the amount of the bail and the cost of the proceeding.

(c1) If the principal does not appear before the court having jurisdiction because the principal is incarcerated in North Carolina and unable to appear before the court, but the surety appears within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible because the principal was incarcerated in North Carolina, the order of forfeiture must be set aside.

(d) To facilitate the procedure under this section, the clerk in each county shall prepare for both the district and superior court a forfeiture calendar once each month when court is in session. The forfeiture calendar shall list the names of all principals and sureties to whom forfeiture has been ordered more than 60 days previously in the county and as to which judgments of forfeiture against the principal and surety have not been entered or, if entered, not yet satisfied by execution. The forfeiture calendar shall show the amount of the bond ordered forfeited in each case. In addition, the clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all written motions to strike an order of forfeiture filed since the previous forfeiture calendar. It shall be the duty of the district attorney to present the forfeiture calendar to the court, but the attorney for the county school board shall have the right to appear and be heard when the forfeiture calendar is presented. At the district attorney's discretion, the district attorney may appoint the county school board attorney as the district attorney's designee for the presentation of the forfeiture calendar.

(e) ~~At any time within 90 days after entry of the judgment against a principal or surety, the principal or surety, by verified written petition, may request that the judgment be remitted in whole or in part, upon such conditions as the court may impose, if it appears that justice requires the remission of part or all of the judgment. A copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the school board attorney shall be notified of the date, time, and place of the hearing. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the county school board attorney shall be given an opportunity to appear and be heard.~~ If the principal is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated in the State within 90 days of the entry of the judgment, the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs. If the principal is incarcerated or served an order for arrest in North Carolina within 90 days of the entry of the judgment and the principal placed on a new bond or released by the court, then the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs.

(f) If a judgment has not been remitted within the period provided in subsection (e) above, the clerk must issue execution on the judgment within 30 days, and remit the clear proceeds to the county for use in maintaining free public schools. Any clerk who fails to perform his duty as required in this subsection is subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(g) If a levy of execution upon a judgment against an obligor remains unsatisfied for 10 days, the sheriff shall notify the clerks and magistrates in each county in the prosecutorial district and the obligor shall not become surety on any bail bond in the prosecutorial district so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied. Nothing in this subsection makes lawful any act made unlawful by Article 71 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.

(h) For extraordinary cause shown, the court which has entered judgment upon a forfeiture of a bond may, after execution, remit the judgment in whole or in part and order the clerk to refund such amounts as the court considers ~~appropriate.~~ appropriate, but only if the principal is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated in the State of North Carolina. Any person moving for remission of judgment must do so by verified petition, and a copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing on the motion. The moving party must notify the attorney for the school board of the time and place of the hearing, and such attorney, if he so desires, must be given an opportunity to appear and be heard. If money has been paid to the county pursuant to execution on a judgment of forfeiture, it must refund to the person entitled the amount of any remission granted under the terms of this subsection upon receipt of a certified copy of the judgment of remission from the clerk."

Section 5. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 1023—Pretrial Release & Bond Forfeiture (Baddour)

House Bill 1023 makes various changes to Chapter 15A concerning the right to pretrial release and bond forfeiture.

Section 1 of the bill amends 15A-533 to provide that, for a defendant charged with a trafficking offense under the Controlled Substances Act, it is presumed that no condition of release will reasonably assure the appearance of the person and the safety of the community. This presumption may be rebutted by the defendant.

Section 2 of the bill provides that if a secured appearance bond is required by a magistrate as a condition of pretrial release, the defendant is entitled to have his conditions of release reviewed by a district court judge within 96 hours of being taken into custody.

Section 3 of the bill requires that the senior resident superior court judge of each district include in the district's policies of pretrial release a requirement that a judicial official record in writing his or her reasons for requiring a secured appearance bond.

Section 4 of the bill amends the procedure for forfeiture of an appearance bond. Under current law, if a defendant fails to appear, the court issues an order of forfeiture. If , within 60 days after service of the order, the defendant or bond surety does not convince the court that the defendant's appearance was impossible or the defendant's failure to appear was without fault, a judgment of forfeiture is entered. Within 90 days of entry of the judgment, the court may, in the interest of justice, remit all or part of the judgment to the defendant or surety. Section 4 of the bill removes the court's ability to remit the judgment.

Under current law, the court must strike the forfeiture and remit the judgment if, within 90 days of the judgment, the defendant is: (1) surrendered by the surety and incarcerated; or (2) incarcerated or served an order for arrest and placed on a new bond or released by the court. Section 4 of the bill amends these provisions to allow the court to strike a forfeiture in its discretion in these situations. The court is not required to strike the forfeiture, however.

Current law also allows a court to remit the judgment in whole or in part after execution of the judgment if the person moving for remission demonstrates extraordinary cause. Section 4 of the bill allows the court to remit the judgment after execution for extraordinary cause, but only if the defendant is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated.

House Bill 1023 becomes effective December 1, 1997 and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

censed to administer the test by the Department of Human Resources.

The fact that a defendant refused to comply with a judicial official's request that he submit to a chemical analysis may not be admitted into evidence in any criminal action, administrative proceeding, or a civil action to review a decision reached by an administrative agency in which the defendant is a party. (1983, c. 435, s. 4.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1983, c. 435, which enacted this section, provides in section 41.1: "The original inclusion and ultimate deletion in the course of passing this act of statutory liability for certain persons who sell or furnish alcoholic beverages to intoxicated persons does not reflect any legislative intent one way or the other with respect to the issue of civil liability for negligence by persons who sell or furnish those beverages to such persons."

CASE NOTES

Effect of Magistrate's Failure to Inform of Rights to Pretrial Release. — Statutory violations by magistrate, who failed to inform defendant of his rights to pretrial release under either the general provisions of § 15A-511 or the more specific provisions of § 15A-534.2, did not justify dismissal of driving while impaired charges. State v. Gilbert, 85 N.C. App. 594, 355 S.E.2d 261 (1987).

§ 15A-535. Issuance of policies on pretrial release.

(a) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the senior resident superior court judge for each district or set of districts as defined in G.S. 7A-41.1(a) in consultation with the chief district court judge or judges of all the district court districts in which are located any of the counties in the senior resident superior court judge's district or set of districts, must devise and issue recommended policies to be followed within each of those counties in determining whether, and upon what conditions, a defendant may be released before trial and may include in such policies, or issue separately, a requirement that each judicial official who imposes condition (4) in G.S. 15A-534(a) must record the reasons for doing so in writing.

(b) In any county in which there is a pretrial release program, the senior resident superior court judge may, after consultation with the chief district court judge, order that defendants accepted by such program for supervision shall, with their consent, be released by judicial officials to supervision of such programs, and subject to its rules and regulations, in lieu of releasing the defendants on conditions (1), (2), or (3) of G.S. 15A-534(a). A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODERNIZE THE PRETRIAL RELEASE AND BOND FORFEITURE PROCEDURE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 15A-533 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-533. Right to pretrial release in capital and noncapital cases.

(a) A defendant charged with any crime, whether capital or noncapital, who is alleged to have committed this crime while still residing in or subsequent to his escape or during an unauthorized absence from involuntary commitment in a mental health facility designated or licensed by the Department of Human Resources, and whose commitment is determined to be still valid by the judge or judicial officer authorized to determine pretrial release to be valid, has no right to pretrial release. In lieu of pretrial release, however, the individual shall be returned to the treatment facility in which he was residing at the time of the alleged crime or from which he escaped or absented himself for continuation of his treatment pending the additional proceedings on the criminal offense.

(b) A defendant charged with a noncapital offense other than an offense that constitutes 'trafficking' in a controlled substance, as that term is defined by the Controlled Substances Act, must have conditions of pretrial release determined, in accordance with G.S. 15A-534.

(c) Subject to rebuttal by the person, it shall be presumed that no condition of release will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of the community if a judicial official finds that there is probable cause to believe that the person committed ~~A judge may determine in his discretion whether a defendant charged with~~ a capital offense or an offense involving trafficking in a controlled substance. Such persons may only be released by a district or superior court judge upon a finding that there is a reasonable assurance that the person will appear and release does not pose an unreasonable risk of harm to the community. ~~may be released before trial.~~ If he determines release is warranted, the judge must authorize release of the defendant in accordance with G.S. 15A-534."

Section 2. G.S. 15A-534 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-534. Procedure for determining conditions of pretrial release.

(a) In determining conditions of pretrial release a judicial official must impose one of the following conditions:

(1) Release the defendant on his written promise to appear.

(2) Release the defendant upon his execution of an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judicial official.

(3) Place the defendant in the custody of a designated person or organization agreeing to supervise him.

(4) Require the execution of an appearance bond in a specified amount secured by a cash deposit of the full amount of the bond, by a mortgage pursuant to G.S. 58-74-5, or by at least one solvent surety.

If condition (3) is imposed, however, the defendant may elect to execute an appearance bond under subdivision (4). The judicial official may also place restrictions on the travel, associations, conduct, or place of abode of the defendant as conditions of pretrial release.

(b) The judicial official in granting pretrial release must impose condition (1), (2), or (3) in subsection (a) above unless he determines that such release will not reasonably assure the appearance of the defendant as required; will pose a danger of injury to any ~~person;~~ person or to the community; or is likely to result in destruction of evidence, subornation of perjury, or intimidation of potential witnesses. Upon making the determination, the judicial official must then impose condition (4) in subsection (a) above instead of condition (1), (2), or (3), and must record the reasons for so doing in writing ~~to the extent provided in the policies or requirements issued~~ in such form as may be required by the senior resident superior court judge pursuant to G.S. 15A-535(a).

(c) In determining which conditions of release to impose, the judicial official must, on the basis of available information, take into account the nature and circumstances of the offense charged; the weight of the evidence against the defendant; the defendant's family ties, employment, financial resources, character, and mental condition; whether the defendant is intoxicated to such a degree that he would be endangered by being released without supervision; the length of his residence in the community; his record of convictions; his history of flight to avoid prosecution or failure to appear at court proceedings; and any other evidence relevant to the issue of pretrial release.

(c1) If a secured appearance bond is required by a magistrate or clerk of court as a condition of pretrial release, the defendant, unless sooner released, shall be entitled to have his conditions of release reviewed at the first appearance conducted pursuant to G.S. 15A-601.

(d) The judicial official authorizing pretrial release under this section must issue an appropriate order containing a statement of the conditions imposed, if any; inform the defendant in writing of the penalties applicable to violations of the conditions of his release; and advise him that his arrest will be ordered immediately upon any violation. The order of release must be filed with the clerk and a copy given the defendant.

(e) A magistrate or a clerk may modify his pretrial release order at any time prior to the first appearance before the district court judge. At or after such first appearance, except when the conditions of pretrial release have been reviewed by the superior court pursuant to G.S. 15A-539, a district court judge may modify a pretrial release order of the magistrate or clerk or any pretrial release order entered by him at any time prior to:

(1) In a misdemeanor case tried in the district court, the noting of an appeal; and

(2) In a case in the original trial jurisdiction of the superior court, the binding of the defendant over to superior court after the holding, or waiver, of a probable-cause hearing.

After a case is before the superior court, a superior court judge may modify the pretrial release order of a magistrate, clerk, or district court judge, or any such order entered by him, at any time prior to the time set out in G.S. 15A-536(a).

(f) For good cause shown any judge may at any time revoke an order of pretrial release. Upon application of any defendant whose order of pretrial release has been revoked, the judge must set new conditions of pretrial release in accordance with this Article.

(g) In imposing conditions of pretrial release and in modifying and revoking orders of release under this section, the judicial official must take into account all evidence available to him which he considers reliable and is not strictly bound by the rules of evidence applicable to criminal trials.

(h) A bail bond posted pursuant to this section is effective and binding upon the obligor throughout all stages of the proceeding in the trial division of the General Court of Justice until the entry of judgment in the district court from which no appeal is taken or the entry of judgment in the superior court. The obligation of an obligor, however, is terminated at an earlier time if:

(1) A judge authorized to do so releases the obligor from his bond; or

(2) The principal is surrendered by a surety in accordance with G.S. 15A-540; or

(3) The proceeding is terminated by voluntary dismissal by the State before forfeiture is ordered under G.S. 15A-544(b); or

(4) Prayer for judgment has been continued indefinitely in the district court."

Section 3. G.S. 15A-535(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the senior resident superior court judge for each district or set of districts as defined in G.S. 7A-41.1(a) in consultation with the chief district court judge or judges of all the district court districts in which are located any of the counties in the senior resident superior court judge's district or set of districts, must devise and issue recommended policies to be followed within each of those counties in determining whether, and upon what conditions, a defendant may be released before trial, and ~~may~~ shall include in such policies, or issue separately, a requirement that each judicial official who imposes condition (4) in G.S. 15A-534(a) must record the reasons for doing so in writing."

"§ 15A-544. Forfeiture.

(a) By entering into a bail bond the obligor submits to the jurisdiction of the court and irrevocably appoints the clerk as the obligor's agent for any proceedings with reference to the bond. The obligor's liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action. Each obligor, including the principal, bail agent, and the surety represented by the bail agent, shall enter on the bond the obligor's mailing address, street address, and telephone number for the service of any process required by this section or other provision of law. If the address or telephone number of the obligor changes during the pendency of any proceeding with reference to the bond, it shall be the duty of the obligor to notify the clerk of the obligor's new address and telephone number.

(b) If the principal does not comply with the conditions of the bail bond, the court having jurisdiction must enter an order declaring the bail to be forfeited. If forfeiture is ordered by the court, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice that judgment will be entered upon the order after 60 days must be served on each obligor. Service is to be made by the clerk mailing by certified mail, return receipt requested, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice to each obligor at each obligor's address as noted on the bond and note on the original the date of mailing. Service is complete three days after the mailing.

~~(c) Except as provided in subsection (c1) of this section, at~~ At any time within 60 days following the date of service, or on the first presentment of the forfeiture calendar more than 60 days after the date of service, the principal or surety may move the court having jurisdiction of the matter, orally or in writing, to strike the order of forfeiture and recall the notice of forfeiture. If the principal or surety appears and moves within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's failure to appear on the date set was ~~impossible or~~ impossible, that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, or that the principal was surrendered by the surety, the order of forfeiture must be set aside. However, if the principal's failure to appear was the result of the principal's being incarcerated elsewhere, the order of forfeiture may be set aside only on a showing that the principal, while incarcerated, was served with an order for arrest for the failure to appear or placed under a detainer for the charge for which the order of forfeiture was issued. If the principal or surety does not satisfy the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was ~~impossible or~~ impossible, that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, or that the principal was surrendered by the surety, the court must then enter judgment for the State against the principal and surety for the amount of the bail and the cost of the proceeding.

~~(c1) If the principal does not appear before the court having jurisdiction because the principal is incarcerated in North Carolina and unable to appear before the court, but the surety appears within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible because the principal was incarcerated in North Carolina, the order of forfeiture must be set aside.~~

session. The forfeiture calendar shall list the names of all principals and sureties to whom forfeiture has been ordered more than 60 days previously in the county and as to which judgments of forfeiture against the principal and surety have not been entered or, if entered, not yet satisfied by execution. The forfeiture calendar shall show the amount of the bond ordered forfeited in each case. In addition, the clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all written motions to strike an order of forfeiture filed since the previous forfeiture calendar. It shall be the duty of the district attorney to present the forfeiture calendar to the court, but the attorney for the county school board shall have the right to appear and be heard when the forfeiture calendar is presented. At the district attorney's discretion, the district attorney may appoint the county school board attorney as the district attorney's designee for the presentation of the forfeiture calendar.

(e) ~~At any time within 90 days after entry of the judgment against a principal or surety, the principal or surety, by verified written petition, may request that the judgment be remitted in whole or in part, upon such conditions as the court may impose, if it appears that justice requires the remission of part or all of the judgment. A copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the school board attorney shall be notified of the date, time, and place of the hearing. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the county school board attorney shall be given an opportunity to appear and be heard.~~ If the principal is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated in the State within 90 days of the entry of the judgment, the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs. If the principal is incarcerated or served an order for arrest in North Carolina within 90 days of the entry of the judgment and the principal placed on a new bond or released by the court, then the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs. Relief under this subection may be obtained only upon written petition filed with the court. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. A copy of the petition, together with a notice of hearing shall be served by the petitioner on the attorney for the school board and on the district attorney at least three days prior to the hearing. The petitioner, the attorney for the school board, and the district attorney shall be given an opportunity to be heard.

(f) If a judgment has not been remitted within the period provided in subsection (e) above, the clerk must issue execution on the judgment within 30 days, and remit the clear proceeds to the county for use in maintaining free public schools. Any clerk who fails to perform his duty as required in this subsection is subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(g) If a levy of execution upon a judgment against an obligor remains unsatisfied for 10 days, the sheriff shall notify the clerks and magistrates in each county in the prosecutorial district and the obligor shall not become surety on any bail bond in the prosecutorial district so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied. Nothing in this subsection makes lawful any act made unlawful by Article 71 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.

(h) For extraordinary cause shown, the court which has entered judgment upon a forfeiture of a bond may, after execution, remit the judgment in whole or in part and order the clerk to refund such amounts as the court considers appropriate. Any person moving for remission of judgment must do so by verified petition, and a copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing on the motion. The moving party must notify the attorney for the school board of the time and place of the hearing, and such attorney, if he so desires, must be given an opportunity to appear and be heard. If money has been paid to the county pursuant to execution on a judgment of forfeiture, it must refund to the person entitled the amount of any remission granted under the terms of this subsection upon receipt of a certified copy of the judgment of remission from the clerk."

Section 5. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997. Sections 1, 2, and 3 apply to offenses committed on or after that date. Section 4 applies to forfeitures ordered on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MODERNIZE THE PRETRIAL RELEASE AND BOND FORFEITURE PROCEDURE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 15A-533 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-533. Right to pretrial release in capital and noncapital cases.

(a) A defendant charged with any crime, whether capital or noncapital, who is alleged to have committed this crime while still residing in or subsequent to his escape or during an unauthorized absence from involuntary commitment in a mental health facility designated or licensed by the Department of Human Resources, and whose commitment is determined to be still valid by the judge or judicial officer authorized to determine pretrial release to be valid, has no right to pretrial release. In lieu of pretrial release, however, the individual shall be returned to the treatment facility in which he was residing at the time of the alleged crime or from which he escaped or absented himself for continuation of his treatment pending the additional proceedings on the criminal offense.

(b) A defendant charged with a noncapital offense other than an offense that constitutes 'trafficking' in a controlled substance, as that term is defined by the Controlled Substances Act, must have conditions of pretrial release determined, in accordance with G.S. 15A-534.

(c) Subject to rebuttal by the person, it shall be presumed that no condition of release will reasonably assure the appearance of the person as required and the safety of the community if a judicial official finds that there is probable cause to believe that the person committed ~~A judge may determine in his discretion whether a defendant charged with~~ a capital offense or an offense involving trafficking in a controlled substance. Such persons may only be released by a district or superior court judge upon a finding that there is a reasonable assurance that the person will appear and release does not pose an unreasonable risk of harm to the community. ~~may be released before trial.~~ If he determines release is warranted, the judge must authorize release of the defendant in accordance with G.S. 15A-534."

Section 2. G.S. 15A-534 reads as rewritten:

"§ 15A-534. Procedure for determining conditions of pretrial release.

(a) In determining conditions of pretrial release a judicial official must impose one of the following conditions:

(1) Release the defendant on his written promise to appear.

(2) Release the defendant upon his execution of an unsecured appearance bond in an amount specified by the judicial official.

(3) Place the defendant in the custody of a designated person or organization agreeing to supervise him.

(4) Require the execution of an appearance bond in a specified amount secured by a cash deposit of the full amount of the bond, by a mortgage pursuant to G.S. 58-74-5, or by at least one solvent surety.

If condition (3) is imposed, however, the defendant may elect to execute an appearance bond under subdivision (4). The judicial official may also place restrictions on the travel, associations, conduct, or place of abode of the defendant as conditions of pretrial release.

(b) The judicial official in granting pretrial release must impose condition (1), (2), or (3) in subsection (a) above unless he determines that such release will not reasonably assure the appearance of the defendant as required; will pose a danger of injury to any ~~person;~~ person or to the community; or is likely to result in destruction of evidence, subornation of perjury, or intimidation of potential witnesses. Upon making the determination, the judicial official must then impose condition (4) in subsection (a) above instead of condition (1), (2), or (3), and must record the reasons for so doing in writing ~~to the extent provided in the policies or requirements issued~~ in such form as may be required by the senior resident superior court judge pursuant to G.S. 15A-535(a).

(c) In determining which conditions of release to impose, the judicial official must, on the basis of available information, take into account the nature and circumstances of the offense charged; the weight of the evidence against the defendant; the defendant's family ties, employment, financial resources, character, and mental condition; whether the defendant is intoxicated to such a degree that he would be endangered by being released without supervision; the length of his residence in the community; his record of convictions; his history of flight to avoid prosecution or failure to appear at court proceedings; and any other evidence relevant to the issue of pretrial release.

(c1) If a secured appearance bond is required by a magistrate or clerk of court as a condition of pretrial release, the defendant, unless sooner released, shall be entitled to have his conditions of release reviewed at the first appearance conducted pursuant to G.S. 15A-601.

(d) The judicial official authorizing pretrial release under this section must issue an appropriate order containing a statement of the conditions imposed, if any; inform the defendant in writing of the penalties applicable to violations of the conditions of his release; and advise him that his arrest will be ordered immediately upon any violation. The order of release must be filed with the clerk and a copy given the defendant.

(e) A magistrate or a clerk may modify his pretrial release order at any time prior to the first appearance before the district court judge. At or after such first appearance, except when the conditions of pretrial release have been reviewed by the superior court pursuant to G.S. 15A-539, a district court judge may modify a pretrial release order of the magistrate or clerk or any pretrial release order entered by him at any time prior to:

(1) In a misdemeanor case tried in the district court, the noting of an appeal; and

(2) In a case in the original trial jurisdiction of the superior court, the binding of the defendant over to superior court after the holding, or waiver, of a probable-cause hearing.

After a case is before the superior court, a superior court judge may modify the pretrial release order of a magistrate, clerk, or district court judge, or any such order entered by him, at any time prior to the time set out in G.S. 15A-536(a).

(f) For good cause shown any judge may at any time revoke an order of pretrial release. Upon application of any defendant whose order of pretrial release has been revoked, the judge must set new conditions of pretrial release in accordance with this Article.

(g) In imposing conditions of pretrial release and in modifying and revoking orders of release under this section, the judicial official must take into account all evidence available to him which he considers reliable and is not strictly bound by the rules of evidence applicable to criminal trials.

(h) A bail bond posted pursuant to this section is effective and binding upon the obligor throughout all stages of the proceeding in the trial division of the General Court of Justice until the entry of judgment in the district court from which no appeal is taken or the entry of judgment in the superior court. The obligation of an obligor, however, is terminated at an earlier time if:

(1) A judge authorized to do so releases the obligor from his bond; or

(2) The principal is surrendered by a surety in accordance with G.S. 15A-540; or

(3) The proceeding is terminated by voluntary dismissal by the State before forfeiture is ordered under G.S. 15A-544(b); or

(4) Prayer for judgment has been continued indefinitely in the district court."

Section 3. G.S. 15A-535(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the senior resident superior court judge for each district or set of districts as defined in G.S. 7A-41.1(a) in consultation with the chief district court judge or judges of all the district court districts in which are located any of the counties in the senior resident superior court judge's district or set of districts, must devise and issue recommended policies to be followed within each of those counties in determining whether, and upon what conditions, a defendant may be released before trial, and ~~may~~ shall include in such policies, or issue separately, a requirement that each judicial official who imposes condition (4) in G.S. 15A-534(a) must record the reasons for doing so in writing."

"§ 15A-544. Forfeiture.

(a) By entering into a bail bond the obligor submits to the jurisdiction of the court and irrevocably appoints the clerk as the obligor's agent for any proceedings with reference to the bond. The obligor's liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action. Each obligor, including the principal, bail agent, and the surety represented by the bail agent, shall enter on the bond the obligor's mailing address, street address, and telephone number for the service of any process required by this section or other provision of law. If the address or telephone number of the obligor changes during the pendency of any proceeding with reference to the bond, it shall be the duty of the obligor to notify the clerk of the obligor's new address and telephone number.

(b) If the principal does not comply with the conditions of the bail bond, the court having jurisdiction must enter an order declaring the bail to be forfeited. If forfeiture is ordered by the court, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice that judgment will be entered upon the order after 60 days must be served on each obligor. Service is to be made by the clerk mailing by certified mail, return receipt requested, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice to each obligor at each obligor's address as noted on the bond and note on the original the date of mailing. Service is complete three days after the mailing.

~~(c) Except as provided in subsection (c1) of this section, at~~ At any time within 60 days following the date of service, or on the first presentment of the forfeiture calendar more than 60 days after the date of service, the principal or surety may move the court having jurisdiction of the matter, orally or in writing, to strike the order of forfeiture and recall the notice of forfeiture. If the principal or surety appears and moves within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's failure to appear on the date set was ~~impossible or~~ impossible, that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, or that the principal was surrendered by the surety, the order of forfeiture must be set aside. However, if the principal's failure to appear was the result of the principal's being incarcerated elsewhere, the order of forfeiture may be set aside only on a showing that the principal, while incarcerated, was served with an order for arrest for the failure to appear or placed under a detainer for the charge for which the order of forfeiture was issued. If the principal or surety does not satisfy the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was ~~impossible or~~ impossible, that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, or that the principal was surrendered by the surety, the court must then enter judgment for the State against the principal and surety for the amount of the bail and the cost of the proceeding.

~~(e1) If the principal does not appear before the court having jurisdiction because the principal is incarcerated in North Carolina and unable to appear before the court, but the surety appears within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible because the principal was incarcerated in North Carolina, the order of forfeiture must be set aside.~~

(d) To facilitate the procedure under this section, the clerk in each county shall prepare for both the district and superior court a forfeiture calendar once each month when court is in session. The forfeiture calendar shall list the names of all principals and sureties to whom forfeiture has been ordered more than 60 days previously in the county and as to which judgments of forfeiture against the principal and surety have not been entered or, if entered, not yet satisfied by execution. The forfeiture calendar shall show the amount of the bond ordered forfeited in each case. In addition, the clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all written motions to strike an order of forfeiture filed since the previous forfeiture calendar. It shall be the duty of the district attorney to present the forfeiture calendar to the court, but the attorney for the county school board shall have the right to appear and be heard when the forfeiture calendar is presented. At the district attorney's discretion, the district attorney may appoint the county school board attorney as the district attorney's designee for the presentation of the forfeiture calendar.

(e) ~~At any time within 90 days after entry of the judgment against a principal or surety, the principal or surety, by verified written petition, may request that the judgment be remitted in whole or in part, upon such conditions as the court may impose, if it appears that justice requires the remission of part or all of the judgment. A copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the school board attorney shall be notified of the date, time, and place of the hearing. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the county school board attorney shall be given an opportunity to appear and be heard.~~ If the principal is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated in the State within 90 days of the entry of the judgment, the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs. If the principal is incarcerated or served an order for arrest in North Carolina within 90 days of the entry of the judgment and the principal placed on a new bond or released by the court, then the forfeiture ~~shall~~ may, in the discretion of the court, be stricken upon the payment of costs. Relief under this subsection may be obtained only upon written petition filed with the court. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. A copy of the petition, together with a notice of hearing shall be served by the petitioner on the attorney for the school board and on the district attorney at least three days prior to the hearing. The petitioner, the attorney for the school board, and the district attorney shall be given an opportunity to be heard.

(f) If a judgment has not been remitted within the period provided in subsection (e) above, the clerk must issue execution on the judgment within 30 days, and remit the clear proceeds to the county for use in maintaining free public schools. Any clerk who fails to perform his duty as required in this subsection is subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(g) If a levy of execution upon a judgment against an obligor remains unsatisfied for 10 days, the sheriff shall notify the clerks and magistrates in each county in the prosecutorial district and the obligor shall not become surety on any bail bond in the prosecutorial district so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied. Nothing in this subsection makes lawful any act made unlawful by Article 71 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.

(h) For extraordinary cause shown, the court which has entered judgment upon a forfeiture of a bond may, after execution, remit the judgment in whole or in part and order the clerk to refund such amounts as the court considers appropriate. Any person moving for remission of judgment must do so by verified petition, and a copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing on the motion. The moving party must notify the attorney for the school board of the time and place of the hearing, and such attorney, if he so desires, must be given an opportunity to appear and be heard. If money has been paid to the county pursuant to execution on a judgment of forfeiture, it must refund to the person entitled the amount of any remission granted under the terms of this subsection upon receipt of a certified copy of the judgment of remission from the clerk."

Section 5. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997. Sections 1, 2, and 3 apply to offenses committed on or after that date. Section 4 applies to forfeitures ordered on or after that date.

March 5, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE THAT AN INFRACTION MAY BE EXPUNGED FROM A PERSON'S RECORD.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 5 of Chapter 15A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 15A-145.1. Expunction of records for first offenders under the age of 18 at the time of conviction of infraction.

Whenever any person who has not yet attained the age of 18 years and has not previously been convicted of any felony, misdemeanor, or infraction other than a traffic violation, under the laws of the United States, the laws of this State or any other state, pleads responsible to or is found responsible of an infraction other than a traffic violation the person may file a petition in the court where the person was found responsible for expunction of the infraction from the person's record. The procedure for expunging an infraction for which a person was found responsible shall be the same as under G.S. 15A-145."

Section 2. G.S. 15A-146(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If any person is charged with a crime, either a misdemeanor or a felony, or is charged with an infraction, and the charge is dismissed, or a finding of not guilty or not responsible is entered, that person may apply to the court of the county where the charge was brought for an order to expunge from all official records any entries relating to his apprehension or trial. The court shall hold a hearing on the application and, upon finding that the person had not previously received an expungement and that the person had not previously been convicted of any felony under the laws of the United States, this State, or any other state, the court shall order the expunction. No person as to whom such an order has been entered shall be held thereafter under any provision of any law to be guilty of perjury, or to be guilty of otherwise giving a false statement or response to any inquiry made for any purpose, by reason of his failure to recite or acknowledge any expunged entries concerning apprehension or trial."

Section 2. G.S. 90-233 reads as rewritten:

"§ 90-233. Practice of dental hygiene.

(a) ~~A dental hygienist may practice only under the supervision of one or more licensed dentists. Provided, however, that this subsection (a) shall be deemed to be complied with in the case of dental hygienists employed by the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources and especially trained by said Department as public health hygienists while performing their duties in the public schools under the direction of a duly licensed dentist.~~ A dental hygienist may practice only under the direct or general supervision of one or more licensed dentists.

(b) ~~A dentist in private practice may not employ more than two dental hygienists at one and the same time who are employed in clinical dental hygiene positions.~~ A dentist in private practice may not supervise more than three dental hygienists at one time. However, the Board may adopt rules authorizing the supervision of more than three dental hygienists in specific circumstances which the Board deems appropriate.

(b1) A dental hygienist may practice under the general supervision of one or more licensed dentists only under the following circumstances:

(1) A dental hygienist employed by the Department of Environment, Health and Natural Resources and especially trained by that Department as a public health hygienist may practice under the general supervision of a licensed dentist while performing the hygienist's duties in the public schools; and

(2) A dental hygienist may practice in the office of a licensed dentist under that dentist's general supervision for no more than two cumulative hours in one day; and

(3) A dental hygienist, who has completed three years of direct supervised clinical experience, may practice under general supervision in a nursing home, as defined in G.S. 131E-101(6), or an adult care home, as defined in G.S. 131E-101(1), under the following conditions:

a. The supervising dentist must preexamine each patient no more than forty-five days prior to the initiation of treatment, prepare a written treatment plan for the patient, and examine the patient at least one time per year thereafter, so long as treatment continues; and

b. The supervising dentist must require the nursing home or adult care home to provide a health care professional, trained in emergency medical treatment, to be present on the premises during any dental hygiene treatment.

(c) Dental hygiene may be practiced only by the holder of a license or provisional license currently in effect and duly issued by the Board. The following acts, practices, functions or operations, however, shall not constitute the practice of dental hygiene within the meaning of this Article:

(1) The teaching of dental hygiene in a school or college approved by the Board in a board-approved program by an individual licensed as a dental hygienist in any state in the United States.

(2) Activity which would otherwise be considered the practice of dental hygiene performed by students enrolled in a school or college approved by the Board in a board-approved dental hygiene program under the direct supervision of a dental hygienist or a dentist duly licensed in North Carolina or qualified for the teaching of dentistry pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 90-29(c)(3), acting as an instructor.

(3) Any act or acts performed by an assistant to a dentist licensed to practice in this State when said act or acts are authorized and permitted by and performed in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the Board.

(4) Dental assisting and related functions as a part of their instructions by students enrolled in a course in dental assisting conducted in this State and approved by the Board, when such functions are performed under the supervision of a dentist acting as a teacher or instructor who is either duly licensed in North Carolina or qualified for the teaching of dentistry pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 90-29(c)(3)."

Section 3. This act is effective when it becomes law.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 354—Eliminate Certified Notice (Hensley)

House Bill 354 amends G.S. 15A-544 to delete the requirement that an order of forfeiture of bail bond be served by certified mail, return receipt requested. The bill authorizes service by first class mail.

House Bill 354 is effective when it becomes law.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

would be applicable but for this act remain applicable to those prosecutions."

§ 15A-543. Penalties for failure to appear.

(a) In addition to forfeiture imposed under G.S. 15A-544, any person released pursuant to this Article who willfully fails to appear before any court or judicial official as required is subject to the criminal penalties set out in this section.

(b) A violation of this section is a Class I felony if:

(1) The violator was released in connection with a felony charge against him; or

(2) The violator was released under the provisions of G.S. 15A-536.

(c) If, except as provided in subsection (b) above, a violator was released in connection with a misdemeanor charge against him, a violation of this section is a Class 2 misdemeanor. (1973, c. 1286, s. 1; 1983, c. 294, s. 4; 1993, c. 539, s. 301; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 14, s. 16; c. 24, s. 14(c).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1993, c. 539, s. 1248 read: "G.S. 15A-343 (b) reads as rewritten." However, the text set out was that of G.S. 15A-543(b), as amended. The amendment was not effectuated at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes. Section 16(a) of Chapter 14 of the 1994 Extra Session repealed Session Laws 1993, c. 539, s. 1248, effective on the same date that Chapter 539 of the 1993 Session Laws becomes effective (October 1, 1994).

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 14, s. 73 provides: "Prosecutions for offenses committed before the effective date of this act are not abated or affected by this act, and the statutes that would be applicable but for this act remain applicable to those prosecutions."

Session Laws 1993, c. 539, s. 301, which amended this section, was effective October 1, 1994, and applicable to offenses occurring on or after that date.

Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 14, s. 16(b), which amended this section, was effective on the same date that Chapter 539 of the 1993 Session Laws became effective (October 1, 1994), and applicable to offenses occurring on or after that date.

§ 15A-544. Forfeiture.

(a) By entering into a bail bond the obligor submits to the jurisdiction of the court and irrevocably appoints the clerk as the obligor's agent for any proceedings with reference to the bond. The obligor's liability may be enforced on motion without the necessity of an independent action. Each obligor, including the principal, bail agent, and the surety represented by the bail agent, shall enter on the bond the obligor's mailing address, street address, and telephone number for the service of any process required by this section or other provision of law. If the address or telephone number of the obligor changes during the pendency of any proceeding with reference to the bond, it shall be the duty of the obligor to notify the clerk of the obligor's new address and telephone number.

(b) If the principal does not comply with the conditions of the bail bond, the court having jurisdiction must enter an order declaring the bail to be forfeited. If forfeiture is ordered by the court, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice that judgment will be entered upon the order after 60 days must be served on each obligor. Service is to be made by the clerk mailing by certified mail, return receipt requested, a copy of the order of forfeiture and notice to each obligor at each obligor's address as noted on the bond and note on the

(c) Except as provided in subsection (c1) of this section, at any time within 60 days following the date of service, or on the first presentment of the forfeiture calendar more than 60 days after the date of service, the principal or surety may move the court having jurisdiction of the matter, orally or in writing, to strike the order of forfeiture and recall the notice of forfeiture. If the principal or surety appears and moves within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's failure to appear on the date set was impossible or that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, the order of forfeiture must be set aside. If the principal or surety does not satisfy the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible or that the principal's failure to appear was without the principal's fault, the court must then enter judgment for the State against the principal and surety for the amount of the bail and the cost of the proceeding.

(c1) If the principal does not appear before the court having jurisdiction because the principal is incarcerated in North Carolina and unable to appear before the court, but the surety appears within the time allowed following the date of service and satisfies the court that the principal's appearance on the date set was impossible because the principal was incarcerated in North Carolina, the order of forfeiture must be set aside.

(d) To facilitate the procedure under this section, the clerk in each county shall prepare for both the district and superior court a forfeiture calendar once each month when court is in session. The forfeiture calendar shall list the names of all principals and sureties to whom forfeiture has been ordered more than 60 days previously in the county and as to which judgments of forfeiture against the principal and surety have not been entered or, if entered, not yet satisfied by execution. The forfeiture calendar shall show the amount of the bond ordered forfeited in each case. In addition, the clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all written motions to strike an order of forfeiture filed since the previous forfeiture calendar. It shall be the duty of the district attorney to present the forfeiture calendar to the court, but the attorney for the county school board shall have the right to appear and be heard when the forfeiture calendar is presented. At the district attorney's discretion, the district attorney may appoint the county school board attorney as the district attorney's designee for the presentation of the forfeiture calendar.

(e) At any time within 90 days after entry of the judgment against a principal or surety, the principal or surety, by verified written petition, may request that the judgment be remitted in whole or in part, upon such conditions as the court may impose, if it appears that justice requires the remission of part or all of the judgment. A copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing. The clerk shall place on the forfeiture calendar for hearing all petitions that have been filed during the previous month or since the last forfeiture calendar. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the school board attorney shall be notified of the date, time, and place of the hearing. The petitioner, the district attorney, and the county school board attorney shall be given an opportunity to appear and be heard. If the principal is surrendered by the surety and incarcerated in the State within 90 days of the entry of the judgment, the forfeiture shall be stricken upon the payment of costs. If the principal is incarcerated or served an order for arrest in North Carolina within 90 days of the entry of the judgment and the principal placed on a new bond or released by the court, then the forfeiture shall be stricken upon the payment of costs.

(f) If a judgment has not been remitted within the period provided in subsection (e) above, the clerk must issue execution on the judgment within 30 days, and remit the clear proceeds to the county for use in maintaining free public schools. Any clerk who fails to perform his duty as required in this subsection is subject to a penalty of five hundred dollars ($500.00).

(g) If a levy of execution upon a judgment against an obligor remains unsatisfied for 10 days, the sheriff shall notify the clerks and magistrates in each county in the prosecutorial district and the obligor shall not become surety on any bail bond in the prosecutorial district so long as the judgment remains unsatisfied. Nothing in this subsection makes lawful any act made unlawful by Article 71 of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes.

(h) For extraordinary cause shown, the court which has entered judgment upon a forfeiture of a bond may, after execution, remit the judgment in whole or in part and order the clerk to refund such amounts as the court considers appropriate. Any person moving for remission of judgment must do so by verified petition, and a copy of the petition must be served upon the attorney for the county school board at least three working days prior to the hearing on the motion. The moving party must notify the attorney for the school board of the time and place of the hearing, and such attorney, if he so desires, must be given an opportunity to appear and be heard. If money has been paid to the county pursuant to execution on a judgment of forfeiture, it must refund to the person entitled the amount of any remission granted under the terms of this subsection upon receipt of a certified copy of the judgment of remission from the clerk. (1868-9, c. 178, subch. 2, s. 10; Code, s. 1225; Rev., s. 3214; C.S., s. 4582; 1973, c. 1286, s. 1; 1987, c. 321; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1037, s. 57; 1995, c. 290, s. 3; c. 448, s. 1; c. 503, ss. 2, 3.)

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 1995, c. 290, s. 3, effective June 19, 1995, substituted "Except as provided in subsection (c1) of this section, if" for "If" in the first sentence of subsection (c); added subsection (c1); and added the second and third sentences of subsection (e).

Session Laws 1995, c. 448, s. 1, effective July 18, 1995, rewrote subsection (d), and deleted the last sentence of subsection (e), regarding remission of the bond if the principal is incarcerated or served an order for arrest, and is placed on a new bond or released by the court.

Session Laws 1995, c. 503, s. 2, effective July 28, 1995, twice inserted "in North Carolina" following "incarcerated" in subsection (c1).

Session Laws 1995, c. 503, s. 3, effective December 1, 1995, rewrote subsections (a), (b), (c), and (e); and in subsection (g) substituted "levy" for "return" and substituted "sheriff shall notify the clerks and magistrates in each county in the prosecutorial district and the obligor shall" for "obliger may".

Section 1. G.S. 14-291.2 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-291.2. Pyramid and chain schemes prohibited.

(a) ~~Any~~ No person ~~who~~ shall establish, ~~promote, operate or participate in~~ operate, participate in, or otherwise promote any pyramid distribution plan, program, device or scheme whereby a participant pays a valuable consideration for the opportunity or chance to receive a fee or compensation upon the introduction of other participants into the program, whether or not such opportunity or chance is received in conjunction with the purchase of ~~merchandise, shall be deemed to have participated~~ merchandise. A person who establishes or operates a pyramid distribution plan is guilty of a Class H felony. A person who participates in or otherwise promotes a pyramid distribution plan is deemed to participate in a lottery and ~~shall be~~ is guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor.

(b) 'Pyramid distribution plan' means any program utilizing a pyramid or chain process by which a participant gives a valuable consideration for the opportunity to receive compensation or things of value in return for inducing other persons to become participants in the program; and 'Compensation' does not mean payment based on sales of goods or services to persons who are not participants in the scheme, and who are not purchasing in order to participate in the ~~scheme; and~~ scheme.

~~'Promotes' shall mean inducing one or more other persons to become a participant.~~

(c) Any judge of the superior court shall have jurisdiction, upon petition by the Attorney General of North Carolina or district attorney of the superior court, to enjoin, as an unfair or deceptive trade practice, the continuation of the scheme described in subsection (a); in such proceeding the court may assess civil penalties and attorneys' fees to the Attorney General or the District Attorney pursuant to G.S. 75-15.2 and 75-16.1; and the court may appoint a receiver to secure and distribute assets obtained by any defendant through participation in any such scheme.

(d) Any contract hereafter created for which a part of the consideration consisted of the opportunity or chance to participate in a program described in subsection (a) is hereby declared to be contrary to public policy and therefore void and unenforceable."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to offenses committed on and after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Representative Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman, House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis , Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 27 - INCREASE PENALTY/PYRAMID SCHEMES

House Bill 27 is a recommendation of the LRC Consumer Protection Issues Committee. It would increase the penalty for establishing or operating a pyramid distribution plan. A pyramid distribution plan is defined as a pyramid or chain process by which a participant gives consideration for the opportunity to receive compensation for inducing others to become participants in the program, but compensation, in this case, does not include payments for the sale of goods or services to third parties who are not participants in the program and are not purchasing in order to participate in it.

Under current law, it is a Class 2 misdemeanor to establish, promote, operate or participate in any pyramid distribution plan. The bill would create two classes of offenses. The first makes it a Class H felony to establish or operate a pyramid distribution plan. Under the second class, the penalty for participating in or otherwise promoting such a plan remains a Class 2 misdemeanor.

The bill also deletes the definition of "promotes". The study committee found that the definition is not needed because it does nothing to clarify the offense. Promotion is an activity that is inherent in the establishment and operation of pyramid schemes, as well as in the participation of the scheme as an investor.

The bill would become effective when it becomes law and apply to offenses occurring on or after that date.

RE: House Bill 1087 - Motorized Vehicle Trespass

House Bill 1087 creates a Class 1 misdemeanor, subject to a fine of not more than $500, for operating a motorized wheeled or tracked vehicle for recreational purposes either 1) on private property without the express written consent of the owner; 2) within the banks of a stream or waterway; or 3) within 25 feet of the banks of a stream or waterway. Operation of these vehicles for farming or other work related purposes or operation by the owner of private property on the owner's own land is not prohibited.

A Class 1 misdemeanor is punishable by a maximum of 120 days active (at the highest prior record level). Current First Degree Trespassing is a Class 2 misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum of 60 days active, and Second Degree Trespassing is a Class 3 misdemeanor, punishable by a maximum of 20 days active.

This act is effective December 1, 1997.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO ENHANCE THE PUNISHMENT IMPOSED FOR INJURING A PREGNANT WOMAN IN THE COMMISSION OF A FELONY, ACT OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, OR UNLAWFUL OPERATION OF A VEHICLE CAUSING A MISCARRIAGE OR STILLBIRTH.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 6 of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 14-18.2. Injury to pregnant woman.

(a) Definitions. -- The following definitions shall apply in this section:

(1) Miscarriage. -- The interruption of the normal development of the fetus, other than by a live birth, and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1, resulting in the complete expulsion or extraction from a pregnant woman of the fetus.

(2) Stillbirth. -- The death of a fetus prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from a woman irrespective of the duration of pregnancy and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1.

(b) A person who in the commission of a felony causes injury to a woman, knowing the woman to be pregnant, which injury results in a miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman is guilty of a felony that is one class higher than the felony committed.

(c) A person who in the commission of a misdemeanor that is an act of domestic violence as defined in Chapter 50B of the General Statutes causes injury to a woman, knowing the woman to be pregnant, which results in miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman is guilty of a misdemeanor that is one class higher than the misdemeanor committed. If the offense was a Class A1 misdemeanor, the defendant is guilty of a Class I felony.

(d) This section shall not apply to acts committed by a pregnant woman which result in a miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman."

Section 2. Article 3 of Chapter 20 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 20-141.5. Injury to pregnant woman by vehicle.

(a) Definitions. -- The following definitions shall apply in this section:

(1) Miscarriage. -- The interruption of the normal development of the fetus, other than by a live birth, and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1, resulting in the complete expulsion or extraction from a pregnant woman of the fetus.

(2) Stillbirth. -- The death of a fetus prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from a woman irrespective of the duration of pregnancy and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1.

(b) Any person who in the unlawful operation of a motor vehicle commits a felony which causes a pregnant woman to suffer a miscarriage or stillbirth is guilty of a felony that is one class higher than the felony committed."

Section 3. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO ALLOW A HOUSING AUTHORITY TO TERMINATE OR FAIL TO RENEW A LEASE IF A TENANT ENGAGES IN CRIMINAL ACTIVITY ON OR NEAR THE PREMISES AND TO ALLOW CERTAIN SUMMARY EJECTMENT ACTIONS INITIATED BY A HOUSING AUTHORITY TO BE HELD IN DISTRICT COURT INSTEAD OF IN MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 157-29 reads as rewritten:

"§ 157-29. ~~Rentals and tenant selections.~~ Rentals; tenant selections; and summary ejectments.

(a) It is hereby declared to be the policy of this State that each housing authority shall manage and operate its housing projects in an efficient manner so as to enable it to fix the cost of dwelling accommodations for persons of low income at the lowest possible rates consistent with its providing decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations. No housing authority may construct or operate its housing projects so as to provide revenues for other activities of the city.

(b) In the operation or management of housing projects, or portions of projects, for persons of low income, an authority shall at all times observe the following duties with respect to rentals and tenant selection:

(1) It may rent or lease dwelling accommodations set aside for persons of low income only to persons who lack the amount of income ~~which~~ that is necessary (as determined by the housing authority undertaking the project) to enable them, without financial assistance, to live in decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings, without overcrowding; and

(2) It may rent or lease dwelling accommodations to persons of low income only at rentals within the financial reach of such persons.

(c) An authority may terminate or refuse to renew a rental agreement for a serious or repeated violation of a material term of the rental agreement such as (i) failure to make payments due under the rental agreement, if such payments were properly and promptly calculated according to applicable HUD regulation, whether or not such failure was the fault of the tenant, (ii) failure to fulfill the tenant obligations set forth in 24 C.F.R. Section 966.4(f) or other applicable provisions of federal law as they may be amended from time to time, ~~or (iii) other good cause.~~ (iii) engaging in criminal activity that threatens the health and safety of housing authority tenants or threatens the tenants' right to peaceful enjoyment of the housing authority premises, or (iv) engaging in illegal drug activity on or near the housing authority premises. ~~Except in the case of failure to make payments due under a rental agreement, fault on the part of a tenant may be considered in determining whether good cause exists to terminate a rental agreement.~~

(d) The receipt or acceptance of rent by an authority, with or without knowledge of a prior default or failure by the tenant under a rental agreement, shall not constitute a waiver of that default or failure unless (i) the authority expressly agrees to such waiver in writing, or (ii) within 120 days after obtaining knowledge of the default or failure, the authority fails either to notify the tenant that a violation of the rental agreement has occurred or to exercise one of the authority's remedies for such violation.

(e) In any summary ejectment action wherein a housing authority alleges that a tenant's lease has been terminated because the tenant, a household member or a guest has engaged in criminal activity or activity involving illegal drugs as provided in subsection (c) of this section, the housing authority may utilize the expedited hearing procedure as set out in Article 7, Chapter 42 of the General Statutes."

RE: House Bill 1064 - Housing Authority Amendments - Proposed Committee Substitute

House Bill 1064 amends G.S. 157-29 to allow a housing authority to terminate or fail to renew a lease if a tenant engages in criminal activity that threatens the health and safety of housing authority tenants or threatens the tenants' right to peaceful enjoyment of the housing authority premises, or engages in illegal drug activity on or near the housing authority premises. This bill also provides that if the housing authority brings summary ejectment proceedings, based on an allegation of criminal activity or illegal drug activity, the authority may, use the procedure for expedited eviction of drug traffickers and other criminals provided in Article 7 of Chapter 42.

Current federal law already requires a public housing agency lease to include an obligation on the tenant's part to "assure that the tenant, any member of the household, a guest, or another person under the tenant's control" shall not engage in any criminal activity or illegal drug activity (the language in this bill tracks the federal language). Additionally, State summary ejectment statutes already provide for the ejectment of a tenant when the "tenant, lessee, or other person under him" has violated any provision of the lease.

This act is effective October 1, 1997 and applies to acts committed on or after that date.

AN ACT TO ALLOW A HOUSING AUTHORITY TO TERMINATE OR FAIL TO RENEW A LEASE IF A TENANT ENGAGES IN CRIMINAL ACTIVITY AND TO ALLOW CERTAIN SUMMARY EJECTMENT ACTIONS INITIATED BY A HOUSING AUTHORITY TO BE HELD IN DISTRICT COURT INSTEAD OF IN MAGISTRATE'S COURT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 157-29 reads as rewritten:

"§ 157-29. ~~Rentals and tenant selections.~~ Rentals; tenant selections; and summary ejectments.

(a) It is hereby declared to be the policy of this State that each housing authority shall manage and operate its housing projects in an efficient manner so as to enable it to fix the cost of dwelling accommodations for persons of low income at the lowest possible rates consistent with its providing decent, safe, and sanitary dwelling accommodations. No housing authority may construct or operate its housing projects so as to provide revenues for other activities of the city.

(b) In the operation or management of housing projects, or portions of projects, for persons of low income, an authority shall at all times observe the following duties with respect to rentals and tenant selection:

(1) It may rent or lease dwelling accommodations set aside for persons of low income only to persons who lack the amount of income ~~which~~ that is necessary (as determined by the housing authority undertaking the project) to enable them, without financial assistance, to live in decent, safe, and sanitary dwellings, without overcrowding; and

(2) It may rent or lease dwelling accommodations to persons of low income only at rentals within the financial reach of such persons.

(c) An authority may terminate or refuse to renew a rental agreement for a serious or repeated violation of a material term of the rental agreement such as (i) failure to make payments due under the rental agreement, if such payments were properly and promptly calculated according to applicable HUD regulation, whether or not such failure was the fault of the tenant, (ii) failure to fulfill the tenant obligations set forth in 24 C.F.R. Section 966.4(f) or other applicable provisions of federal law as they may be amended from time to time, ~~or (iii) other good cause.~~ (iii) engaging in criminal activity that threatens the health and safety of housing authority tenants or threatens the tenants' right to peaceful enjoyment of the housing authority premises, or (iv) engaging in illegal drug activity. ~~Except in the case of failure to make payments due under a rental agreement, fault on the part of a tenant may be considered in determining whether good cause exists to terminate a rental agreement.~~

(d) The receipt or acceptance of rent by an authority, with or without knowledge of a prior default or failure by the tenant under a rental agreement, shall not constitute a waiver of that default or failure unless (i) the authority expressly agrees to such waiver in writing, or (ii) within 120 days after obtaining knowledge of the default or failure, the authority fails either to notify the tenant that a violation of the rental agreement has occurred or to exercise one of the authority's remedies for such violation.

(e) In any summary ejectment action wherein a housing authority alleges that a tenant's lease has been terminated because the tenant, a household member, or a guest has engaged in criminal activity or activity involving illegal drugs as provided in subsection (c) of this section, the housing authority may utilize the expedited hearing procedure as set out in Article 7, Chapter 42 of the General Statutes."

Section 2. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to acts committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO ENHANCE THE PUNISHMENT IMPOSED FOR INJURING A PREGNANT WOMAN IN THE COMMISSION OF A FELONY, ACT OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE, OR UNLAWFUL OPERATION OF A VEHICLE CAUSING A MISCARRIAGE OR STILLBIRTH.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 6 of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 14-18.2. Injury to pregnant woman.

(a) Definitions.-- The following definitions shall apply in this section:

(1) Miscarriage.-- The interruption of the normal development of the fetus, other than by a live birth, and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1, resulting in the complete expulsion or extraction from a pregnant woman of the fetus.

(2) Stillbirth.-- The death of a fetus prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from a woman irrespective of the duration of pregnancy and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1.

(b) A person who in the commission of a felony causes injury to a woman, knowing the woman to be pregnant, which injury results in a miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman is guilty of a felony that is one class higher than the felony committed.

(c) A person who in the commission of a misdemeanor that is an act of domestic violence as defined in Chapter 50B of the General Statutes causes injury to a woman, knowing the woman to be pregnant, which results in miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman is guilty of a misdemeanor that is one class higher than the misdemeanor committed. If the offense was a Class A1 misdemeanor, the defendant is guilty of a Class I felony.

(d) This section shall not apply to acts committed by a pregnant woman which result in a miscarriage or stillbirth by the woman."

Section 2. Article 3 of Chapter 20 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 20-141.5. Injury to pregnant woman by vehicle.

(a) Definitions.-- The following definitions shall apply in this section:

(1) Miscarriage.-- The interruption of the normal development of the fetus, other than by a live birth, and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1, resulting in the complete expulsion or extraction from a pregnant woman of the fetus.

(2) Stillbirth.-- The death of a fetus prior to the complete expulsion or extraction from a woman irrespective of the duration of pregnancy and which is not an induced abortion permitted under G.S. 14-45.1.

(b) Any person who in the unlawful operation of a motor vehicle commits a felony which causes a pregnant woman to suffer a miscarriage or stillbirth is guilty of a felony that is one class higher than the felony committed."

April 14, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE SEXUAL OFFENDER REGISTRATION PROGRAM TO COMPLY WITH FEDERAL LAW.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 27A of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"ARTICLE 27A.

"~~Sexual Offender Registration Program.~~

"Registration of Criminal Offenders and Sexually Violent Predators.

"Part 1. Registration Programs, Purpose, and Definitions Generally.

"§ 14-208.5. Purpose.

The General Assembly recognizes that sex offenders often pose a high risk of engaging in sex offenses even after being released from incarceration or commitment and that protection of the public from sex offenders is of paramount governmental interest. The General Assembly also recognizes that persons who commit certain other types of offenses against minors, such as kidnapping, pose significant and unacceptable threats to the public safety and welfare of the State's children and that the protection of those children is of great governmental interest. Further, the General Assembly recognizes that ~~local~~ law enforcement officers' efforts to protect ~~their~~ communities, conduct investigations, and quickly apprehend offenders who commit sex offenses or certain offenses against minors are impaired by the lack of information available to law enforcement agencies about convicted ~~sex~~ offenders who live within the agency's jurisdiction. Release of information about ~~sex~~ these offenders will further the governmental interests of public safety so long as the information released is rationally related to the furtherance of those goals.

Therefore, it is the purpose of this Article to assist ~~local~~ law enforcement agencies' efforts to protect ~~their~~ communities by requiring ~~sex offenders~~ persons who are convicted of sex offenses or of certain other offenses committed against minors to register with ~~local~~ law enforcement ~~agencies and~~ agencies, to require the exchange of relevant information about ~~sex~~ those offenders among law enforcement ~~agencies~~ agencies, and to authorize the access to necessary and relevant information about ~~sex~~ those offenders to others as provided in this Article."

"§ 14-208.6. Definitions.

The following definitions apply in this Article:

(1) 'County registry' means the information compiled by the sheriff of a county in compliance with this Article.

~~(1)~~(1b) 'Division means the Division of Criminal Statistics of the Department of Justice.

(1c) 'Mental abnormality' means a congenital or acquired condition of a person that affects the emotional or volitional capacity of the person in a manner that predisposes that person to the commission of criminal sexual acts to a degree that makes the person a menace to the health and safety of others.

(1d) 'Offense against a minor' means any of the following offenses if the offense is committed against a minor and the person committing the offense is not the minor's parent or legal custodian: G.S. 14-39 (kidnapping), G.S. 14-41 (abduction of children), G.S. 14-43.3(felonious restraint), and the common law offense of false imprisonment.

(2) 'Penal institution' means a detention facility operated under the jurisdiction of the Division of Prisons of the Department of Correction, or a county jail.

(2a) 'Personality disorder' means an enduring pattern of inner experience and behavior that deviates markedly from the expectations of the individual's culture, is pervasive and inflexible, has an onset in adolescence or early adulthood, is stable over time, and leads to distress or impairment.

(2b) 'Predatory' means an act directed at a stranger or at a person with whom a relationship has been established or promoted for the primary purpose of victimization.

(3) 'Release' means discharged or paroled.

(4) 'Reportable conviction' means:

a. A final conviction for an offense against a minor, a sexually violent offense, or an attempt to commit any of those offenses. ~~A final conviction for violation of G.S. 14-27.2 (first degree rape), 14-27.3 (second degree rape), 14-27.4 (first degree sexual offense), 14-27.5 (second degree sexual offense), 14-27.6 (attempted rape or sexual offense), 14-27.7 (intercourse and sexual offense with certain victims), 14-178 (incest between near relatives), 14-190.6 (employing or permitting minor to assist in offenses against public morality and decency), 14-190.16 (first degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17 (second degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17A (third degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.18 (promoting prostitution of a minor), 14-190.19 (participating in prostitution of a minor), or 14-202.1 (taking indecent liberties with children).~~

b. A final conviction in another state of an offense, which if committed in this State, would have been ~~a sex offense as defined by the sections of the General Statutes set forth in paragraph a. of this subdivision.~~ an offense against a minor or a sexually violent offense as defined by this subsection.

(5) 'Sexually violent offense' means a violation of G.S. 14-27.2 (first degree rape), 14-27.3 (second degree rape), 14-27.4 (first degree sexual offense), 14-27.5 (second degree sexual offense), 14-27.6 (attempted rape or sexual offense), 14-27.7 (intercourse and sexual offense with certain victims), 14-178 (incest between near relatives), 14-190.6 (employing or permitting minor to assist in offenses against public morality and decency), 14-190.16 (first degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17 (second degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17A (third degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.18 (promoting prostitution of a minor), 14-190.19 (participating in prostitution of a minor), or 14-202.1 (taking indecent liberties with children).

(6) 'Sexually violent predator' means a person who has been convicted of a sexually violent offense and who suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that makes the person likely to engage in predatory sexually violent offenses.

~~(4)~~ (7) 'Sheriff' means the sheriff of a county in this State.

(8) 'Statewide registry' means the central registry compiled by the Division in accordance with G.S. 14-208.14."

"§ 14-208.6A. Registration requirements for criminal offenders and for criminal offenders determined to be sexually violent predators.

It is the objective of the General Assembly to establish a 10-year registration requirement for persons convicted of certain offenses against minors or sexually violent offenses. It is the further objective of the General Assembly to establish a more stringent set of registration requirements for a sub-class of highly dangerous sex offenders who are determined by a sentencing court with the assistance of a board of experts to be sexually violent predators.

To accomplish this objective there are established two registration programs: the Criminal Registration Program and the Sexually Violent Predator Registration Program. Any person convicted of an offense against a minor or of a sexually violent offense as defined by this Article shall register as a criminal offender in accordance with Part 2 of this Article. Any person determined to be a sexually violent predator shall register as such in accordance with Part 3 of this Article.

The information obtained under these programs shall be immediately shared with the appropriate local, State, federal and out-of-State law enforcement officials and penal institutions. In addition most information obtained under the programs is public record and shall be readily available to and accessible by the public. However, the identity of the victim is not public record and shall not be released as a public record.

"Part 2. Criminal Registration Program.

"§ 14-208.7. Registration.

(a) A person who is a resident and who has a reportable conviction shall be required to maintain registration with the sheriff of the county where the person resides. If the person moves to North Carolina from outside this State, the person shall register within 10 days of establishing residence in this State. If the person is a current resident of North Carolina, the person shall register:

(1) Within 10 days of release from a penal institution or arrival in a county to live outside a penal institution; or

(2) Immediately upon conviction for a reportable offense where an active term of imprisonment was not imposed.

Registration shall be maintained for a period of 10 years following release from a penal institution. If no active term of imprisonment was imposed, registration shall be maintained for a period of 10 years following each conviction for a reportable offense.

(b) The Division shall provide each sheriff with forms for registering persons as required by this Article. The registration form shall require:

(1) The person's full name, each alias, date of birth, sex, race, height, weight, eye color, hair color, drivers license number, and home address;

(2) The type of offense for which the person was convicted, the date of conviction, and the sentence imposed;

(3) A current photograph; and

(4) The person's fingerprints.

The sheriff shall photograph the individual at the time of registration and take fingerprints from the individual at the time of registration both of which will be kept as part of the registration form. The registrant will not be required to pay any fees for the photograph or fingerprints taken at the time of registration.

(c) ~~Not later than the third day after~~ When a person registers, the sheriff with whom the person registered shall immediately send the registration information to the Division in a manner determined by the Division. The sheriff shall retain the original registration form and other information ~~collected.~~ collected and shall compile the information that is a public record under this Part into a county registry.

"§ 14-208.8. Prerelease notification.

(a) At least 10 days, but not earlier than 30 days, before a person who will be subject to registration under this Article is due to be released from a penal institution, an official of the penal institution shall:

(1) Inform the person of the person's duty to register under this Article and require the person to sign a written statement that the person was so informed or, if the person refuses to sign the statement, certify that the person was so informed;

(2) Obtain the registration information required under G.S. 14-208.7 (b)(1) and (2), as well as the address where the person expects to reside upon the person's release; and

(3) Send the Division and the sheriff of the county in which the person expects to reside the information collected in accordance with subdivision (2) of this subsection.

(b) If a person who is subject to registration under this Article does not receive an active term of imprisonment, the court pronouncing sentence shall conduct, at the time of sentencing, the notification procedures specified in subsection (a) of this section.

"§ 14-208.9. Change of address.

If a person required to register changes address, the person shall provide written notice of the new address not later than the tenth day after the change to the sheriff of the county with whom the person had last registered. ~~Not later than the third day after~~ Upon receipt of the notice, the sheriff shall immediately forward this information to the Division. If the person moves to another county in this State, the Division shall inform the sheriff of the new county of the person's new residence.

"§ 14-208.9A. Verification of registration information.

The information in the county registry shall be verified annually for each registrant as follows:

(1) Every year on the anniversary of a person's initial registration date, the sheriff shall mail a nonforwardable verification form to the last reported address of the person.

(2) The person shall mail the verification form to the sheriff within 10 days after the receipt of the form.

(3) The verification form shall be signed by the person, and shall indicate whether the person still resides at the address last reported to the Sheriff. If the person has a different address, then the person shall indicate that fact and the new address.

(4) If the person fails to mail the verification form to the sheriff within 10 days after receipt of the form the person is in violation of the law, unless the person reports in person to the sheriff and proves that the person has not changed his or her residential address.

"§ 14-208.10. ~~Access~~ Registration information is public record; access to registration information.

(a) ~~To obtain information concerning an individual's registration status, a requester shall submit to the sheriff the following:~~

~~(1) The individual's name and sex;~~

~~(2) A physical description of the individual; and~~

~~(3) Any other relevant information known to the requester concerning the individual.~~

~~Upon receipt of the information, the sheriff shall verify, in writing, to the requester whether the individual has registered as a sex offender in this State, the date of conviction, and the offenses for which registration was required. The registration information and the corresponding registry is a public record and shall be available for public inspection. The sheriff shall upon request, display any photograph provided in compliance with G.S. 14-208.7(b)(3); however, the sheriff shall not provide or allow a copy to be made of the photograph.~~

The following information regarding a person required to register under this Article is public record and shall be available for public inspection: name, sex, address, physical description, picture, conviction date, offense for which registration was required, the sentence imposed as a result of the conviction, and registration status. The sheriff may release any other information that is necessary to protect the public concerning a specific person, but shall not release the identity of the victim of the offense that required registration under this Article.

(b) Any person may obtain a copy of an individual's registration ~~form, excluding the photograph, upon payment to the sheriff of a reasonable fee for the costs of duplicating the form.~~ form, a part of the county registry, or all of the county registry, by submitting a written request for the information to the sheriff and paying the fee for duplicating costs. However, the identity of the victim of an offense that requires registration under this Article shall not be released.

(c) ~~The sheriff of each county is authorized, upon written request, to provide a copy of the entire registry to any group, entity, organization, corporation, or school, that utilizes volunteers or employees in working with, caring for, supervising or protecting children or disabled or elderly persons.~~ The sheriff may charge a reasonable fee for duplicating costs and for mailing costs when appropriate.

"§ 14-208.11. Failure to ~~register.~~ register; falsification of verification notice; failure to return verification form; order for arrest.

(a) A person required by this Article to register who, knowingly and with the intent to violate the provisions of this Article, ~~fails to register shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor for a first conviction of a violation of this Article, and a Class I felony for a subsequent conviction of a violation of this Article.~~ does any of the following is guilty of a Class F felony:

(1) Fails to register.

(2) Fails to notify the Division of a change of address.

(3) Fails to return a verification notice as required under G.S. 14-208.9A.

(4) Forges or submits under false pretenses the information or verification notices required under this Article.

(a1) If a person commits a violation of subsection (a) of this section, the Division, probation officer, parole officer, or any other law enforcement office who is aware of the violation shall immediately seek an order for arrest in accordance with G.S. 15A-305.

(b) Before a person convicted of a violation of this Article is due to be released from a penal institution, an official of the penal institution shall conduct the prerelease notification procedures specified under G.S. 14-208.8(a)(2) and (3). If upon a conviction for a violation of this Article, no active term of imprisonment is imposed, the court pronouncing sentence shall, at the time of sentencing, conduct the notification procedures specified under G.S. 14-208.8(a)(2) and (3).

~~(a) A person who has a reportable conviction may petition the superior court in the county where the person resides for an exemption from this Article. The person shall serve a copy of the petition on the district attorney. If the person shows for good cause, by clear and convincing evidence, that registration will not serve any useful purpose, the court shall grant the exemption.~~

~~(b) When a registered person presents the sheriff with a certified copy of the court order showing that an exemption has been granted, the sheriff shall remove any information from his records that was obtained pursuant to this Article. The sheriff shall then notify the Division of the exemption by sending a copy of the exemption to the Division within three days and the Division shall remove any information from its files obtained pursuant to this Article. The Division shall notify the registered person of the exemption by letter telling the registrant that the exemption has been accomplished.~~

"§ 14-208.12A. Termination of registration requirement.

The requirement that a person register under this Part automatically terminates 10 years from the date of initial registration if the person has not been convicted of a subsequent offense requiring registration under this Article.

"§ 14-208.13. File with Police Information Network.

(a) The Division shall include the registration information in the Police Information Network as set forth in G.S. 114-10.1.

(b) Except as provided in G.S. 14-208.12(b), the Division shall maintain the registration information permanently even after the registrant's reporting requirement expires.

"§ 14-208.14. Statewide registry; Division of Criminal Statistics designated custodian of statewide registry.

(a) The Division of Criminal Statistics shall compile and keep current a central statewide sex offender registry. The Division is the State agency designated as the custodian of the statewide registry. As custodian the Division has the following responsibilities:

(1) To receive from the sheriff or any other law enforcement agency or penal institution all sex offender registrations, changes of address, and prerelease notifications required under this Article or under federal law. The Division shall also receive notices of any violation of this Article, including a failure to register or a failure to report a change of address.

(2) To notify all appropriate law enforcement agencies, (local, State, federal, and those located in other states) immediately upon receipt by the Division of any of the following: registration information, a prerelease notification, a change of address, or notice of a violation of the Article.

(3) To coordinate efforts among law enforcement agencies and penal institutions to ensure that the registration information, changes of address, prerelease notifications, and notices of failure to register or to report a change of address are conveyed in an appropriate and timely manner.

(4) To provide public access to the statewide registry in accordance with this Article.

(b) The statewide registry shall include the following:

(1) Registration information obtained by a sheriff or penal institution under this Article or from any other local or State law enforcement agency.

(2) Registration information received from a state or local law enforcement agency or penal institution in another state.

(3) Registration information received from a federal law enforcement agency or penal institution.

"§ 14-208.15. Certain statewide registry information is public record: access to statewide registry.

(a) The information in the statewide registry that is public record is the same as in G.S. 14-208.10 and shall be available for public inspection. The Division may release any other information that is necessary to protect the public concerning a specific person, but shall not release the identity of the victim of the offense that required registration under this Article.

(b) Any person may obtain from the Division a copy of an individual's registration form, a part of the statewide registry, or all of the statewide registry, by submitting a written request for the information to the Division and paying the fee for duplicating costs. However, the identity of the victim of an offense that requires registration under this Article shall not be released.

(c) The Division may charge a reasonable fee for duplicating costs and for mailing costs when appropriate.

"Part 3. Sexually Violent Predator Registration Program.

"§ 14-208.20. Sexually violent predator determination; notice of intent; presentence investigation.

(a) When a person is charged by indictment with the commission of a sexually violent offense, the district attorney shall decide whether to seek classification of the offender as a sexually violent predator if the person is convicted. If the district attorney intends to seek the classification of a sexually violent predator, the district attorney shall within the time provided for the filing of pretrial motions under G.S. 15A-952 file a notice of the district attorney's intent. The court may for cause shown allow late filing of the notice, grant additional time to the parties to prepare for trial, or make other appropriate orders.

(b) Prior to sentencing a person as a sexually violent predator, the court shall order a presentence investigation in accordance with G.S. 15A-1332(c). However, the study of the defendant and whether the defendant is a sexually violent predator shall be conducted by a board of experts selected by the Department of Correction. The board of experts shall be composed of at least two people who are experts in the field of the behavior and treatment of sexual offenders.

(c) When the defendant is returned from the presentence commitment, the court shall hold a sentencing hearing in accordance with G.S. 15A-1334. At the sentencing hearing the court shall, after taking the presentencing report under advisement, make written findings as to whether the defendant is classified as a sexually violent predator and the basis for the court's findings.

"§ 14-208.21. Registration procedure for sexually violent predator; application of Part 2 of this Article.

The provisions of Part 2 of this Article apply to a person classified as a sexual predator unless provided otherwise by this Part. The procedure for registering as a sexually violent predator is the same as under Part 2 of this Article.

"§ 14-208.22. Additional registration information required.

(a) In addition to the information required by G.S. 14-208.7, the following information shall also be obtained from a person who is classified as a sexually violent predator:

(1) Identifying factors.
(2) Anticipated future residence.
(3) Offense history.
(4) Documentation of any treatment received by the person for the person's mental abnormality or personality disorder.

(b) The Division shall provide each sheriff with forms for registering persons as required by this Article.

(c) The Department of Correction shall also obtain the additional information set out in subsection (a) of this section and shall include this information in the prerelease notice forwarded to the sheriff or other appropriate law enforcement agency.

"§ 14-208.23. Length of registration.

The requirement that a person who is classified as a sexually violent predator maintain registration shall terminate only upon a determination, made in accordance with this Part, that the person no longer suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that would make the person likely to engage in a predatory sexually violent offense.

"§ 14-208.24. Verification of registration information.

(a) The information in the county registry shall be verified by the sheriff for each registrant who is classified as a sexually violent predator every 90 days after the person's initial registration date.

(b) The procedure for verifying the information in the criminal offender registry is the same as under G.S. 14-208.9A, except that verification shall be every 90 days as provided by subsection (a) of this section.

"§ 14-208.25. Termination of registration requirement.

Ten years from the date of a person's initial registration as a sexually violent predator, a person may petition the superior court to review the person's classification as a sexually violent predator if the person has committed no subsequent reportable convictions. The decision as to whether to grant the review is in the discretion of the court. If the court grants the review, the court shall order a presentence commitment study as provided in G.S. 14-208.20(b). Upon receipt of the study results, the court shall hold a hearing to determine whether the person's classification as a sexually violent predator should be terminated. The procedure for the hearing shall be the same as under G.S 15A-1334 (b) and (c). The court shall make written findings of fact with regard to the court's decision and the basis for that decision."

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE SEXUAL OFFENDER REGISTRATION PROGRAM TO COMPLY WITH FEDERAL LAW.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 27A of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"ARTICLE 27A.

"~~Sexual Offender Registration Program.~~

Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program.

"Part 1. Registration Programs, Purpose, and Definitions Generally.

"§ 14-208.5. Purpose.

The General Assembly recognizes that sex offenders often pose a high risk of engaging in sex offenses even after being released from incarceration or commitment and that protection of the public from sex offenders is of paramount governmental interest.

The General Assembly also recognizes that persons who commit certain other types of offenses against minors, such as kidnapping, pose significant and unacceptable threats to the public safety and welfare of the State's children and that the protection of those children is of great governmental interest. Further, the General Assembly recognizes that ~~local~~ law enforcement officers' efforts to protect ~~their~~ communities, conduct investigations, and quickly apprehend offenders who commit sex offenses or certain offenses against minors are impaired by the lack of information available to law enforcement agencies about convicted ~~sex~~ offenders who live within the agency's jurisdiction. Release of information about ~~sex~~ these offenders will further the governmental interests of public safety so long as the information released is rationally related to the furtherance of those goals.

Therefore, it is the purpose of this Article to assist ~~local~~ law enforcement agencies' efforts to protect ~~their~~ communities by requiring ~~sex offenders~~ persons who are convicted of sex offenses or of certain other offenses committed against minors to register with ~~local~~ law enforcement ~~agencies and~~ agencies, to require the exchange of relevant information about ~~sex~~ those offenders among law enforcement ~~agencies~~ agencies, and to authorize the access to necessary and relevant information about ~~sex~~ those offenders to others as provided in this Article."

"§ 14-208.6. Definitions.

The following definitions apply in this Article:

~~(4)~~ (7) 'Sheriff' means the sheriff of a county in this State.

(8) 'Statewide registry' means the central registry compiled by the Division in accordance with G.S. 14-208.14."

"§ 14-208.6A. Registration requirements for criminal offenders and for criminal offenders determined to be sexually violent predators.

It is the objective of the General Assembly to establish a 10-year registration requirement for persons convicted of certain offenses against minors or sexually violent offenses. It is the further objective of the General Assembly to establish a more stringent set of registration requirements for a sub-class of highly dangerous sex offenders who are determined by a sentencing court with the assistance of a board of experts to be sexually violent predators.

To accomplish this objective there are established two registration programs: the Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program and the Sexually Violent Predator Registration Program. Any person convicted of an offense against a minor or of a sexually violent offense as defined by this Article shall register as an offender in accordance with Part 2 of this Article. Any person determined to be a sexually violent predator shall register as such in accordance with Part 3 of this Article.

The information obtained under these programs shall be immediately shared with the appropriate local, State, federal and out-of-State law enforcement officials and penal institutions. In addition the information designated under G.S. 14-208.10(a) as public record shall be readily available to and accessible by the public. However, the identity of the victim is not public record and shall not be released as a public record.

"Part 2. Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program.

"§ 14-208.7. Registration.

(a) A person who is a State resident and who has a reportable conviction shall be required to maintain registration with the sheriff of the county where the person resides. If the person moves to North Carolina from outside this State, the person shall register within 10 days of establishing residence in this State. If the person is a current resident of North Carolina, the person shall register:

(1) Within 10 days of release from a penal institution or arrival in a county to live outside a penal institution; or

(2) Immediately upon conviction for a reportable offense where an active term of imprisonment was not imposed.

Registration shall be maintained for a period of 10 years following release from a penal institution. If no active term of imprisonment was imposed, registration shall be maintained for a period of 10 years following each conviction for a reportable offense.

(b) The Division shall provide each sheriff with forms for registering persons as required by this Article. The registration form shall require:

(1) The person's full name, each alias, date of birth, sex, race, height, weight, eye color, hair color, drivers license number, and home address;
(2) The type of offense for which the person was convicted, the date of conviction, and the sentence imposed;
(3) A current photograph; and
(4) The person's fingerprints.

The sheriff shall photograph the individual at the time of registration and take fingerprints from the individual at the time of registration both of which will be kept as part of the registration form. The registrant will not be required to pay any fees for the photograph or fingerprints taken at the time of registration.

(c) ~~Not later than the third day after~~ When a person registers, the sheriff with whom the person registered shall immediately send the registration information to the Division in a manner determined by the Division. The sheriff shall retain the original registration form and other information ~~collected.~~ collected and shall compile the information that is a public record under this Part into a county registry.

"§ 14-208.8. Prerelease notification.

(a) At least 10 days, but not earlier than 30 days, before a person who will be subject to registration under this Article is due to be released from a penal institution, an official of the penal institution shall:
(1) Inform the person of the person's duty to register under this Article and require the person to sign a written statement that the person was so informed or, if the person refuses to sign the statement, certify that the person was so informed;
(2) Obtain the registration information required under G.S. 14-208.7 (b)(1) and (2), as well as the address where the person expects to reside upon the person's release; and
(3) Send the Division and the sheriff of the county in which the person expects to reside the information collected in accordance with subdivision (2) of this subsection.

(b) If a person who is subject to registration under this Article does not receive an active term of imprisonment, the court pronouncing sentence shall conduct, at the time of sentencing, the notification procedures specified in subsection (a) of this section.

"§ 14-208.9. Change of address.

If a person required to register changes address, the person shall provide written notice of the new address not later than the tenth day after the change to the sheriff of the county with whom the person had last registered. ~~Not later than the third day after~~ Upon receipt of the notice, the sheriff shall immediately forward this information to the Division. If the person moves to another county in this State, the Division shall inform the sheriff of the new county of the person's new residence.

"§ 14-208.9A. Verification of registration information.

The information in the county registry shall be verified annually for each registrant as follows:

(1) Every year on the anniversary of a person's initial registration date, the Division shall mail a nonforwardable verification form to the last reported address of the person.

(2) The person shall mail the verification form to the sheriff within 10 days after the receipt of the form.

(3) The verification form shall be signed by the person, and shall indicate whether the person still resides at the address last reported to the Sheriff. If the person has a different address, then the person shall indicate that fact and the new address.

(4) If the person fails to mail the verification form to the sheriff within 10 days after receipt of the form the person is in violation of the law, unless the person reports in person to the sheriff and proves that the person has not changed his or her residential address.

"§ 14-208.10. ~~Access~~ Registration information is public record; access to registration information.

(a) ~~To obtain information concerning an individual's registration status, a requester shall submit to the sheriff the following:~~

~~(1) The individual's name and sex;~~

~~(2) A physical description of the individual; and~~

~~(3) Any other relevant information known to the requester concerning the individual.~~

~~Upon receipt of the information, the sheriff shall verify, in writing, to the requester whether the individual has registered as a sex offender in this State, the date of conviction, and the offenses for which registration was required. The registration~~

~~information and the corresponding registry is a public record and shall be available for public inspection. The sheriff shall upon request, display any photograph provided in compliance with G.S. 14-208.7(b)(3); however, the sheriff shall not provide or allow a copy to be made of the photograph.~~

The following information regarding a person required to register under this Article is public record and shall be available for public inspection: name, sex, address, physical description, picture, conviction date, offense for which registration was required, the sentence imposed as a result of the conviction, and registration status. The sheriff shall release any other relevant information that is necessary to protect the public concerning a specific person, but shall not release the identity of the victim of the offense that required registration under this Article.

(b) Any person may obtain a copy of an individual's registration ~~form, excluding the photograph, upon payment to the sheriff of a reasonable fee for the costs of duplicating the form.~~ form, a part of the county registry, or all of the county registry, by submitting a written request for the information to the sheriff. However, the identity of the victim of an offense that requires registration under this Article shall not be released. The sheriff may charge a reasonable fee for duplicating costs and for mailing costs when appropriate.

~~(c) The sheriff of each county is authorized, upon written request, to provide a copy of the entire registry to any group, entity, organization, corporation, or school, that utilizes volunteers or employees in working with, caring for, supervising or protecting children or disabled or elderly persons. The sheriff may charge a reasonable fee for duplicating costs and for mailing costs when appropriate.~~

"§ 14-208.11. Failure to ~~register.~~ register; falsification of verification notice; failure to return verification form; order for arrest.

(a) A person required by this Article to register who, knowingly and with the intent to violate the provisions of this Article, ~~fails to register shall be guilty of a Class 3 misdemeanor for a first conviction of a violation of this Article, and a Class I felony for a subsequent conviction of a violation of this Article.~~ does any of the following is guilty of a Class F felony:

(1) Fails to register.

(2) Fails to notify the last registering sheriff of a change of address.

(3) Fails to return a verification notice as required under G.S. 14-208.9A.

(4) Forges or submits under false pretenses the information or verification notices required under this Article.

(a1) If a person commits a violation of subsection (a) of this section, the probation officer, parole officer, or any other law enforcement office who is aware of the violation shall immediately arrest the person in accordance with G.S. 15A-401, or seek an order for the person's arrest in accordance with G.S. 15A-305.

(b) Before a person convicted of a violation of this Article is due to be released from a penal institution, an official of the penal institution shall conduct the prerelease notification procedures specified under G.S. 14-208.8(a)(2) and (3). If upon a conviction for a violation of this Article, no active term of imprisonment is imposed, the court pronouncing sentence shall, at the time of sentencing, conduct the notification procedures specified under G.S. 14-208.8(a)(2) and (3).

~~(a) A person who has a reportable conviction may petition the superior court in the county where the person resides for an exemption from this Article. The person shall serve a copy of the petition on the district attorney. If the person shows for good cause, by clear and convincing evidence, that registration will not serve any useful purpose, the court shall grant the exemption.~~

~~(b) When a registered person presents the sheriff with a certified copy of the court order showing that an exemption has been granted, the sheriff shall remove any information from his records that was obtained pursuant to this Article. The sheriff shall then notify the Division of the exemption by sending a copy of the exemption to the Division within three days and the Division shall remove any information from its files obtained pursuant to this Article. The Division shall notify the registered person of the exemption by letter telling the registrant that the exemption has been accomplished.~~

"§ 14-208.12A. Termination of registration requirement.

(a) The requirement that a person register under this Part automatically terminates 10 years from the date of initial county registration if the person has not been convicted of a subsequent offense requiring registration under this Article.

(b) If there is a subsequent offense, the county registration records shall be retained until the registration requirement for the subsequent offense is terminated.

"§ 14-208.13. File with Police Information Network.

(a) The Division shall include the registration information in the Police Information Network as set forth in G.S. 114-10.1.

(b) ~~Except as provided in G.S. 14-208.12(b), the~~ The Division shall maintain the registration information permanently even after the registrant's reporting requirement expires.

"§ 14-208.14. Statewide registry; Division of Criminal Statistics designated custodian of statewide registry.

(a) The Division of Criminal Statistics shall compile and keep current a central statewide sex offender registry. The Division is the State agency designated as the custodian of the statewide registry. As custodian the Division has the following responsibilities:

(1) To receive from the sheriff or any other law enforcement agency or penal institution all sex offender registrations, changes of address, and prerelease notifications required under this Article or under federal law. The Division shall also receive notices of any violation of this Article, including a failure to register or a failure to report a change of address.

(2) To provide all need-to-know law enforcement agencies, (local, State, federal, and those located in other states) immediately upon receipt by the Division of any of the following: registration information, a prerelease notification, a change of address, or notice of a violation of the Article.

(3) To coordinate efforts among law enforcement agencies and penal institutions to ensure that the registration information, changes of address, prerelease notifications, and notices of failure to register or to report a change of address are conveyed in an appropriate and timely manner.

(4) To provide public access to the statewide registry in accordance with this Article.

(b) The statewide registry shall include the following:

(1) Registration information obtained by a sheriff or penal institution under this Article or from any other local or State law enforcement agency.

(2) Registration information received from a state or local law enforcement agency or penal institution in another state.

(3) Registration information received from a federal law enforcement agency or penal institution.

"§ 14-208.15. Certain statewide registry information is public record: access to statewide registry.

(a) With the exception of photographs, the information in the statewide registry that is public record is the same as in G.S. 14-208.10 and shall be available for public inspection. The Division shall release any other relevant information that is necessary to protect the public concerning a specific person, but shall not release the identity of the victim of the offense that required registration under this Article.

(b) Any person may obtain from the Division a copy of an individual's electronic registration record, a part of the statewide registry, or all of the statewide registry, by submitting a written request for the information to the Division. However, the identity of the victim of an offense that requires registration under this Article shall not be released. The Division may charge a reasonable fee for duplicating costs and for mailing costs when appropriate.

"Part 3. Sexually Violent Predator Registration Program.

"§ 14-208.20. Sexually violent predator determination; notice of intent; presentence investigation.

(a) When a person is charged by indictment or information with the commission of a sexually violent offense, the district attorney shall decide whether to seek classification of the offender as a sexually violent predator if the person is convicted. If the district attorney intends to seek the classification of a sexually violent predator, the district attorney shall within the time provided for the filing of pretrial motions under G.S. 15A-952 file a notice of the district attorney's intent. The court may for good cause shown allow late filing of the notice, grant additional time to the parties to prepare for trial, or make other appropriate orders.

(b) Prior to sentencing a person as a sexually violent predator, the court shall order a presentence investigation in accordance with G.S. 15A-1332(c). However, the study of the defendant and whether the defendant is a sexually violent predator shall be conducted by a board of experts selected by the Department of Correction. The board of experts shall be composed of at least two people who are experts in the field of the behavior and treatment of sexual offenders.

(c) When the defendant is returned from the presentence commitment, the court shall hold a sentencing hearing in accordance with G.S. 15A-1334. At the sentencing hearing the court shall, after taking the presentencing report under advisement, make written findings as to whether the defendant is classified as a sexually violent predator and the basis for the court's findings.

"§ 14-208.21. Registration procedure for sexually violent predator; application of Part 2 of this Article.

The provisions of Part 2 of this Article apply to a person classified as a sexual predator unless provided otherwise by this Part. The procedure for registering as a sexually violent predator is the same as under Part 2 of this Article.

"§ 14-208.22. Additional registration information required.

(a) In addition to the information required by G.S. 14-208.7, the following information shall also be obtained in the same manner as set out in Part 2 of this Chapter from a person who is classified as a sexually violent predator:

(1) Identifying factors.

(2) Offense history.

(3) Documentation of any treatment received by the person for the person's mental abnormality or personality disorder.

(b) The Division shall provide each sheriff with forms for registering persons as required by this Article.

(c) The Department of Correction shall also obtain the additional information set out in subsection (a) of this section and shall include this information in the prerelease notice forwarded to the sheriff or other appropriate law enforcement agency.

"§ 14-208.23. Length of registration.

The requirement that a person who is classified as a sexually violent predator maintain registration shall terminate only upon a determination, made in accordance with this Part, that the person no longer suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that would make the person likely to engage in a predatory sexually violent offense.

"§ 14-208.24. Verification of registration information.

(a) The information in the county registry shall be verified by the sheriff for each registrant who is classified as a sexually violent predator every 90 days after the person's initial registration date.

(b) The procedure for verifying the information in the criminal offender registry is the same as under G.S. 14-208.9A, except that verification shall be every 90 days as provided by subsection (a) of this section.

"§ 14-208.25. Termination of registration requirement.

Ten years from the date of a person's initial registration as a sexually violent predator, a person may petition the superior court to review the person's classification as a sexually violent predator if the person has committed no subsequent reportable convictions. The decision as to whether to grant the review is in the discretion of the court. If the court grants the review, the court shall order a presentence commitment study as provided in G.S. 14-208.20(b). Upon receipt of the study results, the court shall hold a hearing to determine whether the person's classification as a sexually violent predator should be terminated. The procedure for the hearing shall be the same as under G.S 15A-1334 (b) and (c). The court shall make written findings of fact with regard to the court's decision and the basis for that decision."

Section 2. This act becomes effective April 1, 1997.

RE: Proposed Committee Substitute to House Bill 930 (H930-CSLH-002)
Sex Offender Laws/Fed. Compliance

The proposed committee substitute amends Article 27A of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes regarding registration of persons convicted of sex offenses.

Expansion of application

The proposed committee substitute extends the law's application to persons who commit certain types of offenses against minor's, when the offender is not the parent or legal guardian of the minor. Specifically, kidnapping, abduction of children, felonious restraint and false imprisonment are added as offenses for which registration is required. The proposed committee substitute also incorporates the newly enacted definitions of "penal institution" and "reportable conviction." (See S.L. 1997-15).

Creation of Registration Programs

Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program

The proposed committee substitute amends the current registration program by first creating a class of "sexually violent predator" which must register under a differing set of requirements. Persons who are not classified as a "sexually violent predator" must continue to register under the existing program (which is renamed the Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program) with the following changes:

1) Requires the sheriff to send the registration information to the Division "immediately" upon registration or notice of change of the offenders address;

2) Adds provisions regarding verification of the registrant's information on an annual basis;

3) Rewrites G.S. 14-208.10 to provide that the following information be public information: name, sex, address, physical description, picture, conviction date, offense for which registration was required, the sentence imposed as a result of the conviction and registration status. Also provides that any person may obtain a copy of a person's registration or any or all of the county registry. The proposed committee substitute requires the Sheriff to release additional relevant information that is necessary to protect the public, but prohibits release of the victim's identity;

4) Provides for a Class F felony for failure to register, notify the Division of a change of address, to return a verification notice or for forgery or submission of information under false pretenses. Directs law enforcement to immediately arrest anyone failing to comply. (Currently, failure to register is a Class 3 misdemeanor for a first offense and a Class I felony for a subsequent offense.);

5) Deletes the current exemptions from registration;

6) Provides for the termination of registration requirements after 10 years if the registrant has not been convicted of a subsequent offense requiring registration; and

7) Requires the Division of Criminal Statistics to compile a statewide registry of sex offenders and provides for public access and inspection of that registry. However, photographs of registrants are retained at the local level and are available to the public only at that level.

Sexually Violent Predator Registration Program

The proposed committee substitute creates a new G.S. 14-208.20 through 14-208.25 that impose stricter requirements on "sexually violent predators". A sexually violent predator is defined as a person who has been convicted of a sexually violent offense (as specified in the bill) and who suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder (as defined in the bill) that makes the person likely to engage in predatory (defined in the bill) sexually violent offenses.

Requires the District Attorney to file pretrial notice that the D.A. intends to seek the classification of a sexually violent predator. Prior to sentencing, the court shall order a presentence investigation to be conducted by a board of experts (at least 2 of whom are experts in the field of the behavior and treatment of sex offenders) selected by the Department of Correction. At the sentencing hearing, the court shall consider the presentence investigation report and make written findings as to whether the defendant shall be classified as a sexually violent predator.

If the person is classified as a sexually violent predator, the provisions of the Sex Offender and Public Protection Registration Program apply to the person with the following additions or changes:

1) Additional information must be obtained, including: identifying factors, anticipated future residence, offense history and documentation of any treatment received by the person for the person's mental abnormality or personality disorder.

2) The registration requirement continues beyond 10 years until the court determines that the registrant no longer suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that would make the person likely to engage in a predatory sexually violent offense.

3) The registrant's information must be verified every 90 days (rather than 1 year as under regular registration).

4) Provides that the registrant may seek termination of the registration requirement, by petition to the superior court. The petition may be filed 10 years after the person's initial registration.

This act becomes effective April 1, 1997.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF NORTH CAROLINA
1997 SESSION

HOUSE BILL 139

AN ACT TO AMEND THE SEX OFFENDER REGISTRATION LAW TO CLARIFY THAT PERSONS CONVICTED OF SEX OFFENSES IN FEDERAL COURT AND OTHER STATES ARE REQUIRED TO REGISTER.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-208.6(2) reads as rewritten:
"(2) 'Penal institution' ~~means a~~ means:
a. A detention facility operated under the jurisdiction of the Division of Prisons of the Department of ~~Correction, or a county jail.~~ Correction;
b. A detention facility operated under the jurisdiction of another state or the federal government; or
c. A detention facility operated by a local government in this State or another state."

Section 2. G.S. 14-208.6(4) reads as rewritten:
"(4) 'Reportable conviction' means:
a. A final conviction for violation of G.S. 14-27.2 (first degree rape), 14-27.3 (second degree rape), 14-27.4 (first degree sexual offense), 14-27.5 (second degree sexual offense), 14-27.6 (attempted rape or sexual offense), 14-27.7 (intercourse and sexual offense with certain victims), 14-178 (incest between near relatives), 14-190.6 (employing or permitting minor to assist in offenses against public morality and decency), 14-190.16 (first degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17 (second degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.17A (third degree sexual exploitation of a minor), 14-190.18 (promoting prostitution of a minor), 14-190.19 (participating in prostitution of a minor), or 14-202.1 (taking indecent liberties with children).
b. A final conviction in another state of an offense, which if committed in this State, would have been a sex offense as defined by the sections of the General Statutes set forth in paragraph a. of this subdivision.
c. A final conviction in a federal jurisdiction of an offense which is substantially similar to an offense set forth in paragraph a. of this subdivision."

Section 3. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to all persons convicted on or after that date and to all persons released from a penal institution on or after that date.

In the General Assembly read three times and ratified this the 25th day of March, 1997.

Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (Enrolled Bill (Sent to President))

TITLE XVII--CRIMES AGAINST CHILDREN

Subtitle A--Jacob Wetterling Crimes Against Children and Sexually Violent Offender Registration Act

SEC. 170101. ESTABLISHMENT OF PROGRAM.

(a) IN GENERAL-

(1) STATE GUIDELINES- The Attorney General shall establish guidelines for State programs that require--

(A) a person who is convicted of a criminal offense against a victim who is a minor or who is convicted of a sexually violent offense to register a current address with a designated State law enforcement agency for the time period specified in subparagraph (A) of subsection (b)(6); and

(B) a person who is a sexually violent predator to register a current address with a designated State law enforcement agency unless such requirement is terminated under subparagraph (B) of subsection (b)(6).

(2) COURT DETERMINATION- A determination that a person is a sexually violent predator and a determination that a person is no longer a sexually violent predator shall be made by the sentencing court after receiving a report by a State board composed of experts in the field of the behavior and treatment of sexual offenders.

(3) DEFINITIONS- For purposes of this section:

(A) The term `criminal offense against a victim who is a minor' means any criminal offense that consists of--

(i) kidnapping of a minor, except by a parent;

(ii) false imprisonment of a minor, except by a parent;

(iii) criminal sexual conduct toward a minor;

(iv) solicitation of a minor to engage in sexual conduct;

(v) use of a minor in a sexual performance;

(vi) solicitation of a minor to practice prostitution;

(vii) any conduct that by its nature is a sexual offense against a minor; or

(viii) an attempt to commit an offense described in any of clauses (i) through (vii), if the State--

(I) makes such an attempt a criminal offense; and

(II) chooses to include such an offense in those which are criminal offenses against a victim who is a minor for the purposes of this section.

For purposes of this subparagraph conduct which is criminal only because of the age of the victim shall not be considered a criminal offense if the perpetrator is 18 years of age or younger.

(B) The term `sexually violent offense' means any criminal offense that consists of aggravated sexual abuse or sexual abuse (as described in sections 2241 and 2242 of title 18, United States Code, or as described in the State criminal code) or an offense that has as its elements engaging in physical contact with another person with intent to commit aggravated sexual abuse or sexual abuse (as described in such sections of title 18, United States Code, or as described in the State criminal code).

(C) The term `sexually violent predator' means a person who has been convicted of a sexually violent offense and who suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that makes the person likely to engage in predatory sexually violent offenses.

(D) The term `mental abnormality' means a congenital or acquired condition of a person that affects the emotional or volitional capacity of the person in a manner that predisposes that person to the commission of criminal sexual acts to a degree that makes the person a menace to the health and safety of other persons.

Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (Enrolled Bill (Sent to President))

(b) REGISTRATION REQUIREMENT UPON RELEASE, PAROLE, SUPERVISED RELEASE, OR PROBATION- An approved State registration program established under this section shall contain the following elements:

(1) DUTY OF STATE PRISON OFFICIAL OR COURT-

(A) If a person who is required to register under this section is released from prison, or placed on parole, supervised release, or probation, a State prison officer, or in the case of probation, the court, shall--

(i) inform the person of the duty to register and obtain the information required for such registration;

(ii) inform the person that if the person changes residence address, the person shall give the new address to a designated State law enforcement agency in writing within 10 days;

(iii) inform the person that if the person changes residence to another State, the person shall register the new address with the law enforcement agency with whom the person last registered, and the person is also required to register with a designated law enforcement agency in the new State not later than 10 days after establishing residence in the new State, if the new State has a registration requirement;

(iv) obtain fingerprints and a photograph of the person if these have not already been obtained in connection with the offense that triggers registration; and

(v) require the person to read and sign a form stating that the duty of the person to register under this section has been explained.

(B) In addition to the requirements of subparagraph (A), for a person required to register under subparagraph (B) of subsection (a)(1), the State prison officer or the court, as the case may be, shall obtain the name of the person, identifying factors, anticipated future residence, offense history, and documentation of any treatment received for the mental abnormality or personality disorder of the person.

(2) TRANSFER OF INFORMATION TO STATE AND THE FBI- The officer, or in the case of a person placed on probation, the court, shall, within 3 days after receipt of information described in paragraph (1), forward it to a designated State law enforcement agency. The State law enforcement agency shall immediately enter the information into the appropriate State law enforcement record system and notify the appropriate law enforcement agency having jurisdiction where the person expects to reside. The State law enforcement agency shall also immediately transmit the conviction data and fingerprints to the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

(3) VERIFICATION-

(A) For a person required to register under subparagraph (A) of subsection (a)(1), on each anniversary of the person's initial registration date during the period in which the person is required to register under this section the following applies:

(i) The designated State law enforcement agency shall mail a nonforwardable verification form to the last reported address of the person.

(ii) The person shall mail the verification form to the designated State law enforcement agency within 10 days after receipt of the form.

(iii) The verification form shall be signed by the person, and state that the person still resides at the address last reported to the designated State law enforcement agency.

(iv) If the person fails to mail the verification form to the designated State law enforcement agency within 10 days after receipt of the form, the person shall be in violation of this section unless the person proves that the person has not changed the residence address.

Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994 (Enrolled Bill (Sent to President))

(B) The provisions of subparagraph (A) shall be applied to a person required to register under subparagraph (B) of subsection (a)(1), except that such person must verify the registration every 90 days after the date of the initial release or commencement of parole.

(4) NOTIFICATION OF LOCAL LAW ENFORCEMENT AGENCIES OF CHANGES IN ADDRESS- A change of address by a person required to register under this section reported to the designated State law enforcement agency shall be immediately reported to the appropriate law enforcement agency having jurisdiction where the person is residing. The designated law enforcement agency shall, if the person changes residence to another State, notify the law enforcement agency with which the person must register in the new State, if the new State has a registration requirement.

(5) REGISTRATION FOR CHANGE OF ADDRESS TO ANOTHER STATE- A person who has been convicted of an offense which requires registration under this section shall register the new address with a designated law enforcement agency in another State to which the person moves not later than 10 days after such person establishes residence in the new State, if the new State has a registration requirement.

(6) LENGTH OF REGISTRATION-

(A) A person required to register under subparagraph (A) of subsection (a)(1) shall continue to comply with this section until 10 years have elapsed since the person was released from prison, placed on parole, supervised release, or probation.

(B) The requirement of a person to register under subparagraph (B) of subsection (a)(1) shall terminate upon a determination, made in accordance with paragraph (2) of subsection (a), that the person no longer suffers from a mental abnormality or personality disorder that would make the person likely to engage in a predatory sexually violent offense.

(c) PENALTY- A person required to register under a State program established pursuant to this section who knowingly fails to so register and keep such registration current shall be subject to criminal penalties in any State in which the person has so failed.

(d) RELEASE OF INFORMATION- The information collected under a State registration program shall be treated as private data expect that--

(1) such information may be disclosed to law enforcement agencies for law enforcement purposes;

(2) such information may be disclosed to government agencies conducting confidential background checks; and

(3) the designated State law enforcement agency and any local law enforcement agency authorized by the State agency may release relevant information that is necessary to protect the public concerning a specific person required to register under this section, except that the identity of a victim of an offense that requires registration under this section shall not be released.

(e) IMMUNITY FOR GOOD FAITH CONDUCT- Law enforcement agencies, employees of law enforcement agencies, and State officials shall be immune from liability for good faith conduct under this section.

(f) COMPLIANCE-

(1) COMPLIANCE DATE- Each State shall have not more than 3 years from the date of enactment of this Act in which to implement this section, except that the Attorney General may grant an additional 2 years to a State that is making good faith efforts to implement this section.

(2) INELIGIBILITY FOR FUNDS-

(A) A State that fails to implement the program as described in this section shall not receive 10 percent of the funds that would otherwise be allocated to the State under section 506 of the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3765).

(B) REALLOCATION OF FUNDS- Any funds that are not allocated for failure to comply with this section shall be reallocated to States that comply with this section.

Section 2. G.S. 90-233 reads as rewritten:

"§ 90-233. Practice of dental ~~hygiene.~~ hygiene; exceptions to on-site supervision.

(a) A dental hygienist may practice only under the supervision of one or more licensed dentists. Provided, however, ~~that this subsection (a) shall be deemed to be complied with in the case of dental~~ that:

(1) Dental hygienists employed by the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources and especially trained by ~~said~~ that Department as public health hygienists are considered to be practicing under the supervision of a licensed dentist while performing their duties in the public schools under the direction of a duly licensed dentist.

(2) In isolated and nonroutine incidents, when it becomes necessary for the supervising dentist to be absent from the dental office for not more than two (2) hours in any day, the supervising dentist may assign to licensed and registered dental hygienists legally delegable duties to be performed in the dentist's absence if both the dental hygienist and the patient, who must be a patient of record, consent.

(3) A dental hygienist who has completed five years of dentist, on-site, supervised clinical experience may practice without a dentist on-site in a nursing home, as defined in G.S. 131E-101(6), under the following conditions:

a. The supervising dentist must preexamine each patient no more than forty-five days prior to the initiation of treatment, prepare a written treatment plan for the patient, and examine the patient at least one time per year thereafter, so long as treatment continues; and

b. A dental hygienist may not practice in a nursing home unless a health care professional, trained in emergency medical treatment, is present on the premises during any dental hygiene treatment.

(b) ~~A dentist in private practice may not employ more than two dental hygienists at one and the same time who are employed in clinical dental hygiene positions.~~ A dentist in private practice may not supervise more than three dental hygienists at one time. However, the Board may adopt rules authorizing the supervision of more than three dental hygienists in specific circumstances which the Board deems appropriate.

(c) Dental hygiene may be practiced only by the holder of a license or provisional license currently in effect and duly issued by the Board. The following acts, practices, functions or operations, however, shall not constitute the practice of dental hygiene within the meaning of this Article:

(1) The teaching of dental hygiene in a school or college approved by the Board in a board-approved program by an individual licensed as a dental hygienist in any state in the United States.

(2) Activity which would otherwise be considered the practice of dental hygiene performed by students enrolled in a school or college approved by the Board in a board-approved dental hygiene program under the direct supervision of a dental hygienist or a dentist duly licensed in North Carolina or qualified for the teaching of dentistry pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 90-29(c)(3), acting as an instructor.

(3) Any act or acts performed by an assistant to a dentist licensed to practice in this State when said act or acts are authorized and permitted by and performed in accordance with rules and regulations promulgated by the Board.

(4) Dental assisting and related functions as a part of their instructions by students enrolled in a course in dental assisting conducted in this State and approved by the Board, when such functions are performed under the supervision of a dentist acting as a teacher or instructor who is either duly licensed in North Carolina or qualified for the teaching of dentistry pursuant to the provisions of G.S. 90-29(c)(3)."

Section 3. This act is effective when it becomes law.

April 21, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO WAIVE TUITION FOR CHILDREN OR SPOUSES OF CERTAIN EMERGENCY WORKERS KILLED OR DISABLED IN THE LINE OF DUTY.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. The title of Chapter 115B reads as rewritten:

"Tuition ~~Waiver for Senior Citizens.~~ Waivers."

Section 2. G.S. 115B-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 115B-1. ~~Definition.~~ Definitions.

~~As used in this Chapter, "tuition" shall mean the~~ The following definitions apply in this Chapter:

(1) Permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty. -- A person: (i) who as a law enforcement officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter suffered a disabling injury while in active service or training for active service, (ii) who at the time of active service or training was a North Carolina resident, and (iii) who has been rated permanently and totally disabled for compensation purposes by any of the following as appropriate: the State of North Carolina, the city or county law enforcement agency that employed the person, the administrative agency for the fire department or fire protection district recognized for funding by the State or the administrative agency having jurisdiction over any paid firefighters of all counties and cities.

(2) Survivor. -- Any person whose parent or spouse: (i) was a law enforcement officer, a firefighter, or a volunteer firefighter, (ii) was killed while in active service or training for active service or died as a result of a service-connected disability, and (iii) at the time of active service or training was a North Carolina resident. The term does not include the widow or widower of a law enforcement officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter if the widow or widower has remarried.

(3) Tuition. -- The amount charged for registering for a credit hour of instruction and shall not be construed to mean any other fees or charges or costs of textbooks."

Section 3. G.S. 115B-2 reads as rewritten:

"§ 115B-2. Tuition waiver authorized.

State-supported institutions of higher education, community colleges, industrial education centers and technical institutes, shall permit ~~legal residents of North Carolina who have attained the age of 65~~ the following persons to attend classes for credit or noncredit purposes without the required payment of tuition; provided, however, that such persons meet admission and other standards deemed appropriate by the educational institution, and provided further that such persons shall be accepted by the constituent institutions of the University of North Carolina only on a spaces-available ~~basis.~~ basis:

(1) Legal residents of North Carolina who have attained the age of 65.

(2) Any person who is the survivor of a police officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter killed in the line of duty.

(3) The spouse of a police officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter who is permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty.

(4) Any child, if the child is at least 17 years old but not yet 23 years old, whose parent is a police officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter who is permanently and totally disabled in the line of duty. However, a child's eligibility for a waiver of tuition under this Chapter shall not exceed: (i) 48 months, if the child is seeking a baccalaureate degree, or (ii) if the child is not seeking a baccalaureate degree, the number of months required to complete the educational program to which the child is applying."

Section 4. G.S. 115B-5 reads as rewritten:

"§ 115B-5. Proof of eligibility.

(a) The officials of such institutions charged with administration of this Chapter may require such proof as they deem necessary to insure that ~~the~~ a person applying to the institution as a senior citizen is eligible for the benefits provided by this Chapter.

(b) The officials of such institutions charged with administration of this Chapter shall require the following proof to insure that a person applying to the institution and who requests a tuition waiver under G.S. 115B-2(4),(5), or (6) is eligible for the benefits provided by this Chapter.

(1) The parent-child relationship shall be verified by a birth certificate, legal adoption papers, or other documentary evidence deemed appropriate by the institution.

(2) The marital relationship shall be verified by a marriage certificate or other documentary evidence deemed appropriate by the institution.

(3) The cause of death of the law enforcement officer, firefighter, or volunteer firefighter shall be verified by certification from the records of the Department of State Treasurer, the appropriate city or county law enforcement agency that employed the deceased, the administrative agency for the fire department or fire protection district recognized for funding under the Department of State Auditor, or the administrative agency having jurisdiction over any paid firefighters of all counties and cities.

(4) The permanent and total disability shall be verified by documentation deemed necessary by the institution from any of the following as appropriate: the State of North Carolina, the city or county law enforcement agency that employed the person, the administrative agency for the fire department or fire protection district recognized for funding by the State or the administrative agency having jurisdiction over any paid firefighters of all counties and cities."

Section 5. Chapter 115B is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 115B-5A. Student to be credited for scholarship value.

If a person obtains a tuition waiver under G.S. 115B-2(4),(5), or (6) and the person also receives a cash scholarship paid or payable to the institution, from whatever source, the amount of the scholarship shall be applied to the credit of the person in the payment of incidental expenses of the person's attendance at the institution, and any balance, if the terms of the scholarship permit, shall be returned to the student."

Section 6. This act becomes effective July 1, 1997, and applies to deaths or disabilities occurring on or after that date.

AN ACT TO INCREASE THE PENALTY FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-360 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-360. Cruelty to animals; construction of section.

(a) If any person shall willfully overdrive, overload, wound, injure, ~~torture,~~ ~~torment,~~ or deprive of necessary sustenance, ~~cruelly beat, needlessly mutilate or kill~~ or cause or procure to be overdriven, overloaded, wounded, injured, ~~tortured,~~ ~~tormented,~~ or deprived of necessary sustenance, ~~cruelly beaten, needlessly mutilated or killed as aforesaid, any useful beast, fowl or~~ any animal, every such offender shall for every such offense be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. ~~In this section, and in every law which may be enacted relating to animals, the words "animal" and "dumb animal" shall be held to include every living creature; the words "torture," "torment" or "cruelty" shall be held to include every act, omission or neglect whereby unjustifiable physical pain, suffering or death is caused or permitted. Such terms shall not be construed to prohibit the lawful taking of animals under the jurisdiction and regulation of the Wildlife Resources Commission.~~

(b) If any person shall willfully torture, torment, mutilate, maim, cruelly beat, disfigure, poison, or kill, or cause or procure to be tortured, tormented, mutilated, maimed, cruelly beaten, disfigured, poisoned, or killed, any animal, every such offender shall for every such offense be guilty of a Class I felony. The word 'willfully', as used in this subsection, shall mean an act done intentionally, with bad motive or purpose and without justifiable excuse.

(c) In this section, the term 'animal' shall be held to include every domestic or otherwise useful animal. This section shall not apply to animals under the jurisdiction and regulation of the Wildlife Resources Commission, lawful activities conducted for purposes of biomedical research or training, lawful activities for sport or other lawful entertainment, the production of livestock or poultry, or the lawful destruction of any animal for the purpose of protecting the public, other animals, the public health, or for lawful veterinary purposes."

Section 2. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND VARIOUS RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 26 (b)(4) reads as rewritten:

"(4) Trial Preparation; Experts. -- Discovery of facts known and opinions held by experts, otherwise discoverable under the provisions of subsection (b)(1) of this rule and acquired or developed in anticipation of litigation or for trial, may be obtained only as follows:

a. 1. A party may through interrogatories require any other party to identify each person whom the other party expects to call as an expert witness at trial, to state the subject matter on which the expert is expected to testify, and to state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and a summary of the grounds for each opinion.

1a. Subject to the provisions of subdivision (b)(4)b. and subsection (c) of this rule, a party may take the deposition of an expert under the provisions of Rule 30 when the expert has been identified as a person another party expects to call as an expert witness at trial. The expert may be compelled to produce evidence under the provisions of Rule 45, including facts or data underlying any opinion that may be offered as evidence under Rule 705 of the North Carolina Rules of Evidence.

2. Upon motion, the court may order further discovery by other means, subject to such restrictions as to scope and such provisions, pursuant to subdivision ~~(b)(4)e~~ (b)(4)b. of this rule, concerning fees and expenses as the court may deem appropriate.

b. Unless manifest injustice would result, (i) the court shall require that the party seeking discovery pay the expert a reasonable fee for time spent in responding to discovery under subdivision (b)(4)a2 of this rule; and (ii) with respect to discovery obtained under subdivision (b)(4)a2 of this rule the court may require the party seeking discovery to pay the other party a fair portion of the fees and expenses reasonably incurred by the latter party in obtaining facts and opinions from the expert."

Section 2. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 30(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) Examination and cross-examination; record of examination; oath; objections.

(1) Examination and cross-examination of witnesses may proceed as permitted at the trial under the provisions of Rule 43(b). The person before whom the deposition is to be taken shall put the deponent on oath and shall personally, or by someone acting under his or her direction and in his or her presence, record the testimony of the deponent. The testimony shall be taken stenographically or recorded by any other means ordered in accordance with ~~subsection~~ subdivision (b)(4) of this rule. If requested by one of the parties, the testimony shall be transcribed.

(2) Any objection to evidence during a deposition shall be stated concisely and in a nonargumentative and nonsuggestive manner. A party may instruct a deponent not to answer for any one or more of the following reasons only: when necessary to preserve a privilege, to enforce a limitation on evidence directed by the court, or to present a motion under subdivision (d)(2) of this rule. All objections made at the time of the examination to the qualifications of the person before whom the deposition is taken, or to the manner of taking it, or to the evidence presented, or to the conduct of any party, and any other objection to the proceedings, shall be noted upon the deposition by the person before whom the deposition is taken. Subject to any limitations imposed by orders entered pursuant to Rule 26(c) or 30(d), evidence objected to shall be taken subject to the objections. In lieu of participating in the oral examination, parties may serve written questions in a sealed envelope on the party who served the notice of taking the deposition, and ~~he~~ that party shall transmit them to the person before whom the deposition is to be taken who shall open them at the deposition, propound them to the witness and record the answers verbatim."

Section 3. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 30(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) Motion to terminate or limit examination. --

(1) By order or local rule, the court may limit the time permitted for conducting a deposition. The court shall allow additional time when needed for a fair examination of the deponent or when a deponent or other party impedes or delays the examination. If the court finds such an impediment, delay, or other conduct has frustrated the fair examination of the deponent, it may impose an appropriate sanction upon the persons responsible for that conduct, including reasonable costs and attorneys' fees incurred by a party as a result of that conduct.

(2) At any time during the taking of the deposition, on motion of a party or of the deponent and upon a showing that the examination is being conducted in bad faith or in such manner as unreasonably to annoy, embarrass, or oppress the deponent or party, a judge of the court in which the action is pending or any judge in the county where the deposition is being taken may order before whom the examination is being taken to cease forthwith from taking the deposition, or may limit the scope and manner of the taking of the deposition as provided in Rule 26(c). If the order made terminates the examination, it shall be resumed thereafter only upon the order of a judge of the court in which the action is pending. Upon demand of the objecting party or deponent, the taking of the deposition shall be suspended for the time necessary to make a motion for an order. The provisions of Rule 37(a)(4) apply to the award of expenses incurred in relation to the motion."

Section 4. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 46 reads as rewritten:

"Rule 46. Objections and exceptions.

(a) Rulings on admissibility of evidence. --

(1) When there is objection to the admission of evidence on the ground that the witness is for a specified reason incompetent or not qualified or disqualified, it shall be deemed that a like objection has been made to any subsequent admission of evidence from the witness in question. Similarly, when there is objection to the admission of evidence involving a specified line of questioning, it shall be deemed that a like objection has been taken to any subsequent admission of evidence involving the same line of questioning.

(2) If there is proper objection to the admission of evidence and the objection is overruled, the ruling of the court shall be deemed excepted to by the party making the objection. If an objection to the admission of evidence is sustained or if the court for any reason excludes evidence offered by a party, the ruling of the court shall be deemed excepted to by the party offering the evidence.

(3) No objections are necessary with respect to questions propounded to a witness by the court or a juror but it shall be deemed that each such question has been properly objected to and that the objection has been overruled and that an exception has been taken to the ruling of the court by all parties to the action.

(b) ~~Rulings~~ Pretrial rulings, interlocutory orders, trial rulings, and other orders not directed to the admissibility of evidence. -- With respect to ~~rulings~~ pretrial rulings, interlocutory orders, trial rulings, and other orders of the court not directed to the admissibility of evidence, formal objections and exceptions are ~~unnecessary.~~ unnecessary and are deemed to be preserved until entry of final judgment. In order to preserve an exception to any such ruling or order or to the court's failure to make any such ruling or order, it shall be sufficient if a party, at the time the ruling or order is made or sought, makes known to the court ~~his~~ the party's objection to the action of the court or makes known the action ~~which he~~ that the party desires the court to take and ~~his ground therefor;~~ the party's grounds for this action; and if a party has no opportunity to object or except to a ruling or order at the time it is made, the absence of an objection or exception does not thereafter prejudice ~~him.~~ that party. In order to preserve these rulings and orders for appellate review, a party shall present to the court a timely request, objection, or motion, stating the specific grounds for the ruling that the party desires the court to make, and shall obtain a ruling upon the party's request, objection, or motion.

(c) ~~Instruction. -- If there is error, either in the refusal of the judge to grant a prayer for instructions, or in granting a prayer, or in his instructions generally, the same is deemed excepted to without the filing of any formal objections.~~"

Section 5. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 55(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Judgment. -- Judgment by default may be entered as follows:

(1) By the Clerk. -- When the plaintiff's claim against a defendant is for a sum certain or for a sum which can by computation be made certain, the clerk upon request of the plaintiff and upon affidavit of the amount due shall enter judgment for that amount and costs against the defendant, if ~~he~~ the defendant has been defaulted for failure to appear and if ~~he~~ the defendant is not an infant or incompetent person. A verified pleading may be used in lieu of an affidavit when the pleading contains information sufficient to determine or compute the sum certain.

In all cases wherein, pursuant to this rule, the clerk enters judgment by default upon a claim for debt which is secured by any pledge, mortgage, deed of trust or other contractual security in respect of which foreclosure may be had, or upon a claim to enforce a lien for unpaid taxes or assessments under G.S. 105-414, the clerk may likewise make all further orders required to consummate foreclosure in accordance with the procedure provided in Article 29A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, entitled 'Judicial Sales.'

(2) By the Judge. --

a. In all other cases the party entitled to a judgment by default shall apply to the judge therefor; but no judgment by default shall be entered against an infant or incompetent person unless represented in the action by a guardian ad litem or other such representative who has appeared therein. If the party against whom judgment by default is sought has appeared in the action, ~~he~~ that party (or, if appearing by representative, ~~his~~ the representative) shall be served with written notice of the application for judgment at least three days prior to the hearing on such application. If, in order to enable the judge to enter judgment or to carry it into effect, it is necessary to take an account or to determine the amount of damages or to establish the truth of any averment by evidence or to take an investigation of any other matter, the judge may conduct such hearings or order such references as ~~he~~ the judge deems necessary and proper and shall accord a right of trial by jury to the parties when and as required by the Constitution or by any statute of North Carolina. If the plaintiff seeks to establish paternity under Article 3 of Chapter 49 of the General Statutes and the defendant fails to appear, the judge shall enter judgment by default.

b. Motions for judgment by default will be decided by the court without oral argument when the party seeking judgment by default specifically provides in a motion that judgment by default will be decided by the court without oral argument if the party against whom judgment is sought fails to respond in writing. This subdivision does not apply when (i) the party against whom judgment is sought serves a written response stating that party's grounds for opposition to the motion within 30 days of service of the motion, or (ii) the court orders oral argument."

Section 6. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to causes of action commencing on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND VARIOUS RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 26 (b)(4) reads as rewritten:

"(4) Trial Preparation; Experts. -- Discovery of facts known and opinions held by experts, otherwise discoverable under the provisions of subsection (b)(1) of this rule and acquired or developed in anticipation of litigation or for trial, may be obtained only as follows:

a. 1. A party may through interrogatories require any other party to identify each person whom the other party expects to call as an expert witness at trial, to state the subject matter on which the expert is expected to testify, and to state the substance of the facts and opinions to which the expert is expected to testify and a summary of the grounds for each opinion.

1a. Subject to the provisions of subdivision (b)(4)b. and subsection (c) of this rule, a party may take the deposition of an expert under the provisions of Rule 30 when the expert has been identified as a person another party expects to call as an expert witness at trial. The expert may be compelled to produce evidence under the provisions of Rule 45, including facts or data underlying any opinion that may be offered as evidence under Rule 705 of the North Carolina Rules of Evidence.

2. Upon motion, the court may order further discovery by other means, subject to such restrictions as to scope and such provisions, pursuant to subdivision ~~(b)(4)e~~ (b)(4)b. of this rule, concerning fees and expenses as the court may deem appropriate.

b. Unless manifest injustice would result, (i) the court shall require that the party seeking discovery pay the expert a reasonable fee for time spent in responding to discovery under subdivision (b)(4)a2 of this rule; and (ii) with respect to discovery obtained under subdivision (b)(4)a2 of this rule the court may require the party seeking discovery to pay the other party a fair portion of the fees and expenses reasonably incurred by the latter party in obtaining facts and opinions from the expert."

Section 2. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 30(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) Examination and cross-examination; record of examination; oath; objections.

(1) Examination and cross-examination of witnesses may proceed as permitted at the trial under the provisions of Rule 43(b). The person before whom the deposition is to be taken shall put the deponent on oath and shall personally, or by someone acting under his or her direction and in his or her presence, record the testimony of the deponent. The testimony shall be taken stenographically or recorded by any other means ordered in accordance with ~~subsection~~ subdivision (b)(4) of this rule. If requested by one of the parties, the testimony shall be transcribed.

(2) Any objection to evidence during a deposition shall be stated concisely and in a nonargumentative and nonsuggestive manner. A party may instruct a deponent not to answer for any one or more of the following reasons only: when necessary to preserve a privilege, to enforce a limitation on evidence directed by the court, or to present a motion under subdivision (d)(2) of this rule. All objections made at the time of the examination to the qualifications of the person before whom the deposition is taken, or to the manner of taking it, or to the evidence presented, or to the conduct of any party, and any other objection to the proceedings, shall be noted upon the deposition by the person before whom the deposition is taken. Subject to any limitations imposed by orders entered pursuant to Rule 26(c) or 30(d), evidence objected to shall be taken subject to the objections. In lieu of participating in the oral examination, parties may serve written questions in a sealed envelope on the party who served the notice of taking the deposition, and ~~he~~ that party shall transmit them to the person before whom the deposition is to be taken who shall open them at the deposition, propound them to the witness and record the answers verbatim."

Section 3. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 30(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) Motion to terminate or limit examination. --

(1) By order or local rule, the court may limit the time permitted for conducting a deposition. The court shall allow additional time when needed for a fair examination of the deponent or when a deponent or other party impedes or delays the examination. If the court finds such an impediment, delay, or other conduct has frustrated the fair examination of the deponent, it may impose an appropriate sanction upon the persons responsible for that conduct, including reasonable costs and attorneys' fees incurred by a party as a result of that conduct.

(2) At any time during the taking of the deposition, on motion of a party or of the deponent and upon a showing that the examination is being conducted in bad faith or in such manner as unreasonably to annoy, embarrass, or oppress the deponent or party, a judge of the court in which the action is pending or any judge in the county where the deposition is being taken may order before whom the examination is being taken to cease forthwith from taking the deposition, or may limit the scope and manner of the taking of the deposition as provided in Rule 26(c). If the order made terminates the examination, it shall be resumed thereafter only upon the order of a judge of the court in which the action is pending. Upon demand of the objecting party or deponent, the taking of the deposition shall be suspended for the time necessary to make a motion for an order. The provisions of Rule 37(a)(4) apply to the award of expenses incurred in relation to the motion."

Section 4. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 46 reads as rewritten:

"Rule 46. Objections and exceptions.

(a) Rulings on admissibility of evidence. --

(1) When there is objection to the admission of evidence on the ground that the witness is for a specified reason incompetent or not qualified or disqualified, it shall be deemed that a like objection has been made to any subsequent admission of evidence from the witness in question. Similarly, when there is objection to the admission of evidence involving a specified line of questioning, it shall be deemed that a like objection has been taken to any subsequent admission of evidence involving the same line of questioning.

(2) If there is proper objection to the admission of evidence and the objection is overruled, the ruling of the court shall be deemed excepted to by the party making the objection. If an objection to the admission of evidence is sustained or if the court for any reason excludes evidence offered by a party, the ruling of the court shall be deemed excepted to by the party offering the evidence.

(3) No objections are necessary with respect to questions propounded to a witness by the court or a juror but it shall be deemed that each such question has been properly objected to and that the objection has been overruled and that an exception has been taken to the ruling of the court by all parties to the action.

(b) ~~Rulings~~ Pretrial rulings, interlocutory orders, trial rulings, and other orders not directed to the admissibility of evidence. -- With respect to ~~rulings~~ pretrial rulings, interlocutory orders, trial rulings, and other orders of the court not directed to the admissibility of evidence, formal objections and exceptions are ~~unnecessary.~~ unnecessary and are deemed to be preserved until entry of final judgment. A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY THE AUTHORITY OF THE SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION COMMISSION TO CONDUCT INSPECTIONS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 143B-294 reads as rewritten:

"§ 143B-294. Soil and Water Conservation Commission -- creation; powers and ~~duties.~~ duties; compliance inspections.

(a) There is hereby created the Soil and Water Conservation Commission of the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources with the power and duty to adopt rules to be followed in the development and implementation of a soil and water conservation program.

(1) The Soil and Water Conservation Commission has all of the following powers and duties:

a. To approve petitions for soil conservation ~~districts;~~ districts.

b. To approve application for watershed ~~plans; and~~ plans.

c. Such other duties as specified in Chapter 139.

d. To conduct any inspections consistent with subsection (b) of this section for inspections it deems reasonably necessary to carry out its duties.

(2) The Commission shall adopt rules consistent with the provisions of this Chapter. All rules not inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter heretofore adopted by the Soil and Water Conservation Committee shall remain in full force and effect unless and until repealed or superseded by action of the Soil and Water Conservation Commission. All rules adopted by the Commission shall be enforced by the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources.

(b) Inspections authorized by subsubsection (1)d. of this section may be conducted by authorized representatives of the Commission. When conducting inspections, the Commission may enter at reasonable times upon any property, public or private, for the purpose of investigating compliance with Commission or Department programs.

(c) No person shall refuse entry or access to a person who requests entry for the purposes of an inspection under this section and who presents appropriate credentials. Any person who refuses entry or access to a person conducting an inspection or obstructs, hampers, or interferes with any such person while that person is in the process of carrying out official duties shall, notwithstanding G.S. 15A-1340.23, be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment not to exceed 90 days, or by a fine not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000), or both."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law, except G.S. 143B-294(c), as enacted by Section 1 of this act, becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE PROVISIONS FOR THE RESIGNATION, REMOVAL, AND RENUNCIATION OF TRUSTEES AND FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF SUCCESSOR TRUSTEES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 3 of Chapter 36A of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"ARTICLE 3.

~~"Resignation, Removal, and Renunciation of Trustees.~~ "Trust Administration."

~~"§ 36A-22. Applicability of this Article.~~

~~(a) Except when otherwise provided by law, the term "trustee," as used in this Article, includes "trustees," "guardians," and other fiduciaries.~~

~~(b) The resignation, removal, and renunciation of personal representatives and collectors shall be governed by the provisions of Articles 5, 9, and 10 of Chapter 28A.~~

~~(c) The substitution of trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust shall be governed by the provisions of G.S. 45-10.~~

"§ 36A-22.1. Definitions.

As used in this Article:

(1) 'Beneficiary' means a person who has any present or future interest, vested or contingent, in a trust, including (i) the owner of an interest by assignment or other transfer and (ii) any person entitled to enforce a charitable trust.

(2) 'Fiduciary' includes personal representatives, guardians of the person, guardians of the estate, attorneys-in-fact, and trustees.

(3) 'Interested person' includes creditors, beneficiaries, and any others having a property right in or a claim against a trust estate which may be affected by the proceeding. The term also includes fiduciaries representing interested persons. The meaning of the term as it relates to particular persons may vary from time to time and must be determined according to the particular purposes of and matter involved in a particular proceeding.

(4) 'Person' means an individual person, a corporation, an organization, or other legal entity.

(5) 'Trust' includes any express trust, private or charitable, with additions to the trust, wherever and however created. The term also includes a trust created for or determined by judgment or decree under which the trust is to be administered in the manner of an express trust. The term does not include other constructive trusts, resulting trusts, conservatorships, personal representatives, trust accounts as defined in G.S. 53-146.2, 54-109.57, and 54B-129, custodial arrangements pursuant to G.S. 33A-1 through G.S. 33A-24 and G.S. 33B-1 through G.S. 33B-22, business trust providing for certificates to be issued t beneficiaries, common trust funds, voting trusts, security arrangements, liquidation trusts, and trusts for the primary purpose of paying debts, dividends, interest, salaries, wages, profits, pensions, or employee benefits of any kind, or any arrangement under which a person is nominee or escrowee for another.

(6) 'Trustee' includes an original, additional, or successor trustee, whether or not appointed or confirmed by a court. The term does not include trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust. Substitution of trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust are governed by the provisions of G.S. 45-10.

~~"§ 36A-23. Clerk's power to accept resignations.~~

~~The clerks of superior courts of this State have power and jurisdiction to accept the resignation of trustees and to appoint their successors in the manner provided by this Article.~~

"§ 36A-23.1. Court; jurisdiction of trusts.

(a) The clerks of superior court of this State have original jurisdiction over proceedings initiated by interested persons concerning the internal affairs of trusts. Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, the clerk's jurisdiction is exclusive. Proceedings that may be maintained under this section are those concerning the administration and distribution of trusts, the declaration of rights, and the determination of other matters involving trustees and trust beneficiaries, to the extent that those matters are not otherwise provided for in the governing instrument. These include proceedings:

(1) To appoint or remove a trustee;

(2) To review trustees' fees and review and settle interim or final accounts; and

(3) To ascertain beneficiaries, to determine any question arising in the administration or distribution of any trust, including questions of construction of trust instruments, and to determine the existence or nonexistence of any immunity, power, privilege, duty, or right. The clerk and all interested persons may agree that a proceeding to determine an issue listed in this subdivision shall be originally heard by the superior court.

(b) Nothing in this section affects the right of a person to file an action for declaratory relief under the provisions of Article 26 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, and jurisdiction granted to the clerk under this section is concurrent with that of the court under that Article.

(c) To the extent that the procedures in this Article for proceedings before the clerk concerning the administration of trusts conflict with the procedures for other special proceedings heard by the clerk, the provisions of this Article control.

(d) A proceeding under this section does not result in continuing supervisory proceedings.

(e) The management and distribution of a trust estate, submission of accounts and reports to beneficiaries, payment of trustees' fees and other obligations of a trust, acceptance and change of trusteeship, and other aspects of the administration of a trust shall proceed expeditiously, consistent with the terms of the trust, free of judicial intervention and without order, approval, or other action of any court, subject to the jurisdiction of the clerk as invoked by interested parties or as otherwise exercised as provided by law. Nothing in this section shall be construed (i) to confer upon the clerk any authority to regulate or supervise the actions of a trustee except to the extent that the trustee's actions are inconsistent with the provisions of the governing instrument or of State law, or (ii) to confer upon any interested person any additional right, remedy, or cause of action not otherwise conferred by law.

~~"§ 36A-24. Petition; contents and verification.~~

~~When any trustee desires to resign his trust, he shall file his petition in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county in which he qualified or in which the instrument under which he claims is registered. The petition shall set forth all the facts in connection with the appointment and qualifications as such trustee, with a copy of the instrument under which he acts; shall state the names, ages, and residences of all the beneficiaries and other parties interested in the trust estate; shall contain a full and complete statement of all debts or liabilities due by the estate, and a full and complete statement of all assets belonging to said estate, and a full and complete statement of all moneys, securities, or assets in the hands of the trustee and due the estate, together with a full statement of~~

~~the reasons the applicant should be permitted to resign his trust. The petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant.~~

"§ 36A-24.1. Trust proceedings; venue.

(a) If the trustee is required to account to the clerk, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, venue for proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving trusts is the place where the accountings are filed.

(b) If the trustee is not required to account to the clerk, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, venue for proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving trusts is in any county of this State in which the trust has its principal place of administration or where any beneficiary resides. Unless otherwise designated in the governing instrument, the principal place of administration of the trust is the trustee's usual place of business where the records pertaining to the trust are kept, or at the trustee's residence if the trustee has no such place of business. In the case of cotrustees, the principal place of administration, if not otherwise designated in the governing instrument, is:

(1) The usual place of business of the corporate trustee if there is but one corporate cotrustee;

(2) The usual place of business or residence of the individual trustee who is a professional fiduciary if there is but one such person and no corporate trustee; or

(3) The usual place of business or residence of any of the cotrustees as agreed upon by the cotrustees.

~~"§ 36A-25. Parties; hearing; successor appointed.~~

~~Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding, with the trustee as plaintiff and the beneficiaries as defendants, and shall issue the summons for the defendants, and the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings. If any of the defendants be nonresidents, summons may be served by publication; and if any be infants, a guardian ad litem must be appointed by the court to represent their interests in the manner now provided by law. The beneficiaries, creditors, or any other person interested in the trust estate, have the right to answer the petition and to offer evidence why the prayer of the petition should not be granted.~~

~~The clerk shall then proceed to hear and determine the matter, and if it appears to the court that the best interests of the creditors and the beneficiaries demand that the resignation of the trustee be accepted, or if it appears to the court that sufficient reasons exist for allowing the resignation, and that the resignation can be allowed without prejudice to the rights of creditors or the beneficiaries, the clerk may, in the exercise of his discretion, allow the applicant to resign; and in such case the clerk shall proceed to appoint the successor of the petitioner in the manner provided in this Article.~~

"§ 36A-25.1. Trust proceedings; dismissal of matters relating to foreign trusts.

The clerk of superior court shall not, over the objection of a party, entertain proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving a trust having its principal place of administration in another state, except:

(1) When all appropriate parties could not be bound by litigation in the courts of the state where the trust has its principal place of administration; or

(2) When the interests of justice otherwise would be seriously impaired.

The clerk may condition a stay or dismissal of a proceeding under this section on the consent of any party to jurisdiction of the state in which the trust has its principal place of administration, or the clerk may grant a continuance or enter any other appropriate order.

~~"§ 36A-26. Resignation allowed; costs; judge's approval.~~

~~In making an order allowing the trustee to resign, the clerk shall make such order concerning the costs of the proceedings and commissions to the trustee as may be just. If there is no appeal from the decision and order of the clerk within the time prescribed by law, the proceedings shall be submitted to the judge of the superior court and approved by him before the same shall become effective.~~

"§ 36A-26.1. Concurrent jurisdiction of clerk of court over litigation involving trusts and third parties.

The clerk of superior court has concurrent jurisdiction with other courts of this State over actions and proceedings to determine the existence or nonexistence of trusts created other than by will, of actions by or against creditors or debtors o trusts, and of other actions and proceedings involving trustees and third parties. Venue is determined by the rules generally applicable to civil actions.

"§ 36A-26.2. Trust proceedings; necessary parties.

Proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 and proceedings under G.S. 36A-26.1, if brought before the clerk, are initiated by filing a petition in the office of the clerk of superior court. Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding. The clerk shall issue summons which shall notify the defendant or defendants to appear and answer the petition within 10 days after its service. The summons must contain a notice stating that if the defendant or defendants fail to answer the petition within the time specified, the plaintiff or plaintiffs will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the petition. The manner of service shall be as is prescribed by Rule 4 of the Rules of Civil Procedure. All remaining procedures shall be governed by the Rules of Civil Procedure, except as otherwise provided in special proceedings.

"§ 36A-26.3. Waiver of notice.

An interested person, or a person representing an interested person as provided in G.S. 36A-26.4, may waive notice by a writing signed by the person or the person's attorney and filed in the proceeding.

"§ 36A-26.4. When parties represented by others.

In proceedings involving trusts, the following rules apply:

(1) Interests to be affected shall be described in pleadings that give reasonable information to interested persons by name or class, by reference to the instrument creating the interests, or in some other appropriate manner.

(2) Interested persons shall be represented by others in the following cases:

a. The sole holder or all coholders of a power of revocation or a presently exercisable general power of appointment, including one in the form of a power of amendment, shall represent other persons to the extent that their interests, as objects, takers in default, or otherwise, are subject to the power.

b. To the extent that there is no conflict of interest between the interested person and the person representing the interested person, or among persons represented, a guardian of the estate shall represent the person whose estate the guardian controls; a guardian of the person shall represent the ward if no guardian of the ward's estate has been appointed; a trustee shall represent beneficiaries of the trust in proceedings to probate a will establishing or adding to the trust, to review the acts or accounts of a prior fiduciary, and in other proceedings involving creditors or other third parties; and a personal representative shall represent persons interested in the undistributed assets of the decedent's estate in actions or proceedings by or against the estate. If there is n conflict of interest and no guardian of th estate or guardian of the person has been appointed, a parent shall represent a minor child.

c. At any point in a proceeding, a clerk may allow an attorney-in-fact to represent the attorney-in-fact's principal, provided that, if the principal is incapacitated, the power of attorney is durable as defined in G.S. 32A-8, and provided that the power of attorney grants to the attorney-in-fact either (i) the authority to do, execute, or perform any act that the principal might or could do or otherwise evidences the principal's intent to give the attorney-in-fact full power to handle the principal's affairs or deal with the principal's property; (ii) the powers described under G.S. 32A-2(2) and G.S. 32A-2(8) and, if interests in real property are affected, the powers described in G.S. 32A-2(1); or (iii) other direct or indirec authority the clerk deems sufficient in the clerk's discretion.

(3) At any point in the proceeding, the clerk may appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the interest of a minor, an incapacitated, unborn, or unascertained person, or a person whose identity is unknown, if the clerk determines that representation of the interest otherwise would be inadequate. If not precluded by a conflict of interest, a guardian ad litem may be appointed to represent several persons or interests. The clerk shall set forth the clerk's reasons for appointing a guardian ad litem as a part of the record of the proceedings.

(4) An order binding a person who represents an interested person binds the interested person.

"§ 36A-27. Appeal; stay effected by appeal.

Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the ~~judge at chambers,~~ superior court. ~~and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law.~~ If ~~the clerk allows the resignation, and~~ an appeal is taken from ~~his decision,~~ the decision of the clerk, such appeal shall ~~have the effect to~~ stay the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the ~~judge~~ superior court upon the appeal taken. To the extent that the procedure for an appeal from an order of the clerk concerning administration of a trust provided under this Article conflicts with the procedure for appeal from orders of the clerk in other matters, the provisions of this Article control.

"§ 36A-28. On appeal judge determines facts.

Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the ~~judge,~~ superior court, the judge shall have the power to review the findings of fact made by the clerk and to find the facts or to take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the appellate division.

"§ 36A-29. Final accounting before resignation.

~~No~~ If the trustee is required to account to the clerk of superior court, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, no trustee shall be ~~allowed or~~ permitted to resign ~~his trust~~ as trustee until ~~he shall first file with the~~ ~~court his~~ a final account of the trust ~~estate,~~ estate is filed with the clerk, and until the court shall be satisfied that the ~~said~~ account is true and correct.

~~"§ 36A-30. Resignation effective on settlement with successor.~~

~~In case the resignation of the trustee is accepted by the court, the resignation shall not release or discharge the trustee from liability, until he shall have filed an account acceptable to his successor in full for all moneys, securities, property, or other assets or things of value in his possession or under his control or which should be in his possession or under his control belonging to the trust estate, and such account has been approved by the court.~~

"§ 36A-30.1. Limitations on proceedings by beneficiaries against trustees.

Unless previously barred by adjudication, consent, or limitation, any claim against a trustee for breach of trust is barred as to any beneficiary who has received a final account or other statement fully disclosing the matter and showing termination of the trust relationship between the trustee and the beneficiary unless a proceeding to assert the claim is commenced within one year after receipt of the final account or statement. In any event, and notwithstanding the trustee's failure to make full disclosure, a beneficiary's claim for breach of trust is barred three years from the date upon which the beneficiary received a final account or statement issued by the trustee and the trustee informed the beneficiary of the location and availability of records for the beneficiary's examination. A beneficiary is deemed to have received a final account or statement if an adult beneficiary receives the account or statement personally and if the representative of a minor or disabled beneficiary as described in G.S. 36A-26.4 receives the account or statement.

"§ 36A-31. ~~Court to appoint successor; when~~ When bond required.

~~If the court shall allow any trustee to resign his trust upon compliance with the provisions of this Article, it shall be the duty of the court to proceed to appoint some fit and suitable person as the successor of such trustee; and the court shall require the person so appointed to give bond with sufficient surety, approved by the court,~~ A trustee need not provide bond to secure performance of the trustee's duties unless required by th terms of the governing instrument, or found by the clerk to be necessary to protect the interests of beneficiaries who are not able to protect themselves and whose interests otherwise are not adequately represented. However, in no event shall bond be required if the governing instrument directs otherwise. On petition of the trustee or other interested person, the clerk may excuse a requirement of bond, reduce the amount of the bond, release the surety, or permit the substitution of another bond with the same or different sureties. If bond is required, it shall be in a sum double the value of the personal property to come into ~~his~~ the trustee's hands when bond is executed by a personal ~~surety~~ surety, and in an amount not less than one and one-fourth times the value of all personal property of the ~~decedent~~ trust estate when the bond is secured by a suretyship bond executed by a corporate surety company authorized by the Commissioner of Insurance to do business in this State, provided that the clerk of superior court, when the value of the personal property exceeds one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), may accept bond in an amount equal to the value of the personal property plus ten percent (10%) thereof, conditioned upon the faithful performance of ~~his~~ the trustee's duties ~~as such trustee~~ and for the payment to the persons entitled to receive ~~the same of~~ all moneys, assets, or other things of value which may come into ~~his hands; provided, that where by the terms of the creating instrument the trustee who has resigned was not required to give bond and did not give bond and an intent is expressed in the creating instrument that a successor trustee shall serve without bond, or where the clerk, upon due investigation finds that bond is not necessary for the protection of the estate, the clerk, with the approval of the judge, upon the petition of any party in interest, may waive the requirement of a bond for the successor trustee and permit said successor trustee to serve without bond.~~ the trustee's hands. All bonds executed under the provisions of this Article shall be filed with the clerk.

"§ 36A-32. Rights and duties devolve on successor.

~~Upon the acceptance by the court of the resignation of any trustee, and upon the appointment by the court of his successor in the manner provided by this Article, the~~ A successor trustee shall succeed to all the rights, powers, and privileges, and shall be subject to all the duties, liabilities, and responsibilities that were imposed upon the original trustee unless a contrary intent appears from the ~~creating~~ governing instrument.

"~~§~~ 36A-33. Appointment of ~~successors to deceased or incapacitated trustees.~~ successor trustee on clerk's own motion.

~~Upon the death or incapacity of a trustee, a new trustee may be appointed on application by any beneficiary, or other interested persons, by petition to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument under which the deceased or incapacitated trustee claimed is registered, making all necessary parties defendants. The clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding and issue summons for the defendants, and the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings. If any of the defendants be nonresidents, summons may be served by publication; and if any be infants, a guardian ad litem must be appointed. The beneficiaries, creditors, or any other persons interested in the trust estate shall have the right to answer the petition and to offer evidence why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. After hearing the matter, the clerk may appoint the person so named in the petition, or he may appoint some other fit and suitable person or corporation to act as the successor of the deceased or incapacitated trustee; and the clerk shall require the person so appointed to give bond as required in G.S. 36A-31; provided, that where by the terms of the instrument upon which the deceased or incapacitated trustee claimed, said trustee was not required to give bond and did not give bond and an intent is expressed in the creating instrument that a successor trustee shall serve without bond, or where the clerk upon due investigation, finds that bond is not necessary for the protection of the estate, the requirement of a bond for the successor trustee may be waived as provided in G.S. 36A-31. Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk as provided in G.S. 36A-27 and 36A-28.~~

~~Nothing~~ Unless the governing instrument provides otherwise, if the trustee is required to account to the clerk of court, nothing in this ~~section~~ Article shall be construed to limit the authority of the clerk ~~of superior court~~ to appoint a successor trustee to a deceased or incapacitated trustee upon ~~his~~ the clerk's own motion.

~~(a) Any person or corporation named as trustee in any will admitted to probate in this State, or any substitute trustee, may at any time prior to qualifying as required by G.S. 36A-107 or taking any action as trustee if such qualification is not required, and whether or not such person or corporation is entitled to so qualify or act, renounce such trusteeship by a writing filed with the clerk of superior court of the county in which the will is admitted to probate. Upon receipt of such renunciation the clerk shall give notice thereof to all persons interested in the trust, including successor or substitute trustees named in the will, which notice shall also comply with the requirements of subsection (e) of this section.~~

~~(b) If the will names or identifies a substitute trustee in case of renunciation, the provisions of the will shall be complied with, and the clerk shall enter an appropriate order appointing the substitute trustee in accordance therewith unless the substitute trustee also renounces. A substitute trustee so named shall succeed to the office of trustee upon the date of the order of appointment by the clerk unless the will provides otherwise.~~

~~(c) If the will does not name or identify a substitute trustee in case of renunciation, and it appears that a substitute trustee should be appointed, the clerk shall appoint some fit and suitable person or corporation as substitute trustee. If the will does not name or identify a substitute trustee, but contains provisions regarding the selection of a substitute trustee, such provisions shall be complied with unless the clerk determines that such provisions would result in the selection of an unfit or unsuitable trustee. A substitute trustee so appointed shall succeed to the office of trustee upon the date of the order of appointment unless the will provides otherwise.~~

~~(d) A substitute trustee shall, upon succeeding to the office of trustee, unless the will provides otherwise, have such powers and duties and be vested with the title to the property included in the trust, as if the substitute trustee had been originally named in the will.~~

~~(e) Each notice required by this section shall be written notice, and shall identify the proceeding and apprise the person to be notified of the nature of the action to be taken. Service of such notice may be in the same manner as is provided for~~

~~service of notice in civil actions, or by mailing the notice to the person to be notified at his last known address. Service of notice must be completed not less than 10 days prior to the date the hearing is held or the action is taken. Service by mail shall be complete upon deposit of the notice enclosed in a postpaid, properly addressed wrapper in a post office or official depository under the exclusive care and custody of the United States Post Office Department.~~

~~(f) The clerk of superior court shall file, docket, and index all proceedings pursuant to this section in the same manner as special proceedings, and shall also enter with the will a notation that the trustee has renounced and a reference to the file, or other place where the record may be found.~~

~~"§ 36A-35. Removal of trustee.~~

~~Any beneficiary, cotrustee or other person interested in the trust estate may file a petition in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county having jurisdiction over the administration of the trust for the removal of a trustee or cotrustee who fails to comply with the requirements of this Chapter or a court order, or who is otherwise unsuitable to continue in office. Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding, with the petitioner as plaintiff. All known beneficiaries, trustees, or cotrustees not joined as plaintiffs shall be joined as defendants. Upon proper notice and hearing, the clerk may, in the exercise of his discretion, order the removal of the trustee or cotrustee and proceed to appoint a successor. The procedure for notice, hearing, appeals, and the effective date of the order, shall be in accord with that provided for in the case of a resignation of a trustee and the appointment of a successor in G.S. 36A-24 through 36A-32.~~

~~Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the authority of the clerk of superior court to remove a trustee or cotrustee for failure to comply with the requirements of this Chapter or a court order, or who is otherwise unsuitable to continue in office.~~

"§ 36A-36. Appointment of special trustee.

If it appears necessary to the protection of the trust estate, the clerk of superior court having jurisdiction ~~of~~ over the administration of the trust may appoint a special trustee until successor trustee can be appointed or, where a trust has terminated, to distribute the assets. A special trustee may be appointed without notice and may be removed whenever the court so orders. The special trustee shall give such bond, if any, as the court may require and shall have the powers conferred by the order of appointment.

"§ 36A-37. Consolidation, merger, reorganization, reincorporation, or transfer of assets and liabilities by a corporate trustee.

Whenever any corporate trustee doing business in this State shall consolidate or merge with or shall sell to and transfer its assets and liabilities to any other corporation, or where such corporate trustee is in any manner reorganized or ~~reincorporated~~ reincorporated, all existing rights, powers, duties, and liabilities of such consolidating, merging, transferring, reorganizing or reincorporating corporation as trustee shall, upon the effective date of such consolidation, merger, reorganization or reincorporation, or sale and transfer, vest in and devolve upon the transferee corporation or the consolidated, merged, reorganized or reincorporated corporation in the manner prescribed in G.S. 53-17.

~~"§ 36A-38. Powers of successor trustee.~~

~~Unless otherwise provided in the creating instrument, all powers conferred upon the trustee by such instrument attached to the office, as provided in G.S. 36A-72, and are exercisable by the trustee from time to time holding the office.~~

"§ 36A-39. Powers of cotrustees.

Unless otherwise provided in the ~~creating~~ governing instrument, if one of several trustees dies, resigns, or is removed, the remaining trustees shall have all rights, title, and powers of all the original trustees. If the ~~creating~~ governing instrument manifests an intent that a successor trustee be appointed to fill a vacancy, the remaining trustees may exercise the powers of all the original trustees until such time as a successor is ~~appointed.~~ appointed, except those powers which the remaining trustees are prohibited from exercising under the governing instrument or by law.

"§ 36A-40. Vesting of title.

A special or successor trustee is vested with the title of the ~~original~~ predecessor trustee. A predecessor trustee ~~who resigns,~~

~~is removed, or is otherwise severed from his office~~ shall execute such documents transferring title to trust property as may be appropriate to facilitate administration of the trust and upon ~~his~~ the predecessor trustee's failure to do so, the clerk may order ~~him~~ the predecessor trustee to execute such documents, or the clerk may ~~himself~~ transfer title.

~~"§ 36A-41. Applicability.~~

~~The provisions of this Article shall not apply to proceedings begun before January 1, 1978.~~

"§§ 36A-42 through 36A-46: Reserved for future codification purposes."

Section 2. This act becomes effective Ocotber 1, 1997, and applies to all trustees covered by the provisions of Article 36A of the General Statutes, whether administering trusts established before or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE PROVISIONS FOR THE RESIGNATION, REMOVAL, AND RENUNCIATION OF TRUSTEES AND FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF SUCCESSOR TRUSTEES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 3 of Chapter 36A of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"ARTICLE 3.

~~"Resignation, Removal, and Renunciation of Trustees.~~ "Trust Administration.

~~"§ 36A-22. Applicability of this Article.~~

~~(a) Except when otherwise provided by law, the term "trustee," as used in this Article, includes "trustees," "guardians," and other fiduciaries.~~

~~(b) The resignation, removal, and renunciation of personal representatives and collectors shall be governed by the provisions of Articles 5, 9, and 10 of Chapter 28A.~~

~~(c) The substitution of trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust shall be governed by the provisions of G.S. 45-10.~~

"§ 36A-22.1. Definitions.

As used in this Article:

(1) 'Beneficiary' means a person who has any present or future interest, vested or contingent, in a trust, including (i) the owner of an interest by assignment or other transfer and (ii) any person entitled to enforce a charitable trust.

(2) 'Fiduciary' includes personal representatives, guardians of the person, guardians of the estate, attorneys-in-fact, and trustees.

(3) 'Interested person' includes creditors, beneficiaries, and any others having a property right in or a claim against a trust estate which may be affected by the proceeding. The term also includes fiduciaries representing interested persons. The meaning of the term as it relates to particular persons may vary from time to time and must be determined according to the particular purposes of and matter involved in a particular proceeding.

(4) 'Person' means an individual person, a corporation, an organization, or other legal entity.

(5) 'Trust' includes any express trust, private or charitable, with additions to the trust, wherever and however created. The term also includes a trust created for or determined by judgment or decree under which the trust is to be administered in the manner of an express trust. The term does not include other constructive trusts, resulting trusts, conservatorships, personal representatives, trust accounts as defined in G.S. 53-146.2, 54-109.57, and 54B-129, custodial arrangements pursuant to G.S. 33A-1 through G.S. 33A-24 and G.S. 33B-1 through G.S. 33B-22, business trusts providing for certificates to be issued to beneficiaries, common trust funds, voting trusts, security arrangements, liquidation trusts, and trusts for the primary purpose of paying debts, dividends, interest, salaries, wages, profits, pensions, or employee benefits of any kind, or any arrangement under which a person is nominee or escrowee for another.

(6) 'Trustee' includes an original, additional, or successor trustee, whether or not appointed or confirmed by a court. The term does not include trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust. Substitution of trustees in mortgages and deeds of trust are governed by the provisions of G.S. 45-10.

~~"§ 36A-23. Clerk's power to accept resignations.~~

~~The clerks of superior courts of this State have power and jurisdiction to accept the resignation of trustees and to appoint their successors in the manner provided by this Article.~~

"§ 36A-23.1. Court; jurisdiction of trusts.

(a) The clerks of superior court of this State have original jurisdiction over proceedings initiated by interested persons concerning the internal affairs of trusts. Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, the clerk's jurisdiction is exclusive. Proceedings that may be maintained under this section are those concerning the administration and distribution of trusts, the declaration of rights, and the determination of other matters involving trustees and trust beneficiaries, to the extent that those matters are not otherwise provided for in the governing instrument. These include proceedings:

(1) To appoint or remove a trustee;
(2) To review trustees' fees and review and settle interim or final accounts; and
(3) To ascertain beneficiaries, to determine any question arising in the administration or distribution of any trust, including questions of construction of trust instruments, and to determine the existence or nonexistence of any immunity, power, privilege, duty, or right. The clerk and all interested persons may agree that a proceeding to determine an issue listed in this subdivision shall be originally heard by the superior court.

(b) Nothing in this section affects the right of a person to file an action for declaratory relief under the provisions of Article 26 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, and jurisdiction granted to the clerk under this section is concurrent with that of the court under that Article.

(c) To the extent that the procedures in this Article for proceedings before the clerk concerning the administration of trusts conflict with the procedures for other special proceedings heard by the clerk, the provisions of this Article control.

(d) A proceeding under this section does not result in continuing supervisory proceedings.

(e) The management and distribution of a trust estate, submission of accounts and reports to beneficiaries, payment of trustees' fees and other obligations of a trust, acceptance and change of trusteeship, and other aspects of the administration of a trust shall proceed expeditiously, consistent with the terms of the trust, free of judicial intervention and without order, approval, or other action of any court, subject to the jurisdiction of the clerk as invoked by interested parties or as otherwise exercised as provided by law. Nothing in this section shall be construed (i) to confer upon the clerk any authority to regulate or supervise the actions of a trustee except to the extent that the trustee's actions are inconsistent with the provisions of the governing instrument or of State law, or (ii) to confer upon any interested person any additional right, remedy, or cause of action not otherwise conferred by law.

~~"§ 36A-24. Petition; contents and verification.~~

~~When any trustee desires to resign his trust, he shall file his petition in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county in which he qualified or in which the instrument under which he claims is registered. The petition shall set forth all the facts in connection with the appointment and qualifications as such trustee, with a copy of the instrument under which he acts; shall state the names, ages, and residences of all the beneficiaries and other parties interested in the trust estate; shall contain a full and complete statement of all debts or liabilities due by the estate, and a full and complete statement of all assets belonging to said estate, and a full and complete statement of all moneys, securities, or assets in the hands of the trustee and due the estate, together with a full statement of the reasons the applicant should be permitted to resign his trust. The petition shall be verified by the oath of the applicant.~~

"§ 36A-24.1. Trust proceedings; venue.

(a) If the trustee is required to account to the clerk, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, venue for proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving trusts is the place where the accountings are filed.

(b) If the trustee is not required to account to the clerk, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, venue for proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving trusts is in any county of this State in which the trust has its principal place of administration or where any beneficiary resides. Unless otherwise designated in the governing instrument, the principal place of administration of the trust is the trustee's usual place of business where the records pertaining to the trust are kept, or at the trustee's residence if the trustee has no such place of business. In the case of cotrustees, the principal place of administration, if not otherwise designated in the governing instrument, is:

(1) The usual place of business of the corporate trustee if there is but one corporate cotrustee;

(2) The usual place of business or residence of the individual trustee who is a professional fiduciary if there is but one such person and no corporate trustee; or

(3) The usual place of business or residence of any of the cotrustees as agreed upon by the cotrustees.

~~"§ 36A-25. Parties; hearing; successor appointed.~~

~~Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding, with the trustee as plaintiff and the beneficiaries as defendants, and shall issue the summons for the defendants, and the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings. If any of the defendants be nonresidents, summons may be served by publication; and if any be infants, a guardian ad litem must be appointed by the court to represent their interests in the manner now provided by law. The beneficiaries, creditors, or any other person interested in the trust estate, have the right to answer the petition and to offer evidence why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. The clerk shall then proceed to hear and determine the matter, and if it appears to the court that the best interests of the creditors and the beneficiaries demand that the resignation of the trustee be accepted, or if it appears to the court that sufficient reasons exist for allowing the resignation, and that the resignation can be allowed without prejudice to the rights of creditors or the beneficiaries, the clerk may, in the exercise of his discretion, allow the applicant to resign; and in such case the clerk shall proceed to appoint the successor of the petitioner in the manner provided in this Article.~~

"§ 36A-25.1. Trust proceedings; dismissal of matters relating to foreign trusts.

The clerk of superior court shall not, over the objection of a party, entertain proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 involving a trust having its principal place of administration in another state, except:

(1) When all appropriate parties could not be bound by litigation in the courts of the state where the trust has its principal place of administration; or

(2) When the interests of justice otherwise would be seriously impaired.

The clerk may condition a stay or dismissal of a proceeding under this section on the consent of any party to jurisdiction of the state in which the trust has its principal place of administration, or the clerk may grant a continuance or enter any other appropriate order.

~~"§ 36A-26. Resignation allowed; costs; judge's approval.~~

~~In making an order allowing the trustee to resign, the clerk shall make such order concerning the costs of the proceedings and commissions to the trustee as may be just. If there is no appeal from the decision and order of the clerk within the time prescribed by law, the proceedings shall be submitted to the judge of the superior court and approved by him before the same shall become effective.~~

"§ 36A-26.1. Concurrent jurisdiction of clerk of court over litigation involving trusts and third parties.

The clerk of superior court has concurrent jurisdiction with other courts of this State over actions and proceedings to determine the existence or nonexistence of trusts created other than by will, of actions by or against creditors or debtors of trusts, and of other actions and proceedings involving trustees and third parties. Venue is determined by the rules generally applicable to civil actions.

"§ 36A-26.2. Trust proceedings; necessary parties.

Proceedings under G.S. 36A-23.1 and proceedings under G.S. 36A-26.1, if brought before the clerk, are initiated by filing a petition in the office of the clerk of superior court. Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding. The clerk shall issue summons which shall notify the defendant or defendants to appear and answer the petition within 10 days after its service. The summons must contain a notice stating that if the defendant or defendants fail to answer the petition within the time specified, the plaintiff or plaintiffs will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the petition. The manner of service shall be as is prescribed by Rule 4 of the Rules of Civil Procedure. All remaining procedures shall be governed by the Rules of Civil Procedure, except as otherwise provided in special proceedings.

"§ 36A-26.3. Waiver of notice.

An interested person, or a person representing an interested person as provided in G.S. 36A-26.4, may waive notice by a writing signed by the person or the person's attorney and filed in the proceeding.

"§ 36A-26.4. When parties represented by others.

In proceedings involving trusts, the following rules apply:

(1) Interests to be affected shall be described in pleadings that give reasonable information to interested persons by name or class, by reference to the instrument creating the interests, or in some other appropriate manner.

(2) Interested persons shall be represented by others in the following cases:

a. The sole holder or all coholders of a power of revocation or a presently exercisable general power of appointment, including one in the form of a power of amendment, shall represent other persons to the extent that their interests, as objects, takers in default, or otherwise, are subject to the power.

b. To the extent that there is no conflict of interest between the interested person and the person representing the interested person, or among persons represented, a guardian of the estate shall represent the person whose estate the guardian controls; a guardian of the person shall represent the ward if no guardian of the ward's estate has been appointed; a trustee shall represent beneficiaries of the trust in proceedings to probate a will establishing or adding to the trust, to review the acts or accounts of a prior fiduciary, and in other proceedings involving creditors or other third parties; and a personal representative shall represent persons interested in the undistributed assets of the decedent's estate in actions or proceedings by or against the estate. If there is no conflict of interest and no guardian of the estate or guardian of the person has been appointed, a parent shall represent a minor child.

c. At any point in a proceeding, a clerk may allow an attorney-in-fact to represent the attorney-in-fact's principal, provided that, if the principal is incapacitated, the power of attorney is durable as defined in G.S. 32A-8, and provided that the power of attorney grants to the attorney-in-fact either (i) the authority to do, execute, or perform any act that the principal might or could do or otherwise evidences the principal's intent to give the attorney-in-fact full power to handle the principal's affairs or deal with the principal's property; (ii) the powers described under G.S. 32A-2(2) and G.S. 32A-2(8) and, if interests in real property are affected, the powers described in G.S. 32A-2(1); or (iii) other direct or indirect authority the clerk deems sufficient in the clerk's discretion.

(3) At any point in the proceeding, the clerk may appoint a guardian ad litem to represent the interest of a minor, an incapacitated, unborn, or unascertained person, or a person whose identity is unknown, if the clerk determines that representation of the interest otherwise would be inadequate. If not precluded by a conflict of interest, a guardian ad litem may be appointed to represent several persons or interests. The clerk shall set forth the clerk's reasons for appointing a guardian ad litem as a part of the record of the proceedings.

(4) An order binding a person who represents an interested person binds the interested person.

"§ 36A-27. Appeal; stay effected by appeal.

Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk to the ~~judge at chambers,~~ superior court. ~~and in such event the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings as now provided by law.~~ If ~~the clerk allows the resignation, and~~ an appeal is taken from ~~his decision,~~ the decision of the clerk, such appeal shall ~~have the effect to~~ stay the judgment and order of the clerk until the cause is heard and determined by the ~~judge~~ superior court upon the appeal taken. To the extent that the procedure for an appeal from an order of the clerk concerning administration of a trust provided under this Article conflicts with the procedure for appeal from orders of the clerk in other matters, the provisions of this Article control.

"§ 36A-28. On appeal judge determines facts.

Upon an appeal taken from the clerk to the ~~judge,~~ superior court, the judge shall have the power to review the findings of fact made by the clerk and to find the facts or to take other evidence, but the facts found by the judge shall be final and conclusive upon any appeal to the appellate division.

"§ 36A-29. Final accounting before resignation.

~~No~~ If the trustee is required to account to the clerk of superior court, then unless the terms of the governing instrument provide otherwise, no trustee shall be ~~allowed or~~ permitted to resign ~~his trust~~ as trustee until ~~he shall first file with the court his~~ a final account of the trust ~~estate,~~ estate is filed with the clerk, and until the court shall be satisfied that the ~~said~~ account is true and correct.

~~"§ 36A-30. Resignation effective on settlement with successor.~~

~~In case the resignation of the trustee is accepted by the court, the resignation shall not release or discharge the trustee from liability, until he shall have filed an account acceptable to his successor in full for all moneys, securities, property, or other assets or things of value in his possession or under his control or which should be in his possession or under his control belonging to the trust estate, and such account has been approved by the court.~~

"§ 36A-30.1. Limitations on proceedings by beneficiaries against trustees.

Unless previously barred by adjudication, consent, or limitation, any claim against a trustee for breach of trust is barred as to any beneficiary who has received a final account or other statement fully disclosing the matter and showing termination of the trust relationship between the trustee and the beneficiary unless a proceeding to assert the claim is commenced within one year after receipt of the final account or statement. In any event, and notwithstanding the trustee's failure to make full disclosure, a beneficiary's claim for breach of trust is barred three years from the date upon which the beneficiary received a final account or statement issued by the trustee, and the trustee informed the beneficiary of the location and availability of records for the beneficiary's examination. A beneficiary is deemed to have received a final account or statement if an adult beneficiary receives the account or statement personally and if the representative of a minor or disabled beneficiary as described in G.S. 36A-26.4 receives the account or statement.

"§ 36A-31. ~~Court to appoint successor; when~~ When bond required.

~~If the court shall allow any trustee to resign his trust upon compliance with the provisions of this Article, it shall be the duty of the court to proceed to appoint some fit and suitable person as the successor of such trustee; and the court shall require the person so appointed to give bond with sufficient surety, approved by the court,~~ A trustee need not provide bond to secure performance of the trustee's duties unless required by the terms of the governing instrument, or found by the clerk to be necessary to protect the interests of beneficiaries who are not able to protect themselves and whose interests otherwise are not adequately represented. However, in no event shall bond be required if the governing instrument directs otherwise. On petition of the trustee or other interested person, the clerk may excuse a requirement of bond, reduce the amount of the bond, release the surety, or permit the substitution of another bond with the same or different sureties. If bond is required, it shall be in a sum double the value of the personal property to come into ~~his~~ the trustee's hands when bond is executed by a personal ~~surety~~ surety, and in an amount not less than one and one-fourth times the value of all personal property of the ~~decedent~~ trust estate when the bond is secured by a suretyship bond executed by a corporate surety company authorized by the Commissioner of Insurance to do business in this State, provided that the clerk of superior court, when the value of the personal property exceeds one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000), may accept bond in an amount equal to the value of the personal property plus ten percent (10%) thereof, conditioned upon the faithful performance of ~~his~~ the trustee's duties ~~as such trustee~~ and for the payment to the persons entitled to receive ~~the same of~~ all moneys, assets, or other things of value which may come into ~~his hands; provided, that where by the terms of the creating instrument the trustee who has resigned was not required to give bond and did not give bond and an intent is expressed in the creating instrument that a successor trustee shall serve without bond, or where the clerk, upon due investigation finds that bond is not necessary for the protection of the estate, the clerk, with the approval of the judge, upon the petition of any party in interest, may waive the requirement of a bond for the successor trustee and permit said successor trustee to serve without bond.~~ the trustee's hands. All bonds executed under the provisions of this Article shall be filed with the clerk.

"§ 36A-32. Rights and duties devolve on successor.

~~Upon the acceptance by the court of the resignation of any trustee, and upon the appointment by the court of his successor in the manner provided by this Article, the~~ A successor trustee shall succeed to all the rights, powers, and privileges, and shall be subject to all the duties, liabilities, and responsibilities that were imposed upon the original trustee unless a contrary intent appears from the ~~creating~~ governing instrument.

"§ 36A-33. Appointment of ~~successors to deceased or incapacitated trustees.~~ successor trustee on clerk's own motion.

~~Upon the death or incapacity of a trustee, a new trustee may be appointed on application by any beneficiary, or other interested persons, by petition to the clerk of the superior court of the county in which the instrument under which the deceased or incapacitated trustee claimed is registered, making all necessary parties defendants. The clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding and issue summons for the defendants, and the procedure shall be the same as in other special proceedings. If any of the defendants be nonresidents, summons may be served by publication; and if any be infants, a guardian ad litem must be appointed. The beneficiaries, creditors, or any other persons interested in the trust estate shall have the right to answer the petition and to offer evidence why the prayer of the petition should not be granted. After hearing the matter, the clerk may appoint the person so named in the petition, or he may appoint some other fit and suitable person or corporation to act as the successor of the deceased or incapacitated trustee; and the clerk shall require the person so appointed to give bond as required in G.S. 36A-31; provided, that where by the terms of the instrument upon which the deceased or incapacitated trustee claimed, said trustee was not required to give bond and did not give bond and an intent is expressed in the creating instrument that a successor trustee shall serve without bond, or where the clerk upon due investigation, finds that bond is not necessary for the protection of the estate, the requirement of a bond for the successor trustee may be waived as provided in G.S. 36A-31. Any party in interest may appeal from the decision of the clerk as provided in G.S. 36A-27 and 36A-28.~~

~~Nothing~~ Unless the governing instrument provides otherwise, if the trustee is required to account to the clerk of court, nothing in this ~~section~~ Article shall be construed to limit the authority of the clerk ~~of superior court~~ to appoint a successor trustee to a deceased or incapacitated trustee upon ~~his~~ the clerk's own motion.

~~(a) Any person or corporation named as trustee in any will admitted to probate in this State, or any substitute trustee, may at any time prior to qualifying as required by G.S. 36A-107 or taking any action as trustee if such qualification is not required, and whether or not such person or corporation is entitled to so qualify or act, renounce such trusteeship by a writing filed with the clerk of superior court of the county in which the will is admitted to probate. Upon receipt of such renunciation the clerk shall give notice thereof to all persons interested in the trust, including successor or substitute trustees named in the will, which notice shall also comply with the requirements of subsection (c) of this section.~~

~~(b) If the will names or identifies a substitute trustee in case of renunciation, the provisions of the will shall be complied with, and the clerk shall enter an appropriate order appointing the substitute trustee in accordance therewith unless the substitute trustee also renounces. A substitute trustee so named shall succeed to the office of trustee upon the date of the order of appointment by the clerk unless the will provides otherwise.~~

~~(c) If the will does not name or identify a substitute trustee in case of renunciation, and it appears that a substitute trustee should be appointed, the clerk shall appoint some fit and suitable person or corporation as substitute trustee. If the will does not~~

~~name or identify a substitute trustee, but contains provisions regarding the selection of a substitute trustee, such provisions shall be complied with unless the clerk determines that such provisions would result in the selection of an unfit or unsuitable trustee. A substitute trustee so appointed shall succeed to the office of trustee upon the date of the order of appointment unless the will provides otherwise.~~

~~(d) A substitute trustee shall, upon succeeding to the office of trustee, unless the will provides otherwise, have such powers and duties and be vested with the title to the property included in the trust, as if the substitute trustee had been originally named in the will.~~

~~(e) Each notice required by this section shall be written notice, and shall identify the proceeding and apprise the person to be notified of the nature of the action to be taken. Service of such notice may be in the same manner as is provided for service of notice in civil actions, or by mailing the notice to the person to be notified at his last known address. Service of notice must be completed not less than 10 days prior to the date the hearing is held or the action is taken. Service by mail shall be complete upon deposit of the notice enclosed in a postpaid, properly addressed wrapper in a post office or official depository under the exclusive care and custody of the United States Post Office Department.~~

~~(f) The clerk of superior court shall file, docket, and index all proceedings pursuant to this section in the same manner as special proceedings, and shall also enter with the will a notation that the trustee has renounced and a reference to the file, or other place where the record may be found.~~

~~Any beneficiary, cotrustee or other person interested in the trust estate may file a petition in the office of the clerk of superior court of the county having jurisdiction over the administration of the trust for the removal of a trustee or cotrustee who fails to comply with the requirements of this Chapter or a court order, or who is otherwise unsuitable to continue in office. Upon the filing of the petition, the clerk shall docket the cause as a special proceeding, with the petitioner as plaintiff. All known beneficiaries, trustees, or cotrustees not joined as plaintiffs shall be joined as defendants. Upon proper notice and hearing, the clerk may, in the exercise of his discretion, order the removal of the trustee or cotrustee and proceed to appoint a successor. The procedure for notice, hearing, appeals, and the effective date of the order, shall be in accord with that provided for in the case of a resignation of a trustee and the appointment of a successor in G.S. 36A-24 through 36A-32.~~

~~Nothing in this section shall be construed to limit the authority of the clerk of superior court to remove a trustee or cotrustee for failure to comply with the requirements of this Chapter or a court order, or who is otherwise unsuitable to continue in office.~~

"§ 36A-36. Appointment of special trustee.

If it appears necessary to the protection of the trust estate, the clerk of superior court having jurisdiction ~~of~~ over the administration of the trust may appoint a special trustee until a successor trustee can be appointed or, where a trust has terminated, to distribute the assets. A special trustee may be appointed without notice and may be removed whenever the court so orders. The special trustee shall give such bond, if any, as the court may require and shall have the powers conferred by the order of appointment.

"§ 36A-37. Consolidation, merger, reorganization, reincorporation, or transfer of assets and liabilities by a corporate trustee.

Whenever any corporate trustee doing business in this State shall consolidate or merge with or shall sell to and transfer its assets and liabilities to any other corporation, or where such corporate trustee is in any manner reorganized or ~~reincorporated~~ reincorporated, all existing rights, powers, duties, and liabilities of such consolidating, merging, transferring, reorganizing or reincorporating corporation as trustee shall, upon the effective date of such consolidation, merger, reorganization or reincorporation, or sale and transfer, vest in and devolve upon the transferee corporation or the consolidated, merged, reorganized or reincorporated corporation in the manner prescribed in G.S. 53-17.

~~"§ 36A-38. Powers of successor trustee.~~

~~Unless otherwise provided in the creating instrument, all powers conferred upon the trustee by such instrument attached to the office, as provided in G.S. 36A-72, and are exercisable by the trustee from time to time holding the office.~~

"§ 36A-39. Powers of cotrustees.

Unless otherwise provided in the ~~creating~~ governing instrument, if one of several trustees dies, resigns, or is removed, the remaining trustees shall have all rights, title, and powers of all the original trustees. If the ~~creating~~ governing instrument manifests an intent that a successor trustee be appointed to fill a vacancy, the remaining trustees may exercise the powers of all the original trustees until such time as a successor is ~~appointed.~~ appointed, except those powers which the remaining trustees are prohibited from exercising under the governing instrument or by law.

"§ 36A-40. Vesting of title.

A special or successor trustee is vested with the title of the ~~original~~ predecessor trustee. A predecessor trustee ~~who resigns, is removed, or is otherwise severed from his office~~ shall execute such documents transferring title to trust property as may be appropriate to facilitate administration of the trust and upon ~~his~~ the predecessor trustee's failure to do so, the clerk may order ~~him~~ the predecessor trustee to execute such documents, or the clerk may ~~himself~~ transfer title.

~~"§ 36A-41. Applicability.~~

~~The provisions of this Article shall not apply to proceedings begun before January 1, 1978.~~

"§§ 36A-42 through 36A-46: Reserved for future codification purposes."

Section 2. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to all trustees covered by the provisions of Article 36A of the General Statutes, whether administering trusts established before or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY THE AUTHORITY OF THE SOIL AND WATER CONSERVATION COMMISSION TO CONDUCT INSPECTIONS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 143B-294 reads as rewritten:

"§ 143B-294. Soil and Water Conservation Commission -- creation; powers and ~~duties.~~ duties; compliance inspections.

(a) There is hereby created the Soil and Water Conservation Commission of the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources with the power and duty to adopt rules to be followed in the development and implementation of a soil and water conservation program.

(1) The Soil and Water Conservation Commission has all of the following powers and duties:

a. To approve petitions for soil conservation ~~districts;~~ districts.

b. To approve application for watershed ~~plans; and~~ plans.

c. Such other duties as specified in Chapter 139.

d. To conduct any inspections in accordance with subsection (b) of this section.

(2) The Commission shall adopt rules consistent with the provisions of this Chapter. All rules not inconsistent with the provisions of this Chapter heretofore adopted by the Soil and Water Conservation Committee shall remain in full force and effect unless and until repealed or superseded by action of the Soil and Water Conservation Commission. All rules adopted by the Commission shall be enforced by the Department of Environment, Health, and Natural Resources.

(b) Representatives of the Commission may with the consent of the owner enter upon and inspect property, public or private, at reasonable times for the purposes of investigating compliance with Commission or Department programs when such investigation is reasonably necessary to carry out the Commission's duties. If consent for entry is not obtained, an administrative search warrant shall be obtained pursuant to G.S. 15-27.2.

(c) Any person who willfully resists, delays, or obstructs an authorized representative of the Commission while that person is in the process of carrying out official duties shall, notwithstanding G.S. 15A-1340.23, be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment not to exceed 90 days, or by a fine not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000), or both."

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE COASTAL AREA MANAGEMENT ACT TO ALLOW CERTAIN TYPES OF REDEVELOPMENT WITHIN URBAN WATERFRONTS THAT HISTORICALLY HAVE A PATTERN OF URBAN-LEVEL DEVELOPMENT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 7 of Chapter 113A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 113A-120.2. Permits for urban waterfront redevelopment in historically urban areas.

(a) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, any person may apply to the Commission for a permit for major development granting permission to use the person's land for a nonwater dependent use that is otherwise prohibited by rules, standards, or limitations prescribed by the Commission, or orders issued by the Commission, pursuant to this Article. The procedure to apply for the permit shall be as provided by G.S. 113A-119.

(b) Notwithstanding G.S. 113A-120(a), the Commission may grant a permit for nonwater dependent development in public trust areas designated pursuant to G.S. 113A-113(b)(5) if the following criteria are met:

(1) The land is waterfront property located in a municipality.

(2) The land has a history of urban-level development as evidenced by any of the following:

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO IMPROVE CHILD PROTECTION BY REQUIRING BETTER INVESTIGATION OF CHILD FATALITIES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 132 of the General Statutes is amended by adding the following new section to read:

"§ 132-1.5. Child fatality records.

(a) As used in this Section, 'child fatality cases' shall include cases in which a child dies as a result of suspected abuse or neglect and:

(1) An individual is criminally charged with the child's death; or

(2) The department of social services receives a report from the medical examiner, physician or other person, pursuant to G.S. 7A-543, that the child's death may have been the result of abuse or maltreatment.

(b) As used in this Section, 'records relating to child fatality cases' shall include records in the custody of any public agency that relate to the abuse or maltreatment of the child, or to the circumstances surrounding the child's death, including but not limited to medical records, hospital records, records maintained by the State, any county or local agency, police investigations data, medical examiner investigative data, health records, mental health records, educational records and social services records.

(c) Notwithstanding any confidentiality requirement imposed by any other provision of law, records relating to child fatality cases shall be public records and may be withheld from public inspection and copying only if their confidentiality is maintained by order of a court of competent jurisdiction as provided in subsection (d). However, any information that would identify any person who has reported suspected abuse or maltreatment shall not be part of the public record.

(d) If a public agency receives a request to inspect records in its custody relating to a child fatality case, the agency shall, within 48 hours, give notice of the request to the district attorney in the district where the child died. If the district attorney determines that release of the records is reasonably likely to pose a threat to the mental health, physical health, or personal safety of a minor child residing in the deceased child's household, or to materially compromise a continuing or future criminal investigation or prosecution, the district attorney may, within five (5) days after receiving notice of the request, apply to a court of competent jurisdiction for an order maintaining the confidentiality of the information. If such application is made the district attorney shall have the burden of showing by clear and convincing evidence that disclosure of the information in question will cause mental or physical harm or danger to the family member, will jeopardize the ability of the State to prosecute a defendant or the right of a criminal defendant to a fair trial, or will undermine an ongoing or future criminal investigation. Applications pursuant to this subsection shall be set down for immediate hearing, and subsequent proceedings in such actions shall be accorded priority by the trial and appellate courts. The requested records shall be withheld from public inspection and copying from the date of the request until the district attorney's time in which to file for an order to maintain confidentiality has expired or, if the district attorney has filed for such an order, until the court has issued a final ruling on the motion, whichever is later.

(e) Nothing in this section shall be construed to require a custodian of child fatality records to disclose any information that is confidential pursuant to the law of the United States."

Section 2. This act becomes effective July 1, 1997.

DO CHILDREN HAVE TO DIE?

Since early February The Salisbury Post has attempted to learn why the child protection system failed two innocent little boys, both of whom died brutal deaths shortly after their apparent abuse had been reported to the proper authorities. The clippings in this volume chronicle what the Post has learned -- and explain how confidentiality laws prevent the public from finding out what really happened.

Opening the files on child abuse

CHICAGO (AP) — A 3-year-old Chicago boy is hanged by his emotionally disturbed mother. In New York, a 6-year-old dies after being flung against a wall by her mother, who believes the girl is possessed by the devil.

Laws designed to offer privacy to children and families have been blamed for hiding how such abuse was allowed to happen in the first place. Now, several states have passed laws that shed the veil of secrecy that has kept the media and public in the dark about the 3 million reports of abuse and neglect cases a year nationwide.

"The changes are long overdue," said Doug Besharov, an expert in family policy at the American Enterprise Institute. "It's too easy for confidentiality to be used to protect agency mistakes and incompetent casework."

In Arizona and Idaho, lawmakers have been given access to abuse and neglect records to improve oversight. Colorado and Florida now make public abuse or neglect records in cases where a child dies in state care.

A proposal to change the laws in Illinois was sparked by cases such as the 1993 hanging of 3-year-old Joseph Wallace, which prompted an outcry over why the boy was returned to his emotionally disturbed mother.

The state's child welfare department was barred by law and policy from disclosing his mother's lengthy history with the department or the actions it had taken in the case.

Now under a proposed plan, if a person is charged with abusing a child in its care, the state welfare agency can release the child's name, the services the family received or any previous claims of abuse in the family.

Even the mention of the accused abuser's name by certain public officials can trigger the release of case information.

"The system does better when exposed," said Jess McDonald, the state's child welfare director. "It says to people, if you haven't done the right thing in a case, you can't hide behind confidentiality."

Not everyone sees disclosure as a boon.

Chicago lawyer Diane Redleaf, who represents parents in abuse and neglect cases, is among those concerned about the new reforms — Illinois in particular.

"Anybody who's the subject of (an unsubstantiated) report can be subject to disclosure under that," Ms. Redleaf said.

Changes in the federal Child Abuse and Prevention Act have moved states toward greater disclosure, said Howard Davidson, director of the American Bar Association's Center on Children and the Law.

Budde Lee Clark suffered torturous and painful injuries before he died.

When the ambulance rushed into Rowan Regional Medical Center late on the afternoon of Jan. 31 with the 6-year-old boy's body, anyone could see immediately that he had been beaten severely.

Anyone could see cigarette burns on more than 50 percent of his body. Hair pulled out by handfuls.

Anyone could see that something — possibly a rope — had cut and burned his neck.

TOO LATE FOR BUDDE: Louise Manning, grandmother of Budde Clark, 6, says the family had been under investigation for two months before the child was killed.

Other injuries strongly suggested he had been sexually assaulted.

Some of the wounds — like the bizarre loss of cartilage in his nose and some of the cigarette burns — were healing. Some bruises were old.

And the Rowan County Department of Social Services could have saved him, says his grandmother, Louise Manning.

Her son, Lee Clark, whose name used to be Lee Gosnell and Budde's father, told her Social Services had been investigating his family for two months before that day. Yet, because of confidentiality laws, it's not clear what if anything Social Services did.

His death was caused by "a blunt force injury to the head," says Dr. Karen Chancellor, pathologist with the N.C. Medical Examiner's office. She hopes to complete the full autopsy within the next few weeks.

Police have accused Robin Gosnell, Budde's stepmother, of beating Budde to death, putting his body in a bathtub of water and reporting he accidentally drowned.

Robin Gosnell is in jail now, charged with murder — and Louise Manning thinks Social Services bears heavy responsibility.

"If they had done their job like they were supposed to have done," she says flatly, "my grandson would be alive today. But they always say they're backed up with paper work and short on staff and all this stuff.

"My son told me — after all this happened, he said, 'We've been under investigation for two months.' "

Rick Travis, director of the Rowan County Department of Social Services, would neither confirm nor deny an investigation, but he has reviewed records and talked to employees since Budde's death.

"I think it's the natural response to a fatality to review what had been done to see if there was anything we missed when working with families," he said.

"I would like to say more so that the public might feel there is a greater measure of accountability for the agency," he said, "but the (state) attorney general's office and the Institute of Government have said, 'Don't do it.' When we get the written report, it's possible the Social Services board will authorize us to say more."

He expects a report on the state's review of local records on Budde Clark about March 7 and a summary of the findings will be public record.

Lee Clark, the child's father, told the Post he would not comment about his mother's account or what happened before Budde died.

they want to go to court.

They are frustrated that the law prevents Social Services — on behalf of children — from commenting or releasing records even when a child is no longer alive to be protected. And they're disturbed that Social Services neither responded nor explained what had happened when their daughter, Pam, reported months ago that the cartilage was missing from her child's nose. With no cartilage, his nose lay flat against his face and his two nostrils had become one.

But two knowledgeable sources have confirmed a description of the wounds — some old, some new — found on the 6-year-old's body.

One source said the damage to Budde's nose was unmistakable.

"You could see that cartilage had been removed from his nose some time before and had healed, but it was obviously gone," the source said.

"What was seen was that he had two black eyes, and cigarette burns definitely over 50 percent of his body — on his face, his arms, his stomach, everywhere."

Marks that appeared to be "rope cuts and rope burns were around his neck, cut into his neck," the source said, "and hands full of hair had been pulled out all over his head. He had bad bald spots, and his face was all bruised. His forehead was black with the bruises. You could tell some of the bruises all over his face and some of the cigarette burns were starting to heal."

Other injuries point to sodomy.

The source said the obvious question "will always be why. I said, 'Oh, Lord, so young and so innocent.' "

Pam Bradshaw says she and her sister reported the injury to Budde's nose to Social Services in June or July. A court had awarded custody of Budde to his father the year before, so the boy was living with Lee Clark and his wife, Robin Gosnell (who has also used the name of Elizabeth Craig and Robin Clark).

"He was missing the complete piece of cartilage between his nose," Pam Bradshaw says of the child, her own hand touching the bridge of her nose. Robin Gosnell drove up one day with Budde in the car. He never got out of the car, but "I saw it, and I said, 'What in the world happened to his nose?' There was nothing there but one big hole. Robin said he fell down and hit a tree stump and he picked at it until it fell off."

But Bradshaw asked an emergency medical technician about the nose, and the technician "advised me to call (Social Services). She said in order for him to lose this, something more devastating had to have happened.

"After I reported it, I called back to see what they found out."

But the person she had to speak to wasn't in. "I did leave messages on the answering machine" giving her address. She didn't have a telephone. "But they never contacted me back, to let me know what they found."

She says she also went to Rowan Regional Medical Center and the Salisbury Children's Clinic, trying to find out what had happened — but had no luck.

Social Services says its procedure on abuse reports is to send a letter indicating the report will or will not be investigated. Pam Bradshaw says that never happened in this case.

"I knew my son was being abused," she adds. "It wasn't the physical marks. His personality went from being very physical to being a little child who kept his head held down, who wouldn't speak unless she gave him permission. Nobody I talked to who could have done something about it would do anything."

Louise Manning says she has asked her son, Lee, what happened at his home in Cleveland.

"He said when he got home from work, everybody was there," she says. "He run in the door, and Jordan (Budde) was laying on the floor, and he yelled, 'What in the world happened?' He told me she said he fell in the bathtub and hit his head and he drowned. She tried to revive him and couldn't."

But Louise Manning's husband, Thomas, saw Budde Clark's body at the funeral home and knew immediately that the body didn't just slip in a bathtub.

"I had to go in there because she was wanting to go in," he says, and he had to know whether he thought his wife could stand what she'd see. He decided she couldn't.

"No way you're going in there, honey," he said. "You don't want to. You'd never forget it."

Certainly he won't.

"I saw him in the casket," he says, struggling to describe the pancake-like makeup on Budde.

"His whole face was done in it," he says. "His ears, his hands. It didn't look like, it really didn't look like a person laying there."

Budde's skin, he says, didn't look like skin. "His hair had been cut real short. You could see marks ... "

But he's not sorry he looked.

"I had to see for myself that his soul was at rest," he says, "because he had been punched enough."

Budde's grandparents, the Bradshaws and the Mannings, struggle with the big unanswered questions.

How, they want to know, could that happen?

How, they want to know, could their grandson be brutally beaten, burned and sexually assaulted without action, without an outcry from public agencies charged with his protection?

Law keeps facts confidential — Travis

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Rick Travis knows exactly what the reaction is any time a public official says, "No comment."

"People are suspicious when they perceive stonewalling," says Travis, director of the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

Faced with confidentiality laws — and advice from both the state attorney general's office and the Institute of Government — Travis generally says less than people want to hear, especially when the death of a child is involved as it is in the case of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark.

"There is some talk about changing the laws governing confidentiality as they relate to child fatalities," he says. "And I'd be interested in seeing some discussion about what those changes would be.

"I feel there would be grounds for loosening the confidentiality restrictions because there needs to be accountability for public agencies. As a director of a county department of Social Services, certainly I'm concerned about the integrity of my department. And all too often people assume there are problems when all they see or hear is a 'No comment' or 'I cannot discuss this.'"

But he feels he did everything practical in the Clark case when he acknowledged recently that the child had been the subject of a Child Protective Services investigation in the 12 months before his death and said the state Division of Social Services was reviewing local records in relation to the fatality.

The review was conducted on Friday, Feb. 14, by Karen Hatley, who expected to submit a written report within three weeks.

"She said she would try to move it along," he said. "We'd love to get it as soon as we could." A cover letter which will summarize her findings on "critical protection issues" will be a public document, he said, which his department will release after it is reviewed by the Social Services board.

But he doesn't know what to expect.

"We've never had one of these before," he says.

Sources: Hospital saw abuse, warned DSS

BY ROSE POST
© SALISBURY POST

A month before he died, sources say, 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones was treated for extreme physical abuse at Rowan Regional Medical Center.

Outraged, hospital staff members photographed the baby and reported what they saw to the Rowan Department of Social Services, say three independent sources familiar with the case.

But as far as the sources know, Social Services didn't respond. The toddler remained with his mother, Sheila Jones, until Feb. 4, when he died at Carolinas Medical Center in Charlotte from another beating.

Neither local nor state Social Services officials are ready to comment. Rowan Social Services Director Rick Travis is in Raleigh and not available Wednesday or this morning. Jo Ann Lamm, head of the Child Protective Services Branch of the N.C. Division of Social Services now reviewing the case, would not comment on the Post story.

"If that was reported to Social Services," she said, "it would be part of our review. Our review has not come out yet."

One source told the Post: "You wonder what more you can do. You report to Social Services, and a month later the child is dead. You think, 'Where did we go wrong? Who dropped the ball?' "

"Nothing was done," another source said. "If Social Services had followed through from that call, there's no doubt in my mind that child would be living today."

Wednesday afternoon, Lamm the state Social Services official, said the state was "very close" to finishing its review of two recent Rowan County abuse deaths — Jones and 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark.

Lamm said Travis is in Raleigh, and they are trying to get the reports. "We had a commitment to try to get a report to him by Thursday afternoon or early Friday morning," she said.

Christopher Jones' mother, Sheila Jones, refused to talk with the Post about this article. Her mother, Marilyn Houchin, confirmed that her daughter took the baby to Rowan Regional Medical Center in early January and returned home with him after he was treated.

"We ain't got nothing to hide," Houchin said. Her daughter has "been through a lot of stuff. She's lost a son and all. I just don't know how much more she can take."

When Sheila Jones sought medical help for her baby in early February, she did not bring him back to Rowan Regional Medical Center. Instead, she and her boyfriend took him to Lake Norman Medical Center. From there, hanging on to life by a thread, he was airlifted to Charlotte, but doctors at Carolinas Medical Center were unable to save his life. He was kept on life support systems until his organs could be donated.

When he died, investigators said he had suffered a fractured skull, brain damage, multiple cuts and bruises on his neck, chin and groin while in the care of his mother's boyfriend. That boyfriend, Jeremy Butcher, 23, of 8835 Wright Road, faces charges of murder and felony child abuse.

As word of the baby's death spread, the investigation returned to Rowan Regional Medical Center, where records confirmed the visit on Jan. 2.

When Sheila Jones brought Christopher to Rowan Regional, the toddler was naked, with blood blisters on the side of his face and the top of his head and severe bruises all over his body. He had a black mark on the top of his forehead.

His nose was totally bloodied. His lips were bruised. A bite was evident on one shoulder. His scrotum was black and blue and "bitten."

"Terrible," one source said. "Sickening."

Nurses at the hospital were "unbelievably distraught," a source said.

Medical personnel "are really not very happy with the way DSS operates," a source said. "The system is failing. And it's going to happen again and again and again" unless something is done to change the way child abuse is handled.

That's what state officials are considering as they review the deaths of Christopher Jones, of China Grove, and Budde Lee Ciark, of Cleveland.

Budde's stepmother, Robin Gosnell, has been charged with murder and felony child abuse. She has been accused of beating the boy to death and putting his body in a bathtub to make it look like he drowned.

The two cases prompted the first review of the way the department handled Rowan County cases since the state started special "child fatality reviews" in 1991.

The state reviews the death of any child involved in a Protective Services investigation 12 months before his death from alleged abuse or neglect.

SALISBURY POST 3/6/97

Report absolves DSS action

Social Services officials couldn't have predicted children's deaths, says state

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The state has found no indication that the Rowan County Department of Social Services "had information or knowledge that would have predicted any of the violent events" that culminated in the deaths of two Rowan children a month ago.

That contradicts information received by the Post from sources familiar with the beating deaths of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark on Jan. 31 and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones on Feb. 4.

What state officials actually found during their review of the two deaths is not available for public inspection. The public is entitled to see only a cover letter summarizing the findings.

The letter from Chuck Harris, head of the Children's Services Section of the state Department of Human Resources, says Rowan must submit "a program improvement plan" within 30 days. The letter also says the agency's "efforts were focussed too narrowly" in the case of Budde Lee Clark.

Before Clark died, the letter says, Social Service workers should have investigated more thoroughly two incidents involving the 6-year-old Cleveland boy.

The letter also says the local Social Services agency should examine its "program areas ... in a broader context" to assure a thorough investigation.

The letter did not identify either incidents, but Rep. Charlotte Gardner, who arranged to get the letter for the Post today, talked with Harris, director of the Children's Services Section. Harris told the lawmaker that one incident was the physical damage to Budde Lee Clark's nose.

➤ See DSS, Page 4A

The child's mother, Pam Bradshaw, told the Post she and her sister reported to Social Services last June or July that the cartilage from his nose was missing. His nose, she said, lay flat on his face and his two nostrils had become one large opening. She received no response to her report.

The child's paternal grandmother says her son told her Social Services was investigating his home, where the boy lived, two months before he died.

Sources have also told the Post that old injuries — including the nose and cigarette burns — were found on the boy's body after his death.

Other sources verified the condition of his nose following his death and the arrest of his stepmother, Robin Gosnell, who has been charged with murder and felony child abuse.

The state found no problems with Social Services' handling of Christopher Jones' death.

However, the Post reported this week that a month before the toddler's death, medical personnel at Rowan Regional called Social Services to report extreme abuse to the 19-month-old. Hospital personnel even took pictures of the injuries to the baby and offered them to Social Services.

To their knowledge, sources say the agency never picked up the pictures or investigated.

The state cover letter doesn't acknowledge the earlier abuse report and says "no critical issues were identified" in the toddler's case.

Full report today

The state's full report was to be presented to the Rowan County Board of Social Services in a closed session at 2 p.m. today in the large conference room of the agency's main building at 1236 W. Innes St.

The closed session was to be followed by release of the report's cover letter which is a public document.

The cover letter was provided to the Post this morning by Harris, director of the Children's Services Section without comment, upon the request of Gardner.

Harris did not identify for Gardner the other incident investigated by the state.

Gardner said what she wants to impress on Rowan County residents: "This is not everyday stuff."

"What I have to ask myself and what Rowan County has to ask itself is what can we do to see that the series of fatalities that have occurred over the past few weeks never happens again."

She said she finds it ironic that Tri-County Mental Health has received a letter indicating the state has taken over, the first mental health agency ever taken over by the state, and on the same day a letter comes to Social Services regarding child fatalities in Rowan County.

Communication

She said she believes communication is a problem in Rowan.

"I think we need to sit down and talk to each other more often and I think whether you're a state legislator or a county commissioner or a city council person, you need to be part of that process.

"We don't have it in Rowan County. I, personally, as a state legislator, have encountered that lack of communication."

She says what has happened in Rowan today is serious.

"This is really an indictment not only of society's ills but also the problems we've got as citizens of Rowan County of not trying to be a part of the solution, of trying to come together. We've got to get past this turfism that abounds everywhere — here in Raleigh and on the local level. That's not how they're going to be improved. If we would come together, we could find where we have deficiencies."

The community has reacted with horror to the children's deaths. In a letter on today's editorial page in the Post, James M. Freeman, chief executive officer of Rowan Regional Medical Center, says cases like those two are rare, "but unfortunately, we've not only seen an increase in abuse victims showing up at our emergency department, but we've also seen a rise in the level of severity of this abuse."

Pointing to the work of nurse Lisa Coley, who has taken special training for abuse cases, Freeman calls for the community agencies to work "together to improve the process."

Everyone's concern

I read with horror the article about the abuse of Budde Clark. "Sick" is one word I can use to describe the feeling. And I still am every time I think of what was done to him.

Most feel that Social Services is responsible for all this, but I feel the blame should be placed in other areas. Where were this child's other relatives, or people who saw this child on a daily basis? But most importantly, where was the child's father? He and his wife had custody; supposedly he saw Budde on a daily basis. Are we to believe that he was not aware of what was taking place in his own home to his own child? Did he not even look at his child? Did he not see the cigarette burns, the hair missing by the handful? Did he even look at his son to see that his nose did not look like other children's?

Perhaps we should imagine ourselves as an abused individual with the feeling of being without power to do anything to help yourself. Then ask yourself what we can do to stop abuse.

Please do not believe when they say, "Oh well, what happens to others is really not our concern." Abuse is everyone's concern. No one, neither child nor adult, deserves to be abused.

If you suspect abuse in a circumstance, get involved and do not let any other child become another Budde Clark.

Social Services officials couldn't have predicted children's deaths, says state

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The state has found no indication that the Rowan County Department of Social Services "had information or knowledge that would have predicted any of the violent events" that culminated in the deaths of two Rowan children a month ago.

That contradicts information received by the Post from sources familiar with the beating deaths of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark on Jan. 31 and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones on Feb. 4.

What state officials actually found during their review of the two deaths is not available for public inspection. The public is entitled to see only a cover letter summarizing the findings.

The letter from Chuck Harris, head of the Children's Services Section of the state Department of Human Resources, says Rowan must submit "a program improvement plan" within 30 days. The letter also says the agency's "efforts were focussed too narrowly" in the case of Budde Lee Clark.

Before Clark died, the letter says, Social Service workers should have investigated more thoroughly two incidents involving the 6-year-old Cleveland boy.

The letter also says the local Social Services agency should examine its "program areas ... in a broader context" to assure a thorough investigation.

The letter did not identify either incidents, but Rep. Charlotte Gardner, who arranged to get the letter for the Post today, talked with Harris, director of the Children's Services Section. Harris told the lawmaker that one incident was the physical damage to Budde Lee Clark's nose.

The child's mother, Pam Bradshaw, told the Post she and her sister reported to Social Services last June or July that the cartilage from his nose was missing. His nose, she said, lay flat on his face and his two nostrils had become one large opening. She received no response to her report.

The child's paternal grandmother says her son told her Social Services was investigating his home, where the boy lived, two months before he died.

Sources have also told the Post that old injuries — including the nose and cigarette burns — were found on the boy's body after his death.

Other sources verified the condition of his nose following his death and the arrest of his stepmother, Robin Gosnell, who has been charged with murder and felony child abuse.

The state found no problems with Social Services' handling of Christopher Jones' death.

However, the Post reported this week that a month before the toddler's death, medical personnel at Rowan Regional called Social Services to report extreme abuse to the 19-month-old. Hospital personnel even took pictures of the injuries to the baby and offered them to Social Services.

To their knowledge, sources say the agency never picked up the pictures or investigated.

The state cover letter doesn't acknowledge the earlier abuse report and says "no critical issues were identified" in the toddler's case.

Full report today

The state's full report was to be presented to the Rowan County Board of Social Services in a closed session at 2 p.m. today in the large conference room of the agency's main building at 1236 W. Innes St.

The closed session was to be followed by release of the report's cover letter which is a public document.

The cover letter was provided to the Post this morning by Harris, director of the Children's Services Section without comment, upon the request of Gardner.

Harris did not identify for Gardner the other incident investigated by the state.

Gardner said what she wants to impress on Rowan County residents: "This is not everyday stuff."

"What I have to ask myself and what Rowan County has to ask itself is what can we do to see that the series of fatalities that have occurred over the past few weeks never happens again."

She said she finds it ironic that Tri-County Mental Health has received a letter indicating the state has taken over, the first mental health agency ever taken over by the state, and on the same day a letter comes to Social Services regarding child fatalities in Rowan County.

Communication

She said she believes communication is a problem in Rowan.

"I think we need to sit down and talk to each other more often and I think whether you're a state legislator or a county commissioner or a city council person, you need to be part of that process.

"We don't have it in Rowan County. I, personally, as a state legislator, have encountered that lack of communication."

She says what has happened in Rowan today is serious.

"This is really an indictment not only of society's ills but also the problems we've got as citizens of Rowan County of not trying to be a part of the solution, of trying to come together. We've got to get past this turfism that abounds everywhere — here in Raleigh and on the local level. That's not how they're going to be improved. If we would come together, we could find where we have deficiencies."

The community has reacted with horror to the children's deaths. In a letter on today's editorial page in the Post, James M. Freeman, chief executive officer of Rowan Regional Medical Center, says cases like those two are rare, "but unfortunately, we've not only seen an increase in abuse victims showing up at our emergency department, but we've also seen a rise in the level of severity of this abuse."

Pointing to the work of nurse Lisa Coley, who has taken special training for abuse cases, Freeman calls for the community agencies to work "together to improve the process."

■ Two killed, 3 injured when house explodes

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Moments after an explosion flattened his neighbor's home, killing two people, James Kimble rushed to the scene and tried to help pull burning debris off a woman crying for help.

Kimble and six others were pushed away by thick smoke that followed a second, smaller blast.

"We hated to leave," said Kimble, 51. "We stayed there as long as we could."

Firefighters rescued the woman, who was hospitalized today with burns over 60 percent of her body. Two others were in hospitals after Thursday's explosion, which could be felt a mile away. Police said they didn't know if the victims lived at the home; their names were not released.

The explosion shattered windows and collapsed walls in nearby homes.

"I was just sitting there and I heard a large BOOM," neighbor Betty Gerken said.

Fire Chief Tom Dillon said an explosion strongly indicates a gas leak, but no cause had been determined.

One person can make a difference against abuse

An example is a conscientious nurse at the Rowan Emergency Room

BY JIM FREEMAN
SPECIAL TO THE POST

Recent articles in the Salisbury Post about child abuse victims certainly sadden and repulse anyone who reads them. I'd like to say these sorts of cases are rare, but unfortunately, we've not only seen an increase in abuse victims showing up at our Emergency Department, but we've also seen a rise in the level of severity of this abuse.

Abuse does not discriminate. We've seen young, old, married, single — people from all walks of life — suffer from the pain and humiliation of abuse.

A recent editorial in the Salisbury Post was right when it pointed out that one person can make a difference when it comes to abuse. I would like to tell you about one such person.

Lisa Coley, a nurse in our Emergency Department, has worked at Rowan Regional Medical Center for nearly nine years. Discouraged by the abuse victims she regularly encountered there, Lisa decided to get involved. She researched and requested special training, and just this past fall was certified as a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE).

The SANE Program began in Memphis, Tenn., in 1976 but just arrived in North Carolina about a year ago. Only a handful of nurses in our state have earned the SANE certification, and Lisa Coley is one of them. Lisa took a special week-long course, served 40 hours of clinical time, took a written test and several practical examinations — all on her own initiative.

Lisa's SANE certification makes her qualified to work especially close with child and adult victims of physical and sexual abuse. She is qualified to assist with gathering medical evidence, taking photography, participating in legal investigations and serving as an expert witness in court.

The SANE Program has been proven to result in higher conviction rates, better evidence collection, and increased coordination of efforts between hospitals, law enforcement officials and social service agencies. Lisa has championed the banner of the SANE program to local law enforcement officials and has worked closely with the local District Attorney's Office and others involved with abuse issues. Lisa voluntarily wears a pager 24 hours a day and comes into the Emergency Department every time she can to help in suspected abuse cases.

The SANE Program and people like Lisa put the emphasis where it needs to be — on working together to improve the process ... vs. attempting to fix blame on individuals who are part of the system.

Thanks to Lisa's commitment and enthusiasm, three more of our Emergency Department nurses will begin training in the SANE Program this fall. Thanks to Lisa, we're continuing to improve the assistance available for the abused.

One person can make a difference. I am proud to have employees like Lisa at Rowan Regional Medical Center — employees who go above and beyond the basic requirements of their jobs to provide an even higher level of health, healing and protection to those who enter our doors.

REPORT CHILD ABUSE TO POLICE, TOO

Don't settle for one call

It is not enough to report child abuse to the Department of Social Services. Not by a long shot.

People who have seen signs of abuse on a child need to notify law enforcement also.

That's the obvious conclusion to draw from the Feb. 4 death of Christopher Jones, a 19-month-old Rowan County boy whose mother says she was once investigated because her son had a bloody nose.

According to knowledgeable sources, just a month before his death young Christopher came to the local emergency room with sickening signs of abuse: blood blisters on his face, bruised lips, a "bitten" scrotum and — yes — a thoroughly bloodied nose.

Pictures were taken for the benefit of social services but social workers apparently never picked them up.

If only deputies had been called to the hospital on Jan. 2.

That's not to blame the health-care workers who treated Christopher. They followed the accepted procedure and contacted Social Services. But the facts of recent child homicides prove this procedure must change.

Safety net failed

The Salisbury Post has pursued information about the deaths of Christopher Jones and 6-year-old Budde Lee aggressively — not to try their accused murderers in the paper, but to determine how the safety net for abused children failed.

Public officials who work behind confidentiality guidelines prefer patience; the system will issue its own report in due time. But every day of waiting is a day of delay for other abused children in Rowan County. If the safety net has a fatal hole, let's find it now before another child plummets to his death.

Hindsight alone gleans important information from these cases:

■ Signs of violence on a child should prompt an urgent call to law enforcement as well as social services. What's happening to these children is a crime.

■ Relatives and neighbors who suspect abuse should not permit themselves to be brushed off by isolationist parent/guardians or busy social workers. They should persist and, in the case of non-custodial parents, sue to regain custody of a child who is in danger. Abused children need any advocate they can get. We cannot wait for a government agency to solve problems for us.

■ The agencies which handle child abuse should share information from Day One, not starting after a child's Death Day. The sharing of information among social services, law enforcement and other agencies is absolutely essential to prevent reports of abuse from going down a dead end. If there is wisdom in the counsel of many, there could be lifesaving in the awareness of a few more.

■ When a child dies under suspicious circumstances after being under child protective services, records from those investigations should become public to allow immediate review.

■ Something is terribly wrong with the laws governing social service agencies. Albert R. Hunt of the Wall Street Journal, in a Feb. 27 column, traced agencies' troubles to the Adoption Assistance and Child Welfare Act of 1980, which makes it very difficult to take abused and neglected children away from their biological parents.

Pictures wouldn't have led to toddler being taken away

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Social Services officials acknowledged for the first time Friday that a month before a toddler died, the agency received a complaint warning that 19-month-old Christopher Jones had been abused.

But they never talked to the medical officials who made the complaint and didn't see pictures taken at Rowan Regional Medical Center until after the baby died.

Even after seeing the pictures, the officials say they would not have taken the toddler away from his mother and her boyfriend.

The first abuse report made to the Rowan Department of Social Services made no reference to photographs taken at Rowan Regional, Social Services Director Rick Travis said Friday.

"The mother and the child left the emergency room. We didn't hear about" the pictures, Travis said. "We should have asked."

Travis said medical officials could have refused to let Sheila Jones take her son home from Rowan Regional. But they didn't, and Social Services workers saw the baby within the required 72 hours. They didn't deem the injuries severe enough to remove the baby, and neither did other family members living nearby, Travis said.

Now, Sheila Jones' boyfriend, Jeremy Butcher, is charge with beating the toddler t death a month later.

Travis and Jane Malpass, children's programs representative with the state Division of Social Services, declared repeatedly during an hour-long open meeting Friday that the local agency "met standards" set by the state.

And even in hindsight, they would do nothing differently, they said.

The meeting, attended by the Rowan County Board of Social Services, the media, a few concerned citizens and Social Services staff members, followed a 2¾-hour closed session. Travis called the executive session of the board to share the results of a state review of the way Social Services handled the deaths of three children — Jones, 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 16-year-old Trola Miller.

State and local officials say they cannot make the report itself public, but two members of the Social Services board — Chairman Irene Goodlett and member Jeannie Misenheimer — said they are satisfied with the work of the local agency. Goodlett called the agency "the best in the state."

Misenheimer

Board member Dianne Scott said she also is satisfied with the actions of Social Services but thought there was "a lack of documentation."

Board member Frank Tadlock attended the closed session but left immediately afterward.

The Post has reported in recent weeks that Budde Clark, the 6-year-old boy, and Christopher Jones, the toddler, were seriously abused before their deaths and people reporting that abuse to Social Services never received confirmation that Social Services responded.

Travis did not deny allegations that his agency failed to acknowledge the complaints. He has previously told the Post that Social Services acknowledges all reports and lets people who make them know whether or not they will be investigated.

In both cases, sources for the Post have described severe wounds, some of them old, that outraged people who saw them.

Sources told the Post that when Budde Clark's body was brought to the hospital on Jan. 31, he had cigarette burns on more than 50 percent of his body, hair pulled out by handfuls, injuries that strongly suggested he had been sexually assaulted and the bizarre loss of cartilage in his nose.

Investigators said the 19-month-old died on Feb. 4 after suffering a fractured skull, brain damage, multiple cuts and bruises on his neck, chin and groin.

When he was taken to Rowan Regional a month earlier on Jan. 2, sources said he had blood blisters on the side of his face and the top of his head, severe bruises all over his body, a black mark on his forehead, a bloodied nose, bruised lips, a bite on a shoulder, and his scrotum was black and blue and "bitten."

Travis said he didn't see the pictures until after the baby died.

But what he saw, he said, "didn't match" the child's injuries described in the Post.

"I don't believe someone is intentionally making something up," he said, "but the description I read in the Post came nowhere close."

Contacted this morning, a Post source said, "The bottom line is the pictures tell the story. I stand by that.

"If DSS had gone to the hospital and looked at the pictures, there's no doubt in my mind, the child would have been taken out of the home. I stick by that."

Opening Friday's meeting, Goodlett said, "Certainly we have made some mistakes," but the board is totally supportive of Social Services.

Travis echoed her words.

The state's review was "quite thorough," he said. State standards were the yardstick.

"The overall conclusions of the review are reassuring about this department's capability. I would be the first to admit that we can make mistakes like everyone else ... We did not meet every standard, but we covered the bases and ... certainly did an adequate job. We need to do all we can and more and hope the community will join us in this effort."

In a written statement, he said the overall conclusion of the report is that the agency "had no information or knowledge that would have predicted any of the violent events."

SALISBURY POST 3/8/97

State and local officials respond to questions on three cases

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

In an hour-long meeting Friday, local and state Social Services officials discussed their handling of two recent child abuse deaths and the shooting of a teen-ager. Here are some of their comments:

■ What did Social Services' do after learning that 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark had lost the cartilage (or septum) in his nose?

Rick Travis, Rowan County Social Services director, said his agency's investigation confirmed medical neglect of the injury to the boy's nose. (The boy's stepmother, Robin Gosnell, is now charged with Clark's murder.) The complaint was assigned to a medical worker and the emphasis was placed on having medical care provided.

The boy's doctor called Social Services because he also noticed a swollen bruised ankle. The intake worker who decides whether or not a case should be investigated relayed the information to the social worker who asked that the ankle be X-rayed.

The state says the information phoned in by the doctor should have been fully investigated as a new report, Travis said.

"What we did was give the information to the social worker who did not do an entirely new investigation. ... Almost all of our social work revolved around getting the nose treated."

Concern was also expressed that the child "walked around like he was on Haldol all the time." The boy's grandparents have told the Post previously that he became sullen and withdrawn after going to live with his father.

Travis said the state review "pointed out we didn't give sufficient attention" to the doctor's concern and never determined that the boy was receiving a tranquilizer.

■ Negligence: "I don't feel in any way we have been negligent," Travis said.

He was also asked directly if Social Services could have prevented Budde Clark's death.

"Absolutely not," he responded. "We reviewed each of these cases at the time of the fatality. With all we know now in hindsight, there is nothing, in all honesty, that would have prevented this child's death."

■ Confidence: Travis was asked if people in the community will have confidence in the agency, given three dead children.

"I hope they do," he said. But he added the department cannot guarantee a child will not die.

Mary Beth Smith, a Concord attorney who lives in Salisbury, attended the meeting with her mother, Elizabeth Smith of Rowan County, and read aloud the Post's description of physical abuse sustained by toddler Christopher Jones a month before his death. Doctors at Rowan Regional reported the abuse to Social Services, and Mary Beth Smith asked if Social Services has any justification for not removing a child given those injuries.

"The initial report was made when the child was being discharged," Travis said. He has reviewed the report and found nothing about pictures. "It said the doctor called and said the mom brought the child in with a bloody nose."

"From what you have now seen," he was asked, "was there enough to take the child out of the situation?"

"The most we would have done was substantiate neglect and assign the case to a worker. Knowing what we know now, we wouldn't have removed the child. I wondered if it was a different child."

"I don't buy that," Elizabeth Smith said.

"I know what was in the paper," Travis said. "But a lot did not match what we had. People have different sources. What I read did not come close to matching what I saw."

"It's the system that bothers me," Elizabeth Smith said.

"The system bothers me, too," echoed Chairman Irene Goodlett. "We promise we're going to improve. We are going to do the best we can. We may not have the money, but we are going to improve."

■ Confidentiality: The meeting concluded with questions about the frequency with which social workers saw both children after the reports of abuse and before their deaths.

Standards, Travis said, require Protective Services to see a child once a week in some cases and less often in others.

Pressed to reveal how often workers saw Budde Clark and Christopher Jones, he said, "The person who reviewed the records made the comment that the worker had been consistent and diligent in following up."

He made it clear he would like to reveal more but, after checking with the state attorney general, feels he legally cannot.

"I would love to see some mechanism established," he said, "where, in cases of child fatalities, I would not be breaking the law to give additional information."

■ Shooting: The state issued a written statement about the death of Trola Miller, the 16-year-old killed by a gunshot Feb. 4, in its fatality review. Normally, Protective Services reviews Social Services actions if the agency has been involved with the child in the year leading up to the child's death. The state waived that requirement in Miller's case because she died at the same time of the other two abuse deaths.

A Juvenile Court judge placed Miller in the legal custody of Social Services in May 1994. Arrangements were made for her to live with a sister after efforts to place her in two foster homes failed.

In May 1996, she ran away and a pick-up order directed law enforcement officers to return her to Social Services if they found her.

"Her social worker made numerous attempts over an eight-month period to locate Trola and return her to a stable living arrangement," the statement concluded. "The pick-up order was still in effect at the time of her death."

State official: Rowan must improve 3 areas

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

North Carolina's Social Services director says Rowan County must beef up its work in three "critical" areas to protect children:

- Supervision.
- Training.
- And community relationships.

Kevin Fitzgerald, director of the state Division of Social Services, called the Post on Friday to say he's followed correspondence and looked at the state review of the way the local Social Services agency handled the cases of two Rowan County children — 6-year-old Budde Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Jones — who were beaten to death.

He sees, he said, "three critical areas that we want to be working with in Rowan County to protect children."

And, he added, "our sense is" that Rick Travis, local director, and his staff "are very diligently working on this issue."

First, he said, is the supervisory oversight of social workers.

"We think that needs to be strengthened and beefed up. It's very important the Protective Services worker staff is properly supervised." A department has to have an effective review of staff work that is tracked and appropriately followed up on.

"We'll be working with the county to make sure that happens," Fitzgerald said.

Next, he said, is "really looking and assuring that the staff is properly trained. A lot of training goes on right now," but it, too, must be "beefed up so they're equipped to be better watch dogs for the children." Social workers must "know where to look to see potential cases, so they're answering not just the specific complaint but the whole family."

Chuck Harris, director of Children's Services in the department, who was on a conference call with Fitzgerald, added that social workers "must look at all aspects of protecting children and not just the specific incidents that might be contained in the report."

That, he pointed out, is in the cover letter that accompanied the review and is a public document.

"We referred to the focus being too narrow," he said. Social Services needs to look at all aspects of a case, at any facts that are critical to the protection of that child, and they need to verify facts.

"Training and supervision are critical," Fitzgerald emphasized again.

Social Services, Harris said, "must ask, 'Did we ask enough questions? Do we need to go verify something?' That's a supervisory function and that needs to be strengthened in that agency."

Finally, Fitzgerald said, "Rowan needs to build off a real positive thing they seem to be doing now."

Two Rowan County Sheriff's deputies have now been assigned to the Social Services department to work on potential abuse cases. That change is evidence that local agencies are building relationships.

"That's the kind of community building that needs to happen," he said. "They need to play a leadership role in bringing those folks to the table, whether it's law enforcement, schools, whatever agency needs to be mobilized to protect children."

The other piece, he says, is that the state will be available for "ongoing and intensive assistance, and we will work with them as partners to improve their assistance. We believe the management in the DSS and the board is committed to do the same."

THE ROWAN COUNTY STANDARD

Wake-up call sounds

SALISBURY POST 3/8/97

The leadership of Rowan County — citizens and elected officials alike —must face up to some embarrassing facts today.

On Monday, the state will take over Salisbury-based Tri-County Mental Health because the local officials could not straighten out its problems themselves.

And within 30 days, the Rowan County Department of Social Services must present state social services officials with an improvement plan following the murders of three children who had come to the department's attention before their deaths. In one of those cases, the state says, "the agency's efforts were focused too narrowly."

Coincidence, or consequence?

Did these state alerts just happen to occur at the same time? Or are they both the result of a long term attitude of doing the minimum when it comes to serving this community's weakest and most vulnerable members?

Unfortunately, the latter is probably the case.

Cover letter

The Rowan Social Services board met for several hours Friday to go over a state review of the three fatalities. The public has access to only the "cover letter," an aptly named document. For while it suggests the local agency has some improving to do, the letter clearly states: "Our reviews found no indication that the Rowan County DSS had information or knowledge that would have predicted any of the violent events."

But did the agency seek full information and knowledge? That's the unanswered question.

The most disturbing aspect of the review is not its conclusion but rather the overall tone. A public that looks to child protective services workers to be unswerving advocates for children's safety now has a look at how the agency approaches that job. "We met standards."

The standards need to change.

Responsibility for making that happen will fall back on taxpayers, who now probably will be asked to fund more supervisory positions for child protection services and more technology for keeping up with cases. Those budget items clearly are needed, but county commissioners should refuse to grant them unless or until they have full confidence in the department.

That will be very difficult to achieve as long as records concerning DSS's handling of the Budde Clark, Christopher Jones and Trola Miller cases remain hidden in confidential files. The laws that keep this information secret seriously hamper social services' ability to both exonerate itself publicly and make a case for improved funding. Confidentiality that was intended to protect children's privacy — children who are dead and can suffer no worse pain — now is hurting the agency and befuddling the public.

If the reports cannot be opened to the general public, they should at least be shared with an elected body like the county commissioners.

Bright side

From these tragedies, some improvements in law may someday arise. The state now sees a need for higher standards in social services. Law enforcement agencies are very interested in working with social services to investigate child abuse complaints. And confidentiality laws may come up for review in the General Assembly.

The same goes for Tri-County. After a long period of struggle, employees and clients can now see a bright side — hope for a resolution that will more effectively serve people in need.

Rowan County has a lot going for it, economically. The county industrial park is taking shape, new businesses are moving in, expensive houses are going up. But as the county moves ahead, we must remember not to leave our most vulnerable citizens behind.

The state has given us a wake-up call on two fronts — mental health and social services. Neither situation developed overnight, though both can have sudden, devastating consequences.

Board asks to review DSS report

Cites concerns over handling of child death cases

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Rowan County commissioners want to see state reports on how the county Department of Social Services handled the cases of two children who were beaten to death.

Nineteen-month-old Christopher Lee Jones and 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark died from abuse, and a third child — 16-year-old Trola Miller — was shot to death during the same tragic Jan. 31-Feb. 4 weekend.

State officials reviewed Social Services' handling of the cases because the agency had dealt with all three children during the 12 months prior to their deaths. Local Social Services Director Rick Travis presented the reports to the Rowan County Board of Social Services during a 2¾-hour closed meeting Friday.

Only a cover letter from Chuck Harris, chief of the Children's Section of the state Division of Social Services, was made public, however.

County commissioners interrupted their scheduled agenda this morning to open their meeting today with their concerns about Social Services, voting unanimously to ask for the report if the law allows.

Frank Tadlock, the commission's representative on the Social Services board, raised the issue with a statement that he thinks each board member should see the report. Tadlock sat through the entire closed session Friday but made no public statements until this morning.

"I feel it's the responsibility of this board to be informed and know how to deal with this," he said.

Steve Blount, who has previously served as the representative on the Social Services board, said the report may be confidential but seconded Tadlock's motion to ask for the report nonetheless.

All board members said they believe they need to see the report.

Without seeing the report, Dave Rowland said, he couldn't support Social Services' request for more money.

"I'm not going to sit here and throw cash at a problem," he said, considering the size of the Social Services budget, including federal funds.

"Can they not shift some people and get this problem taken care of?" he asked.

Chairman Jim Neely said he feels that maybe some rules need to be changed.

"I'd like to have an opportunity to review this thing totally," he said.

Newton Cohen, who also attended Friday's session at Social Services, agreed with Neely.

As a businessman, he said, he thinks Social Services should manage its employees better. With about 90 on the staff, he said, "surely they could take some employees out of other areas," at least temporarily, to deal with a critical issue.

He cited Sheriff Bob Martin's agreement to assign two deputies, paid with federal "deadbeat dad" funds, to work with Social Services.

But Blount said Social Services is restricted by federal mandates.

"Their hands are tied," he said. "They have very little discretion beyond mandated services. I'm sure they're struggling with that this morning."

Before the commission meeting this morning, Cohen said he'd like to see the report, "because undoubtedly that's where it tells them about their shortcomings and the details."

He didn't see the report Friday, though he attended the closed session. Social Services board members asked him to stay during the session but didn't show him a copy.

Neely and Tadlock concluded the brief discussion with the hope that the two boards will be able to work together.

"I think," Tadlock said, "that it's going to take a collective effort of doctors, the hospital, schools, commissioners, families to acknowledge that this is a problem we're not going to tolerate. We're going to act responsibly to deal with this problem."

Neely promised his support in dealing with the problems.

Governor wants report on child deaths

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Gov. Jim Hunt wants to know what happened to two Rowan County children who were beaten to death.

He has asked the secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources to look into how the Rowan County Department of Social Services handled the cases of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Jones before they were killed. Budde's stepmother, Robin Gosnell, and Christopher's baby sitter, his mother's boyfriend, Jeremy Butcher, have been charged with murder.

Meanwhile, Rowan County commissioners will look at state reports on the case individually this week and — if the law allows — discuss the report at an executive session Monday night.

Elizabeth Smith, wife of former Rep. Neal Smith, and their daughter, attorney Mary Beth Smith, asked the governor to intervene. In a letter to Hunt, they said, the "citizens of Rowan County are outraged by the report that 'the state has found no indication that the Rowan County Department of Social Services had no information or knowledge that would have predicted any of the violent events' that culminated in the deaths of two Rowan children one month ago."

The Smiths wrote: "The desperate and violent circumstances of these children were well documented. ... The failure of the Department to act on behalf of these children is inexcusable. The problems with the Rowan County Department of Social Services are longstanding and should not be tolerated any further."

Hunt's administrative assistant Jan Bryant told the Post this morning that "the governor has instructed Secretary David Bruton to research the issue for him so he can be briefed on what has happened."

The governor can't keep up with events happening all over the state, she said, "but he is aware of the situation." Bryant said she explained to Elizabeth Smith this morning "that I did get her fax and appreciated it very much."

The Smiths faxed the governor their letter and copies of Post stories about the case and the state report.

The governor was out of town all weekend with his family and has attended an agricultural/environmental "summit" on Monday and "most of today," she said. "He certainly will be very responsive to it once he has an opportunity to be briefed on what has happened."

County requests review

At the same time, Rowan County Manager Tim Russell and the county attorney, John Holshouser, have moved ahead with a request from county commissioners for a look at the full state review of the cases. Commissioner Frank Tadlock, who serves on the Social Services board, saw the report Friday and said he'd like all county commissioners to see the report.

Social Services Director Rick Travis indicated Monday afternoon that the board will be able to review the report, Russell said this morning. "We plan to encourage commissioners to contact Rick some time this week, at which time they'll be able to go at their own time and convenience to review it and discuss any questions they have with Rick."

In addition, he plans to find out if it is legal for commissioners to have an executive session to discuss the report collectively following their regular meeting next Monday night.

"If it's legal," he said, "a state representative on that issue and Rick Travis will present the report to the board ...

"We're dealing with very, very touchy information. I applaud the efforts of really letting the public know."

But Social Services must also "protect the family," Russell said. "I can't imagine another situation that's so sad as this is. Our hearts go out to these children. Our society as a whole has sort of let the system fail.

"... Certainly if the report indicates any weaknesses or recommendations that the county should make, the commissioners will make that public. I think our board will react very quickly to protect children. The board's not going to hide anything. We have to look at our system of tracking these cases and hopefully do what's best for everybody.

"We'll be up front as much we possibly can to prevent as many situations as we can."

Hoping for improvement

It's sad, he said, that issues like this must even be talked about, "but to talk about them hopefully will help improve them."

Russell said he thinks the executive session is necessary to protect the family.

If it's not permissible, "then we would not go into one," he said. "That's why we're offering them an opportunity to go individually. They are the governing body of the county and the Department of Social Services is an employee."

"Great!" Mary Beth Smith said this morning when she learned commissioners will see the state report. But she questions the executive session.

"I guess we're ultimately the employers," she said. "I want to know."

"I think it's very appropriate that they are that interested," her mother added, "but every citizen of this county is equally interested, and I believe we have the right to know. These children are the children of all of us.

"I think we should have an open forum. I've had I don't know how many phone calls," she said, because of her previous work on behalf of abused children and a letter to the editor of the Post about the recent deaths. "And a forum would be the place for people to ask questions and make suggestions for improvement. I applaud any actions that any county officials take, but all of us are in this together."

The Smiths attended a Friday afternoon press conference at Social Services where the director and board discussed the state report. They were upset with staff comments that Social Services had followed "protocol" or guidelines.

"They followed protocol, and they let it go," Elizabeth Smith said. "That's completely unacceptable.

"I went to the meeting," she said, to hear staff and board members say, " 'We are devastated. We are horrified that this has happened. If we met standards, they are not high enough. They need to be changed.'

"... You can't have two children beaten to death under your watch and say you met standards."

At one point, during Friday's discussion, Mary Beth Smith ask board member Jeannie Misenheimer if Misenheimer would have been satisfied with Social Services' response if her child had been killed.

"No!" Misenheimer said adamantly, but added, "This would not happen to my child."

Afterwards, Mary Beth Smith said, "We would all like that assurance, but in these troubled times of divorce and custody battles, those of us parents and grandparents who have been spared such tragedy know that there but for the grace of God go I. As a board member of the DSS, it did happen to her children. It did happen to all of our children."

Elizabeth Smith pointed out that Misenheimer asked for the public to support Social Services at the meeting Friday.

"If they want support, let them have an open forum and invite the public. Let them have an open forum and see how concerned the public is," she said.

Trola Miller

Amid the revelations about what Budde Clark and Christopher Jones suffered before they died, the public may have forgotten about Trola Miller.

She was the 16-year-old who suffered a fatal gunshot within days of the beating deaths of 6-year-old Budde and 19-month-old Christopher. Follow-up reports by the Post on the boys' experiences with the Rowan County Department of Social Services overlooked one intriguing fact: Trola Miller had a history with Social Services as well.

A Juvenile Court judge placed Miller in the legal custody of Social Services in May 1994. Arrangements were made for her to live with a sister after efforts to place her in two foster homes failed. She ran away in May 1996. A pick-up order directed law enforcement officers to return her to Social Services if they found her. But neither officers nor her social worker could find her to get her into a stable living arrangement.

"The pick-up order was still in effect at the time of her death," a state-issued statement read.

What other pick-up orders are waiting to be fulfilled?

Don't pass the buck on protecting children

Something absolutely must be done regarding child abuse in Rowan County. Now. The "Pass the Buck" game cannot continue if we have any regard for the lives of little ones like Budde Clark and Christopher Jones, who could not protect themselves. Accountability — from parents, other relatives and friends who knew about abuse and looked the other way, and from agencies created for their protection — must be demanded.

Are these highly visible cases only the tip of the iceberg? If extreme cases like these make headlines, how many less significant stories are swept under the rug? How many children are being permanently warped by physical and sexual abuse? The only hope they have is if folks like you step forward, dig your heels in, and say "Enough!"

Health care professionals, teachers, ministers, coaches, anyone who cares — please report all cases of suspected abuse. Report it to every agency that has any responsibility. Stay on their backs and kick up enough fuss to get action if you think a child is in danger. His/her life could depend on it, and you can make a difference. If you reported a case in the past that wasn't remedied or investigated, rise up and say so.

The public needs to know what a life-threatening crisis is going on. Thanks so much to the Salisbury Post for bringing these stories to our attention. Hopefully we will learn from our mistakes, and have the guts to get involved. Don't wait for another tragedy before you speak up.

Where was citizens' concern before three children died?

As a citizen of Rowan County, I feel compelled to write this letter at this time. First of all, I, along with all the citizens of Rowan County, feel anguished because of the recent tragic deaths of three of our dear children. Needless to say, we will carry the memories of these young ones with us.

However, I must at this time ask myself and ask you, the other citizens of Rowan County, "Where were we before these children died?"

"Where were we, you and I, when the Department of Social Services accepted in one month 87 reports of abuse and neglect for investigations and 90 protective treatment cases?"

"Where were we, you and I, when 208 children remain in legal and/or physical custody of Rowan County Department of Social Services?"

"Where are we now, you and I, citizens of Rowan County, when 56 families are awaiting adoptive home studies and adoptive placements so that our children can be given a stable environment of love and care?"

"Where are we when DSS has one worker to do all the adoptive studies and adoptive placements before our children can receive some permanence and stability in their lives and before the families can fulfill their rights to be parents?"

"Where are we when more social workers in child protective services are needed and additional funding from county commissioners is the bottom line?"

Finally, my fellow citizens, "Where are we now after these tragedies have passed? Are we perched like vultures on a live wire waiting for the kill so that we can pounce on the spoils?"

"Where are we?"

Director should resign

Three deaths and "Even in hindsight, they would do nothing differently," "The local agency met standards set by the state," "There was a lack of documentation." Truthfully, as a community that is being asked to get involved, I sincerely think our first involvement is to join together and demand a resignation from Rick Travis (director of the Rowan County Department of Social Services). These deaths demand a change in the leadership of our local social services department.

Rick, you and your agency failed these three children. You had inadequate documentation, inadequate supervision.

As a mother and as a member of this community, I request your resignation and ask the entire community of Rowan County to support me in this stand.

Child custody battle unresolved

BY JASON WILLIAMS
SALISBURY POST

The custody battle over Sammy Bringle hangs unresolved today because court-ordered home studies from the Department of Social Services were not completed for a court hearing scheduled Wednesday.

The teen-ager was living in the same Cleveland home where 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark died in January. Sammy's mother, Robin Gosnell, is charged with murdering the 6-year-old boy.

As she awaits her murder trial, Gosnell is representing herself as she battles her ex-husband, Gary Bringle, for custody of their son, Sammy. Gosnell wants her mother, Virginia Wright, to keep Sammy.

HEARING: Lee Clark, left, and Robin Gosnell appeared in Rowan court Wednesday.

On Wednesday, Diane Kane, a county social worker, told court officials that the home study tests for Gary Bringle and Virginia Wright need more work.

Kane has visited the Wright and Bringle residences in China Grove and the notes about Wright are ready for typing, she said.

Kane is waiting for a Cabarrus County criminal record check on Wright. However, notes on Gary Bringle were not ready for typing and she did not feel comfortable testifying from the notes.

Rowan County District Court Judge Ted Blanton continued the case until April 1. Blanton ordered the $150 home studies on Feb. 20. Wednesday afternoon, Social Services Director Rick Travis said Kane has not had adequate time to finish.

Custody

Kane is one of two people who screen complaints about child abuse, Travis said. Calls went from about 80 in January to about 116 in February.

"It's been crazy around here with the new phone system and child abuse complaints," Travis said. Kane does the home studies in her "spare time."

Gary Bringle, 36, received custody of his son in early February after Gosnell, 40, was charged with felony child abuse and murder. Gosnell appeared in court Wednesday in a orange jail jumpsuit.

Blanton listened to some subtle bickering between the parties involved.

Rick Locklear, the attorney defending Gosnell on the murder charge, appeared at the custody hearing to make sure Gosnell didn't say anything that prosecutors could use in the criminal case.

Gosnell made a request for her mother to have visitation rights with Sammy.

Locklear and Gary Bringle's attorney, David Bingham, worked out a deal in the judge's chambers. Bingham said that Wright could visit the child under the Social Services' supervision on Friday and on March 21 and 27.

Gosnell did not like that idea, calling the agreement "limited and constructed." She did not want Sammy put "under a microscope" and feeling uncomfortable.

She also wanted more than three days.

Gosnell asked Blanton to talk with Sammy about the issue. With the custody hearing postponed, Blanton said he did not have enough information to speak with Sammy.

The discussion prompted Bingham to compare Gosnell to the "tail wagging the dog," and he withdrew the visitation offer. Gosnell and Locklear then tried to introduce a motion for Blanton to consider a visitation request.

Blanton refused, saying he would not entertain the motion without the hearing.

Also listening to the argments Wednesday was Pam Bradshaw, natural mother of the dead 6-year-old. Bradshaw happened to be in court herself Wednesday, still facing a question of why she didn't make child support payments Budde's father, Lee, and stepmother, Robin Gosnell.

Since Budde is now dead, District Court Judge Anna Mills Wagoner dismissed any further question about the child support payments. Bradshaw then walked to the courtroom where Gosnell battled to keep custody of her son, Sammy.

State pledges public review

Official: System failed children

Salisbury Post 3/13/97

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The state's top Human Resources official says the system failed three Rowan County children who died within five days.

And, at the request of Gov. Jim Hunt, Dr. David Bruton says he's determined to find out why within the next two weeks.

"Working both with the state and the county department of social services," said Bruton, "we will reexamine where we have failed. We will report our findings publicly. We will make the necessary corrections."

And he will go a step further, he said in a statement faxed to the Post Tuesday afternoon.

He will "rigorously" review present state standards to protect children.

Bruton, who took a leave of absence from his 30-year pediatric practice in Southern Pines two months ago to become secretary of the N.C. Department of Human Resources, said Tuesday afternoon the review is already underway.

"I have set a two-week deadline," he said. "By the first of the month, I'm going to have everything I need."

Bruton said he doesn't fault the work of committees, "but I'm more of a get-me-some-person-I-can-hold-responsible" type. So he has asked Kevin Fitzgerald, director of the Division of Social Services of the Department of Human Resources, to reexamine Social Services' handling of the three cases.

Local Social Services Director Rick Travis also received the statement Tuesday afternoon.

"Any decision they made to do this was certainly made in Raleigh," he said, "and we had no prior knowledge or discussion with them about this. If they're going to review, then I'll wait until they give us the results of that second review to make any comment."

Travis worked with Fitzgerald on a local case almost exactly a year ago.

In March 1996, the state director intervened in a Rowan case when a grandmother wrote a letter to the Post saying that the system had failed her family.

Her daughter-in-law, Heidi Vernon, left her two children on a busy intersection in downtown Salisbury in freezing weather to get a hit of crack cocaine. Subsequently arrested, she was released from jail on bail and returned home with the children.

➤ See Review, Page 4A

Outraged, the grandparents made the story public, and Fitzgerald ordered a thorough review. The review brought a charge of neglect against the parents and recommendations for stronger Social Services action to protect the children. That included placing the children with the grandparents at that time.

In his statement Wednesday, Bruton said the N.C. Division of Social Services' review of the three deaths — the beatings of Budde Lee Clark, 6, and Christopher Jones, 19 months, and the shooting of Trola Miller, 16 — found a "serious need in Rowan County for more supervisory oversight, more training of staff and increased community involvement to prevent similar deaths in the future."

He said the governor directed him "to review our state investigation and take any additional steps necessary to correct failures in our efforts to protect children. I will go beyond such an investigation and rigorously review the standards we have in place to protect children."

He added that the governor has proposed expanding the state's outreach program to touch an additional 1,500 or more children with community health advisers who visit vulnerable families to offer support and counseling. National reviews show such efforts can reduce child abuse by more than 50 percent among participating families.

He's also asked a new task force to develop a comprehensive state plan to prevent child abuse and neglect.

"We all have to work together to protect our vulnerable children and strengthen their families," Bruton's statement concluded. "Let's devote every ounce of human energy available to bring to bear all the community's resources to help these struggling families."

In a telephone interview Tuesday, Bruton said he talked with N.C. Rep. Charlotte Gardner, R-Rowan, about her support for legislation to open Social Services records involving the death of a child.

Gardner says she'll sponsor such a bill if it can be drafted for this session.

Bruton said he can't commit to supporting the legislation now because he doesn't know what it will say.

"But I can commit to the concept of open meetings and open communication," he said. "I've been involved right smart in my life with public things," including chairing the state board of education during Hunt's first term as governor.

"And I have a strong sense," he said, "that if you do your business correctly and open and in public, in the long run it turns out to be better.

"Often people tend to hide or disguise poor performance" behind confidentiality requirements, "I've just seen it over and over.

"Obviously, there will be some private things that would not be public, having to do with the family, details that might be subject to litigation, but those things would be protected by private confidentiality. But personal, confidential things that obviously have to remain confidential and personal should not be used as a mechanism not to disclose anything."

Children's vulnerabilities

I read and hear about children of parents who are on drugs or alcohol and who beat the children. It truly breaks my heart. The system is letting them down, but in some cases the judge is letting them down.

I know of a wonderful couple who were unable to have children and have adopted one child. They have had custody of a second child and are trying to gain permanent custody. The last time they were in court the judge granted the parents a continuance. The natural parents are on crack cocaine!

I was adopted and recently found my parents, so this is a very emotional issue for me. Most adults think that this type of hanging in the balance will not affect a child so young. I want everyone to know that it does! It teaches the child to trust no one. It's hard to understand why anyone would love you. The emotional scars are tremendous.

This child loves her foster parents; they are the only parents she's ever known. This child, like all others, didn't ask to be born, but the child is the one being punished.

We can't say it's important to keep biological families together or that all children should be adopted out. There is no one way to handle every case, because all are different, but these are children, and their lives are in our hands. Can't we use a little common sense?

— VALERIE BROWN

Time for change at DSS

The actions taken by Social Services are reprehensible. How those officials could say they would not have taken the toddler away from his mother after seeing the pictures taken of him, is hard for anyone to comprehend.

With cigarette burns all over his body, with bruises on his iittle body as well as bite marks, only the most heartless individual could not be touched by such torture.

I believe there should certainly be some changes made in the Department of Social Services so that no circumstances such as these should ever occur again.

Acceptance of God

In your Saturday paper on Page 5C under Glimpses of Faith, you put, "But Jesus said, 'Let the little children come to me, and do not stop them; for it is to such as these that the kingdom of heaven belongs.' — Matthew 19:14"

My Bible, which is the King James Version which has been in this world for hundreds of years, says in Matthew 19:14 the following: "But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The way you have stated it makes me think that whenever children read this scripture according to the way you have worded it, they will tend to think that the kingdom of heaven belongs to them.

I don't interpret the King James Version that way at all. My interpretation is: The kingdom of heaven is for everyone who accepts the Lord as their savior. There are lots of children and adults in Heaven, and Heaven belongs to God. We who accept Him as our saviour are all children of God. We adults are not to try to keep little children from accepting the Lord as their savior. We are not to forbid them to do this.

DSS workers are committed to help

BY MICAH MELTON
SPECIAL TO THE POST

I am a social worker with the Rowan County Department of Social Services. To me, social work seems more like a responsibility than a job — an exchange for the privilege of living in this community. Although I chose to pursue employment and professional education as a social worker, I do not believe that these choices are what make me responsible to do my part building the community.

Social workers are simply agents or representatives of the larger community — we are not the end of the line in child protection, cash assistance, or any other services to citizens. Often, however, we get involved when "natural" helping systems have fallen through. And sometimes, even though we work as hard as we can and use the very best of our knowledge and skills, tragedy still strikes.

The deaths of the three children in Rowan County are nothing short of tragic. My heart aches for their suffering and for the agony in their families. I also know from my day-to-day experience that the social workers in this agency are committed, skilled, knowledgeable and caring. If we could predict the future, we could count how many lives have been saved and improved by the diligent efforts of Rowan County's social work staff. And my guess is that the numbers are astonishing.

I challenge the Salisbury Post, the board of social services, the board of commissioners, Social Services employees and community citizens to recognize the complexities of working with children and families, and to work together to make our county a safer place for our children to grow up. We do not have time to waste pointing fingers at each other — our children are counting on all of us.

Children must be community's priority

I am writing this letter to voice my concern and opinion about the recent child abuse cases that resulted in murder. As far as I am concerned, the Department of Social Services should clean house and start all over again, with people who care about abused children and are concerned enough to follow up on these important cases.

I don't think there is anything more important than children; they are so innocent! It breaks my heart that these children are lying in the ground because of the failure of society to protect them. DSS workers should stop trying to pass the buck and take the responsibility for their neglect. If the laws are the problem, then petition to have them changed and stop using them as a scapegoat. DSS seems to have all kinds of excuses, but I have read of none that would justify their total neglect — Lord have mercy, pictures don't lie.

I am an ordinary citizen of Rowan County and a taxpayer, and I would rather my taxes be used for the protection of children than any other program. Hopefully, the deaths of these children will wake the people up enough that something will be done.

Accused child abuser has prior conviction

Kannapolis woman served time for manslaughter in N.Y.

BY NEIL HOLTHOUSER AND WESLEY YOUNG
SALISBURY POST

A Kannapolis woman accused of child abuse had previously been convicted of manslaughter involving the death of a child.

Denise Santos, 43, will stand trial next week on charges that she abused a 4-year-old boy in December 1995 by submersing him in scalding water. The boy suffered second- and third-degree burns on his feet, buttocks and genitalia.

In a bond hearing Wednesday, Rowan County District Attorney Bill Kenerly asked the court to increase Santos' $10,000 bond on evidence she had previously been charged with murder in New York.

She was convicted of a lesser charge of manslaughter and served time in a New York prison.

Kenerly would not give details of the conviction outside of court, saying he did not want to jeopardize the state's case against the woman.

However, Kannapolis Police Sgt. Jeff Tysinger said the manslaughter conviction in New York involved the death of a child, though it is not clear if she was related to the child.

Tysinger also said Santos' had been convicted on drug charges, once for possession of more than 10 gallons of PCP, or "angel dust."

Santos was charged with felony child abuse in December 1995 after a child she was baby sitting suffered severe burns.

According to a news report from December 1995, Santos was baby sitting a 4-year-old boy and his twin sister at her home in Kannapolis, which she shared with the children's aunt, Paula Jones. Jones had custody of the twins, whose natural mother lived out of town.

Santos allegedly forced the boy into a tub of extremely hot water after he wet his bed. She then called 911.

The boy was taken to Cabarrus Memorial Hospital, where emergency room workers called the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

Social workers immediately removed the sister from the home and placed her in foster care in Rowan County. It was not clear this morning what became of the boy.

Santos posted her $10,000 bond shortly after her arrest. She was summoned back to court Wednesday after Kenerly learned of her prior conviction.

Santos' attorney, Robert Inge, argued in court against a bond increase, saying she had never missed any of her court appointments while she was out on bond and had faithfully complied with every requirement. Inge refused this morning to elaborate on Santos' conviction in New York.

Judge Henry E. Frye ruled that Santos' bond would remain the same but added that she will be jailed without bond if she ever fails to appear for a court date.

Woman killed child in N.Y.

Suspect in abuse case convicted of manslaughter in 1974, spent 3 years in jail

BY JASON WILLIAMS
SALISBURY POST

The Kannapolis woman scheduled to go on trial next week here for felony child abuse spent less than three years in prison for killing a child in New York.

According to court records, Denise Santos, 43, was convicted of second-degree manslaughter on Aug. 12, 1974. The Bronx County Supreme Court sentenced Santos to 6½ years in prison.

She was released on parole from New York's Department of Correctional Services in February 1977.

Details about the death and the age of the child were not available from New York officials on Friday. The child was in Santos' care at the time of its death.

Nearly 10 years after the first conviction, Santos was convicted for manufacturing, distributing and dispensing an illegal substance. She received a seven-year sentence in New Jersey in February 1986, but spent less than three years at Edna Mahan Correctional Facility. She was paroled in January 1989.

Santos is accused of putting a 4-year-old boy in scalding water back in December 1995. The child suffered third-degree burns. She was baby sitting the child, authorities said.

Santos has been freed on a $10,000 bond.

CHANGED ATTITUDE: Christian Ray Pittman spends a lot of time in the Cabarrus Correctional Center chapel.

Christian Pittman says charges of abuse, murder against Robin Gosnell are untrue

BY JERRI MENGES
SALISBURY POST

MOUNT PLEASANT — Christian Ray Pittman knows no one's going to believe him.

He's a convicted con man, serving six to eight months at Cabarrus Correctional Center for swindling people out of money to support his five-year crack cocaine habit.

Besides, the whole world — at least Rowan County — wants to believe his mother, Robin Gosnell, is a murderer. They want to believe she beat her 6-year-old stepson, Budde Lee Clark, to death on Jan. 31, then put him in a bathtub to make it look like he drowned.

Robin Gosnell is in the Rowan County Jail, charged with felony child abuse and murder, and she writes to Pittman frequently.

"People are ready to kick dirt on her," Pittman told the Post. "People are quick to say something bad about a person. I know in my heart what my mom's like. I don't care what it says in the paper."

His innocent, somber expression doesn't change as he talks about his mother, whom he seems to worship. His short haircut — with bangs across his forehead — makes him look more like he should be shooting hoops in someone's yard, instead of cooking meals for fellow inmates.

Pittman, 21, is tired of seeing his mom's name blasted in the newspapers and on television. He doesn't trust the press. Newspapers print rumors and don't get their facts straight, he says. He agreed to talk to the Post because "someone's got to stand up for my mom."

His mother stood up for him when no one else would. She was the first one he went to when he finally admitted he needed help with his cocaine addiction. She forced him to go to Charter Pines psychiatric hospital in Charlotte to seek help.

As he defends his mother, his voice gets louder, trampling his obvious conflicts with statements made by investigators, school officials, neighbors and ex-husbands. She was protective, not controlling. She home schooled her children diligently and loved Budde as much as any of her children, he says.

"I don't know what happened in that house any more than you do," he says loudly. "But I don't believe she done it."

Then, more quietly: "I'm a mamma's boy. Mamma has always been there for me. When Daddy and everybody else gave up on me, Mamma was standing tall."

Only now he can't run to Mamma, because she's in jail, too.

"This is a growing time for me," he says. "In a lot of ways, Mamma is like God. She's been a Band-Aid for my boo boos. God allows things to happen. This could have been for me, this could have been for my family, to bring our family together."

Time for reflection

Pittman has spent a lot of time in the chapel where he's sitting today, wearing his white cook's apron, white pants and t-shirt and black shoes. He comes here for Sunday and midweek services and goes to the dining hall for Narcotics Anonymous and Alcoholics Anonymous group therapy sessions three times a week. The bright afternoon sunlight streams in through the chapel windows as he talks about his new life. A white, roped cross around his neck symbolizes his new relationship with his God.

It was God who gave him strength when he got that call from his estranged wife, Jaime, that Saturday telling him that his stepbrother was dead. Buddy, the cute little 6-year-old, blond haired kid that often visited Pittman's house to play with his two little girls, was gone.

"It was a shock to me that something had happened to Buddy," he says, shaking his head. "It was a shock to me that Buddy died. And then they called back and said that they had charged my mom with child abuse."

That blew his mind. His mother loved Buddy, Pittman says. She treated him no differently than she did Pittman and Sammy Bringle, her 13-year-old son from a previous marriage. Pittman remembered how upset she was when she told him that Budde was being abused by his birth mother, Pam Bradshaw. That's why she fought hard to help her husband, Lee Gosnell, get custody of the little boy in 1995.

Bradshaw has no criminal record, according to Rowan County court records. She was acquitted of one misdemeanor charge of communicating threats against Robin Gosnell.

The Department of Social Services received five reports against Bradshaw when Budde lived with her.

A Social Services home study only substantiated two of those and only one was mentioned in the home study report, filed in court as part of the Gosnells' fight to get Budde.

Robin Gosnell had a "direct line" to Social Services director Rick Travis, when she and her husband were trying to get custody of Budde, Pittman says.

"This is ironic," he says. "She's been a supermom against child abuse. And all of a sudden, it has turned around on her. If my mom was ever going to beat anyone, she was going to beat me. I was the worst one out of the whole bunch."

Childhood travails

Pittman's parents, Robin and Junior Pittman, separated when he was a toddler. He bounced back and forth from his mother, father and maternal grandparents, and he learned to manipulate them all to get his way.

"They all wanted me," he says. "They fought over me. So if one didn't give me what I wanted, I would go to the other one."

Pittman lived with his father until he was 8 or 9 years old, then he went to live with his mother, her new husband, Gary Monte Bringle, and their son, Sammy. That was one of the worst periods in his life, he says, because that's when he saw Bringle and his mom fighting.

At his attorney's instructions, Bringle wouldn't comment for this article.

Court records show that Bringle, Sammy's father, pleaded guilty in 1988 to an assault charge filed by Robin Gosnell. The arrest warrant accuses Bringle of assaulting his wife by "pulling her by her hair from her house and by hitting her with his fists and kicking her repeatedly about the face and body."

On the same day, Robin Bringle pleaded guilty to assaulting her husband with a deadly weapon, a vehicle. Both received a prayer for judgment continued and an order to get counseling. The couple eventually separated and then divorced.

When Pittman was 13, he decided to go live with his father.

"My mom was over-protective," he says. "She wouldn't let me go out with my friends or ride my bicycle. I could ride go-carts at my daddy's.

"My mamma wanted me to stay close to her. My daddy owned an automotive shop and she would call continuously to see where I was. So I left. Like I said, if I didn't get what I wanted at one place, I would go to the other."

By age 16, Pittman was living wherever he wanted — with his mom, dad, grandparents or an aunt in Concord — and using marijuana. By 17, he was selling the drug, mainly to support his habit, and getting into fights at school.

That's why his mom decided to pull Sammy out of the public schools and start home schooling, he says.

"Sammy went to kindergarten and first grade. He had perfect attendance. He made good grades. But my mom knew that public school was the best place to buy and sell drugs, so she took Sammy out."

Officials in three different school systems, including Rowan-Salisbury, said Robin Gosnell kept her children out of school. Gosnell always told the schools she was home schooling Sammy, but they could never find evidence that she was, despite visiting at different times of the day or week. Kannapolis school officials say their conflicts with her go all the way back to Pittman.

But Pittman says his mother never tried to keep him out of school. He quit in the 11th grade and finished at Rowan-Cabarrus Community College.

"My mom never tried to keep me out of school," he says. "I spent a lot of time in the hospital when I was growing up, because of asthma and allergies. I was in the hospital a week at the time. I went to school at Aycock, Kannapolis Middle and A.L. Brown."

And he can vouch for his mom's home schooling efforts.

"I have personally seen her teaching Sammy and Budde," he says. "She'd give Budde magazines and newspapers, and he'd circle his A's and B's. He'd circle them in different colors. He knew how to say his ABCs. And he could count to 20."

Sammy could read and write very well, Pittman says.

"And Budde was learning to write. She believed in letting them excel at their own pace."

Growing drug problem

Pittman's drug habit gradually progressed from marijuana to crack cocaine, and over a five-year period he learned to con his way into people's hearts with sad stories to get the money he needed to buy crack.

His car broke down and he didn't have the money to buy the part it needed, he'd tell them. Or, he needed money for a taxi cab. He stole a woman's purse from a store counter. He took $1,700 from his maternal grandfather for a two-day crack spree.

Finally, in September, Pittman was arrested and jailed on charges of possession of stolen goods, obtaining property by false pretenses, one count of breaking and entering and two counts of uttering a forged check. He pleaded guilty in November.

Pittman's mother was relieved when he was arrested. She had tried to have him involuntarily committed to Charter Pines Hospital in Charlotte three times. She had "ripped and roared the streets of Salisbury" looking for him during his drug sprees.

"If it weren't for her prayers, I wouldn't be here today," he says. "By her not quitting, like everybody else did, by her not giving up on me ... My mom and I are real close. We're like brothers and sisters."

But their relationship wasn't always perfect. When Pittman was questioned about their relationship during a second interview, he admitted the two of them got into fights so big that the China Grove police had to come to their house to break them up.

Pittman got married when he was 18, and he and his wife, Jaime, moved in with his mother and her new husband, Lee Gosnell. Pittman went to work with Gosnell at Freight Handlers Inc., which operates out of the Food Lion warehouse.

In January 1996, the couple moved across the street from Robin and Lee Gosnell in Cleveland. At one point, his drug problem was so severe, neighbors mentioned they might call Social Services about the couple's children. So they gave custody of the children to his mother.

Pittman says he "didn't do drugs in front of the children."

Neighbors, including one with a 6-year-old boy who lived on the same block, have said they didn't even know a 6-year-old boy lived with the Gosnells.

But Pittman says Budde came to his house frequently to play with his little girls, Kandi and Meagan, who now live with their mother and her parents in China Grove. "Budde was my little helper," he says. "... He liked to help me clean up.

"My mom would play on the trampoline with the boys, and she bought Barbie dolls and little vanity sets for my girls."

Pittman criticizes the media for making fun of his family for having "black material" over their windows. Lee and Robin hung dark green shades in their bedroom to block the sun so Lee could sleep during the day when he worked third shift, he says.

And Sammy had black blinds over his window and black sheets on his bed because he was going through a black phase.

"Teen-agers go through these black stages where they listen to rock-n-roll music and wear rock T-shirts, which are usually black," Pittman says. "He can have black in his room if he wants to. Who's going to tell me what's normal?"

"It's not 1950 anymore, so let's stop treating it like it is. The president has said it's OK for a man to marry a man in this country, and you're going to worry about garbage bags on windows?"

Unexplained death

So if his mother and stepfather loved children as much as he says, how does Pittman explain Budde's death? All he knows is what he's heard, from his half-brother Sammy and stepfather Lee. Both gave the same story:

Robin Gosnell was getting ready for work and giving Budde a bath when the telephone rang. She asked Sammy to watch Budde while she answered the phone.

"Budde could take a bath by himself, but he was mischievous," Pittman says. "He used to climb on top of the washing machine ... "

Sammy checked on Budde then went outside to get his Chihuahua, April. He was outside about 10 minutes and when he came back inside Budde was floating face down in the bathtub. There was water on the floor, water on the washing machine.

"Sammy screamed for Mom," Pittman says. "She came in, flipped Budde over, got him out of the tub and tried to give him mouth to mouth resuscitation. About that time Lee was coming home and he heard the screams ... "

Budde stayed alive until he got to the hospital, Pittman says. And that raises another question.

"If he was beat to death, how did he get water in his lungs?" he asks. "If he was not breathing, that couldn't have happened."

Pittman's account contradicts every public statement that law enforcement officials have made, and sources have told the Post medical personnel found no water in Budde's lungs.

But that doesn't change Pittman's mind.

Budde was known to turn the bath water back on, Pittman says, if his mom left him alone in the tub. That would explain how the tub got full of water while Sammy was outside. Budde probably got out of the tub and climbed up on the washing machine when Sammy was outside. That would explain the water on the machine. And maybe he banged his head on the tub when he climbed back down and got back in the tub.

But what about the old wounds hospital sources say they saw when Budde was taken to the emergency room?

"He slept in a bunk bed," Pittman says simply. "He could have injured himself on the bed ... I believe it was accidental, totally. If it was murder, what's the motive? There was no insurance.

"... He was not in the way. If she wanted him out of the way, she would have given him back to" Pam Bradshaw, Budde's birth mother.

Pittman has not asked his mom about the details of that evening. He hasn't been able to see her since she's in jail and he wouldn't ask her that kind of question in a letter.

"She's the little old lady who lives in the shoe," Pittman says. "She loves children. I'm willing to accept anything. But I just can't see my mom doing it. Nobody can believe it. It's like a shock ... But at the same time I can't see her allowing anybody else in the house to do it either."

Pittman doesn't expect anybody to believe his story. He's come a long way since he came to prison. He spends much of his time praying, passing out Christian witness tracks, and he can call scripture and inspirational poems to mind at will. But the public still sees him as a con man.

"God's helping me deal with my character defects," he says. "But I can't expect anybody to believe this right now."

All he can say is he knows his mom well enough to know she did not, could not, kill a child.

"I hear from her just about every day, through letters," he says. "She's all right. She's going to make it."

As usual, Robin Gosnell spends her time in jail worrying about her children, Pittman says.

"She's worried about me and Sammy, how Sammy's taking it, how I'm taking it," he says. "Her and Sammy have never been parted. They've got that bond. I don't believe she did it. Time will tell."

Child abuse deaths reveal weaknesses

From broken families to safety nets that have been stretched too far, society is hurting

Scotty Trexler, 21 months old.
Brandie Freeman, 2.
Budde Clark, 6.
Christopher Jones, 19 months.

There probably are more names on the list — area children who have died as a result of child abuse — but these four stick in my memory, maybe because their cases stirred so much public indignation. Their stories have a way of staying with you.

ELIZABETH COOK

The Rowan County Department of Social Services was searching for Scotty in 1987, hoping to put him in protective custody. The department knew he was suffering abuse. But his young mother and her boyfriend fled, taking the toddler with them. Scotty died in Tennessee, beaten and bruised. The boyfriend, who watched the child while the mother worked, was convicted of second-degree murder.

Brandie Freeman of Linwood died in 1993, her head repeatedly slammed into the floor for a childhood infraction. Her mother's boyfriend, who watched the child while the mother worked, now sits on Central Prison's death row.

Budde and Christopher both died this year. Budde died while living with his father and stepmother, killed by a blow to the head but also showing signs of abuse. His stepmother is charged in his death.

Christopher's story contains a frightening echo from Scotty and Brandie's cases. His mother's boyfriend, who watched the child while the mother worked, is accused of beating him to death.

Take note, advocates of welfare reform. Who is going to take care of children while their mothers work? We must have clean, safe, affordable care for the children of women who venture alone into the world of starting wages and second shifts.

Several disturbing similarities run through the stories of these children's deaths: teen pregnancy, out-of-wedlock births, low wages, inappropriate child care and an overburdened social services system.

The social services department here has come under tremendous scrutiny following the deaths of Budde, Christopher and 16-year-old Trola Miller in a five-day period. All three had some history with social services, and sources close to the boys' cases cite signs of previous abuse that they believe should have prompted protective action.

Just what social services did in these cases remains unknown to the public, hidden behind a policy of confidentiality that has outlived the children it was designed to protect.

That policy needs to change — for the sake of the children, and for the sake of the social workers themselves. For children's sake, we need to hold the system that protects them publicly accountable. And social services workers deserve a chance to explain what they did. These could not have been easy cases.

Changes in the federal Child Abuse and Prevention Act have allowed states to move toward greater disclosure. Colorado and Florida make abuse or neglect records public in cases where a child dies in state care. North Carolina should follow that cue and expand upon it.

Because the Post has focused so much attention on Budde and Christopher and social services' role, some people draw the conclusion that we blame the department for their deaths. That is not our intent. The Rowan County Jail now houses the people being held directly accountable for these boys' deaths; a judge and jury will determine their fate.

These boys were killed, authorities say. Their murderers should be held as accountable as the man sitting on death row for Brandie Freeman's death. If found guilty, they are the ones who deserve the system's worst punishment.

But that does not diminish our responsibility to hold accountable the system put in place to protect children — nor our responsibility to keep that system viable. We'll never know the names of all the children Social Services has saved. We'll never forget the names of those we all collectively failed.

Fighting abuse must involve community

BY PAM WILLIAMS
SPECIAL TO THE POST

I'm compelled to respond to the recent publicity of child fatalities, as a citizen of Rowan County and as an employee of the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

As a citizen, I am deeply concerned for abused children and their families. However, we must ask ourselves, "How much are we willing to pay for the quality services we want to provide for abused and neglected children?"

To meet state standards, the Department of Social Services needs two more supervisors plus additional social workers. To exceed state standards, even more workers are needed. More foster homes and adoptive homes are needed. Will we open our homes?

Difficult teens and children with severe emotional/behavioral problems require more than a regular foster home. Appropriate placements for these children range from $4,500 to $10,000 (or higher) per child, per month. Are we willing to dig deeper into our pockets?

The Rowan County Department of Social Services needs computers and automation for Children's Services. Rowan County is one of the few counties without automation. Are we willing to pay for automation to save social workers time?

Child abuse is a community, not an agency, problem. As citizens of this county, when did we get involved by volunteering our time, reporting child abuse, lobbying for new laws or funding child abuse prevention agencies?

The next time taxes increase, will we grumble or gladly support agencies to protect our children? Will Rowan County continue to be a county which reacts to tragedies, or will Rowan County come together as a community to provide the resources necessary to be a community of prevention?

As an employee of the Rowan County Department of Social Services, I, along with other social workers, am greatly concerned about the child fatalities.

Despite long hours, low pay, high caseloads, constantly changing standards and laws, emotional stress, neglecting our own families and personal lives, and even the threats sometimes made on our very own lives, social workers choose to remain involved because we care about the welfare of children in this community.

Open records

Charlotte Gardner says rules must change when a child dies

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

N.C. Rep. Charlotte Gardner says she will sponsor legislation to open Social Services records involving the death of a child.

"I think more and more people are saying it's not enough to 'meet standards,'" she told the Post this morning. The only obstacle might be the time needed to draft the necessary bill.

At a press conference Friday, state and local Social Services officials repeatedly said they "met standards" in the way they handled abuse complaints about 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Jones. Both children were later beaten to death.

Sources familiar with both cases have told the Post that Social Services workers were warned of the danger and earlier injuries to the children. In Jones' case, medical authorities took pictures of previous injuries and called Social Services directly.

Yet records of the case and a separate state review of Social Services' actions remain sealed from public view.

Gov. Jim Hunt is deeply saddened by the children's deaths in Rowan County, spokesman Sean Walsh said this morning.

And the Department of Human Resources is actively following his directive to take a closer look at the situation in Rowan County.

➤ See Gardner, Page 4A

Gardner

"These are tragic deaths that could have been avoided," Walsh said, "and the governor wants to make sure we're doing everything we can to prevent child abuse in Rowan and across the state, to help families in need and to crack down on child abusers."

Friday's press conference also prompted Irene Goodlett, chairman of the board of Social Services, to call on the public to support the agency with more workers and money.

In a letter published on the editorial page of today's Post, Goodlett cites the heavy workload handled by the Rowan Department of Social Services.

Gardner, R-Rowan, is co-chair of the appropriations subcommittee on human resources and a member of the human resources committee, which covers the Division of Social Services. Human Resources is the largest department in state government.

She is also co-chair of the legislative study commission on mental health and serves on committees on welfare reform, aging, judiciary, environment and insurance.

"I definitely think it's an idea whose time has come," Gardner said. "The events that have occurred in Rowan County over the recent couple of years especially have made it something that needs to be brought to the attention of the General Assembly and ratified into law so that in those cases that have resulted in a fatality we are able to understand what happened and why.

"At the present time you have no reason at all" to understand what happened.

Besides the two recent child abuse cases, Gardner referred to:

■ A 1996 case in which a Rowan County woman left a small boy and a baby in a carseat at the corner of Innes and Long streets so she could get a hit of crack cocaine. Heidi Vernon's case grabbed national headlines.

■ A few years earlier, a teenager was charged with murdering her newborn, and her brother was charged with raping her. Despite warnings from the teen-ager and law enforcement, the siblings' younger sister remained in the home. The children's father pleaded guilty to taking improper liberties with the younger girl, who has now been removed from the home.

On Monday in Raleigh, the State Child Fatality Task Force will discuss the idea of opening records surrounding children's deaths. The group will meet with representatives of the N.C. Press Association, which has indicated it hopes to see the General Assembly look at the issue during the current session.

Gardner said she has talked with Chuck Harris, chief of Children's Services in the Division of Social Services, about the review of the children's cases in Rowan County.

"And I feel like their basic premise was flawed," she said. "The idea that we need to keep families together is fine, but not at any cost. He said that's not really what we do, but I think that's the message. All the programs seem to be geared toward keeping a family together. I sometimes think that becomes the overriding issue in all this."

In her letter to the Post, Social Services board chairman Irene Goodlett points out the department accepted 87 reports of abuse and neglect for investigation and 90 child protective treatment cases in a month. The department has legal custody of 208 children and 56 families waiting for one social worker to handle all studies and placement requirements for adoption.

Citizens, she writes, must ask themselves where they are "when more social workers in child protective services are needed and additional funding from the county commissioners is the bottom line."

During Friday's press conference, Director Rick Travis said more supervisors are needed. The state's standard is one supervisor to five social workers. The Rowan Department of Social Services has one supervisor for eight workers and one for nine in the two units of child protective services. He has asked the county commissioners for one additional supervisor, which would drop the ratio to one supervisor for six workers.

"Only asking for one would bring it up to sub-standard," said Elizabeth Smith, a Rowan resident who has asked Gov. Jim Hunt to review the Rowan deaths.

"You've got to at least ask" for necessary resources, she said. "As director of a program, you at least have the responsibility for asking for what you need. If the county commissioners turn you down, then the taxpayers have to say we want what the children need. That's the responsibility of leadership to at least ask for the positions to bring you up to standard. None of us can know that. That's within the administration of the program."

Rowland: Social Services work 'disastrous'

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

An outraged county commissioner charged Monday night that Social Services Director Rick Travis did not properly investigate the deaths of two Rowan County children before saying his department acted properly.

And, the commissioner said, Travis and the state official responsible for reviewing Social Services actions exonerated the department without seeing pictures of previous abuse or talking to medical officials who tried to sound an alarm before one of the children died.

In a letter to Gov. Jim Hunt, County Commissioner Dave Rowland has complained of "a disastrous breakdown with our Social Services department."

"The child fatality review conducted on these cases is the most pathetic, narrow-minded and biased report that I have ever read," Rowland wrote. "The team that conducted this review insulted our entire community when they announced that no 'critical protection issues were identified,' and commended the agency's leadership."

Six-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones were beaten to death during the same Jan. 31-Feb. 4 weekend. Budde's stepmother and Christopher's baby sitter have been charged with murder.

The Post reported that medical officials saw Christopher a month before his death. Those officials took pictures of severe physical abuse and called Social Services officials about the injuries, the Post said.

But a social worker never got the pictures and never talked to hospital officials, the Post reported. The agency left the boy in the same home with his mother until his death.

At a press conference 10 days ago, Travis said the pictures of the baby's injuries weren't as bad as the Post described, that his department "met standards" and that he would have done nothing differently.

A week later, Travis told Rowland that he had seen only black-and-white Xerox copies of the pictures since the baby's death.

"And my guess would be he still has not seen the actual pictures," Rowland said Monday night, after commissioners met with Social Services officials.

Travis declined to comment on seeing the pictures.

"There's nothing right now I want to say," he told the Post this morning. "We'll let the rereview take place next week."

After complaints about the initial state review, Gov. Jim Hunt asked Dr. David Bruton, the state's top Human Services official, to investigate the local tragedy again.

The Xerox copies of the pictures made at Rowan Regional Medical Center of severe injuries to Christopher Jones — including bruises on his body and lips, a bloody nose and a bruised and "bitten" scrotum — are now at the Rowan County Department of Social Services and part of the confidential report which was opened to all commissioners Monday night.

But after a grim two-hour closed session, Commissioner Steve Blount said in a statement prepared earlier that he's discovered no mistakes "that would have materially affected these cases."

On the other hand, the conduct of Social Services officials enrages Rowland.

"If anybody can look at those pictures and have them not trigger an investigation, a full atomic bomb going off on the Square would not trigger an investigation," he said.

During the executive session, Rowland said, he "told everybody at the board that I basically agreed to keep my mouth shut, but when I walked out, I said all bets are off. I said I was going to discuss it and I was going to keep it as a prime issue until I saw that there were changes being made."

Rowland provided the Post a copy of his letter to the governor. The letter says: "The Child Fatality Review Team only reviewed the internal case files and based their opinion on how well the case worker did their paperwork and whether they followed state guidelines. If state guidelines were indeed followed for Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones, isn't it time to make major changes in our Child Protection Services?"

When a community loses a child because of abuse, he said, "we don't need a paperwork review. We demand a full unbiased investigation of all the facts before and after the tragedy and a complete review of leadership, caseworkers and training."

He said the county was outraged and expects an explanation.

"But all we received was a Social Services director in denial and calling for more tax dollars."

After Monday night's closed session, commissioners met briefly in open session and voted unanimously to form a child abuse task force "to reaffirm existing and create new lines of communications that would help prevent future abuse and deaths." The commissioners chose not to wait for the results of the second investigation now being handled personally by Kevin Fitzgerald, director of the N.C. Division of Social Services. Fitzgerald attended last night's meeting and expects to report to Bruton by the beginning of April.

Fitzgerald also saw the Xerox copies of the pictures, with the medical notes, but did not comment on them.

He said he will:

- Look at the cases.
- Review state procedures to see if they were adequate.
- Study protection standards themselves.

"We've got a team of two state folks, two external folks and a regional person and a local person being put together right now," he said. The team will convene by next week.

"And we will be contracting with ... a national non-profit organization that deals with child welfare and protection issues to come in with us and assist the team and provide the external look-see at our standards primarily," Fitzgerald said.

Any comment on possible disciplinary action against Social Services employees is "premature," Fitzgerald said. "That will depend on what this review shows."

He called last night's meeting "a very frank and open discussion" of a "tough subject."

"I feel very positive that with the assistance of the county commissioners and the Board of Social Services that we will make some very positive strides in protecting kids," he said this morning.

Jane Malpass, a state children's program representative involved in the first review of the children's deaths, attended last night's meeting with commissioners.

After the meeting, Rowland said he told Malpass investigators could not do a thorough investigation — or justice — without "viewing the pictures, talking to the doctors, talking to the nurses, looking at the events before the deaths."

From the descriptions he's heard, he said, he believes anyone who can "view those pictures and come back and say they wouldn't do anything different should be looking for a new occupation.

"Through my own personal investigation, I have found the description supplied by the Post to be correct.

"Had Social Services owned up to their problems and gone at this thing from a positive attitude — as to where they failed these children and started implementing changes in training and procedure — I would have been upset but not nearly as outraged, as outspoken as I have been," he said.

"But I can't believe they're sitting there blaming it on everything coming and going. I blame it on myself for being a commissioner and believing that the system we have implemented would work. I take some of the blame myself."

A sorrowful Jim Neely, county commission chairman, said he wants "mandates" changed.

"We're concentrating on the wrong things — whether or not people have three bedrooms. ... If I thought 10 more people would solve the problem, they would have them tomorrow."

But he doesn't believe that would solve the problem.

"I'm sick at my stomach," he said.

"I can look out there," he gestured toward flowering trees visible through his office window on an early spring night, "and I know that somewhere out there, some piece of trash is doing this to some other child. And we're allowing this to happen because we're so bent on mandates."

He said he finds many inconsistencies. He's been told social workers went to the home of the 19-month-old in 15, 48 and 72 hours, and he doesn't know what is accurate.

"And at this moment I'm very unhappy with the DSS."

Commissioner Frank Tadlock, who represents the county on the Social Services board, also put his thoughts into a written statement this morning.

"Our board is like the community, very concerned and saddened by the fatalities of the three children," he said. "We are also concerned about disabled adults and senior citizens, to make sure they have the best service possible.

"I think it will take a community effort, everyone working together to prevent this from happening again. I blame the people that killed the children. They made that decision."

He said commissioners acted responsibly in studying the confidential information and arriving at the need for the task force.

"I would encourage the community to solicit support from our state legislators to pass legislation allowing confidential information to be made public after the person dies," Tadlock wrote. "This way we can learn from our experiences."

He added that he knows there's a lot of concern in the community, and he believes people will jump on this task force.

"The sheriff has notified us that he has three deputies trained to investigate, and they're available 24 hours 7 days a week. Possibly some service by the Salisbury Police Department can do likewise."

In his statement, Blount said the community is "mad as hell" and "looking for someone to blame," adding that "some individuals and especially the media are claiming a cover-up is in progress.

"I wish at this time, with all of the information in hand, I could point my finger at a person or an organization that was to blame for these deaths and then we as a community could figuratively or even literally hang the guilty parties from the town square. But I can't."

Procedures were followed, he said, and standards met, adding that he doesn't think the system is broken and "we all" are to blame.

Up to standard?

■ Don't go overboard in criticizing actions of DSS staff

BY STEVE BLOUNT
SPECIAL TO THE POST

(Editor: Two Rowan County commissioners, Steve Blount and Dave Rowland, have written essays commenting on how the county Department of Social Services has handled recent fatal child abuse cases. Blount wrote directly to the Post; Rowland's letter was first sent to Gov. Jim Hunt.)

Child abuse is killing our community's children and we, as individuals and as a community, are mad as hell about it. And because we're mad and because we don't have access to all of the confidential information, we're looking for someone to blame. And because being blamed for such a terrible thing makes the people being blamed defensive in their comments, some individuals and especially the media are claiming a cover-up is in progress.

I have met with Mr. Rick Travis, director of the Department of Social Services, and reviewed the cases that led to the deaths of several children over the past months. Mr. Travis answered all of my questions openly and without reservation. I read in detail the state report that reviewed how our local staff handled each case. I heard the history of the people involved in each situation.

I've talked to Sheriff Martin about his perspective on these cases. I've talked to doctors at the hospital about what they think happened. I've talked to several DSS board members to hear about their in-house investigations.

I wish at this time, with all of the information in hand, I could point my finger at a person or an organization that was to blame for these deaths, and then we as a community could figuratively or even literally hang the guilty parties from the town square, but I can't.

As stated in the previous public reports, established "procedures" were followed in each case. Standards were met. With children dead, this fact has not been much comfort to anyone.

But before you condemn the procedures, understand that they were developed for the very purpose of protecting children from abuse. They were established to take personal prejudice out of the process. They were established to remove personal whim from the system. They were established to ensure speedy response times in all alleged cases of abuse.

The rules require that every case of suspected abuse reported to DSS be investigated. In these cases they were. The rules require that they be investigated in a very short period of time. In these cases they were. The rules require that interviews with friends, family, neighbors, the accused and the alleged victim be conducted. In these cases they were. The rules require that detailed records be kept to document these efforts. In these cases they were.

Were mistakes made? I've discovered none that would have materially affected these cases. Would additional staff, either case workers or supervisors, have saved these children? I don't see how.

Were mistakes made? I've discovered none that would have materially affected these cases. Would additional staff, either case workers or supervisors, have saved these children? I don't see how. Is the system broken? It's certainly overloaded, but in my opinion, no, it's not broken.

Then who's to blame? We all are.

Obviously, those who actually killed these children are at the top of the list, and I hope our justice system makes them pay dearly for their crimes. Anyone who knew what was happening to these children and allowed it to continue is just as guilty. It would be easy to blame the system or the procedures, too easy. Let's not take the easy way out. Instead of finding a scapegoat, let's all accept part of the blame and then each of us, all of us, should get involved in finding solutions.

Recognizing that there seems to be a communication problem between various agencies, plans are under way to create a joint task force involving DSS, the Sheriff's Office, the City Police Department, the hospital, the public school system and other child-related groups to create organized lines of communication and, yes, procedures and standards to be followed as we try to prevent other children's abuse and deaths.

But this won't be enough. Those children need you and me and all of the people of this community to get involved too. Those children need us to stop expending our efforts finding someone to blame and start spending our time finding solutions to this, the worst of crimes.

Rowan mustn't ignore these children's cries

Officials need to repair the system, but DSS isn't where the ultimate blame should fall

BY RENEE HENRICKSON
SPECIAL TO THE POST

Like most Rowan County residents, I find my heart is completely broken concerning the precious children we have lost. We as a community mourn the death of Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Lee Jones.

There are so many loopholes in the system. I claim no knowledge of the system, but I know and love children. These children were not failed to the largest degree by the community or the Social Services Department. They were failed by the parents who should have loved them and nurtured them. I would like to know if any charges are being filed against the mother of Christopher Jones and the father of Budde Clark. Can you live in a home with a hurting child and not know about that child's suffering? Is it possible for wounds so serious to go unrecognized for an extended period of time?

Yes, there was a failure, a huge failure in the system. Maybe that is the problem: We're so worried about dotting our I's and crossing our T's we lose sight of the face of the child. The child gets lost in the system. Should we punish a parent who knew about the abuse of a child and did nothing to rescue the child? Until we do, are we not fighting a losing battle?

I suggest as a community, maybe it is time we considered public caning as one of the suitable punishments for parents who abuse their children. How dare we not punish the abuser and individuals proven to have knowledge of the abuse?

In the case of Christopher Jones, the Salisbury Post reported that on examination at Rowan Memorial Hospital, the staff notified DSS of gross abuse found to the child's body: blood blisters on the side of his face and the top of his little head; severe bruises on his body; a black mark on his forehead; a totally bloodied nose; a bite on his shoulder; a scrotum that was black and blue and bitten.

What this precious little baby must have suffered in his short lifetime. Enough to cry a river of tears. The blood of these precious children cries out for justice. There are many more children just like them who at this very moment are in danger. How can we not respond to their cry? If the laws say otherwise, then the laws need to be changed. May God have mercy on our souls.

◆ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR ◆

Have no doubt: Jordy was loved

(Editor: The child referred to in this letter, Jordan Bryant Bradshaw, is also known as Budde Lee Clark.)

Yes, something must be done to protect our children. In regard to the letter, "Don't pass the buck on protecting children," we tried so hard to protect our little Jordan ("Little Jordy").

Everyone needs to quit pointing fingers at family and friends, saying they wouldn't report this abuse to Social Services. Jordan's mother, Pam Bradshaw, couldn't have visitation without Robin (the child's stepmother) being there. Robin wouldn't allow it any other way. Pam's family and friends tried for two years to fight to gain visitation. We all called Social Services as soon as we saw the changes in Jordan. No one would listen because, they say, he was taken away from Pam for abuse. I was always around, and there was no abuse. He was just a little boy who loved playing rough.

We all loved Jordy very much. No one can feel the pain or know the many tears we've shed. And no one will ever know how much he was a part of all of our lives.

But the sad part is his big sister, Tristan. She could never understand why she couldn't ever see Jordan. She loved him so much. The last time she saw her little brother was the day we buried Jordan. Everyone stood together holding hands, listening to the song "Angels Among Us," telling Tristan that Jordan is our little angel now.

Tristan will never forget Jordan Bryant Bradshaw. None of us will.

In their thoughts

This poem by Marian Wright Edelman, represents the feelings of all of us who work with children at the Rowan County Department of Social Services. We too have hearts. We care for these children every day we are at work, and they're in our thoughts every weekend, holiday and every other day of the year. We wouldn't be in the social work profession if we didn't want to help these children.

I challenge anyone in the community, especially those who feel the need to criticize, to walk a mile in the shoes of a DSS social worker. You may be enlightened.

An excerpt from the poem:

We pray for children who sneak popsicles before supper, who erase holes in math workbooks, who can never find their shoes ....
who never go to the circus,
who live in an X-rated world.
We pray for children who want to be carried and for those who must,
for those we never give up on and for those who don't get a second chance.
For those we smother ... and for those who will grab the hand of anybody kind enough to offer it.

DSS has a lot to answer for in the Clark, Jones cases

BY DAVE ROWLAND
ROWAN COUNTY GOVERNMENT

I'm sure that you are aware of the fatal child abuse cases that have traumatized Rowan County recently, and I am sure you will agree that when you have a 6-year-old and a 19-month-old baby dead from child abuse in such a short span, there has been a disastrous breakdown with our Social Services Department. It is my understanding that you have personally called for a reopening of these cases and a full investigation into this serious matter. For this quick action on your part I would like to personally thank you. It is my personal belief that a child's welfare and protection takes priority over any other function of government.

I have been reviewing the events leading up to and after the deaths of Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones. I have read the complete child fatality review done by the Department of Human Resources on Feb. 14, 1997. The child fatality review conducted on these cases is the most pathetic, narrow-minded and biased report that I have ever read. The team that conducted this review insulted our entire community when it announced that no "critical protection issues were identified," and commended the agency's leadership. The Child Fatality Review Team only reviewed the internal case files and based its opinion on how well the case workers did their paperwork and whether they followed state guidelines. If state guidelines were indeed followed for Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones, isn't it time to make major changes in our Child Protection Services? After seeing firsthand what a miserable failure our current child protection agency is, how could we possibly go back to business as usual?

I can assure you that when Dr. Bruton reviews the facts in these deaths he will agree that Budde Lee Clark fell through the cracks and was totally missed and that Christopher Jones should still be alive today.

I personally have to pursue this with every bit of emotion that I can gather regardless of whom I offend or alienate. As a father and elected official I could not live with myself if I ignored this problem and two months from now another child lost their life to abuse. Gov. Hunt, could you live with that kind of burden? I don't think so; I know you're a loving father with great compassion for all children. That's why I have great faith in getting you personally involved in the monumental task before us.

Your decision instructing Dr. David Bruton to reopen Rowan County's child fatality investigation was met with renewed hope from our citizens. I look forward to meeting with Dr. Bruton on his arrival. I view this as the first step in correcting our failures. Now I would like to encourage you to call for a full review of the actions of the state Child Fatality Prevention Team.

When a community loses a child because of abuse, we don't need a paperwork review. We demand a full unbiased investigation of all the facts before and after the tragedy and a complete review of leadership, case workers and training. Reviewing what was done for a dead child has very little value unless we thoroughly investigate and identify the problems — then take immediate steps to ensure that we do not fail another child.

Everyone in Rowan County is outraged by the deaths of Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones. When we lost these children, everyone expected an explanation as to how this could have happened. But all we received was a Social Service director in denial and calling for more tax dollars and saying they had done everything they could have done and in hindsight they wouldn't have changed anything. Then we get a state review team who can only praise and commend Social Services leadership.

Mr. Hunt, I can assure you that when Dr. Bruton reviews the facts in these deaths he will agree that Budde Lee Clark fell through the cracks and was totally missed and that Christopher Jones should still be alive today. It is documented that Christopher Jones survived a major beating one month before his death. Hospital personnel took photographs and called Social Services to report this. It was the following week before a child protection worker saw this child, and this agency never even bothered to view the pictures. This child should have never left the hospital to return to the nightmare that he had to endure. This can never happen again!

SALISBURY POST 3/20/97

Pretrial publicity leads to postponed trial date

Citing pretrial publicity, a Rowan County Superior Court Judge has postponed the trial against a Kannapolis woman charged with felony child abuse.

On Monday, defense attorney Robert Inge asked for a "cooling off" period because of articles about Denise Santos written in a local newspaper just days before the trial.

The articles reported that Santos was convicted of second-degree manslaughter in New York in the death of a child 22 years ago. She served less than three years in prison after the conviction.

The article also mentioned a drug conviction in 1986.

Jurors in the child abuse case filled out a questionnaire before Judge Henry E. Frye Jr. postponed the trial. Attorneys found that about one-third of the jury pool had seen the article. Prosecutors have not set a new court date.

Santos is charged with putting a 4-year-old boy in scalding water in December 1995. The scalding caused second- and third-degree burns. Santos was baby sitting the child.

Santos remains free on a 10,000 bond.

Be fair to DSS

■ Commissioners have failed to adequately fund agency

SALISBURY POST 3/20/97 OPINIONS

BY KAREN C. BOWYER
SPECIAL TO THE POST

Why does the Post continue to publish unfair half-truths about Rowan County Child Protective Services? Needless to say, all caring individuals are appalled by the death of children in our community, but can all the blame be put on one source?

Consider the facts. Our county commissioners were told over two years ago that Child Protective Services was overworked and understaffed. Did our commissioners heed the warning when the state department told them that the situation was a "tragedy waiting to happen"? No. They turned a deaf ear to that warning and to the concerns of Protective Services Department heads. The county commissioners denied the necessary funding. They were more interested in ball parks and recreation facilities.

The facts speak for themselves. The average caseload for a Rowan County Child Protective Service worker in the past few months has been 21. The state of North Carolina recommends a caseload of no more than 15. Rowan workers receive on average two new cases a day. The citizens of Rowan are blessed with workers who are caring, efficient individuals, but they are not superhuman. Each case carries with it a mountain of paperwork, and by the way, the Rowan County worker's salary is smaller than those of surrounding county workers for the same level of responsibility.

Consider the caseloads

What about working conditions? Do you really believe that the workers are welcomed when they go to a home to investigate? In fact, they are often threatened, and sometimes those threats become reality. Offending parents are not usually pleasant people to work with. Are you also aware that workers are criminally and financially liable if something goes wrong? Yes, the individual worker, not just the county government, is personally liable.

When you consider all the facts, it becomes very obvious that a person must be very dedicated to stick with this job. The conditions are tough, the pay is low, the educational requirements are high, and the criticism is abundant. The only reason for being there is that you want to help people.

The governor appointed an investigator and the Post implied that the department was hiding behind confidentially guidelines as a way of covering up incompetency. Are you aware that the rules of confidentially are state-mandated not determined at the local level? These rules were voted on by our elected legislators. If the public doesn't like the rules, then they need to let their legislators know. The child protective agency workers must follow the law.

Law protects parents

As a teacher in the Rowan Salisbury School System, I have on several occasions called Social Services about children I thought might be suffering abuse or neglect. This is my responsibility by law. I have always received prompt and courteous attention.

I must also say that on more than one occasion I was told that the problem I was reporting would not be considered neglect or abuse under the law. Guidelines are very strict for the protection of parents. A prime example is an 11-year-old girl who is pregnant by a man who was over 25 years old. This child will have this baby and care for it. Where were the parents, and why can't this child receive protection and assistance from Social Services? A similar situation happened to this child's sister. Why? Because the law protects her parents. There is no way to prove neglect. In my mind and in the minds of many readers, this child was neglected. If she had received proper supervision and guidance, this would never have happened to her.

Or how about pretty little girls who are living in homeless shelters and are afraid of what might happen to them as they wait outside to be admitted at 6 or 7 p.m.? Child protective workers are the first to agree that these are potentially dangerous situations, but the hands of these workers are tied.

We read again and again about the two small children who were left at the phone booth by their mother on a cold winter night so that she could buy crack. The Post immediately took the offensive towards Social Services because the department allowed the children to return to the home. Did anyone stop to think? The father had not been charged with any crime or offense toward the children. Should the father be punished for the mother's actions? Also, without knowing the dynamics of the family relationships, should the Post have immediately given the grandmother support and backing to tell only one side of the story?

Publish all the facts

It is the Post's responsibility to report the news, but it is also your responsibility to see that the truth is reported. It is nothing more than sensationalistic journalism to blast an entire organization of people especially when the state laws make it impossible for them to defend themselves. "The pen is mightier than the sword" is very true; therefore you owe it to your readers to make very sure that you are publishing all the facts, not merely editorializing on the news page.

For once go for the real story. Dig a little deeper and bring the whole truth, or are you afraid that you might step on a few privileged toes?

Child neglect and abuse is a very serious problem, and Rowan County, as of late, seems to have more than its share. It is time to address this problem in a constructive way and lay the blame for the lack of child protective workers at the doorstep of those who are responsible. That blame belongs to the county commissioners on a primary level, but it also belongs to the entire community because we allowed it to happen.

DIFFICULT BUT ESSENTIAL

Examining child abuse

Is it possible to support and admire a public agency and, at the same time, believe some of its practices deserve review?

Absolutely. No public agency — and certainly no newspaper — expects blind acceptance from the people it serves.

Yet some people in the community are urging the Post and the public to accept the Rowan County Department of Social Services' official explanations of how it handled two child abuse cases — "we met standard" — and move on to something else.

Even though three children died. Even though there were signs of abuse before two of the children's final, fatal days. Even though the state suggests changes in staffing and standards may be in order.

Raise questions

Because we dare to raise questions, the Post is accused of crucifying Social Services and printing half-truths. The intent is not to impugn the reputation of every person who toils in that department. Rather, it is to review the process and say, at what point could something have been done differently to protect these children?

Abusers and the people under their influence can be incredibly adept at covering acts and isolating young charges from prying eyes. How might child protective services workers have been able to break through that shield and forestall the fatal outcome?

No one has the answers yet. But the death of 19-month-old Christopher Jones has pointed up an obvious area for study. There is something seriously wrong with procedures when a child can be examined in a hospital emergency room, found to have injuries that include signs of sexual abuse which are brought to the attention of social services and yet the hospital's evidence apparently is not included in the subsequent investigation. One month later the child dies, beaten to death.

Perhaps workers in such cases should be required to interview medical personnel who examine children and report suspected abuse. Perhaps medical personnel who suspect abuse should be required to call law enforcement as well as social services. These are possibilities that need to be discussed now, not a year from now.

Social Services obviously is asking those questions of itself and its workers, and its state higher ups are also. But this entire process would be shielded from the public and the other agencies that might have helped if the Post were not examining these issues and pushing for a more public dialog.

Painful process

This is a painful process. Child abuse laws and DSS guidelines do not spring up in a vacuum. They are prompted by the tragic, real-life experiences of families all over North Carolina. You cannot improve the process without reviewing the specific details of cases.

The state has a framework for reviewing such cases. But the Rowan County Child Fatality Task Force has not met since these children died, and when it does it will be dealing with cases that may be a year old. The Community Child Protection Team also has not met recently, and because of one person's relocation might not get together for a month or two.

Meanwhile, calls continue to flow into Social Services, reporting more suspicions of child abuse and neglect. Time is of the essence, and the stakes are very high.

Rowan DSS has performed well despite big obstacles

BY MARGY D. FINK
SPECIAL TO THE POST

As I opened the Salisbury Post on Tuesday, March 18, 1997, the headline "Rowland: Social Services work 'disastrous' " should have read 'County commissioners' work disastrous.'

I dare say there is not a single person anywhere who is not upset about the death of two children in Rowan County. Don't blame Social Service! Place the blame on the county commissioners for not providing the funds — yes, I mean tax money — to provide adequate staff, training opportunities, office space to work in a confidential setting, and support personnel.

During the 30 years that I have lived in Salisbury I have had contact with Social Services many times on a professional basis, from securing help for hungry children to assisting DSS in providing food for the elderly and other less fortunate people through U.S. Department of Agriculture programs. I worked with Social Services departments in more than 20 counties, reviewing programs for USDA. None could measure up to Rowan County DSS, even though Rowan County was more understaffed and its workers were assigned greater caseloads per staff member compared to other counties.

So, county commissioners, do your work: Provide the needed support! Don't place blame on the director or individuals; that won't bring the children back.

Also, give the Public Health Department adequate staff, space and support before we have a disaster in that department because you, the county commissioners, do not do your job — to provide for the needs for the people of Rowan County!

No, I don't mean to waste tax dollars, but I do mean for you to clean up your act. Money is wasted in some areas, but this becomes individual opinion.

As I remember reviewing county budgets, there were very few times that DSS or the Health Department were ever given the money needed to operate, even though justifiable evidence was presented to warrant increased funding. County commissioners, do your work: Put Social Services and Public Health as the first priority for the county budget for 1997-98 and hereafter until these two departments are sufficiently funded.

How many times have I read in the paper that somebody on the county commissioners has made statements that money won't solve the problems? But money, praise and support would help!

It's not true that DSS has refused to criticize itself

Work together to fix problems, DSS chief says

BY RICHARD E. TRAVIS
DEPT. OF SOCIAL SERVICES

(Editor: Richard E. Travis, director of the Rowan County Department of Social Services, has sent this letter to County Commissioner Dave Rowland.)

•

I want to address some of your concerns about DSS' handling of the Christopher Jones case. You have said on several occasions that I said I would not have done anything differently, even knowing more now than I did at the time of the investigation. The truth is that I never said such a thing.

The Salisbury Post article on March 8 contains a statement by the reporter (ninth paragraph) that suggests I said I would not have done anything differently. But in the same article I was quoted as saying we (DSS) should have seen the hospital pictures. In another article in the same edition I am quoted as saying that, had we seen the pictures, we probably would have assigned a social worker to work with the mother to prevent further injuries to the child. I also said it is unlikely that we would have removed the child from the home.

At the March 7 press conference, when I released the public letter accompanying the confidential reports, the Social Services board and I spent 1½ hours answering questions about the review and the children involved. I went into great detail at the beginning of the press conference describing the areas where we failed to perform our job as we should have. To my knowledge, neither I, nor anyone connected with DSS, have blamed any person or organization other than those charged with murder, for the deaths of the three children. As director of the department, I have acknowledged our shortcomings and am doing all that I can to correct our problems.

I realize that child protective services laws, policies and procedures are difficult to understand. In some instances, the laws and policies may not be appropriate or effective. In an effort to address some of these issues, the department will be inviting the county commissioners to spend time during April meeting with our social workers and seeing firsthand how child protective services operates.

Please understand that I am open to suggestions and will meet with you, and any other commissioners, any time to discuss your concerns. I hope we can work together to improve our services.

Off with their heads!

Political debate in Rowan could stand a dose of civility

BY THE REV. ANDY LANGFORD
SPECIAL TO THE POST

In Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," the Queen of Hearts runs around her tiny kingdom yelling to her playing card soldiers: "Off with their heads! Off with their heads!" Everyone who displeased the Queen lost their head. Her figure is comic, but tragic.

For the citizens of Rowan County, however, it appears that the Queen of Hearts is not just an imaginary figure.

The Queen of Hearts is alive and well in Rowan County today. In private conversations, in public forums, and even in our beloved Salisbury Post, strident members of our community yell, "Off with their heads!" Everyone who has displeased our own and numerous Queens of Hearts is castigated and ridiculed.

Illustrations of her presence are everywhere. Three children tragically die, and every staff member of the Department of Social Services and, especially, its director, Rick Travis, are told to resign. When the Rowan County school board wrestles with the calendar, the elected board members and their staff are sued. When student scores fall below expectations, teachers, staff and administrators are ridiculed. Godstock, a local effort to help families with children needing critical medical care, is lambasted for hosting a baseball game in the evil Boll Weevil stadium. Rowan County commissioners debate zoning, and naysayers arise from under every rock. Salisbury and its City Council vote to annex new areas, and organized efforts impugn the integrity of the city and its officers.

Even more tragically, we witness some of these very officials denouncing publicly one another. The Queen of Hearts has changed her clothing from a playing card to suits and ties and business dresses, but her message remains the same: "Off with their heads."

Citizens of Rowan County, let us grow up and put behind us our childish ways. In the midst of shrill rhetoric, we need some civil conversation. The solution to our common problems does not lie in condemning those who serve us, but in working with them to serve the common good. As County Commissioner Frank Tadlock said, regarding the deaths of the three young children: "It will take a community effort, everyone working together to prevent this from happening again."

Our public servants — the Department of Social Services and Rick Travis, the Rowan-Salisbury school board and its staff, our school teachers and staff, Godstock, the county commissioners and our county employees, Salisbury City Council and its staff, and every other public servant among us in this county — are not the enemy.

Most of these people serve freely or at low salaries. These public people all give above and beyond any written job description. Each of them are serving us as well as they can. I personally know many of these leaders, and they are all fine people. They are all of our friends and neighbors. Yet, members of the shrill public question their motives, assume ulterior goals, ridicule their intelligence, and yell for their heads.

There is a better way. Instead of cutting off heads, maybe we could all work together. Social Services and its staff need more community support. The school board and everyone in public education need parental and community involvement to improve the quality of education. Godstock needs help in filling the stadium and reaching out to even more children. The county needs to look toward a future involving many of us, as was demonstrated last week at the meeting at Catawba. Salisbury needs every voice involved as the city inevitably grows. The question is whether we will sit back and take pot shots, or join together to solve common problems?

I feel a little naive to simply ask for civility in our public discourse. There are real differences, and not everyone is pure.

Much more is needed from all of us. But I do know that cutting off heads does not change anything. If we are not part of the solution, then each of us is part of the problem.

How can we start being civil to one another? One simple solution may at least help us begin. Every one of us knows at least one of our public servants: a state or county employee, an elected official, a school teacher, or someone else working for our common good. Today, or tomorrow, or next week, speak to these public servants and say "Thank you." Tell them that you are appreciative of their efforts, even when they fail. Ask how you may be more supportive.

Alice was able to escape the Queen of Hearts. We must live beside them. May we instead not run away but confront, and thus change, our own Queen of Hearts.

Rowan social workers demonstrate courage

It's truly dangerous to respond to many of the abuse calls

BY ARLENE P. TAYLOR
SPECIAL TO THE POST

As a secretary for the Rowan County Department of Social Services for 33 years, and for the Protective Services Unit since its inception in 1973, I would like to respond to some recent letters to the Salisbury Post regarding our department.

All of the social workers in the Protective Services Unit are dedicated, responsible workers. They go out on referrals every day, not knowing what to expect. Most parents, even I, would be angry that a neighbor, relative or school had reported that I had neglected or abused my child. And if those allegations were true and I thought someone had found out, I would definitely be angry and upset. Workers have to come face-to-face with these angry parents every day, and often the worker's life is threatened.

DSS social workers take their life in their hands every time they go out on a referral. Sometimes the referrals even warn of danger: that there are drugs in the home, that there are vicious dogs at the home, or even guns by the door. It doesn't matter: If a referral is accepted, a worker has to go out.

Social workers for DSS are also on duty from 5 p.m. to 8 a.m. and on weekends. Many times, the worker on duty has to leave a family gathering, holiday dinners, or a favorite TV show to go to the Police Department or hospital to check on our children. Most of the time, these calls come during the middle of a good night's sleep. If the workers were not dedicated, they would not be social workers for the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

Many times, the worker on duty has to leave a family gathering, holiday dinners, or a favorite TV show to go to the Police Department or hospital to check on our children

Many time, disgruntled fathers make referrals because the mother of his children is taking him to court for increased child support. Neighbors make reports on other neighbors because there are disagreements between them. These malicious reports take just as much time to investigate as legitimate referrals, and as much paperwork. Even on legitimate, substantiated reports of neglect and abuse, social workers cannot move in and live with the family on a 24-hour a day basis to protect these children.

If our social workers had not protected hundreds of our children, our foster homes would not be full.

I only set up the Protective Services cases as they come in each day. If I were qualified to be a social worker, I would never take on the responsibility of being a social worker for Rowan County Department of Social Services.

I am proud of all of our social workers, and I personally know what a great job they do every day!

Don't rearm abusers

Last year Congress passed a law that prohibited anyone convicted of misdemeanor domestic-violence offenses from purchasing or owning guns. Federal law has long barred convicted felons from possessing guns. But that law left a deadly loophole for spouse and child abusers, who often are prosecuted under misdemeanor statutes. The new statute sensibly plugged that gap.

Now two bills have been introduced that would gut the new ban. Congress should reject both of them.

One bill seeks to overcome the fact that the law passed last year did not exempt police and military personnel who have been convicted of domestic violence charges from the ban. The bill, introduced by Rep. Bart Stupak of Michigan, would now insert this unjustified exemption into the law.

The National Association of Police Organizations says the law unfairly forces some officers to give up their careers. That is hardly a persuasive argument. If anything, officers should be held to higher standards of conduct than ordinary citizens. Domestic violence is also an indication of an inability to deal with anger, a sound reason to remove guns from officers with this problem.

Critics of the ban also argue that the law will create staffing problems for police agencies. But there is no evidence that a significant number of the 700,000 law-enforcement officers at the national, state and local levels would be affected. Many police agencies do not hire applicants with misdemeanor convictions for domestic assault in the first place.

The second bill would apply the ban only to those convicted of domestic-violence crimes after September 1996. This would effectively rearm the vast majority of offenders. The sponsors argue that the ban is unconstitutionally retroactive. But The same standard, applied to felons, has been upheld as constitutional.

Reshuffle priorities, support DSS

Regarding the cases of Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones, it is time to get off the back of the Social Services Department. I'm sure they realized their mistakes by now. Besides, they probably don't have the money or enough skilled workers to really go deep into all the abuse cases.

We build new prisons to house the real guilty ones so they can be pampered while the child protective agency hasn't enough money to operate properly. So why don't we get off the Social Services Department's back, get to the guilty ones, take them to trial, and get on with their punishment? That is, if they are punished.

This county needs to rearrange its priorities.

Chilling scenario

This comment was attributed to county commissioner Steve Blount ("Rowland: Social Services work 'disastrous,' Post, March 18, Page 1A) in his statement on the DSS review of the deaths of two local children: "I wish ... I could point my finger at a person or an organization that was to blame for these deaths and then we ... could figuratively or even literally (emphasis mine) hang the guilty parties from the town square."

Sounds like a justification and encouragement of mob violence and murder. It's a chilling scenario to imagine, and far more chilling to realize that this is the caliber of our political leadership.

Abusers deserve real punishment

I reckon I've got a bolt loose.

Ever since I reached the age of knowing there's a difference between a boy and a girl I've become a girl lover.

HOMER LUCAS

The bolt came loose, I suspect, when I realized girls were to be loved, hugged, snuggled up to, become mothers.

It never crossed my mind that girls were to be beaten and abused. Shucks, I loved 'em all. I have never seen an ugly woman.

There is something beautiful about each woman. Did you ever look for it? The beauty ought not be too covered up.

I think of the poem that goes something like, "What are little girls made of? Sugar and spice and everything nice."

Sure, that's what little girls are made up of. The older they get the more sugar and spice they get.

I don't believe the Good Lord put all that sugar and spice together to have it torn apart by some clod. I ought to say torn apart by some man. I couldn't call him a man, as he isn't.

I shouldn't ask why God allows such creatures to live. But I do.

Certainly a wife beater has no place in society, that of today or millions of years ago. True, there have always been wife beaters and child abusers, just as there have been abusers of animals.

What to do with them after they are caught and tried by a jury of good and true men and women (and there could have been some on the jury who had been a wife beater or child abuser)?

I have my thoughts. You will agree with them. Yet you probably won't speak up and so so.

First I favor the whipping post, using a good pair of plow lines. Then I favor stigmatizing the filthy men and women who saw fit to a abuse a woman or child.

My next step would be to brand a logo on the cheek, where it would be noticed.

The state should then make money available to cover expenses for mailing a history of a convicted individual to every registered voter in the state.

Let the convicted be stigmatized.

Or do you prefer the state award them a Victory Medal if they are successful in the rape of your daughter, and put their name on a roll of honor?

If we dosed out some of this medicine, perhaps the welfare bill would be reduced. (Excuse, please: The Social Services bill would be reduced.)

You had best do something stronger than talk.

Scrutinize home studies

Salisbury Post
3/24/91

The question arose soon after 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark died. How could a judge have taken the child away from his mother, poor as she was, and put him in his father's household, where earlier this year authorities say he was felled by a fatal blow to the head and then placed in a tub as if he'd drowned?

The answer becomes evident when you look at the home studies conducted by the Rowan County Department of Social Services. They paint a troubled picture of Pam Bradshaw's household, and a rosy scene at Lee Gosnell's.

But neither home study would quallfy as a thorough investigation. And for that reason this case raises a warning flag both to judges and to people involved in custody battles. Home studies are little more than surface glimpses of residential information, more detailed in architecture than they are on ability to parent. Parents who have doubts about the home study social services has done on an "ex" must get their attorneys to challenge the report and call witnesses; otherwise, the judge will have little else to go on.

Hindsight magnifies

Hindsight has magnified the importance of home studies done in the Budde Clark case. But at the time they were routine matters, another case of mom vs. dad, each wanting the child and claiming to have a better home situation.

An investigation by the Post has shown that several facts on the Gosnell report were wrong, simply because the social worker accepted the words of Lee and Robin Gosnell — standard operating procedure in home studies like this.

That sounds shocking, but no one can be sure the custody decision would have gone differently if Lee and Robin Gosnell had answered more truthfully about their church attendance, her work and school record and her brushes with the law — or if the social worker had discovered he'd been fed misinformation. It still would have been a matter of judging the Bradshaw household vs. the Gosnell household, and Lee Gosnell had the advantage of a good job and an intact marriage.

What is certain, however, is this: Social services is not well-equipped to handle home studies. Each worker at social services has a designated job, with funds coming from federal, state and local coffers specifically for that function. Because no level of government directly funds home studies, no worker is assigned to specialize in them. They are spread out among several workers who already are heavily burdened with mandated duties.

Red flag

A more thorough investigative job might have found the inconsistencies in the Gosnells' stories. Surely an attorney could have jumped on that. In turn, that might have raised enough of a red flag for the judge to have appointed a guardian ad litem, perhaps — an impartial third party to review both situations and make a recommendation on what's best for the child.

Might have, could have, should have. Hindsight is littered with terms like these. Hindsight won't bring back Budde Clark, or have much bearing on how his accused murderer is prosecuted. But it should alert judges, attorneys and parents to weaknesses in the system — potentially fatal ones.

Tougher penalties, clearer laws, more staff could help

BY ELIZABETH WITHERS SMITH
SPECIAL TO THE POST

The first time I saw cigarette burns on a child was 1971. As a registered nurse and consultant for the N.C. State Department of Public Instruction, I had responsibilities including helping to establish guidelines for the first seven-state summer institute for multi-handicapped children. My first recommendation was to examine every child on admission to the program and if any injuries were evident, to take pictures.

To ask a teacher or neighbor if they have seen bruises or burns on a child is not very relevant in most cases because the mean people who torture children are not necessarily stupid. They hurt children where clothes will hide the abusers' perverse actions. The bruises and cigarette burns are on the victims' buttocks, genitalia, backs and abdomens.

Examine entire system

That outrage in 1971 is the same as I feel now regarding the deaths of the children in Rowan County from child abuse. The anger is many fold. Yes, I am upset with the system at DSS that allowed bad decisions to be made, not just in the recent deaths of the Jones and Bradshaw children, but for the 12-year-old sister who endured years of rape because her older sister's call for help to DSS went unheeded.

I am upset with the people who feel that "enough has been written" about the subject. Until the system is changed — not just at DSS — there will never be "enough" written. Praise the messenger. Without the Salisbury Post, we citizens who can help to improve the plight of children in this county would never have fully heard the message and business would have continued as usual.

Having worked in health services since I was 14 years old, I know that dealing with serious problems all day is a challenge. But the writers in defense of the DSS "protesteth too much." I do not question the sincerity the staff of DSS or of the board, and I do not know anyone who does. The entire delivery of services for the protection of children must be examined, and that is what will be done because the flaws in the system, countywide, have been made public.

What next? The team of experts who are coming to Rowan County this week are not coming as a lynch mob. They are coming to help. The team includes a medical doctor who specializes in child abuse, and others who are associated with organizations across the United States whose focus is the protection of children. If we are truly concerned about our children, we will welcome their objective opinions and heed their advice.

The darkest hour, it is said, is just before dawn. I pray that we have seen the darkest hour for our children in Rowan County. I consider the involvement of all who are speaking out, regardless of how you express yourself, as a good sign. Working together, accepting responsibility, and taking an honest look at our system will help us as a community to get through these dark hours intact and even stronger.

I have many suggestions to offer. Attitudes regarding children must be changed. Children must be recognized in the law as full and valued citizens. If an adult comes into the emergency room of a hospital with a gunshot wound, the police are called. Child abuse is a crime. Call the police or sheriff as well as DSS.

Word games

Stop playing games with language. Don't say "taking indecent liberties with a minor" if you mean raping a child. When adult fists beat a 2-year-old, call it attempted murder. Adult fists are deadly weapons to a child. The death penalty is legal in North Carolina. Make it mandatory for anyone convicted of murdering a child.

If two more supervisors are needed in the DSS to bring the department up to the state standard, then the director should ask for two more positions, not just one. Then the responsibility is in the hands of the commissioners. If they do not allocate those funds, then the responsibility is on the voting public.

If we do not have enough foster homes, then motivate the same people who can build a habitat home. I would bet they would join together to build a safe haven for infants. (Until this past week, the Nazareth Children's Home, which provides safe haven for children ages 4 and up, has never been filled to capacity. Even at capacity of 50, only 14 were from Rowan County.)

How would we staff a safe haven? Prioritize how money is spent. The price of the infamous ball park would go a long way.

The Salisbury Post recently printed a list of local, well endowed foundations. I am certain that the generosity of those families is already known to such facilities as the Nazareth Children's Home and would provide funding to an infants' center if the need were made known.

Consider registered nurse

The salaries of supervisors in child protective services range from $30,989 to $49,198. Social workers' salaries range from $20,912 to $42,452. Salaries of public health nurses in Rowan County range from $28,089 to $51,676. Social workers are required to have an undergraduate degree in social work, psychology or similar major.

The diversity in the education required of registered nurses and their experience in physical examination would be a good addition to the DSS. A registered nurse specially trained in abuse recognition and intervention would be helpful to the staff as well as to the children in danger. Perhaps a registered nurse position would be as effective and more cost-efficient than another supervisor position.

There are always going to be people who hurt the innocent and the vulnerable. A civilized society is measured not as much by the social graces exchanged between healthy adults, but by how we care for "the least of these."

Changing the system

■ Commissioners' stinginess handicaps social workers

BY RANDY SHERRILL
SPECIAL TO THE POST

I am writing concerning the article that Rose Post wrote on March 18, 1997, "Rowland: Social Services work 'disastrous.' " In this article, it was stated that "the conduct of Social Services officials enrages Rowland." I am enraged with Mr. Rowland's statements concerning the work of this agency. I am sorry the children died, but you are not hearing the whole story.

Employees at the Department of Social Services (DSS) cannot by law discuss their cases, but you can question the agency about the way the system works. The social worker performs his/her job by following the state standards. Parents have to provide only minimal care for their children. If you would question the officials at DSS or the social workers who perform the line work, you will get a better picture of what has happened in Rowan County concerning DSS.

I used to work in the Rowan County DSS as a Child Protective Services (CPS) treatment social worker. A treatment social worker provides treatment for families when it has been substantiated that the parents neglected or abused their children. I worked in this unit for almost two years.

I left Rowan County to go to Cabarrus County DSS because the stressful caseload was too great in Rowan County. CPS work is stressful no matter where you work, but Rowan County is known in this field as being one of the worst counties in North Carolina. Being a social worker in Rowan County is a tough job because the county commissioners will not allow DSS to have the workers needed to do the appropriate job.

The state recommends that a CPS social worker have no more than 18 cases. ... While I was in Rowan County, I had between 30 and 40 cases at a time. Do you think you could perform your job appropriately if you had this kind of caseload?

The state recommends that a CPS social worker have no more than 18 cases. The social worker is to make a weekly contact with the family and at least a monthly face-to-face contact with the family. While I was in Rowan County, I had between 30 and 40 cases at a time. Do you think you could perform your job appropriately if you had this kind of caseload?

As a Rowan County social worker, I could not make appropriate contact with my families. I was not able to provide the appropriate treatment for any of my families because of the heavy caseload. Instead of providing treatment, I was just providing services for the families that had the most crucial need at that moment.

If the county commissioners are so concerned about the deaths of these children, they should have prevented this situation by acting years ago to provide more money to social workers and enough workers to provide a workable caseload. Rowan County pays its social workers less than do most surrounding counties. The heavy caseload and the lower salaries are two reasons the agency cannot keep social workers. I have heard this said, "Social workers are trained in Rowan County, but then they move to another county to work."

DSS officials have requested new social worker positions many times, but the county commissioners will not agree to this. The county commissioners are living in the clouds. They expect social workers to perform such a stressful job with too big of a caseload and never make a mistake. Rowan County was a disaster waiting to happen.

I am not saying that there were not any mistakes made by a social worker, because I do not know about these cases. But I feel that the county commissioners have made the biggest mistake and should be held accountable for their neglect. They have neglected the children of Rowan County and they have neglected the county's most valuable instruments for providing protection for their children. This downgrading of the social workers' performance will not achieve much, except making it hard for the county to find good social workers who will come to work in Rowan County.

I have a couple requests:

■ Please speak with DSS officials and get the true story about the working conditions of Rowan County DSS social workers. Question them about the state-recommended caseload and Rowan County's caseload.

■ Please question the county commissioners about their neglect. Ask them how a social worker can do the appropriate job when the commissioners require them to work under such heavy caseloads. Please hold the commissioners accountable also!

Social workers are the people who provide the children of your county the protection from neglect and abuse. The deaths of these children will cause every social worker to become overly concerned about making any mistakes. No social worker wants any child to die, but this sometimes happens.

Rowan County's social workers need someone stand up for them, because they cannot speak for themselves about these cases. Please examine these issues.

Child death probe begins; shakeup at DSS

Team sent by Gov. Hunt starts to work

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

A state team — responding to Gov. Jim Hunt's charge to find out what happened to two Rowan County children who were beaten to death and a third who was shot — began its investigation here this morning.

And Kevin FitzGerald, director of the N.C. Division of Social Services, personally came to Rowan County to open the two-day meeting with a clear statement of the goal: to assess the actions of the staff of the Rowan County Department of Social Services in all three cases, evaluate an earlier state review and make recommendations to improve the process, and evaluate state standards and the child fatality review process.

Abuse of the two children, 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones, had been investigated by the Protective Services Unit of the Rowan County Department of Social Services before they died on Jan. 31 and Feb. 4. And 16-year-old Trola Miller, who was killed on Feb. 4 by a random gunshot in an argument in the yard of a housing project, was an open Social Resignations, demotion not related to deaths — Travis

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Two social workers have resigned and a supervisor has been demoted in the Child Protective Services Unit of the Rowan County Department of Social Services in less than two weeks.

Director Rick Travis says the personnel actions "are not at all related" to the recent beating deaths of two children.

But Social Services had investigated both families before the children died, and sources say investigators Brooks Gibson and John Thomas and supervisor Shirley Gray had a part in one or both of the children's cases.

Robin Gosnell of Cleveland has been charged with murdering her stepson, 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark, on Jan. 31.

Jeremy Butcher has been charged with murdering 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones, son of his girlfriend, Sheila Jones. Authorities say Butcher was baby sitting for Jones on Feb. 4, the day the toddler was beaten.

On their personnel records, both social workers indicate they resigned for "personal reasons," according to Ken Deal, Rowan County Human Resources administrator. None of the three would comment.

"None of the recent personnel actions are related to the child fatality cases," Travis said. "Obviously a supervisor is going to have some connection with the cases through the line workers.

"I don't feel it's appropriate to comment on the manner in which these cases were handled while the cases are being reviewed by the state." (See accompanying story.)

Nor have any of the positions been filled, he said. "We're in the process of recruiting."

Shirley Gray, a member of the Social Services staff since 1975, was demoted to a social worker effective March 16. Liz Manning, a social worker, is temporarily filling the supervisory position.

Social worker Brooks Gibson, who has been on the staff since June 15, 1996, resigned effective March 14. Thomas has been a social worker with the department since April 22, 1974. His resignation will be effective April 15.

Rowan volunteers have seen crisis building

Foster care parents and others have long urged the strengthening of how society protects vulnerable children

BY DARLENE MURPHY
SPECIAL TO THE POST

I find it more than a little sad that it took the deaths of three children in this county to get everyone including the county commissioners outraged enough to start talking about the problem of child abuse and neglect. Where have you all been over the past 20 years as the rate of child abuse has consistently risen and the injuries to these children have become more violent and deadly?

Why haven't you been lobbying our legislators to change the antiquated "Child Protection Laws" to keep up with the changing face of abuse and neglect? Where have you been as our county has had to fight the growing population of dysfunctional families and their children with little or no extra help or equipment?

Why were you not outraged, Mr. Rowland, every time you read about a child who was beaten, left alone, or abused in any of the other numerous incidents that have happened to the children of this county over the past 20 years? Why did it take children dying?

Politically speaking, it's probably a good move for you to be outraged right now. Sincerely speaking, though, it is sickeningly late.

On the other hand, there are those of us who have not only been outraged about this problem for years but have been working hard to make a difference in the lives of the children in this county. Currently there are 64 licensed foster homes in our county; one of those is my own home. Through the years these homes have opened their doors to hundreds of children who have needed a safe environment in which to live and grow.

These are the children and families that no one will hear about. There will be no headlines or special commission meetings about the children and families for which our system works for every year. Countless volunteers give their time to help foster families gather clothes, arrange parties at holidays or just offer to babysit so foster families can have a night out. We have extended family members, neighbors and friends who babysit and provide support to help out birth families before they become statistics.

And yes, there are social service workers who have dedicated their lives to helping children. They work on many cases yearly that involve not only mountains of paperwork, but also dealing with children, their birth families, the foster families and the court system, which does not always work with the workers to protect the children. The social workers must deal and become outraged on a daily basis and not just when it is a headline in the local news. They must do this while maintaining a professional yet caring demeanor in dealing with all parties involved. Not an easy job for anyone.

I am proud to have worked alongside these people who have dedicated their lives to being part of the solution even when the problems of protecting the children grow increasingly tough.

A system as I understand it is many factors working together to accomplish a certain goal. The parts of a child protection system should include:

- Laws which are specific about protecting children.
- Professionals including doctors, nurses, teachers, and law enforcement officers who work together to inform each other and follow up on suspected abuse and neglect.
- Lawmakers and county officials who offer their help and support to our children and the agencies that protect children.
- A community including churches, neighbors and extended families who watch out for the children that they come in contact with every day and are willing to reach out to families who are in possible trouble before calling in an agency. This community includes foster parents and social workers working hand in hand to provide children with a safe home while their families work to straighten out their problems.

If this in fact constitutes a child protection system, then every one of us in Rowan County failed the three children who died. This is a hard pill to swallow.

Now we can either allow the deaths of these three precious children to tear us apart and become no more than a self-righteous finger-pointing fight until the next child dies, or we can all search to find where we fit into this system and get to work to ensure that our children in this county are truly protected.

Caseloads overwhelming DSS workers

Children's deaths bring focus to problem that has festered at Social Services for years

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The warning is as clear as the shriek of a fire siren.

But the letter that contains it is more than 2 years old, written long before two children — already reported to the Rowan County Department of Social Services because of suspected abuse — were beaten to death.

Dated Oct. 18, 1994, on official Social Services stationery and signed by seven members of the Protective Services Unit, it says unmistakably:

"Working conditions make it impossible for the individual workers to anticipate and possibly avert potentially disastrous situations."

The italics weren't there when the letter was written.

But now, in 20-20 hindsight, in a copy of the letter anonymously mailed to the Post in a plain white envelope, the word leaps off the page, highlighted because of the deaths of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark on Jan. 31 and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones on Feb. 4.

Budde's stepmother, Robin Gosnell, and the toddler's baby sitter, Jeremy Butcher, have been charged with murder.

Six of the seven signatures are legible — Elizabeth L. Manning, John C. Thomas, Wendy A. Gilmore, Mary McKenzie, Paul Lucas and Randy Sherrill.

Sherrill left the Rowan County DSS for the Cabarrus County Department of Social Services shortly after the letter was written — and for the same reason.

"Too much to do and not enough workers to do it," he says.

But things change:

- When Sherrill was in Rowan County, he averaged 30 to 40 cases a month.
- The state standard is 12 cases a month for investigative workers, 18 for treatment workers, and 15 for workers who handle both. In Rowan, Sherrill handled both. In Cabarrus, he's a treatment social services worker and well within the standard.
- And in Rowan, where Director Rick Travis has made a strong effort to get the workload in line with state standards, caseloads dropped to 16 or 17 per investigator a year ago, but jumped back up in February to a frightening 34 with 240 cases open.

"The working conditions in Rowan were terrible. The work load was very heavy. I felt like it was humanly impossible to do the job that needed to be done."

— Hilda Miller

Sherrill remembers that 1994 letter well.

In it, Protective Services workers recommended that job vacancies be filled immediately, that four new positions be added, that college interns be used on a year-round basis, that case work documentation be computerized and that a local doctor be recruited to perform child abuse medical examinations because of the lost time driving children to Baptist Hospital and other counties.

And he remembers how upset the workers were.

The stress level in the unit was so high that workers wrote the letter so then-director Ed Koontz could let county commissioners and the Social Services board know what was going on.

"If something happened, we wanted to have some kind of proof to cover ourselves, to say, 'We told you this was going to happen.' That's the reason everybody who signed that letter made a copy of it and put it in their files. They wanted to keep a copy."

And now, he adds, it has happened.

John Thomas, whose signature is on that 2-year-old letter, has resigned. So has social worker Brooks Gibson. And a supervisor, Shirley Gray, has been demoted.

Travis denies any personnel actions are related to the recent deaths. But sources say all three had a part in one or both of the children's cases.

Because it did happen — and has outraged the community — Sherrill himself wrote a letter to the Post last week, primarily to direct the newspaper's search for truth, he said.

page last Tuesday, his letter echoed the words written in 1994.

"Rowan County was a disaster waiting to happen," he wrote, adding that the "true story" is in the "working conditions of DSS social workers."

That charge reflects the words of a longtime investigator who doesn't want to be named.

"You're scared you're not touching all the bases because you've got so much to do. It's physically impossible to get everywhere you're supposed to be ... and the calls just pour in. And on top of all that is the paperwork responsibility and the standards that have to be met, and it just turns into a meat grinder. You feel like you're being eaten alive."

Growing workload

The department's seven investigators were given 116 new calls of child abuse to investigate in February, according to Travis.

One investigator says that by the middle of the month each of the seven in the unit had been assigned one new case a day for 27 consecutive days.

"One day," he said, "it was two cases. I did my initial contacts and came back to find a third on my desk at 4:30."

Travis believes the number jumped because of publicity about the two dead children although the case-a-day run started before the deaths.

Figures for Davidson County show it got 172 calls in February, even more than Rowan, and its 11 investigators and one temporary worker had 303 open cases, or an average of 25 per social worker.

Cabarrus County also experienced higher than usual numbers in February, with 22 cases for each of its 12 investigators compared with 14 or 15 a year ago.

Rod Duncan, program administrator for child welfare services, says the caseloads have been going up during the past few months.

"We've had some people working hard trying to keep up with paperwork, some out sick, some turnover, and it takes a while to get somebody trained and up and running."

Especially, he says, with the complex kinds of cases workers deal with these days.

"It's more difficult to work the kinds of cases we have," Duncan says. Substance abuse, violence, parents working several jobs to make ends meet, people trying to do everything families try to do without a lot of support — all put a lot of stress on families, "and it shows in child neglect and abuse."

Travis also believes another factor probably contributed to the increase in Rowan. Social Services got a new telephone system that includes voice mail. Before that, he believes some callers didn't call back when they got busy signals.

For Travis, who came to Rowan in January of 1995 at about the time Sherrill was leaving for Cabarrus, the numbers are loaded with irony because he directed attention to lowering caseloads.

When he came, he thought part of the problem was "trying to be all things to all people ... We were trying to serve families at whatever point they came to our attention. Not always through Protective Services." Sometimes they came from civil or juvenile court judges. Sometimes from somebody in the community who said, "Can't you do something for this family?"

The desire to serve was admirable, he says, but the department didn't have enough manpower to do government mandated services, much less optional services.

So the department worked on mandated cases and closed or transferred others to other agencies "because we were drowning."

"It was just a classic triage situation," he says. Serve the biggest needs according to standards instead of twice as many "and not being able to do much of anything for any of them."

No preventive medicine

Within a few months, caseloads averaged less than 20 families per worker, he says.

But that had a downside.

"An ounce of prevention is truly worth more than a pound of cure," he says, "but our mandate is to investigate abuse and neglect and try to help them. I would love to have a unit that works with families before a child is abused or neglected, but no one is giving us money to do preventive services."

And then, despite the drop a year ago, the number of cases were up in February, and signs still surface that workers feel enormous pressure.

A big caseload and time constraints, Sherrill says, equal stress — and social workers always have time constraints.

An investigator must finish his investigation in 30 days or explain why not. A treatment worker must make weekly contacts with the family.

But pressure mounts if you have twice or three times as many cases as you should have.

Sherrill joined the Rowan County DSS as a treatment social worker in August of 1993.

"And I loved my job," he says.

He worked with families, helping them solve problems with school work, discipline, shopping, money, did his paperwork — and drove.

"When I was in Rowan, I went to Gold Hill and got back to the office and went to Cleveland."

How long does a case stay open?

"Until we feel like the family has learned what they need to learn," he says.

"We try everything we can to keep families together — send them to counseling, provide financial services. The state mandate is to keep families together. We don't just go in and take kids out of the home. That's what treatment services are all about. But if it doesn't work, we go to court to take the child away. They can get them back if they show some improvement."

He would have stayed in Rowan, he says, if he'd had a caseload of 15 or 20, but he's glad he left.

"If you have 20 cases, you can see every client every week and do all the dictation unless you have a crisis. But that's the reason you have caseloads that are lower, so if something does happen you have time to do something.

"You can have cases you have to spend five hours with, maybe an irate parent fussing the report is not true. Sometimes you have to transport the client to a doctor or a group home in Winston-Salem. I've been there for both."

Because he sees many clients at night, he still averages about 45 hours a week in Cabarrus. But in Rowan it was always 45 to 50 hours. The only overtime pay was straight comp time, and the annual salary was $2,000 less than he got in Cabarrus. This year, Rowan's beginning pay for a level III social worker — which is where most investigators start — is slightly less than Cabarrus, Davidson or Iredell pay.

"When I left, every person who worked in foster care, investigation, or treatment would have left," he says, if they got a chance to go to a job like his.

Churning out workers

Some in other departments also feel pressure.

Six caseworkers who handled applications and the "maintenance" of clients on Medicaid and Work First, which is the new name for Aid for Dependent Children, left Rowan for the Cabarrus Department of Social Services between Dec. 1 and mid-February — and got raises.

But they insist they didn't go for money. They still live here, and the extra cash goes for gas and wear and tear on their cars. They have less time with their children.

They went for the same reasons Randy Sherrill went — less pressure and peace of mind.

"It's like we've died and gone to heaven," says Gussie Dennis of Salisbury, because "the work load is different."

"The working conditions in Rowan were terrible," says Hilda Miller. "The work load was very heavy. I felt like it was humanly impossible to do the job that needed to be done.

"I felt like no one in super-

2 of 2

vision was listening to us. We tried and tried to tell them of our concerns, and they were not addressed.

"I felt like things were snowballing on me and I felt like I was drowning, It was just a matter of time until something happened. Mistakes are going to be made, but eventually it's going to be costly."

Errors bring major repercussions, Miller says. The department gets report cards from the state every month, and a score of less than 90 is failing.

"When that happens, there are penalties and fines that have to be paid and some of that comes out of local money," Miller says. "Penalties and fines can be $600 to several thousand dollars.

"When Ed Koontz was director," Miller says, "we failed the report card one time. He called a staff meeting and said, 'This just can't happen again,' and it didn't happen again."

And she says Social Services' record has been bad in recent months.

Travis says the time limits were set by a federal district court order in the 1970s.

"If counties don't process applications as quickly as the court order requires," he says, "they can be fined assessments, which are then paid to the clients.

"If someone's application goes a week over when it should have been completed, and it's the agency's fault, then that client might get a check for $25 every week the application is overdue."

"We have failed several months," he says. "I think out of the eight months of this fiscal year, there have been five months we haven't passed in at least one category."

He says administrators are clear that workers should not work more than 40 hours a week unless they're authorized because no money is budgeted for overtime.

But they know, he says, that "as long as you do the best you can in a 40-hour week, you're not going to be held responsible if work piles up."

Randy Sherrill believes county commissioners must also be held accountable for their lack of support.

Rowan provides about what other surrounding counties of similar size provide. Commissioners approved funding that is about 10 percent of the total DSS budget, which compares with 9.4 percent in Cabarrus, 8 percent in Davidson, and 10.2 percent in Iredell.

Anxieties and concerns are not exclusive to Rowan, Travis adds.

"I've had a number of directors call me in the last month or so," he says, because of the deaths of the children here. "To a person they say, 'There but for the grace of God go I. It could happen here any day.'

"It's the nature of the business. There's a lot of ambiguity and a lot of anxiety. A lot of heavy demands are placed on the social work staff. It is a high stress job."

Sherrill says he has felt really burdened by what has happened here — and disturbed that fingers seem to point to social workers. He doesn't believe they are to blame.

"A death could happen in any county of the state," he says. "I've lived my entire career with three horrors hanging over me every hour of every day: that I would have a wreck with a child or a child and a parent in my car; that a child would commit suicide and I would miss the signs; or that a death would occur that I could have done something to prevent because all of those things are possible and you're not clairvoyant."

But he has hope.

What usually happens when something like this occurs, he says, "is that the county becomes one of the best in the state. It finally gets people upset with what's going on, and they make some changes."

Elizabeth Smith, a child advocate whose plea with Gov. Jim Hunt has brought the current state investigation, says she also believes "a lot of good will come out of it in a lot of directions. Rowan County could become a model for DSS if we go at it with the right attitude."

APPROVE MORE STAFF FOR DSS

Nighmare come true

Imagine a surgeon, busily performing a delicate heart operation on a desperately ill patient. Suddenly the doors to the operating room burst open and a new patient is wheeled in. Finish up as best you can on the first patient, the surgeon is told, and start on the second one.

Then a third patient is wheeled in. Then a fourth. All need surgery immediately. And no additional staff is available to help perform the operations.

It sounds insane. Yet that nightmarish scenario is not that far removed from what's expected of the social workers at the Rowan County Department of Social Services (DSS). As Rose Post reported Sunday, in February investigators with the DSS Child Protective Services were weighed down by no fewer than 34 cases per worker. The state standard is 12 cases per person. (That standard is a recommendation for efficient levels of services, but not a mandate.)

The numbers for other area Social Services agencies in February were 13 in Iredell, 22 in Cabarrus and 25 in Davidson.

"You're scared because you're not touching all the bases because you've got so much to do," one Rowan DSS investigator told Post. "It's physically impossible to get everywhere you're supposed to be ... and the calls just pour in. And on top of all that is the paperwork responsibility and the standards that have to be met, and it just turns into a meat grinder. You feel like you're being eaten alive."

Commissioners' responsibilities

What a shame that such grossly unfair working conditions would burden Rowan County's social workers, the very people who devote their lives so selflessly to try to fight child abuse and calm the anger that boils so fiercely within so many unhappy Rowan families.

(At the Rowan DSS, concerns over excessive workloads and modest pay scales are not confined to Child Protective Services alone. Recently six employees working with the Medicaid and Work First programs left the Rowan DSS and joined the social services agency in Cabarrus County.)

At the same time, being shorthanded is no excuse for poor judgment or ineffective management. Consider the case of little Christopher Lee Jones. An emergency room staff member at Rowan Regional Medical Center photographed the horrendous marks of abuse on Jones' body, but the pictures weren't picked up by DSS. Jones, only 19 months old, wound up murdered; his mother's boyfriend is charged with the crime. Citizens rightly want to know why the system broke down so that the pictures didn't spur DSS to take stronger action while Jones was still alive.

It's true that the Rowan County commissioners have no easy job in deciding whether to hire new workers for county departments. The demands for new employees come at the commissioners from every direction. And a huge portion of the county budget consists of employees' salaries, benefits and retirement; with every new hire, that expense grows.

SALISBURY POST 3/31/97

Averting disaster

Yet if any county agency could make a strong case for adding new employees under present conditions, it's DSS and its Child Protective Services component. Without question, the overworked conditions afflicting Child Protective Services have eroded the office's ability to provide the help these children need. The terrible child abuse deaths this year of Jones and 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark serve as a warning sign that the commissioners must relieve the pressure on DSS staff.

A letter from six DSS employees tried to make that point clear more than two years ago: "Working conditions make it impossible for the individual workers to anticipate and possibly avert potentially disastrous situations."

It would be crazy for Rowan Regional Medical Center to overload its operating room staff with too many patients at once. It's just as insane for county government to provide too few workers to perform one of the most important tasks of local government: protecting children from abuse.

Custody hearing for Gosnell's son delayed

BY JASON WILLIAMS
SALISBURY POST

The custody battle between accused murderer Robin Gosnell and her ex-husband, Gary Bringle, was continued for the third time in court today.

At the last minute, Salisbury attorney Dumont Stockton filed a motion to intervene on behalf of Virginia Wright, who is Gosnell's mother.

Bringle seeks custody of his son, 13-year-old Sammy Bringle. Gosnell wants custody to go to her mother. Gosnell has been in jail without bond since the Jan. 31 beating death of her stepson, Budde Lee Clark, 6.

Judge Ted Blanton agreed to hear Wright's motion to intervene on Friday, April 11. The custody case is scheduled to be heard during the week of April 21.

Stockton apparently filed the motion because Wright would have had difficulty getting custody since she is not an original party to the suit. Wright seeks to be a third-party intervener and seeks permanent custody of the child.

The trial was held up the first time because Blanton ordered the Department of Social Services to conduct home studies. The trial was continued for the second time because DSS did not have the home studies completed. The home studies for both Bringle and Wright have now been completed.

Bringle's attorney, David Bingham, and Judge Blanton got into a heated exchange about whether the continuance was prejudicial against his client. Bringle's witnesses cannot continue to come to court an indefinite number of times, Bingham said.

Blanton argued that the continuances aren't prejudicial because Bringle already has the child in a custody order.

VICTIMS RIGHTS AMENDMENT

Salisbury Post
4/1/97

The price of justice

The North Carolina Constitution has a new amendment guaranteeing victims rights. Implementing that worthy goal will mean a hefty price tag for state and county budgets — a cost that state lawmakers and county commissioners must not shrink from meeting.

It's already clear that social workers at the Rowan County Department of Social Services (DSS) have been laboring under excessive caseloads that are nearly impossible to handle adequately. Now our district attorney's office, sheriff's office and municipal police departments will wind up in a similar position, unless the state and county governments rise to the occasion and provide adequate staff and equipment to meet the new victims rights duties.

These responsibilities range from various notification requirements to informing victims about the legal system and medical services to gathering input from victims regarding possible plea bargains.

The state intends to charge a $30 fee on people convicted of serious crimes, but that revenue will not be enough to cover the increased administrative costs.

Two other points also stand out about the new amendment, approved overwhelmingly by North Carolina voters last fall:

■ Prosecutors will now be obligated to receive input from victims or their families about possible plea bargains, dismissals or restitution agreements. It should be made clear to victims from the beginning, however, that district attorneys must retain sole, unquestioned authority to make the final decisions on prosecutorial strategy. It will only compound the tragedy of serious crimes if victims are left with the illusion that they have a power over court strategy that they don't actually possess.

■ The new amendment contains one great oddity. When an offender is about to be released, government will be required to notify victims of serious crimes; no such notification is mandated, however, for victims of domestic violence. Yet aren't such victims precisely the people who are most at risk of being victimized again once an offender is back on the street? The General Assembly should rectify this flaw as soon as possible.

With the new victims rights requirements, citizens will have one more reason to fume at criminals: For North Carolina taxpayers, the cost of crime has just gotten higher.

Walk to raise awareness of child abuse

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Social workers at Rowan County Department of Social Services will sponsor a 6-mile walk for Child Abuse Awareness Saturday, according to social worker Kim Mork, who is organizing the event.

The walk aims to focus attention on Child Abuse Awareness Month.

No funds will be raised. No time limit has been set.

Some walkers will carry signs and all are asked to wear navy blue pants and white shirts. The colors are to designate the observance throughout the state.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. at the department's Children's Services building, 105 W. Corriher Ave., and walkers will get navy blue ribbons, signs and maps. The walk will begin at 9:30. It will start and end at the building, just off West Innes Street, two blocks from Catawba College.

Walkers will have a water stop at the 3-mile point at the Salisbury Housing Authority, 200 S. Boundary St.

Starting at West Corriher, walkers will follow Mahaley and Confederate avenues past Rowan Regional Medical Center and City Park to Club House Drive, 11th Street and Main Street, turn left on East Council Street to Boundary and continue south to the Housing Authority.

From Boundary, walkers will turn right on Old Concord Road, Long Street, then left on East Innes and back to Corriher.

Everyone interested is invited, Mork says, and "help Social Services make the community aware by joining us in a walk around Salisbury."

Salisbury Mayor Margaret Kluttz has proclaimed April as Child Abuse Awareness Month in Salisbury.

Focus communities on child protection

BY SAMMY R. HAITHCOCK
SPECIAL TO THE POST

Recent child deaths in Rowan County have focused attention on how communities protect children in general and, specifically, on the role of public agencies like Departments of Social Services in providing protection. The tragedy of a child death breaks the hearts of the family, friends and the community as well. A natural questions is, "Why did this happen? Could it have been avoided?"

These questions need answers, if indeed there are answers. Child fatality reviews can help pinpoint changes needed to better protect children. Reviews are done to measure the actions of a department against existing legal responsibilities and practice standards. It is impossible to measure the performance of any agency against specific standards or expectations held by one individual, one group or a community at a specific point in time.

Like most public endeavors, child protection is at its best when the community is proactively involved in working for improvements. Local child protection and child fatality review teams offer an opportunity to develop community consensus on how much a community is willing and able to do in protecting children.

In the aftermath of tragedy emotions run high. This is normal, expected and needed to allow the grief process to take its course. To make improvements, indignation is not enough. Clear, considerate and compassionate thinking and actions are needed. The real test of concern for children — by elected officials, by public employees and concerned citizens — is best measured in concrete actions to provide positive help to improve the system.

A place to start improving it is simply to do the good we know to do. Based on information from the past two years, an additional 246 social workers and supervisors were needed to meet minimum state standards for child protection. Studies done over the years in North Carolina clearly demonstrate that well trained and sufficient staff members are essential to providing child protection. In many counties, staffing is not adequate to do the job effectively. Until there is, no one can feel secure that we are doing what we need to do.

More than staff is needed. Local leaders and concerned citizens can become involved by taking the time to talk with professionals who work in various agencies serving abused and neglected children, to get a firsthand view of what these professionals face. Visit agencies and become familiar with what professionals do. Volunteer opportunities are available in many public agencies, within appropriate parameters, to help families whose children have been abused and/or neglected. Most people, when faced with the day-to-day realities of working to protect children, soon become advocates for greater resources, more public involvement and better coordination among involved agencies.

Out of tragedy can come hope. With citizen involvement and interest in this significant problem, communities can work alongside professionals to ensure that public efforts reflect the true commitment of communities to protect their children.

Question: How many children have died due to abuse and neglect in Rowan County in the past five years, including the one in Tennessee that was from Rowan County?

— DONNA SCOTT,
Salisbury

Answer: The Rowan County Department of Social Services keeps no statistics on children who died because of abuse or neglect. However, it happens so infrequently, says Director Rick Travis, that people who have worked at the agency for a number of years recall only one involving criminal neglect or abuse charges. Of course, two children — Budde Lee Clark, 6, and Christopher Lee Jones, 19 months — recently died from abuse. Charges are pending in both those cases.

The earlier case involved 21-month-old Scotty Avery Trexler, son of Tammy Trexler of Rowan County. He died on May 30, 1987, in Tennessee, where the family had moved, as a result of one of the worst cases of child abuse the investigating officer said he'd ever seen. Trexler and her boyfriend, Kerry Bowers, were convicted of charges related to the baby's death.

Forty children, most of them younger than 3 years old, died of child abuse in North Carolina last year, according to the annual survey by the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse.

Question: Why does the Rowan County Department of Social Services have to call the people before they go out to do an investigation? Why don't they just show up at their door?

— AUDREY KEPLEY,

Answer: Social Services does not have to call people. In fact, says Director Rick Travis, calling them so they got advance notice would defeat the purpose of doing a thorough assessment. Workers try to make their initial visit without setting up an appointment. Occasionally, a worker will call and say he's 20 minutes away and wants to stop by, and in some cases workers run into trouble finding working parents and have to call.

Social workers have hardest job

DSS employees face enormous challenges, school guidance counselor says

BY KAREN C. YOUNG
SPECIAL TO THE POST

I am outraged at Commissioner Dave Rowland's outrage concerning Rowan County Department of Social Services. It would appear that he is exploiting the recent tragic deaths of three children to grab headlines.

Last month, without having first read the report, Mr. Rowland shot from the hip without any understanding of the workings of the agency. In the Salisbury Post he stated that DSS should have taken workers from other jobs to conduct protective service investigation with no understanding that this is an incredibly difficult job requiring the highest professionalism and training.

Responsive, caring

He also, right away, stated that he didn't "want to throw money at the problem," a pat political cliche which reflects little understanding of the complexity of social services delivery. Mr. Rowland doesn't even seem to understand that failure by the Department of Social Services to comply with legally mandated services would result in serious consequences to this county. Any person who knows so little about the workings of public business should not run for or serve as an elected official.

As a social worker and guidance counselor for Rowan County Schools, I have been making referral to DSS for 25 years. Sometimes I have been satisfied with outcomes of investigations and sometimes I have not. In those cases where I was dissatisfied, I could and did make my concerns known to supervisors. However, I have always found the protective service workers responsive, caring, calm and professional.

I represented the school system in the early '90s on the Community Child Protection Team, which monitors repeated reports of child abuse. The agency workers were never defensive, always open to suggestions and concerned that the system of child protection perform at the highest level of effectiveness.

I know none of the particulars in the current tragic deaths beyond what I read in the paper. However I do know a few things:

1) I know that their families failed these children! DSS did not kill those three children.

2) I know that there have been only seven child abuse investigators to handle the reports from the workers in 28 schools and from doctors, day care centers, neighbors, the hospital, and relatives of abused and neglected children. Thousands of us report hundreds of cases to only seven of them.

Always on call

3) I know working for Child Protective Services is the most difficult job that exists, bar none. If parents are not guilty they are outraged at being reported. If they are guilty, they are outraged at being caught. People lie. People hide. People threaten workers. No one likes to see a social worker coming!

If parents are not guilty, they are outraged at being reported. If they are guilty, they are outraged at being caught.

4) I know that there is a DSS worker on call 24 hours a day. I have called and said that I am not letting this child go home from school without a social worker. The hospital could have and should have done the same.

5) I know that families are breaking down at an increasing and alarming rate. People are getting crazier and crazier. Children are becoming more and more difficult. No public agency can prevent all the results of social dysfunction.

6) I know, Mr. Rowland, any businessman will tell you that you cannot do the job with inadequate resources.

Finally, my hat is off to Sheriff Martin for his helping actions in this crisis. We should all follow his lead in working together rather than pointing fingers and playing "gotcha." And my gratitude and support to the Department of Social Services and workers like John Thomas who have stayed on the front lines, year after year, picking up the pieces when society breaks down.

Why can't DSS shuffle people to handle crisis?

Funding mandates the main drawback, director says

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

When his father died, Rowan County Commissioner Newton Cohen left N.C. State to come home and take over the family's heating and air conditioning business.

That was nearly half a century ago.

So the former commission chairman has had plenty of experience with emergencies.

"You have to put out fires sometimes," he says, "and you move people around to do it."

In the wake of the deaths of two children from abuse, Cohen is not the only county commissioner who's wondered aloud why the Rowan County Department of Social Services can't do the same thing when an emergency screams for another pair of hands.

If Social Services is at times so overwhelmed, commissioners ask, why can't they just move workers from one department to another to get through a time of crisis?

The Rowan County Department of Social Services employs 146 people, but only seven child abuse investigators and one supervisor.

"In business, when you have a crisis," says commissioner Dave Rowland, "you shift personnel. I understand a great majority of their budget is mandated, but there's a tremendous amount of stuff that's not mandated."

Rick Travis, director of the county's Department of Social Services, says otherwise. Virtually all the money in his budget is earmarked for certain services by the state or federal government. Therefore, the rules prevent him from shifting people from one area to another, he says.

Monday he'll talk to his Social Services board about asking commissioners to add three investigators and two supervisors in Child Protective Services. He had planned to ask for one additional investigator and one supervisor.

But now, "because there has been an increase in reports

Reorganization helps in Iredell

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Social Services workers in Iredell County believe they're doing a better and faster job with children in their care this year.

The reason: They are one of eight N.C. counties receiving a Kellogg Foundation grant to reorganize their children's services program.

But they had enough social workers to handle their caseload before they were selected, and that's vital, says Lisa York, program administrator.

And the reorganization doesn't depend on grant money.

"We didn't reorganize because we got the money," she says quickly. "We reorganized to provide more continuity of service to families. If one person is not available, then somebody else who is familiar with the case is.

"The money that came with the grant funds two positions — a performance coordinator and an assessment coordinator. Their primary responsibility is looking at how we can prevent children from coming into care following the fatalities," he says, "we plan to ask for five additional people in Child Protective Services."

➤ See Iredell, Page 6A

Crisis

He'll also ask for one additional worker in both foster care and adoption areas.

Travis says he talked with state and regional people Friday and feels sure the special state review team will recommend state standards.

"It will take this many additional workers to come up to state standards."

The team is now reviewing the way Social Services handled investigations before the children's deaths, and on Friday, Kevin FitzGerald, head of the state Division of Social Services, will release the team's report.

Like Rowland, Cohen says he understands the limitations of mandated programs at government agencies. But life is different in private enterprise.

"If it were my personal business, I know I could move my people around with no strings attached," he says. "If I need 15 on Child Support and 15 on Protective Services, I can move them around."

At Cohen Heating and Air Conditioning, he says, "we have a service man on call, and if he gets busy, he calls in a backup."

Why, ask Cohen and other commissioners, can't Social Services do the same?

Unanswered call

On Thursday, Jan. 2, medical officials at Rowan Regional Medical Center called the on-call Social Services worker twice — once at 7:30 p.m. and again at 9 — to report a battered and bruised baby.

They reached the worker, already busy with an emergency, at the Rowan County Sheriff's Department.

But nobody went to the hospital that night to see the baby. In fact, a Protective Services worker didn't see him until Tuesday, Jan. 7, five days later.

And no one picked up the pictures made at the hospital, pictures that showed the bruises and bites, until after 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones died of another beating and a fractured skull on Feb. 4. A month had passed since hospital workers called to report abuse. His mother's boyfriend, Jeremy Butcher, who was baby sitting, is charged with murder.

With as many people as they've got at Social Services, Cohen asks, why couldn't the social worker on call have called a supervisor?

"Or Rick Travis or Sandy Reitz," he says, referring to the agency director and the administrator of the Income Maintenance Program. "Most anybody that's available should be able to answer those calls," he adds, just as he still goes out on emergency calls in his business.

"Not too often nowadays," he adds, since suffering a heart problem several years ago, "but I have a lot of times." His son, Tommy, backs up his on-call employee now.

"If we have two calls or something like that, I can call him on a minute's notice and get him out. That's not a problem with us."

Having someone answer a call is not a problem in Iredell County either.

For years the Iredell Department of Social Services has had an on-call social worker, hired just to meet the need for a Child Protective Services worker between 5 p.m. and 8 a.m. when the office is closed, says Lisa York, program administrator for the county's Families for Kids grant. And that social worker is not alone.

"She has supervisors on call to back her up," York says. They're around to help her decisions about investigating or not investigating reports and to support her if she has multiple demands. The supervisor and on-call workers all carry pagers and have cell phones.

In Rowan County, neither supervisors nor on-call workers have pagers or cell phones — and Travis doesn't plan to ask commissioners to provide them.

"We are going to ask for additional (funding) in automation and programs," he says, "the bare bones to meet state standards and put us in a position to be effective and successful."

But, he adds, "We have to first have adequate staff trained to do the job. I don't want to misdirect people's attention away from that by asking for the bells and whistles that would make us even better.

"First, let's get the staff, take care of the basics, make sure we're doing what the standards require, and there will be time in the future if we want to move into automation. If you're going to prioritize, you've got to have the bodies before you start adding icing to the cake."

Hampered by law

The department does move people around "to the extent we can," he says, "but in Protective Services we're limited to borrowing from our treatment unit to help with investigations because it requires a great deal of training and knowledge about what Protective Services law and standards require. There is what the state refers to as core training all workers are required to receive in the first year of employment. So we take workers from treatment who have had the training to fill in and help out, to take out some of the overflow."

The source of the department's money is another reason the department can't move people from one type of position to another, he says.

"There is nothing we do that is not mandated. Categorized. We can't take money from one category and put it in another. We don't do optional service. About the only thing we do that is not a federal or state mandate is Christmas Happiness. Adult Services social workers do it. Traditionally that's where it's been handled in the agency. They just grin and bear it. That's the only thing I can identify that is not identified by Washington or Raleigh."

A categorical fund or mandate means that the money must be used for the specific purpose for which it's allocated.

"If you don't use it for that purpose," he says, "the government will tell you to repay the money.

"If we take someone from Food Stamps — even if a Food Stamp worker knew what to do, which, of course, they don't — the county would end up paying all the salary and expenses to that person because the Food Stamp worker is reimbursed out of the Food Stamp program, which will only pay for Food Stamp work. It's a money issue."

Funding sources for almost every unit, he says, whether they deal with Food Stamps, Medicaid, employment services or child support, say "You get this money only if you do" the program it's intended for, he says.

"So if I take a Food Stamp worker and say, 'You're going to have to do Protective Services investigations. We're just swamped,' that worker isn't trained and the county would have to pay. I'm not saying the county wouldn't be willing, but with a budget adopted every spring, I can't use something that was budgeted for something else."

But Commissioner Rowland believes the word "mandated" is open to broad interpretation.

"The statute will say you have to provide adequate service," he says, "but everybody's interpretation of adequate is different. It's like saying you've got to have a car. One might think that means a Ford Escort. Me? I'd want a Lexus."

Surely, he says, the department can find a way to add enough Protective Services social workers. "You're only talking $150,000 to a couple hundred thousand dollars to add four more people in Protective Services. Surely you can figure out a way to add that."

He says he thinks county commissioners have been beaten "pretty heavy" about not funding the department's needs. "I'm more than willing to fund more help, but I don't want them to come and say that's the cure all. That is not the cure all."

Rowland went to Raleigh last week to talk to FitzGerald about the state investigation now under way.

"And I feel very good that they're doing this investigation the way they should," he says. "I'm waiting to see how that comes out. If they make the changes they're talking about, if he comes back and says a major problem is a shortage of investigative workers and (adds) more guidelines to assure me it won't fall through the cracks like it did, I have no problem voting more money.

"There's probably nothing I would embrace as much as something for children."

How the 146 DSS staff employees are organized

A total of 146 people work for the Rowan County Department of Social Services, including:

Administrative staff: 7

- 1-Director, Rick Travis
- 1-Secretary
- 1-Attorney
- 1-Paralegal
- 3-Accounting employees

Income maintenance division: 98

The income maintenance division determines if people are eligible for public assistance programs — Food Stamps, Medicaid and Work First Family Assistance, which replaced Aid to Families with Dependent Children.

- 1-Income maintenance administrator, Sandy Reitz
- 4-Income maintenance supervisors
- 45-Income maintenance caseworkers
- 3-Income maintenance technicians
- 11-Social workers, including 4 in child care; 1, emergency financial assistance; 6, employment program
- 1-Social work supervisor in the employment program
- 1-Attorney supervisor
- 16-Child support agents who track down absent parents, establish child support obligations and enforce payment orders.
- 14-Office assistants
- 1-Clerical supervisor
- 1-Fraud investigator

Social work division: 41

The social work division provides mandated social work services, which include Children's Protective Services, foster care and adoption, and adult services. Adult services includes in-home aid, supervision and licensing of adult care homes, adult protective services and guardianship services.

- 1-Manager Tom Brewer
- 4-Social work supervisors
- 30-Social workers, including 9 in protective services (7 investigators and 2 intake workers), 8 in treatment services, 5 in adult services, and 8 foster care
- 6-Office assistants

and looking at how children can leave the foster care system once they come into it."

Since getting the Kellogg grant, Iredell has reorganized its children's division into family support teams. Four supervisors each have six positions on a team — two investigators, two treatment workers and two foster care workers.

"When a case comes in to us," says Bill Crummett, a child welfare supervisor, "the case remains within that team so we have a familiarity from the beginning of the process to whatever happens with that case. Decision making is carried on within the team."

Workers are specialized. Some of them are cross-trained. And supervisors are being trained to supervise the variety of services offered, says York. The program aims to serve each family with one team and one supervisor.

They can already see they're meeting the goals set by the grant to:

- Provide one assessment for each child. "When they first come into our care," York says, "we look at their broad range of needs, assess their strengths and weaknesses and make a plan to establish permanence for that child as quickly as possible."
- Provide one social work team per family and child. "And we have done that through our organization," York says.
- Have one placement for each child in foster care so there aren't a series of moves, which are disruptive and create a lot of problems. "Of the 26 children we've removed from the home, I only know of two we placed outside our county."
- Try to achieve a permanent home for a child within a year. "We're trying to approach that by dual planning," she says. When children enter the system, workers make two plans — one that will support them if they go back to their families and a second, if the first plan fails, to terminate parental rights and seek adoption.

"We have cases — and every county has cases — that are well into the second year," says Crummett. "Children's time is different from adult time, so that is very long."

So far, the new program has found a permanent home for 41 children of the 108 children who had been in foster care for more than a year.

"That means they were reunified with parents, placed with relatives or adopted," York says.

These goals, Crummett says, "are goals social workers across the state can buy into. It's nothing you can argue against. It's pretty strenuous, but it's for a very worthwhile cause in reducing the time children are 'in drift.' We have worked through a large number of simpler cases. Now we're working through that core of hardest cases, and the numbers are going to come harder now."

Think of abused children — walkers

BY EMILY FORD
SALISBURY POST

About 50 pedestrians put six miles on their sneakers Saturday morning as they marched along Salisbury streets to make people think about abused children.

Some walkers said they hoped the event would improve relations between the Department of Social Services and the community after two deaths led to a public debate over if the agency adequately protects children.

But organizer Kim Mork said the purpose of the walk was simple.

"This walk is strictly for awareness," said Mork, a treatment social worker with the Child Protective Services unit. "It's a way for us to come together and work on child abuse issues."

Mork said she coordinated the walk because April is Child Abuse Awareness Month across the state. Participants wore navy and white and pinned blue ribbons to their shirts to remember abused and neglected kids.

Others acknowledged the tension caused by the recent deaths of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones.

Social services had investigated the boys' living conditions before they died, when their bodies revealed signs of long-term abuse. Their caretakers are charged with murder.

The walk should prove to Rowan County that social workers care about the children they're assigned to protect, some said.

"I'm hoping it will ease some of the pressure on our Child Protective Services unit between the workers and the community," walker Melody Chambless said.

A receptionist at social services, Chambless said she was thrilled that half the walkers were regular citizens, not DSS employees.

WALKING TALL: Walkers carry signs along Innes Street.

Jennie Karriker doesn't work at social services. She lives in Concord and came to support her friends at the agency.

hours a day," she said. "It's too bad they got the bad publicity. Hopefully people will see that they are doing some good."

Employees came up with the idea for a walk on their own, DSS director Rick Travis said.

"They wanted to do this and I said if you can pull it off, go for it," said Travis, who strolled alongside his employees. "They were certainly frustrated with all the negative publicity and wanted to demonstrate their concern for children."

Foster parents and their children made up a big part of the crowd. Mike Mitchell pulled two of his kids in a wagon while his wife kept track of three more.

"About all the foster kids we come in contact with have been abused in one way or another, sexually, mentally or physically," said Mitchell, president of the Foster and Adoptive Parents Association.

"People don't realize that this goes on," he said. "It could be next door."

Social services teaches foster parents how to help get abused children back on the right track, he said.

"You used to learn to deal with it on your own, as best you could," said Mitchell, who's been a foster parent for seven years. "Now we get proper training."

Grandparents: Money led to custody case

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

Budde Lee Clark's grandparents say it over and over again.

Budde's father, Lee, was in the delivery room when he was born.

His name is on his son's birth certificate.

But he saw him briefly only three times during the first six months of his life.

He never married Budde's mother, Pam Bradshaw.

For four years, he never contributed a penny to his son's support.

He never bought him a diaper or a birthday present or a Christmas gift.

He never tucked him in at night or read him a story or took him to the doctor or called him on the telephone.

He never showed any interest in him at all, say his mother and his grandparents — Lee's own mother and stepfather and Budde's maternal grandparents.

Certainly he never showed any interest in having custody of his son — until the Rowan County Department of Social Services stepped up its push to get "deadbeat dads" to pay back child support.

Budde's grandparents believe Lee Gosnell and his wife, Robin, didn't want to pay back child support — which could have run more than $6,000. So they fought for and won custody of Budde.

Now, Budde is dead, and Robin Gosnell is charged with beating him to death.

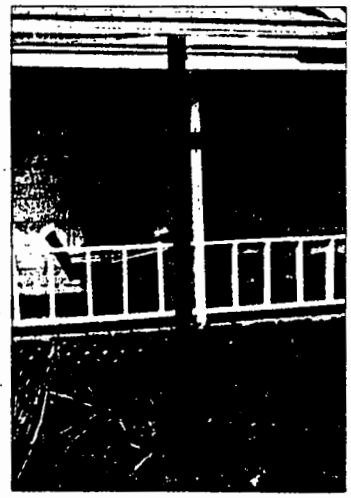
"Money!" grandfather Jim Bradshaw says.

The word shoots out like a bullet.

"The police told me the whole house was full of crosses and pictures of Jesus. I think he saw enough of them before he died."

— Jane Bradshaw, maternal grandmother of Jordan Bradshaw (Budde Lee Clark)

He leans forward in his chair, his face intense. Grief and anger battle in his voice as he talks about the savage beating his grandson endured, made more brutal because partially healed burns and bruises told a story of many beatings before his little body finally gave up. Robin Gosnell's family says he drowned. Police say she put him in a bathtub full of water to give the appearance of a drowning.



DARKENED WINDOWS: A large cross marks the Gosnells' house.

"It was nothing but money," Jim Bradshaw says. Getting custody of Budde would keep Lee Clark from having to repay all those checks the government had sent Pam Bradshaw. Plus, he and Robin would be entitled to get regular child support payments from Pam.

The grandparents want to speak out. Over and over, they hear the question, "Where were the grandparents?" They've read letters to the editors in the Salisbury Post. They've faced their friends. They've faced themselves.

On Friday, Lee Clark said he had nothing to say about this article. When a Post reporter offered to describe the article so he could comment, he said he didn't want to know what the article is about.

"I'm trying to get my peace of mind," he said. "I don't think I can handle it."

The story started, of course, when Pam Bradshaw, was living with Lee. His last name was Gosnell then but he has since changed it to Clark.

She got pregnant.

Get an abortion, he said.

No, she said.

Later, she told a Department of Social Services worker, that if she didn't abort the child, Lee said "he'd leave me in a ditch somewhere."

That scared her. So she left, went home to her parents who had always been there for her though she knew she'd disappointed them. She'd already given birth to a daughter out of wedlock.

But they were proud she'd said no to an abortion — and she acted responsibly. She got a job at the Security Bank office at Rowan Memorial Hospital, rented a mobile home in Faith and worked regularly until a week before Jordan Lee Bryant Bradshaw (his name would be changed to Budde Lee Clark before he died — and back again on his grave) was born on Nov. 27, 1990.

Lee Gosnell came to the delivery room to watch.

"My son even signed Jordan's birth certificate in the hospital," says Lee's mother, Louise Manning.

"He came over one time after Jordan was born — probably the week I brought her home — because I've got a picture of him on the couch with Jordan," says Pam's mother, Jane Bradshaw. "The Christmas after Jordan was born, Louise came over with a whole armful of presents for Jordan from her and from Lee's sisters. But there wasn't any from Lee."

As the years went on, she says, Lee's mother was always there with money or gifts for her grandson. "She bought him a bicycle. She bought him a coat. She took him shopping. She was just a real good grandmother."

Lee Gosnell visited him twice when asthma put him in the hospital during his first few months of life — and that was that. No more visits. No money.

When the baby was a month old, Pam Bradshaw applied for Aid for Families with Dependent Children, one of the federal welfare programs.

Lee Gosnell wasn't part of his life.

"Social Services always knew he was the father," says Pam's mother, Jane, "but Pam never would have drug him into this if Social Services hadn't pushed him."

Social Services wrote Lee Gosnell a letter after his son turned 3.

The child-support process took that long, says Social Services supervisor Sandy Reitz, because of the high volume of work and lack of staff in the department.

The letter said, "We have an important matter to discuss with you," gave him an appointment time and told him the agent's name. He didn't go. So he was ordered to court March 30, 1994. He asked for the case to be continued so he could get a lawyer and a blood test.

On June 9, 1994, he went back to court on the support issue and acknowledged paternity because of the blood test. But he already knew what it was going to show. Two weeks earlier — on May 27, 1994 — he had asked the court to give him permanent custody of Jordan.

Lee was already paying support for a daughter, Mandy, from his first marriage. Mandy, Lee Gosnell's child, was born in 1983 when Lee and his first wife were both 16.

Louise Manning has kept close contact with Mandy, who still visits her grandmother here but no longer sees her father.

But he supports Mandy, Lee's mother says, with money deducted "out of his paycheck."

He never paid anything for Jordan.

"And that's it," his mother says. "Money."

Social Services stance

A custody action takes precedence over child support, Sandy Reitz says, and the Social Services attempt to get back payment and support for Jordan never came up again after custody became the issue.

Had Lee not asked for custody, Social Services would have asked for back payments based on support Pam Bradshaw received through federal, state and local programs.

"We make an effort to collect all of that," Reitz says. "If not all, we make an effort to negotiate what part we will get." The negotiation doesn't include food stamps or doctors' bills.

If he had been ordered to pay have totaled $6,568 but negotiation could have reduced that amount considerably. Nobody will ever know how much he would have paid because by then the stage was set for a custody fight not negotiation.

Eventually, Pam Bradshaw lost custody of her son. She had never believed that was possible.

And even then, people have asked the grandparents, why didn't you keep up with your grandson? Their answer: Robin and Lee Gosnell wouldn't let them.

And the few times they did get to talk to him, Budde was a different boy, the grandparents say.

Louise Manning, Lee's mother, says she wasn't surprised to see her grandson change because she'd watched similar changes in her son, after he married Robin.

"When Lee first met her," she remembers, "he said he'd met an older woman." Robin is nine years older than Lee. "He said, 'Mama, she's really turned my world around.'

"She moved in with him about a block and a half from me in a little green and white trailer. I had to pass right by his house going to work. Sometimes I would stop by, but that didn't work. One day, I stopped by there, and the next time I talked to him, he asked me, 'Mother, don't stop by any more because it causes problems.' I said, 'All right, I won't.'

"I don't know what it was. Well, I think I do know. That whole year they lived together before they were married, we didn't get on. When you get married, it says in the Bible, your husband or wife comes first, but you're not supposed to throw your Mom and Dad over. She wanted his full attention. All him and not me.

"The only time I would see them was when we'd run into each other. And he'd call me, 'Mom, I love you,' he'd say. 'I haven't forgotten you.' He was trying to keep peace at home. If your son acts like he's happy .... I've wished more times than one, that I hadn't backed up as much as I had."

Isolated grandparents

Jane and Jim Bradshaw, Jordan's maternal grandparents, describe the same kind of isolation from their grandson.

Robin Gosnell brought the boy to the Bradshaws' home once. Then they arranged a 30-minute visit with a social worker present.

"The last time we saw him was Christmas of 1995," Jane says. "Robin came to the door and Jordan came in and we let him open some presents. He started to the back to play with" his half-sister, Tristan, Pam's other child.

Then the grandmother asked if Pam and her brother Jeff could take Jordan to visit his great-grandfather at Rowan Mills. Now she loses control and has to wait for tears to stop.

Then, Robin Gosnell "went into a rage. ... She pushed by me and went down the hall and drug him out of the house. Pam and my daughter, Chris, grabbed up his coat and presents and took them to him in the car."

Lee Gosnell's mother, Louise Manning, encountered the same problem.

"The only time I would see him, maybe a couple of times, was riding down the road. I would catch a glimpse of a little kid in a car, and I would say, 'Oh, my God, that was Jordan,' and that was it. A lot of times I would see Robin and Sammy in the green truck, but Jordan wasn't there."

So she'd drive around, "just hoping I could get a glimpse of him."

Did the grandparents ever ask whether they were legally entitled to visitation? The Bradshaws say they asked several people. One worked for Social Services. And the answer was always the same.

"They said grandparents have no rights," Jim Bradshaw says. But he didn't ask a lawyer. He says they didn't have the money to go to a lawyer and check it out.

Louise Manning never asked a lawyer either. Jim Bradshaw

"People told me grandparents had no rights," she says, and when Robin Gosnell told her not to come on her property, "I couldn't go back. But I did ride up and down the road."

But Louise Manning says Lee Gosnell continued to call her, at first about once a week, later every couple of weeks.

She always asked about her grandson, and his answer would always be the same. "He's fine. We're all doing fine."

When could she see him, she'd ask her son, pressing to see her grandson.

"I'm working on it," he'd say.

In July of '95, she found out Lee and Robin had a new Jeep. He owed her money, and she decided if they could buy a new car, they could pay her the money — and she'd have an excuse to go see Jordan.

But it wasn't a happy visit.

It was hot, but he was wearing a long sleeved shirt and long pants — and he didn't come running to MaMaw the way he always had.

"He was a totally different boy," she says. "Usually he'd come give me a hug. That day, he came to the door and stood in the doorway, and he wouldn't look at me. I said, 'Come on over here and give MaMaw a hug,' but he wouldn't move until she told him to. And then he came and sat beside me, but he wouldn't look at me."

She didn't see any marks on him that day.

"I didn't see anything on him then. Just his mental state. He wasn't a little boy. He was a puppet."

He looked to Robin for permission to sit beside her on the sofa, and Robin answered for him when Louise asked if he wanted to go shopping with her some day. He couldn't do that, Robin said, because she'd take him to see Pam.

"I don't know where Pam is," Louise answered. "And she said, 'You're lying.' I said, 'I don't lie.' She said, 'You're a lying b—.' I jumped up, and I said, 'Robin, I've not bothered y'all. I came to see Jordan.'"

They argued a moment more, and Louise left. Robin followed her to the porch.

"And she said, 'You're not allowed in my house any more. Don't you come back on my property.' So I didn't go back."

And she didn't see her grandson.

"But my son called me once in a while going home from work. Not very often."

Louise Manning continued to look for the Jeep and Robin, hoping she would glimpse her grandson. She drove by the library frequently, hoping to see them. She never did.

Neighbors didn't know

The neighbors in Cleveland didn't see much either.

"I didn't know there was a 6-year-old boy up there," says next door neighbor Wanda Sheeks.

Cyndi Allison Wittum, who lives less than a block away, echoes her words.

"I didn't even know a child lived there," she says. Her own son, Caleb, is a friendly 6-year-old. "He would have talked to him."

But he did live there for nearly two years.

And he died there.

His grandparents have installed the permanent marker for his grave at Rowan Memorial Park. On the plaque his name is Jordan Lee Bryant Bradshaw again — and for eternity. It has no cross on it because they believe he was forced to live — and die — surrounded by crosses that had no meaning.

Louise Manning saw the big cross in the front yard of her son's house on her one visit to her grandson in Cleveland. And she saw all the crosses and pictures of Jesus in the living room.

"And the police told me the whole house was full of crosses and pictures of Jesus," Jane Bradshaw says. "I think he saw enough of them before he died."

And Louise Manning worries about her son and what he saw and didn't see in that house in Cleveland.

"I guess we're all guilty," she says, "but he was the one who was there."

Home study facts came up short

Murder suspect Robin Gosnell didn't tell truth in report for custody case

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The home studies that helped put Budde Clark in Lee and Robin Gosnell's house were riddled with errors and unsubstantiated inferences.

The home study credits Robin Gosnell with earning an adult high school diploma and two years of college, active work in a local church, several years of substitute teaching and no criminal record.

But according to court records and officials at several agencies, Robin Gosnell did not get her diploma, took one three-hour course at Rowan-Cabarrus Community College, was not even a member of the church, served as a substitute teacher for a matter of days and has had several brushes with the law.

And because the home studies prepared by Rowan County Social Services workers were unchallenged, county District Judge Anna Mills Wagoner used them to decide to take the 4-year-old boy from his mother, Pam Bradshaw, and turn him over to his father, Lee Gosnell.

Two years later Budde Clark died of blows to his head. Old bruises and cigarette burns on his tiny body offered tragic evidence that he had suffered torture before he died.

Robin Gosnell, his stepmother, has been charged with murder.

Her husband, Lee, said he had nothing to say about errors in the home study. When the Post offered to describe the article so he could comment, he said he didn't want to know what the article is about.

"I'm trying to get my peace of mind," he said. "I don't think I can handle it."

The murder case has focused attention on how and why Budde Clark came to live with Robin and Lee Gosnell. Inevitably, eyes turn toward those home studies, which were handled like all home studies are handled by the Rowan County Department of Social Services in custody cases.

Judge Wagoner says it's improper for her to comment on a specific case when an investigation is still ongoing, but she says the same pattern is followed in all custody cases. This was not an abuse case. Social Services was involved because Gosnell's attorney requested home studies, and Social Services do them.

Both parents had attorneys who got copies of the study in advance and could have objected, cross examined witnesses and called witnesses of their own.

"All you can do," Judge Wagoner says, "is make a decision based on law and witnesses" — and home studies when they're ordered.

J. Clayton Jones, a foster care supervisor who also works with adoptions, prepared the report on the Gosnell home; Tenly A. Travis, a social worker no longer with the local department, wrote the Bradshaw report.

Jones interviewed Gosnell in his office, visited his home in Cleveland, made a criminal record check and contacted two co-workers Gosnell provided as references.

"We ask a series of questions, and we take down their answers and we report them to the court," Jones says. That takes 10 to 12 hours.

But that check only involved Lee and Robin Gosnell, not Robin Gosnell when she was married to her previous husbands.

"In this particular case — this is not a private investigation — it's a home study," Jones says. "... It's their report. It's information. ...

"Sometimes we get garbage in, garbage out."

He estimates the county's entire Department of Social Services does two to three dozen court-ordered home studies for custody cases a year.

"Right now I probably haven't done one in six months, but then again, we might — in a period of time — do one a month. You can't ever tell."

Dated Dec. 6, 1994, errors in the study include:

■ Study: Robin Gosnell said she "has two years of college and has spent several years substitute teaching in public schools, both in regular and behaviorally and emotionally handicapped classes."

Records show: She dropped out of school in the eighth grade and years later completed a three-hour college credit course — Effective Teacher Training — at Rowan-Cabarrus Community College in the fall quarter of 1990. The course is a prerequisite for being a substitute teacher. Rowan-Salisbury Schools have no record that Robin Gosnell — under that name or any other she used — ever did any substitute teaching.

Kannapolis Schools officials say Robin Magdline Bringle worked as a part-time substitute teacher for a few days and a substitute bus driver and regular driver for a short time between January and October 1990. Cabarrus County Schools records show she was a substitute bus driver on June 1, 1990, for 2.8 hours.

Community College records also show that as Robin Pittman, she enrolled in the Adult High School Program but did not graduate.

The N.C. Division of Non-Public Education, which monitors parents who are home schooling, has a letter on file indicating that Robin Bringle received an Adult High School Diploma on Nov. 23, 1989.

A parent running a home school must have at least a high school diploma. About the same time, attendance officers in the Rowan-Salisbury Schools were threatening Gosnell with a truancy charge for not enrolling another son, Sammy Bringle.

In November 1993, Rowan County authorities charged Robin Gosnell with violating the compulsory school attendance law. Initially convicted in District Court, she appealed and the charge was dismissed when she showed her home school registration.

The letter that qualified her for the home school registration is signed by the late Lora W. Withers, director of the community college's Adult High School Program. But Eddie Myers, vice president for student services, says Rowan-Cabarrus does not write letters certifying a student's credit. Instead, the college sends other institutions a transcript stamped with a raised seal.

Myers questions the letter because it is addressed improperly to "Whom It May Concern" and has a handwritten note from Robin Bringle on the bottom, indicating Withers gave the letter to Bringle to mail to state officials.

"It could be authentic," Myers said, but ".... it sure is unusual."

members at Morning Star Baptist Church on Woodleaf Road. They are active as youth advisors. Mr. Gosnell operates the sound system for the church and records the morning worship service for elderly and sick who cannot attend. Ms. Gosnell participates in Bible School each year and essentially does whatever she's asked to do. Both are in the Christmas play this year."

The Rev. Ralph Hoffman says: The Gosnells never joined the 120-member church, though Lee Gosnell has been attending recently.

"They had visited a few times, roughly a couple of years ago," the pastor said. "They dropped out. Then she came back just occasionally. Really I didn't know them that well. They had not joined our church. We visited their home a couple of times."

Lee Gosnell doesn't operate the sound system, the pastor said, though the man who does "has had him back there doing some things. He kind of showed some interest in it. We don't make tapes for the elderly and the sick." They were not active as youth advisors and the pastor does not remember them at Bible School or in the Christmas play.

■ Study: A check of Rowan County court records indicated no convictions for Mr. and Mrs. Gosnell.

Court records show: One Rowan incident took place in 1988 when she was accused of assault with a deadly weapon after an incident with then-husband Monte Bringle and a vehicle. The judge entered a prayer for judgment continued with the condition that she get counseling. (At the same time her husband also received a prayer for judgment continued on a charge of assault on a female — his wife.)

In 1991, she was charged with violating the state's compulsory attendance law. The court dropped the charge after she moved. In 1993, she successfully appealed a school attendance conviction, after getting her home schooling certificate.

In 1994, she appealed a misdemeanor conviction on a larceny charge in Rowan County, and in a jury trial, she served as her own attorney and won an acquittal.

Also, in Cabarrus County in 1981, Robin Gosnell pleaded guilty to forgery. In 1983, records show, she was charged in Cabarrus County with violating probation on a felony conviction and changed her place of residence to a place unknown to the probation officer. Records are not clear about how that charge was resolved.

■ Study: Lee Gosnell's concern for his son "stemmed from information he gained from men he knew who also knew Ms. Bradshaw," including a report from one friend that Pam Bradshaw neglected the child. He also said there were a lot of men "in and out" of her apartment and one, Kenneth Poteat II, was convicted in August 1994 "of taking indecent liberties with Ms. Bradshaw's daughter and Jordan while Ms. Bradshaw slept in an adjoining room."

Social Services finding: Social Services worker Clay Jones said he did not ask Gosnell to identify the men or investigate further. He also did not check court files on the indecent liberties charge.

In court records, Jordan is not listed as a victim. The Bradshaw family themselves reported Poteat to law enforcement.

■ Study:: Lee Gosnell is his wife's third husband.

Records show: Lee Gosnell is her fourth husband. Clay Jones says social workers do not investigate previous marriages or civil court files as a part of a home study. "If someone didn't tell us there was a long civil court history, we would not know to make those investigations."

Bradshaw's study

The Gosnell home study is considerably longer than the Bradshaw study though it, too, covers the basics of family background, health, education and employment.

Pam Bradshaw told the case worker she thought Bradshaw Gosnell wanted custody of their son "because he didn't want to pay child support."

The report also says Pam Bradshaw had no criminal record. The report does not say that Robin Gosnell took out a warrant charging Bradshaw with communicating threats; Bradshaw was acquitted.

The case worker notes that the Department of Social Services had received five Child Protective Services complaints about Bradshaw during the previous 18 months. The report says two complaints were substantiated and elaborates on one instance:

"Protective Services Worker Paul Lucas received pictures showing slap marks on Jordan's arm, back and buttocks. Mr. Lucas interviewed Jordan and states that Jordan immediately stated that his mother had hit him. Mr. Lucas also stated that during this interview, Jordan called to his mother, held up the picture and stated, 'You did this mom.' Ms. Bradshaw became upset and Jordan then changed his story. Mr. Lucas reports that when Ms. Bradshaw was out of the room, Jordan would state that his mother hit him."

Lucas transferred the case to Social Services' treatment unit.

"When (Lucas) questioned Ms. Bradshaw about the pictures, she denied having caused the marks on Jordan. She stated that Jordan tends to hug himself when getting out of the bath tub and that is how he received the marks. When confronted about the validity of this, she changed her story stating that she 'did not know where the marks came from and that they weren't there when he left my house.' "

Finally, the study makes an assessment.

"This worker," it says, "has serious reservations about the safety of Jordan and Tristan Bradshaw in the home of their mother. The number of complaints received over the past 18 months (which, in my opinion, have not been filed in retaliation as Ms. Bradshaw claims) compiled with the lack of cooperation on the mother's behalf and the physical evidence of inappropriate discipline toward Jordan, leads this worker to believe that it would not be in the best interests of this child to remain in the home."

At the end of a March 8, 1995, custody hearing, Judge Wagoner listed her "findings of facts," including:

- Lee Gosnell worked for Freight Handlers (making $34,000 a year) and Robin Gosnell did not work.
- Bradshaw was unemployed, on food stamps and Medicaid and received public assistance.
- Pictures showed injuries to Jordan.
- Pam Bradshaw had used "inappropriate discipline" in the past, and the judge was concerned for the child's safety in her home.

Then, based on the testimony of Social Services worker Paul Lucas, the home studies and medical reports, Wagoner awarded custody of Jordan Bradshaw to his father, Lee Gosnell.

On Sept. 5, 1995, six months after the custody hearing and after Pam Bradshaw and Lee Gosnell had trouble agreeing on visitation, both parents signed a mediated parenting agreement leaving sole custody with Lee Gosnell.

Besides saying the parents should work out visitation, the agreement gives Lee Gosnell responsibility for "medical and health needs, schooling and child care and religious upbringing."

Wagoner had ordered the Gosnells to enroll Jordan in regular public school —rather than home school him — when the boy was old enough.

But Jordan Bradshaw — his name changed to Budde Clark — died before he ever went to school.

DSS asks for seven more employees

BY WESLEY YOUNG
SALISBURY POST

Rowan County Commissioner Frank Tadlock heard impassioned pleas for more child protection workers during Monday's meeting of the county Social Services board.

Social Services is asking for five new child protection staffers in a year that has seen two children die amid allegations of abuse.

The department is asking for seven additional employees in all: the five child protection staffers, plus an additional adoptions worker and an extra worker in foster care services.

Tadlock, the county's representative on the Social Services board, couldn't promise the department will get new employees.

"I can certainly see and understand the request, but as a county commission, we have called for a no-tax-increase budget," Tadlock said. "I can't assure you what money will be available."

That wasn't good enough for Social Services chairman Irene Goodlett.

"We are tired of hearing that," Goodlett said, noting that every year county officials say they'd like to relieve overloaded workers but can't afford it. "I'm sick of it! That's hard for me to say, but I'm sick of it!"

The department's budget request includes a lot more than just the new employees.

Director Rick Travis said it will take an extra $600,000 from the county to pay for public assistance programs: Medicaid alone will see a $450,000 increase, while foster care will see a $235,800 increase.

The seven new positions would cost almost $300,000 to fund, but the department has equipment requests as well: $100,000 to pay for software and equipment to automate the county's child protection and foster care record-keeping.

Goodlett said Tadlock should be an advocate of the department on the county board "and let them know that this request is conservative and well-documented."

The state is currently reviewing the county's child protection services, and its report could be released this week. The department has been under intense scrutiny from the press, county commissioners and state investigators ever since the deaths of the two children.

Social Services board member Lee Piper called the request for seven new positions "very conservative" and urged that the department push for even more workers while public attention is focused on child protection.

➤ See DSS, Page 3A

"When you go around to every department, every department is understaffed and needing help," Piper said. "But since this is something that people are up in arms about ... if you are concerned, give us more money, help us out.

"Ask for 10 extra people and maybe we'll get three or four."

Travis told the Post that with three new child protection workers and two new child protection supervisors, the county would finally be able to get caseloads down to levels recommended by the state. That's assuming a caseload of 120 to 130 new cases to investigate every month.

The county has seven invesrtigators now, and with three new investigators, would have 10 to share the caseload.

But the current adoption backlog is tremendous, Travis said. The county has one worker to do home studies required for couples who want to adopt. The county has 50 couples waiting for home studies.

The new adoption worker would cut down the backlog, then "aggressively pursue adoptive placements for children stranded in foster care," Travis said.

Each foster care worker now handles an average of 30 children, but the state standard is 20 children per worker.

"These children are sitting in foster care and are needing parents," Goodlett said.

Travis said the $100,000 for computer equipment and programs will help the county track child protection cases. Currently, that's done on index cards, even though computer technology is available that can ease the job.

This morning, Travis said it's possible the county could get most of the money for the seven new employees from increased state appropriations, plus money freed up if the state gives counties more authority on how to spend a $177,000 special assistance fund.

The Social Services board members told Tadlock they weren't trying to gang up on him but want him to plead for their department before the entire board.

"Eventually, somebody has to be brave enough to raise taxes," Social Services board member Jeannie Misenheimer said. "I don't understand how year after year people can say 'no taxes' and then complain. How do you provide the services if you don't have the money?"

In other child protection developments:

- Social Services workers are apparently backing Travis, their director, during this period of child protection scrutiny. At last week's staff meeting, Travis was surprised to hear employee Julie Kovalsky ask employees to stand if they were behind Travis — and all stood. Kovalsky brought this news to the Social Services board on Monday.

"It's been hard on everybody here," Travis said this morning. "It was a chance to bond a little bit."

- Rowan County commissioners on Monday declared April as Child Abuse Protection Month. Travis gave commissioners blue ribbons to wear.

INVESTIGATORS NEEDED

Filling DSS slots

It's natural for the people who control the county's purse strings to look for ways to save money and compare public jobs to business situations. Voters elect them to do that. But Rowan County does not need further scrimping in Child Protective Services.

The recent deaths of two children who had been investigated by the unit has prompted an outcry, not only against the people responsible for those children, but also against the county for historically understaffing the social services department that's charged with protecting abused and neglected children. Commissioners should heed this outcry.

Some county commissioners have questioned why other social services employees can't fill in when Child Protective Services investigators get more calls than they can handle. The commissioners underestimate investigators' responsibilities and skills. Would they expect a jailer to fill in for a detective in the sheriff's office if there were a sudden outbreak of crime? And who would mind the jail while he or she did? Just like law enforcement, social work is not a one-size-fits-all job.

How can we pull our Department of Social Services above being merely "adequate" by state standards?

If the suggestion to shuffle workers around was a trial balloon, the public should promptly shoot it down. The notion steals attention from the two issues that should be paramount on local officials' minds:

- First, for commissioners: How can we pull our Department of Social Services above being merely "adequate" by state standards?
- Second, for social services departments across the state: How can Child Protective Services investigators pool resources and skills with medical personnel and law enforcement to conduct more thorough investigations?

The state review team that's looking into recent child fatalities in Rowan County may have suggestions on both fronts. Already, Social Services Director Rick Travis is preparing a request for three more investigators and two more supervisors. Here's hoping commissioners — rather than relying on anecdotes from a business environment — will wait to hear the review team's report before making up their minds.

Too aware

Gov. Jim Hunt's proclamation of April as Child Abuse Prevention Month strikes a sad cord here this year. As noted above, Rowan County is all too aware of just how devastating child abuse can be. But do we really know all that we need to know about prevention?

Over 96,000 children were reported as abused and neglected last year in the state, according to Prevent Child Abuse, the N.C. chapter of the National Committee to Prevent Child Abuse. Forty children died from such treatment in 1995, most of them younger than 3.

So, what kind of sicko beats and abuses children? Prevent Child Abuse would tell you the question itself reveals a wrong assumption. "Most people who abuse or neglect their children are not mentally ill," the advocacy group says. "They are ordinary people whose stressors overwhelm their coping skills. Substance abuse, lack of knowledge of child development, single parenting, isolation, poverty, a history of domestic violence and many other factors may contribute to the likelihood that a child will be abused."

Children in distress are a symptom of a deep problem in the community: lack of will or knowledge when it comes to nurturing and raising children. Nothing less than a communitywide effort to support and educate parents is called for.

Plenty of help along the walk for abused children

It was tough, but this determined grandmother received encouragement at every point

BY JOYCE WEANT
SPECIAL TO THE POST

In the beginning her name was Kimber; she organized the walk. She encouraged me throughout the day. She is a fine lady. She had many names during the course of the walk on Saturday for Child Abuse Awareness Month.

She became Sonya when I needed a little more encouragement along the way. I stopped three times during the course of the walk. First was at City Park, when my old feet began to burn from the abuse I gave them. Then I told myself that this was a worthy cause. Don't quit, my inner voice said. So I kept up the pace as well as I could.

She became Micah along the way somewhere, I guess when she stumbled and fell along the way. This was another reason to keep up the walk. She fell and kept at it. She soon became Brenda, Elizabeth and Pam. We weren't at the halfway point at this time; however, I made it up those hills and was looking forward to the halfway point. I knew there I would have a way to ride the rest of the way back to Corriher Avenue.

Then when I got to the halfway point at the Salisbury Housing Authority, she became Gretchen and Amy. She turned into a he for a little way when I looked at Tom and told myself, "for the children" you can make it a little farther. His name turned to Roscoe when my help and encouragement really needed a boost. (I think Roscoe thought that I might not make it.)

I said to myself, I'll quit when I get to the Mane Zone, where my daughter works. My encouragement turned again to Micah when I got there because she carried my real hope on her shoulders when we both, my granddaughter and I, thought we might not make it. I really was happy for this little reprieve of help at this point because I couldn't have carried her. I was really walking slowly along the way at this point. I was too close to quitting, and all my stopping points had passed.

In the end her name turned to Katye. It had been Katye all the way. Little did I think that a 5½-year-old would be my real encouragement for this walk, which I almost did not start, much less complete. Yes, her name is Katye. She is the reason that I went on this walk in the beginning. Just ask her what the red and blue ribbons are for on my car antenna.

She knows the red is for "don't use or drink drugs" and the blue is for "don't hurt our children!"

Along the walk I answered two questions. One dad looked at my sign and said, "I'm not a deadbeat dad." I said to him that this was not about deadbeat dads; it was to let people know that we at Children's Protective Services really do care about all children. Another person, originally from another country, stopped me as we crossed the street to ask what this was all about. I told him that it was to let the public know that we didn't want anyone to hurt our children and that "we can make a difference."

In the end her name is Katye. She was there along the way to really encourage me when I looked into her eyes and knew that my hurting feet, my aching knees, and my old back would all be worth any effort that it took on my part to complete this walk. When I feel the abuse I put myself through for the children, I just think of all the hurt that they go through. Sometimes they don't even complain.

Yes, her name is Katye. She is the real reason I made the walk, and I am very thankful that I did! I'll probably do it again next year. I wish in the meantime that all those abusers of children — and abusers of adults, for that matter — would please come on the walk with us next year. There will be another walk. Mark your calendars for April 1998.

◆ Letters to The Editor ◆

Put blame where it belongs

I am writing in regard to those children who were murdered. Don't blame Social Services personnel for not doing their job. I know they failed for not getting Jordan Bradshaw and the Jones baby out the homes where they were being abused.

Just where were the mother and the father of these children? Did they not know this was going on?

As far as the grandparents, Jordan's grandmother was forbidden to see him. I know that if they could, they would have been seeing him and would have reported any abuse. Pam reported it to Social Services. Since Social Services workers had been investigating it for two months, weren't they bound to know it? It looks like they could have gotten both of these children out of the homes.

Let's not blame it all on them. Put the blame where the blame belongs, on the mother and the father of these children.

DSS report due Thursday morning

BY ROSE POST
SALISBURY POST

The report on how the Rowan County Department of Social Services handled the cases of three children in its care before they died two months ago will be presented here Thursday by North Carolina's top Social Services officials.

The report will be presented at an open press conference Thursday at 10 a.m. at the DSS office at 1236 W. Innes St.

Kevin FitzGerald, head of the N.C. Division of Social Services, will make the report of a special six-member investigating team assembled at the request of Gov. Jim Hunt. He will be accompanied by Chuck Harris, chief of children's services in the Social Services Division, and possibly other members of the team.

Fitzgerald asked the team to:

- Assess the actions of the Child Protective Services unit of the Social Services staff which investigated the alleged abuse of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher Lee Jones before they died on Jan. 31 and Feb. 4, and dealt with 16-year-old Trola Miller, who died Feb. 4 of a random gunshot wound.
- Evaluate an earlier review done by the state and make recommendations to improve the process.
- Evaluate state standards and the child fatality review process.

The probe is the result of community outrage which followed the children's deaths.

Support efforts pay off

16 DSS child-support officers exceeding state goals for collection

BY WESLEY YOUNG
SALISBURY POST

Rowan County's child-support officers have earned state recognition for their work in making sure children get adequate financial support.

Rick Travis, director of the Rowan County Department of Social Services, invited the 16 child-support enforcement workers to the department's monthly board meeting Monday to receive congratulations.

"They are not exceeding their goals by just a little bit," Travis said. "They are just kind of slam-dunking all the state goals."

According to state statistics, Rowan County child-support collections totaled 143 percent of the state's goal for the county.

That was one of the lower percentages. The county established more than three times the modified child-support orders the state goal called for.

➤ See Support, Page 3C

Support

➤ From Page 1C

"That's when you change an existing court order," Travis said, explaining what a modified support order is. He noted that the commendation means the county is "staying in touch" with cases of child support once they are established.

"There is an expectation that every case will be reviewed at least once every three years," Travis added.

The county reached 276 percent of the goal for cases enforced by court orders or by wage withholding.

The local unit located half again as many absent parents as its goal called for and established paternity for 144 percent of the goal. The unit enforced the collection of 116 percent of the goal for welfare collections.

"Our child-support unit exceeded the goals by quite a margin," Travis told the Social Services board.

The award from the state covers the period 1995-96. Rosalee Hart-Morrison is the child support supervisor and attorney.

One of the most publicized efforts of the child-support enforcement team has been a series of "wanted" posters for those behind on their child support.

The money brought in by the effort was only a small part of the whole, but the message the posters sent was important, Travis said.

"It communicates that if you are not paying child support, sooner or later we are going to come looking for you," Travis said. "We have located most of the people on those posters."

Travis' management report for the month of February, released in the April meeting, showed that child-support enforcement collections continue on an upward swing.

Collections totaled $364,322.70 for the month, compared to $338,000 for the same month in 1996.

Meanwhile, Travis said recent figures show that while child support collections are up, fewer people in Rowan County are receiving welfare.

The number of recipients in the county dropped in February from 3,740 in 1996 to 3,556 in 1997. The number of welfare applications under the state's Work First program dropped from 178 last year to 139 in February.

"There's speculation that the Work First requirements may be influencing people's decisions to ask for cash assistance," Travis said. "Some people say they just want food stamps or Medicaid and say they don't want the check."

Work First imposes requirements that recipients get a job or job training. Medicaid and food-stamp programs do not have such requirements.

Some who get Work First help are finding that they face sanctions — financial penalties — when they don't abide by the new requirements.

In Rowan County, one out of six welfare recipients faced a sanction for either failing to make sure that their children were in school or had been immunized, or for failing to comply with work requirements.

Rowan County's sanction rate was one of the highest in the state.

Social Services board members also learned Monday that the number of child-abuse reports accepted for investigation — 116 for February — was about "35 more than we had been averaging," according to Travis. Travis estimated that figures for March will show about 130 cases accepted for investigation.

Travis has said that the publicity over two children's deaths attributed to alleged abuse is partially driving the increase, but has noted that a new telephone system also makes it easier for people to make reports.

State: DSS didn't ask right questions

Investigators missed 'certain critical findings'

BY MARK WINEKA
SALISBURY POST

In examining the abuse deaths of two Rowan children, a special state review team found extensive evidence of limited investigative work, miscommunication, failed documentation, poor after-hours coverage and inadequate supervision by the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

The review team also provided numbers showing that Social Services workers who investigate child abuse and neglect are terribly overloaded, far exceeding the state's recommended standards of cases per month.

In response, a report delivered by the team this morning recommends changing procedures as well as adding staff, resources and training for local Social Services employees and the community at large.

➤ See Findings, Page 4A

Findings

The report also takes the state to task for its initial review of the deaths of Budde Lee Clark, Christopher Jones and Trola Miller.

The report delivered this morning said the first review of those deaths "missed certain critical findings."

Complaints about the findings of the state's first investigation of the deaths led N.C. Human Resources Secretary David Bruton, at the direction of Gov. Jim Hunt, to appoint of a second special review team.

Overall, the team found the state has "some unsuspected holes in our safety net for protecting children," said Kevin FitzGerald, state director of Social Services.

Fitzgerald called it "the greatest lesson we have learned" from this second investigation into the deaths of the Rowan County children.

Conducted during the same time period, a separate review by the American Humane Association into North Carolina's fatality review procedure found the state process too narrow, failing to identify all the important issues.

The American Humane Association calls on the state to design a more comprehensive child fatality review process — something which FitzGerald promised to do.

The review team's report was prepared by Chuck Harris and JoAnn Lamm of the N.C. Division of Social Services, Marcia Herman-Giddens of the N.C. Medical Examiner's Office, Rowan County Health Director John Shaw and Jennifer Tolle of Prevent Child Abuse North Carolina.

The state report found major deviations between the caseload Rowan social workers carry and the state standard of 12.

The number of abuse and neglect investigations being conducted by Rowan investigators ranged from 16 to 27 cases. In March, child protective services investigators received 22 new cases each.

Likewise, Rowan exceeded the state standard for the ratio of supervisors to front-line social workers. The recommended ratio is 1 to 5; Rowan's was 1 to 8 and 1 to 9.

Today's report recommends that Rowan officials give Social Services the resources to meet state-recommended ratios.

In its 10-page report, the review team devoted more than six pages to findings related to the Rowan County child fatalities — deaths that occurred in a five-day period from Jan. 31 to Feb. 4. In all three cases, the local Social Services department had investigated earlier allegations of abuse or neglect.

Problems and recommendations identified included:

■ The report cited both a lack of communication and miscommunication between hospital and other medical providers and the Social Service staff. Pertinent information was lost in some cases.

The team suggests that Social Services and local medical providers develop a protocol "to ensure accurate sharing of information and appropriate response times by DSS workers."

The report also calls on Social Services investigators to consistently request and review all pertinent medical records. The report encourages all medical professionals in Rowan County to pursue training in identifying and reporting child abuse and neglect.

■ The review team found evidence that "a number of community members" had reason to suspect abuse and neglect in the children's cases but failed to make a report to Social Services.

The report does not identify those people, but the review team encourages better community training for professionals who consistently work with children and families. It calls on the Community Child Protection Team to develop a plan to enhance public awareness of the N.C. law requiring anyone who suspects child abuse or neglect to report to Social Services.

■ Social Services should develop a better system for on-call, after-hours coverage.

"Back-up relief and supervision must be readily available and able to assist in overload situations," the report says.

It may require a special position or compensatory time for Social Services workers who must work daytime hours as well, the report adds.

A written procedure for after-hours reporting should be shared with the individuals and agencies who often make child abuse reports outside of normal agency operating hours, according to the report.

■ Some areas of the intake process in Child Protective Services must be improved.

Rowan Social Services intake forms must be expanded "to ensure the collection of all pertinent information."

■ The focus of the Social Services investigations and assessments were too narrow.

The team says the staff should focus on all aspects of investigations and assessments, "and not just on the reported incident."

■ Social Services' investigations and assessments were too narrow.

The team says the staff should focus on all aspects of a case, "and not just on the reported incident."

It calls on the Social Services investigators to "frequently utilize the expertise of medical, psychological and law enforcement resources in conducting investigations."

■ Social Services investigations failed to interview several key people in the abuse deaths of Budde Lee Clark and Christopher Jones.

■ There's a need for additional resources to support Social Services investigators.

The report recommends that Child Protective Services be given additional clerical support, better computer resources and access to cellular telephones.

■ Social Services staff needed additional training. The report says staff members need to be retrained in the use of risk assessment, child development and discipline techniques.

■ The review found numerous examples of inadequate documentation by Social Services staff. The case record did not clearly document services and activities provided by workers.

In this regard, supervisors need to be held accountable for the thoroughness of records, the report says.

■ Supervision needs to be improved.

The report recommends that supervisors meet regularly with caseworkers and should require frequent status reports. It calls on close daily supervision of case workers with little work experience or record of questionable performance.

On the state review level, the report says that for each of the three cases, one or more standards had not been met and were not identified in the initial review.

The report recommends broadening state reviews beyond the last 12 months of agency involvement, including someone with medical expertise and at least one person outside the Social Services division.

The report also suggests exploring ways to loosen confidentiality restrictions to satisfy the public need for accountability.

Report also faults state review of local investigation

BY WESLEY YOUNG
SALISBURY POST

Rowan County Social Services missed critical information showing that Budde Clark and Christopher Jones were at risk of further abuse before their deaths, a state review panel said today.

Although an earlier review found that the department had no information that could have predicted the children's deaths, this morning's report said Social Services failed to investigate the cases as thoroughly as it should have.

"There is information that was available that should have been obtained," said Chuck Harris, with the N.C. Division of Social Services. "Had it been obtained, it would have led to indications of abuse or neglect."

Although the focus of this

➤ See DSS, Page 4A

morning's announcement was on finding ways to prevent tragic deaths in the future, Rowan County officials were asking immediately whether the leadership of the Social Services department was at fault for "dropping the ball," as Commissioner Newton Cohen put it.

State Social Services director Kevin Fitzgerald said he has confidence that the staff of the department is committed to improving services through better training and supervision.

The review panel focus on two factors: Whether the department had met the standards for investigating abuse in the cases of the two children, and whether the state's review process — the one that exonerated the department — was adequate.

On both counts, the state panel said, mistakes and omissions were made, and improvements should be brought about.

■ In the case of Christopher Jones, 19 months, the department failed to interview "all persons with pertinent information," the review said, resulting in a "high-risk situation not being recognized and the resultant lack of appropriate actions to protect the child." And, the panel said, the initial review of the department failed to pick up this omission.

■ In the case of Budde Clark, 6, the review said, "two critical protection standards and a number of other standards were not met.

"The report indicates that the scope of the agency involvement was far too narrow given the amount of evidence from the record indicating that the child might be jeopardized in aspects of his life other than the nose injury," the report stated. "However, the initial review did not identify the need for a comprehensive medical evaluation to address the broader issues of Budde's general health and safety."

Budde Clark died Jan. 31 in Cleveland, in the house where he lived with his father and stepmother. His family called rescue workers to the home to report that the child had drowned in a bathtub. But when rescuers could not revive him and investigators saw injuries on the boy's body, authorities charged stepmother Robin Gosnell with felony child abuse and murder.

Christopher Jones died in early February from injuries authorities say were inflicted by Jeremy Butcher, his mother's boyfriend. Christopher had been treated at Rowan Regional Medical Center just one month earlier for injuries medical professionals believed indicated abuse. Butcher has been charged with murder.

Social services board members, county commissioners and Social Services staff and administrators joined reporters and television crews in this morning's meeting.

The panel said the critical issues for the county to look at were better training, tighter supervision and a lighter work load for overburdened employees.

During the question and answer period, Social Services board member Jeannie Misenheimer fired a broadside at county commissioners who have failed over the years to grant extra staff to the department.

"It is very difficult to sit here and hear criticism from the county commissioners when in fact we do not have adequate staffing," Misenheimer said, after Rowland asked if the problem was department leadership. "We are continually told that we can't raise taxes and can't add services."

But Elizabeth Smith, a child protection advocate who advocated this latest review, came to Rowland's defense, saying his outspoken remarks had done much good.

Social Services director Rick Travis said after the conference that he does not have any disagreement with what today's report said, and added that training is "always inadequate."

"We are always pushed to find time to train social workers," Travis said. The department has 30 days to respond to the state's review.

"I agree that we did not do everything we should have," Travis said. "We did not conduct the investigation by the book. Had we done so, we would have done a better job."

The state reviewers called child abuse deaths 'all tragic and all preventable."

But Travis isn't sure about that better work by his department would have kept the children alive.

"I can't say that would have necessarily prevented the deaths of these children," Travis said.

SALISBURY POST 4/10/97

Rowan, use common sense

BY DICK KEHLMEIER
SPECIAL TO THE POST

Not to beat a dead horse, but would Budde Clark and Christopher Jones be alive today if someone in the Department of Social Services had exercised a little common sense instead of just "meeting the standards"? However, let's look at this from another view also. We do have to realize that it is pretty hard to exercise common sense when you're overburdened.

Where was common sense when the county commissioners underfunded and overburdened the DSS and the Department of Health? These two departments operate in overcrowded spaces while the commissioners enjoy spacious new quarters in the old federal building. Where was common sense when they gave themselves a raise, however small, when we have these budget problems?

Where was common sense when the commissioners decided to finance a ball park in Kannapolis? By the same token, where was common sense when they knuckled under to the Raleigh lawyers who pressured them into building a new monument to crime called a jail?

Mixed messages

Of course, where is common sense when we send mixed messages to our elected officials? We demand lower taxes, but when things go wrong, like they just did, we look for scapegoats other than ourselves. We want lower taxes. We want services. But we don't want new businesses to keep our taxes low and level of service high. Just what do we want?

We are certainly going to have to exercise common sense if we are to report our neighbors for suspected child abuse. Some instances no doubt will clearly be abuse but others may not be. We must exercise care to keep from further overloading our police and other investigative departments. We certainly don't want to place the stigma of "abusive parent" on someone unless they really are.

Where is the common sense when our automobile insurance goes up each year because of irresponsible drivers who cross the double yellow dividing line and who speed on our winding, hilly secondary roads causing accidents? Do we not need more county police to catch these irresponsible people plus drunk drivers? Of course this will cost more and raise taxes. But which is better, more taxes or high insurance rates along with death, disability and suffering? Of course part of the high cost of insurance may be due to high insurance company profits. Maybe this should be looked at by the state legislature.

Too lenient, too strict

Where is the common sense when a parent allows an underage and unlicensed minor to operate an unlicensed four-wheeler on public streets and roads?

Where was the common sense when the Lexington school board came down on a 6-year-old boy who kissed a classmate? Now the board says that in the future, age will be a consideration. Does that mean if a senior kisses a girl who asked him to, he will be charged with harassment? I am glad I am not young anymore.

Speaking of school boards, where is the common sense when they tear down or abandon existing sound buildings to build new ones, telling us it is less expensive to build new than to renovate, bringing mechanical systems, etc. up to date? They forget that renovation saves the cost of a new site and may be better located.

We seem to be a nation of tear down and build new. Whether you liked the architecture of Towne Mall or not, it was an example of that period's architecture. Before it was allowed to deteriorate it did serve a purpose. Where was the historical society? I hope the new Towne Creek Commons will not be allowed to deteriorate like Towne Mall was.

Where is the common sense when the state allows cities to annex areas whose residents do not want to be annexed? What kind of citizens will they be? Loyal to a city they do not want to be in? It sounds pretty dictatorial to me.

I guess the moral of this story is, we all need to exercise that thing on top of our shoulders and use some common sense like our grandparents or great-grandparents did, didn't they?

Officials grapple with solutions, blame after review

BY WESLEY YOUNG
SALISBURY POST

Some county officials are calling for a community-wide effort to prevent future tragedies like the ones that claimed the lives of two Rowan County youngsters this winter.

But others say that's not enough: They say Social Services director Rick Travis must answer for the faults a state review panel noted Thursday in the way the local department investigated the cases.

Thursday's announcement of the review team's findings left no unity among those keeping track of the issue.

"We all need to heal," said Jeannie Misenheimer, a member of the Social Services board who left the meeting convinced that the entire community must work together to improve child protection. "I feel defensive, the commissioners feel defensive, and the workers themselves feel defensive because the public thinks they are not doing their job.

"We have got to get beyond that and work together."

The review team found that the department should have more thoroughly investigated allegations that the two children were being abused. If it had, the report maintains, it would have found the children at risk of further abuse and neglect. The report does not say whether such a finding would have saved the children's' lives.

Louise Manning, a grandmother of Budde Lee Clark, one of the children who died from abuse, said Thursday evening that Travis and those involved in the investigations prior to Budde's death should not even be allowed to pack their bags.

Giving the Department of Social Services 100 or 1,000 new employees won't do any good if the employees are not going to do their jobs, she said.

The special panel that issued its report Thursday was a mix of local and state officials, social services people and non-agency professionals. The panel made dozens of recommendations for ways to make child protection better.

The panel also recommended changes in the way the state reviews how local departments are doing their jobs. From now on, non-agency professionals will be involved in reviewing cases in which a child has died.

Misenheimer said she hopes the review will cause the county to give Social Services more money — money for the extra staff and other changes the state says the department should make.

The state's new report shows not so much that Social Services "didn't do their job," Misenheimer said, but that "they did the best job with the staff and resources available."

"I don't disagree with what they wrote," she said. "The strong thing is that we need more staff and help."

Travis seems secure in his post, having received a glowing job performance review from his Social Services board back in January, and having apparently retained that confidence in the months since the deaths of the children started churning out daily headlines.

"What I really hate out of this is it seems there are some people headhunting," Social Services board member Lee Piper said of Travis.

"I am so impressed with him," she said. "He is always one to give you the bad news. He is completely honest, completely sincere. He is very capable.

"Before all this happened, he asked us to do an appraisal of how he was doing," she continued. "We talked to a lot of people within the organizations that have had dealings with him and people on the state level. We couldn't find anything anybody would say bad about him. He is one of the most respected people in the state on social services."

Chief critic

Chief among Travis' critics is Rowan County Commissioner Dave Rowland, who said after Thursday's meeting that the Social Services director should be replaced.

"I've got a problem with the fact that the report says there is a lack of training, a lack of experienced people, no emergency plan for backups and getting after-hours service," Rowland said, citing departmental faults cited in Thursdays announcement of the review findings.

"The obvious things that you expect to be in place weren't in place ... I've got a problem with leadership. Your people at Social Services aren't going to be any better than your director."

Rowland faults Travis — and Steve Blount, a fellow county commissioner —for being in "denial" about problems in the department.

"It is hard to believe when you have a director that comes in there and says they followed the rules, and the Social Services board says the same thing," Rowland said, referring to the aftermath of the earlier review, which was more favorable to Social Services. "Steve Blount writes his letter and says he did his own investigation and that they did everything right.

"I would get off people's backs a little bit if they would just own up and say, 'We screwed up.'"

Staff 'very somber'

After Thursday's announcement, the state review panel gave a similar presentation of findings to the Social Services child protection staff.

"They were very somber," Travis said of his employees. "I was surprised they didn't ask more questions. The few I've spoken with since that meeting have had the same reaction: This wasn't so bad. I don't think they feel it was another unwelcome blow. Their reaction was, it may be painful to read parts of it, but the report was honest."

Travis on March 8 called the previous report "reassuring" for showing that the department "did an adequate job." He acknowledged that his department may not have met all the standards, but called the review thorough. Thursday, Travis said he agrees with the later, more critical report.

"We realized the review procedures we used for the last five years were not adequate," Travis said Thursday. "On the first review, one person came for half a day. Basically it was a review of the record. This second review was by five people who spent two full days here, plus time in Raleigh."

But Travis said it's impossible to say whether, if Social Services investigators had asked the questions they didn't ask, they would have taken the two children from their homes.

"If you look at similar cases, you will find that some are removed from the home, and some where they stayed at home," Travis said. "I don't think we can go back and reconstruct with any certainty that procedures would have gone a certain way."

Explosion of new reports

The immediate worry for Travis is how to handle the "explosion" of new child-abuse reports waiting to be checked out. His investigation team is two workers short, and staffers worry that getting rid of the backlog could distract their attention from new high-risk cases.

Beyond that, Travis will have to begin working on carrying out the recommendations of the state review team. He will get help from the Child Abuse Task Force established by county commissioners at their most recent meeting.

County commissioners will also get a chance to go along with child protection workers as they go about their jobs, to see firsthand what the workers do.

County commissioners may not hire or fire the Social Services director — that's the Social Services board's job — but they do contrd the local share of appropriations for social work.

Rowland said the county could try to force Travis out by using its power of the purse. But commissioners would be wrong to put children at risk to make a point over the leadership of the department, he added.

Rowland said he wants to give Social Services more money for child protection but wants to make double-sure, too, that the department can't shift existing programs to come up with the money.

Steve Blount, who strongly defended the department's work on the child protection investigations last month, said Thursday he stands by his earlier statements.

"There is nothing in that report that says those kids would be alive if they had done anything different," Blount said. "I still stand by that. They did a more thorough investigation. I see it as pointing to a lot of little problems that, if fixed, will improve service.

"It is going to take a community effort," Blount added. "Hundreds and hundreds of kids are being abused I want to solve the problem. I am not too interested in pointing the finger."

Cohen: 'whitewash'

But fellow board member Newton Cohen called the review announcement a "whitewash" because the panel wouldn't assign blame.

"They didn't want to criticize anybody to a great extent; they didn't want to point the finger," Cohen said. "I'd like to ask who's responsible. I didn't get an answer. They avoided a lot of other questions."

Cohen said he's "in Rowland's corner" but wants to "get all the facts" before forming an opinion on the job the agency director has done.

Frank Tadlock, the commissioner who sits on the Social Services board, said that while "there could have been some things done differently," the Department of Social Services "did not kill those children."

"I don't think there is anything that could have been done that would have fully eliminated the deaths of those children, because that choice was made by the people that killed the children," Tadlock said.

Second review praised

Piper, on the Social Services board, said she was troubled by the state's original review because it didn't go "far enough."

The second review panelists "did an excellent job," she said.

"I think their findings were very thorough, far-reaching and challenging and unbiased," she said.

"I am real dismayed by the fact that there are people still trying to look for blame," Piper said. "I felt like a lot of people were saying, It is not our problem, it is a DSS problem.' That is a real narrow way to look at it.

"I still feel there were some obvious problems with DSS, but there were a lot of problems with the hospital, a lot of problems with the families involved ... (and with) the state, the way that things have been done, a lack of money, lack of training."

Staff Writer Jason Williams contributed to this article.

Abuse reported

In an unusual move, the Department of Social Services reported three incidents of child abuse to the Rowan County Sheriff's Office on Thursday afternoon for possible criminal prosecution.

Sheriff's officials say the incidents are not "life threatening." Officials say it's unusual for Social Services to report three cases in a single day. Officials would not disclose any details about the alleged abuse.

In turn, deputies turned over information about an assault against a child to the Department of Social Services.

Statewide implications in 3 children's deaths

BY MARK WINEKA
SALISBURY POST

The director of N.C. Social Services left Salisbury Thursday persuaded that the deaths of three Rowan County children have implications not just for local officials, but for communities statewide.

"I think that we've learned a whole lot from these tragedies, and the challenge now is to make the necessary system changes to improve how we protect kids," Kevin FitzGerald said. "This review has really helped bring that lesson home."

Within a five-day period from Jan. 31 to Feb. 4, three Rowan County children who had been the subjects of previous Department of Social Services investigations into child abuse, died. In the cases of 6-year-old Budde Lee Clark and 19-month-old Christopher

Deaths

Jones, care givers were charged with murder. In the other instance, 16-year-old Trola Miller was shot and killed during a neighborhood argument.

A state review team found the local DSS casework prior to all their deaths at fault. It also concluded that the current review process into child fatalities is sorely lacking.

"I think all of this will be beneficial in the long run, though it's a painful process to go through," Rep. Charlotte Gardner, R-Rowan, said of the intense scrutiny the Rowan DSS has undergone.

FitzGerald suspects that a number of the issues uncovered, including concerns about caseload, supervision, training, after-hours coverage and communication, are prevalent in DSS offices throughout the state.

"Rowan County is not unique in terms of counties," FitzGerald said. "The circumstances, timing and level of scrutiny is much higher and brought things into focus."

Because of the review team's findings in Rowan, the Division of Social Services will change immediately the way it reviews child fatalities. Previously, most reviews were done by one person — a DSS employee from a county outside the one where a death occurred.

That same kind of initial review into the Rowan County deaths led to an outcry of complaints, prompting Gov. Jim Hunt to ask Human Resources Secretary David Bruton to assign a second review team.

The diverse makeup of that group and the broadening of its scope beyond the normal review process uncovered much different findings and recommendations in the Rowan County cases.

Deaths

The special team's report acknowledges that the former review process was flawed and, by design, could not be comprehensive. It limited itself to interviewing only the social workers involved and looking at the paperwork the DSS compiled in each case.

Besides involving more people — several outside the DSS — the broader review also included interviews with law enforcement, foster care providers, medical care personnel and the like.

"My sense was that we had a real straight-up discussion on a number of the ways the system can be improved to better protect children," FitzGerald said of Thursday's visit to Salisbury. "My sense was a keen interest on the part of Rowan County and on the part of the state to really dramatically move things to a much better place than they are now."

The review team report also recommends that the state explore ways to open up DSS records after a child has died to satisfy the public's push for accountability.

FitzGerald thought his division took an important and welcome step by making its 10-page report public Thursday. The first review — the one criticized — had only a cover letter that was public. The bulk of the report was kept confidential.

FitzGerald said Thursday's document, though more detailed, still stayed within the confidentiality guidelines. The report did not tell exactly what steps the Rowan DSS failed to follow in each specific case.

"But we were able to say a lot more to the community in terms of what we found, and that's important," FitzGerald said. "... What we've learned is that it's important to share key system issues. ... Disclosure of more case information once a child has died is a discussion that we're going to need to have."

That will require changing laws, FitzGerald said, and Gardner expects to introduce a bill next week that has been drafted by the N.C. Press Association.

Gardner said it's important for the public to know the circumstances behind a child's death.

"I told FitzGerald yesterday, the bottom line is that if it hadn't been for the paper, I don't think the process would have been improved."

Ken Eudy, a lobbyist for the Press Association, said Gardner's bill aims to open up all manner of records once a child who has been in Child Protective Services dies.

Those records could include medical, emergency services, hospital, medical examiner, law enforcement documents and the like.

If an agency believes the release of such information would threaten the physical or mental health of a family member or compromise a criminal investigation, it could seek a court order to have that information withheld.

Eudy acknowledged that the Press Association discussed the need for this bill as early as last fall, but it was pushed aside by other concerns.

"With the Rowan cases, our interest was rekindled," Eudy said. "The Rowan cases really made it more timely."

Gardner acknowledged that she's not sure what kind of reception her bill will receive.

"It's a local situation," she said. "Now you've got to convince the General Assembly that it's a problem widespread enough that you have to relax the state law. If children are involved, the overriding concern should be the children and their welfare and what could prevent future tragedies like that."

The Child Fatality Task Force has introduced similar legislation to help in its investigations, but Gardner's bill would be much broader.

Rowan County Health Director John Shaw was one of the five members of the second state review team. He said he knew within 30 minutes of the team's first meeting that each of the members had invaluable perspectives and years of experience.

"I can't emphasize the diversity of the experiences that were brought to bear on that team," Shaw said. "Throughout the process, there was this strong desire on the part of team members to hear what the other person was saying."

Shaw said the review team's work "evolved a far better process for reviewing fatalities than had been previously used in the state."

"The other (method) just tends to limit the scope," Shaw said. "What we did was far broader in its scope. We were able to discover things that were not discovered before."

Shaw said the review showed that changes must be made in Child Protection Services here and throughout the state. The county also will have to make an investment in training, staff, supervision, computers, cellular telephones and the like.

"I think we also learned we need an action plan to adequately protect our children in this county," Shaw said.

In general, Shaw believes the community at large needs to have a better understanding about domestic violence and what contributes to child abuse.

"As a community, we need to decide what it is we want to achieve, by what time we want to achieve it and who is to do what," Shaw added. "Then we must hold ourselves accountable. ... There are a lot of people who share in that responsibility. We need to understand who is accountable in the future."

DSS & PUBLIC ACCOUNTABILITY

SALISBURY POST
4/11/97

Questions linger

Imagine this scenario: Your child goes to the hospital sick, undergoes treatment and yet dies. A medical review team says, "We're sorry, mistakes were made. But we've reviewed the situation and recommend that these changes to be sure nothing like this ever happens again. Thank you for bringing this to our attention."

Would you be satisfied? Probably not. You'd want to know exactly what the mistake was, who committed it and how that person was being held accountable.

This exaggerated example gives a flavor of the dissatisfaction that lingers following Thursday's release of the fatalities review a state task force issued concerning the Rowan County Department of Social Services.

First, the good news: This review was more thorough and candid than anyone has been to date on the violent deaths of three Rowan County children earlier this year. The professionals who investigated the situation deserve praise.

But the review team addressed issues in such broad fashion that it's still hard to get a grip on the severity of the problems at the Rowan department and to what degree these particular mistakes were a result of understaffing vs. poor judgment.

The team was hampered, and the public is kept uninformed, by a state law that keeps Social Services records confidential.

Children at risk

As always, a reminder is needed: The people whom authorities believe killed Budde Clark, Christopher Jones and Trola Miller are in jail, charged with murder. Social Services did not kill those children.

But the professionals whom the public trusts to investigate abuse and neglect missed critical warning signs that might have prevented those deaths. As the review said: "Information was available to the Rowan County Department of Social Services that, if obtained and appropriately analyzed, indicated, at least with respect to Budde Clark and Christopher Jones, that these children were at risk of further abuse and neglect."

That does not mean that the children would have been taken from the home. But it would have waved a far larger red flag and, one hopes, prompted more aggressive intervention from social services.

Still, it is difficult to discern exactly what went wrong. Take this excerpt, for example: "In the case of Christopher Jones, the failure to interview all persons with pertinent information resulted in a high risk situation not being recognized and the resultant lack of appropriate actions to protect the child. This was not detected by the initial state review."

Knowing what has been published in the Post, this could refer to the fact that the child was treated in an emergency room one month before he died, prompting two calls to Social Services — yet the social worker never interviewed the doctor or picked up photos of the child's injuries.

What about the review's reference to other people who were aware of the abuse of these children but did not report it? Who are they?

Public confidence

The public cannot find out because state law prohibits disclosure of confidential information from Social Services files. The law needs to change so that, in the case of a child who dies, citizens can be fully informed about how the system they fund works. To its credit, the review team also said that this issue should be explored.

Some people call this quest for more information finger-pointing and head-hunting. Actually, it's accountability. There must be some way, short of investigative newspaper reports, for the public to get the full story on how a tragic case was handled and what actions resulted for Social Services staff.

For the state, this recent review answers key questions about how to improve child protective services. But for Rowan County some important questions remain. Have we held the proper people accountable for their actions in these tragic cases? And are we willing to pay the price to staff Social Services so that warning signs cannot be so easily missed?

Salisbury Post 4/12/97

Positive path for protection

Though it did not answer all the questions on Rowan County's mind, the review team that looked at three recent child fatalities here has spelled out some recommendations that should considerably strengthen the way child abuse cases are handled.

The value of this review cannot be emphasized enough. The debate over these cases has been emotional and at times distorted — both by loyalties and by suspicions. Rowan is fortunate that the state chose to assemble a team from various backgrounds to step in and give the matter a more impartial look.

And look team members did, both within the Department of Social Services and elsewhere in the community. They found a lack of communication between social workers and the medical community, a failure by some people to report the abuse they saw, lax supervision of child protective workers, overwhelming caseloads, limited investigative work, poor afterhours coverage and inadequate documentation.

Evidence of these problems had been trickling out over recent weeks in Post articles, but this review gives official weight to the push for change. Now neither the Rowan DSS Board nor county commissioners can deny that changes in procedures and staffing are in order.

This can be a hopeful time. With nearly 100,000 North Carolina children reported as abused or neglected each year, the state needs a strong system for reviewing those reports and handling the cases where mistreatment is confirmed. Through tragedy, the state and Rowan County have learned some difficult lessons that should vastly improve the outlook for children living on the edge of violence.

The review process itself will undergo a transformation — from a narrow, nearly in-house review of records to a multi-disciplinary look at all the information available in a child abuse investigation. This was a crippling weakness in the state system. Broader review will cost more, but it also will yield more accurate results, like those reported this week.

Two footnotes: Social Services Director Rick Travis has weathered a very bad storm, and some clouds are still rumbling overhead. The DSS board gave him a glowing performance review in January. In light of what has happened since, it may be time to update that evaluation. His workers have given him a vote of confidence. Perhaps his superiors — including county commissioners — should review the facts and see if they can do the same.

Second, the team's suggestion that some child fatality reviews be delayed until autopsy reports are available points up another weakness in the state system: slow autopsy reports. Were that policy already in place, no one would be able to review either Budde Clark's or Christopher Jones' cases yet, because their autopsy reports remain unfinished. Either the state needs more medical examiners or cases like these must be given top priority.

SENATE BILL 132
Second Edition Engrossed 4/17/97

Short Title: Clerks/Year's Allowance. (Public)

Sponsors: Senators Odom and Rand.

Referred to: Judiciary.

February 17, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AUTHORIZE CLERKS TO ALLOCATE SPOUSE'S AND CHILDREN'S YEAR'S ALLOWANCE FROM A DECEDENT'S ESTATE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 30-16 reads as rewritten:

"§ 30-16. Duty of personal representative or magistrate to assign allowance.

It shall be the duty of every administrator, collector, or executor of a will, on application in writing, signed by the surviving spouse, at any time within one year after the death of the deceased spouse, to assign to the surviving spouse the year's allowance as provided in this Article.

If there shall be no administration, or if the personal representative shall fail or refuse to apply to a ~~magistrate,~~ magistrate or clerk of court, as provided in G.S. 30-20, for 10 days after the surviving spouse has filed the aforesaid application, or if the surviving spouse is the personal representative, the surviving spouse may make application to the ~~magistrate,~~ magistrate or clerk, and it shall be the duty of the magistrate or clerk to proceed in the same manner as though the application had been made by the personal representative.

Where any personal property of the deceased spouse shall be located outside the township or county where the deceased spouse resided at the time of his death, the personal representative or the surviving spouse may apply to any magistrate or to any clerk of court of any township or county where such personal property is located, and it shall be the duty of such magistrate or clerk to assign the year's allowance as if the deceased spouse had resided and died in that township."

Section 2. G.S. 30-17 reads as rewritten:

"§ 30-17. When children entitled to an allowance.

Whenever any parent dies leaving any child under the age of 18 years, including an adopted child or a child with whom the widow may be pregnant at the death of her husband, or a child who is less than 22 years of age and is a full-time student in any educational institution, or a child under 21 years of age who has been declared mentally incompetent, or a child under 21 years of age who is totally disabled, or any other person under the age of 18 years residing with the deceased parent at the time of death to whom the deceased parent or the surviving parent stood in loco parentis, every such child shall be entitled, besides its share of the estate of such deceased parent, to an allowance of two thousand dollars ($2,000) for its support for the year next ensuing the death of such parent, less, however, the value of any articles consumed by said child since the death of said parent. Such allowance shall be exempt from any lien by judgment or execution against the property of such parent. The personal representative of the deceased parent, within one year after the parent's death, shall assign to every such child the allowance herein provided for; but if there is no personal representative or if he fails or refuses to act within 10 days after written request by a guardian or next friend on behalf of such child, the allowance may be assigned by a ~~magistrate,~~ magistrate or clerk of court upon application of said guardian or next friend.

If the child resides with the widow of the deceased parent at the time such allowance is paid, the allowance shall be paid to said widow for the benefit of said child. If the child resides with its surviving parent who is other than the widow of the deceased parent, such allowance shall be paid to said surviving parent for the use and benefit of such child, regardless of whether the deceased died testate or intestate or whether the widow dissented from the will. Provided, however, the allowance shall not be available to an illegitimate child of a deceased father, unless such deceased father shall have recognized the paternity of such illegitimate child by deed, will or other paper-writing. If the child does not reside with a parent when the allowance is paid, it shall be paid to its general guardian, if any, and if none, to the clerk of the superior court who shall receive and disburse same for the benefit of such child."

Section 3. Part 2 of Article 4 of Chapter 30 of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"Part 2. Assigned by ~~Magistrate.~~ Magistrate or Clerk.

"§ 30-19. Value of property ascertained.

The value of the personal property assigned to the surviving spouse and children shall be ascertained by a magistrate or the clerk of court of the county in which administration was granted or the will probated.

"§ 30-20. Procedure for assignment.

Upon the application of the surviving spouse, a child by his guardian or next friend, or the personal representative of the deceased, the clerk of superior court of the county in which the deceased resided ~~shall~~ may assign the inquiry to a magistrate of the county. ~~The magistrate~~ The clerk of court, or magistrate upon assignment, shall ascertain the person or persons entitled to an allowance according to the provisions of this Article, and determine the money or other personal property of the estate, and pay over to or assign to the surviving spouse and to the children, if any, so much thereof as they shall be entitled to as provided in this Article. Any deficiencies shall be made up from any of the personal property of the deceased, and if the personal property of the estate shall be insufficient to satisfy such allowance, the clerk of the superior court shall enter judgment against the personal representative for the amount of such deficiency, to be paid when a sufficiency of such assets shall come into his hands.

"§ 30-21. Report of clerk or magistrate.

The ~~magistrate~~ clerk of court, or magistrate upon assignment, shall make and sign three lists of the money or other personal property assigned to each person, stating their quantity and value, and the deficiency to be paid by the personal representative. Where the allowance is to the surviving spouse, one of these lists shall be delivered to him. Where the allowance is to a child, one of these lists shall be delivered to the surviving parent with whom the child is living; or to the child's guardian or next friend if the child is not living with said surviving parent; or to the child if said child is not living with the surviving parent and has no guardian or next friend. One list shall be delivered to the personal representative. One list shall be returned by the ~~magistrate,~~ magistrate or clerk, within 20 days after the assignment, to the superior court of the county in which administration was granted or the will probated, and the clerk shall file and record the same, together with any judgment entered pursuant to G.S. 30-20.

"§ 30-22. Repealed by Session Laws 1971, c. 528, s. 25.

"§ 30-23. Right of appeal.

The personal representative, or the surviving spouse, or child by his guardian or next friend, or any creditor, legatee or heir of the deceased, may appeal from the finding of the magistrate or clerk of court to the superior court of the county, and, within 10 days after the assignment, cite the adverse party to appear before such court on a certain day, not less than five nor exceeding 10 days after the service of the citation.

"§ 30-24. Hearing on appeal.

At or before the day named, the appellant shall file with the clerk a copy of the assignment and a statement of his exceptions thereto, and the issues thereby raised shall be decided ~~as other issues are directed to be.~~ de novo. ~~When the issues shall have been decided, judgment shall be entered accordingly, if it may be without injustice, without remitting the proceedings to the magistrate.~~

"§ 30-25. Personal representative entitled to credit.

Upon the settlement of the accounts of the personal representative, he shall be credited with the articles assigned, and the value of the deficiency assessed as aforesaid, if the same shall have been paid, unless the allowance be impeached for fraud or gross negligence in him.

"§ 30-26. When above allowance is in full.

If the estate of a deceased be insolvent, or if his personal estate does not exceed ten thousand dollars ($10,000), the allowances for the year's support of the surviving spouse and the children shall not, in any case, exceed the value prescribed in G.S. 30-15 and [G.S.] 30-17; and the allowances made to them as above prescribed shall preclude them from any further allowances."

Section 4. G.S. 7A-307(b1) reads as rewritten:

"(b1) The clerk shall assess the following miscellaneous fees:

(1)	Filing and indexing a will with no probate
	-- first page	$ 1.00
	-- each additional page or fraction thereof	.25
(2)	Issuing letters to fiduciaries, per letter over five letters issued	1.00
(3)	Inventory of safe deposits of a decedent, per box, per day	15.00
(4)	Taking a deposition	5.00
(5)	Docketing and indexing a will probated in another county in the State
	-- first page	1.00
	-- each additional page or fraction thereof	.25
(6)	Hearing petition for year's allowance to surviving spouse or child, in cases not assigned to a magistrate, and alloting the same	4.00"

Section 5. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to applications for year's allowances filed on or after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: Senate Bill 132—Clerks/Years Allowance-Second Edition (Odom, Rand)

Senate Bill 132 is a recommendation of the North Carolina Courts Commission.

Article 4 of Chapter 30 governs the year's allowance given to the surviving spouse and children of an intestate or testator. A year's allowance is an amount ($10,000 for a spouse, $2,000 for a child) given from the personal property of the deceased to the deceased's spouse or children for their support. The allowance is exempt from any lien against the deceased's property.

Under current law, application is made to a magistrate to approve the year's allowance. Senate Bill 132 would amend Article 4 of Chapter 30 to allow a clerk, in addition to a magistrate, to approve a year's allowance. In many cases, the clerk actually performs the work on the application and is the proper person to approve the allowance. The bill also authorizes the clerk to assess a fee of $4.00 for hearing the application. This is the same fee charged by a magistrate under the current law.

Senate Bill 132 becomes effective October 1, 1997.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO UPDATE AND REVISE THE LAWS AFFECTING LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONTRACTING.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 143-129(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) No construction or repair work requiring the estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) or purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment requiring an estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than ~~twenty thousand dollars ($20,000),~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000), except in cases of group purchases made by hospitals through a competitive bidding purchasing program or in cases of special emergency involving the health and safety of the people or their property, shall be performed, nor shall any contract be awarded therefor, by any board or governing body of the State, or of any institution of the State government, or of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of the State, unless the provisions of this section are complied with. For purposes of this Article, a competitive bidding group purchasing program is a formally organized program that offers purchasing services at discount prices to two or more hospital facilities. The limitation contained in this paragraph shall not apply to construction or repair work undertaken during the progress of a construction or repair project initially begun pursuant to this section. Further, the provisions of this section shall not apply to the purchase of gasoline, diesel fuel, alcohol fuel, motor oil or fuel oil. Such purchases shall be subject to G.S. 143-131.

For purchases of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the governing body of any municipality, county, or other political subdivision of the State may, subject to any restriction as to dollar amount, or other conditions that the governing body elects to impose, delegate to the manager or the chief purchasing official the authority to award contracts, reject bids, readvertise to receive bids on behalf of the unit, or waive bid bonds or deposits, or performance and payment bond requirements. Any person to whom authority is delegated under this subsection shall comply with the requirements of this Article that would otherwise apply to the governing body."

Section 2. G.S. 143-129(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Advertisement of the letting of such contracts shall be as follows:

Where the contract is to be let by a board or governing body of the State government, or of a State institution, as distinguished from a board or governing body of a subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in the State of North Carolina. Provided that the advertisements for bidders required by this section shall be published at such a time that at least seven full days shall lapse between the date of publication of notice and the date of the opening of bids.

Where the contract is to be let by a county, city, town or other subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in such county, city, town or other subdivision.

Such advertisement shall state the time and place where plans and specifications of proposed work or a complete description of the apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment may be had, and the time and place for opening of the proposals, and shall reserve to said board or governing body the right to reject any or all such proposals.

Proposals shall not be rejected for the purpose of evading the provisions of this Article. No board or governing body of the State or subdivision thereof shall assume responsibility for construction or purchase contracts, or guarantee the payments of labor or materials therefor except under provisions of this Article.

All proposals shall be opened in public and shall be recorded on the minutes of the board or governing body and the award shall be made to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, taking into consideration quality, performance and the time specified in the proposals for the performance of the contract. In the event the lowest responsible bids are in excess of the funds available for the project, the responsible board or governing body is authorized to enter into negotiations with the lowest responsible bidder above mentioned, making reasonable changes in the plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the contract price within the funds available, and may award a contract to such bidder upon recommendation of the Department of Administration in the case of the State government or of a State institution or agency, or upon recommendation of the responsible commission, council or board in the case of a subdivision of the State, if such bidder will agree to perform the work at the negotiated price within the funds available therefor. If a contract cannot be let under the above conditions, the board or governing body is authorized to readvertise, as herein provided, after having made such changes in plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the cost of the project within the funds available therefor. The procedure above specified may be repeated if necessary in order to secure an acceptable contract within the funds available therefor.

No proposal shall be considered or accepted by said board or governing body unless at the time of its filing the same shall be accompanied by a deposit with said board or governing body of cash, or a cashier's check, or a certified check on some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in an amount equal to not less than five percent (5%) of the proposal. In lieu of making the cash deposit as above provided, such bidder may file a bid bond executed by a corporate surety licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such bonds, conditioned that the surety will upon demand forthwith make payment to the obligee upon said bond if the bidder fails to execute the contract in accordance with the bid bond. This deposit shall be retained if the successful bidder fails to execute the contract within 10 days after the award or fails to give satisfactory surety as required herein. In the case of proposals ~~in an estimated amount of less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000)~~ for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the board or governing body may waive the requirement for a bid bond or other deposit.

Bids shall be sealed ~~if the invitation to bid so specifies and, in any event,~~ and the opening of an envelope or package with knowledge that it contains a bid or the disclosure or exhibition of the contents of any bid by anyone without the permission of the bidder prior to the time set for opening in the invitation to bid shall constitute a Class 1 misdemeanor."

Section 3. G.S. 143-129(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to purchases of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment ~~by hospitals~~ when performance or price competition for a product are not available; when a needed product is available from only one source of supply; or when standardization or compatibility is the overriding ~~consideration;~~ consideration. Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the governing board of a municipality, county, or other subdivision of the State shall approve purchases made under this exception prior to the award of the contract. In the case of purchases by hospitals, in addition to the other exceptions in this subsection, the provisions of this Article shall not apply when a particular medical item or prosthetic appliance is needed; when a particular product is ordered by an attending physician for his patients; when additional products are needed to complete an ongoing job or task; when products are purchased for "over-the-counter" resale; when a particular product is needed or desired for experimental, developmental, or research work; or when equipment is already installed, connected, and in service under a lease or other agreement and the governing body of the hospital determines that the equipment should be purchased. The governing body of a ~~hospital~~ hospital, municipality, county or other political subdivision of the State shall keep a record of all purchases made pursuant to this exception. These records are subject to public inspection."

Section 4. G.S. 143-129 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(g) When the governing board of any municipality, county, or other subdivision of the State, or the manager or purchasing official delegated authority under subsection (a) of this section, determines that it is in the best interest of the unit, the requirements of this section may be waived for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment from any person or entity that has, within the previous 12 months, contracted to furnish the apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment to:

(1) The United States of America or any federal agency;

(2) The State of North Carolina or any agency or political subdivision of the State; or

(3) Any other state or any agency or political subdivision of that state, if the person or entity is willing to furnish the items at the same or more favorable prices, terms, and conditions as those provided under the contract with the other unit or agency. Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, any purchase made under this subsection shall be approved by the governing body of the purchasing municipality, county, or other political subdivision of the State. Rules issued by the Secretary of Administration pursuant to G.S. 143-49(6) shall apply with respect to participation in State term contracts."

Section 5. G.S. 143-131 reads as rewritten:

"§ 143-131. When counties, cities, towns and other subdivisions may let contracts on informal bids.

All contracts for construction or repair work or for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, involving the expenditure of public money in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or more, but less than the limits prescribed in G.S. 143-129, made by any officer, department, board, or commission of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of this State shall be made after informal bids have been secured. All such contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, taking into consideration quality, performance, and the time specified in the bids for the performance of the contract. It shall be the duty of any officer, department, board, or commission entering into such contract to keep a record of all bids submitted, and such record shall not be subject to public inspection ~~at any time.~~ until the contract has been awarded."

Section 6. G.S. 160A-266 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-266. Methods of sale; limitation.

(a) Subject to the limitations prescribed in subsection (b) of this section, and according to the procedures prescribed in this Article, a city may dispose of real or personal property belonging to the city by:

(1) Private negotiation and sale;

(2) Advertisement for sealed bids;

(3) Negotiated offer, advertisement, and upset bid;

(4) Public auction; or
(5) Exchange.

(b) Private negotiation and sale may be used only with respect to personal property valued at less than ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) for any one item or group of similar items. Real ~~property~~ property, of any value, and personal property valued at ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items may be exchanged as permitted by G.S. 160A-271, or may be sold by any method permitted in this Article other than private negotiation and sale, except as permitted in G.S. 160A-277 and G.S. 160A-279.

Provided, however, a city may dispose of real property of any value and personal property valued at ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items by private negotiation and sale where (i) said real or personal property is significant for its architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its relationship to other property significant for architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its natural, scenic or open condition; and (ii) said real or personal property is to be sold to a nonprofit corporation or trust whose purposes include the preservation or conservation of real or personal properties of architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural, historical, natural or scenic significance; and (iii) where a preservation agreement or conservation agreement as defined in G.S. 121-35 is placed in the deed conveying said property from the city to the nonprofit corporation or trust. Said nonprofit corporation or trust shall only dispose of or use said real or personal property subject to covenants or other legally binding restrictions which will promote the preservation or conservation of the property, and, where appropriate, secure rights of public access.

(c) A city council may adopt regulations prescribing procedures for disposing of personal property valued at less than ~~five hundred dollars ($500.00)~~ five thousand dollars ($5,000) for any one item or group of items in substitution for the requirements of this Article. The regulations shall be designed to secure for the city fair market value for all property disposed of and to accomplish the disposal efficiently and economically. The regulations may, but need not, require published notice, and may provide for either public or private exchanges and sales. The council may authorize one or more city officials to declare surplus any personal property valued at less than ~~five hundred dollars ($500.00)~~ five thousand dollars ($5,000) for any one item or group of items, to set its fair market value, and to convey title to the property for the city in accord with the regulations. A city official authorized under this section to dispose of property ~~shall, on the first day of February, report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from July 1 through December 31 of the previous year, and shall on the first day of August report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from January 1 through June 30 of that year. The written report~~ shall keep a record of all property sold under this section and that record shall generally describe the property sold or exchanged, to whom it was sold, or with whom exchanged, and the amount of money or other consideration received for each sale or ~~exchange since the last such report was submitted.~~ exchange."

Section 7. Article 8 of Chapter 143 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 143-129.7. Purchase with trade-in of apparatus, supplies, materials, and equipment.

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 12 of Chapter 160A, municipalities, counties, and other political subdivisions of the State may include in specifications for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment an opportunity for bidders to purchase as 'trade-in' specified personal property owned by the municipality, county, or other political subdivision, and the awarding authority may award a contract for both the purchase of the apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment and the sale of trade-in property, taking into consideration the amount offered on the trade-in when applying the criteria for award established in this Article."

Section 8. This act raises the threshold amount in G.S. 143-129 and G.S. 160A-266. If any local act provides a threshold amount for the subjects addressed in these statutes that is less than the amount provided in this act, this act prevails to the extent of that conflict.

Section 9. This act is effective when it becomes law.

RE: Senate Bill 891 - Local Government Contracting

Senate Bill 891 makes several revisions to the laws governing local government contracting. Article 8 of Chapter 143 governs the conditions under which a local government must use formal bid and contracting procedures. Article 12 of Chapter 160A governs the conditions under which a local government may sell or dispose of property.

Section 1 amends G.S. 143-129(a) by increasing the threshold for contracting for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment to $30,000 (from $20,000). This section also specifically grants a local governmental unit the authority to delegate their contracting power, for apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment, to a city manager or other chief purchasing officer.

Section 2 amends G.S. 143-129(b) to allow the governmental unit to waive the requirement of a bid bond for purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment in any amount. (previously did not allow waiver for contracts over $100,000) This section also provides that all formal bids must be sealed even if the invitation to bid does not specifically request it.

Section 3 amends G.S. 143-129(f) to create an exception from the requirements of this Article, subject to prior approval of the governmental unit before the contract is awarded, when purchasing apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment where performance or price competition for a product are not available; when a needed product is available from only one source of supply; or when standardization or compatibility is the overriding consideration.

Section 4 creates a new subsection G.S. 143-129(g) to allow a governmental unit to disregard the requirements of G.S. 143-129, with prior approval of the governmental unit, when purchasing apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment from vendors that have contracted with the federal, state or other state or local governments or agencies AND will provide the items at the same or more favorable prices, terms and conditions.

Section 5 amends G.S. 143-131 to provide that submitted informal bids are not part of the public record until after the contract is awarded.

Section 6 amends G.S. 160A-266 to increase the maximum value of personal property that a municipality may dispose of by private negotiation and sale to $30,000 (from $10,000). Also amends this statute to make clear that real property of any value may not be disposed of by private negotiation or sale, except under certain circumstances. This section increases to $5,000 (from $500) the threshold for disposing of personal property under informal, city adopted regulations and removes the requirement that the authorized city official report twice a year regarding what property has been disposed of and how.

Section 7 creates a new G.S. 143-129.7 to specifically authorize bidders for contracts for apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment, to purchase "trade-ins", to allow the value of the trade-in to be included in determining the best bid and exempts the sale of the trade-in from the regular provisions regarding sale of personal property.

Section 8 clarifies that this act prevails over any local act containing a threshold amount lower than one in this act.

This act is effective when it becomes law.

§ 160A-266. Methods of sale; limitation.

(a) Subject to the limitations prescribed in subsection (b) of this section, and according to the procedures prescribed in this Article, a city may dispose of real or personal property belonging to the city by:

(1) Private negotiation and sale;

(2) Advertisement for sealed bids;

(3) Negotiated offer, advertisement, and upset bid;

(4) Public auction; or

(5) Exchange.

(b) Private negotiation and sale may be used only with respect to personal property valued at less than ten thousand dollars ($10,000) for any one item or group of similar items. Real property and personal property valued at ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items may be exchanged as permitted by G.S. 160A-271, or may be sold by any method permitted in this Article other than private negotiation and sale, except as permitted in G.S. 160A-277 and 160A-279.

Provided, however, a city may dispose of real property and personal property valued at ten thousand dollars ($10,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items by private negotiation and sale where (i) said real or personal property is significant for its architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its relationship to other property significant for architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its natural, scenic or open condition; and (ii) said real or personal property is to be sold to a nonprofit corporation or trust whose purposes include the preservation or conservation of real or personal properties of architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural, historical, natural or scenic significance; and (iii) where a preservation agreement or conservation agreement as defined in G.S. 121-35 is placed in the deed conveying said property from the city to the nonprofit corporation or trust. Said nonprofit corporation or trust shall only dispose of or use said real or personal property subject to covenants or other legally binding restrictions which will promote the preservation or conservation of the property, and, where appropriate, secure rights of public access.

(c) A city council may adopt regulations prescribing procedures for disposing of personal property valued at less than five hundred dollars ($500.00) for any one item or group of items in substitution for the requirements of this Article. The regulations shall be designed to secure for the city fair market value for all property disposed of and to accomplish the disposal efficiently and economically. The regulations may, but need not, require published notice, and may provide for either public or private exchanges and sales. The council may authorize one or more city officials to declare surplus any personal property valued at less than five hundred dollars ($500.00) for any one item or group of items, to set its fair market value, and to convey title to the property for the city in accord with the regulations. A city official authorized under this section to dispose of property shall, on the first day of February, report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from July 1 through December 31 of the previous year, and shall on the first day of August report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from January 1 through June 30 of that year. The written report shall generally describe the property sold or exchanged, to whom it was sold, or with whom exchanged, and the amount of money or other consideration received for each sale or exchange since the last such report was submitted.

§ 143-129. Procedure for letting of public contracts; purchases from federal government by State, counties, etc.

(a) No construction or repair work requiring the estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) or purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment requiring an estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), except in cases of group purchases made by hospitals through a competitive bidding purchasing program or in cases of special emergency involving the health and safety of the people or their property, shall be performed, nor shall any contract be awarded therefor, by any board or governing body of the State, or of any institution of the State government, or of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of the State, unless the provisions of this section are complied with. For purposes of this Article, a competitive bidding group purchasing program is a formally organized program that offers purchasing services at discount prices to two or more hospital facilities. The limitation contained in this paragraph shall not apply to construction or repair work undertaken during the progress of a construction or repair project initially begun pursuant to this section. Further, the provisions of this section shall not apply to the purchase of gasoline, diesel fuel, alcohol fuel, motor oil or fuel oil. Such purchases shall be subject to G.S. 143-131.

(b) Advertisement of the letting of such contracts shall be as follows:

Where the contract is to be let by a board or governing body of the State government, or of a State institution, as distinguished from a board or governing body of a subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in the State of North Carolina. Provided that the advertisements for bidders required by this section shall be published at such a time that at least seven full days shall lapse between the date of publication of notice and the date of the opening of bids.

Where the contract is to be let by a county, city, town or other subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in such county, city, town or other subdivision.

Such advertisement shall state the time and place where plans and specifications of proposed work or a complete description of the apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment may be had, and the time and place for opening of the proposals, and shall reserve to said board or governing body the right to reject any or all such proposals.

Proposals shall not be rejected for the purpose of evading the provisions of this Article. No board or governing body of the State or subdivision thereof shall assume responsibility for construction or purchase contracts, or guarantee the payments of labor or materials therefor except under provisions of this Article.

All proposals shall be opened in public and shall be recorded on the minutes of the board or governing body and the award shall be made to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, taking into consideration quality, performance and the time specified in the proposals for the performance of the contract. In the event the lowest responsible bids are in excess of the funds available for the project, the responsible board or governing body is authorized to enter into negotiations with the lowest responsible bidder above mentioned, making reasonable changes in the plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the contract price within the funds available, and may award a contract to such bidder upon recommendation of the Department of Administration in the case of the State government or of a State institution or agency, or upon recommendation of the responsible commission, council or board in the case of a subdivision of the State, if such bidder will agree to perform the work at the negotiated price within the funds available therefor. If a contract cannot be let under the above conditions, the board or governing body is authorized to readvertise, as herein provided, after having made such changes in plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the cost of the project within the funds available therefor. The procedure above specified may be repeated if necessary in order to secure an acceptable contract within the funds available therefor.

No proposal shall be considered or accepted by said board or governing body unless at the time of its filing the same shall be accompanied by a deposit with said board or governing body of cash, or a cashier's check, or a certified check on some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in an amount equal to not less than five percent (5%) of the proposal. In lieu of making the cash deposit as above provided, such bidder may file a bid bond executed by a corporate surety licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such bonds, conditioned that the surety will upon demand forthwith make payment to the obligee upon said bond if the bidder fails to execute the contract in accordance with the bid bond. This deposit shall be retained if the successful bidder fails to execute the contract within 10 days after the award or fails to give satisfactory surety as required herein. In the case of proposals in an estimated amount of less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the board or governing body may waive the requirement for a bid bond or other deposit.

Bids shall be sealed if the invitation to bid so specifies and, in any event, the opening of a bid or the disclosure or exhibition of the contents of any bid by anyone without the permission of the bidder prior to the time set for opening in the invitation to bid shall constitute a Class 1 misdemeanor.

(c) All contracts to which this section applies shall be executed in writing, and the board or governing body shall require the person to whom the award of contract is made to furnish bond as required by Article 3 of Chapter 44A; or require a deposit of money, certified check or government securities for the full amount of said contract to secure the faithful performance of the terms of said contract and the payment of all sums due for labor and materials in a manner consistent with Article 3 of Chapter 44A; and no such contract shall be altered except by written agreement of the contractor, the sureties on his bond, and the board or governing body. Such surety bond or deposit required herein shall be deposited with the board or governing body for which the work is to be performed. When a deposit, other than a surety bond, is made with the board or governing body, said board or governing body assumes all the liabilities, obligations and duties of a surety as provided in Article 3 of Chapter 44A to the extent of said deposit. In the case of contracts for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the board or governing body may waive the requirement for a surety bond or other deposit.

The owning agency or the Department of Administration, in contracts involving a State agency, and the owning agency or the governing board, in contracts involving a political subdivision of the State, may reject the bonds of any surety company against which there is pending any unsettled claim or complaint made by a State agency or the owning agency or governing board of any political subdivision of the State arising out of any contract under which State funds, in contracts with the State, or funds of political subdivisions of the State, in contracts with such political subdivision, were expended, provided such claim or complaint has been pending more than 180 days.

(d) Nothing in this section shall operate so as to require any public agency to enter into a contract which will prevent the use of unemployment relief labor paid for in whole or in part by appropriations or funds furnished by the State or federal government.

(e) Any board or governing body of the State or any institution of the State government or of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of the State may enter into any contract with (i) the United States of America or any agency thereof, or (ii) any other government unit or agency thereof within the United States, for the purchase, lease, or other acquisition of any apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment without regard to the foregoing provisions of this section or to the provisions of any other section of this Article.

The Secretary of Administration or the governing board of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of the State may designate any officer or employee of the State, county, city, town or subdivision to enter a bid or bids in its behalf at any sale of apparatus, supplies, materials, equipment or other property owned by (i) the United States of America or any agency thereof, or (ii) any other governmental unit or agency thereof within the United States, and may authorize such officer or employee to make any partial or down payment or payment in full that may be required by regulations of the government or agency disposing of such property.

(f) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to purchases of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment by hospitals when performance or price competition for a product are not available; when a needed product is available from only one source of supply; when standardization or compatibility is the overriding consideration; when a particular medical item or prosthetic appliance is needed; when a particular product is ordered by an attending physician for his patients; when additional products are needed to complete an ongoing job or task; when products are purchased for "over-the-counter" resale; when a particular product is needed or desired for experimental, developmental, or research work; or when equipment is already installed, connected, and in service under a lease or other agreement and the governing body of the hospital determines that the equipment should be purchased. The governing body of a hospital shall keep a record of all purchases made pursuant to this exception. These records are subject to public inspection.

All contracts for construction or repair work or for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, involving the expenditure of public money in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or more, but less than the limits prescribed in G.S. 143-129, made by any officer, department, board, or commission of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of this State shall be made after informal bids have been secured. All such contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, taking into consideration quality, performance, and the time specified in the bids for the performance of the contract. It shall be the duty of any officer, department, board, or commission entering into such contract to keep a record of all bids submitted, and such record shall be subject to public inspection at any time.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO UPDATE AND REVISE THE LAWS AFFECTING LOCAL GOVERNMENT CONTRACTING.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 143-129(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) No construction or repair work requiring the estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) or purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment requiring an estimated expenditure of public money in an amount equal to or more than ~~twenty thousand dollars ($20,000),~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000), except in cases of group purchases made by hospitals through a competitive bidding purchasing program or in cases of special emergency involving the health and safety of the people or their property, shall be performed, nor shall any contract be awarded therefor, by any board or governing body of the State, or of any institution of the State government, or of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of the State, unless the provisions of this section are complied with. For purposes of this Article, a competitive bidding group purchasing program is a formally organized program that offers purchasing services at discount prices to two or more hospital facilities. The limitation contained in this paragraph shall not apply to construction or repair work undertaken during the progress of a construction or repair project initially begun pursuant to this section. Further, the provisions of this section shall not apply to the purchase of gasoline, diesel fuel, alcohol fuel, motor oil or fuel oil. Such purchases shall be subject to G.S. 143-131.

For purchases of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the governing body of any municipality, county, or other political subdivision of the State may, subject to any restriction as to dollar amount, or other conditions that the governing body elects to impose, delegate to the manager or the chief purchasing official the authority to award contracts, reject bids, readvertise to receive bids on behalf of the unit, or waive bid bonds or deposits, or performance and payment bond requirements. Any person to whom authority is delegated under this subsection shall comply with the requirements of this Article that would otherwise apply to the governing body."

Section 2. G.S. 143-129(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) Advertisement of the letting of such contracts shall be as follows:

Where the contract is to be let by a board or governing body of the State government, or of a State institution, as distinguished from a board or governing body of a subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in the State of North Carolina. Provided that the advertisements for bidders required by this section shall be published at such a time that at least seven full days shall lapse between the date of publication of notice and the date of the opening of bids.

Where the contract is to be let by a county, city, town or other subdivision of the State, proposals shall be invited by advertisement at least one week before the time specified for the opening of said proposals in a newspaper having general circulation in such county, city, town or other subdivision.

Such advertisement shall state the time and place where plans and specifications of proposed work or a complete description of the apparatus, supplies, materials or equipment may be had, and the time and place for opening of the proposals, and shall reserve to said board or governing body the right to reject any or all such proposals.

Proposals shall not be rejected for the purpose of evading the provisions of this Article. No board or governing body of the State or subdivision thereof shall assume responsibility for construction or purchase contracts, or guarantee the payments of labor or materials therefor except under provisions of this Article.

All proposals shall be opened in public and shall be recorded on the minutes of the board or governing body and the award shall be made to the lowest responsible bidder or bidders, taking into consideration quality, performance and the time specified in the proposals for the performance of the contract. In the event the lowest responsible bids are in excess of the funds available for the project, the responsible board or governing body is authorized to enter into negotiations with the lowest responsible bidder above mentioned, making reasonable changes in the plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the contract price within the funds available, and may award a contract to such bidder upon recommendation of the Department of Administration in the case of the State government or of a State institution or agency, or upon recommendation of the responsible commission, council or board in the case of a subdivision of the State, if such bidder will agree to perform the work at the negotiated price within the funds available therefor. If a contract cannot be let under the above conditions, the board or governing body is authorized to readvertise, as herein provided, after having made such changes in plans and specifications as may be necessary to bring the cost of the project within the funds available therefor. The procedure above specified may be repeated if necessary in order to secure an acceptable contract within the funds available therefor.

No proposal shall be considered or accepted by said board or governing body unless at the time of its filing the same shall be accompanied by a deposit with said board or governing body of cash, or a cashier's check, or a certified check on some bank or trust company insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation in an amount equal to not less than five percent (5%) of the proposal. In lieu of making the cash deposit as above provided, such bidder may file a bid bond executed by a corporate surety licensed under the laws of North Carolina to execute such bonds, conditioned that the surety will upon demand forthwith make payment to the obligee upon said bond if the bidder fails to execute the contract in accordance with the bid bond. This deposit shall be retained if the successful bidder fails to execute the contract within 10 days after the award or fails to give satisfactory surety as required herein. In the case of proposals ~~in an estimated amount of less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000)~~ for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, the board or governing body may waive the requirement for a bid bond or other deposit.

Bids shall be sealed ~~if the invitation to bid so specifies and, in any event,~~ and the opening of an envelope or package with knowledge that it contains a bid or the disclosure or exhibition of the contents of any bid by anyone without the permission of the bidder prior to the time set for opening in the invitation to bid shall constitute a Class 1 misdemeanor."

Section 3. G.S. 143-129(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The provisions of this Article shall not apply to purchases of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment ~~by hospitals~~ when performance or price competition for a product are not available; when a needed product is available from only one source of supply; or when standardization or compatibility is the overriding ~~consideration;~~ consideration. Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, the governing board of a municipality, county, or other subdivision of the State shall approve purchases made under this exception prior to the award of the contract. In the case of purchases by hospitals, in addition to the other exceptions in this subsection, the provisions of this Article shall not apply when a particular medical item or prosthetic appliance is needed; when a particular product is ordered by an attending physician for his patients; when additional products are needed to complete an ongoing job or task; when products are purchased for 'over-the-counter' resale; when a particular product is needed or desired for experimental, developmental, or research work; or when equipment is already installed, connected, and in service under a lease or other agreement and the governing body of the hospital determines that the equipment should be purchased. The governing body of a ~~hospital~~ hospital, municipality, county or other political subdivision of the State shall keep a record of all purchases made pursuant to this exception. These records are subject to public inspection."

Section 4. G.S. 143-129 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(g) When the governing board of any municipality, county, or other subdivision of the State, or the manager or purchasing official delegated authority under subsection (a) of this section, determines that it is in the best interest of the unit, the requirements of this section may be waived for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment from any person or entity that has, within the previous 12 months, after having completed a public, formal bid process substantially similar to that required by this Article, contracted to furnish the apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment to:

(1) The United States of America or any federal agency;

(2) The State of North Carolina or any agency or political subdivision of the State; or

(3) Any other state or any agency or political subdivision of that state,

if the person or entity is willing to furnish the items at the same or more favorable prices, terms, and conditions as those provided under the contract with the other unit or agency. Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, any purchase made under this subsection shall be approved by the governing body of the purchasing municipality, county, or other political subdivision of the State at a regularly scheduled meeting of the governing body no fewer than 10 days after publication of notice, in a newspaper of general circulation in the area served by the governing body, that a waiver of the bid procedure will be considered in order to contract with a qualified supplier pursuant to this section. Rules issued by the Secretary of Administration pursuant to G.S. 143-49(6) shall apply with respect to participation in State term contracts."

Section 5. G.S. 143-131 reads as rewritten:

"§ 143-131. When counties, cities, towns and other subdivisions may let contracts on informal bids.

All contracts for construction or repair work or for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment, involving the expenditure of public money in the amount of five thousand dollars ($5,000) or more, but less than the limits prescribed in G.S. 143-129, made by any officer, department, board, or commission of any county, city, town, or other subdivision of this State shall be made after informal bids have been secured. All such contracts shall be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder, taking into consideration quality, performance, and the time specified in the bids for the performance of the contract. It shall be the duty of any officer, department, board, or commission entering into such contract to keep a record of all bids submitted, and such record shall not be subject to public inspection ~~at any time.~~ until the contract has been awarded."

Section 6. G.S. 160A-266 reads as rewritten:

"§ 160A-266. Methods of sale; limitation.

(a) Subject to the limitations prescribed in subsection (b) of this section, and according to the procedures prescribed in this Article, a city may dispose of real or personal property belonging to the city by:

(1) Private negotiation and sale;
(2) Advertisement for sealed bids;
(3) Negotiated offer, advertisement, and upset bid;
(4) Public auction; or
(5) Exchange.

(b) Private negotiation and sale may be used only with respect to personal property valued at less than ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) for any one item or group of similar items. Real ~~property~~ property, of any value, and personal property valued at ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items may be exchanged as permitted by G.S. 160A-271, or may be sold by any method permitted in this Article other than private negotiation and sale, except as permitted in G.S. 160A-277 and G.S. 160A-279.

Provided, however, a city may dispose of real property of any value and personal property valued at ~~ten thousand dollars ($10,000)~~ thirty thousand dollars ($30,000) or more for any one item or group of similar items by private negotiation and sale where (i) said real or personal property is significant for its architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its relationship to other property significant for architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural or historical associations, or significant for its natural, scenic or open condition; and (ii) said real or personal property is to be sold to a nonprofit corporation or trust whose purposes include the preservation or conservation of real or personal properties of architectural, archaeological, artistic, cultural, historical, natural or scenic significance; and (iii) where a preservation agreement or conservation agreement as defined in G.S. 121-35 is placed in the deed conveying said property from the city to the nonprofit corporation or trust. Said nonprofit corporation or trust shall only dispose of or use said real or personal property subject to covenants or other legally binding restrictions which will promote the preservation or conservation of the property, and, where appropriate, secure rights of public access.

(c) A city council may adopt regulations prescribing procedures for disposing of personal property valued at less than ~~five hundred dollars ($500.00)~~ five thousand dollars ($5,000) for any one item or group of items in substitution for the requirements of this Article. The regulations shall be designed to secure for the city fair market value for all property disposed of and to accomplish the disposal efficiently and economically. The regulations may, but need not, require published notice, and may provide for either public or private exchanges and sales. The council may authorize one or more city officials to declare surplus any personal property valued at less than ~~five hundred dollars ($500.00)~~ five thousand dollars ($5,000) for any one item or group of items, to set its fair market value, and to convey title to the property for the city in accord with the regulations. A city official authorized under this section to dispose of property ~~shall, on the first day of February, report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from July 1 through December 31 of the previous year, and shall on the first day of August report in writing to the council on any property disposed of under such authorization from January 1 through June 30 of that year. The written report~~ shall keep a record of all property sold under this section and that record shall generally describe the property sold or exchanged, to whom it was sold, or with whom exchanged, and the amount of money or other consideration received for each sale or ~~exchange since the last such report was submitted.~~ exchange."

Section 7. Article 8 of Chapter 143 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 143-129.7. Purchase with trade-in of apparatus, supplies, materials, and equipment.

Notwithstanding the provisions of Article 12 of Chapter 160A of the General Statutes, municipalities, counties, and other political subdivisions of the State may include in specifications for the purchase of apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment an opportunity for bidders to purchase as 'trade-in' specified personal property owned by the municipality, county, or other political subdivision, and the awarding authority may award a contract for both the purchase of the apparatus, supplies, materials, or equipment and the sale of trade-in property, taking into consideration the amount offered on the trade-in when applying the criteria for award established in this Article."

Section 8. This act raises the threshold amount in G.S. 143-129 and G.S. 160A-266. If any local act provides a threshold amount for the subjects addressed in these statutes that is less than the amount provided in this act, this act prevails to the extent of that conflict.

Section 9. This act becomes effective July 1, 1997.

AN ACT TO AMEND THE LAW GOVERNING DISSENTERS' RIGHTS PROCEDURES AND THE FILING OF DOCUMENTS BY LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANIES, TO ALLOW FACSIMILE SIGNATURES AND ADVISORY REVIEW OF DOCUMENTS BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE, AND TO CLARIFY CORRECTIONS PROCEDURES, LIMITED LIABILITY NAME AVAILABILITY, AND THE DEFINITION OF FOREIGN PROFESSIONAL CORPORATIONS AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

PART I. AMENDMENT OF DISSENTERS' RIGHTS PROCEDURES.

Section 1. G.S. 55-13-22(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The dissenters' notice must be sent no later than 10 days after ~~the corporate action was taken,~~ shareholder approval, or if no shareholder approval is required, after the approval of the board of directors, of the corporate action creating dissenters' rights under G.S. 55-13-02, and must:

(1) State where the payment demand must be sent and where and when certificates for certificated shares must be deposited;

(2) Inform holders of uncertificated shares to what extent transfer of the shares will be restricted after the payment demand is received;

(3) Supply a form for demanding payment;

(4) Set a date by which the corporation must receive the payment demand, which date may not be fewer than 30 nor more than 60 days after the date the subsection (a) notice is mailed; and

(5) Be accompanied by a copy of this Article."

Section 2. G.S. 55-13-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-30. Court action.

(a) If a demand for payment under G.S. 55-13-28 remains unsettled, the dissenter may commence a proceeding within 60 days after the date of his payment demand under G.S. 55-13-28 ~~and petition the court~~ by filing a complaint with the Superior Court Division of the General Court of Justice to determine the fair value of the shares and accrued interest. ~~Upon~~ Within 10 days after service upon it of the ~~petition filed with the court,~~ complaint, the corporation shall pay to the dissenter the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25.

(a1) If the dissenter does not commence the proceeding within the 60-day period, the dissenter shall have an additional 30 days to either (i) accept in writing the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25, upon which the corporation shall pay such amount to the dissenter in full satisfaction of his demand, or (ii) withdraw his demand for payment and resume the status of a nondissenting shareholder. A dissenter who takes no action within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

(b) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(c) The court shall have the discretion to make all dissenters (whether or not residents of this State) whose demands remain unsettled parties to the proceeding as in an action against their shares and all parties must be served with a copy of the ~~petition.~~ complaint. Nonresidents may be served by registered or certified mail or by publication as provided by law.

(d) The jurisdiction of the superior court in which the proceeding is commenced under ~~subsection (b)~~ subsection (a) is plenary and exclusive. The court may appoint one or more persons as appraisers to receive evidence and recommend decision on the question of fair value. The appraisers have the powers described in the order appointing them, or in any amendment to it. The parties are entitled to the same discovery rights as parties in other civil proceedings. The proceeding shall be tried as in other civil actions. However, in a proceeding by a dissenter in a ~~public corporation,~~ corporation that was a public corporation immediately prior to consummation of the corporate action giving rise to the right of dissent under G.S. 55-13-02, there is no right to a trial by jury.

(e) Each dissenter made a party to the proceeding is entitled to judgment for the amount, if any, by which the court finds the fair value of his shares, plus interest, exceeds the amount paid by the corporation."

PART II. ADVISORY REVIEW OF PRELIMINARY DRAFTS OF DOCUMENTS.

Section 3. Article 1 of Chapter 55 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 55-1-22.2. Advisory review of documents.

The Secretary of State shall provide for the review of a document prior to its submission for filing to determine whether it satisfies the requirements of this Chapter. Submission of a document for review shall be accompanied by the proper fee and shall be in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State. The advisory review shall be completed within 24 hours after submission, excluding weekends and holidays, unless the person submitting the document is otherwise notified in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State fixing priority between submissions under this section and filings under G.S. 55-1-22.1. Upon completion of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the person submitting the document of any deficiencies in the document that would prevent its filing."

PART II. ANNUAL CORPORATE REPORT.

Section 7. G.S. 55-16-22 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-16-22. Annual ~~report for Secretary of State.~~ report.

(a) ~~Each~~ Except as provided in subsections (a1) and (a2) of this section, each domestic corporation ~~except those governed by Chapter 55B,~~ and each foreign corporation authorized to transact business in this ~~State,~~ State shall deliver ~~to the Secretary of State for filing an annual report that sets forth:~~ an annual report to the Secretary of Revenue.

(a1) Each insurance company subject to the provisions of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes shall deliver an annual report to the Secretary of State.

(a2) A domestic corporation governed by Chapter 55B of the General Statutes is exempt from this section.

(a3) The annual report required by this section shall be in a form jointly prescribed by the Secretary of Revenue and the Secretary of State. The Secretary of Revenue shall provide the form needed to file an annual report. The annual report shall set forth all of the following:

(1) The name of the corporation and the state or country under whose law it is ~~incorporated;~~ incorporated.

(2) The street address, and the mailing address if different from the street address, of the registered office, the county in which its registered office is located, and the name of its registered agent at that office in this State, and a statement of any change of such registered office or registered agent, or ~~both;~~ both.

(3) The address and telephone number of its principal ~~office;~~ office.

(4) The names, titles, and business addresses of its principal ~~officers;~~ officers.

~~(4a) The names and business addresses of its directors; and~~

(5) A brief description of the nature of its business.

If the information contained in the most recently filed annual report has not changed, a certification to that effect may be made instead of setting forth the information required by subdivisions (2) through (5) of this subsection.

(b) Information in the annual report must be current as of the date the annual report is executed on behalf of the corporation.

(c) ~~The annual report shall be delivered to the Secretary of State each year within 60 days immediately following the last day of the month in which the domestic corporation was incorporated or the foreign corporation received a certificate of authority in this State. Forms required for the filing of the annual report shall be mailed by the Secretary of State to the domestic or foreign corporation at its registered office for the first annual report, then to its principal office for subsequent annual reports.~~ An annual report required to be delivered to the Secretary of Revenue is due by the due date for filing the corporation's income and franchise tax returns. An extension of time to file a return is an extension of time to file an annual report. An annual report required to be delivered to the Secretary of State is due by the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the corporation's fiscal year.

(d) If an annual report does not contain the information required by this section, the Secretary of State shall promptly notify the reporting domestic or foreign corporation in writing and return the report to it for correction. If the report is corrected to contain the information required by this section and delivered to the Secretary of State within 30 days after the effective date of notice, it is deemed to be timely filed.

(e) Amendments to any previously filed annual report may be filed with the Secretary of State at any time for the purpose of correcting, updating, or augmenting the information contained in ~~such~~ the annual report.

(f) Expired.

(g) When a statement of change of registered office or registered agent is filed in the annual report, the change shall become effective when the statement is received by the Secretary of State.

(h) If the Secretary of State does not receive an annual report within 120 days of the date the return is due, the Secretary of State may presume that the annual report is delinquent. This presumption may be rebutted by receipt of the annual report from the Secretary of Revenue or by evidence of delivery presented by the filing corporation."

Section 8. G.S. 55-1-21(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The Secretary of State may promulgate and furnish on request forms ~~for:~~ for the following:

(1) An application for a certificate of ~~existence;~~ existence.

(2) A foreign corporation's application for a certificate of authority to transact business in this ~~State;~~ State.

(3) A foreign corporation's application for a certificate of ~~withdrawal; and~~ withdrawal.

~~(4) The annual report.~~

If the Secretary of State so requires, use of these forms is mandatory."

Section 9. G.S. 55-1-22(a), as amended by Section 4 of this act, reads as rewritten:

"(a) The Secretary of State shall collect the following fees when the documents described in this subsection are delivered to the Secretary for filing:

(5)	Application for renewal of registered name	10.00
(6)	Corporation's statement of change of registered agent or registered office or both	5.00
(7)	Agent's statement of change of registered office for each affected corporation	5.00
(8)	Agent's statement of resignation	No fee
(9)	Designation of registered agent or registered office or both	5.00
(10)	Amendment of articles of incorporation	50.00
(11)	Restated articles of incorporation	10.00
	with amendment of articles	50.00
(12)	Articles of merger or share exchange	50.00
(13)	Articles of dissolution	30.00
(14)	Articles of revocation of dissolution	10.00
(15)	Certificate of administrative dissolution	No fee
(16)	Application for reinstatement following administrative dissolution	100.00
(17)	Certificate of reinstatement	No fee
(18)	Certificate of judicial dissolution	No fee
(19)	Application for certificate of authority	200.00
(20)	Application for amended certificate of authority	50.00
(21)	Application for certificate of withdrawal	10.00

(22)	Certificate of revocation of authority to transact business	No fee
(23)	Annual report	~~10.00~~ 20.00
(24)	Articles of correction	10.00

(26)	Any other document required or permitted to be filed by this Chapter	10.00."

Section 10. G.S. 55-1-28(b)(4) reads as rewritten:

"(4) That its most recent annual report required by G.S. 55-16-22 has either been delivered to the Secretary of ~~State;~~ State or is not delinquent;".

Section 11. G.S. 55-14-20(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) The corporation ~~does not deliver its annual report to the Secretary of State within 60 days after it is due;~~ is delinquent in delivering its annual report;".

Section 12. G.S. 55-15-30(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) The foreign corporation ~~does not deliver its annual report to the Secretary of State within 60 days after it is due;~~ is delinquent in delivering its annual report;".

Section 13. G.S. 55-16-01(e)(7) reads as rewritten:

"(7) Its most recent annual report delivered ~~to the Secretary of State under~~ as required by G.S. 55-16-22."

Section 14. G.S. 57C-2-23 reads as rewritten:

"§ 57C-2-23. Annual report for Secretary of State.

(a) Each domestic limited liability company and each foreign limited liability company authorized to transact business in this State, shall deliver to the Secretary of State for filing an annual ~~report~~ report, in a form jointly prescribed by the Secretary of Revenue and Secretary of State, that sets ~~forth:~~ forth all of the following:

(1) The name of the limited liability or foreign limited liability company and the state or country under whose law it is ~~organized;~~ organized.

(2) The street address, and the mailing address if different from the street address, of the registered office, the county in which the registered office is located, and the name of its registered agent at that office in this State, and a statement of any change of the registered office or registered agent, or ~~both;~~ both.

(3) The address and telephone number of its principal ~~office;~~ office.

(4) The names and business addresses of its ~~managers; and~~ managers.

(5) A brief description of the nature of its business.

If the information contained in the most recently filed annual report has not changed, a certification to that effect may be made instead of setting forth the information required by subdivisions (2) through (5) of this subsection. The Secretary of State shall make available the form required to file an annual report.

(b) Information in the annual report must be current as of the date the annual report is executed on behalf of the limited liability company or the foreign limited liability company.

(c) The annual report shall be delivered to the Secretary of State ~~each year within 60 days immediately following the last day of the month in which the domestic limited liability company was organized or the foreign limited liability company received a certificate of authority in this State. Forms required for the filing of the annual report shall be mailed by the Secretary of State to the domestic or foreign limited liability company at its registered office for the first annual report, and then to its principal office for subsequent annual reports.~~ by the fifteenth day of the fourth month following the close of the limited liability company's fiscal year.

(d) If an annual report does not contain the information required by this section, the Secretary of State shall promptly notify the reporting domestic or foreign limited liability company in writing and return the report to it for correction. If the report is corrected to contain the information required by this section and delivered to the Secretary of State within 30 days after the effective date of notice, it is deemed to be timely filed.

(e) Amendments to any previously filed annual report may be filed with the Secretary of State at any time for the purpose of correcting, updating, or augmenting the information contained in the annual report."

Section 15. G.S. 57C-1-22(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The Secretary of State shall collect a fee of ten dollars ($10.00) each time process is served on the Secretary of State under this Chapter. The party to a proceeding causing service of process is entitled to recover this fee as costs if ~~he~~ the party prevails in the proceeding."

Section 16. G.S. 57C-3-25(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Any person dealing with a limited liability company or a foreign limited liability company may rely conclusively upon its most recent annual report and any amendments ~~thereto filed with~~ to it on file with the Secretary of State ~~pursuant to G.S. 57C-2-23~~ as to the identity of its managers, except to the extent the person has actual knowledge that a person identified therein as a manager is not a manager."

(2) Inform holders of uncertificated shares to what extent transfer of the shares will be restricted after the payment demand is received;
(3) Supply a form for demanding payment;
(4) Set a date by which the corporation must receive the payment demand, which date may not be fewer than 30 nor more than 60 days after the date the subsection (a) notice is mailed; and
(5) Be accompanied by a copy of this Article."

Section 21. G.S. 55-13-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-30. Court action.

(a) If a demand for payment under G.S. 55-13-28 remains unsettled, the dissenter may commence a proceeding within 60 days after the date of his payment demand under G.S. 55-13-28 ~~and petition the court~~ by filing a complaint with the Superior Court Division of the General Court of Justice to determine the fair value of the shares and accrued interest. ~~Upon~~ Within 10 days after service upon it of the ~~petition filed with the court,~~ complaint, the corporation shall pay to the dissenter the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25.

(a1) If the dissenter does not commence the proceeding within the 60-day period, the dissenter shall have an additional 30 days to either (i) accept in writing the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25, upon which the corporation shall pay such amount to the dissenter in full satisfaction of his demand, or (ii) withdraw his demand for payment and resume the status of a nondissenting shareholder. A dissenter who takes no action within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

(b) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(c) The court shall have the discretion to make all dissenters (whether or not residents of this State) whose demands remain unsettled parties to the proceeding as in an action against their shares and all parties must be served with a copy of the ~~petition.~~ complaint. Nonresidents may be served by registered or certified mail or by publication as provided by law.

(d) The jurisdiction of the superior court in which the proceeding is commenced under ~~subsection (b)~~ subsection (a) is plenary and exclusive. The court may appoint one or more persons as appraisers to receive evidence and recommend decision on the question of fair value. The appraisers have the powers described in the order appointing them, or in any amendment to it. The parties are entitled to the same discovery rights as parties in other civil proceedings. The proceeding shall be tried as in other civil actions. However, in a proceeding by a dissenter in a ~~public corporation,~~ corporation that was a public corporation immediately prior to consummation of the corporate action giving rise to the right of dissent under G.S. 55-13-02, there is no right to a trial by jury.

(e) Each dissenter made a party to the proceeding is entitled to judgment for the amount, if any, by which the court finds the fair value of his shares, plus interest, exceeds the amount paid by the corporation."

PART IV. ADVISORY REVIEW OF PRELIMINARY DRAFTS OF DOCUMENTS.

Section 22. Article 1 of Chapter 55 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 55-1-22.2. Advisory review of documents.

The Secretary of State shall provide for the review of a document prior to its submission for filing to determine whether it satisfies the requirements of this Chapter. Submission of a document for review shall be accompanied by the proper fee and shall be in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State. The advisory review shall be completed within 24 hours after submission, excluding weekends and holidays, unless the person submitting the document is otherwise notified in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State fixing priority between submissions under this section and filings under G.S. 55-1-22.1. Upon completion of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the person submitting the document of any deficiencies in the document that would prevent its filing."

Section 23. Article 1 of Chapter 55A of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 55A-1-22.2. Advisory review of documents.

The Secretary of State shall provide for the review of a document prior to its submission for filing to determine whether it satisfies the requirements of this Chapter. Submission of a document for review shall be accompanied by the proper fee and shall be in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State. At the time of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the State. The advisory review shall be completed within 24 hours after submission, excluding weekends and holidays, unless the person submitting the document is otherwise notified in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State fixing priority between submissions under this section and filings under G.S. 55A-1-22.1. Upon completion of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the person submitting the document of any deficiencies in the document that would prevent its filing."

Section 24. Article 1 of Chapter 57C of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 57C-1-22.2. Advisory review of documents.

The Secretary of State shall provide for the review of a document prior to its submission for filing to determine whether it satisfies the requirements of this Chapter. Submission of a document for review shall be accompanied by the proper fee and shall be in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State. The advisory review shall be completed within 24 hours after submission, excluding weekends and holidays, unless the person submitting the document is otherwise notified in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State fixing priority between submissions under this section and filings under G.S. 57C-1-22.1. Upon completion of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the person submitting the document of any deficiencies in the document that would prevent its filing."

Section 25. Article 5 of Chapter 59 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 59-206.2. Advisory review of documents.

The Secretary of State shall provide for the review of a document prior to its submission for filing to determine whether it satisfies the requirements of this Article. Submission of a document for review shall be accompanied by the proper fee and shall be in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State. The advisory review shall be completed within 24 hours after submission, excluding weekends and holidays, unless the person submitting the document is otherwise notified in accordance with procedures adopted by rule by the Secretary of State fixing priority between submissions under this section and expedited filings as authorized by G.S. 59-1106. Upon completion of the advisory review, the Secretary of State shall notify the person submitting the document of any deficiencies in the document that would prevent its filing."

Section 26. G.S. 55-1-22(a), as amended by Sections 4 and 9 of this act, reads as rewritten:

Upon receipt of a document in proper form and payment of the required filing fee, the Secretary of State shall guarantee the expedited filing of the document."

PART V. CLARIFICATION OF ARTICLES OF CORRECTION PROCEDURES.

Section 30. G.S. 55-1-24(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A domestic or foreign corporation may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (1) contains ~~an incorrect statement~~ a statement that is incorrect and was incorrect when the document was filed or (2) was defectively executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged."

Section 31. G.S. 55A-1-24(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A domestic or foreign corporation may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (i) contains ~~an incorrect statement~~ a statement that is incorrect and was incorrect when the document was filed or (ii) was defectively executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged."

Section 32. G.S. 57C-1-24(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A domestic or foreign limited liability company may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (i) contains ~~an incorrect statement~~ a statement that is incorrect and was incorrect when the document was filed or (ii) was defectively ~~executed.~~ executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged."

Section 33. G.S. 59-206(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(2b) A domestic or foreign limited partnership may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (i) contains a statement that is incorrect and was incorrect when the document was filed or (ii) was defectively executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged."

PART VI. RESTATEMENT OF LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY ARTICLES OF ORGANIZATION.

Section 34. Article 2 of Chapter 57C of the General Statues is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 57C-2-22.1. Restated articles of organization.

(a) A limited liability company may restate its articles of organization at any time with or without member action.

(b) The restated articles of organization may include one or more amendments to the articles. Unless otherwise provided in the articles of organization or a written operating agreement, any amendment requires the unanimous vote of the members. The restated articles of organization may include a statement of the address of the current registered office and the name of the current registered agent of the limited liability company.

(c) A limited liability company restating its articles of organization shall deliver to the Secretary of State for filing articles of restatement that:

(1) Set forth the name of the limited liability company.

(2) Attach as an exhibit thereto the text of the restated articles of organization.

(3) State that the restated articles of organization do not contain an amendment or, if the articles do contain an amendment, that there is an amendment that was approved as required by this Chapter.

(d) Duly adopted restated articles of organization supersede the original articles of organization and all amendments to them.

(e) The Secretary of State may certify restated articles of organization as the articles of organization currently in effect, without including the other information required by subsection (c) of this section."

PART VII. CANCELLATION OF ARTICLES OF DISSOLUTION OF LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

Section 35. Article 6 of Chapter 57C is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 57C-6-06.1. Cancellation of articles of dissolution.

After the filing of articles of dissolution by a limited liability company dissolved pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-01(4) because of the happening of an event of withdrawal, the articles of dissolution may be cancelled if, within 90 days after the event of withdrawal, all remaining members agree in writing that the business of the limited liability company should be continued and the limited liability company files articles of cancellation with the Secretary of State. The Articles of Cancellation shall set forth:

(1) The name of the limited liability company;

(2) The date of the event of withdrawal described in the articles of dissolution;

(3) The date of filing of the company's articles of dissolution;

(4) A statement that within 90 days after the event of withdrawal, all remaining members have agreed in writing that the business of the limited liability company may be continued; and

(5) Any other information the members or managers filing the articles of cancellation determine."

Section 36. G.S. 57C-1-22(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The Secretary of State shall collect the following fees when the documents described in this subsection are delivered to the Secretary of State for filing:

PART VIII. AVAILABILITY OF LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY NAME.

Section 37. G.S. 57C-2-30(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The name of a limited liability company dissolved under ~~G.S. 57C-6-03~~ Article 6 of this Chapter may not be used by another limited liability ~~company~~ company, business corporation, nonprofit corporation, or limited partnership ~~until the expiration of two years after the effective date of the dissolution~~ until:

(1) In the case of a dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-01, the later of (i) the date of filing of articles of dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-06 or (ii) the expiration of the time within which articles of dissolution of the limited liability company may be canceled pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-06.1; or

(2) In the case of an administrative dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-03, the expiration of the period within which the limited liability company may be reinstated pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-03, if the limited liability company's period of duration stated in its articles of organization or written operating agreement has not expired, unless the dissolved limited liability company changes its name to a name distinguishable upon the records of the Secretary of State from the names of other limited liability companies, business corporations, nonprofit corporations, or limited partnerships organized or transacting business in this State."

PART IX. AUTHORIZATION OF FACSIMILE SIGNATURES FOR LIMITED PARTNERSHIP DOCUMENTS.

Section 38. G.S. 59-204 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) Any signature on any document authorized to be filed with the Secretary of State under any provision of this Article may be a facsimile."

PART X. MODIFICATION OF DEFINITION OF FOREIGN PROFESSIONAL CORPORATION.

Section 39. G.S. 55B-16(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) For purposes of this section, 'foreign professional corporation' means a corporation for profit ~~that is~~ that:

(1) Is incorporated under a law other than the law of this ~~State~~ State;

(2) Is incorporated for the sole and specific purpose of rendering professional services of the type that if rendered in this State would require the obtaining of a license from a licensing board pursuant to the statutory provisions referred to in ~~G.S. 55B-2(6)~~ G.S. 55B-

2(6); and ~~that (i) has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or some other state, to render the same professional services as the corporation, or (ii) is organized for the purpose of rendering professional services of the type defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E of the General Statutes, and has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or in another state, to render the same professional services as the corporation or who are nonlicensed employees of the corporation, provided that nonlicensed employees own not more than one-third of the total issued and outstanding shares of the corporation, or (iii) is described in G.S. 55B-15.~~

(3) Has as its shareholders only individuals who:

a. Qualify to hold shares of a corporation organized under this Chapter;

b. Are licensed to provide professional services as defined in G.S. 55B-2(6) in a state in which the corporation is incorporated or is authorized to transact business, provided that such professional services are the same as the professional service rendered by the corporation; or

c. Are nonlicensed employees of a corporation rendering services of the type defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E of the General Statutes provided that all such nonlicensed employees own no more than one-third of the total issued and outstanding shares of such corporation in the aggregate."

PART XI. CORRECTION OF DELAYED EFFECTIVE DATE STATUTES FOR LIMITED PARTNERSHIP DOCUMENTS.

Section 40. G.S. 59-201(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) ~~A~~ Unless a delayed effective date is specified in the certificate of limited partnership, a limited partnership is formed at the ~~time~~ effective time and date of the filing of the certificate of limited partnership in the office of the Secretary of State ~~or at any later time not more than 20 days subsequent to the endorsement of the Secretary of State specified in the certificate of limited partnership if, in either case,~~ if there has been substantial compliance with the requirements of this section."

Section 41. G.S. 59-203 reads as rewritten:

"§ 59-203. Cancellation of certificate.

A certificate of limited partnership shall be cancelled upon the dissolution and the commencement of winding up of the partnership or at any other time that there are no limited partners. A certificate of cancellation shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and set forth:

(1) The name of the limited partnership;

(2) The date of filing of its certificate of limited partnership;

(3) The reason for filing the certificate of cancellation;

(4) The effective date ~~(which shall be a date certain not more than 20 days from the date of filing)~~ of cancellation if it is not to be effective upon the filing of the certificate; and

(5) Any other information the partners filing the certificate determine."

PART XII. REMOVAL OF "CONFORMING TO LAW" LANGUAGE IN REVISED UNIFORM LIMITED PARTNERSHIP ACT.

Section 42. G.S. 59-206(a)(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) The original document so signed, together with the conformed copy, shall be delivered to the Secretary of State. ~~Unless~~ If the Secretary finds that it ~~does not conform to law,~~ satisfies the requirements of this Article, the Secretary shall, when the proper fees have been tendered, endorse upon the original the word 'filed' and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof and shall file the same in the Secretary's office. The Secretary of State shall thereupon immediately compare the copy with the original and if the Secretary finds that they are identical the Secretary shall make upon the conformed copy the same endorsement which appears on the original and shall attach to the copy a certificate stating that attached thereto is a true copy of the document, designated by an appropriate title, filed in the Secretary's office and showing the date of the filing. The Secretary shall thereupon return the copy so certified to the limited partnership or its representatives. Any documents filed with the Secretary of State pursuant to this Chapter may be maintained by the Secretary either in their original form or in photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other reproduced form. The Secretary may make reproductions of documents filed under this Chapter, or under any predecessor act, by photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other means of reproduction, and may destroy the originals of the documents reproduced. The Secretary of State may correct apparent errors and omissions on a document submitted for filing if authorized to make the corrections by the person submitting the document for filing. The authorization to make the corrections shall be confirmed, according to procedures adopted by rule, by the Secretary prior to making the correction."

Section 43. G.S. 59-903(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If the Secretary of State finds that an application ~~conforms to law he~~ satisfies the requirements of this Article, the Secretary shall, when all requisite fees have been tendered as in this Article prescribed:

(1) Endorse on the application the word 'filed', and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof;

(2) File in ~~his~~ the office the application;

(3) Issue a certificate of authority to transact business in this State to which ~~he~~ the Secretary shall affix the conformed copy of the application; and

(4) Send to the foreign limited partnership or its representative the certificate of authority, together with the conformed copy of the application affixed thereto."

PART XIII. EFFECTIVE DATES.

Section 44. (a) Sections 1 through 6 and Section 19 of this act become effective July 1, 1997. Sections 7 through 18 of this act become effective January 1, 1998, and apply to tax years ending on or after December 31, 1997, in the case of corporations required to file annual reports with the Secretary of Revenue and to fiscal years ending on or after December 31, 1997, in the case of corporations required to file annual reports with the Secretary of State. Sections 30 through 33, 39, 42, 43, and 44 of this act are effective when the act becomes law. The remainder of this act becomes effective October 1, 1997. Section 20 of this act applies to dissenter's rights created pursuant to G.S. 55-13-02 on or after October 1, 1997, and Section 21 of this act applies to proceedings commenced on or after October 1, 1997. Sections 22 through 29 of this act apply to requests for review of documents on or after that date.

(b) Annual reports delivered to either the Secretary of State or the Secretary of Revenue after December 31, 1997, but before January 1999, shall nevertheless be deemed filed with the correct State agency. The Secretary of State shall notify the Secretary of Revenue of reports erroneously filed with the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of Revenue shall notify the Secretary of State of reports erroneously filed with the Secretary of Revenue.

MEMORANDUM

TO: House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: General Statutes Commission

DATE: May 2, 1997

RE: Senate Bill 157 (Corporate Amendments)

General Comments

Senate Bill 157 amends various statutes relating to business corporations, nonprofit corporations, professional corporations, limited liability companies, and limited partnerships. The bill amends the law governing dissenters' rights procedures and the filing of documents by limited liability companies; allows facsimile signatures and advisory review of documents by the Secretary of State; and clarifies corrections procedures, limited liability company name availability, and the definition of foreign professional corporations. Parts II through XI of this bill were prepared in cooperation with the Office of the Secretary of State.

Specific Comments

Part I. Amendment of Dissenters' Rights Procedures.

This Part amends G.S. 55-13-22(b) to eliminate an ambiguity caused by the term "corporate action" by making it clear that the term refers to shareholder approval, or if no shareholder approval is required, then approval of the board of directors, of the corporate transaction creating dissenters' rights under G.S. 55-13-02. The Part also amends G.S. 55-13-30: (1) to clarify that a dissenters' rights proceeding is a civil action that must be heard by a superior court judge and is local rather than transitory in nature; (2) to specify a period of time within which a corporation must pay a dissenting shareholder after a complaint in a dissenters' rights proceeding is served on the corporation; and (3) to clarify that there is no right to a jury trial in a proceeding by a dissenter in a public corporation that was a public corporation immediately prior to consummation of the corporate action, e.g. merger, creating the right of dissent.

Part II. Advisory Review of Preliminary Drafts of Documents.

This Part amends Chapters 55, 55A, and 57C to provide explicit authority for the Secretary of State to perform an advance review of documents to be submitted for filing at a later date. The Part also authorizes the Secretary of State to charge a fee of $200 for the review.

Part III. Clarification of Articles of Correction Procedures.

This Part clarifies that articles of correction may be used to correct an incorrect statement in a filed document only if the statement was incorrect when the document was filed. The Part also amends Chapter 59 to permit a limited partnership to correct an incorrect statement in a document filed with the Secretary of State.

Part IV. Restatement of Limited Liability Company Articles of Organization.

This Part adds a new section to Chapter 57C to permit limited liability companies to file restated articles of organization. G.S. 57C-1-22(a) presently authorizes the Secretary of State to collect filing fees for restated articles of organization, both with and without amendments, but Chapter 57C otherwise contains no explicit authority for restated articles.

Part V. Cancellation of Articles of Dissolution of Limited Liability Company.

This Part adds a new section to Chapter 57C to permit limited liability companies to cancel articles of dissolution. The Part also makes a conforming amendment to G.S. 57C-1-22(a).

Part VI. Availability of Limited Liability Company Name.

This Part authorizes the Secretary of State to permit the name of a dissolved limited liability company to be used by another company once it is certain that the dissolved company cannot be returned to an active status either by vote of the members to carry on the business or by reinstatement from administrative dissolution.

Part VII. Authorization of Facsimile Signatures for Limited Partnership Documents.

This Part permits limited partnerships to use facsimile signatures on any document authorized to be filed with the Secretary of State. The Part brings the limited partnership statutes in conformity with the statutes governing business corporations, nonprofit corporations, and limited liability companies.

Part VIII. Modification of Definition of Foreign Professional Corporation.

This Part eliminates a conflict between G.S. 55B-15, which excludes from the scope of the Professional Corporation Act grandfathered business corporations (those incorporated and engaging in professional services prior to June 5, 1969), and G.S. 55B-16, which requires foreign grandfathered corporations applying for certificates of authority to meet the requirements contained in G.S. 55B-16(a).

Part IX. Correction of Delayed Effective Date Statutes for Limited Partnership Documents.

This Part eliminates the 20-day delayed effective date provision in G.S. 59-201(b) for a certificate of limited partnership and in G.S. 59-203(4) for a certificate of cancellation. These provisions conflict with the 90-day delayed effective date provision in G.S. 59-206(b2) for any limited partnership document. The elimination of this conflict conforms the delayed effective date limits for limited partnerships to the delayed effective date limits authorized for business corporations, nonprofit corporations, and limited liability companies.

Part X. Removal of "Conforming to Law" Language in Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act.

This Part requires the Secretary of State to file a limited partnership document if it satisfies the requirements of the Revised Uniform Limited Partnership Act, G.S. 59-101 et seq., rather than if the document conforms to law. The Part brings the limited partnership statutes in conformity with the statutes governing business corporations, nonprofit corporations, and limited liability companies.

Part XI. Effective Dates.

This Part contains effective date and applicability provisions.

This section differs in two respects from the Model Act. First, it specifies 11:59:59 P.M. (rather than the close of business) as the time of effectiveness of documents that specify a delayed effective date but no time. Second, it makes explicit in subsection (c) the limited effect of the Secretary of State's acceptance of documents for filing. This is probably implicit under the Model Act. See North Carolina Comment to G.S. 55-1-25(d), infra.

§ 55-1-24. Correcting filed document.

(a) A domestic or foreign corporation may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (1) contains an incorrect statement or (2) was defectively executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged.

(b) A document is corrected:

(1) By preparing articles of correction that (i) describe the document (including its filing date) or attach a copy of it to the articles, (ii) specify the incorrect statement and the reason it is incorrect or the manner in which the execution was defective, and (iii) correct the incorrect statement or defective execution; and

(2) By delivering the articles to the Secretary of State for filing.

(c) Articles of correction are effective on the effective date of the document they correct except as to persons relying on the uncorrected document and adversely affected by the correction. As to those persons, articles of correction are effective when filed. (1989, c. 265, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Section 1.24 permits making corrections in filed documents without refiling the entire document or submitting formal articles of amendment. This correction procedure has two advantages: (1) filing articles of correction may be less expensive than refiling the document or filing articles of amendment, and (2) articles of correction do not alter the effective date of the underlying document being corrected. Indeed, under section 1.24(c), even the correction relates back to the original effective date of the document except as to persons relying on the original document and adversely affected by the correction. As to these persons, the effective date of articles of correction is the date the articles are filed.

A document may be corrected either because it contains an "incorrect statement" or because it was defectively executed (including defects in optional forms of execution that do not affect the eligibility of the original document for filing).

A provision in a document setting an effective date (section 1.23) may be corrected under this section, but the corrected effective date must comply with section 1.23 measured from the date of the original filing of the document being corrected, i.e. it cannot be before the date of filing of the document or more than 90 days thereafter.

NORTH CAROLINA COMMENTARY

This section is substantially the same as section 13.21 of the Model Act with minor clarifying changes.

§ 55-13-22. Dissenters' notice.

(a) If proposed corporate action creating dissenters' rights under G.S. 55-13-02 is authorized at a shareholders' meeting, the corporation shall mail by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, a written dissenters' notice to all shareholders who satisfied the requirements of G.S. 55-13-21.

(b) The dissenters' notice must be sent no later than 10 days after the corporate action was taken, and must:

(1) State where the payment demand must be sent and where and when certificates for certificated shares must be deposited;
(2) Inform holders of uncertificated shares to what extent transfer of the shares will be restricted after the payment demand is received;
(3) Supply a form for demanding payment;
(4) Set a date by which the corporation must receive the payment demand, which date may not be fewer than 30 nor more than 60 days after the date the subsection (a) notice is mailed; and
(5) Be accompanied by a copy of this Article. (1925, c. 77, s. 1; 1943, c. 270; G.S., s. 55-167; 1955, c. 1371, s. 1; 1969, c. 751, s. 39; 1973, c. 469, ss. 36, 37; 1989, c. 265, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The basic purpose of section 13.22 is to require the corporation to tell all actual or potential dissenters what they must do in order to take advantage of their right of dissent. The requirements of what this notice (called a "dissenters' notice") must contain are spelled out in detail to ensure that this notice serves this basic purpose.

In the case of an action that is submitted to the vote of shareholders, the dissenters' notice must be sent only to those persons who gave notice of their intention to dissent under section 13.21 and who refrained from voting in favor of the proposed actions. In the case of a transaction not involving a vote by shareholders, the dissenters' notice must be sent to all persons who are eligible to dissent and demand payment. In either case the dissenters' notice must be sent within 10 days after the corporate action is taken and must be accompanied by a copy of this chapter.

The notice must contain or be accompanied by a form which a person asserting dissenters' right may use to complete the demand for payment under section 13.23. The form must specify the date by which it must be received by the corporation, which date must be at least 30 days after the effective date of the notice of how to demand payment.

The dissenters' notice must also specify where and when share certificates must be deposited, or, in the case of uncertificated shares, when restrictions on transfer will become effective under section 13.24. The date for deposit of share certificates may not be set at a date earlier than the date for receiving the demand for payment.

Section 13.22(b)(3) requires the corporation to specify the date of the first announcement to news media or to shareholders of the terms of the proposed corporate action. This is the critical date for determining the rights of shareholder-transferees: persons who became shareholders prior to that date are entitled to the full right to dissent and obtain payment for their shares, while persons who became shareholders on or after that date are entitled only to the more lim-

(c) The Secretary of State shall collect the following fees for copying, comparing, and certifying a copy of any filed document relating to a domestic or foreign corporation:

(1) One dollar ($1.00) a page for copying or comparing a copy to the original; and

(2) Five dollars ($5.00) for the certificate. (1957, c. 1179; 1967, c. 823, s. 24; 1969, c. 875, s. 10; 1975, 2nd Sess., c. 981, s. 2; 1983, c. 713, ss. 39-42; 1991, c. 574, s. 2; 1993, c. 398, s. 1.)

NORTH CAROLINA COMMENTARY

This section contains a new fee schedule covering documents required or permitted to be filed under the Act. The fees shown here combine the fees and taxes that were separately covered in former G.S. 55A-77 and 55A-78.

§ 55A-1-23. Effective time and date of document.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section and G.S. 55A-1-24(c), a document accepted for filing is effective:

(1) At the time of filing on the date it is filed, as evidenced by the Secretary of State's date and time endorsement on the original document; or

(2) At a later time specified in the document as its effective time on the date it is filed.

(b) A document may specify a delayed effective time and date, and if it does so the document becomes effective at the time and date specified. If a delayed effective date but no time is specified, the document is effective at 11:59:59 p.m. on that date. A delayed effective date for a document shall not be later than the 90th day after the date it is filed.

(c) Except as provided in G.S. 55A-2-03(b), the fact that a document has become effective under this section does not determine its validity or invalidity or the correctness or incorrectness of the information contained in the document. (1955, c. 1230; 1967, c. 13, s. 2; c. 823, s. 21; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 801, s. 2; 1993, c. 398, s. 1.)

§ 55A-1-24. Correcting filed document.

(a) A domestic or foreign corporation may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (i) contains an incorrect statement or (ii) was defectively executed, attested, sealed, verified, or acknowledged.

(b) A document is corrected:

(1) By preparing articles of correction that (i) describe the document (including its filing date) or have attached to them a copy of the document, (ii) specify the incorrect statement and the reason it is incorrect or the manner in which the execution was defective, and (iii) correct the incorrect statement or defective execution; and

(2) By delivering the articles to the Secretary of State for filing.

(c) Articles of correction are effective on the effective date of the document they correct except as to persons who by relying on the uncorrected document are adversely affected by the correction. As to those persons, articles of correction are effective when filed. (1993, c. 398, s. 1.)

Effect of Amendments. — The 1995 amendment, effective October 1, 1995, added the subsection (a) and (b) designations; deleted "provided further that" at the end of subsection (a); in subsection (b) added "Notwithstanding subsection (a) of this section", and deleted "and provided further, that a professional corporation may be formed by a licensed psychologist and a physician practicing psychiatry to render psychotherapeutic and related services" at the end of the subsection; added subsection (c); and made punctuation changes.

§ 55B-15. Applicability of Chapter.

This Chapter shall not apply to any corporation which prior to June 5, 1969, was permitted by law to render professional services as herein defined or to the corporate successor of any such corporation by merger or otherwise by operation of law, provided there is no substantial change in the direct or indirect beneficial ownership of the shares of such corporation as the result of such merger or other transaction; for purposes of this section, a change of twenty percent (20%) or less shall not be considered substantial. Any such corporation or successor corporation rendering "professional service" as defined in G.S. 55B-2(6) may be brought within the provisions of this Chapter by the filing of an amendment to its articles of incorporation declaring that its shareholders have elected to bring the corporation within the provisions of this Chapter and to make the same conform to all of the provisions of this Chapter. (1969, c. 718, s. 15; 1991, c. 645, s. 20.)

§ 55B-16. Foreign professional corporations.

(a) A foreign professional corporation may apply for a certificate of authority to transact business in this State pursuant to the provisions of this Chapter and Chapter 55 of the General Statutes provided that:

(1) The corporation obtains a certificate of registration from the appropriate licensing board or boards in this State;

(2) With respect to each professional service practiced through the corporation in this State, at least one director and one officer shall be a licensee of the licensing board which regulates the profession in this State;

(3) Each officer, employee, and agent of the corporation who will provide professional services to persons in this State shall be a licensee of the appropriate licensing board in this State;

(4) The corporation shall be subject to the applicable rules and regulations adopted by, and all the disciplinary powers of, the appropriate licensing board or boards in this State;

(5) The corporation's activities in this State shall be limited as provided by G.S. 55B-14; and

(6) The application for certificate of authority, in addition to the requirements of G.S. 55-15-03, shall set forth the personal services to be rendered by the foreign professional corporation and the individual or individuals who will satisfy the requirements of G.S. 55B-16(a)(2) and shall be accompanied by a certification by the appropriate licensing board that each individual is a "licensee" as defined in G.S. 55B-2(2) and by additional certifications as may be required to establish that the corporation is a "foreign professional corporation" as defined in G.S. 55B-16(b).

(b) For purposes of this section, "foreign professional corporation" means a corporation for profit that is incorporated under a law other than the law of this State for the sole and specific purpose of rendering professional services of the type that if rendered in this State would require the obtaining of a license from a licensing board pursuant to the statutory provisions referred to in G.S. 55B-2(6) and that (i) has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or some other state, to render the same professional services as the corporation, or (ii) is organized for the purpose of rendering professional services of the type defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E of the General Statutes, and has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or in another state, to render the same professional services as the corporation or who are nonlicensed employees of the corporation, provided that nonlicensed employees own not more than one-third of the total issued and outstanding shares of the corporation, or (iii) is described in G.S. 55B-15.

(c) A foreign professional corporation with a valid certificate or authority has the same but no greater rights and has the same but no greater privileges as, and is subject to the same duties, restrictions, penalties, and liabilities now or later imposed on, a domestic professional corporation of like character, except that the provisions of G.S. 55B-6 and G.S. 55B-7 shall not apply. (1995, c. 351, s. 18.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 351, s. 22, made this section effective October 1, 1995.

(2) Five dollars ($5.00) for the certificate. (1993, c. 354, s. 1.)

§ 57C-1-23. Effective time and date of document.

(a) Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section and G.S. 57C-1-24(c), a document accepted for filing is effective:

(1) At the time of filing on the date it is filed, as evidenced by the Secretary of State's date and time endorsement on the original document; or

(2) At the time specified in the document as its effective time on the date it is filed.

(b) A document may specify a delayed effective time and date, and if it does so the document becomes effective at the time and date specified. If a delayed effective date but no time is specified, the document is effective at 11:59 p.m. Raleigh, North Carolina, time on that date. A delayed effective date for a document may not be later than the 90th day after the date it is filed.

(c) The fact that a document has become effective under this section does not determine its validity or invalidity or the correctness or incorrectness of the information contained in the document. (1993, c. 354, s. 1.)

§ 57C-1-24. Correcting filed document.

(a) A domestic or foreign limited liability company may correct a document filed by the Secretary of State if the document (i) contains an incorrect statement or (ii) was defectively executed.

(b) A document is corrected:

(1) By preparing articles of correction that (i) describe the document (including its filing date) or attach a copy of it to the articles, (ii) specify the incorrect statement and the reason it is incorrect or the manner in which the execution was defective, and (iii) correct the incorrect statement or defective execution; and

(2) By delivering the articles of correction to the Secretary of State for filing.

(c) Articles of correction are effective on the effective date of the document they correct except as to persons relying on the uncorrected document and adversely affected by the correction. As to those persons, articles of correction are effective when filed. (1993, c. 354, s. 1.)

§ 57C-1-25. Filing duty of Secretary of State.

(a) If a document delivered to the Office of the Secretary of State for filing satisfies the requirements of this Chapter, the Secretary of State shall file it.

(b) The Secretary of State files a document by stamping or otherwise endorsing "Filed", together with his name and official title and the date and time of filing, on both the original and the document copy. After filing a document, the Secretary of State shall deliver the document copy to the domestic or foreign limited liability company or its representative.

Part 3. Name.

§ 57C-2-30. Name.

(a) The name of a limited liability company:

(1) Must contain the words "limited liability company" or the abbreviation "L.L.C." or "LLC", or the combination "ltd. liability co.", "limited liability co.", or "ltd. liability company";

(2) May not contain language stating or implying that the limited liability company is organized for a purpose other than that permitted by G.S. 57C-2-01 and its articles of organization; and

(3) If the limited liability company is authorized to engage in rendering professional services, must comply with G.S. 57C-2-01(c).

(b) Except as authorized by subsection (c) of this section, the name of a limited liability company must be distinguishable upon the records of the Secretary of State from:

(1) The name of a corporation, nonprofit corporation, limited partnership, or limited liability company organized in this State, or a foreign corporation or nonprofit corporation, foreign limited partnership, or foreign limited liability company authorized to transact business in this State;

(2) A name reserved under G.S. 55-4-02, 55-4-03, 57C-2-31, 57C-2-32, or 59-104; and

(3) The fictitious name adopted by a foreign corporation, foreign limited partnership, or foreign limited liability company authorized to transact business in this State because its real name is unavailable.

(c) A person may apply to the Secretary of State for authorization to use a name that is not distinguishable upon the Secretary of State's records from one or more of the names described in subsection (b) of this section. The Secretary of State shall authorize use of the name applied for if:

(1) The other person who has or uses the name or who has reserved or registered the name consents to the use in writing and submits an undertaking in a form satisfactory to the Secretary of State to change its name to a name that is distinguishable upon the records of the Secretary of State from the name of the applicant; or

(2) The applicant delivers to the Secretary of State a certified copy of the final judgment of a court of competent jurisdiction establishing the applicant's right to use the name applied for in this State.

Part 4. Registered Office and Registered Agent.

§ 57C-2-41. Change of registered office or registered agent.

(a) A limited liability company may change its registered office or registered agent by delivering to the Secretary of State for filing a statement of change that sets forth:

(1) The name of the limited liability company;

(2) The street address, and the mailing address if different from the street address, of the limited liability company's current registered office, and the county in which it is located;

(3) If the address of the limited liability company's registered office is to be changed, the street address, and the mailing address if different from the street address, of the new registered office, and the county in which it is located;

(4) The name of its current registered agent;

(5) If the current registered agent is to be changed, the name of the new registered agent and the new registered agent's written consent (either on the statement or attached to it) to the appointment; and

(6) That after the change or changes are made, the addresses of its registered office and the business office of its registered agent will be identical.

(b) If a registered agent changes the address of his business office, he may change the address of the registered office of any limited liability company for which he is the registered agent by notifying the limited liability company in writing of the change and signing (either manually or in facsimile) and delivering to the Secretary of State for filing a statement that complies with the requirements of subsection (a) of this section; and recites that the limited liability company has been notified of the change.

Effect of Amendments. — The 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988) amendment, effective August 1, 1988, substituted "an office in this State" for "its registered office" in the introductory language of subsection (a).

§ 59-201. Certificate of limited partnership.

(a) In order to form a limited partnership, a certificate of limited partnership must be executed and filed in the office of the Secretary of State and set forth:

(1) The name of the limited partnership;

(2) The address, including county and city or town, and street and number, if any, of the registered office and the name of the registered agent at such address for service of process required to be maintained by G.S. 59-105;

(3) The latest date upon which the limited partnership is to dissolve; and

(4) The name and the address, including county and city or town, and street and number, if any, of each general partner.

(5) The address, including county and city or town, and street and number, if any, of the office at which the records referred to in G.S. 59-106 are kept, if such records are not kept at the registered office.

(b) A limited partnership is formed at the time of the filing of the certificate of limited partnership in the office of the Secretary of State or at any later time not more than 20 days subsequent to the endorsement of the Secretary of State specified in the certificate of limited partnership if, in either case, there has been substantial compliance with the requirements of this section.

(c) Domestic limited partnership filings filed prior to October 1, 1986, with the Office of Register of Deeds pursuant to G.S. 59-2(a)(2) shall evidence the existence of limited partnerships formed prior to October 1, 1986, and shall be public notice of only those matters contained in G.S. 59-201(a) and shall be used for no

(2) The withdrawal of a general partner; or

(3) The continuation of the business under G.S. 59-801 after an event of withdrawal of a general partner.

(c) A general partner who becomes aware that any statement in a certificate of limited partnership was false when made or that any arrangements or other facts described have changed, making the certificate inaccurate in any respect, shall promptly amend the certificate.

(d) Repealed by Session Laws 1987, c. 531, s. 4. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2; 1987, c. 531, s. 4.)

§ 59-203. Cancellation of certificate.

A certificate of limited partnership shall be cancelled upon the dissolution and the commencement of winding up of the partnership or at any other time that there are no limited partners. A certificate of cancellation shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and set forth:

(1) The name of the limited partnership;

(2) The date of filing of its certificate of limited partnership;

(3) The reason for filing the certificate of cancellation;

(4) The effective date (which shall be a date certain not more than 20 days from the date of filing) of cancellation if it is not to be effective upon the filing of the certificate; and

(5) Any other information the partners filing the certificate determine. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2.)

§ 59-204. Execution of certificates.

(a) Each certificate required by this Article to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State shall be executed in the following manner:

(1) An original certificate of limited partnership must be signed by all general partners;

§ 59-103. Name.

(a) The name of the limited partnership shall contain without abbreviation the words "limited partnership";

(b) The limited partnership name shall not contain the name of a limited partner unless (i) it is also the name of a general partner or the corporate name of a corporate general partner, or (ii) the business of the limited partnership has been carried on under that name before the admission of that limited partner;

(c) The limited partnership name shall not contain any word or phrase which is likely to mislead the public or which indicates or implies that it is organized for any purpose other than one or more of the purposes contained in its certificate of limited partnership;

(d) The limited partnership name shall be distinguishable upon the records of the Secretary of State from:

(1) The name of a corporation, nonprofit corporation, limited partnership, or limited liability company organized in this State, or a foreign corporation or nonprofit corporation, foreign limited partnership, or foreign limited liability company authorized to transact business in this State;

(2) A name reserved under G.S. 55-4-02, 55-4-03, 55A-4-02, 55A-4-03, 57C-2-31, 57C-2-32, 59-104, or 59-904; and

(3) The fictitious name adopted by a foreign corporation or nonprofit corporation, foreign limited partnership, or foreign limited liability company authorized to transact business in this State because its real name is unavailable. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2; 1987, c. 531, s. 1; 1995, c. 539, s. 34.)

Effect of Amendments. — The 1995 amendment, applicable to names filed, reserved, or registered on or after July 29, 1995, rewrote subsection (d).

Part 2. Formation; Certificate of Limited Partnership.

§ 59-204. Execution of certificates.

(a) Each certificate required by this Article to be filed in the office of the Secretary of State shall be executed in the following manner:

(1) An original certificate of limited partnership must be signed by all general partners;

(2) A certificate of amendment must be signed by at least one general partner and by each other partner designated in the certificate as a new general partner; and

(3) A certificate of cancellation must be signed by all general partners.

(b) Any person may sign a certificate by an attorney-in-fact.

(c) The execution of a certificate or amendment by a general partner constitutes an affirmation under the penalties of perjury that the facts stated therein are true. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2; 1991, c. 153, s. 1.)

§ 59-206. Filing requirements.

(a) Whenever the provisions of this Article require any document relating to a limited partnership to be executed and filed in accordance with this Article, unless otherwise specifically stated in this Article:

(1) There shall be an original executed document and also one conformed copy.

(2) The original document so signed, together with the conformed copy, shall be delivered to the Secretary of State. Unless the Secretary finds that it does not conform to law, the Secretary shall, when the proper fees have been tendered, endorse upon the original the word "filed" and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof and shall file the same in the Secretary's office. The Secretary of State shall thereupon immediately compare the copy with the original and if the Secretary finds that they are identical the Secretary shall make upon the conformed copy the same endorsement which appears on the original and shall attach to the copy a certificate stating that attached thereto is a true copy of the document, designated by an appropriate title, filed in the Secretary's office and showing the date of the filing. The Secretary shall thereupon return the copy so certified to the limited partnership or its representatives. Any documents filed with the Secretary of State pursuant to this Chapter may be maintained by the Secretary either in their original form or in photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other reproduced form. The Secretary may make reproductions of documents filed under this Chapter, or under any predecessor act, by photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other means of reproduction, and may destroy the originals of the documents reproduced. The Secretary of State may correct apparent errors and omissions on a document submitted for filing if authorized to make the corrections by the person submitting the document for filing. The authorization to make the corrections shall be confirmed, according to procedures adopted by rule, by the Secretary prior to making the correction.

(3) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 153, s. 2.

(3a) Whenever the name of any domestic or foreign limited partnership holding title to real property in this State is changed upon amendment to the certificate of limited partnership, a certificate reciting the change or transfer shall be recorded in the office of the register of deeds of the county where the property lies, or if the property is located in more than one county, then in each county where any portion of the property lies.

(4) The Secretary of State shall adopt uniform certificates to be furnished for registration in accordance with this section. In the case of a foreign limited partnership, a similar certificate by any competent authority of the jurisdiction under which the limited partnership is organized may be registered in accordance with this section.

(5) The certificate required by this section shall be recorded by the register of deeds in the same manner as deeds, and for the same fees, but no formalities as to acknowledgement, probate, or approval by any other officer shall be required. The former name of the limited partnership holding title to the real property before the amendment shall appear in the "Grantor" index, and the amended name of the limited partnership holding title to the real property by virtue of the amendment shall appear in the "Grantee" index.

(2) At the time specified in the document as its effective time on the date it is filed.

(b2) A document may specify a delayed effective time and date, and if it does so the document becomes effective at the time and date specified. If a delayed effective date but not time is specified, the document is effective at 11:59:59 p.m. on that date. A delayed effective date for a document may not be later than the ninetieth day after the date it is filed.

(b3) The fact that a document has become effective under this section does not determine its validity or invalidity or the correctness or incorrectness of the information contained in the document.

(c) It shall be the duty of the Secretary of State, whenever so requested and upon tender of the proper fees, to certify as aforesaid any true copy of any document on file in the office, or if requested, to make or cause to be made typewritten or photostatic copies of the documents and to certify the same as aforesaid. § 59-903. Issuance of registration.

(a) If the Secretary of State finds that an application conforms to law he shall, when all requisite fees have been tendered as in this Article prescribed:

(1) Endorse on the application the word "filed", and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof;
(2) File in his office the application;
(3) Issue a certificate of authority to transact business in this State to which he shall affix the conformed copy of the application; and
(4) Send to the foreign limited partnership or its representative the certificate of authority, together with the conformed copy of the application affixed thereto. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2; 1987, c. 531, s. 8.)

§ 59-904. Name.

A foreign limited partnership may register with the Secretary of State under any name (whether or not it is the name under which it is registered in its state of organization) that includes without abbreviation the words "limited partnership" and that could be registered by a domestic limited partnership. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2.)

§ 59-905. Changes and amendments.

If any statement in the application for registration of a foreign limited partnership was false when made or any arrangements or other facts described have changed, making the application inaccurate in any respect, the foreign limited partnership shall promptly file in the office of the Secretary of State an original and one conformed copy of a certificate, signed by a general partner, correcting such statement. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2.)

§ 59-906. Cancellation of registration.

A foreign limited partnership may cancel its registration by filing with the Secretary of State a certificate of cancellation signed by a general partner. A cancellation does not terminate the authority of the Secretary of State to accept service of process on the foreign limited partnership with respect to causes of action arising out of the transactions of business in this State. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 989, s. 2.)

§ 59-907. Transaction of business without registration.

(a) No foreign limited partnership transacting business in this State without permission obtained through a certificate of authority under this Article shall be permitted to maintain any action or proceeding in any court of this State unless such foreign limited partnership shall have obtained a certificate of authority prior to trial.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis. Committee Counsel

RE: Senate Bill 800—Judicial Standards Exec. Secretary (Cooper)

Senate Bill 800 amends Article 30 of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes which governs the Judicial Standards Commission. The Judicial Standards Commission makes recommendations to the Supreme Court for the censure or removal of judges. The Commission consists of one member of the Court of Appeals, one superior court judge, and one district court judge, each appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. Also, the State Bar Council appoints two members of the State Bar to the Commission and the Governor appoints two citizen members to the Commission.

Under current law, the Commission is authorized to employ an executive secretary to assist the Commission in carrying out its duties. The bill gives the authority to employ the executive secretary to the chair of the Commission, rather than the Commission as a whole. The Commission is chaired by the member from the Court of Appeals.

Senate Bill 800 becomes effective October 1, 1997.

§§ 7A-357 through 7A-374: Reserved for future codification purposes.

ARTICLE 30.

Judicial Standards Commission.

§ 7A-375. Judicial Standards Commission.

(a) The Judicial Standards Commission shall consist of: one Court of Appeals judge, one superior court judge, and one district court judge, each appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; two members of the State Bar who have actively practiced in the courts of the State for at least 10 years, elected by the State Bar Council; and two citizens who are not judges, active or retired, nor members of the State Bar, appointed by the Governor. The Court of Appeals judge shall act as chairman of the Commission.

(b) Terms of Commission members shall be for six years, except that, to achieve overlapping of terms, one of the judges, one of the practicing members of the State Bar, and one of the citizens shall be appointed initially for a term of only three years. No member who has served a full six-year term is eligible for reappointment. If a member ceases to have the qualifications required for his appointment, he ceases to be a member. Vacancies are filled in the same manner as the original appointment, for the remainder of the term. Members who are not judges are entitled to per diem and all members are entitled to reimbursement for travel and subsistence expenses at the rate applicable to members of State boards and commissions generally, for each day engaged in official business.

(c) If a member of the Commission who is a judge becomes disabled, or becomes a respondent before the Commission, the Chief Justice shall appoint an alternate member to serve during the period of disability or disqualification. The alternate member shall be from the same division of the General Court of Justice as the judge whose place he takes. If a member of the Commission who is not a judge becomes disabled, the Governor, if he appointed the disabled member, shall appoint, or the State Bar Council, if it elected the disabled member, shall elect, an alternate member to serve during the period of disability. In a particular case, if a member disqualifies himself, or is successfully challenged for cause, his seat for that case shall be filled by an alternate member selected as provided in this subsection.

(d) A member may serve after expiration of his term only to participate until the conclusion of a formal proceeding begun before expiration of his term. Such participation shall not prevent his successor from taking office, but the successor may not participate in the proceeding for which his predecessor's term was extended. This subsection shall apply also to any judicial member whose membership on the Commission is automatically terminated by retirement or resignation from judicial office, or expiration of the term of judicial office. (1971, c. 590, s. 1; 1973, c. 50; 1975, c. 956, s. 13.)

Editor's Note. — Former Article 30, Transitional Matters, comprising §§ 7A-400 and 7A-401, was enacted by Session Laws 1965, c. 310, s. 1, and repealed by Session Laws 1971, c. 377, s. 32, effective Oct. 1, 1971. Sections numbered 7A-400 and 7A-401 were enacted as part of new Article 31 by Session Laws 1971, c. 377, s. 1.1, which article was repealed by Session Laws 1983, c. 774, s. 1.

Session Laws 1971, c. 590, which enacted this Article, was made effective upon the condition that the amendment to N.C. Const., Art. IV, § 17, proposed by Session Laws 1971, c. 560 was approved by the voters. The amendment was approved at the general election held Nov. 2, 1972.

CASE NOTES

This Article is not unconstitutional because enacted in advance of the ratification of N.C. Const., Art. IV, § 17, since the General Assembly has power to enact a statute not authorized by the present Constitution where the statute is passed in anticipation of an amendment authorizing it, or provides that it shall take effect upon the adoption of such an amendment. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

Article Is Not Unconstitutional Delegation of Authority. — In view of the constitutional mandate in N.C. Const., Art. IV, § 17(2) that the General Assembly shall prescribe a procedure for the censure and removal of judges in addition to impeachment and address as provided in N.C. Const., Art. IV, § 17(1), respondent's contention that the General Assembly in enacting this Article abrogated its legislative duties by unconstitutionally delegating them to the Judicial Standards Commission, a creature of the General Assembly, was without merit. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

The Judicial Standards Commission Act, this Article, is constitutional and, under this Article, the Supreme Court is vested with jurisdiction to act in a case involving the removal from office of a judge. In re Martin, 295 N.C. 291, 245 S.E.2d 766 (1978).

No Violation of Doctrine of Separation of Powers. — By accepting and among other things, the nature and type of conduct, the frequency of occurrences, the impact which knowledge of the conduct would likely have on the prevailing attitudes of the community, and whether the judge acted knowingly or with a reckless disregard for the high standards of the judicial office. In re Martin, 302 N.C. 299, 275 S.E.2d 412 (1981).

The recommendations of the Commission are not binding upon the Supreme Court, which will consider the evidence on both sides and exercise its independent judgment as to whether it should censure, remove or decline to do either. In re Hardy, 294 N.C. 90, 240 S.E.2d 367 (1978); In re Martin, 295 N.C. 291, 245 S.E.2d 766 (1978); In re Kivett, 309 N.C. 635, 309 S.E.2d 442 (1983).

Each case arising from the Commission is to be decided upon its own facts. In re Kivett, 309 N.C. 635, 309 S.E.2d 442 (1983).

(a) Any citizen of the State may file a written complaint with the Commission concerning the qualifications or conduct of any justice or judge of the General Court of Justice, and thereupon the Commission shall make such investigation as it deems necessary. The Commission may also make an investigation on its own motion. The Commission is authorized to issue process to compel the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence, to administer oaths, to punish for contempt, and to prescribe its own rules of procedure. No justice or judge shall be recommended for censure or removal unless he has been given a hearing affording due process of law. Unless otherwise waived by the justice or judge involved, all papers filed with and proceedings before the Commission, including any preliminary investigation which the Commission may make, are confidential, except as provided herein. After the preliminary investigation is completed, and if the Commission concludes that formal proceedings should be instituted, the notice and complaint filed by the Commission, along with the answer and all other pleadings, are not confidential. Formal hearings ordered by the Commission are not confidential, and recommendations of the Commission to the Supreme Court, along with the record filed in support of such recommendations are not confidential. Testimony and other evidence presented to the Commission is privileged in any action for defamation. At least five members of the Commission must concur in any recommendation to censure or remove any justice or judge. A respondent who is recommended for censure or removal is entitled to a copy of the proposed record to be filed with the Supreme Court, and if he has objections to it, to have the record settled by the Commission. He is also entitled to present a brief and to argue his case, in person and through counsel, to the Supreme Court. A majority of the members of the Supreme Court voting must concur in any order of censure or removal. The Supreme Court may approve the recommendation, remand for further proceedings, or reject the recommendation. A justice of the Supreme Court or a member of the Commission who is a judge is disqualified from acting in any case in which he is a respondent.

(b) The Commission is authorized to employ an executive secretary to assist it in carrying out its duties. For specific cases, the Commission may also employ special counsel or call upon the Attorney General to furnish counsel. For specific cases, the Commission may also employ an investigator or call upon the Director of the State Bureau of Investigation to furnish an investigator. While performing duties for the Commission such executive secretary, special counsel or investigator shall have authority throughout the State to serve subpoenas or other process issued by the Commission in the same manner and with the same effect as an officer authorized to serve process of the General Court of Justice. (1971, c. 590, s. 1; 1973, c. 808; 1989 (Reg. Sess., 1990), c. 995, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1989 (Reg. Sess., 1990) amended this section effective October 1, 1990, except that prior law applied to papers filed with the Commission prior to October 1, 1990, and proceedings before the Commission prior to October 1, 1990.

CASE NOTES

Commission's procedures are required to meet constitutional due process standards, since a judge's interest in continuing in public office is an individual interest of sufficient importance to warrant constitutional protection against deprivation. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

Because of the severe impact which adverse findings by the Judicial Standards Commission and censure or removal by the Supreme Court may reasonably be expected to have upon the individual, fundamental fairness entitles the judge to a hearing which meets the basic requirements of due process. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

Due Process Not Violated by Commission's Functions. — The combination of investigative and judicial functions in the Judicial Standards Commission does not violate a respondent's due process rights under either the federal or North Carolina Constitutions, since it is an administrative agency created as an arm of the court, and any alleged partiality of the Commission is cured by the final scrutiny of the Supreme Court. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

Section 7A-376 in Pari Materia. — The provisions of this section and § 7A-376 are parts of the same enactment, relate to the same class of persons, and are aimed at suppression of the same evil. The statutes are therefore in pari materia and must be construed accordingly. In re Hardy, 294 N.C. 90, 240 S.E.2d 367 (1978).

A proceeding begun before the Judicial Standards Commission is neither a civil nor a criminal action. Such a proceeding is merely an inquiry into the conduct of one exercising judicial power to determine whether he is unfit to hold a judgeship. Its aim is not to punish the individual but to maintain the honor and dignity of the judiciary and the proper administration of justice. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

The function of the Commission is to conduct hearings upon complaints filed against judges and justices, to find facts and make recommendations so as to bring before the Supreme Court the questions of whether a judge or justice should be censured or removed in order to maintain proper administration of justice, public confidence in the judicial system and the honor and integrity of judges. In re Martin, 295 N.C. 291, 245 S.E.2d 766 (1978).

Article Does Not Vest Absolute Discretion in Commission. — There is no merit in the contention that this Article illegally vests unguided and absolute discretion in the Judicial Standards Commission to choose which complaints to investigate and what evidence it will accept. In re Nowell, 293 N.C. 235, 237 S.E.2d 246 (1977).

The quantum of proof required in proceedings before the Commission of this State is proof by clear and convincing evidence — a burden greater than that of proof of a preponderance of the evidence and less than that of proof

MINUTES
HOUSE JUDICIARY II COMMITTEE

May 8, 1997 10:00 A.M.

The North Carolina House of Representatives Judiciary II Committee met on May 8, 1997, at 10:00 A.M. in Room 421 of the Legislative Office Building. Representative Neely, Chairman, called the meeting to order.

Those in attendance were Representatives Neely, Kiser, Baddour, Bowie, Cansler, Creech, Culpepper, Decker, Gardner, Hackney, Hensley, McMahan, Nesbitt, Redwine, Russell, Saunders, Shubert, Sutton, Weatherly and Wilkins. A list of visitors is attached.

The following bill was discussed:

SB-162 ADOPTION TECHNICAL AMENDMENTS

Senator Hartsell was recognized to present a proposed committee substitute for SB-162. Representative Decker moved the proposed committee substitute be adopted for purpose of discussion; motion passed. A copy of the bill, bill explanation prepared by the General Statutes Commission, and the proposed committee substitute are attached.

Mr. Jerry Robbins, Attorney General's Office, Child Support Enforcement Agency, Ms. Esther High, Division of Social Services, Human Resources Department, Division of Adoption, and Ms. Bly Hall, General Statutes Commission, answered questions of committee members.

No action was taken on SB-162.

Representative Neely recognized Ms. Kadri Ottis, a member of the Estonian Parliament, who is in the United States to study the political system, to speak to the committee and answer questions of the committee members. Ms. Ottis is one of only eleven women in the 101 member Estonian Parliament.

The meeting was adjourned at 10:50 A.M.

Respectfully submitted,

Representative Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman

Betty Harrison, Committee Clerk

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MAKE TECHNICAL, CLARIFYING, AND SIMILAR MINOR CHANGES TO THE ADOPTION LAWS AS FOUND IN CHAPTER 48 OF THE GENERAL STATUTES INVOLVING CERTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS, NOTICE, PROCEDURES FOR REPORTS TO THE COURT, ACCEPTANCE OF RELINQUISHMENTS BY AGENCIES, INDEXING, CAPTIONS ON ADOPTION PETITIONS, AND STANDBY GUARDIANS; TO STANDARDIZE PROCEDURES FOR REQUESTING NEW BIRTH CERTIFICATES IN ALL ADOPTIONS; AND TO AMEND PROVISIONS FOR OBTAINING CERTIFICATION OF IDENTIFICATION FOR INDIVIDUALS OF FOREIGN BIRTH AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION; AND TO ALLOW FOR PREBIRTH RIGHT-TO-CONSENT DETERMINATION, CLARIFY WHEN COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES MUST DO PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS, TO ADD CHILDREN TO THE LIST OF PERSONS WHO CAN GET COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES OF ADOPTEES, AND TO EXTEND THE EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-305. Petition for adoption; additional documents.

At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall file or cause to be filed the following documents:

(1) Any required affidavit of parentage executed pursuant to G.S. 48-3-206;
(2) Any required consent or relinquishment that has been executed;
(3) A certified copy of any court order terminating the rights and duties of a parent or a guardian of the adoptee;
(4) A certified copy of any court order or pleading in a pending proceeding concerning custody of or visitation with the adoptee;
(5) A copy of any required preplacement assessment certified by the agency that prepared it or an affidavit from the petitioner stating why the assessment is not available;
(6) A ~~certified~~ copy of any document containing the information required under G.S. 48-3-205 concerning the health, social, educational, and genetic history of the adoptee and the adoptee's original family which the petitioner received before the placement or at any later time, certified by the person who prepared it, or if this document is not available, an affidavit stating the reason why it is not available;
(7) Any signed copy of the form required by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, G.S. 110-57.1, et seq., authorizing a minor to come into this State;
(8) A writing that states the name of any individual whose consent is or may be required, but who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment or whose parental rights have not been legally terminated, and any fact or circumstance that may excuse the lack of consent or relinquishment; and
(9) In an adoption pursuant to Article 4 of this Chapter, a copy of any agreement to release past-due child support payments.

The petitioner may also file any other document necessary or helpful to the court's determination."

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) In the adoption of an adult, the petitioner shall also serve notice of the filing on any adult children of the prospective adoptive parent and any parent, spouse, or adult child of the adoptee who are listed in the petition to adopt."

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-403. Notice of proceedings by clerk.

No later than five days after a petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall ~~give notice of the adoption proceeding by certified mail, return receipt requested,~~ mail or otherwise deliver to any agency that has undertaken but not yet completed a preplacement assessment and any agency ordered to make a report to the court pursuant to Part 5 of this Article."

Section 4. G.S. 48-2-502(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The report must be in writing and contain:
(1) An account of the petitioner's marital or family status, physical and mental health, home environment, property, income, and financial obligations; if there has been a preplacement assessment, the account may be limited to any changes since the filing of the preplacement assessment;

(2) All reasonably available nonidentifying information concerning the physical, mental, and emotional condition of the adoptee required by G.S. 48-3-205 which is not already included in the document prepared under that section;

(3) Copies of any court order, judgment, decree, or pending legal proceeding affecting the adoptee, the petitioner, or any child of the petitioner relevant to the welfare of the adoptee;

(4) A list of the expenses, fees, or other charges incurred, paid, or to be paid in connection with the adoption that can reasonably be ascertained by the agency;

(5) Any fact or circumstance known to the agency that raises a specific concern about whether the proposed adoption is contrary to the best interest of the adoptee because it poses a significant risk of harm to the well-being of the adoptee;

(6) A finding by the agency concerning the suitability of the petitioner and the petitioner's home for the adoptee;

(7) A recommendation concerning the granting of the petition; and

(8) Such other information as may be required by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

In an agency adoption, the report shall be written in such a way as to exclude all information that could reasonably be expected to lead directly to the identity of the adoptee at birth or any former parent or family member of the adoptee, and any copies of documents included pursuant to subdivision (3) of this subsection shall be redacted to exclude this information."

Section 5. (a) G.S. 48-2-503(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after ~~receipt~~ the mailing or delivery of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing. The agency shall have three additional days to complete and file the report if the order was mailed."

(b) G.S. 48-2-503(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern. The agency shall indicate in the final report whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(c) G.S. 48-2-503 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) When an agency identifies a specific concern in a final report and the court extends the time for a final hearing or disposition to allow resolution of these concerns, the agency shall file a supplemental report indicating whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(d) Subsection (a) of this section applies to reports to the court prepared in response to a notice under G.S. 48-2-403 mailed or delivered after the effective date of this act.

Section 6. (a) G.S. 48-2-604 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-604. Denying petition to adopt a minor.

(a) If at any time between the filing of a petition to adopt a minor and the issuance of the final order completing the adoption it appears to the court that the minor should not be adopted by the petitioners or the petition should be dismissed for some other reason, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

(b) The court, before entering an order to dismiss the proceeding, shall give at least five days' notice of the motion to dismiss to the parties, to the agency that made the report to the court, and to the Department of Human Resources. The parties and agency entitled to notice under this subsection, and the Department, shall be entitled to a hearing on the issue of dismissing the proceeding.

(c) If the court denies ~~a petition to adopt a minor,~~ the petition, the custody of the minor shall revert to any agency or person having custody immediately before the filing of the petition. If the placement of the ~~child~~ minor was a direct placement under Article 3 of this Chapter, the court shall notify the director of social services of the county in which the petition was filed of the dismissal, and the director of social services shall be responsible for taking appropriate action for the protection of the ~~child.~~ minor."

(b) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 7. (a) G.S. 48-3-702 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-702. Procedures for relinquishment.

(a) A relinquishment executed by a parent or guardian must conform substantially to the requirements in this Part and must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments.

(b) The provisions of G.S. 48-3-605(b), (c), (e), and (f), also apply to a relinquishment executed under this ~~Part, except that an individual before whom a relinquishment is signed and acknowledged shall also certify that an employee of the agency to which the minor is being relinquished signed a statement indicating the agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment.~~ Part.

(c) An agency that accepts a relinquishment shall furnish each parent or guardian who signs the relinquishment a letter or other writing indicating the agency's willingness to accept that person's relinquishment."

(b) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 8. (a) G.S. 48-3-608(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent. If notice is given by overnight delivery service, notice is deemed complete on the date it is deposited with the service as shown by the receipt from the service, with delivery charges paid by the sender, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent."

(b) This section applies to notices given on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 9. (a) G.S. 48-9-102(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of ~~adoption,~~ adoption and the entry in the special proceedings index in the office of the clerk of court, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter."

(b) G.S. 48-9-102(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The Division shall transmit a report of ~~the~~ each adoption ~~of a minor~~ and any name change to the State Registrar if the ~~minor~~ adoptee was born in this ~~State, or~~ State. In the case of an adoptee who was not born in this State, the Division shall transmit the report and any name change to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their ~~equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.~~ equivalent."

(c) G.S. 48-9-102(g) reads as rewritten:

"(g) ~~In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee.~~ In any adoption, the State Registrar may, in addition to receiving the report from the Division, request a copy of the final order and any separate order of name change directly from the clerk of court."

(d) G.S. 48-2-303 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-303. Caption of petition for adoption.

The caption of the petition shall be substantially as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE DISTRICT COURT

.....COUNTY

BEFORE THE CLERK

.....

*(Full name of petitioning father)
and
.....PETITION FOR ADOPTION
*(Full name of petitioning mother)
and
FOR THE ADOPTION OF
.....
*(Full name ~~of adoptee as used in proceeding).~~ by which the adoptee is to be known if the adoption is granted)."

(e) Subsection (a) of this section is effective on and after July 1, 1996. The remainder of this section becomes effective October 1, 1997. Subsections (b) and (c) apply to final orders entered on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 10. (a) G.S. 48-2-601(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If it appears to the court that ~~the petition~~ a petition to adopt a minor is not contested, the court may dispose of the petition without a formal hearing."

(b) This section applies to petitions filed on or after the effective date.

Section 11. (a) G.S. 48-3-603(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Consent to an adoption of a minor is not required of a person or entity whose consent is not required under G.S. 48-3-601, or:

(1) An individual whose parental rights and duties have been terminated under Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes or by a court of competent jurisdiction in another state;

(2) A man described in G.S. 48-3-601(2), other than an adoptive father, if (i) the man has been judicially determined not to be the father of the minor to be adopted, or (ii) another man has been judicially determined to be the father of the minor to be adopted;

~~(3) A parent for whose minor child a guardian has been appointed;~~

(4) An individual who has relinquished parental rights or guardianship powers, including the right to consent to adoption, to an agency pursuant to Part 7 of this Article;

(5) A man who is not married to the minor's birth mother and who, after the conception of the minor, has executed a notarized statement denying paternity or disclaiming any interest in the minor;

(6) A deceased parent or the personal representative of a deceased parent's estate; or

(7) An individual listed in G.S. 48-3-601 who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment and who fails to respond to a notice of the adoption proceeding within 30 days after the service of the notice."

(b) G.S. 48-3-201(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) ~~An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed, even if only one parent has executed a relinquishment pursuant to Part 7 of this Article or has had parental~~ ~~rights terminated, unless the other parent notifies the agency in writing of the parent's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment from one parent to obtain the consent or relinquishment of the other parent or to terminate the rights between the minor and the other parent pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes.~~ An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed by anyone as permitted by G.S. 48-3-701. The agency may place the minor for adoption even if other consents are required before an adoption can be granted, unless an individual whose consent is required notifies the agency in writing of the individual's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment to obtain all other necessary consents, relinquishments, or terminations of any guardian's authority pursuant to Chapter 35A of the General Statutes or parental rights pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes."

(c) G.S. 48-4-102 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-4-102. Consent to adoption of stepchild.

Except under circumstances described in G.S. 48-3-603, a petition to adopt a minor stepchild may be granted only if consent to the adoption has been executed by the adoptee if 12 or more years of age; and

(1) The adoptee's parents as described in G.S. 48-3-601; ~~or~~ and

(2) Any guardian of the adoptee.

The consent of an incompetent parent may be given pursuant to the procedures in G.S. 48-3-602."

(d) G.S. 48-3-602 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-602. Consent of incompetent parents.

If a parent as described in G.S. 48-3-601 has been adjudicated incompetent, then the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for that parent ~~and~~ and, unless the child already has a guardian, a guardian ad litem for the child to make a full investigation as to whether the adoption should proceed. The investigation shall include an evaluation of the parent's current condition and any reasonable likelihood that the parent will be restored to competency, the relationship between the child and the incompetent parent, alternatives to adoption, and any other relevant fact or circumstance. If the court determines after a hearing on the matter that it will be in the best interest of the child for the adoption to proceed, the court shall order the guardian ad litem of the parent to execute a consent for that parent."

(e) G.S. 48-1-101(8) reads as rewritten:

"(8) 'Guardian' means an individual, other than a parent, appointed by a clerk of court in North Carolina to exercise all of the powers conferred by ~~G.S. 35A-1241;~~ G.S. 35A-1241, including a standby guardian appointed under Article 21 of Chapter 35A of the General Statutes whose authority has actually commenced; and also means an individual, other than a parent, appointed in another jurisdiction according to the law of that jurisdiction who has the power to consent to adoption under the law of that jurisdiction."

Section 12. (a) G.S. 48-2-501 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-501. Report to the court during proceeding for adoption of a minor.

(a) Whenever a petition for adoption of a minor is filed, the court shall order a report to the court made to assist the court to determine if the proposed adoption of the minor by the petitioner is in the minor's best interest.

(b) Consistent with G.S. 48-1-109, the court shall order the report to be prepared:

(1) By the agency that placed the minor;

(2) By the agency that made the preplacement assessment pursuant to Part 3 of Article 3 of this Chapter; or

(3) By another agency.

(c) The court shall provide the individual who prepares the report with copies of: ~~(i) the petition to adopt; and (ii) the documents filed with it.~~

(1) The petition to adopt; and

(2) The documents filed with it.

(d) As an exception to this section, in any stepparent adoption under Article 4 of this Chapter in which the minor has lived with the stepparent for at least the two consecutive years immediately preceding the filing of the petition, the court may order a report, but it is not required to order a report unless the minor's consent is to be waived, the minor has revoked a consent, or both of the minor's parents are dead."

(b) G.S. 48-4-104 is repealed.

(c) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 13. G.S. 130A-108 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-108. Certificate of identification for ~~child~~ individual of foreign birth.

In the case of an adopted ~~child~~ individual born in a foreign country and ~~having legal settlement in this State,~~ residing in this State at the time of application, the State Registrar shall, upon the presentation of a certified copy of the original birth certificate from the country of birth and a certified copy of the final order of adoption signed by the clerk of court or other appropriate official, prepare a certificate of identification for the ~~child.~~ individual. The certificate shall contain the same information required by G.S. 48-9-107(a) for ~~children~~ individuals adopted in this State, except that the country of birth shall be specified in lieu of the state of birth."

Section 14. Part 2 of Article 2 of Chapter 48 is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 48-2-206. Prebirth determination of right to consent.

(a) Anytime after six months from the date of conception as reasonably determined by a physician, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents chosen by the biological mother may file a special proceeding with the clerk requesting the court to determine whether consent of the biological father is required. The biological father shall be served with notice of the intent of the biological mother to place the child for adoption, allowing the biological father 15 days after service to assert a claim that his consent is required.

(b) The notice required under this subsection shall contain the special proceeding case caption and file number and shall be substantially similar to the following language:

'[Name of the biological mother], the biological mother, is expected to give birth to a child on or about [birth due date]. You have been identified as the biological father. It is the intention of the biological mother to place the child for adoption. It is her belief that your consent to the adoption is not required. If you believe your consent to the adoption of this child is required pursuant to G.S. 48-3-601, you must notify the court in writing no later than 15 days from the date you received this notice that you believe your consent is required. A copy of your notice to the court must also be sent to the person or agency that sent you this notice. If you fail to notify the court within 15 days that you believe your consent is required, the court will rule that your consent is not required.'

(c) If the biological father fails to respond within the time required, the court shall enter an order that the biological father's consent is not required for the adoption.

(d) If the biological father notifies the court within 15 days of his receipt of the notice required by this subsection that he believes his consent to the adoption is required, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents may seek an immediate determination by the court as to whether the consent of the biological father is required by G.S. 48-3-601. A hearing on this question may be held upon 10 days' notice to the parties. During the hearing, the court may take such evidence as necessary and shall enter an order which shall be the final order.

(e) The manner of service under this section shall be the same as set forth in G.S. 48-2-402.

(f) The jurisdiction provisions of Article 6A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and the venue provisions of Article 7 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes rather than the provisions of Part 1 of this Article apply to proceedings under this section.

(g) Computation of periods of time provided for in this section shall be calculated as set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 6.

(h) Transfer under G.S. 1-272 and appeal under G.S. 1-279.1 shall be as for an adoption proceeding.

(i) A determination by the court under this section that the consent of the biological father is not required shall only apply to an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the child."

Section 15. G.S. 48-3-302(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. As used in this subsection, 'unable to obtain a preplacement assessment' includes the inability to obtain a preplacement assessment at the fee the county department of social services is permitted to charge the individual. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so."

Section 16. G.S. 48-3-601(2)b.4. reads as rewritten:

"4. Before the earliest of the filing of the ~~petition,~~ petition or the receipt of the notice pursuant to G.S. 48-2-206, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

III. After the minor's birth but before the minor's placement for adoption or the mother's relinquishment, has married or attempted to marry the mother of the minor by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid; or".

Section 17. G.S. 48-3-603(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(8) An individual notified under G.S. 48-2-206 who does not respond in a timely manner or whose consent is not required as determined by the court."

Section 18. G.S. 48-9-107(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptee's children, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, 'parent', 'brother', and 'sister' shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister."

Section 19. G.S. 48-3-301(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) Has been completed or updated within the ~~12~~ 18 months immediately preceding the placement; and".

Section 20. Except as otherwise provided, this act is effective when it becomes law.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MAKE TECHNICAL, CLARIFYING, AND SIMILAR MINOR CHANGES TO THE ADOPTION LAWS AS FOUND IN CHAPTER 48 OF THE GENERAL STATUTES INVOLVING CERTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS, NOTICE, PROCEDURES FOR REPORTS TO THE COURT, ACCEPTANCE OF RELINQUISHMENTS BY AGENCIES, INDEXING, CAPTIONS ON ADOPTION PETITIONS, AND STANDBY GUARDIANS; TO STANDARDIZE PROCEDURES FOR REQUESTING NEW BIRTH CERTIFICATES IN ALL ADOPTIONS; AND TO AMEND PROVISIONS FOR OBTAINING CERTIFICATION OF IDENTIFICATION FOR INDIVIDUALS OF FOREIGN BIRTH AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION; AND TO ALLOW FOR PREBIRTH RIGHT-TO-CONSENT DETERMINATION, CLARIFY WHEN COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES MUST DO PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS, TO ADD CHILDREN TO THE LIST OF PERSONS WHO CAN GET COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES OF ADOPTEES, TO EXTEND THE EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS, TO PROVIDE THAT EXECUTION OF A RELINQUISHMENT DOES NOT TERMINATE THE DUTY OF SUPPORT, AND TO PERMIT ALL RELINQUISHMENTSTO BE RESCINDED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-305. Petition for adoption; additional documents.

At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall file or cause to be filed the following documents:

(1) Any required affidavit of parentage executed pursuant to G.S. 48-3-206;

(2) Any required consent or relinquishment that has been executed;

(3) A certified copy of any court order terminating the rights and duties of a parent or a guardian of the adoptee;

(4) A certified copy of any court order or pleading in a pending proceeding concerning custody of or visitation with the adoptee;

(5) A copy of any required preplacement assessment certified by the agency that prepared it or an affidavit from the petitioner stating why the assessment is not available;

(6) A ~~certified~~ copy of any document containing the information required under G.S. 48-3-205 concerning the health, social, educational, and genetic history of the adoptee and the adoptee's original family which the petitioner received before the placement or at any later time, certified by the person who prepared it, or if this document is not available, an affidavit stating the reason why it is not available;

(7) Any signed copy of the form required by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, G.S. 110-57.1, et seq., authorizing a minor to come into this State;

(8) A writing that states the name of any individual whose consent is or may be required, but who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment or whose parental rights have not been legally terminated, and any fact or circumstance that may excuse the lack of consent or relinquishment; and

(9) In an adoption pursuant to Article 4 of this Chapter, a copy of any agreement to release past-due child support payments.

The petitioner may also file any other document necessary or helpful to the court's determination."

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) In the adoption of an adult, the petitioner shall also serve notice of the filing on any adult children of the prospective adoptive parent and any parent, spouse, or adult child of the adoptee who are listed in the petition to adopt."

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-403. Notice of proceedings by clerk.

No later than five days after a petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall ~~give notice of the adoption proceeding by certified mail, return receipt requested,~~ mail or otherwise deliver notice of the adoption proceeding to any agency that has undertaken but not yet completed a preplacement assessment and any agency ordered to make a report to the court pursuant to Part 5 of this Article."

Section 4. G.S. 48-2-502(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The report must be in writing and contain:

(1) An account of the petitioner's marital or family status, physical and mental health, home environment, property, income, and financial obligations; if there has been a preplacement assessment, the account may be limited to any changes since the filing of the preplacement assessment;

(2) All reasonably available nonidentifying information concerning the physical, mental, and emotional condition of the adoptee required by G.S. 48-3-205 which is not already included in the document prepared under that section;

(3) Copies of any court order, judgment, decree, or pending legal proceeding affecting the adoptee, the petitioner, or any child of the petitioner relevant to the welfare of the adoptee;

(4) A list of the expenses, fees, or other charges incurred, paid, or to be paid in connection with the adoption that can reasonably be ascertained by the agency;

(5) Any fact or circumstance known to the agency that raises a specific concern about whether the proposed adoption is contrary to the best interest of the adoptee because it poses a significant risk of harm to the well-being of the adoptee;

(6) A finding by the agency concerning the suitability of the petitioner and the petitioner's home for the adoptee;

(7) A recommendation concerning the granting of the petition; and

(8) Such other information as may be required by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

In an agency adoption, the report shall be written in such a way as to exclude all information that could reasonably be expected to lead directly to the identity of the adoptee at birth or any former parent or family member of the adoptee, and any copies of documents included pursuant to subdivision (3) of this subsection shall be redacted to exclude this information."

Section 5. (a) G.S. 48-2-503(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after ~~receipt~~ the mailing or delivery of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing. The agency shall have three additional days to complete and file the report if the order was mailed."

(b) G.S. 48-2-503(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern. The agency shall indicate in the final report whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(c) G.S. 48-2-503 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) When an agency identifies a specific concern in a final report and the court extends the time for a final hearing or disposition to allow resolution of these concerns, the agency shall file a supplemental report indicating whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(d) Subsection (a) of this section applies to reports to the court prepared in response to a notice under G.S. 48-2-403 mailed or delivered after the effective date of this act.

Section 6. (a) G.S. 48-2-604 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-604. Denying petition to adopt a minor.

(a) If at any time between the filing of a petition to adopt a minor and the issuance of the final order completing the adoption it appears to the court that the minor should not be adopted by the petitioners or the petition should be dismissed for some other reason, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

(b) The court, before entering an order to dismiss the proceeding, shall give at least five days' notice of the motion to dismiss to the parties, to the agency that made the report to the court, and to the Department of Human Resources. The parties and agency entitled to notice under this subsection, and the Department, shall be entitled to a hearing on the issue of dismissing the proceeding.

(c) If the court denies ~~a petition to adopt a minor,~~ the petition, the custody of the minor shall revert to any agency or person having custody immediately before the filing of the petition. If the placement of the ~~child~~ minor was a direct placement under Article 3 of this Chapter, the court shall notify the director of social services of the county in which the petition was filed of the dismissal, and the director of social services shall be responsible for taking appropriate action for the protection of the ~~child.~~ minor."

(b) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 7. (a) G.S. 48-3-702 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-702. Procedures for relinquishment.

(a) A relinquishment executed by a parent or guardian must conform substantially to the requirements in this Part and must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments.

(b) The provisions of G.S. 48-3-605(b), (c), (e), and (f), also apply to a relinquishment executed under this ~~Part, except that an individual before whom a relinquishment is signed and acknowledged shall also certify that an employee of the agency to which the minor is being relinquished signed a statement~~

~~indicating the agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment.~~ Part.

(c) An agency that accepts a relinquishment shall furnish each parent or guardian who signs the relinquishment a letter or other writing indicating the agency's willingness to accept that person's relinquishment."

(b) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 8. (a) G.S. 48-3-608(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent. If notice is given by overnight delivery service, notice is deemed complete on the date it is deposited with the service as shown by the receipt from the service, with delivery charges paid by the sender, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent."

(b) This section applies to notices given on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 9. (a) G.S. 48-9-102(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of ~~adoption,~~ adoption and the entry in the special proceedings index in the office of the clerk of court, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter."

(b) G.S. 48-9-102(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The Division shall transmit a report of ~~the~~ each adoption ~~of a minor~~ and any name change to the State Registrar if the ~~minor~~ adoptee was born in this ~~State, or~~ State. In the case of an adoptee who was not born in this State, the Division shall transmit the report and any name change to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their ~~equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.~~ equivalent."

(c) G.S. 48-9-102(g) reads as rewritten:

"(g) ~~In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee.~~ In any adoption, the State Registrar may, in addition to receiving the report from the Division, request a copy of the final order and any separate order of name change directly from the clerk of court."

(d) G.S. 48-2-303 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-303. Caption of petition for adoption.

The caption of the petition shall be substantially as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE DISTRICT COURT
COUNTY
BEFORE THE CLERK

*(Full name of petitioning father)
and
PETITION FOR ADOPTION
*(Full name of petitioning mother)
and
FOR THE ADOPTION OF

*(Full name ~~of adoptee as used in proceeding).~~ by which the adoptee is to be known if the adoption is granted)."

(e) Subsection (a) of this section is effective on and after July 1, 1996. The remainder of this section becomes effective October 1, 1997. Subsections (b) and (c) apply to final orders entered on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 10. (a) G.S. 48-2-601(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If it appears to the court that ~~the petition~~ a petition to adopt a minor is not contested, the court may dispose of the petition without a formal hearing."

(b) This section applies to petitions filed on or after the effective date.

Section 11. (a) G.S. 48-3-603(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Consent to an adoption of a minor is not required of a person or entity whose consent is not required under G.S. 48-3-601, or:

(1) An individual whose parental rights and duties have been terminated under Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes or by a court of competent jurisdiction in another state;

(2) A man described in G.S. 48-3-601(2), other than an adoptive father, if (i) the man has been judicially determined not to be the father of the minor to be adopted, or (ii) another man has been judicially determined to be the father of the minor to be adopted;

~~(3) A parent for whose minor child a guardian has been appointed;~~

(4) An individual who has relinquished parental rights or guardianship powers, including the right to consent to adoption, to an agency pursuant to Part 7 of this Article;

(5) A man who is not married to the minor's birth mother and who, after the conception of the minor, has executed a notarized statement denying paternity or disclaiming any interest in the minor;

(6) A deceased parent or the personal representative of a deceased parent's estate; or

(7) An individual listed in G.S. 48-3-601 who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment and who fails to respond to a notice of the adoption proceeding within 30 days after the service of the notice."

(b) G.S. 48-3-201(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) ~~An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed, even if only one parent has executed a relinquishment pursuant to Part 7 of this Article or has had parental rights terminated, unless the other parent notifies the agency in writing of the parent's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment from one parent to obtain the consent or relinquishment of the other parent or to terminate the rights between the minor and the other parent pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes.~~ An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed by anyone as permitted by G.S. 48-3-701. The agency may place the minor for adoption even if other consents are required before an adoption can be granted, unless an individual whose consent is required notifies the agency in writing of the individual's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment to obtain all other necessary consents, relinquishments, or terminations of any guardian's authority pursuant to Chapter 35A of the General Statutes or parental rights pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes."

(c) G.S. 48-4-102 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-4-102. Consent to adoption of stepchild.

Except under circumstances described in G.S. 48-3-603, a petition to adopt a minor stepchild may be granted only if consent to the adoption has been executed by the adoptee if 12 or more years of age; and

(1) The adoptee's parents as described in G.S. 48-3-601; ~~or~~ and

(2) Any guardian of the adoptee.

The consent of an incompetent parent may be given pursuant to the procedures in G.S. 48-3-602."

(d) G.S. 48-3-602 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-602. Consent of incompetent parents.

If a parent as described in G.S. 48-3-601 has been adjudicated incompetent, then the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for that parent ~~and~~ and, unless the child already has a guardian, a guardian ad litem for the child to make a full investigation as to whether the adoption should proceed. The investigation shall include an evaluation of the parent's current condition and any reasonable likelihood that the parent will be restored to competency, the relationship between the child and the incompetent parent, alternatives to adoption, and any other relevant fact or circumstance. If the court determines after a hearing on the matter that it will be in the best interest of the child for the adoption to proceed, the court shall order the guardian ad litem of the parent to execute a consent for that parent."

(e) G.S. 48-1-101(8) reads as rewritten:

"(8) 'Guardian' means an individual, other than a parent, appointed by a clerk of court in North Carolina to exercise all of the powers conferred by ~~G.S. 35A-1241;~~ G.S. 35A-1241, including a standby guardian appointed under Article 21 of Chapter 35A of the General Statutes whose authority has actually commenced; and also means an individual, other than a parent, appointed in another jurisdiction according to the law of that jurisdiction who has the power to consent to adoption under the law of that jurisdiction."

Section 12. (a) G.S. 48-2-501 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-501. Report to the court during proceeding for adoption of a minor.

(a) Whenever a petition for adoption of a minor is filed, the court shall order a report to the court made to assist the court to determine if the proposed adoption of the minor by the petitioner is in the minor's best interest.

(b) Consistent with G.S. 48-1-109, the court shall order the report to be prepared:

(1) By the agency that placed the minor;

(2) By the agency that made the preplacement assessment pursuant to Part 3 of Article 3 of this Chapter; or

(3) By another agency.

(c) The court shall provide the individual who prepares the report with copies of: ~~(i) the petition to adopt; and (ii) the documents filed with it.~~

(1) The petition to adopt; and

(2) The documents filed with it.

(d) As an exception to this section, in any stepparent adoption under Article 4 of this Chapter in which the minor has lived with the stepparent for at least the two consecutive years immediately preceding the filing of the petition, the court may order a report, but it is not required to order a report unless the minor's consent is to be waived, the minor has revoked a consent, or both of the minor's parents are dead."

(b) G.S. 48-4-104 is repealed.

(c) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 13. G.S. 130A-108 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-108. Certificate of identification for ~~child~~ individual of foreign birth.

In the case of an adopted ~~child~~ individual born in a foreign country and ~~having legal settlement in this State,~~ residing in this State at the time of application, the State Registrar shall, upon the presentation of a certified copy of the original birth certificate from the country of birth and a certified copy of the final order of adoption signed by the clerk of court or other appropriate official, prepare a certificate of identification for the ~~child.~~ individual. The certificate shall contain the same information required by G.S. 48-9-107(a) for ~~children~~ individuals adopted in this State, except that the country of birth shall be specified in lieu of the state of birth."

Section 14. Part 2 of Article 2 of Chapter 48 is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 48-2-206. Prebirth determination of right to consent.

(a) Anytime after six months from the date of conception as reasonably determined by a physician, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents chosen by the biological mother may file a special proceeding with the clerk requesting the court to determine whether consent of the biological father is required. The biological father shall be served with notice of the intent of the biological mother to place the child for adoption, allowing the biological father 15 days after service to assert a claim that his consent is required.

(b) The notice required under this subsection shall contain the special proceeding case caption and file number and shall be substantially similar to the following language:

'[Name of the biological mother], the biological mother, is expected to give birth to a child on or about [birth due date]. You have been identified as the biological father. It is the intention of the biological mother to place the child for adoption. It is her belief that your consent to the adoption is not required. If you believe your consent to the adoption of this child is required pursuant to G.S. 48-3-601, you must notify the court in writing no later than 15 days from the date you received this notice that you believe your consent is required. A copy of your notice to the court must also be sent to the person or agency that sent you this notice. If you fail to notify the court within 15 days that you believe your consent is required, the court will rule that your consent is not required.'

(c) If the biological father fails to respond within the time required, the court shall enter an order that the biological father's consent is not required for the adoption.

(d) If the biological father notifies the court within 15 days of his receipt of the notice required by this subsection that he believes his consent to the adoption is required, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents may seek an immediate determination by the court as to whether the consent of the biological father is required by G.S. 48-3-601. A hearing on this question may be held upon 10 days' notice to the parties. During the hearing, the court may take such evidence as necessary and shall enter an order which shall be the final order.

(e) The manner of service under this section shall be the same as set forth in G.S. 48-2-402.

(f) The jurisdiction provisions of Article 6A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and the venue provisions of Article 7 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes rather than the provisions of Part 1 of this Article apply to proceedings under this section.

(g) Computation of periods of time provided for in this section shall be calculated as set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 6.

(h) Transfer under G.S. 1-272 and appeal under G.S. 1-279.1 shall be as for an adoption proceeding.

(i) A determination by the court under this section that the consent of the biological father is not required shall only apply to an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the child."

Section 15. G.S. 48-3-302(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. As used in this subsection, 'unable to obtain a preplacement assessment' includes the inability to obtain a preplacement assessment at the fee the county department of social services is permitted to charge the individual. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so."

Section 16. G.S. 48-3-601(2)b.4. reads as rewritten:

"4. Before the earliest of the filing of the ~~petition,~~ petition or the receipt of the notice pursuant to G.S. 48-2-206, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

III. After the minor's birth but before the minor's placement for adoption or the mother's relinquishment, has married or attempted to marry the mother of the minor by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid; or".

Section 17. G.S. 48-3-603(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(8) An individual notified under G.S. 48-2-206 who does not respond in a timely manner or whose consent is not required as determined by the court."

Section 18. G.S. 48-9-107(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptee's children, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, 'parent', 'brother', and 'sister' shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister."

Section 19. (a) G.S. 48-3-301(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) Has been completed or updated within the ~~12~~ 18 months immediately preceding the placement; and".

(b) This section applies to placements made on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 19.1 (a) G.S. 48-3-704 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-704. Content of relinquishment; optional provisions.

In addition to the mandatory provisions listed in G.S. 48-3-703, a relinquishment may also state that the relinquishment may be revoked upon notice by the agency that an adoption by a specific prospective adoptive parent, named or described in the relinquishment is not ~~completed, or if the agency and the person relinquishing the minor mutually agree to rescind the relinquishment before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs.~~ completed."

(b) G.S. 48-3-705(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) A relinquishment terminates:

(1) Any right and duty of the individual who executed the relinquishment with respect to the legal and physical custody of the ~~minor;~~ minor.

(2) The right to consent to the minor's ~~adoption; and~~ adoption.

~~(3) The duty to support the minor.~~"

(c) G.S. 48-3-707(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A relinquishment shall become void ~~if,~~ if:

(1) Before ~~before~~ the entry of the adoption decree, the individual who executed the relinquishment establishes by clear and convincing evidence that it was obtained by fraud or duress.

(2) Before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs, the agency and the person relinquishing the minor agree to rescind the relinquishment."

(d) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after August 1, 1997.

Section 20. Sections 14, 15, and 17 become effective October 1, 1997. Except as otherwise provided, the remaining sections of this act are effective when the act becomes law.

GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION

MEMORANDUM:

TO: House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: General Statutes Commission

DATE: May 2, 1997

RE: Senate Bill 162 (Adoption Law Amendments)

General Comments

Chapter 48 of the General Statutes, the chapter on adoptions, was completely revised in 1995, with an effective date of July 1, 1996. The portion of this bill that is recommended by the General Statutes Commission makes amendments to the new act that fall into four basic categories: (i) corrections to the new adoptions act itself, (ii) clarification of the language in the new act, (iii) changes necessitated by other legislation, and (iv) recently suggested minor changes to previously-existing law that was carried forward by the new act. None of these amendments are believed to be controversial.

Under the first category, the bill addresses confusion over certification of one of the documents that must be filed with an adoption petition and over notification of minor children in the adoption of an adult (Sections 1 and 2); allows the clerk of court to send orders for a report to the court to the designated agency by first-class mail rather than certified mail, return receipt requested, and makes a conforming change in the way the agency's reporting deadline is computed (Sections 3 and 5(a)); brings forward the former law's more detailed procedures for the clerks of court to follow in denying an adoption petition (Section 6); removes a requirement that agencies send a representative with a parent or guardian to have a relinquishment notarized (Section 7); treats revocations sent by overnight delivery service in the same manner as those sent by mail (Section 8); restores the clerk of court's index entry to its original, unsealed status, correcting an inadvertent error (Section 9(a)); clarifies that the statutes allowing hearings to be waived applies only to the adoption of minors (Section 10).

Under the second category, the amendments are intended to make it absolutely clear that in an agency adoption the report to the court must not contain any identifying information about the minor's former family (Section 4); that agencies that identify a concern in the report to the court must file a follow up report (Section 5(b) and (c)); and that the adoptee's adoptive name is the one to be used in the petition caption (Section 9(d)).

Under the third category, the bill amends various sections to take standby guardians into account (Section 11).

In the fourth category, the bill removes the requirement of a report to the court in many if not most stepparent adoptions (Section 12); standardizes the procedure for obtaining new birth certificates (Section 9(b) and (c)); and allows adopted foreign-born adults to obtain certificates of identification, which the current statute apparently makes available to adopted foreign-born minors (Section 13).

Sections 14 through the end of the bill have not been reviewed by the General Statutes Commission.

A more detailed explanation for Sections 1 through 13 appears below.

Specific Comments

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 requires various documents to be filed with an adoption petition. Subdivision (6) of that section requires a "certified" copy of one particular document, the nonidentifying health and background information report required by G.S. 48-3-205. The use of "certified" in this subdivision is causing confusion, because the document is not made or filed with a government official in the manner of, e.g., a birth certificate or a court order. This section makes the wording of the subdivision parallel to the certification language of the preceding subdivision, which has not caused confusion.

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) requires that various family members, including any children of the parties, be notified of the filing of an adoption petition in the adoption of an adult. The provision was added to the law by the new adoption act and is intended to provide a mechanism for bringing to the attention of the court those adult adoptions in which one of the parties is potentially being exploited. Confusion has arisen over what to do when there are minor children. This section amends the statutes to specify adult children, which should remove the confusion while adequately preserving the safeguard.

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 requires notice of the adoption proceeding to be sent by certified mail to the agency ordered to make a report to the court. This requirement was added by the new act to provide assurance of receipt by the designated agency, which has 60 days after receipt to complete the report. Several individual clerks of court have questioned the need for certified mail, return receipt requested. They note that in many cases the agency and the clerk's office may be in the same building, and the clerk formerly had such orders hand-delivered. Various individuals also noted that the clerk can extend the agency's time for completion if an order sent by ordinary mail is not actually received. This section amends G.S. 48-2-403 to permit these orders to be either mailed or delivered in some way other than mailing.

Section 4. This section amends G.S. 48-2-502(b) to make it absolutely clear that in an agency adoption, the report to the court cannot contain identifying information about an adopted person's former family.

Section 5. This section has three primary parts.

Subsection (a) changes the method for calculating an agency's time to complete a report to the court to conform to the amendment in Section 3. If the order for the report is mailed, time is counted from the date of mailing but the agency is given three extra days to complete the report.

Subsections (b) and (c) address a problem with reports to the court that actually occurred in at least one case, although the problem does not appear to be attributable to the new adoptions act. It needs to be absolutely clear that when an agency files a report (whether denominated an interim or final report) that recommends a delay in granting a petition until the occurrence or correction of certain conditions, the agency needs to file a report that tells the court whether these conditions have occurred or been met.

Section 6. Individual clerks of court asked to have former G.S. 48-20(a) and (b) incorporated into G.S. 48-2-604, because of the greater detail in the former statute. This section implements that request.

Section 7. G.S. 48-3-702 requires an agency to send a specially designated employee to accompany a parent or guardian before the notary who is to notarize that person's relinquishment. The agency employee must sign a statement indicating the agency's acceptance of the relinquishment, and this fact is then certified by the notary. In practice, it has proved awkward for the agency employee and the parent or guardian to schedule an appearance before the same notary. This section amends G.S. 48-3-702 to require only that the agency give the parent or guardian a letter or other statement indicating its acceptance.

Section 8. This section amends G.S. 48-3-608(a) to give revocations sent by overnight delivery service the same treatment given to revocations sent by certified mail, return receipt requested. The revocation is effective on deposit with the service.

Section 9. This section amends G.S. 48-9-102 in two principal respects.

First, the section amends G.S. 48-9-102(a) to correct an unintended effect in the new act. The former Chapter 48 contained no definition of "record," although it sealed most "records" other than the final adoption decree. The final decree was always a public record. No one can find a final decree, however, without the docket number which is obtainable from the clerk's special proceedings index. The entry in the special proceedings index, has, therefore, always been treated as public. The new adoption act was intended to bring forward the confidentiality provisions of the former act. Final decrees remain public record under the new act. However, the new act also contains a definition of "record" that includes indexes. The result is that the new act arguably (unintentionally) seals the index entry in the clerk of court's office. This section corrects that error. Please note that the entry in the special proceedings index is in the name of the adoptive parents and the adopted person's intended name and that the clerk retains no documents in the clerk's files that include identifying information about the adopted person's former name or family.

At the suggestion of the State agency most affected, the section amends subsections (b) and (c) to make the procedure for notifying the proper state official to obtain a new birth certificate the same for all types of adoptions. Currently, for adult adoptions the necessary information is transmitted directly by the clerk of court to the State Registrar or to the adopted adult, if the person was born in another state. The Division of Social Services has this responsibility for minors. Standardizing this procedure for every adoption would simplify matters and arguably result in better, more consistent service for all adoptees. Please note that there are comparatively few adult adoptions each year.

This section also amends G.S. 48-2-303 to make it absolutely clear that the name of the adoptee in the caption of the petition is to be the person's adoptive name.

Section 10. This section amends G.S. 48-2-601(a) to clarify that the waiver of a hearing provided for in this section applies only in the adoption of minors.

Section 11. When the revision of Chapter 48 was introduced, the statutes allowing "standby guardians" had not been enacted. Until that time, it was not possible in this State for a minor to have both a guardian of the person and a live parent unless that parent's parental rights had been terminated. With the procedures for "standby guardians," this condition is now possible. This section accordingly repeals G.S. 48-3-603(a)(3) and makes other conforming amendments in four other sections. Because a standby guardian whose authority has actually commenced has concurrent rights with parents and does not supplant them, the conforming amendments are intended to recognize the standby guardian's authority while not excluding the continuing authority of the parents.

Section 12. This section amends G.S. 48-2-501 to eliminate the requirement of a report to the court in most stepparent adoptions of minor children. Except where there is an obvious caution sign, the clerk is allow to dispense with the requirement if the minor has lived with the stepparent for at least two years. After two years, any "honeymoon" effect should have passed, and both the stepparent and the minor child should have a more realistic view of a proposed adoption.

Section 13. This section amends G.S. 130A-108 to allow the State Registrar to issue certificates of identification to foreign-born adults. It also clarifies the phrase "having legal settlement in this State"; the substitute phrase, "residing in this State at the time of application", is the interpretation actually given to the deleted phrase by the agency.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman, House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, and O. Walker Reagan, Staff Attorneys

RE: SENATE BILL 162 - ADOPTION LAW AMENDMENTS -Second Edition
Senator Hartsell

Senate Bill 162 makes several technical, clarifying and other minor changes to the Adoptions Law as rewritten in 1995. Sections 1 through 13 were recommended by the General Statutes Commission. Sections 14 through 18 have been added at the request of other parties and have not been approved by the Commission.

A summary and analysis of Sections 1 through 13 has been prepared by Bly Hall, Counsel to the General Statutes Commission and is attached hereto. Reference to Ms. Hall's document should be made for additional information on those sections. Below is a summary of Sections 14 through 18 of the bill.

Section 14, would establish a process for determining whether a biological father is required to consent to an adoption prior to the birth of the child. In cases where the biological mother is willing to consent to the adoption prior to birth, this procedure would be helpful to expedite the adoption process when the biological father will not sign a consent prior to birth. Because of situations set forth in G.S. 48-3-601 where the biological father's consent is not required, when the father is unwilling to consent, the adoption process can be shortened if the determination of whether the father is entitled to consent can be made earlier. If the father's consent is not required the child can be placed with the adoptive family at birth. If the consent is required an action to terminate the father's parental rights can be started earlier.

Sections 16 and 17 make conforming changes arising from Section 14 of the bill.

Section 15 clarifies when county departments of social services must prepare preplacement assessments. Current law requires county DSS's to do the assessment when a prospective adoptive parent who has identified a prospective adoptive child is unable to obtain an assessment. This provision in the bill clarifies that if a prospective adoptive parent cannot obtain an assessment at the fee county DSS's are permitted to charge for this service, the county DSS will have to do the assessment at that fee.

Section 18 conforms the law on who is permitted to obtain a copy of a birth certificate of an adopted person to the law on who is permitted to obtain a copy of a birth certificate in a non-adoptive situation by permitting the children of an adoptee to get a copy.

Sections 1-4, 11, and 13 through 18 are effective when they become law. Sections 6, 9, and 12 have varying effective dates and Sections 5 and 7-10 have specific application provisions.

S162-SMRU-001

Ward v. Howard, 217 N.C. 201, 7 S.E.2d 625 (1940).

An agreement to adopt a minor, between the person desiring to adopt the minor and the minor's parents, as the respective parties to the agreement, was not an adoption of a minor under the former Chapter. Chambers v. Byers, 214 N.C. 373, 199 S.E. 398 (1938).

§48-1-101. Definitions.

In this Chapter, the following definitions apply:

(1) "Adoptee" means an individual who is adopted, is placed for adoption, or is the subject of a petition for adoption properly filed with the court.

(2) "Adoption" means the creation by law of the relationship of parent and child between two individuals.

(3) "Adult" means an individual who has attained 18 years of age, or if under the age of 18, is either married or has been emancipated under the applicable State law.

(3a) "Adoption facilitator" means an individual or a nonprofit entity that assists biological parents in locating and evaluating prospective adoptive parents without charge.

(4) "Agency" means a public or private association, corporation, institution, or other person or entity that is licensed or otherwise authorized by the law of the jurisdiction where it operates to place minors for adoption. "Agency" also means a county department of social services in this State.

(5) "Child" means a son or daughter, whether by birth or adoption.

(6) "Department" means the North Carolina Department of Human Resources.

(7) "Division" means the Division of Social Services of the Department.

(8) "Guardian" means an individual, other than a parent, appointed by a clerk of court in North Carolina to exercise all of the powers conferred by G.S. 35A-1241; and also means an individual, other than a parent, appointed in another jurisdiction according to the law of that jurisdiction who has the power to consent to adoption under the law of that jurisdiction.

(9) "Legal custody" of an individual means the general right to exercise continuing care of and control over the individual as authorized by law, with or without a court order, and:

a. Includes the right and the duty to protect, care for, educate, and discipline the individual;

b. Includes the right and the duty to provide the individual with food, shelter, clothing, and medical care; and

c. May include the right to have physical custody of the individual.

(10) "Minor" means an individual under 18 years of age who is not an adult.

(11) "Party" means a petitioner, adoptee, or any person whose consent to an adoption is necessary under this Chapter but has not been obtained.

(12) "Physical custody" means the physical care of and control over an individual.

(13) "Placement" means transfer of physical custody of a minor to the selected prospective adoptive parent. Placement may be either:

a. Direct placement by a parent or the guardian of the minor; or
b. Placement by an agency.

(14) "Preplacement assessment" means a document, whether prepared before or after placement, that contains the information required by G.S. 48-3-303 and any rules adopted by the Social Services Commission.
(15) "Relinquishment" means the voluntary surrender of a minor to an agency for the purpose of adoption.
(16) "Report to the court" means a document prepared in accordance with G.S. 48-2-501, et seq.
(17) "State" means a state as defined in G.S. 12-3(11).
(18) "Stepparent" means an individual who is the spouse of a parent of a child, but who is not a legal parent of the child. (1949, c. 300; 1953, c. 880; 1957, c. 778, s. 1; 1961, c. 241; 1969, c. 982; 1971, c. 157, ss. 1, 2; c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 476, s. 138; 1975, c. 321, s. 2; 1977, c. 879, s. 1; 1981, c. 924, s. 1; 1985, c. 758, s. 4; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-1-102. Parent includes adoptive parent.

As used in this Article, the term "parent" includes one who has become a parent by adoption. (1949, c. 300; 1953, c. 880; 1957, c. 778, s. 1; 1961, c. 241; 1969, c. 982; 1971, c. 157, ss. 1, 2; c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 476, s. 138; 1975, c. 321, s. 2; 1977, c. 879, s. 1; 1981, c. 924, s. 1; 1985, c. 758, s. 4; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-1-103. Who may adopt.

Any adult may adopt another individual as provided in this Chapter, but spouses may not adopt each other. (1949, c. 300; 1963, c. 699; 1967, c. 619, ss. 1-3; c. 693; c. 880, s. 3; 1969, c. 21, ss. 3-6; 1971, c. 395; c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 849, s. 3; c. 1354, ss. 1-4; 1975, c. 91; 1979, c. 107, s. 6; 1981, c. 657; 1983, c. 454, s. 6; 1989, c. 208; c. 727, s. 219(4); 1993, c. 553, s. 14; 1995, c. 88, s. 3; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-1-104. Who may be adopted.

Any individual may be adopted as provided in this Chapter. (1949, c. 300; 1957, c. 778, s. 2; 1967, c. 880, ss. 2, 3; 1969, c. 21, ss. 3-6; 1971, c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 849, s. 3; 1975, c. 91; 1981, c. 657; 1987, c. 716, s. 1; 1989, c. 208; c. 727, s. 219(4); 1993, c. 539, s. 410; c. 553, s. 14; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-1-105. Name of adoptee after adoption.

When a decree of adoption becomes final, the name of the adoptee shall become the name designated in the decree. (1949, c. 300; 1951, c. 730, ss. 1-4; 1955, c. 951, s. 1; 1967, c. 880, s. 3; c. 1042, ss. 1-3; 1969, c. 21, s. 2-6; c. 977; 1971, c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 476, s. 128; c. 849, ss. 1-3; 1975, c. 91; 1981, c. 657; 1983, c. 454, s. 6; 1989, c. 208; c. 727, s. 219(3), (4); 1993, c. 553, s. 14; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-1-106. Legal effect of decree of adoption.

(a) A decree of adoption effects a complete substitution of families for all legal purposes after the entry of the decree.

(b) A decree of adoption establishes the relation child between each petitioner and the adoptee. CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The notes below were decided prior to the 1995 revision of Chapter 48.

Department of Social Services Has Duty to Make Investigations. — Under former § 48-16(a), the legislature clearly vested the Department of Social Services with the duty and responsibility to make investigations regarding adoptions; thus, absent any responsibilities or duties to perform, the guardian ad litem is superfluous to an adoption proceeding. In re James S., 86 N.C. App. 364, 357 S.E.2d 430 (1987).

§ 48-2-503. Timing and filing of report.

(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after receipt of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing.

(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern.

(c) The agency shall give the petitioner a copy of each report filed with the court, and the agency shall retain a copy. (1949, c. 300; 1961, c. 186; 1969, c. 982; 1973, c. 476, s. 138; 1983, c. 454, s. 5; 1991, c. 335, s. 2; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-2-504. Fee for report.

(a) An agency that prepares a report to the court may charge the petitioner a reasonable fee for preparing and writing the report. No fee may be charged except pursuant to a written fee agreement which must be signed by the parties to be charged prior to the beginning of the preparation. The fee agreement may not be based on the outcome of the report or the adoption proceeding.

(b) A fee for a report is subject to review by the court pursuant to G.S. 48-2-602 and G.S. 48-2-603.

(c) The Department shall set the maximum fees, based on ability to pay and other factors, which may be charged by county departments of social services. The Department shall require waiver of fees for those unable to pay. Fees collected under this section shall be applied to the costs of preparing and writing reports and shall be used by the county department of social services to supplement and not to supplant appropriated funds. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

ARTICLE 3.

Adoption of Minors.

Part 1. General Provisions.

§ 48-3-100. Application of Article.

This Article shall apply to the adoption of minors by adults who are not their stepparents. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 457, s. 11, provides: "Nothing in this act shall affect the validity of an adoption completed or validated under any prior law."

Session Laws 1995, c. 457, s. 12, provides that this article is effective July 1, 1996, and that any petition for adoption filed prior to and still pending on that date shall be completed in accordance with the law in effect immediately prior to that date.

Part 2. Placement of Minors for Adoption.

§ 48-3-201. Who may place minors for adoption.

(a) Only the following may place the minor for adoption:

(1) An agency,

(2) A guardian,

(3) Both parents acting jointly, if

a. Both parents are married to each other and living together, or

b. One parent has legal custody of a minor and the other has physical custody but neither has both, or

(4) A parent with legal and physical custody of a minor, except as provided in subdivision (3) of this subsection.

(b) A parent, guardian, or agency that places a minor directly for adoption shall execute a consent to the minor's adoption pursuant to Part 6 of this Article.

(c) A parent or guardian of a minor who wants an agency to place the minor for adoption must execute a relinquishment to the agency pursuant to Part 7 of this Article before the agency can place the minor.

(d) An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed, even if only one parent has executed a relinquishment pursuant to Part 7 of this Article or has had parental rights terminated, unless the other parent notifies the agency in writing of the parent's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment from one parent to obtain the consent or relinquishment of the other parent or to terminate the rights between the minor and the other parent pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-3-202. Direct placement for adoption.

(a) In a direct placement, a parent or guardian must personally select a prospective adoptive parent, but a parent or guardian may

(3) If the person who placed the minor executes a consent before receiving a copy of the preplacement assessment, G.S. 48-3-608 shall determine the time within which that person may revoke. (1949, c. 300; 1957, c. 778, s. 2; 1967, c. 880, s. 2; 1987, c. 716, s. 1; 1993, c. 539, s. 410; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-3-302. Request for preplacement assessment.

(a) An individual seeking to adopt may request a preplacement assessment at any time by an agency authorized by G.S. 48-1-109 to prepare preplacement assessments.

(b) An individual requesting a preplacement assessment need not have located a prospective adoptee when the request is made.

(c) An individual may have more than one preplacement assessment or may request that an assessment, once initiated, not be completed.

(d) If an individual is seeking to adopt a minor from a particular agency, the agency may require the individual to be assessed by its own employee, even if the individual has already had a favorable preplacement assessment completed by another agency.

(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so. (1949, c. 300; 1957, c. 778, s. 2; 1967, c. 880, s. 2; 1987, c. 716, s. 1; 1993, c. 539, s. 410; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-3-303. Content and timing of preplacement assessment.

(a) A preplacement assessment shall be completed within 90 days after a request has been accepted.

(b) The preplacement assessment must be based on at least one personal interview with each individual being assessed in the individual's residence and any report received pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

(c) The preplacement assessment must, after a reasonable investigation, report on the following about the individual being assessed:

(1) Age and date of birth, nationality, race, or ethnicity, and any religious preference;
(2) Marital and family status and history, including the presence of any children born to or adopted by the individual and any other children in the household;
(3) Physical and mental health, including any addiction to alcohol or drugs;
(4) Educational and employment history and any special skills;
(5) Property and income, and current financial information provided by the individual;
(6) Reason for wanting to adopt;
(7) Any previous request for an assessment or involvement in an adoptive placement and the outcome of the assessment or placement;

But Transfer of Custody to Foster Parents Is Not Prohibited. — The case of Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370, (1981) does not prohibit the transfer of legal care, custody and control of a foster child to its foster parents. Oxendine stands for the proposition that foster parents have no standing to bring a custody action pursuant to § 50-13.2 et seq. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Part 6. Consent to Adoption.

§ 48-3-601. Persons whose consent to adoption is required.

Unless consent is not required under G.S. 48-3-603, a petition to adopt a minor may be granted only if consent to the adoption has been executed by:

(1) The minor to be adopted if 12 or more years of age;

(2) In a direct placement, by:

a. The mother of the minor;

b. Any man who may or may not be the biological father of the minor but who:

1. Is or was married to the mother of the minor if the minor was born during the marriage or within 280 days after the marriage is terminated or the parties have separated pursuant to a written separation agreement or an order of separation entered under Chapters 50 or 50B of the General Statutes or a similar order of separation entered by a court in another jurisdiction;

2. Attempted to marry the mother of the minor before the minor's birth, by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid, and the minor is born during the attempted marriage, or within 280 days after the attempted marriage is terminated by annulment, declaration of invalidity, divorce, or, in the absence of a judicial proceeding, by the cessation of cohabitation;

3. Before the filing of the petition, has legitimated the minor under the law of any state;

4. Before the filing of the petition, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

Editor's Note. — The notes below were decided prior to the 1995 revision of Chapter 48.

Jurisdiction, Generally. — Where neither the father nor the mother of the child was a party to the proceeding within the contemplation of the statute, and the clerk had no jurisdiction of their person, consequently he had no jurisdiction of the subject matter. Truelove v. Parker, 191 N.C. 430, 132 S.E. 295 (1926), discussed in 5 N.C.L. Rev. 67.

Consent is essential to an order of adoption. In re Daughtridge, 25 N.C. App. 141, 212 S.E.2d 519 (1975).

And parent's consent to adoption must be shown within the record and must relate to the particular persons seeking to adopt the child. In re Holder, 218 N.C. 136, 10 S.E.2d 620 (1940).

Except as Provided in Former §§ 48-5 and 48-6. — Under former § 48-7, except as provided in former §§ 48-5 and 48-6, before a child can be adopted the written consent of the parents or surviving parent or guardian of the person of the child must be obtained. In re Hoose, 243 N.C. 589, 91 S.E.2d 555 (1956).

Absent consent of the adoptive parents, the court was without jurisdiction to order the adoption of a child unless her adoptive parents had abandoned such child within the meaning of our statutes. In re Hoose, 243 N.C. 589, 91 S.E.2d 555 (1956).

But Agency's Consent Is Simply an Additional Safeguard. — The consent of those in custody of the child under statutory provisions, unlike the absolute required consent of competent natural parents, is simply an additional safeguard to the welfare and best interests of the child. In re Daughtridge, 25 N.C. App. 141, 212 S.E.2d 519 (1975).

But consent may not be unreasonably and unjustly withheld. In re Daughtridge, 25 N.C. App. 141, 212 S.E.2d 519 (1975).

When Court May Order Adoption to Proceed Without Agency's Consent. — Should a court find that an agency has unreasonably withheld its consent, the court has the right to order that the adoption proceed without the written consent of the agency, resulting, as a practical matter, in the adoption of the child proceeding with the consent of the court substituted for the consent of the agency. In re Daughtridge, 25 N.C. App. 141, 212 S.E.2d 519 (1975).

If the court finds that a failure to grant petition for adoption would be inimical to the best interests and welfare of the

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The notes below were decided prior to the 1995 revision of Chapter 48.

Purpose. — The purpose of former § 48-11 was obvious: to give stability to the adoptive process. It allows prospective adoptive parents, as well as the child, to settle into a stable home environment, to be disturbed only upon those occasions when, prior to the final order, county directors of social services or adoptive agencies conduct studies of the provisions being made for the child. It also gives the natural parents a period of license review of their decision to allow the adoption. In re Kasim, 58 N.C. App. 36, 293 S.E.2d 247, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 743, 295 S.E.2d 478 (1982).

Instrument held sufficient revocation of consent to adoption. In re Hoose, 243 N.C. 589, 91 S.E.2d 555 (1956).

Letter mailed by natural mother to one of the petitioners, stating that she was withdrawing her consent to child's adoption, constituted sufficient notice of revocation under the law as it stood prior to Oct. 1, 1983, the effective date of subsection (b) of former § 48-11, and was timely made inasmuch as less than three months (now 30 days) had elapsed since execution of the consent to adopt and no interlocutory or final order of adoption had been entered. In re Terry, 317 N.C. 132, 343 S.E.2d 923 (1986).

Evidence held sufficient to support findings that social worker made a misrepresentation of an existing fact with knowledge that it was false and with the intent to deceive 17-year-old parents into signing adoption consent forms, and that a prudent person could have reasonably relied on her statements concerning the adoption process and the contents of the forms and signed the forms without reading them. In re Baby Boy Shamp, 82 N.C. App. 606, 347 S.E.2d 848 (1986), cert. denied, 318 N.C. 695, 351 S.E.2d 750 (1987).

As to revocation of consent within six months under former § 48-11, see In re Hoose, 243 N.C. 589, 91 S.E.2d 555 (1956).

§ 48-3-608. Revocation of consent.

(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent.

(b) In a direct placement, if:

(1) A preplacement assessment is required, and

(2) Placement occurs before the preplacement assessment is given to the parent or guardian who is placing the minor, then that individual's time under subsection (a) of this section to revoke any consent previously given shall be either five business days after the date the individual receives the preplacement assessment or the remainder of the time provided in subsection (a) of this section, whichever is longer. The date of receipt is the earlier of the date of actual receipt or the date established pursuant to G.S. 48-3-307.

(c) If a person who has physical custody places the minor with the prospective adoptive parent and thereafter revokes a consent pursuant to this section, the prospective adoptive parent shall, immediately upon request, return the minor to that person. The revocation restores the right to physical custody and any right to legal custody to the person who placed the minor and divests the prospective adoptive parent of any right to legal or physical custody and any further responsibility for the care and support of the minor. In any subsequent proceeding, the court shall award reasonable attorneys' fees to the person who revoked if the prospective adoptive parent fails upon request to return the minor.

(d) If a person other than a person described in subsection (c) of this section revokes a consent pursuant to this section and this person's consent is required, the adoption cannot proceed until another consent is obtained or the person's parental rights are terminated. The person who revoked consent is not thereby entitled to physical custody of the minor. If the minor whose consent is required revokes consent, the county department of social services shall be notified for appropriate action.

(e) A second consent to adoption by the same adoptive parents is irrevocable. (1949, c. 300; 1957, c. 778, s. 6; 1961, c. 186; 1969, c. 982; 1983, cc. 83, 688; 1985, c. 758, s. 12; 1987, c. 541, s. 1; 1991, c. 667, s. 1; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-3-609. Challenges to validity of consent.

(a) A consent shall be void if:

(1) Before the entry of the adoption decree, the individual who executed the consent establishes by clear and convincing evidence that it was obtained by fraud or duress;

(2) The prospective adoptive parent and the individual who executed the consent mutually agree in writing to set it aside;

(3) The petition to adopt is voluntarily dismissed with prejudice; or

(4) The court dismisses the petition to adopt and no appeal has been taken, or the dismissal has been affirmed on appeal and all appeals have been exhausted.

(b) If the consent of an individual who previously had legal and physical custody of a minor becomes void under subsection (a) of this section and no grounds exist under G.S. 48-3-603 for dispensing with this individual's consent, the court shall order the return of the minor to the custody of that individual and shall dismiss any pending adoption proceeding. If the court has reasonable cause to believe that the return will be detrimental to the minor, the court shall not order the return of the minor but shall notify the county department of social services for appropriate action.

(c) If the consent of an individual who did not previously have physical custody of a minor becomes void under subsection (a) of this section and no ground exists under G.S. 48-3-603 for dispensing with this individual's consent, the court shall dismiss any pending proceeding for adoption. If return of the minor is not ordered under subsection (b) of this section, the court shall notify the county department of social services for appropriate action. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

(d) G.S. 48-3-608(a) applies to consents executed pursuant to subsections (a) through (c) of this section. Unless so revoked, the consent is final and irrevocable except under a circumstance set forth in G.S. 48-3-609.

(e) A consent executed by an adoptee in a proceeding for adoption by a stepparent must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments. The minor may revoke the consent at any time before the decree is entered by filing written notice with the court in which the petition is pending. Confidentiality of Records and Disclosure of Information.

§ 48-9-101. Records defined.

For purposes of this Article, "records" means any petition, affidavit, consent or relinquishment, transcript or notes of testimony, deposition, power of attorney, report, decree, order, judgment, correspondence, document, invoice, receipt, certificate, or other printed, written, microfilmed or microfiched, video-taped or tape-recorded material or electronic data processing records regardless of physical form or characteristics pertaining to a proceeding for adoption under this Chapter. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 457, s. 11, provides: "Nothing in this act shall affect the validity of an adoption completed or validated under any prior law."

Session Laws 1995, c. 457, s. 12, provides that this article is effective July 1, 1996, and that any petition for adoption filed prior to and still pending on that date shall be completed in accordance with the law in effect immediately prior to that date.

§ 48-9-102. Records confidential and sealed.

(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of adoption, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter.

(b) During a proceeding for adoption, records shall not be open to inspection by any person except upon an order of the court finding that disclosure is necessary to protect the interest of the adoptee.

(c) When a decree of adoption becomes final, all records and all indices of records on file with the court, an agency, or this State shall be retained permanently and sealed. Sealed records shall not be open to inspection by any person except as otherwise provided in this Article.

(d) Records must be sent by the clerk of superior court to the Division in the following order:

(1) Within 10 days after the petition is filed with the clerk of the superior court, a copy of the petition giving the date of the filing of the original petition and the original of each consent and relinquishment must be filed by the clerk with the Division.

(2) Within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, the clerk must file with the Division the additional documents filed pursuant to G.S. 48-2-305, any report to the court, any additional documents submitted and orders entered, and a copy of the final order.

(e) The Division must cause the papers and reports related to the proceeding to be permanently indexed and filed.

(f) The Division shall transmit a report of the adoption of a minor and any name change to the State Registrar if the minor was born in this State, or to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.

(g) In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee. CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 1995 revision of Chapter 48.

Requirement that adoption records be sealed reflects legislative recognition of potential harm to adopted children and their adoptive families, and ultimately to society, which may arise from unwarranted revelation of private facts about adoptions, and suggests that the circumstances surrounding a particular adoption and the identities of the parties involved are ordinarily not matters of public interest. Hall v. Post, 85 N.C. App. 610, 355 S.E.2d 819 (1987), rev'd on other grounds, 323 N.C. 259, 372 S.E.2d 711 (1988).

Service of Motion and Notice of Hearing upon Director of Social Services Required. — Former § 48-25(c) requires that before a director of social services shall be required to disclose any information acquired in contemplation of the adoption of a child, the director must be served with the motion and notice of hearing. In re Spinks, 32 N.C. App. 422, 232 S.E.2d 479 (1977).

There is no requirement that the natural parents be served. In re Spinks, 32 N.C. App. 422, 232 S.E.2d 479 (1977).

Failure to Grant Protective Order. — An appellate court could not hold that a district court in a child custody proceeding erred in failing to grant the defendant county department of social services a "protective order based upon confidentiality of records as set out in [former] § 48-25," where the record on appeal did not reveal exactly what type of "protective order" was requested by the defendant and did not even clearly reveal that the district court, after being presented with a proper motion by the defendant for any such order, refused to grant it. Francis v. Durham County Dep't of Social Servs., 41 N.C. App. 444, 255 S.E.2d 263 (1979).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 1995 revision of Chapter 48.

Circumvention of Section Under Guise of Waiver of Attorney-Client Privilege. — In a child custody action, the trial court was correct in preventing circumvention of this section under the guise of a waiver of the attorney-client privilege, where the plaintiff subpoenaed the files of the plaintiff's former counsel, who were employed to aid plaintiff and her deceased husband in adopting their first child, and the files most likely contained duplicates of many of the papers protected by former §§ 48-24, 48-25 and 48-26. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 38 N.C. App. 712, 248 S.E.2d 871 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 586, 254 S.E.2d 34 (1979).

Discretion of Trial Judge. — Under this section, disclosure is permitted when the trial judge determines it to be in the best interests of the child or the public. In re Spinks, 32 N.C. App. 422, 232 S.E.2d 479 (1977).

In making the determination that disclosure of any necessary information would be in the best interest of the child or the public, the judge should carefully weigh the interests of the child and the public, including the interests of the adoptive parents and the natural parents. Any conflict should be resolved in favor of the best interest of the child. In re Spinks, 32 N.C. App. 422, 232 S.E.2d 479 (1977).

Finding of Fact Required. — There must be a finding of fact that the information sought to be revealed is necessary for the best interest of the child or the public before an order may be entered requiring disclosure of the information. In re Spinks, 32 N.C. App. 422, 232 S.E.2d 479 (1977).

§ 48-9-106. Release of original certificate of birth.

Upon receipt of a certified copy of a court order issued pursuant to G.S. 48-9-105 authorizing the release of an adoptee's original certificate of birth, the State Registrar shall give the individual who obtained the order a copy of the original certificate of birth with a certification that the copy is a true copy of a record that is no longer a valid certificate of birth. (1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-9-107. New birth certificates.

(a) Upon receipt of a report of the adoption of a minor from the Division, or the documents required by G.S. 48-9-102(g) from the clerk of superior court in the adoption of an adult, or a report of an adoption from another state, the State Registrar shall prepare a new birth certificate for the adoptee that shall contain the adoptee's full adoptive name, sex, state of birth, and date of birth; the full name of the adoptive father, if applicable; the full maiden name of the adoptive mother, if applicable; and any other pertinent information consistent with this section as may be determined by the State Registrar. The new certificate shall contain no reference to the adoption of the adoptee and shall not refer to the adoptive parents in any way other than as the adoptee's parents.

(b) In an adoption by a stepparent, the State Registrar shall prepare a new birth certificate pursuant to subsection (a) of this section except:

(1) The adoptive parent and the parent whose relation with the adoptee remains unchanged shall be listed as the adoptee's mother and father on the new birth certificate; and

(2) The city and county of birth of the adoptee shall be the same on the new birth certificate as on the original certificate.

The names of the adoptee's parents shall not be changed as provided in subdivision (1) of this subsection if the petitioner, the petitioner's spouse, the adoptee if age 12 or older, and any living parent whose parental rights are terminated by the adoption jointly file a request that the parents' names not be changed with the court prior to the entry of the adoption decree. The Division shall send a copy of this request with its report to the State Registrar or other appropriate official in the adoption of a minor stepchild, and the clerk of superior court shall send a copy with the documents required by G.S. 48-9-102(g) in the adoption of an adult stepchild.

(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, "parent", "brother", and "sister" shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister.

(d) At the time of preparing the new birth certificate pursuant to subsection (a) of this section, the State Registrar shall notify the register of deeds or appropriate official in the health department in the county of the adoptee's birth to remove the adoptee's birth certificate from the records and forward it to the State Registrar for retention under seal with the original certificate of birth in the State Registrar's office. The register of deeds shall also delete all index entries for that birth certificate. The State Registrar shall not issue copies of birth certificates for adoptees to registers of deeds. Only the State Registrar shall issue certified copies of such records, and these copies shall be prepared as prescribed in subsection (c) of this section.

(e) The State Registrar may by rule prescribe requirements for reports of adoptions from other states. (1949, c. 300; 1951, c. 730, ss. 1-4; 1955, c. 951, s. 1; 1967, c. 880, s. 3; c. 1042, ss. 1-3; 1969, c. 21, s. 2-6; c. 977; 1971, c. 1231, s. 1; 1973, c. 476, s. 128; c. 849, ss. 1-3; 1975, c. 91; 1981, c. 657; 1983, c. 454, s. 6; 1989, c. 208; c. 727, s. 219(3), (4); 1993, c. 553, s. 14; 1995, c. 457, s. 2.)

§ 48-9-108. Restoration of original birth certificates if a decree of adoption is set aside.

If a final decree of adoption is set aside, the court shall send a certified copy of the order within 10 days after it becomes final to the State Registrar if the adoptee was born in this State or to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their equivalent if the adoptee was not born in this State. The court shall also send a copy to the Division. If the adoptee desires to have the adoptive name shown on the original birth certificate when it is restored, the order must include this directive. A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MAKE TECHNICAL, CLARIFYING, AND SIMILAR MINOR CHANGES TO THE ADOPTION LAWS AS FOUND IN CHAPTER 48 OF THE GENERAL STATUTES INVOLVING CERTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS, NOTICE, PROCEDURES FOR REPORTS TO THE COURT, ACCEPTANCE OF RELINQUISHMENTS BY AGENCIES, INDEXING, CAPTIONS ON ADOPTION PETITIONS, AND STANDBY GUARDIANS; TO STANDARDIZE PROCEDURES FOR REQUESTING NEW BIRTH CERTIFICATES IN ALL ADOPTIONS; AND TO AMEND PROVISIONS FOR OBTAINING CERTIFICATION OF IDENTIFICATION FOR INDIVIDUALS OF FOREIGN BIRTH AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION; AND TO ALLOW FOR PREBIRTH RIGHT-TO-CONSENT DETERMINATION, CLARIFY WHEN COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES MUST DO PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS, TO ADD CHILDREN TO THE LIST OF PERSONS WHO CAN GET COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES OF ADOPTEES, TO EXTEND THE EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS, TO PROVIDE THAT EXECUTION OF A RELINQUISHMENT DOES NOT TERMINATE THE DUTY OF SUPPORT, AND TO PERMIT ALL RELINQUISHMENTS TO BE RESCINDED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-305. Petition for adoption; additional documents.

At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall file or cause to be filed the following documents:

(1) Any required affidavit of parentage executed pursuant to G.S. 48-3-206;

(2) Any required consent or relinquishment that has been executed;

(3) A certified copy of any court order terminating the rights and duties of a parent or a guardian of the adoptee;

(4) A certified copy of any court order or pleading in a pending proceeding concerning custody of or visitation with the adoptee;

(5) A copy of any required preplacement assessment certified by the agency that prepared it or an affidavit from the petitioner stating why the assessment is not available;

(6) A ~~certified~~ copy of any document containing the information required under G.S. 48-3-205 concerning the health, social, educational, and genetic history of the adoptee and the adoptee's original family which the petitioner received before the placement or at any later time, certified by the person who prepared it, or if this document is not available, an affidavit stating the reason why it is not available;

(7) Any signed copy of the form required by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, G.S. 110-57.1, et seq., authorizing a minor to come into this State;

(8) A writing that states the name of any individual whose consent is or may be required, but who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment or whose parental rights have not been legally terminated, and any fact or circumstance that may excuse the lack of consent or relinquishment; and

(9) In an adoption pursuant to Article 4 of this Chapter, a copy of any agreement to release past-due child support payments.

The petitioner may also file any other document necessary or helpful to the court's determination."

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) In the adoption of an adult, the petitioner shall also serve notice of the filing on any adult children of the prospective adoptive parent and any parent, spouse, or adult child of the adoptee who are listed in the petition to adopt."

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-403. Notice of proceedings by clerk.

No later than five days after a petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall ~~give notice of the adoption proceeding by certified mail, return receipt requested,~~ mail or otherwise deliver notice of the adoption proceeding to any agency that has undertaken but not yet completed a preplacement assessment and any agency ordered to make a report to the court pursuant to Part 5 of this Article."

Section 4. G.S. 48-2-502(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The report must be in writing and contain:

(1) An account of the petitioner's marital or family status, physical and mental health, home environment, property, income, and financial obligations; if there has been a preplacement assessment, the account may be limited to any changes since the filing of the preplacement assessment;

(2) All reasonably available nonidentifying information concerning the physical, mental, and emotional condition of the adoptee required by G.S. 48-3-205 which is not already included in the document prepared under that section;

(3) Copies of any court order, judgment, decree, or pending legal proceeding affecting the adoptee, the petitioner, or any child of the petitioner relevant to the welfare of the adoptee;

(4) A list of the expenses, fees, or other charges incurred, paid, or to be paid in connection with the adoption that can reasonably be ascertained by the agency;

(5) Any fact or circumstance known to the agency that raises a specific concern about whether the proposed adoption is contrary to the best interest of the adoptee because it poses a significant risk of harm to the well-being of the adoptee;

(6) A finding by the agency concerning the suitability of the petitioner and the petitioner's home for the adoptee;

(7) A recommendation concerning the granting of the petition; and

(8) Such other information as may be required by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

In an agency adoption, the report shall be written in such a way as to exclude all information that could reasonably be expected to lead directly to the identity of the adoptee at birth or any former parent or family member of the adoptee, and any copies of documents included pursuant to subdivision (3) of this subsection shall be redacted to exclude this information."

Section 5. (a) G.S. 48-2-503(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after ~~receipt~~ the mailing or delivery of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing. The agency shall have three additional days to complete and file the report if the order was mailed."

(b) G.S. 48-2-503(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern. The agency shall indicate in the final report whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(c) G.S. 48-2-503 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) When an agency identifies a specific concern in a final report and the court extends the time for a final hearing or disposition to allow resolution of these concerns, the agency shall file a supplemental report indicating whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(d) Subsection (a) of this section applies to reports to the court prepared in response to a notice under G.S. 48-2-403 mailed or delivered after the effective date of this act.

Section 6. (a) G.S. 48-2-604 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-604. Denying petition to adopt a minor.

(a) If at any time between the filing of a petition to adopt a minor and the issuance of the final order completing the adoption it appears to the court that the minor should not be adopted by the petitioners or the petition should be dismissed for some other reason, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

(b) The court, before entering an order to dismiss the proceeding, shall give at least five days' notice of the motion to dismiss to the parties, to the agency that made the report to the court, and to the Department of Human Resources. The parties and agency entitled to notice under this subsection, and the Department, shall be entitled to a hearing on the issue of dismissing the proceeding.

(c) If the court denies ~~a petition to adopt a minor,~~ the petition, the custody of the minor shall revert to any agency or person having custody immediately before the filing of the petition. If the placement of the ~~child~~ minor was a direct placement under Article 3 of this Chapter, the court shall notify the director of social services of the county in which the petition was filed of the dismissal, and the director of social services shall be responsible for taking appropriate action for the protection of the ~~child.~~ minor."

(b) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 7. (a) G.S. 48-3-702 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-702. Procedures for relinquishment.

(a) A relinquishment executed by a parent or guardian must conform substantially to the requirements in this Part and must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments.

(b) The provisions of G.S. 48-3-605(b), (c), (e), and (f), also apply to a relinquishment executed under this ~~Part, except that an individual before whom a relinquishment is signed and acknowledged shall also certify that an employee of the agency to which the minor is being relinquished signed a statement~~

~~indicating the agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment.~~ Part.

(c) An agency that accepts a relinquishment shall furnish each parent or guardian who signs the relinquishment a letter or other writing indicating the agency's willingness to accept that person's relinquishment."

(b) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 8. (a) G.S. 48-3-608(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent. If notice is given by overnight delivery service, notice is deemed complete on the date it is deposited with the service as shown by the receipt from the service, with delivery charges paid by the sender, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent."

(b) This section applies to notices given on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 9. (a) G.S. 48-9-102(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of ~~adoption,~~ adoption and the entry in the special proceedings index in the office of the clerk of court, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter."

(b) G.S. 48-9-102(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The Division shall transmit a report of ~~the~~ each adoption ~~of a minor~~ and any name change to the State Registrar if the ~~minor~~ adoptee was born in this ~~State, or~~ State. In the case of an adoptee who was not born in this State, the Division shall transmit the report and any name change to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their ~~equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.~~ equivalent."

(c) G.S. 48-9-102(g) reads as rewritten:

"(g) ~~In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee.~~ In any adoption, the State Registrar may, in addition to receiving the report from the Division, request a copy of the final order and any separate order of name change directly from the clerk of court."

(d) G.S. 48-2-303 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-303. Caption of petition for adoption.

The caption of the petition shall be substantially as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE DISTRICT COURT
COUNTY
BEFORE THE CLERK

*(Full name of petitioning father)
and
PETITION FOR ADOPTION
*(Full name of petitioning mother)
and
FOR THE ADOPTION OF

*(Full name ~~of adoptee as used in proceeding).~~ by which the adoptee is to be known if the adoption is granted)."

(e) Subsection (a) of this section is effective on and after July 1, 1996. The remainder of this section becomes effective October 1, 1997. Subsections (b) and (c) apply to final orders entered on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 10. (a) G.S. 48-2-601(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If it appears to the court that ~~the petition~~ a petition to adopt a minor is not contested, the court may dispose of the petition without a formal hearing."

(b) This section applies to petitions filed on or after the effective date.

Section 11. (a) G.S. 48-3-603(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Consent to an adoption of a minor is not required of a person or entity whose consent is not required under G.S. 48-3-601, or:

(1) An individual whose parental rights and duties have been terminated under Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes or by a court of competent jurisdiction in another state;

(2) A man described in G.S. 48-3-601(2), other than an adoptive father, if (i) the man has been judicially determined not to be the father of the minor to be adopted, or (ii) another man has been judicially determined to be the father of the minor to be adopted;

~~(3) A parent for whose minor child a guardian has been appointed;~~

(4) An individual who has relinquished parental rights or guardianship powers, including the right to consent to adoption, to an agency pursuant to Part 7 of this Article;

(5) A man who is not married to the minor's birth mother and who, after the conception of the minor, has executed a notarized statement denying paternity or disclaiming any interest in the minor;

(6) A deceased parent or the personal representative of a deceased parent's estate; or

(7) An individual listed in G.S. 48-3-601 who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment and who fails to respond to a notice of the adoption proceeding within 30 days after the service of the notice."

(b) G.S. 48-3-201(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) ~~An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed, even if only one parent has executed a relinquishment pursuant to Part 7 of this Article or has had parental rights terminated, unless the other parent notifies the agency in writing of the parent's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment from one parent to obtain the consent or relinquishment of the other parent or to terminate the rights between the minor and the other parent pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes.~~ An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed by anyone as permitted by G.S. 48-3-701. The agency may place the minor for adoption even if other consents are required before an adoption can be granted, unless an individual whose consent is required notifies the agency in writing of the individual's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment to obtain all other necessary consents, relinquishments, or terminations of any guardian's authority pursuant to Chapter 35A of the General Statutes or parental rights pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes."

(c) G.S. 48-4-102 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-4-102. Consent to adoption of stepchild.

Except under circumstances described in G.S. 48-3-603, a petition to adopt a minor stepchild may be granted only if consent to the adoption has been executed by the adoptee if 12 or more years of age; and

(1) The adoptee's parents as described in G.S. 48-3-601; ~~or~~ and

(2) Any guardian of the adoptee.

The consent of an incompetent parent may be given pursuant to the procedures in G.S. 48-3-602."

(d) G.S. 48-3-602 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-602. Consent of incompetent parents.

If a parent as described in G.S. 48-3-601 has been adjudicated incompetent, then the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for that parent ~~and~~ and, unless the child already has a guardian, a guardian ad litem for the child to make a full investigation as to whether the adoption should proceed. The investigation shall include an evaluation of the parent's current condition and any reasonable likelihood that the parent will be restored to competency, the relationship between the child and the incompetent parent, alternatives to adoption, and any other relevant fact or circumstance. If the court determines after a hearing on the matter that it will be in the best interest of the child for the adoption to proceed, the court shall order the guardian ad litem of the parent to execute a consent for that parent."

(e) G.S. 48-1-101(8) reads as rewritten:

"(8) 'Guardian' means an individual, other than a parent, appointed by a clerk of court in North Carolina to exercise all of the powers conferred by ~~G.S. 35A-1241;~~ G.S. 35A-1241, including a standby guardian appointed under Article 21 of Chapter 35A of the General Statutes whose authority has actually commenced; and also means an individual, other than a parent, appointed in another jurisdiction according to the law of that jurisdiction who has the power to consent to adoption under the law of that jurisdiction."

Section 12. (a) G.S. 48-2-501 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-501. Report to the court during proceeding for adoption of a minor.

(a) Whenever a petition for adoption of a minor is filed, the court shall order a report to the court made to assist the court to determine if the proposed adoption of the minor by the petitioner is in the minor's best interest.

(b) Consistent with G.S. 48-1-109, the court shall order the report to be prepared:

(1) By the agency that placed the minor;

(2) By the agency that made the preplacement assessment pursuant to Part 3 of Article 3 of this Chapter; or

(3) By another agency.

(c) The court shall provide the individual who prepares the report with copies of: ~~(i) the petition to adopt; and (ii) the documents filed with it.~~

(1) The petition to adopt; and

(2) The documents filed with it.

(d) As an exception to this section, in any stepparent adoption under Article 4 of this Chapter in which the minor has lived with the stepparent for at least the two consecutive years immediately preceding the filing of the petition, the court may order a report, but it is not required to order a report unless the minor's consent is to be waived, the minor has revoked a consent, or both of the minor's parents are dead."

(b) G.S. 48-4-104 is repealed.

(c) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 13. G.S. 130A-108 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-108. Certificate of identification for ~~child~~ individual of foreign birth.

In the case of an adopted ~~child~~ individual born in a foreign country and ~~having legal settlement in this State,~~ residing in this State at the time of application, the State Registrar shall, upon the presentation of a certified copy of the original birth certificate from the country of birth and a certified copy of the final order of adoption signed by the clerk of court or other appropriate official, prepare a certificate of identification for the ~~child.~~ individual. The certificate shall contain the same information required by G.S. 48-9-107(a) for ~~children~~ individuals adopted in this State, except that the country of birth shall be specified in lieu of the state of birth."

Section 14. Part 2 of Article 2 of Chapter 48 is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 48-2-206. Prebirth determination of right to consent.

(a) Anytime after six months from the date of conception as reasonably determined by a physician, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents chosen by the biological mother may file a special proceeding with the clerk requesting the court to determine whether consent of the biological father is required. The biological father shall be served with notice of the intent of the biological mother to place the child for adoption, allowing the biological father 15 days after service to assert a claim that his consent is required.

(b) The notice required under this subsection shall contain the special proceeding case caption and file number and shall be substantially similar to the following language:

'[Name of the biological mother], the biological mother, is expected to give birth to a child on or about [birth due date]. You have been identified as the biological father. It is the intention of the biological mother to place the child for adoption. It is her belief that your consent to the adoption is not required. If you believe your consent to the adoption of this child is required pursuant to G.S. 48-3-601, you must notify the court in writing no later than 15 days from the date you received this notice that you believe your consent is required. A copy of your notice to the court must also be sent to the person or agency that sent you this notice. If you fail to notify the court within 15 days that you believe your consent is required, the court will rule that your consent is not required.'

(c) If the biological father fails to respond within the time required, the court shall enter an order that the biological father's consent is not required for the adoption.

(d) If the biological father notifies the court within 15 days of his receipt of the notice required by this subsection that he believes his consent to the adoption is required, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents may seek an immediate determination by the court as to whether the consent of the biological father is required by G.S. 48-3-601. A hearing on this question may be held upon 10 days' notice to the parties. During the hearing, the court may take such evidence as necessary and shall enter an order which shall be the final order. However, if the biological father notifies the court that he believes his consent is required by G.S. 48-3-601 and the biological father refuses to provide his consent, the court may not enter an order under this section.

(e) The manner of service under this section shall be the same as set forth in G.S. 48-2-402.

(f) The jurisdiction provisions of Article 6A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and the venue provisions of Article 7 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes rather than the provisions of Part 1 of this Article apply to proceedings under this section.

(g) Computation of periods of time provided for in this section shall be calculated as set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 6.

(h) Transfer under G.S. 1-272 and appeal under G.S. 1-279.1 shall be as for an adoption proceeding.

(i) A determination by the court under this section that the consent of the biological father is not required shall only apply to an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the child."

Section 15. G.S. 48-3-302(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. As used in this subsection, 'unable to obtain a preplacement assessment' includes the inability to obtain a preplacement assessment at the fee the county department of social services is permitted to charge the individual. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so."

Section 16. G.S. 48-3-601(2)b.4. reads as rewritten:

"4. Before the earliest of the ~~petition,~~ petition or the receipt of the notice pursuant to G.S. 48-2-206, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

III. After the minor's birth but before the minor's placement for adoption or the mother's relinquishment, has married or attempted to marry the mother of the minor by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid; or".

Section 17. G.S. 48-3-603(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(8) An individual notified under G.S. 48-2-206 who does not respond in a timely manner or whose consent is not required as determined by the court."

Section 18. G.S. 48-9-107(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptee's children, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, 'parent', 'brother', and 'sister' shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister."

Section 19. (a) G.S. 48-3-301(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) Has been completed or updated within the ~~12~~ 18 months immediately preceding the placement; and".

(b) This section applies to placements made on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 19.1 (a) G.S. 48-3-704 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-704. Content of relinquishment; optional provisions.

In addition to the mandatory provisions listed in G.S. 48-3-703, a relinquishment may also state that the relinquishment may be revoked upon notice by the agency that an adoption by a specific prospective adoptive parent, named or described in the relinquishment is not ~~completed, or if the agency and the person relinquishing the minor mutually agree to rescind the relinquishment before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs.~~ completed."

(b) G.S. 48-3-705(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) A relinquishment terminates:

(1) Any right and duty of the individual who executed the relinquishment with respect to the legal and physical custody of the ~~minor;~~ minor.

(2) The right to consent to the minor's ~~adoption; and~~ adoption.

~~(3) The duty to support the minor.~~"

(c) G.S. 48-3-707(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A relinquishment shall become void ~~if,~~ if:

(1) Before ~~before~~ the entry of the adoption decree, the individual who executed the relinquishment establishes by clear and convincing evidence that it was obtained by fraud or duress.

(2) Before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs, the agency and the person relinquishing the minor agree to rescind the relinquishment."

(d) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after August 1, 1997.

Section 20. Sections 14, 16, and 17 become effective October 1, 1997. Except as otherwise provided, the remaining sections of this act are effective when the act becomes law.

(2) Five dollars ($5.00) for the certificate."

PART II. ANNUAL CORPORATE REPORT.

Section 7. G.S. 55-16-22 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-16-22. Annual ~~report for Secretary of State.~~ report.

(a) ~~Each~~ Except as provided in subsections (a1) and (a2) of this section, each domestic corporation ~~except those governed by Chapter 55B,~~ and each foreign corporation authorized to transact business in this ~~State,~~ State shall deliver ~~to the Secretary of State for filing an annual report that sets forth:~~ an annual report to the Secretary of Revenue.

(a1) Each insurance company subject to the provisions of Chapter 58 of the General Statutes shall deliver an annual report to the Secretary of State.

(a2) A domestic corporation governed by Chapter 55B of the General Statutes is exempt from this section.

(a3) The annual report required by this section shall be in a form jointly prescribed by the Secretary of Revenue and the Secretary of State. The Secretary of Revenue shall provide the form needed to file an annual report. The annual report shall set forth all of the following:

(1) The name of the corporation and the state or country under whose law it is ~~incorporated;~~ incorporated.

(2) The street address, and the mailing address if different from the street address, of the registered office, the county in which its registered office is located, and the name of its registered agent at that office in this State, and a statement of any change of such registered office or registered agent, or ~~both;~~ both.

(3) The address and telephone number of its principal ~~office;~~ office.
(4) The names, titles, and business addresses of its principal ~~officers;~~ officers.
~~(4a) The names and business addresses of its directors; and~~
(5) A brief description of the nature of its business.

If the information contained in the most recently filed annual report has not changed, a certification to that effect may be made instead of setting forth the information required by subdivisions (2) through (5) of this subsection.

(b) Information in the annual report must be current as of the date the annual report is executed on behalf of the corporation.

(c) ~~The annual report shall be delivered to the Secretary of State each year within 60 days immediately following the last day of the month in which the domestic corporation was incorporated or the foreign corporation received a certificate of authority in this State. Forms required for the filing of the annual report shall be mailed by the Secretary of State to the domestic or foreign corporation at its registered office for the first annual report, then to its principal office for subsequent annual reports.~~ An annual report required to be delivered to the Secretary of Revenue is due by the due date for filing the corporation's income and franchise tax returns. An extension of time to file a return is an extension of time to file an annual report. An annual report required to be delivered to the Secretary of State is due by the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the corporation's fiscal year.

(d) If an annual report does not contain the information required by this section, the Secretary of State shall promptly notify the reporting domestic or foreign corporation in writing and return the report to it for correction. If the report is corrected to contain the information required by this section and delivered to the Secretary of State within 30 days after the effective date of notice, it is deemed to be timely filed.

(e) Amendments to any previously filed annual report may be filed with the Secretary of State at any time for the purpose of correcting, updating, or augmenting the information contained in ~~such~~ the annual report.

(f) Expired.

(g) When a statement of change of registered office or registered agent is filed in the annual report, the change shall become effective when the statement is received by the Secretary of State.

(h) If the Secretary of State does not receive an annual report within 120 days of the date the return is due, the Secretary of State may presume that the annual report is delinquent. This presumption may be rebutted by receipt of the annual report from the Secretary of Revenue or by evidence of delivery presented by the filing corporation."

Section 8. G.S. 55-1-21(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The Secretary of State may promulgate and furnish on request forms ~~for:~~ for the following:

(1) An application for a certificate of ~~existence;~~ existence.

(2) A foreign corporation's application for a certificate of authority to transact business in this ~~State;~~ State.

(3) A foreign corporation's application for a certificate of ~~withdrawal; and~~ withdrawal.

~~(4) The annual report.~~

If the Secretary of State so requires, use of these forms is mandatory."

Section 9. G.S. 55-1-22(a), as amended by Section 4 of this act, reads as rewritten:

(a) A limited liability company may restate its articles of organization at any time with or without member action.

(b) The restated articles of organization may include one or more amendments to the articles. Unless otherwise provided in the articles of organization or a written operating agreement, any amendment requires the unanimous vote of the members. The restated articles of organization may include a statement of the address of the current registered office and the name of the current registered agent of the limited liability company.

(c) A limited liability company restating its articles of organization shall deliver to the Secretary of State for filing articles of restatement that:

(1) Set forth the name of the limited liability company.

(2) Attach as an exhibit thereto the text of the restated articles of organization.

(3) State that the restated articles of organization do not contain an amendment or, if the articles do contain an amendment, that there is an amendment that was approved as required by this Chapter.

(d) Duly adopted restated articles of organization supersede the original articles of organization and all amendments to them.

(e) The Secretary of State may certify restated articles of organization as the articles of organization currently in effect, without including the other information required by subsection (c) of this section."

PART VII. CANCELLATION OF ARTICLES OF DISSOLUTION OF LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY.

Section 35. Article 6 of Chapter 57C is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 57C-6-06.1. Cancellation of articles of dissolution.

After the filing of articles of dissolution by a limited liability company dissolved pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-01(4) because of the happening of an event of withdrawal, the articles of dissolution may be cancelled if, within 90 days after the event of withdrawal, all remaining members agree in writing that the business of the limited liability company should be continued and the limited liability company files articles of cancellation with the Secretary of State. The Articles of Cancellation shall set forth:

(1) The name of the limited liability company;

(2) The date of the event of withdrawal described in the articles of dissolution;

(3) The date of filing of the company's articles of dissolution;

(4) A statement that within 90 days after the event of withdrawal, all remaining members have agreed in writing that the business of the limited liability company may be continued; and

(5) Any other information the members or managers filing the articles of cancellation determine."

Section 36. G.S. 57C-1-22(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The Secretary of State shall collect the following fees when the documents described in this subsection are delivered to the Secretary of State for filing:

PART VIII. AVAILABILITY OF LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY NAME.

Section 37. G.S. 57C-2-30(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The name of a limited liability company dissolved under ~~G.S. 57C-6-03~~ Article 6 of this Chapter may not be used by another limited liability ~~company~~ company, business corporation, nonprofit corporation, or limited partnership ~~until the expiration of two years after the effective date of the dissolution~~ until:

(1) In the case of a dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-01, the later of (i) the date of filing of articles of dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-06 or (ii) the expiration of the time within whic articles of dissolution of the limited liability company may be canceled pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-06.1; or

(2) In the case of an administrative dissolution pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-03, the expiration of the period within which the limited liability company may be reinstated pursuant to G.S. 57C-6-03, if the limited liability company's period of duration stated in its articles of organization or written operating agreement has not expired, unless the dissolved limited liability company changes its name to a name distinguishable upon the records of the Secretary of State from the names of other limited liability companies, business corporations, nonprofit corporations, or limited partnerships organized or transacting business in this State."

PART IX. AUTHORIZATION OF FACSIMILE SIGNATURES FOR LIMITED PARTNERSHIP DOCUMENTS.

Section 38. G.S. 59-204 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) Any signature on any document authorized to be filed with the Secretary of State under any provision of this Article may be a facsimile."

PART X. MODIFICATION OF DEFINITION OF FOREIGN PROFESSIONAL CORPORATION.

Section 39. G.S. 55B-16(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) For purposes of this section, 'foreign professional corporation' means a corporation for profit ~~that is~~ that:

(1) Is incorporated under a law other than the law of this ~~State~~ State:

(2) Is incorporated for the sole and specific purpose of rendering professional services of the type that if rendered in this State would require the obtaining of a license from a licensing board pursuant to the statutory provisions referred to in ~~G.S. 55B-2(6)~~ G.S. 55B-2(6); and ~~that (i) has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or some other state, to render the same professional services as the corporation, or (ii) is organized for the purpose of rendering professional services of the type~~

~~defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E of the General Statutes, and has as its shareholders only individuals who are duly licensed, in this State or in another state, to render the same professional services as the corporation or who are nonlicensed employees of the corporation, provided that nonlicensed employees own not more than one-third of the total issued and outstanding shares of the corporation, or (iii) is described in G.S. 55B-15.~~

(3) Has as its shareholders only individuals who:

a. Qualify to hold shares of a corporation organized under this Chapter;

b. Are licensed to provide professional services as defined in G.S. 55B-2(6) in a state in which the corporation is incorporated or is authorized to transact business, provided that such professional services are the same as the professional service rendered by the corporation; or

c. Are nonlicensed employees of a corporation rendering services of the type defined in Chapters 83A, 89A, 89C, and 89E of the General Statutes provided that all such nonlicensed employees own no more than one-third of the total issued and outstanding shares of such corporation in the aggregate."

PART XI. CORRECTION OF DELAYED EFFECTIVE DATE STATUTES FOR LIMITED PARTNERSHIP DOCUMENTS.

Section 40. G.S. 59-201(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) ~~A~~ Unless a delayed effective date is specified in the certificate of limited partnership, a limited partnership is formed at the ~~time~~ effective time and date of the filing of the certificate of limited partnership in the office of the Secretary of State ~~or at any later time not more than 20 days subsequent to the endorsement of the Secretary of State specified in the certificate of limited partnership if, in either case,~~ if there has been substantial compliance with the requirements of this section."

Section 41. G.S. 59-203 reads as rewritten:

"§ 59-203. Cancellation of certificate.

A certificate of limited partnership shall be cancelled upon the dissolution and the commencement of winding up of the partnership or at any other time that there are no limited partners. A certificate of cancellation shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State and set forth:

(1) The name of the limited partnership;

(2) The date of filing of its certificate of limited partnership;

(3) The reason for filing the certificate of cancellation;

(4) The effective date ~~(which shall be a date certain not more than 20 days from the date of filing)~~ of cancellation if it is not to be effective upon the filing of the certificate; and

(5) Any other information the partners filing the certificate determine."

PART XII. REMOVAL OF "CONFORMING TO LAW" LANGUAGE IN REVISED UNIFORM LIMITED PARTNERSHIP ACT.

Section 42. G.S. 59-206(a)(2) reads as rewritten:

"(2) The original document so signed, together with the conformed copy, shall be delivered to the Secretary of State. ~~Unless~~ If the Secretary finds that it ~~does not conform to law,~~ satisfies the requirements of this Article, the Secretary shall, when the proper fees have been tendered, endorse upon the original the word 'filed' and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof and shall file the same in the Secretary's office. The Secretary of State shall thereupon immediately compare the copy with the original and if the Secretary finds that they are identical the Secretary shall make upon the conformed copy the same endorsement which appears on the original and shall attach to the copy a certificate stating that attached thereto is a true copy of the document, designated by an appropriate title, filed in the Secretary's office and showing the date of the filing. The Secretary shall thereupon return the copy so certified to the limited partnership or its representatives. Any documents filed with the Secretary of State pursuant to this Chapter may be maintained by the Secretary either in their original form or in photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other reproduced form. The Secretary may make reproductions of documents filed under this Chapter, or under any predecessor act, by photographic, microfilm, optical disk media, or other means of reproduction, and may destroy the originals of the documents reproduced. The Secretary of State may correct apparent errors and omissions on a document submitted for filing if authorized to make the corrections by the person submitting the document for filing. The authorization to make the corrections shall be confirmed, according to procedures adopted by rule, by the Secretary prior to making the correction."

Section 43. G.S. 59-903(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If the Secretary of State finds that an application ~~conforms to law he~~ satisfies the requirements of this Article the Secretary shall, when all requisite fees have been tendered as in this Article prescribed:

(1) Endorse on the application the word 'filed', and the hour, day, month and year of the filing thereof;

(2) File in ~~his~~ the office the application;

(3) Issue a certificate of authority to transact business in this State to which ~~he~~ the Secretary shall affix the conformed copy of the application; and

(4) Send to the foreign limited partnership or its representative the certificate of authority, together with the conformed copy of the application affixed thereto."

PART XIII. EFFECTIVE DATES.

Section 44. (a) Sections 1 through 6 and Section 19 of this act become effective July 1, 1997. Sections 7 through 18 of this act become effective January 1, 1998, and apply to tax years ending on or after December 31, 1997, in the case of corporations required to file annual reports with the Secretary of Revenue and to fiscal years ending on or after December 31, 1997, in the cas of corporations required to file annual reports with the Secretary of State. Sections 30 through 33, 39, 42 and 43 of this act are effective when the act becomes law. The remainder of this act becomes effective October 1, 1997. Section 20 of this act applies to dissenter's rights created pursuant to G.S. 55-13-02 on or after October 1, 1997, and Section 21 of this act applies to proceedings commenced on or after October 1, 1997. Sections 22 through 29 of this act apply to requests for review of documents on or after that date.

(b) Annual reports delivered to either the Secretary of State or the Secretary of Revenue after December 31, 1997, but before January 1999, shall nevertheless be deemed filed with the correct State agency. The Secretary of State shall notify the Secretary of Revenue of reports erroneously filed with the Secretary of State, and the Secretary of Revenue shall notify the Secretary of State of reports erroneously filed with the Secretary of Revenue.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY LOCAL GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY TO REGULATE THE LOCATION AND OPERATION OF SEXUALLY ORIENTED BUSINESSES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 160A of the General Statutes is amended by adding the following new section:

"§ 160A-181.1. Regulation of sexually oriented businesses.

(a) The General Assembly finds and determines that sexually oriented businesses can and do cause adverse secondary impacts on neighboring properties. Numerous studies that are relevant to North Carolina have found increases in crime rates and decreases in neighboring property values as a result of the location of sexually oriented businesses in inappropriate locations or from the operation of such businesses in an inappropriate manner. Reasonable local government regulation of sexually oriented businesses in order to prevent or ameliorate adverse secondary impacts is consistent with the federal constitutional protection afforded to nonobscene but sexually explicit speech.

(b) In addition to State laws on obscenity, indecent exposure, and adult establishments, local government regulation of the location and operation of sexually oriented businesses is necessary to prevent undue adverse secondary impacts that would otherwise result from these businesses.

(c) A city or county may regulate sexually oriented businesses through zoning regulations, licensing requirements, or other appropriate local ordinances. The city or county may require a fee for the initial license and any annual renewal. Such local regulations may include, but are not limited to:

(1) Restrictions on location of sexually oriented businesses, such as limitation to specified zoning districts and minimum separation from sensitive land uses and other sexually oriented businesses;

(2) Regulations on operation of sexually oriented businesses, such as limits on hours of operation, open booth requirements, limitations on exterior advertising and noise, age of patrons and employees, required separation of patrons and performers, clothing restrictions for masseuses, and clothing restrictions for servers of alcoholic beverages;

(3) Clothing restrictions for entertainers; and

(4) Registration and disclosure requirements for owners and employees with a criminal record other than minor traffic offenses, and restrictions on ownership or employment by a person with a criminal record that includes offenses reasonably related to the legal operation of sexually oriented businesses.

(d) In order to preserve the status quo while appropriate studies are conducted and the scope of potential regulations is deliberated, cities and counties may enact moratoria of reasonable duration on either the opening of any new businesses authorized to be regulated under this section or the expansion of any such existing business. Businesses existing at the time of the effective date of regulations adopted under this section may be required to come into compliance with newly adopted regulations within an appropriate and reasonable period of time.

(e) Cities and counties may enter into cooperative agreements regarding coordinated regulation of sexually oriented businesses, including provision of adequate alternative sites for the location of constitutionally protected speech within an interrelated geographic area.

(f) For the purpose of this section 'sexually oriented businesses' means any businesses or enterprises that have as one of their principal business purposes or as a significant portion of their business an emphasis on matter and conduct depicting, describing, or related to anatomical areas and sexual activities specified in G.S. 14-202.10. Local governments may adopt detailed definitions of these and similar businesses in order to precisely define the scope of any local regulations."

Section 2. G.S. 14-190.1 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(i) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preempt local government regulation of the location or operation of sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 3. G.S. 14-190.9 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a local government may regulate the location and operation of sexually oriented businesses. Such local regulation may restrict or prohibit nude, seminude, or topless dancing to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 4. G.S. 14-202.10(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) 'Adult bookstore' means a bookstore:

a. Which receives a majority of its gross income during any calendar month from the sale or rental of publications (including books, magazines, ~~and other periodicals)~~ other periodicals, videotapes, compact discs, other photographic, electronic, magnetic, digital, or other imaging medium) which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section; or

b. Having as a preponderance (either in terms of the weight and importance of the material or in terms of greater volume of materials) of its publications (including books, magazines, ~~and other periodicals~~ other periodicals, videotapes, compact discs, other photographic, electronic, magnetic, digital, or other imaging medium) which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section."

Section 5. G.S. 14-202.11 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-202.11. Restrictions as to adult establishments.

(a) No person shall permit any building, premises, structure, or other facility that contains any adult establishment to contain any other kind of adult establishment. No person shall permit any building, premises, structure, or other facility in which sexually oriented devices are sold, distributed, exhibited, or contained to contain any adult establishment.

(b) No person shall permit any viewing booth in an adult mini motion picture theatre to be occupied by more than one person at any time.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preempt local government regulation of the location or operation of adult establishments or other sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 6. G.S. 18B-904 is amended by adding the following new subsection:

'(g) Nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to preempt local governments from regulating the location or operation of adult establishments or other sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech, or from requiring any additional fee for licensing as permitted under G.S. 160A-181.1(c)."

Section 7. G.S. 19-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 19-1. What are nuisances under this Chapter.

(a) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place for the purpose of assignation, prostitution, gambling, illegal possession or sale of alcoholic beverages, illegal possession or sale of narcotic drugs as defined in the North Carolina Controlled Substances Act, or illegal possession or sale of obscene or lewd matter, as defined in this Chapter, shall constitute a nuisance.

(b) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place wherein or whereon are carried on, conducted, or permitted repeated acts which create and constitute a breach of the peace shall constitute a nuisance.

(b1) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place wherein or whereon are carried on, conducted, or permitted any activities or conditions which violate any local ordinance pertaining to sexually oriented businesses shall constitute a nuisance.

(c) The building, ~~or place, or vehicle,~~ place, vehicle, or the ground itself, in or upon which a nuisance as defined in ~~subsections (a) or (b) above~~ subsection (a), (b), or (b1) of this section is carried on, and the furniture, fixtures, and contents, are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided."

RE: Senate Bill 452 - Local Regulation Adult Entertainment

Senate Bill 452 would clarify the authority of cities and counties to regulate the location and operation of sexually oriented businesses by giving local governments the authority to restrict where these adult entertainment establishments may be locate; when and how they may operate; what type of clothing restrictions may apply to masseuses, servers of alcohol, and entertainers; and ownership and employment by persons with criminal records.

Section 1 amends Chapter 160A by setting out the legislative intent to give local governments authority to regulate adult entertainment establishments, within constitutional limits, to prevent adverse secondary effects on neighboring properties which arise from these businesses.

This section allows the use of zoning regulations, licensing requirements, and other appropriate local ordinances to be used for regulation, including requiring fees for licensing. These local regulations may include restricting where these businesses may locate including specific zoning districts and minimum separation distances from other sensitive land uses and from other similar businesses. Local governments may also regulate hours of operation, open booth requirements, exterior advertising, noise, age of patrons and employees, separation of patrons from performers, and clothing restrictions for masseuses, servers of alcohol, and entertainers. The bill permits local governments to require registration and disclosure by these business owners and their employees of these person's criminal records other than minor traffic offenses, and may restrict ownership and employment by people with criminal records reasonably related to the legal operation of the business.

Section 1 also gives local governments authority to impose moratoriums on new businesses and once ordinances are adopted, can require non-conforming businesses to conform within reasonable time periods. This section also allows various local governments to enter into cooperative agreements for coordinated regulation of these businesses including providing for adequate alternative sites within interrelated geographic areas.

Section 1 defines "sexually oriented businesses" as those that have as one of their principal business purposes or as a significant portion of their business an emphasis on matter and conduct depicting, describing, or related to anatomical areas and sexual activities specified in G.S. 14-202.10 (a copy attached). Local governments are permitted to adopt detailed definitions of these businesses in order to precisely define the scope of any local regulations.

Sections 2, 3, and 5 make conforming changes to various criminal statutes to make it clear that the criminal statues do not override the local governments rights to regulate these establishments to the extent consistent with constitutional protection afforded free speech.

Section 4 amends the definition of "adult bookstore" to include rentals and videotapes, compact discs, photographic, electronic, magnetic, digital, or other magnetic imaging. It also clarifies how a "preponderance" is determined.

Section 6 makes is clear that the alcoholic beverage control laws do not override the right of local governments to regulate and license these adult entertainment businesses.

Section 7 amends the public nuisance statute by adding a provision that the use of property in violation of a local ordinance regulating sexually oriented businesses is a nuisance.

The bill is effective when it becomes law.

§ 14-202.10. Definitions.

As used in this Article:

(1) "Adult bookstore" means a bookstore:

a. Which receives a majority of its gross income during any calendar month from the sale of publications (including books, magazines, and other periodicals) which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section; or

b. Having as a preponderance of its publications books, magazines, and other periodicals which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section.

(2) "Adult establishment" means an adult bookstore, adult motion picture theatre, adult mini motion picture theatre, adult live entertainment business, or massage business as defined in this section.

(3) "Adult live entertainment" means any performance of or involving the actual presence of real people which exhibits specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section.

(4) "Adult live entertainment business" means any establishment or business wherein adult live entertainment is shown for observation by patrons.

(5) "Adult motion picture theatre" means an enclosed building or premises used for presenting motion pictures, a preponderance of which are distinguished or characterized by an emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section, for observation by patrons therein. "Adult motion picture theatre" does not include any adult mini motion picture theatre as defined in this section.

(6) "Adult mini motion picture theatre" means an enclosed building with viewing booths designed to hold patrons which is used for presenting motion pictures, a preponderance of which are distinguished or characterized by an emphasis on matter depicting, describing or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas as defined in this section, for observation by patrons therein.

(7) "Massage" means the manipulation of body muscle or tissue by rubbing, stroking, kneading, or tapping, by hand or mechanical device.

(8) "Massage business" means any establishment or business wherein massage is practiced, including establishments commonly known as health clubs, physical culture studios, massage studios, or massage parlors.

(9) "Sexually oriented devices" means without limitation any artificial or simulated specified anatomical area or other device or paraphernalia that is designed principally for specified sexual activities but shall not mean any contraceptive device.

(10) "Specified anatomical areas" means:

§ 14-190.1. Obscene literature and exhibitions.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to intentionally disseminate obscenity. A person, firm or corporation disseminates obscenity within the meaning of this Article if he or it:

(1) Sells, delivers or provides or offers or agrees to sell, deliver or provide any obscene writing, picture, record or other representation or embodiment of the obscene; or

(2) Presents or directs an obscene play, dance or other performance or participates directly in that portion thereof which makes it obscene; or

(3) Publishes, exhibits or otherwise makes available anything obscene; or

(4) Exhibits, presents, rents, sells, delivers or provides; or offers or agrees to exhibit, present, rent or to provide: any obscene still or motion picture, film, filmstrip, or projection slide, or sound recording, sound tape, or sound track, or any matter or material of whatever form which is a representation, embodiment, performance, or publication of the obscene.

(b) For purposes of this Article any material is obscene if:

(1) The material depicts or describes in a patently offensive way sexual conduct specifically defined by subsection (c) of this section; and

(2) The average person applying contemporary community standards relating to the depiction or description of sexual matters would find that the material taken as a whole appeals to the prurient interest in sex; and

(3) The material lacks serious literary, artistic, political, or scientific value; and

(4) The material as used is not protected or privileged under the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of North Carolina.

(c) As used in this Article, "sexual conduct" means:

(1) Vaginal, anal, or oral intercourse, whether actual or simulated, normal or perverted; or

(2) Masturbation, excretory functions, or lewd exhibition of uncovered genitals; or

(3) An act or condition that depicts torture, physical restraint by being fettered or bound, or flagellation of or by a nude person or a person clad in undergarments or in revealing or bizarre costume.

(d) Obscenity shall be judged with reference to ordinary adults except that it shall be judged with reference to children or other especially susceptible audiences if it appears from the character of the material or the circumstances of its dissemination to be especially designed for or directed to such children or audiences.

(e) It shall be unlawful for any person, firm or corporation to knowingly and intentionally create, buy, procure or possess obscene material with the purpose and intent of disseminating it unlawfully.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(f) It shall be unlawful for a person, firm or corporation to advertise or otherwise promote the sale of material represented or held out by said person, firm or corporation as obscene.

(g) Violation of this section is a Class I felony.

(h) Obscene material disseminated, procured, or promoted in violation of this section is contraband.

§ 14-190.9. Indecent exposure.

(a) Any person who shall willfully expose the private parts of his or her person in any public place and in the presence of any other person or persons, of the opposite sex, or aids or abets in any such act, or who procures another to perform such act; or any person, who as owner, manager, lessee, director, promoter or agent, or in any other capacity knowingly hires, leases or permits the land, building, or premises of which he is owner, lessee or tenant, or over which he has control, to be used for purposes of any such act, shall be guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor.

(b) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a woman may breast feed in any public or private location where she is otherwise authorized to be, irrespective of whether the nipple of the mother's breast is uncovered during or incidental to the breast feeding.

(1971, c. 591, s. 1; 1993, c. 301, s. 1; c. 539, s. 124; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

§ 18B-904. Miscellaneous provisions concerning permits.

(a) Who Receives Permit. - An ABC permit shall authorize the permitted activity only on the premises of the establishment named in the permit. An ABC permit shall be issued to the owner of the business conducted on the premises, or to the management company employed to independently manage and operate the business. The ABC Commission may determine if a management agreement delegates sufficient managerial control and independence to a manager or management company to require an ABC permit to be issued to the manager.

(b) Posting Permit. - Each ABC permit that is held by an establishment shall be posted in a prominent place on the premises.

(c) Business Not Operating. - An ABC permit shall automatically expire and shall be surrendered to the Commission if the person to whom it is issued does not commence the activity authorized by the permit within six months of the date the permit is effective. Before the expiration of the six-month period, the Commission may waive this provision in individual cases for good cause.

(d) Notice of Issuance. - Upon issuing a permit the Commission shall send notice of the issuance, with the name and address of the permittee and the establishment, to:

(1) The Department of Revenue;

(2) The local board, if one exists, for the city or county in which the establishment is located;

(3) The governing body, sheriff, and tax collector of the county in which the establishment is located;

(4) If the establishment is located inside a city, the governing body, chief of police, and tax collector for the city; and

(5) The ALE Division.

(e) Business or Location No Longer Suitable. - The Commission may suspend or revoke a permit issued by it if, after compliance with the provisions of Chapter 150B of the General Statutes, it finds that the location occupied by the permittee is no longer a suitable place to hold ABC permits or that the operation of the business with an ABC permit at that location is detrimental to the neighborhood. No order revoking or suspending an ABC permit pursuant to this section may be made except upon substantial evidence admissible under G.S. 150B-29(a).

(f) Local Government Objections. - The governing body of a city or county may designate an official of the city or county, by name or by position, to make recommendations concerning the suitability of a person or of a location for an ABC permit. The governing body of a city or county shall notify the Commission of an official designated under this subsection. An official designated under this subsection shall be allowed to testify at a contested case hearing in which the suitability of a person or of a location for an ABC permit is an issue without further qualification or authorization.

§ 19-1. What are nuisances under this Chapter.

(a) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place for the purpose of assignation, prostitution, gambling, illegal possession or sale of alcoholic beverages, illegal possession or sale of narcotic drugs as defined in the North Carolina Controlled Substances Act, or illegal possession or sale of obscene or lewd matter, as defined in this Chapter, shall constitute a nuisance.

(b) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place wherein or whereon are carried on, conducted, or permitted repeated acts which create and constitute a breach of the peace shall constitute a nuisance.

(c) The building, or place, or vehicle, or the ground itself, in or upon which a nuisance as defined in subsections (a) or (b) above is carried on, and the furniture, fixtures, and contents, are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CLARIFY LOCAL GOVERNMENT AUTHORITY TO REGULATE THE LOCATION AND OPERATION OF SEXUALLY ORIENTED BUSINESSES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 160A of the General Statutes is amended by adding the following new section:

"§ 160A-181.1. Regulation of sexually oriented businesses.

(a) The General Assembly finds and determines that sexually oriented businesses can and do cause adverse secondary impacts on neighboring properties. Numerous studies that are relevant to North Carolina have found increases in crime rates and decreases in neighboring property values as a result of the location of sexually oriented businesses in inappropriate locations or from the operation of such businesses in an inappropriate manner. Reasonable local government regulation of sexually oriented businesses in order to prevent or ameliorate adverse secondary impacts is consistent with the federal constitutional protection afforded to nonobscene but sexually explicit speech.

(b) In addition to State laws on obscenity, indecent exposure, and adult establishments, local government regulation of the location and operation of sexually oriented businesses is necessary to prevent undue adverse secondary impacts that would otherwise result from these businesses.

(c) A city or county may regulate sexually oriented businesses through zoning regulations, licensing requirements, or other appropriate local ordinances. The city or county may require a fee for the initial license and any annual renewal. Such local regulations may include, but are not limited to:

(1) Restrictions on location of sexually oriented businesses, such as limitation to specified zoning districts and minimum separation from sensitive land uses and other sexually oriented businesses;

(2) Regulations on operation of sexually oriented businesses, such as limits on hours of operation, open booth requirements, limitations on exterior advertising and noise, age of patrons and employees, required separation of patrons and performers, clothing restrictions for masseuses, and clothing restrictions for servers of alcoholic beverages;

(3) Clothing restrictions for entertainers; and

(4) Registration and disclosure requirements for owners and employees with a criminal record other than minor traffic offenses, and restrictions on ownership by or employment of a person with a criminal record that includes offenses reasonably related to the legal operation of sexually oriented businesses.

(d) In order to preserve the status quo while appropriate studies are conducted and the scope of potential regulations is deliberated, cities and counties may enact moratoria of reasonable duration on either the opening of any new businesses authorized to be regulated under this section or the expansion of any such existing business. Businesses existing at the time of the effective date of regulations adopted under this section may be required to come into compliance with newly adopted regulations within an appropriate and reasonable period of time.

(e) Cities and counties may enter into cooperative agreements regarding coordinated regulation of sexually oriented businesses, including provision of adequate alternative sites for the location of constitutionally protected speech within an interrelated geographic area.

(f) For the purpose of this section, 'sexually oriented businesses' means any businesses or enterprises that have as one of their principal business purposes or as a significant portion of their business an emphasis on matter and conduct depicting, describing, or related to anatomical areas and sexual activities specified in G.S. 14-202.10. Local governments may adopt detailed definitions of these and similar businesses in order to precisely define the scope of any local regulations."

Section 2. G.S. 14-190.1 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(i) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preempt local government regulation of the location or operation of sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 3. G.S. 14-190.9 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a local government may regulate the location and operation of sexually oriented businesses. Such local regulation may restrict or prohibit nude, seminude, or topless dancing to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 4. G.S. 14-202.10(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) 'Adult bookstore' means a bookstore:

a. Which receives a majority of its gross income during any calendar month from the sale or rental of publications (including books, magazines, ~~and other periodicals~~) other periodicals, videotapes, compact discs, other photographic, electronic, magnetic, digital, or other imaging medium) which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section; or

b. Having as a preponderance (either in terms of the weight and importance of the material or in terms of greater volume of materials) of its publications (including books, magazines, ~~and other periodicals~~ other periodicals, videotapes, compact discs, other photographic, electronic, magnetic, digital, or other imaging medium) which are distinguished or characterized by their emphasis on matter depicting, describing, or relating to specified sexual activities or specified anatomical areas, as defined in this section."

Section 5. G.S. 14-202.11 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-202.11. Restrictions as to adult establishments.

(a) No person shall permit any building, premises, structure, or other facility that contains any adult establishment to contain any other kind of adult establishment. No person shall permit any building, premises, structure, or other facility in which sexually oriented devices are sold, distributed, exhibited, or contained to contain any adult establishment.

(b) No person shall permit any viewing booth in an adult mini motion picture theatre to be occupied by more than one person at any time.

(c) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to preempt local government regulation of the location or operation of adult establishments or other sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech."

Section 6. G.S. 18B-904 is amended by adding the following new subsection:

"(g) Nothing in this Chapter shall be deemed to preempt local governments from regulating the location or operation of adult establishments or other sexually oriented businesses to the extent consistent with the constitutional protection afforded free speech, or from requiring any additional fee for licensing as permitted under G.S. 160A-181.1(c)."

Section 7. G.S. 19-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 19-1. What are nuisances under this Chapter.

(a) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place for the purpose of assignation, prostitution, gambling, illegal possession or sale of alcoholic beverages, illegal possession or sale of narcotic drugs as defined in the North Carolina Controlled Substances Act, or illegal possession or sale of obscene or lewd matter, as defined in this Chapter, shall constitute a nuisance.

(b) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place wherein or whereon are carried on, conducted, or permitted repeated acts which create and constitute a breach of the peace shall constitute a nuisance.

(b1) The erection, establishment, continuance, maintenance, use, ownership or leasing of any building or place wherein or whereon are carried on, conducted, or permitted any activities or conditions which violate any local ordinance pertaining to sexually oriented businesses shall constitute a nuisance.

(c) The building, ~~or place, or vehicle,~~ place, vehicle, or the ground itself, in or upon which a nuisance as defined in ~~subsections (a) or (b) above~~ subsection (a), (b), or (b1) of this section is carried on, and the furniture, fixtures, and contents, are also declared a nuisance, and shall be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided."

Section 8. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO REINSTATE THE OPTION THAT A LICENSED SOLICITOR OF CHARITABLE SOLICITATIONS MAY SUBMIT A CERTIFICATE OF DEPOSIT IN LIEU OF A SECURITY BOND.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 131F-16 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(d1) In lieu of the bond required under subsection (d) of this section, a solicitor may submit a certificate of deposit in the amount as for a bond pursuant to subsection (d) of this section. The certificate of deposit shall be payable to the State and unrestrictively endorsed to the Department; or, in the case of a negotiable certificate of deposit, unrestrictively endorsed to the Department; or, in the case of a nonnegotiable certificate of deposit, assigned to the Department in a form satisfactory to the Department. Access to the certificate of deposit in favor of the State is subject to the same conditions as for a bond under subsection (d) of this section and shall extend for a period not less than four years after the solicitor ceases activities that are subject to this Chapter. The Department shall deliver to the State Treasurer certificates of deposit submitted under this section."

RE: Senate Bill 305 - Solicitor's Security Option

Senate Bill 305 amends G.S. 131F-16 to allow a solicitor for a charitable organization to submit a certificate of deposit rather than a security bond.

This act is effective when it becomes law.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

§ 131F-16. License required for solicitors.

(a) Licensure Required. - Unless exempted under G.S. 131F-3, a person shall not act as a solicitor in this State unless that person has obtained a license from the Department and paid the applicable fees.

(b) Applications. - Applications for a license or renewal of a license shall be submitted on a form provided by the Department, shall be signed under oath, and shall include the following information:

(1) The street address and telephone number of the principal place of business of the applicant and any North Carolina street addresses if the principal place of business is located outside this State.

(2) The form of the applicant's business.

(3) The place and date when the applicant, if other than an individual, was legally established.

(4) The names and residence addresses of all officers, directors, and owners.

(5) A statement as to whether any of the owners, directors, officers, or employees of the applicant are related as parent, spouse, child, or sibling to:

a. Any other directors, officers, owners, or employees of the applicant.

b. Any officer, director, trustee, or employee of any charitable organization or sponsor under contract to the applicant.

c. Any supplier or vendor providing goods or services to any charitable organization or sponsor under contract to the applicant.

(6) A statement as to whether the applicant or any of the directors, officers, persons with a controlling interest in the applicant, or employees or agents involved in solicitation have been convicted, within the last five years, of any felony, or of a misdemeanor arising from the conduct of a solicitation for any charitable organization or sponsor or charitable or sponsor purpose, or been enjoined from violating a charitable solicitation law in this or any other state.

(7) The names of all persons in charge of any solicitation activity.

(c) Fees. - The application for an initial or renewal license shall be accompanied by a fee of two hundred dollars ($200.00). A solicitor that is a partnership or corporation may register for and pay a single fee on behalf of all of the partners, members, officers, directors, agents, and employees. In that case, the names and street addresses of all the officers, employees, and agents of the solicitor and all other persons with whom the solicitor has contracted to work under that solicitor's direction, including solicitors, shall be listed in the license application or furnished to the Department within five days after the date of employment or contractual arrangement. Each license is valid for one year or a part of one year and expires on March 31 of each year. The license may be renewed on or before March 31 of each year for an additional one-year period upon application to the Department and payment of the license fee.

(d) Bond. - A solicitor shall, at the time of application or renewal of the license, file with and have approved by the Department a bond with a surety authorized to do business in this State and to which the solicitor is the principal obligor. The amount of the bond shall be determined as follows:

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1) Twenty thousand dollars ($20,000), if the contributions received for the last fiscal year were less than one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000).

(2) Thirty thousand dollars ($30,000), if the contributions received for the last fiscal year were at least one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) but less than two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000).

(3) Fifty thousand dollars ($50,000), if the contributions received for the last fiscal year were at least two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000).

The solicitor shall maintain the bond in effect as long as the license is in effect. The liability of the surety under the bond shall not exceed an all-time aggregate liability of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000). The bond, which may be in the form of a rider to a larger blanket liability bond, shall be payable to the State and to any person who may have a cause of action against the principal obligor of the bond for any liability arising out of a violation by the obligor of any provision of this Chapter or any rule adopted under this Chapter.

(e) Departmental Review. - The Department shall examine each application filed by a solicitor. If the Department determines that the requirements are not satisfied, the Department shall notify the solicitor within 10 days after its receipt of the application. If the Department does not respond within 10 days, the license is deemed approved. Within seven days after receipt of a notification that the requirements are not satisfied, the applicant may request a hearing. The state shall bear the burden of proof at such hearing. The hearing shall be held within seven days after receipt of the request. Any recommended order, if one is issued, shall be rendered within three days after the hearing. The final order shall then be issued within two days after the recommended order. If there is no recommended order, the final order shall be issued within five days after the hearing. The proceedings shall be conducted in accordance with Chapter 150B of the General Statutes, except that the time limits and provision set forth in this subsection prevail to the extent of any conflict. The applicant shall be permitted to continue to operate or continue operations pending judicial review of the Department's denial of the application. The Department shall make rules regarding the custody and control of any funds collected during the review period and disposal of such funds in the event the denial of the application is affirmed on appeal.

(f) Solicitation Notice. - No less than five days before commencing any solicitation campaign or event, the solicitor shall file with the Department a solicitation notice on a form provided by the Department. The notice shall be signed and sworn to by the contracting officer of the solicitor and shall include:

(1) A description of the solicitation event or campaign.

(2) Each location and telephone number from which the solicitation is to be conducted.

(3) The legal name and residence address of each person responsible for directing and supervising the conduct of the campaign.

(4) A statement as to whether the solicitor will, at any time, have custody of contributions.

(5) The account number and location of each bank account where receipts from the campaign are to be deposited.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(6) A full and fair description of the charitable or sponsor program for which the solicitation campaign is being carried out as provided in the contract between the solicitor and the charitable organization or sponsor.

(7) The fund-raising methods to be used.

(8) A copy of the contract executed in accordance with subsection (g) of this section.

(g) Contracts. - Each contract or agreement between a solicitor and a charitable organization or sponsor for each solicitation campaign shall be in writing, shall be signed by two authorized officials of the charitable organization or sponsor, one of whom shall be a member of the organization's governing body and one of whom shall be the authorized contracting officer for the solicitor. Each contract or agreement shall contain all of the following provisions:

(1) A statement of the charitable or sponsor purpose and program for which the solicitation campaign is being conducted.

(2) A statement of the respective obligations of the solicitor and the charitable organization or sponsor.

(3) A statement of the guaranteed minimum percentage of the gross receipts from contributions which will be remitted to the charitable organization or sponsor. If the solicitation involves the sale of goods, services, or tickets to a fund-raising event, the percentage of the purchase price which will be remitted to the charitable organization or sponsor. Any stated percentage shall exclude any amount which the charitable organization or sponsor shall pay as fund-raising costs.

(4) A statement of the percentage of the gross revenue for which the solicitor shall be compensated. If the compensation of the professional solicitor is not contingent upon the number of contributions or the amount of revenue received, the compensation shall be expressed as a reasonable estimate of the percentage of the gross revenue, and the contract shall clearly disclose the assumptions upon which the estimate is based. The stated assumptions shall be based upon all of the relevant facts known to the solicitor regarding the solicitation to be conducted by the solicitor.

(5) The effective and termination dates of the contract.

(h) Financial Report. - Within 90 days after a solicitation campaign has been completed and on the anniversary of the commencement of a solicitation campaign lasting more than one year, the solicitor shall provide to the charitable organization or sponsor and file with the Department a financial report of the campaign, including the gross revenue received and an itemization of all expenses incurred. The report shall be completed on a form provided by the Department and shall be signed by an authorized official of the solicitor who shall certify under oath that the report is true and correct.

(i) Handling of Contributions. - Each contribution collected by or in the custody of the solicitor shall be solely in the name of the charitable organization or sponsor on whose behalf the contribution was solicited. Not later than two days after receipt of each contribution, the solicitor shall deposit the entire amount of the contribution in an account at a bank or other federally insured financial institution, which account shall be in the name of that charitable organization or sponsor. The charitable organization or sponsor shall have sole control of all withdrawals from the account and the solicitor shall not be given the authority to withdraw any deposited funds

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman,
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis and O. Walker Reagan, Staff Attorneys

RE: Senate Bill 370 - Commercial Arb. Amendments-Second Edition (Odom)

Senate Bill 370 amends the International Commercial Arbitration Act by making international commercial arbitration awards reached outside of North Carolina enforceable in North Carolina under the International Commercial Arbitration Act and by giving every party the right to be represented by an attorney in these arbitrations. This bill is a recommendation of the North Carolina Bar Association.

Section 1 of the bill adds G.S. 1-567.65 (copy attached) to the provisions of International Commercial Arbitration Act that are enforceable in North Carolina despite the fact that the arbitration is in another place other than North Carolina. G.S. 1-567.65 provides that upon the application of a party to an arbitral award to the superior court, the court may enter a judgment which may thereafter be enforced as any other judgment entered in the State.

Section 2 amends G.S. 1-567.48 by adding a new subsection that ensures that a party to an international commercial arbitration shall have a right to be represented by an attorney, and that a waiver of this right is ineffective.

This bill would become effective when it becomes law and would apply to proceedings initiated on or after that date.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

1-567.31. Scope of application.

(a) This Article applies to international commercial arbitration, subject to any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, or any federal statute.

(b) The provisions of this Article except G.S. 1-567.38 and G.S. 1-567.39, apply only if the place of arbitration is in this State.

(c) An arbitration is international if:

(1) The parties to the arbitration agreement have their places of business in different nations when the agreement is concluded; or

(2) One or more of the following places is situated outside the nations in which the parties have their places of business:

a. The place of arbitration if determined pursuant to the arbitration agreement;

b. Any place where a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship is to be performed; or

c. The place with which the subject matter of the dispute is most closely connected; or

(3) The parties have expressly agreed that the subject matter of the arbitration agreement relates to more than one nation.

(d) For the purposes of subsection (c) of this section:

(1) If a party has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the arbitration agreement;

(2) If a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to the party's domicile.

(e) An arbitration is deemed commercial for the purposes of this Article if it arises out of a relationship of a commercial nature, including, but not limited to the following:

(1) A transaction for the exchange of goods and services;

(2) A distribution agreement;

(3) A commercial representation or agency;

(4) An exploitation agreement or concession;

(5) A joint venture or other related form of industrial or business cooperation;

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(6) The carriage of goods or passengers by air, sea, land, or road;

(7) A contract or agreement relating to construction, insurance, licensing, factoring, leasing, consulting, engineering, financing, or banking;

(8) The transfer of data or technology;

(9) The use or transfer of intellectual or industrial property, including trade secrets, trademarks, trade names, patents, copyrights, and software programs;

(10) A contract for the provision of any type of professional service, whether provided by an employee or an independent contractor.

(f) This Article shall not affect any other law in force by virtue of which certain disputes may not be submitted to arbitration or may be submitted to arbitration only according to provisions other than those of this Article.

(g) This Article shall not apply to any agreement providing explicitly that it shall not be subject to the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration Act. This Article shall not apply to any agreement executed prior to June 13, 1991.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

§ 1-567.65. Confirmation and enforcement of awards.

Subject to the relevant provisions of federal law or any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, upon application of a party, the superior court shall confirm an arbitral award, unless it finds grounds for modifying or vacating the award under G.S. 1-567.64. An award shall not be confirmed unless the time for correction and interpretation of awards prescribed by G.S. 1-567.63 shall have expired or been waived by all the parties. Upon the granting of an order confirming, modifying, or correcting an award, judgment or decree shall be entered in conformity therewith and enforced as any other judgment or decree. The superior court may award costs of the application and of the subsequent proceedings.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

Section 3. G.S. 1-567.68 is recodified as G.S. 1-567.33A, to be included in Part 1 of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, as codified in Section 2 of this act.

Section 4. G.S. 1-567.34 through G.S. 1-567.67 are codified as Part 2 of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, to be entitled "International Commercial Arbitration".

Section 5. G.S. 1-567.30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-567.30. Preamble and short title.

It is the policy of the State of North Carolina to promote and facilitate international trade and commerce, and to provide a forum for the resolution of disputes that may arise from participation therein. Pursuant to this policy, the purpose of this Article is to encourage the use of arbitration or conciliation as a means of resolving such disputes, to provide rules for the conduct of arbitration or conciliation proceedings, and to assure access to the courts of this State for legal proceedings ancillary to such ~~arbitration.~~ arbitration or conciliation. This Article shall be known as the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration and Conciliation Act".

Section 6. G.S. 1-567.31 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-567.31. Scope of application.

(a) This Article applies to international commercial ~~arbitration,~~ arbitration and conciliation, subject to any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, or any federal statute.

(b) The provisions of this ~~Article~~ Article, except G.S. 1-567.38 and G.S. 1-567.39, apply only if the place of arbitration is in this State.

(c) An arbitration or conciliation is international if:

(1) The parties to the arbitration or conciliation agreement have their places of business in different nations when the agreement is concluded; or

(2) One or more of the following places is situated outside the nations in which the parties have their places of business:

a. The place of arbitration or conciliation if determined pursuant to the arbitration agreement;

b. Any place where a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship is to be performed; or

c. The place with which the subject matter of the dispute is most closely connected; or

(3) The parties have expressly agreed that the subject matter of the arbitration or conciliation agreement relates to more than one nation.

(d) For the purposes of subsection (c) of this section:

(1) If a party has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the arbitration or conciliation agreement;

(2) If a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to the party's domicile.

(e) An arbitration or conciliation, respectively, is deemed commercial for the purposes of this Article if it arises out of a relationship of a commercial nature, including, but not limited to the following:

(1) A transaction for the exchange of goods and services;

(2) A distribution agreement;

(3) A commercial representation or agency;

(4) An exploitation agreement or concession;

(5) A joint venture or other related form of industrial or business cooperation;

(6) The carriage of goods or passengers by air, sea, land, or road;

(7) A contract or agreement relating to construction, insurance, licensing, factoring, leasing, consulting, engineering, financing, or banking;

(8) The transfer of data or technology;
(9) The use or transfer of intellectual or industrial property, including trade secrets, trademarks, trade names, patents, copyrights, and software programs;
(10) A contract for the provision of any type of professional service, whether provided by an employee or an independent contractor.

(f) This Article shall not affect any other law in force by virtue of which certain disputes may not be submitted to ~~arbitration~~ arbitration, conciliation, or mediation, or may be submitted to ~~arbitration~~ arbitration, conciliation, or mediation only according to provisions other than those of this Article.

Section 7. Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Part to read:

"Part 3. International Commercial Conciliation.

"§ 1-567.68. Appointment of conciliators.

(a) The parties may select or permit an arbitral tribunal or other third party to select one or more persons to serve as the conciliators.

(b) The conciliator shall assist the parties in an independent and impartial manner in the parties' attempt to reach an amicable settlement of their dispute. The conciliator shall be guided by principles of objectivity, fairness, and justice and shall give consideration to, among other things, the rights and obligations of the parties, the usages of the trade concerned, and the circumstances surrounding the dispute, including any previous practices between the parties.

(c) The conciliator may conduct the conciliation proceedings in a manner that the conciliator considers appropriate, considering the circumstances of the case, the wishes of the parties, and the desirability of a prompt settlement of the dispute. Except as otherwise provided by this Article, other provisions of the law of this State governing procedural matters do not apply to conciliation proceedings brought under this Part.

"§ 1-567.69. Representation.

The parties may appear in person or be represented or assisted by any person of their choice.

"§ 1-567.70. Report of conciliators.

(a) At any time during the proceedings, a conciliator may prepare a draft conciliation agreement and send copies to the parties, specifying the time within which the parties must signify their approval. The draft conciliation agreement may include the assessment and apportionment of costs between the parties.

(b) A party is not required to accept a settlement proposed by the conciliator.

"§ 1-567.71. Confidentiality.

(a) Evidence of anything said or of an admission made in the course of a conciliation is not admissible, and disclosure of that evidence shall not be compelled in any arbitration or civil action in which, under law, testimony may be compelled to be given. This subsection does not limit the admissibility of evidence when all parties participating in conciliation consent to its disclosure.

(b) If evidence is offered in violation of this section, the arbitral tribunal or the court shall make any order it considers appropriate to deal with the matter, including an order restricting the introduction of evidence or dismissing the case.

(c) Unless the document otherwise provides, a document prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to the conciliation, or a copy of such document, is not admissible in evidence, and disclosure of the document shall not be compelled in any arbitration or civil action in which, under law, testimony may be compelled.

"§ 1-567.72. Stay of arbitration; resort to other proceedings.

(a) The agreement of the parties to submit a dispute to conciliation is considered an agreement between or among those parties to stay all judicial or arbitral proceedings from the beginning of conciliation until the termination of conciliation proceedings.

(b) All applicable limitation periods, including periods of prescription, are tolled or extended on the beginning of conciliation proceedings under this Part as to all parties to the conciliation proceedings until the tenth day following the date of termination of the proceedings. For purposes of this section, conciliation proceedings are considered to have begun when the parties have all agreed to participate in the conciliation proceedings.

"§ 1-567.73. Termination of conciliation.

(a) A conciliation proceeding may be terminated as to all parties by any one of the following means:

(1) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the conciliators that further efforts at conciliation are no longer justified.

(2) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the parties addressed to the conciliators that the conciliation proceedings are terminated.

(3) On the date of the agreement, a conciliation agreement signed by all of the parties.

(4) On the date of the order, order of the court when the matter submitted to conciliation is in litigation in the courts of this State.

(b) A conciliation proceeding may be terminated as to particular parties by any one of the following means:

(1) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the particular party to the other parties and the conciliators that the conciliation proceedings are to be terminated as to that party.

(2) On the date of the agreement, a conciliation agreement signed by some of the parties.

(3) On the date of the order, order of the court when the matter submitted to conciliation is in litigation in the courts of this State.

"§ 1-567.74. Enforceability of decree.

If the conciliation proceeding settles the dispute and the result of the conciliation is in writing and signed by the conciliators and the parties or their representatives, the written agreement shall be treated as an arbitral award rendered by an arbitral tribunal under this Article and has the same force and effect as a final award in arbitration.

"§ 1-567.75. Costs.

(a) On termination of the conciliation proceeding, the conciliators shall set the costs of the conciliation and give written notice of the costs to the parties. For purposes of this section, 'costs' includes all of the following:

(1) A reasonable fee to be paid to the conciliators.

(2) Travel and other reasonable expenses of the conciliators.

(3) Travel and other reasonable expenses of witnesses requested by the conciliators, with the consent of the parties.

(4) The cost of any expert advice requested by the conciliators, with the consent of the parties.

(5) The cost of any court.

(b) Costs shall be borne equally by the parties unless a conciliation agreement provides for a different apportionment. All other expenses incurred by a party shall be borne by that party.

"§ 1-567.76. Effect on jurisdiction.

Requesting conciliation, consenting to participate in the conciliation proceedings, participating in conciliation proceedings, or entering into a conciliation agreement does not constitute consenting to the jurisdiction of any court in this State if conciliation fails.

"§ 1-567.77. Immunity of conciliators and parties.

(a) A conciliator, party, or representative of a conciliator or party, while present in this State for the purpose of arranging for or participating in conciliation under this Part, is not subject to service of process on any civil matter related to the conciliation.

(b) A person who serves as a conciliator shall have the same immunity as judges from civil liability for their official conduct in any proceeding subject to this Part. This qualified immunity does not apply to acts or omissions which occur with respect to the operation of a motor vehicle."

Section 8. This act becomes effective September 1, 1997, and applies to any international commercial disputes that are subject on or after that date to conciliation pursuant to Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, as amended by this act.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Representative Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman

FROM: O. Walker Reagan, Staff Attorney
Susan L. Hayes, Committee Counsel

RE: Senate Bill 371 - International Commercial Conciliation - Senator Odom

Senate Bill 371 would amend the International Commercial Arbitration statute by adding provisions for conciliation in addition to arbitration. This bill is a recommendation of the North Carolina Bar Association.

This bill adds conciliation processes to the arbitration processes recognized under North Carolina law for disputes arising in international commercial transactions as defined in the law.

Conciliation provides for an informal process directed by a independent impartial person whose job is to help the parties to a dispute reach an amiable settlement. Under this procedure, the discussions can be in any form the conciliator deems appropriate and agreed to by the parties.

The bill provides protections to the parties to this type of settlement process by insuring that all evidence or admissions made in the conciliation process are inadmissible in any subsequent court proceeding. The bill also provides that any applicable time limits, including statutes of limitation, are stayed during the conciliation process and for 10 days beyond the termination. The bill specifies when a conciliation is terminated, the enforceability of any agreement arising from the conciliation, and how the costs of the process are to be shared between the parties. The bill also gives protection against conciliation being deemed consent to jurisdiction.

This bill would become effective September 1, 1997 and would apply to international commercial disputes made subject to conciliation on or after that date.

§ 1-567.30. Preamble and short title.

It is the policy of the State of North Carolina to promote and facilitate international trade and commerce, and to provide a forum for the resolution of disputes that may arise from participation therein. Pursuant to this policy, the purpose of this Article is to encourage the use of arbitration as a means of resolving such disputes, to provide rules for the conduct of arbitration proceedings, and to assure access to the courts of this State for legal proceedings ancillary to such arbitration. This Article shall be known as the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration Act.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.31. Scope of application.

(a) This Article applies to international commercial arbitration, subject to any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, or any federal statute.

(b) The provisions of this Article except G.S. 1-567.38 and G.S. 1-567.39, apply only if the place of arbitration is in this State.

(c) An arbitration is international if:

(1) The parties to the arbitration agreement have their places of business in different nations when the agreement is concluded; or

(2) One or more of the following places is situated outside the nations in which the parties have their places of business:

a. The place of arbitration if determined pursuant to the arbitration agreement;

b. Any place where a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship is to be performed; or

c. The place with which the subject matter of the dispute is most closely connected; or

(3) The parties have expressly agreed that the subject matter of the arbitration agreement relates to more than one nation.

(d) For the purposes of subsection (c) of this section:

(1) If a party has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the arbitration agreement;

(2) If a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to the party's domicile.

(e) An arbitration is deemed commercial for the purposes of this Article if it arises out of a relationship of a commercial nature, including, but not limited to the following:

(1) A transaction for the exchange of goods and services;

(2) A distribution agreement;

(3) A commercial representation or agency;

(4) An exploitation agreement or concession;

(5) A joint venture or other related form of industrial or business cooperation;

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(6) The carriage of goods or passengers by air, sea, land, or road;

(7) A contract or agreement relating to construction, insurance, licensing, factoring, leasing, consulting, engineering, financing, or banking;

(8) The transfer of data or technology;

(9) The use or transfer of intellectual or industrial property, including trade secrets, trademarks, trade names, patents, copyrights, and software programs;

(10) A contract for the provision of any type of professional service, whether provided by an employee or an independent contractor.

(f) This Article shall not affect any other law in force by virtue of which certain disputes may not be submitted to arbitration or may be submitted to arbitration only according to provisions other than those of this Article.

(g) This Article shall not apply to any agreement providing explicitly that it shall not be subject to the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration Act. This Article shall not apply to any agreement executed prior to June 13, 1991.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.32. Definitions and rules of interpretation.

(a) For the purposes of this Article:

(1) "Arbitral award" means any decision of an arbitral tribunal on the substance of a dispute submitted to it, and includes an interlocutory, or partial award;

(2) "Arbitral tribunal" means a sole arbitrator or a panel of arbitrators;

(3) "Arbitration" means any arbitration whether or not administered by a permanent arbitral institution;

(4) "Party" means a party to an arbitration agreement;

(5) "Superior court" means the superior court of any county in this State selected pursuant to G.S. 1-567.36.

(b) Where a provision of this Article, except G.S. 1-567.58, leaves the parties free to determine a certain issue, such freedom includes the right of the parties to authorize a third party, including an institution, to make that determination.

(c) Where a provision of this Article refers to the fact that the parties have agreed or that they may agree or in any other way refers to an agreement of the parties, such agreement includes any arbitration rules referred to in that agreement.

(d) Where a provision of this Article, other than in G.S. 1-567.55(1) and G.S. 1-567.62(b)(1), refers to a claim, it also applies to a counterclaim, and where it refers to a defense, it also applies to a defense to such counterclaim.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

§ 1-567.33. Receipt of written communications or submissions.

(a) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, any written communication or submission is deemed to have been received if it is delivered to the addressee personally or if it is delivered at the addressee's place of business, domicile or mailing address and the communication or submission is deemed to have been received on the day it is so delivered. Delivery by facsimile transmission shall constitute valid receipt if the communication or submission is in fact received.

(b) If none of the places referred to in subsection (a) can be found after making reasonable inquiry, a written communication or submission is deemed to have been received if it is sent to the addressee's last known place of business, domicile or mailing address by registered mail or any other means which provide a record of the attempt to deliver it.

(c) The provisions of this Article do not apply to a written communication or submission relating to a court, administrative or special proceeding.

§ 1-567.34. Waiver of right to object.

A party who knows that any provision of this Article or any requirement under the arbitration agreement has not been complied with and yet proceeds with the arbitration without stating an objection to such noncompliance without undue delay or, if a time limit is provided therefor, within that period of time, shall be deemed to have waived any right to object.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.35. Extent of court intervention.

In matters governed by this Article, no court shall intervene except where so provided in this Article or applicable federal law or any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.36. Venue and jurisdiction of courts.

(a) The functions referred to in G.S. 1-567.41(c) and (d), 1-567.43(a), 1-567.44(b), 1-567.46(c), and 1-567.57 shall be performed by the superior court in:

(1) The county where the arbitration agreement is to be performed or was made;

(2) If the arbitration agreement does not specify a county where the agreement is to be performed and the agreement was not made in any county in the State of North Carolina, the county where any party to the court proceeding resides or has a place of business;

(3) In any case not covered by subdivisions (1) or (2) of this subsection, in any county in the State of North Carolina.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(b) All other functions assigned by this Article to the superior court shall be performed by the superior court of the county in which the place of arbitration is located.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.37. Definition and form of arbitration agreement.

(a) An "arbitration agreement" is an agreement by the parties to submit to arbitration all or certain disputes which have arisen or which may arise between them in respect of a defined legal relationship, whether or not contractual. An arbitration agreement may be in the form of an arbitration clause in a contract or in the form of a separate agreement.

(b) The arbitration agreement shall be in writing. An agreement is in writing if it is contained in a document signed by the parties or in an exchange of letters, telex, telegrams, facsimile transmission, or other means of telecommunication which provide a record of the agreement, or in an exchange of statements of claim and defense in which the existence of an agreement is alleged by one party and not denied by another. The reference in a contract to a document containing an arbitration clause constitutes an arbitration agreement provided that the contract is in writing and the reference is such as to make that clause part of the contract.

(c) Such arbitration agreement shall be valid, enforceable and irrevocable, except with the consent of all the parties, without regard to the justiciable character of the controversy.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.38. Arbitration agreement and substantive claim before court.

(a) When a party to an international commercial arbitration agreement as defined in this Article commences judicial proceedings seeking relief with respect to a matter covered by the agreement to arbitrate, any other party to the agreement may apply to the superior court for an order to stay the proceedings and compel arbitration.

(b) Arbitration proceedings may begin or continue, and an award may be made, while an action described in subsection (a) is pending before the court.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.39. Interim relief and the enforcement of interim measures.

(a) In the case of an arbitration where the arbitrator or arbitrators have not been appointed, or where the arbitrator or arbitrators are unavailable, a party may seek interim relief directly from the superior court as provided in subsection (c). Enforcement shall be granted as provided by the law applicable to the type of interim relief sought.

(b) In all other cases, a party shall seek interim measures under G.S. 1-567.47 from the arbitral tribunal and shall have no right to seek interim relief from the superior court, except that a party to an arbitration governed by this Article may request from the superior court enforcement of an order of an arbitral tribunal granting interim measures under G.S. 1-567.47.

(c) In connection with an agreement to arbitrate or a pending arbitration, the superior court may grant, pursuant to subsection (a) of this section:

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1) An order of attachment of garnishment;

(2) A temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction;

(3) An order for claim and delivery;

(4) The appointment of a receiver;

(5) Delivery of money or other property into court;

(6) Any other order that may be necessary to ensure the preservation or availability either of assets or of documents, the destruction or absence of which would be likely to prejudice the conduct or effectiveness of the arbitration.

(d) In considering a request for interim relief or the enforcement of interim measures, the court shall give preclusive effect to any finding of fact of the arbitral tribunal in the proceeding, including the probable validity of the claim that is the subject of the interim relief sought or the interim measures granted.

(e) Where the arbitral tribunal has not ruled on an objection to its jurisdiction, the court shall not grant preclusive effect to the tribunal's findings until the court has made an independent finding as to the jurisdiction of the arbitral tribunal. If the court rules that the arbitral tribunal did not have jurisdiction, the application for interim relief or the enforcement of interim measures shall be denied. Such a ruling by the court that the arbitral tribunal lacks jurisdiction is not binding on the arbitral tribunal or subsequent judicial proceedings.

(f) The availability of interim relief under this section may be limited by prior written agreement of the parties.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.40. Number of arbitrators.

There shall be one arbitrator unless the parties agree on a greater number of arbitrators.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.41. Appointment of arbitrators.

(a) A person of any nationality may be an arbitrator.

(b) The parties may agree on a procedure of appointing the arbitral tribunal subject to the provisions of subsections (d) and (e) of this section.

(c) (1) If an agreement is not made under subsection (b) of this section, in an arbitration with three arbitrators, each party shall appoint one arbitrator, and the two arbitrators thus appointed shall appoint the third arbitrator; if a party fails to appoint the arbitrator within 30 days of receipt of a request to do so from the other party, or if the two arbitrators fail to agree on the third arbitrator within 30 days of their appointment, the appointment shall be made, upon request of a party, by the superior court.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(2) In an arbitration with a sole arbitrator, if the parties are unable to agree on the arbitrator, a sole arbitrator shall be appointed, upon request of a party, by the superior court.

(3) In an arbitration involving more than two parties, if no agreement is reached under subsection (b) of this section, the superior court, on request of a party, shall appoint one or more arbitrators, as provided in G.S. 1-567.40.

(d) The superior court, on request of any party, may take the necessary measures, unless the agreement on the appointment procedure provides other means for securing the appointment, if, under an appointment procedure agreed upon by the parties:

(1) A party fails to act as required under such procedure; or

(2) The parties, or two arbitrators, are unable to reach an agreement expected of them under such procedure; or

(3) A third party, including an institution, fails to perform any function entrusted to it under such procedure.

(e) A decision of the superior court on a matter entrusted by subsection (c) or (d) of this section shall be final and not subject to appeal.

(f) The superior court, in appointing an arbitrator, shall consider:

(1) Any qualifications required of the arbitrator by the agreement of the parties;

(2) Such other considerations as are likely to secure the appointment of an independent and impartial arbitrator;

(3) In the case of a sole or third arbitrator, the advisability of appointing an arbitrator of a nationality other than those of the parties.

(g) The parties may agree to employ an established arbitration institution to conduct the arbitration. If they do not so agree, the superior court may in its discretion designate an established arbitration institution to conduct the arbitration.

(h) Unless otherwise agreed, an arbitrator shall be entitled to compensation at an hourly or daily rate which reflects the size and complexity of the case, and the experience of the arbitrator. If the parties are unable to agree on such a rate, the rate shall be determined by the arbitral institution chosen pursuant to subsection (g) of this section or by the arbitral tribunal, in either case subject to the review of the superior court upon the motion of any dissenting party.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1; 1993, c. 553, s. 6.)

§ 1-567.42. Grounds for challenge.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in this Article, all persons whose names have been submitted for consideration for appointment or designation as arbitrators, or who have been appointed or designated as such, shall make a disclosure to the parties within 15 days of such submission, appointment, or designation of any information which might cause their impartiality to be questioned including, but not limited to, any of the following instances:

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1) The person has a personal bias or prejudice concerning a party, or personal knowledge of disputed evidentiary facts concerning the proceeding;

(2) The person served as a lawyer in the matter in controversy, or the person is or has been associated with another who has participated in the matter during such association, or has been a material witness concerning it;

(3) The person served as an arbitrator in another proceeding involving one or more of the parties to the proceeding;

(4) The person, individually or as a fiduciary, or such person's spouse or minor child residing in such person's household, has a financial interest in the subject matter in controversy or in a party to the proceeding, or any other interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

(5) The person, his or her spouse, or a person within the third degree of relationship to either of them, or the spouse of such a person meets any of the following conditions:

a. The person is or has been a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party;

b. The person is acting or has acted as a lawyer in the proceeding;

c. The person is known to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

d. The person is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding;

(6) The person has a close personal or professional relationship with a person who meets any of the following conditions:

a. The person is or has been a party to the proceeding, or an officer, director, or trustee of a party;

b. The person is acting or has acted as a lawyer or representative in the proceeding;

c. The person is or expects to be nominated as an arbitrator or conciliator in the proceeding;

d. The person is known to have an interest that could be substantially affected by the outcome of the proceeding;

e. The person is likely to be a material witness in the proceeding.

(b) The obligation to disclose information set forth in subsection (a) of this section is mandatory and cannot be waived as to the parties with respect to persons serving either as sole arbitrator or as the chief or prevailing arbitrator. The parties may otherwise agree to waive such disclosure.

(c) From the time of appointment and throughout the arbitral proceedings, an arbitrator shall disclose to the parties without delay any circumstances referred to in subsection (a) of this section which were not previously disclosed.

(d) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties or the rules governing the arbitration, an arbitrator may be challenged only if circumstances exist that give rise to justifiable doubts as to his or her independence or impartiality, or as to his or her possession of the qualifications upon which the parties have agreed.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(e) A party may challenge an arbitrator appointed by it, or in whose appointment it has participated only for reasons of which it becomes aware after the appointment has been made.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.43. Challenge procedure.

(a) The parties may agree on a procedure for challenging an arbitrator, subject to the provisions of subsection (c) of this section.

(b) If there is no agreement under subsection (a) of this section, a party challenging an arbitrator shall, within 15 days after becoming aware of the constitution of the arbitral tribunal or after becoming aware of any circumstance referred to in G.S. 1-567.42(a), send a written statement of the reasons for the challenge to the arbitral tribunal. Unless the challenged arbitrator withdraws or the other party agrees to the challenge, the arbitral tribunal shall decide on the challenge.

(c) If a challenge under any procedure agreed upon by the parties or under the procedure of subsection (b) of this section is not successful, the challenging party may, within 30 days after having received notice of the decision rejecting the challenge, request the superior court to decide on the challenge, which decision shall be final and subject to no appeal. While such a request is pending, the arbitral tribunal, including the challenged arbitrator, may continue to conduct the arbitral proceedings and make an award.

§ 1-567.44. Failure or impossibility to act.

(a) The mandate of an arbitrator terminates if the arbitrator becomes unable to perform the arbitrator's functions or for other reasons fails to act without undue delay or the arbitrator withdraws or the parties agree to the termination.

(b) If a controversy remains concerning any of the grounds referred to in subsection (a) of this section, a party may request the superior court to decide on the termination of the mandate. The decision of the superior court shall be final and not subject to appeal.

(c) If under this section or under G.S. 1-567.43, an arbitrator withdraws or otherwise agrees to the termination of his or her mandate, no acceptance of the validity of any ground referred to in this section or G.S. 1-567.43(b) shall be implied in consequence of such action.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.45. Appointment of substitute arbitrator.

(a) Where the mandate of an arbitrator terminates for any reason, a substitute arbitrator shall be appointed according to the rules that were applicable to the appointment of the arbitrator being replaced.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(b) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties:

(1) Where the number of arbitrators is less than three and an arbitrator is replaced, any hearings previously held shall be repeated;

(2) Where the presiding arbitrator is replaced, any hearings previously held shall be repeated;

(3) Where the number of arbitrators is three or more and an arbitrator other than the presiding arbitrator is replaced, any hearings previously held may be repeated at the discretion of the arbitral tribunal.

(c) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, an order or ruling of the arbitral tribunal made prior to the replacement of an arbitrator under this section is not invalid because there has been a change in the composition of the tribunal.

§ 1-567.46. Competence of arbitral tribunal to rule on its jurisdiction.

(a) The arbitral tribunal may rule on its own jurisdiction, including any objections with respect to the existence or validity of the arbitration agreement. For that purpose, an arbitration clause which forms a part of a contract shall be treated as an agreement independent of the other terms of the contract. A decision by the arbitral tribunal that the contract is null and void shall not entail ipso jure the invalidity of the arbitration clause, unless the arbitral tribunal finds that the arbitration clause was obtained by fraud, whether in the inducement or in the factum.

(b) A plea that the arbitral tribunal does not have jurisdiction shall be raised not later than the submission of the statement of defense. However, a party is not precluded from raising such a plea by the fact that the party has appointed, or participated in the appointment of, an arbitrator. A plea that the arbitral tribunal is exceeding the scope of its authority shall be raised as soon as the matter alleged to be beyond the scope of its authority is raised during the arbitral proceedings. In either case, the arbitral tribunal may admit a later plea if it considers the delay justified.

(c) The arbitral tribunal may rule on a plea referred to in subsection (b) of this section either as a preliminary question or in an award on the merits. If the arbitral tribunal rules as a preliminary question that it has jurisdiction, after having received notice of that ruling, any party may request the superior court to decide the matter. The decision of the superior court shall be final and not subject to appeal. While such a request is pending, the arbitral tribunal may continue the arbitral proceedings and make an award.

§ 1-567.47. Power of arbitral tribunal to order interim measures.

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal may, at the request of a party, order any party to take such interim measure of protection as the arbitral tribunal may consider necessary in respect of the subject matter of the dispute, including an interim measure analogous to any type of interim relief specified in G.S. 1-567.39(c). The arbitral tribunal may require any party to provide appropriate security, including security for costs as provided in G.S. 1-567.61(h)(2), in connection with such measure.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.48. Equal treatment of parties.

The parties shall be treated with equality and each party shall be given a full opportunity to present its case.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.49. Determination of rules of procedure.

(a) Subject to the provisions of this Article, the parties may agree on the procedure to be followed by the arbitral tribunal in conducting the proceedings.

(b) If there is no agreement under subsection (a) of this section, the arbitral tribunal may, subject to the provisions of this Article, conduct the arbitration in such manner as it considers appropriate. The power conferred upon the arbitral tribunal includes the power to order such discovery as it deems necessary and to determine the admissibility, relevance, materiality, and weight of any evidence. Evidence need not be limited by the rules of evidence applicable in judicial proceedings, except as to immunities and privilege. Each party shall have the burden of proving the facts relied on to support its claim, setoff, or defense.

§ 1-567.50. Place of arbitration.

(a) The parties may agree on the place of arbitration. If the parties do not agree, the place of arbitration shall be determined by the arbitral tribunal having regard to the circumstances of the case, including the convenience of the parties.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, the arbitral tribunal may, unless otherwise agreed by the parties, meet at any place it considers appropriate for consultation among its members, for hearing witnesses, experts or the parties, or for inspection of goods, other property, or documents.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.51. Commencement of arbitral proceedings.

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral proceedings in respect of a particular dispute shall commence on the date on which a request for that dispute to be referred to arbitration is received by the respondent.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.52. Language.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(a) The parties may agree on the language or languages to be used in the arbitral proceedings. If the parties do not agree, the arbitral tribunal shall determine the language or languages to be used in the proceedings. This agreement or determination, unless otherwise specified therein, shall apply to any written statement by a party, any hearing and any award, decision, or other communication by the arbitral tribunal.

(b) The arbitral tribunal may order that any documentary evidence shall be accompanied by a translation into the language or languages agreed upon by the parties or determined by the arbitral tribunal.

(c) The arbitral tribunal may employ one or more translators at the expense of the parties.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.53. Statements of claim and defense.

(a) Within the period of time agreed by the parties or determined by the arbitral tribunal, the claimant shall state the facts supporting its claim, the points at issue and the relief or remedy sought, and the respondent shall state its defenses and counterclaims or setoffs in respect of these particulars, unless the parties have otherwise agreed as to the required elements of such statements. The parties may submit with their statements all documents they consider to be relevant or may add a reference to the documents or other evidence the party will submit.

(b) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, either party may amend or supplement a claim or defense during the course of the arbitral proceedings, unless the arbitral tribunal considers it inappropriate to allow such amendment having regard to the delay in making it.

(c) If there are more than two parties to the arbitration, each party shall state its claims, setoffs, and defenses as provided in subsection (a) of this section.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.54. Hearings and written proceedings.

(a) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal shall decide whether to hold oral hearings for the presentation of evidence or for oral argument, or whether the proceedings shall be conducted on the basis of documents and other materials. Unless the parties have agreed that no hearings shall be held, the arbitral tribunal shall hold such hearings at an appropriate stage of the proceedings, if so requested by a party.

(b) The parties shall be given sufficient advance notice of any hearing and of any meeting of the arbitral tribunal for the purposes of inspection of goods, other property, or documents.

(c) All statements, documents, or other information supplied to the arbitral tribunal by one party shall be served on the other party and any expert report or evidentiary document on which the arbitral tribunal may rely in making its decision shall be served on the parties. The arbitral tribunal shall direct the timing of such service to protect the parties from undue surprise.

(d) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, all oral hearings and meetings in arbitral proceedings shall be held in camera. Confidential information disclosed during the proceedings by the parties or by witnesses shall not be divulged by the arbitrator or arbitrators. Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, or required by applicable law, the arbitral tribunal and the parties shall keep confidential all matters relating to the arbitration and the award.

(e) The parties may agree on:

(1) The attendance of a court reporter,

(2) The creation of a transcript of proceedings, or

(3) The making of an audio or video record of proceedings, at the expense of the parties.

Any party may provide for any of the actions specified in subdivisions (1) through (3) of this subsection at that party's own expense.

(f) After asking the parties if they have any further testimony or evidentiary submissions and upon receiving negative replies or being satisfied that the record is complete, the arbitral tribunal may declare the hearings closed. The arbitral tribunal may reopen the hearings, upon terms it considers just, at any time before the award is made.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.55. Default of a party.

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, where, without showing sufficient cause:

(1) The claimant fails to submit a statement of claim in accordance with G.S. 1-567.53(a), the arbitral tribunal shall terminate the proceedings;

(2) The respondent fails to submit a statement of defense in accordance with G.S. 1-567.53(c), the arbitral tribunal shall continue to conduct the proceedings without treating such failure in itself as an admission of the claimant's allegations;

(3) Any party fails to appear at a hearing or to produce documentary evidence as directed by the arbitral tribunal, the arbitral tribunal may continue to conduct the proceedings and make the award on the evidence before it.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.56. Expert appointed by arbitral tribunal.

(a) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal:

(1) May appoint one or more experts to report to it on specific issues to be determined by the arbitral tribunal;

(2) May require a party to give the expert any relevant information or to produce, or to provide access to, any relevant documents, goods, or other property for the expert's inspection.

(b) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, if a party so requests or if the arbitral tribunal considers it necessary, the expert shall, after delivery of his written or oral report, participate in an oral hearing where the parties have the opportunity to question the expert and to present expert witnesses on the points at issue.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.57. Court assistance in obtaining discovery and taking evidence.

(a) The arbitral tribunal or a party with the approval of the arbitral tribunal may request from the superior court assistance in obtaining discovery and taking evidence. The court may execute the request within its competence and according to its rules on discovery and taking evidence, and may impose sanctions for failure to comply with its orders. A subpoena may be issued as provided by G.S. 8-59, in which case the witness compensation provisions of G.S. 6-51, 6-53, and 7A-314 shall apply.

(b) If the parties to two or more arbitration agreements agree, in their respective arbitration agreements or otherwise, to consolidate the arbitrations arising out of those agreements, the superior court, on application by one party with the consent of all the other parties to those arbitration agreements, may:

(1) Order the arbitrations to be consolidated on terms the court considers just and necessary;

(2) If all the parties cannot agree on an arbitral tribunal for the consolidated arbitration, appoint an arbitral tribunal as provided by G.S. 1-567.41; and

(3) If all the parties cannot agree on any other matter necessary to conduct the consolidated arbitration, make any other order it considers necessary.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.58. Rules applicable to substance of dispute.

(a) The arbitral tribunal shall decide the dispute in accordance with such rules of law as are chosen by the parties as applicable to the substance of the dispute. Any designation of the law or legal system of a given country or political subdivision thereof shall be construed, unless otherwise expressed, as directly referring to the substantive law of that country or political subdivision and not to its conflict of laws rules.

(b) Failing any designation by the parties, the arbitral tribunal shall apply the law determined by the conflict of laws rules which it considers applicable.

(c) The arbitral tribunal shall decide ex aequo et bono (on the basis of fundamental fairness), or as amiable compositeur (as an "amicable compounder"), only if the parties have expressly authorized it to do so.

(d) In all cases, the arbitral tribunal shall decide in accordance with the terms of the contract and shall take into account the usages of the trade applicable to the transaction.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1; c. 761, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.59. Decision making by panel of arbitrators.

Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, in arbitral proceedings with more than one arbitrator, any decision of the arbitral tribunal shall be made by a majority of all its members. However, questions of procedure may be decided by a presiding arbitrator, is authorized by the parties or all members of the arbitral tribunal.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.60. Settlement.

(a) An arbitral tribunal may encourage settlement of the dispute and, with the agreement of the parties, may use mediation, conciliation, or other procedures at any time during the arbitral proceedings to encourage settlement.

(b) If, during arbitral proceedings, the parties settle the dispute, the arbitral tribunal shall terminate the proceedings and, if requested by the parties and not objected to by the arbitral tribunal, record the settlement in the form of an arbitral award on agreed terms.

(c) An award on agreed terms shall be made in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 1-567.61 and shall state that it is an arbitral award. Such an award shall have the same status and effect as any other award on the substance of the dispute.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.61. Form and contents of award.

(a) The award shall be made in writing and shall be signed by the arbitrator or arbitrators. In arbitral proceedings with more than one arbitrator, the signatures of the majority of all members of the arbitral tribunal shall suffice, provided that the reason for any omitted signature is stated.

(b) The award shall not state the reasons upon which it is based, unless the parties have agreed that reasons are to be given.

(c) The award shall state its date and the place of arbitration as determined in accordance with G.S. 1-567.50. The award shall be considered to have been made at that place.

(d) After the award is made, a copy signed by the arbitrator or arbitrators in accordance with subsection (a) of this section shall be delivered to each party.

(e) The award may be denominated in foreign currency, by agreement of the parties or in the discretion of the arbitral tribunal if the parties are unable to agree.

(f) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the arbitral tribunal may award interest.

(g) The arbitral tribunal may award specific performance in its discretion to a party requesting an award of specific performance.

(h) (1) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, the awarding of costs of an arbitration shall be at the discretion of the arbitral tribunal.

(2) In making an order for costs, the arbitral tribunal may include as costs:

a. The fees and expenses of the arbitrator or arbitrators, expert witnesses, and translators;

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

b. Fees and expenses of counsel and of the institution supervising the arbitration, if any; and

c. Any other expenses incurred in connection with the arbitral proceedings.

(3) In making an order for costs, the arbitral tribunal may specify:

a. The party entitled to costs;

b. The party who shall pay the costs;

c. The amount of costs or method of determining that amount; and

d. The manner in which the costs shall be paid.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.62. Termination of proceedings.

(a) The arbitral proceedings are terminated by the final award or by an order of the arbitral tribunal in accordance with subsection (b) of this section.

(b) The arbitral tribunal shall issue an order for the termination of the arbitral proceedings if:

(1) The claimant withdraws the claim, unless the respondent objects to the order and the arbitral tribunal recognizes a legitimate interest on the respondent's part in obtaining a final settlement of the dispute;

(2) The parties agree on the termination of the proceedings; or

(3) The arbitral tribunal finds that the continuation of the proceedings has for any other reason become unnecessary or impossible.

(c) Subject to the provisions of G.S. 1-567.63, the mandate of the arbitral tribunal terminates with the termination of the arbitral proceedings.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.63. Correction and interpretation of awards; additional awards.

(a) Within 30 days of receipt of the award, unless another period of time has been agreed upon by the parties:

(1) A party may request the arbitral tribunal to correct in the award any computation, clerical or typographical errors or other errors of a similar nature;

(2) A party may request the arbitral tribunal to give an interpretation of a specific point or part of the award.

If the arbitral tribunal considers such request to be justified, it shall make the correction or give the interpretation within 30 days of receipt of the request. Such correction or interpretation shall become part of the award.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(b) The arbitral tribunal may correct any error of the type referred to in subsection (a) of its own initiative within 30 days of the date of the award.

(c) Unless otherwise agreed by the parties, within 30 days of receipt of the award, a party may request the arbitral tribunal to make an additional award as to claims presented in the arbitral proceedings but omitted from the award. If the arbitral tribunal considers the request to be justified, it shall make the additional award within 60 days after the date of receipt of the request.

(d) The arbitral tribunal may extend, if necessary, the period within which it shall make a correction interpretation, or an additional award under subsection (a) or (c).

(e) The provisions of G.S. 1-567.61 shall apply to a correction or interpretation of the award or to an additional award made under this section.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.64. Modifying or vacating of awards.

Subject to the relevant provisions of federal law or any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, an arbitral award may be vacated by a court only upon a showing that the award is tainted by illegality, or substantial unfairness in the conduct of the arbitral proceedings. In determining whether an award is so tainted, the superior court shall have regard to the provisions of this Article, and of G.S. 1-567.13 and G.S. 1-567.14, but shall not engage in de novo review of the subject matter of the dispute giving rise to the arbitration proceedings.

§ 1-567.65. Confirmation and enforcement of awards.

Subject to the relevant provisions of federal law or any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, upon application of a party, the superior court shall confirm an arbitral award, unless it finds grounds for modifying or vacating the award under G.S. 1-567.64. An award shall not be confirmed unless the time for correction and interpretation of awards prescribed by G.S. 1-567.63 shall have expired or been waived by all the parties. Upon the granting of an order confirming, modifying, or correcting an award, judgment or decree shall be entered in conformity therewith and enforced as any other judgment or decree. The superior court may award costs of the application and of the subsequent proceedings.

§ 1-567.66. Applications to superior court.

Except as otherwise provided, an application to the superior court under this Article shall be by motion and shall be heard in the manner and upon the notice provided by law or rule of court for the making and hearing of motions. Unless the parties have agreed otherwise, notice of an initial application for an order shall be served in the manner provided by law for the service of a summons in an action.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.67. Appeals.

(a) An appeal may be taken from:

(1) An order denying an application to compel arbitration made under G.S. 1-567.38;

(2) An order granting an application to stay arbitration made under G.S. 1-567.38;

(3) An order confirming or denying confirmation of an award;

(4) An order modifying or correcting an award;

(5) An order vacating an award without directing a rehearing; or

(6) A judgment or decree entered pursuant to the provisions of this Article.

(b) The appeal shall be taken in the manner and to the same extent as from orders or judgments in a civil action.

(1991, c. 292, s. 1.)

§ 1-567.68. Severability.

In the event any provision of this act is held to be invalid, the court's holding as to that provision shall not affect the validity or operation of other provisions of the act; and to that end the provisions of the act are severable.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO EXTEND THE INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL ARBITRATION ACT TO PROVIDE FOR CONCILIATION OF DISPUTES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. The title of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes reads as rewritten:

"International Commercial ~~Arbitration.~~ Arbitration and Conciliation."

Section 2. G.S. 1-567.30 through G.S. 1-567.33 are codified as Part 1 of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes to be entitled "General Provisions."

Section 3. G.S. 1-567.68 is recodified as G.S. 1-567.33A, to be included in Part 1 of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, as codified in Section 2 of this act.

Section 4. G.S. 1-567.34 through G.S. 1-567.67 are codified as Part 2 of Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, to be entitled "International Commercial Arbitration."

Section 5. G.S. 1-567.30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-567.30. Preamble and short title.

It is the policy of the State of North Carolina to promote and facilitate international trade and commerce, and to provide a forum for the resolution of disputes that may arise from participation therein. Pursuant to this policy, the purpose of this Article is to encourage the use of arbitration or conciliation as a means of resolving such disputes, to provide rules for the conduct of arbitration or conciliation proceedings, and to assure access to the courts of this State for legal proceedings ancillary to such ~~arbitration.~~ arbitration or conciliation. This Article shall be known as the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration and Conciliation Act".

Section 6. G.S. 1-567.31 reads as rewritten:

"§ 1-567.31. Scope of application.

(a) This Article applies to international commercial ~~arbitration,~~ arbitration and conciliation, subject to any applicable international agreement in force between the United States of America and any other nation or nations, or any federal statute.

(b) The provisions of this ~~Article~~ Article, except G.S. 1-567.38 and G.S. 1-567.39, apply only if the place of arbitration is in this State.

(c) An arbitration or conciliation is international if:

(1) The parties to the arbitration or conciliation agreement have their places of business in different nations when the agreement is concluded; or

(2) One or more of the following places is situated outside the nations in which the parties have their places of business:

a. The place of arbitration or conciliation if determined pursuant to the arbitration agreement;

b. Any place where a substantial part of the obligations of the commercial relationship is to be performed; or

c. The place with which the subject matter of the dispute is most closely connected; or

(3) The parties have expressly agreed that the subject matter of the arbitration or conciliation agreement relates to more than one nation.

(d) For the purposes of subsection (c) of this section:

(1) If a party has more than one place of business, the place of business is that which has the closest relationship to the arbitration or conciliation agreement;

(2) If a party does not have a place of business, reference is to be made to the party's domicile.

(e) An arbitration or conciliation, respectively, is deemed commercial for the purposes of this Article if it arises out of a relationship of a commercial nature, including, but not limited to the following:

(1) A transaction for the exchange of goods and services;

(2) A distribution agreement;

(3) A commercial representation or agency;

(4) An exploitation agreement or concession;

(5) A joint venture or other related form of industrial or business cooperation;

(6) The carriage of goods or passengers by air, sea, land, or road;

(7) A contract or agreement relating to construction, insurance, licensing, factoring, leasing, consulting, engineering, financing, or banking;
(8) The transfer of data or technology;
(9) The use or transfer of intellectual or industrial property, including trade secrets, trademarks, trade names, patents, copyrights, and software programs;
(10) A contract for the provision of any type of professional service, whether provided by an employee or an independent contractor.

(f) This Article shall not affect any other law in force by virtue of which certain disputes may not be submitted to ~~arbitration~~ arbitration, conciliation, or mediation, or may be submitted to ~~arbitration~~ arbitration, conciliation, or mediation only according to provisions other than those of this Article.

(g) This Article shall not apply to any agreement providing explicitly that it shall not be subject to the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration and Conciliation Act. This Article shall not apply to any agreement executed prior to June 13, 1991."

Section 7. Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Part to read:

"Part 3. International Commercial Conciliation.

"§ 1-567.68. Appointment of conciliators.

(a) The parties may select or permit an arbitral tribunal or other third party to select one or more persons to serve as the conciliators.

(b) The conciliator shall assist the parties in an independent and impartial manner in the parties' attempt to reach an amicable settlement of their dispute. The conciliator shall be guided by principles of objectivity, fairness, and justice and shall give consideration to, among other things, the rights and obligations of the parties, the usages of the trade concerned, and the circumstances surrounding the dispute, including any previous practices between the parties.

(c) The conciliator may conduct the conciliation proceedings in a manner that the conciliator considers appropriate, considering the circumstances of the case, the wishes of the parties, and the desirability of a prompt settlement of the dispute. Except as otherwise provided by this Article, other provisions of the law of this State governing procedural matters do not apply to conciliation proceedings brought under this Part.

"§ 1-567.69. Representation.

The parties may appear in person or be represented or assisted by any person of their choice.

"§ 1-567.70. Report of conciliators.

(a) At any time during the proceedings, a conciliator may prepare a draft conciliation agreement and send copies to the parties, specifying the time within which the parties must signify their approval. The draft conciliation agreement may include the assessment and apportionment of costs between the parties.

(b) A party is not required to accept a settlement proposed by the conciliator.

"§ 1-567.71. Confidentiality.

(a) Evidence of anything said or of an admission made in the course of a conciliation is not admissible, and disclosure of that evidence shall not be compelled in any arbitration or civil action in which, under law, testimony may be compelled to be given. This subsection does not limit the admissibility of evidence when all parties participating in conciliation consent to its disclosure.

(b) If evidence is offered in violation of this section, the arbitral tribunal or the court shall make any order it considers appropriate to deal with the matter, including an order restricting the introduction of evidence or dismissing the case.

(c) Unless the document otherwise provides, a document prepared for the purpose of, in the course of, or pursuant to the conciliation, or a copy of such document, is not admissible in evidence, and disclosure of the document shall not be compelled in any arbitration or civil action in which, under law, testimony may be compelled.

"§ 1-567.72. Stay of arbitration; resort to other proceedings.

(a) The agreement of the parties to submit a dispute to conciliation is considered an agreement between or among those parties to stay all judicial or arbitral proceedings from the beginning of conciliation until the termination of conciliation proceedings.

(b) All applicable limitation periods, including periods of prescription, are tolled or extended on the beginning of conciliation proceedings under this Part as to all parties to the conciliation proceedings until the tenth day following the date of termination of the proceedings. For purposes of this section, conciliation proceedings are considered to have begun when the parties have all agreed to participate in the conciliation proceedings.

"§ 1-567.73. Termination of conciliation.

(a) A conciliation proceeding may be terminated as to all parties by any one of the following means:

(1) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the conciliators that further efforts at conciliation are no longer justified.

(2) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the parties addressed to the conciliators that the conciliation proceedings are terminated.

(3) On the date of the agreement, a conciliation agreement signed by all of the parties.

(4) On the date of the order, order of the court when the matter submitted to conciliation is in litigation in the courts of this State.

(b) A conciliation proceeding may be terminated as to particular parties by any one of the following means:

(1) On the date of the declaration, a written declaration of the particular party to the other parties and the conciliators that the conciliation proceedings are to be terminated as to that party.

(2) On the date of the agreement, a conciliation agreement signed by some of the parties.

(3) On the date of the order, order of the court when the matter submitted to conciliation is in litigation in the courts of this State.

"§ 1-567.74. Enforceability of decree.

If the conciliation proceeding settles the dispute and the result of the conciliation is in writing and signed by the conciliators and the parties or their representatives, the written agreement shall be treated as an arbitral award rendered by an arbitral tribunal under this Article and has the same force and effect as a final award in arbitration.

"§ 1-567.75. Costs.

(a) On termination of the conciliation proceeding, the conciliators shall set the costs of the conciliation and give written notice of the costs to the parties. For purposes of this section, 'costs' includes all of the following:

(1) A reasonable fee to be paid to the conciliators.

(2) Travel and other reasonable expenses of the conciliators.

(3) Travel and other reasonable expenses of witnesses requested by the conciliators, with the consent of the parties.

(4) The cost of any expert advice requested by the conciliators, with the consent of the parties.

(5) The cost of any court.

(b) Costs shall be borne equally by the parties unless a conciliation agreement provides for a different apportionment. All other expenses incurred by a party shall be borne by that party.

"§ 1-567.76. Effect on jurisdiction.

Requesting conciliation, consenting to participate in the conciliation proceedings, participating in conciliation proceedings, or entering into a conciliation agreement does not constitute consenting to the jurisdiction of any court in this State if conciliation fails.

"§ 1-567.77. Immunity of conciliators and parties.

(a) A conciliator, party, or representative of a conciliator or party, while present in this State for the purpose of arranging for or participating in conciliation under this Part, is not subject to service of process on any civil matter related to the conciliation.

(b) A person who serves as a conciliator shall have the same immunity as judges from civil liability for their official conduct in any proceeding subject to this Part. This qualified immunity does not apply to acts or omissions which occur with respect to the operation of a motor vehicle."

Section 8. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to any international commercial disputes that are subject on or after that date to conciliation pursuant to Article 45B of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, as amended by this act.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND, FOR SERVICE IN A CIVIL ACTION UPON A DEFENDANT LOCATED OUTSIDE THE UNITED STATES, THE TIME LIMITS REGARDING THE SECURING OF AN ENDORSEMENT UPON THE ORIGINAL SUMMONS OR THE SUING OUT OF AN ALIAS OR PLURIES SUMMONS WHEN THE DEFENDANT IS NOT SERVED WITHIN THE TIME ALLOWED FOR SERVICE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) Summons -- Extension; endorsement, alias and pluries. -- When any defendant in a civil action is not served within the time allowed for service, the action may be continued in existence as to such defendant by either of the following methods of extension:

(1) The plaintiff may secure an endorsement upon the original summons for an extension of time within which to complete service of process. Return of the summons so endorsed shall be in the same manner as the original process. Such endorsement may be secured within 90 days after the issuance of summons or the date of the last prior endorsement, or

(2) The plaintiff may sue out an alias or pluries summons returnable in the same manner as the original process. Such alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within 90 days after the date of issue of the last preceding summons in the chain of summonses or within 90 days of the last prior endorsement.

Provided, in tax and assessment foreclosures under G.S. 47-108.25 and G.S. 105-374, the first endorsement may be made at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and subsequent endorsements may thereafter be made as in other actions; or an alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and after the issuance of such alias or pluries summons, the chain of summonses may be kept up as in any other action.

Provided, for service upon a defendant in a place not within the United States, the first endorsement may be made at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and subsequent endorsements may thereafter be made at least once every two years; or an alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and after the issuance of such alias or pluries summons, the chain of summonses may be kept up as in any other action if sued out within two years of the last preceding summons in the chain of summonses or within two years of the last prior endorsement.

Provided, further, the methods of extension may be used interchangeably in any case and regardless of the form of the preceding extension."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to actions commenced on or after that date.

RE: Senate Bill 372 - Time Limits For Foreign Service (Second Edition)- Senator Odom

Senate Bill 372 amends the time that a civil summons, or an alias and pluries summons, can remain valid when the defendant is located outside of the United States. This bill is a recommendation of the North Carolina Bar Association.

This bill amends the Rules of Civil Procedures, G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4(d), which governs the extension of time to serve summons and alias and pluries summons in civil cases. Under current law, to extend the time within which a summons may be served, a plaintiff must secure an endorsement on the original summons, or sue out an alias and pluries summons, within 90 days of the last summons or endorsement.

Under this bill, for service upon a defendant not within the United States, an endorsement may be made or an alias and pluries summons may be sued out at any time within two years of the original summons and every two years thereafter. The summons may then be kept up if within two years of the last preceding summons or endorsement, another summons is sued out.

This bill would become effective when it becomes law and would apply to actions begun on or after that date.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Rule 4. Process.

(a) Summons - Issuance; who may serve. - Upon the filing of the complaint, summons shall be issued forthwith, and in any event within five days. The complaint and summons shall be delivered to some proper person for service. In this State, such proper person shall be the sheriff of the county where service is to be made or some other person duly authorized by law to serve summons. Outside this State, such proper person shall be anyone who is not a party and is not less than 21 years of age or anyone duly authorized to serve summons by the law of the place where service is to be made. Upon request of the plaintiff separate or additional summons shall be issued against any defendants. A summons is issued when, after being filled out and dated, it is signed by the officer having authority to do so. The date the summons bears shall be prima facie evidence of the date of issue.

(b) Summons - Contents. - The summons shall run in the name of the State and be dated and signed by the clerk, assistant clerk, or deputy clerk of the court in the county in which the action is commenced. It shall contain the title of the cause and the name of the court and county wherein the action has been commenced. It shall be directed to the defendant or defendants and shall notify each defendant to appear and answer within 30 days after its service upon him and further that if he fails so to appear, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief demanded in the complaint. It shall set forth the name and address of plaintiff 's attorney, or if there be none, the name and address of plaintiff. If a request for admission is served with the summons, the summons shall so state.

(c) Summons - Return. - Personal service or substituted personal service of summons as prescribed by Rule 4(j)(1) a and b must be made within 30 days after the date of the issuance of summons, except that in tax and assessment foreclosures under G.S. 47-108.25 or G.S. 105-374 the time allowed for service is 60 days. When a summons has been served upon every party named in the summons, it shall be returned immediately to the clerk who issued it, with notation thereon of its service.

Failure to make service within the time allowed or failure to return a summons to the clerk after it has been served on every party named in the summons shall not invalidate the summons. If the summons is not served within the time allowed upon every party named in the summons, it shall be returned immediately upon the expiration of such time by the officer to the clerk of the court who issued it with notation thereon of its nonservice and the reasons therefor as to every such party not served, but failure to comply with this requirement shall not invalidate the summons.

(d) Summons - Extension; endorsement, alias and pluries. - When any defendant in a civil action is not served within the time allowed for service, the action may be continued in existence as to such defendant by either of the following methods of extension:

(1) The plaintiff may secure an endorsement upon the original summons for an extension of time within which to complete service of process. Return of the summons so endorsed shall be in the same manner as the original process. Such endorsement may be secured within 90 days after the issuance of summons or the date of the last prior endorsement, or

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

(2) The plaintiff may sue out an alias or pluries summons returnable in the same manner as the original process. Such alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within 90 days after the date of issue of the last preceding summons in the chain of summonses or within 90 days of the last prior endorsement.

Provided, in tax and assessment foreclosures under G.S. 47-108.25 and G.S. 105-374, the first endorsement may be made at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and subsequent endorsements may thereafter be made as in other actions; or an alias or pluries summons may be sued out at any time within two years after the issuance of the original summons, and after the issuance of such alias or pluries summons, the chain of summonses may be kept up as in any other action.

Provided, further, the methods of extension may be used interchangeably in any case and regardless of the form of the preceding extension.

(e) Summons - Discontinuance. - When there is neither endorsement by the clerk nor issuance of alias or pluries summons within the time specified in Rule 4(d), the action is discontinued as to any defendant not theretofore served with summons within the time allowed. Thereafter, alias or pluries summons may issue, or an extension be endorsed by the clerk, but, as to such defendant, the action shall be deemed to have commenced on the date of such issuance or endorsement.

(f) Summons - Date of multiple summonses. - If the plaintiff shall cause separate or additional summonses to be issued as provided in Rule 4(a), the date of issuance of such separate or additional summonses shall be considered the same as that of the original summons for purposes of endorsement or alias summons under Rule 4(d).

(g) Summons - Docketing by clerk. - The clerk shall keep a record in which he shall note the day and hour of issuance of every summons, whether original, alias, pluries, or endorsement thereon. When the summons is returned, the clerk shall note on the record the date of the return and the fact as to service or non-service.

(h) Summons - When proper officer not available. - If at any time there is not in a county a proper officer, capable of executing process, to whom summons or other process can be delivered for service, or if a proper officer refuses or neglects to execute such process, or if such officer is a party to or otherwise interested in the action or proceeding, the clerk of the issuing court, upon the facts being verified before him by written affidavit of the plaintiff or his agent or attorney, shall appoint some suitable person who, after he accepts such process for service, shall execute such process in the same manner, with like effect, and subject to the same liabilities, as if such person were a proper officer regularly serving process in that county.

(h1) Summons - When process returned unexecuted. - If a proper officer returns a summons or other process unexecuted, the plaintiff or his agent or attorney may cause service to be made by anyone who is not less than 21 years of age, who is not a party to the action, and who is not related by blood or marriage to a party to the action or to a person upon whom service is to be made. This subsection shall not apply to executions pursuant to Article 28 of Chapter 1 or summary ejectment pursuant to Article 3 of Chapter 42 of the General Statutes.

(i) Summons - Amendment. - At any time, before or after judgment, in its discretion and upon such terms as it deems just, the court may allow any process or proof of service thereof to be amended, unless it clearly appears that material prejudice would result to substantial rights of the party against whom the process issued.

(j) Process - Manner of service to exercise personal jurisdiction. - In any action commenced in a court of this State having jurisdiction of the subject matter and grounds for personal jurisdiction as provided in G.S. 1-75.4, the manner of service of process within or without the State shall be as follows:

(1) Natural Person. - Except as provided in subsection (2) below, upon a natural person:

a. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to him or by leaving copies thereof at the defendant's dwelling house or usual place of abode with some person of suitable age and discretion then residing therein; or

b. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service of process or by serving process upon such agent or the party in a manner specified by any statute.

c. By mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the party to be served, and delivering to the addressee.

(2) Natural Person under Disability. - Upon a natural person under disability by serving process in any manner prescribed in this section (j) for service upon a natural person and, in addition, where required by paragraph a or b below, upon a person therein designated.

a. Where the person under disability is a minor, process shall be served separately in any manner prescribed for service upon a natural person upon a parent or guardian having custody of the child, or if there be none, upon any other person having the care and control of the child. If there is no parent, guardian, or other person having care and control of the child when service is made upon the child, then service of process must also be made upon a guardian ad litem who has been appointed pursuant to Rule 17.

b. If the plaintiff actually knows that a person under disability is under guardianship of any kind, process shall be served separately upon his guardian in any manner applicable and appropriate under this section (j). If the plaintiff does not actually know that a guardian has been appointed when service is made upon a person known to him to be incompetent to have charge of his affairs, then service of process must be made upon a guardian ad litem who has been appointed pursuant to Rule 17.

(3) The State. - Upon the State by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the Attorney General or to a deputy or assistant attorney general or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the Attorney General or to a deputy or assistant attorney general.

(4) An Agency of the State. -

a. Upon an agency of the State by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the process agent appointed by the agency in the manner hereinafter provided or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to said process agent.

b. Every agency of the State shall appoint a process agent by filing with the Attorney General the name and address of an agent upon whom process may be served.

c. If any agency of the State fails to comply with paragraph b above, then service upon such agency may be made by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the Attorney General or to a deputy or assistant attorney general or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the Attorney General, or to a deputy or assistant attorney general.

d. For purposes of this rule, the term "agency of the State" includes every agency, institution, board, commission, bureau, department, division, council, member of Council of State, or officer of the State government of the State of North Carolina, but does not include counties, cities, towns, villages, other municipal corporations or political subdivisions of the State, county or city boards of education, other local public districts, units, or bodies of any kind, or private corporations created by act of the General Assembly.

(5) Counties, Cities, Towns, Villages and Other Local Public Bodies. -

a. Upon a city, town, or village by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to its mayor, city manager or clerk or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to its mayor, city manager or clerk.

b. Upon a county by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to its county manager or to the chairman, clerk or any member of the board of commissioners for such county or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to its county manager or to the chairman, clerk, or any member of this board of commissioners for such county.

c. Upon any other political subdivision of the State, any county or city board of education, or other local public district, unit, or body of any kind (i) by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an officer or director thereof, or (ii) by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an agent or attorney-in-fact authorized by appointment or by statute to be served or to accept service in its behalf, or (iii) by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the officer, director, agent, or attorney-in-fact as specified in (i) and (ii).

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

d. In any case where none of the officials, officers or directors specified in paragraphs a, b and c can, after due diligence, be found in the State, and that fact appears by affidavit to the satisfaction of the court, or a judge thereof, such court or judge may grant an order that service upon the party sought to be served may be made by personally delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to the Attorney General or any deputy or assistant attorney general of the State of North Carolina, or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the Attorney General or any deputy or assistant attorney general of the State of North Carolina.

(6) Domestic or Foreign Corporation. - Upon a domestic or foreign corporation:

a. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an officer, director, or managing agent of the corporation or by leaving copies thereof in the office of such officer, director, or managing agent with the person who is apparently in charge of the office; or

b. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service or [of] process or by serving process upon such agent or the party in a manner specified by any statute.

c. By mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the officer, director or agent to be served as specified in paragraphs a and b.

(7) Partnerships. - Upon a general or limited partnership:

a. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to any general partner, or to any attorney-in-fact or agent authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service of process in its behalf, or by mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to any general partner, or to any attorney-in-fact or agent authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service of process in its behalf, or by leaving copies thereof in the office of such general partner, attorney-in-fact or agent with the person who is apparently in charge of the office.

b. If relief is sought against a partner specifically, a copy of the summons and of the complaint must be served on such partner as provided in this section (j).

(8) Other Unincorporated Associations and Their Officers. - Upon any unincorporated association, organization, or society other than a partnership:

a. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an officer, director, managing agent or member of the governing body of the unincorporated association, organization or society, or by leaving copies thereof in the office of such officer, director, managing agent or member of the governing body with the person who is apparently in charge of the office; or

b. By delivering a copy of the summons and of the complaint to an agent authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service of process or by serving process upon such agent or the party in a manner specified by any statute.

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

c. By mailing a copy of the summons and of the complaint, registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, addressed to the officer, director, agent or member of the governing body to be served as specified in paragraphs a and b.

(9) Service upon a foreign state or a political subdivision, agency, or instrumentality thereof shall be effected pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1608.

(j1) Service by publication on party that cannot otherwise be served. - A party that cannot with due diligence be served by personal delivery or registered or certified mail may be served by publication. Except in actions involving jurisdiction in rem or quasi in rem as provided in section (k), service of process by publication shall consist of publishing a notice of service of process by publication once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper that is qualified for legal advertising in accordance with G.S. 1-597 and G.S. 1-598 and circulated in the area where the party to be served is believed by the serving party to be located, or if there is no reliable information concerning the location of the party then in a newspaper circulated in the county where the action is pending. If the party's post-office address is known or can with reasonable diligence be ascertained, there shall be mailed to the party at or immediately prior to the first publication a copy of the notice of service of process by publication. The mailing may be omitted if the post-office address cannot be ascertained with reasonable diligence. Upon completion of such service there shall be filed with the court an affidavit showing the publication and mailing in accordance with the requirements of G.S. 1-75.10(2), the circumstances warranting the use of service by publication, and information, if any, regarding the location of the party served.

The notice of service of process by publication shall (i) designate the court in which the action has been commenced and the title of the action, which title may be indicated sufficiently by the name of the first plaintiff and the first defendant; (ii) be directed to the defendant sought to be served; (iii) state either that a pleading seeking relief against the person to be served has been filed or has been required to be filed therein not later than a date specified in the notice; (iv) state the nature of the relief being sought; (v) require the defendant being so served to make defense to such pleading within 40 days after a date stated in the notice, exclusive of such date, which date so stated shall be the date of the first publication of notice, or the date when the complaint is required to be filed, whichever is later, and notify the defendant that upon his failure to do so the party seeking service of process by publication will apply to the court for the relief sought; (vi) in cases of attachment, state the information required by G.S. 1-440.14; (vii) be subscribed by the party seeking service or his attorney and give the post-office address of such party or his attorney; and (viii) be substantially in the following form:

(j2) Proof of service. - Proof of service of process shall be as follows:

(1) Personal Service. - Before judgment by default may be had on personal service, proof of service must be provided in accordance with the requirements of G.S. 1-75.10(1).

(2) Registered or Certified Mail. - Before judgment by default may be had on service by registered or certified mail, the serving party shall file an affidavit with the court showing proof of such service in accordance with the requirements of G.S. 1-75.10(4). This affidavit together with the return receipt signed by the person who received the mail if not the addressee raises a presumption that the person who received the mail and signed the receipt was an agent of the addressee authorized by appointment or by law to be served or to accept service of process or was a person of suitable age and discretion residing in the addressee's dwelling house or usual place of abode. In the event the presumption described in the preceding sentence is rebutted by proof that the person who received the receipt at the addressee's dwelling house or usual place of abode was not a person of suitable age and discretion residing therein, the statute of limitation may not be pleaded as a defense if the action was initially commenced within the period of limitation and service of process is completed within 60 days from the date the service is declared invalid. Service shall be complete on the day the summons and complaint are delivered to the address.

(3) Publication. - Before judgment by default may be had on service by publication, the serving party shall file an affidavit with the court showing the circumstances warranting the use of service by publication, information, if any, regarding the location of the party served which was used in determining the area in which service by publication was printed and proof of service in accordance with G.S. 1-75.10(2).

(j3) Service in a foreign country. - Unless otherwise provided by federal law, service upon a defendant, other than an infant or an incompetent person, may be effected in a place not within the United States:

(1) By any internationally agreed means reasonably calculated to give notice, such as those means authorized by the Hague Convention on the Service Abroad of Judicial and Extrajudicial Documents; or

(2) If there is no internationally agreed means of service or the applicable international agreement allows other means of service, provided that service is reasonably calculated to give notice:

a. In the manner prescribed by the law of the foreign country for service in that country in an action in any of its courts of general jurisdiction;

b. As directed by the foreign authority in response to a letter rogatory or letter of request; or

c. Unless prohibited by the law of the foreign country, by

1. Delivery to the individual personally of a copy of the summons and the complaint and,

(c) 1944-1997 by Michie, a division of Reed Elsevier Inc., and Reed Elsevier Properties Inc. All Rights Reserved.

upon a corporation, partnership, association or other such entity, by delivery to an officer or a managing or general agent;

2. Any form of mail requiring a signed receipt, to be addressed and dispatched by the clerk of the court to the party to be served; or

(3) By other means not prohibited by international agreement as may be directed by the court.

Service under subdivision (2)c.1. or (3) of this subsection may be made by any person authorized by subsection (a) of this Rule or who is designated by order of the court or by the foreign court.

On request, the clerk shall deliver the summons to the plaintiff for transmission to the person or the foreign court or officer who will make the service. Proof of service may be made as prescribed in G.S. 1-75.10, by the order of the court, or by the law of the foreign country.

Proof of service by mail shall include an affidavit or certificate of addressing and mailing by the clerk of court.

(j4) Process or judgment by default not to be attacked on certain grounds. - No party may attack service of process or a judgment of default on the basis that service should or could have been effected by personal service rather than service by registered or certified mail. No party that receives timely actual notice may attack a judgment by default on the basis that the statutory requirement of due diligence as a condition precedent to service by publication was not met.

(j5) Personal jurisdiction by acceptance of service. - Any party personally, or through the persons provided in Rule 4(j), may accept service of process by notation of acceptance of service together with the signature of the party accepting service and the date thereof on an original or copy of a summons, and such acceptance shall have the same force and effect as would exist had the process been served by delivery of copy and summons and complaint to the person signing said acceptance.

(k) Process - Manner of service to exercise jurisdiction in rem or quasi in rem. - In any action commenced in a court of this State having jurisdiction of the subject matter and grounds for the exercise of jurisdiction in rem or quasi in rem as provided in G.S. 1-75.8, the manner of service of process shall be as follows:

(1) Defendant Known. - If the defendant is known, he may be served in the appropriate manner prescribed for service of process in section (j), or, if otherwise appropriate section (j1); except that the requirement for service by publication in (j1) shall be satisfied if made in the county where the action is pending and proof of service is made in accordance with section (j2).

(2) Defendant Unknown. - If the defendant is unknown, he may be designated by description and process may be served by publication in the manner provided in section (j1), except that the requirement for service by publication in (j1) shall be satisfied if made in the county where the action is pending and proof of service is made in accordance with section (j2).

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROVIDE THAT A PERSON WHO IGNORES A WARNING REGARDING PERSONAL SAFETY IN A DISASTER SITUATION AND PLACES HIMSELF OR HERSELF OR ANOTHER IN DANGER AND REQUIRES AN EMERGENCY RESCUE IS CIVILLY LIABLE FOR THE COSTS OF THE RESCUE EFFORT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Article 36A of Chapter 14 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 14-288.21. Willfully ignore warning in a disaster.

(a) In a disaster as defined by G.S. 166A-4, a person shall comply with warnings regarding personal safety issued by a federal, State, or local law enforcement agency, emergency management agency, or other governmental agency responsible for emergency management under G.S. 166A-5, 166A-7, or 166A-8. A person who willfully ignores such warning is civilly liable for the cost of a rescue effort to any governmental agency or nonprofit agency cooperating with a governmental agency conducting a rescue on the endangered person's behalf if:

(1) The person ignores the warning, and: (i) engages in an activity or course of action that a reasonable person would not pursue, or (ii) fails to take a course of action that a reasonable person would pursue;

(2) As a result of ignoring the warning the person places himself or herself or another in danger; and

(3) A governmental rescue effort is undertaken on the endangered person's behalf."

Section 2. This act becomes effective December 1, 1997, and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

RE: Senate Bill 997 - Ignore Emergency Warning - Senator Plyler

Senate Bill 997 requires anyone who must be rescued as a result of ignoring an emergency warning in a disaster is civilly liable for the cost of the rescue and must reimburse the agency performing the rescue if:

1) The person ignores the warning AND: a) acts unreasonably, or b) fails to act reasonably;

2) As a result of ignoring the warning, places himself or another in danger; AND

3) A governmental rescue effort is taken on that person's behalf.

This act is effective December 1, 1997 and applies to offenses committed on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MAKE TECHNICAL, CLARIFYING, AND SIMILAR MINOR CHANGES TO THE ADOPTION LAWS AS FOUND IN CHAPTER 48 OF THE GENERAL STATUTES INVOLVING CERTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS, NOTICE, PROCEDURES FOR REPORTS TO THE COURT, ACCEPTANCE OF RELINQUISHMENTS BY AGENCIES, INDEXING, CAPTIONS ON ADOPTION PETITIONS, AND STANDBY GUARDIANS; TO STANDARDIZE PROCEDURES FOR REQUESTING NEW BIRTH CERTIFICATES IN ALL ADOPTIONS; AND TO AMEND PROVISIONS FOR OBTAINING CERTIFICATION OF IDENTIFICATION FOR INDIVIDUALS OF FOREIGN BIRTH AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION; AND TO ALLOW FOR PREBIRTH RIGHT-TO-CONSENT DETERMINATION, CLARIFY WHEN COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES MUST DO PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS, TO ADD CHILDREN TO THE LIST OF PERSONS WHO CAN GET COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES OF ADOPTEES, TO EXTEND THE EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS, TO PROVIDE THAT EXECUTION OF A RELINQUISHMENT DOES NOT TERMINATE THE DUTY OF SUPPORT, AND TO PERMIT ALL RELINQUISHMENTS TO BE RESCINDED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-305. Petition for adoption; additional documents.

At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall file or cause to be filed the following documents:

(1) Any required affidavit of parentage executed pursuant to G.S. 48-3-206;

(2) Any required consent or relinquishment that has been executed;

(3) A certified copy of any court order terminating the rights and duties of a parent or a guardian of the adoptee;

(4) A certified copy of any court order or pleading in a pending proceeding concerning custody of or visitation with the adoptee;

(5) A copy of any required preplacement assessment certified by the agency that prepared it or an affidavit from the petitioner stating why the assessment is not available;

(6) A ~~certified~~ copy of any document containing the information required under G.S. 48-3-205 concerning the health, social, educational, and genetic history of the adoptee and the adoptee's original family which the petitioner received before the placement or at any later time, certified by the person who prepared it, or if this document is not available, an affidavit stating the reason why it is not available;

(7) Any signed copy of the form required by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, G.S. 110-57.1, et seq., authorizing a minor to come into this State;

(8) A writing that states the name of any individual whose consent is or may be required, but who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment or whose parental rights have not been legally terminated, and any fact or circumstance that may excuse the lack of consent or relinquishment; and

(9) In an adoption pursuant to Article 4 of this Chapter, a copy of any agreement to release past-due child support payments.

The petitioner may also file any other document necessary or helpful to the court's determination."

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) In the adoption of an adult, the petitioner shall also serve notice of the filing on any adult children of the prospective adoptive parent and any parent, spouse, or adult child of the adoptee who are listed in the petition to adopt."

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-403. Notice of proceedings by clerk.

No later than five days after a petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall ~~give notice of the adoption proceeding by certified mail, return receipt requested,~~ mail or otherwise deliver notice of the adoption proceeding to any agency that has undertaken but not yet completed a preplacement assessment and any agency ordered to make a report to the court pursuant to Part 5 of this Article."

Section 4. G.S. 48-2-502(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The report must be in writing and contain:

(1) An account of the petitioner's marital or family status, physical and mental health, home environment, property, income, and financial obligations; if there has been a preplacement assessment, the account may be limited to any changes since the filing of the preplacement assessment;

(2) All reasonably available nonidentifying information concerning the physical, mental, and emotional condition of the adoptee required by G.S. 48-3-205 which is not already included in the document prepared under that section;

(3) Copies of any court order, judgment, decree, or pending legal proceeding affecting the adoptee, the petitioner, or any child of the petitioner relevant to the welfare of the adoptee;

(4) A list of the expenses, fees, or other charges incurred, paid, or to be paid in connection with the adoption that can reasonably be ascertained by the agency;

(5) Any fact or circumstance known to the agency that raises a specific concern about whether the proposed adoption is contrary to the best interest of the adoptee because it poses a significant risk of harm to the well-being of the adoptee;

(6) A finding by the agency concerning the suitability of the petitioner and the petitioner's home for the adoptee;

(7) A recommendation concerning the granting of the petition; and

(8) Such other information as may be required by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

In an agency adoption, the report shall be written in such a way as to exclude all information that could reasonably be expected to lead directly to the identity of the adoptee at birth or any former parent or family member of the adoptee, and any copies of documents included pursuant to subdivision (3) of this subsection shall be redacted to exclude this information."

Section 5. (a) G.S. 48-2-503(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after ~~receipt~~ the mailing or delivery of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing. The agency shall have three additional days to complete and file the report if the order was mailed."

(b) G.S. 48-2-503(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern. The agency shall indicate in the final report whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(c) G.S. 48-2-503 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) When an agency identifies a specific concern in a final report and the court extends the time for a final hearing or disposition to allow resolution of these concerns, the agency shall file a supplemental report indicating whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(d) Subsection (a) of this section applies to reports to the court prepared in response to a notice under G.S. 48-2-403 mailed or delivered after the effective date of this act.

Section 6. (a) G.S. 48-2-604 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-604. Denying petition to adopt a minor.

(a) If at any time between the filing of a petition to adopt a minor and the issuance of the final order completing the adoption it appears to the court that the minor should not be adopted by the petitioners or the petition should be dismissed for some other reason, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

(b) The court, before entering an order to dismiss the proceeding, shall give at least five days' notice of the motion to dismiss to the parties, to the agency that made the report to the court, and to the Department of Human Resources. The parties and agency entitled to notice under this subsection, and the Department, shall be entitled to a hearing on the issue of dismissing the proceeding.

(c) If the court denies ~~a petition to adopt a minor,~~ the petition, the custody of the minor shall revert to any agency or person having custody immediately before the filing of the petition. If the placement of the ~~child~~ minor was a direct placement under Article 3 of this Chapter, the court shall notify the director of social services of the county in which the petition was filed of the dismissal, and the director of social services shall be responsible for taking appropriate action for the protection of the ~~child.~~ minor."

(b) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 7. (a) G.S. 48-3-702 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-702. Procedures for relinquishment.

(a) A relinquishment executed by a parent or guardian must conform substantially to the requirements in this Part and must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments.

(b) The provisions of G.S. 48-3-605(b), (c), (e), and (f), also apply to a relinquishment executed under this ~~Part, except that an individual before whom a relinquishment is signed and acknowledged shall also certify that an employee of the agency to which the minor is being relinquished signed a statement~~

~~indicating the agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment.~~ Part.

(c) An agency that accepts a relinquishment shall furnish each parent or guardian who signs the relinquishment a letter or other writing indicating the agency's willingness to accept that person's relinquishment."

(b) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 8. (a) G.S. 48-3-608(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent. If notice is given by overnight delivery service, notice is deemed complete on the date it is deposited with the service as shown by the receipt from the service, with delivery charges paid by the sender, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent."

(b) This section applies to notices given on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 9. (a) G.S. 48-9-102(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of ~~adoption,~~ adoption and the entry in the special proceedings index in the office of the clerk of court, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter."

(b) G.S. 48-9-102(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The Division shall transmit a report of ~~the~~ each adoption ~~of a minor~~ and any name change to the State Registrar if the ~~minor~~ adoptee was born in this ~~State, or~~ State. In the case of an adoptee who was not born in this State, the Division shall transmit the report and any name change to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their ~~equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.~~ equivalent."

(c) G.S. 48-9-102(g) reads as rewritten:

"(g) ~~In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee.~~ In any adoption, the State Registrar may, in addition to receiving the report from the Division, request a copy of the final order and any separate order of name change directly from the clerk of court."

(d) G.S. 48-2-303 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-303. Caption of petition for adoption.

The caption of the petition shall be substantially as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA
IN THE DISTRICT COURT
COUNTY
BEFORE THE CLERK

*(Full name of petitioning father)
and
PETITION FOR ADOPTION
*(Full name of petitioning mother)
and
FOR THE ADOPTION OF

*(Full name ~~of adoptee as used in proceeding).~~ by which the adoptee is to be known if the adoption is granted)."

(e) Subsection (a) of this section is effective on and after July 1, 1996. The remainder of this section becomes effective October 1, 1997. Subsections (b) and (c) apply to final orders entered on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 10. (a) G.S. 48-2-601(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) If it appears to the court that ~~the petition~~ a petition to adopt a minor is not contested, the court may dispose of the petition without a formal hearing."

(b) This section applies to petitions filed on or after the effective date.

Section 11. (a) G.S. 48-3-603(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) Consent to an adoption of a minor is not required of a person or entity whose consent is not required under G.S. 48-3-601, or:

(1) An individual whose parental rights and duties have been terminated under Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes or by a court of competent jurisdiction in another state;

(2) A man described in G.S. 48-3-601(2), other than an adoptive father, if (i) the man has been judicially determined not to be the father of the minor to be adopted, or (ii) another man has been judicially determined to be the father of the minor to be adopted;

~~(3) A parent for whose minor child a guardian has been appointed;~~

(4) An individual who has relinquished parental rights or guardianship powers, including the right to consent to adoption, to an agency pursuant to Part 7 of this Article;

(5) A man who is not married to the minor's birth mother and who, after the conception of the minor, has executed a notarized statement denying paternity or disclaiming any interest in the minor;

(6) A deceased parent or the personal representative of a deceased parent's estate; or

(7) An individual listed in G.S. 48-3-601 who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment and who fails to respond to a notice of the adoption proceeding within 30 days after the service of the notice."

(b) G.S. 48-3-201(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) ~~An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed, even if only one parent has executed a relinquishment pursuant to Part 7 of this Article or has had parental rights terminated, unless the other parent notifies the agency in writing of the parent's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment from one parent to obtain the consent or relinquishment of the other parent or to terminate the rights between the minor and the other parent pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes.~~ An agency having legal and physical custody of a minor may place the minor for adoption at any time after a relinquishment is executed by anyone as permitted by G.S. 48-3-701. The agency may place the minor for adoption even if other consents are required before an adoption can be granted, unless an individual whose consent is required notifies the agency in writing of the individual's objections before the placement. The agency shall act promptly after accepting a relinquishment to obtain all other necessary consents, relinquishments, or terminations of any guardian's authority pursuant to Chapter 35A of the General Statutes or parental rights pursuant to Article 24B of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes."

(c) G.S. 48-4-102 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-4-102. Consent to adoption of stepchild.

Except under circumstances described in G.S. 48-3-603, a petition to adopt a minor stepchild may be granted only if consent to the adoption has been executed by the adoptee if 12 or more years of age; and

(1) The adoptee's parents as described in G.S. 48-3-601; ~~or~~ and

(2) Any guardian of the adoptee.

The consent of an incompetent parent may be given pursuant to the procedures in G.S. 48-3-602."

(d) G.S. 48-3-602 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-602. Consent of incompetent parents.

If a parent as described in G.S. 48-3-601 has been adjudicated incompetent, then the court shall appoint a guardian ad litem for that parent ~~and~~ and, unless the child already has a guardian, a guardian ad litem for the child to make a full investigation as to whether the adoption should proceed. The investigation shall include an evaluation of the parent's current condition and any reasonable likelihood that the parent will be restored to competency, the relationship between the child and the incompetent parent, alternatives to adoption, and any other relevant fact or circumstance. If the court determines after a hearing on the matter that it will be in the best interest of the child for the adoption to proceed, the court shall order the guardian ad litem of the parent to execute a consent for that parent."

(e) G.S. 48-1-101(8) reads as rewritten:

"(8) 'Guardian' means an individual, other than a parent, appointed by a clerk of court in North Carolina to exercise all of the powers conferred by ~~G.S. 35A-1241;~~ G.S. 35A-1241, including a standby guardian appointed under Article 21 of Chapter 35A of the General Statutes whose authority has actually commenced; and also means an individual, other than a parent, appointed in another jurisdiction according to the law of that jurisdiction who has the power to consent to adoption under the law of that jurisdiction."

Section 12. (a) G.S. 48-2-501 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-501. Report to the court during proceeding for adoption of a minor.

(a) Whenever a petition for adoption of a minor is filed, the court shall order a report to the court made to assist the court to determine if the proposed adoption of the minor by the petitioner is in the minor's best interest.

(b) Consistent with G.S. 48-1-109, the court shall order the report to be prepared:

(1) By the agency that placed the minor;

(2) By the agency that made the preplacement assessment pursuant to Part 3 of Article 3 of this Chapter; or

(3) By another agency.

(c) The court shall provide the individual who prepares the report with copies of: ~~(i) the petition to adopt; and (ii) the documents filed with it.~~

(1) The petition to adopt; and

(2) The documents filed with it.

(d) As an exception to this section, in any stepparent adoption under Article 4 of this Chapter in which the minor has lived with the stepparent for at least the two consecutive years immediately preceding the filing of the petition, the court may order a report, but it is not required to order a report unless the minor's consent is to be waived, the minor has revoked a consent, or both of the minor's parents are dead."

(b) G.S. 48-4-104 is repealed.

(c) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 13. G.S. 130A-108 reads as rewritten:

"§ 130A-108. Certificate of identification for ~~child~~ individual of foreign birth.

In the case of an adopted ~~child~~ individual born in a foreign country and ~~having legal settlement in this State,~~ residing in this State at the time of application, the State Registrar shall, upon the presentation of a certified copy of the original birth certificate from the country of birth and a certified copy of the final order of adoption signed by the clerk of court or other appropriate official, prepare a certificate of identification for the ~~child.~~ individual. The certificate shall contain the same information required by G.S. 48-9-107(a) for ~~children~~ individuals adopted in this State, except that the country of birth shall be specified in lieu of the state of birth."

Section 14. Part 2 of Article 2 of Chapter 48 is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 48-2-206. Prebirth determination of right to consent.

(a) Anytime after six months from the date of conception as reasonably determined by a physician, the biological mother, agency, or adoptive parents chosen by the biological mother may file a special proceeding with the clerk requesting the court to determine whether consent of the biological father is required. The biological father shall be served with notice of the intent of the biological mother to place the child for adoption, allowing the biological father 15 days after service to assert a claim that his consent is required.

(b) The notice required under subsection (a) of this section shall contain the special proceeding case caption and file number and shall be substantially similar to the following language:

'[Name of the biological mother], the biological mother, is expected to give birth to a child on or about [birth due date]. You have been identified as the biological father. It is the intention of the biological mother to place the child for adoption. It is her belief that your consent to the adoption is not required. If you believe your consent to the adoption of this child is required pursuant to G.S. 48-3-601, you must notify the court in writing no later than 15 days from the date you received this notice that you believe your consent is required. A copy of your notice to the court must also be sent to the person or agency that sent you this notice. If you fail to notify the court within 15 days that you believe your consent is required, the court will rule that your consent is not required.'

(c) If the biological father fails to respond within the time required, the court shall enter an order that the biological father's consent is not required for the adoption. A biological father who fails to respond within the time required under this section is not entitled to notice under G.S. 48-2-401(c) of an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the minor.

(d) If the biological father notifies the court within 15 days of his receipt of the notice required by subsection (a) of this section that he believes his consent to the adoption is required, on motion of the petitioner, the court shall hold a hearing to determine whether the consent of the biological father is required. Promptly on receipt of the petitioner's motion, the court shall set a date for the hearing no earlier than 60 days nor later than 70 days after the biological father received the notice required by subsection (a) of this section and shall notify the petitioner and the biological father of the date, time, and place of the hearing. The notice of hearing to the biological father shall include a statement substantially similar to the following:

> 'To the biological father named above: You have told the court that you believe your consent is necessary for the adoption of the child described in the notice sent to you earlier. This hearing is being held to decide whether your consent is in fact necessary. Before the date of the hearing, you must have taken steps under G.S. 48-3-601 to establish that your consent is necessary or this court will decide that your consent is not necessary and the child can be adopted without it.' During the hearing, the court may take such evidence as necessary and enter an order determining whether or not the consent of the biological father is necessary.

(e) The manner of service under this section shall be the same as set forth in G.S. 48-2-402.

(f) The jurisdiction provisions of Article 6A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and the venue provisions of Article 7 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes rather than the provisions of Part 1 of this Article apply to proceedings under this section.

(g) Computation of periods of time provided for in this section shall be calculated as set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 6.

(h) Transfer under G.S. 1-272 and appeal under G.S. 1-279.1 shall be as for an adoption proceeding.

(i) A determination by the court under this section that the consent of the biological father is not required shall only apply to an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the minor."

Section 15. G.S. 48-3-302(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. As used in this subsection, 'unable to obtain a preplacement assessment' includes the inability to obtain a preplacement assessment at the fee the county department of social services is permitted to charge the individual. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so."

Section 16. G.S. 48-3-601(2)b.4. reads as rewritten:

"4. Before the earlier of the filing of the ~~petition,~~ petition or the dats of a hearing under G.S. 48-2-206, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

III. After the minor's birth but before the minor's placement for adoption or the mother's relinquishment, has married or attempted to marry the mother of the minor by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid; or".

Section 17. G.S. 48-3-603(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(8) An individual notified under G.S. 48-2-206 who does not respond in a timely manner or whose consent is not required as determined by the court."

Section 18. G.S. 48-9-107(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptee's children, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, 'parent', 'brother', and 'sister' shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister."

Section 19. (a) G.S. 48-3-301(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) Has been completed or updated within the ~~12~~ 18 months immediately preceding the placement; and".

(b) This section applies to placements made on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 19.1 (a) G.S. 48-3-704 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-704. Content of relinquishment; optional provisions.

In addition to the mandatory provisions listed in G.S. 48-3-703, a relinquishment may also state that the relinquishment may be revoked upon notice by the agency that an adoption by a specific prospective adoptive parent, named or described in the relinquishment is not ~~completed, or if the agency and the person relinquishing the minor mutually agree to rescind the relinquishment before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs.~~ completed."

(b) G.S. 48-3-705(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) A relinquishment terminates:

(1) Any right and duty of the individual who executed the relinquishment with respect to the legal and physical custody of the ~~minor;~~ minor.

(2) The right to consent to the minor's ~~adoption; and~~ adoption.

~~(3) The duty to support the minor.~~"

(c) G.S. 48-3-707(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A relinquishment shall become void ~~if,~~ if:

(1) Before ~~before~~ the entry of the adoption decree, the individual who executed the relinquishment establishes by clear and convincing evidence that it was obtained by fraud or duress.

(2) Before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs, the agency and the person relinquishing the minor agree to rescind the relinquishment."

(d) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after August 1, 1997.

Section 20. Sections 14, 16, and 17 become effective October 1, 1997. Except as otherwise provided, the remaining sections of this act are effective when the act becomes law.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO MAKE TECHNICAL, CLARIFYING, AND SIMILAR MINOR CHANGES TO THE ADOPTION LAWS AS FOUND IN CHAPTER 48 OF THE GENERAL STATUTES INVOLVING CERTIFICATION OF DOCUMENTS, NOTICE, PROCEDURES FOR REPORTS TO THE COURT, ACCEPTANCE OF RELINQUISHMENTS BY AGENCIES, INDEXING, CAPTIONS ON ADOPTION PETITIONS, AND STANDBY GUARDIANS; TO STANDARDIZE PROCEDURES FOR REQUESTING NEW BIRTH CERTIFICATES IN ALL ADOPTIONS; AND TO AMEND PROVISIONS FOR OBTAINING CERTIFICATION OF IDENTIFICATION FOR INDIVIDUALS OF FOREIGN BIRTH AS RECOMMENDED BY THE GENERAL STATUTES COMMISSION; AND TO ALLOW FOR PREBIRTH RIGHT-TO-CONSENT DETERMINATION, CLARIFY WHEN COUNTY DEPARTMENTS OF SOCIAL SERVICES MUST DO PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS, TO ADD CHILDREN TO THE LIST OF PERSONS WHO CAN GET COPIES OF BIRTH CERTIFICATES OF ADOPTEES, TO EXTEND THE EFFECTIVE PERIOD OF PREPLACEMENT ASSESSMENTS TO EIGHTEEN MONTHS, TO PROVIDE THAT EXECUTION OF A RELINQUISHMENT DOES NOT TERMINATE THE DUTY OF SUPPORT, AND TO PERMIT ALL RELINQUISHMENTS TO BE RESCINDED BY MUTUAL AGREEMENT.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 48-2-305 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-305. Petition for adoption; additional documents.

At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall file or cause to be filed the following documents:

(1) Any required affidavit of parentage executed pursuant to G.S. 48-3-206;

(2) Any required consent or relinquishment that has been executed;

(3) A certified copy of any court order terminating the rights and duties of a parent or a guardian of the adoptee;

(4) A certified copy of any court order or pleading in a pending proceeding concerning custody of or visitation with the adoptee;

(5) A copy of any required preplacement assessment certified by the agency that prepared it or an affidavit from the petitioner stating why the assessment is not available;

(6) A ~~certified~~ copy of any document containing the information required under G.S. 48-3-205 concerning the health, social, educational, and genetic history of the adoptee and the adoptee's original family which the petitioner received before the placement or at any later time, certified by the person who prepared it, or if this document is not available, an affidavit stating the reason why it is not available;

(7) Any signed copy of the form required by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, G.S. 110-57.1, et seq., authorizing a minor to come into this State;

(8) A writing that states the name of any individual whose consent is or may be required, but who has not executed a consent or a relinquishment or whose parental rights have not been legally terminated, and any fact or circumstance that may excuse the lack of consent or relinquishment; and

(9) In an adoption pursuant to Article 4 of this Chapter, a copy of any agreement to release past-due child support payments.

The petitioner may also file any other document necessary or helpful to the court's determination."

Section 2. G.S. 48-2-401(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) In the adoption of an adult, the petitioner shall also serve notice of the filing on any adult children of the prospective adoptive parent and any parent, spouse, or adult child of the adoptee who are listed in the petition to adopt."

Section 3. G.S. 48-2-403 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-403. Notice of proceedings by clerk.

No later than five days after a petition is filed, the clerk of the court shall ~~give notice of the adoption proceeding by certified mail, return receipt requested,~~ mail or otherwise deliver notice of the adoption proceeding to any agency that has undertaken but not yet completed a preplacement assessment and any agency ordered to make a report to the court pursuant to Part 5 of this Article."

Section 4. G.S. 48-2-502(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) The report must be in writing and contain:

(1) An account of the petitioner's marital or family status, physical and mental health, home environment, property, income, and financial obligations; if there has been a preplacement assessment, the account may be limited to any changes since the filing of the preplacement assessment;

(2) All reasonably available nonidentifying information concerning the physical, mental, and emotional condition of the adoptee required by G.S. 48-3-205 which is not already included in the document prepared under that section;

(3) Copies of any court order, judgment, decree, or pending legal proceeding affecting the adoptee, the petitioner, or any child of the petitioner relevant to the welfare of the adoptee;

(4) A list of the expenses, fees, or other charges incurred, paid, or to be paid in connection with the adoption that can reasonably be ascertained by the agency;

(5) Any fact or circumstance known to the agency that raises a specific concern about whether the proposed adoption is contrary to the best interest of the adoptee because it poses a significant risk of harm to the well-being of the adoptee;

(6) A finding by the agency concerning the suitability of the petitioner and the petitioner's home for the adoptee;

(7) A recommendation concerning the granting of the petition; and

(8) Such other information as may be required by rules adopted pursuant to subsection (c) of this section.

In an agency adoption, the report shall be written in such a way as to exclude all information that could reasonably be expected to lead directly to the identity of the adoptee at birth or any former parent or family member of the adoptee, and any copies of documents included pursuant to subdivision (3) of this subsection shall be redacted to exclude this information."

Section 5. (a) G.S. 48-2-503(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) The agency shall complete a written report and file it with the court within 60 days after ~~receipt~~ the mailing or delivery of the order under G.S. 48-2-501 unless the court extends the time for filing. The agency shall have three additional days to complete and file the report if the order was mailed."

(b) G.S. 48-2-503(b) reads as rewritten:

"(b) If the agency identifies a specific concern about the suitability of the petitioner or the petitioner's home for the adoptee, the agency must file an interim report immediately, which must contain an account of the specific concern. The agency shall indicate in the final report whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(c) G.S. 48-2-503 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(b1) When an agency identifies a specific concern in a final report and the court extends the time for a final hearing or disposition to allow resolution of these concerns, the agency shall file a supplemental report indicating whether its concerns have been satisfied and in what manner."

(d) Subsection (a) of this section applies to reports to the court prepared in response to a notice under G.S. 48-2-403 mailed or delivered after the effective date of this act.

Section 6. (a) G.S. 48-2-604 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-604. Denying petition to adopt a minor.

(a) If at any time between the filing of a petition to adopt a minor and the issuance of the final order completing the adoption it appears to the court that the minor should not be adopted by the petitioners or the petition should be dismissed for some other reason, the court may dismiss the proceeding.

(b) The court, before entering an order to dismiss the proceeding, shall give at least five days' notice of the motion to dismiss to the parties, to the agency that made the report to the court, and to the Department of Human Resources. The parties and agency entitled to notice under this subsection, and the Department, shall be entitled to a hearing on the issue of dismissing the proceeding.

(c) If the court denies ~~a petition to adopt a minor,~~ the petition, the custody of the minor shall revert to any agency or person having custody immediately before the filing of the petition. If the placement of the ~~child~~ minor was a direct placement under Article 3 of this Chapter, the court shall notify the director of social services of the county in which the petition was filed of the dismissal, and the director of social services shall be responsible for taking appropriate action for the protection of the ~~child.~~ minor."

(b) This section becomes effective October 1, 1997.

Section 7. (a) G.S. 48-3-702 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-702. Procedures for relinquishment.

(a) A relinquishment executed by a parent or guardian must conform substantially to the requirements in this Part and must be signed and acknowledged under oath before an individual authorized to administer oaths or take acknowledgments.

(b) The provisions of G.S. 48-3-605(b), (c), (e), and (f), also apply to a relinquishment executed under this ~~Part, except that an individual before whom a relinquishment is signed and acknowledged shall also certify that an employee of the agency to which the minor is being relinquished signed a statement indicating the agency's willingness to accept the relinquishment.~~ Part.

(c) An agency that accepts a relinquishment shall furnish each parent or guardian who signs the relinquishment a letter or other writing indicating the agency's willingness to accept that person's relinquishment."

(b) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 8. (a) G.S. 48-3-608(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A consent to the adoption of an infant who is in utero or is three months old or less at the time the consent is given may be revoked within 21 days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. A consent to the adoption of any other minor may be revoked within seven days following the day on which it is executed, inclusive of weekends and holidays. If the final day of the revocation period falls on a weekend or North Carolina or federal holiday, then the revocation period extends to the next business day. The individual who gave the consent may revoke by giving written notice to the person specified in the consent. Notice may be given by personal delivery, overnight delivery service, or registered or certified mail, return receipt requested. If notice is given by mail, notice is deemed complete when it is deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent. If notice is given by overnight delivery service, notice is deemed complete on the date it is deposited with the service as shown by the receipt from the service, with delivery charges paid by the sender, addressed to the person to whom consent was given at the address specified in the consent."

(b) This section applies to notices given on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 9. (a) G.S. 48-9-102(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) All records created or filed in connection with an adoption, except the decree of ~~adoption,~~ adoption and the entry in the special proceedings index in the office of the clerk of court, and on file with or in the possession of the court, an agency, the State, a county, an attorney, or other provider of professional services, are confidential and may not be disclosed or used except as provided in this Chapter."

(b) G.S. 48-9-102(f) reads as rewritten:

"(f) The Division shall transmit a report of ~~the~~ each adoption ~~of a minor~~ and any name change to the State Registrar if the ~~minor~~ adoptee was born in this ~~State, or~~ State. In the case of an adoptee who was not born in this State, the Division shall transmit the report and any name change to the appropriate official responsible for issuing birth certificates or their ~~equivalent if the minor was not born in this State.~~ equivalent."

(c) G.S. 48-9-102(g) reads as rewritten:

"(g) ~~In the adoption of an adult born in this State in which the name of the adoptee is changed, the clerk of superior court shall, within 10 days after the decree of adoption is entered, send the State Registrar a copy of the final order, any separate order of name change, and a report in a form acceptable to the State Registrar containing sufficient information for a new birth certificate. In the adoption of an adult who was not born in this State, the clerk shall transmit a copy of the final order and any other required information to the adoptee.~~ In any adoption, the State Registrar may, in addition to receiving the report from the Division, request a copy of the final order and any separate order of name change directly from the clerk of court."

(d) G.S. 48-2-303 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-2-303. Caption of petition for adoption.

The caption of the petition shall be substantially as follows:

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

IN THE DISTRICT COURT

COUNTY

(e) The manner of service under this section shall be the same as set forth in G.S. 48-2-402.

(f) The jurisdiction provisions of Article 6A of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and the venue provisions of Article 7 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes rather than the provisions of Part 1 of this Article apply to proceedings under this section.

(g) Computation of periods of time provided for in this section shall be calculated as set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 6.

(h) Transfer under G.S. 1-272 and appeal under G.S. 1-279.1 shall be as for an adoption proceeding.

(i) A determination by the court under this section that the consent of the biological father is not required shall only apply to an adoption petition filed within three months of the birth of the minor."

Section 15. G.S. 48-3-302(e) reads as rewritten:

"(e) If an individual requesting a preplacement assessment has identified a prospective adoptive child and has otherwise been unable to obtain a preplacement assessment, the county department of social services must, upon request, prepare or contract for the preparation of the preplacement assessment. As used in this subsection, 'unable to obtain a preplacement assessment' includes the inability to obtain a preplacement assessment at the fee the county department of social services is permitted to charge the individual. Except as provided in this subsection, no agency is required to conduct a preplacement assessment unless it agrees to do so."

Section 16. G.S. 48-3-601(2)b.4. reads as rewritten:

"4. Before the earlier of the filing of the ~~petition,~~ petition or the date of a hearing under G.S. 48-2-206, has acknowledged his paternity of the minor and

I. Is obligated to support the minor under written agreement or by court order;

II. Has provided, in accordance with his financial means, reasonable and consistent payments for the support of the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or the support of the minor, or both, which may include the payment of medical expenses, living expenses, or other tangible means of support, and has regularly visited or communicated, or attempted to visit or communicate with the biological mother during or after the term of pregnancy, or with the minor, or with both; or

III. After the minor's birth but before the minor's placement for adoption or the mother's relinquishment, has married or attempted to marry the mother of the minor by a marriage solemnized in apparent compliance with law, although the attempted marriage is or could be declared invalid; or".

Section 17. G.S. 48-3-603(a) is amended by adding a new subdivision to read:

"(8) An individual notified under G.S. 48-2-206 who does not respond in a timely manner or whose consent is not required as determined by the court."

Section 18. G.S. 48-9-107(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) The State Registrar shall seal the original certificate of birth and all records in the possession of that office pertaining to the adoption. These records shall not be unsealed except as provided in this Article. The State Registrar shall provide certified typed copies or abstracts of the new certificate of birth of an adoptee prepared pursuant to subsection (a) of this section to the adoptee, the adoptee's children, the adoptive parents, and the adoptee's spouse, brothers, and sisters. For purposes of this subsection, 'parent', 'brother', and 'sister' shall mean the adoptee's adoptive parent, brother, or sister and shall not mean a former parent, brother, or sister."

Section 19. (a) G.S. 48-3-301(a)(1) reads as rewritten:

"(1) Has been completed or updated within the ~~12~~ 18 months immediately preceding the placement; and".

(b) This section applies to placements made on or after the effective date of this act.

Section 19.1. (a) G.S. 48-3-704 reads as rewritten:

"§ 48-3-704. Content of relinquishment; optional provisions.

In addition to the mandatory provisions listed in G.S. 48-3-703, a relinquishment may also state that the relinquishment may be revoked upon notice by the agency that an adoption by a specific prospective adoptive parent, named or described in the relinquishment is not ~~completed, or if the agency and the person relinquishing the minor mutually agree to rescind the relinquishment before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs.~~ completed."

(b) G.S. 48-3-705(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) A relinquishment terminates:

(1) Any right and duty of the individual who executed the relinquishment with respect to the legal and physical custody of the ~~minor;~~ minor.

(2) The right to consent to the minor's ~~adoption; and~~ adoption.

~~(3) The duty to support the minor.~~"

(c) G.S. 48-3-707(a) reads as rewritten:

"(a) A relinquishment shall become void ~~if,~~ if:

(1) Before ~~before~~ the entry of the adoption decree, the individual who executed the relinquishment establishes by clear and convincing evidence that it was obtained by fraud or duress.

(2) Before placement with a prospective adoptive parent occurs, the agency and the person relinquishing the minor agree to rescind the relinquishment."

(d) This section applies to relinquishments executed on or after August 1, 1997.

Section 20. Sections 14, 16, and 17 become effective October 1, 1997. Except as otherwise provided, the remaining sections of this act are effective when the act becomes law.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: Senate Bill 554—Paternity/Parental Support (Hartsell and Rand)

Prior to the 1995 Session of the General Assembly, an action to establish paternity could only be commenced, and a judgment entered, prior to the death of the putative father. During the 1995 Session, the General Assembly ratified legislation allowing paternity actions to be commenced after the death of the putative father in the following circumstances:

(1) Within one year of death if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has not been commenced; or

(2) If a proceeding for administration of the estate has been commenced, within the period allowed under law for presentation of claims against the estate.

A copy of the ratified legislation, Chapter 424 of the 1995 Session Laws, is attached. The legislation contains a sunset clause causing the changes to expire on October 1, 1998.

Senate Bill 554 removes this sunset clause from Chapter 424 of the 1995 Session Laws.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

notations as to where those boundaries do not comply with these standards. If the Executive Secretary-Director of the State Board determines that all precinct boundaries are in compliance with this section, the Executive Secretary-Director of the State Board shall approve the maps and written descriptions as filed and these precincts shall be the official precincts.

(c) If the Executive Secretary-Director of the State Board determines that the proposed precinct boundaries are not in compliance with subsection (a) of this section, he shall not approve those precinct boundaries. He shall notify the county board of elections of his disapproval specifying the reasons. The county board of elections may then resubmit new precinct maps and written descriptions to cure the reasons for their disapproval."

Sec. 4. G.S. 153A-19 reads as rewritten:

"§ 153A-19. Establishing and naming townships.

(a) A county may by resolution establish and abolish townships, change their boundaries, and prescribe their names, except that no such resolution may become effective during the period beginning January 1, ~~1988~~ 1998, and ending January 2, ~~1990~~ 2000, and any resolution providing that the boundaries of a township shall change automatically with changes in the boundaries of a city shall not be effective during that period. The current boundaries of each township within a county shall at all times be drawn on a map, or set out in a written description, or shown by a combination of these techniques. This current delineation shall be available for public inspection in the office of the clerk.

(b) Any provision of a city charter or other local act which provides the boundaries of a township shall change automatically upon a change in a city boundary shall not be effective during the period beginning January 1, ~~1988~~ 1998, and ending January 2, ~~1990~~ 2000.

(c) The county manager or, where there is no county manager, the chairman of the board of commissioners, shall report township boundaries and changes in those boundaries to the United States Bureau of the Census in the Boundary and Annexations Survey. In responding to the surveys, each county manager or, if there is no manager, chairman of the board of commissioners shall consult with the county board of elections and other appropriate local agencies as to the location of township boundaries, so that the Census Bureau's mapping of township boundaries does not disagree with any county voting precinct boundaries that may be based on township boundaries."

Sec. 5. Except as specifically otherwise provided in this act, this act is effective upon ratification.

In the General Assembly read three times and ratified this the 12th day of July, 1995.

S.B. 836 CHAPTER 424

AN ACT TO ENHANCE PARENTAL SUPPORT OF CHILDREN BY AMENDING THE LAW PERTAINING TO CIVIL ACTIONS TO ESTABLISH PATERNITY.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 49-14(c) reads as rewritten:

"(c) No such action shall be commenced nor judgment entered after the death of the putative ~~father,~~ father, unless the action is commenced either:

(1) Prior to the death of the putative father;

(2) Within one year after the date of death of the putative father, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has not been commenced within one year of his death; or

(3) Within the period specified in G.S. 28A-19-3(a) for presentation of claims against an estate, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has been commenced within one year of his death.

Any judgment under this subsection establishing a decedent to be the father of a child shall be entered nunc pro tunc to the day preceding the date of death of the father."

Sec. 2. G.S. 49-14(d) reads as rewritten:

"(d) If the action to establish paternity is brought more than three years after birth of a ~~child,~~ child or is brought after the death of the putative father, paternity shall not be established in a contested case without evidence from a blood or genetic marker test."

Sec. 3. This act becomes effective October 1, 1995, and applies to actions commenced on or after that date, but before October 1, 1998, without regard to the date of death of the putative father. This act expires on October 1, 1998.

In the General Assembly read three times and ratified this the 12th day of July, 1995.

S.B. 955 CHAPTER 425

AN ACT PROHIBITING THE UNAUTHORIZED USE OF WIRELESS TELECOMMUNICATIONS SERVICES AND ESTABLISHING CIVIL AND CRIMINAL PENALTIES FOR ACTS RELATING TO SUCH USE.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 14-113.5 reads as rewritten:

"§ 14-113.5. Making, ~~possessing or transferring~~ distributing, possessing, transferring, or programming device for theft of telecommunication service; publication of information regarding schemes, devices, means, or methods for such theft; concealment of existence, origin or destination of any telecommunication.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any person knowingly to:

(1) ~~Make or possess any instrument, apparatus, equipment, or~~ Make, distribute, possess, use, or assemble an unlawful telecommunications device or modify, alter, program, or reprogram a telecommunication device designed, adapted, or which is ~~used~~ used:

a. For commission of a theft of telecommunication service or to acquire or facilitate the acquisition of telecommunications

ARTICLE 3.

Civil Actions Regarding Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-14. Civil action to establish paternity.

(a) The paternity of a child born out of wedlock may be established by civil action at any time prior to such child's eighteenth birthday. A certified copy of a certificate of birth of the child shall be attached to the complaint. Such establishment of paternity shall not have the effect of legitimation.

(b) Proof of paternity pursuant to this section shall be by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence.

(c) (See editor's note) No such action shall be commenced nor judgment entered after the death of the putative father, unless the action is commenced either:

(1) Prior to the death of the putative father;

(2) Within one year after the date of death of the putative father, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has not been commenced within one year of his death; or

(3) Within the period specified in G.S. 28A-19-3(a) for presentation of claims against an estate, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has been commenced within one year of his death.

Any judgment under this subsection establishing a decedent to be the father of a child shall be entered nunc pro tunc to the day preceding the date of death of the father.

(d) (See editor's note) If the action to establish paternity is brought more than three years after birth of a child or is brought after the death of the putative father, paternity shall not be established in a contested case without evidence from a blood or genetic marker test.

(e) Either party to an action to establish paternity may request that the case be tried at the first session of the court after the case is docketed, but the presiding judge, in his discretion, may first try any pending case in which the rights of the parties or the public demand it. (1967, c. 993, s. 1; 1973, c. 1062, s. 3; 1977, c. 83, s. 2; 1981, c. 599, s. 14; 1985, c. 208, ss. 1, 2; 1993, c. 333, s. 3; 1995, c. 424, ss. 1, 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1993, c. 333, s. 3, amended this section effective October 1, 1993, and applicable to civil paternity actions filed on or after that date.

Session Laws 1995, c. 424, which amended subsections (c) and (d), in s. 3 provides that the 1995 amendments to this section are effective October 1, 1995, and are applicable to actions commenced

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO CONFORM THE NORTH CAROLINA TRADEMARK REGISTRATION ACT TO THE 1992 MODEL STATE TRADEMARK BILL BY MAKING VARIOUS AMENDMENTS TO THE ACT, INCLUDING REPEALING THE REQUIREMENT THAT APPLICANTS FOR A REGISTRATION INCLUDE PROOF OF USE OF THE TRADEMARK IN NORTH CAROLINA.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 80-1 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-1. Definitions.

(a) The term 'applicant' as used herein means the person filing an application for registration of a trademark under this Article, ~~his~~ the person's legal representatives, successors or assigns.

(b) The term 'mark' as used herein includes any trademark or service mark entitled to registration under this Article whether registered or not.

(c) The term 'person' as used herein means any individual, firm, partnership, corporation, association, union or other organization.

(d) The term 'registrant' as used herein means the person to whom the registration of a trademark under this Article is issued, ~~his~~ the person's legal representatives, successors or assigns.

(d1) The term 'Secretary' as used herein means the Secretary of State or the designee of the Secretary charged with the administration of this Article.

(e) The term 'service mark' as used herein means a mark used in the sale or advertising of services to identify the services of one person and distinguish them from the services of others.

(f) The term 'trademark' as used herein means any word, name, symbol, or device or any combination thereof adopted and used by a person to identify goods made, sold, or distributed by him and to distinguish them from goods made, sold, or distributed by others.

(g) The term 'use' means the bona fide use of a mark in the State of North Carolina in the ordinary course of trade, and not merely the reservation of a right to a mark. For the purposes of this Article, a mark shall be deemed to be 'used' in this State (i) on goods when it is placed in any manner on the goods or their containers or the displays associated therewith or on the tags or labels affixed thereto, or if the nature of the goods makes ~~such~~ placement impractical, then on documents associated with the goods, and ~~such~~ the goods are currently sold or otherwise distributed in the State, and (ii) on services when it is used or displayed in the sale or advertising of services and the services are currently being rendered in this State, or are being offered and are available to be rendered in this State.

(h) A mark shall be deemed to be 'abandoned' when either of the following occurs:

(1) When its use has been discontinued with intent not to resume its use. Intent not to resume may be inferred from circumstances. Nonuse for three consecutive years shall constitute prima facie evidence of abandonment.

(2) When any course of conduct of the owner, including acts of omission as well as commission, causes the mark to lose its significance as a mark."

Section 2. Article 1 of Chapter 80 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 80-1.1. Purpose.

The purpose of this Article is to provide a system of State trademark registration and protection substantially consistent with the federal system of trademark registration and protection under the Trademark Act of 1946, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq., as amended. The construction given the federal act should be examined as persuasive authority for interpreting and construing this Article."

Section 3. G.S. 80-2(5) reads as rewritten:

"(5) Consists of a mark which (i) when applied to the goods or services of the applicant, is merely descriptive of them or merely describes one or more of the characteristics, or is deceptively misdescriptive of them, or falsely describes the nature, function, capacity, or characteristics of them, or (ii) when applied to the goods or services of the applicant, is primarily geographically descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them, or (iii) is primarily merely a surname; provided, however, that nothing in this subdivision (5) shall prevent the registration of a mark used in this State by the applicant which has become distinctive of the applicant's goods or services. The Secretary ~~of State~~ may accept as evidence that the mark has become distinctive, as applied to the applicant's goods or services, proof of continuous use thereof as a mark by the applicant in this State ~~or elsewhere~~ for the five years preceding the date ~~of the filing of the application for registration;~~ on which the claim of distinctiveness is made; or"

Section 4. G.S. 80-3 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-3. Application for registration.

(a) Subject to the limitations set forth in this Article, any person who uses a mark, or any person who controls the nature and quality of the goods or services in connection with which a mark is used by another, in this State may file in the office of the Secretary ~~of State~~ in a format to be prescribed by the ~~Secretary of State,~~ Secretary, an application for registration of that mark setting forth, but not limited to, the following information:

(1) The name and business address of the person applying for ~~such~~ registration; and, if a corporation, the state of incorporation. If the application for registration relates to a mark used in connection with goods, the applicant shall list either the address of the applicant's principal place of business in North Carolina or a place of distribution and usage of ~~such~~ the goods in this State. If the application for registration relates to a mark used in connection with services, the applicant shall list a physical location at which the services are being rendered or offered in this State;

(2) The goods or services in connection with which the mark is used and the mode or manner in which the mark is used in connection with ~~such~~ the goods or services and the class in which ~~such~~ the goods or services fall;

(3) The date when the mark was first used anywhere and the date when it was first used in this State by the applicant, ~~his~~ the applicant's predecessor in business or by another under ~~such~~ the control of the applicant; and

(4) A statement that the applicant is the owner of the ~~mark~~ mark, that the mark is in use, and that to the best of ~~his~~ the knowledge of the person verifying the application, no other person has registered in this State, or ~~except as identified by applicant~~ has the right to use ~~such~~ the mark in this State either in the identical form thereof or in such near resemblance thereto as to be ~~likely~~ likely, when applied to the goods or services of the other person, to cause confusion, or to cause mistake, or to deceive.

(b) The application shall be signed and verified by the applicant, by a partner, by a member of the firm, or an officer of the corporation or association applying for registration. In states in which a notary is not required by law to obtain a notary's stamp or seal, an original certificate of authority of the notary issued by the appropriate State agency shall be submitted with the application. If the application is signed by a person acting pursuant to a power of attorney from the applicant, an original power of attorney or a certified copy of the power of attorney shall accompany the application.

The application shall be accompanied by three specimens of the mark as currently ~~used, and proof of use or distribution in this State.~~

~~The application for registration shall be accompanied~~ used and by a filing fee of fifty dollars ($50.00), payable to the ~~Secretary of State.~~ Secretary.

(c) The Secretary may require a statement as to whether an application to register the mark, or portions or a component of the mark, has been filed by the applicant or a predecessor in interest in the United States Patent and Trademark Office and, if so, the applicant shall provide any relevant information required by the Secretary, including the filing date and serial number of the application and the status of the application. If any application was finally refused registration or has otherwise not resulted in a registration, the Secretary may require the applicant to provide in the statement the reason the application was not registered. The Secretary may also require that a drawing of the mark accompany the application in a form specified by the Secretary."

Section 5. Article 1 of Chapter 80 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new section to read:

"§ 80-3.1. Examination of application.

(a) Upon filing an application for registration and payment of the application fee, the Secretary may cause the application to be examined for conformity with this Article.

(b) The applicant shall provide any additional relevant information requested by the Secretary, including a description of a design mark, and may make, or authorize the Secretary to make, any amendments to the application reasonably requested by the Secretary or deemed by the applicant to be advisable to respond to a rejection or objection.

(c) The Secretary may require the applicant to disclaim an unregisterable component of a mark otherwise registrable, and an applicant may voluntarily disclaim a component of a mark requested to be registered. No disclaimer shall prejudice or affect the applicant's or registrant's rights then existing or thereafter arising in the disclaimed matter, or the applicant's or registrant's rights of registration on another application if the disclaimed matter is distinctive of the applicant's or registrant's goods or services.

(d) The Secretary may (i) amend the application submitted by the applicant, if the applicant consents, or (ii) require a new application be submitted.

(e) If the Secretary finds that the applicant is not entitled to registration, the Secretary shall advise the applicant of the reasons the applicant is not entitled to registration. The applicant shall have a reasonable period of time, specified by the Secretary, in which to reply or to amend the application. If the applicant replies and amends the application, the Secretary shall reexamine the application. This procedure may be repeated until (i) the Secretary finally refuses registration of the mark, or (ii) the applicant fails to reply or to amend the application within the specified period. If the applicant fails to reply or to amend the application, the application shall be deemed to have been abandoned.

(f) If the Secretary finally refuses registration of the mark, the applicant may seek a writ of mandamus to compel registration. The writ may be granted, without costs to the Secretary, on proof that all the statements in the application are true and that the mark is entitled to registration.

(g) When the Secretary receives more than one application seeking registration of the same or confusingly similar marks for the same or related goods or services and processes those applications concurrently, the Secretary shall grant priority to the applications in order of filing. If a previously filed application is granted a registration, any other application shall then be rejected. A rejected applicant may bring an action for cancellation of the registration on grounds of prior or superior rights to the mark, in accordance with the provisions of this Article."

Section 6. G.S. 80-4 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-4. Certificate of registration.

Upon compliance by the applicant with the requirements of this Article, the Secretary ~~of State~~ shall cause a certificate of registration to be issued and delivered to the applicant. The certificate of registration shall be issued under the signature of the Secretary ~~of State~~ and the seal of the State, and it shall show the name and business address and, if a corporation, the state of incorporation, of the person claiming ownership of the mark, the date claimed for the first use of the mark anywhere and the date claimed for the first use of the mark in this State, the class of goods or services and a description of the goods or services on which the mark is used, a reproduction of the mark, the registration date, the registration number and the term of the registration.

Any certificate of registration issued by the Secretary ~~of State~~ under the provisions hereof or a copy thereof duly certified by the Secretary ~~of State~~ shall be admissible in evidence as competent and sufficient proof of the registration of ~~such~~ the mark in any action or judicial proceedings in any court of this State."

Section 7. G.S. 80-5 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-5. Duration and renewal.

Registration of a mark hereunder shall be effective for a term of ~~10~~ five years from the date of registration and shall be renewable for successive terms of ~~10~~ five years upon application filed within six months prior to the expiration of any term. A renewal fee of thirty-five dollars ($35.00), payable to the ~~Secretary of State,~~ Secretary, shall accompany the application for renewal of the registration. ~~Within six months following the expiration of a term of five years from the date of registration, or the last renewal of registration of the mark, the applicant shall submit a specimen showing evidence of current use of the mark and a signed statement verifying the use of such mark on a form to be furnished by the Secretary of State. Use of the form furnished by the Secretary of State is mandatory. Failure to submit this verification and specimen showing evidence of current use shall be grounds for cancellation of the registration of the mark by the Secretary of State.~~

The Secretary of State shall notify registrants of marks hereunder of the necessity of renewal within the year next preceding the expiration of the ~~10~~ five years from the date of registration, by writing to the last known address of the registrants.

~~The Secretary of State shall notify registrants of marks hereunder of the necessity of submitting evidence of current use of the mark after five years from the date of registration or of the last renewal of registration of the mark, by writing to the last known address of the registrants within the year preceding the due date for such submission.~~

Registration of marks ~~obtained~~ applied for under previous acts shall be continued in force for the full 10-year term ~~which is in effect October 1, 1991,~~ without the necessity of submitting evidence of current use of the mark during ~~such~~ the term.

All applications for renewals under this Article, whether of registrations made under this Article or of registrations ~~affected~~ effected under any prior act, shall be filed with the Secretary ~~of State~~ in a format prescribed by the Secretary ~~of State~~ specifying the information called for by G.S. 80-3 and shall include a statement that the mark is still in use in this State, setting forth those goods or services recited in the registration in connection with which the mark is still in use. The registration shall be renewed only as to ~~such~~ the goods and services."

Section 8. G.S. 80-6 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-6. Assignment.

(a) Any mark and its registration hereunder shall be assignable with the goodwill of the business in which the mark is used, or with that part of the goodwill of the business connected with the use of and symbolized by the mark. Assignment shall be by instruments in writing duly executed and may be recorded with the Secretary ~~of State~~ upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five dollars ($25.00), payable to the Secretary ~~of State~~ who, upon recording of the assignment, shall issue in the name of the assignee a new certificate for the remainder of the term of the registration or of the last renewal thereof. An assignment of any registration under this Article shall be void as against any subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, unless it is recorded with the Secretary ~~of State~~ within three months after the date thereof or prior to ~~such~~ subsequent purchase.

(b) Any registrant or applicant effecting a change of the name of the person to whom the mark was issued or for whom an application was filed may record a certificate of change of name of the registrant or applicant with the Secretary upon payment of the recording fee required under G.S. 80-7. The Secretary may issue a certificate of registration of an assigned application in the name of the assignee. The Secretary may issue in the name of the assignee a new certificate for the remainder of the term of the registration or for the last renewal of the registration.

(c) Other instruments that relate to a mark registered or application pending pursuant to this Article, including licenses, security interests, and mortgages, may be recorded in the discretion of the Secretary, upon payment of the recording fee required under G.S. 80-7. Instruments authorized under this subsection shall be in writing and duly executed.

(d) Acknowledgment shall be prima facie evidence of the execution of an assignment or other instrument and, when recorded by the Secretary, the record shall be prima facie evidence of execution.

(e) A photocopy of any instrument referenced in subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section shall be accepted for recording if it is certified by any party to the instrument, or the party's successor, to be a true and correct copy of the original."

Section 9. G.S. 80-7 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-7. Records.

The Secretary ~~of State~~ shall keep for public examination all assignments recorded under G.S. 80-6 and a record of all marks registered or renewed under this Article. The Secretary ~~of State~~ shall collect the following fees for copying, comparing, and certifying a copy of any filed document relating to a trademark or service mark:

(1) Five dollars ($5.00) for the certificate, and

(2) One dollar ($1.00) per page for copying or comparing a copy to the original.

The Secretary ~~of State~~ shall collect a recording fee of ten dollars ($10.00) for recording name changes of corporate registrants and for recording transfers of the registration of any mark by merger or consolidation if the articles of merger or consolidation are records not on file in the Corporate Division of the Department of the Secretary of State."

Section 10. G.S. 80-8 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-8. Cancellation.

The Secretary ~~of State~~ shall cancel from the ~~register:~~ register, in whole or in part:

(1) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 626, s. 8.

(2) Any registration concerning which the Secretary ~~of State~~ shall receive a voluntary request for cancellation thereof from the registrant or the assignee of ~~record;~~ record.

(3) All registrations granted under this Article and not renewed in accordance with the provisions ~~hereof;~~ hereof.

(4) Any registration concerning which a court of competent jurisdiction shall ~~find~~ find:

a. That the registered mark has been abandoned or has become incapable of serving as a mark;

b. That the registrant is not the owner of the mark;

c. That the registration was granted improperly;

d. That the registration was obtained fraudulently;

e. That the registration is for a mark that is or has become the generic name for the goods or services for which it has been registered or for a portion of the goods or services for which it has been registered;

f. That the registration was obtained by means of materially false statements in the application for registration; or

g. That the registration is so similar to another mark used in the State as to be likely to cause confusion or mistake or to deceive if (i) the other mark was registered by another person in the United States Patent and Trademark Office prior to the date of the applicant's first use of the mark that is the subject of the application for registration, and (ii) the other mark has not been abandoned. However, if the registrant proves that the registrant is the owner of a concurrent registration of a mark in the United States Patent and Trademark Office covering an area including the entire State, the registration shall not be cancelled.

(5) Any registration when a court of competent jurisdiction shall order cancellation ~~thereof;~~ thereof.

~~(6) Any registration for which compliance with the five-year evidence of use requirement of G.S. 80-5 has not been effected; or~~

~~(7) Any registration which was obtained by means of false statements in the application for registration.~~"

Section 11. G.S. 80-9 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-9. Classification.

~~The following general classes of goods and services are established~~ The Secretary shall establish a classification of goods and services for convenience of administration of this Article, but not to limit or extend the applicant's or registrant's rights, and a single application for registration of a mark may include any or all goods upon which, or services for which, the mark is actually being used ~~comprised in a single class, but in no event shall a single application include goods or services upon or for which the mark is being used which fall within different classes of goods or services.~~ indicating the appropriate class or classes of goods or services. When a single application includes goods or services that fall within multiple classes, the Secretary may require payment of a fee for each class. The Secretary ~~of State shall have the right to~~ may amend the classes herein established to conform ~~the same~~ them to the classification established for the United States Patent and Trademark Office as from time to time amended.

~~The said classes are as follows:~~

Section 12. G.S. 80-10 reads as rewritten:

"§ 80-10. Fraudulent registration.

Any person who shall for himself, or on behalf of any other person, procure the filing or registration of any mark in the office of the Secretary ~~of State~~ under the provisions hereof, by knowingly making any false or fraudulent representation or declaration, verbally or in writing, or by any other fraudulent means, shall be liable to pay all damages sustained in consequence of ~~such~~ filing or registration, to be recovered by or on behalf of the party injured thereby in any court of competent jurisdiction."

Section 13. This act takes precedence over all statutes that are inconsistent with this act or that contradict this act, effective October 1, 1997. The Secretary of State shall advise the General Statutes Commission of any statutes that should be amended or repealed to conform to this act.

Section 14. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to acts occurring on or after that date. This act shall not affect any suit, proceeding, or appeal pending on October 1, 1997.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman,
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis and O. Walker Reagan, Staff Attorneys

RE: SENATE BILL 864 - UPDATE AND REVISE TRADEMARK ACT - Senators McDaniel and Martin of Guilford.

Senate Bill 864 amends the North Carolina Trademark Registration Act, in part to conform North Carolina law to the model State Trademark Act and to eliminate the necessity of showing use of a trademark in North Carolina for registration purposes. The bill is recommended by the North Carolina Bar Association.

Section 1, in addition to making stylistic changes, adds a definition for when a mark is deemed abandoned to include when its use is intended not to be resumed (nonuse for 3 consecutive years prima facie evidence of abandonment) or when the conduct of the owner causes the mark to lose its significance as a mark.

Section 2 adds a purpose to the statute to state the legislature's intent to create a system of registration and protection substantially consistent with federal law, and provides that court interpretations of federal law should be applied when interpreting this state law.

Sections 3, 6, 9, and 12 make technical and stylistic changes.

Section 4 amends the trademark registration application process to require a statement that the mark is in use and not registered to other persons, but eliminates the requirement that the mark be in current use in this state. The Secretary of State may also require the applicant to indicate whether an application to the register the mark has filed with the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, and if so what the status of the application is. Also the Secretary may require a drawing of the mark accompany the application.

AN EQUAL OPPORTUNITY/AFFIRMATIVE ACTION EMPLOYER

Section 5 establishes a new requirement for the Secretary to examine the application for registration for conformity with the requirements of the statutes. Under this section the Secretary may request additional information, require the applicant to disclaim a nonregisterable component of the mark, and amend the application with the applicant's permission. If the Secretary finds the application is not entitled to registration, the applicant shall be so notified and allowed to amend the application or submit a new application. If the Secretary gives a final refusal to register, the applicant may seek a writ of mandamus in court. If more than one application to register the same mark is filed, priority is to be granted in the order filed.

Section 7 reduces the period of registration and renewals of registration from 10 years to 5 years. Registration of marks applied for prior to October 1, 1997 will remain valid for up to 10 years.

Section 8 provides for the filing of a certificate of name change for the owner of the registration. This section also allows for the filing of a security interest in the mark. Acknowledgment is prima facie evidence of the execution of the assignment and recordation is prima facie evidence of execution. A certified copy of an assignment, certificate of name change, or security interest shall be acceptable for recording.

Section 10 adds provisions to permit the Secretary to cancel, in whole or part, a trademark registration when a court finds the mark has become a generic name for the goods and services it was registered for, that the registration was obtained by materially false statements in the application, or the mark is so similar as to be likely to cause confusion with another mark registered in the U.S. Patent Office and the other mark has not been abandoned, unless the registrant proves they also are the owner of a mark register in the Patent Office covering an area including the entire State and that registration has not been canceled.

Section 11 eliminates the statutory classification of marks and permits the Secretary to establish classifications by rule. The Secretary may establish classes to conform with federal trademark classifications.

Section 12 provides that this act takes precedence over all other conflicting statutes and directs the Secretary to notify the General Statutes Commission of any statutory changes need to conform to this act.

The bill becomes effective October 1, 1997 and applies to acts on or after that date, but it does not affect any action pending on that date.

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases cited under the various sections below were decided under this Article as it existed prior to its revision by Session Laws 1967, c. 1007, s. 1.

Theory Underlying Trademark Law. — The law pertaining to trademarks is based upon the dual purpose of protecting the public from inferior products and protecting the reputation and profits of the inventor for the skill given to the invention of the product. Blackwell v. Wright, 73 N.C. 310 (1875), aff'd on rehearing, 74 N.C. 733 (1876).

Common Law Not Abrogated. — State statutes providing for registration of trademarks are in affirmance of the common law. Allen v. Standard Crankshaft & Hydraulic Co., 210 F. Supp. 844 (W.D.N.C. 1962), aff'd, 323 F.2d 29 (4th Cir. 1963).

Chapter Does Not Deal with Trade Names. — This chapter deals with trademarks and service marks and not trade names. Hot Shoppes, Inc. v. Hot Shoppe, Inc., 203 F. Supp. 777 (M.D.N.C. 1962).

Remedies Are Either Declaratory or Cumulative. — The remedies given by statutes providing for registration of trademarks are either declaratory or are cumulative and additional to those recognized and applied by the common law. Allen v. Standard Crankshaft & Hydraulic Co., 210 F. Supp. 844 (W.D.N.C. 1962), aff'd, 323 F.2d 29 (4th Cir. 1963).

Intangible ideas are not protectable under federal copyright or trademark law or North Carolina's trademark statute. Bank Travel Bank v. McCoy, 802 F. Supp. 1358, E.D.N.C. 1992.

Name of Town or Locality. — It seems that the name of a town or locality cannot be exclusively appropriated as a trademark. Blackwell Durham Tobacco Co. v. McElwee, 94 N.C. 425 (1886).

Use of Surname. — As a rule, a trademark cannot be taken in a surname, and any one named Bingham could start a school called the "Bingham School," in the absence of proof of intent to injure, or fraudulently attract the benefit of the good name and reputation acquired by a previously existing "Bingham School." And certainly there could be no confusion between a Bingham School at Asheville and a school even of the identically same name at Mebane, N.C. Bingham School v. Gray, 122 N.C. 699, 30 S.E. 304, 41 L.R.A. 243 (1898).

It is beyond the scope of the powers of the State legislature to establish a monopoly in a family name or to confer a patent right in its use. Bingham School v. Gray, 122 N.C. 699, 30 S.E. 304, 41 L.R.A. 243 (1898).

But one may, by contract, conclude himself from the use of his own name in a given business, and the agreement will be enforced by the courts. Zagier v. Zagier, 167 N.C. 616, 83 S.E. 913 (1914).

For a case denying a federal injunction staying a state trademark infringement case pending resolution of federal complaint alleging violations of the Sherman Antitrust Act, see W.W. Enter., Inc. v. Charlotte Motor Speedway, Inc., 753 F. Supp. 1326 (W.D.N.C. 1990).

§ 80-2. Registrability.

A mark by which the goods or services of any applicant for registration may be distinguished from the goods or services of others shall not be registered if it

(1) Consists of or comprises immoral, deceptive or scandalous matter; or

(2) Consists of or comprises matter which may disparage or falsely suggest a connection with persons, living or dead, institutions, beliefs, or national symbols, or bring them into contempt, or disrepute; or

(3) Consists of or comprises the flag or coat of arms or other insignia of the United States, or of any state or municipality, or of any foreign nation, or any simulation thereof; or
(4) Consists of or comprises the name, signature or portrait of any living individual, except with his written consent; or
(5) Consists of a mark which (i) when applied to the goods or services of the applicant, is merely descriptive of them or merely describes one or more of the characteristics, or is deceptively misdescriptive of them, or falsely describes the nature, function, capacity, or characteristics of them, or (ii) when applied to the goods or services of the applicant, is primarily geographically descriptive or deceptively misdescriptive of them, or (iii) is primarily merely a surname; provided, however, that nothing in this subdivision (5) shall prevent the registration of a mark used in this State by the applicant which has become distinctive of the applicant's goods or services. The Secretary of State may accept as evidence that the mark has become distinctive, as applied to the applicant's goods or services, proof of continuous use thereof as a mark by the applicant in this State or elsewhere for the five years preceding the date of the filing of the application for registration; or
(6) Consists of or comprises a mark which so resembles a mark registered in this State or a mark or trade name previously used in this State by another and not abandoned, as to be likely, when applied to the goods or services of the applicant, to cause confusion or mistake or to deceive. (1903, c. 271; Rev., ss. 3012, 3017; C.S., ss. 3971, 3976; 1941, c. 255, s. 1; 1967, c. 1007, s. 1; 1991, c. 626, s. 2.)

§ 80-3. Application for registration.

Subject to the limitations set forth in this Article, any person who uses a mark, or any person who controls the nature and quality of the goods or services in connection with which a mark is used by another, in this State may file in the office of the Secretary of State in a format to be prescribed by the Secretary of State, an application for registration of that mark setting forth, but not limited to, the following information:

(1) The name and business address of the person applying for such registration; and, if a corporation, the state of incorporation. If the application for registration relates to a mark used in connection with goods, the applicant shall list either the address of the applicant's principal place of business in North Carolina or a place of distribution and usage of such goods in this State. If the application for registration relates to a mark used in connection with services, the applicant shall list a physical location at which the services are being rendered or offered in this State;
(2) The goods or services in connection with which the mark is used and the mode or manner in which the mark is used in connection with such goods or services and the class in which such goods or services fall;
(3) The date when the mark was first used anywhere and the date when it was first used in this State by the applicant, his predecessor in business or by another under such control of applicant; and

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO AMEND THE LAW GOVERNING THE PRACTICE OF LAW BY ATTORNEYS REPRESENTING CORPORATIONS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 84-5 reads as rewritten:

"§ 84-5. Prohibition as to practice of law by corporation.

(a) It shall be unlawful for any corporation to practice law or appear as an attorney for any person in any court in this State, or before any judicial body or the North Carolina Industrial Commission, Utilities Commission, or the Employment Security Commission, or hold itself out to the public or advertise as being entitled to practice law; and no corporation shall organize corporations, or draw agreements, or other legal documents, or draw wills, or practice law, or give legal advice, or hold itself out in any manner as being entitled to do any of the foregoing acts, by or through any person orally or by advertisement, letter or circular. The provisions of this section shall be in addition to and not in lieu of any other provisions of Chapter 84. Provided, that nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a banking corporation authorized and licensed to act in a fiduciary capacity from performing any clerical, accounting, financial or business acts required of it in the performance of its duties as a fiduciary or from performing ministerial and clerical acts in the preparation and filing of such tax returns as are so required, or from discussing the business and financial aspects of fiduciary relationships. Provided, however, this section shall not apply to corporations authorized to practice law under the provisions of Chapter 55B of the General Statutes of North Carolina.

To further clarify the foregoing provisions of this section as they apply to corporations which are authorized and licensed to act in a fiduciary capacity:

(1) A corporation authorized and licensed to act in a fiduciary capacity shall not:

a. Draw wills or trust instruments; provided that this shall not be construed to prohibit an employee of such corporation from conferring and cooperating with an attorney who is not a salaried employee of the corporation, at the request of such attorney, in connection with the attorney's performance of services for a client who desires to appoint the corporation executor or trustee or otherwise to utilize the fiduciary services of the corporation.

b. Give legal advice or legal counsel, orally or written, to any customer or prospective customer or to any person who is considering renunciation of the right to qualify as executor or administrator or who proposes to resign as guardian or trustee, or to any other person, firm or corporation.

c. Advertise to perform any of the acts prohibited herein; solicit to perform any of the acts prohibited herein; or offer to perform any of the acts prohibited herein.

(2) ~~When~~ Except as provided in subsection (b) of this section, when any of the following acts are to be performed in connection with the fiduciary activities of such a corporation, said acts shall be performed for the corporation by a duly licensed attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained to perform legal services required in connection with the particular estate, trust or other fiduciary matter:

a. Offering wills for probate.

b. Preparing and publishing notice of administration to creditors.

c. Handling formal court proceedings.

d. Drafting legal papers or giving legal advice to spouses concerning dissent from their spouses' wills.

e. Resolving questions of domicile and residence of a decedent.

f. Handling proceedings involving year's allowances of widows and children.

g. Drafting deeds, notes, deeds of trust, leases, options and other contracts.

h. Drafting instruments releasing deeds of trust.

i. Drafting assignments of rent.

j. Drafting any formal legal document to be used in the discharge of the corporate fiduciary's duty.

k. In matters involving estate and inheritance taxes, gift taxes, and federal and State income taxes:

1. Preparing and filing protests or claims for refund, except requests for a refund based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
2. Conferring with tax authorities regarding protests or claims for refund, except those based on mathematical or clerical errors in tax returns filed by it as a fiduciary.
3. Handling petitions to the tax court.

l. Performing legal services in insolvency proceedings or before a referee in bankruptcy or in court.

m. In connection with the administration of an estate or trust:
1. Making application for letters testamentary or letters of administration.
2. Abstracting or passing upon title to property.
3. Handling litigation relating to claims by or against the estate or trust.
4. Handling foreclosure proceedings of deeds of trust or other security instruments which are in default.

(3) When any of the following acts are to be performed in connection with the fiduciary activities of such a corporation, the corporation shall comply with the following:

a. The initial opening and inventorying of safe deposit boxes in connection with the administration of an estate for which the corporation is executor or administrator shall be handled by, or with the advice of, an attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained by the corporation to perform legal services required in connection with that particular estate.

b. The furnishing of a beneficiary with applicable portions of a testator's will relating to such beneficiary shall, if accompanied by any legal advice or opinion, be handled by, or with the advice of, an attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained by the corporation to perform legal services required in connection with that particular estate or matter.

c. In matters involving estate and inheritance taxes and federal and State income taxes, the corporation shall not execute waivers of statutes of limitations without the advice of an attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained by the corporation to perform legal services in connection with that particular estate or matter.

d. An attorney, not a salaried employee of the corporation, retained by the corporation to perform legal services required in connection with an estate or trust shall be furnished copies of inventories and accounts proposed for filing with any court and proposed federal estate and North Carolina inheritance tax returns and, on request, copies of proposed income and intangibles tax returns, and shall be afforded an opportunity to advise and counsel the corporate fiduciary concerning them prior to filing.

(b) Nothing in this section shall prohibit an attorney retained by a corporation, whether or not the attorney is also a salaried employee of the corporation, from representing the corporation or an affiliate, or from representing an officer, director, or employee of the corporation or an affiliate in any matter arising in connection with the course and scope of the employment of the officer, director, or employee."

Section 2. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to acts from which claims, demands, or actions arise on or after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Representative Charles B. Neely, Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Susan L. Hayes and O. Walker Reagan, Staff Attorneys

RE: SENATE BILL 896 - LEGAL REPRESENTATION OF CORPORATIONS - Senator Rand

Senate Bill 896 clarifies the prohibition against corporations practicing law to make it clear that an attorney retained or employed by a corporation is not prohibited from representing the corporation or any of its officers for claims arising out of the scope and course of their work for the corporation.

The bill amends G.S. 84-5 which prohibits corporations from practicing law and clarifies what types of representation are permitted by corporations. The bill adds a new subsection which clarifies that the prohibition against a corporation practicing law does not apply to an attorney retained or employed by a corporation to represent the corporation or an affiliate, or an officer, director, or employee of the corporation in matters arising in connection with the course and scope of employment of the officer, director, or employee.

The bill becomes effective October 1, 1997 and applies to acts from which claims, demands, or actions arise on or after that date.

SENATE BILL 892

Short Title: Dissenters' Rights. (Public)

Sponsors: Senator Soles.

Referred to: Commerce.

April 16, 1997

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO LIMIT THE RIGHT OF CERTAIN SHAREHOLDERS TO DISSENT FROM CORPORATE ACTIONS AND TO AMEND THE LAW GOVERNING OFFERS OF PAYMENT TO DISSENTERS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 55-13-02 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, there shall be no right of dissent in favor of holders of shares of any class or series which, at the record date fixed to determine the shareholders entitled to receive notice of and to vote at the meeting at which the plan of merger or share exchange or the sale or exchange of property is to be acted on, were (i) listed on a national securities exchange or (ii) held by at least 2,000 record shareholders, unless in either case:

(1) The articles of incorporation of the corporation issuing the shares provide otherwise;

(2) In the case of a plan of merger or share exchange, the holders of the class or series are required under the plan of merger or share exchange to accept for the shares anything except:

a. Cash;

b. Shares, or shares and cash in lieu of fractional shares of the surviving or acquiring corporation, or of any other corporation which, at the record date fixed to determine the shareholders entitled to receive notice of and vote at the meeting at which the plan of merger or share exchange is to be acted on, were either listed subject to notice of issuance on a national securities exchange or held of record by at least 2,000 record shareholders; or

c. A combination of cash and shares as set forth in sub-subdivisions a. and b. of this subdivision."

Section 2. G.S. 55-13-25 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-25. Offer of payment.

(a) As soon as the proposed corporate action is taken, or ~~upon~~ within 30 days after receipt of a payment demand, the corporation shall offer to pay each dissenter who complied with G.S. 55-13-23 the amount the corporation estimates to be the fair value of his shares, plus interest accrued to the date of ~~payment, and shall pay this amount to each dissenter who agrees in writing to accept it in full satisfaction of his demand.~~ payment.

(b) The ~~offer of~~ payment ~~must~~ shall be accompanied by:

(1) The corporation's most recent available balance sheet as of the end of a fiscal year ending not more than 16 months before the date of offer of payment, an income statement for that year, a statement of cash flows for that year, and the latest available interim financial statements, if any;

(2) ~~A statement of the corporation's estimate of~~ An explanation of how the corporation estimated the fair value of the shares;

(3) An explanation of how the interest was calculated;

(4) A statement of the dissenter's right to demand payment under G.S. 55-13-28; and

(5) A copy of this Article."

Section 3. G.S. 55-13-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-30. Court action.

(a) If a demand for payment under G.S. 55-13-28 remains unsettled, the dissenter may commence a proceeding within 60 days after the earlier of (i) the date ~~of his~~ payment ~~demand~~ is made under ~~G.S. 55-13-28~~ G.S. 55-13-25, or (ii) the date of the dissenter's payment demand under G.S. 55-13-28 and petition the court to determine the fair value of the shares and accrued interest. ~~Upon service upon it of the petition filed with the court, the corporation shall pay to the dissenter the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25.~~ A dissenter who takes no action within the 60-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

~~(a1) If the dissenter does not commence the proceeding within the 60-day period, the dissenter shall have an additional 30 days to either (i) accept in writing the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25, upon which the corporation shall pay such amount to the dissenter in full satisfaction of his demand, or (ii) withdraw his demand for payment and resume the status of a nondissenting shareholder. A dissenter who takes no action within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.~~

(b) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(c) The court shall have the discretion to make all dissenters (whether or not residents of this State) whose demands remain unsettled parties to the proceeding as in an action against their shares and all parties must be served with a copy of the petition. Nonresidents may be served by registered or certified mail or by publication as provided by law.

(d) The jurisdiction of the court in which the proceeding is commenced under subsection (b) is plenary and exclusive. The court may appoint one or more persons as appraisers to receive evidence and recommend decision on the question of fair value. The appraisers have the powers described in the order appointing them, or in any amendment to it. The parties are entitled to the same discovery rights as parties in other civil proceedings. However, in a proceeding by a dissenter in a public corporation, there is no right to a trial by jury.

(e) Each dissenter made a party to the proceeding is entitled to judgment for the amount, if any, by which the court finds the fair value of his shares, plus interest, exceeds the amount paid by the corporation."

Section 4. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to corporate actions to which shareholders may dissent occurring on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO LIMIT THE RIGHT OF CERTAIN SHAREHOLDERS TO DISSENT FROM CORPORATE ACTIONS AND TO AMEND THE LAW GOVERNING OFFERS OF PAYMENT TO DISSENTERS.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. G.S. 55-13-02 is amended by adding a new subsection to read:

"(c) Notwithstanding any other provision of this Article, there shall be no right of dissent in favor of holders of shares of any class or series which, at the record date fixed to determine the shareholders entitled to receive notice of and to vote at the meeting at which the plan of merger or share exchange or the sale or exchange of property is to be acted on, were (i) listed on a national securities exchange or (ii) held by at least 2,000 record shareholders, unless in either case:

(1) The articles of incorporation of the corporation issuing the shares provide otherwise;

(2) In the case of a plan of merger or share exchange, the holders of the class or series are required under the plan of merger or share exchange to accept for the shares anything except:

a. Cash;

b. Shares, or shares and cash in lieu of fractional shares of the surviving or acquiring corporation, or of any other corporation which, at the record date fixed to determine the shareholders entitled to receive notice of and vote at the meeting at which the plan of merger or share exchange is to be acted on, were either listed subject to notice of issuance on a national securities exchange or held of record by at least 2,000 record shareholders; or

c. A combination of cash and shares as set forth in sub-subdivisions a. and b. of this subdivision."

Section 2. G.S. 55-13-25 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-25. ~~Offer of payment.~~ Payment.

(a) As soon as the proposed corporate action is taken, or ~~upon~~ within 30 days after receipt of a payment demand, the corporation shall ~~offer to~~ pay each dissenter who complied with G.S. 55-13-23 the amount the corporation estimates to be the fair value of his shares, plus interest accrued to the date of ~~payment, and shall pay this amount to each dissenter who agrees in writing to accept it in full satisfaction of his demand.~~ payment.

(b) The ~~offer of~~ payment ~~must~~ shall be accompanied by:

(1) The corporation's most recent available balance sheet as of the end of a fiscal year ending not more than 16 months before the date of ~~offer of~~ payment, an income statement for that year, a statement of cash flows for that year, and the latest available interim financial statements, if any;

(2) ~~A statement of the corporation's estimate of~~ An explanation of how the corporation estimated the fair value of the shares;

(3) An explanation of how the interest was calculated;

(4) A statement of the dissenter's right to demand payment under G.S. 55-13-28; and

(5) A copy of this Article."

Section 3. G.S. 55-13-28 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-28. Procedure if shareholder dissatisfied with corporation's ~~offer~~ payment or failure to perform.

(a) A dissenter may notify the corporation in writing of his own estimate of the fair value of his shares and amount of interest due, and demand payment of the amount in excess of the payment by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25 for ~~his estimate or reject the corporation's offer under G.S. 55-13-25 and demand payment of~~ the fair value of his shares and interest due, if:

(1) The dissenter believes that the amount ~~offered~~ paid under G.S. 55-13-25 is less than the fair value of his shares or that the interest due is incorrectly calculated;

(2) The corporation fails to make payment ~~to a dissenter who accepts the corporation's offer~~ under ~~G.S. 55-13-25 within 30 days after the dissenter's acceptance;~~ G.S. 55-13-25; or

(3) The corporation, having failed to take the proposed action, does not return the deposited certificates or release the transfer restrictions imposed on uncertificated shares within 60 days after the date set for demanding payment.

(b) A dissenter waives his right to demand payment under this section unless he notifies the corporation of his demand in writing (i) under subdivision (a)(1) within 30 days after the corporation ~~offered~~ made payment for his shares or (ii) under subdivisions (a)(2) and (a)(3) within 30 days after the corporation has failed to perform timely. A dissenter who fails to notify the corporation of his demand under subsection (a) within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

Section 4. G.S. 55-13-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-30. Court action.

(a) If a demand for payment under G.S. 55-13-28 remains unsettled, the dissenter may commence a proceeding within 60 days after the earlier of (i) the date ~~of his~~ payment ~~demand~~ is made under ~~G.S. 55-13-28~~ G.S. 55-13-25, or (ii) the date of the dissenter's payment demand under G.S. 55-13-28 and petition the court to determine the fair value of the shares and accrued interest. ~~Upon service upon it of the petition filed with the court, the corporation shall pay to the dissenter the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25.~~ A dissenter who takes no action within the 60-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

~~(a1) If the dissenter does not commence the proceeding within the 60-day period, the dissenter shall have an additional 30 days to either (i) accept in writing the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25, upon which the corporation shall pay such amount to the dissenter in full satisfaction of his demand, or (ii) withdraw his demand for payment and resume the status of a nondissenting shareholder. A dissenter who takes no action within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.~~

(b) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(c) The court shall have the discretion to make all dissenters (whether or not residents of this State) whose demands remain unsettled parties to the proceeding as in an action against their shares and all parties must be served with a copy of the petition. Nonresidents may be served by registered or certified mail or by publication as provided by law.

(d) The jurisdiction of the court in which the proceeding is commenced under subsection (b) is plenary and exclusive. The court may appoint one or more persons as appraisers to receive evidence and recommend decision on the question of fair value. c. A combination of cash and shares as set forth in sub-subdivisions a. and b. of this subdivision."

Section 2. G.S. 55-13-25 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-25. ~~Offer of payment.~~ Payment.

(a) As soon as the proposed corporate action is taken, or ~~upon~~ within 30 days after receipt of a payment demand, the corporation shall ~~offer to~~ pay each dissenter who complied with G.S. 55-13-23 the amount the corporation estimates to be the fair value of his shares, plus interest accrued to the date of ~~payment, and shall pay this amount to each dissenter who agrees in writing to accept it in full satisfaction of his demand.~~ payment.

(b) The ~~offer of~~ payment ~~must~~ shall be accompanied by:

(1) The corporation's most recent available balance sheet as of the end of a fiscal year ending not more than 16 months before the date of ~~offer of~~ payment, an income statement for that year, a statement of cash flows for that year, and the latest available interim financial statements, if any;

(2) ~~A statement of the corporation's estimate of~~ An explanation of how the corporation estimated the fair value of the shares;

(3) An explanation of how the interest was calculated;

(4) A statement of the dissenter's right to demand payment under G.S. 55-13-28; and

(5) A copy of this Article."

Section 3. G.S. 55-13-28 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-28. Procedure if shareholder dissatisfied with corporation's ~~offer~~ payment or failure to perform.

(a) A dissenter may notify the corporation in writing of his own estimate of the fair value of his shares and amount of interest due, and demand payment of the amount in excess of the payment by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25 for ~~his estimate or reject the corporation's offer under G.S. 55-13-25 and demand payment of~~ the fair value of his shares and interest due, if:

(1) The dissenter believes that the amount ~~offered~~ paid under G.S. 55-13-25 is less than the fair value of his shares or that the interest due is incorrectly calculated;

(2) The corporation fails to make payment ~~to a dissenter who accepts the corporation's offer~~ under ~~G.S. 55-13-25 within 30 days after the dissenter's acceptance;~~ G.S. 55-13-25; or

(3) The corporation, having failed to take the proposed action, does not return the deposited certificates or release the transfer restrictions imposed on uncertificated shares within 60 days after the date set for demanding payment.

(b) A dissenter waives his right to demand payment under this section unless he notifies the corporation of his demand in writing (i) under subdivision (a)(1) within 30 days after the corporation ~~offered~~ made payment for his shares or (ii) under subdivisions (a)(2) and (a)(3) within 30 days after the corporation has failed to perform timely. A dissenter who fails to notify the corporation of his demand under subsection (a) within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment."

Section 4. G.S. 55-13-30 reads as rewritten:

"§ 55-13-30. Court action.

(a) If a demand for payment under G.S. 55-13-28 remains unsettled, the dissenter may commence a proceeding within 60 days after the earlier of (i) the date ~~of his~~ payment ~~demand~~ is made under ~~G.S. 55-13-28~~ G.S. 55-13-25, or (ii) the date of the dissenter's payment demand under G.S. 55-13-28 and petition the court to determine the fair value of the shares and accrued interest. ~~Upon service upon it of the petition filed with the court, the corporation shall pay to the dissenter the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25.~~ A dissenter who takes no action within the 60-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.

~~(a1) If the dissenter does not commence the proceeding within the 60-day period, the dissenter shall have an additional 30 days to either (i) accept in writing the amount offered by the corporation under G.S. 55-13-25, upon which the corporation shall pay such amount to the dissenter in full satisfaction of his demand, or (ii) withdraw his demand for payment and resume the status of a nondissenting shareholder. A dissenter who takes no action within such 30-day period shall be deemed to have withdrawn his dissent and demand for payment.~~

(b) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(c) The court shall have the discretion to make all dissenters (whether or not residents of this State) whose demands remain unsettled parties to the proceeding as in an action against their shares and all parties must be served with a copy of the petition. Nonresidents may be served by registered or certified mail or by publication as provided by law.

(d) The jurisdiction of the court in which the proceeding is commenced under subsection (b) is plenary and exclusive. The court may appoint one or more persons as appraisers to receive evidence and recommend decision on the question of fair value. The appraisers have the powers described in the order appointing them, or in any amendment to it. The parties are entitled to the same discovery rights as parties in other civil proceedings. However, in a proceeding by a dissenter in a public corporation, there is no right to a trial by jury.

(e) Each dissenter made a party to the proceeding is entitled to judgment for the amount, if any, by which the court finds the fair value of his shares, plus interest, exceeds the amount paid by the corporation."

Section 5. This act becomes effective October 1, 1997, and applies to corporate actions to which shareholders may dissent occurring on or after that date.

A BILL TO BE ENTITLED

AN ACT TO PROTECT CONSUMERS BY REQUIRING CONTRACTS FOR THE RENTAL OF SELF-SERVICE STORAGE TO CLEARLY STATE THE TERMS REGARDING THE IMPOSITION OF LATE FEES AND TO LIMIT THE RATE OF LATE FEES.

The General Assembly of North Carolina enacts:

Section 1. Chapter 66 of the General Statutes is amended by adding a new Article to read:

"ARTICLE 32.

"Self-Service Storage Rental Agreements.

"§ 66-250. Definitions.

The definitions set forth in Article 4 of Chapter 44A of the General Statutes apply to this Article.

"§ 66-251. Contract requirements.

The rental agreement for the storage of personal property in a self-service storage facility shall provide in bold type that is conspicuously placed near the top of the page of the front page of the contract, the terms regarding the imposition of late fees. Any oral or written declaration or instrument that purports to alter these terms is void.

"§ 66-252. Late fees.

(a) In all rental agreements in which a definite time for the payment of the rent is fixed, the late fee shall not exceed fifteen dollars ($15.00) or five percent (5%) of the rental payment, whichever is greater, and shall not be imposed by the owner until the rental payment is 10 days or more late.

(b) A late fee under this section may be imposed only one time for each late rental payment. A late fee for a specific late rental payment shall not be deducted from a subsequent rental payment so as to cause the subsequent rental payment to be in default.

(c) Any provision of a rental agreement contrary to the provisions of this section is against the public policy of this State and is void and unenforceable."

Section 2. This act is effective when it becomes law and applies to rental agreements for self-service storage entered into on or after that date.

MEMORANDUM

TO: Rep. Charles B. Neely, Jr., Chairman
House Judiciary II Committee

FROM: Tim Hovis, Committee Counsel

RE: House Bill 1084—Self-Serve Storage Late Fees (Leubke)

House Bill 1084 adds a new Article 32 to Chapter 66 of the General Statutes governing Self-Service Storage Rental Agreements.

The Article would require a rental agreement for the storage of personal property in a self-service storage facility to provide in bold type at the top of the agreement the terms regarding the imposition of late fees. An oral or written declaration altering the terms of the late fees is void.

The bill also prohibits late fees from exceeding $15.00 or 5% of the rental payment, whichever is greater, and does not allow the imposition of such fees unless the rental payment is 10 days or more late. A late fee may only be imposed one time for each late payment and may not be deducted from subsequent rental payments causing the subsequent payment to be in default also.

House Bill 1084 is effective when it becomes law and applies to agreements entered into on or after that date.
