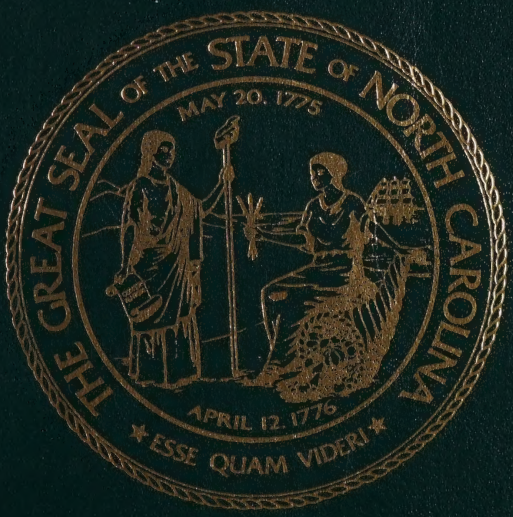
General Statutes of North Carolina

ANNOTATED



2001 EDITION

GENERAL STATUTES OF NORTH CAROLINA

ANNOTATED

Volume 8

Chapters 48A Through 55A

Prepared Under the Supervision of
THE DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE OF THE STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA by the Editorial Staff of the Publisher

LexisNexis™

QUESTIONS ABOUT THIS PUBLICATION?

For EDITORIAL QUESTIONS concerning this publication, or REPRINT PERMISSION, please call:

800-833-9844

For CUSTOMER SERVICE ASSISTANCE concerning replacement pages, shipments, billing or other matters, please call:

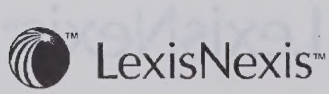
Customer Service Department at	800-833-9844
Outside the United States and Canada	518-487-3000
FAX	518-487-3584

For INFORMATION ON OTHER MATTHEW BENDER PUBLICATIONS, please call:

Your account manager or	800-223-1940
Outside the United States and Canada	518-487-3000

4537210 (hardbound volume)
4535010 (hardbound set)
4640512 (softbound set)

ISBN 0-8205-9523-3 (hardbound volume)
ISBN 0-8205-9515-2 (hardbound set)
ISBN 0-327-15351-2 (softbound set)



Matthew Bender & Company, Inc.
P.O Box 7587, Charlottesville, VA 22906-7587

www.lexis.com

Preface

This volume contains the general laws of a permanent nature enacted by the General Assembly through the 2001 Regular Session that are within Chapters 48A through 55A, and brings to date the annotations included therein.

A majority of the Session Laws are made effective upon becoming law, but a few provide for stated effective dates. If the Session Law makes no provision for an effective date, the law becomes effective under G.S. 120-20 "from and after 60 days after the adjournment of the session" in which passed.

A ready reference index is included at the back of this volume. This index is intended to give the user a quick reference to larger bodies of statutes within this volume only. For detailed research on any subject, both within this volume and the General Statutes as a whole, see the General Index to the General Statutes.

Beginning with formal opinions issued by the North Carolina Attorney General on July 1, 1969, selected opinions which construe a specific statute are cited in the annotations to that statute. For a copy of an opinion or of its headnotes, write the Attorney General, P.O. Box 629, Raleigh, N.C. 27602.

This recompiled volume has been prepared and published under the supervision of the Department of Justice of the State of North Carolina. The members of the North Carolina Bar are requested to communicate any suggestions they may have for improving the General Statutes to the Department, or to LexisNexis, Charlottesville, Virginia.

ROY COOPER
Attorney General

Scope of Volume

Statutes:

Permanent portions of the General Laws enacted by the General Assembly through the 2001 Regular Session affecting Chapters 48A through 55A of the General Statutes.

Annotations:

This publication contains annotations taken from decisions of the North Carolina Supreme Court posted on LEXIS through October 5, 2001, decisions of the North Carolina Court of Appeals posted on LEXIS through October 16, 2001, and decisions of the appropriate federal courts posted through September 10, 2001. These cases will be printed in the following reporters:

South Eastern Reporter 2nd Series.
Federal Reporter 3rd Series.
Federal Supplement 2nd Series.
Federal Rules Decisions.
Bankruptcy Reports.
Supreme Court Reporter.

Additionally, annotations have been taken from the following sources:

North Carolina Law Review through Volume 79, no. 4, p. 1201.
Wake Forest Law Review through Volume 36, Pamphlet No. 1, p. 215.
Campbell Law Review through Volume 22, no. 2, p. 447.
Duke Law Journal through Volume 49, no. 2, p. 599.
North Carolina Central Law Journal through Volume 23, no. 1, p. 83.
Opinions of the Attorney General.

User's Guide

In order to assist both the legal profession and the layperson in obtaining the maximum benefit from the North Carolina General Statutes, a User's Guide has been included in Volume 1. This guide contains comments and information on the many features found within the General Statutes intended to increase the usefulness of this set of laws to the user. See Volume 1 for the complete User's Guide.

Abbreviations

(The abbreviations below are those found in the General Statutes that refer to prior codes.)

P.R.	Potter's Revisal (1821, 1827)
R.S.	Revised Statutes (1837)
R.C.	Revised Code (1854)
C.C.P.	Code of Civil Procedure (1868)
Code	Code (1883)
Rev.	Revisal of 1905
C.S.	Consolidated Statutes (1919, 1924)

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA

DEPARTMENT OF JUSTICE

Raleigh, North Carolina

April 1, 2002

I, Roy Cooper, Attorney General of North Carolina, do hereby certify that the foregoing 2001 Replacement Code to the General Statutes of North Carolina was prepared and published by LexisNexis under the supervision of the Department of Justice of the State of North Carolina.

ROY COOPER

Attorney General of North Carolina

Table of Contents

For complete listing of chapters set out in the North Carolina General Statutes, see the Table of Contents included in Volume 1.

VOLUME 8

Chapter 48A.

Minors.

§ 48A-1. Common-law definition of "minor" abrogated.

The common-law definition of minor insofar as it pertains to the age of the minor is hereby repealed and abrogated. (1971, c. 585, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "The Contracts of Minors Viewed from the Perspective of Fair Exchange," see 50 N.C.L. Rev. 517 (1972).

For survey of 1972 caselaw on child support and pre-Chapter 48A consent judgments, see 51 N.C.L. Rev. 1091 (1973).

CASE NOTES

"Minor" Now Refers to Age Under 18. — When this section, which repeals the common-law definition of minor, is construed with § 48A-2, the effect is that wherever the term "minor," "minor child" or "minor children" is used in a statute, the statute now refers to age 18. Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 314, 188 S.E.2d 897 (1972).

Majority or minority is a status rather than a fixed or vested right. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

There is no vested property right in the personal privileges of infancy. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

Effect of Change from Minority to Majority. — Change from minority to majority in legal effect means that legal disabilities designed to protect the child are removed. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

A person who has reached his majority is entitled to the management of his own affairs and to the enjoyment of civic rights. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

Applied in Choate v. Choate, 15 N.C. App. 89, 189 S.E.2d 647 (1972); Taylor v. Taylor, 17 N.C. App. 720, 195 S.E.2d 355 (1973).

Quoted in State v. Jackson, 280 N.C. 563, 187 S.E.2d 27 (1972); White v. White, 25 N.C. App. 150, 212 S.E.2d 511 (1975).

Stated in Hall v. Wake County Bd. of Elections, 280 N.C. 600, 187 S.E.2d 52 (1972).

Cited in White v. White, 289 N.C. 592, 223 S.E.2d 377 (1976); Gates v. Gates, 69 N.C. App. 421, 317 S.E.2d 402 (1984); In re Estate of Lunsford, 143 N.C. App. 646, 547 S.E.2d 483 (2001), cert. granted, 353 N.C. 727, 550 S.E.2d 779 (2001).

§ 48A-2. Age of minors.

A minor is any person who has not reached the age of 18 years. (1971, c. 585, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "The Contracts of Minors Viewed from the Perspective of Fair Exchange," see 50 N.C.L. Rev. 517 (1972).

CASE NOTES

The legislature alone has power to determine the age at which one reaches his majority, becomes emancipated, and acquires the right to manage his own affairs free from parental control. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

"Minor" Now Refers to Age Under 18. — When § 48A-1, which repeals the common-law definition of minor, is construed with this section, the effect is that wherever the term "minor," "minor child" or "minor children" is used in a statute, the statute now refers to age 18. Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 314, 188 S.E.2d 897 (1972).

Contract by Minor for Automobile Liability Insurance. — Under this section and by negative implication of § 20-279.1, a person under the age of 18 is a minor for purposes of his contracts relating to automobile liability insurance. As such, if the contract of a minor for automobile liability insurance is not considered a necessity, it may be avoided by him at any time before he reaches his majority or within a reasonable time thereafter. Nationwide Mut. Ins. Co. v. Chantos, 25 N.C. App. 482, 214 S.E.2d 438, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 465, 215 S.E.2d 624 (1975).

Legal Obligation of Support. — After the enactment of this section, parent's legal obligation to support his child ends at age 18, absent a showing that the child is insolvent, unmarried and physically or mentally incapable of earning a livelihood. Nolan v. Nolan, 20 N.C. App. 550, 202 S.E.2d 344, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 234, 204 S.E.2d 24 (1974); Ramsey v. Todd, 25 N.C. App. 605, 214 S.E.2d 307 (1975).

Order, etc., Providing for Support Until Age of Majority, etc. — Nothing else showing, where an order of the court for support entered prior to the effective date of this section provides for support of the children until the age of majority, maturity or emancipation, it has been interpreted, in light of this section, to impose the legal obligation of support only to the child's eighteenth birthday. Harding v. Harding, 29 N.C. App. 633, 225 S.E.2d 590, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 661, 228 S.E.2d 452 (1976).

A father's legal liability for the support of his son, who was born on January 13, 1953, by reason of a consent judgment dated June 11, 1970, providing that payments for child support shall continue until such time as said minor child reaches his majority or is otherwise emancipated, does not continue until the son becomes 21 years of age. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

A consent judgment providing for child support payments until majority or emancipation, entered into when the common-law definition controlled, could not be enforced if the child had reached 18 after the effective date of this Chapter. Gates v. Gates, 69 N.C. App. 421, 317 S.E.2d 402 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 620, 323 S.E.2d 920 (1985).

Where judgment did not specify the duration of time that plaintiff would have to support his children, it would appear that his obligation would continue for the period provided by law. Ramsey v. Todd, 25 N.C. App. 605, 214 S.E.2d 307 (1975).

A parent may by contract assume an obligation to his child greater than the law otherwise imposes, and by contract bind himself to support his child after emancipation and past majority. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 25 N.C. App. 235, 212 S.E.2d 911 (1975).

As to the right of parents to assume contractual obligations to provide more support than the law requires, see Gates v. Gates, 69 N.C. App. 421, 317 S.E.2d 402 (1984), aff'd, 312 N.C. 620, 323 S.E.2d 920 (1985).

And Court May Enforce Consent Order for Child Support Beyond Age of Majority. — A court may enforce by contempt proceedings its order, entered by consent, that child support payments be made beyond the time for which there is a duty to provide support. White v. White, 289 N.C. 592, 223 S.E.2d 377 (1976).

Procedure for Changing Support When Child Reaches Age 18. — A husband had no authority to unilaterally attempt his own modification of child support payments upon one of his children reaching the age of 18, and being no longer a "minor" under this section, even though the support order directed the husband to pay support for "his two minor children...." The proper procedure for the husband to follow would have been to apply to the trial court for relief pursuant to § 50-13.7. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Applied in Shaw v. Shaw, 25 N.C. App. 53, 212 S.E.2d 222 (1975); Loer v. Loer, 31 N.C. App. 150, 228 S.E.2d 473 (1976).

Quoted in State v. Jackson, 280 N.C. 563, 187 S.E.2d 27 (1972); White v. White, 25 N.C. App. 150, 212 S.E.2d 511 (1975).

Stated in Hall v. Wake County Bd. of Elections, 280 N.C. 600, 187 S.E.2d 52 (1972); Pieper v. Pieper, 90 N.C. App. 405, 368 S.E.2d 422 (1988).

Cited in Shaffner v. Shaffner, 36 N.C. App. 586, 244 S.E.2d 444 (1978); Williams v. Williams, 97 N.C. App. 118, 387 S.E.2d 217 (1990); Ballard v. Weast, 121 N.C. App. 391, 465 S.E.2d 565 (1996); In re Estate of Lunsford, 143 N.C. App. 646, 547 S.E.2d 483 (2001), cert. granted, 353 N.C. 727, 550 S.E.2d 779 (2001).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

"Minor" Includes "Infant" Within Context of Requirement That Guardianships Be Maintained for Infants (to Age 18). — See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. Fred P. Parker, Jr., 41 N.C.A.G. 450 (1971).

Person 18 Years Old May Be Deputy or Assistant Register of Deeds. — See opinion of Attorney General to Christine William Davis, 41 N.C.A.G. 476 (1971).

§ 48A-3. Statute of limitations; applicability.

For purposes of determining the applicability of the statute of limitations which has been tolled because of minority or for purposes of determining the applicable period of time for disaffirmance of a contract of a minor upon reaching majority, because of a change in applicable law occasioned by enactment of this Chapter or Chapter 1231 of the 1971 Session Laws, the following rules shall apply:

(1) For those persons who were 21 on the effective date of applicable law, limitations shall apply as they would prior to amendment;

(2) For those persons 18 years of age but not 21 on the effective date of applicable law, any time periods for disaffirmance or application of the statute of limitations shall run from the effective date of this Chapter, to wit, July 5, 1971.

(3) For those persons not yet 18, any time periods for disaffirmance or application of the statute of limitations shall run from the person's reaching age 18. (1971, c. 1231, s. 3.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "The Contracts of Minors Viewed from the Perspective of Fair Exchange," see 50 N.C.L. Rev. 517 (1972).

Chapter 49.

Bastardy.

Article 1.

Support of Illegitimate Children.

Sec.

Sec.

Article 2.

Legitimation of Illegitimate Children.

Article 3.

Civil Actions Regarding Illegitimate Children.

Article 1.

Support of Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-1. Title.

This Article shall be referred to as "An act concerning the support of children of parents not married to each other." (1933, c. 228, s. 11.)

Cross References. — As to the duty of special county attorneys to assist with the preparation and prosecution of proceedings authorized by this Chapter, see § 108A-18(a)(5).

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on this Article, see 28 N.C.L. Rev. 119 (1950).

For note on illegitimacy in North Carolina, see 46 N.C.L. Rev. 813 (1968).

For 1984 survey, "Intestate Succession of Illegitimate Children in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1274 (1985).

For article, "Surrogate Parenthood: Finding a North Carolina Solution," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1989).

CASE NOTES

"Parents". — The word "parents" in this section and the word "parent" in § 49-2 relate to the rights and duties of parents in respect to their children and are in pari materia. Dellinger v. Bollinger, 242 N.C. 696, 89 S.E.2d 592 (1955).

Defendants' Plea of Guilty to Criminal Charge of Nonsupport Established Paternity. — Court of Appeals determination, as to whether defendant's 1974 plea of guilty to criminal charge of nonsupport must be given collateral estoppel effect, was unnecessary; uncontroverted evidence of defendant's plea of guilty to a criminal charge of nonsupport of minor child was sufficient to establish paternity so as to bring defendant within the definition of "responsible parent" under § 110-129. Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

Stated in State v. Dill, 224 N.C. 57, 29 S.E.2d 145 (1944); State v. Sharpe, 234 N.C. 154, 66 S.E.2d 655 (1951).

Cited in Wake County ex rel Estate of Lucas v. Jarrett, 55 N.C. App. 185, 284 S.E.2d 711 (1981); Wake County ex rel. Denning v. Ferrell, 71 N.C. App. 185, 321 S.E.2d 913 (1984).

§ 49-2. Nonsupport of illegitimate child by parents made misdemeanor.

Any parent who willfully neglects or who refuses to provide adequate support and maintain his or her illegitimate child shall be guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor. A child within the meaning of this Article shall be any person less than 18 years of age and any person whom either parent might be required under the laws of North Carolina to support and maintain if such child were the legitimate child of such parent. (1933, c. 228, s. 1; 1937, c. 432, s. 1; 1939, c. 217, ss. 1, 2; 1951, c. 154, s. 1; 1977, c. 3, s. 1; 1993, c. 539, s. 414; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c).)

Cross References. — As to competency of blood tests in determining issue of parentage, see §§ 8-50.1 and 49-7. As to competency of presumed father or mother to testify where paternity is at issue, see § 8-57.2. For criminal provisions relating to protection of the family, see § 14-322 et seq. For provision as to when the offense of failure to support one's illegitimate child is deemed committed in this State, see § 14-325.1.

Legal Periodicals. — As to criminal nature of proceedings and extradition of defendant therein, see 11 N.C.L. Rev. 191 (1933).

As to application of Article to both father and mother, see 11 N.C.L. Rev. 205 (1933).

For note concerning this Chapter, see 22 N.C.L. Rev. 250 (1944).

For discussion of problems arising under this Article, see 26 N.C.L. Rev. 305 (1948).

CASE NOTES

I. In General.
II. Elements of Offense.
III. Affidavit, Warrant and Indictment.
IV. Evidence and Testimony.
V. Instructions, Submission to Jury, and Verdict.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under the bastardy law as it stood prior to its revision by Public Laws 1933, c. 228.

Constitutionality. — This section does not violate due process of law or impose imprisonment but by the law of the land. State v. Spillman, 210 N.C. 271, 186 S.E. 322 (1936).

Limitation on Prosecutions for Failure to Support Illegitimate Children Upheld. — The three-year statute of limitations contained in § 49-4(1) for prosecutions under this section does not violate the equal protection clause of the federal Constitution on grounds that it prescribes a limitations period for the prosecution of persons who willfully fail to support their illegitimate children, while there is no limitations period for the prosecution under § 14-322(d) of persons who willfully fail to support their legitimate children. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

For a history of this section, see State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

As to applicability of former law to married women, see Wilkie v. West, 5 N.C. 319 (1809); State v. Pettaway, 10 N.C. 623 (1825); State v. Wilson, 32 N.C. 131 (1849); State v. Allison, 61 N.C. 346 (1867); State v. Liles, 134 N.C. 735, 47 S.E. 750 (1904).

"Parent". — The word "parent" in this section and the word "parents" in § 49-1 relate to the rights and duties of parents in respect to their children, and are in pari materia. Dellinger v. Bollinger, 242 N.C. 696, 89 S.E.2d 592 (1955).

Purpose. — The object of the Bastardy Act was to shift the burden of maintaining the child from the innocent many to the guilty one. State v. Roberts, 32 N.C. 350 (1849).

The sole aim of the proceeding is to ascertain the paternity of the child, to impose upon the father the burden of its support, such as he would incur if it were his lawful instead of his illegitimate offspring, and to save the county the expense of the child's maintenance. State v. Collins, 85 N.C. 511 (1881). See also, State v. Robeson, 24 N.C. 46 (1841); State v. Brown, 46 N.C. 129 (1853); Ward v. Bell, 52 N.C. 79 (1859); State ex rel. Clements v. Durham's Adm'rs, 52 N.C. 100 (1859).

The primary purpose of prosecution under the provisions of this section is to insure that the parent does not willfully neglect or refuse to support his or her illegitimate child. State v.

Green, 8 N.C. App. 234, 174 S.E.2d 8, aff'd, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

The purpose of this section is not to confer rights upon either the mother or the father, but to protect the child and to protect the State against the child's becoming a public charge. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

This Article is not primarily to benefit illegitimate children, but to prevent them from becoming public charges. Jolly v. Queen, 264 N.C. 711, 142 S.E.2d 592 (1965).

The duty of a putative father to support his illegitimate child was not created primarily for the benefit of the child. The legislation is social in nature and was enacted to prevent illegitimate children from becoming public charges. The benefit to the child is incidental. Such rights as it may have must be enforced under this section and in accordance with the procedure therein prescribed. Allen v. Hunnicutt, 230 N.C. 49, 52 S.E.2d 18 (1949).

Section Renders Moral Obligation Legal and Enforceable. — At common law, the father of an illegitimate child was under no legal obligation to support it. However, the father of an illegitimate child is under a natural and moral duty to support the child. This section makes this moral obligation of the father legal and enforceable, and our courts should enforce it where the father is subject to their jurisdiction. State v. Tickle, 238 N.C. 206, 77 S.E.2d 632 (1953), cert. denied, 346 U.S. 938, 74 S. Ct. 378, 98 L. Ed. 426 (1954).

The natural obligation of the father to support will be enforced under the statute recognizing the obligation and imposing the duty. Burton v. Burton, 142 N.C. 151, 55 S.E. 71 (1906); Allen v. Hunnicutt, 230 N.C. 49, 52 S.E.2d 18 (1949).

All men have a moral duty to support their children, whether legitimate or illegitimate, and this section makes this moral obligation legal and enforceable with respect to illegitimate children. State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

A person may be convicted for nonsupport of his illegitimate children only under this section. State v. Caudill, 68 N.C. App. 268, 314 S.E.2d 592 (1984).

Prosecution of a parent for willful nonsupport under this section is a criminal proceeding. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

This is a criminal statute. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

And the State's right to proceed under this section does not require consent of the mother or of the child, however important to its case may be the mother's cooperation as a witness. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

As to whether bastardy proceedings under the former law were criminal or civil in their nature, see State v. Roberts, 32 N.C. 350 (1849); State v. Edwards, 110 N.C. 511, 14 S.E. 741 (1892); State v. Ostwalt, 118 N.C. 1208, 24 S.E. 660 (1896); State v. Liles, 134 N.C. 735, 47 S.E. 750 (1904); State v. Addington, 143 N.C. 683, 57 S.E. 398 (1907); State v. McDonald, 152 N.C. 802, 67 S.E. 762 (1910); State v. Currie, 161 N.C. 275, 76 S.E. 694 (1912); Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N.C. 319, 83 S.E. 490 (1914); Payne v. Thomas, 176 N.C. 401, 97 S.E. 212 (1918); State v. Carnegie, 193 N.C. 467, 137 S.E. 308 (1927).

The old Bastardy Act was repealed in toto by Public Laws 1933, c. 228, the provisions of s. 2 that the act should not affect pending litigation or accrued actions being repugnant to the specific repealing clause of s. 9, and in a prosecution under the Act of 1933 a demurrer on the grounds that proceedings under the old Bastardy Act were then pending would be overruled. See State v. Morris, 208 N.C. 44, 179 S.E. 19 (1935), holding that the Act of 1933 was intended to cover the entire subject dealing with bastardy.

Proceeding Under Former Law Would Not Bar Proceeding Under Present Statute. — Bastardy proceedings against defendant under C.S., § 265, et seq., repealed by Public Laws 1933, c. 228, s. 9, being civil, would not support a plea of former jeopardy in a prosecution under this and the following sections for willful failure to support an illegitimate child. State v. Mansfield, 207 N.C. 233, 176 S.E. 761 (1934).

Offense Punishable After Effective Date of Section Although Child Born Before. — A parent may be prosecuted under this section for willful failure to support his illegitimate child begotten and born before the effective date of the statute, the offense being the willful failure to support an illegitimate child, and it being sufficient if such willful failure occur after the effective date of the statute. State v. Parker, 209 N.C. 32, 182 S.E. 723 (1935).

Time Child Was Begotten Is Immaterial. — A defendant may be prosecuted under this statute for willful failure to support his illegitimate child born after the passage of the act, even though the child was begotten before the effective date of the statute, and defendant's contention that in regard to such prosecution the statute is ex post facto cannot be sustained, since the offense is the willful failure to support the child, and the time it was begotten is immaterial. State v. Mansfield, 207 N.C. 233, 176 S.E. 761 (1934), followed in State v. Morris, 208 N.C. 44, 179 S.E. 19 (1935).

This Article does not require the continued life of the child as the basis for a prosecution under this section, and the death of the child does not abate or prevent a prosecution against the father of an illegitimate for his willful failure to support and maintain the child prior to its death. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

Even If Blood Test Is Made Impossible. — When the death of the child makes a blood test impossible, the situation is analogous to that which occurs when an eyewitness to events constituting the basis for an indictment dies before the accused has interviewed him or taken his deposition, and it would hardly be suggested that to try the defendant after the death of that witness would deprive him of due process and that therefore the prosecution must be dismissed. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

To hold that a prosecution under this section must be dismissed when the death of the child deprives the defendant of a blood test would be to attach to the test a significance which the legislature failed to give it. Even when a blood grouping test demonstrates nonpaternity the law does not make the test conclusive of that issue. A fortiori, the absence of a test which, if made, would provide one falsely accused only an even chance to prove his nonpaternity, should not result in a dismissal of the action. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970). But see §§ 8-50.1 and 49-7, as to competency of blood tests.

This section creates a continuing offense. State v. Robinson, 236 N.C. 408, 72 S.E.2d 857 (1952); State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953); State v. Perry, 241 N.C. 119, 84 S.E.2d 329 (1954); State v. Coppedge, 244 N.C. 590, 94 S.E.2d 569 (1956); State v. Smith, 246 N.C. 118, 97 S.E.2d 442 (1957); State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964); State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968); State v. Garner, 34 N.C. App. 498, 238 S.E.2d 653 (1977); State v. Killian, 61 N.C. App. 155, 300 S.E.2d 257 (1983).

And Each Day Constitutes a Separate Offense. — A continuing offense is a new violation of the law. Each day during which it is continued constitutes a separate offense and will support a separate prosecution, provided the warrant or indictment alleges separate and distinct times during which the offense was committed. State v. Killian, 61 N.C. App. 155, 300 S.E.2d 257 (1983).

Prior Prosecution Does Not Bar Prosecution for Subsequent Offense. — Defendant was convicted and served the sentence imposed for willfully failing and refusing to support his illegitimate child under this and the following sections. After completion of his term, defendant still willfully failed and refused to support the child, and this prosecution was instituted for breach of this and the following sections subsequent to his release. Defendant entered a plea of former jeopardy. It was held that the violation of the statute constituted a continuing offense, and the prior prosecution was not a bar to a prosecution for breach of the statute for the period subsequent to defendant's release from the imprisonment imposed in the first prosecution. State v. Johnson, 212 N.C. 566, 194 S.E. 319 (1937).

A new warrant may be filed charging defendant with nonsupport, if such has occurred after the issuance of the warrant on which he has been tried. State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968).

The criminal offense of willful nonsupport of an illegitimate child by a parent of the child may be repeated, and if it is, prosecution for the subsequent offense will not be barred by the prosecution for the former offense on the theory of double jeopardy. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

A previous acquittal on a charge of willful nonsupport does not bar a subsequent prosecution, because this section creates a continuing offense. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

Section 49-14 Compared. — The issue of paternity is the entire thrust of the civil action under § 49-14, whereas the focus of the crime punishable by this section is the willful failure to pay support for an illegitimate child, not paternity, because this section does not make the mere begetting of a child a crime. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

Effect of Prosecution upon Subsequent Civil Proceedings to Establish Paternity. — Since the parties to a previous criminal proceeding under this section and civil proceedings under § 49-14 are not the same, and the State and the present plaintiff were not in privity, the defendant was not estopped in a civil action to deny paternity. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

A judgment of acquittal in a criminal prosecution under this section for willful failure to support two illegitimate children was not res judicata in county's civil action under § 49-14 to establish defendant's paternity of the two children, where the criminal judgment merely stated that defendant was found not guilty and did not disclose whether an acquittal was entered because the judge found that defendant was not the father of the children or because he did not believe that defendant had willfully failed to provide for their reasonable support, as there was thus no showing on the record that the issue of paternity had been previously adjudicated in defendant's favor. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

General verdict of not guilty, upon charges of willful neglect and refusal to provide adequate support of an illegitimate child, did not operate as res judicata on the issue of paternity in subsequent action to establish paternity and require support of an illegitimate child.

Sampson County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. McPherson v. Stevens, 91 N.C. App. 524, 372 S.E.2d 340 (1988).

Liability of Nonresident Who Begot Child in Another State. — Where defendant, a resident of another state, begot an illegitimate child in such other state, and the mother moved to this State before the child was born, and the mother and child continued to reside in this State from the time of the birth, the offense of willful failure and refusal to support the child was committed in this State, and defendant was constructively in this State when the offense was committed, since he had voluntarily set in motion the chain of circumstances resulting in the commission of the offense here, and therefore the courts of this State had jurisdiction of the offense. State v. Tickle, 238 N.C. 206, 77 S.E.2d 632 (1953), cert. denied, 346 U.S. 938, 74 S. Ct. 378, 98 L. Ed. 426 (1954), commented on in 32 N.C.L. Rev. 435.

Jurisdiction. — Violation of this section is a misdemeanor over which the district court has exclusive original jurisdiction. Until a defendant is tried and convicted of this offense in district court and appeals to the superior court for a trial de novo, the superior court has no jurisdiction. State v. Caudill, 68 N.C. App. 268, 314 S.E.2d 592 (1984).

The district court has exclusive original jurisdiction of misdemeanors, including actions to determine liability of persons for the support of dependents in any criminal proceeding. Cline v. Cline, 6 N.C. App. 523, 170 S.E.2d 645 (1969).

As to sufficiency of summons issued under this section, see State v. Walton, 41 N.C. App. 281, 254 S.E.2d 661 (1979).

Right to Counsel. — In a prosecution for willful failure to support an illegitimate child, the defendant had a constitutional right to be represented by counsel at his trial unless he knowingly and intelligently waived that right, since violation of this section can result in imprisonment. State v. Lee, 40 N.C. App. 165, 252 S.E.2d 225 (1979).

For cases formerly holding that a defendant charged under this section was not entitled to appointed counsel as the charge did not involve a serious offense, see State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970); Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Punishment. — The only punishment authorized by law for the willful failure or neglect to support an illegitimate child is found in § 49-8 and is limited at most to six months in prison. State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Applied in State v. Moore, 209 N.C. 44, 182 S.E. 692 (1935); State v. Bradshaw, 214 N.C. 5, 197 S.E. 564 (1938); State v. Moore, 222 N.C. 356, 23 S.E.2d 31 (1942); State v. Wortham, 240 N.C. 132, 81 S.E.2d 254 (1954); State v. Robinson, 248 N.C. 282, 103 S.E.2d 376 (1958); State v. Little, 263 N.C. 130, 139 S.E.2d 8 (1964); State v. Cooke, 268 N.C. 201, 150 S.E.2d 226 (1966); State v. Fowler, 9 N.C. App. 64, 175 S.E.2d 331 (1970); State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970); Wright v. Gann, 27 N.C. App. 45, 217 S.E.2d 761 (1975); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

Stated in Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 53 N.C. App. 649, 281 S.E.2d 765 (1981).

Cited in State v. Stone, 231 N.C. 324, 56 S.E.2d 675 (1949); State v. Aldridge, 254 N.C. 297, 118 S.E.2d 766 (1961); In re Owenby, 3 N.C. App. 53, 164 S.E.2d 55 (1968); Wright v. Wright, 281 N.C. 159, 188 S.E.2d 317 (1972); Smith v. Burden, 31 N.C. App. 145, 228 S.E.2d 662 (1976); Bell v. Martin, 299 N.C. 715, 264 S.E.2d 101 (1980); Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985); Ambrose v. Ambrose, 140 N.C. App. 545, 536 S.E.2d 855 (2000).

II. ELEMENTS OF OFFENSE.

Elements of Offense, Generally. — For a defendant to be found guilty of the criminal offense created by this section, two facts must be established: first, that the defendant is a parent of the illegitimate child in question, who must be a person coming within the definition of a child as set forth in this section; and second, that the defendant has willfully neglected or refused to support and maintain such illegitimate child. In addition, if the defendant is the reputed father, it must be shown that the prosecution has been instituted within one of the time periods provided in § 49-4. State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968).

Under the provisions of this section the State must establish two facts in order for the defendant to be found guilty: (1) That the defendant is the parent of the illegitimate child in question and (2) that the defendant has willfully neglected or refused to support and maintain such illegitimate child. State v. Green, 8 N.C. App. 234, 174 S.E.2d 8, aff'd, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970); State v. Lynch, 11 N.C. App. 432, 181 S.E.2d 186 (1971); State v. Soloman, 40 N.C. App. 600, 253 S.E.2d 270 (1979); State v. Lambert, 53 N.C. App. 799, 281 S.E.2d 754 (1981).

In a prosecution under this section, the State must prove two things: (1) that the defendant is indeed the parent of the child and (2) that defendant has intentionally neglected or refused to provide reasonable support for the child. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

The requirement that a parent "support and maintain his or her illegitimate child" within the purview of this section is not restricted merely to providing food. It includes the supplying of food, clothing and other necessaries, together with medical assistance reasonably required for the preservation of the health of the child. And this obligation to the child applies even in the case of the newly born baby. State v. Love, 238 N.C. 283, 77 S.E.2d 501 (1953).

The mere begetting of an illegitimate child is not a crime. State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968); State v. Ingle, 20 N.C. App. 50, 200 S.E.2d 427 (1973).

The only "prosecution" contemplated by this legislation is that grounded on the willful neglect or refusal of any parent to support and maintain his or her illegitimate child, the mere begetting of the child not being denominated a crime. State v. Dill, 224 N.C. 57, 29 S.E.2d 145 (1944); State v. Stiles, 228 N.C. 137, 44 S.E.2d 728 (1947); State v. Coppedge, 244 N.C. 590, 94 S.E.2d 569 (1956); State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956); State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

As the criminal offense is not committed by begetting but by willful nonsupport of the child. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

A man cannot be held criminally liable for failure to support an unborn illegitimate child. State v. Thompson, 233 N.C. 345, 64 S.E.2d 157 (1951); State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

Nor is failure of father to pay expenses of mother incident to the birth a criminal offense. State v. Thompson, 233 N.C. 345, 64 S.E.2d 157 (1951); State v. Ferguson, 243 N.C. 766, 92 S.E.2d 197 (1956); State v. Coppedge, 244 N.C. 590, 94 S.E.2d 569 (1956); State v. Ingle, 20 N.C. App. 50, 200 S.E.2d 427 (1973).

Prosecution Is Grounded on Willful Neglect or Refusal to Support Child. — The only prosecution contemplated under this section is that grounded on the willful neglect or refusal of a parent to support his or her illegitimate child. State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962); State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968); State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Hence the question of paternity is incidental to the prosecution for nonsupport. State v. Bowser, 230 N.C. 330, 53 S.E.2d 282 (1949); State v. Thompson, 233 N.C. 345, 64 S.E.2d 157 (1951); State v. Robinson, 236 N.C. 408, 72 S.E.2d 857 (1952); State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953); State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

The question of paternity is merely incidental to the prosecution for nonsupport and involves no punishment. State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

As a Preliminary Requisite. — The question of paternity is incidental to the prosecution for the crime of nonsupport — a preliminary requisite to conviction. State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968); Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Willfulness Is Essential Element of Offense. — The father of an illegitimate child may be convicted of neglecting to support such child only when it is established that such neglect was willful, that is, without just cause, excuse or justification. The willfulness of the neglect is an essential ingredient of the offense, and as such must not only be charged in the bill, but must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. The presumption of innocence with which the defendant enters the trial includes the presumption of innocence of willfulness in any failure on his part to support his illegitimate child. The failure to support may be an evidential fact tending to show a willful neglect, but it does not raise a presumption of willfulness. State v. Cook, 207 N.C. 261, 176 S.E. 757 (1934); State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956); State v. McCoy, 304 N.C. 363, 283 S.E.2d 788 (1981).

Willfulness is an essential element in the crime of failure and refusal to support an illegitimate child. State v. McDay, 232 N.C. 388, 61 S.E.2d 86 (1950).

Which Must Be Charged in Warrant or Indictment. — Under this section, the neglect or refusal to support an illegitimate child must be willful, and it must be so charged in the warrant or bill of indictment, and the omission of such allegation is fatal. State v. Vanderlip, 225 N.C. 610, 35 S.E.2d 885 (1945); State v. Morgan, 226 N.C. 414, 38 S.E.2d 166 (1946); State v. Moore, 238 N.C. 743, 78 S.E.2d 914 (1953).

The warrant in a prosecution under this and the following sections must allege that the failure or refusal of defendant to support his illegitimate child was willful, and where it does not do so, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should be allowed. State v. McLamb, 214 N.C. 322, 199 S.E. 81 (1938). See State v. Tarleton, 208 N.C. 734, 182 S.E. 481 (1935); State v. Clarke, 220 N.C. 392, 17 S.E.2d 468 (1941); State v. Sturdivant, 220 N.C. 535, 17 S.E.2d 661 (1941); State v. Coppedge, 244 N.C. 590, 94 S.E.2d 569 (1956); State v. Smith, 246 N.C. 118, 97 S.E.2d 442 (1957).

And Proved Beyond Reasonable Doubt. — The willfulness of the neglect is an essential ingredient of the offense, and as such must not only be charged in the bill, but must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Spillman, 210 N.C. 271, 186 S.E. 322 (1936); State v. Moore, 238 N.C. 743, 78 S.E.2d 914 (1953).

"Willful" Defined. — The word "willful," as used in this section, means that the act is done purposely and deliberately in violation of the law; it means an act done without any lawful justification, reason or excuse. State v. Stiles, 228 N.C. 137, 44 S.E.2d 728 (1947).

The word "willfully," as used in the statute, is used with the same import as in § 14-322, relating to willful abandonment of wife (now spouse). State v. Cook, 207 N.C. 261, 176 S.E. 757 (1934).

A defendant's willful failure and refusal to support his illegitimate child means an intentional neglect or refusal. State v. McDay, 232 N.C. 388, 61 S.E.2d 86 (1950).

Willful Neglect Must Follow Demand for Support. — In order to support a finding of willful nonsupport of an illegitimate child by the father, the State must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that the mother of the child or, under certain circumstances, the director of social services has, after the child was born and before the prosecution was commenced, made demand upon the father for support, and after such demand and before prosecution, the father willfully neglected and refused to provide adequate support according to his means and condition and the necessities of the child. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Willfulness Not Presumed from Failure to Support. — Construing the word "willful" in light of the decided cases, it is clear that one cannot be brought within the meaning of the statute without proving the criminal intent, and that it is error for the court to charge the jury that if the defendant failed to support his illegitimate child "the presumption is he willfully did so." State v. Cook, 207 N.C. 261, 176 S.E. 757 (1934).

Where a father has failed to pay the child support ordered by the court, he may not be held in contempt of court and imprisoned or punished in any way until a judicial determination has been made as to whether he has failed willfully to comply; willfulness may not be presumed. State v. McCoy, 304 N.C. 363, 283 S.E.2d 788 (1981).

No Presumption of Paternity. — To impose responsibility on a man for the support of an illegitimate child, it must first be established that he is the father of the child. The Act of 1741 created a conclusive presumption from the oath of the mother. This was modified in 1814 to make a prima facie case by the affidavit or oath of the woman. There is now no presumption from the affidavit or testimony of the mother. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

Burden Is on State to Prove Paternity of Child and Willful Neglect. — It is not necessary that defendant's paternity of the child should first be judicially determined, but the State must prove on the trial, first, defendant's paternity of the child, and then his willful neglect or refusal to support the child. State v. Spillman, 210 N.C. 271, 186 S.E. 322 (1936).

Since the statute raises no presumption against a person accused, the State must overcome the presumption of innocence both as to the willfulness of the neglect to support the illegitimate child and defendant's paternity of the child. State v. Spillman, 210 N.C. 271, 186 S.E. 322 (1936).

In order to convict defendant under this section, the burden is on the State to show not only that he is the father of the child and that he had refused or neglected to support and maintain it, but further, that his refusal or neglect was willful, that is, intentionally done, "without just cause, excuse or justification," after notice and request for support. State v. Hayden, 224 N.C. 779, 32 S.E.2d 333 (1944); State v. Stiles, 228 N.C. 137, 44 S.E.2d 728 (1947); State v. Ellison, 230 N.C. 59, 52 S.E.2d 9 (1949); State v. Thompson, 233 N.C. 345, 64 S.E.2d 157 (1951); State v. Sharpe, 234 N.C. 154, 66 S.E.2d 655 (1951); State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953); State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962).

It is as much the duty of the State to establish willful failure to support by evidence showing that fact beyond a reasonable doubt as it is to so establish paternity. State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962).

In a prosecution under this section, the burden is upon the State upon defendant's plea of not guilty to prove not only that defendant is the father of the child and had refused or neglected to support the child, but further that his refusal or neglect was willful. State v. Mason, 268 N.C. 423, 150 S.E.2d 753 (1966).

But Paternity Need Not Be Relitigated on Subsequent Prosecution. — Upon a prosecution for a subsequent willful neglect or refusal to support, the accused is not entitled to have the question of paternity relitigated. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964); State v. Garner, 34 N.C. App. 498, 238 S.E.2d 653 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 184, 241 S.E.2d 519 (1978).

Once the question of paternity has been determined, the accused is not entitled to have the question of paternity relitigated upon a subsequent prosecution for later willful neglect or refusal to support his illegitimate children. State v. Green, 8 N.C. App. 234, 174 S.E.2d 8, aff'd, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Upon a subsequent prosecution of an alleged father, the question of paternity, necessarily determined against him in the previous criminal action, need not be relitigated, that question being res judicata. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Guilty Verdict as Finding of Paternity. — A general verdict of "guilty" or "guilty as charged" to a valid charge of violation of this section is adequate as a finding of paternity. State v. Golden, 40 N.C. App. 37, 251 S.E.2d 875 (1979).

A judgment as of nonsuit in a prosecution under this section does not constitute an adjudication on the issue of paternity and will not support a plea of former acquittal in a subsequent prosecution under the statute, the offense being a continuing one. State v. Robinson, 236 N.C. 408, 72 S.E.2d 857 (1952). See also, State v. Perry, 241 N.C. 119, 84 S.E.2d 329 (1954); State v. Ferguson, 243 N.C. 766, 92 S.E.2d 197 (1956).

III. AFFIDAVIT, WARRANT AND INDICTMENT.

Affidavit Supporting Warrant Must Name Defendant. — Where, in the affidavit upon which a warrant charging unlawful failure to support an illegitimate child is based, the name of the defendant does not appear, then the warrant does not charge the defendant with a crime, and judgment must be arrested. State v. Satterfield, 8 N.C. App. 597, 174 S.E.2d 640 (1970).

And Warrant Must Charge Him with Refusal to Support Child. — The begetting of an illegitimate child is not of itself a crime, and a warrant charging defendant with being the putative father of an unborn, illegitimate child is insufficient to support a prosecution under this statute, nor is such insufficiency cured by an amendment allowing the word "willful" to be inserted therein, in the absence of an amendment alleging the birth of the child and defendant's refusal to support the child. State v. Tyson, 208 N.C. 231, 180 S.E. 85 (1935). See also, State v. Thompson, 233 N.C. 345, 64 S.E.2d 157 (1951); State v. Robinson, 236 N.C. 408, 72 S.E.2d 857 (1952); State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953).

Where the warrant upon which defendant was tried was insufficient to charge any crime, defendant's motion in arrest of judgment should have been allowed, since the defect was one appearing on the face of the record. Thus the failure of the warrant to charge defendant with willful failure to support his illegitimate child was not cured by the charge or verdict, where the warrant failed to charge any criminal offense. State v. Tyson, 208 N.C. 231, 180 S.E. 85 (1935).

The charge must be supported by the facts as they existed at the time it was formally laid in the court, and cannot be supported by evidence of willful failure supervening between the time the charge was made and time of trial, at least when the trial is had upon the original warrant. State v. Sharpe, 234 N.C. 154, 66 S.E.2d 655 (1951); State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953); State v. Ingle, 20 N.C. App. 50, 200 S.E.2d 427 (1973); State v. Killian, 61 N.C. App. 155, 300 S.E.2d 257 (1983).

Demand for Support Must Have Been Made Before Warrant Was Drawn. — Where, in a prosecution for willful neglect and refusal to support an illegitimate child, the evidence discloses that no demand for support of the child was made upon defendant until after the warrant was drawn, nonsuit must be entered, since the warrant must be supported by the facts as they existed at the time it was formally laid and cannot be supported by evidence of willful failure thereafter. State v. Perry, 241 N.C. 119, 84 S.E.2d 329 (1954); State v. Ingle, 20 N.C. App. 50, 200 S.E.2d 427 (1973).

Amendment of Warrant. — The trial court has authority to permit the prosecuting attorney to amend a warrant charging defendant with willful failure to support his illegitimate child by inserting the word "maintain," so as to charge his willful failure to support and maintain his illegitimate child. State v. Bowser, 230 N.C. 330, 53 S.E.2d 282 (1949).

Charging of Specific Date in Indictment. — In a prosecution for willful failure and refusal to support an illegitimate child under this and the following sections, an exception on the ground that the indictment failed to charge the specific date in the month in which the offense was alleged to have been committed cannot be sustained. State v. Oliver, 213 N.C. 386, 196 S.E. 325 (1938).

IV. EVIDENCE AND TESTIMONY.

Testimony of Prosecutrix That She Wrote Defendant Demanding Support for Child. — In a prosecution under this section, testimony of prosecutrix that she wrote defendant after the baby was born demanding support for it was sufficient upon that question, without introduction of the letter in evidence, since the testimony was sufficient to support the inference that the letter was written before the bill of indictment was laid. State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953).

As to nonadmissibility of testimony of prosecutrix as to nonaccess of husband prior to enactment of § 8-27.2, see State v. Bowman, 230 N.C. 203, 52 S.E.2d 345 (1949).

Cross-Examination as to Failure to Make Blood Test. — It was held competent upon the trial of a prosecution under this section for the prosecuting attorney to ask defendant upon cross-examination if the reason blood test was not made was because defendant knew the baby was his, the matter being within the bounds of a fair cross-examination. The legal principles relating to the purpose and value of a blood test were not relevant upon objection to the cross-examination. State v. Chambers, 238 N.C. 373, 78 S.E.2d 209 (1953).

Evidence Held Sufficient. — Evidence in prosecution of defendant for willful neglect or refusal to support his illegitimate child held sufficient to overrule motions to nonsuit. State v. Bowser, 230 N.C. 330, 53 S.E.2d 282 (1949).

In a prosecution under this section, the evidence was held sufficient to carry the case to the jury. State v. Humphrey, 236 N.C. 608, 73 S.E.2d 479 (1952).

Evidence held sufficient to show failure to support at time warrant was issued. State v. Sharpe, 234 N.C. 154, 66 S.E.2d 655 (1951).

Admission into evidence of a motel guest registration card purportedly bearing the defendant's signature was error requiring a new trial where there was no evidence identifying the handwriting or identifying defendant as either the man who registered under the name appearing on the card or the man to whom a room was assigned, and where it was the only direct evidence, other than the prosecuting witness' testimony, bearing on whether defendant had had intercourse with her. State v. Smith, 59 N.C. App. 732, 297 S.E.2d 771 (1982).

V. INSTRUCTIONS, SUBMISSION TO JURY, AND VERDICT.

Instruction as to Willfulness. — Willfulness in refusal to support one's illegitimate child is an essential ingredient of the offense denounced by this section, which must be proven beyond a reasonable doubt; and instructions which fail to so charge deprive defendant of his right to have the jury consider his willfulness as an issuable fact. State v. Hayden, 224 N.C. 779, 32 S.E.2d 333 (1944).

In a prosecution under this section, an instruction defining the term "willfully" as "wrongfully and unjustifiably, without valid and good excuse," instead of as an intentional neglect or refusal, would be held for reversible error. State v. McDay, 232 N.C. 388, 61 S.E.2d 86 (1950).

In a prosecution under this section, an instruction that the jury was to find defendant guilty if it found from the evidence beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was the father of the child, without submitting the question of whether defendant willfully refused to support the child, constituted prejudicial error. State v. Mason, 268 N.C. 423, 150 S.E.2d 753 (1966).

Failure to Charge as to Necessity of Notice and Demand for Support. — Failure of the court to charge that there was no obligation upon defendant to support the child in question until he had been given notice that he was the father and demand was made upon him for support could not be held prejudicial where there was evidence of notice and demand prior to issuance of the warrant and the court categorically charged that the jury had to be satisfied beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant was the father of the child and that he knowingly, intentionally and with stubborn and willful purpose refused to support the child before they could return a verdict of guilty. State v. Humphrey, 236 N.C. 608, 73 S.E.2d 479 (1952).

Submission of Interrogatories or Issues Is Virtually Necessary. — The submission of issues in prosecutions under this section is, as a practical matter, almost a necessity. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Because of the nature and effect of the elements involved in this section, it would be difficult to properly try a case pursuant to this statute without submitting to the jury either oral interrogatories or written issues. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Unless Paternity Has Previously Been Determined. — If the question of paternity has been previously determined adversely to the accused, the case could well be tried solely upon the general issue of guilt. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

And Submission of Interrogatories or Issues Is Approved. — The submission of interrogatories or issues in criminal prosecutions under this section is now the approved practice, the questions and answers being treated as a special verdict. State v. McKee, 269 N.C. 280, 152 S.E.2d 204 (1967).

The practice of submitting written issues in cases charging violation of this section is strongly commended. State v. Lynch, 11 N.C. App. 432, 181 S.E.2d 186 (1971).

Although a general verdict of "guilty" or "guilty as charged" may be proper, it is not required. Indeed, the preferred practice in cases charging a violation of this section calls for the submission of written issues to the jury. State v. Hobson, 70 N.C. App. 619, 320 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

A jury's verdict based on issues submitted to it should include an individual determination of four issues. First, is defendant a parent of the illegitimate child in question? Second, did defendant receive notice and demand for support? Third, did defendant willfully neglect or refuse to provide adequate support for the child? Lastly, if the answers to the preceding are yes, is defendant guilty of willful neglect or refusal to maintain and provide adequate support for his illegitimate child? Such a verdict of the jury is in the nature of a special verdict and, when attempted, must reveal that all issues of ultimate material fact have been resolved against defendant. State v. Hobson, 70 N.C. App. 619, 320 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

Verdict upon Proper Issues Is Sufficient Without General Verdict of Guilty. — A verdict upon the issues of paternity and nonsupport, if resolved in favor of the State, is sufficient to support a judgment against defendant without a general verdict by the jury of guilty. This does not contravene the provisions of the North Carolina Constitution requiring trial and verdict by jury in criminal cases. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964), holding findings in special verdict deficient and granting a new trial.

A jury verdict must unambiguously state that defendant has been found guilty of a crime. State v. Hobson, 70 N.C. App. 619, 320 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

A general verdict of "guilty" or "guilty as charged" is sufficient when a defendant is properly charged under this section. However, when the jury undertakes to spell out its verdict without specific reference to the charge, it is essential that the spelling be correct. State v. Hobson, 70 N.C. App. 619, 320 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

Verdict Must Find Willful Nonsupport. — Willfulness is an essential element of the offense denounced by this section, and a verdict "guilty of failure to support and maintain his bastard child" was insufficient to support a judgment. State v. Allen, 224 N.C. 530, 31 S.E.2d 530 (1944).

If a jury finds that the accused is a parent of the child but that he has not willfully failed or refused to support the child, there can be no conviction, for no crime has been committed. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Verdict Held Insufficient. — A verdict of "guilty of willful nonsupport of illegitimate child" was insufficient in that it failed to fix the paternity of the child. State v. Ellison, 230 N.C. 59, 52 S.E.2d 9 (1949).

A verdict of "guilty of the charge of bastardy" would not support a judgment in a prosecution under this section. State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962).

Where the nonsupport issue submitted was, "Has the defendant . . . willfully neglected and refused to support and maintain said illegitimate child?", an affirmative answer did not supply the information as to whether demand was made, or, if made, whether it was before or after the prosecution was commenced. Because of the deficiency of the findings in the special verdict, there had to be a new trial. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

A verdict of "guilty of non-support of illegitimate child" was held improper and was set aside where it neither alluded generally to the warrant nor used specific language sufficient to show a conviction of the offense charged. State v. Hobson, 70 N.C. App. 619, 320 S.E.2d 319 (1984).

§ 49-3. Place of birth of child no consideration.

The provisions of this Article shall apply whether such child shall have been begotten or shall have been born within or without the State of North Carolina: Provided, that the child to be supported is a bona fide resident of this State at the time of the institution of any proceedings under this Article. (1933, c. 228, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Applied in State v. Tickle, 238 N.C. 206, 77 S.E.2d 632 (1953); Tickle v. North Carolina, 346 U.S. 938, 74 S. Ct. 378, 98 L. Ed. 426 (1954).

§ 49-4. When prosecution may be commenced.

The prosecution of the reputed father of an illegitimate child may be instituted under this Chapter within any of the following periods, and not thereafter:

(1) Three years next after the birth of the child; or

(2) Where the paternity of the child has been judicially determined within three years next after its birth, at any time before the child attains the age of 18 years; or

(3) Where the reputed father has acknowledged paternity of the child by payments for the support thereof within three years next after the birth of such child, three years from the date of the last payment whether such last payment was made within three years of the birth of such child or thereafter: Provided, the action is instituted before the child attains the age of 18 years.

The prosecution of the mother of an illegitimate child may be instituted under this Chapter at any time before the child attains the age of 18 years. (1933, c. 228, s. 3; 1939, c. 217, s. 3; 1945, c. 1053; 1951, c. 154, s. 2.)

Legal Periodicals. — As to the effect of the 1945 amendment to this section, see 23 N.C.L. Rev. 331 (1945).

For survey of constitutional law in 1982, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1052 (1983).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former statutory provisions.

Constitutionality. — The three-year statute of limitations contained in subdivision (1) of this section for prosecutions under § 49-2 does not violate the equal protection clause of the federal Constitution on grounds that it prescribes a limitations period for the prosecution of persons who willfully fail to support their illegitimate children, whereas there is no limitations period for the prosecution under § 14-322(d) of persons who willfully fail to support their legitimate children. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

There is no statute of limitations as such affecting a father's duty to support his illegitimate children. That duty continues throughout the child's minority. Bertie-Hertford Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Souza v. Barnes, 80 N.C. App. 552, 342 S.E.2d 579 (1986).

As to the inapplicability of statute limiting criminal prosecutions for misdemeanors to two years to proceedings under the former statute, see State v. Hedgepeth, 122 N.C. 1039, 30 S.E. 140 (1898); State v. Perry, 122 N.C. 1043, 30 S.E. 139 (1898).

This section cannot be limited to proceedings to establish paternity. Its language is clear, positive and unbending. It seems to have been taken from C.S., § 274, of the old law, which was held to supersede the general statute of limitations on the subject. State v. Bradshaw, 214 N.C. 5, 197 S.E. 564 (1938).

Maximum time for prosecution was formerly six years from birth. State v. Killian, 217 N.C. 339, 7 S.E.2d 702 (1940).

The failure to support an illegitimate child is a continuing offense, and the date such child was born is immaterial, provided the action is instituted within the time prescribed by this section and that demand for the support of such child was made a reasonable time before the action was instituted. State v. Womack, 251 N.C. 342, 111 S.E.2d 332 (1959).

A proceeding to establish paternity of an illegitimate child and to prosecute father who willfully neglects or refuses to support and maintain the same may be instituted at any time within three years after the birth of the child. State v. Moore, 222 N.C. 356, 23 S.E.2d 31 (1942).

Where the question of paternity is judicially determined within three years after the birth of the illegitimate child, the defendant may thereafter be prosecuted for his willful neglect and refusal to support the child. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

Acknowledgment Made More Than Three Years from Birth Does Not Prevent Running of Statute. — Where acknowledgment of the paternity of a child has been made by payments for its support within three years from the date of its birth, prosecution for nonsupport may be brought within three years thereafter, but a later acknowledgment, made more than three years from the birth, will not avail to prevent the running of the statute. State v. Hodges, 217 N.C. 625, 9 S.E.2d 24 (1940).

Proof Required Under Subdivision (3). — Where prosecution was not begun within three years after the birth, and paternity was not judicially determined within that time, the State had to meet the requirements of subdivision (3) of this section and prove not only that defendant made payments for the child's support within the three years after its birth, but also that the warrant was issued within three years from the date of the last payment. State v. McKee, 269 N.C. 280, 152 S.E.2d 204 (1967).

Applied in State v. Caudill, 68 N.C. App. 268, 314 S.E.2d 592 (1984).

Stated in Durham County Dep't of Social Servs. v. Williams, 52 N.C. App. 112, 277 S.E.2d 865 (1981).

Cited in State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968).

§ 49-5. Prosecution; death of mother no bar; determination of fatherhood.

Proceedings under this Article may be brought by the mother or her personal representative or, if the child is likely to become a public charge, the director of social services or such person as by law performs the duties of such official in said county where the mother resides or the child is found. Proceedings under this Article may be brought in the county where the mother resides or is found, or in the county where the putative father resides or is found, or in the county where the child is found. The fact that the child was born outside of the State of North Carolina shall not be a bar to proceedings against the putative father in any county where he resides or is found, or in the county where the mother resides or the child is found. The death of the mother shall in no wise affect any proceedings under this Article. Preliminary proceedings under this Article to determine the paternity of the child may be instituted prior to the birth of the child but when the judge or court trying the issue of paternity deems it proper, he may continue the case until the woman is delivered of the child. When a continuance is granted, the courts shall recognize the person accused of being the father of the child with surety for his appearance, either at the next session of the court or at a time to be fixed by the judge or court granting a continuance, which shall be after the delivery of the child. (1933, c. 228, s. 4; 1961, c. 186; 1969, c. 982; 1971, c. 1185, s. 18; 1981, c. 599, s. 13.)

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former statutory provisions.

Institution of Proceedings. — The provision that proceedings under this section can only be instituted by the mother or her personal representative or by the director of social services is applicable both to preliminary proceedings to determine paternity and to proceedings involving the completed crime. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

The affidavit initiating the prosecution may be made by the mother or the director of social services. State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962).

Mother may decide whether to call upon father for assistance. In the event that she elects not to make the demand, her election will be respected unless the child is likely to become a public charge, in which case the director of social services may proceed. State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962).

Joining of Mother in Prosecution Is Not Required. — Prosecution of the alleged father for violation of § 49-2 may be initiated by the mother, but her joining therein is not a prerequisite to the validity of the prosecution. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Continuance Until After Birth of Child. — By express statutory language preliminary proceedings to determine the paternity of a child may be initiated and determined before the birth of the child. A continuance of the proceedings until after the birth of the child rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

It would seem that in a preliminary proceeding under this section a continuance until the birth of the child would be required when a defendant requests a blood-grouping test under § 49-7. State v. Morgan, 31 N.C. App. 128, 228 S.E.2d 523 (1976).

Rights of Surety. — The surety on the appearance bond of the defendant, who, in bastardy proceedings under the former law, appealed from a justice of the peace to the county court, which remanded the cause for want of jurisdiction, could insist upon the exact terms of his bond; and where the defendant had been legally convicted and had served his term as the law provided on failing to pay the allowance made to the prosecutrix, costs, etc., the provisions in the appearance bond as to the surety's liability had been discharged. State v. Carnegie, 193 N.C. 467, 137 S.E. 308 (1927).

Death of Child. — What kind of order should be entered where the child dies pending trial is in the discretion of the judge. The former statute seemed to require an order in every case. State v. Beatty, 66 N.C. 648 (1872).

Consideration for Promise of Father to Support Child. — Where the mother of an illegitimate child had refrained from enforcing maintenance thereof under the former statute, this was held to constitute consideration to support an action on a promise of the father to support and educate the child. Thyer v. Thyer, 189 N.C. 502, 127 S.E. 553 (1925).

§ 49-6. Mother not excused on ground of self-incrimination; not subject to penalty.

No mother of an illegitimate child shall be excused, on the ground that it may tend to incriminate her or subject her to a penalty or a forfeiture, from attending and testifying, in obedience to a subpoena of any court, in any suit or proceeding based upon or growing out of the provisions of this Article, but no such mother shall be prosecuted or subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing as to which, in obedience to a subpoena and under oath, she may so testify. (1933, c. 228, s. 5; 1939, c. 217, s. 5.)

§ 49-7. Issues and orders.

The court before which the matter may be brought shall determine whether or not the defendant is a parent of the child on whose behalf the proceeding is instituted. After this matter has been determined in the affirmative, the court shall proceed to determine the issue as to whether or not the defendant has neglected or refused to provide adequate support and maintain the child who is the subject of the proceeding. After this matter shall have been determined in the affirmative, the court shall fix by order, subject to modification or increase from time to time, a specific sum of money necessary for the support and maintenance of the child, subject to the limitations of G.S. 50-13.10. The amount of child support shall be determined as provided in G.S. 50-13.4(c). The order fixing the sum shall require the defendant to pay it either as a lump sum or in periodic payments as the circumstances of the case may appear to the court. The social security number, if known, of the minor child's parents shall be placed in the record of the proceeding. Compliance by the defendant with any or all of the further provisions of this Article or the order or orders of the court requiring additional acts to be performed by the defendant shall not be construed to relieve the defendant of his or her responsibility to pay the sum fixed or any modification or increase thereof.

The court before whom the matter may be brought, on motion of the State or the defendant, shall order that the alleged-parent defendant, the known natural parent, and the child submit to any blood tests and comparisons which have been developed and adapted for purposes of establishing or disproving parentage and which are reasonably accessible to the alleged-parent defendant, the known natural parent, and the child. The results of those blood tests and comparisons, including the statistical likelihood of the alleged parent's parentage, if available, shall be admitted in evidence when offered by a duly qualified, licensed practicing physician, duly qualified immunologist, duly qualified geneticist or other duly qualified person. The evidentiary effect of those blood tests and comparisons and the manner in which the expenses therefor are to be taxed as costs shall be as prescribed in G.S. 8-50.1. In addition, if a jury tries the issue of parentage, they shall be instructed as set out in G.S. 8-50.1. From a finding on the issue of parentage against the alleged-parent defendant, the alleged-parent defendant has the same right of appeal as though he or she had been found guilty of the crime of willful failure to support an illegitimate child. (1933, c. 228, s. 6; 1937, c. 432, s. 2; 1939, c. 217, ss. 1, 4; 1944, c. 40; 1947, c. 1014; 1971, c. 1185, s. 19; 1975, c. 449, s. 3; 1977, c. 3, s. 2; 1979, c. 576, s. 2; 1987, c. 739, s. 1; 1989, c. 529, s. 6; 1997-433, s. 4.1; 1998-17, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1937 amendment to this section, see 15 N.C.L. Rev. 347 (1937).

For comment on the 1939 amendment, see 17 N.C.L. Rev. 351 (1939).

For comment on the 1945 amendment, see 23 N.C.L. Rev. 343 (1945).

For comment on the 1947 amendment, see 25 N.C.L. Rev. 412 (1947).

As to effect of § 8-50.1 on the provision of this section as to blood-grouping tests, see 27 N.C.L. Rev. 456 (1949).

For 1984 survey, "Intestate Succession of Illegitimate Children in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1274 (1985).

CASE NOTES

As to the construction together of this section and § 7A-290, see State v. Coffey, 3 N.C. App. 133, 164 S.E.2d 39 (1968).

Continuing Duty to Support. — The payment of the lump sum amount ordered pursuant to this section as a result of a conviction for non-support of an illegitimate child does not relieve defendant of responsibility for future support. Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

This section, read together with § 50-13.7, clearly contemplates a continuing obligation on the part of the parents of an illegitimate child to provide support, including when necessary the modification or increase of payments ordered to satisfy this obligation. Having been conclusively determined a "responsible parent," as that term is defined in § 110-129, the father of an illegitimate child must necessarily remain liable for the future support of his minor child. Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

Right to Blood Test. — A defendant's right to a blood test to determine parentage is a substantial right, and upon defendant's motion the court must order the test when it is possible to do so. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970); State v. Morgan, 31 N.C. App. 128, 228 S.E.2d 523 (1976).

The 1975 amendment to § 8-50.1 amplifies the importance of the right to a blood-grouping test under this section. State v. Morgan, 31 N.C. App. 128, 228 S.E.2d 523 (1976).

The value of serological blood tests, when made and interpreted by specifically qualified technicians using approved testing procedures and reagents of standard strength, is now generally recognized. Such tests, however, can never prove the paternity of any individual, and they cannot always exclude the possibility. Nevertheless, in a significant number of cases, they can disprove it. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

The result of a blood test to determine parentage will be either "exclusion of paternity demonstrated" or "exclusion of paternity not possible." It has been estimated that by tests based upon each of three blood-type classifications, A-B-O, M-N, and Rh-hr, a man falsely accused has a 50-55% chance of proving his nonpaternity. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

The blood-grouping test results are conclusive only in excluding the putative father. The results might show him to have a blood type which the father of the child must have had; but this only indicates that of all the people of that blood type or group, he, as well as anyone else with that blood type or group, could have been the father of the child. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

Attacking Results of Blood Tests. — The only areas in which the results of blood-grouping tests should be open to attack are in the method of testing or in the qualifications of the persons performing the tests. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

It is for the General Assembly to decide the weight to be given blood-grouping tests. State v. Camp, 286 N.C. 148, 209 S.E.2d 754 (1974).

As to the use of blood tests as evidence of nonpaternity prior to the 1975 amendments to this section and § 8-50.1, see State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970); State v. Camp, 286 N.C. 148, 209 S.E.2d 754 (1974).

Death of Child Making Blood Test Impossible. — When the death of the child makes a blood test impossible the situation is analogous to that which occurs when an eyewitness to events constituting the basis for an indictment dies before the accused has interviewed him or taken his deposition. It would hardly be suggested that to try the defendant after the death of that witness would deprive him of due process and that therefore the prosecution must be dismissed. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970), decided prior to the 1975 amendments to § 8-50.1 and this section.

To hold that a prosecution under § 49-2 must be dismissed when the death of the child deprives the defendant of a blood test would be to attach to the test a significance which the legislature failed to give it. Even when a blood-grouping test demonstrates nonpaternity, the law does not make the test conclusive of that issue. A fortiori, the absence of a test, which, if made, would provide one falsely accused only an even chance to prove his nonpaternity, should not result in a dismissal of the action. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970), decided prior to the 1975 amendments to § 8-50.1 and this section.

An infant's blood group cannot always be established immediately after birth, but by the age of six months, an accurate determination can always be had. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

This section seems to contemplate the submission of issues. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Issue of Paternity Must Be Determined First. — In a prosecution for willful neglect or refusal of alleged father to support his illegitimate child, the issue of paternity must first be determined before and separate from the determination of the issue of guilt or innocence of the offense charged. State v. Robinson, 236 N.C. 408, 72 S.E.2d 857 (1952).

The court is expressly commanded by this section to first determine the paternity of the child. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

Domestic relations court was entitled to determine paternity of child, even though when the affidavit was filed and the warrant was issued the defendant had not committed the offense of willfully neglecting same, and even though the court exceeded its power in ordering the defendant to make payments, its determination of the facts as to paternity was in effect a jury verdict, and constituted a judicial declaration of the paternity of the child. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

As an affirmative answer to question of paternity is an indispensable prerequisite to defendant's conviction on the criminal charge. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 63 N.C. App. 432, 305 S.E.2d 207 (1983), modified and aff'd, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

Paternity Must Be Established Beyond a Reasonable Doubt. — The paternity of a child cannot be established by a mere preponderance of the evidence, but must be established beyond a reasonable doubt. State v. Robinson, 245 N.C. 10, 95 S.E.2d 126 (1956).

Form of Verdict. — This section requires the court to determine, in the affirmative, first, whether or not the defendant is the parent, before it proceeds to determine whether or not defendant has willfully failed to support his or her child. For this reason, the verdict in a bastardy action should ordinarily be rendered in a special form, upon the submission of separate written issues or interrogatories, or alternatively, if a general verdict is returned, it should be accompanied by appropriate findings of fact to clarify the precise effect of the judgment. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

Appeal on Issue of Parentage Where Defendant Is Acquitted on Charge of Nonsupport. — Under this section, a defendant in a prosecution for nonsupport of his illegitimate child may appeal from a verdict establishing his paternity of the child, notwithstanding the fact that the verdict finds him not guilty of nonsupport. State v. Clement, 230 N.C. 614, 54 S.E.2d 919 (1949).

Even if defendant is found not guilty of willfully neglecting or refusing to support his illegitimate child, he may nevertheless appeal an adverse finding and conclusion that he is the parent of such illegitimate child. State v. Lambert, 53 N.C. App. 799, 281 S.E.2d 754 (1981).

Before the 1947 amendment, which added the proviso at the end of this section, it was held that where the jury found the defendant to be the father of the bastard child, but not guilty of nonsupport, this was an acquittal. The defendant therefore was not entitled to an appeal. State v. Hiatt, 211 N.C. 116, 189 S.E. 124 (1937).

Modification of Orders. — Where defendant pleaded guilty and orders were made for the support of the child, the court had no authority to strike out a plea of guilty or a judgment at a former term; but, under this section, the court could modify the conditions of the former judgment, or increase from time to time the amount necessary for the child's support. State v. Duncan, 222 N.C. 11, 21 S.E.2d 822 (1942).

This section and § 49-8 contemplate initial findings and an order of support, subject to modification or increase from time to time, to be enforced by such prescribed supplemental orders as the exigencies of the case may require. State v. Dill, 224 N.C. 57, 29 S.E.2d 145 (1944).

As to jurisdiction over defendant who was over 16 years of age during the time he was charged with willfully neglecting or refusing to support his illegitimate child, but was under 16 when conception of the child occurred, see State v. Bowser, 230 N.C. 330, 53 S.E.2d 282 (1949).

Applied in State v. Dixon, 257 N.C. 653, 127 S.E.2d 246 (1962); State v. Fowler, 9 N.C. App. 64, 175 S.E.2d 331 (1970); State v. White, 42 N.C. App. 320, 256 S.E.2d 505 (1979).

Quoted in State v. Walton, 41 N.C. App. 281, 254 S.E.2d 661 (1979).

Stated in State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Cited in State v. Black, 216 N.C. 448, 5 S.E.2d 313 (1939); State v. Robinson, 248 N.C. 282, 103 S.E.2d 376 (1958); State v. Garner, 34 N.C. App. 498, 238 S.E.2d 653 (1977); State v. Camp, 299 N.C. 524, 263 S.E.2d 592 (1980).

§ 49-8. Power of court to modify orders, suspend sentence, etc.

Upon the determination of the issues set out in G.S. 49-7 and for the purpose of enforcing the payment of the sum fixed, the court is hereby given discretion, having regard for the circumstances of the case and the financial ability and earning capacity of the defendant and his or her willingness to cooperate, to make an order or orders upon the defendant and to modify such order or orders from time to time as the circumstances of the case may in the judgment of the court require subject to the limitations of G.S. 50-13.10. The order or orders made in this regard may include any or all of the following alternatives:

(1) Repealed by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 14, s. 35.

(2) Suspend sentence and continue the case from term to term;

(3) Release the defendant from custody on probation conditioned upon the defendant's compliance with the terms of the probation and the payment of the sum fixed for the support and maintenance of the child;

(4) Order the defendant to pay to the mother of the said child the necessary expenses of birth of the child and suitable medical attention for her;

(5) Require the defendant to sign a recognizance with good and sufficient security, for compliance with any order which the court may make in proceedings under this Article. (1933, c. 228, s. 7; 1939, c. 217, s. 6; 1987, c. 739, s. 2; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 14, s. 35.)

Local Modification. — Person: 1967, c. 848, s. 1.

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Many of the cases cited below were decided under former statutory provisions.

Constitutionality. — Proceedings in bastardy under the former law, C.S., § 273, for an allowance to be made to the woman were civil and not criminal, for the enforcement of police regulations, and that section was held not to be contrary to the provisions of Art. IV, § 27, of the Constitution of 1868, relating to jurisdiction of justices. Richardson v. Egerton, 186 N.C. 291, 119 S.E. 487 (1923).

A judgment for an allowance for the mother of an illegitimate child is not a debt arising out of contract, to which the protection afforded by the inhibition of the constitutional provision against imprisonment for debt extends, but is rendered as a means of enforcing a legal obligation and duty imposed by the legislature under the police power of the State upon one who is responsible for bringing into existence a child that may become a burden to society. State v. Manuel, 20 N.C. 144 (1838); State v. Cannady, 78 N.C. 539 (1878); State v. Parsons, 115 N.C. 730, 20 S.E. 511 (1894); State v. Wynne, 116 N.C. 981, 21 S.E. 35 (1895); State v. Nelson, 119 N.C. 797, 25 S.E. 863 (1896).

Imprisonment of the putative father for failure to obey an order of maintenance or give the bond is a matter of legislative discretion, and is not imprisonment for debt. State v. Green, 71 N.C. 172 (1874); State v. Wynne, 116 N.C. 981, 21 S.E. 35 (1895); State v. Morgan, 141 N.C. 726, 53 S.E. 142 (1906).

Punishment for Failure to Support. — The only punishment authorized by law for the willful failure or neglect to support an illegitimate child is found in this section and is limited at most to six months in prison. State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Six months is the maximum sentence permitted by this section. State v. Ellis, 262 N.C. 446, 137 S.E.2d 840 (1964).

Work on Roads. — Under former law, when there was no house of correction in the county, the court could only commit the putative father to jail until the performance of the order of support. He could not be put to work on roads. State v. Addington, 143 N.C. 683, 57 S.E. 398 (1907).

For case in which sentence was held excessive, see State v. Nelson, 119 N.C. 797, 25 S.E. 863 (1896).

Suspension of Execution of Sentence. — Upon defendant's conviction of willful failure to support his illegitimate child, the trial court has plenary power to suspend execution of sentence on condition that defendant pay specified sums of money into court for support of his child. State v. Bowser, 232 N.C. 414, 61 S.E.2d 98 (1950). See also, State v. Robinson, 248 N.C. 282, 103 S.E.2d 376 (1958).

Effect of Discharge. — After the defendant, who had served a 20-day sentence for failure to pay under former law, had been discharged, he could not be resentenced to the house of correction at a subsequent term. State v. Burton, 113 N.C. 655, 18 S.E. 657 (1893).

Support Payments Are Not a Fine. — The support payments ordered by a court are to be paid for the support of the defendant's minor children and are not in the nature of a fine. State v. Green, 8 N.C. App. 234, 174 S.E.2d 8, aff'd, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970).

Application of Money Paid into Court. — This section does not contemplate that money paid into court to discharge past due obligations should be paid to a person to whom it was not due. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

When, without compensation, doctors and hospitals have performed immediately necessary services incident to the birth of a child and its subsequent welfare, public policy and simple justice require that money paid into court for them be disbursed directly to them; in no other way can their interests be protected. State v. Fowler, 277 N.C. 305, 177 S.E.2d 385 (1970).

Effect of Death of Child. — Under the former law, C.S. § 273, the intention was to secure to the mother either her probable expenses or to reimburse her actual outlay, and the death of the child when born did not affect the right of the mother to "support"; among other things, she was entitled to payment for medical attention and medicine for herself and the burial expenses of the child, consequent upon the defendant's unlawful act. State v. Addington, 143 N.C. 683, 57 S.E. 398 (1907).

Mother as Creditor of Father. — The mother of an illegitimate child, to whom an allowance has been made in bastardy proceedings, is such a creditor of the father of her child as to permit her to oppose the insolvent's discharge by suggesting fraud in answer to his petition. State v. Parsons, 115 N.C. 730, 20 S.E. 511 (1894).

Stated in Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 53 N.C. App. 649, 281 S.E.2d 765 (1981).

Cited in State v. Green, 277 N.C. 188, 176 S.E.2d 756 (1970); State v. Lee, 40 N.C. App. 165, 252 S.E.2d 225 (1979); Bell v. Martin, 299 N.C. 715, 264 S.E.2d 101 (1980).

§ 49-9. Bond for future appearance of defendant.

At the preliminary hearing of any case arising under this Article it shall be the duty of the court, if it finds reasonable cause for holding the accused for a further hearing, to require a bond in the sum of not less than one hundred dollars ($100.00), conditioned upon the reappearance of the accused at the further hearing under this Article. This bond and all other bonds provided for in this Article shall be justified before, and approved by, the court or the clerk thereof. (1933, c. 228, s. 8.)

Article 2.

Legitimation of Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-10. Legitimation.

The putative father of any child born out of wedlock, whether such father resides in North Carolina or not, may apply by a verified written petition, filed in a special proceeding in the superior court of the county in which the putative father resides or in the superior court of the county in which the child resides, praying that such child be declared legitimate. The mother, if living, and the child shall be necessary parties to the proceeding, and the full names of the father, mother and the child shall be set out in the petition. A certified copy of a certificate of birth of the child shall be attached to the petition. If it appears to the court that the petitioner is the father of the child, the court may thereupon declare and pronounce the child legitimated; and the full names of the father, mother and the child shall be set out in the court order decreeing legitimation of the child. The clerk of the court shall record the order in the record of orders and decrees and it shall be cross-indexed under the name of the father as plaintiff or petitioner on the plaintiff's side of the cross-index, and under the name of the mother, and the child as defendants or respondents on the defendants' side of the cross-index. (Code, s. 39; Rev., s. 263; C.S., s. 277; 1947, c. 663, s. 1; 1971, c. 154; 1977, c. 83, s. 1.)

Cross References. — For constitutional prohibition against private laws legitimating persons not born in lawful wedlock, see N.C. Const., Art. II, § 24(1)(n). As to legitimation procedure when mother is married, see § 49-12.1.

Legal Periodicals. — For a brief account of the 1947 amendments to this Article, see 25 N.C.L. Rev. 414 (1947).

For article, "The Parental Rights of Unwed Fathers: A Developmental Perspective," see 20 N.C. Cent. L.J. 45 (1992).

CASE NOTES

Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

But Requirement That Child's Surname Be Changed Is Invalid. — The valid purpose served by this section and § 49-13 of establishing the filial relationship between illegitimate children and their fathers is not enhanced, advanced or served in any useful or justifiable way by the additional requirement that the child's surname be changed to that of the father; such a requirement denies the mother of an illegitimate child the equal protection of the laws, and because it requires arbitrary action on the part of an agency of the State, it denies such mothers a protected liberty interest without due process of law. Jones v. McDowell, 53 N.C. App. 434, 281 S.E.2d 192 (1981).

Section Read in Conjunction with Statutes Applicable to Special Proceedings. — This section, as a special proceeding, should provide procedural mechanisms for the full and fair resolution of cases. To ensure the parties' right to a trial by jury, this section can and should be read in conjunction with the procedural statutes that apply to all special proceeding. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Legitimation Procedure Within Jurisdiction of Superior Court Clerk. — The legitimation procedure, which is identified in this section as a special proceeding in the superior court of the county in which the putative father resides, is within the jurisdictional purview of the clerk of superior court. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

The clerks of superior court have authority, pursuant to this section, to enter an order legitimating a minor child of a man who alleges that he is the child's natural father, where the child is presumed to be legitimate because he was born to his mother while she was lawfully married to another man, provided that the issue of paternity must be submitted to and decided by a jury after the child and the husband have been properly made parties to the proceeding. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Purpose of Procedure for Legitimation. — By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

There are several ways to legitimate children in North Carolina: 1) verified petition filed with the superior court by the putative father, 2) subsequent marriage of the parents, or 3) civil action to establish paternity. Helms v. Young-Woodard, 104 N.C. App. 746, 411 S.E.2d 184 (1991), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 117, 414 S.E.2d 756, 506 U.S. 829, 113 S. Ct. 91, 121 L. Ed. 2d 53 (1992).

Phrase "born out of wedlock" should refer to the status of the parents of the child in relation to each other. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

A child born to a married woman, but begotten by one other than her husband, is a child "born out of wedlock." In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Effect of Legitimation on Prior Consent to Adoption. — A legitimation proceeding brought under this section by the putative father of a child born out of wedlock, wherein the child was declared legitimate, had no effect upon the prior written consent to adoption given by the unwed mother under § 48-6. In re Doe, 11 N.C. App. 560, 181 S.E.2d 760, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 279 N.C. 394, 183 S.E.2d 244 (1971). See § 49-13.1.

Statute Inoperative After Death of Father. — Both the North Carolina legitimation and paternity statutes are inoperative after the death of the father. Tucker v. City of Clinton, 120 N.C. App. 776, 463 S.E.2d 806 (1995).

Petition to Be Filed by Father Only. — This statute unambiguously limits the person who may file a legitimation petition to the putative father of any child born out of wedlock; thus, the putative grandfather lacked standing to attempt legitimation. Tucker v. City of Clinton, 120 N.C. App. 776, 463 S.E.2d 806 (1995).

Subsequently Filed Affidavit Did Not Relate Back to Original Filing Date. — Where termination order, later held to be invalid for failure to use due diligence in ascertaining putative father's address, was filed with adoption petition in lieu of affidavit required by § 48-13, a subsequently filed affidavit did not relate back to original filing date of petition so as to cut off rights of putative father who filed legitimation petition to this section before affidavit was filed. In re Adoption of Clark, 327 N.C. 61, 393 S.E.2d 791 (1990).

Petition Addressed Directly to Judge. — A decree of legitimation was not void upon the ground that the petition should have been originally addressed to the clerk of the court, instead of directly to the judge. Dunn v. Dunn, 199 N.C. 535, 155 S.E. 165 (1930).

Child Is Necessary Party. — Under this section, the child is a necessary party to the proceeding. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Married Woman's Husband Should Be Summoned. — As a potentially adverse party in a special proceeding under this section brought by natural father of child whose mother was married to another man at the time of his conception and birth, the married woman's husband should be construed as one of the respondents on whom summons must be served. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985). See also § 49-12.1.

Summons Procedure Governed by § 1-393. — The requirement that a summons be served upon the man to whom the child's mother was married when the child was conceived and born would be governed by § 1-393. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Standard of Proof. — This section, just as § 49-14, requires proof beyond a reasonable doubt to establish paternity in rebuttal of the presumption of legitimacy arising from the lawful marriage of child's mother to man other than its natural father. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985). But see now § 49-12.1(c).

Presumption of Legitimacy Where Child's Mother Is Married. — Because of the strong presumption of legitimacy involved where mother of child is married, the lawful husband of the mother has an obvious interest in a legitimation proceeding involving a child born to his wife while the two were married. The rebuttal of this presumption should be presented to and resolved by a jury to ensure that the parties' rights are adequately protected. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Man Living with Mother for Five Years Preceding Child's Birth Was Putative Father. — Petitioner, who had lived openly and notoriously in an adulterous relationship with the mother of child (born in 1965) since 1960, continuing to maintain and care for the child born of that relationship, was the "putative father" of the child, rather than the mother's husband, who discontinued living with the mother in 1960, years before the child was born. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Transfer to Civil Docket for Jury Determination of Paternity. — Resolution by a jury of the factual issue of paternity, when a presumption of legitimacy is involved, may be accomplished by transferring the case to the civil issue docket for trial at the next ensuing session of the superior court pursuant to § 1-273 [see now § 1-301.1 et seq.]. Therefore, it is not necessary to require that the putative father first file a paternity action under § 49-14 before proceeding under this section to have child legitimated. In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

Applied in Gilliard v. Craig, 331 F. Supp. 587 (W.D.N.C. 1971), aff'd, 409 U.S. 807, 93 S. Ct. 39, 34 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1972), rehearing denied, 409 U.S. 1119, 93 S. Ct. 892, 34 L. Ed. 2d 704 (1973); Craid v. Gilliard, 409 U.S. 807, 93 S. Ct. 39, 34 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1972).

Cited in Williamson v. Cox, 218 N.C. 177, 10 S.E.2d 662 (1940); Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974); Smith v. Bumgarner, 115 N.C. App. 149, 443 S.E.2d 744 (1994); In re Baby Girl Dockery, 128 N.C. App. 631, 495 S.E.2d 417 (1998).

§ 49-11. Effects of legitimation.

The effect of legitimation under G.S. 49-10 shall be to impose upon the father and mother all of the lawful parental privileges and rights, as well as all of the obligations which parents owe to their lawful issue, and to the same extent as if said child had been born in wedlock, and to entitle such child by succession, inheritance or distribution, to take real and personal property by, through, and from his or her father and mother as if such child had been born in lawful wedlock. In case of death and intestacy, the real and personal estate of such child shall descend and be distributed according to the Intestate Succession Act as if he had been born in lawful wedlock. (Code, s. 40; Rev., s. 264; C.S., s. 278; 1955, c. 540, s. 2; 1959, c. 879, s. 10; 1963, c. 1131.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution.

Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

Purpose of Procedure for Legitimation. — By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

Legitimated Child May Inherit By, Through and From Parents. — A legitimated child shall have the same right to inherit by, through and from his father and mother as if such child had been born in lawful wedlock. Greenlee v. Quinn, 255 N.C. 601, 122 S.E.2d 409 (1961).

The plain intent and language of this section is that a legitimated child shall inherit his father's real estate and be entitled to the personal estate of his father in the same manner as if it had been born in lawful wedlock. Love v. Love, 179 N.C. 115, 101 S.E. 562 (1919).

Effect of Legitimation on Prior Consent to Adoption. — A legitimation proceeding brought under § 49-10 by the putative father of a child born out of wedlock, wherein the child was declared legitimate, had no effect upon the prior written consent to adoption given by the unwed mother under § 48-6. In re Doe, 11 N.C. App. 560, 181 S.E.2d 760, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 279 N.C. 394, 183 S.E.2d 244 (1971). See § 49-13.1.

Applied in Jones v. McDowell, 53 N.C. App. 434, 281 S.E.2d 192 (1981).

Cited in Settle ex rel. Sullivan v. Beasley, 309 N.C. 616, 308 S.E.2d 288 (1983).

§ 49-12. Legitimation by subsequent marriage.

When the mother of any child born out of wedlock and the reputed father of such child shall intermarry or shall have intermarried at any time after the birth of such child, the child shall, in all respects after such intermarriage be deemed and held to be legitimate and the child shall be entitled, by succession, inheritance or distribution, to real and personal property by, through, and from his father and mother as if such child had been born in lawful wedlock. In case of death and intestacy, the real and personal estate of such child shall descend and be distributed according to the Intestate Succession Act as if he had been born in lawful wedlock. (1917, c. 219, s. 1; C.S., s. 279; 1947, c. 663, s. 2; 1955, c. 540, s. 3; 1959, c. 879, s. 11.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 property law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1509 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

Upon the evidence in the case, and the theory of the defense, the defendant could not invoke the doctrine of vested rights so as to contest the constitutionality of this section. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N.C. 662, 110 S.E. 98 (1921).

Purpose of Procedure for Legitimation. — By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

Section 49-13 in Pari Materia. — This section and § 49-13 regulate the family circle and define the rights and responsibilities of members of the circle, and must be construed in pari materia. Chambers v. Chambers, 43 N.C. App. 361, 258 S.E.2d 822 (1979).

Action Under § 49-14 Prohibited When Child Is Legitimated. — If child is legitimated by virtue of this section, an action under § 49-14 cannot be maintained, as § 49-14 establishes a means of support for illegitimate children. Lewis v. Stitt, 86 N.C. App. 103, 356 S.E.2d 398 (1987).

Strict Construction. — This section is strictly construed as being in derogation of the common law. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N.C. 334, 148 S.E. 456 (1929).

Retroactivity of Section. — This section, by its express terms, is retroactive as well as prospective in effect. Stewart v. Stewart, 195 N.C. 476, 142 S.E. 577 (1928); Greenlee v. Quinn, 255 N.C. 601, 122 S.E.2d 409 (1961).

The provisions of this section are retroactive as well as prospective in effect, and a child born out of wedlock whose mother married his reputed father prior to the enactment of the statute is the heir of his parents who die subsequent to its enactment. In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N.C. 334, 148 S.E. 456 (1929).

The legislature has given a new or additional meaning to the word "legitimate" as used in this section. Although this meaning is not strictly within its ordinary definition, the courts will adopt the meaning impressed upon the word by legislative enactment. Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950).

"Reputed Father". — The word "reputed" means considered, or generally supposed, or accepted by general or public opinion. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N.C. 662, 110 S.E. 98 (1921).

The use of the word "reputed" rather than "putative" in this section was intended merely to dispense with the absolute proof of paternity, so that, if the child is "regarded," "deemed," "considered," or "held in thought" by the parents themselves as their child, either before or after marriage, it is legitimate. Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950); Chambers v. Chambers, 43 N.C. App. 361, 258 S.E.2d 822 (1979).

DNA sampling results may be used to rebut the presumption that a child born to a married woman is her husband's child and to simultaneously offer evidence that a person was "born out of wedlock" within the meaning of this section. Batcheldor v. Boyd, 108 N.C. App. 275, 423 S.E.2d 810 (1992), cert. denied, 333 N.C. 254, 426 S.E.2d 700 (1993).

Irregularity in divorce proceedings is not a ground for declaring children who would otherwise be legitimated by a subsequent marriage illegitimate. Reed v. Blair, 202 N.C. 745, 164 S.E. 118 (1932).

Rights and Duties as to Custody and Support. — In declaring in this section that "the child shall in all respects after such intermarriage be deemed and held to be legitimate," the General Assembly clearly intended that the child should be treated as a child born in lawful wedlock in determining the rights and duties of parent and child as to custody and support. In re Doe, 231 N.C. 1, 56 S.E.2d 8 (1949).

Where the reputed father of a child marries the child's mother after its birth, such child is deemed legitimate, just as if it had been born in lawful wedlock, and such child is a minor child of the marriage within the purview of the statute relating to custody and support of children in divorce; thus, the father may be required to furnish support for such child upon motion made either before or after decree of divorce. Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950).

Child Has Same Right to Inherit As If Born in Lawful Wedlock. — A legitimated child shall have the same right to inherit by, through and from his father and mother as if such child had been born in lawful wedlock. Greenlee v. Quinn, 255 N.C. 601, 122 S.E.2d 409 (1961).

Including Right to Inherit from Collateral Relations. — The legislature intended to confer upon the legitimated child the same right to inherit from collateral relations as it would have had if it had been born in lawful wedlock. Greenlee v. Quinn, 255 N.C. 601, 122 S.E.2d 409 (1961).

As to inheritance from collateral relations under former law, see In re Estate of Wallace, 197 N.C. 334, 148 S.E. 456 (1929).

Effect of Marriage on Child's Legitimacy under Former Law. — Prior to the passage of this section in 1917, marriage of the parents did not legitimate the previous offspring. Ashe v. Camp Mfg. Co., 154 N.C. 241, 70 S.E. 295 (1911).

Prior to the passage of this section, where, by the laws of the domicile of the parents at the time of the birth of their illegitimate child and of their marriage, their marriage legitimated him, the legitimacy attached at the time of the marriage, he being a minor, and followed him wherever he goes. Fowler v. Fowler, 131 N.C. 169, 42 S.E. 563 (1902).

Applied in Myers v. Myers, 39 N.C. App. 201, 249 S.E.2d 853 (1978); DOT v. Fuller, 76 N.C. App. 138, 332 S.E.2d 87 (1985); Batcheldor v. Boyd, 119 N.C. App. 204, 458 S.E.2d 1 (1995).

Cited in Williamson v. Cox, 218 N.C. 177, 10 S.E.2d 662 (1940); Herndon v. Robinson, 57 N.C. App. 318, 291 S.E.2d 305 (1982).

§ 49-12.1. Legitimation when mother married.

(a) The putative father of a child born to a mother who is married to another man may file a special proceeding to legitimate the child. The procedures shall be the same as those specified by G.S. 49-10, except that the spouse of the mother of the child shall be a necessary party to the proceeding and shall be properly served. A guardian ad litem shall be appointed to represent the child if the child is a minor.

(b) The presumption of legitimacy can be overcome by clear and convincing evidence.

(c) The parties may enter a consent order with the approval of the clerk of superior court. The order entered by the clerk shall find the facts and declare the proper person the father of the child and may change the surname of the child.

(d) The effect of legitimation under this section shall be the same as provided by G.S. 49-11.

(e) A certified copy of the order of legitimation under this section shall be sent by the clerk of superior court under his official seal to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics who shall make a new birth certificate bearing the full name of the father of the child and, if ordered by the clerk, changing the surname of the child. (1991, c. 667, s. 2; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 1030, s. 15; 1997-433, s. 4.9; 1998-17, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Marital Presumption Rebuttable. — In the context of a custody dispute between the mother and her husband or former spouse, concerning a child born during their lawful marriage, the marital presumption is rebuttable only upon a showing that another man has formally acknowledged paternity, or has been adjudicated to be the father of the child. Jones v. Patience, 121 N.C. App. 434, 466 S.E.2d 720 (1996).

§ 49-13. New birth certificate on legitimation.

A certified copy of the order of legitimation when issued under the provisions of G.S. 49-10 shall be sent by the clerk of the superior court under his official seal to the State Registrar of Vital Statistics who shall then make the new birth certificate bearing the full name of the father, and change the surname of the child so that it will be the same as the surname of the father.

When a child is legitimated under the provisions of G.S. 49-12, the State Registrar of Vital Statistics shall make a new birth certificate bearing the full name of the father upon presentation of a certified copy of the certificate of marriage of the father and mother and change the surname of the child so that it will be the same as the surname of the father. (1947, c. 663, s. 3; 1955, c. 951, s. 2.)

Cross References. — As to new birth certificate, see also § 49-12.1. As to amendment of birth certificates by State Registrar on proof of marriage of unwed parents, see § 130A-118.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "'We Are Family': Valuing Associationalism in Disputes Over Children's Surnames," see 75 N.C.L. Rev. 1625 (1997).

CASE NOTES

The name change requirement of this section is invalid. Jones v. McDowell, 53 N.C. App. 434, 281 S.E.2d 192 (1981).

The valid purpose served by § 49-10 and this section of establishing the filial relationship between illegitimate children and their fathers is not enhanced, advanced or served in any useful or justifiable way by the additional requirement that the child's surname be changed to that of the father; such a requirement denies the mother of an illegitimate child the equal protection of the laws, and because it requires arbitrary action on the part of an agency of the State, it denies such mothers a protected liberty interest without due process of law. Jones v. McDowell, 53 N.C. App. 434, 281 S.E.2d 192 (1981).

Section 49-12 in Pari Materia. — Section 49-12 and this section regulate the family circle and define the rights and responsibilities of members of the circle, and must be construed in pari materia. Chambers v. Chambers, 43 N.C. App. 361, 258 S.E.2d 822 (1979).

Defendant Estopped from Collateral Attack on Own Admission of Paternity. — Despite the fact that defendant-husband apparently made a false affidavit of paternity in obtaining a new birth certificate for the child under this section, he was estopped from collaterally attacking his admission of paternity in a later proceeding for support. Chambers v. Chambers, 43 N.C. App. 361, 258 S.E.2d 822 (1979).

Applied in Myers v. Myers, 39 N.C. App. 201, 249 S.E.2d 853 (1978).

Cited in Lewis v. Stitt, 86 N.C. App. 103, 356 S.E.2d 398 (1987).

§ 49-13.1. Effect of legitimation on adoption consent.

Legitimation of a child under the provisions of this Article shall not invalidate or adversely affect the sufficiency of the consent to adoption given by the mother alone, nor make necessary the consent of the father or his joinder as a party to the adoption proceeding, when the provisions of G.S. 48-6(a) and amendments thereto are applicable. (1969, c. 534, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Effect of Legitimation on Prior Consent to Adoption. — A legitimation proceeding brought under § 49-10 by the putative father of a child born out of wedlock, wherein the child was declared legitimate, had no effect upon the prior written consent to adoption given by the unwed mother under § 48-6. In re Doe, 11 N.C. App. 560, 181 S.E.2d 760, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 279 N.C. 394, 183 S.E.2d 244 (1971).

Article 3.

Civil Actions Regarding Illegitimate Children.

§ 49-14. Civil action to establish paternity.

(a) The paternity of a child born out of wedlock may be established by civil action at any time prior to such child's eighteenth birthday. A certified copy of a certificate of birth of the child shall be attached to the complaint. The establishment of paternity shall not have the effect of legitimation. The social security numbers, if known, of the minor child's parents shall be placed in the record of the proceeding.

(b) Proof of paternity pursuant to this section shall be by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence.

(c) No such action shall be commenced nor judgment entered after the death of the putative father, unless the action is commenced either:

(1) Prior to the death of the putative father;

(2) Within one year after the date of death of the putative father, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has not been commenced within one year of his death; or

(3) Within the period specified in G.S. 28A-19-3(a) for presentation of claims against an estate, if a proceeding for administration of the estate of the putative father has been commenced within one year of his death.

Any judgment under this subsection establishing a decedent to be the father of a child shall be entered nunc pro tunc to the day preceding the date of death of the father.

(d) If the action to establish paternity is brought more than three years after birth of a child or is brought after the death of the putative father, paternity shall not be established in a contested case without evidence from a blood or genetic marker test.

(e) Either party to an action to establish paternity may request that the case be tried at the first session of the court after the case is docketed, but the presiding judge, in his discretion, may first try any pending case in which the rights of the parties or the public demand it.

(f) When a determination of paternity is pending in a IV-D case, the court shall enter a temporary order for child support upon motion and showing of clear, cogent, and convincing evidence of paternity. For purposes of this subsection, the results of blood or genetic tests shall constitute clear, cogent, and convincing evidence of paternity if the tests show that the probability of the alleged parent's parentage is ninety-seven percent (97%) or higher. If paternity is not thereafter established, then the putative father shall be reimbursed the full amount of temporary support paid under the order.

(g) Invoices for services rendered for pregnancy, childbirth, and blood or genetic testing are admissible as evidence without requiring third party foundation testimony and shall constitute prima facie evidence of the amounts incurred for the services or for testing on behalf of the child. (1967, c. 993, s. 1; 1973, c. 1062, s. 3; 1977, c. 83, s. 2; 1981, c. 599, s. 14; 1985, c. 208, ss. 1, 2; 1993, c. 333, s. 3; 1995, c. 424, ss. 1, 2; 1997-154, s. 1; 1997-433, ss. 4.2, 4.10; 1998-17, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For note on constitutional law and an illegitimate child's paternal inheritance rights, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 205 (1980).

For survey of 1980 family law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1194 (1981).

For note on a default not constituting an admission of facts for purposes of summary judgment, see 17 Wake Forest L. Rev. 49 (1981).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For survey of constitutional law in 1982, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1052 (1983).

For 1984 survey, "Intestate Succession of Illegitimate Children in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1274 (1985).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases annotated below were decided prior to the 1993 amendment to § 49-14, which, inter alia, changed the evidentiary standard from beyond a reasonable doubt to clear, cogent and convincing evidence.

Constitutionality. — Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

The statutory scheme established by § 29-19 and §§ 49-14 through 49-16 does not discriminate against illegitimate children in such a manner as to violate the equal protection clause of U.S. Const., Amend. XIV. Outlaw v. Planters Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 41 N.C. App. 571, 255 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

For case holding the former statute of limitations under this section unconstitutional, see County of Lenoir ex rel. Cogdell v. Johnson, 46 N.C. App. 182, 264 S.E.2d 816 (1980).

Purpose. — The legislature, by enacting this section, intended to establish a means of support for illegitimate children. Wright v. Gann, 27 N.C. App. 45, 217 S.E.2d 761, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 513, 219 S.E.2d 348 (1975).

By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

The purposes of this Article are to enable an illegitimate child to receive support from its biological father and to prevent it from becoming a public charge. County of Lenoir ex rel. Cogdell v. Johnson, 46 N.C. App. 182, 264 S.E.2d 816 (1980).

The purpose of an action under this section is to establish the identity of the biological father of an illegitimate child so that the child's right to support may be enforced and the child will not become a public charge. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986); Smith v. Bumgarner, 115 N.C. App. 149, 443 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

The legislative purpose underlying this section's paternity actions is to provide the basis or means of establishing the identity of the putative father in order to allow the courts to impose an obligation of support. Becton v. George, 90 N.C. App. 607, 369 S.E.2d 366 (1988).

Statute Inoperative After Death of Father. — Both the North Carolina legitimation and paternity statutes are inoperative after the death of the father. Tucker v. City of Clinton, 120 N.C. App. 776, 463 S.E.2d 806 (1995).

There are several ways to legitimate children in North Carolina: 1) verified petition filed with the superior court by the putative father, 2) subsequent marriage of the parents, or 3) civil action to establish paternity. Helms v. Young-Woodard, 104 N.C. App. 746, 411 S.E.2d 184 (1991), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 117, 414 S.E.2d 756, 506 U.S. 829, 113 S. Ct. 91, 121 L. Ed. 2d 53 (1992).

Section 49-2 Compared. — The issue of paternity is the entire thrust of the civil action under this section, whereas the focus of the crime punishable by § 49-2 is the willful failure to pay support for an illegitimate child, not paternity, because that section does not make the mere begetting of a child a crime. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

This section and §§ 49-15 and 49-16 abrogate the common law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Applicability of § 50-13.6. — Section 50-13.6 does not apply to civil actions to establish paternity under this section, but would authorize an award of reasonable attorney fees for custody and support actions involving an illegitimate child whose paternity had been determined. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

Action Under This Section Prohibited When Child Is Legitimated. — If child is legitimated by virtue of § 49-12, an action under this section cannot be maintained, as this section establishes a means of support for illegitimate children. Lewis v. Stitt, 86 N.C. App. 103, 356 S.E.2d 398 (1987).

"Out of wedlock" refers to the status of the child and not to the status of the mother. Wright v. Gann, 27 N.C. App. 45, 217 S.E.2d 761, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 513, 219 S.E.2d 348 (1975).

This section is applicable to all illegitimate children, and therefore does not preclude an illegitimate child of a married woman from instituting a suit for support. Wright v. Gann, 27 N.C. App. 45, 217 S.E.2d 761, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 513, 219 S.E.2d 348 (1975).

Enforcement of Child's Right to Support. — The illegitimate child has no statutory right to parental support through criminal proceedings; rather, such child's right to parental support is enforced by an action under this section and § 49-15, which impose a support obligation on persons determined to be the parents of an illegitimate child. The function of a criminal prosecution of a parent who willfully fails to support his illegitimate child is not to compensate the illegitimate child, but to promote society's interest in preventing the parents of children from willfully leaving those children without parental support. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

Only Parent Who Has Custody of Child May Bring Action for Support. — Although plaintiff alleged that he was the father of the child, he did not allege that he had custody, therefore under the provisions of § 50-13.4, only a parent who has custody of a minor child may bring an action for its support. Becton v. George, 90 N.C. App. 607, 369 S.E.2d 366 (1988).

A paternity suit under this section is a civil action, even though the "beyond a reasonable doubt" standard is employed. County of Lenoir ex rel. Dudley v. Dawson, 60 N.C. App. 122, 298 S.E.2d 418 (1982).

Actions to enforce the child's right to support under this section and § 49-15 are civil actions. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

A suit brought for the sole purpose of establishing paternity pursuant to this section is not a criminal prosecution and cannot be considered criminal in nature simply because plaintiff must meet a higher burden of proof and establish such paternity beyond a reasonable doubt. Bell v. Martin, 299 N.C. 715, 264 S.E.2d 101 (1980).

And Confers No Per Se Right to Counsel. — The mere begetting of a child, standing alone, is not a crime in this state. It is true that a related threat of actual imprisonment, based partially upon a prior determination of paternity, may arise in subsequent criminal or civil enforcement proceedings if such becomes necessary to secure a defendant-father's support obligation to his child. However, it is plain that this uncertain "web of possibilities" concerning future sanctions or ramifications does not constitute an immediate threat of imprisonment in the initial civil paternity action itself, especially since the defendant may, in fact, prevail on the critical issue of fatherhood. Thus, there is no per se constitutional right to appointed counsel for an indigent defendant in a civil paternity suit under this section, by whomever instituted, because the necessary menace to personal liberty is clearly absent at that legal stage. Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 306 N.C. 333, 293 S.E.2d 95 (1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1113, 103 S. Ct. 745, 74 L. Ed. 2d 965 (1983).

Since Only One Issue Is Presented. — Representation by legal counsel is not invariably an essential component of fairness in all child support enforcement proceedings. There is but one factual issue in a paternity action, i.e., whether the defendant is the father of the child, and practically speaking, this is not an especially complex matter. The crux of most cases is credibility: simply deciding whom to believe. Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 306 N.C. 333, 293 S.E.2d 95 (1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1113, 103 S. Ct. 745, 74 L. Ed. 2d 965 (1983).

But Absent Counsel, Indigent May Not Later Be Incarcerated to Enforce Support Order. — An indigent person cannot be sent to jail in any later proceeding to enforce a child support order, unless he had the benefit of legal assistance and advocacy at the proceeding in which paternity was determined. Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 306 N.C. 333, 293 S.E.2d 95 (1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1113, 103 S. Ct. 745, 74 L. Ed. 2d 965 (1983).

Failure to Join Child Does Not Require Dismissal. — In a civil action to establish paternity of an alleged illegitimate child the failure to properly join that child does not justify dismissal of the action. Smith v. Bumgarner, 115 N.C. App. 149, 443 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

If the legislature had intended to require the child to be joined as a necessary party in an action under § 49-14, then it would have specifically stated such, as it did in § 49-10. Smith v. Bumgarner, 115 N.C. App. 149, 443 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

Trial Judge to Determine Necessity for Appointed Counsel. — The trial judge shall determine, in the first instance, what true fairness requires, in light of all of the circumstances, when an indigent makes a motion for the appointment of counsel in a civil paternity suit. The trial court should proceed with an evaluation of the vital interests at stake on both sides and a determination of the degree of actual complexity involved in the given case and the corresponding nature of defendant's peculiar problems, if any, in presenting his own defense without appointed legal assistance. The judge must then weigh the foregoing factors against the overall and strong presumption that the defendant is not entitled to the appointment of counsel in a proceeding which does not present an immediate threat to personal liberty. Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 306 N.C. 333, 293 S.E.2d 95 (1982), cert. denied, 459 U.S. 1113, 103 S. Ct. 745, 74 L. Ed. 2d 965 (1983).

Effect of Criminal Proceedings Under § 49-2 upon Proceedings under This Section. — Since the parties to a previous criminal proceeding under § 49-2 and civil proceedings under this section were not the same, and the State and the present plaintiff were not in privity, the defendant was not estopped in the civil action to deny paternity. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

A judgment of acquittal in a criminal prosecution under § 49-2 for willful failure to support two illegitimate children was not res judicata in a county's civil action under this section to establish defendant's paternity of the two children, where the criminal judgment merely stated that defendant was found not guilty, and did not disclose whether an acquittal was entered because the judge found that defendant was not the father of the children or because he did not believe that defendant had willfully failed to provide for their reasonable support, as there was thus no showing on the record that the issue of paternity had been previously adjudicated in defendant's favor. Stephens v. Worley, 51 N.C. App. 553, 277 S.E.2d 81 (1981).

Where a criminal action has been dismissed on grounds that the statute of limitations has run, and there is an identity of interest between the plaintiffs in the criminal and civil actions so that the parties are in privity, plaintiffs in the civil action are estopped by the judgment in the criminal action, even where the law has changed since the criminal action so as to allow proof of paternity by blood test. Settle ex rel. Sullivan v. Beasley, 59 N.C. App. 735, 298 S.E.2d 62 (1982), rev'd on other grounds, 309 N.C. 616, 308 S.E.2d 288 (1983).

General verdict of not guilty, upon charges of willful neglect and refusal to provide adequate support of an illegitimate child, did not operate as res judicata on the issue of paternity in subsequent action to establish paternity and require support of an illegitimate child. Sampson County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. McPherson v. Stevens, 91 N.C. App. 524, 372 S.E.2d 340 (1988).

Effect of Prior Determination in Action by County to Recover Support from Father. — Child's interests in having his paternity determined were not so identified with a county's interest in a prior action to recover from the father amounts paid by the county for child support that they were determinable in that action. The interest of the county, the real party in interest in the prior suit, was solely economic, as it was only interested in requiring the responsible parent to support the child and to recoup the amounts that it had paid for such support. The child, on the other hand, had more at stake in the later suit seeking support from his father, as the paternity adjudication would dramatically affect his personal interests. Settle ex rel. Sullivan v. Beasley, 309 N.C. 616, 308 S.E.2d 288 (1983).

No Certified Copies of Birth Certificates Attached to Petition. — In action under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, where the record disclosed that no certified copies of the birth certificates of the alleged children-obligees were attached to plaintiffs' petition, court was without subject matter jurisdiction to adjudicate defendant's paternity. Reynolds v. Motley, 96 N.C. App. 299, 385 S.E.2d 548 (1989).

In actions under this section, the jury decides only the factual issue of paternity, and the court decides what payments should be awarded for the support of the child. Searcy v. Justice, 20 N.C. App. 559, 202 S.E.2d 314 (1974).

Claim of Being Tricked into Fathering Child Not Appropriate as Defense. — Argument of defendant in paternity proceeding in which he counterclaimed against plaintiff for fraud that he was tricked into fathering a child and should not bear the financial responsibility for it was not appropriate in a civil action to establish paternity, either as a defense or a counterclaim. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

Clear, Cogent & Convincing Standard. — The plaintiff's testimony at trial that she had sexual contact with no man other than defendant either in 1990 or 1991, expert testimony regarding the likelihood of conception given the number of sexual encounters between the two, and exhibits indicating that the child bears a strong resemblance to the defendant were sufficient to support the trial court's conclusion that defendant was the child's biological parent. Brown v. Smith, 137 N.C. App. 160, 526 S.E.2d 686 (2000).

In a paternity action under this section, plaintiff must prove beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant is the father of the child whose paternity is in issue. Thus, in a paternity case, in order to affirm a JNOV, the court must conclude as a matter of law that the jury could have had no reasonable doubt that defendant was the biological father of plaintiff's son. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. 413, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

Testimony by Expert Concerning Paternity. — Although it may be proper for a qualified physician to testify concerning the result of a defendant's blood test and concerning the use and application of the paternity index, it is not proper to allow the expert to state his opinion concerning paternity, as such an opinion is of no assistance to the trier of fact. The jury is equally capable of weighing the genetic factors along with the nongenetic circumstances to determine the ultimate probability of paternity. Lombroia v. Peek, 107 N.C. App. 745, 421 S.E.2d 784 (1992).

Assertion by Court as to Paternity of Child Held Prejudicial Error. — In flatly asserting that the person who had had intercourse with plaintiff 10 lunar months before the birth of her child would be the father of her child, the court ignored the possibility of a premature birth or an unusually long pregnancy, and thus committed prejudicial error. Searcy v. Justice, 20 N.C. App. 559, 202 S.E.2d 314 (1974).

Visitation Rights of Father. — The principle that the father of an illegitimate child is not entitled to visitation privileges absent consent of the mother has been abrogated by statutes as well as case law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Transfer to Civil Docket for Jury Determination of Paternity. — Resolution by a jury of the factual issue of paternity, when a presumption of legitimacy is involved, may be accomplished by transferring the case to the civil issue docket for trial at the next ensuing session of the superior court pursuant to § 1-273 [see now § 1-301.1 et seq.]. Therefore, it is not necessary to require that the putative father first file a paternity action under this section before proceeding under § 49-10 to have child legitimated. In re Locklear ex rel. Jones, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985).

DNA or Gene Testing. — Trial court erred in ordering DNA or gene testing subsequent to an adjudication of paternity. State ex rel. Hill v. Manning, 110 N.C. App. 770, 431 S.E.2d 207 (1993).

Applied in In re Ballard, 311 N.C. 708, 319 S.E.2d 227 (1984); Wake County ex rel. Denning v. Ferrell, 71 N.C. App. 185, 321 S.E.2d 913 (1984).

Stated in State v. Caudill, 68 N.C. App. 268, 314 S.E.2d 592 (1984).

Cited in Durham County Dep't of Social Servs. v. Williams, 52 N.C. App. 112, 277 S.E.2d 865 (1981); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 63 N.C. App. 432, 305 S.E.2d 207 (1983); In re Locklear ex rel. Jones, 66 N.C. App. 722, 311 S.E.2d 691 (1984); Belfield v. Weyerhaeuser Co., 77 N.C. App. 332, 335 S.E.2d 44 (1985); State ex rel. Pender County Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Crews v. Parker, 82 N.C. App. 419, 346 S.E.2d 270 (1986).

§ 49-15. Custody and support of illegitimate children when paternity established.

Upon and after the establishment of paternity of an illegitimate child pursuant to G.S. 49-14, the rights, duties, and obligations of the mother and the father so established, with regard to support and custody of the child, shall be the same, and may be determined and enforced in the same manner, as if the child were the legitimate child of such father and mother. When paternity has been established, the father becomes responsible for medical expenses incident to the pregnancy and the birth of the child. (1967, c. 993, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For survey of 1980 family law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1194 (1981).

For survey of constitutional law in 1982, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1052 (1983).

For article, "Custody of the Illegitimate Child," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 18 (1989).

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

The statutory scheme established by § 29-19 and §§ 49-14 through 49-16 does not discriminate against illegitimate children in such a manner as to violate the equal protection clause of U.S. Const., Amend. XIV. Outlaw v. Planters Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 41 N.C. App. 571, 255 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Purpose of Procedure for Legitimation. — By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

This section and §§ 49-14 and 49-16 abrogate the common law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

How Rights Determined and Enforced. — This section contemplates that parents' rights may be determined and enforced in an action brought pursuant to § 49-14, and does not contemplate the bringing of a separate action for that purpose pursuant to § 50-13.1 et seq., which relates to the custody and support of legitimate children. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Child's Welfare Is Primary Consideration. — Once paternity is established, the proper custody and amount of support are determined in the same manner as for a legitimate child. In making this determination, the court has considerable discretion, but the welfare of the child is the primary consideration. To determine the rights of an illegitimate child any differently would violate the illegitimate child's constitutional right to equal protection of the law. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

The illegitimate child has no statutory right to parental support through criminal proceedings; rather, such child's right to parental support is enforced by an action under this section and § 49-14, which impose a support obligation on persons determined to be the parents of an illegitimate child. The function of a criminal prosecution of a parent who willfully fails to support his illegitimate child is not to compensate the illegitimate child, but to promote society's interest in preventing the parents of children from willfully leaving those children without parental support. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

Actions to enforce the child's right to support under this section and § 49-14 are civil actions. State v. Beasley, 57 N.C. App. 208, 290 S.E.2d 730, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 306 N.C. 559, 294 S.E.2d 225 (1982).

Retroactive Child Support Awards Authorized. — Trial court was not precluded as a matter of law from awarding retroactive child support under this section. Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

An action to enforce liability under this section is barred after three years under § 1-52(2). Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

Statute of Limitation Applies to Each Expenditure. — Each time a mother makes an expenditure reasonably incurred for the support of a child, such expenditure creates in her a new right to reimbursement, so that the statute of limitation applicable to proceedings hereunder, § 1-52(2), begins to run against each expenditure on the date when the expenditure was made. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

The doctrine of laches is not applicable to an action for retroactive child support since the public policy concerns about stale claims are already adequately served by the three-year statute of limitations set forth in § 1-52(2). Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App.

14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Extent of Recovery for Past Expenditures. — Assuming adequate proof of the expenditures under § 50-13.4(c), the plaintiff-mother could recover reimbursement for her past support expenditures (1) to the extent she paid the father's share of such expenditures, and (2) to the extent the expenditures occurred three years or less before August 8, 1986, the date she filed her claim for child support. Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Failure to Attach Certified Copies of Birth Certificates to Petition. — In action under Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, where the record disclosed that no certified copies of the birth certificates of the alleged children-obligees were attached to plaintiff's petition, court was without subject matter jurisdiction to adjudicate defendants' paternity. Reynolds v. Motley, 96 N.C. App. 299, 385 S.E.2d 548 (1989).

Court Decides Payments to Be Awarded. — In actions under § 49-14, the jury decides only the factual issue of paternity, and the court decides what payments should be awarded for the support of the child. Searcy v. Justice, 20 N.C. App. 559, 202 S.E.2d 314 (1974).

Effect of Criminal Proceedings upon Proceedings to Establish Paternity. — General verdict of not guilty, upon charges of willful neglect and refusal to provide adequate support of an illegitimate child, did not operate as res judicata on the issue of paternity in subsequent action to establish paternity and require support of an illegitimate child. Sampson County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. McPherson v. Stevens, 91 N.C. App. 524, 372 S.E.2d 340 (1988).

Visitation Rights of Father. — The principle that the father of an illegitimate child is not entitled to visitation privileges absent consent of the mother has been abrogated by statutes as well as case law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

The district court was authorized to grant visitation privileges to father and to punish the mother for refusing to allow father to visit his illegitimate child. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Reimbursement by State upon Receipt of Test Results. — Conclusion that defendant was not child's father and that the State was obligated to reimburse defendant for the monies it illegally garnished from his pay arose as a matter of law from paternity test results, which plaintiff and the court accepted as binding when order was entered, and stating those conclusions and ending the case properly in compliance with the law was the court's duty. State ex rel. Blossom v. Murray, 103 N.C. App. 653, 406 S.E.2d 302 (1991).

Applied in Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 53 N.C. App. 649, 281 S.E.2d 765 (1981).

Cited in Joyner v. Lucas, 42 N.C. App. 541, 257 S.E.2d 105 (1979); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 63 N.C. App. 432, 305 S.E.2d 207 (1983); State ex rel. Terry v. Marrow, 71 N.C. App. 170, 321 S.E.2d 575 (1984); In re Locklear, 314 N.C. 412, 334 S.E.2d 46 (1985); Smith v. Davis, 88 N.C. App. 557, 364 S.E.2d 156 (1988).

§ 49-16. Parties to proceeding.

Proceedings under this Article may be brought by:

(1) The mother, the father, the child, or the personal representative of the mother or the child.

(2) When the child, or the mother in case of medical expenses, is likely to become a public charge, the director of social services or such person as by law performs the duties of such official,

a. In the county where the mother resides or is found,

b. In the county where the putative father resides or is found, or

c. In the county where the child resides or is found. (1967, c. 993, s. 1; 1969, c. 982; 1975, c. 54, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — Sections 29-19, 49-10 through 49-12 and 49-14 through 49-16, construed together, do not violate the equal protection clause of the United States Constitution. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

The statutory scheme established by § 29-19 and §§ 49-14 through 49-16 does not discriminate against illegitimate children in such a manner as to violate the equal protection clause of U.S. Const., Amend. XIV. Outlaw v. Planter's Nat'l Bank & Trust Co., 41 N.C. App.

571, 255 S.E.2d 189 (1979).

Purpose of Procedure for Legitimation. — By specifying the manner and time in which an illegitimate child may establish his paternity, this State has sought (1) to mitigate the hardships created by former law (which permitted illegitimate children to inherit only from the mother and from each other); (2) to equalize, insofar as practical, the inheritance rights of legitimate and illegitimate children; and (3) at the same time, to safeguard the just and orderly disposition of a decedent's property and the dependability of titles passing under intestate laws. Mitchell v. Freuler, 297 N.C. 206, 254 S.E.2d 762 (1979).

This section and §§ 49-14 and 49-15 abrogate the common law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Visitation Rights of Father. — The principle that the father of an illegitimate child is not entitled to visitation privileges absent consent of the mother has been abrogated by statutes as well as case law. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Quoted in Smith v. Bumgarner, 115 N.C. App. 149, 443 S.E.2d 744 (1994).

Cited in Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976); Joyner v. Lucas, 42 N.C. App. 541, 257 S.E.2d 105 (1979).

§ 49-17. Jurisdiction over nonresident or nonpresent persons.

(a) The act of sexual intercourse within this State constitutes sufficient minimum contact with this forum for purposes of subjecting the person or persons participating therein to the jurisdiction of the courts of this State for actions brought under this Article for paternity and support of any child who may have been conceived as a result of such act.

(b) The jurisdictional basis in subsection (a) of this section shall be construed in addition to, and not in lieu of, any basis or bases for jurisdiction within G.S. 1-75.4. (1979, c. 542.)

CASE NOTES

Constitutionality. — This section satisfies the first prong of the test set out in Dillon v. Numismatic Funding Corp., 291 N.C. 674, 231 S.E.2d 629 (1977) by creating special jurisdiction under very limited circumstances; on its face, this statute is constitutionally sound and although the language in this section which refers to "minimum contacts" is misleading and confusing in the context of the Dillon requirements, the intent of the statute is not to abrogate the second prong of the Dillon test; rather, the statute simply creates special jurisdiction in certain situations. Cochran v. Wallace, 95 N.C. App. 167, 381 S.E.2d 853 (1989).

Due Process Requirements Satisfied. — In paternity suit, where the trial court adequately inquired into the defendant's contacts with this State and so set those findings out in its order without objection of the defendant, the hearing which was held on defendant's motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction comported with all due process requirements. Cochran v. Wallace, 95 N.C. App. 167, 381 S.E.2d 853 (1989).

North Carolina courts have a legitimate interest in protecting our citizens under circumstances such as those enumerated in this section. Cochran v. Wallace, 95 N.C. App. 167, 381 S.E.2d 853 (1989).

Chapter 49A.

Rights of Children.

Article 1.

Children Conceived by Artificial Insemination.

Article 1.

Children Conceived by Artificial Insemination.

§ 49A-1. Status of child born as a result of artificial insemination.

Any child or children born as the result of heterologous artificial insemination shall be considered at law in all respects the same as a naturally conceived legitimate child of the husband and wife requesting and consenting in writing to the use of such technique. (1971, c. 260.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Surrogate Parenthood: Finding a North Carolina Solution," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1989).

Chapter 50.

Divorce and Alimony.

Article 1.

Divorce, Alimony, and Child Support, Generally.

Article 2.

Expedited Process for Child Support Cases.

Article 1.

Divorce, Alimony, and Child Support, Generally.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, which added Article 2 of this Chapter, designated the existing provisions of this Chapter as Article 1.

§ 50-1: Repealed by Session Laws 1971, c. 1185, s. 20.

§ 50-2. Bond for costs unnecessary.

It shall not be necessary for either party to a proceeding for divorce or alimony to give any undertaking to the other party to secure such costs as such other party may recover. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 41; Code, s. 1294; Rev., s. 1558; C.S., s. 1656.)

Cross References. — As to prosecution bonds generally, see § 1-109 et seq. As to costs generally, see §§ 6-21, 7A-305 et seq.

Legal Periodicals. — For note on consent judgments in family law in light of Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), see 6 Campbell L. Rev. 125 (1984).

CASE NOTES

As to liability of husband for own costs, see Broom v. Broom, 130 N.C. 562, 41 S.E. 673 (1902).

Applied in Mayer v. Mayer, 66 N.C. App. 522, 311 S.E.2d 659 (1984).

§ 50-3. Venue; removal of action.

In all proceedings for divorce, the summons shall be returnable to the court of the county in which either the plaintiff or defendant resides.

[In] any action brought under Chapter 50 for alimony or divorce filed in a county where the plaintiff resides but the defendant does not reside, where both parties are residents of the State of North Carolina, and where the plaintiff removes from the State and ceases to be a resident, the action may be removed upon motion of the defendant, for trial or for any motion in the cause, either before or after judgment, to the county in which the defendant resides. The judge, upon such motion, shall order the removal of the action, and the procedures of G.S. 1-87 shall be followed. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 40; Code, s. 1289; Rev., s. 1559; 1915, c. 229, s. 1; C.S., s. 1657; 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1223.)

Legal Periodicals. — On the general question of jurisdiction in divorce, see 1 N.C.L. Rev. 95 (1923).

For note on domicile of military personnel for purpose of divorce, see 31 N.C.L. Rev. 304 (1953).

For survey of 1980 law on civil procedure, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1067 (1981).

For comment, "Conflicts of Law in Divorce Litigation: A Looking-Glass World?," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 145 (1987).

CASE NOTES

Change in Common-Law Rule. — The common-law rule that the wife should bring her action for divorce in the domicile of her husband was changed by this section, as amended by Laws 1915, c. 229, making the summons returnable to the county in which either the plaintiff or defendant resides. Wood v. Wood, 181 N.C. 227, 106 S.E. 753 (1921).

Any Superior Court Has Jurisdiction If Either Party Is Domiciled in State. — In the absence of fraud, the superior court of any county in this State has jurisdiction over divorce action if either of the parties is domiciled in this State. Stokes v. Stokes, 260 N.C. 203, 132 S.E.2d 315 (1963).

But If Plaintiff Conceals Action and Whereabouts of Defendant, Jurisdiction Is Lacking. — If a plaintiff should fraudulently conceal his action for a divorce from the defendant and the whereabouts of the defendant from the court, jurisdiction would be lacking and a divorce obtained upon service of summons by publication would be a nullity. Stokes v. Stokes, 260 N.C. 203, 132 S.E.2d 315 (1963).

Venue Provisions of This Section Are Not Jurisdictional. — The provisions of this section that in divorce proceedings the summons shall be returnable to the court of the county in which either the plaintiff or the defendant resides are not jurisdictional; they relate only to venue. Stokes v. Stokes, 260 N.C. 203, 132 S.E.2d 315 (1963).

And May Be Waived. — The provisions of this section are not jurisdictional, but relate to venue, and they may be waived. Nelms v. Nelms, 250 N.C. 237, 108 S.E.2d 529 (1959).

The provision of this section that summons shall be returnable to the court of the county in which either plaintiff or defendant resides is not jurisdictional, but relates to venue, and may be waived; and if an action for divorce is instituted in any other county, it may be tried there, unless defendant before the time of answering expires demands in writing that trial be had in the proper county. Smith v. Smith, 226 N.C. 506, 39 S.E.2d 391 (1946); Denson v. Denson, 255 N.C. 703, 122 S.E.2d 507 (1961); Smith v. Smith, 56 N.C. App. 812, 290 S.E.2d 390 (1982).

But Removal Provisions Are Mandatory. — The language of this section, as amended by Session Laws 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1223, which added the second paragraph, is mandatory. If the defendant makes a motion for change of venue, the judge shall grant it. Gardner v. Gardner, 43 N.C. App. 678, 260 S.E.2d 116 (1979), aff'd, 300 N.C. 715, 268 S.E.2d 468 (1980).

And Apply Retroactively to Causes Which Have Accrued. — The retroactive application of this section to causes of action which accrued prior to the effective date of the statute is proper. No vested right is destroyed, nor does a question of construction arise, where a venue statute, by its own provisions, is declared to apply to transactions entered into prior to the passage of the statute. Gardner v. Gardner, 43 N.C. App. 678, 260 S.E.2d 116 (1979), aff'd, 300 N.C. 715, 268 S.E.2d 468 (1980).

But Not to Actions Settling Venue Before Effective Date. — The amendment of this section providing for removal of an action for divorce or alimony, upon motion of defendant, to the county in which defendant resides, where plaintiff has ceased to be a resident of this State, is mandatory and may be applied retroactively and even to actions pending on its effective date. However, the amendment would not be applicable to an action for divorce from bed and board where it became effective after the trial court made a decision settling the question of venue. Gardner v. Gardner, 43 N.C. App. 678, 260 S.E.2d 116 (1979), aff'd, 300 N.C. 715, 268 S.E.2d 468 (1980).

As Right to Venue as Adjudicated Is Substantial. — Although the question of venue is a procedural one, a right to venue established by statute is a substantial right. Its status is secure when finally adjudicated by a court of competent jurisdiction, and neither the courts nor the legislature can thereafter invalidate the right's exercise or annul the judgment which fixes its investiture. Gardner v. Gardner, 300 N.C. 715, 268 S.E.2d 468 (1980).

Limitation on Retroactive Application of Section. — This statute may be applied retroactively only insofar as it does not impinge upon a right which is otherwise secured, established, and immune from further legal metamorphosis. Gardner v. Gardner, 300 N.C. 715, 268 S.E.2d 468 (1980).

Propriety of Motion to Remove. — This section is not jurisdictional and may be waived, and the failure therein must be taken advantage of by motion to remove the cause to the proper venue, and not by motion to dismiss. Davis v. Davis, 179 N.C. 185, 102 S.E. 270 (1920).

Failure to Make Motion as Waiver. — Any action brought in the wrong county may be removed instead of being dismissed, and a failure to make the motion for removal is a waiver of objection to the county in which it is brought. Denson v. Denson, 255 N.C. 703, 122 S.E.2d 507 (1961).

Applied in Bass v. Bass, 43 N.C. App. 212, 258 S.E.2d 391 (1979).

Stated in Batts v. United States, 120 F. Supp. 26 (E.D.N.C. 1954).

Cited in Wood v. Wood, 181 N.C. 227, 106 S.E. 753 (1921); Miller v. Miller, 38 N.C. App. 95, 247 S.E.2d 278 (1978); Gardner v. Gardner, 48 N.C. App. 38, 269 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

§ 50-4. What marriages may be declared void on application of either party.

The district court, during a session of court, on application made as by law provided, by either party to a marriage contracted contrary to the prohibitions contained in the Chapter entitled Marriage, or declared void by said Chapter, may declare such marriage void from the beginning, subject, nevertheless, to G.S. 51-3. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 33; Code, s. 1283; Rev., s. 1560; C.S., s. 1658; 1945, c. 635; 1971, c. 1185, s. 21; 1973, c. 1; 1979, c. 525, s. 10.)

Cross References. — As to marriage generally, see § 51-1 et seq. As to void and voidable marriages, see § 51-3.

CASE NOTES

Void and Voidable Marriages Compared. — A voidable marriage is valid for all civil purposes until it is annulled by a competent tribunal in a direct proceeding, but a void marriage is a nullity and may be impeached at any time. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Formal Decree When Marriage Is Absolutely Void. — Even though a marriage may be absolutely void, without being so declared, yet the court will formally decree its nullity, for the sake of the good order of society as well as for the quiet and relief of the party seeking the relief. Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N.C. 470 (1843); Lea v. Lea, 104 N.C. 603, 10 S.E. 488 (1889).

Marriage Induced by Duress. — A former marriage which has been decreed to be void because it was induced by duress was void ab initio, and hence did not afford ground for annulment of a later marriage between one of the parties and a third person, though such decree was rendered after the second marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912).

Test of Mental Capacity to Contract Marriage. — As to what constitutes mental capacity or incapacity to enter into a contract to marry, the general rule is that the test is the capacity of the person to understand the special nature of the contract of marriage and the duties and responsibilities which it entails, which is to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each case. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312

S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Test of Incompetency in Guardianship Matters Compared. — Tests judicially applied for a determination of incompetency in guardianship matters differ markedly from those applied for the determination of mental capacity to contract a marriage, for even though he may be under guardianship as an incompetent, a person may have in fact sufficient mental capacity to validly contract marriage. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Capacity to Marry as Affected by Guardianship. — Unlike other transactions, an insane person's capacity to marry is not necessarily affected by guardianship. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Mental capacity at the precise time when marriage is celebrated controls. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Prior adjudication of incompetency is not conclusive on the issue of later capacity to marry and does not bar a party from entering a contract to marry. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Marriage of Person Incapable of Contracting for Want of Understanding Voidable. — Under the common law as modified by § 51-3 and this section, a marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding is not void, but voidable. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Same — Void Ab Initio When So Declared. — Under the rule of the common law as modified by statute, the marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding is not void ipso facto, but if and when it is declared void in a legally constituted action, such marriage is void ab initio. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

The court has jurisdiction to declare marriages in proper cases void ab initio, but the marriage of a lunatic is not so ipso facto, and must be so declared by a decree of the court. Watters v. Watters, 168 N.C. 411, 84 S.E. 703 (1915). See also, State ex rel. Setzer v. Setzer, 97 N.C. 252, 1 S.E. 558 (1887).

Same — Standing to Institute Action. — An action to declare void a marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding may be instituted in the lifetime of the parties thereto by a guardian for the alleged mentally incompetent person or by such mentally incompetent person if and when he or she becomes mentally competent to do so; and unless such marriage is followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue, such action may be instituted after the death of such mentally incompetent person by a person or persons whose legal rights depend upon whether such marriage is valid or void. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

A suit for nullity of marriage on the ground of insanity may be brought either in the name of the lunatic, by her guardian, or in the name of the guardian, though the former is, for some reasons, the preferable course. Crump v. Morgan, 38 N.C. 91, 40 Am. Dec. 447 (1843).

Same — Burden of Persuasion as to Invalidity. — When the fact of marriage has been established by evidence, the burden of persuasion on the issue of invalidity is on the party asserting such. And even if a party's insanity is proved to be of such a chronic nature that it is presumed to continue, it does not shift the burden on the issue. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Same — Death of Party After Birth of Issue. — A marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding, when followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue, may not be declared void after the death of either of the parties. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

Subsequent Insanity Not Ground for Annulment. — Insanity afterwards afflicting a party to a contract of marriage is not a ground for annulment. Watters v. Watters, 168 N.C. 411, 84 S.E. 703 (1915).

Death of Party to Incestuous Marriage After Birth of Issue. — In Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N.C. 293 (1884), it was held that the authority conferred upon the court by this section was so limited by § 51-3 as to deprive the court of the power to declare void the marriage of uncle and niece, "nearer of kin than first cousins, " after the husband's death, when their marriage was followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

License Issued upon Fraudulent Representations as to Age — How Voided. — Prior to the 1939 amendment to § 51-2, which made parents proper parties plaintiff, where a register of deeds was induced by fraudulent representations to issue a license for the marriage of a female between the ages of 14 and 16 without conforming with § 51-2 as to the written consent of her parent, the marriage was voidable only at the suit of the female, and the register of deeds could not maintain a suit to declare the marriage void; the register of deeds could at most maintain an action to revoke and cancel the license issued by him before the solemnization of the marriage. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N.C. 697, 146 S.E. 864 (1929).

Same — Effect of 20 Years' Ratification. — Where a marriage is entered into by one under the legal age, but is followed by a cohabitation of 20 years, the parties acknowledging each other and being recognized as husband and wife, although such marriage in its inception was invalid, by reason of such ratification by the parties it would not be declared void. State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890).

Suit by Nonresident. — Under this section, the courts of this State have jurisdiction of a suit to annul a marriage performed here, even though the plaintiff was a nonresident of this State at the time of commencement of the suit. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N.C. 697, 146 S.E. 864 (1929).

Procedure Similar to Divorce Action. — An action, under this section, to have a marriage declared void, so far as procedure is concerned, is an action for divorce. Lea v. Lea, 104 N.C. 603, 10 S.E. 488 (1889); Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N.C. 91, 53 S.E. 623 (1906).

In Johnson v. Kincade, 37 N.C. 470, (1843), the marriage of the parties was declared a nullity because of the mental incapacity of one of the parties at the time of the marriage. In that decision the court declared that the "plaintiff ought to be, and is divorced from the defendant." See Lea v. Lea, 104 N.C. 603, 10 S.E. 488 (1889); Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912).

Affidavit Not Necessary. — Action for annulment under this section would not be dismissed because of failure to make the affidavit formerly prescribed in § 50-8 for actions for divorce or alimony. Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912).

Allowance of Alimony Pendente Lite. — While not technically actions for divorce, actions for annulment come under that heading, in a general way, in that alimony pendente lite may be allowed. Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912). See also, Lea v. Lea, 104 N.C. 603, 10 S.E. 488 (1889).

Effect of Annulment Decree. — A decree annulling a marriage is final and conclusive and not open to collateral impeachment, although it may be vacated or set aside for good cause on proper application. Its effect is to make the supposed or pretended marriage as if it had never existed, and hence it restores both parties to their former status and to all rights of property as before the marriage. Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912).

Legitimacy of Children of Annulled Marriage. — The children of a marriage which is subsequently annulled are made legitimate by § 50-11. Taylor v. White, 160 N.C. 38, 75 S.E. 941 (1912). See also § 50-11.1.

Setting Aside Judgment — Adversary Proceeding. — If either party to an action to annul a marriage contract desires to move to set aside the judgment rendered, it must be done in an adversary proceeding after due notice is served upon the other party; notice to counsel of record in the original action is not sufficient. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N.C. 91, 53 S.E. 623 (1906).

Same — Counsel Cannot Represent Both Parties Jointly. — A proceeding to set aside a judgment in an action of annulment will be dismissed where the same counsel jointly makes the motion representing both parties to the action. Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N.C. 91, 53 S.E. 623 (1906).

Collateral Attack by Second Husband on Wife's Former Divorce Decree Not Authorized. — Where a divorce decree obtained by defendant wife from her former husband on the ground of separation for one year was in all respects regular on the face of the record, the divorce decree was not void but merely voidable even though there was proof that defendant and her former husband had not lived separate and apart for one year as of the time of the divorce; therefore, plaintiff husband had no standing collaterally to attack the divorce decree as to show that his subsequent marriage to defendant was void ab initio. Maxwell v. Woods, 47 N.C. App. 495, 267 S.E.2d 516, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 236, 283 S.E.2d 132 (1980).

Applied in Dees v. McKenna, 261 N.C. 373, 134 S.E.2d 644 (1964); Fulton v. Vickery, 73 N.C. App. 382, 326 S.E.2d 354 (1985).

Cited in Armstrong v. Armstrong, 41 N.C. App. 168, 254 S.E.2d 209 (1979); Dobos v. Dobos, 111 N.C. App. 222, 431 S.E.2d 861 (1993).

§ 50-5: Repealed by Session Laws 1983, c. 613, s. 1.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1983, c. 613, s. 1 repealed this section, except for subdivision (6) thereof, which it recodified as § 50-5.1.

§ 50-5.1. Grounds for absolute divorce in cases of incurable insanity.

In all cases where a husband and wife have lived separate and apart for three consecutive years, without cohabitation, and are still so living separate and apart by reason of the incurable insanity of one of them, the court may grant a decree of absolute divorce upon the petition of the sane spouse: Provided, if the insane spouse has been released on a trial basis to the custody of his or her respective spouse such shall not be considered as terminating the status of living "separate and apart" nor shall it be considered as constituting "cohabitation" for the purpose of this section nor shall it prevent the granting of a divorce as provided by this section. Provided further, the evidence shall show that the insane spouse is suffering from incurable insanity, and has been confined or examined for three consecutive years next preceding the bringing of the action in an institution for the care and treatment of the mentally disordered or, if not so confined, has been examined at least three years preceding the institution of the action for divorce and then found to be incurably insane as hereinafter provided. Provided further, that proof of incurable insanity be supported by the testimony of two reputable physicians, one of whom shall be a staff member or the superintendent of the institution where the insane spouse is confined, and one regularly practicing physician in the community wherein such husband and wife reside, who has no connection with the institution in which said insane spouse is confined; and provided further that a sworn statement signed by said staff member or said superintendent of the institution wherein the insane spouse is confined or was examined shall be admissible as evidence of the facts and opinions therein stated as to the mental status of said insane spouse and as to whether or not said insane spouse is suffering from incurable insanity, or the parties according to the laws governing depositions may take the deposition of said staff member or superintendent of the institution wherein the insane spouse is confined; and provided further that incurable insanity may be proved by the testimony of one or more licensed physicians who are members of the staff of one of this State's accredited four-year medical schools or a state-supported mental institution, supported by the testimony of one or more other physicians licensed by the State of North Carolina, that each of them examined the allegedly incurable insane spouse at least three years preceding the institution of the action for divorce and then determined that said spouse was suffering from incurable insanity and that one or more of them examined the allegedly insane spouse subsequent to the institution of the action and that in his or their opinion the said allegedly insane spouse was continuously incurably insane throughout the full period of three years prior to the institution of the said action.

In lieu of proof of incurable insanity and confinement for three consecutive years next preceding the bringing of the action in an institution for the care and treatment of the mentally disordered prescribed in the preceding paragraph, it shall be sufficient if the evidence shall show that the allegedly insane spouse was adjudicated to be insane more than three years preceding the institution of the action for divorce, that such insanity has continued without interruption since such adjudication and that such person has not been adjudicated to be sane since such adjudication of insanity; provided, further, proof of incurable insanity existing after the institution of the action for divorce shall be furnished by the testimony of two reputable, regularly practicing physicians, one of whom shall be a psychiatrist.

In lieu of proof of incurable insanity and confinement for three consecutive years next preceding the bringing of the action in an institution for the care and treatment of the mentally disordered, or the adjudication of insanity, as prescribed in the preceding paragraphs, it shall be sufficient if the evidence shall show that the insane spouse was examined by two or more members of the staff of one of this State's accredited four-year medical schools, both of whom are medical doctors, at least three years preceding the institution of the action for divorce with a determination at that time by said staff members that said spouse is suffering from incurable insanity, that such insanity has continued without interruption since such determination; provided, further, that sworn statements signed by the staff members of the accredited medical school who examined the insane spouse at least three years preceding the commencement of the action shall be admissible as evidence of the facts and opinions therein stated as to the mental status of said insane spouse as to whether or not said insane spouse was suffering from incurable insanity; provided, further, that proof of incurable insanity under this section existing after the institution of the action for divorce shall be furnished by the testimony of two reputable physicians, one of whom shall be a psychiatrist on the staff of one of the State's accredited four-year medical schools, and one a physician practicing regularly in the community wherein such insane person resides.

In all decrees granted under this subdivision in actions in which the insane defendant has insufficient income and property to provide for his or her own care and maintenance, the court shall require the plaintiff to provide for the care and maintenance of the insane defendant for the defendant's lifetime, based upon the standards set out in G.S. 50-16.5(a). The trial court will retain jurisdiction of the parties and the cause, from term to term, for the purpose of making such orders as equity may require to enforce the provisions of the decree requiring plaintiff to furnish the necessary funds for such care and maintenance.

Service of process shall be held upon the regular guardian for said defendant spouse, if any, and if no regular guardian, upon a duly appointed guardian ad litem and also upon the superintendent or physician in charge of the institution wherein the insane spouse is confined. Such guardian or guardian ad litem shall make an investigation of the circumstances and notify the next of kin of the insane spouse or the superintendent of the institution of the action and whenever practical confer with said next of kin before filing appropriate pleadings in behalf of the defendant.

In all actions brought under this subdivision, if the jury finds as a fact that the plaintiff has been guilty of such conduct as has conduced to the unsoundness of mind of the insane defendant, the relief prayed for shall be denied.

The plaintiff or defendant must have resided in this State for six months next preceding institution of any action under this section. (1945, c. 755; 1949, c. 264, s. 5; 1953, c. 1087; 1955, c. 887, s. 15; 1963, c. 1173; 1971, c. 1173, ss. 1, 2; 1975, c. 771; 1977, c. 501, s. 1; 1983, c. 613, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to the maintenance of actions for alimony, alimony pendente lite, and custody and support as in dependent actions during the pendency of an action for divorce, and vice versa, and the effect of a divorce on a pending action for alimony or alimony pendente lite, see § 50-19.

Editor's Note. — This section was subdivision (6) of former § 50-5. It has been recodified as § 50-5.1 by Session Laws 1983, c. 613, s. 1.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1945 amendment to this section, which was formerly § 50-5(6), see 23 N.C.L. Rev. 340 (1945).

For summary of the 1949 amendments to former § 50-5 and §§ 50-6 and 50-8, see 27 N.C.L. Rev. 453 (1949).

For comment on contingent fees in domestic relations actions, see 62 N.C.L. Rev. 381 (1984).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-5(6).

Purpose. — The purpose of former § 50-5(6), as amended (recodified as this section) is to require that a person alleged to be incurably insane shall not have his or her marital status altered until such person has been committed to an institution for the care and treatment of the mentally disordered for a period of five (now three) successive years in order that it may be ascertained whether or not the inmate's insanity is incurable. Mere confinement for a period of five (now three) successive years in such an institution would fulfill the literal meaning of the statute but it would not be in compliance with its spirit or purpose. Mabry v. Mabry, 243 N.C. 126, 90 S.E.2d 221 (1955).

Exclusive Remedy. — The remedy provided in former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section) is exclusive. Lawson v. Bennett, 240 N.C. 52, 81 S.E.2d 162 (1954).

Section Not Ambiguous. — Former § 50-5(6), recodified as this section, is not ambiguous. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

The words "next preceding" in former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section) have been held to mean the time nearest to the bringing of the action. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

It is not sufficient under former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section) that the insane spouse was confined to an institution for five (now three) consecutive years at some time prior to the commencement of the action; the statute requires that confinement must be for five (now three) consecutive years "next preceding" the bringing of the action, which means the time nearest the bringing of the action. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

"Confined." — By the use of the word "confined" in former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section), the legislature did not contemplate such confinement as would require an inmate to be at all times under lock and key. Mabry v. Mabry, 243 N.C. 126, 90 S.E.2d 221 (1955); Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

Release on Probation. — In a proceeding by wife for divorce on the ground of husband's insanity, where doctors testified that the husband was incurably insane, the fact that the husband during the five-year (now three-year) period of confinement had been released on probation to his relatives on separate occasions, once for 10 days and once for six months, did not bar divorce of wife on the ground of insanity, since release on probation did not constitute such acts on the part of the hospital authorities as to terminate the period of confinement within the meaning of former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section). Mabry v. Mabry, 243 N.C. 126, 90 S.E.2d 221 (1955).

Periods of probation are permissible under former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section) and may be deemed not to have constituted an interruption of the confinement or a discharge from the hospital within the meaning of the statute. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

Defendant's discharge under former § 122-67 terminated his confinement and he was, therefore, not confined for five years (now three years) next preceding the institution of the action as required by former § 50-5(6) (recodified as this section). Vaughan v. Vaughan, 4 N.C. App. 253, 166 S.E.2d 530 (1969).

Proof of Separation. — In a suit for divorce on the statutory ground of insanity, the insanity must be the reason for the separation of the parties, but no greater proof of separation and its continuance during the five-year (now three-year) period is required than in a proceeding for divorce based on a two-year (now one-year) separation period. Mabry v. Mabry, 243 N.C. 126, 90 S.E.2d 221 (1955).

Separation Occasioned by Mental Incompetency Other Than Incurable Insanity. — Separation occasioned by insanity is cause for divorce in North Carolina only in cases of incurable insanity. And in these cases the requirements of this section must be met. In all other instances of separation arising by reason of mental incompetency, such separation is not a ground for divorce. But to bar an action for divorce based on two (now one) years' separation under § 50-6, the mental impairment must be to such extent that defendant does not understand what he or she is engaged in doing, and the nature and consequences of the act. Moody v. Moody, 253 N.C. 752, 117 S.E.2d 724 (1961).

Expert Testimony Insufficient. — Defendant's expert testimony did not satisfy the requirements of this section where only one of defendant's medical experts associated with a four-year North Carolina medical school made any determination of defendant's condition three years prior to the institution of the action for divorce. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Sufficient Evidence. — In action for divorce based on one year's separation, where defendant wife asserted incurable mental illness as a defense, although plaintiff offered no expert evidence concerning the diagnosis of defendant's condition, plaintiff's own testimony showed defendant's ability to perform usual daily tasks when her illness was controlled with medication; moreover, the testimony of defendant's treating psychiatrist and the person most familiar with her condition over an extended period of time corroborated certain of plaintiff's evidence. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Extent of Impairment. — To bar an action for divorce based on one year's separation, the mental impairment must be to such extent that defendant does not understand what he or she is engaged in doing and the nature and consequences of the act. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Burden of Persuasion. — To bar an action for divorce based on one year's separation, the defendant bears the burden of persuasion that he or she is incurably insane within the meaning and purpose of this section. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Stated in Melton ex rel. Madry v. Madry, 106 N.C. App. 83, 415 S.E.2d 72 (1992).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Separation Prior to Onset of Incompetence. — The provisions of this section are not available to a plaintiff to obtain a divorce from an incompetent spouse where the separation occurred prior to the onset of the incompetence. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. James Lee Knight, Clerk of Superior Court, Guilford County, 55 N.C.A.G. 82 (1986).

§ 50-6. Divorce after separation of one year on application of either party.

Marriages may be dissolved and the parties thereto divorced from the bonds of matrimony on the application of either party, if and when the husband and wife have lived separate and apart for one year, and the plaintiff or defendant in the suit for divorce has resided in the State for a period of six months. A divorce under this section shall not be barred to either party by any defense or plea based upon any provision of G.S. 50-7, a plea of res judicata, or a plea of recrimination. Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 50-11, or of the common law, a divorce under this section shall not affect the rights of a dependent spouse with respect to alimony which have been asserted in the action or any other pending action.

Whether there has been a resumption of marital relations during the period of separation shall be determined pursuant to G.S. 52-10.2. Isolated incidents of sexual intercourse between the parties shall not toll the statutory period required for divorce predicated on separation of one year. (1931, c. 72; 1933, c. 163; 1937, c. 100, ss. 1, 2; 1943, c. 448, s. 3; 1949, c. 264, s. 3; 1965, c. 636, s. 2; 1977, c. 817, s. 1; 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1190, s. 1; 1979, c. 709, s. 1; 1981, c. 182; 1983, c. 613, s. 2; c. 923, s. 217; 1987, c. 664, s. 2.)

Cross References. — For provision that in an action pursuant to this section, if either or both parties have sought and obtained marital counselling by a licensed physician, licensed psychologist, or certified marital family therapist, the person rendering such counselling shall not be competent to testify in the action concerning information acquired while rendering such counselling, see § 8-53.6. As to contents and verification of complaint, see § 50-8. As to the maintenance of actions for alimony, alimony pendente lite, and custody and support as independent actions during the pendency of an action for divorce, and vice versa, and the effect of a divorce on a pending action for alimony or alimony pendente lite, see § 50-19.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1190, s. 2, provided: "In an action initiated after August 1, 1977, a judgment of divorce under G.S. 50-6, entered before the effective date of this act [June 11, 1978] and when there was no pending action for support or alimony, shall be valid even though the court did not make a determination that there was no such pending action or a determination that all claims for support or alimony had been fully and finally adjudicated."

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1943 amendment to this section, see 21 N.C.L. Rev. 347 (1921).

As to effect of this section on former § 50-5, see 9 N.C.L. Rev. 368 (1931).

For note on "living apart" where both parties live in the same house, see 18 N.C.L. Rev. 247 (1940).

For note discussing cases decided under this section, see 40 N.C.L. Rev. 808 (1962).

For note on early statutory and common law of divorce in North Carolina, see 41 N.C.L. Rev. 604 (1963).

For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For note discussing the application of the compulsory counterclaim provision of § 1A-1, Rule 13 in divorce suits, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 439 (1979).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For note on the effect of resumed marital relations on separation agreements, see 1 Campbell L. Rev. 131 (1979).

For article, "Mediation and Arbitration of Separation and Divorce Agreements," see 15 Wake Forest L. Rev. 467 (1979).

For comment on the enforceability of arbitration clauses in North Carolina separation agreements, see 15 Wake Forest L. Rev. 487 (1979).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For note on voiding separation agreements by isolated acts of sexual intercourse, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 137 (1980).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For comment on contingent fees in domestic relations actions, see 62 N.C.L. Rev. 381 (1984).

For domestic relations note, "The Validity of Foreign Divorce Decrees in North Carolina," see 20 Wake Forest L. Rev. 765 (1984).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Equitable Distribution Without Consideration of Marital Fault," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1204 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

For note on post-separation sexual intercourse precluding enforcement of agreement requiring parties to live separate and apart, see 11 Campbell L. Rev. 73 (1988).

For article, "Bromhal v. Stott: Revisiting the Court's Role in Separation Agreements in the Context of Attorneys' Fees," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2151 (1996).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Constitutionality. — This section, as amended, is not unconstitutional on grounds that it violates equal protection by preserving a dependent spouse's right to alimony without at the same time preserving all other property rights incident to continuation of the marital status, as the equal protection clauses of the State and federal Constitutions prohibit denial of the equal protection of the laws to persons, not to rights. Edwards v. Edwards, 42 N.C. App. 301, 256 S.E.2d 728 (1979).

Abolition of the defense of recrimination in a divorce action based on a year's separation does not deprive a spouse who was married before such abolition of a vested property right under the due process clause of the federal Constitution or the "law of the land clause" of N.C. Const., Art. I, § 19. Nor does it deprive defendant husband of a vested property right as a tenant by the entirety without due process of law on grounds that it permits plaintiff wife to obtain a divorce from defendant and defeat defendant's right upon wife's death to become the sole owner of property held by the parties as tenants by the entirety. Sawyer v. Sawyer, 54 N.C. App. 141, 282 S.E.2d 527 (1981).

This section is an indication of this State's policy, as exhibited by legislation, that if the parties have lived separate and apart for one year, the marriage is no longer viable and is not worth saving. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

Purpose of Section. — This section was enacted in order to enable a husband and wife to terminate their marriage without the sensationalism and public airing of dirty linen which necessarily accompany a divorce based on fault. Harrington v. Harrington, 22 N.C. App. 419, 206 S.E.2d 742, rev'd on other grounds, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974).

This section creates an independent cause of divorce. Pickens v. Pickens, 258 N.C. 84, 127 S.E.2d 889 (1962); Gray v. Gray, 16 N.C. App. 730, 193 S.E.2d 492 (1972).

And Provides for "No Fault" Divorce. — As to divorces grounded on a one-year separation of the parties, this State is a "no fault" jurisdiction; that is, a showing that the parties have achieved the required periods of residency and separation is all that is necessary to obtain a divorce in this State under this section. Morris v. Morris, 45 N.C. App. 69, 262 S.E.2d 359 (1980).

Jurisdictional Requirements. — Under this section, in order to maintain an action for divorce, the husband and wife shall have (1) lived separate and apart for two years (now one year), and (2) the plaintiff, husband or wife, shall have resided in this State for a period of one year (now six months). These two requirements are jurisdictional, and if either one or the other of these elements does not exist, the court would not have jurisdiction to try the action and any decree rendered would be void. Henderson v. Henderson, 232 N.C. 1, 59 S.E.2d 227 (1950).

Under this section, in order to maintain an action for divorce, the husband and wife shall have (1) lived separate and apart for two years (now one year); and (2) the plaintiff, husband or wife, shall have resided in this State for a period of six months. The jurisdictional requirement as to residence under this section is met by allegation and proof of residence within this State for a period of six months next preceding the commencement of the action. Denson v. Denson, 255 N.C. 703, 122 S.E.2d 507 (1961).

To obtain a divorce pursuant to this section, all that is required is proof that the parties have lived separate and apart for one year and that one of the parties has lived in this State for six months next preceding institution of the suit. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

Statute of Limitations Not Applicable to Actions for Absolute Divorce. — Balancing the reasons for having statutes of limitation against this State's public policy of endeavoring to maintain the marital state on the one hand and not denying divorce to parties who have demonstrated a ground for divorce on the other hand, the general, residuary statute of limitations, § 1-56, should not be applied to actions for absolute divorce under this section. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

Accrual of Cause of Action. — Separation, as a ground for divorce, is a type of continuing offense. It begins on the date the parties physically separate with the requisite intention that the separation remain permanent, and the cause of action under this section accrues at the end of one year. However, the cause of action continues to accrue even after the one year period, so long as the parties remain "separate and apart" within the meaning of the statute. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

But, the cessation of sexual relations alone does not constitute separation. Lin v. Lin, 108 N.C. App. 772, 425 S.E.2d 9 (1993).

An interlocutory appeal to determine the date of separation for the purposes of equitable distribution was rightfully dismissed, as the parties had been separated for a period far in excess of one year and as the date of separation was irrelevant to the validity of the divorce. Stafford v. Stafford, 351 N.C. 94, 520 S.E.2d 785 (1999).

Proper Parties. — The only persons who may bring an action for absolute divorce are those persons who are lawfully married to one another. Where there are children born to a marriage, it is neither proper nor necessary for them to be made parties to an action for divorce between their parents. Likewise, the only necessary parties in an action to set aside an absolute divorce decree after one spouse's death are the surviving spouse and the personal representative of the deceased spouse. Thomas v. Thomas, 43 N.C. App. 638, 260 S.E.2d 163 (1979).

Required Findings. — The court erred in declaring the parties' divorce decree void where the divorce decree at issue was "in all respects regular on [its] face" and the defendant was properly served; the court's findings, required by this section, were found under the heading "Conclusions of Law" rather than under "Findings of Fact." Dunevant v. Dunevant, 142 N.C. App. 169, 542 S.E.2d 242 (2001).

Applicability of § 50-10. — The application to divorces under this section of the § 50-10 requirement that the factual allegations supporting the divorce must be deemed denied requires a finding of the necessary facts. While it remains sound public policy not to allow the granting of such divorces on the pleadings, it would, nevertheless, appear that it would make good jurisprudential sense to clearly remove divorces under this section from the more cumbersome jury procedure and provide that all such cases be heard by the judge without a jury. Morris v. Morris, 45 N.C. App. 69, 262 S.E.2d 359 (1980).

Allegations and Proof Sufficient to Entitle Plaintiff to Divorce. — Where the complaint alleges, and there is evidence tending to show, that husband and wife, "have lived separate and apart for two years (now one year)" next immediately preceding the institution of the action, and that plaintiff "has resided in the State for a period of six months," nothing else appearing, the establishment of these allegations by proof would entitle plaintiff to a divorce. This section so provides. Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945).

It is unnecessary to set out in the complaint the cause of the separation or to allege that it was without fault on the part of plaintiff or to aver that it was by mutual agreement of the parties. Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945).

In order to be entitled to a divorce on the ground of separation, plaintiff must show the fact of marriage, that the parties have lived separate and apart for two years (now one year), and that plaintiff has been a resident of the State for one year (now six months). Oliver

v. Oliver, 219 N.C. 299, 13 S.E.2d 549 (1941).

Where, in an action under this section, the testimony adduced by plaintiff is sufficient to establish, at the commencement of the action, that the plaintiff and defendant were husband and wife, that both of them had resided in the State for a period of six months, and that they had lived separate and apart within the meaning of the statute for an uninterrupted period of two years (now one year), the trial judge rightly refused to nonsuit the action. Mallard v. Mallard, 234 N.C. 654, 68 S.E.2d 247 (1951).

Complaint seeking an absolute divorce was not fatally defective in failing to allege that the parties lived separate and apart for one year with the intention by at least one of them that the separation be permanent, where it contained the allegations required by this section. Sharp v. Sharp, 84 N.C. App. 128, 351 S.E.2d 799 (1987).

Joinder of Grounds in Complaint. — Where the grounds are listed in the statutes for the same kind of divorce, the several grounds may be joined in one complaint, and the decree may be granted on any one of the grounds proved. Swygert v. Swygert, 46 N.C. App. 173, 264 S.E.2d 902 (1980).

Statement in Answer. — In an action under this section, it was held that the mere statement in the answer that the allegation in the complaint "that plaintiff and defendant have not lived together as man and wife since April 1, 1942, is not denied," was not an admission of a "separation." Moody v. Moody, 225 N.C. 89, 33 S.E.2d 491 (1945).

Stay Not Required. — A stay of plaintiff's action for absolute divorce was not required pending resolution of defendant's counterclaim for alimony in plaintiff's earlier action for divorce from bed and board, since defendant's claim for alimony, having been asserted in the prior action, would not be affected by an absolute divorce obtained by plaintiff in the action for absolute divorce. Edwards v. Edwards, 42 N.C. App. 301, 256 S.E.2d 728 (1979).

When Issues to Be Passed on by Jury. — In an action under this section, where the complaint alleged sufficient facts and defendant in her answer set up a divorce a mensa with alimony granted her on the grounds of abandonment, to which plaintiff replied without admission of wrongful or unlawful conduct on his part, a judgment for defendant on the pleadings was erroneous, as there were issues of fact raised to be tried by a jury. Lockhart v. Lockhart, 223 N.C. 123, 25 S.E.2d 465 (1943).

When Plaintiff May Not Voluntarily Dismiss Claim. — Where plaintiff seeks divorce upon the ground of one year's separation and defendant in his answer likewise prays for a divorce upon the same ground, defendant's prayer is in effect a counterclaim, and plaintiff therefore cannot voluntarily dismiss her claim without defendant's consent. The rationale for this rule is that it would be manifestly unjust to allow a plaintiff who comes into court upon solemn allegations which, if true, entitle defendant to some affirmative relief against the plaintiff, to withdraw, ex parte, the allegations after defendant has demanded the relief to which they entitle him. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Estoppel from Challenging Divorce Judgment. — Where husband filed for divorce and performed some of his obligations under separation agreement for several years, remarried in reliance on the divorce judgment, and did not object to the validity of the divorce decree or the agreement until he sought to defend his failure to comply with the judgment on grounds that it was void, he was estopped from questioning its validity and effect. Amick v. Amick, 80 N.C. App. 291, 341 S.E.2d 613 (1986).

Modification of Custody Order in Action Under This Section. — An order awarding the custody of minor children determines the present rights of the parties, but is not permanent in nature, and is subject to modification for subsequent change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the children; therefore, an order of the court, entered pursuant to former § 50-16, awarding the custody of the children to the wife, did not preclude another judge of the superior court from awarding custody of the children to the husband in the wife's later action for absolute divorce under this section. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

Child Support Action Not Barred. — The inclusion in divorce judgment of a paragraph identifying plaintiff's former husband as the father of plaintiff's child operated only to identify the existence of a child born of the marriage and was not the subject of litigation; thus, collateral estoppel did not bar child support action against defendant. Guilford County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Unit ex rel. Gardner v. Davis, 123 N.C. App. 527, 473 S.E.2d 640 (1996).

Evidence of Mental Impairment. — In action for divorce based on one year's separation where defendant wife asserted incurable mental illness as a defense, although plaintiff offered no expert evidence concerning the diagnosis of defendant's condition, plaintiff's own testimony showed defendant's ability to perform usual daily tasks when her illness was controlled with medication; moreover, the testimony of defendant's treating psychiatrist and the person most familiar with her condition over an extended period of time, corroborated certain of plaintiff's evidence. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Mental Impairment. — To bar an action for divorce based on one year's separation, the mental impairment must be to such extent that defendant does not understand what he or she is engaged in doing and the nature and consequences of the act. Scott v. Scott, 336 N.C. 284, 442 S.E.2d 493 (1994).

Trial court properly excluded evidence of defendant's health and her prospects for obtaining medical insurance following divorce. Such evidence is not relevant to the trial court's determination to grant or deny a divorce pursuant to this section. Fletcher v. Fletcher, 104 N.C. App. 225, 408 S.E.2d 753 (1991).

For cases decided under subdivisions (1) through (5) of former § 50-5, which formerly set forth various grounds for divorce, see Wood v. Wood, 27 N.C. 674 (1845); Smith v. Morehead, 59 N.C. 360 (1863); Edwards v. Edwards, 61 N.C. 534 (1868); Barringer v. Barringer, 69 N.C. 179 (1873); Horne v. Horne, 72 N.C. 530, appeal dismissed, 72 N.C. 534 (1875); Long v. Long, 77 N.C. 304 (1877); McQueen v. McQueen, 82 N.C. 471 (1880); Webber v. Webber, 83 N.C. 280 (1880); Steel v. Steel, 104 N.C. 631, 10 S.E. 707 (1889); House v. House, 131 N.C. 140, 42 S.E. 546 (1902); Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N.C. 321, 63 S.E. 97 (1908); Ellett v. Ellett, 157 N.C. 161, 72 S.E. 861 (1911); Cooke v. Cooke, 164 N.C. 272, 80 S.E. 178 (1913); Alexander v. Alexander, 165 N.C. 45, 80 S.E. 890 (1914); Bryant v. Bryant, 171 N.C. 746, 88 S.E. 147 (1916); Sanderson v. Sanderson, 178 N.C. 339, 100 S.E. 590 (1919); Brown v. Brown, 182 N.C. 42, 108 S.E. 380 (1921); Lee v. Lee, 182 N.C. 61, 108 S.E. 352 (1921); Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N.C. 418, 130 S.E. 7 (1925); Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N.C. 465, 149 S.E. 585 (1929); Keys v. Tuten, 199 N.C. 368, 154 S.E. 631 (1930); Reeves v. Reeves, 203 N.C. 792, 167 S.E. 129 (1933); Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N.C. 397, 174 S.E. 118 (1934); Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N.C. 486, 187 S.E. 798 (1936); Burrowes v. Burrowes, 210 N.C. 788, 188 S.E. 648 (1936); Woodruff v. Woodruff, 215 N.C. 685, 3 S.E.2d 5 (1939); Young v. Young, 225 N.C. 340, 34 S.E.2d 154 (1945); Pearce v. Pearce, 225 N.C. 571, 35 S.E.2d 636 (1945); Pearce v. Pearce, 226 N.C. 307, 37 S.E.2d 904 (1946); Welch v. Welch, 226 N.C. 541, 39 S.E.2d 457 (1946); Smith v. Smith, 226 N.C. 544, 39 S.E.2d 458 (1946); Norman v. Norman, 230 N.C. 61, 51 S.E.2d 927 (1949); Cunningham v. Cunningham, 234 N.C. 1, 65 S.E.2d 375 (1951); Mallard v. Mallard, 234 N.C. 654, 68 S.E.2d 247 (1951); Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956); Becker v. Becker, 262 N.C. 685, 138 S.E.2d 507 (1964); Wright v. Wright, 281 N.C. 159, 188 S.E.2d 317 (1972); Greene v. Greene, 15 N.C. App. 314, 190 S.E.2d 258 (1972); Owens v. Owens, 28 N.C. App. 713, 222 S.E.2d 704, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 95, 225 S.E.2d 324 (1976).

Applied in Hyder v. Hyder, 215 N.C. 239, 1 S.E.2d 540 (1939); Nall v. Nall, 229 N.C. 598, 50 S.E.2d 737 (1948); Deaton v. Deaton, 237 N.C. 487, 75 S.E.2d 398 (1953); O'Briant v. O'Briant, 239 N.C. 101, 79 S.E.2d 252 (1953); Whitener v. Whitener, 255 N.C. 731, 122 S.E.2d 705 (1961); Hutchins v. Hutchins, 260 N.C. 628, 133 S.E.2d 459 (1963); Richardson v. Richardson, 261 N.C. 521, 135 S.E.2d 532 (1964); Jones v. Jones, 261 N.C. 612, 135 S.E.2d 554 (1964); Ponder v. Ponder, 32 N.C. App. 150, 230 S.E.2d 786 (1977); Gerringer v. Gerringer, 42 N.C. App. 580, 257 S.E.2d 98 (1979); In re Hayes, 43 N.C. App. 515, 259 S.E.2d 327 (1979); Wilhelm v. Wilhelm, 43 N.C. App. 549, 259 S.E.2d 319 (1979); Mayer v. Mayer, 66 N.C. App. 522, 311 S.E.2d 659 (1984); Hinton v. Hinton, 70 N.C. App. 665, 321 S.E.2d 161 (1984).

Quoted in O'Hara v. O'Hara, 46 N.C. App. 819, 266 S.E.2d 59 (1980); McCall v. Harris, 55 N.C. App. 390, 285 S.E.2d 335 (1982).

Stated in Hamilton v. Hamilton, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979); Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984); Coombs v. Coombs, 121 N.C. App. 746, 468 S.E.2d 807 (1996).

Cited in Teasley v. Teasley, 205 N.C. 604, 172 S.E. 197 (1934); Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N.C. 397, 174 S.E. 118 (1934); Long v. Long, 206 N.C. 706, 175 S.E. 85 (1934); State v. Henderson, 207 N.C. 258, 176 S.E. 758 (1934); Campbell v. Campbell, 207 N.C. 859, 176 S.E. 250 (1934); Goodman v. Goodman, 208 N.C. 416, 181 S.E. 328 (1935); Brown v. Brown, 213 N.C. 347, 196 S.E. 333 (1938); Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945); Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950); McLean v. McLean, 233 N.C. 139, 63 S.E.2d 138 (1951); Livingston v. Livingston, 235 N.C. 515, 70 S.E.2d 480 (1952); Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956); Shaver v. Shaver, 244 N.C. 309, 93 S.E.2d 614 (1956); Shaver v. Shaver, 248 N.C. 113, 102 S.E.2d 791 (1958); Sears v. Sears, 253 N.C. 415, 117 S.E.2d 7 (1960); Hicks v. Hicks, 275 N.C. 370, 167 S.E.2d 761 (1969); Wright v. Wright, 281 N.C. 159, 188 S.E.2d 317 (1972); Wise v. Wise, 42 N.C. App. 5, 255 S.E.2d 570 (1979); Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984); Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986); Banner v. Banner, 86 N.C. App. 397, 358 S.E.2d 110 (1987); Daniel v. Daniel, 132 N.C. App. 217, 510 S.E.2d 689 (1999).

II. SEPARATION.

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided prior to the 1987 amendment to this section, providing that isolated incidents of sexual intercourse shall not toll the statutory period for divorce predicated on one year separation. As to resumption of marital relations, see § 52-10.2.

Parties Must Have Lived Separate and Apart for One Year. — The material aspect of this statute is the requirement that the parties have lived separate and apart for one year prior to institution of the suit. Myers v. Myers, 62 N.C. App. 291, 302 S.E.2d 476 (1983).

The expression used in Byers v. Byers, 222 N.C. 298, 22 S.E.2d (1942), "that the bare fact of living separate and apart for the period of two years (now one year); standing alone, will not constitute a cause of action for divorce," should be viewed in the light of its setting, and construed accordingly. It was not intended as a delimitation of the statute. Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943).

Separation Requirement Applies to Year Prior to Institution of Suit. — The requirement that parties live separate and apart for one year applies to the year prior to institution of the suit. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

The separation contemplated by this section is apparently unrestricted. Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945).

Mutual Agreement to Separate Is Not Required. — A charge by the court to the jury that the living separate and apart means living separate and apart under mutual agreement only, was erroneous, entitling plaintiff to a new trial. Byers v. Byers, 222 N.C. 298, 22 S.E.2d 902 (1942), distinguishing Parker v. Parker, 210 N.C. 264, 186 S.E. 346 (1936), decided under prior wording of section. See 15 N.C.L. Rev. 348 (1937).

In order to be entitled to a divorce, a plaintiff need not show that a marital separation for the statutory period was by mutual agreement or under a decree of court. Beck v. Beck, 14 N.C. App. 163, 187 S.E.2d 355 (1972).

But Was Required Formerly. — Before the 1937 amendment, which struck out of this section the phrase "either under deed of separation or otherwise," it was held that while the applicant need not be the injured party, the statute did not authorize a divorce where the husband had separated himself from his wife, or the wife had separated herself from her husband, without cause and without agreement, express or implied. Lee v. Lee, 182 N.C. 61, 108 S.E. 352 (1921); Parker v. Parker, 210 N.C. 264, 186 S.E. 346 (1936); Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N.C. 486, 187 S.E. 798 (1936); Reynolds v. Reynolds, 210 N.C. 554, 187 S.E. 768 (1936).

This section contains no requirement that separation of the parties be voluntary. Harrington v. Harrington, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974). But see Williams v. Williams, 224 N.C. 91, 29 S.E.2d 39 (1944), holding that the separation under this section must be voluntary in its inception, and Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945), holding that "separation" would not include an involuntary living apart, where there had been no previous separation, such as might arise from the incarceration or insanity of one of the parties.

But This Section Is Inapplicable Where Separation Is Due to Insanity of Defendant. — Divorce on the grounds of two years' (now one year's) separation under this section cannot be maintained when the separation is due to the insanity or mental incapacity of defendant spouse, the sole remedy in such instance being under former § 50-5(6) (recodified as § 50-5.1). Lawson v. Bennett, 240 N.C. 52, 81 S.E.2d 162 (1954); Moody v. Moody, 253 N.C. 752, 117 S.E.2d 724 (1961).

To bar an action for divorce based on two years' (now one year's) separation, the mental impairment must be to such an extent that defendant does not understand what he or she is engaged in doing and the nature and consequences of the act. Moody v. Moody, 253 N.C. 752, 117 S.E.2d 724 (1961).

"Judicial Separation" Included. — A legal separation for the requisite period of two years (now one year) is ground for divorce under this section. The separation here contemplated includes a "judicial separation" as well as one brought about by the act of the parties, or one of them. Lockhart v. Lockhart, 223 N.C. 559, 27 S.E.2d 444 (1943).

A separation by act of the parties, or one of them, or under order of court a mensa et thoro, suffices to meet the terms of this section. Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945).

The effect of a judgment granting a divorce a mensa et thoro was to legalize the separation of the parties which theretofore had been caused by the husband's actions, and after two years (now one year) from the date of such judgment, the husband could proceed to an absolute divorce. Becker v. Becker, 262 N.C. 685, 138 S.E.2d 507 (1964). See also, Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

The effect of a divorce a mensa et thoro obtained by the wife on the ground that her husband abandoned her, was to legalize their separation from the date of such judgment; and in such case the husband, after two years (now one year) from the date of such judgment, could proceed to an absolute divorce. Richardson v. Richardson, 257 N.C. 705, 127 S.E.2d 525 (1962).

A judgment in an action instituted under former § 50-16 decreeing that the husband had willfully abandoned the wife and awarding her support and maintenance constituted a judicial separation which, two years (now one year) thereafter, would permit the husband to obtain an absolute divorce. Rouse v. Rouse, 258 N.C. 520, 128 S.E.2d 865 (1963); Wilson v. Wilson, 260 N.C. 347, 132 S.E.2d 695 (1963).

The pendente lite order in the wife's action for divorce from bed and board legalized the separation between the husband and wife, since it provided not only for alimony pendente lite and child custody, but also that the wife have the sole use and peaceful and undisturbed possession of the residence, and such separation having continued for the requisite one year thereafter, the plaintiff-husband became entitled to a divorce. Earles v. Earles, 29 N.C. App. 348, 224 S.E.2d 284 (1976).

What Constitutes Legalized Separation. — Either an action for a divorce a mensa et thoro, an action for alimony without divorce under former § 50-16, or a valid separation agreement may constitute a legalized separation which thereafter will permit either of the parties to obtain an absolute divorce on the ground of one year's separation. Harrington v. Harrington, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974).

Valid separation agreement legalizes separation from and after the date thereof. Harrington v. Harrington, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974).

To be valid a separation agreement must be untainted by fraud, must be in all respects fair, reasonable and just, and must have been entered into without coercion or the exercise of undue influence, and with full knowledge of all the circumstances, conditions, and rights of the contracting parties. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Until deed of separation is rescinded, defendant cannot attack legality of separation or obtain alimony from plaintiff. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Effect of Resumption of Cohabitation upon Separation Agreement. — When separated spouses who have executed a separation agreement resume living together in the home which they occupied before the separation, they hold themselves out as man and wife in the ordinary acceptation of the descriptive phrase. Irrespective of whether they have resumed sexual relations, in contemplation of law, their action amounts to a resumption of marital cohabitation which rescinds their separation agreement insofar as it had not been executed. Further, a subsequent separation will not revive the agreement. In re Estate of Adamee, 291 N.C. 386, 230 S.E.2d 541 (1976).

The same public policy which will not permit spouses to continue to live together in the same home, holding themselves out to the public as husband and wife, to sue each other for an absolute divorce on the ground of separation, or to base the period of separation required for a divorce on any time they live together, will also nullify a separation agreement if the parties resume marital cohabitation. In re Estate of Adamee, 291 N.C. 386, 230 S.E.2d 541 (1976).

The heart of a separation agreement is the parties' intention and agreement to live separate and apart forever, and when a husband and wife enter into a deed of separation the policy of the law is that they are to live separate. Therefore, they void the separation agreement if they reestablish a matrimonial home. In re Estate of Adamee, 291 N.C. 386, 230 S.E.2d 541 (1976).

Sexual intercourse between a husband and wife after the execution of separation agreement voids the contract. Murphy v. Murphy, 295 N.C. 390, 245 S.E.2d 693 (1978). But see now § 52-10.2.

Where a reconciliation and resumption of cohabitation has taken place, an order or separation agreement with provisions for future support and an agreement to live apart is necessarily abrogated. Williamson v. Williamson, 66 N.C. App. 315, 311 S.E.2d 325 (1984).

Grounds for Attacking Deed of Separation. — A married woman may attack the certificate of her acknowledgment and privy examination respecting her execution of a deed of separation, inter alia, upon the grounds of her mental incapacity, infancy, or the fraud of the grantee. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Effect of Decree Denying Alimony. — If a separation is legalized by an award of alimony without divorce, there is no sound reason why it should not also be legalized by a decree denying alimony based upon a finding of no dependency. In each case the court has considered and determined the respective rights and obligations of the separated parties insofar as support is concerned. In neither case is the court able to mend the broken marriage or to force the parties to live together if either persists in continuing to live apart. Cook v. Cook, 41 N.C. App. 156, 254 S.E.2d 261 (1979).

The separation of the parties became legalized by the entry of the judgment which denied defendant alimony and by entry of the order which awarded her possession of the house. The parties having lived separate and apart for more than one year after their separation thus became legalized, plaintiff was entitled to maintain an action for an absolute divorce under this section. The adjudication made in the prior action that plaintiff had originally wrongfully abandoned the defendant was not effective as a bar in the later action. Cook v. Cook, 41 N.C. App. 156, 254 S.E.2d 261 (1979).

Separation means cessation of cohabitation, and cohabitation means living together as man and wife, though not necessarily implying sexual relations. Cohabitation includes other marital responsibilities and duties. Dudley v. Dudley, 225 N.C. 83, 33 S.E.2d 489 (1945); Young v. Young, 225 N.C. 340, 34 S.E.2d 154 (1945); In re Estate of Adamee, 291 N.C. 386, 230 S.E.2d 541 (1976); Tuttle v. Tuttle, 36 N.C. App. 635, 244 S.E.2d 447 (1978).

Physical Separation Must Be Accompanied by Intention to Cease Cohabitation. — A husband and wife live separate and apart for the prescribed period within the meaning of this section when, and only when, these two conditions concur: (1) They live separate and apart physically for an uninterrupted period of two years (now one year); and (2) their physical separation is accompanied by at least an intention on the part of one of them to cease their matrimonial cohabitation. Mallard v. Mallard, 234 N.C. 654, 68 S.E.2d 247 (1951); Richardson v. Richardson, 257 N.C. 705, 127 S.E.2d 525 (1962); Beck v. Beck, 14 N.C. App. 163, 187 S.E.2d 355 (1972).

The bare fact of living separate and apart for the period of two years (now one year), standing alone, will not constitute a cause of action for divorce. There must be at least an intention on the part of one of the parties to cease cohabitation, which must be shown to have existed at the time alleged as the beginning of the separation period. It must appear that the separation is with that definite purpose on the part of at least one of the parties. The exigencies of life and the necessity of making a livelihood may sometimes require that the husband shall absent himself from the wife for long periods, a situation which was not contemplated by the law as a cause of divorce in fixing the period of separation. Byers v. Byers, 222 N.C. 298, 22 S.E.2d 902 (1942).

The words "separate and apart," as used in this section, mean that there must be both a physical separation and an intention on the part of at least one of the parties to cease the matrimonial cohabitation. Earles v. Earles, 29 N.C. App. 348, 224 S.E.2d 284 (1976); Myers v. Myers, 62 N.C. App. 291, 302 S.E.2d 476 (1983).

Evidence of Conjugal Relations Within Statutory Period Before Action. — Sexual relations between spouses separated for less than one year invalidates those obligations of the parties, pursuant to a separation agreement, that are contingent upon the requirement that the parties "live continuously separate and apart" for one year. Higgins v. Higgins, 86 N.C. App. 513, 358 S.E.2d 553 (1987), aff'd, 321 N.C. 482, 364 S.E.2d 426 (1988).

Evidence that within the statutory period before the institution of the divorce action defendant visited plaintiff at army camp and plaintiff visited defendant on furloughs, and that at such times they cohabitated as man and wife, was sufficient to negative the conclusion that conjugal relations had ceased for the period prescribed by this section, and supported verdict in defendant's favor and judgment denying plaintiff's suit for divorce on the grounds of two years' (now one year's) separation. Mason v. Mason, 226 N.C. 740, 40 S.E.2d 204 (1946), decided prior to the 1987 amendment to this section.

The discontinuance of sexual relations is not in itself a living "separate and apart" within the meaning of the statute, and a divorce will be denied where it appears that, during the period relied upon, the parties had lived in the same house. Dudley v. Dudley, 33 S.E.2d 489 (1945).

Effect of Continuing Support of Spouse. — This section does not contemplate, as essential, a repudiation of all marital obligations, and the fact that the husband has supported the wife will not defeat his action. Byers v. Byers, 222 N.C. 298, 22 S.E.2d 902 (1942).

If a plaintiff in a divorce action on grounds of separation contributes to the support of his wife, solely in an attempt to fulfill the obligation imposed by statute, his conduct is not inconsistent with a legal separation; but if he makes such payments in recognition of his marital status and in discharge of his marital obligations, there is no living separate and apart within the meaning of the statute. Williams v. Williams, 224 N.C. 91, 29 S.E.2d 39 (1944).

When Requirements for Valid Separation Not Satisfied. — The law delineates two circumstances under which the law will hold spouses to have failed to satisfy the requirements of a valid separation: first, sexual activity between the parties, and, second, such association between the parties as to induce others to regard them as living together. Ledford v. Ledford, 49 N.C. App. 226, 271 S.E.2d 393 (1980), decided prior to the 1987 amendment to this section.

Casual and isolated social acts between separated spouses do not as a matter of law create a holding out as man and wife. Ledford v. Ledford, 49 N.C. App. 226, 271 S.E.2d 393 (1980).

Isolated or casual acts of sexual intercourse between separated spouses toll the statutory period required for divorce predicated on separation. Pitts v. Pitts, 54 N.C. App. 163, 282 S.E.2d 488 (1981), decided prior to the 1987 amendment to this section.

Question of Resumption of the Conjugal Relation After Separation Is for Jury. See Reynolds v. Reynolds, 210 N.C. 554, 187 S.E.2d 768 (1936).

Mutuality of Intent to Reconcile Is Essential Where Evidence Conflicts. — When the evidence is conflicting, the issue of the parties' mutual intent is an essential element in deciding whether the parties were reconciled and resumed cohabitation. Williamson v. Williamson, 66 N.C. App. 315, 311 S.E.2d 325 (1984); Camp v. Camp, 75 N.C. App. 498, 331 S.E.2d 163, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 663, 335 S.E.2d 493 (1985).

Separation May Not Be Based on Evidence Showing Cohabitation. — For the purposes of obtaining a divorce under this section, separation may not be predicated upon evidence which shows that during the statutorily prescribed period the parties have cohabited as husband and wife. Camp v. Camp, 75 N.C. App. 498, 331 S.E.2d 163, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 663, 335 S.E.2d 493 (1985).

Husband's return to the marital home for a 10-day period, during which time he, inter alia, never had any sexual relations with his wife, was constantly looking for work, and did not otherwise represent himself to have resumed the marital relationship, did not constitute a resumption of marital cohabitation such as to invalidate the parties' separation agreement and bar divorce on the grounds of living separate and apart for one year. Camp v. Camp, 75 N.C. App. 498, 331 S.E.2d 163, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 663, 335 S.E.2d 493 (1985).

Resumption of the marital relation is not inherently secretive and spouses are competent to testify about it. Williamson v. Williamson, 66 N.C. App. 315, 311 S.E.2d 325 (1984).

"Inclination and Opportunity" Rule Inapplicable to Proof of Resumption of Marital Relations. — The "inclination and opportunity" concept allows a presumption of adulterous sexual intercourse if adulterous inclination and opportunity are shown. The rule applies only to cases of alleged adultery, because adultery is an illegal act which by its very nature is difficult to prove. Such justification of the rule for adultery cases is nonexistent for proof of resumption of marital relations between separated spouses, an act which is not against the law but which merely breaks a contract between the spouses. Williamson v. Williamson, 66 N.C. App. 315, 311 S.E.2d 325 (1984).

Complaint must state a date of separation to establish the general time frame for divorce based on a year's separation. Myers v. Myers, 62 N.C. App. 291, 302 S.E.2d 476 (1983).

III. FAULT.

Either party may secure an absolute divorce under this section, even though the applicant is the party who commits the wrong, as granting divorces is exclusively statutory and this is an independent act of the General Assembly. Long v. Long, 206 N.C. 706, 175 S.E. 85 (1934); Byers v. Byers, 222 N.C. 298, 22 S.E.2d 902 (1942).

Either party may bring an action for absolute divorce under this section, and the jury's finding that defendant did not abandon plaintiff without cause did not preclude judgment in plaintiff's favor. Campbell v. Campbell, 207 N.C. 859, 176 S.E. 250 (1934).

Plaintiff Need Not Establish That He Is Injured Party. — Where the husband sues the wife for an absolute divorce upon the ground of two years' (now one year's) separation under this section, he is not required to establish as a constituent element of his cause of action that he is the injured party. Pickens v. Pickens, 258 N.C. 84, 127 S.E.2d 889 (1962); Overby v. Overby, 272 N.C. 636, 158 S.E.2d 799 (1968).

In an action for absolute divorce under this section, the plaintiff need not allege and prove that he or she is an injured party. Earles v. Earles, 29 N.C. App. 348, 224 S.E.2d 284 (1976).

Recrimination does not constitute a bar to plaintiff's action for divorce based on one year's separation. Smith v. Smith, 42 N.C. App. 246, 256 S.E.2d 282 (1979).

For case discussing the elimination of the defense of recrimination based on former § 50-5 by Session Laws 1977, c. 817, s. 1, effective Aug. 1, 1977, and recrimination based on § 50-7 by Session Laws 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1190, s. 1, effective June 16, 1978, see Gardner v. Gardner, 48 N.C. App. 38, 269 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

This section is a "no-fault" statute. Recriminatory defenses are not applicable. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

Where Action Is Brought After July 31, 1977. — The defense of recrimination cannot be asserted in actions for absolute divorce instituted in this State after July 31, 1977, even if the alleged adulterous acts on the part of the plaintiff occurred after the separation of the parties. Edwards v. Edwards, 43 N.C. App. 296, 259 S.E.2d 11 (1979).

Even If Acts Occurred Prior to July 31, 1977. — Recrimination cannot be asserted as a defense in actions for absolute divorce based on a year's separation brought after July 31, 1977. Therefore, since plaintiff's action was begun on August 30, 1978, the defense of recrimination in the form of abandonment would not be available to defendant, even though the alleged abandonment occurred prior to the effective date of the statute. Boone v. Boone, 44 N.C. App. 79, 259 S.E.2d 921 (1979).

But Recrimination Could Be Pleaded in Action Brought Prior to Amendment. — Where husband filed action for divorce pursuant to this section on June 1, 1976, elimination of recriminatory defenses based on § 50-7 by Session Laws 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1190, s. 1, effective June 16, 1978, would not be applied retroactively so as to bar wife from pleading such defenses. Gardner v. Gardner, 48 N.C. App. 38, 269 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

Defense of Recrimination Prior to Amendment of Section. — For cases decided under the doctrine of recrimination, which allowed a defendant in a divorce action to set up as a defense in bar of plaintiff's action that plaintiff was guilty of misconduct which in itself would have been a ground for divorce, prior to elimination of the defense of recrimination by the amendments to this section by Session Laws 1977, c. 817, s. 1, and Session Laws 1977, 2nd Sess., c. 1190, s. 1, see Reynolds v. Reynolds, 208 N.C. 428, 181 S.E. 338 (1935); Hyder v. Hyder, 210 N.C. 486, 187 S.E. 798 (1936); Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943); Pharr v. Pharr, 223 N.C. 115, 25 S.E.2d 471 (1943); Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945); Welch v. Welch, 226 N.C. 541, 39 S.E.2d 457 (1946); Richardson v. Richardson, 257 N.C. 705, 127 S.E.2d 525 (1962); Edmisten v. Edmisten, 265 N.C. 488, 144 S.E.2d 404 (1965); Rupert v. Rupert, 15 N.C. App. 730, 190 S.E.2d 693, cert. denied, 282 N.C. 153, 191 S.E.2d 759 (1972); Gray v. Gray, 16 N.C. App. 730, 193 S.E.2d 492 (1972); Harrington v. Harrington, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974); Heilman v. Heilman, 24 N.C. App. 11, 210 S.E.2d 69 (1974).

For cases as to defense of abandonment under this section prior to elimination of defense of recrimination, see Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943); Pharr v. Pharr, 223 N.C. 115, 25 S.E.2d 471 (1943); Cameron v. Cameron, 235 N.C. 82, 68 S.E.2d 796 (1952); McLean v. McLean, 237 N.C. 122, 74 S.E.2d 320 (1953); Johnson v. Johnson, 237 N.C. 383, 75 S.E.2d 109 (1953); Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957); Taylor v. Taylor, 257 N.C. 130, 125 S.E.2d 373 (1962); Richardson v. Richardson, 257 N.C. 705, 127 S.E.2d 525 (1962); Pickens v. Pickens, 258 N.C. 84, 127 S.E.2d 889 (1962); O'Brien v. O'Brien, 266 N.C. 502, 146 S.E.2d 500 (1966); Campbell v. Campbell, 270 N.C. 298, 154 S.E.2d 101 (1967); Overby v. Overby, 272 N.C. 636, 158 S.E.2d 799 (1968); Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968); McLeod v. McLeod, 1 N.C. App. 396, 161 S.E.2d 635 (1968); Rupert v. Rupert, 15 N.C. App. 730, 190 S.E.2d 693, cert. denied, 282 N.C. 153, 191 S.E.2d 759 (1972); Harrington v. Harrington, 22 N.C. App. 419, 206 S.E.2d 742, rev'd on other grounds, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974); Heilman v. Heilman, 24 N.C. App. 11, 210 S.E.2d 69 (1974).

IV. DOMICILE OR RESIDENCE.

The six months residency requirement means the six months next preceding commencement of the action. Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 701, 347 S.E.2d 36 (1986).

Separate Domicile for Wife. — North Carolina divorce statutes recognize the legality of a separate domicile or residence for the wife. Rector v. Rector, 4 N.C. App. 240, 166 S.E.2d 492 (1969).

To establish a domicile, there must be a residence and the intention to make it a home or to live there indefinitely. Bryant v. Bryant, 228 N.C. 287, 45 S.E.2d 572 (1947).

Plaintiff must be physically present in this State and have the intention of making his residence here a permanent abiding place in order to be domiciled here within the meaning of this section, making residence in this State for six months a jurisdictional prerequisite to the institution of an action for divorce on the grounds of two years' (now one year's) separation. Bryant v. Bryant, 228 N.C. 287, 45 S.E.2d 572 (1947).

The fact that a person obtains an automobile license and ration cards in another state, giving such state as his residence, while competent on the question of domicile, is not conclusive. Bryant v. Bryant, 228 N.C. 287, 45 S.E.2d 572 (1947).

Finding of Court as to Residence. — The finding of the court, supported by evidence, that plaintiff was physically present in this State for more than six months prior to instituting an action for divorce and that he regarded his residence here as a permanent home was sufficient to support a judgment denying defendant's motion in the cause to set aside the divorce decree on the ground of want of the jurisdictional requirement of domicile. Bryant v. Bryant, 228 N.C. 287, 45 S.E.2d 572 (1947).

How Decree Attacked on Ground of Nonresidence. — The proper procedure to attack a divorce decree on the ground that plaintiff had not been a resident of the State for six months preceding the institution of the action is by motion in the cause. Bryant v. Bryant, 228 N.C. 287, 45 S.E.2d 572 (1947).

Defect in Jurisdiction Held Insignificant Since Either Party Could Bring Proceeding. — Although the court improperly found jurisdiction over defendant, this error was insignificant, in that this section allows a divorce proceeding on the application of either party, if and when the husband and wife have lived separate and apart for one year, and the plaintiff or defendant in the suit for divorce has resided in the State for a period of six months. Andris v. Andris, 65 N.C. App. 688, 309 S.E.2d 570 (1983).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Incompetency Following Separation. — A plaintiff may pursue a divorce option under this section where, after the parties have separated, the defendant sustains injuries bringing into question his competency. Section 50-5.1 is not available in such a case. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. James Lee Knight, Clerk of Superior Court, Guilford County, 55 N.C.A.G. 82 (1986).

§ 50-7. Grounds for divorce from bed and board.

The court may grant divorces from bed and board on application of the party injured, made as by law provided, in the following cases if either party:

(1) Abandons his or her family.

(2) Maliciously turns the other out of doors.

(3) By cruel or barbarous treatment endangers the life of the other. In addition, the court may grant the victim of such treatment the remedies available under G.S. 50B-1, et seq.

(4) Offers such indignities to the person of the other as to render his or her condition intolerable and life burdensome.

(5) Becomes an excessive user of alcohol or drugs so as to render the condition of the other spouse intolerable and the life of that spouse burdensome.

(6) Commits adultery. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 36; Code, s. 1286; Rev., s. 1562; C.S., s. 1660; 1967, c. 1152, s. 7; 1971, c. 1185, s. 22; 1979, c. 561, s. 5; 1985, c. 574, ss. 1, 2.)

Cross References. — For provision that in an action brought pursuant to this section, if either or both parties have sought and obtained marital counselling by a licensed physician, licensed psychologist, or certified marital family therapist, the person rendering such counselling shall not be competent to testify in the action concerning information acquired while rendering such counselling, see § 8-53.6. As to effect of divorce a mensa et thoro on right to administer spouse's estate, see § 31A-1. As to necessary allegations, see § 50-8 and note. As to resumption of marital relations, see § 52-10.2.

Legal Periodicals. — For case law survey on alimony without divorce, see 41 N.C.L. Rev. 459 (1963).

For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For note discussing application of the compulsory counterclaim provision of § 1A-1, Rule 13 in divorce suits, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 459 (1979).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For note on separability of support and property provisions in ambiguous separation agreements, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 152 (1980).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

A divorce from bed and board is nothing more than a judicial separation, that is, an authorized separation of husband and wife. Schlagel v. Schlagel, 253 N.C. 787, 117 S.E.2d 790 (1961); Triplett v. Triplett, 38 N.C. App. 364, 248 S.E.2d 69 (1978).

Suit for divorce from bed and board is not exclusively a means for collection of alimony, but also a means of establishing a certain legal relationship. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Applicability of § 50-10. — Section 50-10 applies to a divorce from bed and board under this section. Schlagel v. Schlagel, 253 N.C. 787, 117 S.E.2d 790 (1961).

Finality. — A divorce from bed and board is a final order. There is no such thing as a divorce from bed and board pendente lite. Kale v. Kale, 25 N.C. App. 99, 212 S.E.2d 234, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 259, 214 S.E.2d 431 (1975).

No Action for "No Fault" Divorce from Bed and Board. — Where a husband and wife are living together and their children are in their joint custody and are being adequately supported by the supporting spouse, in the absence of allegations which would support an award of alimony or divorce, one spouse may not maintain an action to evict the other, get sole custody of the children, and obtain an order for child support; therefore, the trial court erred in denying defendant's motion to dismiss on the ground that the complaint failed to state a claim upon which relief could be granted, since the complaint attempted to assert, and the court allowed, what appeared to be a "no fault" divorce from bed and board, and such an action does not lie in this State. Harper v. Harper, 50 N.C. App. 394, 273 S.E.2d 731 (1981).

No Requirement for Separation of Parties. — There is no requirement for a separation of the parties in the sense of one moving out of the home before an action can be instituted and prosecuted under this section for divorce from bed and board. Triplett v. Triplett, 38 N.C. App. 364, 248 S.E.2d 69 (1978).

A wife may pursue an action for divorce from bed and board and alimony while her husband is staying in the same house with her. Triplett v. Triplett, 38 N.C. App. 364, 248 S.E.2d 69 (1978).

Plaintiff Must Petition for Divorce a Mensa. — A decree of divorce a mensa will not be granted in an action where plaintiff petitioned for absolute divorce. Morris v. Morris, 75 N.C. 168 (1876).

Allegations in a cross action for divorce a mensa et thoro, set up by defendant wife in husband's action for divorce, were held sufficient. Ragan v. Ragan, 214 N.C. 36, 197 S.E. 554 (1938).

It is not necessary for the plaintiff to establish all of the grounds for divorce a mensa et thoro alleged in her complaint in order to sustain her action. It is sufficient if she establishes the defendant's guilt of any of the acts that would constitute a cause of action for divorce from bed and board as enumerated in this section. Deaton v. Deaton, 234 N.C. 538, 67 S.E.2d 626 (1951); Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

To obtain a divorce from bed and board the law requires that defendant establish only one of the grounds specified in this section. Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967).

Failure to Establish Ground for Divorce. — Where in his stipulation to the existence of ground for awarding alimony defendant did not specify which ground, of the ten enumerated in former § 50-16.2, existed to support an alimony award, plaintiff could not automatically assume that the ground stipulated was one of the five grounds also listed in this section. Thus, as she presented no evidence establishing one of the grounds in this section, plaintiff failed to meet her burden of proof as to this issue, and the trial court properly denied her request for a divorce from bed and board. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

Grounds Available to Husband as Well as Wife. — The grounds for divorce a mensa given by this section are available to the husband as well as to the wife, or as stated by the express language of the statute, to "the injured party." Brewer v. Brewer, 198 N.C. 669, 153 S.E. 163 (1930); Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

Only the party injured is entitled to a divorce under this section. Vaughan v. Vaughan, 211 N.C. 354, 190 S.E. 492 (1937). See also, Carnes v. Carnes, 204 N.C. 636, 169 S.E. 222 (1933); Lawrence v. Lawrence, 226 N.C. 624, 39 S.E.2d 807 (1946).

When the misconduct of the complaining party is calculated to and does reasonably induce the conduct of defendant relied upon in an action for divorce a mensa et thoro, he or she, as the case may be, will not be permitted to take advantage of his or her own wrong, and the decree of divorce will be denied. Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943); Pressley v. Pressley, 261 N.C. 326, 134 S.E.2d 609 (1964).

Plaintiff Must Prove Unprovoked Misconduct by Defendant. — To establish the existence of a ground listed in this section, plaintiff must allege and prove acts of misconduct by defendant and show that this misconduct was not provoked by plaintiff's actions. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

Effect of Delay in Bringing Action. — An unreasonable delay by one party, after a probable knowledge of the criminal conduct of the other, will, if unaccounted for, preclude such party from obtaining a decree for a separation from bed and board. Whittington v. Whittington, 19 N.C. 64 (1836).

But a delay of seven years in filing a petition was sufficiently accounted for by allegations that at the happening of the matters relied upon for divorce, the petitioner was a nonresident of the State, and was at the time of suit a pauper. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N.C. 215 (1867).

Evidence of Acts Occurring "More Than Ten Years Ago". — Where a wife sues her husband for divorce a mensa et thoro, under this section, it is not error to admit on the trial evidence of his misconduct occurring "more than ten years ago" when it is a part of the whole course of his dealings coming down to within six months of the beginning of the action. Page v. Page, 167 N.C. 346, 83 S.E. 625 (1914).

Condonation is an affirmative defense to be alleged and proved by the party relying upon it, and less may be sufficient to destroy condonation than to found an original suit. Cushing v. Cushing, 263 N.C. 181, 139 S.E.2d 217 (1964).

Resumption of Marital Relations as Condonation. — Nothing else appearing, the resumption of marital relations after a separation imports a condonation of previous offenses. Cushing v. Cushing, 263 N.C. 181, 139 S.E.2d 217 (1964).

Mere Forgiveness Does Not Establish Condonation. — Evidence merely of forgiveness by the plaintiff, in her action for divorce a mensa et thoro against her husband, is insufficient to establish condonation. Page v. Page, 167 N.C. 346, 83 S.E. 625 (1914); Jones v. Jones, 173 N.C. 279, 91 S.E. 960 (1917).

Condonation is forgiveness upon condition, and the condition is that the party forgiven will abstain from like offenses afterwards. If the condition is violated, the original offense is revived. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N.C. 129 (1885); Cushing v. Cushing, 263 N.C. 181, 139 S.E.2d 217 (1964).

Repetition of the offense nullifies the previous condonation. Collier v. Collier, 16 N.C. 352 (1829); Gordon v. Gordon, 88 N.C. 45 (1883); Page v. Page, 167 N.C. 346, 83 S.E. 625 (1914).

Reconciliation Is Not a Defense to a Divorce from Bed and Board. — A divorce from bed and board is judicial separation. Reconciliation while the action is pending is not a defense to a divorce from bed and board, unlike other concepts such as condonation, that is, the forgiveness of a marital offense constituting a ground for divorce. Howell v. Tunstall, 64 N.C. App. 703, 308 S.E.2d 454 (1983).

But Resumption of Marital Relations Destroys Effect of Divorce. — If the parties reconcile and resume cohabitation as man and wife after a divorce from bed and board is granted, the effect of the divorce from bed and board is destroyed. No court action to end such divorce is necessary. Howell v. Tunstall, 64 N.C. App. 703, 308 S.E.2d 454 (1983).

A resumption of marital relations would invalidate a divorce a mensa et thoro. Rouse v. Rouse, 258 N.C. 520, 128 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Findings of Fact Required. — In an action for divorce from bed and board under this section, the trial court should make adequate findings of facts (i.e. specific acts of misconduct) to support the conclusion of law that the noninjured party has (1) abandoned the family; (2) maliciously turned the other out of doors; (3) endangered the life of the other by cruel or barbarous treatment; (4) offered such indignities to the person of the other as to render his or her condition intolerable; or (5) become an excessive user of alcohol or drugs so that the other's life is burdensome. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

Judgment Invalid Without Finding of Grounds. — Where judgment of divorce from bed and board contained absolutely no finding of the existence of any of the grounds for divorce from bed and board cognizable under this section, the district court was without power or authority, and therefore without jurisdiction, to enter it. Allred v. Tucci, 85 N.C. App. 138, 354 S.E.2d 291, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 166, 358 S.E.2d 47 (1987).

Proceeding to set aside invalid divorce decree is not barred by death of one spouse where property rights are involved. Allred v. Tucci, 85 N.C. App. 138, 354 S.E.2d 291, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 166, 358 S.E.2d 47 (1987).

Alimony. — Where, in husband's action for divorce a vinculo, the wife sets up a cross action for divorce a mensa, the court has the power to make an order for the payment of alimony upon the jury's determination of the issues in favor of the wife. Norman v. Norman, 230 N.C. 61, 51 S.E.2d 927 (1949).

In an action for divorce, a verified answer and cross action setting forth a cause of action for divorce a mensa is sufficient to sustain an order allowing alimony pendente lite. Nall v. Nall, 229 N.C. 598, 50 S.E.2d 737 (1948).

Every ground for divorce from bed and board also serves as a ground for alimony. Minor v. Minor, 70 N.C. App. 76, 318 S.E.2d 865, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 495, 322 S.E.2d 558 (1984).

Applied in Albritton v. Albritton, 210 N.C. 111, 185 S.E. 762 (1936); Sumner v. Sumner, 227 N.C. 610, 44 S.E.2d 40 (1947); Bunn v. Bunn, 258 N.C. 445, 128 S.E.2d 792 (1963); Adams v. Adams, 262 N.C. 556, 138 S.E.2d 204 (1964); Haddon v. Haddon, 42 N.C. App. 632, 257 S.E.2d 483 (1979); Blair v. Blair, 44 N.C. App. 605, 261 S.E.2d 301 (1980).

Quoted in Bateman v. Bateman, 232 N.C. 659, 61 S.E.2d 909 (1950); Bateman v. Bateman, 233 N.C. 357, 64 S.E.2d 156 (1951); Johnson v. Johnson, 237 N.C. 383, 75 S.E.2d 109 (1953).

Cited in Brown v. Brown, 205 N.C. 64, 169 S.E. 818 (1933); Lockhart v. Lockhart, 223 N.C. 559, 27 S.E.2d 444 (1943); Stanley v. Stanley, 226 N.C. 129, 37 S.E.2d 118 (1946); Livingston v. Livingston, 235 N.C. 515, 70 S.E.2d 480 (1952); Feldman v. Feldman, 236 N.C. 731, 73 S.E.2d 865 (1952); Morgan v. Brooks, 241 N.C. 527, 85 S.E.2d 869 (1955); McDowell v. McDowell, 243 N.C. 286, 90 S.E.2d 544 (1955); Rowland v. Rowland, 253 N.C. 328, 116 S.E.2d 795 (1960); Pickens v. Pickens, 258 N.C. 84, 127 S.E.2d 889 (1962); Richardson v. Richardson, 4 N.C. App. 99, 165 S.E.2d 678 (1969); Hicks v. Hicks, 275 N.C. 370, 167 S.E.2d 761 (1969); Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Cook v. Cook, 41 N.C. App. 156, 254 S.E.2d 261 (1979); State v. Getward, 89 N.C. App. 26, 365 S.E.2d 209 (1988); Morrow v. Morrow, 94 N.C. App. 187, 379 S.E.2d 705 (1989); Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989).

II. ABANDONMENT.

What Is Abandonment. — One spouse abandons the other where he or she brings their cohabitation to an end without justification, without the consent of the other spouse and without intent of renewing it. Morris v. Morris, 46 N.C. App. 701, 266 S.E.2d 381, aff'd, 301 N.C. 525, 272 S.E.2d 1 (1980); Roberts v. Roberts, 68 N.C. App. 163, 314 S.E.2d 781 (1984).

Abandonment under this subdivision is not synonymous with the offense defined in § 14-322. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

Abandonment under this subdivision is not synonymous with the criminal offense defined in § 14-322. In a prosecution under § 14-322, the State must establish (1) a willful abandonment and (2) a willful failure to provide adequate support. Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966).

There is a distinction between criminal abandonment and the matrimonial offense of desertion. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

It is not necessary that the husband should leave the State. Witty v. Barham, 147 N.C. 479, 61 S.E. 372 (1908).

Nor is it necessary for the husband himself to depart from his home and leave his wife in order to abandon her. By cruel treatment or failure to provide for her support, he may compel her to leave him, which would constitute abandonment by the husband. Blanchard v. Blanchard, 226 N.C. 152, 36 S.E.2d 919 (1946), holding evidence insufficient to show abandonment by husband; Somerset v. Somerset, 3 N.C. App. 473, 165 S.E.2d 33 (1969); Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

It is not necessary, to constitute abandonment of a wife by the husband, that he leave her, but he may constructively abandon her by treating her with such cruelty as to compel her to leave him. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

Continued and Persistent Cruelty or Neglect May Constitute Abandonment. — If a husband, by continued and persistent cruelty or neglect, forces his wife to leave his home, he may himself be guilty of abandonment. Somerset v. Somerset, 3 N.C. App. 473, 165 S.E.2d 33 (1969).

Sleeping in Separate Bedroom Is Not Abandonment. — A husband who has neither left the marital home nor withheld support cannot be found to have abandoned his wife merely by electing to sleep in a separate bedroom. Oakley v. Oakley, 54 N.C. App. 161, 282 S.E.2d 589 (1981).

Nor Is Separation by Mutual Agreement. — Abandonment or desertion, as a marital wrong committed by one spouse against the other, does not occur if the parties live apart by mutual agreement. Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975).

When the complaining spouse has consented to a separation which was not caused by the other's misconduct, the plaintiff cannot obtain a divorce or alimony on the basis of abandonment. Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975).

Unless Induced by Misconduct of One Spouse. — Where the agreement to separate is induced by the misconduct of one spouse, the other can still maintain the charge of voluntary abandonment. Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975).

The consent which will bar divorce on grounds of abandonment is a positive willingness on the part of the complainant — a consent not induced by the misconduct of the other spouse — to cease cohabitation. Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975).

And Not Mere Acquiescence in the Inevitable. — Mere acquiescence in a wrongful and inevitable separation, which the complaining spouse could not prevent after reasonable efforts to preserve the marriage, does not make the separation voluntary or affect the right to divorce or alimony. Nor, under such circumstances, is the innocent party obliged to protest or to exert physical force or other importunity to prevent the other party from leaving. Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975).

Abandonment imports willfulness and maliciously turning the spouse out of doors. Brooks v. Brooks, 226 N.C. 280, 37 S.E.2d 909 (1946).

Plaintiff Must Prove That Abandonment Was Willful. — Where wife sues husband for a divorce from bed and board upon the ground of abandonment under this section, she must prove as an essential part of her case that her husband has willfully abandoned her. Cameron v. Cameron, 235 N.C. 82, 68 S.E.2d 796 (1952).

When Abandonment Is Justified. — The Supreme Court, in applying the provisions of subdivision (1) of this section, has never undertaken to formulate any all-embracing definition or rule of general application respecting what conduct on the part of one spouse will justify the other in withdrawing from the marital relation, and each case must be determined in large measure upon its own particular circumstances. Ordinarily, however, the withdrawing spouse is not justified in leaving the other unless the conduct of the latter is such as would likely render it impossible for the withdrawing spouse to continue the marital relation with safety, health, and self-respect, and as would constitute ground in itself for divorce at least from bed and board. Caddell v. Caddell, 236 N.C. 686, 73 S.E.2d 923 (1952).

Plaintiff Must Prove Absence of Justification. — Where a spouse seeks to recover alimony on the grounds of abandonment, that spouse has the burden of proving each and every element of abandonment, including the absence of justification. Morris v. Morris, 46 N.C. App. 701, 266 S.E.2d 381, aff'd, 301 N.C. 525, 272 S.E.2d 1 (1980).

The burden of proof upon a plaintiff alleging defendant's abandonment is not to negate every possible justification for defendant-husband's leaving, but rather to prove only the absence of conduct on her part which rendered it impossible for him to continue in the marriage. Morris v. Morris, 46 N.C. App. 701, 266 S.E.2d 381, aff'd, 301 N.C. 525, 272 S.E.2d 1 (1980).

Withdrawal from Home May Be Abandonment Even If Support Is Paid. — A husband may be deemed to have abandoned his wife within the meaning of subdivision (1) of this section, and so be liable for alimony, notwithstanding the fact that, after cohabitation is brought to an end, he voluntarily provides her with adequate support. Whether his withdrawal from the home, followed by such support, constitutes an abandonment which is ground for suit by the wife for divorce from bed and board, and therefore ground for suit by her for alimony without divorce, depends upon whether his withdrawal from the home was justified by the conduct of the wife. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968), decided under former § 50-16.

A wife is entitled to her husband's society and the protection of his name and home in cohabitation. The permanent denial of these rights may be aggravated by leaving her destitute or may be mitigated by a liberal provision for her support, but if the cohabitation is brought to an end without justification and without the consent of the wife and without the intention of renewing it, the matrimonial offense of desertion is complete. Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966); Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

The husband's willful failure to provide adequate support for his wife may be evidence of his abandonment of her, but the mere fact that he provides adequate support for her does not in itself negative abandonment. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957); Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966); Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

And Defendant May Not Defeat Action by Making Voluntary Support Payments. — A defendant may not abandon his wife and defeat an action under this section by making voluntary payments which he may abandon at will. Thurston v. Thurston, 256 N.C. 663, 124 S.E.2d 852 (1962); Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966).

Acts Held to Constitute Abandonment. — Where a husband drives his wife from his house, or obtains her removal by stratagem, or withholds support from her while there, he is deemed to have abandoned her. Setzer v. Setzer, 128 N.C. 170, 38 S.E. 731 (1901).

A husband who permitted and encouraged certain of his grown children to remain constantly at home in a drunken condition, and allowed them to curse, abuse, and harass his wife at all hours of the day and night, and who told his wife to get her things out of his house, was guilty of such cruel treatment toward his wife as to constitute an abandonment of her. Bailey v. Bailey, 243 N.C. 412, 90 S.E.2d 696 (1956).

Allegations that plaintiff was compelled to leave her husband because of his willful failure and refusal to provide her with support and that his failure was without provocation on her part were sufficient to state a cause of action for alimony without divorce on the ground of abandonment. Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968).

Plaintiff simply moved out of his adjacent apartment and stopped supporting his wife at the same time defendant's earnings ceased and she was entering hospital to undergo surgery; the parties lived together as husband and wife "in the usually accepted sense" until that time at which time plaintiff abandoned defendant. Lin v. Lin, 108 N.C. App. 772, 425 S.E.2d 9 (1993).

Finding of Constructive Abandonment Upheld. — Where the record portrayed defendant as a busy professional who became so completely immersed in his work that, by his conduct, he effectively abandoned his wife and children; additionally, the findings of fact pointed to a pattern of behavior by defendant over a 20-year period where plaintiff was left to her own devices without defendant's assistance in maintaining a family and rearing their children, and, although the court noted that at least 10 years earlier plaintiff wife had told defendant that she needed more of his time and attention and the situation improved somewhat thereafter, it improved only for a short time, these finding supported the court's conclusion that the husband had constructively abandoned his wife. Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 94 N.C. App. 682, 381 S.E.2d 162 (1989).

Instructions as to Burden of Proof Held Erroneous. — In an action for alimony without divorce on the ground of abandonment, an instruction that the wife had the burden of showing that the husband's separation from her was free of fault on her part and that she was blameless, was erroneous. Likewise, an instruction that plaintiff had the burden of proving that the defendant's separation was wrongful, without charging upon what phase or phases of the evidence defendant's separation would be wrongful, and without defining wrongful except in abstract terms, was insufficient. Caddell v. Caddell, 236 N.C. 686, 73 S.E.2d 923 (1952).

Lapse of seven years from time of separation did not bar a cross action for divorce a mensa on the ground of constructive abandonment, or application for alimony pendente lite, either by laches or any statute of limitation. Nall v. Nall, 229 N.C. 598, 50 S.E.2d 737 (1948).

Prior Action Under This Section Held to Abate Action under § 50-6. — The pendency of a prior action by the wife for a divorce from bed and board upon the ground of abandonment under this section abated a subsequent action by the husband for an absolute divorce upon the ground of two years' (now one year's) separation under § 50-6. Cameron v. Cameron, 235 N.C. 82, 68 S.E.2d 796 (1952).

Question of Custody. — Whether mother abandoned father within the meaning of subdivision (1) of this section was not controlling on the question of custody. Kenney v. Kenney, 15 N.C. App. 665, 190 S.E.2d 650 (1972).

III. MALICIOUSLY TURNING SPOUSE OUT.

Subdivision (2) Is an Instance of Abandonment Under Subdivision (1). — The ground for divorce a mensa given the wife under subdivision (2) of this section, because of being maliciously turned out of doors by her husband, is but an instance of wrongful abandonment provided by subdivision (1). Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918).

Adverse Ruling in Previous Action. — A denial of alimony in an independent action for alimony without divorce brought by the wife on grounds that her husband maliciously turned her out of doors would conclude her upon her crossbill setting up the same matter in an action thereafter brought by her husband against her for divorce a vinculo. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918).

IV. CRUEL TREATMENT.

Necessary Allegations Under Subdivisions (3) and (4). — A wife, in alleging a cause of action for divorce from bed and board under subdivisions (3) and (4) of this section, must set out with particularity the wrongful acts of the husband upon which she relies and also that such acts were without adequate provocation on her part. Ollis v. Ollis, 241 N.C. 709, 86 S.E.2d 420 (1955); Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

Allegation of actual physical violence is not required under subdivision (3) of this section. Pearce v. Pearce, 226 N.C. 307, 37 S.E.2d 904 (1946).

Cruelty and indignities, like other matrimonial offenses, may be condoned. Cushing v. Cushing, 263 N.C. 181, 139 S.E.2d 217 (1964).

Revival of Cause After Condonation. — Much less cruelty or indignity is sufficient to revive a transaction occurring before the condonation, than to support an original suit for divorce. Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N.C. 130 (1885).

Acts Committed More Than 10 Years Before. — A divorce would not be granted for cruel and barbarous treatment where it appeared that the acts complained of were committed more than 10 years before the commencement of the action, and in the meanwhile the parties had continued to reside together. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N.C. 139, 13 S.E. 887 (1891).

Illustrative Cases. — The communication of an infectious disease by the husband to the wife was not sufficient ground under subdivision (3) of this section. Long v. Long, 9 N.C. 189 (1822).

Whipping of wife held cause for divorce in Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N.C. 433 (1877).

For further illustrative cases, see also Griffith v. Griffith, 89 N.C. 113 (1883); Jackson v. Jackson, 11 S.E. 173 (1890).

V. INDIGNITIES.

Subdivision (4) Is Remedial. — It would seem that the legislature purposely omitted to specify the particular acts of indignity for which divorces may in all cases be obtained. The matter is left at large under general words, thus leaving the courts to deal with each particular case and to determine it upon its own peculiar circumstances, so as to carry into effect the purpose and remedial object of the statute. Taylor v. Taylor, 76 N.C. 433 (1877); Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N.C. 229, 72 S.E. 876 (1911).

Nature of Indignities. — To entitle a wife to a divorce from bed and board under subdivision (4) of this section, the indignity offered by the husband must be such as may be expected to seriously annoy a woman of ordinary sense and temper, and must be repeated or continued so that it may appear to have been done willfully and intentionally or at least consciously by the husband to the annoyance of the wife. Miller v. Miller, 78 N.C. 102 (1878).

Facts in Each Case Are Determinative. — The acts of the husband which will render the wife's condition intolerable and her life burdensome so as to entitle her to a divorce a mensa are largely dependent on the facts in each particular case, including her station in life, temperament, state of health, habits and feelings. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N.C. 229, 72 S.E. 876 (1911).

Allegations and Proof. — Under subdivision (4) of this section plaintiff must set out with particularity the language and conduct on the part of defendant relied upon, and must allege and prove that such acts were without adequate provocation on her part. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 226 N.C. 624, 39 S.E.2d 807 (1946); Best v. Best, 228 N.C. 9, 44 S.E.2d 214 (1947); Ollis v. Ollis, 241 N.C. 709, 86 S.E.2d 420 (1955); Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957); Cushing v. Cushing, 263 N.C. 181, 139 S.E.2d 217 (1964); Butler v. Butler, 1 N.C. App. 356, 161 S.E.2d 618 (1968).

As to necessary allegations and proof under subdivision (4) of this section, see also Pearce v. Pearce, 225 N.C. 571, 35 S.E.2d 636 (1945).

Plaintiff's Innocence Must Be Shown — Generally. — The complaint must aver, and facts must be found upon which it can be seen, that the plaintiff did not by her own conduct contribute to the wrongs and abuses of which she complains. White v. White, 84 N.C. 340 (1881); Garsed v. Garsed, 170 N.C. 672, 87 S.E. 45 (1915).

In a cross-action under this section, the omission of an allegation that plaintiff's conduct was without provocation on defendant's part was fatal. Pearce v. Pearce, 225 N.C. 571, 35 S.E.2d 636 (1945).

In North Carolina, a party relying on subdivision (4) must not have provoked the "indignities" of which he complains. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

Same — General Allegation Insufficient. — It is essential that the plaintiff specifically set forth in her complaint the circumstances under which the violence was committed, what her conduct was, and especially what she had done to provoke such conduct on the part of her husband. A general allegation that such conduct was "without cause or provocation on her part" is insufficient. Everton v. Everton, 50 N.C. 202 (1857); O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N.C. 139, 13 S.E. 887 (1891); Martin v. Martin, 130 N.C. 27, 40 S.E. 822 (1902).

Failure to Allege and Prove That Husband's Accusations of Infidelity Were False. — In an action for divorce a mensa et thoro and for subsistence, plaintiff alleged that defendant had repeatedly accused her of having sexual relations with her foster father and other men, and her evidence tended to show that all of the specific acts of abuse and misconduct complained of occurred in connection with this accusation. Plaintiff further alleged that she had been faithful and dutiful, and that defendant's acts of abuse and misconduct were without provocation or justification, but did not specifically allege or testify that the accusation was false. It was held that defendant's motion for judgment as of nonsuit should have been allowed, since even if the allegation denying provocation or justification was taken as denial of the charge of infidelity, plaintiff offered no testimony in support of such denial. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 226 N.C. 624, 39 S.E.2d 807 (1946).

Admissible Evidence of Indignities. — In plaintiff's action for divorce from bed and board, the trial court did not err in admitting into evidence testimony concerning defendant's use of pornographic material in the presence of the parties' minor children, defendant's refusal to provide educational support for one of the parties' adult children, and defendant's sexual advances upon the parties' daughter, since such evidence was relevant to show the circumstances surrounding plaintiff's claim that defendant's acts constituted such indignities to plaintiff's person that her condition was rendered intolerable and her life burdensome. Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243, cert. denied, 302 N.C. 634, 280 S.E.2d 449 (1981).

Grant of Divorce Reversed Where Husband's Behavior Contributed to Wife's Criticism and Accusations. — In a divorce action under subdivision (4), the judge expressly concluded that the plaintiff-husband was not blameless and the judge's findings compelled the conclusion that the husband's conduct—rescue squad activities despite wife's suspicions of unfaithfulness, public name calling—so contributed to his wife's criticism and accusations and to the parties' repeated arguments that the grant of divorce had to be reversed. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

Illustrative Cases. — Husband's persistent charge of adultery against a virtuous wife, accompanied by a contemptuous declaration that she was no longer his wife and by abandonment of her bed, was such an indignity to wife's person as would entitle her to a partial divorce and to alimony. Everton v. Everton, 50 N.C. 202 (1857).

Where petitioner alleged that her husband had become jealous of her without cause, had shaken his fist in her face and threatened her, and had declared to her face and published to the neighborhood that the child with which she was pregnant was not his, that her condition from such treatment had become intolerable and her life burdensome, and that she had been compelled to quit his house and seek the protection of her father, it was held that she had set out enough to entitle her to alimony pendente lite. Erwin v. Erwin, 57 N.C. 82 (1858).

Where a drunken husband cursed his wife and drove her from his house, and by demonstrations of violence caused her to leave the bedside of a dying child and seek safety and protection at a distance of several miles, this was sufficient cause for divorce under subdivision (4) of this section. Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N.C. 348 (1881).

A divorce from bed and board will be granted the wife if it is shown that the husband made foul and injurious accusations, refused to bed with wife, and denied that she was his wife. Green v. Green, 131 N.C. 533, 42 S.E. 954 (1902).

When in an action by a wife for divorce a mensa there was evidence tending to show that plaintiff, in her married life, was free from blame and that defendant's conduct was a long course of neglect, cruelty, humiliation, and insult, repeated and persisted in, it was sufficient to bring the cause within the words of subdivision (4) of this section, that defendant had offered "such indignities to [wife's] person as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome." Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N.C. 229, 72 S.E. 876 (1911).

Allegations that husband had been living in adultery, had repeatedly avowed his loss of affection for and his desire to be rid of his wife, had ejected her from his bed, and had finally ordered her from his home, saying that he never intended to live with her again, stated a cause of action. Pearce v. Pearce, 226 N.C. 307, 37 S.E.2d 904 (1946).

In plaintiff's action for divorce from bed and board on the ground that defendant had inflicted such indignities upon her as to render her life burdensome, evidence was sufficient to enable the jury to find for plaintiff where it tended to show that at some time prior to 1969 defendant began sleeping and spending the majority of his time in the basement of the parties' home, isolated from plaintiff; that upon moving into the basement, defendant withdrew from active participation in the resolution of familial and household problems; that defendant viewed hardcore pornographic material in his basement and permitted his minor children to view such material; that during 1973 and 1974 defendant requested that plaintiff indulge him in various unnatural sexual desires; and that subsequent to 1975 defendant was absent from the parties' home every weekend and all holidays until September 24, 1976, when he left the home for good. Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243, cert. denied, 302 N.C. 634, 280 S.E.2d 449 (1981).

VI. EXCESSIVE USE OF ALCOHOL OR DRUGS.

Allegations of Habitual Drunkenness. — Allegations in complaint that defendant had been an habitual drunkard during the prior three years were sufficient to state a cause of action for divorce from bed and board under subdivision (5) of this section. Best v. Best, 228 N.C. 9, 44 S.E.2d 214 (1947).

§ 50-8. Contents of complaint; verification; venue and service in action by nonresident; certain divorces validated.

In all actions for divorce the complaint shall be verified in accordance with the provisions of Rule 11 of the Rules of Civil Procedure and G.S. 1-148. The plaintiff shall set forth in his or her complaint that the complainant or defendant has been a resident of the State of North Carolina for at least six months next preceding the filing of the complaint, and that the facts set forth therein as grounds for divorce, except in actions for divorce from bed and board, have existed to his or her knowledge for at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint: Provided, however, that if the cause for divorce is one-year separation, then it shall not be necessary to allege in the complaint that the grounds for divorce have existed for at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint; it being the purpose of this proviso to permit a divorce after such separation of one year without awaiting an additional six months for filing the complaint: Provided, further, that if the complainant is a nonresident of the State action shall be brought in the county of the defendant's residence, and summons served upon the defendant personally or service of summons accepted by the defendant personally in the manner provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4(j)(1). Notwithstanding any other provision of this section, any suit or action for divorce heretofore instituted by a nonresident of this State in which the defendant was personally served with summons or in which the defendant personally accepted service of the summons and the case was tried and final judgment entered in a court of this State in a county other than the county of the defendant's residence, is hereby validated and declared to be legal and proper, the same as if the suit or action for divorce had been brought in the county of the defendant's residence.

In all divorce actions the complaint shall set forth the name and age of any minor child or children of the marriage, and in the event there are no minor children of the marriage, the complaint shall so state. In addition, when there are minor children of the marriage, the complaint shall state the social security number of the plaintiff and, if known, the social security number of the defendant.

In all prior suits and actions for divorce heretofore instituted and tried in the courts of this State where the averments of fact required to be contained in the affidavit heretofore required by this section are or have been alleged and set forth in the complaint in said suits or actions and said complaints have been duly verified as required by Rule 11 of the Rules of Civil Procedure, said allegations so contained in said complaints shall be deemed to be, and are hereby made, a substantial compliance as to the allegations heretofore required by this section to be set forth in any affidavit; and all such suits or actions for divorce, as well as the judgments or decrees issued and entered as a result thereof, are hereby validated and declared to be legal and proper judgments and decrees of divorce.

In all suits and actions for divorce heretofore instituted and tried in this State on and subsequent to the 5th day of April, 1951, wherein the statements, averments, or allegations in the verification to the complaint in said suits or actions are not in accordance with the provisions of Rule 11 of the Rules of Civil Procedure and G.S. 1-148 or the requirements of this section as to verification of complaint or the allegations, statements or averments in the verification contain the language that the facts set forth in the complaint are true "to the best of affiant's knowledge and belief" instead of the language "that the same is true to his (or her) own knowledge" or similar variation in language, said allegations, statements and averments in said verifications as contained in or attached to said complaint shall be deemed to be, and are hereby made, a substantial compliance as to the allegations, averments or statements required by this section to be set forth in any such verifications; and all such suits or actions for divorce, as well as the judgments or decrees issued and entered as a result thereof, are hereby validated and declared to be legal and proper judgments and decrees of divorce. The judgment of divorce shall include, where there are minor children of the parties, the social security numbers of the parties. (1868-9, c. 93, s. 46; 1869-70, c. 184; Code, s. 1287; Rev., s. 1563; 1907, c. 1008, s. 1; C.S., s. 1661; 1925, c. 93; 1933, c. 71, ss. 2, 3; 1943, c. 448, s. 1; 1947, c. 165; 1949, c. 264, s. 4; 1951, c. 590; 1955, c. 103; 1965, c. 636, s. 3; c. 751, s. 1; 1967, c. 50; c. 954, s. 3; 1969, c. 803; 1971, c. 415; 1973, c. 39; 1981, c. 599, s. 15; 1997-433, s. 4.3; 1998-17, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1971, c. 1065 provided:

"Section 1. All divorces granted between January 1, 1969 and the date of the ratification of this act [July 21, 1971] are hereby validated as to the complaint being certified by the attorney rather than verified by the plaintiff.

"Sec. 2. It is the intent of the General Assembly to validate divorces which were based on complaints relying on G.S. 50-8 which, due to a typographical error, indicated that complaints for divorce should be certified rather than verified."

The Rules of Civil Procedure, referred to in this section, are found in § 1A-1.

Legal Periodicals. — For brief comment on the 1947 amendment, see 25 N.C.L. Rev. 412 (1947).

For brief comment on the 1951 amendment, see 29 N.C.L. Rev. 375 (1951).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

For comment, "Conflicts of Law in Divorce Litigation: A Looking-Glass World?," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 145 (1987).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

No Conflict with § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). — There is no conflict between the statutes dealing with procedure in divorce actions and § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). Rather, § 1A-1, Rule 13(a) superimposes an additional characteristic on certain kinds of counterclaims. Gardner v. Gardner, 294 N.C. 172, 240 S.E.2d 399 (1978).

The statutes dealing specifically with divorce actions do not prescribe a procedure for counterclaims different from that prescribed in § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). Gardner v. Gardner, 294 N.C. 172, 240 S.E.2d 399 (1978).

Applied in Scoggins v. Scoggins, 85 N.C. 348 (1881); White v. White, 179 N.C. 592, 103 S.E. 216 (1920); Williams v. Williams, 180 N.C. 273, 104 S.E. 561 (1920); Clarke v. Clarke, 47 N.C. App. 249, 267 S.E.2d 361 (1980); Lynch v. Lynch, 302 N.C. 189, 274 S.E.2d 212 (1981); Allred v. Tucci, 85 N.C. App. 138, 354 S.E.2d 291 (1987).

Quoted in Martin v. Martin, 253 N.C. 704, 118 S.E.2d 29 (1961).

Stated in Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

Cited in Keys v. Tuten, 199 N.C. 368, 154 S.E. 631 (1930); Hodges v. Hodges, 226 N.C. 570, 39 S.E.2d 596 (1946); Rowland v. Rowland, 253 N.C. 328, 116 S.E.2d 795 (1960); Pratt v. Bishop, 257 N.C. 486, 126 S.E.2d 597 (1962); Butler v. Butler, 1 N.C. App. 356, 161 S.E.2d 618 (1968); Smith v. Smith, 56 N.C. App. 812, 290 S.E.2d 390 (1982); Bryant v. Nationwide Mut. Fire. Ins. Co., 67 N.C. App. 616, 313 S.E.2d 803 (1984); In re Triscari Children, 109 N.C. App. 285, 426 S.E.2d 435 (1993); Gaskill v. State ex rel. Cobey, 109 N.C. App. 656, 428 S.E.2d 474 (1993); State v. Thibodeaux, 352 N.C. 570, 532 S.E.2d 797 (2000), cert denied, 531 U.S. 1155, 121 S. Ct. 1106, 148 L. Ed. 2d 976 (2001).

II. COMPLAINT.

Plaintiff Must Allege Material Facts Required by This Section. — To allege a cause of action for divorce, a plaintiff, in addition to one or more of the grounds for divorce, must allege the additional material facts now required by this section. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

Such Allegations Are Indispensable Constituent Elements of Cause of Action. — The legal effect of the 1951 amendment to this section is that the allegations required to be set forth in the complaint are now indispensable constituent elements of plaintiff's cause of action, and the facts so alleged must be established by the verdict of a jury. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

The allegations required by this section are indispensable constituent elements of a divorce action and must be established either by the verdict of a jury or by a judge, as the pertinent statute may permit. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Boyd v. Boyd, 61 N.C. App. 334, 300 S.E.2d 569 (1983).

Which Must Be Found True. — All averments required by the statute must be both alleged in the complaint and found by the finder of fact to be true before a divorce judgment may be entered. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Statement in General Terms. — The matters in the jurisdictional affidavit (now the complaint) in an action for divorce a mensa brought by the wife may be stated in general terms following the language of the statute. Sanders v. Sanders, 157 N.C. 229, 72 S.E. 876 (1911); Jones v. Jones, 173 N.C. 279, 91 S.E. 960 (1917).

Allegation of Six Months' Prior Knowledge — Generally. — The affidavit (now the complaint) must state that the action was not brought within six months from the time the plaintiff first acquired knowledge of the facts stated therein. Clark v. Clark, 133 N.C. 28, 45 S.E. 342 (1903). See also, O'Connor v. O'Connor, 109 N.C. 139, 13 S.E. 887 (1891); Green v. Green, 131 N.C. 533, 42 S.E. 954 (1902).

Six months' prior knowledge was formerly not required to be alleged in the complaint. Kinney v. Kinney, 149 N.C. 321, 63 S.E. 97 (1908).

While, in an action for divorce a mensa, it is advisable that the pleading allege that the facts set forth therein as grounds for divorce had existed to complaint's knowledge for at least six months prior to the filing of the pleading in accordance with the language of the statute, where the wife's pleading in her cross-action for divorce a mensa alleged gross mistreatment of her by the husband, culminating in his locking her out of her home and ordering her away on a specified date more than six months prior to the filing of the pleading, with verification that the facts alleged therein were true to her own knowledge, her pleading would be held sufficient on this aspect. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

Same — When Unnecessary. — By Laws 1925, c. 93, this section was amended so that in cases where the cause for divorce is five years' (now one year's) separation, then the six months' prior knowledge need not be alleged. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N.C. 418, 130 S.E. 7 (1925); Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956). See also, Smithdeal v. Smithdeal, 206 N.C. 397, 174 S.E. 118 (1934).

Section Requires Complaint to Set Forth Certain Information as to Children. — This section requires that in all divorce actions the complaint shall set forth the name and age of any minor child or children of the marriage, and that in the event there are no minor children of the marriage, the complaint shall so state. Jones v. Jones, 20 N.C. App. 607, 202 S.E.2d 279, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 234, 204 S.E.2d 23 (1974).

Allegations of the names and ages of any children of a party seeking divorce in North Carolina are required by this section, in order that the court may protect the interests of such children if the parties have failed to do so. Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

The obvious reason for this requirement is to bring to the attention of the court any minor children that might be affected by the divorce, to the end that the court will protect the interests of those children. Jones v. Jones, 20 N.C. App. 607, 202 S.E.2d 279, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 234, 204 S.E.2d 23 (1974); Cobb v. Cobb, 42 N.C. App. 373, 256 S.E.2d 722 (1979).

The reason for the requirement of this section for a pleading relating to minor children is not to establish jurisdiction. Cobb v. Cobb, 42 N.C. App. 373, 256 S.E.2d 722 (1979).

Answer Constituting Counterclaim. — Where the complaint in a suit for an absolute divorce alleged facts entitling either or both of the parties to the marriage to an absolute divorce, defendant's answer admitting these allegations, together with his prayer for an absolute divorce on the same grounds, was in effect a counterclaim seeking affirmative relief and arising out of the same transactions alleged in the complaint. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Proof Must Correspond to Allegations. — As the allegations in a petition for divorce are directed by statute to be sworn to, it is more emphatically required in such a case than in others that the allegations and proofs should correspond; otherwise the court cannot decree a divorce. Foy v. Foy, 35 N.C. 90 (1851); Young v. Young, 225 N.C. 340, 34 S.E.2d 154 (1945).

III. VERIFICATION.

In a divorce action a verification is required as an essential part of the complaint. The want of a proper verification is a fatal defect and a cause for dismissal of the action. Boyd v. Boyd, 61 N.C. App. 334, 300 S.E.2d 569 (1983).

Verification Must Be as Required. — In an application for alimony pendente lite the affidavit and petition must be verified as required by this section. Clark v. Clark, 133 N.C. 28, 45 S.E. 342 (1903). See also, Hopkins v. Hopkins, 132 N.C. 22, 43 S.E. 508 (1903).

Verification of a pleading stating that it was "sworn and subscribed to" was not sufficient. Martin v. Martin, 130 N.C. 27, 40 S.E. 822 (1902).

For case holding verification in substantial compliance with former § 1-145 sufficient, see Bolin v. Bolin, 242 N.C. 642, 89 S.E.2d 303 (1955).

In Accordance with § 1A-1, Rule 11. — This section requires that for a complaint for divorce to be valid, it must be verified in accordance with § 1A-1, Rule 11, when it is filed. It is not sufficient to obtain verification before the complaint and summons are served on the defendant. Boyd v. Boyd, 61 N.C. App. 334, 300 S.E.2d 569 (1983).

Verification of Answer Setting Up Cross-Action. — In husband's action for divorce a vinculo, wife's answer setting up a cross-action must be verified under this section, as a jurisdictional prerequisite, and when the answer is not so verified the granting of permanent alimony is erroneous. Silver v. Silver, 220 N.C. 191, 16 S.E.2d 834 (1941).

Verification of Counterclaim. — A decree of divorce was not improperly granted because of defective verification of defendant-husband's pleadings, where the counterclaim in which the divorce was prayed for was verified, although the original pleadings were not. Swygert v. Swygert, 46 N.C. App. 173, 264 S.E.2d 902 (1980).

An action for permanent alimony is a permissive counterclaim and is not required to be verified. Newsome v. Newsome, 43 N.C. App. 580, 259 S.E.2d 577 (1979).

As to waiver of verification of subsequent pleadings, see Calaway v. Harris, 229 N.C. 117, 47 S.E.2d 796 (1948).

Impeachment of Verification. — Such uncertainties as plaintiff expressed under cross-examination as to the exact nature of his act in verifying a complaint afforded an insufficient basis to warrant impeachment of his verification. Accordingly, the court erred in allowing defendant's motion to strike the verification and in dismissing plaintiff's complaint. Skinner v. Skinner, 28 N.C. App. 412, 222 S.E.2d 258, cert. denied, 289 N.C. 726, 224 S.E.2d 674 (1976).

Effect of False Swearing on Decree. — If a decree of divorce, regular in all respects on the face of the judgment roll, is obtained by false swearing, by way of pleading and of evidence, relating to the cause or ground for divorce, the decree is voidable but not void, and is immune from attack by either party to the divorce. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956).

In an action for annulment of a marriage entered into between plaintiff husband and defendant wife following a decree of divorce in favor of defendant against her former husband, plaintiff, who had been married to defendant for six years, could not attack the divorce decree by alleging false swearing of defendant in regard to the ground or cause for divorce. Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956).

In an action for divorce the affidavit formerly required by this section in connection with the complaint was jurisdictional, and a complaint accompanied by a false statutory affidavit would be regarded as insufficient to empower the court to grant a decree of divorce; the correct procedure for relief against the decree would be by motion in the cause. Young v. Young, 225 N.C. 340, 34 S.E.2d 154 (1945), wherein the plaintiff was held to have practiced imposition upon the court.

As to the affidavit formerly required by this section, see Holloman v. Holloman, 127 N.C. 15, 37 S.E. 68 (1900); Nichols v. Nichols, 128 N.C. 108, 38 S.E. 296 (1901); Johnson v. Johnson, 141 N.C. 91, 53 S.E. 623 (1906); State v. Williams, 220 N.C. 445, 17 S.E.2d 769 (1941), rev'd on other grounds, 317 U.S. 287, 63 S. Ct. 207, 87 L. Ed. 279 (1942).

IV. RESIDENCE AND DOMICILE.

Jurisdiction in divorce actions is conferred by statute. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

And Is Founded on Domicile. — Judicial power to grant a divorce that is, jurisdiction strictly speaking, is founded on domicile. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

The domicile of one spouse within a state gives power to that state to dissolve a marriage wheresoever contracted. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

"Domicile" Defined. — That place is properly the domicile of a person where he has his true permanent home and principal establishment, and to which he has, whenever he is absent, the intention of returning, and from which he has no present intention of moving. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

"Residence" has been interpreted to mean the equivalent of "domicile." Andris v. Andris, 65 N.C. App. 688, 309 S.E.2d 570 (1983).

Residence and Intent Must Be Shown. — To establish a domicile there must be a residence, and the intention to make it a home or to live there permanently or indefinitely. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

In order to establish a domicile, a party must make a showing of both actual residence in the new locality and the intent to remain there permanently. Andris v. Andris, 65 N.C. App. 688, 309 S.E.2d 570 (1983).

The residence requirement in this section is jurisdictional. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

The requirement that one of the parties to a divorce action shall have resided in this State for a specified period of time next preceding the commencement of the action is jurisdictional. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

Residency for Six Months Required. — In order to obtain a valid divorce in North Carolina, the plaintiff or defendant must have resided in this State for at least six months next preceding institution of the action for divorce. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

The period of residence in this section applies to an action for divorce from bed and board as well as to an action for absolute divorce. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

But the residency requirement of this section is not applicable in an action for alimony without divorce. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

A bona fide "residence," necessary under statutes in order to confer jurisdiction in divorce proceedings, is within the legal meaning of the word "domicile," that is, an abode animo manendi, a place where a person lives or has his home, to which, when absent, he intends to return, and from which he has no present purpose to depart. Rector v. Rector, 4 N.C. App. 240, 166 S.E.2d 492 (1969).

"Residence" means actual residence, and prior to the 1949 amendment, which allows suit to be brought where defendant has been a resident of the State for six months, a nonresident wife in suing for divorce could not avail herself of the maxim that "her domicile was that of her husband," where she had not actually satisfied the residence requirement. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 55 N.C. 367 (1856).

Separate Domicile for Wife. — North Carolina divorce statutes recognize the legality of a separate domicile, or residence, for the wife. Rector v. Rector, 4 N.C. App. 240, 166 S.E.2d 492 (1969).

There is no logical, legal or equitable reason for allowing wife, whose misconduct has brought about the separation, to insist upon the legal fiction that her domicile follows that of her husband, and thereby to defeat his action for divorce brought in the jurisdiction in which she actually resides. Rector v. Rector, 4 N.C. App. 240, 166 S.E.2d 492 (1969).

One need not be a citizen of the United States in order to establish residence or domicile within this State for purposes of divorce actions. Rector v. Rector, 4 N.C. App. 240, 166 S.E.2d 492 (1969).

Effect of Temporary Removal. — Where husband and wife establish a residence in this State, the wife, by leaving the State for a temporary purpose, without any intention of changing her residence, does not thereby lose her citizenship. Moore v. Moore, 130 N.C. 333, 41 S.E. 943 (1902).

The domicile of a soldier or sailor in the military or naval service of his country generally remains unchanged, domicile being neither gained nor lost by being temporarily stationed in the line of duty at a particular place, even for a period of years. A new domicile may, however, be acquired if both the fact and the intent concur. Israel v. Israel, 255 N.C. 391, 121 S.E.2d 713 (1961).

Naval officer was properly found to be domiciled in North Carolina where: (1) He had changed his voter registration from Pennsylvania to Guilford County, (2) He had filed a North Carolina income tax return for the year 1981, (3) He had changed his permanent address with the Navy to his father's address in Greensboro as of August 1, 1981, (4) He had opened a bank account in Greensboro in August, 1981 and had maintained it since that time, (5) He had changed the registration of his motor vehicle from Pennsylvania to North Carolina and had paid North Carolina property taxes, (6) He had resided at his parents' house whenever on leave from the Navy, and (7) He had severed all ties with the State of Pennsylvania. In short, plaintiff did everything possible to establish a residence in North Carolina. The transient nature of his career with the United States Navy prohibited him from doing anything further. Andris v. Andris, 65 N.C. App. 688, 309 S.E.2d 570 (1983).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Not Advisable for Attorney to Act as Notary and Verify Client's Divorce Complaint. — It is not advisable for a notary who is also a partner in a law firm acting of counsel to an attorney filing a divorce complaint to notarize the verification of the client. A divorce complaint which is not properly notarized is subject to dismissal. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. James Lee Knight, Notary Public, Guilford County, 58 N.C.A.G. 35 (1988).

When one partner of Firm A appears as attorney for a plaintiff in a divorce proceeding, the other partners in the firm also appear, and they could be prohibited under former § 47-8 from notarizing the verification of the client. This would be true whether or not the firm appears as "of counsel" to the individual partner on the face of the complaint or answer. Therefore, such practice should be avoided, and as an attorney/notary who acts in this fashion proceeds at his own risk. See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. James Lee Knight, Notary Public, Guilford County, 58 N.C.A.G. 35 (1988).

§ 50-9. Effect of answer of summons by defendant.

In all cases upon an action for a divorce absolute, where judgment of divorce has heretofore been granted and where the plaintiff has caused to be served upon the defendant in person a legal summons, whether by verified complaint or unverified complaint, and such defendant answered such summons, and where the trial of said action was duly and legally had in all other respects and judgments rendered by a judge of the superior court upon issues answered by a judge and jury, in accordance with law, such judgments are hereby declared to have the same force and effect as any judgment upon an action for divorce otherwise had legally and regularly. (1929, c. 290, s. 1; 1947, c. 393.)

CASE NOTES

Cited in Piguerra v. Piguerra, 54 N.C. App. 188, 282 S.E.2d 567 (1981).

§ 50-10. Material facts found by judge or jury in divorce or annulment proceedings; when notice of trial not required; procedure same as ordinary civil actions.

(a) The material facts in every complaint asking for a divorce or for an annulment shall be deemed to be denied by the defendant, whether the same shall be actually denied by pleading or not, and no judgment shall be given in favor of the plaintiff in any such complaint until such facts have been found by a judge or jury.

(b) Nothing herein shall require notice of trial to be given to a defendant who has not made an appearance in the action.

(c) The determination of whether there is to be a jury trial or a trial before the judge without a jury shall be made in accordance with G.S. 1A-1, Rules 38 and 39.

(d) The provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 56, shall be applicable to actions for absolute divorce pursuant to G.S. 50-6, for the purpose of determining whether any genuine issue of material fact remains for trial by jury, but in the event the court determines that no genuine issue of material fact remains for trial by jury, the court must find the facts as provided herein. The court may enter a judgment of absolute divorce pursuant to the procedures set forth in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 56, finding all requisite facts from nontestimonial evidence presented by affidavit, verified motion or other verified pleading. (1868-9, c. 93, s. 47; Code, s. 1288; Rev., s. 1564; C.S., s. 1662; 1963, c. 540, ss. 1, 2; 1965, c. 105; c. 636, s. 4; 1971, c. 17; 1973, cc. 2, 460; 1981, c. 12; 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1037, s. 4; 1985, c. 140; 1991, c. 568, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to competency of spouse as witness in civil actions, see § 8-56.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1991, c. 568, s. 2 provides that any judgment of absolute divorce entered prior to October 1, 1991, on the basis of nontestimonial evidence pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 56, which is proper in all other respects, is valid and of full force and effect.

Legal Periodicals. — For case law survey on trial practice, see 43 N.C.L. Rev. 938 (1965).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided under the various versions of this section applicable at the time, and may not reflect all subsequent amendments.

Purpose of Section. — The object of this section was to prevent a judgment from being taken by default or by collusion, and to require the facts to be found by a jury. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N.C. 413, 102 S.E. 737 (1920); Cobb v. Cobb, 42 N.C. App. 373, 256 S.E.2d 722 (1979).

As to the purpose of this section, see also Moss v. Moss, 24 N.C. 55 (1841); Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N.C. 605, 81 S.E. 933 (1914).

The procedure in a divorce action is not the same as the procedure in other civil actions, in that the material facts in the complaint are deemed denied, whether actually denied by pleading or not, and in that no judgment shall be given in favor of the plaintiff until such facts have been found by a jury (now a judge or jury). Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972).

Section Applies to Cross-Action. — This section is applicable to a defendant who files a cross-action and prays for a divorce therein from the plaintiff. Saunderson v. Saunderson, 195 N.C. 169, 141 S.E. 572 (1928).

Suits for Alimony Without Divorce. — Suits for alimony without divorce are within the analogy of divorce laws and within the purview of that portion of this section which controverts all material facts in every divorce action. Koob v. Koob, 283 N.C. 129, 195 S.E.2d 552 (1973).

Section 50-16.8 changes the procedure to be followed in actions for alimony without divorce from the divorce procedure set forth in this section to the procedure applicable to other civil actions. Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972).

Presumption of Denial — Generally. — The provisions of this section that the allegations of the complaint in an action for divorce "are deemed to be denied" applies only to the trial upon the merits, since the facts must be found by a jury (now a judge or jury). Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N.C. 432, 18 S.E. 334 (1893).

The denial by the statute of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce presumes, as a matter of law, a meritorious defense, and does not require that this be found by the judge in passing upon a motion to set aside a judgment rendered in an action. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N.C. 413, 102 S.E. 737 (1920).

Same — In Cross-Action. — The defendant in an action for divorce a vinculo, may file a cross-action for the same relief, and where no reply has been filed by the plaintiff, and no evidence has been offered by him, an issue is raised by this section, and upon a verdict on the required issues, a judgment may be rendered upon the cross-action if the pleadings and the evidence are sufficient. Ellis v. Ellis, 190 N.C. 418, 130 S.E. 7 (1925).

All the allegations of defendant's counterclaim wherein he sought a divorce from bed and board were deemed to be denied by the plaintiff, even though she failed to answer the counterclaim. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

Same — Time for Answering Not Affected. — The provision of this section putting in a denial of the plaintiff's allegations in an action for divorce did not affect the defendant's right to 20 days after completion of the service of summons by publication in which to answer or demur, etc. Campbell v. Campbell, 179 N.C. 413, 102 S.E. 737 (1920).

Entry of Specific Denial by Defendant Not Prejudicial. — Since this section declares in effect that the material allegations of the complaint in a divorce action shall be deemed and treated as denied, it is inconsequential whether or not the defendant enters a denial, and the entry of a specific denial by the defendant, under discretionary leave of the court, cannot prejudice the plaintiff. Walker v. Walker, 238 N.C. 299, 77 S.E.2d 715 (1953).

Facts That Must Be Alleged Must Be Proved. — Under this section and § 50-8, upon the basic principle that a plaintiff must prove what he must allege, a plaintiff is entitled to a judgment of divorce only if the issues submitted and answered in favor of the plaintiff establish, inter alia, (1) the requisite facts as to residence, and (2) that (except where the alleged cause for divorce is one year's separation) the facts set forth as grounds for divorce have existed to his or her knowledge for at least six months prior to the filing of the complaint. Pruett v. Pruett, 247 N.C. 13, 100 S.E.2d 296 (1957).

The allegations required by § 50-8 are indispensable constituent elements of a divorce action and must be established either by the verdict of a jury or by a judge, as the pertinent statute may permit. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

The statutory changes eliminating the necessity for the filing of an affidavit and allowing a judge in some cases to become the trier of facts in divorce actions do not change the fundamental precepts that jurisdiction over the subject matter of divorce is statutory and that all averments required by the statute must be both alleged in the complaint and found by the finder of fact to be true before a divorce judgment may be entered. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

A divorce will be granted only after the facts establishing a statutory ground for divorce have been pleaded and actually proved. Adair v. Adair, 62 N.C. App. 493, 303 S.E.2d 190, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 319, 307 S.E.2d 162 (1983).

Material Facts Must Be Found by Judge or Jury. — This section requires that, in a divorce action, the material facts as to the grounds for divorce must be found by a jury (now a judge or jury). Wicker v. Wicker, 255 N.C. 723, 122 S.E.2d 703 (1961).

The material facts in every complaint asking for a divorce are deemed to be denied under the statute, and no judgment is allowed to be given in favor of the plaintiff in any such complaint until all the material facts have been found by a jury. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

Required Findings. — The court erred in declaring the parties' divorce decree void where the divorce decree at issue was "in all respects regular on [its] face" and the defendant was properly served; the court's findings, required by this section, were found under the heading "Conclusions of Law" rather than under "Findings of Fact." Dunevant v. Dunevant, 142 N.C. App. 169, 542 S.E.2d 242 (2001).

Failure to Raise Genuine Issue of Material Fact. — The wife's answer generally denying the allegations of the husband's complaint for an absolute divorce was insufficient to raise a genuine issue of material fact. Daniel v. Daniel, 132 N.C. App. 217, 510 S.E.2d 689 (1999).

Judgment Invalid Without Finding of Grounds. — Where judgment of divorce from bed and board contained absolutely no finding of the existence of any of the grounds for divorce from bed and board cognizable under § 50-7, the district court was without power or authority, and therefore without jurisdiction, to enter it. Allred v. Tucci, 85 N.C. App. 138, 354 S.E.2d 291, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 166, 358 S.E.2d 47 (1987).

Order in Habeas Corpus Proceeding Is Not Res Judicata in Divorce Action. — It is patent that an order entered in a habeas corpus proceeding based on facts found by the trial judge is not res judicata in an action for divorce upon the ground of adultery. Wicker v. Wicker, 255 N.C. 723, 122 S.E.2d 703 (1961).

Summary Judgment. — Under this section as it read prior to amendment in 1991, summary judgment could not be entered granting an absolute divorce in this State. Edwards v. Edwards, 42 N.C. App. 301, 256 S.E.2d 728 (1979).

Decree by Consent, Stipulation, or Admissions. — This section itself raises issues in a divorce action as to all material facts, regardless of whether the parties by their pleadings have raised any issue and even where all material facts are admitted. Thus, this section has the effect of prohibiting entry of a divorce decree by consent, stipulation, or admissions of the parties, and requires instead that all material facts be found, either by a jury where the right to a jury trial has been preserved as provided in § 1A-1, Rules 38 and 39, or by the court where a jury trial has been waived. Edwards v. Edwards, 42 N.C. App. 301, 256 S.E.2d 728 (1979), decided prior to 1991 amendment.

Right to Jury Trial Preserved. — Where the defendant in apt time and manner demands a jury trial and does not thereafter waive but continues to assert her right to a jury trial, although it may seem futile for defendant to insist upon a trial by jury when, but for this section, no real issue exists, this section gives her the right to do so, and it would be error for the trial court to deny her the right to have the facts found in a trial by jury. Edwards v. Edwards, 42 N.C. App. 301, 256 S.E.2d 728 (1979).

1971 Amendment Did Not Nullify Right Conferred Prior to Amendment. — Where the last pleading was filed nearly six months prior to the 1971 amendment of this section, the amendment did not nullify the right to request a jury trial "prior to the call of the action for trial" conferred by this section at the time defendant filed the last pleading. Branch v. Branch, 282 N.C. 133, 191 S.E.2d 671 (1972).

The substance of the 1973 amendment is very similar to that of the 1971 amendment. Laws v. Laws, 22 N.C. App. 344, 206 S.E.2d 324 (1974).

The 1973 amendment did not alter the procedure for securing a jury trial in actions for absolute divorce after a one-year separation where an answer had been filed at least 10 days prior to the effective date of the amendment. Laws v. Laws, 22 N.C. App. 344, 206 S.E.2d 324 (1974).

Waiver of Jury Trial. — Defendant waived his right to trial by jury in an action for divorce on the ground of two years' (now one year's) separation when he failed to file a request therefor prior to the call of the action for trial, and the fact that defendant had alleged a cross-action for divorce for adultery did not affect this result when defendant withdrew his cross-action before the case was called. Becker v. Becker, 262 N.C. 685, 138 S.E.2d 507 (1964), decided prior to the 1973 amendment.

In a suit for divorce on the grounds of separation, where defendant was personally served with summons, the judge, in the absence of a request for a jury trial filed prior to the call of the action for trial, had authority to hear the evidence, answer the issues, and render judgment thereon. This rule applied equally to contested and uncontested divorce actions. Langley v. Langley, 268 N.C. 415, 150 S.E.2d 764 (1966), decided prior to the 1973 amendment.

A party may waive the right to a jury trial in civil actions by failure to follow the statutory procedure to preserve such right. Laws v. Laws, 1 N.C. App. 243, 161 S.E.2d 40 (1968), decided prior to the 1973 amendment.

Question for Jury. — Where the facts in a divorce action were in dispute, the case was one for the jury. Taylor v. Taylor, 225 N.C. 80, 33 S.E.2d 492 (1945).

Evidence in divorce action held insufficient to carry case to jury. Moody v. Moody, 225 N.C. 89, 33 S.E.2d 491 (1945).

Instruction Not at Variance with Section. — In an action for absolute divorce, a charge in reference to the admissions of counsel that the evidence was sufficient to support an affirmative answer to the issues of marriage, separation and residence was not equivalent to a directed verdict and not at variance with the provisions of this section. Nelson v. Nelson, 197 N.C. 465, 149 S.E. 585 (1929).

Verdict of Jury. — In a proceeding for a divorce, the issues submitted and the verdict found should be as specific and certain as the facts alleged in the petition. Wood v. Wood, 27 N.C. 674 (1845).

As to validity of verdict by 11 jurors, see Hall v. Hall, 131 N.C. 185, 42 S.E. 562 (1902).

Proof of Adultery. — For cases as to incompetence of one spouse to prove adultery of the other, prior to deletion of this provision by Session Laws 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1037, see Toole v. Toole, 112 N.C. 152, 16 S.E. 912 (1893); Hooper v. Hooper, 165 N.C. 605, 81 S.E. 933 (1914); Vickers v. Vickers, 188 N.C. 448, 124 S.E. 737 (1924); Becker v. Becker, 262 N.C. 685, 138 S.E.2d 507 (1964), citing Perkins v. Perkins, 88 N.C. 41 (1883); Hicks v. Hicks, 275 N.C. 370, 167 S.E.2d 761 (1969); Gordon v. Gordon, 7 N.C. App. 206, 171 S.E.2d 805 (1970); Phillips v. Phillips, 9 N.C. App. 438, 176 S.E.2d 379 (1970); Wright v. Wright, 281 N.C. 159, 188 S.E.2d 317 (1972); Greene v. Greene, 15 N.C. App. 314, 190 S.E.2d 258 (1972); Bowen v. Bowen, 19 N.C. App. 710, 200 S.E.2d 214 (1973); Earles v. Earles, 26 N.C. App. 559, 216

S.E.2d 739, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 239, 217 S.E.2d 679 (1975); Traywick v. Traywick, 28 N.C. App. 291, 221 S.E.2d 85 (1976); VanDooren v. VanDooren, 37 N.C. App. 333, 246 S.E.2d 20, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 653, 248 S.E.2d 258 (1978); Horner v. Horner, 47 N.C. App. 334, 267 S.E.2d 65, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 89, 273 S.E.2d 297 (1980); Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243, cert. denied, 302 N.C. 634, 280 S.E.2d 449 (1981); Spencer v. Spencer, 61 N.C. App. 535, 301 S.E.2d 411, cert. denied, 308 N.C. 678, 304 S.E.2d 757 (1983).

Applied in Carpenter v. Carpenter, 244 N.C. 286, 93 S.E.2d 617 (1956); Biggs v. Biggs, 253 N.C. 10, 116 S.E.2d 178 (1960); Richardson v. Richardson, 257 N.C. 705, 127 S.E.2d 525 (1962); Hinson v. Hinson, 17 N.C. App. 505, 195 S.E.2d 98 (1973); Miller v. Miller, 38 N.C. App. 95, 247 S.E.2d 278 (1978); Watts v. Watts, 44 N.C. App. 46, 260 S.E.2d 170 (1979); Morris v. Morris, 45 N.C. App. 69, 262 S.E.2d 359 (1980); Williamson v. Williamson, 66 N.C. App. 315, 311 S.E.2d 325 (1984); Fulton v. Vickery, 73 N.C. App. 382, 326 S.E.2d 354 (1985).

Quoted in State v. Davis, 229 N.C. 386, 50 S.E.2d 37 (1948); Bumgardner v. Bumgardner, 113 N.C. App. 314, 438 S.E.2d 471 (1994).

Stated in McCall v. McCall, 138 N.C. App. 706, 531 S.E.2d 894 (2000); McCall v. McCall, 138 N.C. App. 706, 531 S.E.2d 894 (2000).

Cited in Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962); Anthony v. Anthony, 8 N.C. App. 20, 173 S.E.2d 617 (1970); Whitaker v. Whitaker, 16 N.C. App. 432, 192 S.E.2d 80 (1972); Pettus v. Pettus, 62 N.C. App. 141, 302 S.E.2d 261 (1983).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Service of process upon defendant in divorce action by leaving copies with defendant's mother at defendant's address was sufficient service and sufficient for nonjury trial. See opinion of Attorney General to the Honorable John S. Gardner, District Court Judge, Sixteenth Judicial District, 41 N.C.A.G. 473 (1971), decided prior to the 1973 amendment.

Service of Process by Publication Does Not Prohibit Waiver of Right to Trial by Jury. — See opinion of Attorney General to Mr. Tom H. Matthews, 43 N.C.A.G. 48 (1973), decided prior to the 1973 amendment.

§ 50-11. Effects of absolute divorce.

(a) After a judgment of divorce from the bonds of matrimony, all rights arising out of the marriage shall cease and determine except as hereinafter set out, and either party may marry again without restriction arising from the dissolved marriage.

(b) No judgment of divorce shall render illegitimate any child in esse, or begotten of the body of the wife during coverture.

(c) A divorce obtained pursuant to G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6 shall not affect the rights of either spouse with respect to any action for alimony or postseparation support pending at the time the judgment for divorce is granted. Furthermore, a judgment of absolute divorce shall not impair or destroy the right of a spouse to receive alimony or postseparation support or affect any other rights provided for such spouse under any judgment or decree of a court rendered before or at the time of the judgment of absolute divorce.

(d) A divorce obtained outside the State in an action in which jurisdiction over the person of the dependent spouse was not obtained shall not impair or destroy the right of the dependent spouse to alimony as provided by the laws of this State.

(e) An absolute divorce obtained within this State shall destroy the right of a spouse to equitable distribution under G.S. 50-20 unless the right is asserted prior to judgment of absolute divorce; except, the defendant may bring an action or file a motion in the cause for equitable distribution within six months from the date of the judgment in such a case if service of process upon the defendant was by publication pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4 and the defendant failed to appear in the action for divorce.

(f) An absolute divorce by a court that lacked personal jurisdiction over the absent spouse or lacked jurisdiction to dispose of the property shall not destroy the right of a spouse to equitable distribution under G.S. 50-20 if an action or motion in the cause is filed within six months after the judgment of divorce is entered. The validity of such divorce may be attacked in the action for equitable distribution. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 43; Code, s. 1295; Rev., s. 1569; 1919, c. 204; C.S., s. 1663; 1953, c. 1313; 1955, c. 872, s. 1; 1967, c. 1152, s. 3; 1981, c. 190; c. 815, s. 2; 1987, c. 844, s. 3; 1991, c. 569, s. 2; 1995, c. 319, s. 8; 1998-217, s. 7(a), (b).)

Cross References. — As to procedures in actions for equitable distribution of property, see § 50-21.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Effects of absolute divorce.

(a) After a judgment of divorce from the bonds of matrimony, all rights arising out of the marriage shall cease and determine except as hereinafter set out, and either party may marry again without restriction arising from the dissolved marriage.

(b) No judgment of divorce shall render illegitimate any child in esse, or begotten of the body of the wife during coverture.

(c) A divorce obtained pursuant to G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6 shall not affect the rights of either spouse with respect to any action for alimony or alimony pendente lite pending at the time the judgment for divorce is granted. Furthermore, a judgment of absolute divorce shall not impair or destroy the right of a spouse to receive alimony or alimony pendente lite or affect any other rights provided for such spouse under any judgment or decree of a court rendered before or at the time of the judgment of absolute divorce.

(d) A divorce obtained outside the State in an action in which jurisdiction over the person of the dependent spouse was not obtained shall not impair or destroy the right of the dependent spouse to alimony as provided by the laws of this State.

(e) An absolute divorce obtained within this State shall destroy the right of a spouse to an equitable distribution of the marital property under G.S. 50-20 unless the right is asserted prior to judgment of absolute divorce; except, the defendant may bring an action or file a motion in the cause for equitable distribution within six months from the date of the judgment in such a case if service of process upon the defendant was by publication pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4 and the defendant failed to appear in the action for divorce.

(f) An absolute divorce by a court that lacked personal jurisdiction over the absent spouse or lacked jurisdiction to dispose of the property shall not destroy the right of a spouse to an equitable distribution of marital property under G.S. 50-20 if an action or motion in the cause is filed within six months after the judgment of divorce is entered. The validity of such divorce may be attacked in the action for equitable distribution."

Legal Periodicals. — For note on permanent alimony incident to absolute divorce, see 31 N.C.L. Rev. 482 (1953).

For note on choice of law rules in North Carolina, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 243 (1970).

For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For survey of 1976 case law on domestic relations, see 55 N.C.L. Rev. 1018 (1977).

For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For survey of 1980 family law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1194 (1981).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For comment on the tax effects of equitable distribution upon divorce, see 18 Wake Forest L. Rev. 555 (1982).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided under the various versions of this section applicable at the time, and may not reflect all subsequent amendments.

Cessation of Right to Support. — This section is declarative of the common law in that one of the rights which determines and ceases after a judgment of absolute divorce is the right to support. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Power to Enter Alimony Order Ends upon Divorce. — When a party has secured an absolute divorce, it is beyond the power of the court thereafter to enter an order for alimony. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 270 N.C. 253, 154 S.E.2d 71 (1967).

Jurisdiction. — Where the parties invoked the jurisdiction of the district court to equitably distribute their marital property in the action for absolute divorce and equitable distribution of their marital property, the district court did not lose jurisdiction to equitably distribute the marital property because of its failure to enter a judgment in the equitable distribution case before the special proceeding seeking partition of the marital property was filed in the office of the clerk of superior court. Garrison v. Garrison, 90 N.C. App. 670, 369 S.E.2d 628 (1988).

The words "or at the time of" in subsection (c) of this section were added to complement § 50-16.8(b), which allows the questions of divorce and alimony to be determined in a single action. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Alimony May Be Awarded After Hearing on Remand. — If alimony is found to be appropriate after a hearing on remand, the ensuing judgment or decree awarding it will relate back to the time when the application for alimony should have been considered, which is "before or at the time of the rendering of the judgment for absolute divorce." McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Decree of Absolute Divorce on Counterclaim to Action for Alimony as Interlocutory Judgment. — A decree of absolute divorce upon a counterclaim to an action for alimony without divorce was not a final judgment as to the remainder of the claims to be adjudicated in the action. Instead, it was merely an interlocutory judgment, to become final upon a complete adjudication of all claims, rights and liabilities of the parties. It did not terminate or determine the remaining issues arising from the pleadings in the action. Therefore, the court could amend, modify or rescind it at anytime prior to final judgment. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 36 N.C. App. 755, 245 S.E.2d 399 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979).

A judgment of absolute divorce upon a counterclaim to an action for alimony without divorce, rendered prior to final determination of all issues, was interlocutory and subject to the provisions of § 1A-1, Rule 54(b), for purposes of determining its finality. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 36 N.C. App. 755, 245 S.E.2d 399 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979).

Effect of Absolute Divorce on Prior Judgment for Alimony Without Divorce. — A judgment for absolute divorce awarded to the husband on the ground of two years' (now one year's) separation did not invalidate a judgment for alimony without divorce entered in favor of the wife before the action for absolute divorce was instituted. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

Subsection (e) merely requires an equitable distribution claim to be asserted at any time prior to judgment, and does not prohibit a claim asserted before a divorce action is filed. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Equitable Distribution After Judgment of Absolute Divorce. — Under this section, a judgment of absolute divorce destroys the right to equitable distribution unless the right is asserted prior to judgment of absolute divorce. Howell v. Howell, 321 N.C. 87, 361 S.E.2d 585 (1987).

If a person entitled to equitable distribution does not specifically apply for it by cross-action or by a separate action prior to the judgment of absolute divorce, the divorce judgment destroys that person's statutory right to equitable distribution. Lutz v. Lutz, 101 N.C. App. 298, 399 S.E.2d 385 (1991), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 732, 404 S.E.2d 871 (1991).

If alimony and equitable distribution claims are properly asserted, whether by the filing of an action or raising of counterclaims, and are not voluntarily dismissed pursuant to Rule 41(a)(1) until after judgment of absolute divorce is entered, a new action based on those claims may be filed within the one year period provided by the rule. Stegall v. Stegall, 336 N.C. 473, 444 S.E.2d 177 (1994).

Although subsection (e) requires that a claim for equitable distribution be brought prior to the granting of the divorce; where the trial court granted defendant relief from the judgment of absolute divorce and permitted defendant to file her answer, the effect was the same as if the judgment had never been entered, and defendant's right to equitable distribution was revived. Baker v. Baker, 115 N.C. App. 337, 444 S.E.2d 478 (1994).

Trial court erred in granting defendant wife's motion to be "relieved of the effect" of a divorce judgment solely to the extent that the judgment barred her claim for equitable distribution. Howell v. Howell, 321 N.C. 87, 361 S.E.2d 585 (1987).

Authority for Equitable Distribution. — Where neither party made application or stated a claim for equitable distribution prior to the judgment of absolute divorce, the trial court lacked the authority to enter such a judgment. Stirewalt v. Stirewalt, 114 N.C. App. 107, 440 S.E.2d 854 (1994).

The superior court had no authority to partition marital property pursuant to the provisions of § 46-1 et seq. where, as here, the jurisdiction of the district court has been properly invoked to equitably distribute such marital property. Garrison v. Garrison, 90 N.C. App. 670, 369 S.E.2d 628 (1988).

Effect on Pending Action for Alimony

Without Divorce. — Where, pending wife's action for alimony without divorce, husband obtained decree of absolute divorce on the ground of separation for the statutory period under § 50-6, it was held that the final judgment in her action would be rendered after absolute divorce, and that she therefore would not be entitled to permanent alimony in her action, since under the common law she would not be entitled to alimony after a divorce a vinculo, and that the saving provisions of this section would not be applicable. Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955), decided prior to 1991 amendment.

Effect of Divorce Granted on Counterclaim to Pending Action for Alimony. — A decree of absolute divorce, granted to the defendant in a prior separate hearing on his counterclaim to an action for alimony without divorce, could not be pleaded as a bar to the judgment awarding alimony in the subsequent hearing on the plaintiff's claim which initiated the action. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 36 N.C. App. 755, 245 S.E.2d 399 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979).

Effect on Alimony Pendente Lite. — A dependent spouse's action for alimony without divorce was properly dismissed and order awarding alimony pendente lite was properly terminated on motion of the supporting spouse where he had been granted an absolute divorce in an action instituted by him after the order for alimony pendente lite was entered. Smith v. Smith, 12 N.C. App. 378, 183 S.E.2d 283 (1971), decided prior to 1991 amendment.

Where a judgment awarding the wife alimony pendente lite, to be continued until the award of permanent alimony, was rendered before rendition of judgment for absolute divorce, the rights provided for the wife by the prior judgment could not be impaired or destroyed by the subsequently rendered decree of absolute divorce, and defendant remained liable to continue to make the payments under the alimony pendente lite order. Johnson v. Johnson, 17 N.C. App. 398, 194 S.E.2d 562 (1973).

Effect on Debts. — Debt incurred after separation of the parties was not subject to equitable distribution. Harrington v. Harrington, 110 N.C. App. 782, 431 S.E.2d 240 (1993).

Effect of Divorce Under Former Law. — For other cases dealing with the effect of an absolute divorce on the right to alimony, decided under this section as it stood before the 1953, 1955 and 1967 amendments, see Duffy v. Duffy, 120 N.C. 346, 27 S.E. 28 (1897); Livingston v. Livingston, 235 N.C. 515, 70 S.E.2d 480 (1952); Feldman v. Feldman, 236 N.C. 731, 73 S.E.2d 865 (1953); Merritt v. Merritt, 237 N.C. 271, 74 S.E.2d 529 (1953); Deaton v. Deaton, 237 N.C. 487, 75 S.E.2d 398 (1953).

Absolute Defense Under Prior Law. — An alimony claim made pursuant to § 50-16.3A(a) and filed within one year of plaintiff's dismissal of her first claim (under repealed § 50-16.6(a)) failed to qualify as "a new action based on the same claim" under Rule 41(a)(1) because the § 50-16.3A(a) claim for alimony was distinct from that set out by the repealed section in that it deferred to the court's discretion on the decision of whether to award alimony where both the supporting and dependent spouse "each participated in an act of illicit sexual behavior," whereas the old section foreclosed a dependent spouse from recovering; to allow her to maintain this new action would have deprived the defendant/husband of a statutory absolute defense he had had under the old law. Brannock v. Brannock, 135 N.C. App. 635, 523 S.E.2d 110 (1999).

South Carolina Divorce Action Did Not Destroy Right to Equitable Distribution Under This Section. — Where neither party to a divorce action in South Carolina requested an adjudication of their property rights it necessarily followed that under the South Carolina statute the court never acquired jurisdiction over their marital property and that the divorce judgment entered therein did not destroy plaintiff's right to an equitable distribution of their marital property under this section. Cooper v. Cooper, 90 N.C. App. 665, 369 S.E.2d 630 (1988).

Asserting Claim to Property Was Not Notice of Equitable Distribution. — In divorce case, defendant's answer asserting a claim to an interest in a specific piece of property, or to proceeds in plaintiff's possession flowing from defendant's interest in that piece of property, was not sufficient to put plaintiff on notice that he was asserting a claim for equitable distribution under § 50-20. Goodwin v. Zeydel, 96 N.C. App. 670, 387 S.E.2d 57 (1990).

Trial court had no authority to reaffirm divorce decree and reserve for future resolution the issue of equitable distribution where the trial court did not set aside the divorce but rather attempted to nullify the consequences of defendant's failure to assert her claim for equitable distribution prior to the entry of judgment of divorce. Even if the court had effectively set aside, briefly, the divorce decree itself and then immediately reinstated the divorce decree with a reservation of an equitable distribution claim, the reservation of the equitable distribution claim would have been a legal nullity because plaintiff voluntarily dismissed his equitable distribution claim and defendant did not, during the time the divorce was arguably set aside, file an answer, counterclaim, or separate action requesting equitable distribution. Carter v. Carter, 102 N.C.

App. 440, 402 S.E.2d 469 (1991).

Waiver of Equitable Distribution Induced by Misrepresentations of Other Party. — Defendant would be estopped from asserting the defense that plaintiff did not preserve her equitable distribution claim if plaintiff, in good faith, relied on the misrepresentations of the defendant in waiving her right to equitable distribution. Harroff v. Harroff, 100 N.C. App. 686, 398 S.E.2d 340 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 330, 402 S.E.2d 833 (1991).

Divorce Decree Containing Provision Reserving Equitable Distribution Issue. — Where decree for absolute divorce contained a provision reserving the issue of equitable distribution for hearing at a later date, trial judge, with whom plaintiff thereafter filed a motion to dismiss defendant's claim for equitable distribution pursuant to subsection (e) of this section, had no authority to find error and reverse or vacate divorce judge's order reserving the issue. Stone v. Stone, 96 N.C. App. 633, 386 S.E.2d 602 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 805, 393 S.E.2d 906 (1990).

Rights Under Consent Judgment as Contractual. — Insofar as consent judgment imposed a duty of support on defendant-husband beyond that imposed by the common law or by statute, plaintiff-wife's rights did not arise out of the marriage, but out of contract. Haynes v. Haynes, 45 N.C. App. 376, 263 S.E.2d 783 (1980).

Consent Judgment Held Not Affected. — Where a consent judgment for alimony without divorce had been entered, a condition of which was that the wife would remain unmarried, the subsequent decreeing of a divorce a vinculo to the wife was not a violation of the terms of the consent judgment, and the judge had no authority to reduce the amount of alimony provided in the consent judgment upon that ground. Lentz v. Lentz, 193 N.C. 742, 138 S.E. 12, aff'd, 194 N.C. 673, 140 S.E. 440 (1927), overruled on other grounds, Story v. Story, 221 N.C. 114, 19 S.E.2d 136 (1942).

Contractual Right to Continued Support Under Separation Agreement. — A separation agreement by which the husband agrees to support his wife even after a decree of divorce has been entered which, under this section, would otherwise terminate his obligation, is nonetheless valid. In such a case, the wife's right to continued support does not arise out of the marriage, but arises out of contract and survives the judgment of absolute divorce. Haynes v. Haynes, 45 N.C. App. 376, 263 S.E.2d 783 (1980).

Claim for Arrearages in Payment Under Predivorce Separation Agreement. — Plaintiff's claim for arrearages in payments under a predivorce separation agreement was based on a right arising out of contract, which survived a judgment of absolute divorce, and was not a right arising out of marriage which was terminated by a judgment of absolute divorce. McKnight v. McKnight, 25 N.C. App. 246, 212 S.E.2d 902, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 466, 215 S.E.2d 624 (1975).

Enforcement of Separation Agreement. — This section does not protect a mere separation agreement as an award of alimony, and such an agreement may not be enforced by imprisonment for contempt. Stanley v. Stanley, 226 N.C. 129, 37 S.E.2d 118 (1946).

Award of Attorneys' Fees Where Plaintiff Is Unable to Defray Expenses. — An award under either § 50-13.6 for "reasonable attorneys' fees to an interested party acting in good faith who has insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit" or under subsection (c) of this section and § 50-16.4, applying the doctrine of Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972), is appropriate upon a finding by the trial court in the exercise of its discretion that the plaintiff is unable to defray the expense of the suit. Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

Award of Counsel Fees for Services Rendered Subsequent to Absolute Divorce. — Unless the case falls within one of the two exceptions (now one exception) made by subsection (c) of this section, counsel fees may be awarded for services rendered to a dependent spouse subsequent to an absolute divorce in seeking to obtain or in resisting a motion for a revision of alimony or other rights provided under any judgment or decree of a court rendered before or at the time of the rendering of the judgment for absolute divorce. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

Under subsection (c) of this section, an award of counsel fees is allowed for services rendered to a dependent spouse subsequent to an absolute divorce in seeking to obtain or in resisting a motion for revision of alimony or other rights. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Counsel Fees for Enforcement of Subsistence Pendente Lite. — Since a wife's right to receive subsistence pendente lite is not destroyed by a judgment of absolute divorce, where her action for alimony without divorce is still pending, it would seem that the proviso in this section is broad enough to include counsel fees to the wife to enforce the payment to her of subsistence pendente lite in arrears, for without counsel her right to enforce such payments might be impaired or destroyed. Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955).

Divorce Does Not Annul or Revoke Insurance Beneficiary Designation. — Neither this section, which provides that "all rights arising out of the marriage shall cease and determine," nor § 31A-1, which bars rights to "any rights or interests in the property of the other spouse," discloses a legislative intent that divorce should annul or revoke the beneficiary designation in a garden-variety insurance certificate. DeVane v. Travelers Ins. Co., 8 N.C. App. 247, 174 S.E.2d 146 (1970).

Power of Alabama Court to Modify North Carolina Alimony Decree. — An Alabama court which had in personam jurisdiction over the parties could modify a North Carolina alimony decree, where the Alabama court in effect found that circumstances had changed since the entry of the North Carolina decree. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

An Alabama court with in personam jurisdiction over the parties could not modify retroactively a North Carolina alimony judgment where there was no showing of any sudden emergency requiring such a reduction. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

Claim for Equitable Distribution Properly Dismissed. — Trial court did not err in dismissing the wife's tardy claim for equitable distribution, either on the ground that the trial court had left the issue open or upon the ground that the husband was equitably estopped from relying on subsection (e) of this section, where, although the trial court specifically reserved the issue of equitable distribution for the future in its judgment of absolute divorce, the wife had not, and the husband had asserted a claim for equitable distribution for the future prior to the judgment of absolute divorce. Lutz v. Lutz, 101 N.C. App. 298, 399 S.E.2d 385 (1991), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 732, 404 S.E.2d 871 (1991).

Where an Alabama court which had in personam jurisdiction over the parties modified a North Carolina alimony decree, the dependent spouse's right to alimony was terminated as of the entry of the Alabama decree. There was no need to prolong the litigation by requiring the supporting spouse to commence a third proceeding in North Carolina to set aside the prior North Carolina judgment. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

As to nonapplicability of 1953 and 1955 amendments to a 1951 judgment for absolute divorce, see Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955).

Former Bar Against Alimony for Spouse Obtaining Divorce on Ground of Separation. — As to the bar against a decree of alimony for the dependent spouse where this spouse both initiated an action for and obtained a divorce on the ground of the statutory separation period under subsection (c) of this section prior to its amendment by Session Laws 1981, c. 190, see Porter v. Citizens Bank, 249 N.C. 173, 105 S.E.2d 669 (1958); Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972); McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Applied in Bowling v. Bowling, 252 N.C. 527, 114 S.E.2d 228 (1960); Biggs v. Biggs, 253 N.C. 10, 116 S.E.2d 178 (1960); Sears v. Sears, 253 N.C. 415, 117 S.E.2d 7 (1960); Darden v. Darden, 20 N.C. App. 433, 201 S.E.2d 538 (1974); Sawyer v. Sawyer, 21 N.C. App. 293, 204 S.E.2d 224 (1974); Amaker v. Amaker, 28 N.C. App. 558, 221 S.E.2d 917 (1976); Webber v. Webber, 32 N.C. App. 572, 232 S.E.2d 865 (1977); Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978); Wise v. Wise, 42 N.C. App. 5, 255 S.E.2d 570 (1979); Lockamy v. Lockamy, 111 N.C. App. 260, 432 S.E.2d 176 (1993); Gilbert v. Gilbert, 111 N.C. App. 233, 431 S.E.2d 805 (1993).

Quoted in Taylor v. Taylor, 257 N.C. 130, 125 S.E.2d 373 (1962); O'Brien v. O'Brien, 266 N.C. 502, 146 S.E.2d 500 (1966); Lawson v. Lawson, 84 N.C. App. 51, 351 S.E.2d 794 (1987); Banner v. Banner, 86 N.C. App. 397, 358 S.E.2d 110 (1987).

Stated in Hamilton v. Hamilton, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979); Britt v. Britt, 49 N.C. App. 463, 271 S.E.2d 921 (1980); Burmann v. Burmann, 64 N.C. App. 729, 308 S.E.2d 101 (1983).

Cited in In Dyer v. Dyer, 212 N.C. 620, 194 S.E. 278 (1937); Brown v. Brown, 224 N.C. 556, 31 S.E.2d 529 (1944); Pearce v. Pearce, 225 N.C. 571, 35 S.E.2d 636 (1945); Kinross-Wright v. Kinross-Wright, 248 N.C. 1, 102 S.E.2d 469 (1958); Thurston v. Thurston, 256 N.C. 663, 124 S.E.2d 852 (1962); Becker v. Becker, 273 N.C. 65, 159 S.E.2d 569 (1968); Bailey v. Bailey, 26 N.C. App. 444, 216 S.E.2d 394 (1975); O'Hara v. O'Hara, 46 N.C. App. 819, 266 S.E.2d 59 (1980); Payne v. Payne, 49 N.C. App. 132, 270 S.E.2d 546 (1980); McCall v. Harris, 55 N.C. App. 390, 285 S.E.2d 335 (1982); Robinson v. Robinson, 56 N.C. App. 737, 289 S.E.2d 612 (1982); In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

§ 50-11.1. Children born of voidable marriage legitimate.

A child born of voidable marriage or a bigamous marriage is legitimate notwithstanding the annulment of the marriage. (1951, c. 893, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Child of Bigamous Marriage Entitled to Proceeds of Insurance Policy on Father. — Under this section, there can be no question but that a child born of a bigamous marriage is legitimate and as such is entitled to the proceeds of a policy of insurance issued to his deceased father pursuant to the Federal Employees' Group Life Insurance Act. Varker v. Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 184 F. Supp. 159 (M.D.N.C. 1960).

Quoted in Rehm v. Rehm, 2 N.C. App. 298, 163 S.E.2d 54 (1968).

§ 50-11.2. Judgment provisions pertaining to care, custody, tuition and maintenance of minor children.

Where the court has the requisite jurisdiction and upon proper pleadings and proper and due notice to all interested parties the judgment in a divorce action may contain such provisions respecting care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as the court may adjudge; and from time to time such provisions may be modified upon due notice and hearing and a showing of a substantial change in condition; and if there be no minor children, the judgment may so state. The jurisdictional requirements of G.S. 50A-201, 50A-203, or 50A-204 shall apply in regard to a custody decree. (1973, c. 927, s. 1; 1979, c. 110, s. 11; 1999-223, s. 10.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

CASE NOTES

Substantial Change in Condition. — A change in condition is substantial if the change would affect the best interests and welfare of the child. Carmichael v. Carmichael, 40 N.C. App. 277, 252 S.E.2d 257 (1979).

Effect of Separation Agreement. — While the marital and property rights of the parties under the provisions of a valid separation agreement cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without consent of the parties, such agreements are not final and binding as to the custody of minor children or as to the amount to be provided for the support and education of such minor children. Soper v. Soper, 29 N.C. App. 95, 223 S.E.2d 560 (1976).

Where parties to a separation agreement agree upon the amount of the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon is just and reasonable and that upon motion for an increase in such allowance, a court is not warranted in ordering an increase in the absence of any evidence of a change of conditions. Soper v. Soper, 29 N.C. App. 95, 223 S.E.2d 560 (1976).

§ 50-11.3. Certain judgments entered prior to January 1, 1981, validated.

Any judgment of divorce which has been entered prior to January 1, 1981, by a court of competent jurisdiction within the State of North Carolina without a conclusion of law that the plaintiff was entitled to an absolute divorce, but which is proper in all other respects, is hereby rendered valid and of full force and effect. (1977, c. 320; 1981, c. 473.)

§ 50-11.4. Certain judgments of divorce validated.

Any judgment of divorce entered as a result of an action instituted prior to October 1, 1983, upon any grounds abolished by Chapter 613 of the 1983 Session Laws as amended by Section 217(O) of Chapter 923 of the 1983 Session Laws, which is proper in all other respects, is hereby rendered valid and of full force and effect. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 952.)

§ 50-12. Resumption of maiden or premarriage surname.

(a) Any woman whose marriage is dissolved by a decree of absolute divorce may, upon application to the clerk of court of the county in which she resides setting forth her intention to do so, change her name to any of the following:

(1) Her maiden name; or

(2) The surname of a prior deceased husband; or

(3) The surname of a prior living husband if she has children who have that husband's surname.

(a1) A man whose marriage is dissolved by decree of absolute divorce may, upon application to the clerk of court of the county in which he resides setting forth his intention to do so, change the surname he took upon marriage to his premarriage surname.

(b) The application shall be addressed to the clerk of the court of the county in which such divorced person resides, and shall set forth the full name of the former spouse of the applicant, the name of the county and state in which the divorce was granted, and the term or session of court at which such divorce was granted, and shall be signed by the woman in her full maiden name, or by the man in his full premarriage surname. The clerks of court of the several counties of the State shall record and index such applications in such manner as shall be required by the Administrative Office of the Courts.

(c) If an applicant, since the divorce, has adopted one of the surnames listed in subsection (a) or (a1) of this section, the applicant's use and adoption of that name is validated.

(d) In the complaint, or counterclaim for divorce filed by any person in this State, the person may petition the court to adopt any surname as provided by this section, and the court is authorized to incorporate in the divorce decree an order authorizing the person to adopt that surname. (1937, c. 53; 1941, c. 9; 1951, c. 780; 1957, c. 394; 1971, c. 1185, s. 23; 1981, c. 494, ss. 1-4; 1985, c. 488; 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), c. 565, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Wife Need Not Use Husband's Surname. — There is no statutory requirement in this State that a married woman use her husband's surname. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Section Merely Recognizes Possible Common-Law Change in Name. — This section does not imply a requirement that a married woman must assume her husband's surname. It merely recognizes that by her marriage the wife may have, through usage, effected a common-law change in her name, but it does not indicate that she was compelled to do so. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Woman Does Not by Marriage Give Up Right to Change Name. — Nothing in the law states that by marriage a woman gives up her right as a person to change her name as anyone else might change his or hers. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Wife Must Have Filed Complaint or Counterclaim. — The court, in the divorce decree, may not grant authorization for the wife to resume her maiden name unless the wife filed complaint for divorce or a counterclaim (cross bill) for divorce. See opinion of Attorney General to the Honorable John H. Parker, District Court Judge, 10th Judicial District, 50 N.C.A.G. 16 (1980).

§ 50-13: Repealed by Session Laws 1967, c. 1153, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to actions or proceedings for custody of minor children, see § 50-13.1 et seq.

§ 50-13.1. Action or proceeding for custody of minor child.

(a) Any parent, relative, or other person, agency, organization or institution claiming the right to custody of a minor child may institute an action or proceeding for the custody of such child, as hereinafter provided. Unless a contrary intent is clear, the word "custody" shall be deemed to include custody or visitation or both.

(b) Whenever it appears to the court, from the pleadings or otherwise, that an action involves a contested issue as to the custody or visitation of a minor child, the matter, where there is a program established pursuant to G.S. 7A-494, shall be set for mediation of the unresolved issues as to custody and visitation before or concurrent with the setting of the matter for hearing unless the court waives mediation pursuant to subsection (c). Issues that arise in motions for contempt or for modifications as well as in other pleadings shall be set for mediation unless mediation is waived by the court. Alimony, child support, and other economic issues may not be referred for mediation pursuant to this section. The purposes of mediation under this section include the pursuit of the following goals:

(1) To reduce any acrimony that exists between the parties to a dispute involving custody or visitation of a minor child;

(2) The development of custody and visitation agreements that are in the child's best interest;

(3) To provide the parties with informed choices and, where possible, to give the parties the responsibility for making decisions about child custody and visitation;

(4) To provide a structured, confidential, nonadversarial setting that will facilitate the cooperative resolution of custody and visitation disputes and minimize the stress and anxiety to which the parties, and especially the child, are subjected; and

(5) To reduce the relitigation of custody and visitation disputes.

(c) For good cause, on the motion of either party or on the court's own motion, the court may waive the mandatory setting under Article 39A of Chapter 7A of the General Statutes of a contested custody or visitation matter for mediation. Good cause may include, but is not limited to, the following: a showing of undue hardship to a party; an agreement between the parties for voluntary mediation, subject to court approval; allegations of abuse or neglect of the minor child; allegations of alcoholism, drug abuse, or spouse abuse; or allegations of severe psychological, psychiatric, or emotional problems. A showing by either party that the party resides more than fifty miles from the court shall be considered good cause.

(d) Either party may move to have the mediation proceedings dismissed and the action heard in court due to the mediator's bias, undue familiarity with a party, or other prejudicial ground.

(e) Mediation proceeding shall be held in private and shall be confidential. Except as provided in this Article, all verbal or written communications from either or both parties to the mediator or between the parties in the presence of the mediator made in a proceeding pursuant to this section are absolutely privileged and inadmissible in court. The mediator may assess the needs and interests of the child, and may interview the child or others who are not parties to the proceedings when he or she thinks appropriate.

(f) Neither the mediator nor any party or other person involved in mediation sessions under this section shall be competent to testify to communications made during or in furtherance of such mediation sessions; provided, there is no privilege as to communications made in furtherance of a crime or fraud. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed as permitting an individual to obtain immunity from prosecution for criminal conduct or as excusing an individual from the reporting requirements of Article 3 of Chapter 7B of the General Statutes or G.S. 108A-102.

(g) Any agreement reached by the parties as a result of the mediation shall be reduced to writing, signed by each party, and submitted to the court as soon as practicable. Unless the court finds good reason not to, it shall incorporate the agreement in a court order and it shall become enforceable as a court order. If some or all of the issues as to custody or visitation are not resolved by mediation, the mediator shall report that fact to the court.

(h) If an agreement that results from mediation and is incorporated into a court order is referred to as a "parenting agreement" or called by some similar name, it shall nevertheless be deemed to be a custody order or child custody determination for purposes of Chapter 50A of the General Statutes, G.S. 14-320.1, G.S. 110-139.1, or other places where those terms appear. (1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1989, c. 795, s. 15(b); 1998-202, s. 13(p).)

Local Modification. — Gaston: 1983, c. 761, s. 162; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1036, s. 2; 1989, c. 547, s. 2; Mecklenburg: 1983, c. 761, s. 162; 1985, c. 698, s. 18(a); 1987, c. 524, s. 5; 1987, c. 703, s. 3; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1036, s. 2; 1989, c. 547, s. 2.

Cross References. — As to jurisdiction of proceedings for child support and child custody, see § 7A-244.

Editor's Note. — This section was amended by Session Laws 1989, c. 795, s. 15(b), in the coded bill drafting format provided by § 120-20.1. Subsection (a) of this section has been set out in the form above at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

Legal Periodicals. — For caselaw survey on custody of children, see 41 N.C.L. Rev. 464 (1963); 44 N.C.L. Rev. 1000 (1966).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For article, "Equating a Stepparent's Rights and Liabilities Vis-A-Vis Custody, Visitation and Support upon Dissolution of the Marriage with Those of the Natural Parent — An Equitable Solution to a Growing Dilemma?," see 17 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1988).

For comment, "An End to Settlement on the Courthouse Steps? Mediated Settlement Conferences in North Carolina Superior Courts," see 71 N.C.L. Rev. 1857 (1993).

For note, "Balancing the Welfare of Children with the Rights of Parents: Peterson v. Rogers and the Role of Religion in Custody Disputes", see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 1271 (1995).

For survey, "Why the Best Interests Standard Should Survive Petersen v. Rogers," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2451 (1995).

For comment, "Good Faith Mediation: Improving Efficiency, Cost, and Satisfaction in North Carolina's Pre-Trial Process," 18 Campbell L. Rev. 281 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Legislative Intent. — By the enactment of § 50-13.1 et seq., the legislature has sought to eliminate conflicting and inconsistent statutes which have caused pitfalls for litigants, and to bring all of the statutes relating to child custody and support together into one act. In re Holt, 1 N.C. App. 108, 160 S.E.2d 90 (1968); In re King, 3 N.C. App. 466, 165 S.E.2d 60 (1969); Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

Construction With Other Sections. — Subsection 7A-289.33(1) [see now § 7B-1112(1)] is an exception to the general grant of standing to seek custody under subsection (a) of this section. Krauss v. Wayne County Dep't of Social Servs., 347 N.C. 371, 493 S.E.2d 428 (1997).

This and the following sections do not alter basic legal principles concerning custody. In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970).

Broad Application of Section. — Had the legislature intended this section to apply to only those custody disputes involved in a divorce or separation, it would have expressly so provided; therefore, the mere fact that it is found in the chapter of the General Statutes governing divorce and alimony is not sufficient to cause its application to be restricted to custody disputes involved in separation or divorce. Oxendine v. Catawba County Dep't of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

Consideration of Prior Orders. — The trial court did not err in considering temporary custody orders and prior contempt orders in determining the issue of child custody. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

This Section and § 48-9.1 Distinguished. — When this section and § 48-9.1 are construed together, it is apparent that this section was intended as a broad statute, covering a myriad of situations in which custody disputes are involved, while § 48-9.1 is a narrow statute, applicable only to custody of a minor child surrendered by its natural parents pursuant to § 48-9(a)(1). Oxendine v. Catawba County Dep't of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

Section 48-9.1(1) as Exception to Grant of Standing in This Section. — Section 48-9.1(1) was intended as an exception to the general grant of standing to contest custody set forth in this section. Oxendine v. Catawba County Dep't of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

Rights of Parents. — Absent a finding that parents (i) are unfit or (ii) have neglected the welfare of their children, the constitutionally-protected paramount right of parents to custody, care, and control of their children must prevail. Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Rights of Parents Following Termination for Neglect. — Plaintiff did not have standing to seek custody of his biological children as an "other" person under subsection (a) of this section where his parental rights were previously terminated for neglect. Krauss v. Wayne County Dep't of Social Servs., 347 N.C. 371, 493 S.E.2d 428 (1997).

Rights of Presumed Parents. — Where there was no evidence another man had either been adjudicated the father of the child or acknowledged paternity, the marital presumption, that plaintiff was the natural father of the child, had not been rebutted and plaintiff thus had standing under this section to seek visitation rights with the child. Jones v. Patience, 121 N.C. App. 434, 466 S.E.2d 720 (1996).

Actions by Strangers. — This section was not intended to confer upon strangers the right to bring custody or visitation actions against parents of children unrelated to such strangers. Such a right would conflict with the constitutionally-protected paramount right of parents to custody, care, and control of their children. Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Standing of Other Persons to Bring Actions. — Where a third party and a child have an established relationship in the nature of parent-child relationship, the third party has standing as an "other person" under this subsection. Ellison v. Ramos, 130 N.C. App. 389, 502 S.E.2d 891 (1998), appeal dismissed, 349 N.C. 356, 517 S.E.2d 891 (1998).

Conditions on Parental Visitation. — Trial court did not err in conditioning parent's visitation of minor children on the noncustodial parent's ability to control his obsessive compulsive behavior when with the children. Surles v. Surles, 113 N.C. App. 32, 437 S.E.2d 661 (1993).

Claim Not Precluded by Consent to Adoption. — Where petitioner signed a consent to the adoption of his children by their grandparents, the petitioner was rendered a stranger to the blood, but this in no way precluded his right to claim custody as an "other person" within the meaning of this section. In re Rooker, 43 N.C. App. 397, 258 S.E.2d 828 (1979).

Best Interests of Child. — Subsection (a) of this section does not convey an absolute right upon every person who allegedly has an interest in the child to assert custody, but must operate to promote the best interests of the child in all custody determinations. Krauss v. Wayne County Dep't of Social Servs., 347 N.C. 371, 493 S.E.2d 428 (1997).

Grandparents' Rights to Visitation Following Adoption and Termination. — The provisions of this section do not grant grandparents in a Chapter 7A proceeding standing to seek custody or visitation of a child who has been placed in the custody of the Department of Social Services after the child has been surrendered for adoption by one parent and the parental rights of the other parent have been terminated. Swing v. Garrison, 112 N.C. App. 818, 436 S.E.2d 895 (1993).

Grandparents' Rights When Family Intact. — Reading subsection (a) in conjunction with §§ 50-13.2(b1), 50-13.5(j), and 50-13.2A strongly suggests that the legislature did not intend "custody" and "visitation" to be interpreted as synonymous in the context of grandparents' rights. The three special statutes provide grandparents with the right to seek "visitation" only in certain clearly specified situations. Those situations do not include that of initiating suit against parents whose family is intact and where no custody proceeding is ongoing. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 341 N.C. 629, 461 S.E.2d 745 (1995).

Section 50-13.1(a) does not grant plaintiffs the right to sue for visitation when no custody proceeding is ongoing and the minor children's family is intact. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 341 N.C. 629, 461 S.E.2d 745 (1995).

Grandparents do not have standing pursuant to subsection (a) to seek visitation with their grandchildren when the natural parents have legal custody of their children and are living with them as an intact family. Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996).

Section 50-13.5(j) makes it clear that grandparents have the right to file suit for custody or visitation during an ongoing proceeding, but it does not restrict their right to bring an initial custody suit pursuant to this section when there are allegations that the parent is unfit. Sharp v. Sharp, 124 N.C. App. 357, 477 S.E.2d 258 (1996).

Subsection (a) grants grandparents the right to bring an initial suit for custody when there are allegations that the child's parents are unfit. Sharp v. Sharp, 124 N.C. App. 357, 477 S.E.2d 258 (1996).

This statute is available for grandparents who seek visitation rights in two situations: (1) when the parents are unfit, have abandoned or neglected the child or have died; or (2) when by separation or divorce, custody is at issue between the parents; therefore, the statute was unavailable to a biological grandmother whose grandchildren had been adopted by their biological aunt. Hill v. Newman, 131 N.C. App. 793, 509 S.E.2d 226 (1998).

Grandparent Had No Rights to Proceed. — There are four statutes in North Carolina which permit a grandparent to maintain an action for custody or visitation of a minor child, and although plaintiff, mother of the deceased father of the two minor children, did not specify under which statute she filed, it was clear that she had no right to proceed under this section, or 50-13.2(b1), 50-13.2A, or 50-13.5(j). Shaut v. Cannon, 136 N.C. App. 834, 526 S.E.2d 214 (2000).

Grandparents' Rights When Family Intact. — Disatisfaction with defendant mother's husband, their standard of living, and the couple's residence did not provide plaintiff grandmother and her husband with an adequate claim upon which court could justify removal of grandchild from mother's custody; plaintiff must allege facts which would support a finding that the defendant engaged in conduct inconsistent with her parental responsibility and/or constitutionally protected status. Penland v. Harris, 135 N.C. App. 359, 520 S.E.2d 105 (1999).

Grandparents, whose son was living separate and apart from his wife and children when he died in a highway accident, could not seek visitation with their grandchildren under this section because the children and their widowed mother constituted an "intact family." Montgomery v. Montgomery, 136 N.C. App. 435, 524 S.E.2d 360 (2000).

The plaintiff/grandmother had no standing to seek visitation with her grandchildren under this section where the grandchildren, whose mother died in an automobile accident, and their father were an "intact family." Price v. Breedlove, 138 N.C. App. 149, 530 S.E.2d 559 (2000).

Excluding Grandfather's Evidence in Support of Custody Motion Was Error. — The trial court erred in refusing to allow appellant paternal grandfather to offer evidence on the question of the best interest of the minor child in support of his motion for custody. In re O'Neal, 140 N.C. App. 254, 535 S.E.2d 620 (2000).

Nonretroactivity. — Sections 50-13.1 through 50-13.8, relating to the custody and support of minor children, do not apply to litigation pending on October 1, 1967, the effective date of the statutes. Speck v. Speck, 5 N.C. App. 296, 168 S.E.2d 672 (1969).

This and the following sections do not apply retroactively. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 8 N.C. App. 162, 174 S.E.2d 103 (1970).

Jurisdiction, Generally. — Where there is no question raised about the court having jurisdiction over a child, the matter of his custody is left open and this section applies. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

Continuing Nature of Jurisdiction. — The court in which a divorce action is brought acquires jurisdiction over the custody of the unemancipated children of the marriage, and such jurisdiction continues even after the divorce becomes final. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974).

Portion of Order Retaining Jurisdiction Interlocutory. — Trial court's order retaining jurisdiction to determine custody is not a final determination of issue involved; rather it determines where children's custody issue will be heard, which is preliminary to a final decree. The portion of the order retaining jurisdiction is interlocutory in nature. No substantial right of the defendant is affected which cannot be protected by the timely appeal from the trial court's ultimate disposition of the entire controversy on the merits. Walleshauser v. Walleshauser, 100 N.C. App. 594, 397 S.E.2d 371 (1990).

District court had no right to assume custody jurisdiction of minor children upon its finding that they were "neglected" children, to the exclusion of the district court which had previously acquired such custody jurisdiction in a divorce and custody proceeding involving the children's parents. In re Greer, 26 N.C. App. 106, 215 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 910 (1975).

Meaning of Word "Parents". — The word "parents" in former § 50-13 and § 49-1 and the word "parent" in § 49-2 relate to the rights and duties of parents in respect to their children, and are in pari materia. Dellinger v. Bollinger, 242 N.C. 696, 89 S.E.2d 592 (1955).

Family Units. — Unmarried parents living with their children have been accorded recognition as family units. Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996).

A single parent living with his or her child is an intact family. Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996).

"Minor Child" Under Prior Law. — Before the enactment of Chapter 48A, it was evident that the meaning of "minor child" within the purview of § 50-13.1, et seq., contemplated the common-law age of majority, 21. Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 314, 188 S.E.2d 897 (1972).

Nothing in this section limits custody proceedings to the parent of a legitimate child. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Civil Action to Obtain Custody of Illegitimate Child. — Under the 1949 amendment to former § 50-13, either parent could institute a special proceeding to obtain custody of his or her child in cases not theretofore provided for by former § 17-39, and this amendment authorized such proceeding by the mother of an illegitimate child to obtain its custody from her aunt, with whom she had entrusted the child, and thus restricted the jurisdiction of the juvenile court in such instances. In re Cranford, 231 N.C. 91, 56 S.E.2d 35 (1949). See also, Dellinger v. Bollinger, 242 N.C. 696, 89 S.E.2d 592 (1955).

The putative father of an illegitimate child, even though his right to custody is not primary, has such an interest in the welfare of his child that he can bring a proceeding against the mother for its custody. Jolly v. Queen, 264 N.C. 711, 142 S.E.2d 592 (1965), decided under former § 50-13.

Claim for Custody Held Not Frivolous. — Where there was no indication at trial that the grandparents in fact did not wish to obtain custody of the children or that their claim was made in bad faith, the fact that the grandparents had originally asked for visitation did not make their later claim for custody violative of § 1A-1, Rule 11. Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

Where grandmother was a good housekeeper and showed the ability to care for the children the trial court erred in denying and dismissing grandmother's petition for custody on the basis of its "serious concerns" about her parenting skills because of problems experienced by her daughter. Smith v. Alleghany County Dep't of Social Servs., 114 N.C. App. 727, 443 S.E.2d 101, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 696, 448 S.E.2d 533 (1994).

As to effect of foreign adjudication of paternity, see Brondum v. Cox, 292 N.C. 192, 232 S.E.2d 687 (1977).

Applied in Mauney v. Mauney, 12 N.C. App. 269, 182 S.E.2d 861 (1971); In re Branch, 16 N.C. App. 413, 192 S.E.2d 43 (1972); In re Shue, 311 N.C. 586, 319 S.E.2d 567 (1984).

Cited in Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969); Collins v. Collins, 18 N.C. App. 45, 196 S.E.2d 282 (1973); Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975); Acker v. Barnes, 33 N.C. App. 750, 236 S.E.2d 715 (1977); Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640 (1979); Neal v. Neal, 69 N.C. App. 766, 318 S.E.2d 255 (1984); Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986); In re Arends, 88 N.C. App. 550, 364 S.E.2d 169 (1988); In re Duncan, 112 N.C. App. 196, 435 S.E.2d 121 (1993); Regan v. Smith, 131 N.C. App. 851, 509 S.E.2d 452 (1998); West v. Marko, 141 N.C. App. 688, 541 S.E.2d 226 (2001).

§ 50-13.2. Who entitled to custody; terms of custody; visitation rights of grandparents; taking child out of State.

(a) An order for custody of a minor child entered pursuant to this section shall award the custody of such child to such person, agency, organization or institution as will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. In making the determination, the court shall consider all relevant factors including acts of domestic violence between the parties, the safety of the child, and the safety of either party from domestic violence by the other party and shall make findings accordingly. An order for custody must include findings of fact which support the determination of what is in the best interest of the child. Between the mother and father, whether natural or adoptive, no presumption shall apply as to who will better promote the interest and welfare of the child. Joint custody to the parents shall be considered upon the request of either parent.

(b) An order for custody of a minor child may grant joint custody to the parents, exclusive custody to one person, agency, organization, or institution, or grant custody to two or more persons, agencies, organizations, or institutions. Any order for custody shall include such terms, including visitation, as will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. If the court finds that domestic violence has occurred, the court shall enter such orders that best protect the children and party who were the victims of domestic violence. Such orders may include a designation of time and place for the exchange of children away from the abused party, the participation of a third party, or supervised visitation. If a party is absent or relocates with or without the children because of an act of domestic violence, the absence or relocation shall not be a factor that weighs against the party in determining custody or visitation. Absent an order of the court to the contrary, each parent shall have equal access to the records of the minor child involving the health, education, and welfare of the child.

(b1) An order for custody of a minor child may provide visitation rights for any grandparent of the child as the court, in its discretion, deems appropriate. As used in this subsection, "grandparent" includes a biological grandparent of a child adopted by a stepparent or a relative of the child where a substantial relationship exists between the grandparent and the child. Under no circumstances shall a biological grandparent of a child adopted by adoptive parents, neither of whom is related to the child and where parental rights of both biological parents have been terminated, be entitled to visitation rights.

(c) An order for custody of a minor child may provide for such child to be taken outside of the State, but if the order contemplates the return of the child to this State, the judge may require the person, agency, organization or institution having custody out of this State to give bond or other security conditioned upon the return of the child to this State in accordance with the order of the court.

(d) If, within a reasonable time, one parent fails to consent to adoption pursuant to Chapter 48 of the General Statutes or parental rights have not been terminated, the consent of the other consenting parent shall not be effective in an action for custody of the child. (1957, c. 545; 1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1977, c. 501, s. 2; 1979, c. 967; 1981, c. 735, ss. 1, 2; 1985, c. 575, s. 3; 1987, c. 541, s. 2; c. 776; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 591, s. 5.)

Cross References. — As to procedure, etc., in actions for custody and support, see § 50-13.5 and notes thereunder. As to written findings or denial of visitation rights to parent, see § 50-13.5(i). As to custody and visitation rights of grandparents, see § 50-13.5(j). As to the maintenance of certain actions as independent actions, see § 50-19.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Mediation-Arbitration: A Proposal for Private Resolution of Disputes Between Divorced or Separated Parents," see 1976 Duke L.J. 911.

For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For article on rights and interest of parent, child, family and state, see 4 Campbell L. Rev. 85 (1981).

For article, "Custody of the Illegitimate Child," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 18 (1989).

For article, "The Parental Rights of Unwed Fathers: A Developmental Perspective," see 20 N.C. Cent. L.J. 45 (1992).

For note, "Balancing the Welfare of Children with the Rights of Parents: Peterson v. Rogers and the Role of Religion in Custody Disputes", see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 1271 (1995).

For survey, "Why the Best Interests Standard Should Survive Petersen v. Rogers," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2451 (1995).

For note, "The Effect on the Child of a Custodial Parent's Involvement in an Intimate Same-Sex Relationship," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 131 (1996).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-13, which prior to its repeal in 1967 dealt with custody and maintenance of children in actions for divorce.

Visitation and child support rights are independent rights accruing primarily to the benefit of the minor child and one is not, and may not be made, contingent upon the other. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Jurisdiction. — When a divorce action is instituted, the court acquires jurisdiction over the children born to the marriage, and may hear and determine questions as to the custody and maintenance of the children both before and after final decree of divorce. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

Custody Proceedings Are Continuing. — There is no requirement that each successive custody hearing starts with a "clean slate" and that the court cannot rely on the record previously generated. To the contrary, custody proceedings generally are continuing in nature. Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

A judgment awarding custody is based upon the conditions found to exist at the time it is entered. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965).

Simultaneous Adoption and Custody Actions. — Because the legislature has enunciated a public policy that every child should have a permanent plan of care, because adoption is more likely than a custody proceeding between non-parents to result in a permanent plan of care and because the superior court has jurisdiction over adoptions, that court's jurisdiction supersedes that of the district court with regard to the custody of a child the subject of a simultaneous adoption and custody proceeding. Griffin v. Griffin, 118 N.C. App. 400, 456 S.E.2d 329 (1995).

In the absence of an order of consolidation when the same child is the subject of a simultaneous custody and adoption proceeding, both the superior and district courts do not have continuing jurisdiction to fully adjudicate the respective issues before them. Griffin v. Griffin, 118 N.C. App. 400, 456 S.E.2d 329 (1995).

The filing of an adoption petition in the superior court divests the district court of jurisdiction to adjudicate issues of custody with regard to a child who is the subject of an adoption petition. Griffin v. Griffin, 118 N.C. App. 400, 456 S.E.2d 329 (1995).

Upon the entry of an interlocutory order of adoption by the superior court, the jurisdiction of the district court with regard to the custody of the child who is the subject of the interlocutory order is in abeyance until such time as the interlocutory decree is vacated, the adoption petition is dismissed, or a final decree of adoption is entered. Griffin v. Griffin, 118 N.C. App. 400, 456 S.E.2d 329 (1995).

Recommendation of Guardian Ad Litem. — Pursuant to § 7A-640 [see now §§ 7B-901 and 7B-2501], the court may consider the recommendation of a guardian ad litem concerning the needs of a juvenile. In re Gwaltney, 68 N.C. App. 686, 315 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

Mother Not Entitled to Proceeds of Forfeited Bond. — A bond posted by father in custody dispute was deemed to be an appearance bond designed to guarantee his appearance before the court and as a penalty in the event of his failure to appear, and under N.C. Const., Art. IX, § 7 the county board of education was entitled to the clear proceeds of its forfeiture. Mussallam v. Mussallam, 321 N.C. 504, 364 S.E.2d 364, rehearing denied, 321 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 915 (1988).

Provisions in Custody Orders. — Provisions directing the parties to cooperate with one another and to refrain from conduct that will be detrimental to the child are commonly included in custody orders. Watkins v. Watkins, 120 N.C. App. 475, 462 S.E.2d 687 (1995), appeal dismissed, 343 N.C. 128, 468 S.E.2d 795 (1996).

Applied in State v. Wrenn, 16 N.C. App. 411, 191 S.E.2d 913 (1972); Powell v. Powell, 25 N.C. App. 695, 214 S.E.2d 808 (1975); Stanback v. Stanback, 31 N.C. App. 174, 229 S.E.2d 693 (1976); Hamlin v. Hamlin, 302 N.C. 478, 276 S.E.2d 381 (1981); Regan v. Smith, 131 N.C. App. 851, 509 S.E.2d 452 (1998).

Quoted in Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993); Westneat v. Westneat, 113 N.C. App. 247, 437 S.E.2d 899 (1994); Montgomery v. Montgomery, 136 N.C. App. 435, 524 S.E.2d 360 (2000).

Stated in Penland v. Harris, 135 N.C. App. 359, 520 S.E.2d 105 (1999).

Cited in Settle ex rel. Sullivan v. Beasley, 309 N.C. 616, 308 S.E.2d 288 (1983); Prescott v. Prescott, 83 N.C. App. 254, 350 S.E.2d 116 (1986); Mussallam v. Mussallam, 321 N.C. 504, 364 S.E.2d 364 (1988); Ray v. Ray, 103 N.C. App. 790, 407 S.E.2d 592 (1991); In re Duncan, 112 N.C. App. 196, 435 S.E.2d 121 (1993); Vann v. Vann, 128 N.C. App. 516, 495 S.E.2d 370 (1998).

II. WELFARE OF CHILD.

The welfare of the child is the paramount consideration in custody matters. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966); Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967); Williams v. Williams, 18 N.C. App. 635, 197 S.E.2d 629 (1973); Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974);

Harrington v. Harrington, 286 N.C. 260, 210 S.E.2d 190 (1974); Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977).

The best interest and welfare of the child is the paramount consideration in determining the visitation rights, as well as in determining the right to custody, and neither of these rights should be permitted to jeopardize the best interest and welfare of the child. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

Although at one time under the common law the father was generally entitled to the custody of minor children, the courts at the present time almost invariably adhere to the principle that the welfare or best interest of the child is the paramount consideration. This was the rule adhered to by North Carolina courts for many years, and is now prescribed by this section. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

The child's welfare is the principal consideration in determining custody matters. In re Morrison, 6 N.C. App. 47, 169 S.E.2d 228 (1969).

The primary consideration in custody cases is the welfare of the child or children involved. Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969).

An order for custody of a minor child cannot be affirmed without a clear indication that it rested on a determination of what would be in the child's best interest. That is the paramount consideration in custody cases. In re DiMatteo, 62 N.C. App. 571, 303 S.E.2d 84 (1983).

And the Polar Star by Which Court Is Guided. — The welfare of the child is the polar star by which the discretion of the court is to be guided. In re Lewis, 88 N.C. 31 (1883); Brake v. Brake, 228 N.C. 609, 46 S.E.2d 643 (1948); Finley v. Sapp, 238 N.C. 114, 76 S.E.2d 350 (1953); Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963); Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966); Chriscoe v. Chriscoe, 268 N.C. 554, 151 S.E.2d 33 (1966); In re Pitts, 2 N.C. App. 211, 162 S.E.2d 524 (1968); Greer v. Greer, 5 N.C. App. 160, 167 S.E.2d 782 (1969); In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970); Jarman v. Jarman, 14 N.C. App. 531, 188 S.E.2d 647, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 622, 190 S.E.2d 465 (1972); In re Cox, 17 N.C. App. 687, 195 S.E.2d 132, cert. denied, 283 N.C. 585, 196 S.E.2d 809 (1973); Paschall v. Paschall, 21 N.C. App. 120, 203 S.E.2d 337 (1974); Mathews v. Mathews, 24 N.C. App. 551, 211 S.E.2d 513 (1975); Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975); Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

The welfare of the child is controlling in determining the right to custody of the child as between its divorced parents. Hardee v. Mitchell, 230 N.C. 40, 51 S.E.2d 884 (1949).

This section expresses the policy of the State that the best interest and welfare of the child is the paramount and controlling factor to guide the judge in determining the custody of a child. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

As the Determining Factor. — The children of the marriage become the wards of the court, and their welfare is the determining factor in custody proceedings. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965); Greer v. Greer, 5 N.C. App. 160, 167 S.E.2d 782 (1969).

The welfare of the children is the determining factor in custody proceedings, and an award of custody based on that factor will be upheld when supported by competent evidence. In re Poole, 8 N.C. App. 25, 173 S.E.2d 545 (1970).

And the Guiding Principle. — The guiding principle to be used by the court in a custody hearing is the welfare of the children involved. While this guiding principle is clear, decision in particular cases is often difficult, and necessarily a wide discretion is vested in the trial judge. He has the opportunity to see the parties in person and to hear the witnesses, and his decision ought not to be upset on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Greer v. Greer, 5 N.C. App. 160, 167 S.E.2d 782 (1969); Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971); Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 831 (1981).

The trial court should primarily be concerned with the welfare of the child in deciding which party before it should be charged with the enormous responsibilities of custodianship of the child. In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978).

In a custody proceeding, it is not the function of the court to punish or reward a parent by withholding or awarding custody of minor children; the function of the court in such a proceeding is to diligently seek to act for the best interests and welfare of the minor child. In re McCraw Children, 3 N.C. App. 390, 165 S.E.2d 1 (1969).

The best interest of the child is the overriding factor in custody determinations. Wilson v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 348, 256 S.E.2d 516 (1979).

Joint custody and any other custody award must include findings of fact which support such determination of child's best interests. Witherow v. Witherow, 99 N.C. App. 61, 392 S.E.2d 627 (1990).

Considered in Light of All Surrounding Circumstances. — The best interest of the child, in light of all the surrounding circumstances, is the paramount consideration which must guide the court in awarding custody of a minor child. Campbell v. Campbell, 63 N.C. App. 113, 304 S.E.2d 262, cert. denied, 309 N.C.

460, 307 S.E.2d 362 (1983).

The trial judge is entrusted by this section with the delicate and difficult task of choosing an environment which will, in his judgment, best encourage full development of the child's physical, mental, emotional, moral and spiritual faculties. In re Peal, 305 N.C. 640, 290 S.E.2d 664 (1982).

Any evidence of child abuse is of the utmost concern in determining whether the grant of custody to a particular party will best promote the interest and welfare of the child, and any evidence of such abuse must be resolved by the trial court in its findings of fact. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 73, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

Evidence of paternity may properly be considered in determining the best interests of the children. Surles v. Surles, 113 N.C. App. 32, 437 S.E.2d 661 (1993).

A natural parent's constitutionally protected paramount interest in the companionship, custody, care, and control of his or her child is a counterpart of the parental responsibilities the parent has assumed and is based on a presumption that he or she will act in the best interest of the child. Price v. Howard, 346 N.C. 68, 484 S.E.2d 528 (1997).

III. RIGHT OF PARENTS TO CUSTODY.

A. As Against Third Persons.

Due Process. — If a natural parent's conduct has not been inconsistent with his or her constitutionally protected status, application of the 'best interest of the child' standard in a custody dispute with a nonparent would offend the Due Process Clause. Price v. Howard, 346 N.C. 68, 484 S.E.2d 528 (1997).

Conduct inconsistent with a parent's protected status, which need not rise to the statutory level warranting termination of parental rights, would result in application of the 'best interest of the child' test without offending the Due Process Clause. Price v. Howard, 346 N.C. 68, 484 S.E.2d 528 (1997).

Parents Have Legal Right to Custody of Their Children. — Parents, including the mother of an illegitimate child, have the legal right to have the custody of their children unless clear and cogent reasons exist for denying them this right. This right is not absolute, and it may be interfered with or denied, but only for the most substantial and sufficient reasons, and is subject to judicial control only when the interest and welfare of the children clearly require it. In re Jones, 14 N.C. App. 334, 188 S.E.2d 580 (1972).

Where one parent is dead, the surviving parent has a natural and legal right to the custody and control of the parties' minor children. This right is not absolute, and it may be interfered with or denied, but only for the most substantial and sufficient reasons, and is subject to judicial control only when the interests and welfare of the children clearly require it. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969); In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971); Vaughn v. Tyson, 14 N.C. App. 548, 188 S.E.2d 614 (1972).

Where mother abandons any claim she may have to the custody of her daughter, father alone has the natural and legal right to the custody of the child, unless for substantial and sufficient reasons the interest and welfare of the child require that he be denied that right. Roberts v. Short, 6 N.C. App. 419, 169 S.E.2d 910 (1969).

The mother of an illegitimate child is its natural guardian, and as such, has a legal right to its custody, care and control, if she is a suitable person, even though others may offer more material advantages in life for the child. But this rule is not absolute, and the custody of an illegitimate child may be taken from the mother and placed elsewhere when it clearly and manifestly appears that the best interests and welfare of the child demand it. Wall v. Hardee, 240 N.C. 465, 82 S.E.2d 370 (1954).

Absent a finding that parents (i) are unfit or (ii) have neglected the welfare of their children, the constitutionally-protected paramount right of parents to custody, care, and control of their children must prevail. Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Which Will Be Interfered with Only When Clearly Required. — Where one parent is dead, the surviving parent has a natural and legal right to custody and control of the parties' minor children. This right is not absolute, but it may be interfered with or denied only for the most substantial and sufficient reasons, and is subject to judicial control only when the interests and welfare of the children clearly require it. Comer v. Comer, 61 N.C. App. 324, 300 S.E.2d 457 (1983).

For Parent's Misconduct or Child's Welfare. — The law presumes that the best interests of a child will be served by committing it to the custody of a parent, when the parent is a suitable person; this presumption is not overcome merely by showing that some third person can give the child better care and greater comforts and protection than the parent. A parent's right to custody of a child may be forfeited only by misconduct or by other facts which substantially affect the child's welfare. In re Jones, 14 N.C. App. 334, 188 S.E.2d 580 (1972).

But Child's Welfare Is the Paramount Consideration. — While the law presumes that the best interest of a child will be served by committing it to the custody of a parent, when the parent is a suitable person, the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration to which all other factors, including common-law preferential rights of the parents, must be deferred or subordinated. Plemmons v. Stiles, 65 N.C. App. 341, 309 S.E.2d 504 (1983).

And Parent's Love Must Yield to Child's Best Interests. — The child's welfare is the paramount consideration, and a parent's love must yield to another if, after judicial investigation, it is found that the best interest of the child is subserved thereby. Greer v. Greer, 5 N.C. App. 160, 167 S.E.2d 782 (1969).

The "paramount consideration" and "polar star" which have long governed and guided the discretion of the trial judges are the welfare and needs of the child, not the persons seeking his or her custody, and even parental love must yield to the promotion of those higher interests. In re Peal, 305 N.C. 640, 290 S.E.2d 664 (1982).

The natural parent is presumed to be the appropriate custodian of his or her child, as opposed to third persons, and should not be deprived of custody merely because the child could be better cared for in a material sense. In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978).

But This Presumption May Be Rebutted. — While it is presumed that it is in the child's best interest to be placed with a natural parent, this presumption may be rebutted by a circumstance which would substantially affect the child. Wilson v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 348, 256 S.E.2d 516 (1979).

The primary concern of the trial court in a custody matter, as mandated by subsection (a) of this section, is the welfare of the child, and this concern outweighs the presumption favoring the award of custody to a natural parent. In re Gwaltney, 68 N.C. App. 686, 315 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

The presumption in favor of the natural parents is rebuttable. Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Although there is a rebuttable presumption in favor of a natural parent, it is not necessary to prove unfitness in order to overcome the presumption. Black v. Glawson, 114 N.C. App. 442, 442 S.E.2d 79 (1994).

A court must award custody based only upon the best interest and welfare of the child. A court must have discretion to determine the best interest of a child, and should not be restricted to awarding custody to a natural parent in the absence of a finding of unfitness. Black v. Glawson, 114 N.C. App. 442, 442 S.E.2d 79 (1994).

It is not necessary to prove a natural parent unfit in order to award custody to a third party. Black v. Glawson, 114 N.C. App. 442, 442 S.E.2d 79 (1994).

Custody May Be Granted to Third Person for Sufficient Reasons. — The welfare of the infants themselves is the polar star by which the courts are to be guided to a right conclusion, and therefore they may, within certain limits, exercise a sound discretion for the benefit of the child, and in some cases will order it into the custody of a third person for good and sufficient reasons. Roberts v. Short, 6 N.C. App. 419, 169 S.E.2d 910 (1969); Campbell v. Campbell, 63 N.C. App. 113, 304 S.E.2d 262, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 460, 307 S.E.2d 362 (1983); Phillips v. Choplin, 65 N.C. App. 506, 309 S.E.2d 716 (1983).

A child's former care giver stated a claim as against the child's father for custody of the child, where the father's former companion alleged that the father had taken actions inconsistent with his protected status as a parent, including that the father had placed the child in his parents' care and that they could not properly care for the child's diabetes, resulting in hospitalization and potentially serious and permanent health consequences, and that the father had relinquished care of the child to others, including herself, on numerous occasions. Ellison v. Ramos, 130 N.C. App. 389, 502 S.E.2d 891 (1998), appeal dismissed, 349 N.C. 356, 517 S.E.2d 891 (1998).

Fitness of Parent. — Mother's convictions for driving while intoxicated and child's developmental problems were significant and relevant to issue of mother's fitness as a parent because they indicated her inability to care for the child adequately and to provide for the child's welfare; additionally, the facts that she had substance abuse problems, did not respect authority, was unable to recognize her child's developmental problems, and was incapable of caring for the child's welfare supported the conclusion that she was an unfit parent. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

The State failed to show that the father was unfit, as against the child's grandparents, to have custody of his child where he testified that if he were awarded custody of the child he would be willing to prohibit his brother, who was convicted for taking indecent liberties with a minor, from staying at his house and interacting with the child; where his own convictions were too remote to affect his fitness or were unrelated thereto; where he already had considerable experience in taking care of children; where his boss of 13 years and his volunteer supervisor, both described him as responsible, dependable, reliable and hardworking; and where he actively engaged in legal proceedings for approximately two years, evidencing a long-term commitment to attaining custody. Adams v. Tessener, 141 N.C. App. 64, 539 S.E.2d 324 (2000).

Parent Need Not Be Found Unfit. — Although there is a traditional preference for biological parents, the welfare of the child is the paramount consideration to which all other factors, including common-law preferential rights of the parents must be deferred or subordinated, and the trial judge's discretion is such that he is not required to find a natural parent unfit for custody as a prerequisite to awarding custody to a third person. Comer v. Comer, 61 N.C. App. 324, 300 S.E.2d 457 (1983).

The trial judge is not required to find a natural parent unfit for custody as a prerequisite to awarding custody to a third person. In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978); Plemmons v. Stiles, 65 N.C. App. 341, 309 S.E.2d 504 (1983); In re Gwaltney, 68 N.C. App. 686, 315 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

While the fitness of a natural parent is of paramount significance in determining the best interests of the child in custody contests, it is not always determinative in itself. It is entirely possible that a natural parent may be a fit and proper person to care for the child, but that all other circumstances dictate that the best interests of the child would be served by placing custody in a third party. In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978).

Temporary Relinquishment of Custody. — There are circumstances where the responsibility of a parent to act in the best interest of his or her child would require a temporary relinquishment of custody; however, to preserve the constitutional protection of parental interests in such a situation, the parent should notify the custodian upon relinquishment of custody that it is temporary and avoid conduct inconsistent with the protected parental interests. Price v. Howard, 346 N.C. 68, 484 S.E.2d 528 (1997).

In making custody decisions between a parent and a grandparent or other third party, the court must balance two doctrines. The first, the "parental right" doctrine, holds that ordinarily and in the absence of particular circumstances, the custody of a child should be given to the parent in preference to the grandparent, if the parent is found to be fit to have custody and can supply a proper home. The second doctrine, the "best interests of the child" doctrine, holds that custody should be awarded in accordance with the best interests of the child regardless of the fitness of the parents. Campbell v. Campbell, 63 N.C. App. 113, 304 S.E.2d 262, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 460, 307 S.E.2d 362 (1983).

To Whom Custody May Be Awarded. — If the mother and the father are both fit and proper persons to have custody of children, under ordinary circumstances the court would then proceed to determine whether the best interest, health and welfare of the children would be served by awarding custody to the mother or father. If not, then the court must deal with someone or an agency over whom the court has control. But an order awarding custody, in effect, to third persons who are not parties to the proceeding, not a public institution, and not bound by the court's order, must be reversed. Boone v. Boone, 8 N.C. App. 524, 174 S.E.2d 833 (1970).

Award of Custody to Grandparents. — Where the custody of a minor child was awarded to the mother in a divorce proceeding, and subsequently, both parents, who were deemed proper and fit persons to have the custody of such child, moved out of the State, and the child was left by the mother with the child's maternal grandparents, residents of the State and highly proper persons to rear the child, upon petition of the father for custody of the child the court had authority under this section to order that the child continue in the custody of the grandparents. Walker v. Walker, 224 N.C. 751, 32 S.E.2d 318 (1944).

Where grandmother was a good housekeeper and showed the ability to care for the children the trial court erred in denying and dismissing grandmother's petition for custody on the basis of its "serious concerns" about her parenting skills because of problems experienced by her daughter. Smith v. Alleghany County Dep't of Social Servs., 114 N.C. App. 727, 443 S.E.2d 101, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 696, 448 S.E.2d 533 (1994).

Where there are unusual circumstances and the best interests of the child justify such action, the court may refuse to award custody to either the mother or father and instead award the custody of the child to its grandparents or others. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

For case affirming order transferring custody to paternal grandmother and awarding visitation rights to both mother and father, see Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Socioeconomic status of paternal grandmother, who intervened in custody case, was irrelevant to issue of mother's fitness as a parent. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

It is only when the custody of a child is "in issue" or "being litigated" that the grandparents are entitled to relief pursuant to subsection (b1). Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996).

Award to Department of Social Services. — For case involving sexual abuse of daughters by father, in which children were adjudicated abused and neglected, and in which award of custody to the department of social services, with mother being given physical custody of one daughter and liberal visitation with the other daughter, who was placed with her grandmother, pending review in 60 days, was approved, see In re Gwaltney, 68 N.C. App. 686, 315 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

Foster Parents Have No Standing to Bring Custody Action. — Nothing in the language of § 48-9.1(1) gives foster parents standing to contest the department's or agency's exercise of its rights as legal custodian; therefore, foster parents are without standing to bring an action seeking custody of minor child placed in their home by defendant. Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981); In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

But Custody May Be Awarded to Foster Parents. — Having acquired subject matter jurisdiction, trial court, guided by the best interests of the child, had broad dispositional powers, including the power to award legal custody of child to its foster parents. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

The case of Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981) does not prohibit the transfer of legal care, custody and control of a foster child to its foster parents. Oxendine stands for the proposition that foster parents have no standing to bring a custody action pursuant to § 50-13.2 et seq. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Intervention by Foster Parents. — In proceeding brought by DSS in which custody was put in issue by guardian ad litem and natural father, trial court did not err in permitting child's foster parents to intervene. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986), distinguishing Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981).

Claim for Custody Held Not Frivolous. — Where there was no indication at trial that the grandparents in fact did not wish to obtain custody of the children or that their claim was made in bad faith, the fact that the grandparents had originally asked for visitation did not make their later claim for custody violative of § 1A-1, Rule 11. Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

Remand Where Custody Awarded to One Who Was Not a Party. — While the court, upon proper findings and conclusions, may award the custody of a minor child to any such person, agency or institution as will best promote the interest and welfare of the child, where the court awarded custody of the child to one who was not a party to the proceeding, the proceeding would be remanded with directions that the trial court issue the necessary notices and orders to make such individual a party to the action, to the end that the court would have effective jurisdiction over her person. In re Edwards, 25 N.C. App. 608, 214 S.E.2d 215 (1975).

Reversal of Award to Third Party. — Where in an initial custody determination, the trial court conducted the "best interest and welfare" analysis, and based solely on that analysis, awarded custody of the minor child to defendant (friend of mother who had cared for child since birth) rather than the plaintiff/father, the child's natural parent, the award of custody on this basis was error and must be reversed. Lambert v. Riddick, 120 N.C. App. 480, 462 S.E.2d 835 (1995).

B. As Between Parents.

Conviction of Abandonment Did Not Preclude Award of Custody. — The fact that father had been convicted of abandonment of his children and ordered to provide for their support did not preclude the court from finding, upon a hearing of a subsequent motion for the custody of the children in a divorce action, that father was a fit and suitable person to have custody of the children, when there was uncontradicted evidence upon the hearing that father had a good reputation in the community in which he lived. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

Effect of Prior Order of Incompetence. — In a controversy between husband and wife for custody of minor children of the marriage, it is error for the trial court to award custody to the husband on the sole ground that the wife has prior to that time been judged mentally incompetent. A prior court order which judicially declares a parent to be incompetent is not sufficient in and of itself to establish a parent's present unfitness to have a child or children; rather, this section requires a full, factual determination of all the circumstances in the case before a proper order may be entered by the court. Price v. Price, 42 N.C. App. 66, 255 S.E.2d 652 (1979).

Relevance of Evidence of Adultery. — The court committed prejudicial error in refusing to allow plaintiff to introduce evidence of defendant's adultery at a hearing on a custody motion. While evidence of adultery does not impel a finding of unfitness of the adulterous parent, it is relevant upon an inquiry of fitness of a person for the purpose of awarding custody of minor children to him or to her. Darden v. Darden, 20 N.C. App. 433, 201 S.E.2d 538 (1974); Hunt v. Hunt, 29 N.C. App. 380, 224 S.E.2d 270 (1976). See also, In re McCraw Children, 3 N.C. App. 390, 165 S.E.2d 1 (1969).

Joint Legal Custody Appropriate. — In addition to findings regarding parties' financial status and what would best serve interests of children, court had before it plaintiff's admission that she indeed thought defendant to be fit and proper person as stated in her verified reply to defendant's answer and counterclaim. Thus, joint legal custody was appropriate. Witherow v. Witherow, 99 N.C. App. 61, 392 S.E.2d 627 (1990).

The fact that mother's paramour had been living with mother and minor child since the parties' separation was insufficient, standing alone, to determine custody; the court must consider all the facts of the case and decide the issue in the best interests of the child. Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

Award Where Both Parents Are Found Fit — Generally. — When there has been a finding that both parents are fit and suitable to have custody, the judge's order is conclusive when supported by evidence. Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1982).

Same — Award to Father. — When the court finds that both parties are fit and proper persons to have custody, and then adjudges that it is in the best interest of the child for the father to have custody, such holding will be upheld; but it must be supported by competent evidence. Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

When the court finds that both parties are fit and proper persons to have custody of the children involved, and then finds that it is in the best interests of the children for the father to have custody of said children, such holding will be upheld when it is supported by competent evidence. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966); Boone v. Boone, 8 N.C. App. 524, 174 S.E.2d 833 (1970).

Where the evidence was sufficient to support the court's finding that father was a suitable person to have custody of his son and that the best interests of the child would be served by awarding the child's custody to him, order awarding the custody to the father was proper, even though the evidence would also have supported a finding that the child's mother was a fit and suitable person and that the best interests of the child would be served by awarding custody to her. In re White, 262 N.C. 737, 138 S.E.2d 516 (1964).

Age of Parents. — All else being equal, a 55-year-old person has a shorter remaining life span than a 33-year-old person and the consideration of continuity and stability in the life of a child will logically lead a judge to consider the age of a parent. Consideration of all aspects of both parents' lives, including the potential for continuity and stability, is necessary to promote the governmental interest of granting custody on the best interests of the child. Phelps v. Phelps, 337 N.C. 344, 446 S.E.2d 17, rehearing denied, 337 N.C. 807, 449 S.E.2d 750 (1994).

A passing comment about a party's age, when determining a child's best interest in accordance with the statute, does not constitute an unconstitutional classification in violation of a party's equal protection rights. Phelps v. Phelps, 337 N.C. 344, 446 S.E.2d 17, rehearing denied, 337 N.C. 807, 449 S.E.2d 750 (1994).

Award to Father on Finding of Changed Circumstances. — Trial judge did not abuse his discretion by ruling that a material change in circumstances had occurred with the increased age of younger child, who had been awarded previously to the mother, since the child indicated clearly his desire to stay with his father, who also had custody of his elder brother. In re Peal, 305 N.C. 640, 290 S.E.2d 664 (1982).

Where father failed to offer evidence of mother's adultery at divorce trial, but after the divorce moved for a change of custody on that ground, the trial court's reassignment of custody of the child to father due to a material change of circumstances since the date of the divorce was not erroneous merely because the crucial circumstances, e.g., the mother's adultery, existed before divorce. The child should not be placed in the custody of an unfit parent merely because the other parent failed to introduce evidence at the proper stage of the litigation. Paschall v. Paschall, 21 N.C. App. 120, 203 S.E.2d 337 (1974).

Award to Father on Condition That Physical Custody Be in Grandparents. — Where the court's conclusions that the mother was an unfit person to have custody of the children and that the father was a fit and suitable person to have their custody was supported by the findings, but neither the father nor the paternal grandparents had a suitable home for the children, and that the maternal grandparents, with whom the children were then living, had such a home, an order awarding the custody of the children to the father on condition that the physical custody of the children be vested in their maternal grandparents and that the father pay for their support would not be disturbed on appeal, the welfare of the children being the determinative factor in the award of custody. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

Award of Custody to Father Held Proper. — Trial court did not err in concluding that it would be in the best interest of minor child for her custody to be placed with defendant father where, pursuant to separation agreement, plaintiff mother gave defendant custody of the child and agreed to assist with medical and dental bills on behalf of the child; the child had lived with defendant at all times since her birth and lived solely with defendant since the parties' separation; plaintiff rarely visited the child following the parties' separation; and plaintiff admitted that defendant had done a good job of looking after the child since their separation. Ingle v. Ingle, 53 N.C. App. 227, 280 S.E.2d 460 (1981).

Findings on Award of Custody to Mother Held Sufficient. — Findings that the parties had been married and divorced, that the wife was a person of good character, resident in this State, that the husband was financially responsible, and that the best interest of the minor child of the marriage would be promoted by awarding its custody to the wife were sufficient to sustain a decree awarding its custody to her and requiring the husband to make contributions for the support of the child. Hardee v. Mitchell, 230 N.C. 40, 51 S.E.2d 884 (1949).

Award to Mother Upheld. — Where the trial court found, upon supporting evidence, that the mother was now a stable, fit, and suitable custodian of her children, and that their best interests required that their custody be awarded to her, the Supreme Court would affirm the award of custody. Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974).

Custody of Child Upheld Where Father Never Visited. — Where plaintiff mother had had de facto custody of five-year old child since his birth, and defendant, who had acknowledged paternity of the child when he was there, had not visited the child in a substantial length of time, nor had he requested visitation privileges or custody, formal award of custody to mother would be upheld. Craig v. Kelley, 89 N.C. App. 458, 366 S.E.2d 249 (1988).

Illegitimate Child. — As to the custody of an illegitimate child, see Jolly v. Queen, 264 N.C. 711, 142 S.E.2d 592 (1965).

For case as to former preference that mother be given custody, see Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974).

IV. VISITATION RIGHTS.

Court May Divide Custody Between Parents or Award General Custody Subject to Visitation Privileges. — The trial court has discretionary power either to divide custody between contending parents for alternating periods, or to award general custody to one parent, subject to visitation privileges in favor of the unsuccessful parent. Griffin v. Griffin, 237 N.C. 404, 75 S.E.2d 133 (1953).

The standard by which the court is guided in visitation matters is the child's best interest. Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

Burden of Proof. — Grandparents seeking visitation rights had the burden of proving that the award of visitation was in the best interest of the children; therefore, where trial judge reversed the burden, so that the mother had to prove that the visitation was bad for the children, the judge was in error. Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

Findings as to Visitation. — To support an award of visitation rights, the judgment of the trial court should contain findings of fact which sustain the conclusion of law that the party is a fit person to visit the child and that such visitation rights are in the best interest of the child. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 32 N.C. App. 154, 231 S.E.2d 26 (1977); In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978); In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

Order for Professional Consultation Within Court's Discretion. — Where trial court found defendant's contact with his minor child had been minimal, although he was fit and proper to have visitation rights, consultation with plaintiff and defendant by a third-party professional could benefit the court in awarding specific visitation rights; therefore, there was no abuse of discretion in the court's ordering the consultation prior to its consideration of visitation rights. Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

When Visitation May Be Denied. — A parent's right of visitation with his or her child is a natural and legal right, and when awarding custody of a child to another, the court should not deny a parent's right of visitation at appropriate times unless the parent has by conduct forfeited the right or unless the exercise of the right would be detrimental to the best interest and welfare of the child. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

Courts are generally reluctant to deny all visitation rights to the divorced parent of a child of tender age, but it is generally agreed that visitation rights should not be permitted to jeopardize a child's welfare. Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967).

The grandmother did not have standing under this section to seek visitation with her grandchildren, where the children had been adopted by their biological aunt and her husband, and custody was not an issue. Hill v. Newman, 131 N.C. App. 793, 509 S.E.2d 226 (1998).

Determination of Visitation Rights May Not Be Delegated. — If the court finds that the parent has by conduct forfeited the right of visitation or if the court finds that the exercise of the right would be detrimental to the best interest and welfare of the child, the court may, in its discretion, deny a parent the right of visitation with, or access to, his or her child; but the court may not delegate this authority to the custodian. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

Court Should Safeguard Visitation

Rights by Provision in Order. — If the court does not find that a parent has by conduct forfeited the right of visitation and does not find that the exercise of the right would be detrimental to the best interest and welfare of the child, the court should safeguard the parent's visitation rights by a provision in the order defining and establishing the time, place and conditions under which such visitation rights may be exercised. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

Enforcement of Visitation Orders. — Trial judges in this State have authority to enforce orders providing for visitation by the methods set forth in this section, that is, by contempt proceedings and by injunction. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Receipt of Support May Not Be Conditioned on Visitation. — A trial judge does not have authority to condition a minor child's receipt of support paid by the noncustodial parent on compliance with court-ordered visitation allowed the noncustodial parent by ordering that child support paid by defendant be placed in escrow if minor child fails or refuses to abide by the visitation privileges allowed defendant. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

District court was authorized to grant the father of an illegitimate child visitation privileges and to punish the mother for refusing to allow the father to visit his illegitimate child. Conley v. Johnson, 24 N.C. App. 122, 210 S.E.2d 88 (1974).

Grant of Visitation Rights to Homosexual Father. — The trial court did not err in granting a father who was homosexual unsupervised overnight visitation rights with his minor son. Woodruff v. Woodruff, 44 N.C. App. 350, 260 S.E.2d 775 (1979).

Grandparents May Not Be Awarded Visitation Rights When Custody Is Not in Issue. — While subsection (b1) of this section authorizes the court to provide for the visitation rights of grandparents when the custody of minor children is being litigated, it does not authorize the court to enter such an order when the custody of the children is not in issue. Moore v. Moore, 89 N.C. App. 351, 365 S.E.2d 662 (1988).

This section and §§ 50-13.5 and 50-13.2A must be read in conjunction with § 50-13.1(a) so as to harmonize them and give effect to a consistent legislative policy. Under them, a grandparent's right to visitation arises either in the context of an ongoing custody proceeding or where the minor child is in the custody of a stepparent or a relative. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 341 N.C. 629, 461 S.E.2d 745 (1995).

Grandparent Had No Rights to Proceed. — There are four statutes in North Carolina which permit a grandparent to maintain an action for custody or visitation of a minor child, and although plaintiff, mother of the deceased father of the two minor children, did not specify under which statute she filed, it was clear that she had no right to proceed under § § 50-13.1(a), this section, 50-13.2A, or 50-13.5(j). Shaut v. Cannon, 136 N.C. App. 834, 526 S.E.2d 214 (2000).

As parents with lawful custody of their children have the prerogative of determining with whom they shall associate. Moore v. Moore, 89 N.C. App. 351, 365 S.E.2d 662 (1988).

V. WISHES OF CHILD.

Wishes of Child of Sufficient Age Are Entitled to Weight. — The wishes of a child of sufficient age to exercise discretion in choosing a custodian are entitled to considerable weight when the contest is between the parents, but are not controlling. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966); In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971); Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 831 (1981).

A child may be a competent witness and ought to be examined in that character. Indeed, being the party mainly concerned, he has a right to make a statement to the court as to his feelings and wishes upon the matter. This ought to be allowed serious consideration by the court, in the exercise of its discretion. Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1982).

In making the weighty choice of awarding custody, the judge may properly consider the preference or wishes of a child of suitable age and discretion. In re Peal, 305 N.C. 640, 290 S.E.2d 664 (1982).

As to the courts' consideration of the wishes of a child of suitable age, see also In re Gwaltney, 68 N.C. App. 686, 315 S.E.2d 750 (1984).

Because Child's Wishes Will Aid Determination of His Best Interests. — The child's wishes will be one factor considered by the court in determining his custody, usually not because of any legal right in the child to have his wishes granted, but because the consideration of such wishes will aid the court in making a custodial decree which is for the best interests and welfare of the child. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

But Such Wishes Are Not Controlling. — When a child has reached the age of discretion, the court may consider the preference or wishes of the child to live with a particular person. A child has attained an age of discretion when it is of an age and capacity to form an intelligent or rational view on the matter. The expressed wish of a child of discretion is, however, never controlling upon the court, since the court must yield in all cases to what it considers to be the child's best interests, regardless of the child's personal preference. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966).

Although the preference of a child of discretion would seem to have its greatest weight when the controversy is between the parents and both are fit persons, the child's wishes are only entitled to consideration and are not controlling. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

And Weight to Be Given Child's Testimony Is for the Court. — A child has a right to have his testimony heard. However, the weight to be attached to such testimony is within the discretion of the trial judge. Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1982).

Lack of Findings as to Child's Preferences Insufficient to Upset Award. — Failure of the court to include a finding as to the preferences of the minor child is insufficient to upset its order of award of custody. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

Ten Year Old. — A child's preference as to who shall have his custody is not controlling; however, the trial judge should consider the wishes of a 10-year-old child in making his determination. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

Where the contest is between a parent and one not connected by blood to the child, the desire of the child will not ordinarily prevail over the natural right of the parent, unless essential to the child's welfare. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

VI. DISCRETION OF TRIAL COURT.

Determining the custody of minor children is never the province of a jury; it is that of the judge of the court in which the proceeding is pending. Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967).

The question of custody is one addressed to the trial court. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966).

Trial Judge Is Vested with Broad Discretion. — The trial judge, who has the opportunity to see and hear the parties and the witnesses, is vested with broad discretion in cases involving custody of children. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974); Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975); Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977); Sheppard v. Sheppard, 38 N.C. App. 712, 248 S.E.2d 871 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 586, 254 S.E.2d 34 (1979); In re Peal, 305 N.C. 640, 290 S.E.2d 664 (1982).

While the welfare of the child is always to be treated as the paramount consideration, wide discretionary power is necessarily vested in the trial court in reaching decisions in particular cases. Griffin v. Griffin, 237 N.C. 404, 75 S.E.2d 133 (1953); Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967); In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970); Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

The trial court has broad discretion in deciding child custody cases. Paschall v. Paschall, 21 N.C. App. 120, 203 S.E.2d 337 (1974).

The trial judge is vested with broad discretion in child custody cases. The "paramount consideration" which limits this discretion is the welfare and needs of the children. Phillips v. Choplin, 65 N.C. App. 506, 309 S.E.2d 716 (1983).

The trial judge is vested with broad discretion in child custody cases, and that discretion must be exercised to serve the welfare and needs of the children. Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

And His Decision Will Not Be Upset Absent Abuse. — The decision to award custody of a minor is vested in the discretion of the trial judge, who has the opportunity to see the parties in person and to hear the witnesses, and his decision ought not to be upset on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. In re Pitts, 2 N.C. App. 211, 162 S.E.2d 524 (1968); In re Morrison, 6 N.C. App. 47, 169 S.E.2d 228 (1969); In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970); In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971); Jarman v. Jarman, 14 N.C. App. 531, 188 S.E.2d 647, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 622, 190 S.E.2d 465 (1972); In re Cox, 17 N.C. App. 687, 195 S.E.2d 132, cert. denied, 283 N.C. 585, 196 S.E.2d 809 (1973); King v. Demo, 40 N.C. App. 661, 253 S.E.2d 616 (1979); Wilson v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 348, 256 S.E.2d 516 (1979); Comer v. Comer, 61 N.C. App. 324, 300 S.E.2d 457 (1983); Campbell v. Campbell, 63 N.C. App. 113, 304 S.E.2d 262, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 460, 307 S.E.2d 362 (1983); Plemmons v. Stiles, 65 N.C. App. 341, 309 S.E.2d 504 (1983).

Where trial judge enters a custody order that in his judgment is in the best interest of the child, the appellate division should not reverse that judgment and hold, as a matter of law, that the trial judge was obliged to have reached a different opinion, in the absence of a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Decisions in custody cases are never easy, and the trial judge has the opportunity to see the parties in person and to hear the witnesses. He can detect tenors, tones and flavors that are lost in the bare printed record read months later by appellate judges. Newsome v. Newsome, 42 N.C. App. 416, 256 S.E.2d 849 (1979).

If Supported by Competent Evidence. — The trial judge's decision as to custody will not be upset, in the absence of a clear abuse of discretion, if his findings are supported by competent evidence. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 38 N.C. App. 712, 248 S.E.2d 871 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 586, 254 S.E.2d 34 (1979); Comer v. Comer, 61 N.C. App. 324, 300 S.E.2d 457 (1983).

The question of custody is one addressed to the trial court, and the court's decision will be upheld if supported by competent evidence. Roberts v. Short, 6 N.C. App. 419, 169 S.E.2d 910 (1969); Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

The trial judge is present where he can observe and hear the parties and their witnesses, and ordinarily his decision on custody will be upheld if supported by competent evidence. In re McCraw Children, 3 N.C. App. 390, 165 S.E.2d 1 (1969).

Instead of applying an inflexible rule, the court must consider all facts of the case and decide the issue in accordance with the best interests of the child. Paschall v. Paschall, 21 N.C. App. 120, 203 S.E.2d 337 (1974).

Discretion to Allow Grandparent's Visitation Rights. — Although the trial judge determined that the appellant-defendant would continue to have primary custody of the children, it was entirely within the trial judge's discretion to allow the grandparents' visitation rights based on the best interest of the children. Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

Nature of Evidence. — An order for custody should be entered only after the most careful consideration, and only after the court has had the benefit of more reliable evidence than is usually afforded by affidavits. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969).

VII. FINDINGS OF FACT.

Trial Court Must Make Findings of Fact. — To support an award of custody, the judgment of the trial court should contain findings of fact which sustain the conclusion of law that custody of the child is awarded to the person who will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 32 N.C. App. 154, 231 S.E.2d 26 (1977); Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981); Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 657, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

The court erred in not permitting the parties to a "joint custody" agreement to present extrinsic evidence of the parties' understanding of the meaning of those terms and their intent at the time of the agreement before determining whether the plaintiff wife had breached the agreement by failing to take steps to help the son who had drug abuse problems, thereby excusing the defendant husband from paying alimony. Patterson v. Taylor, 140 N.C. App. 91, 535 S.E.2d 374 (2000).

Before awarding custody of a child to a particular party, the trial court must conclude as a matter of law that the award of custody to that particular party will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. Findings of fact as to the characteristics of the competing parties must be made to support the necessary conclusion of law. These findings may concern physical, mental, or financial fitness or any other factors brought out in the evidence and relevant to the issue of the welfare of the child. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

To support an award of custody, the judgment of the trial court should contain findings of fact which sustain the conclusion of law that custody of the child is awarded to the person who will best promote the interest and welfare of the child; the conclusion of law determinative of the custody is not, therefore, that the person gaining custody is a fit and proper person to have custody, but which party will best promote the interest and welfare of the child. Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

Which Must Be More Than Mere Conclusory Statements. — A custody order is fatally defective where it fails to make detailed findings of fact from which an appellate court can determine that the order is in the best interest of the child, and custody orders are routinely vacated where the findings of fact consist of mere conclusory statements that the party being awarded custody is a fit and proper person to have custody and that it will be in the best interests of the child to award custody to that person. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 73, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

And Must Resolve Questions Raised by Evidence. — Findings bearing on the party's fitness to have care, custody and control of the child and findings as to the best interests of the child must resolve all questions raised by the evidence pertaining thereto. Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

But the trial judge is not required to find all the facts shown by the evidence. It is sufficient if enough material facts are found to support the judgment. In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971); Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

Findings of Fact Insufficient. — Without a finding of a substantial change of circumstances, a modification based solely on the ground that the defendant mother was overprotective was improper. Benedict v. Coe, 117 N.C. App. 369, 451 S.E.2d 320 (1994).

The trial court erred in amending the custody decree based on a finding of substantial change in circumstances where it found only that the proposed relocation of the mother after her remarriage would adversely affect the relationship between the father and his child but made no other findings about the effect of the proposed relocation on the child and on the child's best interests. Evans v. Evans, 138 N.C. App. 135, 530 S.E.2d 576 (2000).

Court's findings may concern physical, mental, or financial fitness or any other factors brought out by the evidence and relevant to the issue of the welfare of the child. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

Failure to Make Findings Is Error. — It is error for the court granting a decree of divorce to award the custody of a child without findings of fact from which it could be determined that the order was adequately supported by competent evidence and was for the best interest of the child. Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967).

And Will Necessitate Remand. — When the trial court fails to find facts so that the reviewing court can determine that the order is adequately supported by competent evidence and the welfare of the child subserved, then the order entered thereon must be vacated and the case remanded for detailed findings of fact. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967); In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970); Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971); Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976); In re Kowalzek, 37 N.C. App. 364, 246 S.E.2d 45, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 734, 248 S.E.2d 863 (1978); Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

An order awarding custody of a child to the father, without any findings of fact other than a recital that the court had previously awarded custody to the father in a proceeding under former § 17-39, was fatally defective, and the case would be remanded for detailed findings of fact. Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967).

Court's Findings Are Conclusive If Supported by Evidence. — The findings of the trial court in regard to the custody of children are conclusive when supported by competent evidence. Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967); In re Moore, 8 N.C. App. 251, 174 S.E.2d 135 (1970); Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976).

Findings of fact by the trial court in a proceeding to determine the custody of a minor child ordinarily are conclusive when based on competent evidence. Griffin v. Griffin, 237 N.C. 404, 75 S.E.2d 133 (1953).

In a hearing to determine the right to custody of the children of the marriage, the court's findings of fact are conclusive if supported by competent evidence. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

And Are Binding on the Appellate Courts. — The trial judge's findings of fact in custody orders are binding on the appellate courts if supported by competent evidence. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974).

And Will Not Be Disturbed Thereby. — The court's findings of fact as to the care and custody of children will not be disturbed when supported by competent evidence, even though the evidence be conflicting. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967); In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971).

The normal rule in regard to the custody of children is that where there is competent evidence to support a judge's finding of fact, a judgment supported by such findings will not be disturbed on appeal; however, the facts found must be adequate for the appellate court to determine that the judgment is substantiated by competent evidence. Green v. Green, 54 N.C. App. 571, 284 S.E.2d 171 (1981).

Even When Evidence Is Conflicting. — The findings of the trial judge regarding custody and support are conclusive when supported by competent evidence, even when the evidence is conflicting, the standard for disturbing the trial judge's decision on appeal being a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 122, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

Conclusory Statements Held Inadequate. — For a case setting forth a visitation order and holding that order to be conclusive and not supported by adequate findings of fact, see Kerns v. Southern, 100 N.C. App. 664, 397 S.E.2d 651 (1990).

But an order may contain extensive findings and still be fatally defective when not supported by the evidence. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 122, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

Use of Fifth Amendment Privilege. — Father could not take advantage of the presumption that it is in the best interest of the child to be in the custody of his natural parent by introducing evidence of his fitness and then invoking his Fifth Amendment privilege against self-incrimination when questioned about his illegal drug activity. Qurneh v. Colie, 122 N.C. App. 553, 471 S.E.2d 433 (1996).

Where the father failed to make a showing of fitness and the court could not determine his fitness because of his assertion of the Fifth Amendment, the court acted properly in dismissing his claim for custody. Qurneh v. Colie, 122 N.C. App. 553, 471 S.E.2d 433 (1996).

VIII. EFFECT OF VERDICTS, SEPARATION AGREEMENTS AND CONSENT JUDGMENTS.

Verdict in Divorce Action Is Not Controlling. — The verdict in a divorce action can be an important factor in the judge's consideration of an award of custody, but it is not legally controlling. It is merely one of the circumstances for him to consider, along with all other relevant factors. Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967).

Findings and Conclusions Not Required for Child Consent Judgments. — While § 1A-1, Rule 52 and this section mandate findings of fact and conclusions when a court adjudicates child custody, child consent judgments need not contain such findings of fact and conclusions of law, and consenting parties waive their right to have the court adjudicate the merits of the case. Buckingham v. Buckingham, 134 N.C. App. 82, 516 S.E.2d 869 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 100, 540 S.E.2d 353 (1999).

Nor Are Separation Agreements and Consent Judgments Based Thereon. — Valid separation agreements, including consent judgments based on such agreements with respect to marital rights, are not final and binding as to the custody of minor children or as to the amount to be provided for the support and education of such minor children. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963); Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966).

While the marital and property rights of the parties under the provisions of a valid separation agreement cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without the consent of the parties, such agreements are not final and binding as to the custody of minor children or as to the amount to be provided for the support and education of such minor children. Soper v. Soper, 29 N.C. App. 95, 223 S.E.2d 560 (1976).

And Court Is Not Precluded Thereby from Acting Under This Section. — A deed of separation between husband and wife containing an agreement for the custody of their minor child does not preclude the court, upon granting a decree for absolute divorce in a suit brought subsequent to the deed of separation, from awarding the custody of the child in accordance with this section. In re Albertson, 205 N.C. 742, 172 S.E. 411 (1934).

The fact that petitioner agreed when separation took place between herself and her husband that the custody of their child should remain with the father was not binding on the court. Finley v. Sapp, 238 N.C. 114, 76 S.E.2d 350 (1953).

As no agreement between spouses will deprive the court of its inherent and statutory authority to protect the interests and provide for the welfare of infants. The parties may bind themselves by separate agreement or by a consent judgment, but they cannot thus withdraw the children of the marriage from the protective custody of the court. State v. Duncan, 222 N.C. 11, 21 S.E.2d 822 (1942); Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963).

Provisions in a deed of separation for support of the minor children of the marriage, entered as a consent judgment by the court, cannot deprive the court of its inherent and statutory authority to protect the interests and provide for the welfare of the infants; therefore, judgment increasing the allowance for the minor children upon findings of a change of circumstances warranting such increase would be affirmed. Bishop v. Bishop, 245 N.C. 573, 96 S.E.2d 721 (1957).

The child is not a party to a separation agreement, and the parents cannot contract away the jurisdiction of the court, which is always alert in the discharge of its duty towards its wards, the children of the State whose personal property interests require protection. State v. Duncan, 222 N.C. 11, 21 S.E.2d 822 (1942).

It is the court's duty to award custody in accordance with the best interests of the child, and no agreement, consent or condition between the parents can interfere with this duty or bind the court. Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974).

But provisions of a valid separation agreement, and a consent judgment based thereon, cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without the consent of the parties. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963); Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966).

A valid separation agreement cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without the consent of the parties. Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

And Parties Are Bound Thereby Until Court Orders Otherwise. — Where judgment by confession purported to grant custody of child to one party, this judgment did not deprive the district court of jurisdiction to determine custody, but the parties, having agreed to it, were bound by its provisions until the court made some order for custody. Pierce v. Pierce, 58 N.C. App. 815, 295 S.E.2d 247 (1982).

Presumption as to Amount Mutually Agreed upon in Separation Agreement. — Where parties to a separation agreement agree upon the amount of the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon is just and reasonable, and upon motion for an increase in such allowance, a court is not warranted in ordering an increase in the absence of any evidence of a change of conditions. Soper v. Soper, 29 N.C. App. 95, 223 S.E.2d 560 (1976).

There is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon in a separation agreement is just and reasonable. Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

Party to Separation Agreement Not Precluded from Bringing Action. — When a case is properly before it, the court has the duty to award custody in accordance with the best interests of the child, and no agreement, consent or condition between the parents can interfere with this duty or bind the court. Thus, the existence of a valid separation agreement containing provisions relating to the custody and support of minor children does not prevent one of the parties to the agreement from instituting an action for a judicial determination of those same matters. Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

Where judgment by confession placed custody issue before the court so that it retained jurisdiction to determine custody, it was error not to abate the subsequent action for custody. Pierce v. Pierce, 58 N.C. App. 815, 295 S.E.2d 247 (1982).

Effect of Custody Award on Consent Judgment. — Where a consent judgment in an action for a divorce a mensa operated as a gift to the wife of an estate in the husband's land, the fact that the court awarded custody of the children did not affect it. Morris v. Patterson, 180 N.C. 484, 105 S.E. 25 (1920).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion in awarding joint custody to both parties. Church v. Church, 119 N.C. App. 436, 458 S.E.2d 732 (1995).

§ 50-13.2A. Action for visitation of an adopted grandchild.

A biological grandparent may institute an action or proceeding for visitation rights with a child adopted by a stepparent or a relative of the child where a substantial relationship exists between the grandparent and the child. Under no circumstances shall a biological grandparent of a child adopted by adoptive parents, neither of whom is related to the child and where parental rights of both biological parents have been terminated, be entitled to visitation rights. A court may award visitation rights if it determines that visitation is in the best interest of the child. An order awarding visitation rights shall contain findings of fact which support the determination by the judge of the best interest of the child. Procedure, venue, and jurisdiction shall be as in an action for custody. (1985, c. 575, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

There is a reasonable basis for the classification elicited in this section, and therefore, the classification does not violate the equal protection guarantees of either the State or federal Constitutions. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

This section must be read in pari materia with § 50-13.7(a), which therefore requires a showing of a substantial change of circumstances. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Trial court did not err in allowing grandparents to intervene in adoption proceeding pursuant to this section without holding a preliminary evidentiary hearing to determine whether a substantial relationship existed between the movants and grandchildren, where the trial judge addressed the issue of whether the grandparents had a right to intervene based on the pleadings before it, and without the necessity of a preliminary hearing the trial court made a preliminary determination that the grandparents had a right to intervene. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Grandparent Had No Right to Proceed. — There are four statutes in North Carolina which permit a grandparent to maintain an action for custody or visitation of a minor child, and although plaintiff, mother of the deceased father of the two minor children, did not specify under which statute she filed, it was clear that she had no right to proceed under § § 50-13.1(a), 50-13.2(b1), this section, or 50-13.5(j). Shaut v. Cannon, 136 N.C. App. 834, 526 S.E.2d 214 (2000).

Standing to Bring Action Based on Substantial Relationship. — The grandmother had standing under this section to seek visitation rights with her grandchildren, where the children were adopted by their biological aunt and her husband, and the grandmother had a substantial relationship with the children, in that she had helped raise them from birth and they had lived with her for eight months prior to the adoption. Hill v. Newman, 131 N.C. App. 793, 509 S.E.2d 226 (1998).

Evidence held sufficient to support the trial court's conclusion that grandparents had established a substantial relationship with their grandchildren. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Custody Must Be at Issue. — Sections 50-13.2, 50-13.5, and this section must be read in conjunction with § 50-13.1(a) so as to harmonize them and give effect to a consistent legislative policy. Under them, a grandparent's right to visitation arises either in the context of an ongoing custody proceeding or where the minor child is in the custody of a stepparent or a relative. McIntyre v. McIntyre, 341 N.C. 629, 461 S.E.2d 745 (1995).

There existed substantial change of circumstances when visitation rights of grandparents arbitrarily terminated by the natural mother when the grandparents had established a continuing substantial relationship with their grandchildren since the entry of earlier custody order, and based upon that, the court found sufficient facts to justify its conclusion that it was in the best interest of the grandchildren to maintain a continuing relationship with the grandparents through the granting of visitation privileges. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Where adoption of two grandchildren by stepfather not finalized until one month after the entry of the judgment awarding grandparents visitation, whatever rights he was to gain in becoming an adoptive parent had not vested at the time of the hearing, and therefore the adjudication of the issues before the court did not require his presence in the suit. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Trial court's findings of fact held to establish fitness of the grandparents and that the welfare of the children would be subserved by granting them visitation. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Cited in Ray v. Ray, 103 N.C. App. 790, 407 S.E.2d 592 (1991); Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996).

§ 50-13.3. Enforcement of order for custody.

(a) An order providing for the custody of a minor child is enforceable by proceedings for civil contempt, and its disobedience may be punished by proceedings for criminal contempt, as provided in Chapter 5A, Contempt, of the General Statutes.

Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1-294, an order pertaining to child custody which has been appealed to the appellate division is enforceable in the trial court by proceedings for civil contempt during the pendency of the appeal. Upon motion of an aggrieved party, the court of the appellate division in which the appeal is pending may stay any order for civil contempt entered for child custody until the appeal is decided, if justice requires.

(b) Any court of this State having jurisdiction to make an award of custody of a minor child in an action or proceeding therefor, shall have the power of injunction in such action or proceeding as provided in Article 37 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65. (1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1969, c. 895, s. 16; 1977, c. 711, s. 26; 1983, c. 530, s. 2.)

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under subsection (a) of this section as it read prior to the 1977 amendment, which subsection formerly provided for punishment as for contempt of the "willful disobedience" of custody orders.

Jurisdiction. — Under North Carolina case law, matters of custody, which include visitation rights under this section, are pending until the death of one of the parties or until the child reaches the age of majority. The hands of the courts would be effectively tied if they had no jurisdiction to enforce the orders they enter. Beck v. Beck, 64 N.C. App. 89, 306 S.E.2d 580 (1983).

Only Willful Disobedience May Be Punished. — A failure to obey an order of a court cannot be punished by contempt proceedings unless the disobedience is willful, which imports knowledge and a stubborn resistance. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Trial Court Must Find Defendant Possessed Means to Comply. — In order to punish by contempt proceedings, the trial court must find as a fact that the defendant possessed the means to comply with orders of the court during the period when he was in default. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

One does not act willfully in failing to comply with a judgment if it has not been within his power to do so since the judgment was rendered. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Finding as to Present Ability to Comply. — In a contempt proceeding for violation of a custody order, no specific finding was required of the trial court as to the defendant's present ability to comply with the order, although there was in fact plenary evidence introduced to justify such a finding. Lee v. Lee, 37 N.C. App. 371, 246 S.E.2d 49 (1978).

Where the court enters judgment as for civil contempt, the court must not only find failure to comply with the order, but must also find that the defendant presently possesses the means to comply. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Appealability of Contempt Order Where Punishment Is Withheld. — Plaintiff was entitled to appeal the order of the trial court finding that she was in contempt of child custody orders, even though the trial court withheld punishment and only made the findings a part of the record, since to withhold punishment without further limitation is to retain the right to impose it in the future. Under such circumstances, the order holding the plaintiff in contempt affected a substantial right and was therefore appealable. Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978).

Review of Findings of Fact. — In proceedings for contempt, the facts found by the judge are not reviewable except for the purpose of passing upon their sufficiency to warrant the judgment. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

In contempt proceedings, the judge's findings of fact are conclusive on appeal when supported by any competent evidence and are reviewable only for the purpose of passing on their sufficiency to warrant the judgment. Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978).

Review in contempt proceedings is limited to whether there is competent evidence to support findings of fact and whether findings support conclusions of law. Walleshauser v. Walleshauser, 100 N.C. App. 594, 397 S.E.2d 371 (1990).

In contempt proceedings, findings by the trial court with regard to whether a party willfully and without sufficient legal excuse or justification violated the terms of a custody order are conclusive on appeal when supported by competent evidence. Lee v. Lee, 37 N.C. App. 371, 246 S.E.2d 49 (1978).

Payment of Counsel Fees. — The court is vested with broad power when it is authorized to punish "as for contempt." This power includes the authority for a district court judge to require one whom he has found in willful contempt of court for failure to comply with a child support order entered pursuant to § 50-13.1 et seq., to pay reasonable counsel fees to opposing counsel as a condition to being purged of contempt. Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970).

Visitation and child support rights are independent rights accruing primarily to the benefit of the minor child and one is not, and may not be made, contingent upon the other. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Receipt of Support May Not Be Conditioned on Visitation. — A trial judge does not have authority to condition a minor child's receipt of support paid by the noncustodial parent on compliance with court-ordered visitation allowed the noncustodial parent by ordering that child support paid by defendant be placed in escrow if minor child fails or refuses to abide by the visitation privileges allowed defendant. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Enforcement of Visitation Orders. — Trial judges in this State have authority to enforce orders providing for visitation by the methods set forth in this section, that is, by contempt proceedings and by injunction. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

No Authority to Modify Father's Visitation Rights. — The trial court was without authority to transform a show cause hearing on the matter of a wife's alleged contempt in failing to comply with a custody order, on its own motion and without notice to the wife, into a hearing on the issue of modification of the father's visitation rights as set forth in prior orders. Lee v. Lee, 37 N.C. App. 371, 246 S.E.2d 49 (1978).

Finding of Contempt Supported by Competent Evidence. — Where competent evidence supported trial court's findings of defendant's failure to comply with previous visitation order and of his present ability to comply with the order, these findings were conclusive on appeal and also supported conclusion of law that defendant was in contempt of visitation order. Walleshauser v. Walleshauser, 100 N.C. App. 594, 397 S.E.2d 371 (1990).

Violation of Order Pending Appeal. — While an appeal from an order providing for the custody of a minor child removes the cause from the trial court to the appellate court, and while pending the appeal the trial court is without jurisdiction to punish for contempt, the taking of an appeal does not authorize a violation of the custody order. If the custody order is upheld by the appellate court, the violation may be inquired into when the cause is remanded to the trial court. Sturdivant v. Sturdivant, 31 N.C. App. 341, 229 S.E.2d 318 (1976).

Applied in Morris v. Morris, 42 N.C. App. 222, 256 S.E.2d 302 (1979); Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983).

Quoted in Mather v. Mather, 70 N.C. App. 106, 318 S.E.2d 548 (1984).

Cited in Boston v. Freeman, 6 N.C. App. 736, 171 S.E.2d 206 (1969); Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972); McLemore v. McLemore, 89 N.C. App. 451, 366 S.E.2d 495 (1988).

§ 50-13.4. Action for support of minor child.

(a) Any parent, or any person, agency, organization or institution having custody of a minor child, or bringing an action or proceeding for the custody of such child, or a minor child by his guardian may institute an action for the support of such child as hereinafter provided.

(b) In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, the father and mother shall be primarily liable for the support of a minor child. In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, parents of a minor, unemancipated child who is the custodial or noncustodial parent of a child shall share this primary liability for their grandchild's support with the minor parent, the court determining the proper share, until the minor parent reaches the age of 18 or becomes emancipated. If both the parents of the child requiring support were unemancipated minors at the time of the child's conception, the parents of both minor parents share primary liability for their grandchild's support until both minor parents reach the age of 18 or become emancipated. If only one parent of the child requiring support was an unemancipated minor at the time of the child's conception, the parents of both parents are liable for any arrearages in child support owed by the adult or emancipated parent until the other parent reaches the age of 18 or becomes emancipated. In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, any other person, agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis shall be secondarily liable for such support. Such other circumstances may include, but shall not be limited to, the relative ability of all the above-mentioned parties to provide support or the inability of one or more of them to provide support, and the needs and estate of the child. The judge may enter an order requiring any one or more of the above-mentioned parties to provide for the support of the child as may be appropriate in the particular case, and if appropriate the court may authorize the application of any separate estate of the child to his support. However, the judge may not order support to be paid by a person who is not the child's parent or an agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis absent evidence and a finding that such person, agency, organization or institution has voluntarily assumed the obligation of support in writing. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to prevent any court from ordering the support of a child by an agency of the State or county which agency may be responsible under law for such support.

The judge may order responsible parents in a IV-D establishment case to perform a job search, if the responsible parent is not incapacitated. This includes IV-D cases in which the responsible parent is a noncustodial mother or a noncustodial father whose affidavit of parentage has been filed with the court or when paternity is not at issue for the child. The court may further order the responsible parent to participate in work activities, as defined in 42 U.S.C. § 607, as the court deems appropriate.

(c) Payments ordered for the support of a minor child shall be in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, the child care and homemaker contributions of each party, and other facts of the particular case. Payments ordered for the support of a minor child shall be on a monthly basis, due and payable on the first day of each month. The requirement that orders be established on a monthly basis does not affect the availability of garnishment of disposable earnings based on an obligor's pay period.

The court shall determine the amount of child support payments by applying the presumptive guidelines established pursuant to subsection (c1) of this section. However, upon request of any party, the Court shall hear evidence, and from the evidence, find the facts relating to the reasonable needs of the child for support and the relative ability of each parent to provide support. If, after considering the evidence, the Court finds by the greater weight of the evidence that the application of the guidelines would not meet or would exceed the reasonable needs of the child considering the relative ability of each parent to provide support or would be otherwise unjust or inappropriate the Court may vary from the guidelines. If the court orders an amount other than the amount determined by application of the presumptive guidelines, the court shall make findings of fact as to the criteria that justify varying from the guidelines and the basis for the amount ordered.

Payments ordered for the support of a child shall terminate when the child reaches the age of 18 except:

(1) If the child is otherwise emancipated, payments shall terminate at that time;

(2) If the child is still in primary or secondary school when the child reaches age 18, support payments shall continue until the child graduates, otherwise ceases to attend school on a regular basis, fails to make satisfactory academic progress towards graduation, or reaches age 20, whichever comes first, unless the court in its discretion orders that payments cease at age 18 or prior to high school graduation.

In the case of graduation, or attaining age 20, payments shall terminate without order by the court, subject to the right of the party receiving support to show, upon motion and with notice to the opposing party, that the child has not graduated or attained the age of 20.

(c1) Effective July 1, 1990, the Conference of Chief District Judges shall prescribe uniform statewide presumptive guidelines for the computation of child support obligations of each parent as provided in Chapter 50 or elsewhere in the General Statutes and shall develop criteria for determining when, in a particular case, application of the guidelines would be unjust or inappropriate. Prior to May 1, 1990 these guidelines and criteria shall be reported to the General Assembly by the Administrative Office of the Courts by delivering copies to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The purpose of the guidelines and criteria shall be to ensure that payments ordered for the support of a minor child are in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, the child care and homemaker contributions of each party, and other facts of the particular case. The guidelines shall include a procedure for setting child support, if any, in a joint or shared custody arrangement which shall reflect the other statutory requirements herein.

Periodically, but at least once every four years, the Conference of Chief District Judges shall review the guidelines to determine whether their application results in appropriate child support award amounts. The Conference may modify the guidelines accordingly. The Conference shall give the Department of Health and Human Services, the Administrative Office of the Courts, and the general public an opportunity to provide the Conference with information relevant to the development and review of the guidelines. Any modifications of the guidelines or criteria shall be reported to the General Assembly by the Administrative Office of the Courts before they become effective by delivering copies to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The guidelines, when adopted or modified, shall be provided to the Department of Health and Human Services and the Administrative Office of the Courts, which shall disseminate them to the public through local IV-D offices, clerks of court, and the media.

Until July 1, 1990, the advisory guidelines adopted by the Conference of Chief District Judges pursuant to this subsection as formerly written shall operate as presumptive guidelines and the factors adopted by the Conference of Chief District Judges pursuant to this subsection as formerly written shall constitute criteria for varying from the amount of support determined by the guidelines.

(d) In non-IV-D cases, payments for the support of a minor child shall be ordered to be paid to the person having custody of the child or any other proper person, agency, organization or institution, or to the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit, for the benefit of the child. In IV-D cases, payments for the support of a minor child shall be ordered to be paid to the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit for the benefit of the child.

(d1) For child support orders initially entered on or after January 1, 1994, the immediate income withholding provisions of G.S. 110-136.5(c1) shall apply.

(e) Payment for the support of a minor child shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property of any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property solely owned by the obligor in payment of arrearages of child support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which payment for the support of a minor child is ordered and alimony or postseparation support is also ordered, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance.

(e1) In IV-D cases, the order for child support shall provide that the clerk shall transfer the case to another jurisdiction in this State if the IV-D agency requests the transfer on the basis that the obligor, the custodian of the child, and the child do not reside in the jurisdiction in which the order was issued. The IV-D agency shall provide notice of the transfer to the obligor by delivery of written notice in accordance with the notice requirements of Chapter 1A-1, Rule 5(b) of the Rules of Civil Procedure. The clerk shall transfer the case to the jurisdiction requested by the IV-D agency, which shall be a jurisdiction in which the obligor, the custodian of the child, or the child resides. Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prevent a party from contesting the transfer.

(f) Remedies for enforcement of support of minor children shall be available as herein provided.

(1) The court may require the person ordered to make payments for the support of a minor child to secure the same by means of a bond, mortgage or deed of trust, or any other means ordinarily used to secure an obligation to pay money or transfer property, or by requiring the execution of an assignment of wages, salary or other income due or to become due.

(2) If the court requires the transfer of real or personal property or an interest therein as provided in subsection (e) as a part of an order for payment of support for a minor child, or for the securing thereof, the court may also enter an order which shall transfer title as provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 70 and G.S. 1-228.

(3) The remedy of arrest and bail, as provided in Article 34 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for child-support payments as in other cases.

(4) The remedies of attachment and garnishment, as provided in Article 35 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in an action for child-support payments as in other cases, and for such purposes the child or person bringing an action for child support shall be deemed a creditor of the defendant. Additionally, in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 110-136, a continuing wage garnishment proceeding for wages due or to become due may be instituted by motion in the original child support proceeding or by independent action through the filing of a petition.

(5) The remedy of injunction, as provided in Article 37 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65, shall be available in actions for child support as in other cases.

(6) Receivers, as provided in Article 38 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, may be appointed in action for child support as in other cases.

(7) A minor child or other person for whose benefit an order for the payment of child support has been entered shall be a creditor within the meaning of Article 3A of Chapter 39 of the General Statutes pertaining to fraudulent conveyances.

(8) Except as provided in Article 15 of Chapter 44 of the General Statutes, a judgment for child support shall not be a lien against real property unless the judgment expressly so provides, sets out the amount of the lien in a sum certain, and adequately describes the real property affected; but past due periodic payments may by motion in the cause or by a separate action be reduced to judgment which shall be a lien as other judgments and may include provisions for periodic payments.

(9) An order for the periodic payments of child support or a child support judgment that provides for periodic payments is enforceable by proceedings for civil contempt, and disobedience may be punished by proceedings for criminal contempt, as provided in Chapter 5A of the General Statutes.

Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1-294, an order for the payment of child support which has been appealed to the appellate division is enforceable in the trial court by proceedings for civil contempt during the pendency of the appeal. Upon motion of an aggrieved party, the court of the appellate division in which the appeal is pending may stay any order for civil contempt entered for child support until the appeal is decided, if justice requires.

(10) The remedies provided by Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, Article 28, Execution; Article 29B, Execution Sales; and Article 31, Supplemental Proceedings, shall be available for the enforcement of judgments for child support as in other cases, but amounts so payable shall not constitute a debt as to which property is exempt from execution as provided in Article 16 of Chapter 1C of the General Statutes.

(11) The specific enumeration of remedies in this section shall not constitute a bar to remedies otherwise available.

(g) An individual who brings an action or motion in the cause for the support of a minor child, and the individual who defends the action, shall provide to the clerk of the court in which the action is brought or the order is issued, the individual's social security number. The child support order shall contain the social security number of the parties as evidenced in the support proceeding.

(h) Child support orders initially entered or modified on and after October 1, 1998, shall contain the name of each of the parties, the date of birth of each party, the social security number of each party, and the court docket number. The Administrative Office of the Courts shall transmit to the Department of Health and Human Services, Child Support Enforcement Program, on a timely basis, the information required to be included on orders under this subsection. (1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1969, c. 895, s. 17; 1975, c. 814; 1977, c. 711, s. 26; 1979, c. 386, s. 10; 1981, c. 472; c. 613, ss. 1, 3; 1983, c. 54; c. 530, s. 1; 1985, c. 689, s. 17; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 1016; 1989, c. 529, ss. 1, 2; 1989 (Reg. Sess., 1990), c. 1067, s. 2; 1993, c. 335, s. 1; c. 517, s. 5; 1995, c. 319, s. 9; c. 518, s. 1; 1997-433, ss. 2.1(a), 2.2, 4.4, 7.1; 1997-443, ss. 11A.118(a), 11A.122; 1998-17, s. 1; 1998-176, s. 1; 1999-293, ss. 3, 4; 1999-456, s. 13; 2001-237, s. 1.)

Local Modification. — Person: 1967, c. 848, s. 2.

Cross References. — As to actions for custody and support, see also § 50-13.5 and notes thereunder. As to the maintenance of certain actions as independent actions, see § 50-19. For the North Carolina Child Support Guidelines, effective August 1, 1991, see the Annotated Rules of North Carolina. As to liens on real and personal property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-86. As to discharge of liens on property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-87. As to legislation deleting the June 30, 1998 expiration date for all enactments and amendments by Session Laws 1997-443, see the editor's note under § 44-86.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Action for support of minor child.

(a) Any parent, or any person, agency, organization or institution having custody of a minor child, or bringing an action or proceeding for the custody of such child, or a minor child by his guardian may institute an action for the support of such child as hereinafter provided.

(b) In the absence of pleading and proof that the circumstances otherwise warrant, the father and mother shall be primarily liable for the support of a minor child, and any other person, agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis shall be secondarily liable for such support. Such other circumstances may include, but shall not be limited to, the relative ability of all the above-mentioned parties to provide support or the inability of one or more of them to provide support, and the needs and estate of the child. The judge may enter an order requiring any one or more of the above-mentioned parties to provide for the support of the child as may be appropriate in the particular case, and if appropriate the court may authorize the application of any separate estate of the child to his support. However, the judge may not order support to be paid by a person who is not the child's parent or an agency, organization or institution standing in loco parentis absent evidence and a finding that such person, agency, organization or institution has voluntarily assumed the obligation of support in writing. The preceding sentence shall not be construed to prevent any court from ordering the support of a child by an agency of the State or county which agency may be responsible under law for such support.

(c) Payments ordered for the support of a minor child shall be in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, the child care and homemaker contributions of each party, and other facts of the particular case.

The court shall determine the amount of child support payments by applying the presumptive guidelines established pursuant to subsection (c1). However, upon request of any party, the Court shall hear evidence, and from the evidence, find the facts relating to the reasonable needs of the child for support and the relative ability of each parent to provide support. If, after considering the evidence, the Court finds by the greater weight of the evidence that the application of the guidelines would not meet or would exceed the reasonable needs of the child considering the relative ability of each parent to provide support or would be otherwise unjust or inappropriate the Court may vary from the guidelines. If the court orders an amount other than the amount determined by application of the presumptive guidelines, the court shall make findings of fact as to the criteria that justify varying from the guidelines and the basis for the amount ordered.

Payments ordered for the support of a child shall terminate when the child reaches the age of 18 except:

(1) If the child is otherwise emancipated, payments shall terminate at that time;

(2) If the child is still in primary or secondary school when the child reaches age 18, support payments shall continue until the child graduates, otherwise ceases to attend school on a regular basis, fails to make satisfactory academic progress towards graduation, or reaches age 20, whichever comes first, unless the court in its discretion orders that payments cease at age 18 or prior to high school graduation.

In the case of graduation, or attaining age 20, payments shall terminate without order by the court, subject to the right of the party receiving support to show, upon motion and with notice to the opposing party, that the child has not graduated or attained the age of 20.

(c1) Effective July 1, 1990, the Conference of Chief District Judges shall prescribe uniform statewide presumptive guidelines for the computation of child support obligations of each parent as provided in Chapter 50 or elsewhere in the General Statutes and shall develop criteria for determining when, in a particular case, application of the guidelines would be unjust or inappropriate. Prior to May 1, 1990 these guidelines and criteria shall be reported to the General Assembly by the Administrative Office of the Courts by delivering copies to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The purpose of the guidelines and criteria shall be to ensure that payments ordered for the support of a minor child are in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, the child care and homemaker contributions of each party, and other facts of the particular case. The guidelines shall include a procedure for setting child support, if any, in a joint or shared custody arrangement which shall reflect the other statutory requirements herein.

Periodically, but at least once every four years, the Conference of Chief District Judges shall review the guidelines to determine whether their application results in appropriate child support award amounts. The Conference may modify the guidelines accordingly. The Conference shall give the Department of Human Resources, the Administrative Office of the Courts, and the general public an opportunity to provide the Conference with information relevant to the development and review of the guidelines. Any modifications of the guidelines or criteria shall be reported to the General Assembly by the Administrative Office of the Courts before they become effective by delivering copies to the President Pro Tempore of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. The guidelines, when adopted or modified, shall be provided to the Department of Human Resources and the Administrative Office of the Courts, which shall disseminate them to the public through local IV-D offices, clerks of court, and the media.

Until July 1, 1990, the advisory guidelines adopted by the Conference of Chief District Judges pursuant to this subsection as formerly written shall operate as presumptive guidelines and the factors adopted by the Conference of Chief District Judges pursuant to this subsection as formerly written shall constitute criteria for varying from the amount of support determined by the guidelines.

(d) Payments for the support of a minor child shall be ordered to be paid to the person having custody of the child or any other proper person, agency, organization or institution, or to the court, for the benefit of such child.

(d1) For child support orders initially entered on or after January 1, 1994, the immediate income withholding provisions of G.S. 110-136.5(c1) shall apply.

(e) Payment for the support of a minor child shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property of any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. In every case in which payment for the support of a minor child is ordered and alimony or alimony pendente lite is also ordered, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance.

(f) Remedies for enforcement of support of minor children shall be available as herein provided.

(1) The court may require the person ordered to make payments for the support of a minor child to secure the same by means of a bond, mortgage or deed of trust, or any other means ordinarily used to secure an obligation to pay money or transfer property, or by requiring the execution of an assignment of wages, salary or other income due or to become due.

(2) If the court requires the transfer of real or personal property or an interest therein as provided in subsection (e) as a part of an order for payment of support for a minor child, or for the securing thereof, the court may also enter an order which shall transfer title as provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 70 and G.S. 1-228.

(3) The remedy of arrest and bail, as provided in Article 34 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for child-support payments as in other cases.

(4) The remedies of attachment and garnishment, as provided in Article 35 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in an action for child-support payments as in other cases, and for such purposes the child or person bringing an action for child support shall be deemed a creditor of the defendant. Additionally, in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 110-136, a continuing wage garnishment proceeding for wages due or to become due may be instituted by motion in the original child support proceeding or by independent action through the filing of a petition.

(5) The remedy of injunction, as provided in Article 37 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65, shall be available in actions for child support as in other cases.

(6) Receivers, as provided in Article 38 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, may be appointed in action for child support as in other cases.

(7) A minor child or other person for whose benefit an order for the payment of child support has been entered shall be a creditor within the meaning of Article 3 of Chapter 39 of the General Statutes pertaining to fraudulent conveyances.

(8) A judgment for child support shall not be a lien against real property unless the judgment expressly so provides, sets out the amount of the lien in a sum certain, and adequately describes the real property affected; but past due periodic payments may by motion in the cause or by a separate action be reduced to judgment which shall be a lien as other judgments.

(9) An order for the periodic payments of child support is enforceable by proceedings for civil contempt, and its disobedience may be punished by proceedings for criminal contempt, as provided in Chapter 5A of the General Statutes.

Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1-294, an order for the payment of child support which has been appealed to the appellate division is enforceable in the trial court by proceedings for civil contempt during the pendency of the appeal. Upon motion of an aggrieved party, the court of the appellate division in which the appeal is pending may stay any order for civil contempt entered for child support until the appeal is decided, if justice requires.

(10) The remedies provided by Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, Article 28, Execution; Article 29B, Execution Sales; and Article 31, Supplemental Proceedings, shall be available for the enforcement of judgments for child support as in other cases, but amounts so payable shall not constitute a debt as to which property is exempt from execution as provided in Article 16 of Chapter 1C of the General Statutes.

(11) The specific enumeration of remedies in this section shall not constitute a bar to remedies otherwise available."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-237, s. 1, effective June 23, 2001, added the second paragraph of subsection (b); substituted "(c1) of this section" for "(c1)" at the end of the first sentence of the second paragraph of subsection (c); inserted "and may include provisions for periodic payments" at the end of subdivision (f)(8); and in subdivision (f)(9), inserted "or a child support judgment that provides for periodic payments," and deleted "its" preceding "disobedience."

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1972 case law on child support and pre-Chapter 48A consent judgments, see 51 N.C.L. Rev. 1091 (1973).

For survey of 1976 case law on domestic relations, see 55 N.C.L. Rev. 1018 (1977).

For note on the remedy of garnishment in child support, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 169 (1978).

For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For comment discussing the status of the presumption of purchase money resulting trust for wives in light of Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982), see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 576 (1983).

For note, "Plott v. Plott: Use of a Formula to Determine Parental Child Support Obligations — A Continuation of Inconsistent and Inequitable Decisions?," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1378 (1986).

For note on child support provisions as a limit on the doctrine of necessaries, in light of Alamance County Hosp. v. Neighbors, 315 N.C. 362, 338 S.E.2d 87 (1986), see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1308 (1987).

For note, "Legislating Responsibility: North Carolina's New Child Support Enforcement Acts," see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1354 (1987).

For article, "Using Hindsight to Change Child Support Obligations: A Survey of Retroactive Modification and Reimbursement of Child Support in North Carolina," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 111 (1987).

For article, "Equating a Stepparent's Rights and Liabilities Vis-A-Vis Custody, Visitation and Support upon Dissolution of the Marriage with Those of the Natural Parent — An Equitable Solution to a Growing Dilemma?," see 17 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1988).

For comment, "The Seventeen Percent Solution: Formula Guidelines for Determining Child Support Awards Arrive in North Carolina," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 209 (1989).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — A number of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-13, which dealt with custody and maintenance of children in actions for divorce, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

State Policy. — It is the policy of this State that both parents have a duty to support their minor children. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Public Policy. — The public policy of this state encourages settlement agreements and supports the inclusion of a provision for the recovery of attorney's fees in settlement agreements. Bromhal v. Stott, 341 N.C. 702, 462 S.E.2d 219 (1995).

History of Section. — For discussion of the history of this section, see Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

Provisions in Chapter 110 Prevail over This Chapter. — The legislature did not intend for this chapter to control all actions for child support. Reading this chapter together with Chapter 110, the more specific provisions of Chapter 110 dealing with the procedure for determining and enforcing support obligations of a father who voluntarily acknowledges paternity prevails over any conflicting procedure in this chapter for determining and enforcing custody and support of minor children. Wake County ex rel. Horton v. Ryles, 112 N.C. App. 754, 437 S.E.2d 404 (1993).

Subsection (a) does not specify that it requires judicial determination of custody before its provision can be utilized by a person or agency bringing an action for support. Craig v. Kelley, 89 N.C. App. 458, 366 S.E.2d 249 (1988).

Visitation and child support rights are independent rights accruing primarily to the benefit of the minor child and one is not, and may not be made, contingent upon the other. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Support Exemption. — Section 105-149 has been repealed in apparent effort by General Assembly to bring North Carolina's personal income tax laws into conformity with the 1984 revisions of federal tax statutes. Under federal law, custodial parent, not parent paying primary support, is entitled to claim support exemption for child under circumstances such as are present here. However, federal law also provides that custodial parent may waive right to claim exemption. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Trial court may order custodial parent to waive right to claim federal and state tax exemptions. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Court order assigning federal and state tax dependency exemptions to payor of child support for all income tax purposes was valid. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

The Child Support Guidelines should not be used to determine the support obligation of a stepparent, secondarily liable for a child's needs. Duffey v. Duffey, 113 N.C. App. 382, 438 S.E.2d 445 (1994).

Support and Counsel Fees Pendente Lite on Husband's Denial of Paternity. — Where, upon wife's motion in the cause to require defendant to provide support for the minor child of the marriage, made after decree of absolute divorce, husband filed an affidavit denying paternity, and at his instance the issue was transferred to the civil issue docket, the trial court had the discretionary power to order defendant to provide for support of the child and counsel fees pendente lite. Winfield v. Winfield, 228 N.C. 256, 45 S.E.2d 259 (1947).

The requirement that a voluntary assumption of support be reduced to writing, imposed on those who are secondarily liable under subsection (b) of this section, does not apply to parents of unemancipated minors who have had a child, for they are primarily liable for support of the infant. Whitman v. Kiger, 139 N.C. App. 44, 533 S.E.2d 807 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 360, 543 S.E.2d 476 (2001).

Applied in Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969); Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970); Williams v. Williams, 12 N.C. App. 170, 182 S.E.2d 667 (1971); Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Carter v. Carter, 13 N.C. App. 648, 186 S.E.2d 684 (1972); Stanback v. Stanback, 287 N.C. 448, 215 S.E.2d 30 (1975); Brady v. Brady, 24 N.C. App. 663, 211 S.E.2d 823 (1975); Tidwell v. Booker, 27 N.C. App. 435, 219 S.E.2d 648 (1975); Amaker v. Amaker, 28 N.C. App. 558, 221 S.E.2d 917 (1976); County of Stanislaus v. Ross, 41 N.C. App. 518, 255 S.E.2d 229 (1979); Williams v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 163, 256 S.E.2d 401 (1979); Haddon v. Haddon, 42 N.C. App. 632, 257 S.E.2d 483 (1979); Gordon v. Gordon, 46 N.C. App. 495, 265 S.E.2d 425 (1980); Lane v. Aetna Cas. & Sur. Co., 48 N.C. App. 634, 269 S.E.2d 711 (1980); In re Register, 303 N.C. 149, 277 S.E.2d 356 (1981); Hardee v. Hardee, 59 N.C. App. 465, 297 S.E.2d 606 (1982); Wolfe v. Wolfe, 64 N.C. App. 249, 307 S.E.2d 400 (1983); Champion v. Champion, 64 N.C. App. 606, 307 S.E.2d 827 (1983); Rustad v. Rustad, 68 N.C. App. 58, 314 S.E.2d 275 (1984); Stevens v. Stevens, 68 N.C. App. 234, 314 S.E.2d 786 (1984); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984); Bennett v. Bennett, 71 N.C. App. 424, 322 S.E.2d 439 (1984); Toney v. Toney, 72 N.C. App. 30, 323 S.E.2d 434 (1984); Massey v. Massey, 71 N.C. App. 753, 323 S.E.2d 451 (1984); Appelbe v. Appelbe, 75 N.C. App. 197, 330 S.E.2d 57 (1985); State ex rel. Pender County Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel Crews v. Parker, 319 N.C. 354, 354 S.E.2d 501 (1987); Koufman v. Koufman, 97 N.C. App. 227, 388 S.E.2d 207 (1990); Hall v. Hall, 107 N.C. App. 298, 419 S.E.2d 371 (1992); Rose v. Rose, 108 N.C. App. 90, 422 S.E.2d 446 (1992); Thomas v. Thomas, 134 N.C. App. 591, 518 S.E.2d 513 (1999).

Quoted in Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971); Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546 (1981); Rice v. Rice, 81 N.C. App. 247, 344 S.E.2d 41 (1986); Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

Stated in Stanback v. Stanback, 31 N.C. App. 174, 229 S.E.2d 693 (1976); Harper v. Harper, 50 N.C. App. 394, 273 S.E.2d 731 (1981); Wake County ex rel. Carrington v. Townes, 53 N.C. App. 649, 281 S.E.2d 765 (1981); State v. Caudill, 68 N.C. App. 268, 314 S.E.2d 592 (1984).

Cited in Boston v. Freeman, 6 N.C. App. 736, 171 S.E.2d 206 (1969); Hill v. Hill, 11 N.C. App. 1, 180 S.E.2d 424 (1971); Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972); Koob v. Koob, 16 N.C. App. 326, 192 S.E.2d 40 (1972); Koob v. Koob, 283 N.C. 129, 195 S.E.2d 552 (1973); Roberson v. Roberson, 40 N.C. App. 193, 252 S.E.2d 237 (1979); Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979); Oxendine v. Catawba County Dep't of Social Servs., 49 N.C. App. 571, 272 S.E.2d 417 (1980); Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel Nations v. Gentry, 63 N.C. App. 432, 305 S.E.2d 207 (1983); Miller v. Kite, 69 N.C. App. 679, 318 S.E.2d 102 (1984); Minor v. Minor, 70 N.C. App. 76, 318 S.E.2d 865 (1984); In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404 (1986); North Carolina Baptist Hosps. v. Harris, 319 N.C. 347, 354 S.E.2d 471 (1987); Smith v. Davis, 88 N.C. App. 557, 364 S.E.2d 156 (1988); Williams v. Williams, 97 N.C. App. 118, 387 S.E.2d 217 (1990); In re Roberson, 97 N.C. App. 277, 387 S.E.2d 668 (1990); McBride v. McBride, 334 N.C. 124, 431 S.E.2d 14 (1993); Fitch v. Fitch, 115 N.C. App. 722, 446 S.E.2d 138 (1994); Allen v. Piedmond Transp. Servs., Inc., 116 N.C. App. 234, 447 S.E.2d 835 (1994); Moyer v. Moyer, 122 N.C. App. 723, 471 S.E.2d 676 (1996); Taylor v. Taylor, 128 N.C. App. 180, 493 S.E.2d 819 (1997); Vann v. Vann, 128 N.C. App. 516, 495 S.E.2d 370 (1998); Willard v. Willard, 130 N.C. App. 144, 502 S.E.2d 395 (1998); Brewer v. Brewer, 139 N.C. App. 222, 533 S.E.2d 541 (2000); In re Estate of Lunsford, 143 N.C. App. 646, 547 S.E.2d 483 (2001), cert. granted, 353 N.C. 727, 550 S.E.2d 779 (2001).

II. INSTITUTION OF ACTION.

Judicial Determination of Custody. — Subsection (a) does not specify that it requires judicial determination of custody before its provisions can be utilized by person or agency bringing action for support. Thus, where mother in her proceeding for modification of support order also requested a formal adjudication of custody, which request was granted, plaintiff met the custody requirements of subsection (a). Craig v. Kelley, 89 N.C. App. 458, 366 S.E.2d 249 (1988).

Custodial Parent as Real Party in Interest. — If the custodial parent provides support which the other parent is legally obligated to provide, then the custodial parent is a real party in interest in an action to recover the support so provided. Griffith v. Griffith, 38 N.C. App. 25, 247 S.E.2d 30, cert. denied, 296 N.C. 106, 249 S.E.2d 804 (1978).

Although plaintiff alleged that he was the father of the child, he did not allege that he had custody, therefore under the provisions of this section, only a parent who has custody of a minor child may bring an action for its support. Becton v. George, 90 N.C. App. 607, 369 S.E.2d 366 (1988).

Required Notice Deemed Waived. — Where both parties introduced evidence on the reasonable needs of the children and the relative ability of each parent to pay support for the children, the defendant's failure to give proper notice of his request that a hearing be conducted regarding these issues was waived and the trial court was required to find facts and enter conclusions on this evidence. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991); Rose v. Rose, 108 N.C. App. 90, 422 S.E.2d 446 (1992).

Notice for Hearing. — This section does not identify any time restrictions for making the request for a hearing described in subsection (c). However, to effectuate the purpose of this section, any party in a pending action requesting a variance from the guidelines must, unless the request is made in the original pleadings, give at least ten days written notice as required by § 50-13.5(d)(1). Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

There is no limitation as to time within which actions for the support of legitimate children must be commenced. County of Lenoir ex rel. Cogdell v. Johnson, 46 N.C. App. 182, 264 S.E.2d 816 (1980).

Motion in Cause. — Plaintiff-husband, as a parent seeking custody, could seek to have his child support obligation determined through a motion in the cause in the divorce action. He was not precluded from doing so by the fact that the court had not previously entered orders in that action relating to child support. Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Discovery Held Overbroad. — For a case in which it was held that plaintiff's discovery request in a child-support case was overbroad and should have been limited by the trial court, see Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

Prayer for Increase in Support Actually Action Under this Section. — Although plaintiff's complaint prayed for an increase in child support based upon a substantial change in circumstances, plaintiff's action was in fact brought pursuant to subsection (a) of this section because the amount sought to be increased was paid pursuant to a non-judicial separation agreement; plaintiff was actually asking the Court to enter an original award of child support. Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

III. LIABILITY FOR SUPPORT.

Subsection (b) imposes primary liability upon both father and mother to support a minor child. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Subsection (b) of this section, as amended in 1981, does not diminish a father's responsibilities. Rather, it enlarges a mother's responsibilities by making both parents primarily liable for the support of their children. Alamance County Hosp. v. Neighbors, 315 N.C. 362, 338 S.E.2d 87 (1986).

Equal Duty of Support Is Rule Rather Than Exception. — Today, the equal duty of both parents to support their children is the rule rather than the exception is virtually all states. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Both parents have equal support duties under the law, absent pleading and proof that circumstances otherwise warrant. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Support for minor children is an obligation shared by both parents according to their relative abilities to provide support and the reasonable needs and estate of the child. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

But Equal Financial Contributions Are Not Necessarily Required. — Subsection (b) of this section provides that both mothers and fathers share primary liability for the support of their minor children, thus imposing an equal legal duty on the parent of each gender. However, subsection (b) neither mandates equal financial contributions nor requires any contribution from either party where it is proved that the circumstances otherwise warrant. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Equal legal duty to support does not impose an equal financial contribution by both parties. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Equal duty to support does not necessarily mean that the amount of child support is to be automatically divided equally between the parties. Rather, the amount of each parent's obligation varies in accordance with their respective financial resources. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Equal Financial Contributions Not Imposed Where Unfair or Burdensome. — The parental obligation for child support is not primarily an obligation of the father but is one shared by both parents. This equal duty to support, however, does not impose upon both parties an equal financial contribution when such an allocation would be unfair or place too great a burden on a party. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Discretion of Court as to Amount and Source of Support. — The trial court has considerable discretion in determining whether and in what amounts the party from whom support is sought may be ordered to provide it. Therefore, the trial court has a duty to exercise an informed and considered discretion with respect to the support obligation of the parties. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Amount of Each Party's Contribution Determined on Case-by-Case Basis. — The amount of each party's contribution to child support is generally determined by the judge on a case-by-case basis. The judge must evaluate the circumstances of each family and also consider certain statutory requirements in fixing the amount of child support. Subsection (c) of this section mandates that the trial judge consider the certain factors in setting child support amounts. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Relative Ability to Pay May Be Considered. — Although Session Laws 1981, c. 613 had the effect of changing the previous rule that the mother was only secondarily liable for child support, in all other relevant respects involving the relative ability or inability of the mother and father to provide such support, the relevant statutory provisions remained unchanged. Therefore, other circumstances may properly be considered, including the relative ability of the parties to pay. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

It was apparent from the record that the trial court considered both the existence and structure of appellee's trust fund and appellant's income as an ophthalmologist in making its determination that appellant should contribute one-half of child's necessary and actual expenses. It concluded that a father in an established ophthalmologic practice, and who had a 1991 income of at least $88,000 was able to contribute half of his child's support. Munn v. Munn, 112 N.C. App. 151, 435 S.E.2d 74 (1993).

Consideration of Ability to Pay — Procedure. — Defendant's contention that summary judgment was improper because he was financially unable to make the child support payments called for in the agreement would be relevant only to future payments and could be considered only after the defendant had filed a motion in the cause for the trial court to set an amount of child support which differs from that in the separation agreement. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Determination of Relative Ability. — The relative ability of the parties to contribute under subsections (b) and (c) of this section cannot depend solely on the determination of monthly available income after expenses. Rather, it must be reflective of all the relevant circumstances, including the relative hardship to each parent in contributing to the reasonable needs of the child. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Stepparent in Loco Parentis. — If an individual assumes the status of in loco parentis, he is secondarily liable to the child's natural parents for the support of that child, and if the needs of the child exceed the ability of the child's natural parents to meet those needs, then and only then is the individual in loco parentis secondarily responsible for the deficiency. Duffey v. Duffey, 113 N.C. App. 382, 438 S.E.2d 445 (1994).

By signing a separation agreement in which he agreed to pay child support to plaintiff, stepparent voluntarily and in writing extended his status of in loco parentis and gave the court the authority to order that support be paid. Duffey v. Duffey, 113 N.C. App. 382, 438 S.E.2d 445 (1994).

Child's Needs and Hardship to Each Parent Must Be Considered. — Enforcement of each parent's statutory duty to contribute child support depends on the urgency of the needs of the child and the relative hardship to each parent in contributing to these needs. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Children with Property of Their Own. — There is nothing in the statute to suggest any legislative intent to change the firmly established rule that the supporting parent who can do so remains obligated to support his or her minor children, even though they may have property of their own. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

Although trial court found as a fact that each child had an estate in excess of $300,000.00, the separate incomes and estates of children did not diminish or relieve the obligation of the defendant father to support his children, even though former husband's income was about $37,000.00. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

Education Needs of Child. — Although public funding may have been available for special education needs of child, but was not sought by custodial parent, court did not err in requiring noncustodial parent to pay costs of child's educational expenses in proportion to parent's gross income. Sikes v. Sikes, 98 N.C. App. 610, 391 S.E.2d 855 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 595, 411 S.E.2d 588 (1992).

Mother had to continue paying child support under subdivision (c)(2) of this section for her son who had turned 18 where, although he would not be able to receive a standard high school diploma because he had Down's Syndrome, his teacher and school counselor showed that his attendance at the school was in his best interests, that he would continue to benefit in the future from the curriculum, and that he was making satisfactory academic progress toward a non-traditional graduation. Hendricks v. Sanks, 143 N.C. App. 544, 545 S.E.2d 779 (2001).

Apportionment of Costs Is Not Required Where One Parent Is Unable to Assist in Support. — Although apportionment of the costs of a child's support between his father and mother according to their respective means and responsibilities is statutorily authorized, it is not required where the mother is financially unable to assist the father with the support of their son. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Support of Child Legitimated Under § 49-12. — Where the reputed father of a child marries the child's mother after its birth, under § 49-12 such child is deemed legitimate just as if it had been born in lawful wedlock, and such child is a minor child of the marriage; thus, the father may be required to furnish support for such child upon motion made either before or after decree of divorce. Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950).

Primary Liability of Father Under Former Provisions. — For cases as to father's primary liability and mother's secondary liability to support their children, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1981, c. 613, see Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N.C. 474, 37 S.E. 502 (1900); Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N.C. 319, 83 S.E. 490 (1914); Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976); Hicks v. Hicks, 34 N.C. App. 128, 237 S.E.2d 307 (1977); Coble v. Coble, 44 N.C. App. 327, 261 S.E.2d 34 (1979), rev'd on other grounds, 300 N.C. 708, 268 S.E.2d 185 (1980); Flippin v. Jarrell, 301 N.C. 108, 270 S.E.2d 482 (1980), rehearing denied, 301 N.C. 727, 274 S.E.2d 228 (1981); In re Register, 303 N.C. 149, 277 S.E.2d 356 (1981).

As to mother's standing formerly to bring claim for loss of child's services and medical expenses, based upon her formerly secondary support obligation, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1981, c. 613, see Flippin v. Jarrell, 301 N.C. 108, 270 S.E.2d 482 (1980), rehearing denied, 301 N.C. 727, 274 S.E.2d 228 (1981).

Father's Reduction in Payments as Evidence He Had Not Met Obligations. — Where judge found that mother provided no evidence that she was entitled to payment of back child support, the evidence did not support the judge's finding; there was evidence that father had not met his child support obligations where father testified that in 1985, he reduced the amount of the payments due to a decrease in salary. Correll v. Allen, 94 N.C. App. 464, 380 S.E.2d 580 (1989).

Equitable Estoppel Did Not Bar Claim for Past Support. — Even assuming that on some set of facts equitable estoppel might properly bar a claim for child support arrears, it was inapplicable where husband, seeking to rely on equitable estoppel, could not show that, in good faith reliance on the conduct of his ex-wife, he had changed his position for the worse; the only change made in his position was the retention to his benefit of money owed for the support of his children. Griffin v. Griffin, 96 N.C. App. 324, 385 S.E.2d 526 (1989).

Applicability of Doctrine of "Necessaries". — Although the normal vehicle today for enforcing the obligation of support is undoubtedly the payment of court-ordered support pursuant to statute, the common law provided another vehicle through the so-called doctrine of "necessaries." North Carolina accepts this process for enforcing a parent's obligation to support minor children. Alamance County Hosp. v. Neighbors, 315 N.C. 362, 338 S.E.2d 87 (1986).

Support Obligation of Noncustodial Parent. — Under new child Support Guidelines an adjustment in support obligation of noncustodial parent is reduced only when each parent has child for more than 33 percent of year. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Right of Third Party to Recover for "Necessaries" Furnished to Child. — Because a child's right to support continues unimpaired despite the divorce of his or her parents, the right of a third party provider of goods or services to claim against the noncustodial parent also continues, unimpaired by contracts or judicial decrees or orders affecting the relations between the parents. Alamance County Hosp. v. Neighbors, 315 N.C. 362, 338 S.E.2d 87 (1986).

The payment of court-ordered child support does not bar a third party from seeking reimbursement directly from a noncustodial parent for "necessaries" provided to that parent's minor child. However, because the third party provider's right to recover against the parent is based upon the child's right to support, the third party provider must still show that the services or goods provided were legal "necessaries" and that the parent against whom relief is sought has failed or refused to provide them. In this context, any payment a noncustodial parent has made for the support of his or her child would be a factor for the trial judge to consider in deciding whether the parent has in fact met the obligation to support that child. Alamance County Hosp. v. Neighbors, 315 N.C. 362, 338 S.E.2d 87 (1986).

Non-Biological Parents. — The court will not impose the burden of child support on a non-biological parent who has not voluntarily assumed such an obligation. Pott v. Pott, 126 N.C. App. 285, 484 S.E.2d 822 (1997).

Persons Standing in Loco Parentis. — Although support of a child ordinarily is a parental obligation, other persons standing in loco parentis may also acquire a duty to support the child; thus, in a case where custodial father and child had believed him to be the father of the child, the duty of support should have accompanied the right to custody. Price v. Howard, 346 N.C. 68, 484 S.E.2d 528 (1997).

Parents of Unemancipated Minors Primarily Responsible for Grandchildren's Support. — The statutory language of this section, coupled with the legislative intent, imposes primary responsibility for an infant born to unemancipated minors on the minors' parents (i.e. the infant's grandparents). Whitman v. Kiger, 139 N.C. App. 44, 533 S.E.2d 807 (2000), aff'd, 353 N.C. 360, 543 S.E.2d 476 (2001).

IV. AMOUNT OF SUPPORT.

A. In General.

History and Purpose of Guidelines. — As of July 1, 1991, the State adopted guidelines based on income-sharing approach for determining child support. These guidelines were promulgated by Conference of Chief District Judges in accordance with subsection (c1) of this section. Income-sharing formulas ignore problem of attempting to determine cost of raising a child and are based instead on assumption that each parent will contribute all of his or her income to one fund. Then the formulas provide method for equitably dividing income among family members. Income-sharing formulas seeking to equalize financial burden of divorce so that all family members experience about same proportional reduction in standard of living after divorce. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Effective Date of Guidelines. — At time support order was entered in June, 1989, the Guidelines in subsection (c1) of this section were only advisory in nature. The Guidelines became presumptive as of October 1, 1989. New presumptive guidelines became effective July 1, 1990. Therefore, at the time, (June 1989) order was entered, trial judge was neither required to follow nor refer to advisory guidelines in order. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

The amount of a parent's child support obligation is determined by application of the Child Support Guidelines. Barham v. Barham, 127 N.C. App. 20, 487 S.E.2d 774 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. 570, 494 S.E.2d 763 (1998).

Guidelines Are Not Mandatory But Advisory. — An examination and interpretation of subsection (c1) as written clearly indicates that the guidelines prescribed by the Conference of Chief District Court Judges are not mandatory and binding but rather advisory in nature. Morris v. Morris, 92 N.C. App. 359, 374 S.E.2d 441 (1988), decided prior to later amendments to subsection (c1).

Deviation From Guidelines. — According to the statute, the trial court has the discretion to deviate from the presumptive guidelines in only two situations: (1) when application does not meet or exceeds the reasonable needs of the child; or (2) when application would be unjust or inappropriate. Guilford County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Easter v. Easter, 120 N.C. App. 260, 461 S.E.2d 798 (1995), modified, 344 N.C. 166, 473 S.E.2d 6 (1996).

A trial court may deviate from the Guidelines when it finds, by the greater weight of the evidence, application of the Guidelines: (1) would not meet or would exceed the reasonable needs of the child considering the relative ability of each parent to provide support; or (2) would be otherwise unjust or inappropriate. Barham v. Barham, 127 N.C. App. 20, 487 S.E.2d 774 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. 570, 494 S.E.2d 763 (1998).

Deviation from Guidelines Improper. — Trial court's findings that mother's live-in boyfriend earned $16.61 per hour and worked forty hours a week was insufficient to support the decision to deviate from the Child Support Guidelines. State ex rel. Carteret Child Support Enforcement Office ex rel. Horne v. Horne, 127 N.C. App. 387, 489 S.E.2d 431 (1997).

Automatic Support Increases. — Provision in judgment by confession ordering automatic child support increases based upon the C.P.I. was void where it did not contain the requirements for a valid annual adjustment formula in Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 831 (1981). Snipes v. Snipes, 118 N.C. App. 189, 454 S.E.2d 864 (1995).

The determination of child support must be done in such way as to result in fairness to all parties. Walker v. Walker, 38 N.C. App. 226, 247 S.E.2d 615 (1978); Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Ultimate Objective. — While it is the legal obligation of the father (now father and mother) to provide for the support of his minor children, and while the welfare of the child is a primary consideration in matters of custody and maintenance, yet common sense and common justice dictate that the ultimate object in such matters is to secure support commensurate with the needs of the child and the ability of the father to meet the needs. Holt v. Holt, 29 N.C. App. 124, 223 S.E.2d 542 (1976).

No precise formula exists to assist the court in determining a fair support award, and the uniqueness of each divorce renders a precedent almost valueless. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Request for Variance from Child Support Guidelines. — Section 50-13.4 does not identify any time restrictions for making the request for a hearing. However, to effectuate the purpose of that statute, any party in a pending action requesting a variance from the guidelines must, unless the request is made in the original pleadings, give at least ten days written notice as required by this section. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

In deviating from child support guidelines, the trial court was required to make findings of fact as to the criteria that justified varying from the guidelines and the basis of the amount ordered; the court committed error because its findings were insufficient to meet this requirement. Gowing v. Gowing, 111 N.C. App. 613, 432 S.E.2d 911 (1993).

Failure to follow the presumptive child-support guidelines prescribed pursuant to subsection (c1) required that a support order be reversed; the guidelines were not mentioned in the order and the order did not make reference to any of the factors used to vary a support payment from the presumptive amounts. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

In child support action, trial court must first determine primary liability for minor child's support under subsection (b). The court then determines the actual amount of support necessary to meet the minor child's reasonable needs pursuant to subsection (c). McLemore v. McLemore, 89 N.C. App. 451, 366 S.E.2d 495 (1988).

Deviation from Guidelines in Special Needs Case. — The trial court erred in simply halving the mother's child support obligation when she was no longer liable for the support of one of the two children; the court was required to hold a hearing and make findings of fact when it deviated from the Child Support Guidelines, and, considering the second child's special needs, an amount higher than one-half of the original total might have been more appropriate. Hendricks v. Sanks, 143 N.C. App. 544, 545 S.E.2d 779 (2001).

Ability to Pay and Needs of Child Must Be Considered. — Ordinarily, in entering a judgment for the support of a minor child, the ability to pay, as well as the needs of such child, will be taken into consideration. Bishop v. Bishop, 245 N.C. 573, 96 S.E.2d 721 (1957); Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963); Coggins v. Coggins, 260 N.C. 765, 133 S.E.2d 700 (1963).

In providing for the support of minor children, the ability of the father (or mother) to pay, as well as the needs of the children, must be taken into consideration by the court. Martin v. Martin, 263 N.C. 86, 138 S.E.2d 801 (1964).

In determining the amount of support, the court must take into consideration the needs of the children and the ability of the defendant to pay during the time for which reimbursement is sought. Hicks v. Hicks, 34 N.C. App. 128, 237 S.E.2d 307 (1977).

An order for child support must be based not only on the needs of the child, but also on the ability of the father (or mother) to meet the needs. Poston v. Poston, 40 N.C. App. 210, 252 S.E.2d 240 (1979).

In order to be fair and just, the court entering an order for child support must consider not only the needs of the child, but also the abilities of the parents to provide support. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

An order for child support must be based upon the interplay of the trial court's conclusions of law as to (1) the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child and (2) the relative ability of the parties to provide that amount. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Computing the amount of child support is normally an exercise of sound judicial discretion, requiring the judge to review all of the evidence before him. Absent a clear abuse of discretion, a judge's determination of what is a proper amount of support will not be disturbed on appeal. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

The trial court's findings lacked the necessary specificity to justify its deviation from child support guidelines, where it failed to make any findings regarding the child's reasonable needs, including his education, maintenance, or accustomed standard of living. State ex rel. Fisher v. Lukinoff, 131 N.C. App. 642, 507 S.E.2d 591 (1998).

When Ability to Pay Determined. — A party's ability to pay child support is determined by the party's ability to pay at the time the award is made or modified. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

As Basis of Order for Child Support. — An order for child support under this section must be based upon the interplay of the trial court's conclusions of law as to (1) the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child, and (2) the relative ability of the parties to provide that amount. Coble v. Coble, 300 N.C. 708, 268 S.E.2d 185 (1980); In re Biggers, 50 N.C. App. 332, 274 S.E.2d 236 (1981); Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982); In re Allen, 58 N.C. App. 322, 293 S.E.2d 607 (1982); Byrd v. Byrd, 62 N.C. App. 438, 303 S.E.2d 205 (1983); Campbell v. Campbell, 63 N.C. App. 113, 304 S.E.2d 262, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 460, 307 S.E.2d 362 (1983); Newman v. Newman, 64 N.C. App. 125, 306 S.E.2d 540, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983).

Along with Other Relevant Facts. — A court, when entering an order for support, should take into account the needs of the child, the resources of the parties and any other facts relevant to the case. McCall v. McCall, 61 N.C. App. 312, 300 S.E.2d 591 (1983).

Using disposable income (net income after expenses) is a way to fairly reflect the parties relative ability to contribute proportionately to support of the child. Savani v. Savani, 102 N.C. App. 496, 403 S.E.2d 900 (1991).

With Reference to the Special Circumstances of the Parties. — What amount is reasonable for a child's support is to be determined with reference to the special circumstances of the particular parties. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

Judge's consideration of the factors contained in subsection (c) of this section is not guided by any magic formula. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Vacation of Support Order Absent Evidence as to Parent's Ability to Pay and Child's Needs. — An order for child support will necessarily be vacated where there is no evidence offered as to a party's ability to pay or where there is no evidence as to the child's needs and expenses. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 73, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

Parent's Circumstances Must Be Evaluated. — The amount of each parent's contribution to the support of the child is based upon the trial court's evaluation of each parent's circumstances, including a determination of certain factors mandated by subsection (c) of this section. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

"Cost Sharing" Formula Improper. — Use of any cost-sharing formula by a trial judge is now improper in North Carolina. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

"Cost-sharing" approach to child support awards embodied in the Franks formula criticized by North Carolina Court of Appeals when applied to case arising before July 1, 1990, effective date of this section. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Under this section and § 50-13.7, party's ability to pay child support is ordinarily determined by party's actual income at time the support award is made or modified. However, if there is a finding by the trial court that the party was acting in bad faith by deliberately depressing his or her income or otherwise disregarding the obligation to pay child support, then the party's capacity to earn may be the basis for the award. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Interest in Corporations or Partnerships and Nontaxable Income Relevant. — The value and nature of defendant's interest in any partnerships or corporations and the terms of any trust of which he might be the beneficiary, as well as the amount of income, including non-taxable, deferred or declined income, flowing therefrom, would all bear relevance to child support proceeding. Shaw v. Cameron, 125 N.C. App. 522, 481 S.E.2d 365 (1997).

Encumbered Cash Reserve Funds of Corporation. — The trial court's exclusion of plaintiff's corporation's encumbered cash reserve funds in its calculation of child support was prejudicial error. Barham v. Barham, 127 N.C. App. 20, 487 S.E.2d 774 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. 570, 494 S.E.2d 763 (1998).

Exclusive Ownership or Control of Estate Irrelevant. — Any judgment rendered against defendant setting an amount of child support would be dependent in significant part upon the amount of his income and the nature of his estate, whether exclusively owned or controlled by defendant, or jointly with others. Shaw v. Cameron, 125 N.C. App. 522, 481 S.E.2d 365 (1997).

Estate and Earnings of Both Husband and Wife Must Be Considered. — The court must consider not only the needs of the wife and children, but also the estate and earnings of both husband and wife. Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978); Walker v. Tucker, 69 N.C. App. 607, 317 S.E.2d 923 (1984).

Order which contained no findings of fact regarding plaintiff's earnings or employment status was not supported by sufficient findings of fact. Smith v. Smith, 103 N.C. App. 488, 405 S.E.2d 912 (1991).

Ordinarily, Present Earnings Should Be Basis for Award. — In determining the ability of the father (or mother) to support the child, the court ordinarily should examine the father's (or mother's) present earnings, rather than select the earnings for a single year in the past and use that as the basis for an award. Holt v. Holt, 29 N.C. App. 124, 223 S.E.2d 542 (1976).

If father (or mother) is honestly and in good faith engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted, and is making a good faith effort to earn a reasonable income, the award for child support should be based on the amount which defendant is earning when the award is made. Holt v. Holt, 29 N.C. App. 124, 223 S.E.2d 542 (1976).

Ordinarily, father's (or mother's) ability to pay is determined by his income at the time the award is made if father (or mother) is honestly engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted and is in fact seeking to operate his business profitably. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Whitley v. Whitley, 46 N.C. App. 810, 266 S.E.2d 23 (1980).

The general rule is that the ability of a party to pay child support is determined by that person's income at the time the award is made. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

The ability of the supporting spouse to pay is ordinarily determined by his or her income at the time the award is made. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

But capacity to earn may be the basis of an award if it is based upon a proper finding that father (or mother) is deliberately depressing his income or indulging himself in excessive spending because of a disregard of his obligation to provide reasonable support for his spouse and children. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976).

A person's capacity to earn income may be made the basis of an award if there is a finding that the party deliberately depressed his or her income or otherwise acted in deliberate disregard of the obligation to provide reasonable support for the child. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

Under this section and § 50-13.7, father's (or mother's) ability to pay child support is normally determined by his actual income at the time the award is made or modified. If, however, there is a finding that father (or mother) is deliberately depressing his income or otherwise acting in deliberate disregard of his obligation to provide reasonable support for his child, his capacity to earn may be made the basis of the award. Under these circumstances, his motion to reduce the amount of child support will be denied. Goodhouse v. DeFravio, 57 N.C. App. 124, 290 S.E.2d 751 (1982).

When the trial court makes a finding that a party deliberately depressed his or her income, then the party's capacity to earn or his potential income may be used to determine the child upport obligation. McDonald v. Taylor, 106 N.C. App. 18, 415 S.E.2d 81 (1992).

Where plaintiff took early retirement at age 51, with a 3 year old daughter to support, chose to remain unemployed, despite having many skills, and there was testimony that plaintiff could earn at least $20,000 without decreasing his retirement benefits, the trial court properly based child support award on plaintiff's potential income. Osborne v. Osborne, 129 N.C. App. 34, 497 S.E.2d 113 (1998).

Finding Where Award Is Based on Capacity to Earn. — To base an award for child support on capacity to earn rather than actual earnings, there should be a finding based on evidence that father (or mother) is failing to exercise his capacity to earn because of a disregard of his obligation to provide reasonable support for his spouse and children. Holt v. Holt, 29 N.C. App. 124, 223 S.E.2d 542 (1976); Stanley v. Stanley, 51 N.C. App. 172, 275 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 303 N.C. 182, 280 S.E.2d 454, appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 959, 102 S. Ct. 496, 70 L. Ed. 2d 374 (1981).

Only where there are findings, based on competent evidence, to support a conclusion that the supporting spouse or parent is deliberately depressing his or her income to avoid family responsibilities can the "earning capacity" rule be applied. Whitley v. Whitley, 46 N.C. App. 810, 266 S.E.2d 23 (1980); Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

A party's capacity to earn income may become the basis of an award if it is found that the party deliberately depressed its income or otherwise acted in deliberate disregard of the obligation to provide reasonable support for the child. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

When calculating the child support obligation owed by a parent, a showing of bad faith income depression by the parent is a mandatory prerequisite for imputing income to that parent. Sharpe v. Nobles, 127 N.C. App. 705, 493 S.E.2d 288 (1997).

Must Be Sufficient Evidence of Proscribed Intent. — A trial court's conclusion underlying imposition of the earnings capacity rule must be based upon evidence that the actions which reduced the party's income were not taken in good faith. There must be sufficient evidence of the proscribed intent. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Consideration of Spouse's Capacity to Earn Held Error. — Trial court could not consider father's capacity to earn in computing his income where the evidence indicated that he lost his job due to no fault of his own, and the court's order contained no findings that he had deliberately stopped working to avoid his support obligations. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

Support Should Not Have Been Based on Earning Capacity. — Where there was no evidence that defendant was engaging in any tactics to avoid paying child support, defendant had purchased a substantial amount of farm equipment for use in his farming operation, and he had experienced a net loss from farming for the last three years but had made a profit from this business in the past, the evidence pointed to a genuine effort by defendant to engage in his chosen profession and to support his family as well; therefore, the case was remanded so the court could make a determination based upon defendant's present earnings instead of his earning capacity. Cameron v. Cameron, 94 N.C. App. 168, 380 S.E.2d 121 (1989).

Wrongful Inclusion of Future Personal Expenditures. — Where trial court includes personal expenditures not yet made by party with no concrete plans to make such an expenditure, award entered cannot possibly reflect the relative abilities of parties to pay support at that time. Witherow v. Witherow, 99 N.C. App. 61, 392 S.E.2d 627 (1990).

Determination of trial court not necessary to make finding of bad faith in reduction of income where the party seeking support modification was the custodial parent was not supported by current case law, nor was the trial court correct in concluding that when a custodial parent sought a change of child support based upon a reduction in income, that custodial parent had to request the court to make a finding of fact as to his or her "good faith." Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

The inclusion of a gift when calculating a defendant's income for child support purposes was an error, where there was no evidence on the part of defendant's parents that such a gift would be reoccurring. Sloan v. Sloan, 87 N.C. App. 392, 360 S.E.2d 816 (1987).

Non-interest Bearing Demand Note Not by Itself a Gift. — The fact that no demand had been made on a non-interest bearing demand note from defendant's parents did not render it a gift, and the trial court's finding that the transaction was a gift was erroneous. Sloan v. Sloan, 87 N.C. App. 392, 360 S.E.2d 816 (1987).

Third-party contributions may be used to support a deviation from North Carolina Child Support Guidelines, even where third parties are under no legal obligation to make such payments. Guilford County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement Agency ex rel. Easter v. Easter, 344 N.C. 166, 473 S.E.2d 6 (1996).

Earnings of Child. — In a case involving child support payments, the trial court erred in refusing to admit the children's tax returns into evidence, the only information concerning the estate and earnings of the children. Sloan v. Sloan, 87 N.C. App. 392, 360 S.E.2d 816 (1987).

Education and Insurance Expenses. — Defendant's argument that provisions to pay for higher education and to provide life and health insurance were not in the nature of child support was not without merit. Smith v. Smith, 121 N.C. App. 334, 465 S.E.2d 52 (1996).

Disability Checks Received on Behalf of Child. — Trial court properly refused to consider a disability check received by disabled defendant on child's behalf as defendant's income in figuring his obligation, but erred in allowing defendant to receive the money for his own use. Sain v. Sain, 134 N.C. App. 460, 517 S.E.2d 921 (1999).

Medical insurance premiums paid by a parent on behalf of a child are actual expenditures which must be considered in computing retroactive child support. Lawrence v. Tise, 107 N.C. App. 140, 419 S.E.2d 176 (1992).

Failure of the trial court to treat a portion of mother's premiums as an actual expenditure for the purposes of calculating retroactive support was not error, because there was no evidence in the record to support a finding on the portion of the premiums for the joint policy attributable only to coverage of the child. In the absence of such evidence, the trial court would only be speculating as to the child's share of the cost, and this it could not do. Lawrence v. Tise, 107 N.C. App. 140, 419 S.E.2d 176 (1992).

Consideration of Health Insurance Coverage Erroneous. — According to former subdivision (c1)(6) of this section, the trial court was not allowed to vary the presumptive amount of child support based upon the "provision of health insurance coverage;" therefore, by varying the presumptive guideline amount because of the defendant's maintenance of health insurance on the plaintiff and the children, the trial court acted in violation of this section. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

Reconsideration of Alimony or Child Support After Equitable Distribution. — Section 50-20 (f) obviously contemplates that child support order may precede equitable distribution order. No child support order is ever final and delaying child support order in lengthy case until after equitable distribution issue was decided would have prolonged an already long-pending case. Trial court's decision to enter child support order prior to determination of equitable distribution issue was under the statute. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Amount of Award Is Within Trial Court's Discretion. — Once an award is found to be justified, the amount lies within the trial court's discretion and will not be disturbed absent manifest abuse. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

Amount Should Be Fair and Not Confiscatory. — An order for the maintenance of a child should be in an amount that is fair and not confiscatory in light of the parent's earning ability. Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985). See also, Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963).

Allowance Should Be Made for Parent's Living Expenses. — In determining the amount of an order for the support of children, a reasonable allowance should be made for the living expenses of their father (or mother) in the light of his earnings. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963).

Dividing Parent's Income by Number of Dependents Is Disapproved. — Fixing the amount of support for minor children by dividing the income of their father (or mother) by the number of people dependent upon him for support is not approved. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963).

Conduct of Parties May Be Considered. — In addition to the factors enumerated in subsection (c) of this section, the trial court may consider the conduct of the parties, the equities of the given case, and any other relevant facts in determining child support. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

This section clearly allows the trial court to consider other facts of the particular case in arriving at the amount of defendant's share of support in an action for reimbursement. Thus, while the defendant's ability to pay and his earning capacity are factors to be considered, they are not controlling. The court may also consider the conduct of the parties and the equities of the case. Stanley v. Stanley, 51 N.C. App. 172, 275 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 303 N.C. 182, 280 S.E.2d 454, appeal dismissed, 454 U.S. 959, 102 S. Ct. 496, 70 L. Ed. 2d 374 (1981).

Findings and Conclusions of Law Required. — In setting amounts for child support, where the trial court sits without a jury, the judge is required to find the facts specially and state separately its conclusions of law thereon, and to direct the entry of the appropriate judgment. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Findings Must Indicate Consideration of Needs and Earnings. — Conclusions of law must be based upon factual findings specific enough to indicate to the appellate court that the judge below took due regard of the particular estates, earnings, conditions, and accustomed standard of living of both the child and the parents. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Findings as to Child's Past and Present Expenses Required. — In order to determine the reasonable needs of the child, the trial court must hear evidence and make findings of specific fact on the child's actual past expenditures and present reasonable expenses. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Minor child's hospitalization and its resulting costs constituted a substantial change in circumstances. Thus case was remanded to take into account the parties' abilities to provide support for the minor child's medical expenses and to enter an order modifying the support order. Lawrence v. Nantz, 115 N.C. App. 478, 445 S.E.2d 87 (1994).

Award Where Father Has Substantial Income. — In an action for child support, the court, in making its award, should keep in mind that children of a man of substantial income are entitled to live accordingly. McLeod v. McLeod, 43 N.C. App. 66, 258 S.E.2d 75, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 807, 261 S.E.2d 920 (1979).

Credit for Voluntary Expenditures. — As to granting of credit towards payment of court-ordered child support for voluntary expenditures, see Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977).

The trial court has a wide discretion in deciding initially whether justice requires that a credit be given under the facts of each case and then in what amount the credit is to be awarded. The better view allows credit when equitable considerations exist which would create an injustice if credit were not allowed. Evans v. Craddock, 61 N.C. App. 438, 300 S.E.2d 908 (1983).

Expenses During Visitation. — Credit is not likely to be appropriate for frivolous expenses or for expenses incurred in entertaining or feeding the child during visitation periods. Evans v. Craddock, 61 N.C. App. 438, 300 S.E.2d 908 (1983).

Whether credit is allowed for time spent in visitation with the noncustodial parent depends on the facts of the particular case and is a matter within the court's discretion, as the fact that a child spends a certain amount of time with one parent does not necessarily mean that his reasonable and necessary living expenses are incurred proportionally. Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

Trial court's use of one-third of mother's total fixed expenses to establish reasonable needs of child was neither unfair nor impermissible where the expense figures in mother's affidavit of financial status included expenses only for herself and the child, as she had not remarried, and furthermore, where the trial court not only found that mother's living expenses were reasonable, but also reduced several of the figures on the affidavit before making that finding, and where, with the exception of the amount of scheduled visitation, father presented no evidence on which the court could have based other findings regarding the child's expenses and needs. Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

Parties Cannot Consent to Improperly Based Order. — The parties, by their consent, cannot enable a trial judge to enter an order not based upon consideration of the several factors listed in subsection (c) of this section and § 50-16.5(a). Williamson v. Williamson, 20 N.C. App. 669, 202 S.E.2d 489 (1974).

Method of Payment Is Within Discretion of Court. — In utilizing the provision in subsection (e) of this section that payment for the support of a minor child shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property of any interest therein as the court may order, the trial court is vested with broad discretion, and is not limited to ordering any one of the designated methods of payment. In keeping with the court's powers, an order under this section will be upheld barring an abuse of that discretion. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

Trial court's creation of a trust consisting of certain real and personal property owned by the parties in order to secure payment of alimony and child support was a proper exercise of its discretion in applying the provisions of subsection (e) of this section and § 50-16.7(a) and (c) and would be affirmed. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

Amount Not Excessive. — Where defendant earned one hundred thirty-two dollars ($132.00) a week and had monthly expenses in the amount of fifty-two dollars ($52.00), the court's order for defendant to pay one hundred dollars ($100.00) per month in child support was not an abuse of discretion; defendant had been paying plaintiff one hundred dollars ($100.00) per week voluntarily for several months prior to the hearing, had testified that he would continue to do so, and the court had made extensive findings regarding the child's needs, the parents' estates and earnings, etc. Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

Yearly support payment of $37,871.89 held not excessive where payor earned about $200,000.00 per year and where family enjoyed very high standard of living prior to dissolution of marriage and where court found, based on payor's testimony, that payor could pay any amount court might order up to and including $71,318.04. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Improper Reduction of Child Support Payments. — Reducing child support payments by subtracting amount of money calculated to represent what custodial parent saves in expenses while the child is visiting with noncustodial parent was improper. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

Consideration of Shared Custody Justified. — Fact that defendant had sole custody of one of the children and furnished the child's sole support, while defendant contributed to the support of the two children in plaintiff's custody, clearly justified the trial court's consideration of the shared custody factor; trial court was not required to make findings as to how or why this custody arrangement rendered guidelines adopted pursuant to subsection (c1) inapplicable where the guidelines provided for support payments to be based upon the noncustodial parent's gross income. Morris v. Morris, 92 N.C. App. 359, 374 S.E.2d 441 (1988).

Imputed Income. — Where there was no evidence that defendant, who worked for a school system as a psychologist, intentionally depressed his income or otherwise engaged in bad faith, the trial court erred by imputing income to defendant for four weeks during the school district summer recess. Ellis v. Ellis, 126 N.C. App. 362, 485 S.E.2d 82 (1997).

Sufficient Findings by the Court. — In spite of trial court's failure to make finding as to husband's net income, court's findings regarding gross income of husband and wife along with wife's net income and children's expenses was sufficient to satisfy requirement under this section that court give due regard to parties' estates, earnings, conditions and standard of living in setting child support. Sikes v. Sikes, 98 N.C. App. 610, 391 S.E.2d 855 (1990), aff'd, 330 N.C. 595, 411 S.E.2d 588 (1992).

Income of Business in which Defendant Held Controlling Interest. — Court neither abused its discretion nor imputed income to defendant when it allocated to him the amount of income earned by the business in which he held 51% and controlled disbursement of corporate funds. Cauble v. Cauble, 133 N.C. App. 390, 515 S.E.2d 708 (1999).

Use of Accrual Figures. — Use of accrual figures in the trial court's calculations was reflective of an appropriate level of gross income available to the defendant and not manifestly unsupported by reason. Cauble v. Cauble, 133 N.C. App. 390, 515 S.E.2d 708 (1999).

Court's findings were insufficient to support awarding no support under subsection (c) since the court failed to determine what were the reasonable needs of the minor child for health, education, and maintenance. McLemore v. McLemore, 89 N.C. App. 451, 366 S.E.2d 495 (1988).

In an action seeking an increase in child support over the amount set forth in separation agreement, order which contained no specific findings with respect to the actual past or present expenses incurred for the support of the children was insufficient to support the court's conclusion that the reasonable needs of the children amounted to $2,800.00 per month. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

Where the trial court made no findings whatsoever with respect to the parties' "estates, earnings, conditions, [and] accustomed standard of living" for the year 1984, its award of retroactive child support would be vacated since it was not based on sufficient findings pertaining to the year 1984. Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Refusal to Consider Reduction in Income. — Trial court erred in concluding that reduction in income of father, the custodial parent, due to leaving employment to return to school, could not be considered on motion to increase plaintiff's child support obligations. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Remand to Allow Court to Make Findings. — Appellate court remanded case to allow trial court to make findings concerning the reasonable needs of child, the relative ability of the parents to support the child, and a determination of whether a variation from the Guidelines was appropriate on these grounds. Brooker v. Brooker, 133 N.C. App. 285, 515 S.E.2d 234 (1999).

Findings Unsupported by Evidence. — Judge erred by ordering mother to pay four hundred eighty dollars ($480.00) per month in child support; the figures of five hundred dollars ($500.00) and four hundred eighty dollars ($480.00) were not supported by any evidence in the record on appeal and, despite the absence of mother's financial records, the judge could have determined the child's reasonable needs through evidence offered by father; however, the figures the judge arrived at were unsupported by father's testimony, and were not supported by any of the previous orders entered in the case. Correll v. Allen, 94 N.C. App. 464, 380 S.E.2d 580 (1989).

Reduction of Income on Return to School. — Trial court erred in concluding reduction in income of father, custodial parent, due to leaving employment to return to school, could not be considered on motion to increase plaintiff's child support obligations. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Accustomed Standard of Living. — Where the trial court unequivocally disregarded the principle that the accustomed standard of living is a factor to be considered and, instead based alimony on the standard of living the parties maintained after the divorce there was prejudicial error. Barham v. Barham, 127 N.C. App. 20, 487 S.E.2d 774 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. 570, 494 S.E.2d 763 (1998).

Change in Circumstances Not Shown. — Where the trial court found that defendant voluntarily quit his job, willfully and intentionally depressed his income, and failed to meet his burden of proof in showing a substantial change of circumstances, the court entered a judgment against defendant denying his motion to reduce child support by reason of substantial change of circumstances. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

B. Effect of Separation Agreements, Consent Judgments and Arbitration Awards.

Separation Agreements Are Not Binding on the Court. — Valid separation agreements, including consent judgments with respect to marital rights based on such agreements, are not final and binding as to the amount to be provided for the support and education of minor children. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966), decided under former § 50-13.

Valid separation agreements relating to marital and property rights of the parties are not final and binding as to the custody of minor children or as to the amount to be provided for the support and education of such minor children. Perry v. Perry, 33 N.C. App. 139, 234 S.E.2d 449, cert. denied, 292 N.C. 730, 235 S.E.2d 784 (1977).

And Cannot Deprive the Court of Its Authority. — Separation agreement dealing with the custody and the support of the children of the parties cannot deprive the court of its inherent as well as statutory authority to protect the interests of and provide for the welfare of minors. McKaughn v. McKaughn, 29 N.C. App. 702, 225 S.E.2d 616 (1976).

While the court cannot relieve parent of any contractual obligation he assumed to support his child in excess of what the law would require, it can, in the exercise of its inherent and statutory authority to provide for the welfare of minors, order payment of an amount either larger or smaller than that provided for in separation agreement. Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Arbitration Awards Also Remain Reviewable and Modifiable. — Just as parents cannot by agreement deprive the courts of their duty to promote the best interests of their children, they cannot do so by arbitration. Hence those provisions of an arbitration award concerning custody and child support, like those provisions in a separation agreement, will remain reviewable and modifiable by the court. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Court Retains Jurisdiction Despite Support Provisions of Separation Agreement or Arbitration Award. — While the amount of child support agreed on by the parties to a separation agreement is presumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, to be just and reasonable, it remains within the authority of the courts pursuant to this Chapter to order payments for support in such amounts as will meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, and accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, the child care and homemaker contributions of each party, and other facts of the particular case. The same reasoning applies to an arbitration award concerning child support. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

But Separation Agreements and Consent Judgments Cannot Be Ignored. — Provisions of a valid separation agreement, including a consent judgment based thereon, cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without the consent of the parties. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966), decided under former § 50-13.

A valid separation agreement cannot be ignored or set aside by the court without the consent of the parties. Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

Level of Support in Separation Agreement Is Only One Factor in Decision. — When a trial court is called upon for the first time to determine the appropriate level of child support payments agreed upon in separation agreements, the "presumption" of reasonableness of the agreed upon level of support in such cases is one of evidence only; that is, the agreed upon level of support constitutes some evidence of the appropriate level of support, but that this evidence must be weighed and considered by the trial court together with all other relevant and competent evidence bearing upon the statutory factors set out in subsection (c) of this section; in other words, the trial court is writing upon a clean slate, and the previously agreed upon level of support is but one factor to be considered. Morris v. Morris, 92 N.C. App. 359, 374 S.E.2d 441 (1988).

When Agreement May Be Modified. — A separation agreement is a contract between the parties, and the court is without power to modify it except (1) to provide for adequate support for minor children, and (2) with the mutual consent of the parties thereto where rights of third parties have not intervened. McKaughn v. McKaughn, 29 N.C. App. 702, 225 S.E.2d 616 (1976).

Amount Set by Agreement Is Presumptively Just and Reasonable. — Where parties to a separation agreement agree upon the amount for the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon is just and reasonable. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963); Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

And May Not Be Changed Absent Change in Conditions. — Where parties to a separation agreement agree concerning the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the provisions mutually agreed upon are just and reasonable, and the court is not warranted in ordering a change in the absence of any evidence of a change in conditions. McKaughn v. McKaughn, 29 N.C. App. 702, 225 S.E.2d 616 (1976).

Or Absent Need for Increase. — Where parties to a separation agreement agree upon the amount for the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon is just and reasonable. Upon motion, a trial court may not order an increase in the absence of any evidence of a change in conditions or of the need for such increase, particularly when the increase is awarded solely on grounds that the father's income has increased so that he is able to pay a larger amount. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

Child Referred to in Consent Judgment Is Under Protective Custody of Court. — Even though an order requiring father to make payments for the support of his child was entered by consent of the parents, the child was under the protective custody of the court. Smith v. Smith, 247 N.C. 223, 100 S.E.2d 370 (1957), rev'd on other grounds, 248 N.C. 298, 103 S.E.2d 400 (1958).

The effect of an order setting a lesser amount of child support than that provided for by separation agreement is not to deprive the custodial parent of her contractual right to recover the sums provided for in the agreement, but to limit her contempt remedy to the sums provided for by the court order. Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Right of Party to Separation Agreement to Bring Action. — When a case is properly before it, the court has the duty to award custody in accordance with the best interests of the child, and no agreement, consent or condition between the parents can interfere with this duty or bind the court. Thus, the existence of a valid separation agreement containing provisions relating to the custody and support of minor children does not prevent one of the parties to the agreement from instituting an action for a judicial determination of those same matters. Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979).

The existence of a valid separation agreement relating to child support or custody does not prevent one of the parties from instituting an action for a judicial determination of those same matters. Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

As to effect of reconciliation and resumption of cohabitation on a separation agreement, see Hand v. Hand, 46 N.C. App. 82, 264 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 556, 270 S.E.2d 107 (1980).

No Obligation to Support Child Past Majority Despite Disability. — Where mother's testimony offered at the hearing showed that son was 18 years old, had graduated from high school, had a part-time job, and was attempting to raise money to go to college, and mother further testified that son was not a normal 18 year old since he was involved in a wreck, trial court was without authority to order father to pay child support arrearages of five hundred dollars ($500.00); the evidence showed that pursuant to subdivision (c)(2) of this section, defendant was relieved of any obligation to support his son after his graduation from high school on June 5, 1988, and even if mother's evidence was sufficient to show that son was physically or mentally incapable of self-support, there was no longer a statutory obligation for parents to support their disabled adult children. State v. Benfield, 95 N.C. App. 451, 382 S.E.2d 776 (1989).

Obligation to Pay Is Independent of Compliance with Unrelated Provisions in Agreement. — The duty of a parent to pay child support as agreed to in a separation agreement will not be excused because the other parent does not comply with other provisions of the separation agreement unrelated to the financial support of the children. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Defendant's obligation to pay child support as provided in the separation agreement is not dependent upon plaintiff's compliance with visitation, nonharassment, or noncohabitation provisions in the same agreement. To hold otherwise would punish the children for the misbehavior of a parent. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

V. TERMINATION OF OBLIGATION.

A. In General.

When Legal Obligation to Support Child Ends. — The statutes concerning child support all use the term "minor," "minor child" or "minor children," never referring to age 21. Therefore, in substituting the new meaning of "minor" provided by Chapter 48A into the statutes, the legal obligation to support one's child ends at age 18, absent a showing that the child is insolvent, unmarried and physically or mentally incapable of earning a livelihood as contemplated by § 50-13.8. Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 314, 188 S.E.2d 897 (1972).

In the absence of an enforceable contract otherwise obligating a parent, North Carolina courts have no authority to order child support for a child who has attained the age of majority, unless the child has not completed secondary schooling, or, pursuant to § 50-13.8, the child is mentally or physically incapable of self-support. Bridges v. Bridges, 85 N.C. App. 524, 355 S.E.2d 230 (1987); Pieper v. Pieper, 90 N.C. App. 405, 368 S.E.2d 422, aff'd, Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 88 N.C. App. 119, 362 S.E.2d 584 (1987).

Effect of One of Several Children Reaching Age 18. — While child support obligations ordered by a court terminate upon the child reaching age 18, unless the child is otherwise emancipated prior to reaching age 18 or the trial court in its discretion continues to enforce the payment obligation after the child reaches age 18 and while the child is in primary or secondary school, when one of two or more minor children for whom support is ordered reaches age 18, and when the support ordered to be paid is not allocated as to each individual child, the supporting parent has no authority to unilaterally modify the amount of the child support payment. The supporting parent must apply to the trial court for modification. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Cases holding that where one of two minor children reaches the age of 18, a trial court may retroactively modify child support arrearages when equitable considerations exist which would create an injustice if modification is not allowed were decided before § 50-13.10 became effective on October 1, 1987. Under this statute, if the supporting party is not disabled or incapacitated, a past due, vested child support payment is subject to divestment only as provided by law, and if, but only if, a written motion is filed and due notice is given to all parties before the payment is due. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Support Improperly Terminated. — Where father unilaterally terminated child support payments after his son reached the age of 18 and had failed to make satisfactory progress towards graduation from high school, the support payments were improperly terminated. Leak v. Leak, 129 N.C. App. 142, 497 S.E.2d 702 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 498, 510 S.E.2d 385 (1998).

"Minor Child" under Prior Law. — Before the enactment of Chapter 48A, it was evident that the meaning of "minor child" within the purview of the custody and support statutes contemplated the common-law age of majority, age 21. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 14 N.C. App. 231, 188 S.E.2d 19, rev'd on other grounds, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

B. Effect of Separation Agreement, Consent Judgment, etc.

A parent may contract to support his or her children past the age of majority, and the court has power to enforce such a contract just as it would any other. Harding v. Harding, 46 N.C. App. 62, 264 S.E.2d 131 (1980).

But Court Cannot Enlarge on Such Obligation. — Since the duty to support after the age of majority arises in contract, the court may not enlarge upon the obligation agreed to by the parties. Harding v. Harding, 46 N.C. App. 62, 264 S.E.2d 131 (1980).

Any attempt by the court to enlarge upon the obligation arising under contract by extending the duty of support beyond the age of majority would be void for lack of subject matter jurisdiction. Harding v. Harding, 46 N.C. App. 62, 264 S.E.2d 131 (1980).

Consent Judgment Providing for Support Until Majority. — A father's legal liability for the support of his son born on January 13, 1953, by reason of a consent judgment dated June 11, 1970, providing that payments for child support should continue until such time as said minor child reached his majority or was otherwise emancipated, would not continue until his son became 21 years of age. Shoaf v. Shoaf, 282 N.C. 287, 192 S.E.2d 299 (1972).

VI. SEPARATE IDENTIFICATION OF ALLOWANCES.

Allowances to Be Separated. — The allowances to be separated in the order, as required by subsection (e) of this section, are the support payments for the minor child or children and the amounts ordered for alimony or alimony pendente lite. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

Court Need Not Designate Amounts for Each Child. — Subsection (e) of this section does not require the trial court to designate the amount of support payments for each child, although such designation may prove helpful to simplify any future adjustments or modifications. Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971).

Failure to Identify Purpose of Support as Health, Education and Maintenance Is Not Error. — The better practice is for the court's order to relate that the payment ordered under this section is the amount necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, but the failure of the court to do so does not constitute reversible error. Andrews v. Andrews, 12 N.C. App. 410, 183 S.E.2d 843 (1971); Martin v. Martin, 35 N.C. App. 610, 242 S.E.2d 393, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 261, 245 S.E.2d 778 (1978).

Failure to Separate Allowances Held Error. — The trial court erred in failing to separately state and identify the allowances for alimony pendente lite and child support as required by subsection (e) of this section. Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

VII. FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS.

Judge Must Make Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law. — In setting amounts for child support, where the trial court sits without a jury, the judge is required to find the facts specially and state separately its conclusions of law thereon and direct the entry of the appropriate judgment. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982); Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

The requirements for findings of fact applicable to orders for alimony are also applicable to the determination of reasonable and adequate child support. Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985).

The purpose of the requirement that the court make findings of those specific facts which support its ultimate disposition of the case is to allow a reviewing court to determine from the record whether the judgment, and the legal conclusions which underlie it, represent a correct application of the law. Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

Effective appellate review of an order entered by a trial court sitting without a jury is largely dependent upon the specificity by which the order's rationale is articulated. Evidence must support findings; findings must support conclusions; conclusions must support the judgment. Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

Remand for Further Findings. — The findings of fact in a case for child support, were insufficient to determine whether the trial court gave due regard to the estates of the parties and the case must be remanded for further findings on this matter, even though there was ample evidence contained in the record about the estates of both parties. Sloan v. Sloan, 87 N.C. App. 392, 360 S.E.2d 816 (1987).

Case was remanded for additional fact-finding where the district court failed to identify the presumptive amount of support due under the Guidelines and where there was no analysis of the reasonable needs of the two minor children, other than a finding that plaintiff's child care costs for one of the children was reasonable. Rowan County DSS v. Brooks, 135 N.C. App. 776, 522 S.E.2d 590 (1999).

Contents of Findings. — There are no set guidelines as to what the findings of fact concerning the needs of the minor children must contain. The appellate courts of this State require only that the findings be based on competent evidence as to what the needs of the children are, and that such findings sustain the conclusion that the support payments ordered are in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child. Byrd v. Byrd, 62 N.C. App. 438, 303 S.E.2d 205 (1983).

Findings Must Be Specific. — Where the trial court sits without a jury, the judge is required to make factual findings specific enough to indicate to the appellate court that due regard was taken of the factors enumerated in this section. Byrd v. Byrd, 62 N.C. App. 438, 303 S.E.2d 205 (1983).

In orders of child support, the court should make findings of specific facts (e.g. incomes, estates) to support a conclusion as to the relative abilities of the parties to provide support. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

Without findings relating to the parties' reasonable expenses, there is no basis for a determination as to the parties' relative abilities to provide the support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the children. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

In order to determine the reasonable needs of the child, the trial court must hear evidence and make findings of specific fact on the child's actual past expenditures and present reasonable expenses. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

Case would be remanded for additional findings regarding the income or loss, if any, of one of defendant's businesses where the trial court's order failed to reflect its treatment of these figures. Cauble v. Cauble, 133 N.C. App. 390, 515 S.E.2d 708 (1999).

And Must Cover Factors in Subsection (c). — The trial court must hear evidence on each of the factors listed in subsection (c) of this section and substantiate its conclusions of law by making findings of specific facts on each of the listed factors. Newman v. Newman, 64 N.C. App. 125, 306 S.E.2d 540, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983).

Conclusions of law must be based upon factual findings specific enough to indicate to the appellate court that the judge below took due regard of the particular estates, earnings, conditions, and accustomed standard of living of both the child and the parents. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982); Newman v. Newman, 64 N.C. App. 125, 306 S.E.2d 540, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 822, 310 S.E.2d 351 (1983); In re Botsford, 75 N.C. App. 72, 330 S.E.2d 23 (1985); Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

To support an award of payment for support, the judgment of the trial court should contain findings of fact which sustain the conclusion of law that the support payments ordered are in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education and maintenance, having due regard to the estates, earnings, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the child and the parties, and other facts of the particular care. Montgomery v. Montgomery, 32 N.C. App. 154, 231 S.E.2d 26 (1977); Poston v. Poston, 40 N.C. App. 210, 252 S.E.2d 240 (1979); Grimes v. Grimes, 78 N.C. App. 208, 336 S.E.2d 664 (1985).

The trial court must make specific findings on each of the factors specified in subsection (c) of this section. In addition, the case law may require certain findings, as when the award is based on earning capacity rather than present income. Once the trial court has made such findings, they are conclusive if supported by any evidence, even if there is evidence contra. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

The trial judge must at least make findings sufficiently specific to indicate proper consideration of each of the factors established by subsection (c) of this section for a determination of child support. Spencer v. Spencer, 70 N.C. App. 159, 319 S.E.2d 636 (1984).

Orders for child support must be based upon the interplay of the trial court's conclusions of law as to the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child and the relative abilities of the parents to provide that amount. These conclusions must, in turn, be based upon factual findings sufficiently specific to indicate to the appellate court that the trial court took due regard of the estates, earnings, conditions and accustomed standard of living of both child and parents. Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985).

To comply with subsection (c) of this section, the order for child support must be premised upon the interplay of the trial court's conclusions of law as to the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child and the relative ability of the parties to provide that amount. To support these conclusions of law, the court must also make specific findings of fact so that an appellate court can ascertain whether the judge below gave due regard to the facts of the particular case. Such findings are necessary to an appellate court's determination of whether the judge's order is sufficiently supported by competent evidence. Where the record discloses sufficient evidence to support the findings, it is not the Supreme Court's task to determine de novo the weight and credibility to be given the evidence contained in the record on appeal. Plott v. Plott, 313 N.C. 63, 326 S.E.2d 863 (1985).

Conclusions must be based upon factual findings sufficiently specific to indicate that the trial court took "due regard" of the factors enumerated in the statute. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

The trial court must hear evidence and make findings of fact on the parents' income, estates and present reasonable expenses to determine the parties' relative ability to pay. Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

To comply with subsection (c), the trial court is required to make findings of fact with respect to the factors listed in the statute. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

Findings must be based upon competent evidence, and it is not enough that there may be evidence, in the record sufficient to support findings which could have been made. The trial court must itself determine what pertinent facts are actually established by the evidence before it. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

Actual Past Expenditures Must Be Found. — To determine the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education and maintenance, the court must make findings of specific facts as to what actual past expenditures have been. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

To determine the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education and maintenance (which are conclusions of law), the court must make findings of specific facts as to what actual past expenditures have been. Where past expenditures are below subsistence, due regard, of course, must be given to meeting the reasonable needs of the child. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

In order to determine the reasonable needs of the child, the trial court must hear evidence and make findings of specific fact on the child's actual past expenditures and present reasonable expenses. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986); Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Conclusion as to Reasonableness of Personal Expenses. — In a child support case, the trial court should be satisfied that personal expenses itemized in the parties' balance sheets are reasonable under all the circumstances before making a determination of need or liability, and though absence of a specific conclusion as to reasonableness will not necessarily be held for error, the better practice is for the order to contain such a conclusion. Coble v. Coble, 300 N.C. 708, 268 S.E.2d 185 (1980).

The determination of what portion of claimed expenses is reasonable, and what portion is unreasonable, in arriving at an amount necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child, requires an exercise of judgment and is therefore not a question of fact but a conclusion of law. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Error to Order Support Absent Appropriate Findings. — Where the court does not make appropriate findings based on competent evidence as to what are the reasonable needs of the children for health, education and maintenance, it is error to direct payments for their support. Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976); Poston v. Poston, 40 N.C. App. 210, 252 S.E.2d 240 (1979).

In a child support action, where the trial court failed to make findings as to the actual needs of the parties' minor child or the expenses of the parties, its order directing child support payments was erroneous. Ingle v. Ingle, 53 N.C. App. 227, 280 S.E.2d 460 (1981).

Without findings relating to the parties' reasonable expenses, there is no basis for a determination as to the relative abilities of the parents to provide the support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the children. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Where child support for defendant's five children by three different mothers, set pursuant to the guidelines, amounted to 66% of his gross income, the trial court's duty was to determine whether this support exceeded the reasonable needs of each child, whether it was unjust or inappropriate, and whether defendant had "sufficient income to maintain a minimum standard of living based on the 1997 federal poverty level for one person." Buncombe County ex rel. Blair v. Jackson, 138 N.C. App. 284, 531 S.E.2d 240 (2000).

Award of Reimbursement for Past Support. — The trial court must make specific factual findings to support not only an award of future support but also to support an award of reimbursement for past support of the child. Buff v. Carter, 76 N.C. App. 145, 331 S.E.2d 705 (1985).

Findings as to Suppression of Income. — The trial court erred in awarding child support based upon each party's "earning capacity" without any findings as to whether either party deliberately suppressed his or her income to avoid his or her support obligation. Bowers v. Bowers, 141 N.C. App. 729, 541 S.E.2d 508 (2001).

Finding as to Income of Supporting Spouse. — Although a proper finding pertaining to the income of the supporting spouse must be based on present, as opposed to past, income, there is no rule that requires a specific finding as to the income of the supporting spouse on the precise date of the hearing. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Findings Held Insufficient. — Where the trial did not make an assessment of the child's needs, and found that plaintiff's expenses exceeded her income and that her unwieldy credit card obligations were caused by defendant's failure to pay $220 in support to her in a timely manner when she had custody of both children, the findings of fact were insufficient to support the conclusion that plaintiff should not be required to support her minor children; defendant's $220 delinquency in child support payments did not mean that plaintiff's expenses were reasonable, and the trial judge made no findings upon which to conclude that defendant had the ability to support both children. Payne v. Payne, 91 N.C. App. 71, 370 S.E.2d 428 (1988).

Appellate court would remand case where the trial court failed to make findings as to what the child support amount would be under the applicable Guidelines, as to the child's reasonable needs, and as to whether the greater weight of the evidence established that application of the presumptive Guidelines amount would be "unjust or inappropriate." Sain v. Sain, 134 N.C. App. 460, 517 S.E.2d 921 (1999).

VIII. APPELLATE REVIEW.

Standard for reviewing child support orders resembles that for reviewing awards of custody, in that the amount of child support allowed by the trial judge will be disturbed only when there is an abuse of discretion. Dixon v. Dixon, 67 N.C. App. 73, 312 S.E.2d 669 (1984).

Support Award Will Not Be Disturbed Absent Abuse of Discretion. — The amount of child support awarded is in the discretion of the trial judge and will be disturbed only on a showing of abuse of that discretion. Coggins v. Coggins, 260 N.C. 765, 133 S.E.2d 700 (1963); Swink v. Swink, 6 N.C. App. 161, 169 S.E.2d 539 (1969); Sawyer v. Sawyer, 21 N.C. App. 293, 204 S.E.2d 224, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 591, 205 S.E.2d 723 (1974); Gibson v. Gibson, 24 N.C. App. 520, 211 S.E.2d 522 (1975); Wyatt v. Wyatt, 32 N.C. App. 162, 231 S.E.2d 42, aff'd, 35 N.C. App. 650, 242 S.E.2d 180 (1977); Minges v. Minges, 53 N.C. App. 507, 281 S.E.2d 88 (1981); Peters v. Elmore, 59 N.C. App. 404, 297 S.E.2d 154 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 577, 299 S.E.2d 651 (1983); Plott v. Plott, 65 N.C. App. 657, 310 S.E.2d 51 (1983); Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

The trial court's consideration of the factors contained in subsection (c) of this section is an exercise in sound judicial discretion, and if its findings are supported by competent evidence in the record, its determination as to the proper amount of support will not be disturbed on appeal. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Even If Evidence Is Conflicting. — An order for child support is a question of fairness to all parties involved. It will not be disturbed on appeal absent an abuse of discretion by the trial judge, even if there is conflicting evidence. Evans v. Craddock, 61 N.C. App. 438, 300 S.E.2d 908 (1983).

In determining the amount of alimony and child support to be awarded, the trial judge must follow the requirements of this section. The amount is a reasonable subsistence, to be determined by the trial judge in the exercise of a judicial discretion from the evidence before him. His determination is reviewable, but it will not be disturbed in the absence of a clear abuse of discretion. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976).

Finding of Ability to Pay Is Conclusive When Supported by Evidence. — The trial court's discretion as to the amount of child support awarded is not absolute and unreviewable. The order must be based not only on the needs of the child, but also on the ability of the father to meet the needs. But where there is a finding of ability to pay, supported in the record by competent evidence, that finding will be conclusive. Wyatt v. Wyatt, 32 N.C. App. 162, 231 S.E.2d 42, aff'd, 35 N.C. App. 650, 242 S.E.2d 180 (1977).

Remand for Further Findings. — Where the trial judge found that the reasonable expenses of child were "in excess of $500," while the child's mother claimed that the child's expenses were $855.16, and found the reasonable living expenses of the child's father to be $800, rejecting his claimed figure of $1,196.80, lack of findings as to what claimed expenses of the child or the father the court considered unreasonable would require the appellate court to vacate the order and remand the cause for further findings. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Presumption Allowing Modification. — The presumption, created in a 1994 revision, allowing modification of a child support order which is at least three years old, when there is a disparity of 15% or more between the amount of support payable under the original order and the amount owed based on the parties' current income and expenses, is within the scope of the legislative mandate to ensure adequate child support awards over time. Garrison v. Connor, 122 N.C. App. 702, 471 S.E.2d 644 (1996).

IX. REMEDIES.

A. In General.

Court Has Broad Discretion Under Subsection (e). — The court is not limited to ordering one method of payment, to the exclusion of the others provided in subsection (e) of this section. The legislature's use of the disjunctive and the phrase "as the court may order" shows that the court is to have broad discretion in providing for payment of child support orders. Moore v. Moore, 35 N.C. App. 748, 242 S.E.2d 642 (1978).

And Its Remedies Have Been Expanded. — The broad language of this statute suggests that the legislature intended to expand, not limit, the trial court's remedies in enforcing payment of child support. Griffin v. Griffin, 103 N.C. App. 65, 404 S.E.2d 478 (1991).

The enforcement provisions under subsection (f) of this section are not mutually exclusive. Griffin v. Griffin, 103 N.C. App. 65, 404 S.E.2d 478 (1991).

Nor Are the Payment Provisions. — The methods of payment listed in this section are not mutually exclusive. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

The trial court has broad discretion under subsection (e) of this section in providing for payment of child support. Griffin v. Griffin, 103 N.C. App. 65, 404 S.E.2d 478 (1991).

Creation of Savings Account for Use of Children. — In an action for child support, the court was without the power to, in effect, attempt to create a savings account for the use of the children after they reached the age of 18. Parrish v. Cole, 38 N.C. App. 691, 248 S.E.2d 878 (1978).

Receipt of Support May Not Be Conditioned on Visitation. — A trial judge does not have authority to condition a minor child's receipt of support paid by the noncustodial parent on compliance with court-ordered visitation allowed the noncustodial parent by ordering that child support paid by defendant be placed in escrow if minor child fails or refuses to abide by the visitation privileges allowed defendant. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Child Support May Not Be Offset by Equitable Distribution Judgment or Other Obligations. — Defendant was not entitled to a "credit" against his future child support payments for the $12,435.50 he paid over and above his court-ordered obligation or for the $500.00 plaintiff owed him as a result of an equitable distribution judgment; child support obligations may not be offset by other obligations. Brinkley v. Brinkley, 135 N.C. App. 608, 522 S.E.2d 90 (1999).

Court Had No Authority to Order Payment of Social Security Benefits Directly to Mother. — A North Carolina district court had no authority to order the Social Security Administration and defendant father, a representative payee receiving Social Security disability payments for the benefit of his children, to pay those benefits directly to plaintiff mother. Brevard v. Brevard, 74 N.C. App. 484, 328 S.E.2d 789 (1985).

Defendant did not waive his right to support by failing to schedule notice of a hearing on the issue prior to child's emancipation; trial court was incorrect in its presumption that because the issue of custody had become moot, it could not address the issue of support. Freeman v. Freeman, 103 N.C. App. 801, 407 S.E.2d 262 (1991).

B. Security.

Nonresident Defendant May Be Required to Post Bond. — Under subsection (f)(1) of this section and § 50-16.7(b), the court properly required supporting spouse to post a security bond to secure his compliance with a judgment requiring him to make monthly payments for the support of his wife and children, where the court found that defendant no longer resided within the State and that he had no attorney of record in the case. Parker v. Parker, 13 N.C. App. 616, 186 S.E.2d 607 (1972).

C. Award of Property.

Award of Home. — The award of the homeplace does not constitute a writ of possession within the meaning of § 50-17, and the trial judge may award exclusive possession of the homeplace, even though it is owned by the entirety, as a part of the support under this section. Arnold v. Arnold, 30 N.C. App. 683, 228 S.E.2d 48 (1976); Rogers v. Rogers, 39 N.C. App. 635, 251 S.E.2d 663 (1979).

The General Assembly has made statutory provisions in subdivision (f)(2) of this section for awarding possession of a home as a part of child support. This is true without regard to whether the parties are divorced. To the extent that the General Assembly's will, as expressed in this section, conflicts with the common-law principle that the husband is entitled to exclusive possession of entirety property, the common law has been abrogated and supplanted. Martin v. Martin, 35 N.C. App. 610, 242 S.E.2d 393, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 261, 245 S.E.2d 778 (1978).

D. Attachment and Garnishment.

For case upholding garnishment of father's income from alleged "spendthrift" trust created in another jurisdiction and administered by a trustee bank in this State to satisfy judgment of mother against father for alimony, child support and counsel fees, see Swink v. Swink, 6 N.C. App. 161, 169 S.E.2d 539 (1969).

It was not error for trial court to enter order to withhold plaintiff's wages to collect child support arrearages that had been reduced to judgment. Griffin v. Griffin, 103 N.C. App. 65, 404 S.E.2d 478 (1991).

E. Recovery of Past Due Payments.

The sole limitation on a party's right to reimbursement for documented past support expenditures is imposed by § 1-52(2), which limits recovery to those expenditures incurred within three years before the date the action for support is filed. Freeman v. Freeman, 103 N.C. App. 801, 407 S.E.2d 262 (1991).

Effect of Subdivision (f)(8). — The portion of subdivision (f)(8) of this section following the semicolon does not constitute an election of remedies. Nor it is true that once arrearages are reduced to judgment the party attempting to collect the judgment is limited to the execution procedures provided by § 1-302. Griffin v. Griffin, 103 N.C. App. 65, 404 S.E.2d 478 (1991).

Reduction to Judgment. — A parent having custody of a minor child may institute an action for the support of such child, and once an order for support has been obtained, the past due payments may be reduced to judgment by motion in the cause. Griffith v. Griffith, 38 N.C. App. 25, 247 S.E.2d 30, cert. denied, 296 N.C. 106, 249 S.E.2d 804 (1978).

After Child Reaches Majority. — The fact that a child becomes 18 years of age does not prevent the parent having custody from having the past due payments which accrued while the child was a minor reduced to judgment. Griffith v. Griffith, 38 N.C. App. 25, 247 S.E.2d 30, cert. denied, 296 N.C. 106, 249 S.E.2d 804 (1978).

Notice. — The defendant in an action for unpaid child support could not complain of inadequate notice of the plaintiff's motion to reduce to judgment support payments alleged to be in arrears where the defendant's attorney of record was properly served with notice. Griffith v. Griffith, 38 N.C. App. 25, 247 S.E.2d 30, cert. denied, 296 N.C. 106, 249 S.E.2d 804 (1978).

F. Retroactive Support and Reimbursement.

Retroactive Distinguished from Prospective. — Child support awarded prior to the time a party files a complaint is properly classified as retroactive child support and is determined by considering reasonably necessary expenditures made on behalf of the child by the party seeking retroactive child support and the defendant's ability to pay during the period in the past for which reimbursement is sought; child support awarded from the time a party files a complaint for child support to the date of trial is not "retroactive child support," but is in the nature of prospective child support representing that period from the time a complaint seeking child support is filed to the date of trial. Taylor v. Taylor, 118 N.C. App. 356, 455 S.E.2d 442 (1995), rev'd on other grounds, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

Although prospective child support based upon the presumptive guidelines requires no factual findings regarding the child's reasonable needs or the supporting parent's ability to pay, the trial court must set out specific findings of fact in a reimbursement award for retroactive support. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Claim for Retroactive Child Support. — Not only may an action be brought to collect child support payments in arrears, but a claim for retroactive child support may be brought under this section. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

Retroactive child support is based solely on amount actually expended for support of minor children during time period in question. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

"Emergency Situation" Must Be Shown. — Child support reimbursement, or child support governing a period prior to a motion to increase an existing child support order, would constitute retroactive child support and would not be based on the presumptive guidelines. Therefore, a child support payment order may not be retroactively increased without evidence of some emergency situation that required the expenditure of sums in excess of the amount of child support paid. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Reasonable Necessity and Ability to Pay Must Be Considered. — When a trial court is faced with calculating a retroactive child support award, it must consider, among other things, whether what was actually expended was "reasonably necessary" for the child's support and the defendant's ability to pay during the time for which reimbursement is sought. Buff v. Carter, 76 N.C. App. 145, 331 S.E.2d 705 (1985).

Retroactive Support for Private Schooling Denied. — Award of additional retroactive child support for private schooling was denied where the trial court's limited findings failed to set forth the existence of a "sudden emergency" so unusual or extraordinary as to require plaintiff to expend sums in excess of defendant's existing support obligation, and the court's order contained no findings reflective of defendant's ability to pay during the period the emergency expenses were allegedly incurred. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Measure of Liability for Reimbursement of Support Funds Expended. — Where there was no evidence or finding as to the actual amount expended by plaintiff for the support of the children for which she was entitled to reimbursement from defendant, what the defendant "should have paid" was not the measure of his liability to plaintiff. The measure of defendant's liability to plaintiff was the amount actually expended by plaintiff which represented the defendant's share of support. Hicks v. Hicks, 34 N.C. App. 128, 237 S.E.2d 307 (1977); Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

No Reimbursement for Share of Support Paid by Court Order. — In an action by a mother for child support, mother was not entitled to be reimbursed for sums expended by her for the support of the children which represented her share of support as determined by the trial judge, considering the relative ability of the parties to provide support. Hicks v. Hicks, 34 N.C. App. 128, 237 S.E.2d 307 (1977).

Mother's Homemaking Services Considered. — In determining father's share of the reasonable actual expenditures made by mother during the period for which retroactive child support is sought, the trial court must consider her child care and homemaking services rendered during this period. Lawrence v. Tise, 107 N.C. App. 140, 419 S.E.2d 176 (1992).

Mother Not Entitled to Compensation for Support by Others. — In an action by a mother for child support, she was not entitled to be compensated for support for the children which was provided by others. Hicks v. Hicks, 34 N.C. App. 128, 237 S.E.2d 307 (1977).

Extent of Recovery for Past Expenditures. — Assuming adequate proof of the expenditures under subsection (c) of this section, the plaintiff-mother could recover reimbursement for her past support expenditures (1) to the extent she paid the father's share of such expenditures, and (2) to the extent the expenditures occurred three years or less before August 8, 1986, the date she filed her claim for child support. Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Error Where Court Used Guidelines Instead of Actual Expenditures. — Where, although the trial court made a finding on mother's actual expenditures during the period for which retroactive support was sought, the court instead based the retroactive support award on the guidelines in effect at the time the expenses were incurred by mother, this was error requiring reversal of the order of retroactive support. Lawrence v. Tise, 107 N.C. App. 140, 419 S.E.2d 176 (1992).

The trial court was under no obligation to render findings of fact where it did not deviate from the presumptive guidelines, but rather adjusted the guideline amounts to account, prospectively, for the extraordinary expense of private schooling. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Where the trial court abused its discretion in calculating plaintiff's income and in failing to value plaintiff's estate, and erred in using the "retroactive child support" test for calculating prospective child support, case would be remanded. Taylor v. Taylor, 118 N.C. App. 356, 455 S.E.2d 442 (1995), rev'd on other grounds, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

Evidence Held Sufficient to Support Award. — Where trial court specifically found that prior to filing action plaintiff expended at least four hundred dollars ($400.00) per month for the support of the parties' child and that defendant had the capacity to pay one-half of this amount toward the child's support during this time, the findings were supported by the evidence and were binding on appeal; the trial court correctly awarded plaintiff reimbursement for past child support. Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

G. Contempt.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under subdivision (f)(9) of this section as it read prior to amendment in 1977. Prior to such amendment, subdivision (f)(9) provided for punishment as for contempt of the "willful disobedience" of an order for the payment of child support.

Agreement of Parties Incorporated in Judgment Is Enforceable by Contempt Proceedings. — Where, in wife's action for alimony and child support, the parties agreed to the terms of a judgment providing that husband would make specified monthly support payments, and the judgment entered by the court ordered husband to make the payments which he had agreed to make, husband's obligation to make the support payments could be enforced by contempt proceedings. Parker v. Parker, 13 N.C. App. 616, 186 S.E.2d 607 (1972).

Willfulness Is Required Under Subdivision (f)(9). — The element of willfulness is required for a finding of civil contempt under subdivision (f)(9) of this section and § 5A-21. Jones v. Jones, 52 N.C. App. 104, 278 S.E.2d 260 (1981); Harris v. Harris, 91 N.C. App. 699, 373 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

And Only Willful Disobedience May Be Punished. — A failure to obey an order of a court cannot be punished by contempt proceedings unless the disobedience is willful, which imports knowledge and a stubborn resistance. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

To constitute willful disobedience there must be an ability to comply with the court order and a deliberate and intentional failure to do so. Bennett v. Bennett, 21 N.C. App. 390, 204 S.E.2d 554 (1974).

One does not act willfully in failing to comply with a judgment if it has not been within his power to do so since the judgment was rendered. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Ability to Pay or to Take Measures to Do So Required. — Although an order for child support is enforceable by civil contempt proceedings, a supporting party cannot be held in contempt unless the party willfully failed to comply with the support order. A finding of willful failure to comply with the order requires evidence of the present ability to pay or to take reasonable measures to comply. Brower v.

Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Contempt for Violation Based on Willfulness Upheld. — Trial court acted correctly when it exercised jurisdiction under this section and found defendant/husband in civil contempt, where he made a calculated and deliberate decision to pay a lower amount of child support than it had previously ordered. Burnett v. Wheeler, 133 N.C. App. 316, 515 S.E.2d 480 (1999).

Trial Court Must Make Particular Findings of Ability to Pay. — In order to hold a parent in contempt for failure to pay child support in accordance with a decree, the failure must be willful. In order to find the failure willful, there must be particular findings of the ability to pay during the period of delinquency. Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977).

In order to punish by contempt proceedings, the trial court must find as a fact that the defendant possessed the means to comply with orders of the court during the period when he was in default. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

There must be a specific finding of fact, supported by competent evidence, to the effect that defendant possesses the means to comply with the court order, before he can be incarcerated for contempt until compliance. Bennett v. Bennett, 21 N.C. App. 390, 204 S.E.2d 554 (1974); Fitch v. Fitch, 26 N.C. App. 570, 216 S.E.2d 734, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 240, 217 S.E.2d 679 (1975).

A defendant may not deliberately divest himself of his property and in effect pauperize himself for appearance at a hearing for contempt and thereby escape punishment because he is at that time unable to comply with the court order. Bennett v. Bennett, 21 N.C. App. 390, 204 S.E.2d 554 (1974).

Defendant's voluntary purging of assets in bankruptcy was considered a deliberate divestment of assets; therefore, failure to comply with a child support order was willful and punishable by contempt proceedings. Harris v. Harris, 91 N.C. App. 699, 373 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

Past contempt cannot be ignored by the court even if at the exact time of the contempt hearing the defendant does not have the means to comply with the order for child support. Bennett v. Bennett, 21 N.C. App. 390, 204 S.E.2d 554 (1974).

Contempt Decree Set Aside for Lack of Findings. — Where the lower court had not found as a fact that defendant possessed the means to comply with the orders for payment of subsistence pendente lite at any time during the period when he was in default in such payments, the findings that defendant's failure to make the payments of subsistence was deliberate and willful was not supported by the record, and the decree committing him to imprisonment for contempt would be set aside. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Failure to Pay College Expenses. — Trial court properly found father in civil contempt where he willfully failed to pay his daughters college expenses as he had contracted to do. Ross v. Voiers, 127 N.C. App. 415, 490 S.E.2d 244 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 402, 496 S.E.2d 387 (1997).

Defendant Not in Contempt. — Defendant was not in civil contempt of court in deducting from child support payments made to plaintiff amounts representing voluntary expenditures for needs of the parties' children while they were visiting him. Jones v. Jones, 52 N.C. App. 104, 278 S.E.2d 260 (1981).

Review of Facts Found in Contempt Proceedings. — In proceedings for contempt, the facts found by the judge are not reviewable, except for the purpose of passing upon their sufficiency to warrant the judgment. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Payment of Counsel Fees. — The court is vested with broad power when it is authorized to punish "as for contempt." This power includes the authority for a district court judge to require one whom he has found in willful contempt of court for failure to comply with a child support order to pay reasonable counsel fees to opposing counsel as a condition to being purged of contempt. Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970).

Indefinite Jail Term. — When a defendant has the present means to comply with a court order and deliberately refuses to comply, there is a present and continuing contempt, and the court may commit such defendant to jail for an indefinite term, that is, until he complies with the order. Bennett v. Bennett, 21 N.C. App. 390, 204 S.E.2d 554 (1974); Fitch v. Fitch, 26 N.C. App. 570, 216 S.E.2d 734, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 240, 217 S.E.2d 679 (1975).

Effect of Dismissal of Contempt Action Without Explanation. — A dismissal of a contempt action, without explanation, at most signified that the supporting party was not in contempt as of that date and did not cancel the accrued child support debt; it merely forced the custodial parent or an authorized party to pursue one of the alternate remedies listed in subsection (f) to enforce the debt. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

As to effect of reconciliation and resumption of cohabitation on a separation agreement, see Hand v. Hand, 46 N.C. App. 82, 264 S.E.2d 597, cert. denied, 300 N.C. 556, 270 S.E.2d 107 (1980).

Failure to Identify Purpose of Support as Health, Education and Maintenance Is Not Error. — The better practice is for the court's order to relate that the payment ordered under this section is the amount necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance, but the failure of the court to do so does not constitute reversible error. Andrews v. Andrews, 12 N.C. App. 410, 183 S.E.2d 843 (1971); Martin v. Martin, 35 N.C. App. 610, 242 S.E.2d 393, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 261, 245 S.E.2d 778 (1978).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Medical Child Support Enforcement Provisions. — The medical child support enforcement provisions of House Bill 1563, 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), N.C. Session Laws c. 644, are inapplicable to the North Carolina Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan and the governmental entities whose employees and retirees, along with their dependents, are eligible for coverage under the Plan or its HMO option. Medical child support orders nonetheless may be enforced directly against State employees and retirees who fail to enroll, or maintain coverage for, their eligible dependent children under the State Health Plan in accordance with the provisions of §§ 50-13.9, 50-13.11 and subsection (f) of this section. See opinion of Attorney General to Patricia Crawford, Associate General Counsel, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, — N.C.A.G. — (August 10, 1995).

§ 50-13.5. Procedure in actions for custody or support of minor children.

(a) Procedure. — The procedure in actions for custody and support of minor children shall be as in civil actions, except as provided in this section and in G.S. 50-19. In this G.S. 50-13.5 the words "custody and support" shall be deemed to include custody or support, or both.

(b) Type of Action. — An action brought under the provisions of this section may be maintained as follows:

(1) As a civil action.

(2) Repealed by Session Laws 1979, c. 110, s. 12.

(3) Joined with an action for annulment, or an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(4) As a cross action in an action for annulment, or an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(5) By motion in the cause in an action for annulment, or an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(6) Upon the court's own motion in an action for annulment, or an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(7) In any of the foregoing the judge may issue an order requiring that the body of the minor child be brought before him.

(c) Jurisdiction in Actions or Proceedings for Child Support and Child Custody. —

(1) The jurisdiction of the courts of this State to enter orders providing for the support of a minor child shall be as in actions or proceedings for the payment of money or the transfer of property.

(2) The courts of this State shall have jurisdiction to enter orders providing for the custody of a minor child under the provisions of G.S. 50A-201, 50A-202, and 50A-204.

(3) to (6) Repealed by Session Laws 1979, c. 110, s. 12.

(d) Service of Process; Notice; Interlocutory Orders. —

(1) Service of process in civil actions for the custody of minor children shall be as in other civil actions. Motions for support of a minor child in a pending action may be made on 10 days notice to the other parties and compliance with G.S. 50-13.5(e). Motions for custody of a minor child in a pending action may be made on 10 days notice to the other parties and after compliance with G.S. 50A-205.

(2) If the circumstances of the case render it appropriate, upon gaining jurisdiction of the minor child the court may enter orders for the temporary custody and support of the child, pending the service of process or notice as herein provided.

(3) A temporary order for custody which changes the living arrangements of a child or changes custody shall not be entered ex parte and prior to service of process or notice, unless the court finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse or that there is a substantial risk that the child may be abducted or removed from the State of North Carolina for the purpose of evading the jurisdiction of North Carolina courts.

(e) Notice to Additional Persons in Support Actions and Proceedings; Intervention. —

(1) The parents of the minor child whose addresses are reasonably ascertainable; any person, agency, organization or institution having actual care, control, or custody of a minor child; and any person, agency, organization or institution required by court order to provide for the support of a minor child, either in whole or in part, not named as parties and served with process in an action or proceeding for the support of such child, shall be given notice by the party raising the issue of support.

(2) The notice herein required shall be in the manner provided by the Rules of Civil Procedure for the service of notices in actions. Such notice shall advise the person to be notified of the name of the child, the names of the parties to the action or proceeding, the court in which the action or proceeding was instituted, and the date thereof.

(3) In the discretion of the court, failure of such service of notice shall not affect the validity of any order or judgment entered in such action or proceeding.

(4) Any person required to be given notice as herein provided may intervene in an action or proceeding for support of a minor child by filing in apt time notice of appearance or other appropriate pleadings.

(f) Venue. — An action or proceeding in the courts of this State for custody and support of a minor child may be maintained in the county where the child resides or is physically present or in a county where a parent resides, except as hereinafter provided. If an action for annulment, for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or for alimony without divorce has been previously instituted in this State, until there has been a final judgment in such case, any action or proceeding for custody and support of the minor children of the marriage shall be joined with such action or be by motion in the cause in such action. If an action or proceeding for the custody and support of a minor child has been instituted and an action for annulment or for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or for alimony without divorce is subsequently instituted in the same or another county, the court having jurisdiction of the prior action or proceeding may, in its discretion direct that the action or proceeding for custody and support of a minor child be consolidated with such subsequent action, and in the event consolidation is ordered, shall determine in which court such consolidated action or proceeding shall be heard.

(g) Custody and Support Irrespective of Parents' Rights Inter Partes. — Orders for custody and support of minor children may be entered when the matter is before the court as provided by this section, irrespective of the rights of the wife and the husband as between themselves in an action for annulment or an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(h) Court Having Jurisdiction. — When a district court having jurisdiction of the matter shall have been established, actions or proceedings for custody and support of minor children shall be heard without a jury by the judge of such district court, and may be heard at any time.

(i) District Court; Denial of Parental Visitation Right; Written Finding of Fact. — In any case in which an award of child custody is made in a district court, the trial judge, prior to denying a parent the right of reasonable visitation, shall make a written finding of fact that the parent being denied visitation rights is an unfit person to visit the child or that such visitation rights are not in the best interest of the child.

(j) Custody and Visitation Rights of Grandparents. — In any action in which the custody of a minor child has been determined, upon a motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances pursuant to G.S. 50-13.7, the grandparents of the child are entitled to such custody or visitation rights as the court, in its discretion, deems appropriate. As used in this subsection, "grandparent" includes a biological grandparent of a child adopted by a stepparent or a relative of the child where a substantial relationship exists between the grandparent and the child. Under no circumstances shall a biological grandparent of a child adopted by adoptive parents, neither of whom is related to the child and where parental rights of both biological parents have been terminated, be entitled to visitation rights. (1858-9, c. 53, s. 2; 1871-2, c. 193, ss. 39, 46; Code, ss. 1292, 1296, 1570, 1662; Rev., ss. 1567, 1570, 1854; 1919, c. 24; C.S., ss. 1664, 1667, 2242; 1921, c. 13; 1923, c. 52; 1939, c. 115; 1941, c. 120; 1943, c. 194; 1949, c. 1010; 1951, c. 893, s. 3; 1953, cc. 813, 925; 1955, cc. 814, 1189; 1957, c. 545; 1965, c. 310, s. 2; 1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1971, c. 1185, s. 24; 1973, c. 751; 1979, c. 110, s. 12; c. 563; c. 709, s. 3; 1981, c. 735, s. 3; 1983, c. 587; 1985, c. 575, s. 4; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 893, s. 3.1; 1999-223, ss. 11, 12.)

Cross References. — As to actions for custody, see also §§ 50-13.1 through 50-13.3 and notes thereunder. As to actions for support, see also § 50-13.4 and notes thereunder. As to maintenance of certain actions as independent actions, see § 50-19. For the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, see § 50A-1 et seq.

Legal Periodicals. — For note on jurisdictional and full faith and credit requirements of custody awards of minor children, see 30 N.C.L. Rev. 282 (1952).

For note on the domicile rule in custody proceedings, see 35 N.C.L. Rev. 83 (1956).

For note on voluntary nonsuit in custody action, see 44 N.C.L. Rev. 1138 (1966).

For note on choice of law rules in North Carolina, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 243 (1970).

For survey of 1972 case law on child support and pre-Chapter 48A consent judgments, see 51 N.C.L. Rev. 1091 (1973).

For survey of 1976 case law on domestic relations, see 55 N.C.L. Rev. 1018 (1977).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For article, "Equating a Stepparent's Rights and Liabilities vis-a-vis Custody, Visitation and Support upon Dissolution of the Marriage with Those of the Natural Parent — An Equitable Solution to a Growing Dilemma?," see 17 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1988).

For an article on recent developments in third-party custody proceedings after Petersen v. Rogers and Price v. Howard, see 76 N.C.L. Rev. 2145 (1998).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — A number of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-13, which dealt with custody and maintenance of children in actions for divorce, former § 50-16, which dealt with custody and support of children in proceedings for alimony without divorce, and former §§ 17-39 and 17-39.1, which dealt with habeas corpus for custody of children.

Legislature apparently intended to provide the maximum range of choice among procedures for determination of child custody and support. Latham v. Latham, 74 N.C. App. 722, 329 S.E.2d 721 (1985).

Remarriage Does Not Reduce Choice of Procedures. — The statutory scheme of this section provides for an election of procedures in actions for custody or support; there is no reason why the remarriage of the parties should reduce the choices available. Latham v. Latham, 74 N.C. App. 722, 329 S.E.2d 721 (1985).

Effect of Defendant's Petition for Custody on Plaintiff's Right to Voluntary Nonsuit. — Where wife instituted action for divorce and husband filed his petition in the cause praying the court for a determination of his custodial rights with respect to the child, thus seeking affirmative relief of a substantial nature, it was not within the power of the clerk to divest the court of its jurisdiction by allowing wife to submit to a voluntary nonsuit during the course of the hearings and while the issue of custody was in fieri before the presiding judge. Cox v. Cox, 246 N.C. 528, 98 S.E.2d 879 (1957).

Change in Circumstances. — Where parent was found to be a fit and proper parent, and in a later order found to be an unfit parent, the finding of unfitness constituted a change in circumstances. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

Applied in Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969); Bonavia v. Torreso, 7 N.C. App. 21, 171 S.E.2d 108 (1969); Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Williams v. Williams, 12 N.C. App. 170, 182 S.E.2d 667 (1971); Snyder v. Snyder, 18 N.C. App. 658, 197 S.E.2d 802 (1973); Roberts v. Roberts, 25 N.C. App. 198, 212 S.E.2d 410 (1975); Benson v. Benson, 39 N.C. App. 254, 249 S.E.2d 877 (1978); Francis v. Durham County Dep't of Social Servs., 41 N.C. App. 444, 255 S.E.2d 263 (1979); Rhoney v. Sigmon, 43 N.C. App. 11, 257 S.E.2d 691 (1979); Misero v. Misero, 43 N.C. App. 523, 259 S.E.2d 346 (1979); Lynch v. Lynch, 302 N.C. 189, 274 S.E.2d 212 (1981); Miller v. Kite, 69 N.C. App. 679, 318 S.E.2d 102 (1984); Glesner v. Dembrosky, 73 N.C. App. 594, 327 S.E.2d 60 (1985).

Quoted in Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970); Montgomery v. Montgomery, 136 N.C. App. 435, 524 S.E.2d 360 (2000).

Stated in Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Hamlin v. Hamlin, 302 N.C. 478, 276 S.E.2d 381 (1981); Dobos v. Dobos, 111 N.C. App. 222, 431 S.E.2d 861 (1993); Penland v. Harris, 135 N.C. App. 359, 520 S.E.2d 105 (1999).

Cited in Texas v. Rhoades, 7 N.C. App. 388, 172 S.E.2d 235 (1970); In re Hopper, 11 N.C. App. 611, 182 S.E.2d 228 (1971); Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Holbrook v. Holbrook, 38 N.C. App. 308, 247 S.E.2d 926 (1978); McGinnis v. McGinnis, 44 N.C. App. 381, 261 S.E.2d 491 (1980); Oxendine v. Catawba County Dep't of Social Servs., 49 N.C. App. 571, 272 S.E.2d 417 (1980); Davis v. Taylor, 81 N.C. App. 42, 344 S.E.2d 19 (1986); Shingledecker v. Shingledecker, 103 N.C. App. 783, 407 S.E.2d 589 (1991); Ray v. Ray, 103 N.C. App. 790, 407 S.E.2d 592 (1991); Brooks v. Brooks, 107 N.C. App. 44, 418 S.E.2d 534 (1992); Wake County ex rel. Horton v. Ryles, 112 N.C. App. 754, 437 S.E.2d 404 (1993); McIntyre v. McIntyre, 341 N.C. 629, 461 S.E.2d 745 (1995); Fisher v. Fisher, 124 N.C. App. 442, 477 S.E.2d 251 (1996); Ross v. Voiers, 127 N.C. App. 415, 490 S.E.2d 244 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 402, 496 S.E.2d 387 (1997).

II. TYPE OF ACTION.

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases cited below were decided prior to the enactment of § 50-19, authorizing the maintenance of certain actions as independent actions.

Justice to all parties is best served when one judge is able to see the controversy whole. In re King, 3 N.C. App. 466, 165 S.E.2d 60 (1969).

Joinder in Action for Alimony Without Divorce Is Permissible. — It is permissible under subdivision (b)(3) of this section for the wife (spouse) to join an action for custody and support of the minor children of the parties in her action for alimony without divorce. Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970).

As an Additional Method of Determining Issues as to Children. — The 1953 amendment of former § 50-16, granting jurisdiction to determine custody in an action for alimony without divorce, created an additional method whereby the matter of custody may be determined. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

The 1955 amendment to former § 50-16, which provided that custody orders were authorized "in the same manner as such orders are entered by the court in an action for divorce," bolstered the decision in Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962), which held that that section created an additional method whereby all questions relating to custody and child support were brought into and determined in the suit for alimony without divorce, in one action. In re Sauls, 270 N.C. 180, 154 S.E.2d 327 (1967).

Prior to 1953, custody of children could not be determined in a proceeding for alimony without divorce. Murphy v. Murphy, 261 N.C. 95, 134 S.E.2d 148 (1964).

Counterclaims. — There is no conflict between the statutes dealing with procedure in divorce actions and § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). Rather § 1A-1, Rule 13(a) superimposes an additional characteristic on certain kinds of counterclaims. Gardner v. Gardner, 294 N.C. 172, 240 S.E.2d 399 (1978). But see now § 50-19.

Divorce action is pending for purposes of determining custody and support until the death of one of the parties or until the youngest child born of the marriage reaches maturity, whichever event occurs first. Latham v. Latham, 74 N.C. App. 722, 329 S.E.2d 721 (1985).

Remedy of Plaintiff in Divorce Suit Is by Motion in the Cause. — Where a wife institutes suit for divorce, her remedy to require the defendant to provide support for a minor child of the marriage is by motion in the cause, which may be filed either before or after final judgment. Winfield v. Winfield, 228 N.C. 256, 45 S.E.2d 259 (1947).

Plaintiff-husband, as a parent seeking custody, could seek to have his child support obligation determined through a motion in the cause in the divorce action. He was not precluded from doing so by the fact that the court had not previously entered orders in that action relating to child support. Bottomley v. Bottomley, 82 N.C. App. 231, 346 S.E.2d 317 (1986).

Modification of Order on Motion of Court or Party. — Upon motion of a party, or upon its own motion after due notice, the court may conduct a hearing to determine whether the decree should be modified. Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974).

Foster Parents May Not Bring Custody Action. — Nothing in the language of § 48-9.1(1) gives foster parents standing to contest the department's or agency's exercise of its rights as legal custodian; therefore, foster parents are without standing to bring an action seeking custody of minor child placed in their home by defendant. Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981); In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Intervention by Foster Parents. — In proceeding brought by DSS in which custody was put in issue by guardian ad litem and natural father, trial court did not err in permitting child's foster parents to intervene. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986), distinguishing Oxendine v. Department of Social Servs., 303 N.C. 699, 281 S.E.2d 370 (1981), and upholding award of custody to foster parents.

For cases involving the bringing of habeas corpus proceedings in custody disputes, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1979, c. 110, s. 12, see Robbins v. Robbins, 229 N.C. 430, 50 S.E.2d 183 (1948); Weddington v. Weddington, 243 N.C. 702, 92 S.E.2d 71 (1956); Bunn v. Bunn, 258 N.C. 445, 128 S.E.2d 792 (1963); In re Skipper, 261 N.C. 592, 135 S.E.2d 671 (1964); In re Macon, 267 N.C. 248, 147 S.E.2d 909 (1966); Swicegood v. Swicegood, 270 N.C. 278, 154 S.E.2d 324 (1967); In re King, 3 N.C. App. 466, 165 S.E.2d 60 (1969); In re Wright, 8 N.C. App. 330, 174 S.E.2d 27 (1970).

III. JURISDICTION AND VENUE.

A. In General.

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases cited below were decided prior to the enactment of § 50-19, authorizing the maintenance of certain actions as independent actions, and prior to the enactment of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former § 50A-1 et seq., or the Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, § 50A-101 et seq.

Venue Provision. — Subdivision (f) of this section, enacted in 1967, is the venue provision for a child support action. Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

The jurisdiction of the court to protect infants is broad, comprehensive, and plenary. Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974).

Action to Determine Support Is in Personam. — Under subdivision (c)(1) of this section an action to determine the matter of support is in personam in nature. Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

An action for child support is an action in personam and is governed by jurisdictional rules as in actions for the payment of money or the transfer of property. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

While Award of Custody Is in Rem. — The awarding of the custody of the children in an action for divorce is in rem. Coble v. Coble, 229 N.C. 81, 47 S.E.2d 798 (1948); Hoskins v. Currin, 242 N.C. 432, 88 S.E.2d 228 (1955).

Divorce Action Gives Court Jurisdiction of Custody. — In divorce actions, whether for the dissolution of the marriage or from bed and board, the court in which the action is brought acquires jurisdiction over the custody of the unemancipated children of the parties. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965).

When Jurisdiction Is Obtained Over Defendant. — Upon the institution of a divorce action, the court is vested with jurisdiction of the children of the marriage for the purpose of entering orders respecting their care and custody. But the action is not instituted, within the meaning of this rule, until and unless the court acquires jurisdiction of the person of the defendant, and jurisdiction is subject to the fundamental requirement of notice and opportunity to be heard. If both parents are in court and subject to its jurisdiction, an order may be entered, in proper instances, binding the parties and enforceable through the court's coercive jurisdiction. Coble v. Coble, 229 N.C. 81, 47 S.E.2d 798 (1948).

And Consent Judgment Therein Does Not Divest Court of Jurisdiction as to Custody of Child. — Upon the institution of an action for divorce from bed and board, the court acquires jurisdiction of the minor children of the parties, which is not divested by a consent judgment on the issue of divorce entered in the cause with approval of the court, especially where such consent judgment expressly provides that either party may thereafter make a motion in the cause for the custody of the children, the court having the power in an action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, before or after final judgment, to enter orders respecting the care and custody of the children under this section. Tyner v. Tyner, 206 N.C. 776, 175 S.E. 144 (1934).

Where consent judgment in a suit a mensa et thoro has been entered in the action, without providing for the children, upon motion in the original cause the court has the power to make such further orders as it deems proper requiring the father (or mother) to provide for the support of his children, whether born before or after the rendition of the consent judgment. Sanders v. Sanders, 167 N.C. 317, 83 S.E. 489 (1914).

Actions Constituting General Appearance Subject Defendant to Jurisdiction. — By submitting information to the court relevant to the merits in action for child custody and support, defendant made a general appearance prior to his assertions of lack of personal jurisdiction where defendant sought affirmative relief from the court; submission of the documents was inconsistent with defendant's later claim of lack of personal jurisdiction. Bullard v. Bader, 117 N.C. App. 299, 450 S.E.2d 757 (1994).

Remarriage of parties to each other does not divest court of its continuing jurisdiction over the minor child acquired in action for divorce. Latham v. Latham, 74 N.C. App. 722, 329 S.E.2d 721 (1985).

Previous Action Pending. — Husband's motion as to child custody and child support was properly dismissed where the wife's previously commenced action with respect to the custody and support of the children was pending at the time the husband filed his motion. Basinger v. Basinger, 80 N.C. App. 554, 342 S.E.2d 549 (1986).

Child Becomes Ward of Court. — In a custody case, the court acquires jurisdiction of the child as well as the parent, and the child thus becomes a ward of the court. Joyner v. Joyner, 256 N.C. 588, 124 S.E.2d 724 (1962).

Presence of Child. — For cases as to the effect of the child's presence in this State on the issue of jurisdiction, prior to the enactment of § 50A-1 et seq., see Coble v. Coble, 229 N.C. 81, 47 S.E.2d 798 (1948); Allman v. Register, 233 N.C. 531, 64 S.E.2d 861 (1951); Hoskins v. Currin, 242 N.C. 432, 88 S.E.2d 228 (1955); Weddington v. Weddington, 243 N.C. 702, 92 S.E.2d 71 (1956); Kovacs v. Brewer, 245 N.C. 630, 97 S.E.2d 96, vacated on other grounds, 356 U.S. 604, 78 S. Ct. 963, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1008 (1957); Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975); Hopkins v. Hopkins, 8 N.C. App. 162, 174 S.E.2d 103 (1970); Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972); Spence v. Durham, 16 N.C. App. 372, 191 S.E.2d 908 (1972), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974); Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974); Taylor v. Taylor, 20 N.C. App. 188, 201 S.E.2d 43 (1973); MacKenzie v. MacKenzie, 21 N.C. App. 403, 204 S.E.2d 561 (1974); Swanson v. Swanson, 22 N.C. App. 152, 205 S.E.2d 738 (1974); Mathews v. Mathews, 24 N.C. App. 551, 211 S.E.2d 513 (1975); Searl v. Searl, 34 N.C. App. 583, 239 S.E.2d 305 (1977); Dishman v. Dishman, 37 N.C. App. 543, 246 S.E.2d 819 (1978); King v. Demo, 40 N.C. App. 661, 253 S.E.2d 616 (1979).

Jurisdiction Vests Exclusively in Divorce Court. — The court in which a suit for divorce is pending has exclusive jurisdiction as to the care or custody of the children of the marriage, before and after the decree of divorce has been entered. In re Blake, 184 N.C. 278, 114 S.E. 294 (1922); Murphy v. Murphy, 261 N.C. 95, 134 S.E.2d 148 (1964).

When a divorce action is instituted, jurisdiction over the custody of the children born of the marriage vests exclusively in the court before whom the divorce action is pending and becomes a concomitant part of the subject matter of the court's jurisdiction in the divorce action.

Cox v. Cox, 246 N.C. 528, 98 S.E.2d 879 (1957); In re Sauls, 270 N.C. 180, 154 S.E.2d 327 (1967).

Jurisdiction over the custody of the children born of the marriage rests exclusively in the court before whom the divorce action is pending, and no order for the custody of the children may be entered in a later action by one of the parties for subsistence without divorce. Reece v. Reece, 231 N.C. 321, 56 S.E.2d 641 (1949), aff'd, 232 N.C. 95, 59 S.E.2d 363 (1950).

Where plaintiff instituted his action for divorce from bed and board in the superior court, and specifically prayed "that the court determine the proper custody for the aforesaid minor child of the plaintiff and defendant," that court became vested in his suit with exclusive jurisdiction to enter orders respecting the care, custody and maintenance of the child. Bunn v. Bunn, 258 N.C. 445, 128 S.E.2d 792 (1963).

Jurisdiction of the matters relating to custody having been invoked in an action for divorce, the court in which the divorce action was pending would have exclusive jurisdiction over the question of custody. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

And Such Jurisdiction Continues After Entry of Decree. — The court in which the suit for divorce is pending has exclusive jurisdiction of proceedings for custody and child support, and once they are commenced, maintains it after the divorce decree is entered. Bass v. Bass, 43 N.C. App. 212, 258 S.E.2d 391 (1979).

Jurisdiction of courts in custody and visitation cases is continuous. A decree determines only the present rights with respect to such custody and is subject to judicial alteration or modification upon a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

The jurisdiction of the court over the custody of unemancipated children of the parties in a divorce action continues even after divorce. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965).

Once jurisdiction of the court attaches to a child custody matter, it exists for all time until the cause is fully and completely determined. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Where Custody and Support Have Been Brought to Issue. — Where custody and support are brought to issue by the pleadings, the court retains continuing jurisdiction over these matters even when the issues are not determined by the judgment. Thus, where the issues of custody and support were raised in plaintiff wife's complaint and ruled on by the trial judge, the court retained jurisdiction to entertain and rule on defendant husband's motion in the cause for custody and support of the children. Jackson v. Jackson, 68 N.C. App. 499, 315 S.E.2d 90 (1984).

Until Death of a Party or Children's Attainment of Age of Majority. — A divorce action is pending for purposes of determining custody and support until the death of one of the parties or until the youngest child born of the marriage reaches the age of majority, whichever event shall first occur. Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972); Morris v. Morris, 42 N.C. App. 222, 256 S.E.2d 302 (1979).

But Custody Jurisdiction of Court Where Action for Alimony Without Divorce Is Pending Is Not Lost. — The general rule that exclusive custody jurisdiction is vested in the divorce court is subject to the exception that a court before which an action for alimony without divorce is pending does not lose its custody jurisdiction to the court of another county in which an action for divorce is subsequently filed. In re Sauls, 270 N.C. 180, 154 S.E.2d 327 (1967).

Institution of a divorce action did not oust the jurisdiction of another court, previously acquired in an action for alimony without divorce, to determine the rights of custody of the children of the marriage. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

Divorce Court May Hear and Determine Questions of Custody and Support. — Upon institution of a divorce action the court acquires jurisdiction over any child born of the marriage, and may hear and determine questions both as to the custody and as to the maintenance of such child either before or after final decree of divorce. Story v. Story, 221 N.C. 114, 19 S.E.2d 136 (1942).

After the filing of a complaint in any action for divorce, whether from the bonds of matrimony or from bed and board, both before and after final judgment therein, it is lawful for the judge to make such orders respecting the care, custody, tuition and maintenance of the minor children of the marriage as may be proper. Coggins v. Coggins, 260 N.C. 765, 133 S.E.2d 700 (1963).

And May Grant Custody to Either Parent. — The court has jurisdiction to enter an order granting custody to either of the children's parents, both of whom are subject to the court's jurisdiction. Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

Even Though Such Questions Were Not Raised or Determined in Final Judgment. — A court in which a divorce action was tried has jurisdiction to determine custody and support of children of the marriage, even though no custody or support questions were raised prior to, or determined in, the final judgment of divorce. Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

Issue of Custody and Support Remains in Fieri. — If the custody and support has been brought to issue or determined in the previously instituted action between the parents, there could be no final judgment in that case, because the issue of custody and support remains in fieri until the children have become emancipated. Wilson v. Wilson, 11 N.C. App. 397, 181 S.E.2d 190 (1971); Kennedy v. Surratt, 29 N.C. App. 404, 224 S.E.2d 215 (1976); Bass v. Bass, 43 N.C. App. 212, 258 S.E.2d 391 (1979).

Jurisdiction to Modify Custody Decree. — Once a court in this State properly asserts jurisdiction to determine the rights of the parties to custody of a minor child, that court retains jurisdiction to modify its custody decree upon a showing of a substantial change of circumstances. Lynch v. Lynch, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

Subsection (f) of this section does not affect the situation where custody and support have already been determined and one of the parties seeks a modification. In such a case, the court first obtaining jurisdiction retains jurisdiction to the exclusion of all other courts and is the only proper court in which to bring an action for the modification of an order establishing custody and support. Tate v. Tate, 9 N.C. App. 681, 177 S.E.2d 455 (1970).

A party cannot seek modification of a child support order in a court other than that in which it was entered where there has been no change of venue by the court. Broyhill v. Broyhill, 81 N.C. App. 147, 343 S.E.2d 605 (1986).

Independent Action in Another Court Where Custody and Support Not Determined — After Final Judgment. — The first proviso of subsection (f) of this section, when read in conjunction with the first sentence of subsection (f) and in conjunction with subsection (b), makes it clear that after final judgment in a previously instituted action between the parents, where custody and support has not been brought to issue or determined, the custody and support issue may be determined in an independent action in another court. Kennedy v. Surratt, 29 N.C. App. 404, 224 S.E.2d 215 (1976).

The custody and support issue may be determined in an independent action in another court after final judgment in a previously instituted action between the parents, where custody and support has not been brought to issue or determined. In re Holt, 1 N.C. App. 108, 160 S.E.2d 90 (1968); Wilson v. Wilson, 11 N.C. App. 397, 181 S.E.2d 190 (1971).

Subsections (b) and (f) of this section, when considered together, permit questions of custody and support to be determined in independent actions, rather than only through a motion in the cause, where a divorce judgment has been entered without a determination of custody and support in that judgment. Johnson v. Johnson, 14 N.C. App. 378, 188 S.E.2d 711 (1972).

Same — Before Final Judgment. — When a divorce action has been filed in one county, and there has not been a final judgment in that action, the courts of another county are, by virtue of the first proviso in subsection (f) of this section, without jurisdiction to entertain an independent action for custody of the minor children of the parties. Holbrook v. Holbrook, 38 N.C. App. 303, 247 S.E.2d 923 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 411, 251 S.E.2d 469 (1979).

Jurisdiction to Award Custody of Child After Denial of Divorce. — After plaintiff's suit for divorce from bed and board and defendant's cross action for alimony without divorce had both been denied, the judge had jurisdiction and power to enter the portion of the judgment awarding custody of the minor son of the parties to defendant and providing for his maintenance and support. Bunn v. Bunn, 258 N.C. 445, 128 S.E.2d 792 (1963).

Added Parties May Be Subjected to Jurisdiction to Same Extent as Original Parties. — In an action to determine custody of a child, an order which was entered in the Court of Appeals making the paternal grandparents parties, pursuant to their motion, subjected them to the jurisdiction of the Court of Appeals and of the trial court to the same extent as if they had been original parties plaintiff. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Failure to Raise Issue of Child Support. — Defendant's mere mentioning of "a Separation Agreement dated June 5, 1981" in his 1982 divorce complaint was insufficient to raise the issue of child support. Defendant's divorce complaint did not ask the divorce court to review the question of child support and the divorce judgment did not even allude to the parties' separation agreement; therefore, defendant's contention that his prior divorce action placed the question of child support at issue with the results that (i) the original divorce court retained jurisdiction over that question and (ii) the present independent action by his wife should have been dismissed under a theory of abatement, was rejected. Powers v. Parisher, 104 N.C. App. 400, 409 S.E.2d 725 (1991), appeal dismissed, 331 N.C. 286, 417 S.E.2d 254 (1992).

Effect of Subsequent Divorce in Another State. — Where the children of the marriage were residents of this State and the parents were personally before the court, the courts of this State had jurisdiction in the wife's action for subsistence under former § 50-16 to award the custody of the children to the wife and decree the amount defendant should contribute for their support, and to punish defendant as for contempt for willful failure to comply with its order, notwithstanding the fact that the husband obtained a decree of divorce in another state after the entry of the order for support. Whitford v. Whitford, 261 N.C. 353, 134 S.E.2d 635 (1964).

Judge Held Without Jurisdiction to Hear Matter Outside District. — Upon application for the custody of the children of the marriage after decree of divorce, the resident judge entered a temporary order awarding custody to the father, and issued an order to defendant wife to appear outside the county and outside the district to show cause why the temporary order should not be made permanent. It was held that the judge was without jurisdiction to hear the matter outside the district, and an order issued upon the hearing of the order to show cause was void ab initio. Patterson v. Patterson, 230 N.C. 481, 53 S.E.2d 658 (1949).

Jurisdiction over Petition Filed by DSS. — The district court had jurisdiction over the subject matter of petition filed, signed and verified by county division of social services, which alleged that child had been placed with DSS by its mother; that the putative father was unknown; that North Carolina was the home state of the child and no other state had jurisdiction over the child; and that the best interest of the child would be served if the court assumed jurisdiction over him. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Transfer of Venue. — For the convenience of witnesses and parties and because it may be in the best interests of justice and the parties, the court of original venue may, in its discretion, transfer the venue of an ongoing action for custody or support to a more appropriate county. Broyhill v. Broyhill, 81 N.C. App. 147, 343 S.E.2d 605 (1986).

B. Full Faith and Credit.

Generally. — For cases as to full faith and credit accorded the custody decrees of other states, prior to the enactment of § 50A-1 et seq., see In re Marlowe, 268 N.C. 197, 150 S.E.2d 204 (1966); Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); In re Kluttz, 7 N.C. App. 383, 172 S.E.2d 95 (1970); Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974); Mathews v. Mathews, 24 N.C. App. 551, 211 S.E.2d 513 (1975); Johnston v. Johnston, 29 N.C. App. 345, 224 S.E.2d 276 (1976).

Nature of Inquiry as to Full Faith and Credit. — In a proceeding to determine whether a custody judgment is entitled to full faith and credit, the court's inquiry is first confined to whether the judgment sought to be enforced was a final judgment rendered by a court with competent jurisdiction. If the court determines that the foreign judgment was final and was rendered by a court with proper jurisdiction, then the judgment is entitled to full faith and credit, and the court never reaches the merits of the custody action, unless one of the parties asserts that the judgment should be modified due to a substantial change in circumstances. Lynch v. Lynch, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

When a court asserts jurisdiction to enforce a custody judgment of another state and no showing of a substantial change of circumstances is made, its jurisdiction terminates upon a final judgment awarding full faith and credit to the sister state's decree. Lynch v. Lynch, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

A temporary custody judgment is not entitled to full faith and credit and has no effect on defendant's ability to seek full faith and credit of a final custody judgment subsequently rendered in another state. Lynch v. Lynch, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

Indiana Order for Child Support Given Full Faith and Credit. — Although there was no jurisdictional rule requiring the trial court to dismiss plaintiff father's North Carolina action seeking definition of his child support obligations simply because defendant mother had filed an action in Indiana, where, when plaintiff's motion came on for hearing, the Indiana court had already entered an order on the issue of child support, that order was entitled to full faith and credit in this State as long as plaintiff was not denied due process of law in the Indiana court's assertion of jurisdiction over him. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

C. Residence and Domicile.

Findings of the court as to the residence of the parties are conclusive when supported by any competent evidence. Holbrook v. Holbrook, 38 N.C. App. 303, 247 S.E.2d 923 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 411, 251 S.E.2d 469 (1979).

Domicile of Husband Not Necessarily Domicile of Wife and Children. — Where the husband in his divorce action alleged that he had notified his wife that he would no longer live with her as husband and wife, he could not assert the fictional unity of persons for the purpose of maintaining that his domicile was the domicile of his wife and children. Coble v. Coble, 229 N.C. 81, 47 S.E.2d 798 (1948).

IV. NOTICE.

Purpose of Subdivision (d)(1). — Subdivision (d)(1) of this section is designed to give the parties to a custody action adequate notice in order to insure a fair hearing. Clayton v. Clayton, 54 N.C. App. 612, 284 S.E.2d 125 (1981).

Five Day (now 10 Day) Notice of Custody Hearing Not Absolute Right. — Ordinarily a parent is entitled to at least five days' (now 10 days') notice (an intervening Saturday or Sunday excluded) of a hearing involving the custody of a child, but this is not an absolute right and is subject to the rule relating to waiver of notice and to the rule that a new trial will not be granted for mere technical error which could not have affected the result, but only for error which is prejudicial, amounting to the denial of a substantial right. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

A party entitled to notice of a motion may waive such notice. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

And ordinarily does this by attending the hearing of the motion and participating in it. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Notice of Motion for Custody Served on Counsel of Record. — A court which acquired jurisdiction of husband in a divorce proceeding before he left the State had jurisdiction to hear motion for custody filed after divorce decree where notice of motion was served on husband's counsel of record. Weddington v. Weddington, 243 N.C. 702, 92 S.E.2d 71 (1956).

Request for Variance for Child Support Guidelines. — Section 50-13.4 does not identify any time restrictions for making the request for a hearing. However, to effectuate the purpose of that statute, any party in a pending action requesting a variance from the guidelines must, unless the request is made in the original pleadings, give at least ten days written notice as required by this section. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

Absent a timely and proper request for a variance of the guidelines, support set consistent with the guidelines was conclusively presumed to be in such amount as to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance. Browne v. Browne, 101 N.C. App. 617, 400 S.E.2d 736 (1991).

No Notice. — Where there was no motion for custody before the trial court, there was no notice of a motion for custody as required by subdivision (d)(1) of this section. Jones v. Jones, 109 N.C. App. 293, 426 S.E.2d 468 (1993).

V. HEARING.

Time-tested methods for assuring an adequate and fair hearing must be applied in child custody proceedings. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969).

The question of custody is one addressed to the trial court. Hinkle v. Hinkle, 266 N.C. 189, 146 S.E.2d 73 (1966).

And Not to a Jury. — Determining the custody of minor children is never the province of a jury; it is that of the judge of the court in which the proceeding is pending. Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967).

No Right to Jury Trial on Custody and Support Issues. — Pursuant to subsection (h) of this section, a supporting spouse is not entitled to a jury trial on the matter of custody and support of minor children. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

In a wife's action for alimony without divorce and for custody and support of the children, a trial court properly removed the case from the trial docket when the wife abandoned her claim to alimony, and the defendant was not entitled to a jury trial on the issue of abandonment of his children. Ferguson v. Ferguson, 9 N.C. App. 453, 176 S.E.2d 358 (1970).

Jury to Determine Question of Fact. — Whether a child was a "minor child of the marriage" within the purview of former § 50-13 could be a question of fact rather than an issue of fact, and the trial court could call a jury to its aid to hear the evidence and determine the question. Carter v. Carter, 232 N.C. 614, 61 S.E.2d 711 (1950).

An award of permanent custody may not be based upon affidavits. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

And Affidavits Are Not Admissible to Establish Material Facts in Custody Proceedings. — The question to be determined in child custody hearings is certainly as important as any presented in the usual contract or tort litigation. Affidavits are not, as a rule, admissible in the trial of contract and tort cases as independent evidence to establish facts material to the issues being tried, and there is no more justification for resort to inferior evidence in child custody proceedings than in such other litigations. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969).

But a party to a child custody proceeding must object when affidavits are offered or ask permission to cross-examine, or else his silence will be deemed to give consent. By implication, if timely objection is made, affidavits should not be received, at least not without affording an opportunity for cross-examination. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969).

VI. TEMPORARY CUSTODY AND SUPPORT.

Court Has Inherent Authority to Make Temporary Orders. — A court having jurisdiction of children located within this State has the inherent authority to protect those children and to make such temporary orders as their best interests may require. MacKenzie v.

MacKenzie, 21 N.C. App. 403, 204 S.E.2d 561 (1974).

Subdivisions (c)(2) and (d)(2) give the courts jurisdiction to enter temporary custody and support orders for minor children. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

Under subdivision (d)(2) of this section, in appropriate cases the court may enter orders for the temporary custody of a child pending the service of process. Zajicek v. Zajicek, 12 N.C. App. 563, 183 S.E.2d 850 (1971); Broaddus v. Broaddus, 45 N.C. App. 666, 263 S.E.2d 842 (1980). See also, Lynch v. Lynch, 45 N.C. App. 391, 264 S.E.2d 114 (1980), aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 302 N.C. 189, 274 S.E.2d 212 (1981), modified on rehearing, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

Once one of the bases for jurisdiction listed in § 50A-3(a) has been established, the court may enter an ex parte order for temporary custody prior to service of process or notice, if the circumstances of the case render it appropriate. Hart v. Hart, 74 N.C. App. 1, 327 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

Temporary Orders May Be Entered Ex Parte. — Temporary orders under subdivision (c)(2) and (d)(2) of this section may be entered ex parte and prior to service of process or notice. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982); Regan v. Smith, 131 N.C. App. 851, 509 S.E.2d 452 (1998).

Affidavits may be used as a basis for temporary orders under subdivision (c)(2) and (d)(2) of this section. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

If the circumstances of a particular case so require, the court may enter an order for temporary custody, even pending service of process or notice under subsection (d)(1) of this section, and the use of affidavits as a basis for filing necessary facts for such purpose may be appropriate. In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969).

There may be occasions when there is considerable urgency for a temporary order for the custody of a child. In such instances, the judge may reach a decision on the basis of affidavits and other evidence produced at a preliminary hearing. The persons who have signed the affidavit are, of course, not present and there is no opportunity to cross-examine them, but this is said not to be objectionable, because the ultimate right of examination will be afforded the parties at the trial of the cause. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Temporary Order Not Rendered Null and Void by Entry Prior to Service. — Clearly, under subdivision (e)(3) of this section, the fact that defendant was not served prior to the court's entry of a temporary order would not thereby render such order null and void. Broaddus v. Broaddus, 45 N.C. App. 666, 263 S.E.2d 842 (1980).

VII. VISITATION RIGHTS.

A. In General.

Visitation rights should not be permitted to jeopardize a child's welfare. In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

While a noncustodial parent has a right to reasonable visitation, that right is limited to avoid jeopardizing the child's welfare. Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

The award of visitation rights is a judicial function which may not be delegated to the custodial parent. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Order giving custodial parent exclusive control over visitation will not be sustained. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Duty of Court to Include Visitation Provision. — Once the parties failed to agree, it was the duty of the trial judge to safeguard defendant's right to visitation by including a provision in its order specifying visitation periods. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Trial court is not required to make specific findings to support a visitation schedule whenever a party contends the frequency of visitation is not reasonable. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

Visitation and child support rights are independent rights accruing primarily to the benefit of the minor child and one is not, and may not be made, contingent upon the other. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Receipt of Support May Not Be Conditioned on Visitation. — A trial judge does not have authority to condition a minor child's receipt of support paid by the noncustodial parent on compliance with court-ordered visitation allowed the noncustodial parent by ordering that child support paid by defendant be placed in escrow if minor child fails or refuses to abide by the visitation privileges allowed defendant. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Enforcement of Visitation Orders. — Trial judges in this State have authority to enforce orders providing for visitation by the methods set forth in § 50-13.3, that is, by contempt proceedings and by injunction. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

B. Denial of Parents' Rights.

Abandonment as Ground to Deny Visitation Rights. — The general rule is that abandonment, by itself, does not constitute sufficient ground to deny visitation rights completely, and this rule is in accord with the principle adopted by the courts that the purpose of denying custody or visitation rights is not to punish the noncustodial parent. Johnson v. Johnson, 45 N.C. App. 644, 263 S.E.2d 822 (1980).

Contingent Termination of Visitation. — Where the trial judge had ample evidence before him to justify a conclusion that mother had purposefully engaged in a course of conduct designed to alienate the child's affections for his father, and that these actions were detrimental to the child's welfare, he did not abuse his discretion in fashioning an order directing termination of mother's visitation privilege, pending a court hearing, applicable only on the happening of a certain condition (a repetition of that course of conduct), designed to prevent further harm to the child from this type of behavior. Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

Findings Required Where Severe Restrictions Are Placed on Visitation Rights. — Where severe restrictions are placed on a parent's visitation rights with his child, there should be some finding of fact, supported by competent evidence in the record, warranting such restrictions. Johnson v. Johnson, 45 N.C. App. 644, 263 S.E.2d 822 (1980).

Where hostilities exist between estranged parents, it may be difficult for the noncustodial parent to maintain a relationship with his or her child when required to exercise visitation only in the presence of the other parent or a member of the other parent's family who may share such hostilities. There are, of course, circumstances warranting such restrictions, but if they are imposed, they must be based on appropriate factual findings. Johnson v. Johnson, 45 N.C. App. 644, 263 S.E.2d 822 (1980).

When severe restrictions are placed on the right of visitation, this section requires the trial judge to make findings of fact supported by competent evidence which warrant the restrictions. Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 831 (1981).

Subsection (i) of this section requires specific findings of fact to justify certain visitation restrictions. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

Findings Held Sufficient. — Finding of trial court that defendant had previously taken minor child to Texas under a false pretense and had subsequently refused to return him to North Carolina was a sufficient and appropriate factual finding to support the court's limitation as to the location of visitation (in North Carolina at plaintiff's home.) Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Judge did not err by imposing excessive restrictions on mother's visitations with her son; evidence supported the judge's finding that mother's demonstrations of anger and hostility in the presence of the child and her frustration of the relationship between the child and father necessitated, for the child's best interest, the restrictions the judge imposed on the visitation. Correll v. Allen, 94 N.C. App. 464, 380 S.E.2d 580 (1989).

Findings Held Insufficient. — The trial court's findings in a child custody proceeding that respondent mother had abandoned her child and that it would not be in the best interests of the child for him to be carried back and forth between North Carolina, home of the father, and New Jersey, home of the mother, were insufficient to support the trial court's order restricting respondent's visiting privileges, which were limited to one weekend a month, to occasions only when petitioner father or his designated representative was present. Johnson v. Johnson, 45 N.C. App. 644, 263 S.E.2d 822 (1980).

No competent evidence showed that the father had engaged in any conduct that warranted forfeiture of his visitation rights or that the exercise of his visitation rights would be detrimental to the child's best interest, and the court's factual finding that the motel room where the father lived was an unfit environment for visitation did not support supervised visitation. Hinkle v. Hartsell, 131 N.C. App. 833, 509 S.E.2d 455 (1998).

C. Grandparents' Rights.

Modification of Grandparents' Visitation Rights. — Before an order providing visitation for grandparents of a minor child may be modified, the party seeking modification must show changed circumstances and an abuse of discretion by the trial judge. In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

Right to File Suit. — Subsection (j) of this section makes it clear that grandparents have the right to file suit for custody or visitation during an ongoing proceeding, but it does not restrict their right to bring an initial custody suit pursuant to § 50-13.1 when there are allegations that the parent is unfit. Sharp v. Sharp, 124 N.C. App. 357, 477 S.E.2d 258 (1996).

The grandmother did not have standing under this section to seek visitation rights with her grandchildren, where the children had been adopted by their biological aunt and her husband, and there was no custody dispute. Hill v. Newman, 131 N.C. App. 793, 509 S.E.2d 226 (1998).

Grandparents' Right to Seek Visitation Terminated Upon Death of Daughter/Non-Custodial Parent. — The trial court's jurisdiction over the issues of visitation and custody regarding plaintiff's grandchildren terminated upon the death of plaintiff's daughter, where the son-in-law had exclusive custody. Price v. Breedlove, 138 N.C. App. 149, 530 S.E.2d 559 (2000).

Right to File Suit. — There are four statutes in North Carolina which permit a grandparent to maintain an action for custody or visitation of a minor child, and although plaintiff, mother of the deceased father of the two minor children, did not specify under which statute she filed, it was clear that she had no right to proceed under § § 50-13.1(a), 50-13.2(b1), 50-13.2A, or under this section. Shaut v. Cannon, 136 N.C. App. 834, 526 S.E.2d 214 (2000).

§ 50-13.6. Counsel fees in actions for custody and support of minor children.

In an action or proceeding for the custody or support, or both, of a minor child, including a motion in the cause for the modification or revocation of an existing order for custody or support, or both, the court may in its discretion order payment of reasonable attorney's fees to an interested party acting in good faith who has insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit. Before ordering payment of a fee in a support action, the court must find as a fact that the party ordered to furnish support has refused to provide support which is adequate under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding; provided however, should the court find as a fact that the supporting party has initiated a frivolous action or proceeding the court may order payment of reasonable attorney's fees to an interested party as deemed appropriate under the circumstances. (1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1973, c. 323.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1976 case law on domestic relations, see 55 N.C.L. Rev. 1018 (1977).

For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

For article, "Using Hindsight to Change Child Support Obligations: A Survey of Retroactive Modification and Reimbursement of Child Support in North Carolina," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 111 (1987).

CASE NOTES

I. In General.
II. Actions for Support Only.

I. IN GENERAL.

Notice and Due Process Considerations. — Although this section and § 50-16.4 provide for attorney's fees in both modification of child support actions and alimony actions, this authority does not override a party's basic constitutional rights to notice and due process considerations. Spencer v. Spencer, 133 N.C. App. 38, 514 S.E.2d 283 (1999).

This section applies to a proceeding to compel the future support of the child. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

And not to a proceeding to compel reimbursement for past payments made by a person secondarily liable for such child's support. Tidwell v. Booker, 290 N.C. 98, 225 S.E.2d 816 (1976).

The legislature set different standards in actions for support and in actions for custody and support in enacting this section. Taylor v. Taylor, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

This section does not require a determination that one spouse is a dependent spouse and the other a supporting spouse. Taylor v. Taylor, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

Attorneys' fees are not recoverable in an action for equitable distribution, so that, in a combined action, the fees awarded must be attributable to work by the attorneys on the divorce, alimony and child support actions. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986); Holder v. Holder, 87 N.C. App. 578, 361 S.E.2d 891 (1987).

Settlement Agreement May Provide for Recovery of Attorney's Fees. — The public policy of this state encourages settlement agreements and supports the inclusion of a provision for the recovery of attorney's fees in settlement agreements. Bromhal v. Stott, 341 N.C. 702, 462 S.E.2d 219 (1995).

Applicability in Action Involving Illegitimate Child. — This section does not apply to civil actions to establish paternity under § 49-

14, but would authorize an award of reasonable attorneys' fees for custody and support actions involving an illegitimate child whose paternity has been determined. Smith v. Price, 74 N.C. App. 413, 328 S.E.2d 811 (1985), modified on other grounds, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

Attorneys' fees incurred in prosecuting paternity actions may not be awarded under this section, but may only be assessed as costs under § 6-21(10). Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Contingent Fee Agreements Not Enforceable. — A contract for the payment of a fee to an attorney contingent upon his procuring a divorce for his client or contingent in amount upon the amount of alimony and/or property awarded is void as against public policy. Such a contract is unenforceable exclusively by virtue of the fact that it violates the public policy of this State. Thompson v. Thompson, 70 N.C. App. 147, 319 S.E.2d 315 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 313, 328 S.E.2d 288 (1985).

A trial court has no discretion to award statutory legal fees for services rendered in a child custody and support action pursuant to a contingent fee contract, which is void as against public policy. Davis v. Taylor, 81 N.C. App. 42, 344 S.E.2d 19, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 414, 349 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Contingent fee provision in contract between mother seeking child support and attorneys, whose stated purpose was to recover a lump sum award, from which a percentage attorneys' fee would be derived, permeated the entire agreement, as it was the essence of the contract; therefore, the entire contract was void as against public policy. Davis v. Taylor, 81 N.C. App. 42, 344 S.E.2d 19, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 414, 349 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

But Fees May Be Awarded for Services after Withdrawal of Contract. — Statutory legal fees for services rendered in a child custody and support action may be awarded for the period beginning after illegal contingent fee contract is withdrawn. Davis v. Taylor, 81 N.C. App. 42, 344 S.E.2d 19, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 414, 349 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Trial judge is permitted to exercise considerable discretion in allowing or disallowing attorneys' fees in child custody or support cases. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971); Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

The amount awarded as counsel fees also comes within the discretion of the trial judge and will not be disturbed in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981).

When the statutory requirements for a custody suit or a custody and support suit have been met, the amount of attorneys' fees to be awarded rests within the sound discretion of the trial judge and is reviewable on appeal only for abuse of discretion. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

In a custody and support action, once the statutory requirements of this section have been met, whether to award attorney's fees and in what amounts is within the sound discretion of the trial judge and is only reviewable based on an abuse of discretion. Savani v. Savani, 102 N.C. App. 496, 403 S.E.2d 900 (1991).

The amount of the award of attorneys' fees is within the discretion of the trial judge and will not be reversed in the absence of an abuse of discretion. Cobb v. Cobb, 79 N.C. App. 592, 339 S.E.2d 825 (1986).

Court's discretion in disallowing attorneys' fees is limited only by the abuse of discretion rule. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

As to the effect of this section and other statutes on the court's discretion, see Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Binding Effect of Trial Court's Determination Absent Abuse. — The trial court's determination of attorneys' fees is binding on the appellate courts in the absence of abuse of discretion. Wyche v. Wyche, 29 N.C. App. 685, 225 S.E.2d 626, cert. denied, 290 N.C. 668, 228 S.E.2d 459 (1976); Evans v. Craddock, 61 N.C. App. 438, 300 S.E.2d 908 (1983).

Reviewable Question of Law in Custody and Custody and Support Suits. — Whether the requirements of this section for a custody suit or a custody and support suit have been met is a question of law reviewable on appeal. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986); Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

Proof Required to Support Award in Custody and Custody and Support Suits. — In a custody suit or a custody and support suit, the trial judge, pursuant to the first sentence in this section, has the discretion to award attorneys' fees to an interested party when that party is (1) acting in good faith and (2) has insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit. The facts required by the statute must be alleged and proved to support an order for attorneys' fees. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

Award of counsel fees is appropriate whenever it is shown that the spouse is, in fact, dependent, is entitled to the relief demanded, and is without sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution and defray the necessary expenses thereof. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

Consideration of Estate. — Trial court, in ruling on a motion for attorney's fees in a child custody and support action, may determine that a party has sufficient means to defray the cost of the action without considering the estate of the other party. Taylor v. Taylor, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

Requirement of Insufficient Means. — Before attorneys' fees may be awarded in an alimony case to the dependent spouse under §§ 50-16.3 and 50-16.4, and before attorneys' fees may be awarded to the interested party in a custody, support, or custody and support suit under this section, that person must have insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit; that is, he or she must be unable to employ adequate counsel in order to proceed as litigant to meet the other spouse as litigant in the suit. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980); Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Sufficient Allegations of Insufficient Means. — Allegations that plaintiff was the dependent spouse and that she had insufficient means to support the children during the pendency of the suit were sufficient to support an award of counsel fees under this section. Rogers v. Rogers, 39 N.C. App. 635, 251 S.E.2d 663 (1979).

Required Facts Must Be Found and Proved. — Before attorneys' fees can be taxed under this section, the facts required by the section, that movant (1) is acting in good faith, and (2) has insufficient means to defray the expenses of the suit, must be both alleged and proved. Allen v. Allen, 65 N.C. App. 86, 308 S.E.2d 656 (1983), cert. denied, 310 N.C. 475, 312 S.E.2d 881 (1984).

An order for attorneys' fees pursuant to this section in an action for child custody or support, or both, must be supported by findings, required by the statute, that the party seeking the award is (1) an interested party acting in good faith and (2) has insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit. Cobb v. Cobb, 79 N.C. App. 592, 339 S.E.2d 825 (1986).

Before awarding attorneys' fees, the trial court must make specific findings of fact concerning: (1) The ability of the movants to defray the cost of the suit, i.e., that the movants are unable to employ adequate counsel in order to proceed as a litigant to meet the other litigants in the suit; (2) the good faith of the movants in proceeding in the suit; (3) the lawyer's skill; (4) the lawyer's hourly rate; and (5) the nature and scope of the legal services rendered. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 662, 345 S.E.2d 411, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 590 (1986).

In order to be awarded attorneys' fees in an action for divorce, alimony, custody and child support, a spouse must be found to be a dependent spouse in addition to being found to be unable to defray the expense of the suit. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

In order to award attorneys' fees in an action involving only child support, the trial court must find as fact that (1) the interested party (a) acted in good faith and (b) has insufficient means to defray the expenses of the action and further, that (2) the supporting party refused to provide adequate support under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

An award of attorney's fees to the father was not supported by sufficient factual findings, where the trial court concluded that the father did not have sufficient assets with which to pay his attorney's fees and that the mother did have the means to pay, but there were no findings as to father's monthly income or expenses, and no explicit finding that he acted in good faith in instituting a civil contempt action. Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

Reasonableness as Key Factor. — Reasonableness, not arbitrary classification of attorney activity, is the key factor under all the attorneys' fees statutes. Coastal Prod. Credit Ass'n v. Goodson Farms, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 221, 319 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 621, 323 S.E.2d 922 (1984).

Order Must Contain Factual Findings. — A proper order under this section must contain factual findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the counsel fees might be based, e.g., findings as to the nature and scope of the legal services rendered, and the time and skill required. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

The trial court made insufficient findings relative to its award of attorneys' fees where it failed to take into account the plaintiff's liquid estate of $88,000 and focused instead on her negative disposable income and where it failed to determine whether she was an interested party acting in good faith, required for actions involving child support. Bookholt v. Bookholt, 136 N.C. App. 247, 523 S.E.2d 729 (1999).

Findings of Fact Must Support Reasonableness of Fees. — Section 50-16.4 and this section permit the entering of a proper order for reasonable counsel fees for the benefit of a dependent spouse, but only where the record contains findings of fact, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered and the skill and time required, upon which a determination of the requisite reasonableness could be based. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

The trial court erred in failing to make findings of fact as to the reasonableness of the attorneys' fees incurred by the plaintiff after requesting and receiving a detailed affidavit from the plaintiff's counsel setting forth the nature and scope of the legal services. Rogers v. Rogers, 39 N.C. App. 635, 251 S.E.2d 663 (1979).

To support an award of attorneys' fees, the trial court should make findings as to the lawyer's skill, his hourly rate, its reasonableness in comparison with that of other lawyers, what he did, and the hours he spent. Falls v. Falls, 52 N.C. App. 203, 278 S.E.2d 546, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 831 (1981); Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

As this section requires that awards of attorneys' fees be reasonable, cases construing the statute have in effect annexed a fifth requirement concerning reasonableness onto the express statutory ones; namely, that the record must contain findings of fact upon which a determination of the requisite reasonableness can be based, for example, findings pertaining to the nature and scope of the legal services rendered and the skill and time required. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

Because this section allows for an award of reasonable attorneys' fees, cases construing the statute have in effect annexed an additional requirement concerning reasonableness onto the express statutory ones. Thus, the record must contain additional findings of fact upon which a determination of the requisite reasonableness can be based, such as findings regarding the nature and scope of the legal services rendered, the skill and time required, the attorneys' hourly rate, and its reasonableness in comparison with that of other lawyers. Cobb v. Cobb, 79 N.C. App. 592, 339 S.E.2d 825 (1986).

An order awarding counsel fees in a child support or alimony action must contain a finding or findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the award can be based, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered, the time and skill required, and the attorney's hourly rate in comparison to the customary charges of attorneys practicing in that general area. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

Partial listing of legal expenses is an insufficient finding of fact as to the reasonable worth of attorneys' fees. Wyatt v. Wyatt, 32 N.C. App. 162, 231 S.E.2d 42, aff'd, 35 N.C. App. 650, 242 S.E.2d 180 (1977).

Fees Where Increase in Support Not Warranted. — The court would abuse its discretion if, after determining that an increase in the award of child support was not warranted under the circumstances, it nevertheless proceeded to award attorneys' fees to plaintiff. Walker v. Tucker, 69 N.C. App. 607, 317 S.E.2d 923 (1984).

Merit Bonus. — While the quality of services rendered is properly considered in awarding fees, as well as the nature of the services required, and hence the scope and complexity of the case, there is no North Carolina authority for an award of a "merit bonus." Even assuming such bonuses are allowed, as under federal practice, that should occur only in the rare case where the applicant specifically shows superior quality representation and exceptional success. Coastal Prod. Credit Ass'n v. Goodson Farms, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 221, 319 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 621, 323 S.E.2d 922 (1984).

Remand for Lack of Evidence as to Reasonableness. — Where an award of counsel's fees was based on attorney's affidavit stating the number of hours spent on the case, but there was no evidence before the trial court as to the nature and scope of the legal services and the skill and time required, the award was not sufficiently based, and would be vacated and remanded. Rickenbaker v. Rickenbaker, 21 N.C. App. 276, 204 S.E.2d 198 (1974).

Order awarding attorneys' fees which failed to satisfy requirement of findings as to the lawyer's skill, his hourly rate, its reasonableness in comparison with that of other lawyers, what he did, and the hours he spent was insufficient and case would be remanded for appropriate findings as to attorneys' fees. Coleman v. Coleman, 74 N.C. App. 494, 328 S.E.2d 871 (1985).

Where trial judge made no finding of good faith by plaintiff and no indication of what portion of attorney fees was attributable to custody and support aspects of case, award of attorneys' fees would be vacated and the case remanded for further proceedings on that issue. Smith v. Price, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

Multiple awards of counsel fees in the same domestic action are, in the proper circumstances, within the court's discretion to allow. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Legitimate work by counsel in precursory activity is allowable within an attorneys' fee award in connection with a domestic case. Cobb v. Cobb, 79 N.C. App. 592, 339 S.E.2d 825 (1986).

Unreasonable Depletion of Separate Estate Not Intended. — It would be contrary to the intent of the legislature to require one seeking an award of attorneys' fees to meet the expenses of litigation through the unreasonable depletion of her separate estate, where her separate estate is smaller than that of the other party. Cobb v. Cobb, 79 N.C. App. 592, 339 S.E.2d 825 (1986).

Findings Held Insufficient. — Factual findings on award of attorneys' fees were deficient as to child support where there was no finding that the supporting spouse refused to provide adequate support under the circumstances existing at the time the action was initiated, and as to both alimony and child support, where there were no factual findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the award could be based, other than the trial court's statement that the time expended was "reasonably necessary." Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Award of Fees Held Error. — The trial court erred in requiring plaintiff father to pay counsel fees of defendant mother for a hearing upon defendant's motion for an increase in the amount of child support payments made by plaintiff, where there was no showing or finding that at the time of the hearing defendant was a dependent spouse. Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348, cert. denied, 281 N.C. 314, 188 S.E.2d 897 (1972), decided prior to the 1973 amendment to this section.

Where the trial court failed to make a finding of fact with respect to the wife's ability to defray the expense of the suit, as required by this section, the court abused its discretion in ordering plaintiff husband to pay attorneys' fees. Nolan v. Nolan, 20 N.C. App. 550, 202 S.E.2d 344, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 234, 204 S.E.2d 24 (1974); Rogers v. Rogers, 39 N.C. App. 635, 251 S.E.2d 663 (1979).

The trial court could not order defendant to pay plaintiff's attorney for the time spent in representing her on a contempt citation stemming from her violation of defendant's court-ordered visitation rights. Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980).

For additional case in which award of fees was held error, see Norton v. Norton, 76 N.C. App. 213, 332 S.E.2d 724 (1985).

Findings were inadequate to support an award for payment of attorneys' fees where trial court failed to make specific findings of fact required by statute and case law and instead found only that plaintiff did not have the ability to defray the costs and expenses to employ adequate representation, that the attorney had provided valuable services, and that the attorney expended in excess of five hours representing plaintiff. Cameron v. Cameron, 94 N.C. App. 168, 380 S.E.2d 121 (1989).

Where plaintiff introduced affidavits of her legal expenses but trial court made no findings on all the factors required under this section, award of attorneys' fees was vacated. Napowsa v. Langston, 95 N.C. App. 14, 381 S.E.2d 882, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 709, 388 S.E.2d 460 (1989).

Reversal of Fee Award Where Increase in Support Reversed. — Where that part of order increasing child support payments was reversed, the award of attorneys' fees also had to be reversed. Mullen v. Mullen, 79 N.C. App. 627, 339 S.E.2d 838 (1986).

Where both of plaintiff's attorneys, who represented her in the custody and support hearings, submitted detailed affidavits of their experience, time, and preparation of the case, the trial judge properly found that an attorneys' fee of $80.00 per hour for 75 and 10 hours of time respectively was a reasonable amount to award for time spent on the issue of support only. Savani v. Savani, 102 N.C. App. 496, 403 S.E.2d 900 (1991).

Trial Court Erred in Considering Relative Estates of Parties. — Where the evidence failed to show that defendant did not have ample income to defry the expenses of the action and would have been required to deplete her estate to pay expenses, the trial court erred in considering the relative estates of the parties in assessing the defendant's ability to employ "adequate" counsel. Van Every v. McGuire, 125 N.C. App. 578, 481 S.E.2d 377 (1997), aff'd, 348 N.C. 58, 497 S.E.2d 689 (1998).

Award of Fees Appropriate. — The trial court did not err in requiring father to pay reasonable attorneys' fees of mother in a habeas corpus proceeding to determine the custody of their minor children, where custody of the children had been awarded to mother by both North Carolina and South Carolina courts, and father's failure to return the children to mother in South Carolina after a visit in this State forced mother to come to this State to secure their return, and father was not providing support for the children as he had been ordered. In re Hopper, 11 N.C. App. 611, 182 S.E.2d 228, cert. denied, 279 N.C. 727, 184 S.E.2d 884 (1971).

Where district court found that defendant acted in good faith and could not defray the expenses of lawsuit without impoverishing herself, and the plaintiff had not furnished adequate support for several months, the findings were sufficient to support award of attorney's fees. Osborne v. Osborne, 129 N.C. App. 34, 497 S.E.2d 113 (1998).

Where father unilaterally terminated child support payments after his son reached the age of 18 and failed to make satisfactory progress towards graduation from high school, the support payments were improperly terminated and father was properly ordered to pay the mother's attorney's fees. Leak v. Leak, 129 N.C. App. 142, 497 S.E.2d 702 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 498, 510 S.E.2d 385 (1998).

Attorney fees were properly awarded to the father in a child custody case, where the trial court made factual findings as to the parties' financial resources, that the father was an interested party acting in good faith, and as to father's attorney's skill, rates, and rendition of services. Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

Trial court did not err in awarding attorney's fees to plaintiff's counsel where defendant had substantial assets, retirement and investment accounts, a home, an aircraft, a boat and a business, and plaintiff had a $41,000 income plus $2,000 in modest bank accounts. Burnett v. Wheeler, 133 N.C. App. 316, 515 S.E.2d 480 (1999).

Denial of Fees Upheld. — Respondent in a child custody proceeding was not entitled to an award of counsel fees or to have court costs taxed against petitioner father, where respondent introduced no evidence with respect to her dependent status or inability to defray the expense of the suit, and where she was not the party for whom judgment had been given. In re Cox, 17 N.C. App. 687, 195 S.E.2d 132, cert. denied, 283 N.C. 585, 196 S.E.2d 809 (1973).

Where defendant complied with all orders that directed him to make child support payments, and when necessary defendant voluntarily made payments for the support of the parties' children, it was not an abuse of discretion for the trial court to deny plaintiff's motion for an award of attorneys' fees. Prescott v. Prescott, 83 N.C. App. 254, 350 S.E.2d 116 (1986).

Disallowance of Fees As Matter of Law Held Improper. — The trial court, in its discretion, was fully authorized to disallow attorneys' fees for defendant's counsel, but to disallow such fees as a matter of law was error. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Entitlement to Legal Representation Not Limited to Trial Level. — There is nothing in our statutory or case law to suggest that a dependent spouse in this State is entitled to meet the supporting spouse on equal footing, in terms of adequate and suitable legal representation, at the trial level only. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

Award of attorneys' fees for services performed on appeal should ordinarily be granted, provided the general statutory requirements for such an award are duly met, especially where the appeal is taken by the supporting spouse. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

Award of Fees by Appellate Court. — Neither this section nor any other statute authorizes an appellate court to make an award of attorneys' fees. Tilley v. Tilley, 30 N.C. App. 581, 227 S.E.2d 640 (1976).

Distinction Between Taxing Fees as Costs and Ordering Payment. — As to the difference between including attorney fees in the costs taxed against a party to a lawsuit and in ordering the payment of attorneys' fees, see Smith v. Price, 315 N.C. 523, 340 S.E.2d 408 (1986).

A request for attorneys' fees may be properly raised by a motion in the cause subsequent to the determination of the main custody action. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 662, 345 S.E.2d 411, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 590 (1986).

Time for Motion. — Where intervenors' motion for attorneys' fees was made approximately four months after the trial court had entered order awarding custody to the intervenors, and approximately four months after county division of social services had filed its notice of appeal to that order, the trial court lacked jurisdiction to consider the intervenors' motion. However, following resolution of the appeal of the custody order, the trial court could consider intervenors' motion for attorneys' fees. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 662, 345 S.E.2d 411, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 590 (1986).

Reservation of Issue of Fees when Judgment Rendered. — Since the trial court expressly reserved the issue of attorney's fees at the time it rendered judgment as to the custody matters before it, it retained the authority to consider the issue since attorney's fees were within the court's "oral announcements." Surles v. Surles, 113 N.C. App. 32, 437 S.E.2d 661 (1993).

Review of Attorney's Fees on Appeal. — While whether the statutory requirements have been met is a question of law, reviewable on appeal, the amount of attorneys' fees is within the sound discretion of the trial judge and is only reviewable for an abuse of discretion. Atwell v. Atwell, 74 N.C. App. 231, 328 S.E.2d 47 (1985).

The findings required by this section must be supported by competent evidence and are fully reviewable on appeal. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

The trial court committed error in failing to make adequate findings of fact to support its denial of attorney's fees. Gowing v. Gowing, 111 N.C. App. 613, 432 S.E.2d 911 (1993).

Applied in Williams v. Williams, 12 N.C. App. 170, 182 S.E.2d 667 (1971); Collins v. Collins, 18 N.C. App. 45, 196 S.E.2d 282 (1973); Sawyer v. Sawyer, 21 N.C. App. 293, 204 S.E.2d 224 (1974); Powell v. Powell, 25 N.C. App. 695, 214 S.E.2d 808 (1975); Tidwell v. Booker, 27 N.C. App. 435, 219 S.E.2d 648 (1975); Holt v. Holt, 29 N.C. App. 124, 223 S.E.2d 542 (1976); Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976); Lindsey v. Lindsey, 34 N.C. App. 201, 237 S.E.2d 561 (1977); Gilmore v.

Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979); Byrd v. Byrd, 62 N.C. App. 438, 303 S.E.2d 205 (1983); Darden v. Darden, 66 N.C. App. 432, 311 S.E.2d 600 (1984); Forbes v. Forbes, 72 N.C. App. 684, 325 S.E.2d 272 (1985); Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990); Lawrence v. Tise, 107 N.C. App. 140, 419 S.E.2d 176 (1992).

Stated in Andrews v. Andrews, 12 N.C. App. 410, 183 S.E.2d 843 (1971); Craig v. Kelley, 89 N.C. App. 458, 366 S.E.2d 249 (1988); McLemore v. McLemore, 89 N.C. App. 451, 366 S.E.2d 495 (1988).

Cited in Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970); Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971); Winters v. Winters, 11 N.C. App. 595, 181 S.E.2d 604 (1971); Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640 (1979); Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986); In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986); Glatz v. Glatz, 98 N.C. App. 324, 390 S.E.2d 763 (1990); Hartsell v. Hartsell, 99 N.C. App. 380, 393 S.E.2d 570 (1990); Van Every v. McGuire, 125 N.C. App. 578, 481 S.E.2d 377 (1997), aff'd, 348 N.C. 58, 497 S.E.2d 689 (1998); Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999).

II. ACTIONS FOR SUPPORT ONLY.

Second Sentence of Section Is Limited to Support Actions. — The General Assembly, having limited the second sentence to support actions, apparently did not intend the requirement to apply to custody or custody and support actions. Stanback v. Stanback, 287 N.C. 448, 215 S.E.2d 30 (1975).

Finding Under Second Sentence Is Required Only in Support Actions. — The duty to make the required finding under the second sentence of this section is imposed only in a support action. Stanback v. Stanback, 287 N.C. 448, 215 S.E.2d 30 (1975).

And Not in Custody or Custody and Support Actions. — The requirement of a finding that the party ordered to pay support has refused to provide support applies only in support actions and not in custody or custody and support actions. Arnold v. Arnold, 30 N.C. App. 683, 228 S.E.2d 48 (1976). See also, Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977).

Where cause was heard upon plaintiff's motion for an increase in child support payments and upon defendant's motion for a modification of the child custody order, the trial court's award of attorney fees did not have to be supported by a finding that defendant, the party ordered to furnish support, had refused to provide support which was adequate at the time of the institution of the action. Fellows v. Fellows, 27 N.C. App. 407, 219 S.E.2d 285 (1975).

This section requires, in a child support action, a finding that defendant refused to provide support. In an action for custody and support, findings of fact are not required to sustain an award for counsel fees. Walker v. Walker, 38 N.C. App. 226, 247 S.E.2d 615 (1978).

Findings Required in Action for Support. — A finding of fact supported by competent evidence must be made on the issue of whether the party ordered to furnish support has refused to provide support which is adequate under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding, in addition to meeting the requirements of "good faith" and "insufficient means," before attorneys' fees may be awarded in a support suit. This issue is a question of law, reviewable on appeal. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

Before a court can award attorneys' fees to an interested party under this section in a motion in the cause proceeding for a modification of child support, the court must make the following three findings of fact: (1) the party is acting in good faith; (2) the party has insufficient means to defray the expenses of the suit; and (3) the party ordered to pay support has refused to provide support which is adequate under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding. Quick v. Quick, 67 N.C. App. 528, 313 S.E.2d 233 (1984).

The text of this section sets out four requirements to support an award of attorneys' fees, namely: (1) that the party awarded fees be an interested party; (2) that that party be acting in good faith; (3) that that party have insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit; and (4) that the party ordered to furnish support have refused to provide adequate support under the circumstances existing at the time the action was instituted. Warner v. Latimer, 68 N.C. App. 170, 314 S.E.2d 789 (1984).

Where the action is one for custody or custody and support, the first sentence of this section applies, and the court may award attorneys' fees to an interested party if it finds (1) that the party acted in good faith and (2) that the party lacks the means to defray the expense of the suit. Where the action is solely one for support, attorneys' fees may be awarded provided the court finds, in addition, that the party ordered to furnish support has refused to provide support which is adequate under the circumstances existing at the time of institution of the action or proceeding. Gibson v. Gibson, 68 N.C. App. 566, 316 S.E.2d 99 (1984).

In actions for support only, the court may award reasonable attorneys' fees to a party if it finds: (1) that the party is acting in good faith; (2) that the party has insufficient means to defray the costs of the action; and (3) that the party ordered to pay support had not provided adequate support under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding. Plott v. Plott, 72 N.C. App. 82, 327 S.E.2d 273 (1985).

To award attorneys' fees in a child support action, the trial court must find as fact that: (1) The interested party (a) acted in good faith and (b) has insufficient means to defray the expenses of the action; and (2) the supporting party refused to provide adequate support "under the circumstances existing at the time of the institution of the action or proceeding." Moreover, the required findings of fact must in turn be supported by competent evidence, such as that of the parties' incomes, estates and debts. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Where trial court's order was devoid of any statutorily required findings of fact, the award of attorneys' fees could not stand. Harris v. Harris, 91 N.C. App. 699, 373 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

Case would be remanded where trial court failed to make specific findings that: (1) the mother was acting in good faith; (2) the mother's means were insufficient to defray the expenses of the suit; and (3) the father refused to provide the child support which was adequate under the circumstances existing at the time of the action. Thomas v. Thomas, 134 N.C. App. 591, 518 S.E.2d 513 (1999).

Plaintiff's contention that proceeding was solely one for support was without merit, where plaintiff's modification motion initially put the issue of custody before the court, even though the issue of custody was quickly settled by agreement. Theokas v. Theokas, 97 N.C. App. 626, 389 S.E.2d 278, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 437, 395 S.E.2d 697 (1990).

Court estimates of time required and attorney's hourly rate are not sufficient. — Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

§ 50-13.7. Modification of order for child support or custody.

(a) An order of a court of this State for support of a minor child may be modified or vacated at any time, upon motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances by either party or anyone interested subject to the limitations of G.S. 50-13.10. Subject to the provisions of G.S. 50A-201, 50A-202, and 50A-204, an order of a court of this State for custody of a minor child may be modified or vacated at any time, upon motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances by either party or anyone interested.

(b) When an order for support of a minor child has been entered by a court of another state, a court of this State may, upon gaining jurisdiction, and upon a showing of changed circumstances, enter a new order for support which modifies or supersedes such order for support, subject to the limitations of G.S. 50-13.10. Subject to the provisions of G.S. 50A-201, 50A-202, and 50A-204, when an order for custody of a minor child has been entered by a court of another state, a court of this State may, upon gaining jurisdiction, and a showing of changed circumstances, enter a new order for custody which modifies or supersedes such order for custody. (1858-9, c. 53; 1868-9, c. 116, s. 36; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 46; Code, ss. 1296, 1570, 1661; Rev., ss. 1570, 1853; C.S., ss. 1664, 2241; 1929, c. 270, s. 1; 1939, c. 115; 1941, c. 120; 1943, c. 194; 1949, c. 1010; 1953, c. 813; 1957, c. 545; 1965, c. 310, s. 2; 1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1979, c. 110, s. 13; 1981, c. 682, s. 12; 1987, c. 739, s. 3; 1999-223, s. 13.)

Cross References. — As to the vesting of past due child support payments, see § 50-13.10. As to distribution by court of marital property upon divorce, see § 50-20. For the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, see § 50A-1 et seq.

Legal Periodicals. — For note on choice of law rules in North Carolina, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 243 (1970).

For survey of 1972 case law on child support and pre-Chapter 48A consent judgments, see 51 N.C.L. Rev. 1091 (1973).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For survey of 1982 family law, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1155 (1983).

For note, "Miller v. Kite, 313 N.C. 474, 329 S.E.2d 663 (1985): Should Domestic Disputes Require the Maximum of Minimum Contacts?," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 825 (1986).

For note, "The Effect on the Child of a Custodial Parent's Involvement in an Intimate Same-Sex Relationship," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 131 (1996).

For comment, "Contractual Modification of Past Due and Future Child Support Payments," see 19 Campbell L. Rev. 189 (1996).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — A number of the cases cited below were decided under former § 17-39.1, which dealt with determining custody of children in habeas corpus proceedings, former § 50-13, which dealt with custody and maintenance of children in divorce proceedings, and former § 50-16, which dealt with custody and support of children in actions for alimony without divorce.

Some of the cases below were decided prior to enactment of § 50-13.10, relating to the vesting of past due child support payments.

Section 50-13.2A must be read in pari materia with subsection (a), which therefore requires a showing of a substantial change of circumstances. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

No Voluntary Dismissal of Final Order Permitted. — Under Rule 41(a) and existing case law, parties may not voluntarily dismiss a final custody and child support order. Massey v. Massey, 121 N.C. App. 263, 465 S.E.2d 313 (1996).

Use of Word "May". — Where defendant contended that the use of the word "may" in this statute authorizes the trial court in the exercise of its discretion to refuse to exercise its jurisdiction, he misconstrued the statute. The word "may" authorizes the trial judge to enter an order of modification upon a showing of changed circumstances. Morris v. Morris, 91 N.C. App. 432, 371 S.E.2d 756 (1988).

There is no requirement that each successive custody hearing start with a "clean slate" and that the court not rely on the record previously generated. To the contrary, custody proceedings generally are continuing in nature. Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Noncustodial parent is not entitled as a matter of law to a credit against accrued arrearage in child support for expenses incurred while the child was with the noncustodial parent. Each case must be decided upon it own facts, and the guiding principle is whether an injustice would exist if a credit is not given. Simmons v. Simmons, 74 N.C. App. 725, 329 S.E.2d 723 (1985). And see now § 50-13.10.

Decision to allow, or disallow, a credit to the noncustodial parent against accrued arrearage in child support expenses incurred while the child was with the noncustodial parent is a matter within the discretion of the trial judge. Simmons v. Simmons, 74 N.C. App. 725, 329 S.E.2d 723 (1985).

Applied in Ferguson v. Ferguson, 9 N.C. App. 453, 176 S.E.2d 358 (1970); Paschall v. Paschall, 26 N.C. App. 491, 216 S.E.2d 415 (1975); Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978); Pritchard v. Pritchard, 45 N.C. App. 189, 262 S.E.2d 836 (1980); In re Register, 303 N.C. 149, 277 S.E.2d 356 (1981); Harris v. Harris, 56 N.C. App. 122, 286 S.E.2d 859 (1982); Newman v. Newman, 64 N.C. App. 125, 306 S.E.2d 540 (1983); O'Neal v. Wynn, 64 N.C. App. 149, 306 S.E.2d 822 (1983); Cartrette v. Cartrette, 73 N.C. App. 169, 325 S.E.2d 671 (1985); Glesner v. Dembrosky, 73 N.C. App. 594, 327 S.E.2d 60 (1985); Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985); Bowen v. Gilliard, 483 U.S. 587, 107 S. Ct. 3008, 97 L. Ed. 2d 485 (1987); Koufman v. Koufman, 330 N.C. 93, 408 S.E.2d 729 (1991); Bost v. Van Nortwick, 117 N.C. App. 1, 449 S.E.2d 911 (1994).

Quoted in Craig v. Kelley, 89 N.C. App. 458, 366 S.E.2d 249 (1988).

Stated in Mather v. Mather, 70 N.C. App. 106, 318 S.E.2d 548 (1984); Dobos v. Dobos, 111 N.C. App. 222, 431 S.E.2d 861 (1993).

Cited in In re Stancil, 10 N.C. App. 545, 179 S.E.2d 844 (1971); Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971); Moore v. Moore, 14 N.C. App. 165, 187 S.E.2d 371 (1972); Carmichael v. Carmichael, 40 N.C. App. 277, 252 S.E.2d 257 (1979); County of Stanislaus v. Ross, 41 N.C. App. 518, 255 S.E.2d 229 (1979); Williams v. Richardson, 53 N.C. App. 663, 281 S.E.2d 777 (1981); Phillips v. Choplin, 65 N.C.

App. 506, 309 S.E.2d 716 (1983); Coleman v. Coleman, 74 N.C. App. 494, 328 S.E.2d 871 (1985); Graham v. Graham, 77 N.C. App. 422, 335 S.E.2d 210 (1985); Griffin v. Griffin, 81 N.C. App. 665, 344 S.E.2d 828 (1986); Jones v. Jones, 109 N.C. App. 293, 426 S.E.2d 468 (1993); Griffin v. Griffin, 118 N.C. App. 400, 456 S.E.2d 329 (1995); Garrison v. Connor, 122 N.C. App. 702, 471 S.E.2d 644 (1996); Kelly v. Otte, 123 N.C. App. 585, 474 S.E.2d 131 (1996); Cox v. Cox, 133 N.C. App. 221, 515 S.E.2d 61 (1999); Price v. Breedlove, 138 N.C. App. 149, 530 S.E.2d 559 (2000); In re Estate of Lunsford, 143 N.C. App. 646, 547 S.E.2d 483 (2001), cert. granted, 353 N.C. 727, 550 S.E.2d 779 (2001); King v. King, 144 N.C. App. 391, 547 S.E.2d 846 (2001).

II. MODIFICATION, GENERALLY.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided prior to enactment of § 50-13.10, relating to the vesting of past due child support payments.

This section gives North Carolina courts subject matter jurisdiction to modify child support orders entered by another state. Morris v. Morris, 91 N.C. App. 432, 371 S.E.2d 756 (1988).

Statutory Compliance Required. — Since there is a statutory procedure for modifying a custody determination, a party seeking modification of a custody decree must comply with its provisions. Bivens v. Cottle (Westlake), 120 N.C. App. 467, 462 S.E.2d 829 (1995), appeal dismissed, 346 N.C. 270, 485 S.E.2d 296 (1997).

A court is without authority to sua sponte modify an existing support order. Royall v. Sawyer, 120 N.C. App. 880, 463 S.E.2d 578 (1995).

Trial court's order allowing partial payment of support obligation at contempt proceeding did not constitute a modification, such modification of child support being only allowed "upon motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances by either party." Bogan v. Bogan, 134 N.C. App. 176, 516 S.E.2d 641 (1999).

The welfare of the children in controversies involving custody is the polar star by which the courts must be guided in awarding custody. Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975); Dean v. Dean, 32 N.C. App. 482, 232 S.E.2d 470 (1977).

And the Determinative Factor. — The welfare of the child, not the frustration of the court order, is the determinative factor. Gordon v. Gordon, 46 N.C. App. 495, 265 S.E.2d 425 (1980).

And Is the Ultimate Object in Securing Child Support. — The welfare of the child is the "polar star" in the matters of custody and maintenance, yet common sense and common justice dictate that the ultimate object in such matters is to secure support commensurate with the needs of the child and the ability of the father to meet the needs. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

The ultimate object in setting awards of child support is to secure support commensurate with the needs of the children and the ability of the father to meet the needs. Gibson v. Gibson, 24 N.C. App. 520, 211 S.E.2d 522 (1975).

The welfare of the child is always open to inquiry by the court, and upon the showing of a change of circumstances the order of custody may be modified. In re Mason, 13 N.C. App. 334, 185 S.E.2d 433 (1971), cert. denied, 280 N.C. 495, 186 S.E.2d 513 (1972).

The control and custody of minor children cannot be determined finally. Changed conditions will always justify inquiry by the courts into the interest and welfare of the children, and decrees may be entered as often as the facts justify. In re Herring, 268 N.C. 434, 150 S.E.2d 775 (1966); In re Bowen, 7 N.C. App. 236, 172 S.E.2d 62 (1970).

Neither agreements nor adjudications for the custody or support of a minor child are ever final. McLeod v. McLeod, 266 N.C. 144, 146 S.E.2d 65 (1966).

As children develop, their needs change, and these needs must be supplied by the parent, whose ability to supply them may change. For these reasons orders in custody proceedings are not final. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965).

A judgment awarding custody is based upon conditions found to exist at the time it is entered. The judgment is subject to such change as is necessary to make it conform to changed conditions when they occur. In re Bowen, 7 N.C. App. 236, 172 S.E.2d 62 (1970); Owen v. Owen, 31 N.C. App. 230, 229 S.E.2d 49 (1976).

And Is Temporary in Nature. — All custody orders are from their very nature temporary and founded upon conditions and circumstances existing at the time of the hearing. Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971).

Although they provide guidance, prior custody orders are not binding in subsequent proceedings. Custody orders are not permanent, but remain freely modifiable upon appropriate evidence of changed circumstances. Williams v. Williams, 91 N.C. App. 469, 372 S.E.2d 310 (1988).

Decrees with respect to custody and support are subject to further orders of the court. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962); Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

And May Be Altered upon a Change in Circumstances. — Decrees entered by North Carolina courts in child custody and support matters are impermanent in character and are res judicata of the issue only so long as the facts and circumstances remain the same as when the decree was rendered. The decree is subject to alteration upon a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967); Tate v. Tate, 9 N.C. App. 681, 177 S.E.2d 455 (1970); Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

A decree for the support of a minor child is subject to alteration upon a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Bishop v. Bishop, 245 N.C. 573, 96 S.E.2d 721 (1957); Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963).

It is elementary that court decrees in child custody and support matters are not permanent in character and may be modified by the court in the future if subsequent events and the welfare of the child require. In re Rose, 9 N.C. App. 413, 176 S.E.2d 249 (1970).

An order awarding the custody of minor children determines the present rights of the parties, but is not permanent in nature, and is subject to modification for a subsequent change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the children. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963); In re Bowen, 7 N.C. App. 236, 172 S.E.2d 62 (1970); Owen v. Owen, 31 N.C. App. 230, 229 S.E.2d 49 (1976).

The entry of an order in a custody matter does not finally determine the rights of parties as to the custody, care and control of a child, and thus when a substantial change of condition affecting the child's welfare is properly established, the court may modify a prior custody decree. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974); Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123 (1979).

On a hearing in a custody suit, the judgment is not intended to be a final determination of the rights of the parties touching the care and control of the child; thus, on a change of conditions, properly established, the question may be further heard and determined. Stanback v. Stanback, 266 N.C. 72, 145 S.E.2d 332 (1965).

The purpose of a child support proceeding is to determine the nature and extent of the support required. The initial determination is subject to modification or vacation at any time upon motion and a showing of changed circumstances. The support issue thus may be before the court on numerous occasions during a child's minority. Leach v. Alford, 63 N.C. App. 118, 304 S.E.2d 265 (1983).

Since the ruling in Petersen v. Rogers, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994) that recognized the constitutionally — protected paramount right of parents to custody, the ruling has been interpreted to apply only to an initial custody determination, and not to motions for change of custody based on changed circumstances. Speaks v. Fanek, 122 N.C. App. 389, 470 S.E.2d 82 (1996).

As May Agreements on Such Matters. — Decrees entered by courts in child custody and support matters, or written agreements with respect to such matters, are impermanent in character and are subject to alteration by the court upon a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Williams v. Williams, 18 N.C. App. 635, 197 S.E.2d 629 (1973).

While the provisions of a valid separation agreement relating to marital and property rights of the parties cannot be set aside by the court without the consent of the parties, no agreement between husband and wife can serve to deprive the courts of their inherent authority to protect the interests of and provide for the welfare of minor children. Hershey v. Hershey, 57 N.C. App. 692, 292 S.E.2d 141 (1982).

Change in Circumstances Is Threshold Issue. — Modification of a support order cannot occur until the threshold issue of substantial change in circumstances has been shown. Davis v. Risley, 104 N.C. App. 798, 411 S.E.2d 171 (1991).

Party Required to Demonstrate Substantially Changed Circumstances. — Under this section, a party is required to demonstrate substantially changed circumstances affecting the welfare of the child in order to be granted a modification of an existing custody order. The word custody under the statute also includes visitation. Savani v. Savani, 102 N.C. App. 496, 403 S.E.2d 900 (1991).

No agreement or contract between husband and wife will serve to deprive the courts of their inherent as well as their statutory authority to protect the interests and provide for the welfare of infants. The parties may bind themselves by a separation agreement or by a consent judgment, but they cannot thus withdraw the children of the marriage from the protective custody of the court. Voss v. Summerfield, 77 N.C. App. 839, 336 S.E.2d 144 (1985).

Retroactive Increase Requires "Emergency Situation". — Child support reimbursement or child support governing a period prior to a motion to increase an existing child support order would constitute retroactive child support and would not be based on the presumptive guidelines. Therefore, a child support payment order may not be retroactively increased without evidence of some emergency situation that required the expenditure of sums in excess of the amount of child support paid. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Separation Agreement Incorporated into Consent Judgment Is Modifiable. — Where a separation agreement is adopted by incorporation into a consent judgment, the terms thereof are subject to modification by the court upon a showing of changed circumstances. Mann v. Mann, 57 N.C. App. 587, 291 S.E.2d 794 (1982).

Deference Due Agreement. — On motion filed by defendant to modify consent order to provide for child support, the defendant, as movant, will have the burden of showing a "substantial change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child." Deference due the agreement gives rise to the presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount agreed upon is just and reasonable. Voss v. Summerfield, 77 N.C. App. 839, 336 S.E.2d 144 (1985).

Burden in Seeking Modification of Separation Agreement Not Incorporated in Order. — When a motion is made to modify the child support provisions of a separation agreement which has not previously been incorporated into an order or judgment of the court, the moving party's only burden is to show the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child at the time of the hearing, and he is not required to show a change in circumstances. Should the evidence establish, giving due regard to the factors contained in § 50-13.4(b) and (c), that such amount substantially exceeds the amount agreed upon in the separation agreement, such evidence would necessarily rebut the presumption of reasonableness of the amount of child support established in the agreement and establish the need for an increase. However, absent such a showing, the agreement of the parties will be deemed to be reasonable. Boyd v. Boyd, 81 N.C. App. 71, 343 S.E.2d 581 (1986).

Effect of Reconciliation on Support Provisions of Separation Agreement. — A separation agreement is terminated for every purpose, insofar as it remains executory, when the parties resume the marital relationship. Among the executory purposes for which a separation agreement is terminated is the payment of child support. But while the courts have held that reconciliation voids alimony provisions, whether in a separation agreement or a court order, this principle has not been applied to void, as a matter of law, a judgment ordering payment of child support. Walker v. Walker, 59 N.C. App. 485, 297 S.E.2d 125 (1982).

Defendant may, upon a proper showing, be entitled to relief from those payments which, under a judgment, fell due during a period of reconciliation. Walker v. Walker, 59 N.C. App. 485, 297 S.E.2d 125 (1982).

Relitigation of Paternity Not Basis for Modifying Support Agreement. — While a voluntary support agreement may, upon motion and a showing of changed circumstances, be modified or vacated at any time, it cannot be modified or vacated on the basis of relitigation, in a proceeding related solely to the order for support, of the paternity issue. That issue is res judicata and shall not be reconsidered by the court in such a proceeding. Beaufort County v. Hopkins, 62 N.C. App. 321, 302 S.E.2d 662 (1983).

Arbitration Award Remains Reviewable and Modifiable. — While there exists no prohibition to the parties settling the issues of custody and child support by arbitration, the provisions of an award for custody or child support will always be reviewable and modifiable by the courts, as parents cannot by agreement deprive the court of its inherent and statutory authority to protect the interests of their children, and further, a court order pertaining to custody or support of a minor child does not finally determine the rights of the parties as to these matters. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Because all awards or orders concerning child support or custody are reviewable and modifiable, any arbitration concerning these issues is not binding. Cyclone Roofing Co. v. David M. LaFave Co., 312 N.C. 224, 321 S.E.2d 872 (1984).

Temporary resumption of marital relationship does not require court to void support order on motion pursuant to § 1A-1, Rule 60(b)(4). Walker v. Walker, 59 N.C. App. 485, 297 S.E.2d 125 (1982).

Custody Provisions in a Divorce Decree Are Subject to Modification. — The provision of a final decree of divorce awarding the custody of the minor children of the marriage is subject to modification for subsequent change of condition as often as the facts justify. In re Marlowe, 268 N.C. 197, 150 S.E.2d 204 (1966).

A decree awarding custody of the child of the marriage as between its divorced parents is determinative of the present rights of the parties, but is not permanent, and may be later modified by the court upon a change of conditions. Hardee v. Mitchell, 230 N.C. 40, 51 S.E.2d 884 (1949); Griffin v. Griffin, 237 N.C. 404, 75 S.E.2d 133 (1953).

As Are Support Provisions Therein. — The court has jurisdiction to modify an order for the support of a child of the marriage entered in the husband's action for absolute divorce and may do so upon the wife's motion in the cause made subsequent to the rendition of the decree of absolute divorce. Story v. Story, 221 N.C. 114, 19 S.E.2d 136 (1942).

While the rule in Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983) did not apply to a divorce judgment entered prior thereto, the language used by the court in absolute divorce judgment, incorporating separation agreement into the judgment, was sufficient under the law as it existed prior to Walters to evidence the court's intent to make the parties' separation agreement its own determination of their respective rights and obligations. Thus, when the court adopted the parties' agreement as to child support as its own determination of the amount of child support to be paid by defendant, this order of support became modifiable in the same manner as any other child support order. Holthusen v. Holthusen, 79 N.C. App. 618, 339 S.E.2d 823 (1986).

Modification of Payments Accrued After Motion Filed. — Any child support payments which accrued after the filing of mother's motion for an increase based on changed circumstances could be subject to modification as provided by law. Mackins v. Mackins, 114 N.C. App. 538, 442 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 694, 448 S.E.2d 527 (1994).

Modification Where Consent Judgment in Divorce Action Determined Custody. — Where custody was awarded by court order by the adoption of a consent judgment relative to child custody by the court in its findings of fact and conclusions of law, custody being awarded to defendant as part of the divorce judgment, not merely by agreement of the parties, any subsequent modification must be made in accordance with subsection (a) of this section. Barnes v. Barnes, 55 N.C. App. 670, 286 S.E.2d 586 (1982).

When child support agreement was incorporated into parties divorce judgment it became an order of court that was modifiable only as other judgments involving child custody and support are modifiable. Tyndall v. Tyndall, 80 N.C. App. 722, 343 S.E.2d 284, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 420, 349 S.E.2d 606 (1986), upholding trial court's refusal to disregard the terms of judgment and make a new, independent determination where no grounds for modifying the judgment were presented.

Modification of Support Provisions in Order of Alimony Without Divorce. — An order of alimony without divorce and child support is temporary in nature, and if future circumstances justify a change, defendant is at liberty to seek relief in the trial court by motion in the cause. Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

In wife's action for alimony without divorce and for child support, the Court of Appeals would not disturb an order of the trial court requiring husband to make substantial payments to wife for alimony and for support of the minor children, notwithstanding husband's contention that he anticipates a substantial decrease in earning, since the order was temporary in nature and is subject to modification upon change of circumstances. Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

Modification of Order Transferring Child Custody. — An order which transferred child custody from the plaintiff to the defendant was a final order under § 1A-1, Rule 60(b), but the order could be changed subsequently upon a proper showing of change of circumstances under this section. Dishman v. Dishman, 37 N.C. App. 543, 246 S.E.2d 819 (1978).

Order May Not Be Vacated by Stipulation. — Where an order of the trial court awarding plaintiff permanent custody and obligating defendant to pay permanent child support was rendered, nothing in Rule 41 granted authority to the parties, without action by the trial court, to vacate by stipulation the order previously entered in the action. Massey v. Massey, 121 N.C. App. 263, 465 S.E.2d 313 (1996).

As to the weight to be accorded the wishes of a child who has reached the age of discretion in choosing a custodian, see Elmore v. Elmore, 4 N.C. App. 192, 166 S.E.2d 506 (1969); In re Harrell, 11 N.C. App. 351, 181 S.E.2d 188 (1971); In re Williamson, 32 N.C. App. 616, 233 S.E.2d 677 (1977); Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978); Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123 (1979).

The trial court must determine the present reasonable needs of the child before ordering a modification in child support. Mullen v. Mullen, 79 N.C. App. 627, 339 S.E.2d 838 (1986); Smith v. Smith, 89 N.C. App. 232, 365 S.E.2d 688 (1988).

To properly determine child's present reasonable needs, trial court must hear evidence and make findings of specific fact on the actual past expenditures for the minor child, the present reasonable expenses of the minor child, and the parties' relative abilities to pay. Mullen v. Mullen, 79 N.C. App. 627, 339 S.E.2d 838 (1986); Smith v. Smith, 89 N.C. App. 232, 365 S.E.2d 688 (1988).

Determination of Relative Ability to Pay. — Evidence of, and findings of fact on, the parties' income, estates, and present reasonable expenses are necessary to determine their relative abilities to pay. Mullen v. Mullen, 79 N.C. App. 627, 339 S.E.2d 838 (1986).

Inclusion of Estimated Expenses for Items That Custodial Parent Cannot Currently Afford Not Improper. — In support modification proceedings it was not improper for the court to include in its findings estimated expenses for certain items that plaintiff could not currently afford; simply because a custodial parent is unable to afford a certain item or expense is no reason to disqualify that item as a reasonable need of the child. Findings of fact as to actual past expenditures are meant to aid the trial court in determining the reasonable needs of the children, not to hamper the court's ability to assess the children's reasonable needs. Smith v. Smith, 89 N.C. App. 232, 365 S.E.2d 688 (1988).

An order providing for temporary child support is not an appealable final order, whereas an order providing for permanent child support until emancipation is an appealable final order even though permanent child support orders may be modified upon a showing of change of circumstances. Banner v. Hatcher, 124 N.C. App. 439, 477 S.E.2d 249 (1996).

Modification of Support Provisions Upheld. — Where, in a decree of divorce, father was ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the support of his infant daughter, and by its first order the court retained the cause subject to the right of either party at any time to apply for a modification of the order, and pursuant to this provision the court later, upon father's insolvency, made the sums assessed a charge on plaintiff's homestead and personal property exemptions when allotted, the modification was authorized by statute as well as by the order of the courts. Walker v. Walker, 204 N.C. 210, 167 S.E. 818 (1933).

In the modification of an order for child support, there was no error where the trial court found sufficient facts to justify an increase in the child support payments, and these findings were supported by competent evidence in the record. Gibson v. Gibson, 24 N.C. App. 520, 211 S.E.2d 522 (1975).

Modification of Custody and Support Provisions Erroneous. — The trial court errs in modifying a previous order as to custody of and support of children in the absence of a motion for modification and absent any showing of changed circumstances. Smith v. Smith, 15 N.C. App. 180, 189 S.E.2d 525 (1972).

In the absence of any evidence and finding of any change in circumstances, it was error for the trial court to order an increase in the amount of child support. Childers v. Childers, 19 N.C. App. 220, 198 S.E.2d 485 (1973).

Trial court's findings held insufficient to justify an increase in support payment of $500.00 for two children, as specified in separation agreement, to payment of $800.00 for one child following older child's attaining of her majority. Rice v. Rice, 81 N.C. App. 247, 344 S.E.2d 41, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 706, 347 S.E.2d 439 (1986).

Where there was no evidence that defendant, who worked for a school system as a psychologist, intentionally depressed his income or otherwise engaged in bad faith, the trial court erred by imputing income to defendant for four weeks during the school district summer recess. Ellis v. Ellis, 126 N.C. App. 362, 485 S.E.2d 82 (1997).

Father did not show sufficient changed circumstances to warrant modification of either the support or custody order of his three children, even though mother no longer retained custody of the oldest daughter, as the welfare of the children at the time the contest came on for hearing was the controlling consideration and, based on their welfare, modification in his favor was not warranted. Davis v. Davis, — N.C. App. —, — S.E.2d —, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 664 (Aug. 7, 2001).

Evidence of Child-Oriented Expenses in Modification Hearings. — In seeking a modification of child support, the moving party must present evidence of child-oriented expenses, including the amount of those expenses at the time of the original support hearing. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Modification of Custody Order Erroneous. — Where the trial court correctly found that no change in circumstances affecting minor's welfare had been shown, its order requiring plaintiff/mother to give defendant/father final decision-making authority as to child's schooling, extracurricular activities, and travel constituted a wrongful modification of prior custody order. Sain v. Sain, 134 N.C. App. 460, 517 S.E.2d 921 (1999).

Where although father, the custodial parent, presented some evidence of present and future expenses, he presented no evidence of child-oriented expenses at the time of the prior hearing, the trial court did not have all of the evidence necessary to establish a change of circumstances and did not err in refusing to modify plaintiff's child support. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

For case involving refusal to modify custody decree where child was actually in custody of another married couple, see Fearrington v. Fearrington, 251 N.C. 694, 111 S.E.2d 850 (1960).

For case affirming order transferring custody to paternal grandmother and awarding visitation rights to both mother and father, see Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

Parent can obligate himself to support a child after emancipation and past majority, and his contract will be enforceable, it being beyond the inherent power of the court to modify same absent the consent of the parties. Hershey v. Hershey, 57 N.C. App. 692, 292 S.E.2d 141 (1982).

Modification When One of Several Children Reaches Age 18. — While child support obligations ordered by a court terminate upon the child reaching age 18, unless the child is otherwise emancipated prior to reaching age 18 or the trial court in its discretion continues to enforce the payment obligation after the child reaches age 18 and while the child is in primary or secondary school, when one of two or more minor children for whom support is ordered reaches age 18, and when the support ordered to be paid is not allocated as to each individual child, the supporting parent has no authority to unilaterally modify the amount of the child support payment. The supporting parent must apply to the trial court for modification. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Cases holding that where one of two minor children reaches the age of 18, a trial court may retroactively modify child support arrearages when equitable considerations exist which would create an injustice if modification is not allowed, were decided before § 50-13.10 became effective on October 1, 1987. Under this statute, if the supporting party is not disabled or incapacitated, a past due, vested child support payment is subject to divestment only as provided by law, and if, but only if, a written motion is filed, and due notice is given to all parties before the payment is due. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Continuing Obligation to Support Illegitimate Child. — Section 49-7, read together with this section, clearly contemplates a continuing obligation on the part of the parents of an illegitimate child to provide support, including when necessary the modification or increase of payments ordered to satisfy this obligation. Having been conclusively determined a "responsible parent," as that term is defined in § 110-129, the father of an illegitimate child must necessarily remain liable for the future support of his minor child. Wilkes County ex rel. Child Support Enforcement ex rel. Nations v. Gentry, 311 N.C. 580, 319 S.E.2d 224 (1984).

Substantial Decrease in Parent's Income Not Shown. — Although a substantial decrease in the non-custodial parent's income can support a modification without a showing of a change in the needs of the child, the decrease in defendant's income of $500 a year was not substantial in this case. Wiggs v. Wiggs, 128 N.C. App. 512, 495 S.E.2d 401 (1998).

Unilateral Reduction of Payments. — The father was properly held in contempt, despite his claim that the evidence did not show that he had the means to comply with the trial court's purge order, where he unilaterally reduced his child support payments after suffering a substantial reduction in income. Chused v. Chused, 131 N.C. App. 668, 508 S.E.2d 559 (1998).

III. CHANGE IN CIRCUMSTANCES.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided prior to enactment of § 50-13.10, relating to the vesting of past due child support payments.

A change in circumstances must be shown in order to modify an order relating to custody, support or alimony. Rock v. Rock, 260 N.C. 223, 132 S.E.2d 342 (1963); Elmore v. Elmore, 4 N.C. App. 192, 166 S.E.2d 506 (1969); In re Griffin, 6 N.C. App. 375, 170 S.E.2d 84 (1969); Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); Rabon v. Ledbetter, 9 N.C. App. 376, 176 S.E.2d 372 (1970); McDowell v. McDowell, 13 N.C. App. 643, 186 S.E.2d 621 (1972); Kenney v. Kenney, 15 N.C. App. 665, 190 S.E.2d 650 (1972); Register v. Register, 18 N.C. App. 333, 196 S.E.2d 550 (1973); Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975).

Where a provision for a reduction in support payments was omitted from the original order, that order could not thereafter be modified by inserting such provision without a showing and finding of change in circumstances. Rabon v. Ledbetter, 9 N.C. App. 376, 176 S.E.2d 372 (1970).

When the parties have entered into a consent order providing for the custody and support of their children, any modification of that order must be based upon a showing of a substantial change in circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

Where a Virginia court which had issued a divorce decree denied modification of the original child support order, and the former spouse and minor children were living in North Carolina, U.S. Const., Art. IV, § 1 required the Virginia order denying modification to be given full faith and credit in North Carolina subject to changed circumstances under this section. Morris v. Morris, 91 N.C. App. 432, 371 S.E.2d 756 (1988).

A Georgia divorce judgment precluded a North Carolina court from making any findings as to child support without a showing of a change in circumstances. Shores v. Shores, 91 N.C. App. 435, 371 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Trial court erred in modifying an existing support decree from the State of Georgia when there were no findings of fact or conclusions of law showing a change of circumstances to support such a conclusion. Shores v. Shores, 91 N.C. App. 435, 371 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Without evidence of any change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child or an increase in need, an increase for support based solely on the ground that the support payor's income has increased is improper. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

There are no exceptions in North Carolina law to the requirement that a change in circumstances be shown before a custody decree may be modified. Bivens v. Cottle (Westlake), 120 N.C. App. 467, 462 S.E.2d 829 (1995), appeal dismissed, 346 N.C. 270, 485 S.E.2d 296 (1997).

A party seeking modification of child custody has the burden of showing changed circumstances only where an order for permanent custody already exists. Regan v. Smith, 131 N.C. App. 851, 509 S.E.2d 452 (1998).

A change in circumstances may be shown in any of several ways: an increase or decrease in the child's needs; a substantial and involuntary decrease in the income of the noncustodial parent; a voluntary decrease in income of either supporting parent; and, if the support order is at least three years old, proof of a disparity of fifteen percent or more between the original order and the amount under the Child Support Guidelines. Wiggs v. Wiggs, 128 N.C. App. 512, 495 S.E.2d 401 (1998).

Or a Separation Agreement. — Where parties to a separation agreement agree upon the amount of the support and maintenance of their minor children, there is a presumption, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the amount mutually agreed upon is just and reasonable, and that upon motion for an increase in such allowance, a court is not warranted in ordering an increase in the absence of any evidence of a change of conditions. Soper v. Soper, 29 N.C. App. 95, 223 S.E.2d 560 (1976); Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982); Hershey v. Hershey, 57 N.C. App. 692, 292 S.E.2d 141 (1982).

Modification of a child support order involves a two-step process: 1) the court must first determine a substantial change of circumstances has taken place; and 2) only then does it proceed to apply the guidelines to calculate the applicable amount of support. McGee v. McGee, 118 N.C. App. 19, 453 S.E.2d 531 (1995).

Meaning of "Changed Circumstances". — "Changed circumstances," as used in this section, means such a change as affects the welfare of the child. In re Harrell, 11 N.C. App. 351, 181 S.E.2d 188 (1971); Hensley v. Hensley, 21 N.C. App. 306, 204 S.E.2d 228 (1974); Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 568, 261 S.E.2d 122 (1979); O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277, cert. denied as to additional issues, 312 N.C. 623, 323 S.E.2d 923 (1984); Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

Although a court must make findings concerning the party's ability to pay, the changed circumstances with which the courts are concerned are those relating to child-oriented expenses. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

The changed circumstances with which the courts are concerned are those which relate to child-oriented expenses. Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

The court erred in concluding that a finding of change in child-oriented expenses is a threshold requirement that must be satisfied before a court can modify a support order because of a change in the supporting party's circumstances, where the defendant presented evidence of a decreased income that could support a modification based on changed circumstances. Padilla v. Lusth, 118 N.C. App. 709, 457 S.E.2d 319 (1995).

The trial court was not required to find adverse changes in circumstances, but properly modified custody based on special needs child's best interests, where (1) reformed father's lifestyle would be better suited to providing the boy with the proper structure and educational opportunities he needed; (2) defendant/mother's job would require her to be away from the child in the evenings, leaving him in the care of others; (3) mother's home schooling of him would not meet his social and educational needs; (4) since father enrolled the child in the local public schools during the trial custody period, the boy had exhibited "phenomenal" improvement with respect to his stuttering and motor tics due to the specialized speech therapy he received; (5) father lived in a spacious new home where the boy had his own bedroom and bathroom; and (6) mother lived in an overcrowded rental home in which the boy shared a bathroom with four other people. Metz v. Metz, 138 N.C. App. 538, 530 S.E.2d 79 (2000).

Change of Circumstances in Conclusion of Law. — A substantial change of circumstances is unequivocally a conclusion of law, meaning that a change has occurred among the parties, and that change has affected the welfare of the children involved. Garrett v. Garrett, 121 N.C. App. 192, 464 S.E.2d 716 (1995).

Change Must Be Substantial. — There must generally be a substantial change of circumstances before an order of custody is changed. Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); Todd v. Todd, 18 N.C. App. 458, 197 S.E.2d 1 (1973).

Before the court will modify a custody order, it must be shown that the circumstances have so changed that the welfare of the child will be adversely affected unless the custody provision is modified. Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); Searl v. Searl, 34 N.C. App. 583, 239 S.E.2d 305 (1977); Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978); Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980); Gordon v. Gordon, 46 N.C. App. 495, 265 S.E.2d 425 (1980); O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 432, 329 S.E.2d 370 (1985).

The moving party has the burden of showing a substantial change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Searl v. Searl, 34 N.C. App. 583, 239 S.E.2d 305 (1977); Ebron v. Ebron, 40 N.C. App. 270, 252 S.E.2d 235 (1979); Barnes v. Barnes, 55 N.C. App. 670, 286 S.E.2d 586 (1982); Kelly v. Kelly, 77 N.C. App. 632, 335 S.E.2d 780 (1985).

When plaintiff moved that original order be vacated and either modified or eliminated, he assumed the burden of showing that circumstances had changed between the time of the order and the time of the hearing upon his motion. Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967); In re Harrell, 11 N.C. App. 351, 181 S.E.2d 188 (1971); Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

The original decree ordering the payment of money is an adjudication of the court as to what was reasonable and proper at the time it was made. The burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that a material change in the circumstances has occurred is upon the party requesting the modification. Allen v. Allen, 7 N.C. App. 555, 173 S.E.2d 10 (1970).

The party seeking to have custody order vacated has the burden of showing that circumstances have changed. Hensley v. Hensley, 21 N.C. App. 306, 204 S.E.2d 228 (1974); Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974); King v. Allen, 25 N.C. App. 90, 212 S.E.2d 396, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 259, 214 S.E.2d 431 (1975); King v. Demo, 40 N.C. App. 661, 253 S.E.2d 616 (1979); Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980); Gordon v. Gordon, 46 N.C. App. 495, 265 S.E.2d 425 (1980); Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982); Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

A finding of change in child-oriented expenses is not a threshold requirement that must be satisfied before a court can modify a support order because of a change in the supporting party's circumstances. Padilla v. Lusth, 118 N.C. App. 709, 457 S.E.2d 319 (1995).

Interference with Visitation. — Because the welfare of the child is the paramount concern in custody cases, interference with visitation of the noncustodial parent which has a negative impact on the welfare of the child can constitute a substantial change of circumstances sufficient to warrant a change of custody. Woncik v. Woncik, 82 N.C. App. 244, 346 S.E.2d 277 (1986).

Removal of Parent to Another Residence. — A finding that mother "is now residing in Mecklenburg County, North Carolina" is not a finding of a substantial change of circumstances that will support the modification of a child custody order. Harrington v. Harrington, 16 N.C. App. 628, 192 S.E.2d 638 (1972).

Where a parent changes his residence, the effect on the welfare of the child must be shown in order for the court to modify a custody decree based on change of circumstances. Gordon v. Gordon, 46 N.C. App. 495, 265 S.E.2d 425 (1980); Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

While it is true that a parent's change of residence does not of itself amount to a substantial change of circumstances, the effects of such a move on the welfare of the child may well amount to a change of circumstances requiring modification of the original custody order. O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 432, 329 S.E.2d 370 (1985).

Relocation After Remarriage. — The trial court erred in amending the custody decree based on a finding of substantial change in circumstances where it found only that the proposed relocation of mother after her remarriage would adversely affect the relationship between father and his child, but made no other findings about the effect of the proposed relocation on the child and on the child's best interests. Evans v. Evans, 138 N.C. App. 135, 530 S.E.2d 576 (2000).

Removal of Child to Another Jurisdiction. — Before an order of custody is changed, more must be shown than mere removal of child from a jurisdiction which may enter an adverse decision to the removing parent. Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969).

Although it is not so as a matter of law, it will be a rare case where the child will not be adversely affected when a relocation of the custodial parent and child requires substantial alteration of a successful custody-visitation arrangement in which both parents have substantial contact with the child. Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

Change in Custody Between Parents. — A change in custody from the father to the mother was a changed circumstance supporting modification of the mother's child support obligation. Kowalick v. Kowalick, 129 N.C. App. 781, 501 S.E.2d 671 (1998).

Adverse Effect on Child as Factor to Support Modification. — An adverse effect on a child as the result of a change in circumstances is an acceptable factor for the courts to consider and will support a modification of a prior custody order, but showing an adverse effect is not necessary for modification. Pulliam v. Smith, 348 N.C. 616, 501 S.E.2d 898 (1998).

Where parties crossed out a cohabitation provision on the face of their separation memorandum, the trial court only partially discharged its duty in finding that a change of circumstances occurred when husband began cohabiting with his girlfriend because it failed to determine whether plaintiff's wife had met her burden of showing the effect, if any, such change had upon the welfare of the children. Browning v. Helff, 136 N.C. App. 420, 524 S.E.2d 95 (2000).

Father Met Burden of Showing Adverse Effect of Relocation. — Father met his burden of showing that the proposed relocation of mother and child to California likely would adversely affect the welfare of the child, and thus the "best interest" question was properly before the trial court. Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

Decree Is Res Judicata Only as to Facts Then Existing and Before Court. — To modify a custody order, a court must find a change in circumstances. However, when facts pertinent to the custody issue existed at the time of the custody decree but were not disclosed to the court, the prior decree is res judicata only to the facts that were before the court, and other pertinent facts may be considered in subsequent custody determinations. Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

Speculation as to Future Detrimental Change Insufficient. — A court cannot modify a custody order based on speculation or conjecture that a detrimental change may take place sometime in the future. Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

Evidence of Husband's Suitability Did Not Negate Suitability of Former Wife. — The former husband's evidence that he was a suitable parent for custody did not negate the former wife's standing as a suitable parent for custody and did not represent a change of circumstances. Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

Proof Required Absent Evidence of Change in Either Party's Fitness. — Where there is no evidence that the fitness or unfitness of either party has changed, the trial court may not modify a prior order unless sufficient change of circumstances adversely affecting the welfare of the child is shown. Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

Increase in Father's Income. — The court is not warranted in ordering an increase of child support in the absence of any evidence of a change in conditions or of the need for such increase, particularly when the increase is awarded solely on the ground that the father's income has increased so that he is able to pay a larger amount. Fuchs v. Fuchs, 260 N.C. 635, 133 S.E.2d 487 (1963); Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982). See also, Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

Decrease in Father's Income. — Where father's income had decreased from $24,000.00 per month to $2083.33 per month, he had been voluntarily terminated, he had continuously sought employment since being terminated, but those efforts had been impaired due to criminal non-support actions instituted both in Florida and in North Carolina, and his estate had been "substantially depleted,"; although the court failed to use sequentially the words "substantial involuntary reduction" in income, its findings indisputably reflected precisely that. McGee v. McGee, 118 N.C. App. 19, 453 S.E.2d 531 (1995).

Trial court erred in modifying original child-support order, where most of its findings of fact were insufficient to support the modification, and the sole valid finding was an increase infather's annual income. Thomas v. Thomas, 134 N.C. App. 591, 518 S.E.2d 513 (1999).

Ability to Pay. — Where there was no evidence that the needs of defendant's minor children had changed; however, there was evidence that defendant's ability to pay his support payments had decreased, the decision of the trial court denying motion for reduction of support was remanded to the district court. Pittman v. Pittman, 114 N.C. App. 808, 443 S.E.2d 96 (1994).

A party's ability to pay child support is determined by the party's ability to pay at the time the award is made or modified. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

Involuntary Decrease in Income. — A significant involuntary decrease in a child support obligor's income satisfies the necessary showing even in the absence of any change affecting the child's needs. Hammill v. Cusack, 118 N.C. App. 82, 453 S.E.2d 539 (1995).

Earning Capacity. — The father's earning capacity could not be used in determining his child support obligation, where the father was involuntarily terminated from his former job, and no evidence was presented that he acted in bad faith by deliberately depressing his income. Chused v. Chused, 131 N.C. App. 668, 508 S.E.2d 559 (1998).

Imposition of Earnings Capacity Rule. — Under § 50-13.4 and this section, a husband's ability to pay child support is normally determined by his actual income at the time the award is made or modified. If, however, there is a finding that the husband is deliberately depressing his income or otherwise acting in deliberate disregard of his obligation to provide reasonable support for his child, his capacity to earn may be made the basis of the award. Under these circumstances, his motion to reduce the amount of child support will be denied. Goodhouse v. DeFravio, 57 N.C. App. 124, 290 S.E.2d 751 (1982); Harris v. Harris, 91 N.C. App. 699, 373 S.E.2d 312 (1988).

A court may refuse to modify a support and/or alimony award on the grounds that husband has failed to exercise his reasonable capacity to earn because of a disregard of his marital and parental obligations to provide reasonable support for his wife and minor child. Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

The determination that a husband's change in circumstances has been voluntarily effected by him in disregard of his marital and parental obligations justifying imposition of the earnings capacity rule is a conclusion of law based on the factual findings in the particular case. Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

A party's capacity to earn income may become the basis of an award if it is found that the party deliberately depressed its income or otherwise acted in deliberate disregard of the obligation to provide reasonable support for the child. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

A person's capacity to earn income may be made the basis of an award if there is a finding that the party deliberately depressed his or her income or otherwise acted in deliberate disregard of the obligation to provide reasonable support for the child. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

Consideration of Spouse's Capacity to Earn Held Error. — Trial court could not consider father's capacity to earn in computing his income where the evidence indicated that he lost his job due to no fault of his own, and the court's order contained no findings that he had deliberately stopped working to avoid his support obligations. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

The court's conclusion underlying imposition of the earnings capacity rule must be based on evidence that tends to show that husband's actions resulting in the reduction of his income were not taken in good faith. Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

Voluntary Expenses. — Fact that defendant had voluntarily assumed the responsibility of supporting his emancipated son was not a factor to be considered in determining a change of circumstances sufficient to support a reduction in support of his minor children. Dishmon v. Dishmon, 57 N.C. App. 657, 292 S.E.2d 293 (1982).

It was error for the trial court to reduce the amount of child support payments required of defendant by one-third where defendant's showing of changed circumstances related almost exclusively to additional expenses to which defendant had obligated himself, including sending a child who had reached the age of majority to college, the expenses of a new home and family, and additional travel and telephone expenses incident to visiting his children from out-of-state, and where defendant made no showing with respect to changed circumstances affecting the remaining minor children and made no showing that the expenses relating to the children's maintenance and support decreased by one-third when one of the children reached majority. Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

The fact that defendant voluntarily assumed the financial burden to send his eldest child to a high-tuition, out-of-state university did not justify consideration of this factor in lowering child support payments. Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979).

The trial court did not err in denying the husband credit for the purchase of two automobiles for his children, considering his history of delinquent payments and the lack of the wife's consent to these voluntary expenditures. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Waiver of Credit for Child's Receipt of Earnings. — There was no evidence that the husband ever objected to his unemancipated child's receipt of earnings. His right to credit for those earnings was therefore waived. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Inability to Claim Children as Dependents for Tax Purposes. — The husband was not entitled to credit for his inability to claim his children as dependents for income tax purposes. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Rehabilitation from Alcoholism. — In case in which custody of child was taken from the mother because of the mother's problem with alcohol, the district court's subsequent finding that the mother had made substantial progress in rehabilitation from alcoholism and that her accomplishments constituted a material change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child were upheld. Perdue v. Perdue, 76 N.C. App. 600, 334 S.E.2d 86 (1985).

Inappropriate Conduct by Custodial Parent. — A change in custody from the father to the mother was justified, where the father lived with a homosexual partner and engaged in homosexual relationships and activities, including physical lovemaking, which was witnessed by the children; the father kept admittedly improper sexual material in the home; and the father's partner took the children out of the home without their father's knowledge of their whereabouts. Pulliam v. Smith, 348 N.C. 616, 501 S.E.2d 898 (1998).

Remarriage. — Remarriage in and of itself is not a sufficient change of circumstance to justify modification of a child custody order. Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 568, 261 S.E.2d 122 (1979).

Remarriage without a finding of fact indicating the effect of remarriage on a child is not a sufficient change of circumstances to justify modification of a child custody order. Kelly v. Kelly, 77 N.C. App. 632, 335 S.E.2d 780 (1985).

Consideration of Needs of Father's Second Family. — In determining a father's ability to meet the required payments for the support of his children, some reasonable allowance must be made for his living expenses and for the fact that he has a second family. However, the needs of children of his first marriage cannot be made subservient to the needs of his second family. Beasley v. Beasley, 37 N.C. App. 255, 245 S.E.2d 820 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 580, 251 S.E.2d 433 (1979).

Attainment of Majority by One of Several Children. — Where plaintiff agreed to support his children by the payment of a certain amount per month until the youngest reached 18, the fact that the oldest child had reached 18 was not a change in circumstances, and the court erred in ordering a reduction of payment by reason of the fact that the oldest child had reached 18. Hershey v. Hershey, 57 N.C. App. 692, 292 S.E.2d 141 (1982).

Where a person having custody under a prior order has become unfit or is no longer able or suited to retain custody, such a consideration is of utmost importance in inquiring into the matter of custody, but it is not alone determinative. In re Bowen, 7 N.C. App. 236, 172 S.E.2d 62 (1970).

If the parent who was awarded custody of children were subsequently to become unfit, it would be possible for the trial court, upon proper findings, to grant custody to a fit person. Where there is no evidence that the fitness or unfitness of either party has changed, the trial court may not modify a prior order awarding custody unless some other sufficient change of condition is shown. In re Poole, 8 N.C. App. 25, 173 S.E.2d 545 (1970).

Finding of Unfitness. — Where parent was found to be a fit and proper parent, and in a later order found to be an unfit parent, the finding of unfitness constituted a change in circumstances. Raynor v. Odom, 124 N.C. App. 724, 478 S.E.2d 655 (1996).

Where Person Denied Custody Under Prior Order Due to Unfitness Becomes Fit. — Where at the time of the first hearing the poor health and emotional instability of the mother rendered her unsuitable to have custody of the two oldest children of the parties, but subsequently this changed, the court was entitled, in view of these changed circumstances, to inquire again into the matter of custody and to determine whether the welfare of the children would be better served by placing them in the custody of their mother. Kenney v. Kenney, 15 N.C. App. 665, 190 S.E.2d 650 (1972).

Arbitrary termination of visitation rights of grandparents by mother constituted a substantial change of circumstances where the grandparents had established a continuing substantial relationship with their grandchildren since the entry of earlier custody order, and the court found sufficient facts to justify its conclusion that it was in the best interest of the grandchildren to maintain a continuing relationship with the grandparents through the granting of visitation privileges. Hedrick v. Hedrick, 90 N.C. App. 151, 368 S.E.2d 14, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 173, 373 S.E.2d 108 (1988).

Parent Denied Custody Despite Doctor's Recommendation. — Although doctor recommended that custody should continue with mother, it was not an abuse of discretion for judge to order a change of custody of the child from mother to father where doctor testified that the child had severe emotional problems requiring "substantial immediate change", that the visitation schedule be limited, and that one parent (mother) exercise more control; the judge agreed with doctor that the child's problems needed immediate remedy; however, he believed that father was the parent to exercise more control. Correll v. Allen, 94 N.C. App. 464, 380 S.E.2d 580 (1989).

Bearing of Illegitimate Child. — Where wife who had left this State after she had been awarded custody of children later returned with an illegitimate child, there was a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the children, which empowered the court to alter or modify the custody order if it was deemed necessary to do so to further the welfare of the children. Thomas v. Thomas, 259 N.C. 461, 130 S.E.2d 871 (1963).

Whether the birth of a child out of wedlock constitutes a substantial change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child sufficient to justify a change in custody is to be determined by examining the facts of each case. Kelly v. Kelly, 77 N.C. App. 632, 335 S.E.2d 780 (1985), holding that under the circumstances the trial court found insufficient changes to justify a change in custody.

Minor child's hospitalization and its resulting costs constituted a substantial change in circumstances. Thus case was remanded to take into account the parties' abilities to provide support for the minor child's medical expenses and to enter an order modifying the support order. Lawrence v. Nantz, 115 N.C. App. 478, 445 S.E.2d 87 (1994).

Change in Circumstances Shown. — In light of a prior instance of sexual abuse of children by one of mother's boyfriends and the court's express previous instruction that she not "bring dates to the same residence with the children," mother's admission that she allowed boyfriend to live in her home for several weeks and continued to see him, along with psychologist's testimony as to a deterioration in the children's behavior corresponding with boyfriend's involvement with their mother, involved a substantial change of circumstances. Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

The court's finding that father had improved, after finding him totally uninvolved at the time of the prior order, represented a changed circumstance justifying some modification at least with respect to the father. Best v. Best, 81 N.C.

App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

The court's findings as to child's poor health and conduct when with defendant mother, and as to her improved state when with plaintiff father, supported by competent evidence as to the child's conduct, habits, health, schedule, treatment, and response at different times, justified changing the joint custody arrangement that was in force, for these findings indicated changed circumstances that were affecting the welfare of the child. Teague v. Teague, 84 N.C. App. 545, 353 S.E.2d 242 (1987).

The trial court did not err in transferring custody of the minor child to defendant where the financial strain caused by plaintiff's loss of her job and the birth of two additional children within two years out of wedlock clearly constitutes a substantial change of circumstances. White v. White, 90 N.C. App. 553, 369 S.E.2d 92 (1988).

The court's effective determination of a "substantial involuntary reduction" in father's income was adequate to support its conclusion that there had been a change of circumstances sufficient to warrant modification of previous child support order; thus the court did not err in failing to make findings concerning the actual past expenditures of the minor children prior to reaching its change of circumstances decision. McGee v. McGee, 118 N.C. App. 19, 453 S.E.2d 531 (1995).

In child custody action, findings supported trial court's conclusion that there had been a substantial change of circumstances since the order where father had consistently attempted to thwart efforts by the defendant to maintain and develop a mother-child relationship with child, where father threatened to stop or disallow visitation by the mother with the child, and where mother's home life and family situation changed and improved since the order. Hamilton v. Hamilton, 93 N.C. App. 639, 379 S.E.2d 93 (1989).

Evidence about child's psychological state supported judge's finding of a substantial change of circumstances and the change of custody of the child from the mother to the father where doctor testified that the disappearance of child's emotional equilibrium occurred during a period when the predominate parental influence upon him was mother and that a possible cause of the child's problems was his mother's hostility which centered around the child's visitations with father, visitations which were often interfered with by mother. Correll v. Allen, 94 N.C. App. 464, 380 S.E.2d 580 (1989).

Court properly modified support order to reflect changed circumstances where child's needs and related expenses had greatly increased. Brooker v. Brooker, 133 N.C. App. 285, 515 S.E.2d 234 (1999).

Showing of Changed Circumstances Held Insufficient. — Where there was no finding of the plaintiff's original child-oriented expenses and no finding that the needs of the children had increased other than the unsupported finding that the children were older and thus their needs had substantially increased, there was not a sufficient showing of a "change in circumstances" within the meaning of this section. Waller v. Waller, 20 N.C. App. 710, 202 S.E.2d 791 (1974).

In a case where the sole finding of fact regarding a change of circumstances was a general finding that the child was older and that inflation had occurred, this, standing alone, was inadequate to support an order of increased support payments. Holder v. Holder, 87 N.C. App. 578, 361 S.E.2d 891 (1987).

In a child custody order modifying the rights of defendant, the evidence was insufficient to show a substantial change in circumstances since the only change was defendant's new job enabling him to keep child with him at work and plaintiff's plans to marry, her increased income and that she no longer lived with her mother. Hinton v. Hinton, 87 N.C. App. 676, 362 S.E.2d 287 (1987).

Findings of fact found by the trial court held supported by the evidence and clearly and more than amply supported the court's conclusion that defendant had failed to show a substantial change of circumstances that would warrant a modification of consent judgment providing for alimony and child support. Outlaw v. Outlaw, 89 N.C. App. 538, 366 S.E.2d 247 (1988).

In an action to modify child support provisions of a separation agreement which has not previously been incorporated into an order or judgment of the court, the court is called upon, for the first time, to make a determination that the reasonable needs of the children are provided for in accordance with the abilities of those responsible for the children's support. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

Where the trial court found that defendant voluntarily quit his job, willfully and intentionally depressed his income, and failed to meet his burden of proof in showing a substantial change of circumstances, the court entered a judgment against defendant denying his motion to reduce child support by reason of substantial change of circumstances. Askew v. Askew, 119 N.C. App. 242, 458 S.E.2d 217 (1995).

As a substantial change in child's circumstances that was not present before the entry of the original child custody order was not shown, and the father's relocation to Hawaii was not a substantial change in circumstances affecting the child's welfare requiring that the joint custody order be amended allowing the father to move the child to Hawaii, trial court improperly modified the custody order, and the appellate court would vacate and remand the case to the trial court. Carlton v. Carlton, — N.C. App. —, 549 S.E.2d 916, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 645 (2001).

Reduction of Custodial Parent's Income on Return to School. — Trial court erred in concluding reduction in income of father, custodial parent, due to leaving employment to return to school could not be considered on motion to increase wife's child support obligations. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Plaintiff who quit her job to attend college could claim a voluntary reduction in income as a change of circumstance. Schroader v. Schroader, 120 N.C. App. 790, 463 S.E.2d 790 (1995).

IV. VISITATION RIGHTS.

Custody Encompasses Visitation Rights. — Visitation privileges are but a lesser degree of custody. Thus, the word "custody," as used in this section, was intended to encompass visitation rights as well as general custody. Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978).

Jurisdiction of courts in custody and thus, visitation, cases is continuous. A decree determines only the present rights with respect to such custody and is subject to judicial alteration or modification upon a change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

Visitation and child support rights are independent rights accruing primarily to the benefit of the minor child and one is not, and may not be made, contingent upon the other. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

Receipt of Support May Not Be Conditioned on Visitation. — A trial judge does not have authority to condition a minor child's receipt of support paid by the noncustodial parent on compliance with court-ordered visitation allowed the noncustodial parent by ordering that child support paid by defendant be placed in escrow if minor child fails or refuses to abide by the visitation privileges allowed defendant. Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

An agreement by the parties that the court may change visitation privileges in a custody order without any showing of changed conditions does not relieve the court of its duty to determine whether changed circumstances affecting the welfare of the child justify a modification. Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978).

Trial court properly refused to consider issue of visitation rights on plaintiff's motion to set aside a child custody order, where such consideration would be a modification of the prior order's grant of exclusive custody to defendant, since the court may modify custody or visitation only upon a showing of changed circumstances and on adequate motion in the cause, and plaintiff's motion was inadequate for this purpose. Dishman v. Dishman, 37 N.C. App. 543, 246 S.E.2d 819 (1978).

Modification of Grandparents' Visitation Rights. — Before an order providing visitation for grandparents of a minor child may be modified, the party seeking modification must show changed circumstances and an abuse of discretion by the trial judge. In re Jones, 62 N.C. App. 103, 302 S.E.2d 259 (1983).

Failure to State Findings on Issue of Visitation. — Where there is no finding by the trial court that ordered visitations are in the children's best interest, the case must be remanded for proper findings and conclusions on the issue. Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978).

V. FINDINGS AND DISCRETION OF TRIAL COURT.

When Capacity to Pay May Be Basis for Award. — Under § 50-13.4 and this section, a party's ability to pay child support is ordinarily determined by the party's actual income at time support award is made or modified. However, if there is a finding by the trial court that the party was acting in bad faith by deliberately depressing his or her income or otherwise disregarding the obligation to pay child support, then the party's capacity to earn may be the basis for the award. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Trial Court Required to Make Specific Findings. — It is not sufficient that there may be evidence in the record sufficient to support findings that could have been made; the trial court is required to make specific findings of fact with respect to factors listed in the statute. Such findings are required in order for the appellate court to determine whether the trial court gave "due regard" to the factors listed. Greer v. Greer, 101 N.C. App. 351, 399 S.E.2d 399 (1991).

Modification of a custody decree must be supported by findings of fact based on competent evidence that there has been a substantial change of circumstances affecting the welfare of the child. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974); Goodson v. Goodson, 32 N.C. App. 76, 231 S.E.2d 178 (1977); Clark v. Clark, 294 N.C. 554, 243 S.E.2d 129 (1978); Ebron v. Ebron, 40 N.C. App. 270, 252 S.E.2d 235 (1979); Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 568, 261 S.E.2d 122 (1979); Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994).

As Must an Increase in Child Support. — The court is not warranted in ordering an increase of child support in the absence of findings of fact supported by competent evidence to show a substantial change of condition affecting the welfare of the children. Ebron v. Ebron, 40 N.C. App. 270, 252 S.E.2d 235 (1979).

To properly determine a child's present reasonable needs, the trial court must hear evidence and make findings of specific fact on the actual past expenditures for the minor child, the present reasonable expenses of the minor child, and the parties' relative abilities to pay. Norton v. Norton, 76 N.C. App. 213, 332 S.E.2d 724 (1985).

Findings as to Child's Best Interests. — In making the best interest decision, the trial court is vested with broad discretion and can be reversed only upon a showing of abuse of discretion. Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

In exercising its discretion in determining the best interest of the child in a relocation case, factors appropriately considered by the trial court include but are not limited to: the advantages of the relocation in terms of its capacity to improve the life of the child; the motives of the custodial parent in seeking the move; the likelihood that the custodial parent will comply with visitation orders when he or she is no longer subject to the jurisdiction of the courts of North Carolina; the integrity of the noncustodial parent in resisting the relocation; and the likelihood that a realistic visitation schedule can be arranged which will preserve and foster the parental relationship with the noncustodial parent. Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

Findings as to Relative Abilities of Parties. — The court must make findings as to the relative abilities of the parties to provide support before the court can order a change in the amount of support payments. Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980).

Findings as to Past Expenditures. — The court must make findings of specific facts as to actual past expenditures in order to determine the amount of support necessary to meet the reasonable needs of the child for health, education, and maintenance. Ebron v. Ebron, 40 N.C. App. 270, 252 S.E.2d 235 (1979); Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980); Walker v. Tucker, 69 N.C. App. 607, 317 S.E.2d 923 (1984).

Finding That Father Is Fit. — That the father is a fit person to have sole or joint custody of the children, by itself, is no basis for modifying the order previously entered. Ratley v. Ratley, 99 N.C. App. 219, 392 S.E.2d 653 (1990).

Evaluation of Parties' Fitness. — The trial court, in deciding cases involving the custody of children, may be called upon to evaluate the emotional stability and fitness of the parties. In making such an evaluation, the court, sitting as the trier of fact, may exercise its own reason and common sense, and use the knowledge acquired by its observation and experience in everyday life. O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 432, 329 S.E.2d 370 (1985).

Finding of Failure to Prove Change. — While the court must make findings of fact to support its order, it is not required to make findings in addition to a finding that the moving party has failed to prove a change in circumstances sufficient to warrant modification of the custody order. Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980).

Conclusive Effect of Court's Finding. — A court's findings of fact in modifying a child custody order are conclusive on appeal if supported by competent evidence. In re Bowen, 7 N.C. App. 236, 172 S.E.2d 62 (1970); Daniels v. Hatcher, 46 N.C. App. 481, 265 S.E.2d 429 (1980).

The trial judge's findings of fact in custody orders are binding on the appellate courts if supported by competent evidence. Blackley v. Blackley, 285 N.C. 358, 204 S.E.2d 678 (1974); Hassell v. Means, 42 N.C. App. 524, 257 S.E.2d 123, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 568, 261 S.E.2d 122 (1979).

A finding by the district court that there has been no sufficient change of circumstances to justify modification of a custody order is conclusive and binding on the Court of Appeals if supported by competent evidence. Searl v. Searl, 34 N.C. App. 583, 239 S.E.2d 305 (1977). See also, In re Harrell, 11 N.C. App. 351, 181 S.E.2d 188 (1971).

Wide Discretion Is Vested in the Trial Judge. — Custody cases often involve difficult decisions; however, it is necessary that the trial judge be given wide discretion in making his determination, for the trial judge has the opportunity to see the parties in person and to hear the witnesses. Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975).

The trial judge, having the opportunity to see and hear the parties and the witnesses, is vested with broad discretion in cases involving the custody of children. O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 432, 329 S.E.2d 370 (1985).

And His Decision Will Not Be Upset Absent Abuse. — In determining child custody wide discretion is necessarily vested in the trial judge who has the opportunity to see the parties and hear the witnesses, and his decision ought not to be upset on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. In re Mason, 13 N.C. App. 334, 185 S.E.2d 433 (1971), cert. denied, 280 N.C. 495, 186 S.E.2d 513 (1972).

In determining matters of child custody, the trial court is vested with wide discretion, and his decision should not be upset absent a clear showing of an abuse of discretion. Hensley v. Hensley, 21 N.C. App. 306, 204 S.E.2d 228 (1974).

What represents the welfare of the child is frequently a difficult determination and the trial court is in the best position to observe the parties and evaluate the evidence. Therefore, the judgment of the trial court will not be disturbed on appeal if the evidence supports the findings of fact and those findings form a valid basis for the conclusions of law and order. Wehlau v. Witek, 75 N.C. App. 596, 331 S.E.2d 223 (1985).

If Evidence Supports Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law. — Because the trial court has the opportunity to observe all the parties and evaluate evidence which sometimes appears differently in cold print, if the evidence supports the findings of fact by the trial court and those findings of fact form a valid basis for the conclusions of law, the judgment entered will not be disturbed on appeal. Paschall v. Paschall, 21 N.C. App. 120, 203 S.E.2d 337 (1974).

Even If There Is Evidence to the Contrary. — The scope of appellate review of a trial court's judgment awarding custody of children is well settled: The court's findings of fact are conclusive if supported by any competent evidence, and judgment supported by such findings will be affirmed, even though there is evidence to the contrary, or even though some incompetent evidence may have been admitted. In re Williamson, 32 N.C. App. 616, 233 S.E.2d 677 (1977); O'Briant v. O'Briant, 70 N.C. App. 360, 320 S.E.2d 277 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 432, 329 S.E.2d 370 (1985).

The court's findings in modifying a custody decree are conclusive if supported by competent evidence, even if there is evidence contra or incompetent evidence in the record. Best v. Best, 81 N.C. App. 337, 344 S.E.2d 363 (1986), overruled on other grounds, Petersen v. Rowe, 337 N.C. 397, 445 S.E.2d 901 (1994); Vuncannon v. Vuncannon, 82 N.C. App. 255, 346 S.E.2d 274 (1986).

But the trial court may not sua sponte enter an order modifying a previously entered custody decree. Kennedy v. Kennedy, 107 N.C. App. 695, 421 S.E.2d 795 (1992).

Good Faith Finding Required. — Determination of the trial court that it was not necessary to make a finding of bad faith in reduction of income where the party seeking support modification was the custodial parent was not supported by current case law, nor was the trial court correct in concluding that when a custodial parent sought a change of child support based upon a reduction in income, that custodial parent had to request the court to make a finding of fact as to his or her good faith. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Must Be Sufficient Evidence of Proscribed Intent. — A trial court's conclusion underlying imposition of the earnings capacity rule must be based upon evidence that the actions which reduced the party's income were not taken in good faith. There must be sufficient evidence of the proscribed intent. Fischell v. Rosenberg, 90 N.C. App. 254, 368 S.E.2d 11 (1988).

Error to Reduce Arrearage Absent Findings or Evidence. — Without the requisite, specific findings or evidence in the record on the child's needs and expenses, or on the relative abilities of the parties to provide support, the trial court erred in reducing the child support arrearage. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Modification Improper Without Sufficient Findings of Fact. — Without a finding of a substantial change of circumstances, a modification based solely on the ground that the defendant mother was over-protective was improper. Benedict v. Coe, 117 N.C. App. 369, 451 S.E.2d 320 (1994).

Court's Discretion To Permit Relocation. — Although most relocations will present both advantages and disadvantages for the child, when the disadvantages are outweighed by the advantages, as determined and weighed by the trial court, the trial court is well within its discretion to permit the relocation. Ramirez-Barker v. Barker, 107 N.C. App. 71, 418 S.E.2d 675 (1992).

Findings Held Insufficient. — In an action seeking an increase in child support over the amount set forth in separation agreement, the order which contained no specific findings with respect to the actual past or present expenses incurred for the support of the children was insufficient to support the court's conclusion that the reasonable needs of the children amounted to $2,800.00 per month. Holderness v. Holderness, 91 N.C. App. 118, 370 S.E.2d 602 (1988).

Where the factors listed by the trial court as dispositive on the substantial change of circumstance requirement were oriented toward parental fitness, not adverse alterations of the children's welfare, and were bare observations of plaintiff's or defendant's actions, not examples of how those actions adversely impacted the children, the findings, without more, did not meet the standard required to show circumstances must be so changed that the welfare of the child would be adversely affected unless the custody provision was modified. Garrett v. Garrett, 121 N.C. App. 192, 464 S.E.2d 716 (1995).

Award of additional retroactive child support for private schooling was denied where the trial court's limited findings failed to set forth the existence of a "sudden emergency" so unusual or extraordinary as to require plaintiff to expend sums in excess of defendant's existing support obligation, and the court's order contained no findings reflective of defendant's ability to pay during the period the emergency expenses were allegedly incurred. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

VI. JURISDICTION.

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided prior to enactment of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, former § 50A-1 et seq., and prior to enactment of the Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, § 50A-101 et seq.

First Court to Acquire Jurisdiction Retains Jurisdiction. — Except as provided in § 50-13.5(f), the ordinary rule of civil procedure applies to this section, namely, that the first court to acquire jurisdiction of a cause retains jurisdiction, to the exclusion of other courts. Thus, if a judgment involving the custody and the support of a minor child has been entered in this State, the judge trying a subsequent action for absolute divorce may not interfere with the earlier judgment. Only the court of this State which entered the earlier judgment for custody and support of the minor child may modify or vacate it, upon a motion in the cause and a showing of a change of circumstances. Tate v. Tate, 9 N.C. App. 681, 177 S.E.2d 455 (1970).

Section 50-13.5(f) contemplates only the institution of an action for custody and support. It does not affect the situation where custody and support have already been determined and one of the parties seeks a modification of the order establishing custody and support. In such a case, the court first obtaining jurisdiction retains jurisdiction to the exclusion of all other courts and is the only proper court to bring an action for the modification of an order establishing custody and support. Tate v. Tate, 9 N.C. App. 681, 177 S.E.2d 455 (1970).

Filing of a motion in a cause in which the court has not acquired jurisdiction does not serve to confer jurisdiction under this section. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 8 N.C. App. 162, 174 S.E.2d 103 (1970).

What Plaintiff Must Show to Obtain Modification of Another State's Order. — In order to invoke the aid of subsection (b) of this section, governing the entry of a new order for child custody or support modifying or superseding an order entered by a court of another state, a plaintiff must show (1) jurisdiction and (2) changed circumstances. Hopkins v. Hopkins, 8 N.C. App. 162, 174 S.E.2d 103 (1970).

For cases as to full faith and credit accorded to out-of-state decrees, decided prior to enactment of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, § 50A-1 et seq., see Thomas v. Thomas, 248 N.C. 269, 103 S.E.2d 371 (1958); In re Marlowe, 268 N.C. 197, 150 S.E.2d 204 (1966); Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); In re Kluttz, 7 N.C. App. 383, 172 S.E.2d 95 (1970).

Presence of Child. — For cases as to the effect of the presence of the child in this State on the jurisdiction of the courts of this State, decided prior to enactment of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, § 50A-1 et seq., see Rothman v. Rothman, 6 N.C. App. 401, 170 S.E.2d 140 (1969); Spence v. Durham, 283 N.C. 671, 198 S.E.2d 537 (1973), cert. denied, 415 U.S. 918, 94 S. Ct. 1417, 39 L. Ed. 2d 473 (1974); Stanback v. Stanback, 287 N.C. 448, 215 S.E.2d 30 (1975); Pruneau v. Sanders, 25 N.C. App. 510, 214 S.E.2d 288, cert. denied, 287 N.C. 664, 216 S.E.2d 911 (1975).

VII. PROCEDURE.

This section provides the procedural mechanism permitting modification. Goodhouse v. DeFravio, 57 N.C. App. 124, 290 S.E.2d 751 (1982).

Reduction of Support Without Notice and Hearing Unconstitutional. — In an action seeking enforcement of the provisions of a separation agreement relating to child support, reduction of the child support payments without a proper proceeding and notice and opportunity to be heard deprived plaintiff of her constitutional rights under the due process provisions of the State and federal constitutions. Mann v. Mann, 57 N.C. App. 587, 291 S.E.2d 794 (1982).

Valid Custody Order May Not Be Collaterally Modified. — A valid order awarding custody of the child of the marriage is conclusive upon the parties and may not be modified collaterally by a petition praying that the child's custody be awarded to petitioner during a certain period. Robbins v. Robbins, 266 N.C. 635, 146 S.E.2d 671 (1966).

A child support order may be modified or vacated only after an equitable distribution. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Modification of child support would be vacated and remanded where it was part of an equitable distribution judgment and thus appeared to have been decided and entered at the same time as the equitable distribution, rather than after the equitable distribution as required by subsection (f) of § 50-20.

Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Proceeding Where Divorce Was Awarded Outside State. — When the parents were divorced outside this State, either parent may have the question of custody as between them determined in a special proceeding. In re Sauls, 270 N.C. 180, 154 S.E.2d 327 (1967). See also, § 50A-1 et seq.

Standing of County in Modification Action. — Where plaintiff mother, who received public assistance under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program, assigned to county her right to receive any support on behalf of her children, the county, by virtue of the assignment pursuant to § 110-137, had an interest in the order for the support of plaintiff's children. Therefore, under subsection (a) of this section, the county had standing to make a motion in an action between plaintiff mother and defendant father to modify a child support order to require that the support be paid to the county. Cox v. Cox, 44 N.C. App. 339, 260 S.E.2d 812 (1979).

Premature Request for Modification. — Plaintiff's request that trial court alter provisions in incorporated separation agreement for modification of child support payments and payments for wife's separate maintenance after July, 1990, was properly denied as premature where the date in question had not yet occurred. Theokas v. Theokas, 97 N.C. App. 626, 389 S.E.2d 278 (1990).

Proper procedure to follow when a supported child reaches majority is to apply to the trial court for relief under this section. Tilley v. Tilley, 30 N.C. App. 581, 227 S.E.2d 640 (1976).

A husband had no authority to unilaterally attempt his own modification of child support payments upon one of his children reaching the age of 18, and being no longer a "minor" under § 48A-2, even though the support order directed the husband to pay support for "his two minor children. . . ." The proper procedure for the husband to follow would have been to apply to the trial court for relief pursuant to this section. Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Procedure and Contents of Order for Retrospective Increase. — An order for retrospective increase of an existing child support order must set out a conclusion of law that there was a substantial and material change in circumstances affecting the welfare of the child occasioned by a sudden emergency so as to warrant such an increase. The court's conclusion of law must be sustained by specific factual findings based upon competent evidence, reflecting the actual amount disbursed by a party within three years or less of the date of filing of the current motion, towards reasonably necessary expenditures made on behalf of the child. The findings also must reflect the ability to pay of the parent subject to the motion during the period for which increased support is sought. Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Arbitration. — While, in the absence of court proceedings, parties may settle their disputes by arbitration, once the issues are brought into court, the court may not delegate its duty to resolve those issues to arbitration. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Where the only issue before the trial court was the custody of plaintiff's and defendant's son and there was no motion to modify the child support, the trial court was without authority to issue an order modifying an earlier consent order setting child support. Royall v. Sawyer, 120 N.C. App. 880, 463 S.E.2d 578 (1995).

§ 50-13.8. Custody of persons incapable of self-support upon reaching majority.

For the purposes of custody, the rights of a person who is mentally or physically incapable of self-support upon reaching his majority shall be the same as a minor child for so long as he remains mentally or physically incapable of self-support. (1967, c. 1153, s. 2; 1971, c. 218, s. 3; 1973, c. 476, s. 133; 1979, c. 838, s. 29; 1989, c. 210.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1972 caselaw on child support and pre-Chapter 48A consent judgments, see 51 N.C.L. Rev. 1091 (1973).

CASE NOTES

Termination of Obligation to Support. — Since the enactment of Chapter 48A in 1971, the decisions of the court and the Supreme Court have concluded that the father's legal obligation to support his child ceases when the child reaches the age of 18, provided that it is not shown that the child is insolvent, unmarried, and physically or mentally incapable of earning a livelihood. Nolan v. Nolan, 20 N.C. App. 550, 202 S.E.2d 344, cert. denied, 285 N.C. 234, 204 S.E.2d 24 (1974).

In the absence of an enforceable contract otherwise obligating a parent, North Carolina courts have no authority to order child support for a child who has attained the age of majority, unless the child has not completed secondary schooling, or, pursuant to this section, the child is mentally or physically incapable of self-support. Bridges v. Bridges, 85 N.C. App. 524, 355 S.E.2d 230 (1987).

Continuance of Obligation. — Ordinarily the law presumes that when a child reaches the age of 21 years (now 18 years) he will be capable of maintaining himself, and in such case the obligation of the father to provide support terminates. But where this presumption is rebutted by the fact of mental or physical incapacity, it no longer obtains, and the obligation of the father continues. Speck v. Speck, 5 N.C. App. 296, 168 S.E.2d 672 (1969).

Father Held Not Obligated to Support Mentally Retarded Son Beyond Twentieth Birthday. — Where petitioner mother moved the court to require respondent father to continue to pay child support for their mentally retarded son beyond his twentieth birthday and court ordered respondent to pay $600.00 per month continuing ongoing child support without regard to the child's chronological age in light of the plain and definite meaning of the section, the trial court erred and respondent was not obligated to support his son beyond his twentieth birthday. Yates v. Dowless, 93 N.C. App. 787, 379 S.E.2d 79, aff'd, 325 N.C. 703, 386 S.E.2d 200 (1989).

Defendant's Obligation Abrogated by Amendment of Section. — Where defendant's obligation, set out in a consent judgment, to continue supporting his disabled child beyond her minority had been abrogated by the 1979 amendment of this section, which eliminated the requirement compelling parents to continue supporting their disabled children beyond their minority, and he had not contracted to continue the payments apart from that obligation, an order requiring defendant to continue supporting the child had no legal basis. Jackson v. Jackson, 102 N.C. App. 574, 402 S.E.2d 869 (1991).

Failure of Action for Support for College Education to State Claim for Relief. — A daughter, over 18 years of age, who graduated from high school and who brought an action against her father to obtain support for her college education, failed to state a claim for relief, since North Carolina courts do not have authority to order child support for children who have reached their majority. Appelbe v. Appelbe, 75 N.C. App. 197, 330 S.E.2d 57, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 662, 336 S.E.2d 399 (1985).

Stated in Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348 (1972).

§ 50-13.9. Procedure to insure payment of child support.

(a) Upon its own motion or upon motion of either party, the court may order at any time that support payments be made to the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit for remittance to the party entitled to receive the payments. For child support orders initially entered on or after January 1, 1994, the immediate income withholding provisions of G.S. 110-136.5(c1) apply.

(b) After entry of an order by the court under subsection (a) of this section, the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit shall transmit child support payments that are made to it to the custodial parent or other party entitled to receive them, unless a court order requires otherwise.

(b1) In a IV-D case:

(1) The designated child support enforcement agency shall have the sole responsibility and authority for monitoring the obligor's compliance with all child support orders in the case and for initiating any enforcement procedures that it considers appropriate.

(2) The clerk of court shall maintain all official records in the case.

(3) The designated child support enforcement agency shall maintain any other records needed to monitor the obligor's compliance with or to enforce the child support orders in the case, including records showing the amount of each payment of child support received from or on behalf of the obligor, along with the dates on which each payment was received. In any action establishing, enforcing, or modifying a child support order, the payment records maintained by the designated child support agency shall be admissible evidence, and the court shall permit the designated representative to authenticate those records.

(b2) In a non-IV-D case:

(1) The clerk of court shall have the responsibility and authority for monitoring the obligor's compliance with all child support orders in the case and for initiating any enforcement procedures that it considers appropriate. The State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit shall notify the clerk of court of all payments made in non-IV-D cases so that the clerk of court can initiate enforcement proceedings as provided in subsection (d) of this section.

(2) The clerk of court shall maintain all official records in the case.

(3) The clerk of court shall maintain any other records needed to monitor the obligor's compliance with or to enforce the child support orders in the case, including records showing the amount of each payment of child support received from or on behalf of the obligor, along with the dates on which each payment was received.

(c) In a non-IV-D case, the parties affected by the order shall inform the clerk of court of any change of address or of other condition that may affect the administration of the order. In a IV-D case, the parties affected by the order shall inform the designated child support enforcement agency of any change of address or other condition that may affect the administration of the order. The court may provide in the order that a party failing to inform the court or, as appropriate, the designated child support enforcement agency, of a change of address within a reasonable period of time may be held in civil contempt.

(d) In a non-IV-D case, when the clerk of superior court is notified by the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit that an obligor has failed to make a required payment of child support and is in arrears, the clerk of superior court shall mail by regular mail to the last known address of the obligor a notice of delinquency. The notice shall set out the amount of child support currently due and shall demand immediate payment of that amount. The notice shall also state that failure to make immediate payment will result in the issuance by the court of an enforcement order requiring the obligor to appear before a district court judge and show cause why the support obligation should not be enforced by income withholding, contempt of court, revocation of licensing privileges, or other appropriate means. Failure to receive the delinquency notice is not a defense in any subsequent proceeding. Sending the notice of delinquency is in the discretion of the clerk if the clerk has, during the previous 12 months, sent a notice or notices of delinquency to the obligor for nonpayment, or if income withholding has been implemented against the obligor or the obligor has been previously found in contempt for nonpayment under the same child support order.

If the arrearage is not paid in full within 21 days after the mailing of the delinquency notice, or without waiting the 21 days if the clerk has elected not to mail a delinquency notice for any of the reasons provided in this subsection, the clerk shall cause an enforcement order to be issued and shall issue a notice of hearing before a district court judge. The enforcement order shall order the obligor to appear and show cause why the obligor should not be subjected to income withholding or adjudged in contempt of court, or both, and shall order the obligor to bring to the hearing records and information relating to the obligor's employment, the obligor's licensing privileges, and the amount and sources of the obligor's disposable income. The enforcement order shall state:

(1) That the obligor is under a court order to provide child support, the name of each child for whose benefit support is due, and information sufficient to identify the order;

(2) That the obligor is delinquent and the amount of overdue support;

(2a) That the court may order the revocation of some or all of the obligor's licensing privileges if the obligor is delinquent in an amount equal to the support due for one month;

(3) That the court may order income withholding if the obligor is delinquent in an amount equal to the support due for one month;
(4) That income withholding, if implemented, will apply to the obligor's current payors and all subsequent payors and will be continued until terminated pursuant to G.S. 110-136.10;
(5) That failure to bring to the hearing records and information relating to his employment and the amount and sources of his disposable income will be grounds for contempt;
(6) That if income withholding is not an available or appropriate remedy, the court may determine whether the obligor is in contempt or whether any other enforcement remedy is appropriate.

The enforcement order may be signed by the clerk or a district court judge, and shall be served on the obligor pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, Rules of Civil Procedure. The clerk shall also notify the party to whom support is owed of the pending hearing. The clerk may withdraw the order to the supporting party upon receipt of the delinquent payment. On motion of the person to whom support is owed, with the approval of the district court judge, if the district court judge finds it is in the best interest of the child, no enforcement order shall be issued.

When the matter comes before the court, the court shall proceed as in the case of a motion for income withholding under G.S. 110-136.5. If income withholding is not an available or adequate remedy, the court may proceed with contempt, imposition of a lien, or other available, appropriate enforcement remedies.

This subsection shall apply only to non-IV-D cases, except that the clerk shall issue an enforcement order in a IV-D case when requested to do so by an IV-D obligee.

(e) The clerk of court shall maintain and make available to the district court judge a list of attorneys who are willing to undertake representation, pursuant to this section, of persons to whom child support is owed. No attorney shall be placed on such list without his permission.

(f) At least seven days prior to an enforcement hearing as set forth in subsection (d), the clerk must notify the district court judge of all cases to be heard for enforcement at the next term, and the judge shall appoint an attorney from the list described in subsection (e) to represent each party to whom support payments are owed if the judge deems it to be in the best interest of the child for whom support is being paid, unless:

(1) The attorney of record for the party to whom support payments are owed has notified the clerk of court that he will appear for said party; or
(2) The party to whom support payments are owed requests the judge not to appoint an attorney; or
(3) An attorney for the enforcement of child support obligations pursuant to Title IV, Part D, of the Social Security Act as amended is available.

The judge may order payment of reasonable attorney's fees as provided in G.S. 50-13.6.

(g) Nothing in this section shall preclude the independent initiation by a party of proceedings for civil contempt or for income withholding. (1983, c. 677, s. 1; 1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 949, ss. 3-6; 1989, c. 479; 1993, c. 517, s. 6; c. 553, s. 67.1; 1995, c. 444, s. 1; c. 538, s. 1.2; 1997-443, s. 11A.118(a); 1999-293, ss. 11-14; 2001-237, s. 7.)

Cross References. — As to liens on real and personal property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-86. As to discharge of liens on property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-87. As to legislation deleting the June 30, 1998 expiration date for all enactments and amendments by Session Laws 1997-433, see the editor's note under § 44-86.

Editor's Note. — This section is set out in the form above at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-237, s. 7, effective June 23, 2001, added the last sentence of subdivision (b1)(3).

Legal Periodicals. — For note, "Legislating Responsibility: North Carolina's New Child Support Enforcement Acts," see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1354 (1987).

CASE NOTES

Applied in Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

Cited in Appert v. Appert, 80 N.C. App. 27, 341 S.E.2d 342 (1986).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Child Support Enforcement Proceedings. — The medical child support enforcement provisions of House Bill 1563, 1993 (Reg. Sess. 1994) N.C. Session Laws Ch. 644, are inapplicable to the North Carolina Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan and the governmental entities whose employees and retirees, along with their dependents, are eligible for coverage under the Plan or its HMO option. Medical child support orders nonetheless may be enforced directly against State employees and retirees who fail to enroll, or maintain coverage for, their eligible dependent children under the State Health Plan in accordance with the provisions of §§ 50-13.4(f), this section and 50-13.11. See opinion of Attorney General to Patricia Crawford, Associate General Counsel, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, — N.C.A.G. — (August 10, 1995).

§ 50-13.10. Past due child support vested; not subject to retroactive modification; entitled to full faith and credit.

(a) Each past due child support payment is vested when it accrues and may not thereafter be vacated, reduced, or otherwise modified in any way for any reason, in this State or any other state, except that a child support obligation may be modified as otherwise provided by law, and a vested past due payment is to that extent subject to divestment, if, but only if, a written motion is filed, and due notice is given to all parties either:

(1) Before the payment is due or

(2) If the moving party is precluded by physical disability, mental incapacity, indigency, misrepresentation of another party, or other compelling reason from filing a motion before the payment is due, then promptly after the moving party is no longer so precluded.

(b) A past due child support payment which is vested pursuant to G.S. 50-13.10(a) is entitled, as a judgment, to full faith and credit in this State and any other state, with the full force, effect, and attributes of a judgment of this State, except that no arrearage shall be entered on the judgment docket of the clerk of superior court or become a lien on real estate, nor shall execution issue thereon, except as provided in G.S. 50-13.4(f)(8) and (10).

(c) As used in this section, "child support payment" includes all payments required by court or administrative order in civil actions and expedited process proceedings under this Chapter, by court order in proceedings under Chapter 49 of the General Statutes, and by agreements entered into and approved by the court under G.S. 110-132 or G.S. 110-133.

(d) For purposes of this section, a child support payment or the relevant portion thereof, is not past due, and no arrearage accrues:

(1) From and after the date of the death of the minor child for whose support the payment, or relevant portion, is made;

(2) From and after the date of the death of the supporting party;

(3) During any period when the child is living with the supporting party pursuant to a valid court order or to an express or implied written or oral agreement transferring primary custody to the supporting party;

(4) During any period when the supporting party is incarcerated, is not on work release, and has no resources with which to make the payment.

(e) When a child support payment that is to be made to the State Child Support Collection and Disbursement Unit is not received by the Unit when due, the payment is not a past due child support payment for purposes of this section, and no arrearage accrues, if the payment is actually made to and received on time by the party entitled to receive it and that receipt is evidenced by a canceled check, money order, or contemporaneously executed and dated written receipt. Nothing in this section shall affect the duties of the clerks or the IV-D agency under this Chapter or Chapter 110 of the General Statutes with respect to payments not received by the Unit on time, but the court, in any action to enforce such a payment, may enter an order directing the clerk or the IV-D agency to enter the payment on the clerk's or IV-D agency's records as having been made on time, if the court finds that the payment was in fact received by the party entitled to receive it as provided in this subsection. (1987, c. 739, s. 4; 1999-293, s. 15.)

Cross References. — As to liens on real and personal property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-86. As to discharge of liens on property of persons owing past due child support, see § 44-87. As to legislation deleting the June 30, 1998 expiration date for all enactments and amendments by Session Laws 1997-433, see the editor's note under § 44-86.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Using Hindsight to Change Child Support Obligations: A Survey of Retroactive Modification and Reimbursement of Child Support in North Carolina," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 111 (1987).

CASE NOTES

Modification When One of Several Children Reaches Age 18. — While child support obligations ordered by a court terminate upon the child reaching age 18, unless the child is otherwise emancipated prior to reaching age 18 or the trial court in its discretion continues to enforce the payment obligation after the child reaches age 18 and while the child is in primary or secondary school, when one of two or more minor children for whom support is ordered reaches age 18, and when the support ordered to be paid is not allocated as to each individual child, the supporting parent has no authority to unilaterally modify the amount of the child support payment. The supporting parent must apply to the trial court for modification. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Cases holding that where one of two minor children reaches the age of 18, a trial court may retroactively modify child support arrearages when equitable considerations exist which would create an injustice if modification is not allowed, were decided before this section became effective on October 1, 1987. Under this statute, if the supporting party is not disabled or incapacitated as provided by subdivision (a)(2), a past due, vested child support payment is subject to divestment only as provided by law, and if, but only if, a written motion is filed, and due notice is given to all parties before the payment is due. Craig v. Craig, 103 N.C. App. 615, 406 S.E.2d 656 (1991).

Retroactive Modification of Support Payments. — Child support payments may not be reduced retroactively so as to grant relief from arrearages, absent a compelling reason. Van Nynatten v. Van Nynatten, 113 N.C. App. 142, 438 S.E.2d 417 (1993).

Expenses Already Incurred. — The General Assembly did not intend to equate retroactive payments with expenses already incurred. Thus, this section was not applicable and did not require plaintiff to file a motion to modify the support order before the minor child was hospitalized and had incurred medical expenses. Lawrence v. Nantz, 115 N.C. App. 478, 445 S.E.2d 87 (1994).

Oral agreement to modify child support payments would not justify noncompliance with the statute, and an obligor parent would still be required to apply to the court before altering his payments. Van Nynatten v. Van Nynatten, 113 N.C. App. 142, 438 S.E.2d 417 (1993).

Equitable Estoppel Did Not Bar Claim for Past Support. — Even assuming that on some set of facts equitable estoppel might properly bar a claim for child support arrears, it was inapplicable where husband, seeking to rely on equitable estoppel could not show that, in good faith reliance on the conduct of his ex-wife, he had changed his position for the worse; the only change made in his position was the retention to his benefit of money owed for the support of his children. Griffin v. Griffin, 96 N.C. App. 324, 385 S.E.2d 526 (1989).

Where defendant made no motion for modification of a foreign support order, the North Carolina trial court was without authority to modify, in any way for any reason, past due child support payments; and defendant was not entitled to credit for any sums given directly to the child outside of the foreign support order. Pieper v. Pieper, 108 N.C. App. 722, 425 S.E.2d 435 (1993).

Modification Not Retroactive. — Where plaintiff filed her motion to modify the child support payments on March 27, 1991 and the trial court entered an order on February 18, 1993 increasing defendant's child support obligation from $800 per month to $1,230 per month effective April 1, 1991, the trial court noted that on the the date this order was entered, the effective date of the time the payments were to begin had passed and ordered defendant to pay $9,890 to the Clerk of Superior Court representing the increase in child support payments for the months of April, 1991 through February, 1993; because April, 1991 was subsequent to the March 27, 1991 filing of the plaintiff's motion, the trial court's order was not a retroactive modification. Mackins v. Mackins, 114 N.C. App. 538, 442 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 694, 448 S.E.2d 527 (1994).

Evidence of Emergency Situation. — A child support payment may not be retroactively increased without evidence of some emergency situation that required the expenditure of sums in excess of the amount of child support paid. Mackins v. Mackins, 114 N.C. App. 538, 442 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 694, 448 S.E.2d 527 (1994).

Modification on Amount Accrued After Filing. — A trial court has the discretion to make a modification of a child support order effective from the date a petition to modify is filed as to support obligations that accrue after such date. Mackins v. Mackins, 114 N.C. App. 538, 442 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 337 N.C. 694, 448 S.E.2d 527 (1994).

Interest may be awarded on child support accruing on the date the complaint is filed. Taylor v. Taylor, 128 N.C. App. 180, 493 S.E.2d 819 (1997).

Applied in Williams v. Williams, 105 N.C. App. 615, 414 S.E.2d 80 (1992); Transylvania County Dep't of Social Servs. v. Connolly, 115 N.C. App. 34, 443 S.E.2d 892 (1994).

Quoted in Tate v. Tate, 95 N.C. App. 774, 384 S.E.2d 48 (1989); Sikes v. Sikes, 330 N.C. 595, 411 S.E.2d 588 (1992); Snipes v. Snipes, 118 N.C. App. 189, 454 S.E.2d 864 (1995).

Stated in Biggs v. Greer, 136 N.C. App. 294, 524 S.E.2d 577 (2000).

Cited in Kelly v. Otte, 123 N.C. App. 585, 474 S.E.2d 131 (1996); Chused v. Chused, 131 N.C. App. 668, 508 S.E.2d 559 (1998).

§ 50-13.11. Orders and agreements regarding medical support and health insurance coverage for minor children.

(a) The court may order a parent of a minor child or other responsible party to provide medical support for the child, or the parties may enter into a written agreement regarding medical support for the child. An order or agreement for medical support for the child may require one or both parties to pay the medical, hospital, dental, or other health care related expenses.

(a1) The court shall order the parent of a minor child or other responsible party to maintain health insurance for the benefit of the child when health insurance is available at a reasonable cost. As used in this subsection, health insurance is considered reasonable in cost if it is employment related or other group health insurance, regardless of service delivery mechanism. The court may require one or both parties to maintain dental insurance.

(b) The party ordered or under agreement to provide health insurance shall provide written notice of any change in the applicable insurance coverage to the other party.

(c) The employer or insurer of the party required to provide health, hospital, and dental insurance shall release to the other party, upon written request, any information on a minor child's insurance coverage that the employer or insurer may release to the party required to provide health, hospital, and dental insurance.

(d) When a court order or agreement for health insurance is in effect, the signature of either party shall be valid authorization to the insurer to process an insurance claim on behalf of a minor child.

(e) If the party who is required to provide health insurance fails to maintain the insurance coverage for the minor child, the party shall be liable for any health, hospital, or dental expenses incurred from the date of the court order or agreement that would have been covered by insurance if it had been in force.

(f) When a noncustodial parent ordered to provide health insurance changes employment and health insurance coverage is available through the new employer, the obligee shall notify the new employer of the noncustodial parent's obligation to provide health insurance for the child. Upon receipt of notice from the obligee, the new employer shall enroll the child in the employer's health insurance plan. (1989 (Reg. Sess., 1990), c. 1067, s. 1; 1991, c. 419, s. 2; c. 761, s. 42; 1997-433, s. 3.1; 1998-17, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

The trial court committed reversible error in ordering the defendant to carry health insurance for his five minor children by three different mothers without first determining its availability at a reasonable cost. The trial court has no discretion outside this section to order a parent to provide health insurance, not even under § 50-13.11(a) in the guise of "medical support." Buncombe County ex rel. Blair v. Jackson, 138 N.C. App. 284, 531 S.E.2d 240 (2000).

Cited in Lawrence v. Nantz, 115 N.C. App. 478, 445 S.E.2d 87 (1994).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Medical Child Support Provisions. — The medical child support enforcement provisions of House Bill 1563, 1993 (Reg. Sess., 1994), N.C. Session Laws c. 644, are inapplicable to the North Carolina Teachers' and State Employees' Comprehensive Major Medical Plan and the governmental entities whose employees and retirees, along with their dependents, are eligible for coverage under the Plan or its HMO option. Medical child support orders nonetheless may be enforced directly against State employees and retirees who fail to enroll, or maintain coverage for, their eligible dependent children under the State Health Plan in accordance with the provisions of §§ 50-13.4(f), 50-13.9 and this section. See opinion of Attorney General to Patricia Crawford, Associate General Counsel, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, — N.C.A.G. — (August 10, 1995).

§ 50-13.12. Forfeiture of licensing privileges for failure to pay child support or for failure to comply with subpoena issued pursuant to child support or paternity establishment proceedings.

(a) As used in this section, the term:

(1) "Licensing board" means a department, division, agency, officer, board, or other unit of state government that issues hunting, fishing, trapping, drivers, or occupational licenses or licensing privileges.

(2) "Licensing privilege" means the privilege of an individual to be authorized to engage in an activity as evidenced by hunting, fishing, or trapping licenses, regular and commercial drivers licenses, and occupational, professional, and business licenses.

(3) "Obligee" means the individual or agency to whom a duty of support is owed or the individual's legal representative.

(4) "Obligor" means the individual who owes a duty to make child support payments under a court order.

(5) "Occupational license" means a license, certificate, permit, registration, or any other authorization issued by a licensing board that allows an obligor to engage in an occupation or profession.

(b) Upon a finding by the district court judge that the obligor is willfully delinquent in child support payments equal to at least one month's child support, or upon a finding that a person has willfully failed to comply with a subpoena issued pursuant to a child support or paternity establishment proceeding, and upon findings as to any specific licensing privileges held by the obligor or held by the person subject to the subpoena, the court may revoke some or all of such privileges until the obligor shall have paid the delinquent amount in full, or, as applicable, until the person subject to the subpoena has complied with the subpoena. The court may stay any such revocation pertaining to the obligor upon conditions requiring the obligor to make full payment of the delinquency over time. Any such stay shall further be conditioned upon the obligor's maintenance of current child support. The court may stay the revocation pertaining to the person subject to the subpoena upon a finding that the person has complied with or is no longer subject to the subpoena. Upon an order revoking such privileges of an obligor that does not stay the revocation, the clerk of superior court shall notify the appropriate licensing board that the obligor is delinquent in child support payments and that the obligor's licensing privileges are revoked until such time as the licensing board receives proof of certification by the clerk that the obligor is no longer delinquent in child support payments. Upon an order revoking such privileges of a person subject to the subpoena that does not stay the revocation, the clerk of superior court shall notify the appropriate licensing board that the person has failed to comply with the subpoena issued pursuant to a child support or paternity establishment proceeding and that the person's licensing privileges are revoked until such time as the licensing board receives proof of certification by the clerk that the person is in compliance with or no longer subject to the subpoena.

(c) An obligor may file a request with the clerk of superior court for certification that the obligor is no longer delinquent in child support payments upon submission of proof satisfactory to the clerk that the obligor has paid the delinquent amount in full. A person whose licensing privileges have been revoked under subsection (b) of this section because of a willful failure to comply with a subpoena may file a request with the clerk of superior court for certification that the person has met the requirements of or is no longer subject to the subpoena. The clerk shall provide a form to be used for a request for certification. If the clerk finds that the obligor has met the requirements for reinstatement under this subsection, then the clerk shall certify that the obligor is no longer delinquent and shall provide a copy of the certification to the obligor. Upon request of the obligor, the clerk shall mail a copy of the certification to the appropriate licensing board. If the clerk finds that the person whose licensing privileges have been revoked under subsection (b) of this section for failure to comply with a subpoena has complied with or is no longer subject to the subpoena, then the clerk shall certify that the person has met the requirements of or is no longer subject to the subpoena and shall provide a copy of the certification to the person. Upon request of the person, the clerk shall mail a copy of the certification to the appropriate licensing board.

(d) If licensing privileges are revoked under this section, the obligor may petition the district court for a reinstatement of such privileges. The court may order the privileges reinstated conditioned upon full payment of the delinquency over time. Any order allowing license reinstatement shall additionally require the obligor's maintenance of current child support. If the licensing privileges of a person other than the obligor are revoked under this section for failure to comply with a subpoena, the person may petition the district court for reinstatement of the privileges. The court may order the privileges reinstated if the person has complied with or is no longer subject to the subpoena that was the basis for revocation. Upon reinstatement under this subsection, the clerk of superior court shall certify that the obligor is no longer delinquent and provide a copy of the certification to the obligor. Upon request of the obligor, the clerk shall mail a copy of the certification to the appropriate licensing board. Upon reinstatement of the person whose licensing privileges were revoked based on failure to comply with a subpoena, the clerk of superior court shall certify that the person has complied with or is no longer subject to the subpoena. Upon request of the person whose licensing privileges are reinstated, the clerk shall mail a copy of the certification to the appropriate licensing board.

(e) An obligor or other person whose licensing privileges are reinstated under this section may provide a copy of the certification set forth in either subsection (c) or (d) to each licensing agency to which the obligor or other person applies for reinstatement of licensing privileges. Upon request of the obligor or other person, the clerk shall mail a copy of the certification to the appropriate licensing board. Upon receipt of a copy of the certification, the licensing board shall reinstate the license.

(f) Upon receipt of notification by the clerk that an obligor's or other person's licensing privileges are revoked pursuant to this section, the board shall note the revocation on its records and take all necessary steps to implement and enforce the revocation. These steps shall not include the board's independent revocation process pursuant to Chapter 150B of the General Statutes, the Administrative Procedure Act, which process is replaced by the court process prescribed by this section. The revocation pertaining to an obligor shall remain in full force and effect until the board receives certification under this section that the obligor is no longer delinquent in child support payments. The revocation pertaining to the person whose licensing privileges were revoked on the basis of failure to comply with a subpoena shall remain in full force and effect until the board receives certification of reinstatement under subsection (d) of this section. (1995, c. 538, ss. 1, 1.1; 1997-433, s. 5.3; 1998-17, s. 1.)

§§ 50-14, 50-15: Repealed by Session Laws 1967, c. 1152, s. 1.

§ 50-16: Repealed by Session Laws 1967, c. 1152, s. 1; c. 1153, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to action or proceeding for custody of minor child, see § 50-13.1 et seq.

§ 50-16.1: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 1.

Cross References. — For present definitions applicable to this Chapter, see § 50-16.1A.

Legal Periodicals. — For article "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For note on enforcement of separation agreements by specific performance, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 117 (1980).

For note on separability of support and property provisions in ambiguous separation agreements, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 152 (1980).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For note, "Discarding the Dual Consent Judgment Approach in Family Law in Light of Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983)," see 20 Wake Forest L. Rev. 297 (1984).

For note, "Alimony Modification and Cohabitation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 794 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Equitable Distribution Without Consideration of Marital Fault," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1204 (1985).

For note, "The Contingent Fee Contract in Domestic Relations Cases," see 7 Campbell L. Rev. 427 (1985).

For comment, "Alimony Reform for North Carolina," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 87 (1989).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

For note, "Kuder v. Schroeder: The North Carolina Court of Appeals Holds That a Professional Education Is Not Within the Spousal Duty of Support," see 72 N.C.L. Rev. 1784 (1994).

For survey, "Termination of Lump Sum Alimony upon the Remarriage of a Dependent Spouse: Potts v. Tutterow," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2432 (1995).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce and some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-16.1.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982). See also, Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Jurisdiction Depends on Statute. — Jurisdiction over the subject matter of divorce or an action for alimony without divorce is given only by statute. Hodges v. Hodges, 226 N.C. 570, 39 S.E.2d 596 (1946).

As to surrender of marital rights under this section by a properly drawn separation agreement, see Lane v. Scarborough, 19 N.C. App. 32, 198 S.E.2d 45, rev'd on other grounds, 284 N.C. 407, 200 S.E.2d 622 (1973).

Status of Spouses Presents Mixed Questions of Law and Fact. — Determination of what constitutes a "dependent spouse" and what constitutes a "supporting spouse" requires an application of principles of statutory law to facts and involves mixed questions of law and fact. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

To Be Determined by Trial Judge. — The issues of who is a "dependent spouse" and who is a "supporting spouse," within the meaning of this section, should be decided by the trial judge. Bennett v. Bennett, 24 N.C. App. 680, 211 S.E.2d 835 (1975).

Defendant was not entitled to a jury trial on the issue of supporting and dependent spouse status, since issues of who is a dependent spouse and who is a supporting spouse are mixed questions of law and fact which can best be determined by the trial judge when he sets the amount of permanent alimony. Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243, cert. denied, 302 N.C. 734, 280 S.E.2d 449 (1981).

A supporting spouse is by definition married to a dependent spouse. Therefore, a determination that one spouse is a supporting spouse is a determination that the other is a dependent spouse and vice versa. Galloway v. Galloway, 40 N.C. App. 366, 253 S.E.2d 41 (1979).

Father was not entitled to accounting from mother for sums paid for child support pursuant to consent judgment. Glenn v. Glenn, 53 N.C. App. 515, 281 S.E.2d 83, cert. denied, 304 N.C. 390, 285 S.E.2d 832 (1981).

Procedure Where Grounds for Alimony Are Asserted Simultaneously as Grounds for Divorce. — While it is true that the determination of dependency properly rests with the trial judge, and not with the jury, where the grounds asserted for alimony are asserted simultaneously as grounds for divorce, the right to alimony depends on the legal entitlement to divorce, regardless of financial dependency. The ordinary and correct procedure in such cases, therefore, is to allow the jury to render its verdict on the "fault" issues of divorce, and then and only then to move to a bench hearing on dependency and the proper amount, if any, of alimony. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Consent Judgment Awarding Medical Expenses. — With the consent of the parties, the trial court, which has general jurisdiction of all domestic matters, could properly enter consent judgment, providing for payment of wife's medical payments, even though it contained a provision which was outside of the pleadings. Davis v. Davis, 78 N.C. App. 464, 337 S.E.2d 190 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 893 (1986).

Under consent judgment in which the court found as a fact that there were no claims for support or alimony pending between the parties and ordered plaintiff to pay all necessary and reasonable medical expenses incurred by defendant, parties did not intend for medical expenses to constitute alimony payments; thus, the trial court erred in entering judgment ex meru motu declaring portions of consent judgment null and void and unenforceable ab initio and in striking them. Davis v. Davis, 78 N.C. App. 464, 337 S.E.2d 190 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 893 (1986).

Applied in In re McCraw Children, 3 N.C. App. 390, 165 S.E.2d 1 (1969); Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970); Mitchell v. Mitchell, 12 N.C. App. 54, 182 S.E.2d 627 (1971); Crouch v. Crouch, 14 N.C. App. 49, 187 S.E.2d 348 (1972); Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Therrell v. Therrell, 19 N.C. App. 321, 198 S.E.2d 776 (1973); Ross v. Ross, 33 N.C. App. 447, 235 S.E.2d 405 (1977); Love v. Love, 41 N.C. App. 308, 254 S.E.2d 642 (1979); Fogleman v. Fogleman, 41 N.C. App. 597, 255 S.E.2d 269 (1979); Robbins v. Robbins, 43 N.C. App. 488, 259 S.E.2d 353 (1979); Harris v. Harris, 58 N.C. App. 314, 394 S.E.2d 602 (1982); Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983); Roberts v. Roberts, 68 N.C. App. 163, 314 S.E.2d 781 (1984); Gilbert v. Gilbert, 71 N.C. App. 160, 321 S.E.2d 455 (1984); Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988); Cunningham v. Cunningham, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

Quoted in In re Cox, 17 N.C. App. 687, 195 S.E.2d 132 (1973); Orren v. Orren, 25 N.C. App. 106, 212 S.E.2d 394 (1975); Williams v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 163, 256 S.E.2d 401 (1979); Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982); Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993); Wyatt v. Hollifield, 114 N.C. App. 352, 442 S.E.2d 149 (1994).

Stated in Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979); Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

Cited in Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969); Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970); Brandon v. Brandon, 10 N.C. App. 457, 179 S.E.2d 177 (1971); McConnell v. McConnell, 11 N.C. App. 193, 180 S.E.2d 465 (1971); Hill v. Hill, 13 N.C. App. 641, 186 S.E.2d 665 (1972); Greene v. Greene, 15 N.C. App. 314, 190 S.E.2d 258 (1972); Collins v. Collins, 18 N.C. App. 45, 196 S.E.2d 282 (1973); Privette v. Privette, 30 N.C. App. 305, 227 S.E.2d 137 (1976); Reid v. Reid, 32 N.C. App. 750, 233 S.E.2d 620 (1977); Elmwood v. Elmwood, 295 N.C. 168, 244 S.E.2d 668 (1978); Davis v. Davis, 35 N.C. App. 111, 240 S.E.2d 488 (1978); Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978); Hamilton v. Hamilton, 36 N.C. App. 755, 245 S.E.2d 399 (1978); Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978); Cavendish v. Cavendish, 38 N.C. App. 577, 248 S.E.2d 340 (1978); Hamilton v. Hamilton, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979); Jones v. Jones, 42 N.C. App. 467, 256 S.E.2d 474 (1979); Southern v. Southern, 43 N.C. App. 159, 258 S.E.2d 422 (1979); Wilhelm v. Wilhelm, 43 N.C. App. 549, 259 S.E.2d 319 (1979); Newsome v. Newsome, 43 N.C. App. 580, 259 S.E.2d 577 (1979); Allison v. Allison, 51 N.C. App. 622, 277 S.E.2d 551 (1981); Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981); Walters v. Walters, 54 N.C. App. 545, 284 S.E.2d 151 (1981); Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Henderson v. Henderson, 307 N.C. 401, 298 S.E.2d 345 (1983); Coleman v. Coleman, 74 N.C. App. 494, 328 S.E.2d 871 (1985); Michael v. Michael, 77 N.C. App. 841, 336 S.E.2d 414 (1985); North Carolina Baptist Hosps. v. Harris, 319 N.C. 347, 354 S.E.2d 471 (1987); Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706 (1988); Shoffner v. Shoffner, 91 N.C. App. 399, 371 S.E.2d 749 (1988); Rudisill v. Rudisill, 102 N.C. App. 280, 401 S.E.2d 818 (1991); Caldwell v. Caldwell, 103 N.C. App. 380, 405 S.E.2d 588 (1991); Rogers v. Rogers, 111 N.C. App. 606, 432 S.E.2d 907 (1993); Potts v. Tutterow, 114 N.C. App. 360, 442 S.E.2d 90 (1994), aff'd, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, reh'g denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

II. ALIMONY.

As to meaning of "alimony," see Rogers v. Vines, 28 N.C. 293 (1846); Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N.C. 418 (1885).

Subdivision (1) Contemplates "Permanent Alimony". — While the word "permanent" is not included in the definition of "alimony" in subdivision (1) of this section, the definition obviously contemplates what is commonly referred to as "permanent alimony." Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980).

Intent to Include Lump Sum Awards. — The legislature clearly intended to include lump sum awards as well as periodic support in the statutory definition of alimony. McCall v. Harris, 55 N.C. App. 390, 285 S.E.2d 335, cert. denied, 305 N.C. 301, 290 S.E.2d 703 (1982).

Trial judge may award alimony in a lump payment or monthly payments. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971).

Or May Combine Forms of Payment. — The fact that a trial judge used a combination of both a lump sum payment and a continuing monthly payment for alimony does not constitute an abuse of discretion. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971).

An award of alimony for specified period only is indubitably alimony in gross or "lump sum alimony." Whitesell v. Whitesell, 59 N.C. App. 552, 297 S.E.2d 172

(1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 583, 299 S.E.2d 653 (1983).

Award of Alimony Upheld. — Where the record revealed sufficient substantial evidence to permit a jury to find (1) that plaintiff was a "supporting spouse" and defendant was a "dependent spouse" as defined in this section, and (2) that plaintiff had abandoned defendant and willfully failed to provide her with necessary subsistence according to his means and conditions, so as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome, these permissible findings would support an award of alimony. Garner v. Garner, 10 N.C. App. 286, 178 S.E.2d 94 (1970).

As to the purpose and effect of former § 50-16, relating to alimony without divorce and custody of the children of the parties, see McFetters v. McFetters, 219 N.C. 731, 14 S.E.2d 833 (1941); Oldham v. Oldham, 225 N.C. 476, 35 S.E.2d 332 (1945); Reece v. Reece, 232 N.C. 95, 59 S.E.2d 363 (1950); Bateman v. Bateman, 233 N.C. 357, 64 S.E.2d 156 (1951); Fogartie v. Fogartie, 236 N.C. 188, 72 S.E.2d 226 (1952); Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955); Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966); Myers v. Myers, 270 N.C. 263, 154 S.E.2d 84 (1967).

III. ALIMONY PENDENTE LITE.

The right of a wife to subsistence pending trial and to attorneys' fees was derived from the common law. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Purpose of Pendente Lite Awards. — The remedy of subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite is intended to enable the wife to maintain herself according to her station in life and employ counsel to meet her husband at trial upon substantially equal terms. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Amount of subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite is within the discretion of the court, but this discretion is limited by the factual conditions. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Pendente Lite Order Cannot Set Up Savings Account. — A pendente lite order is intended to go no further than provide subsistence and counsel fees pending the litigation. It cannot set up a savings account in favor of the plaintiff. Such is not the purpose and it cannot be made the effect of an order. Yearwood v. Yearwood, 287 N.C. 254, 214 S.E.2d 95 (1975).

IV. DEPENDENT SPOUSE.

Construction With Other Sections. — Whether a spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support as defined by § former 50-16.1(3) is determined by construing this statute in pari material with the terms of former § 50-16.5 which prescribed factors for the trial court to consider in determining the amount of alimony. Fink v. Fink, 120 N.C. App. 412, 462 S.E.2d 844 (1995).

To be entitled to alimony, alimony pendente lite, or counsel fees, spouse must be a dependent spouse. Little v. Little, 18 N.C. App. 311, 196 S.E.2d 562 (1973).

This section keys all awards, in the nature of permanent alimony and alimony pendente lite, to a spouse who is a dependent spouse within the meaning of subdivision (3). Hinton v. Hinton, 17 N.C. App. 715, 195 S.E.2d 319 (1973).

To be entitled to alimony, a spouse must not only have one of the grounds set forth in § 50-16.2, he or she must also be a "dependent spouse." Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

For a discussion of the legislative intent as to judicial determinations of dependency under subdivision (3) of this section in light of § 59-16.5, see Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980).

"Dependent Spouse" Need Not Be Unable to Exist Without Other Spouse. — In order to be a "dependent spouse" for the purpose of receiving alimony pendente lite, one does not have to be unable to exist without the aid of the other spouse. Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

But Must Be Unable to Maintain Accustomed Standard of Living. — The legislative intent in the use of the phrase "actually substantially dependent" in subdivision (4) of this section is clear. This term implies that the spouse seeking alimony must have actual dependence on the other in order to maintain standard of living in the manner to which that spouse had become accustomed during the last several years prior to separation. Thus, to qualify as a "dependent spouse" under subdivision (3) of this section, one must be actually without the means of providing for his or her accustomed standard of living. Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980); Knott v. Knott, 52 N.C. App. 543, 279 S.E.2d 72 (1981).

The term "accustomed standard of living of the parties" in § 50-16.5(a) completes the contemplated legislative meaning of "maintenance and support" in subdivision (3) of this section. The latter phrase clearly means more than a level of mere economic survival. Plainly it contemplates the economic standard established by the marital partnership for the family unit during the years in which the marital contract was intact. It anticipates that alimony, to the extent it can possibly do so, shall sustain that standard of living for the dependent spouse to which the parties together became accustomed. Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980); Knott v. Knott, 52 N.C. App. 543, 279 S.E.2d 72 (1981).

When One Is a Dependent Spouse. — The dependency of the spouse asserting the claim may be established by proof that such spouse is either (a) actually substantially dependent upon the other spouse for his or her maintenance and support, or (b) substantially in need of maintenance and support from the other spouse. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972); Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973); Loflin v. Loflin, 25 N.C. App. 103, 212 S.E.2d 403 (1975).

Determination that one is a "dependent spouse" within the meaning of subdivision (3) of this section is a consequence of two or more related propositions taken as premises, one being the fact that the relationship of spouse exists, and the other consisting of at least the finding that one of the two alternatives in subdivision (3) is a fact. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Presson v. Presson, 13 N.C. App. 81, 185 S.E.2d 17 (1971); Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

To find that one is a dependent spouse the trial court must make findings of fact sufficient to show (1) that a marital relationship between the parties exists; (2) either (a) that the spouse is actually substantially dependent upon the other spouse for his or her maintenance and support, or (b) that the spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support from the other spouse; and (3) that the supporting spouse is capable of making the payments required. Little v. Little, 18 N.C. App. 311, 196 S.E.2d 562 (1973).

In determining whether one qualifies as a dependent spouse under subdivision (3) of this section, as well as in determining the amount of alimony to be awarded, the courts must consider the factors enumerated in § 50-16.5, the section for determining the amount of alimony. These factors include the estates, earnings, earning capacity, condition, and accustomed standard of living of the parties, and other facts of the particular case. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

To properly find a spouse dependent the court need only find that the spouse's reasonable monthly expenses exceed her monthly income and that the party has no other means with which to meet those expenses. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Lack of Capacity or Reasonable Opportunity May Render Spouse Dependent. — A wife is actually substantially dependent upon her husband for her maintenance and support or in substantial need of support by him if she is incapable of adequately providing for herself or is capable of adequately providing for herself but does not have a reasonable opportunity to do so. Galloway v. Galloway, 40 N.C. App. 366, 253 S.E.2d 41 (1979).

Where the trial court in an action for alimony pendente lite and permanent alimony found that plaintiff wife had been gainfully employed prior to her marriage to defendant and was "able-bodied, intelligent and capable to find employment," this finding was not sufficient to support the trial court's conclusion that plaintiff was not a dependent spouse within the meaning of subdivision (3) of this section, as it did not include a finding that the plaintiff had a reasonable opportunity but did not adequately support herself. Galloway v. Galloway, 40 N.C. App. 366, 253 S.E.2d 41 (1979).

Accustomed Standard of Living Is Determinative. — It is not necessary that a spouse be reduced to penury to be considered dependent; the accustomed standard of living is the proper measure. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

For a spouse to be "actually substantially dependent", he or she must have actual dependence on the other in order to maintain the standard of living to which he or she became accustomed during the last several years prior to the spouses' separation. To determine whether such actual dependence exists, the trial court must evaluate the parties' incomes and expenses measured by the standard of living of the family as a unit. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

"Actually substantially dependent" means that the spouse seeking alimony must be actually dependent upon the other in order to maintain a standard of living in the manner to which that spouse had become accustomed during the last several years prior to separation. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986); Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

A spouse is "actually substantially dependent" if he or she is without the means to provide for his or her accustomed standard of living. Phillips v. Phillips, 83 N.C. App. 228, 349 S.E.2d 397 (1986).

The term "actually substantially dependent," as used in the first portion of the definition in subdivision (3), means that the spouse seeking alimony must have actual dependence on the other in order to maintain the standard of living in the manner to which that spouse became accustomed during the last several years prior to separation; thus to qualify as a dependent spouse under that portion of subdivision (3), the spouse seeking alimony must be actually without means for providing for his or her accustomed standard of living. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 82 N.C. App. 225, 356 S.E.2d 821, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 791, 361 S.E.2d 72 (1987).

Absent Actual Dependence, Issue Is Substantial Need of Maintenance. — If the court determines that one spouse is not actually dependent on the other for such support, the court must then determine if one spouse is "substantially in need of maintenance and support" from the other, i.e., whether one spouse would be unable to maintain his or her accustomed standard of living, established prior to separation, without financial contribution from the other. In doing so, the court must determine and consider the following: (1) The standard of living, socially and economically, to which the parties as a family unit became accustomed during the several years prior to their separation; (2) the present earnings, prospective earning capacity, and any other condition, such as health, of each spouse at the time of the hearing; (3) whether the spouse seeking alimony has a demonstrated need for financial contribution from the other spouse in order to maintain the parties' accustomed standard of living, taking into consideration the spouse's reasonable expenses in light of that standard of living; and (4) the financial worth or "estate" of both spouses. The court must also consider fault and other facts of the particular case such as the length of the marriage and the contribution made by each spouse to the financial status of the family over the years. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Even if a spouse is not actually substantially dependent, he or she is nevertheless a dependent spouse under the second part of the definition of subdivision (3) of this section if, considering the parties' earnings, earning capacity, estates, and other factors, the spouse seeking alimony demonstrates the need for financial contribution from the other spouse to maintain his or her accustomed standard of living. Phillips v. Phillips, 83 N.C. App. 228, 349 S.E.2d 397 (1986).

The test of being "substantially in need" refers to something less than being "actually substantially dependent." The analysis under this test is much more extensive and requires detailed and specific findings by the trial court. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

And Even Spouse Who Is Not "Actually Substantially Dependent" May Be Substantially in Need. — Even where a spouse is not "actually substantially dependent," the spouse may be a dependent spouse under the second part of subdivision (3) of this section if he or she is substantially in need of maintenance and support, the meaning of which is determined by construing this statute in pari materia with the terms of § 50-16.5. Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

The phrase "substantially in need of" requires the spouse seeking alimony to establish that he or she would be unable to maintain his or her accustomed standard of living (established prior to separation) without financial contribution from the other. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Maintenance of Accustomed Standard of Living by Borrowing. — The fact that a spouse can maintain his or her accustomed standard of living, by whatever means, pending the outcome of alimony litigation, does not determine the dependent spouse-supporting spouse issue. A finding that a spouse was forced to borrow substantial funds in order to maintain her accustomed standard of living would ordinarily lead to the conclusion that she was a dependent spouse. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Whether Spouse Is "Dependent" or "Supporting" Must Be Based on Findings. — The conclusions made by the court as to whether a spouse is "dependent" or "supporting" must be based on findings of fact sufficiently specific to indicate that the court properly considered the factors. In the absence of such findings, appellate courts cannot appropriately determine whether the order of the trial court is adequately supported by competent evidence, and therefore such an order must be vacated and the case remanded for necessary findings. It is not enough that there is evidence in the record from which such findings could have been made because it is for the trial court, and not the appellate court, to determine what facts are established by the evidence. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Findings that plaintiff wife worked and had a separate income did not preclude the trial court from determining that plaintiff was a dependent spouse and that defendant was a supporting spouse, where there was plenary evidence to show that wife was substantially dependent upon defendant and in substantial need of his support. Radford v. Radford, 7 N.C. App. 569, 172 S.E.2d 897 (1970).

A finding that the wife is unemployed and that she has no income is not sufficient, where the sparse record does not foreclose the possibilities suggested in subdivision (3) of this section that the wife may be dependent upon and supported by someone other than her husband or that she may not need any support at all. Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

Burden of proving dependency is upon the spouse asserting the claim for alimony or alimony pendente lite. Loflin v. Loflin, 25 N.C. App. 103, 212 S.E.2d 403 (1975).

This section looks first to the ability of the spouses to maintain the standard of living to which they have become accustomed during the last years of the marriage. The burden on the applicant for alimony is to show the accustomed standard of living and lack of means to maintain that standard. Only then does the ability of the other spouse to pay become significant. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

The trial court must evaluate the parties' income and expenses measured by the standard of living of the family as a unit in order to determine if a spouse is "actually substantially dependent." Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

Discretion of Trial Court. — Once a trial court determines that a spouse is dependent and is entitled to alimony, its award will not be disturbed on appeal absent a showing of abuse of discretion. Phillips v. Phillips, 83 N.C. App. 228, 349 S.E.2d 397 (1986).

Spouse Not Dependent. — Where there was no showing that plaintiff had a substantial need for support from defendant or to maintain plaintiff's accustomed station in life, she was in no sense a dependent spouse within the meaning of subdivision (3) of this section. Lemons v. Lemons, 22 N.C. App. 303, 206 S.E.2d 327 (1974).

Trial court's conclusion that plaintiff wife was the "dependent spouse" entitled to support was not supported by findings of fact where the court found that defendant husband's income was "very significantly lower than same [had] been in the past" and also that plaintiff was "unable to continue to maintain her accustomed station in life," but there was no finding or evidence that defendant deliberately depress his income in an effort to avoid his obligations, and it was apparent that the trial court disregarded defendant's own inability to maintain the station in life to which he was formerly accustomed in its determination of dependency. Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980).

Findings of fact supported by competent evidence of record fully supported the trial judge's conclusion that plaintiff was no longer a "dependent spouse", which conclusion supported his order terminating defendant's spousal support obligations, as only a "dependent spouse" is entitled to alimony. Marks v. Marks, 316 N.C. 447, 342 S.E.2d 859 (1986).

Where the uncontradicted evidence disclosed that the year before the parties separated, the plaintiff had an income of $18,339.97 and the defendant had an income of $20,475.11, and the year they separated, the plaintiff's income was $19,301.46 and the defendant's income was $24,447.26, and that during the last year that they lived together, they maintained separate bank accounts and divided household expenses, evidence did not support the ultimate finding that the plaintiff was substantially and materially dependent upon the defendant for her support and maintenance, and the trial court erred in awarding the plaintiff alimony. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 82 N.C. App. 225, 356 S.E.2d 821, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 791, 361 S.E.2d 72 (1987).

Trial court did not err by finding wife's pleadings were insufficient on their face and dismissing her action for alimony pendente lite; plaintiff asserted in her complaint that she was a "dependent spouse," but the only support she offered for this conclusion was evidence of her husband's salary and she did not present any evidence that she needed assistance to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit. Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 50, 389 S.E.2d 94 (1990).

Spouse Held Dependent. — Where defendant had not been regularly employed for 18 or 19 years prior to the separation and was completely supported by her husband, and her time was devoted to housework and rearing her children, it was clear from this evidence that plaintiff was a dependent spouse within the purview of subdivision (3) of this section. Hudson v. Hudson, 21 N.C. App. 412, 204 S.E.2d 697 (1974).

Where the evidence was not such as to require the court to find that defendant was capable of earning far greater income than she currently earned and showed that for the last five years of the parties' marriage defendant had earned insufficient income to meet her reasonable needs, there was sufficient evidence to support the court's conclusion that defendant was a dependent spouse, and the court's findings that plaintiff's net monthly income was $1,753 and that his reasonable expenses were $1,242 were sufficient to support the conclusion that plaintiff was a supporting spouse. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Where plaintiff's budget of $2800 per month was both reasonable and commensurate with the standard of living which the couple maintained prior to the date of the separation, plaintiff had no income producing assets, but earned a net income of $1353 per month, and defendant's gross income was nearly four times that of plaintiff, these findings supported trial court's determination that plaintiff was a dependent spouse and that defendant was a supporting spouse. Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 94 N.C. App. 682, 381 S.E.2d 162 (1989).

V. SUPPORTING SPOUSE.

"Supporting Spouse" Defined. — A "supporting spouse" is a spouse, whether husband or wife, upon whom the other spouse is actually substantially dependent or from whom such other spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support. A spouse meets the definition if he or she qualifies under either test, which essentially is the same as that applied for "dependent spouse." The primary issue is not the supporting spouse's ability to pay, but whether the spouse seeking alimony is a dependent spouse. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Determination that one is a "supporting spouse" within the meaning of subdivision (4) of this section is a consequence of two or more related propositions taken as premises, one being that the relationship of spouse exists, and the other consisting of the finding that one of the three (now two) alternatives in subdivision (4) is a fact. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

As to the former presumption in subdivision (4) of this section, prior to its amendment in 1981, that the husband was the "supporting spouse," see Rayle v. Rayle, 20 N.C. App. 594, 202 S.E.2d 286 (1974).

§ 50-16.1A. Definitions.

As used in this Chapter, unless the context clearly requires otherwise, the following definitions apply:

(1) "Alimony" means an order for payment for the support and maintenance of a spouse or former spouse, periodically or in a lump sum, for a specified or for an indefinite term, ordered in an action for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, or in an action for alimony without divorce.

(2) "Dependent spouse" means a spouse, whether husband or wife, who is actually substantially dependent upon the other spouse for his or her maintenance and support or is substantially in need of maintenance and support from the other spouse.

(3) "Marital misconduct" means any of the following acts that occur during the marriage and prior to or on the date of separation:

a. Illicit sexual behavior. For the purpose of this section, illicit sexual behavior means acts of sexual or deviate sexual intercourse, deviate sexual acts, or sexual acts defined in G.S. 14-27.1(4), voluntarily engaged in by a spouse with someone other than the other spouse;

b. Involuntary separation of the spouses in consequence of a criminal act committed prior to the proceeding in which alimony is sought;

c. Abandonment of the other spouse;

d. Malicious turning out-of-doors of the other spouse;

e. Cruel or barbarous treatment endangering the life of the other spouse;

f. Indignities rendering the condition of the other spouse intolerable and life burdensome;

g. Reckless spending of the income of either party, or the destruction, waste, diversion, or concealment of assets;

h. Excessive use of alcohol or drugs so as to render the condition of the other spouse intolerable and life burdensome;

i. Willful failure to provide necessary subsistence according to one's means and condition so as to render the condition of the other spouse intolerable and life burdensome.

(3a) through (3d) Reserved for future codification purposes.

(3e) "Payor" means any payor, including any federal, State, or local governmental unit, of disposable income to an obligor. When the payor is an employer, payor means employer as defined under 20 U.S.C. § 203(d) of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(4) "Postseparation support" means spousal support to be paid until the earlier of either the date specified in the order of postseparation support, or an order awarding or denying alimony. Postseparation support may be ordered in an action for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, for annulment, or for alimony without divorce.

(5) "Supporting spouse" means a spouse, whether husband or wife, upon whom the other spouse is actually substantially dependent for maintenance and support or from whom such spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support. (1995, c. 319, s. 2; 1998-176, s. 8.)

Editor's Note. — Prior to the year 1872 there was no statute regulating the question of alimony without divorce, but in this State it was held that this relief in proper cases could be granted by courts of equity. See Crews v. Crews, 175 N.C. 168, 95 S.E. 149 (1918). By Laws 1872, c. 193, the legislature provided for this relief, but in that act there was no provision whereby the wife could obtain alimony during the determination of the issues involved in her suit. See Hodges v. Hodges, 82 N.C. 122 (1880). In 1919, an amendment was added whereby the wife might apply for an allowance for her subsistence during the pendency of her main action. See Laws 1919, c. 24.

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which repealed former § 50-16.1 and enacted this section in its place, in s. 12 provides that the act applies to civil motions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

Former § 50-16.1, prior to its repeal by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Definitions.

"As used in the statutes relating to alimony and alimony pendente lite unless the context otherwise requires, the term:

(1) 'Alimony' means payment for the support and maintenance of a spouse, either in lump sum or on a continuing basis, ordered in an action for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, or an action for alimony without divorce.

(2) 'Alimony pendente lite' means alimony ordered to be paid pending the final judgment of divorce in an action for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, or in an action for annulment, or on the merits in an action for alimony without divorce.

(3) 'Dependent spouse' means a spouse, whether husband or wife, who is actually substantially dependent upon the other spouse for his or her maintenance and support or is substantially in need of maintenance and support from the other spouse.

(4) 'Supporting spouse' means a spouse, whether husband or wife, upon whom the other spouse is actually substantially dependent or from whom such other spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support."

Session Laws 1998-176, s. 1 added subdivision (4a), which was redesignated as subdivision (3e) at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Giving Credit Where Credit is Due: North Carolina Recognizes Custodial Obligations as a Factor in Determining Alimony Entitlements," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2128 (1996).

For an article on the 1995 amendments to North Carolina alimony statutes, see 76 N.C.L. Rev. 2017 (1998).

CASE NOTES

Postseparation support, like alimony pendente lite, is intended to be only temporary and ceases when an award of alimony is either allowed or denied by the trial court. Wells v. Wells, 132 N.C. App. 401, 512 S.E.2d 468 (1999).

Termination of Postseparation Support. — Although the General Assembly may have intended postseparation support to be a temporary measure, the statutory definition of postseparation support provides for only three possible termination dates, the death of either spouse or the remarriage of the receiving spouse. Marsh v. Marsh, 136 N.C. App. 663, 525 S.E.2d 476 (2000).

Postseparation Support After Divorce. — Postseparation support may continue despite a judgment of divorce if the postseparation support order does not specify a termination date and there is no court order awarding or denying alimony. Marsh v. Marsh, 136 N.C. App. 663, 525 S.E.2d 476 (2000).

Postseparation Support Replaced Alimony Pendente Lite. — Postseparation support (PSS) effectively replaced alimony pendente lite and must in general operate under the same principle that entitlement findings by the trial court during a PSS hearing are not final and binding at subsequent proceedings, since to treat PSS otherwise would deter many dependent spouses from seeking needed support for fear they would be bound by a ruling based on incomplete evidence. Wells v. Wells, 132 N.C. App. 401, 512 S.E.2d 468 (1999).

Postseparation Support. — Postseparation support is only intended to be temporary and ceases when an award of alimony is either allowed or denied by the trial court, and therefore is interlocutory and not appealable. Rowe v. Rowe, 131 N.C. App. 409, 507 S.E.2d 317 (1998).

Applied in Vadala v. Vadala, — N.C. App. —, 550 S.E.2d 536, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 662 (2001).

Quoted in Coombs v. Coombs, 121 N.C. App. 746, 468 S.E.2d 807 (1996).

Cited in Hanley v. Hanley, 128 N.C. App. 54, 493 S.E.2d 337 (1997); Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998); Rhew v. Rhew, 138 N.C. App. 467, 531 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

§ 50-16.2: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to alimony generally, see § 50-16.3A.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which repealed this section, in section 12 provides that the act applies to civil motions filed on or after that date, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995. This section, prior to the repeal by S.L. 1995, c. 319, read as follows:

"Grounds for alimony.

"A dependent spouse is entitled to an order for alimony when:

(1) The supporting spouse has committed adultery.

(2) There has been an involuntary separation of the spouses in consequence of a criminal act committed by the supporting spouse prior to the proceeding in which alimony is sought, and the spouses have lived separate and apart for one year, and the plaintiff or defendant in the proceeding has resided in this State for six months.

(3) The supporting spouse has engaged in an unnatural or abnormal sex act with a person of the same sex or of a different sex or with a beast.

(4) The supporting spouse abandons the dependent spouse.

(5) The supporting spouse maliciously turns the dependent spouse out of doors.

(6) The supporting spouse by cruel or barbarous treatment endangers the life of the dependent spouse.

(7) The supporting spouse offers such indignities to the person of the dependent spouse as to render his or her condition intolerable and life burdensome.

(8) The supporting spouse is a spendthrift.

(9) The supporting spouse is an excessive user of alcohol or drugs so as to render the condition of the dependent spouse intolerable and the life of the dependent spouse burdensome.

(10) The supporting spouse willfully fails to provide the dependent spouse with necessary subsistence according to his or her means and condition so as to render the condition of the dependent spouse intolerable and the life of the dependent spouse burdensome."

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For note discussing the application of the compulsory counterclaim provision of § 1A-1, Rule 13 in divorce suits, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 439 (1979).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For article, "Divisibility of Advanced Degrees in North Carolina — An Examination and Proposal," see 15 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1984).

For note, "Alimony Modification and Cohabitation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 794 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Equitable Distribution Without Consideration of Marital Fault," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1204 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

For comment, "Alimony Reform for North Carolina," see 18 N.C. Cent. L.J. 87 (1989).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

For article, "Maintenance, Alimony, and the Rehabilitation of Family Care," see 71 N.C.L. Rev. 721 (1993).

For note, "Kuder v. Schroeder: The North Carolina Court of Appeals Holds That a Professional Education Is Not Within the Spousal Duty of Support," see 72 N.C.L. Rev. 1784 (1994).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-14, which dealt with alimony in actions for divorce a mensa et thoro, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982). See also, Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Lack of Grounds. — The plain and definite meaning of § 50-16.11 is that when a jury or trial judge finds that none of the grounds on which a spouse alleges entitlement to permanent alimony pursuant to § 50-15.2 exists, the trial court, in its discretion, may order recoupment of any alimony pendente lite paid by the supporting spouse. Wyatt v. Hollifield, 114 N.C. App. 352, 442 S.E.2d 149 (1994).

Purpose of Alimony. — Alimony is not awarded as a punishment for a broken marriage, but for demonstrated need. Lemons v. Lemons, 22 N.C. App. 303, 206 S.E.2d 327 (1974).

Effect of Voluntary Dismissal with Prejudice. — Defendant wife's voluntary dismissal with prejudice of her suit for permanent alimony based on adultery and abandonment amounted to a concession that none of the grounds entitling her to permanent alimony existed and resulted in a final judgment on the merits with res judicata implications; the case would therefor be remanded for a hearing to consider whether husband should recoup the alimony pendente lite paid. Riviere v. Riviere, 134 N.C. App. 302, 517 S.E.2d 673 (1999).

Every ground for divorce from bed and board also serves as a ground for alimony. Minor v. Minor, 70 N.C. App. 76, 318 S.E.2d 865, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 495, 322 S.E.2d 558 (1984).

Procedure Where Grounds for Alimony Are Asserted Simultaneously as Grounds for Divorce. — While it is true that the determination of dependency properly rests with the trial judge, and not with the jury, where the grounds asserted for alimony are asserted simultaneously as grounds for divorce, the right to alimony depends on the legal entitlement to divorce, regardless of financial dependency. The ordinary and correct procedure in such cases, therefore, is to allow the jury to render its verdict on the "fault" issues of divorce, and then and only then to move to a bench hearing on dependency and the proper amount, if any, of alimony. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Equitable Distribution Decided Before Permanent Alimony. — When both permanent alimony and equitable distribution are requested, the equitable distribution should be decided first. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Identification of Support Payments. — Whether support payments are in fact alimony does not depend on whether order refers to it as "alimony" but instead on whether support payments constitute "reciprocal consideration" for property settlement provision of order. Hayes v. Hayes, 100 N.C. App. 138, 394 S.E.2d 675 (1990).

An alimony award should follow equitable distribution, duly taking into account the division of the marital property and the resulting estates of the parties. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Only a dependent spouse is entitled to alimony or alimony pendente lite. Galloway v. Galloway, 40 N.C. App. 366, 253 S.E.2d 41 (1979).

To be entitled to alimony, a spouse must not only have one of the grounds set forth in this section, he or she must also be a "dependent spouse." Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Only Dependent Spouse Is Entitled to Alimony or Alimony Pendente Lite. — Only a dependent spouse is entitled to alimony in North Carolina. Fink v. Fink, 120 N.C. App. 412, 462 S.E.2d 844 (1995).

The statutory policy behind the requirement that only a "dependent spouse" is entitled to alimony is to protect a nonsupporting spouse from serious economic harm by making payments to a spouse who does not need support. Fact that defendant husband agreed to pay monthly alimony was proof that he needed no further protection. Cox v. Cox, 36 N.C. App. 573, 245 S.E.2d 94 (1978).

For a spouse to be "actually substantially dependent" upon the other spouse, he or she must have actual dependence on the other in order to maintain the standard of living to which he or she became accustomed during the last several years prior to the spouses' separation. To determine whether such actual dependence exists, the trial court must evaluate the parties' incomes and expenses measured by the standard of living of the family as a unit. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Conclusions as to "Dependent" or "Supporting" Status Must Be Based on Findings. — The conclusions made by the court as to whether a spouse is "dependent" or "supporting" must be based on findings of fact sufficiently specific to indicate that the court properly considered the factors. In the absence of such findings, appellate courts cannot appropriately determine whether the order of the trial court is adequately supported by competent evidence, and therefore such an order must be vacated and the case remanded for necessary findings. It is not enough that there is evidence in the record from which such findings could have been made because it is for the trial court, and not the appellate court, to determine what facts are established by the evidence. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Absent Actual Dependence, Issue Is Substantial Need of Maintenance. — If the court determines that one spouse is not actually dependent on the other for such support, the court must then determine if one spouse is "substantially in need of maintenance and support" from the other, i.e., whether one spouse would be unable to maintain his or her accustomed standard of living, established prior to separation, without financial contribution from the other. In doing so, the court must determine and consider the following: (1) The standard of living, socially and economically, to which the parties as a family unit became accustomed during the several years prior to their separation; (2) the present earnings, prospective earning capacity, and any other condition, such as health, of each spouse at the time of the hearing; (3) whether the spouse seeking alimony has a demonstrated need for financial contribution from the other spouse in order to maintain the parties' accustomed standard of living, taking into consideration the spouse's reasonable expenses in light of that standard of living; and (4) the financial worth or "estate" of both spouses. The court must also consider fault and other facts of the particular case such as the length of the marriage and the contribution made by each spouse to the financial status of the family over the years. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Effect of Consent Judgment on Dependency Requirement. — A finding of dependency is not required where judgments ordering payment of alimony are entered by consent. Allison v. Allison, 51 N.C. App. 622, 277 S.E.2d 551, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 303 N.C. 543, 281 S.E.2d 660 (1981).

"Supporting Spouse" Defined. — A "supporting spouse" is a spouse, whether husband or wife, upon whom the other spouse is actually substantially dependent or from whom such other spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support. A spouse meets the definition if he or she qualifies under either test, which essentially is the same as that applied for "dependent spouse." The primary issue is not the supporting spouse's ability to pay, but whether the spouse seeking alimony is a dependent spouse. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Enforcement of Duty of Support. — The law imposes a continuing legal duty upon a husband to support his wife. Such duty is enforceable in a variety of ways: through criminal sanctions imposed for willful abandonment coupled with nonsupport, and through civil decrees granting alimony, alimony pendente lite, or alimony without divorce on the basis of misconduct or failure to support. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

Attempt to Limit Duty of Support. — Husband's duty of support is considered to be so fraught with a public interest that any contractual undertaking between a husband and wife who are living together and not contemplating imminent separation, which purports to quantify or limit that duty is void as against public policy under North Carolina law. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

An order of alimony without divorce and child support is temporary in nature, and if future circumstances justify a change, defendant is at liberty to seek relief in the trial court by motion in the cause. Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

In a wife's action for alimony without divorce and for child support, the Court of Appeals will not disturb an order of the trial court requiring the husband to make substantial payments to the wife for alimony and for support of the minor children, notwithstanding the husband's contention that he anticipates a substantial decrease in earning, since the order is temporary in nature and is subject to modification upon change of circumstances. Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970).

Effect of Reconciliation or Death of Party. — Alimony is in its nature a provision for a wife (now spouse) separated from her husband (spouse) and it cannot continue after reconciliation or the death of either party. Rogers v. Vines, 28 N.C. 293 (1846).

Defenses to Alimony. — In defense to a claim for alimony, the supporting spouse may claim that the dependent spouse has committed any of the acts set forth in this section. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

The affirmative defense of condonation must be carried by the defendant. Privette v. Privette, 30 N.C. App. 305, 227 S.E.2d 137 (1976).

Noneconomic Marital Fault Irrelevant to Equitable Distribution. — While noneconomic marital fault is relevant to alimony, it is irrelevant to the equitable distribution of marital property. This distinction is recognized by § 50-20(f). Smith v. Smith, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

Findings Which Support an Award of Alimony. — Where the record reveals sufficient substantial evidence to permit a jury to find (1) that plaintiff is a "supporting spouse" and defendant is a "dependent spouse" as defined in § 50-16.1, and (2) that plaintiff has abandoned defendant and has willfully failed to provide her with necessary subsistence according to his means and condition, so as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome, these permissible findings would support an award of alimony. Garner v. Garner, 10 N.C. App. 286, 178 S.E.2d 94 (1970).

In suits for alimony, the order granting alimony must contain one of the 10 grounds for alimony listed in this section as a conclusion of law. Findings of fact to support that conclusion must be made, and usually the finding or findings of fact necessary will involve the actions of the supporting spouse. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

Post-Separation Failure to Provide Necessary Subsistence. — Absent a valid separation agreement waiving all alimony rights under § 50-16.6(b), post-separation failure to provide a dependent-spouse with necessary subsistence gives rise to an action for alimony. Brown v. Brown, 104 N.C. App. 547, 410 S.E.2d 223 (1991), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 383, 417 S.E.2d 789 (1992).

Accustomed Standard of Living Determinative. — It is not necessary that a spouse be reduced to penury to be considered dependent; the accustomed standard of living is the proper measure. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Burden on Applicant for Alimony. — This section looks first to the ability of the spouses to maintain the standard of living to which they have become accustomed during the last years of the marriage. The burden on the applicant for alimony is to show the accustomed standard of living and lack of means to maintain that standard. Only then does the ability of the other spouse to pay become significant. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

The issues raised by the pleadings must be passed upon by a jury before permanent alimony may be awarded. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968), decided under former § 50-16.

For case in which evidence was held sufficient to support a judgment for wife, see Bateman v. Bateman, 233 N.C. 357, 64 S.E.2d 156 (1951).

For case in which nonsuit was held proper for failure of evidence to support allegations of complaint, see Crouse v. Crouse, 236 N.C. 763, 73 S.E.2d 922 (1953).

Termination of Spousal Support Obligation. — Findings of fact supported by competent evidence of record fully supported the trial judge's conclusion that plaintiff was no longer a "dependent spouse", which conclusion supported his order terminating defendant's spousal support obligations, as only a "dependent spouse" is entitled to alimony. Marks v. Marks, 316 N.C. 447, 342 S.E.2d 859 (1986).

Applied in Taylor v. Taylor, 9 N.C. App. 260, 175 S.E.2d 604 (1970); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972); Koob v. Koob, 283 N.C. 129, 195 S.E.2d 552 (1973); Medlin v. Medlin, 17 N.C. App. 582, 195 S.E.2d 65 (1973); Powell v. Powell, 25 N.C. App. 695, 214 S.E.2d 808 (1975); Fogleman v. Fogleman, 41 N.C. App. 597, 255 S.E.2d 269 (1979); Jones v. Jones, 42 N.C. App. 467, 256 S.E.2d 474 (1979); Haddon v. Haddon, 42 N.C. App. 632, 257 S.E.2d 483 (1979); Odom v. Odom, 47 N.C. App. 486, 267 S.E.2d 420 (1980); Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243 (1981); Condie v. Condie, 51 N.C. App. 522, 277 S.E.2d 122 (1981); Hinton v. Hinton, 70 N.C. App. 665, 321 S.E.2d 161 (1984); Coombs v. Coombs, 121 N.C. App. 746, 468 S.E.2d 807 (1996).

Quoted in Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985).

Stated in Knott v. Knott, 52 N.C. App. 543, 279 S.E.2d 72 (1981); Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981).

Cited in Richardson v. Richardson, 4 N.C. App. 99, 165 S.E.2d 678 (1969); Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Reid v. Reid, 29 N.C. App. 754, 225 S.E.2d 649 (1976); Stallings v. Stallings, 36 N.C. App. 643, 244 S.E.2d 494 (1978); Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978); Hamilton v. Hamilton, 296 N.C. 574, 251 S.E.2d 441 (1979); Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979); Walters v. Walters, 54 N.C. App. 545, 284 S.E.2d 151 (1981); Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985); Phillips v. Phillips, 83 N.C. App. 228, 349 S.E.2d 397 (1986); Perkins v.

Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848 (1987); Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989); Rogers v. Rogers, 111 N.C. App. 606, 432 S.E.2d 907 (1993); Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993); Cunningham v. Cunningham, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

II. ADULTERY.

To determine whether the dependent spouse was entitled to alimony and, if so, in what amount, the trial judge was required to weigh evidence of adultery by the supporting spouse as well as evidence of indignities offered by both the supporting and the dependent spouse. Baker v. Baker, 102 N.C. App. 792, 404 S.E.2d 20 (1991).

Section Does Not Distinguish Between Pre-Separation and Post-Separation Adultery. — Until the State grants them an absolute divorce, a couple, though separated from each other, continues to be wife and husband; therefore, this section, which sets down the fault grounds for alimony, does not distinguish between pre-separation and post-separation adultery. Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988).

As to allegation of adultery in defendant's answer and cross-action, see Anthony v. Anthony, 8 N.C. App. 20, 173 S.E.2d 617 (1970).

As to evidence of adultery, see VanDooren v. VanDooren, 37 N.C. App. 333, 246 S.E.2d 20, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 653, 248 S.E.2d 258 (1978), decided prior to the amendment of §§ 8-56 and 50-10 by Session Laws 1983 (Reg. Sess., 1984), c. 1037.

Revival of Adultery After Condonation. — An allegation of adultery cannot be held fatally defective on the ground that it sets forth facts amounting to condonation when the complaint also alleges acts of misconduct committed by defendant after the reconciliation, which revive the old grounds. Brooks v. Brooks, 226 N.C. 280, 37 S.E.2d 909 (1946).

Sexual Intercourse with Third Party During Period of Separation Is Adultery. — Voluntary sexual intercourse by a spouse with a third party during the period of separation required by § 50-6 is adultery as contemplated by this section, and is a ground for alimony. Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988).

III. ABANDONMENT.

This section does not define abandonment. Panhorst v. Panhorst, 277 N.C. 664, 178 S.E.2d 387 (1971).

What Is "Abandonment". — One spouse abandons the other, within the meaning of this section, where he or she brings their cohabitation to an end without justification, without the consent of the other spouse and without intent of renewing it. Panhorst v. Panhorst, 277 N.C. 664, 178 S.E.2d 387 (1971); Bowen v. Bowen, 19 N.C. App. 710, 200 S.E.2d 214 (1973); Murray v. Murray, 37 N.C. App. 406, 246 S.E.2d 52 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 405, 250 S.E.2d 276 (1979); Robbins v. Robbins, 43 N.C. App. 488, 259 S.E.2d 353 (1979); Tan v. Tan, 49 N.C. App. 516, 272 S.E.2d 11 (1980), cert. denied, 302 N.C. 402, 279 S.E.2d 356 (1981); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

An action under this section for permanent alimony based on abandonment involves the withdrawal of the supporting spouse from the house and from cohabitation with the dependent spouse. Sherwood v. Sherwood, 29 N.C. App. 112, 223 S.E.2d 509 (1976).

Abandonment is a legal conclusion which must be based upon factual findings supported by competent evidence. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

The burden of proof as to each of the elements of abandonment is on the party seeking alimony. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Three Distinct Elements Must Be Proven. — It has been held that one spouse abandons the other, within the meaning of this statute, where he or she brings their cohabitation to an end without justification, without the consent of the other spouse and without intent of renewing it. This definition establishes three distinct elements which must be proven by the dependent spouse to entitle her to alimony on the basis of abandonment. Murray v. Murray, 37 N.C. App. 406, 246 S.E.2d 52 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 405, 250 S.E.2d 276 (1979).

Case-by-Case Determination. — Since there is no all-inclusive definition as to what will justify abandonment, each case must be determined in large measure upon its own circumstances. Tan v. Tan, 49 N.C. App. 516, 272 S.E.2d 11 (1980), cert. denied, 302 N.C. 402, 279 S.E.2d 356 (1981).

"Constructive Abandonment". — One spouse may abandon the other without physically leaving the home. In that event, the physical departure of the other spouse from the home is not an abandonment by that spouse. The constructive abandonment by the defaulting spouse may consist of either affirmative acts of cruelty or of a willful failure, as by a willful failure to provide adequate support. Panhorst v. Panhorst, 277 N.C. 664, 178 S.E.2d 387 (1971).

There is no willful failure, and thus no constructive abandonment, where the defect of which the departing spouse complains is due to the illness or physical disability of the remaining spouse and his or her consequent inability to act. Panhorst v. Panhorst, 277 N.C. 664, 178 S.E.2d 387 (1971).

Constructive abandonment may be shown by mental or physical cruelty or willful failure of the defaulting spouse to fulfill obligations of the marriage. Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 88 N.C. App. 119, 362 S.E.2d 584 (1987).

Proof of constructive abandonment may not be based on evidence of actions after the parties separated. Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 88 N.C. App. 119, 362 S.E.2d 584 (1987).

Abandonment Requires That Separation Be Done Willfully. — A contention that abandonment imports willfulness is an exercise in semantics. To the contrary, abandonment requires that the separation or withdrawal be done willfully and without just cause or provocation. Mode v. Mode, 8 N.C. App. 209, 174 S.E.2d 30 (1970).

The causes leading to the abandonment are relevant and proper subjects for inquiry in an action for alimony without divorce based upon the husband's abandonment. Mode v. Mode, 8 N.C. App. 209, 174 S.E.2d 30 (1970).

When Spouse Is Justified in Leaving. — Ordinarily the withdrawing spouse is not justified in leaving the other unless the conduct of the latter is such as would likely render it impossible for the withdrawing spouse to continue the marital relation with safety, health, and self-respect. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Maintenance of Nuisance May Be Adequate Provocation for Subsequent Abandonment. — The maintenance of numbers of dogs and cats, constituting a nuisance to the plaintiff, may be adequate provocation on the part of the defendant for the subsequent abandonment of the defendant by the plaintiff. Therrell v. Therrell, 19 N.C. App. 321, 198 S.E.2d 776 (1973).

Providing of Support Does Not Negative Abandonment. — The husband's willful failure to provide adequate support for his wife may be evidence of his abandonment of her, but the mere fact that he provides adequate support for her does not in itself negative abandonment as that term is used in § 50-7(1). Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966) (decided under former § 50-16); Bowen v. Bowen, 19 N.C. App. 710, 200 S.E.2d 214 (1973).

A wife is entitled to her husband's society and the protection of his name and home in cohabitation. The permanent denial of these rights may be aggravated by leaving her destitute or may be mitigated by a liberal provision for her support, but if the cohabitation is brought to an end without justification, without the consent of the wife and without the intention of renewing it, the matrimonial offense of desertion is complete. Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966), decided under former § 50-16.

A husband may be deemed to have abandoned his wife within the meaning of § 50-7(1), and thus be liable for alimony, notwithstanding the fact that, after cohabitation is brought to an end, he voluntarily provides her with adequate support. Whether his withdrawal from the home, followed by such support, constitutes an abandonment which is ground for suit by the wife for divorce from bed and board, and therefore ground for suit by her for alimony without divorce, depends upon whether his withdrawal from the home was justified by the conduct of the wife. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968), decided under former § 50-16.

Voluntary abandonment of husband by wife without legal justification will not entitle her to alimony in her suit for divorce from bed and board. McManus v. McManus, 191 N.C. 740, 133 S.E. 9 (1926).

A wife who has abandoned her husband without just cause or who, by her wrongful conduct, has forced him to leave home, has no right to alimony. Parker v. Parker, 261 N.C. 176, 134 S.E.2d 174 (1964).

And Husband May Prove as Defense That Wife Separated Herself from Him. — In an action by a wife for alimony without divorce, this section does not preclude the husband, who has left the home, from proving as a defense that it was actually the wife who separated herself from him though she did not leave the home. Panhorst v. Panhorst, 277 N.C. 664, 178 S.E.2d 387 (1971).

Where the pleadings place in issue the crucial question of whether the husband has separated himself from the wife, there is nothing in the language or meaning of the statute which precludes the husband from proving as a defense that in point of fact and in legal contemplation it was the wife who separated herself from the husband. Caddell v. Caddell, 236 N.C. 686, 73 S.E.2d 923 (1953).

Where in his answer defendant alleged that he separated himself from his wife at her bidding after an altercation to avoid continual abuse, nagging and assaults by plaintiff, and that he had provided plaintiff and their children with a furnished house, paid bills for necessaries and given them cash weekly, and had theretofore furnished them with necessary subsistence in accordance with his means in life, the answer raised issues of fact determinative of the right to the relief sought, which issues had to be submitted to the jury, and the granting of plaintiff's motion for judgment on the pleadings was error. Masten v. Masten, 216 N.C. 24, 3 S.E.2d 274 (1939).

Consent to Departure Not Shown. — Where the evidence at most disclosed a marital relationship that was sometimes rocky and a sexual relationship which, in the husband's estimation, left something to be desired, and the trial court's findings, based upon competent evidence, were that throughout the marriage the wife was a capable homemaker and good mother, that the couple enjoyed recreational activities with family and mutual friends, and that when problems arose in the relationship, the wife sought counseling for the couple, the wife met her burden of proof for lack of justification for the husband's departure; and the fact that the wife had, in effect, given husband an ultimatum to either faithfully commit to the marriage or to "make a clean break" did not mean that as a legal matter she consented to the termination of their cohabitation. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Cruelty Causing Wife to Leave Home. — When the husband by cruel treatment renders the life of the wife intolerable or puts her in such fear for her safety that she is compelled to leave the home, the abandonment is his, and is sufficient ground for alimony without divorce. Eggleston v. Eggleston, 228 N.C. 668, 47 S.E.2d 243 (1948).

A wife may establish a right to alimony by a showing that she was compelled to leave home in fear of her safety as a result of defendant's assaults and cruel treatment. Gaskins v. Gaskins, 273 N.C. 133, 159 S.E.2d 318 (1968).

Plaintiff May Rely on Cumulative Effect of Many Years of Mistreatment. — In an action for alimony without divorce, the plaintiff has the right to rely on the cumulative effect of many years of mistreatment by the husband, and her testimony cannot be limited to events which occurred immediately prior to the alleged abandonment. Mode v. Mode, 8 N.C. App. 209, 174 S.E.2d 30 (1970).

Allegations on Ground of Abandonment. — The plaintiff in an action for alimony without divorce on the ground of abandonment is not required to allege the acts and conduct relied upon as the basis of the action with that degree of particularity as is required when the cause of action is based on such indignities to the person as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome. Richardson v. Richardson, 4 N.C. App. 99, 165 S.E.2d 678 (1969).

Where a complaint otherwise contained sufficient allegations to support a cause on grounds of abandonment, the fact that the action for alimony without divorce on complaint referred to the repealed § 50-16 rather than to § 50-16.1 was not fatal. Richardson v. Richardson, 4 N.C. App. 99, 165 S.E.2d 678 (1969).

An action for alimony on the ground of abandonment is a claim of "injury to person or property" under § 1-75.4(3). Sherwood v. Sherwood, 29 N.C. App. 112, 223 S.E.2d 509 (1976).

Findings of Trial Court Held Insufficient on Question of Abandonment. — The findings and conclusions of the trial court were held insufficient to resolve the question raised by the defendant as to whether the plaintiff did in fact abandon the defendant, either actually or constructively, and would therefore be vacated and remanded for more detailed findings and conclusions with respect to the defendant's claim for alimony. Soares v. Soares, 86 N.C. App. 369, 357 S.E.2d 418 (1987).

IV. INDIGNITIES TO THE PERSON.

The fundamental characteristic of indignities is that it must consist of a course of conduct or continued treatment which renders the condition of the injured party intolerable and life burdensome. The indignities must be repeated and persisted in over a period of time. Traywick v. Traywick, 28 N.C. App. 291, 221 S.E.2d 85 (1976).

What Constitutes Indignities Depends upon Circumstances. — The acts of a husband which will constitute such indignities to the person of his wife as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome largely depend upon the facts and circumstances in each particular case. And such facts and circumstances are for the jury to pass upon, unaffected by any temporary order entered for subsistence and attorneys' fees. Barwick v. Barwick, 228 N.C. 109, 44 S.E.2d 597 (1947).

In cases involving alimony without divorce on the grounds that the supporting spouse has offered such indignities to the dependent spouse as to render his or her condition intolerable and his or her life burdensome, the Supreme Court has not set an undeviating rule as to what constitutes such indignities, but leaves it to the courts to deal with each particular case and to determine it upon its own peculiar circumstances. Presson v. Presson, 12 N.C. App. 109, 182 S.E.2d 614 (1971).

While husband often neglected his wife while participating in rescue squad activities, and on occasion called her names in public, thus contributing to his wife's suspicions and irritation, his conduct was not such as to cause her condition to become intolerable and her life burdensome. Furthermore, the husband did not abandon his wife, but left the marital residence for "just cause" (wife's criticism and accusations). Therefore, the wife was not entitled to alimony as a matter of law. Puett

v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

If the wife is compelled to leave the home of the husband because he offers such indignities to her person as to render her condition intolerable and her life burdensome, his acts constitute in law an abandonment of the wife by the husband, and allegations to this effect are sufficient to state a cause of action for alimony without divorce. Barwick v. Barwick, 228 N.C. 109, 44 S.E.2d 597 (1947).

A wife is not always entitled to alimony when her husband "threatens" her, however mildly, on several occasions. Traywick v. Traywick, 28 N.C. App. 291, 221 S.E.2d 85 (1976).

Sexual cohabitation after acts of cruelty cannot be considered as condonation in the sense in which it would be after an act of adultery. The effort to endure unkind treatment as long as possible is commendable; and it is obviously a just rule that the patient endurance by one spouse of the continuing ill treatment of the other should never be allowed to weaken his or her right to relief under subdivision (7) of this section. Privette v. Privette, 30 N.C. App. 305, 227 S.E.2d 137 (1976).

Complaint Merely Alleging Cruelty and Indignities Fails to Give Fair Notice. — Where the complaint merely alleges that the defendant treated the plaintiff cruelly and offered indignities to her person but does not refer to any transactions, occurrences or series of transactions or occurrences intended to be proved, nor mention any specific act of cruelty or indignity committed by the defendant, the alleged cruelty and alleged indignities may consist of nothing more than occasional nagging of the plaintiff or pounding on a table. Such a complaint does not give defendant fair notice of plaintiff's claim. Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

V. EXCESSIVE USE OF DRUGS OR ALCOHOL.

Habitual Drunkenness. — Allegations in a complaint that defendant had been an habitual drunkard during the prior three years were sufficient to state a cause of action for alimony without divorce under the term "shall be a drunkard" within the meaning of former § 50-16. Best v. Best, 228 N.C. 9, 44 S.E.2d 214 (1947).

VI. WILLFUL FAILURE TO PROVIDE.

Proof of Husband's Earning Capacity. — In an action by a wife for relief in the form of alimony under subdivision (10) of this section, proof of the husband's earnings and his earning capacity was clearly relevant to a determination of "necessary subsistence according to his ... means and conditions," and the trial court erred in ordering all such evidence to be excluded. VanDooren v. VanDooren, 37 N.C. App. 333, 246 S.E.2d 20, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 653, 248 S.E.2d 258 (1978).

VII. SPENDTHRIFT.

A spendthrift is a person who spends money profusely and improvidently. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

Refusal to Submit Issue Held Error. — In an action filed by the plaintiff, asking, inter alia, for a divorce from bed and board from the defendant, in which the defendant properly raised the issue of spendthrift and offered evidence to support his allegation, the trial court erred in refusing to submit the issue of spendthrift to the jury. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

§ 50-16.2A. Postseparation support.

(a) In an action brought pursuant to Chapter 50 of the General Statutes, either party may move for postseparation support. The verified pleading, verified motion, or affidavit of the moving party shall set forth the factual basis for the relief requested.

(b) In ordering postseparation support, the court shall base its award on the financial needs of the parties, considering the parties' accustomed standard of living, the present employment income and other recurring earnings of each party from any source, their income-earning abilities, the separate and marital debt service obligations, those expenses reasonably necessary to support each of the parties, and each party's respective legal obligations to support any other persons.

(c) Except when subsection (d) of this section applies, a dependent spouse is entitled to an award of postseparation support if, based on consideration of the factors specified in subsection (b) of this section, the court finds that the resources of the dependent spouse are not adequate to meet his or her reasonable needs and the supporting spouse has the ability to pay.

(d) At a hearing on postseparation support, the judge shall consider marital misconduct by the dependent spouse occurring prior to or on the date of separation in deciding whether to award postseparation support and in deciding the amount of postseparation support. When the judge considers these acts by the dependent spouse, the judge shall also consider any marital misconduct by the supporting spouse in deciding whether to award postseparation support and in deciding the amount of postseparation support.

(e) Nothing herein shall prevent a court from considering incidents of post date-of-separation marital misconduct as corroborating evidence supporting other evidence that marital misconduct occurred during the marriage and prior to date of separation. (1995, c. 319, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 12, provides that this section is effective October 1, 1995, is applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date, and is not applicable to pending litigation or future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Giving Credit Where Credit is Due: North Carolina Recognizes Custodial Obligations as a Factor in Determining Alimony Entitlements," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2128 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Summary judgment was appropriate where a premarital agreement signed by the parties irrefutably barred the wife's claims for postseparation support, alimony and equitable distribution; the language in the subject agreement—drafted by the wife's attorney—was sufficiently "express" to constitute a valid and enforceable waiver of the wife's claims for postseparation support pursuant to § 50-16.2A and alimony pursuant to § 50-16.3A. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

Cited in Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

§ 50-16.3: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to postseparation support, see § 50-16.2A.

Editor's Note. — It was formerly held that alimony pendente lite could not be awarded in the absence of a statute conferring this power. Wilson v. Wilson, 19 N.C. 377 (1837); Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N.C. 348 (1880). In 1852, the legislature passed an act authorizing the courts, upon a petition for divorce and alimony, to decree the petitioner a sum sufficient for her support during the pendency of the suit. See Everton v. Everton, 50 N.C. 202 (1857). In Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918), the court overruled the former doctrine mentioned above, and stated that the courts possessed the right to grant alimony pendente lite by virtue of the common law, the practice having come down from the English ecclesiastical courts.

The effect of this holding was to make the statute remedial in its nature, affirmative in its terms and cumulative in its effect, not abrogating the common law existent on the subject nor withdrawing from the court any powers already possessed in administering its principles. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918), overruling Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N.C. 348 (1880), on this point.

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which repealed this section, in section 12 provides that the act applies to civil motions filed on or after that date, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995. This section, prior to the repeal by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Grounds for alimony pendente lite.

"(a) A dependent spouse who is a party to an action for absolute divorce, divorce from bed and board, annulment, or alimony without divorce, shall be entitled to an order for alimony pendente lite when:

(1) It shall appear from all the evidence presented pursuant to G.S. 50-16.8(f), that such spouse is entitled to the relief demanded by such spouse in the action in which the application for alimony pendente lite is made, and

(2) It shall appear that the dependent spouse has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof.

(b) The determination of the amount and the payment of alimony pendente lite shall be in the same manner as alimony, except that the same shall be limited to the pendency of the suit in which the application is made."

Legal Periodicals. — As to basis of award of alimony pendente lite in North Carolina, see 39 N.C.L. Rev. 189 (1961).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For 1984 survey, "Estoppel and Foreign Divorce," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1189 (1985).

For note, "The Contingent Fee Contract in Domestic Relations Cases," see 7 Campbell L. Rev. 427 (1985).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former §§ 50-15 and 50-16, which dealt with alimony pendente lite in actions for divorce and in actions for alimony without divorce, respectively.

Constitutionality. — Defendant's contention that the provisions of former § 50-16 empowering the court to allow subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite to plaintiff in her action for alimony without divorce were unconstitutional as depriving him of a property right without trial by jury was untenable, since he was under the duty to support plaintiff until the adjudication of issues relieving him of that duty, and since such allowance by the court did not form any part of the ultimate relief sought nor affect the final rights of the parties. Peele v. Peele, 216 N.C. 298, 4 S.E.2d 616 (1939).

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Right to Alimony Pending Trial Is Grounded on Common Law. — The right of a defendant wife to an allowance for her subsistence pending trial and for counsel fees in a suit for absolute divorce by her husband was not derived from former §§ 50-15 or 50-16, but was grounded on the common law. Branon v. Branon, 247 N.C. 77, 100 S.E.2d 209 (1957).

Common-Law Principle Not Abrogated. — Former § 50-15 did not abrogate the principle on which alimony was allowed at common law. Cameron v. Cameron, 231 N.C. 123, 56 S.E.2d 384 (1949).

Allowance as a Legal Right. — Generally, excluding statutory grounds for denial, allowance of support to an indigent wife (dependent spouse) while prosecuting a meritorious suit against her husband (supporting spouse) under this section is so strongly entrenched in practice as to be considered an established legal right. Butler v. Butler, 226 N.C. 594, 39 S.E.2d 745 (1946); Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955); Garner v. Garner, 270 N.C. 293, 154 S.E.2d 46 (1967).

Purpose of alimony pendente lite is to give a dependent spouse immediate support and allow her to maintain her action. Giving supporting spouse credit for equitable distribution purposes for various payments made as part of alimony pendente lite would defeat the purpose of alimony pendente lite by penalizing the dependent spouse in the final distribution of the marital assets. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408 (1988).

When the wife (dependent spouse) is the defendant she has a right to claim alimony pendente lite. Webber v. Webber, 79 N.C. 572 (1878); Barker v. Barker, 136 N.C. 316, 48 S.E. 733 (1904).

Since the decision to the contrary in Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N.C. 348 (1980), is expressly abrogated in Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918), the wife (dependent spouse) may be allowed alimony pending the action and counsel fees in a suit against her for divorce, even though she seeks no affirmative relief and merely endeavors to defeat her husband's (supporting spouse's) case. It follows, therefore, that in an action by the husband for an absolute divorce, the wife may deny the validity of the cause of action alleged by the husband, or plead an affirmative defense to it, and obtain upon a proper showing in either event allowances from the estate or earnings of the husband for her support during the pendency of the action and for counsel fees for her attorneys. Johnson v. Johnson, 237 N.C. 383, 75 S.E.2d 109 (1953).

When the husband (supporting spouse) sues the wife (dependent spouse) for an absolute divorce, the wife may plead a cause of action for divorce from bed and board as a cross-action, and obtain upon a proper showing allowances from the estate or earnings of her husband for her support during the pendency of the action and for counsel fees for her attorneys. Johnson v. Johnson, 237 N.C. 383, 75 S.E.2d 109 (1953).

And this is true although she may be concluded by the judgment against her in her former and independent action for divorce a mensa under the provisions of the statute. Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918).

Lapse of seven years from the time of the separation does not bar a cross-action for divorce a mensa on the ground of constructive abandonment or application for alimony pendente lite, either by laches or any statute of limitation. Nall v. Nall, 229 N.C. 598, 50 S.E.2d 737 (1948).

Purpose of support pendente lite is to provide for the reasonable and proper support of the wife (dependent spouse) in an emergency situation, pending the final determination of her rights. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968); Dixon v. Dixon, 6 N.C. App. 623, 170 S.E.2d 561 (1969).

The purpose of alimony pendente lite is to provide the dependent spouse with reasonable living expenses during the pendency of litigation. Roberts v. Roberts, 30 N.C. App. 242, 226 S.E.2d 400 (1976).

The purpose of temporary alimony is to enable the dependent spouse to maintain herself according to her accustomed station in life pending the final determination of the issues. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

So That She May Maintain Her Action. — The granting of alimony pendente lite is given by statute for the very purpose that the wife (dependent spouse) have immediate support and be able to maintain her action. It is a matter of urgency. Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964); Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968).

And to Place Her on a More Equal Footing. — The purpose of the speedy proceedings for alimony pendente lite is to give the dependent spouse subsistence and counsel fees pending trial of the action on its merits. This result places the dependent spouse on a more nearly equal footing with the supporting spouse for purposes of preparing for and prosecuting the dependent spouse's claim. Black v. Black, 30 N.C. App. 403, 226 S.E.2d 858, appeal dismissed, 290 N.C. 775, 229 S.E.2d 31 (1976).

The remedy established for the subsistence of the wife (dependent spouse) pending the trial and final determination of the issues involved and for her counsel fees is intended to enable her to maintain herself according to her station in life and to have sufficient funds to employ adequate counsel to meet her husband (supporting spouse) at the trial upon substantially equal terms. Fogartie v. Fogartie, 236 N.C. 188, 72 S.E.2d 226 (1952); Myers v. Myers, 270 N.C. 263, 154 S.E.2d 84 (1967); Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968); Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971); Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

While Affording Some Protection to Supporting Spouse. — The purpose of former § 50-15 was to afford the wife (dependent spouse) present pecuniary relief pending the progress of the action, and to afford the husband (supporting spouse) some measure of protection in a motion so important, which was made and to be determined before the merits of the controversy were ascertained and the rights of the parties settled regularly by final judgment. Morris v. Morris, 89 N.C. 109 (1883).

Purpose Is Not to Determine Rights. — The purpose of a hearing for alimony pendente lite is to give the dependent spouse reasonable subsistence pending trial and without delay. It is not to determine property rights or finally determine what alimony the dependent spouse may receive if she wins her case on the merits. Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961); Kohler v. Kohler, 21 N.C. App. 339, 204 S.E.2d 177 (1974).

Nor to Establish Savings Account for Dependent Spouse. — The purpose of alimony pendente lite is to provide for the reasonable support of the dependent spouse pending final determination of her rights, and not to establish a savings account for her. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

A pendente lite order is intended to go no further than provide subsistence and counsel fees pending the litigation. It cannot set up a savings account in favor of the plaintiff. Sguros v. Sguros, 252 N.C. 408, 114 S.E.2d 79 (1960); Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

Section Does Not Involve an Accounting. — The provision for temporary subsistence pending trial on the merits does not involve an accounting between husband and wife. Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961).

Question of the alleged ownership of assets by an infant is beyond the scope of a hearing for alimony pendente lite. Kohler v. Kohler, 21 N.C. App. 339, 204 S.E.2d 177 (1974).

Order Does Not Determine Final or Ultimate Rights of the Parties. — Order granting or denying subsistence pendente lite, with or without counsel fees, whether or not containing findings of fact, is not a final determination of and does not affect the final rights of the parties. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

When the facts are investigated and findings are made as a guide to the court in making temporary allowances, they do not affect the ultimate rights of the parties at the final hearing. Harris v. Harris, 258 N.C. 121, 128 S.E.2d 123 (1962).

The final merits of the action are not before the trial judge upon a pendente lite hearing. Therefore, upon a pendente lite hearing, the trial judge may not determine the ultimate property rights of the parties. Black v. Black, 30 N.C. App. 403, 226 S.E.2d 858, appeal dismissed, 290 N.C. 775, 229 S.E.2d 31 (1976).

Determination of rights to a joint savings account is a matter for final hearing on all the merits, and not for hearing on alimony pendente lite. Roberts v. Roberts, 30 N.C. App. 242, 226 S.E.2d 400 (1976).

No Present Right to Disbursement of Eminent Domain Deposit for Land Owned by Entirety. — A wife separated from her husband and seeking alimony pendente lite had no present right to disbursement of money deposited by the State Highway Commission (now Board of Transportation) as a credit against just compensation for land owned by the wife and her husband as tenants by entirety. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n v. Myers, 270 N.C. 258, 154 S.E.2d 87 (1967).

It was error to order defendant to pay monthly premiums on two life insurance policies in which the child was named as primary beneficiary, because such payments provided nothing to meet the immediate needs of the child pending hearing of the case on its merits. Davis v. Davis, 11 N.C. App. 115, 180 S.E.2d 374 (1971).

Allowance for Children. — Where in passing upon a motion of plaintiff in her action for divorce a mensa for alimony, etc., pendente lite, if the trial judge has found facts sufficient upon the evidence, he may award the custody of the minor children, who have been removed by the defendant from the State, to the plaintiff, with an additional allowance for them from the time they may be placed in her custody. Jones v. Jones, 173 N.C. 279, 91 S.E. 960 (1917).

Effect of Reconciliation and Resumption of Marital Relations. — Where an order for alimony pendente lite has been rendered, but subsequent thereto there is a reconciliation and a resumption of marital relations in the home, the necessity for alimony ceases, and a judge has no power to reactivate the order for alimony pendente lite. However, the original cause is still pending and upon a subsequent separation and need for subsistence for the wife, the courts are open for whatever relief may be justified by the situation then existing. Hester v. Hester, 239 N.C. 97, 79 S.E.2d 248 (1953).

An order requiring defendant to pay alimony pendente lite to plaintiff was voided when the parties subsequently resumed the marital relationship. O'Hara v. O'Hara, 46 N.C. App. 819, 266 S.E.2d 59 (1980).

Final Order Terminates Order for Subsistence Pendente Lite. — Ordinarily, a final order for alimony without divorce terminates an order for subsistence pendente lite. Harris v. Harris, 258 N.C. 121, 128 S.E.2d 123 (1962).

A final order in a case for alimony without divorce terminates an order for alimony pendente lite. Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981).

Ordinarily, the award of permanent alimony terminates an order for subsistence pendente lite or counsel fees. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

But Relief Ordered at Previous Hearing May Be Continued as Permanent Alimony. — When the court on the final hearing finds facts based on the defendant's admissions and his testimony given at the hearing, the court may determine that the relief sought by plaintiff and ordered at a previous hearing should be continued as permanent alimony, subject to the further orders of the court. Harris v. Harris, 258 N.C. 121, 128 S.E.2d 123 (1962).

Specific Performance of Alimony Provisions of Separation Agreement. — The trial court had authority under § 1A-1, Rule 65 to grant specific performance of the alimony provisions of a separation agreement in order to preserve the status quo pending final determination of the merits of an action on the agreement. Gibson v. Gibson, 49 N.C. App. 156, 270 S.E.2d 600 (1980).

Recovery of Attorneys' Fees When Alimony Modification Is Sought After Absolute Divorce. — Section 50-16.4 is applicable any time a dependent spouse can show that she has the grounds for alimony pendente lite, even though the proceeding was not brought for that purpose. That any time includes times subsequent to the determination of the issues in her favor at the trial of her cause on the merits. Thus, if she meets the three requirements of § 50-16.3(a) for alimony pendente lite, she can recover her attorneys' fees even though she sought alimony modification subsequent to absolute divorce. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Applied in Williams v. Williams, 12 N.C. App. 170, 182 S.E.2d 667 (1971); Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971); Medlin v. Medlin, 17 N.C. App. 582, 195

S.E.2d 65 (1973); Little v. Little, 18 N.C. App. 311, 196 S.E.2d 562 (1973); Robinson v. Robinson, 26 N.C. App. 178, 215 S.E.2d 179 (1975); Hill v. Hill, 27 N.C. App. 423, 219 S.E.2d 273 (1975); Davis v. Davis, 35 N.C. App. 111, 240 S.E.2d 488 (1978); Haddon v. Haddon, 42 N.C. App. 632, 257 S.E.2d 483 (1979); Blair v. Blair, 44 N.C. App. 605, 261 S.E.2d 301 (1980).

Quoted in Bridges v. Bridges, 29 N.C. App. 209, 223 S.E.2d 845 (1976).

Stated in Hatcher v. Hatcher, 7 N.C. App. 562, 173 S.E.2d 33 (1970).

Cited in Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970); Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970); Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970); Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975); Wilhelm v. Wilhelm, 43 N.C. App. 549, 259 S.E.2d 319 (1979); Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985); Benfield v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 82 N.C. App. 293, 346 S.E.2d 283 (1986); Holder v. Holder, 87 N.C. App. 578, 361 S.E.2d 891 (1987); Evans v. Evans, 111 N.C. App. 792, 434 S.E.2d 856 (1993).

II. PREREQUISITES.

Prerequisites for Obtaining Alimony Pendente Lite. — In order to obtain alimony pendente lite, the applicant must be (1) a dependent spouse, (2) entitled to the relief demanded in the action, and (3) without sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Hogue v. Hogue, 20 N.C. App. 583, 202 S.E.2d 327 (1974); Ross v. Ross, 33 N.C. App. 447, 235 S.E.2d 405 (1977); Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

This section establishes the requirements for an award of alimony pendente lite. In the first place, the applicant must be a dependent spouse. Once it is established that the applicant is a dependent spouse it must appear that such spouse: (1) Prima facie, is entitled to the relief demanded in the action, i.e., absolute divorce, divorce from bed and board, annulment, or alimony without divorce; and (2) Does not have sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Cabe v. Cabe, 20 N.C. App. 273, 201 S.E.2d 203 (1973).

To obtain alimony pendente lite, the dependent spouse must show, among other things, that he or she is entitled to the relief demanded by such spouse in the action in which the application for alimony pendente lite is made, and that he or she has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Fore v. Fore, 15 N.C. App. 226, 189 S.E.2d 520 (1972); Simmons v. Simmons, 22 N.C. App. 68, 205 S.E.2d 582 (1974).

In order for a spouse to be entitled to alimony pendente lite under this section, the trial court must make findings of fact to show three requirements: (1) the existence of a marital relationship; (2) that the spouse is either (a) actually or substantially dependent upon the other spouse for maintenance and support, or (b) is substantially in need of maintenance and support from the other spouse; and (3) that the supporting spouse is capable of making the required payments. Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976); Robbins v. Robbins, 43 N.C. App. 488, 259 S.E.2d 353 (1979).

Prerequisites for Award of Counsel Fees. — The clear and unambiguous language of this section and § 50-16.4 provides as prerequisites for determination of an award of counsel fees the following: (1) The spouse is entitled to the relief demanded; (2) The spouse is a dependent spouse; and (3) The dependent spouse has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Therrell v. Therrell, 19 N.C. App. 521, 199 S.E.2d 164 (1973); Townson v. Townson, 26 N.C. App. 75, 214 S.E.2d 444 (1975); Knott v. Knott, 52 N.C. App. 543, 279 S.E.2d 72 (1981); Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985).

Before attorneys' fees may be awarded to the dependent spouse in an alimony case under this section and § 50-16.4 and before attorneys' fees may be awarded to the interested party in a custody, support, or custody and support suit under § 50-13.6, that person must have insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit; that is, he or she must be unable to employ adequate counsel in order to proceed as litigant to meet the other spouse as litigant in the suit. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

As to allowance of attorneys' fees, see also Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

Both Grounds Stated in Subsection (a) Must Exist. — The two subdivisions of subsection (a) of this section are connected by the word "and", and it is therefore mandatory that the grounds stated in both of these subdivisions shall be found to exist before an award of alimony pendente lite may be made. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Mitchell v. Mitchell, 12 N.C. App. 54, 182 S.E.2d 627 (1971); Presson v. Presson, 13 N.C. App. 81, 185 S.E.2d 17 (1971); Whitney v. Whitney, 15 N.C. App. 151, 189 S.E.2d 629

(1972); Hogue v. Hogue, 20 N.C. App. 583, 202 S.E.2d 327 (1974).

Wife who was not entitled to alimony, was not entitled to attorneys' fees for the prosecution of her claim for alimony pendente lite. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

Only a dependent spouse is entitled to alimony or alimony pendente lite. Galloway v. Galloway, 40 N.C. App. 366, 253 S.E.2d 41 (1979).

Income of Dependent Spouse Must Be Insufficient for Support and Expenses of Suit. — A married woman (dependent spouse) is entitled to alimony pendente lite from husband's (supporting spouse's) estate when the income from her separate estate is not sufficient for her support and to defray the necessary expenses in prosecuting her suit. Miller v. Miller, 75 N.C. 70 (1876).

Spouse with Ample Means Is Not Entitled to Allowance. — The right of alimony pendente lite is predicated upon the justice of affording the wife (dependent spouse) sufficient means to cope with her husband (supporting spouse) in presenting their case before the court, and a finding, supported by evidence, that wife has earnings and means of support equal to that of her husband sustains the court's order denying her motion for alimony pendente lite. Oliver v. Oliver, 219 N.C. 299, 13 S.E.2d 549 (1941).

Where wife (spouse) has a monthly income substantially larger than her husband's (spouse's), the requirements of subsection (a)(2) of this section are not made to appear, and it is error to award alimony pendente lite and counsel fees pendente lite. Davis v. Davis, 11 N.C. App. 115, 180 S.E.2d 374 (1971).

But mere fact that wife (dependent spouse) has property or means of her own does not prohibit an award of alimony pendente lite. Strother v. Strother, 29 N.C. App. 223, 223 S.E.2d 838 (1976); Robbins v. Robbins, 43 N.C. App. 488, 259 S.E.2d 353 (1979).

Nor Relieve Supporting Spouse of Duty. — The fact that the wife has separate property of her own does not relieve the husband of his duty to maintain for his wife the standard of living to which she has become accustomed. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

The clear and unambiguous language of this section and § 50-16.4 require that to receive attorneys' fees in an alimony case it must be determined that (1) the spouse is entitled to the relief demanded; (2) the spouse is a dependent spouse; and (3) the dependent spouse has not sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. All three of these determinations must be made in order to support an award of attorneys' fees. Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980).

No Allowance Where Dependent Spouse Has No Case. — Discretion in allowance of support to a wife (dependent spouse), while suing her husband (supporting spouse) is confined to consideration of necessities of the wife on the one hand and the means of the husband on the other, but to warrant such allowance the court is expected to look into the merits of the action and would not be justified in allowing subsistence and counsel fees where the plaintiff, in law, has no case. Garner v. Garner, 270 N.C. 293, 154 S.E.2d 46 (1967).

Court Must Look to Merits to Determine If Case for Relief Has Been Made. — In order to warrant the allowance of alimony pendente lite, the court must look to the merits of the action to determine if the petitioning party in law has made out a case entitling her to the relief demanded. Therrell v. Therrell, 19 N.C. App. 321, 198 S.E.2d 776 (1973).

In passing on a motion for alimony pendente lite the judge is expected to look into the merits of the action and determine in his sound legal discretion, after considering the allegations of the complaint and the evidence of the respective parties, whether or not the movant is entitled to the relief sought. Parker v. Parker, 261 N.C. 176, 134 S.E.2d 174 (1964).

Complaint Must Allege Facts Constituting Cause of Action. — Alimony pendente lite and counsel fees should not be awarded unless the plaintiff alleges in her complaint facts sufficient to constitute a good cause of action. Ipock v. Ipock, 233 N.C. 387, 64 S.E.2d 283 (1951).

But Kind of Divorce Warranted by Petition Is Immaterial. — Upon an application for alimony pendente lite, it is unnecessary to decide whether the petition warrants a divorce a vinculo or only a divorce a mensa et thoro. Little v. Little, 63 N.C. 22 (1868).

Burden upon Dependent Spouse. — Upon the application of a dependent spouse for alimony pendente lite, the burden is upon her to establish (1) that she is entitled to relief in her action and, (2) that she does not have sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of her claim or to defray the necessary expenses thereof. In re Mason, 13 N.C. App. 334, 185 S.E.2d 433 (1971), cert. denied, 280 N.C. 495, 186 S.E.2d 513 (1972).

Each case presents different circumstances, and the burden is upon the applicant for alimony, or alimony pendente lite, to offer evidence to establish need. Cabe v. Cabe, 20 N.C. App. 273, 201 S.E.2d 203 (1973).

Mere Institution of Suit Is Not Enough. — A wife (dependent spouse) is not entitled to an order for support pendente lite merely because she has instituted an action and alleged grounds for divorce or alimony. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

Nor Is Mere Separation. — Former § 50-15 did not authorize the judge, in passing on a motion for alimony pendente lite, to award a wife (dependent spouse) subsistence and counsel fees merely because she and her husband (supporting spouse) had separated. Parker v. Parker, 261 N.C. 176, 134 S.E.2d 174 (1964).

Dependent Spouse Must Show Lack of Provocation. — As a prerequisite to any allowance to a wife (dependent spouse), she must show that she did not by her own conduct provoke the wrongs and abuses of which she complains. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

But it need not be found as a fact that the plaintiff was a faithful, dutiful and obedient wife (spouse). Lassiter v. Lassiter, 92 N.C. 129 (1885).

Wrongful Abandonment by Dependent Spouse. — Former § 50-16 did not contemplate that a wife who wrongfully abandoned and separated herself from her husband should be awarded subsistence and counsel fees. Byerly v. Byerly, 194 N.C. 532, 140 S.E. 158 (1927); Reece v. Reece, 232 N.C. 95, 59 S.E.2d 363 (1950); Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

In a wife's (dependent spouse's) action for an allowance pendente lite the husband (supporting spouse) is not precluded from asserting and proving as a defense to his wife's action and motion that she has separated herself from him or abandoned him. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

Separation by Mutual Agreement. — The court properly denied a wife's motion for an interim award of alimony pendente lite and counsel fees in her suit for alimony without divorce, where there were findings that (1) the plaintiff and her husband had separated by mutual agreement, (2) the husband did not abandon the wife, and (3) the husband was guilty of no misconduct that would support an award of alimony. Harper v. Harper, 9 N.C. App. 341, 176 S.E.2d 48 (1970).

Effect of Separation Agreement. — The existence of a separation agreement was not a bar to an award of alimony pendente lite under former § 50-16. Wilson v. Wilson, 261 N.C. 40, 134 S.E.2d 240 (1964).

Under former § 50-16 the reasonableness of a separation agreement did not have to be determined before the court could award temporary allowances. Oldham v. Oldham, 225 N.C. 476, 35 S.E.2d 332 (1945); Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964).

Where in proceedings by wife to secure her subsistence and reasonable counsel fees under this section it was alleged that a separation agreement was procured by fraud, sufficiently pleaded, objection that the validity of the separation contract had to be determined first in an independent action was untenable, as former § 50-16 expressly provided that alimony could be granted "pending the trial and final determination of the issues." Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N.C. 197, 148 S.E. 171 (1929).

The cases of Oldham v. Oldham, 225 N.C. 476, 35 S.E.2d 332 (1945) and Taylor v. Taylor, 197 N.C. 197, 148 S.E. 171 (1929), holding that in an action for alimony without divorce the validity or reasonableness of a separation agreement need not be determined before the court can award temporary allowances, although decided under former § 50-16, relating to actions for alimony without divorce, were equally applicable to a motion for temporary alimony under former § 50-15, pending the trial of an action for divorce from bed and board. Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964).

Adultery. — Under former § 50-16, there was no defense limiting the power of the trial court to award subsistence pendente lite except the defense of the wife's adultery. Oldham v. Oldham, 225 N.C. 476, 35 S.E.2d 332 (1945); Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964). See also, Branon v. Branon, 247 N.C. 77, 100 S.E.2d 209 (1957).

Validity of Marriage. — Under Session Laws 1919, c. 24, it was not required that an issue involving the validity of the marriage be first determined before wife could sustain her civil action against her husband for an allowance for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees pending trial and final determination of the issue relating to the validity of the marriage. Barbee v. Barbee, 187 N.C. 538, 122 S.E. 177 (1924).

Pleadings Held Insufficient. — Trial court did not err by finding wife's pleadings were insufficient on their face and dismissing her action for alimony and alimony pendente lite; plaintiff asserted in her complaint that she was a "dependent spouse," but the only support she offered for this conclusion was evidence of her husband's salary and she did not present any evidence that she needed assistance to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit. Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 50, 389 S.E.2d 94 (1990).

Order for Temporary Alimony Held Error. — Trial court erred in ordering husband to pay wife temporary alimony and counsel fees retroactively from Dec. 21, 1987, the date of the entry of the order, to Aug. 1, 1984, approximately one month after the date the parties separated; wife's failure to claim alimony pendente lite and counsel fees at the time the parties separated demonstrated a total lack of need for an order of temporary alimony and counsel fees and the record vividly disclosed that wife was able to support herself and employ counsel to protect her interest during the pendency of the action. Haywood v. Haywood, 95 N.C. App. 426, 382 S.E.2d 798, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 706, 388 S.E.2d 454 (1989).

Award Upheld. — In an action by a wife for a divorce a mensa, where acts of cruelty were alleged as the ground of separation, and an estimate was made of the value of the defendant's estate, it was held that there was sufficient evidence to decree alimony and fix the amount. Pain v. Pain, 80 N.C. 322 (1879).

Allegations were held sufficient where acts were alleged which were well calculated to make wife's condition intolerable and her life burdensome and the bill set forth an estimate of the amount of the defendant's property. Gaylord v. Gaylord, 57 N.C. 74 (1858).

Where the complaint of wife seeking a divorce alleged facts which, if believed, entitled her to the relief demanded, and it was supplemented by an affidavit that the husband was trying to dispose of his property and had offered his land for sale with the avowed purpose of leaving the State, and that the children were small and needed the mother's care, it was proper to grant an order for alimony pendente lite, and it was also competent for the court to award to the mother the custody of the younger children. Scroggins v. Scroggins, 80 N.C. 319 (1879).

Where the allegations in the complaint were not controverted, it was sufficient if the judge found that no answer was filed and adjudged alimony to be paid. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N.C. 432, 18 S.E. 334 (1893).

Where, in husband's action for divorce on ground of adultery, wife filed an answer denying the charges and set up a cross-action for divorce from bed and board, the finding by the court that the wife denied the charge of adultery under oath, that the court did not find that she was guilty of adultery, that the husband had abandoned her and that she was financially unable to defray the necessary and proper expenses of the action and was without means of support, and that the husband was financially able to make the payments ordered, was sufficient to support the court's order of alimony pendente lite. Covington v. Covington, 215 N.C. 569, 2 S.E.2d 558 (1939).

Plaintiff was entitled to an order for subsistence pendente lite where the facts found by the judge showed that the defendant abandoned his wife, without any fault or provocation on her part, and without providing for her any maintenance and support. Bailey v. Bailey, 243 N.C. 412, 90 S.E.2d 696 (1956).

Award Held Improper. — Where the finding that plaintiff wife was a "dependent spouse" amounted to a mere conclusion unsupported by a finding of fact, and where there were no findings upon which to conclude that wife was entitled to the relief demanded under subsection (a)(1) of this section, the trial court erred in ordering alimony pendente lite and counsel fees. Kornegay v. Kornegay, 15 N.C. App. 751, 190 S.E.2d 646 (1972).

III. DISCRETION AND FINDINGS OF TRIAL COURT.

Amount of Subsistence and Counsel Fees Is in Trial Court's Discretion. — The amount allowed for subsistence pendente lite and counsel fees is within the discretion of the trial court, and the court's decision is not reviewable except in case of abuse of discretion or error of law. Phillips v. Phillips, 223 N.C. 276, 223 N.C. 279, 25 S.E.2d 848, 25 S.E.2d 848 (1943); Cunningham v. Cunningham, 234 N.C. 1, 65 S.E.2d 375 (1951); Mercer v. Mercer, 253 N.C. 164, 116 S.E.2d 443 (1960); Griffith v. Griffith, 265 N.C. 521, 144 S.E.2d 589 (1965); Miller v. Miller, 270 N.C. 140, 153 S.E.2d 854 (1967); Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968); Harper v. Harper, 9 N.C. App. 341, 176 S.E.2d 48 (1970); Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971); Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Strother v. Strother, 29 N.C. App. 223, 223 S.E.2d 838 (1976).

The amount of the allowance to plaintiff for subsistence pendente lite and counsel fees is a matter for the trial judge. He has full power to act without the intervention of the jury, and his discretion in this respect is not reviewable, except in case of an abuse of discretion. Fogartie v. Fogartie, 236 N.C. 188, 72 S.E.2d 226 (1952); Rowland v. Rowland, 253 N.C. 328, 116 S.E.2d 795 (1960); Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961); Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961).

Where attorneys' fees may be properly awarded, the amount of the award rests within the sound discretion of the trial judge and is reviewable on appeal only for abuse of discretion. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

But This Discretion Is Not Absolute and Unreviewable. — The allowance of support and counsel fees pendente lite in a suit for divorce or alimony without divorce is not an absolute discretion to be exercised at the pleasure of the court and unreviewable, but is to be exercised within certain limits and with respect to factual conditions. Butler v. Butler, 226 N.C. 594, 39 S.E.2d 745 (1946); Garner v. Garner, 270 N.C. 293, 154 S.E.2d 46 (1967); Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968); Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971). But see, Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 204 N.C. 682, 169 S.E. 422 (1933).

Discretion in making allowances pendente lite is confined to consideration of the necessities of the wife on the one hand, and the means of the husband on the other. Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968).

Mixed Questions of Law and Fact. —

Determination of what constitutes a "dependent spouse" and what constitutes a "supporting spouse" requires an application of principles of statutory law to facts and therefore involves mixed questions of law and fact. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Trial Judge Must Look into the Merits. — In considering a motion for alimony pendente lite, the court may not exercise an absolute and unreviewable discretion based solely upon the allegations of the complaint and the plaintiff's evidence offered in support thereof, while refusing to hear the evidence of the defendant. The judge is expected to look into the merits of the action and determine, in his sound legal discretion, after considering the allegations of the complaint and the evidence of the respective parties, whether or not the movant is entitled to the relief sought. Ipock v. Ipock, 233 N.C. 387, 64 S.E.2d 283 (1951); Parker v. Parker, 261 N.C. 176, 134 S.E.2d 174 (1964).

And Consider a Number of Factors. — While the amount of alimony pendente lite to be awarded rests within the sound discretion of the trial judge, the judge must take into consideration a number of factors, including the accustomed standard of living of the parties and the estate of earnings of each party. Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

The facts required by the statutes must be alleged and proved to support an order for subsistence pendente lite. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Guy v. Guy, 27 N.C. App. 343, 219 S.E.2d 291 (1975); Ross v. Ross, 33 N.C. App. 447, 235 S.E.2d 405 (1977).

And the Court Must Make Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law Thereon. — In suits for alimony pendente lite, the grounds listed under this section are conclusions of law necessary to justify an order granting such alimony. The court, therefore, must conclude as a matter of law that the party seeking alimony pendente lite (1) is the dependent spouse, (2) is a party in an action for absolute divorce, divorce from bed and board, annulment, or alimony without divorce and, (3) from all the evidence presented pursuant to § 50-16.8(f), (a) is entitled to the relief demanded in the action, and (b) is shown to lack sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit. Specific facts which support such a conclusion must be found. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

This section requires the trial judge to conclude as a matter of law that the spouse seeking alimony pendente lite is the dependent spouse within the meaning of § 50-16.1(3); that such spouse is a party in an action for absolute divorce, divorce from bed and board, annulment, or alimony without divorce; that such spouse is entitled to the relief demanded; and that such spouse is shown to lack sufficient means whereon to subsist during the course of the litigation. Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

It is necessary for the trial judge to make findings from which it can be determined, upon appellate review, that an award of alimony pendente lite is justified and appropriate in the case. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Travis v. Travis, 27 N.C. App. 575, 219 S.E.2d 512 (1975).

Evidentiary or Subsidiary Facts Need Not Be Found. — In an action for alimony pendente lite the trial court is not required to find evidentiary or subsidiary facts. The court need only find the ultimate facts in issue. Orren v. Orren, 25 N.C. App. 106, 212 S.E.2d 394 (1975).

But Findings of Ultimate Facts Must Be Made. — In making findings of fact under subsection (f) of § 50-16.8 it is not necessary that the trial judge make detailed findings as to each allegation and evidentiary fact presented. It is necessary that he find the ultimate facts sufficient to establish that the dependent spouse is entitled to an award of alimony pendente lite under the provisions of subsection (a) of this section. Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969); Robbins v. Robbins, 43 N.C. App. 488, 259 S.E.2d 353 (1979).

The judge must find ultimate facts sufficient to establish that the dependent spouse is entitled to an award of alimony pendente lite under the provisions of subsection (a) of this section. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Finding on Right to Relief Is Essential. — It is essential that a sufficient finding be made that the dependent spouse is entitled to the relief sought. Whitney v. Whitney, 15 N.C. App. 151, 189 S.E.2d 629 (1972); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

Dependency Must Be Found. — Absent a finding of fact in the order of alimony pendente lite that the plaintiff was a dependent spouse, alimony pendente lite may not be awarded. Musten v. Musten, 36 N.C. App. 618, 244 S.E.2d 699 (1978).

As Must Financial Need. — While it is not necessary in awarding alimony pendente lite on the basis of dependency for the trial judge to find that the wife (dependent spouse) would be unable to exist without support, it is necessary that the trial judge find facts which establish that she is substantially in need of maintenance and support. Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

In order to recover counsel fees, this section requires a finding that plaintiff is unable to defray the expense of prosecuting the suit.

Davis v. Davis, 62 N.C. App. 573, 302 S.E.2d 886 (1983).

Due regard must also be given to the ability of the supporting spouse to pay. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

Lack of Findings as to Dependent Spouse's Means Is Reversible Error. — Failure to make specific findings as to the sufficiency of dependent spouse's means of subsistence during the prosecution of her action and of defraying the necessary expenses thereof constitutes reversible error. Mitchell v. Mitchell, 12 N.C. App. 54, 182 S.E.2d 627 (1971).

Findings of Fact Necessary for Award of Attorneys' Fees. — In order to award attorneys' fees in alimony cases the trial court must make findings of fact showing that fees are allowable and that the amount awarded is reasonable. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

Where the order appealed from is deficient in findings to establish that plaintiff is entitled to alimony pendente lite pursuant to this section, the award of counsel fees under § 50-16.4 is also unsupported and must be reversed. Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

Where the findings of fact are insufficient to support an award for alimony pendent lite, they are likewise insufficient to support an award of counsel fees. Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

Trial judge is not required to make negative findings justifying denial of an application by dependent spouse for alimony pendente lite. In re Mason, 13 N.C. App. 334, 185 S.E.2d 433 (1971), cert. denied, 280 N.C. 495, 186 S.E.2d 512 (1972).

Findings in alimony pendente lite motion are solely for purpose of that motion and are not competent evidence on the final hearing of the same issues. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

IV. AMOUNT.

Determination of Amount Is Made in Same Manner as Alimony. — The determination of the amount and the payment of alimony pendente lite is to be made in the same manner as alimony, except that alimony pendente lite shall be limited to the pendency of the suit in which the application is made. Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969).

The amount of alimony pendente lite is to be determined in the discretion of the trial judge in the same manner as the amount of alimony is determined. Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970).

Award Should Be Based on Supporting Spouse's Earnings. — If the husband (supporting spouse) is honestly and in good faith engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted, and is making a good faith effort to earn a reasonable income, the award should be based on the amount which he is earning when the award is made. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

But Amount of Allowance Is Not Necessarily Dependent upon Earnings. — The granting of a support allowance and the amount thereof does not necessarily depend upon the earnings of the husband. One who is able-bodied and capable of earning may be ordered to pay subsistence. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

When Award Will Be Based on Capacity to Earn. — To base an award on capacity to earn rather than actual earnings, there should be a finding based on evidence that the husband (supporting spouse) was failing to exercise his capacity to earn because of a disregard of his marital obligation to provide reasonable support for his wife (dependent spouse). Conrad v. Conrad, 252 N.C. 412, 113 S.E.2d 912 (1960); Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

An award of alimony pendente lite may not be based on the earning capacity of the supporting spouse in the absence of a finding that the defendant is failing to exercise his capacity to earn because of a disregard of his marital obligation to provide reasonable support. Gobble v. Gobble, 35 N.C. App. 765, 242 S.E.2d 516 (1978).

Allowance When Supporting Spouse Denies Having Property. — Where the husband (supporting spouse) denies having any property, but admits that he is an able-bodied man, the court may order an allowance without inquiry into the value of his property. Muse v. Muse, 84 N.C. 35 (1881).

Consideration of Dependent Spouse's Station in Life. — In determining the need for maintenance and support, the court will give due consideration to the plaintiff's accustomed station in life. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867 (1979).

Allowance of Reasonable Amount. — In an action for alimony without divorce, upon issuance of summons and the filing of a verified complaint setting forth facts sufficient to entitle the complainant to the relief sought, the judge has power to require the payment by the husband of a reasonable amount for the wife's subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite. Perkins v. Perkins, 232 N.C. 91, 59 S.E.2d 356 (1950).

Award Upheld. — Award of $400.00 per month for support and maintenance pendente lite upheld. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App.

634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

V. REVIEW ON APPEAL.

Appeal as a Matter of Right. — An order requiring payment of alimony pendente lite and counsel fees affects a substantial right from which an appeal lies as a matter of right. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Scope of Review. — Proper exercise of the trial judge's authority in granting alimony, alimony pendente lite, or counsel fees is a question of law, reviewable on appeal. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

Reviewable Question of Law in Award of Attorneys' Fees. — The facts required by this section and § 50-16.4 must be alleged and proved to support an order for attorneys' fees. Whether these requirements have been met is a question of law that is reviewable on appeal. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

Order denying alimony pendente lite and attorneys' fees is an interlocutory decree from which an immediate appeal does not lie. Wilson v. Wilson, 90 N.C. App. 144, 367 S.E.2d 363 (1988).

Denial of Attorneys' Fees Held Interlocutory. — Denial of attorneys' fees under § 50-16.4 was not a final order of the trial court, where at the time appellant's motion was filed there had been no determination that his client, defendant, was entitled to alimony pendente lite under this section, so that appellant was not yet entitled to attorneys' fees under § 50-16.4, and as appellant could appeal the denial of his motion after final judgment, or could bring a separate lawsuit to collect his fees, no substantial right of appellant was affected by the Court of Appeals' failure to entertain an interlocutory appeal on this issue. Howell v. Howell, 89 N.C. App. 115, 365 S.E.2d 181 (1988).

Weight of Evidence is for Trier of Facts. — While the sufficiency of the findings of fact to support the award is reviewable on appeal, the weight to be accorded the evidence is solely for the trier of the facts. Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

Conclusive Effect of Findings. — If the findings of fact are supported by competent evidence, they are conclusive on appeal, even though the evidence would support contrary findings. Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

Effect of Appeal. — When an order arising from a domestic case is appealed, the cause is taken out of the jurisdiction of the trial court and put into the jurisdiction of the appellate court. Pending the appeal, the trial judge is functus officio and is without authority to act in the matter. Traywick v. Traywick, 31 N.C. App. 363, 229 S.E.2d 220 (1976).

Remand on Appeal. — The district court had jurisdiction to entertain a motion in the cause and to adjudge defendant guilty of contempt for failure to comply with order for alimony pendente lite after the judgment on the merits had been reversed on other grounds, new trial had been ordered and the case had been certified back to the trial court by the Court of Appeals. Traywick v. Traywick, 31 N.C. App. 363, 229 S.E.2d 220 (1976).

§ 50-16.3A. Alimony.

(a) Entitlement. — In an action brought pursuant to Chapter 50 of the General Statutes, either party may move for alimony. The court shall award alimony to the dependent spouse upon a finding that one spouse is a dependent spouse, that the other spouse is a supporting spouse, and that an award of alimony is equitable after considering all relevant factors, including those set out in subsection (b) of this section. If the court finds that the dependent spouse participated in an act of illicit sexual behavior, as defined in G.S. 50-16.1A(3)a., during the marriage and prior to or on the date of separation, the court shall not award alimony. If the court finds that the supporting spouse participated in an act of illicit sexual behavior, as defined in G.S. 50-16.1A(3)a., during the marriage and prior to or on the date of separation, then the court shall order that alimony be paid to a dependent spouse. If the court finds that the dependent and the supporting spouse each participated in an act of illicit sexual behavior during the marriage and prior to or on the date of separation, then alimony shall be denied or awarded in the discretion of the court after consideration of all of the circumstances. Any act of illicit sexual behavior by either party that has been condoned by the other party shall not be considered by the court.

The claim for alimony may be heard on the merits prior to the entry of a judgment for equitable distribution, and if awarded, the issues of amount and of whether a spouse is a dependent or supporting spouse may be reviewed by the court after the conclusion of the equitable distribution claim.

(b) Amount and Duration. — The court shall exercise its discretion in determining the amount, duration, and manner of payment of alimony. The duration of the award may be for a specified or for an indefinite term. In determining the amount, duration, and manner of payment of alimony, the court shall consider all relevant factors, including:

(1) The marital misconduct of either of the spouses. Nothing herein shall prevent a court from considering incidents of post date-of-separation marital misconduct as corroborating evidence supporting other evidence that marital misconduct occurred during the marriage and prior to date of separation;
(2) The relative earnings and earning capacities of the spouses;
(3) The ages and the physical, mental, and emotional conditions of the spouses;
(4) The amount and sources of earned and unearned income of both spouses, including, but not limited to, earnings, dividends, and benefits such as medical, retirement, insurance, social security, or others;
(5) The duration of the marriage;
(6) The contribution by one spouse to the education, training, or increased earning power of the other spouse;
(7) The extent to which the earning power, expenses, or financial obligations of a spouse will be affected by reason of serving as the custodian of a minor child;
(8) The standard of living of the spouses established during the marriage;
(9) The relative education of the spouses and the time necessary to acquire sufficient education or training to enable the spouse seeking alimony to find employment to meet his or her reasonable economic needs;
(10) The relative assets and liabilities of the spouses and the relative debt service requirements of the spouses, including legal obligations of support;
(11) The property brought to the marriage by either spouse;
(12) The contribution of a spouse as homemaker;
(13) The relative needs of the spouses;
(14) The federal, State, and local tax ramifications of the alimony award;
(15) Any other factor relating to the economic circumstances of the parties that the court finds to be just and proper.
(16) The fact that income received by either party was previously considered by the court in determining the value of a marital or divisible asset in an equitable distribution of the parties' marital or divisible property.

(c) Findings of Fact. — The court shall set forth the reasons for its award or denial of alimony and, if making an award, the reasons for its amount, duration, and manner of payment. Except where there is a motion before the court for summary judgment, judgment on the pleadings, or other motion for which the Rules of Civil Procedure do not require special findings of fact, the court shall make a specific finding of fact on each of the factors in subsection (b) of this section if evidence is offered on that factor.

(d) In the claim for alimony, either spouse may request a jury trial on the issue of marital misconduct as defined in G.S. 50-16.1A. If a jury trial is requested, the jury will decide whether either spouse or both have established marital misconduct. (1995, c. 319, s. 2; c. 509, s. 135.2(b); 1998-176, s. 11.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 12, provides that this section is effective October 1, 1995, is applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date, and is not applicable to pending litigation or future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Giving Credit Where Credit is Due: North Carolina Recognizes Custodial Obligations as a Factor in Determining Alimony Entitlements," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2128 (1996).

CASE NOTES

"New Action" Under Rule 41(a)(1). — An alimony claim made pursuant to subsection (a) of this section and filed within one year of plaintiff's dismissal of her first claim (under repealed § 50-16.6(a)) failed to qualify as "a new action based on the same claim" under § 1A-1, Rule 41(a)(1), because the claim for alimony under this section was distinct from that set out by the repealed section in that it deferred to the court's discretion the decision of whether to award alimony where both the supporting and dependent spouse "each participated in an act of illicit sexual behavior," whereas the old section foreclosed a dependent spouse from recovering. Brannock v. Brannock, 135 N.C. App. 635, 523 S.E.2d 110 (1999).

Severance pay is properly includable in a spouse's income for the purposes of determining the amount and duration of an alimony award. Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

Amounts Paid Into Investments May Be Classified as Expenses. — The trial court did not abuse its discretion by characterizing the funds reflecting a marital pattern of savings as a reasonable expense where defendant was still employed and had a comfortable and significantly higher income than plaintiff, who was not working, but the trial court's inclusion of this investment income amount as an expense for the plaintiff but not for the defendant did constitute an abuse of discretion. Bryant v. Bryant, 139 N.C. App. 615, 534 S.E.2d 230 (2000), cert. denied, 353 N.C. 261, 546 S.E.2d 91 (2000).

Amounts paid into savings accounts by the parties from their respective incomes are includable as income for the purpose of determining alimony. Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

Findings of Fact. — The findings of fact required to support the amount, duration, and manner of payment of an alimony award are sufficient if findings of fact have been made on the ultimate facts at issue in the case and the findings of fact show the trial court properly applied the law in the case; however, the findings of fact need not set forth the weight given to the factors in subsection (b) by the trial court when determining the appropriate amount, duration, and manner of payment, as the weight given the factors is within the sound discretion of the trial court. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 143 N.C. App. 387, 545 S.E.2d 788 (2001).

Actual findings by the trial court were insufficiently detailed or specific where, other than the parties' contributions to retirement and stock, the trial court made no findings regarding the parties' standard of living during the marriage and the parties' respective living expenses since the separation. Rhew v. Rhew, 138 N.C. App. 467, 531 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

Calculating Income. — There was no evidence to support the trial court's conclusion that the husband would pick up additional business to offset established income losses of some $80,000 per year; thus, the court incorrectly determined the husband's income for alimony purposes. Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

The amount of alimony pendente lite does not bind the trial court as to the amount of permanent alimony it must eventually award. Bookholt v. Bookholt, 136 N.C. App. 247, 523 S.E.2d 729 (1999).

Findings as to Duration of Alimony Award. — Where an action was filed on 16 July 1993, pre-dating this section, and where the prior applicable version of the alimony provisions contained no requirement that there be findings relative to the duration of any alimony award, the trial court did not err in mandating a lifetime award and making no other findings relative to the duration of the award. Bookholt v. Bookholt, 136 N.C. App. 247, 523 S.E.2d 729 (1999).

Findings on Marital Misconduct. — The trial court properly considered postseparation expenditures by the wife for clothing totalling $23,520, but such evidence did not require a finding of marital misconduct by the wife, where the court found that both parties spent excessively. Glass v. Glass, 131 N.C. App. 784, 509 S.E.2d 236 (1998).

The trial court was required to make specific findings as to the existence of marital misconduct, where the wife presented evidence that the husband communicated with other women during the marriage, met with one of them in an apartment, and hugged and kissed another. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 131 N.C. App. 867, 509 S.E.2d 460 (1998).

Remand Where Court Made Unsupported Findings. — Trial court correctly considered relevant factors, including wife's constructive abandonment of husband, in denying her claim for permanent alimony; nevertheless, case would be remanded because the record revealed that the trial court made at least three findings of fact which were not supported by the evidence. Alvarez v. Alvarez, 134 N.C. App. 321, 517 S.E.2d 420 (1999).

Trial court erred by speculating about the results of the pending equitable distribution between the parties where no evidence was presented as to the likely outcome of the equitable distribution. Rhew v. Rhew, 138 N.C. App. 467, 531 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

Summary judgment was appropriate where a premarital agreement signed by the parties irrefutably barred the wife's claims for postseparation support, alimony and equitable distribution; the language in the subject agreement—drafted by the wife's attorney—was sufficiently "express" to constitute a valid and enforceable waiver of the wife's claims for postseparation support pursuant to § 50-16.2A and alimony pursuant to § 50-16.3A. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

Alimony Award Upheld. — An alimony award to the plaintiff wife of $600 per month for 30 months was upheld where (1) the wife received an unequal distribution of the marital property in her favor; (2) she was able to re-allocate her resources to meet her reasonable needs without depleting her separate estate; (3) both of the parties had selected careers and been educated for their career plans prior to their marriage; (4) the parties lived beyond their means during the last four years of their marriage; (5) subsequent to the parties' separation, the husband provided support to the wife which enabled her to obtain a full-time position at a university and to complete her training in order to meet her reasonable economic needs; and (6) certain expenses would have to be cut and re-allocated by both parties in order to live within their means which was not the case during the last few years of their marriage. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 143 N.C. App. 387, 545 S.E.2d 788 (2001).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in awarding alimony in the amount of $ 1,800.00 per month to plaintiff based in part on its consideration of defendant's financial benefits, such as health insurance, vehicle and reimbursed expenses received through his company. Walker v. Walker, 143 N.C. App. 414, 546 S.E.2d 625 (2001).

Applied in Vadala v. Vadala, — N.C. App. —, 550 S.E.2d 536, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 662 (2001).

Stated in Williamson v. Williamson, 142 N.C. App. 702, 543 S.E.2d 897 (2001).

§ 50-16.4. Counsel fees in actions for alimony, postseparation support.

At any time that a dependent spouse would be entitled to alimony pursuant to G.S. 50-16.3A, or postseparation support pursuant to G.S. 50-16.2A, the court may, upon application of such spouse, enter an order for reasonable counsel fees for the benefit of such spouse, to be paid and secured by the supporting spouse in the same manner as alimony. (1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1995, c. 319, s. 3.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Counsel fees in actions for alimony.

"At any time that a dependent spouse would be entitled to alimony pendente lite pursuant to G.S. 50-16.3, the court may, upon application of such spouse, enter an order for reasonable counsel fees for the benefit of such spouse, to be paid and secured by the supporting spouse in the same manner as alimony."

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on contingent fees in domestic relations actions, see 62 N.C.L. Rev. 381 (1984).

For note, "The Contingent Fee Contract in Domestic Relations Cases," see 7 Campbell L. Rev. 427 (1985).

For note, "A Public Goods Approach to Calculating Reasonable Fees under Attorney Fee Shifting Statutes," see 1989 Duke L.J. 438.

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former §§ 50-15 and 50-16 which dealt with alimony pendente lite in divorce actions and subsistence and counsel fees pending actions for alimony without divorce, respectively.

Former Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Right Derived from Common Law. — The right of a wife (dependent spouse) to subsistence pending trial and to attorneys' fees was derived from the common law. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Apart from statute, there is no duty upon husband (supporting spouse), before or after separation, to furnish wife (dependent spouse) with legal counsel, whether he or another be the adverse party to her controversy. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

Notice and Due Process Considerations. — Although this section and § 50-13.6 provide for attorney's fees in both modification of child support actions and alimony actions, this authority does not override a party's basic constitutional rights to notice and due process considerations. Spencer v. Spencer, 133 N.C. App. 38, 514 S.E.2d 283 (1999).

Purpose. — The purpose of the allowance for attorneys' fees is to put the wife (dependent spouse) on substantially even terms with the husband (supporting spouse) in the litigation. Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961); Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961); Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963); Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

The remedy of subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite is intended to enable the wife to maintain herself according to her station in life and to employ counsel to meet her husband at trial upon substantially equal terms. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

The purpose of the allowance of counsel fees pendente lite is to enable the wife (dependent spouse), as litigant, to meet the husband (supporting spouse), as litigant, on substantially even terms by making it possible for her to employ adequate counsel. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968); Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

Contingent Fee Agreements Are Not Enforceable. — A contract for the payment of a fee to an attorney contingent upon his procuring a divorce for his client or contingent in amount upon the amount of alimony and/or property awarded is void as against public policy. Such a contract is unenforceable exclusively by virtue of the fact that it violates the public policy of this state. Thompson v. Thompson, 70 N.C. App. 147, 319 S.E.2d 315 (1984), rev'd on other grounds, 313 N.C. 313, 328 S.E.2d 288 (1985).

Contingent-fee contract in which fee was contingent with respect to both divorce and equitable distribution actions was void as against public policy, even though the uncontested divorce involved relatively minimal time compared with the time the attorney spent on the equitable distribution claim; and the attorney could not recover either under the contract itself or in quantum meruit for services rendered pursuant to the contract. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Contingent-Fee Contract in Equitable Distribution Must Be Separated from Fee Agreement for Divorce. — If an attorney represents a client in both a divorce proceeding and an equitable distribution proceeding, and the client wishes to have a contingent-fee contract in the equitable distribution proceeding, the parties must execute a separate agreement to provide for a fee in the divorce action that is not contingent upon the securing of the divorce. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Award of "Expenses" Is Not Authorized. — This section provides only for the award of "reasonable counsel fees," making no mention of "expenses." Williams v. Williams, 42 N.C. App. 163, 256 S.E.2d 401 (1979), aff'd, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980).

Counsel fees are not allowable in all alimony cases, only those that come within the ambit of this section and § 50-16.3. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

Section Is Not Restricted to Proceedings for Alimony Pendente Lite. — While the language of this section could be improved upon, its effect is not to restrict the award of counsel fees to alimony pendente lite proceedings and actions of the court pursuant thereto. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

Spouse awarded alimony pendante lite does not lose her right to attorney's fees for services rendered in a pendente lite proceeding in the event the recipient's permanent alimony claim is denied. Wyatt v. Hollifield, 114 N.C. App. 352, 442 S.E.2d 149 (1994).

Award of counsel fees is appropriate whenever it is shown that the spouse is, in fact, dependent, is entitled to the relief demanded, and is without sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

A trial court is authorized to award attorneys' fees to a party who has shown that she is entitled to the relief demanded, is a dependent spouse, and lacks sufficient means upon which to live during the prosecution of the suit and to defray her necessary legal expenses. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

To recover attorneys' fees pursuant to this section in an action for alimony, the spouse must be entitled to the relief demanded, must be a dependent spouse, and must have insufficient means to subsist during the prosecution of the suit and to defray the expenses thereof. Caldwell v. Caldwell, 82 N.C. App. 225, 356 S.E.2d 821, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 791, 361 S.E.2d 72 (1987).

The requirements which a spouse must meet before a request for attorneys' fees pendente lite can be granted are as follows: (1) the party requesting the award must be a "dependent spouse" as defined in former § 50-16.1(3); (2) the party must be entitled to alimony pendente lite; and (3) the court must find that the dependent spouse is without sufficient means to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the attendant expenses thereof. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

"At anytime" includes times subsequent to determination of the issues in favor of the dependent spouse at the trial of her cause on its merits. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

Anytime a dependent spouse can show grounds for alimony pendente lite under § 50-16.3, the court can award attorneys' fees; "anytime" includes time subsequent to the determination of the issues in the dependent spouse's favor at the trial of his or her cause on the merits. Evans v. Evans, 111 N.C. App. 792, 434 S.E.2d 856, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 554, 439 S.E.2d 144 (1993).

Fees Allowable for Precursory Activity. — All litigation inevitably involves certain precursory activity. The term "litigant" is not intended to exclude legitimate work by counsel in such precursory activity from those services for which fees are allowable. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

Entitlement to Representation Is Not Limited to Trial Level. — There is nothing in our statutory or case law to suggest that a dependent spouse in this State is entitled to meet the supporting spouse on equal footing, in terms of adequate and suitable legal representation, at the trial level only. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

And an award of attorneys' fees for services performed on appeal should ordinarily be granted, provided the general statutory requirements for such an award are duly met, especially where the appeal is taken by the supporting spouse. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981); Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985).

Recovery of Fees After Denial of Alimony Pendente Lite. — There was no merit to defendant's contention that, because plaintiff's claim for alimony pendente lite was denied, plaintiff was precluded from recovering attorneys' fees in the subsequent action for permanent alimony. Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243, cert. denied, 302 N.C. 634, 280 S.E.2d 449 (1981).

Recovery of Attorneys' Fees When Modification of Alimony Is Sought After Absolute Divorce. — This section is applicable any time a dependent spouse can show that she has grounds for alimony pendente lite, even though the proceeding was not brought for that purpose. That any time includes times subsequent to the determination of the issues in her favor at the trial of her cause on the merits. Thus, if she meets the three requirements of § 50-16.3(a) for alimony pendente lite, she can recover her attorneys' fees even though she sought alimony modification subsequent to absolute divorce. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Prerequisites to Award of Attorneys' Fees. — The clear and unambiguous language of this section and § 50-16.3 provides as prerequisites for determination of an award of counsel fees that (1) The spouse must be entitled to the relief demanded; (2) The spouse must be a dependent spouse; and (3) The dependent spouse must not have sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Guy v. Guy, 27 N.C. App. 343, 219 S.E.2d 291 (1975); Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980); Knott v. Knott, 52 N.C. App. 543, 279 S.E.2d 72 (1981); Roberts

v. Roberts, 68 N.C. App. 163, 314 S.E.2d 781 (1984); Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Any time a dependent spouse can show that she has the grounds for alimony pendente lite, i.e., that (1) she is entitled to the relief demanded in her action or cross-action for divorce from bed and board or alimony without divorce, and (2) she does not have sufficient means whereon to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof, the court is authorized to award fees to her counsel. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

As a prerequisite to an award of attorneys' fees, the party seeking the award must be a dependent spouse, must be entitled to the relief sought, and must have insufficient means to defray the necessary expense in prosecuting her claim. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Dependent Spouse Must Have Insufficient Means. — Before attorneys' fees may be awarded in an alimony case to the dependent spouse under this section and § 50-16.3, that person must have insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit; that is, he or she must be unable to employ adequate counsel in order to proceed as litigant to meet the other spouse as litigant in the suit. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

Lacking sufficient means to defray the expenses of the suit means that the dependent spouse is not able as litigant to meet the supporting spouse as litigant on substantially even terms because the dependent spouse is financially unable to employ adequate counsel. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

And a Showing of Need Must Be Made. — In order for dependent spouse to be awarded counsel fees, she must show that she needs such counsel fees to enable her, as a litigant, to meet her husband on substantially even terms by making it possible for her to employ adequate counsel. Quick v. Quick, 53 N.C. App. 248, 280 S.E.2d 482 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Adultery Does Not Bar Allowance of Counsel Fees. — A plea of adultery, found by the court to be true, does not preclude the court from allowing the wife (dependent spouse) reasonable counsel fees for the prosecution or defense of an action for divorce. Bolin v. Bolin, 242 N.C. 642, 89 S.E.2d 303 (1955). See § 50-16.6.

Multiple awards of counsel fees in the same domestic action are, in the proper circumstances, within the court's discretion to allow. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Award Upheld. — Uncontradicted evidence that in 1983 the defendant's net monthly income was $228 and that for the first six months of 1984 the defendant earned only $3,490 was sufficient evidence to support the court's finding that the defendant had insufficient means to sustain the financial burden of alimony. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985), upholding award of $400.00.

Award Held Improper. — Where the finding that plaintiff-wife was a dependent spouse amounted to a mere conclusion unsupported by a finding of fact, and where there were no findings upon which to conclude that she was entitled to the relief demanded under § 50-16.3(a)(1), the trial court erred in ordering alimony pendente lite and counsel fees. Kornegay v. Kornegay, 15 N.C. App. 751, 190 S.E.2d 646 (1972).

Trial court erred in awarding attorneys' fees to wife, where the evidence showed that she had assets of over $490,000, debts of $37,876, and a total gross monthly income of $1477 (plus $1684 in alimony), with monthly expenses of $2500, and that husband had assets of $901,338.29, debts of $338,095.46, a gross monthly income of $8696.32, and monthly living expenses of $2861.11. Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

Award Properly Denied. — Court properly denied wife's motion for an interim award of alimony pendente lite and counsel fees in her suit for alimony without divorce, where there were findings that (1) the plaintiff and her husband had separated by mutual agreement, (2) the husband did not abandon the wife, and (3) the husband was guilty of no misconduct that would support an award of alimony. Harper v. Harper, 9 N.C. App. 341, 176 S.E.2d 48 (1970).

Wife who was not entitled to alimony was not entitled to alimony attorneys' fees for the prosecution of her claim for alimony pendente lite. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

Denial of Fees to Defend Against Husband's Divorce Action Not Error. — The court did not err in not granting the wife's attorneys' fees to defend against her husband's action for divorce from bed and board, as the judge may award such fees when statute allows, and there is no statute giving the judge authority to award fees in this circumstance. Puett v. Puett, 75 N.C. App. 554, 331 S.E.2d 287 (1985).

A child of divorced parents was not entitled to an allowance of counsel fees and suit money pendente lite in her action against her father to force him to provide for her support, as former §§ 50-15 and 50-16 applied only to actions instituted by the wife, and such right did not exist at common law. Green v. Green, 210 N.C. 147, 185 S.E. 651 (1936).

Effect of Abandonment of Suit. — The fact that after the institution of an action for alimony without divorce the client abandons the suit instituted in this State and institutes a suit for divorce in another state, and that counsel employed here are permitted to withdraw, since no further services could be performed by them, does not affect such counsels' right to an order allowing them counsel fees out of the property of defendant for the services performed in this State in good faith. Stadiem v. Stadiem, 230 N.C. 318, 52 S.E.2d 899 (1949).

In an action for alimony and counsel fees pendente lite and for alimony without divorce, plaintiff, on the day set for hearing of the motion for alimony and counsel fees pendente lite, filed "certificate and affidavit" stating that there had been a reconciliation between plaintiff and defendant and that plaintiff "withdraws and renounces the complaint" and "takes a voluntary nonsuit . . . and prays the court to dismiss" the action as of nonsuit. Plaintiff's attorneys filed petition for counsel fees against defendant, and defendant's attorney filed plaintiff's "certificate and affidavit" as an affidavit in support of defendant's resistance to judgment allowing counsel fees against him. After the petition was filed and after the court had announced its intention of allowing same, judgment as of nonsuit was tendered and signed by the court. It was held that at the time the petition for counsel fees was filed, the complaint was still a part of the record and the action was still pending, and the petition amounted to a motion to have the court act upon the prayer as made by plaintiff in her complaint, and the action of the court in allowing counsel fees to plaintiff's attorneys against defendant was affirmed. McFetters v. McFetters, 219 N.C. 731, 14 S.E.2d 833 (1941).

Effect of Motion for Involuntary Dismissal at Mid-Trial. — The trial court is not required to make a ruling on the merits of a party's request for attorneys' fees when presented with a motion for an involuntary dismissal at mid-trial. Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985).

Award of permanent alimony ordinarily terminates an order for subsistence pendente lite or counsel fees. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

Court May Enter Second Order Allowing Additional Counsel Fees. — The fact that an order allowing counsel fees has been entered in an action for alimony without divorce does not preclude the court from thereafter entering a second order allowing additional counsel fees for subsequent services. Stadiem v. Stadiem, 230 N.C. 318, 52 S.E.2d 899 (1949).

Under proper circumstances the court, in its sound discretion, may in an action for alimony without divorce enter a second order allowing additional counsel fees. Yow v. Yow, 243 N.C. 79, 89 S.E.2d 867 (1955).

Amount of Additional Counsel Fees Held Not Unreasonable. — On an appeal from an order allowing additional counsel fees in an action for alimony without divorce, the amount was held not so unreasonable as to constitute an abuse of discretion. Stadiem v. Stadiem, 230 N.C. 318, 52 S.E.2d 899 (1949).

For case upholding garnishment of income from alleged "Spendthrift trust" administered in this State, see Swink v. Swink, 6 N.C. App. 161, 169 S.E.2d 539 (1969).

Applied in Williams v. Williams, 12 N.C. App. 170, 182 S.E.2d 667 (1971); Collins v. Collins, 18 N.C. App. 45, 196 S.E.2d 282 (1973); Little v. Little, 18 N.C. App. 311, 196 S.E.2d 562 (1973); Powell v. Powell, 25 N.C. App. 695, 214 S.E.2d 808 (1975); Taylor v. Taylor, 26 N.C. App. 592, 216 S.E.2d 737 (1975); Hill v. Hill, 27 N.C. App. 423, 219 S.E.2d 273 (1975); Hampton v. Hampton, 29 N.C. App. 342, 224 S.E.2d 197 (1976); Winborne v. Winborne, 41 N.C. App. 756, 255 S.E.2d 640 (1979); Winborne v. Winborne, 298 N.C. 305, 259 S.E.2d 918 (1979); Gilmore v. Gilmore, 42 N.C. App. 560, 257 S.E.2d 116 (1979); Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

Quoted in Simmons v. Simmons, 22 N.C. App. 68, 205 S.E.2d 582 (1974); Taylor v. Taylor, 343 N.C. 50, 468 S.E.2d 33 (1996).

Stated in Blair v. Blair, 8 N.C. App. 61, 173 S.E.2d 513 (1970); Blair v. Blair, 44 N.C. App. 605, 261 S.E.2d 301 (1980).

Cited in Fonvielle v. Fonvielle, 8 N.C. App. 337, 174 S.E.2d 67 (1970); Sauls v. Sauls, 288 N.C. 387, 218 S.E.2d 338 (1975); Brower v. Brower, 75 N.C. App. 425, 331 S.E.2d 170 (1985).

II. AMOUNT OF FEES.

Amount of Attorneys' Fees Is Within Discretion of Trial Court. — While the right to alimony involves a question of law, the amount of alimony and counsel fees is a matter of judicial discretion. Schonwald v. Schonwald, 62 N.C. 215 (1867); Barker v. Barker, 136 N.C. 316, 48 S.E. 733 (1904).

And Is Not Reviewable Absent Abuse or Error of Law. — Subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite are within the discretion of the court, and its decision is not reviewable except for abuse of discretion or for error of law. Griffith v. Griffith, 265 N.C. 521, 144 S.E.2d 589 (1965); Harper v. Harper, 9 N.C. App. 341, 176

S.E.2d 48 (1970); Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

If attorneys' fees may be properly awarded, the amount of the award rests within the sound discretion of the trial judge and is reviewable on appeal only for abuse of discretion. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980); Stickel v. Stickel, 58 N.C. App. 645, 294 S.E.2d 321 (1982).

But Facts Required by Statute Must Be Alleged and Proved. — There is some language in Supreme Court decisions which leaves the impression that the allowance of counsel fees and subsistence pendente lite lies solely within the discretion of the trial judge, and that such allowance is reviewable only upon a showing of an abuse of the judge's discretion. The correct rule is that the facts required by the statutes must be alleged and proved to support an order for subsistence pendente lite. Guy v. Guy, 27 N.C. App. 343, 219 S.E.2d 291 (1975).

Reasonableness Is Key Factor. — Reasonableness, not arbitrary classification of attorney activity, is the key factor under all the attorneys' fees statutes. Coastal Prod. Credit Ass'n v. Goodson Farms, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 221, 319 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 621, 323 S.E.2d 922 (1984).

And Amount Awarded Must Be Reasonable. — This section requires that the amount of counsel fees shall be reasonable, and the reasonable amount is to be determined by the trial judge in the exercise of his discretion. Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970).

Determination of what are reasonable counsel fees is within the discretion of the trial judge. Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981).

Court's Discretion Is Limited by Factual Conditions. — The amount of subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite is within the discretion of the court, but this discretion is limited by the factual conditions. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Elements to Be Considered. — In determining a pendente lite allowance of attorneys' fees, the nature and worth of the services, the magnitude of the task imposed, reasonable consideration for the defendant's condition and financial circumstances, and many other considerations are involved. Stanback v. Stanback, 270 N.C. 497, 155 S.E.2d 221 (1967).

When allowable, the amount of attorneys' fees in an action for alimony without divorce is within the sound discretion of the court below and is unappealable except for abuse of that discretion. The statute itself, however, contains some guides to the exercise of that discretion, and practice has developed others. Within the rule of reasonableness the court must consider, along with other things, the condition and circumstances of the defendant. Stadiem v. Stadiem, 230 N.C. 318, 52 S.E.2d 899 (1949).

In making its determination of the proper amount of counsel fees which are to be awarded a dependent spouse as litigant or appellant, the trial court is under an obligation to conduct a broad inquiry, considering as relevant factors the nature and worth of the services rendered, the magnitude of the task imposed upon counsel, and reasonable consideration for the parties' respective conditions and financial circumstances. Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985).

Once attorneys' fees are authorized, a trial court must consider several factors in determining the amount of the award, including but not limited to each party's estate and ability to defray legal costs, the nature and scope of the legal services rendered the dependent spouse, and the skill, time, and labor expended during such representation. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

Award of attorneys' fees must not be in excess of defendant's net income. Davidson v. Davidson, 189 N.C. 625, 127 S.E. 682 (1925). See Wright v. Wright, 216 N.C. 693, 6 S.E.2d 555 (1940).

Merit Bonus. — While the quality of services rendered is properly considered in awarding fees, as well as the nature of the services required, and hence the scope and complexity of the case, there is no North Carolina authority for an award of a "merit bonus." Even assuming such bonuses are allowed, as under federal practice, that should occur only in the rare case where the applicant specifically shows superior quality representation and exceptional success. Coastal Prod. Credit Ass'n v. Goodson Farms, Inc., 70 N.C. App. 221, 319 S.E.2d 650, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 621, 323 S.E.2d 922 (1984).

III. FINDINGS.

The trial court must set out findings of fact upon which the award of attorneys' fees is made. Self v. Self, 37 N.C. App. 199, 245 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 253 (1978); Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

Upon Which Determination of Reasonableness Could Be Based. — This section and § 50-13.6 permit the entering of a proper order for reasonable counsel fees for the benefit of a dependent spouse, but only where the record contains findings of fact, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered and the skill and time required, upon which a determination of the requisite reasonableness could be based. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

A proper order awarding counsel fees in a child support or alimony action must contain a finding or findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the award can be based, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered and the time and skill required. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

An order awarding counsel fees in a child support or alimony action must contain a finding or findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the award can be based, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered, the time and skill required, and the attorney's hourly rate in comparison to the customary charges of attorneys practicing in that general area. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

Findings Must Meet Test of former § 50-16.3. — No order for reasonable counsel fees for the benefit of a dependent spouse may be entered on findings which fail to meet the test of former § 50-16.3. Manning v. Manning, 20 N.C. App. 149, 201 S.E.2d 46 (1973).

Whenever an order is deficient in findings to establish that a dependent spouse is entitled to alimony pendente lite pursuant to § 50-16.3, an award of counsel fees under this section is also unsupported. Presson v. Presson, 13 N.C. App. 81, 185 S.E.2d 17 (1971).

Since because of the clear statutory mandate, a spouse who is not entitled to alimony pendente lite is not entitled to an award of counsel fees. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

Findings Must Show Inability to Defray Expenses of Suit. — In order to recover counsel fees, this section requires a finding that plaintiff is unable to defray the expense of prosecuting the suit. Davis v. Davis, 62 N.C. App. 573, 302 S.E.2d 886 (1983).

And Must Show That Fees Are Allowable and Award Is Reasonable. — In order to award attorneys' fees in alimony cases, the trial court must make findings of fact showing that fees are allowable and that the amount awarded is reasonable. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

In Combined Actions Findings Should Not Reflect Fees Attributable to Equitable Distribution. — In a combined action for alimony, child support, and equitable distribution, findings should reflect that the fees awarded are attributable to work only on the alimony and/or child support actions. Holder v. Holder, 87 N.C. App. 578, 361 S.E.2d 891 (1987).

Absence of Sufficient Findings Is Reversible Error. — The trial court errs in ordering defendant to pay fees to plaintiff's attorneys where the court does not make sufficient findings as to plaintiff being a dependent spouse and defendant being the supporting spouse. Smith v. Smith, 15 N.C. App. 180, 189 S.E.2d 525 (1972), aff'd, 17 N.C. App. 416, 194 S.E.2d 568 (1973).

The lack of any evidence as to reasonable attorneys' fees and the absence of any findings by the trial judge based upon such evidence as to the reasonable worth of attorneys' fees are grounds for reversal of a judgment awarding attorneys' fees. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971).

An award of attorneys' fees cannot be upheld where the court failed to make findings of fact upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the fees could be based, such as the nature and scope of the legal services rendered and the skill and time required. Brown v. Brown, 47 N.C. App. 323, 267 S.E.2d 345 (1980).

Awards Held Erroneous for Lack of Findings. — The court erred in awarding plaintiff counsel fees pendente lite where no findings were made that plaintiff was entitled to the relief demanded, was a dependent spouse and had insufficient means whereon to subsist during prosecution of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses thereof. Guy v. Guy, 27 N.C. App. 343, 219 S.E.2d 291 (1975).

The court erred in awarding counsel fees to the wife in a child support action where the court made no findings as to the wife's ability to pay or the reasonableness of the fees. Horner v. Horner, 47 N.C. App. 334, 267 S.E.2d 65, cert. denied, 301 N.C. 89, 273 S.E.2d 297 (1980).

Factual findings on award of attorneys' fees were deficient as to child support where there was no finding that the supporting spouse refused to provide adequate support under circumstances existing at the time the action was initiated, and as to both alimony and child support, where there were no factual findings upon which a determination of the reasonableness of the award could be based, other than the trial court's statement that the time expended was "reasonably necessary." Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Remand for Findings. — Order awarding attorneys' fees which failed to satisfy requirement of findings as to the lawyer's skill, his hourly rate, its reasonableness in comparison with that of other lawyers, what he did, and the hours he spent was insufficient and case would be remanded for appropriate findings as to attorneys' fees. Coleman v. Coleman, 74 N.C. App. 494, 328 S.E.2d 871 (1985).

The portion of an award denying attorney fees to the plaintiff wife was reversed and the matter was remanded where the trial court concluded that she was a dependent spouse, but did not make any findings regarding whether she was without sufficient means to subsist during the prosecution of the suit and to defray the necessary expenses. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 143 N.C. App. 387, 545 S.E.2d 788 (2001).

Recital that appellee's attorney rendered valuable services not sufficient to support court's conclusion that appellee is entitled to recover $2,500.00 in attorneys' fees. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408 (1988).

IV. REVIEW ON APPEAL.

Appeal as a Matter of Right. — An order requiring payment of alimony pendente lite and counsel fees affects a substantial right from which an appeal lies as a matter of right. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Scope of Review. — Proper exercise of the trial judge's authority in granting alimony, alimony pendente lite, or counsel fees is a question of law, reviewable on appeal. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

The facts required by this section and § 50-16.3 must be alleged and proved to support an order for attorneys' fees. Whether these requirements have been met is a question of law that is reviewable on appeal. Hudson v. Hudson, 299 N.C. 465, 263 S.E.2d 719 (1980).

When an award of counsel fees is made, whether the statutory requirements have been met is a question of law, reviewable on appeal. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

When the statutory requirements have been met, the amount of an award of attorneys' fees is reviewable only for an abuse of discretion. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Denial of Attorneys' Fees Held Interlocutory. — Denial of attorneys' fees under this section was not a final order of the trial court, where at the time appellant's motion was filed there had been no determination that his client, defendant, was entitled to alimony pendente lite under § 50-16.3, so that appellant was not yet entitled to attorneys' fees under this section, and as appellant could appeal the denial of his motion after final judgment, or could bring a separate lawsuit to collect fees, no substantial right of appellant was affected by the Court of Appeals' failure to entertain an interlocutory appeal on this issue. Howell v. Howell, 89 N.C. App. 115, 365 S.E.2d 181 (1988).

§ 50-16.5: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to alimony generally, see § 50-16.3A.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which repealed this section, in section 12 provides that the act applies to civil motions filed on or after that date, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the repeal by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Determination of amount of alimony.

"(a) Alimony shall be in such amount as the circumstances render necessary, having due regard to the estates, earnings, earning capacity, condition, accustomed standard of living of the parties, and other facts of the particular case.

(b) Except as provided in G.S. 50-16.6 in case of adultery, the fact that the dependent spouse has committed an act or acts which would be grounds for alimony if such spouse were the supporting spouse shall be grounds for disallowance of alimony or reduction in the amount of alimony when pleaded in defense by the supporting spouse."

Legal Periodicals. — For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For survey of 1980 family law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1194 (1981).

For note, "Alimony Modification and Cohabitation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 794 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Equitable Distribution Without Consideration of Marital Fault," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1204 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-15, which dealt with alimony pendente lite in divorce actions, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 to Be Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Construction With Other Provisions. — Whether a spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support as defined by former § 50-16.1(3) is determined by construing this statute in pari material with the terms of former § 50-16.5 which prescribed factors for the trial court to consider in determining the amount of alimony. Fink v. Fink, 120 N.C. App. 412, 462 S.E.2d 844 (1995).

Change of Circumstances Required by § 50-16.9 Refers to This Section. — The change of circumstances required by § 50-16.9 for modification of an alimony order refers to those circumstances listed in this section. Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

The purpose of the award is to provide for the reasonable support of the wife, not to punish the husband or to divide his estate. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968); Taylor v. Taylor, 26 N.C. App. 592, 216 S.E.2d 737 (1975).

The remedy established for the subsistence of the wife pending final determination of the issues involved and for her counsel fees is intended to enable her to maintain herself according to her station in life and to have sufficient funds to employ adequate counsel to meet her husband at the trial upon substantially equal terms. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972); Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

For a discussion of legislative intent as to judicial determinations of dependency under § 50-16.1(3) in light of this section, see Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980).

The issues of who is a dependent spouse and who is a supporting spouse present mixed questions of law and fact which can best be determined by the trial judge when he sets the amount of permanent alimony. Clarke v. Clarke, 47 N.C. App. 249, 267 S.E.2d 361 (1980).

Determination of Dependency Under This Section and § 50-16.1. — Even where a spouse is not "actually substantially dependent," the spouse may be a dependent spouse under the second part of § 50-16.1(3) if he or she is substantially in need of maintenance and support, the meaning of which is determined by constructing § 50-16.1 in pari materia with this section. Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

Guidelines for determining whether a spouse is "dependent" or "supporting" must be based upon factual findings sufficiently specific to indicate that the trial judge properly considered the statutory factors and the rules which evolved from case law. Otherwise, an appellate court cannot review the amount of alimony awarded to determine whether the trial judge abused his discretion. Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Right to Subsistence Dates from Wrongful Separation. — Plaintiff is entitled to subsistence in keeping with defendant-husband's means and ability and standard of living, not only from the time she instituted her action, but from the time her husband wrongfully separated himself from her. Stickel v. Stickel, 58 N.C. App. 645, 294 S.E.2d 321 (1982).

Lump Sum Award Permissible. — Alimony awarded as periodic payments for a specified period of time is defined as a lump sum alimony award and is permissible. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

"Gross income," as used in a separation agreement under which husband agreed that after three years he would pay alimony in an amount equivalent to 30% of his gross income, included the gain realized from the sale of property. Heater v. Heater, 62 N.C. App. 587, 302 S.E.2d 891 (1983).

Reduction of Alimony. — The amount of alimony to be awarded lies in the sound discretion of the trial judge. In the absence of abuse of that discretion, the award will not be disturbed. The same should be true for reduced alimony. Self v. Self, 37 N.C. App. 199, 245 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 253 (1978); Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985).

Where reduced alimony is appropriate the court need not set out the amount of the reduction in its judgment. Self v. Self, 37 N.C. App. 199, 245 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 253 (1978).

An order directing husband to make specified payments for support of wife until birth of their child, which expired at the birth of the child without provision for any payments thereafter, although made within the discretion of the court, would be vacated and the cause would be remanded, since the court's discretion was not exercised with respect to the controlling factual conditions. Garner v. Garner, 270 N.C. 293, 154 S.E.2d 46 (1967).

Termination of Spousal Support Obligation. — Findings of fact supported by competent evidence of record fully supported the trial judge's conclusion that plaintiff was no longer a "dependent spouse", which conclusion supported his order terminating defendant's spousal support obligations, as only a "dependent spouse" is entitled to alimony. Marks v. Marks, 316 N.C. 447, 342 S.E.2d 859 (1986).

Applied in Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969); Little v. Little, 18 N.C. App. 311, 196 S.E.2d 562 (1973); Yearwood v. Yearwood, 287 N.C. 254, 214 S.E.2d 95 (1975); Shoaf v. Shoaf, 25 N.C. App. 311, 212 S.E.2d 672 (1975); Robinson v. Robinson, 26 N.C. App. 178, 215 S.E.2d 179 (1975); Haddon v. Haddon, 42 N.C. App. 632, 257 S.E.2d 483 (1979); Vandiver v. Vandiver, 50 N.C. App. 319, 274 S.E.2d 243 (1981); Harris v. Harris, 58 N.C. App. 314, 293 S.E.2d 602 (1982); Hinton v. Hinton, 70 N.C. App. 665, 321 S.E.2d 161 (1984); Gilbert v. Gilbert, 71 N.C. App. 160, 321 S.E.2d 455 (1984).

Quoted in Whedon v. Whedon, 68 N.C. App. 191, 314 S.E.2d 794 (1984); Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993).

Stated in Cunningham v. Cunningham, 121 N.C. App. 771, 468 S.E.2d 466 (1996), rev'd on other grounds, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

Cited in Hatcher v. Hatcher, 7 N.C. App. 562, 173 S.E.2d 33 (1970); Blair v. Blair, 44 N.C. App. 605, 261 S.E.2d 301 (1980); Spencer v. Spencer, 61 N.C. App. 535, 301 S.E.2d 411 (1983); Roberts v. Roberts, 68 N.C. App. 163, 314 S.E.2d 781 (1984); Andrews v. Andrews, 79 N.C. App. 228, 338 S.E.2d 809 (1986); Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986); Harris v. Maready, 84 N.C. App. 607, 353 S.E.2d 656 (1987).

II. BASIS OF AWARD.

The question of the correct amount of alimony and child support is a question of fairness to all parties. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

The appropriate amount is essentially a question of fairness and justice to all parties. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

To determine whether the dependent spouse was entitled to alimony and, if so, in what amount, the trial judge was required to weigh evidence of adultery by the supporting spouse as well as evidence of indignities offered by both the supporting and the dependent spouse. Baker v. Baker, 102 N.C. App. 792, 404 S.E.2d 20 (1991).

Factors in This Section to Be Considered in Determining Dependency. — In determining whether one qualifies as a dependent spouse under § 50-16.1(3) as well as in determining the amount of alimony to be awarded, the courts must consider the factors enumerated in this section for determining the amount of alimony. These factors include the estates, earnings, earning capacity, condition, and accustomed standard of living of the parties, and other facts of the particular case. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

The term "accustomed standard of living of the parties" in subsection (a) of this section completes the contemplated legislative meaning of "maintenance and support" in § 50-16.1(3). The latter phrase clearly means more than a level of mere economic survival. Plainly it contemplates the economic standard established by the marital partnership for the family unit during the years in which the marital contract was intact. It anticipates that alimony, to the extent it can possibly do so, shall sustain that standard of living for the dependent spouse to which the parties together became accustomed. Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980).

The term "estates" in subsection (a) refers to the financial worth of each spouse. Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988).

Findings of Fact. — In the case of both alimony and alimony pendente lite, the order concerning the amount must be supported by a conclusion of law that such amount is necessary under the circumstances. This conclusion of law, in turn, must be supported by specific findings of fact as to the estates, earnings, earning capacity, condition, and accustomed standard of living of the parties, as well as other relevant factors. Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978).

The trial judge must at least make findings sufficiently specific to indicate proper consideration of each of the factors established by subsection (a) of this section for a determination of an alimony award. Spencer v. Spencer, 70 N.C. App. 159, 319 S.E.2d 636 (1984); Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

In determining the amount of alimony to be awarded, the trial judge must comply with § 1A-1, Rule 52, i.e., he must find facts specially, state separately the conclusions of law resulting from the facts so found, and direct entry of appropriate judgment; all the evidentiary facts need not be recited, but § 1A-

1, Rule 52 requires specific findings of ultimate facts established by the evidence which determine the issues involved and are essential to support the conclusions of law. Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985).

To make a valid order for alimony, the trial court must make detailed findings concerning the following: (1) The estates of the parties; (2) the earnings of the parties; (3) the earning capacity of the parties; (4) the condition of the parties; and (5) the accustomed standard of living of the parties. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

The requirement for detailed findings is not a mere formality or an empty ritual; it must be done. Skamarak v. Skamarak, 81 N.C. App. 125, 343 S.E.2d 559 (1986).

Failure of the trial court to make any findings as to the parties' expenses, accustomed standard of living, or plaintiff's financial obligations in awarding alimony constituted reversible error. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 633, 360 S.E.2d 92 (1987).

Conclusions of Law. — This section requires a conclusion of law that "circumstances render necessary" a designated amount of alimony, while case law requires conclusions of law that the supporting spouse is able to pay the designated amount and that the amount is fair and just to all parties. Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Davis v. Davis, 62 N.C. App. 573, 302 S.E.2d 886 (1983).

In determining the needs of a dependent spouse, all of the circumstances of the parties should be taken into consideration, including the property, earnings, earning capacity, condition and accustomed standard of living of the parties. Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972). See also, Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

An order awarding alimony payments to a dependent spouse and support payments to a minor child must be founded upon proper consideration of the estates, earnings, earning capacity, conditions, accustomed standard of living of the parties or child, and other facts of the particular case. Williamson v. Williamson, 20 N.C. App. 669, 202 S.E.2d 489 (1974).

The trial court should take into consideration all the circumstances of the parties, including the property, earnings, earning capacity, financial needs and accustomed standard of living of the parties. Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

An award of alimony should be based on the estate, earnings, income, obligations and expenses of the parties at the time the award is made. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

Custodial Spouse's Caregiving Obligations. — While North Carolina's alimony statute does not contain express language which specifically allows consideration of the custodial spouse's caregiving obligations to the minor children, this consideration is nonetheless consistent with the "'overriding principle'" of "'fairness'" which guides the determination of alimony, as well as the statutory provision contemplating regard of "other facts of the particular case." Fink v. Fink, 120 N.C. App. 412, 462 S.E.2d 844 (1995).

The trial court may consider the custodial parent's attendant care giving and monetary obligations to a minor child in considering a request for alimony modification. Kowalick v. Kowalick, 129 N.C. App. 781, 501 S.E.2d 671 (1998).

Needs and Capacity Must Be Considered. — While the court must consider the needs of the spouse seeking alimony in the context of the family unit's accustomed standard of living, it also must determine that the supporting spouse has the financial capacity to provide the support needed therefor. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

Parties' Assertions Need Not Be Taken at Face Value. — Determination of what constitutes reasonable needs and expenses of a party in an alimony action is within the discretion of the trial judge, and he is not required to accept at face value the assertion of living expenses offered by the litigants themselves. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

Ordinarily husband's (supporting spouse's) ability to pay is determined by his income at the time the award is made if the husband is honestly engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted and is in fact seeking to operate his business profitably. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976).

If husband (supporting spouse) is honestly and in good faith engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted, and is making a good faith effort to earn a reasonable income, the award should be based on the amount which he is earning when the award is made. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

The award should be based on the amount which defendant is earning when alimony is sought and the award made, if the husband (supporting spouse) is honestly engaged in a business to which he is properly adapted and is in fact seeking to operate his business profitably. Conrad v. Conrad, 252 N.C. 412, 113 S.E.2d 912 (1960); Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Unless the court finds that a supporting spouse is deliberately depressing his income in disregard of his marital obligation to provide reasonable support, and applies the "capacity to earn"rule, a supporting spouse's ability to pay alimony is ordinarily determined by his income at the time the award is made. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

But the granting of an allowance and the amount thereof does not necessarily depend upon earnings of the husband (supporting spouse). Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961); Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961).

And one who has no income, but is able-bodied and capable of earning, may be ordered to pay subsistence. Harrell v. Harrell, 253 N.C. 758, 117 S.E.2d 728 (1961); Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961); Brady v. Brady, 273 N.C. 299, 160 S.E.2d 13 (1968).

The granting of a support allowance and the amount thereof does not necessarily depend upon the earnings of the husband (supporting spouse), and one who is able-bodied and capable of earning may be ordered to pay subsistence. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

Capacity to earn may be the basis of an award if it is based upon a proper finding that the husband (supporting spouse) is deliberately depressing his income or indulging himself in excessive spending because of a disregard of his marital obligation to provide reasonable support for wife (dependent spouse) and children. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

To base an award on capacity to earn rather than actual earnings, there should be a finding based on evidence that husband (supporting spouse) is failing to exercise his capacity to earn because of a disregard of his marital obligation to provide reasonable support for wife (dependent spouse) and children. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

While an award of alimony may be based upon the supporting spouse's ability to earn as distinguished from his actual income, the rule seems to be applied only when it appears from the record that there has been a deliberate attempt on the part of the supporting spouse to avoid financial family responsibilities by refusing to seek or to accept gainful employment; by willfully refusing to secure or take a job; by deliberately not applying himself to business; by intentionally depressing income to an artificial low; or by intentionally leaving employment to go into another business. Bowes v. Bowes, 287 N.C. 163, 214 S.E.2d 40 (1975).

Unless the supporting spouse is deliberately depressing his or her income or indulging in excessive spending because of a disregard of the marital obligation to provide support for the dependent spouse, the ability of the supporting spouse to pay is ordinarily determined by his or her income at the time the award is made. If the supporting spouse is deliberately depressing income or engaged in excessive spending, then capacity to earn, instead of actual income, may be the basis of the award. Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

The court must consider the estate and earnings of both husband and wife in arriving at the sum which is just and proper for the husband (supporting spouse) to pay the wife (dependent spouse), either as temporary or permanent alimony; it is a question of fairness and justice to both. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978).

The primary purpose for considering the parties' estates is to assist the court in determining the parties' earnings and earning capacities. Ordinarily, the parties will not be required to deplete their estates to pay alimony or to meet personal expenses. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Standard of Living Determinations. — Although the court did not make any detailed findings as to the couple's accustomed standard of living, where the findings which it made allowed the court to determine the couple's accustomed standard of living, a specific finding regarding the standard of living was not necessary. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408 (1988).

Judge's findings as to husband's monthly gross income and his reasonable living expenses, coupled with the findings as to wife's monthly income and her expenses during the last year of the marriage, satisfied the requirement of this section for findings regarding the couple's accustomed standard of living. Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988).

Dependent Spouse Need Not Be Impoverished Before an Award Can Be Made. — The law does not require that a dependent spouse should be impoverished Before the court can make an award of alimony pendente lite. Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

The financial ability of the husband (supporting spouse) to pay is a major factor in the determination of the amount of subsistence to be awarded. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

Duty of Support Does Not Depend on Dependent Spouse's Means or Ability to Support Herself. — The duty of support resting on the husband (supporting spouse) does not depend on the adequacy or inadequacy of the wife's (dependent spouse's) means or on the ability or inability of the wife to support herself by her own labor or out of her own separate property. The fact that the wife has property or means of her own does not relieve the husband of his duty to furnish her reasonable support according to his ability. Bowling v. Bowling, 252 N.C. 527, 114 S.E.2d 228 (1960); Mercer v. Mercer, 253 N.C. 164, 116 S.E.2d 443 (1960); Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

The fact that the wife has property of her own does not relieve the husband of the duty to support her following his unjustified abandonment of her. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

Alimony pendente lite is measured, among other things, by the needs of the dependent spouse and the ability of the supporting spouse. The mere fact that the wife has property or means of her own does not prohibit an award of alimony pendente lite. Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

But the earnings and means of the wife (dependent spouse) are matters to be considered by the judge in determining the amount of alimony. Bowling v. Bowling, 252 N.C. 527, 114 S.E.2d 228 (1960); Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

Court may take into account that a dependent spouse has property, although its value may not be precisely known, in considering the estates of both parties. Quick v. Quick, 53 N.C. App. 248, 280 S.E.2d 482 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

As Is Her Earning Capacity. — It is proper for the trial judge to consider plaintiff's "earning capacity" in determining whether she could continue to maintain the standard of living enjoyed by her during her marriage. Spillers v. Spillers, 25 N.C. App. 261, 212 S.E.2d 676 (1975).

But a Finding on Dependent Spouse's Earning Capacity Is Not Always Required. — This section specifies the earning capacity of the parties as one of the factors the court should consider in determining the amount of alimony, but the court is not required in all cases to make findings of fact on the question of the dependent spouse's earning capacity. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978); Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Finding on Earning Capacities Not Required Where Evidence Is Insufficient. — Although the spouses' earning capacities is a factor for the court to consider under this section, there is no requirement that the court make a specific finding of fact where there is not sufficient evidence of the parties' earning capacities. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Where husband (supporting spouse) has substantial income as compared to the limited income of wife (dependent spouse), the court is required by subsection (a) of this section to award the wife such alimony as will allow her to live as the wife of a man of plaintiff's income is entitled to live. McLeod v. McLeod, 43 N.C. App. 66, 258 S.E.2d 75, cert. denied, 298 N.C. 807, 261 S.E.2d 920 (1979).

Finding on Income of Supporting Spouse. — Although a proper finding pertaining to the income of the supporting spouse must be based on present, as opposed to past, income, there is no rule that requires a specific finding as to the income of the supporting spouse on the precise date of the hearing. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Determination of Gross Income Was Proper. — There was no error where judge determined husband's monthly gross income from February 1986 through January 1987 by subtracting the expenses of husband's business from its deposits and dividing the sum by 12; the figures pertaining to deposits and expenses were furnished by husband's own testimony and by his own exhibits, and the judge also made a finding as to husband's indebtedness in areas unrelated to his business. Adams v. Adams, 92 N.C. App. 274, 374 S.E.2d 450 (1988).

Finding on Contributions to Marriage. — Where although the court did not make a specific finding of fact concerning what each party had contributed to the financial status of the marital unit, it was clear from its findings of fact that the court considered this evidence, the lack of a specific finding on this matter did not constitute reversible error. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Dependent Spouse of Wealthy Man Is Entitled to Live as Such. — When the evidence shows a substantial estate in the supporting spouse, and the dependent spouse is entitled to alimony, subsection (a) of this section requires the court to enter an order for alimony which will enable the dependent spouse to live as the wife of a man with such an estate is entitled to live. Quick v. Quick, 53 N.C. App. 248, 280 S.E.2d 482 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

The wife of a wealthy man who has abandoned her without justification should be awarded an amount somewhat commensurate with the normal standard of living of the wife of a man of like financial resources. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

Trial court's finding in an alimony action that all of the items in a budget submitted by defendant wife were not "needed or necessary" items did not show that the court applied an improper standard in determining the amount of alimony for the wife of a wealthy man, since it was clear that the court considered what expenses were necessary to maintain the standard of living of a woman who was married to a man of substantial means rather than what was necessary to maintain bare subsistence. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Income tax consequences are among factors properly considered in awarding alimony under subsection (a) of this section, and they should be given appropriate importance in determining the amount of alimony required to meet the reasonable needs of the dependent spouse. Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

While it is true that the express language of subsection (a) of this section does not include the income tax consequences of an award of alimony as a factor to be weighed in the balance in determining the proper amount of the award, such would be a proper consideration in making that determination. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Tax Consequences Cannot Be Disregarded. — Consideration of the tax consequences is not preeminent in determining an alimony award, since it is but one consideration among the many to be weighed by the trial court. However, to disregard the effect of taxation on such an award would be to flirt with an unrealistic, and potentially unjust, result. Perkins v. Perkins, 85 N.C. App. 660, 355 S.E.2d 848 (1987).

Supporting Spouse May Be Required to Provide for Furnishing of Residence. — The court has authority to require defendant husband (supporting spouse) to provide for the furnishing of the residence where plaintiff and two children reside, but the court should fix a definite dollar amount for defendant husband to expend for this purpose. Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, Stephenson v. Stephenson, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981).

And He May Be Ordered to Pay Debts of Parties. — The trial court has authority to order that defendant husband (supporting spouse) pay all debts of the parties as of the date of the order, such payment being associated with defendant's duty to support his wife (dependent spouse). Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969), overruled on other grounds, 55 N.C. App. 250, 285 S.E.2d 281 (1981).

Contributions Only Increasing Wife's Estate for Next of Kin Not Contemplated. — The legislature did not contemplate that "reasonable subsistence," as used in former § 50-16, should include contributions by a husband which tended only to increase an estate for his estranged wife to pass on to her next of kin. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

A spouse cannot be reduced to poverty in order to comply with an alimony decree. Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Change in Financial Need or Dependency. — On a motion to modify or terminate an order of alimony, it is appropriate for the trial court to consider whether the dependent spouse's financial need or dependency has changed, as it relates to the factors listed in this section. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

Conclusion Not Supported by Findings. — The trial court's conclusion that plaintiff-wife was the dependent spouse entitled to support was not supported by the findings of fact where the court found that defendant husband's income "is very significantly lower than same has been in the past" and that "plaintiff is unable to continue to maintain her accustomed station in life"; there was no finding or evidence that defendant deliberately depressed his income in an effort to avoid his obligations; and it was apparent that the trial court disregarded defendant's own inability to maintain the station in life to which he was formerly accustomed in its determination of dependency. Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980).

A conclusion of law that there has been a substantial change of circumstances based only on income is inadequate and in error. Self v. Self, 93 N.C. App. 323, 377 S.E.2d 800 (1989).

Findings Held Insufficient to Support Award. — Where the trial court made certain findings as to the estate, income and expenses of plaintiff, but failed to make sufficient findings as to the estate, earnings, income and expenses of defendant, the trial court did not find sufficient facts to support its award of alimony. Eudy v. Eudy, 24 N.C. App. 516, 211 S.E.2d 536, aff'd, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975).

The trial court's failure to make any findings regarding plaintiff's reasonable current financial needs and expenses and the ratio of those needs and expenses to her income constituted error. Self v. Self, 93 N.C. App. 323, 377 S.E.2d 800 (1989).

Modifying Court May Make Independent and Additional Findings. — Modification of an alimony award requires consideration of this section's standards, but this mandate does not limit a modifying court to only those findings of fact made by the court which entered the original alimony order or that the modifying court cannot make additional and independent findings of fact under this section as to the parties' health and financial needs existing at the time of the original alimony order based on evidence presented at the modification hearing. Self v. Self, 93 N.C. App. 323, 377 S.E.2d 800 (1989).

Alimony Held Excessive. — Alimony payments of $230.00 every four weeks, which was slightly more than three times the cost of the wife's actual subsistence in a state mental hospital at a cost of $75.00 a month, even including the cost of guardianship, exceeded "reasonable subsistence." Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

Parties Cannot Consent to Improperly Based Order. — The parties, by their consent, cannot enable a trial judge to enter an order not based upon consideration of the several factors listed in § 50-13.4(c) and subsection (a) of this section. Williamson v. Williamson, 20 N.C. App. 669, 202 S.E.2d 489 (1974).

Lists of estimated expenses are admissible to illustrate a plaintiff's testimony as to the amount of her expenses. Stickel v. Stickel, 58 N.C. App. 645, 294 S.E.2d 321 (1982).

Evidence of Financial Status of Corporation Controlled by Supporting Spouse. — In an action seeking permanent alimony, evidence of the financial status of a corporation in which defendant supporting spouse owned more than 96% of the stock was relevant and competent in determining the size of his estate for the purpose of setting the amount of alimony to which plaintiff was entitled. Quick v. Quick, 53 N.C. App. 248, 280 S.E.2d 482 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Failure to Separate Out Business Expenses. — "Alimony" means payment for the support and maintenance of a spouse; it does not mean payment for the support and maintenance of a spouse's business ventures. Therefore, the court erred in failing to determine and to consider the extent to which defendant's business expenses as an artist duplicated her personal expenses. Beaman v. Beaman, 77 N.C. App. 717, 336 S.E.2d 129 (1985).

Principal on equitable distribution note from husband to wife was properly included in calculating the assets owned by wife, rather than her monthly income. Lamb v. Lamb, 103 N.C. App. 541, 406 S.E.2d 622 (1991).

Admission by Supporting Spouse. — Testimony of husband testified that he was an able-bodied man and had the ability to provide ample support set at rest his ability to support his wife at the same level that she had become accustomed to during the marriage, since proof is not required for that which has been judicially admitted. Ahern v. Ahern, 63 N.C. App. 728, 306 S.E.2d 140 (1983).

Pleading Held Insufficient. — Trial court did not err by finding wife's pleadings were insufficient on their face and dismissing her action for alimony and alimony pendente lite; plaintiff asserted in her complaint that she was a "dependent spouse," but the only support she offered for this conclusion was evidence of her husband's salary and she did not present any evidence that she needed assistance to subsist during the prosecution or defense of the suit. Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 50, 389 S.E.2d 94 (1990).

III. DISCRETION OF TRIAL COURT.

Alimony and Alimony Pendente Lite to Be Determined in Same Manner. — The amount of alimony pendente lite is to be determined in the discretion of the trial judge in the same manner as the amount of alimony is determined. Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970).

The amount of the allowance is a matter for the trial judge. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

The amount allowed for the reasonable subsistence, cost and attorneys' fees to the wife in her proceedings against her husband under former § 50-16 was within the sound discretion of the judge hearing the same and having jurisdiction thereof. Cram v. Cram, 116 N.C. 288, 21 S.E. 197 (1895); Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N.C. 139, 110 S.E. 863 (1922); Best v. Best, 228 N.C. 9, 44 S.E.2d 214 (1947); Barwick v. Barwick, 228 N.C. 109, 44 S.E.2d 597 (1947).

The amount of alimony allowable pendente lite is a matter of sound judicial discretion, having regard to the condition and circumstances of the parties and the current earnings of the husband. Martin v. Martin, 263 N.C. 86, 138 S.E.2d 801 (1964).

The amount of alimony to be awarded is a reasonable subsistence, which must be determined by the trial judge from the evidence before him. Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985).

And Determination of the Amount Is Within His Discretion. — The trial judge must follow the requirements of the section in determining the amount of alimony to be awarded, but the determination of such amount lies within his sound discretion. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Clark v. Clark, 44 N.C. App. 649, 262 S.E.2d 659, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

The trial judge's determination of the amount of alimony is not absolute and unreviewable, but it will not be disturbed absent a clear abuse of discretion. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Ingle v. Ingle, 42 N.C. App. 365, 256 S.E.2d 532 (1979); Watts v. Watts, 44 N.C. App. 46, 260 S.E.2d 170 (1979).

The amount of alimony to be awarded is in the discretion of the court, but this is not an absolute discretion and unreviewable. Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968).

But Court's Discretion Will Not Be Disturbed Absent Abuse. — The amount to be awarded for alimony is within the discretion of the trial court and the court's discretion will not be disturbed in the absence of an abuse of such discretion. Jones v. Jones, 173 N.C. 279, 91 S.E. 960 (1917); Hennis v. Hennis, 180 N.C. 606, 105 S.E. 274 (1920); Harris v. Harris, 258 N.C. 121, 128 S.E.2d 123 (1962); Rock v. Rock, 260 N.C. 223, 132 S.E.2d 342 (1963); Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966); Schloss v. Schloss, 273 N.C. 266, 160 S.E.2d 5 (1968); Swink v. Swink, 6 N.C. App. 161, 169 S.E.2d 539 (1969); Dixon v. Dixon, 6 N.C. App. 623, 170 S.E.2d 561 (1969); Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970); Gibson v. Gibson, 24 N.C. App. 520, 211 S.E.2d 522 (1975); Spillers v. Spillers, 25 N.C. App. 261, 212 S.E.2d 676 (1975); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978); Ingle v. Ingle, 42 N.C. App. 365, 256 S.E.2d 532 (1979); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

A judge is subject to reversal for abuse of discretion only upon a showing by a litigant that the challenged actions are manifestly unsupported by reason. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980); Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29, cert. denied, 306 N.C. 752, 295 S.E.2d 764 (1982).

Statutory Requirements Must Be Followed. — In determining the amount of alimony and child support to be awarded, the trial judge must follow the requirements of this section. The amount is a reasonable subsistence, to be determined by the trial judge in the exercise of a judicial discretion from the evidence before him. Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

The amount to be awarded is a question of fairness to the parties, and, so long as the court has properly taken into consideration the factors enumerated by statute, the award will not be disturbed absent an abuse of discretion. Gardner v. Gardner, 40 N.C. App. 334, 252 S.E.2d 867, cert. denied, 297 N.C. 299, 254 S.E.2d 917 (1979); Cornelison v. Cornelison, 47 N.C. App. 91, 266 S.E.2d 707 (1980).

While the factors which are delineated in this section must be considered by the judge in determining the amount of alimony to be awarded in a given case, his determination of the proper amount may not be disturbed on appeal absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980); Payne v. Payne, 49 N.C. App. 132, 270 S.E.2d 546 (1980).

Proper Exercise of Discretion Is Question of Law. — Proper exercise of the trial judge's authority in granting alimony, alimony pendente lite, or counsel fees is a question of law, reviewable on appeal. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

When Discretion Properly Applied. — Discretion is properly applied in those instances where, upon deliberation and with firmness, a judge deems its use necessary to the proper execution of justice. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Conclusion Not Disturbed on Appeal Where Supported, Despite Contradictions. — Although plaintiff's testimony on cross-examination tended to contradict her assertion that her illness was incapacitating, the trial court considered this evidence and concluded that the plaintiff's medical condition prevented her from undertaking any meaningful employment and that she was unable to work and earn income to defray her own expenses; this conclusion was supported by the testimony of the plaintiff, and despite contradictions, it would not be disturbed on appeal. Brandt v. Brandt, 92 N.C. App. 438, 374 S.E.2d 663 (1988), aff'd, 325 N.C. 429, 383 S.E.2d 656 (1989).

Failure to Make Adequate Findings. — Where trial court failed to make findings about the parties' estates and accustomed standard of living, the case was remanded for additional findings of fact regarding the award of alimony. Ellinwood v. Ellinwood, 94 N.C. App. 682, 381 S.E.2d 162 (1989).

IV. ACTS WHICH WOULD SUPPORT DIVORCE.

Effect of Dependent Spouse's Conduct on Right to Alimony. — The legislature has seen fit to leave the question of whether indignities committed by a wife (dependent spouse) prior to separation should absolutely bar her right to alimony arising out of her husband's (supporting spouse's) adultery, or merely reduce the amount, for resolution by the trial judge in the exercise of his discretion on a case-by-case basis. Self v. Self, 37 N.C. App. 199, 245 S.E.2d 541, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 253 (1978).

Subsection (b) of this section makes it clear that the trial court may, in its discretion, award some permanent alimony to a dependent spouse even when the jury finds that the dependent spouse has committed acts which would support the granting of a divorce from bed and board in favor of the supporting spouse. Cavendish v. Cavendish, 38 N.C. App. 577, 248 S.E.2d 340 (1978), cert. denied, 296 N.C. 583, 254 S.E.2d 33 (1979).

§ 50-16.6. When alimony, postseparation support, counsel fees not payable.

(a) Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 4.

(b) Alimony, postseparation support, and counsel fees may be barred by an express provision of a valid separation agreement or premarital agreement so long as the agreement is performed. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 39; Code, s. 1292; Rev., s. 1567; 1919, c. 24; C.S., s. 1667; 1921, c. 123; 1923, c. 52; 1951, c. 893, s. 3; 1953, c. 925; 1955, cc. 814, 1189; 1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1995, c. 319, s. 4; c. 509, s. 135.3(f).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "When alimony not payable.

"(a) Alimony or alimony pendente lite shall not be payable when adultery is pleaded in bar of demand for alimony or alimony pendente lite, made in an action or cross action, and the issue of adultery is found against the spouse seeking alimony, but this shall not be a bar to reasonable counsel fees.

(b) Alimony, alimony pendente lite, and counsel fees may be barred by an express provision of a valid separation agreement so long as the agreement is performed."

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 4, which amended this section, was effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Proposed Reforms in North Carolina Divorce Law," see 8 N.C. Cent. L.J. 35 (1976).

For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For comment on the enforceability of arbitration clauses in North Carolina separation agreements, see 15 Wake Forest L. Rev. 487 (1979).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For survey of 1982 law relating to family law, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1155 (1983).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

CASE NOTES

I. In General.
II. Adultery.
III. Separation Agreements.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-14, which dealt with alimony in actions for divorce a mensa et thoro, former § 50-15, which dealt with alimony pendente lite in divorce actions, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton,

58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Consent Judgment Awarding Medical Expenses. — Under consent judgment in which the court found as a fact that there were no claims for support or alimony pending between the parties and ordered plaintiff to pay all necessary and reasonable medical expenses incurred by defendant, the parties did not intend for medical expenses to constitute alimony payments; thus, the trial court erred in entering judgment ex meru motu declaring portions of consent judgment null and void and unenforceable ab initio and in striking them. Davis v. Davis, 78 N.C. App. 464, 337 S.E.2d 190 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 375, 342 S.E.2d 893 (1986).

Applied in Owens v. Owens, 28 N.C. App. 713, 222 S.E.2d 704 (1976); Levitch v. Levitch, 294 N.C. 437, 241 S.E.2d 506 (1978); Harris v. Harris, 58 N.C. App. 314, 293 S.E.2d 602 (1982); Coombs v. Coombs, 121 N.C. App. 746, 468 S.E.2d 807 (1996).

Stated in Greene v. Greene, 15 N.C. App. 314, 190 S.E.2d 258 (1972).

Cited in Sturgill v. Sturgill, 49 N.C. App. 580, 272 S.E.2d 423 (1980); Crutchley v. Crutchley, 53 N.C. App. 732, 281 S.E.2d 744 (1981); Wells v. Wells, 132 N.C. App. 401, 512 S.E.2d 468 (1999).

II. ADULTERY.

Subsection (a) is similar in language and import to prior law. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

Court Must Make Findings If Adultery Is Pleaded. — When adultery is pleaded in bar of a demand for alimony or alimony pendente lite, an award or allowance of alimony pendente lite will not be sustained in the absence of a finding of fact on the issue of adultery in favor of the party seeking such an award. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

In a wife's action for alimony without divorce in which defendant's answer sets up the defense of adultery, it is error for the court to order temporary alimony to plaintiff without finding the facts with respect to the plea of adultery. Williams v. Williams, 230 N.C. 660, 55 S.E.2d 195 (1949).

Evidence of Adultery. — While authority for blood-grouping tests is limited to an issue of paternity, in a case in which the issue is raised the results of the tests, if they exclude defendant as the father of a child admittedly born during the subsistence of the marriage, would also be evidence of adultery. Wright v. Wright, 281 N.C. 159, 188 S.E.2d 317 (1972).

Effect of Post-Divorce Sexual Activity. — This section is not an expression of legislative intent that post-divorce indiscriminate sexual activity by a former wife should bar her right to continue to receive alimony from her former husband. Stallings v. Stallings, 36 N.C. App. 643, 244 S.E.2d 494, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 249 (1978).

There is no statute that allows the court to modify an award of alimony solely because of post-marital fornication. Stallings v. Stallings, 36 N.C. App. 643, 244 S.E.2d 494, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 249 (1978).

III. SEPARATION AGREEMENTS.

What Constitutes "Separation Agreement". — To be a "separation agreement," there must be an agreement to separate or to live separately and apart. Robuck v. Robuck, 20 N.C. App. 374, 201 S.E.2d 557 (1974).

"Gross income," as used in a separation agreement under which the husband agreed that after three years he would pay alimony in an amount equivalent to 30% of his gross income, included the gain realized from the sale of property. Heater v. Heater, 62 N.C. App. 587, 302 S.E.2d 891 (1983).

The jurisdiction of the court is not barred by a prior separation agreement between the parties. Garner v. Garner, 270 N.C. 293, 154 S.E.2d 46 (1967), decided under former § 50-16.

But Unimpeached Deed of Separation May Bar Alimony. — A wife who, in a valid deed of separation, has released her husband from his support obligation is remitted to her rights under the agreement, and as long as the deed of separation stands unimpeached, the court is without power to award her alimony and counsel fees. Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964).

Wife sought a divorce a mensa and alimony, notwithstanding the provisions of a valid separation agreement which the husband had "fully performed," could not, after her husband had performed his part of the contract, obtain an award of alimony. Wilson v. Wilson, 261 N.C. 40, 134 S.E.2d 240 (1964).

A deed of separation, approved by a consent judgment, could be pleaded as complete bar to the wife's application for alimony pendente lite and for reasonable counsel fees, as provided by former § 50-15. Brown v. Brown, 205 N.C. 64, 169 S.E. 818 (1933).

However, resumption of marital relations rescinds deed of separation. Williams v. Williams, 261 N.C. 48, 134 S.E.2d 227 (1964).

Agreement Did Not Waive Alimony Rights. — Defendant's execution of a separation agreement which stated that it was executed with "the express understanding" and "in full satisfaction of all obligations" did not constitute an express waiver of her alimony rights within the meaning of § 52-10.1 or this section where the preamble to the agreement referred to § 50-20, an equitable distribution statute, thus excluding issues of spousal support. Napier v. Napier, 135 N.C. App. 364, 520 S.E.2d 312 (1999).

Discontinuance of Payments Under Separation Agreement. — Where, by an agreement for a separation between husband and wife, the former agreed to pay a certain monthly allowance, and the husband, after paying several installments, discontinued the payments, he could not set up the agreement in bar of her action for support under this section, even though he discontinued the payments because she demanded that the allowance be increased. Cram v. Cram, 116 N.C. 288, 21 S.E. 197 (1895).

Election to Seek Alimony Rather Than Damages for Breach of Contract to Support. — When a wife, in an action for alimony without divorce, elects to seek alimony rather than damages for the breach of the contract to support her, she is only entitled to such an award as would be proper if no contract had been signed. If there has been a partial performance, she must account for the net benefits, if any, which she may have received. Wilson v. Wilson, 261 N.C. 40, 134 S.E.2d 240 (1964).

Attempt to Set Aside Settlement. — The eminence, experience, and character of counsel who represented the plaintiff in procuring a property settlement would bear directly on plaintiff's subsequent attempt to set it aside as fraudulent. Van Every v. Van Every, 265 N.C. 506, 144 S.E.2d 603 (1965), decided under former § 50-16.

Suit Held Not Barred by Separation Agreement. — Jurisdiction of the court invoked under former § 50-16 was not barred by separation agreement pleaded, where wife sued for alimony and support without divorce on grounds of specific acts of cruelty by husband and declared intention to sue for divorce in two years. Butler v. Butler, 226 N.C. 594, 39 S.E.2d 745 (1946).

Setting Out Separation Agreement in Record on Appeal. — Where defendant resisted his wife's application for alimony without divorce under former § 50-16, upon the ground that there was still in effect a valid contract of separation which they had both executed, and appealed from an adverse decision of the trial judge hearing the matter, the record on appeal should have set out the written contract of separation so that the Supreme Court could determine whether it was reasonable, just and fair to the wife, and whether in taking her acknowledgment the officer had properly certified that it was not unreasonable or injurious to her, as the statutes then required. Moore v. Moore, 185 N.C. 332, 117 S.E. 12 (1923).

Post-Separation Failure to Provide Necessary Subsistence. — Absent a valid separation agreement waiving all alimony rights under subsection (b) of this section, post-separation failure to provide a dependent-spouse with necessary subsistence gives rise to an action for alimony. Brown v. Brown, 104 N.C. App. 547, 410 S.E.2d 223 (1991), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 383, 417 S.E.2d 789 (1992).

Summary judgment was appropriate where a premarital agreement signed by the parties irrefutably barred the wife's claims for postseparation support, alimony and equitable distribution; the language in the subject agreement—drafted by the wife's attorney—was sufficiently "express" to constitute a valid and enforceable waiver of the wife's claims for postseparation support pursuant to § 50-16.2A and alimony pursuant to § 50-16.3A. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

§ 50-16.7. How alimony and postseparation support paid; enforcement of decree.

(a) Alimony or postseparation support shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, income withholding, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property or any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. The court may order the transfer of title to real property solely owned by the obligor in payment of lump-sum payments of alimony or postseparation support or in payment of arrearages of alimony or postseparation support so long as the net value of the interest in the property being transferred does not exceed the amount of the arrearage being satisfied. In every case in which either alimony or postseparation support is allowed and provision is also made for support of minor children, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance.

(b) The court may require the supporting spouse to secure the payment of alimony or postseparation support so ordered by means of a bond, mortgage, or deed of trust, or any other means ordinarily used to secure an obligation to pay money or transfer property, or by requiring the supporting spouse to execute an assignment of wages, salary, or other income due or to become due.

(c) If the court requires the transfer of real or personal property or an interest therein as a part of an order for alimony or postseparation support as provided in subsection (a) or for the securing thereof, the court may also enter an order which shall transfer title, as provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 70 and G.S. 1-228.

(d) The remedy of arrest and bail, as provided in Article 34 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for alimony or postseparation support as in other cases.

(e) The remedies of attachment and garnishment, as provided in Article 35 of Chapter 1 and Article 9 of Chapter 110 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for alimony or postseparation support as in other cases, and for such purposes the dependent spouse shall be deemed a creditor of the supporting spouse.

(f) The remedy of injunction, as provided in Article 37 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65, shall be available in actions for alimony or postseparation support as in other cases.

(g) Receivers, as provided in Article 38 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, may be appointed in actions for alimony or postseparation support as in other cases.

(h) A dependent spouse for whose benefit an order for the payment of alimony or postseparation support has been entered shall be a creditor within the meaning of Article 3A of Chapter 39 of the General Statutes pertaining to fraudulent conveyances.

(i) A judgment for alimony or postseparation support obtained in an action therefor shall not be a lien against real property unless the judgment expressly so provides, sets out the amount of the lien in a sum certain, and adequately describes the real property affected; but past-due periodic payments may by motion in the cause or by a separate action be reduced to judgment which shall be a lien as other judgments.

(j) Any order for the payment of alimony or postseparation support is enforceable by proceedings for civil contempt, and its disobedience may be punished by proceedings for criminal contempt, as provided in Chapter 5A of the General Statutes.

Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1-294 or G.S. 1-289, an order for the periodic payment of alimony that has been appealed to the appellate division is enforceable in the trial court by proceedings for civil contempt during the pendency of the appeal. Upon motion of an aggrieved party, the court of the appellate division in which the appeal is pending may stay any order for civil contempt entered for alimony until the appeal is decided if justice requires.

(k) The remedies provided by Chapter 1 of the General Statutes Article 28, Execution; Article 29B, Execution Sales; and Article 31, Supplemental Proceedings, shall be available for the enforcement of judgments for alimony and postseparation support as in other cases, but amounts so payable shall not constitute a debt as to which property is exempt from execution as provided in Article 16 of Chapter 1C of the General Statutes.

(l) The specific enumeration of remedies in this section shall not constitute a bar to remedies otherwise available.

(*l*1) The dependent spouse may apply to the court for an order of income withholding for current or delinquent payments of alimony or postseparation support or for any portion of the payments. If the court orders income withholding, a notice of obligation to withhold shall be served on the payor as required by G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, Rules of Civil Procedure. Copies of the notice shall be filed with the clerk of court and served upon the supporting spouse by first-class mail. (1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1969, c. 541, s. 5; c. 895, s. 18; 1977, c. 711, s. 26; 1985, c. 482, s. 1; c. 689, s. 18; 1995 c. 319, s. 5; 1998-176, ss. 2, 3; 1999-456, s. 14.)

Local Modification. — Person: 1967, c. 848, s. 2.

Cross References. — As for garnishment of government employee benefits, see 42 U.S.C. 659 and 10 U.S.C. 1408.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "How alimony and alimony pendente lite paid; enforcement of decree.

"(a) Alimony or alimony pendente lite shall be paid by lump sum payment, periodic payments, or by transfer of title or possession of personal property or any interest therein, or a security interest in or possession of real property, as the court may order. In every case in which either alimony or alimony pendente lite is allowed and provision is also made for support of minor children, the order shall separately state and identify each allowance.

"(b) The court may require the supporting spouse to secure the payment of alimony or alimony pendente lite so ordered by means of a bond, mortgage, or deed of trust, or any other means ordinarily used to secure an obligation to pay money or transfer property, or by requiring the supporting spouse to execute an assignment of wages, salary, or other income due or to become due.

"(c) If the court requires the transfer of real or personal property or an interest therein as a part of an order for alimony or alimony pendente lite as provided in subsection (a) or for the securing thereof, the court may also enter an order which shall transfer title, as provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 70 and G.S. 1-228.

"(d) The remedy of arrest and bail, as provided in Article 34 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for alimony or alimony pendente lite as in other cases.

"(e) The remedies of attachment and garnishment, as provided in Article 35 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, shall be available in actions for alimony or alimony pendente lite as in other cases, and for such purposes the dependent spouse shall be deemed a creditor of the supporting spouse.

"(f) The remedy of injunction, as provided in Article 37 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes and G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65, shall be available in actions for alimony or alimony pendente lite as in other cases.

"(g) Receivers, as provided in Article 38 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes, may be appointed in actions for alimony or alimony pendente lite as in other cases.

"(h) A dependent spouse for whose benefit an order for the payment of alimony or alimony pendente lite has been entered shall be a creditor within the meaning of Article 3 of Chapter 39 of the General Statutes pertaining to fraudulent conveyances.

"(i) A judgment for alimony or alimony pendente lite obtained in an action therefor shall not be a lien against real property unless the judgment expressly so provides, sets out the amount of the lien in a sum certain, and adequately describes the real property affected; but past-due periodic payments may by motion in the cause or by a separate action be reduced to judgment which shall be a lien as other judgments.

"(j) Any order for the payment of alimony or alimony pendente lite is enforceable by proceedings for civil contempt, and its disobedience may be punished by proceedings for criminal contempt, as provided in Chapter 5A of the General Statutes.

"Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1-294 or G.S. 1-289, an order for the periodic payment of alimony that has been appealed to the appellate division is enforceable in the trial court by proceedings for civil contempt during the pendency of the appeal. Upon motion of an aggrieved party, the court of the appellate division in which the appeal is pending may stay any order for civil contempt entered for alimony until the appeal is decided if justice requires.

"(k) The remedies provided by Chapter 1 of the General Statutes Article 28, Execution; Article 29B, Execution Sales; and Article 31, Supplemental Proceedings, shall be available for the enforcement of judgments for alimony and alimony pendente lite as in other cases, but amounts so payable shall not constitute a debt as to which property is exempt from execution as provided in Article 16 of Chapter 1C of the General Statutes.

"(l) The specific enumeration of remedies in this section shall not constitute a bar to remedies otherwise available."

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 5 which amended this section was effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For note on the remedy of garnishment in child support, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 169 (1978).

For note on specific performance of separation agreements, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 867 (1980).

For comment on tenancy by the entirety in North Carolina, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 997 (1980).

For note on equitable distribution of property upon divorce, see 11 N.C. Cent. L.J. 156 (1980).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For note on consent judgments in family law in light of Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), see 6 Campbell L. Rev. 125 (1984).

For survey, "Termination of Lump Sum Alimony upon the Remarriage of a Dependent Spouse: Potts v. Tutterow," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2432 (1995).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-15, which dealt with alimony pendente lite in divorce actions, and former § 50-16, which dealt with alimony without divorce.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Support May Be Compelled by Judicial Decree. — Wife (dependent spouse) may compel performance by judicial decree where husband (supporting spouse) separates himself from his wife and fails to support her, and husband cannot, by merely providing support for his wife until he gets beyond the jurisdiction of the court, deprive his wife of the right of compelling him by judicial decree to support her. Wilson v. Wilson, 261 N.C. 40, 134 S.E.2d 240 (1964).

The trial judge can award alimony in a lump payment or monthly payments. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971); Whitesell v. Whitesell, 59 N.C. App. 552, 297 S.E.2d 172 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 583, 299 S.E.2d 653 (1983).

Or May Combine Forms of Payment. — The fact that a trial judge used a combination of both a lump sum payment and a continuing monthly payment for alimony did not constitute an abuse of discretion. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 390, 183 S.E.2d 428 (1971).

Limit of Court's Authority. — When a court awards alimony pendente lite, it has authority to cause the husband (supporting spouse) to secure so much of his estate as may be necessary to comply with its order. Such order as may be necessary for the protection of the wife (dependent spouse) is the limit of the court's authority. It cannot penalize defendant unless and until he refuses to comply with the court's direction. Harris v. Harris, 257 N.C. 416, 126 S.E.2d 83 (1962).

The court has no power to order a lump sum payment either to punish the supporting spouse or to divide his estate. Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980).

The trial court had no power to order defendant husband to make a lump sum payment of $50,000.00 to plaintiff wife where it was apparent that the effect of the court's order would be to force defendant to liquidate, either by sale or mortgage, his only remaining assets having any substantial value, not for the purpose of paying for the maintenance and support of defendant, but in order to effect a division of his estate with her. Taylor v. Taylor, 46 N.C. App. 438, 265 S.E.2d 626 (1980).

Trial court's creation of a trust consisting of certain real and personal property owned by the parties in order to secure the payment of alimony and child support was a proper exercise of its discretion in applying the provisions of § 50-13.4(e) and of subsections (a) and (c) of this section, and would be affirmed. Weaver v. Weaver, 88 N.C. App. 634, 364 S.E.2d 706, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 330, 368 S.E.2d 875 (1988).

Corpus of Estate May Be Assigned to Secure Allowance. — The court is authorized to assign the corpus of the husband's (supporting spouse's) property to secure the allowance, and therefore it is immaterial to defendant whether the home place is taken and rents and profits therefrom used to provide a suitable residence for the wife (dependent spouse) and children or whether they are granted the right of occupancy of the home place, and it being found that such arrangement is most feasible and appropriate, the order will not be disturbed. Wright v. Wright, 216 N.C. 693, 6 S.E.2d 555 (1940).

The husband's "estate," from which the court may secure its order allowing a reasonable subsistence, etc., to the wife (dependent spouse) in her proceedings for alimony without divorce, includes within its meaning income from permanent property, tangible or intangible, or from the husband's (supporting spouse's) earnings. Crews v. Crews, 175 N.C. 168, 95 S.E. 149 (1918); Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N.C. 139, 110 S.E. 863 (1922).

Alimony Pendente Lite May Be Decreed a Lien. — Where alimony pendente lite has been regularly granted to the wife in her action for divorce against her nonresident husband, who has abandoned her, the court may decree it a lien upon his lands described in the complaint and situated here, and order the sale thereof for its payment; and it is not necessary that the defendant should have had notice of the wife's application therefor. Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N.C. 474, 37 S.E. 502 (1900); White v. White, 179 N.C. 592, 103 S.E. 216 (1920).

Nonresident Defendant May Be Required to Post Bond. — Under § 50-13.4(f)(1) and subsection (b) of this section, the court properly required the supporting spouse to post a security bond to secure his compliance with a judgment requiring him to make monthly payments for support of his wife and children, where the court found that defendant no longer resided within the State and that he had no attorney of record in the case. Parker v. Parker, 13 N.C. App. 616, 186 S.E.2d 607 (1972).

The security interest to which this section refers is an interest in real estate which secures the payment of an obligation. Taylor v. Taylor, 26 N.C. App. 592, 216 S.E.2d 737 (1975).

Imposition of Trust Where Supporting Spouse Has Only Defeasible Fee in Part of Land. — Where the judge, in proceedings for an allowance of reasonable subsistence, has impressed a trust upon the husband's (supporting spouse's) land for the enforcement of the decree, the fact that in a part of the land he has only a defeasible fee cannot prejudice him, and his exception on that ground cannot be sustained. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N.C. 139, 110 S.E. 863 (1922).

Receiver May Collect Income and Sell Realty to Pay Alimony. — In a wife's (dependent spouse's) action for alimony without divorce, a receiver appointed therein to take possession of the husband's (supporting spouse's) property within the State may collect the income from the husband's realty for the purpose of paying alimony awarded the wife in the action and may sell the husband's real estate if necessary to pay the alimony decreed. Lambeth v. Lambeth, 249 N.C. 315, 106 S.E.2d 491 (1959).

Non-Income-Producing Realty May Be Sold and Proceeds Invested. — A judge has the power to order the sale of a husband's (supporting spouse's) non-income-producing real estate for the purpose of investing the proceeds derived from such sale in legal investments as provided in Article 6 of Chapter 53, so as to produce an income sufficient to enable the receiver appointed to enforce payment of alimony decreed to pay the expenses of the receivership and alimony awarded the plaintiff wife (dependent spouse). Lambeth v. Lambeth, 249 N.C. 315, 106 S.E.2d 491 (1959).

Rents and Profits in Estate by Entireties Are Chargeable. — Where husband and wife own land by entireties, the rents and profits of the husband (supporting spouse) therein may be charged with the support of the wife (dependent spouse) and the minor children of the marriage upon his abandonment of her, in an action for alimony without divorce, and for her counsel fees by Laws 1921, c. 123, in these proceedings; and to enforce an order allowing her alimony and attorneys' fees, according to the statutes, a writ of possession may issue, to apply thereto the rents and profits as they shall accrue and become personalty; and an order for the sale of land conveying the fee simple title for the purpose of paying the allowance is erroneous. Holton v. Holton, 186 N.C. 355, 119 S.E. 751 (1923); Porter v. Citizens Bank, 251 N.C. 573, 111 S.E.2d 904 (1960).

But Sale of Such Estate May Not Be Ordered. — The court does not have the power to order the sale of land held as tenants by the entireties to procure funds to pay alimony to the wife (dependent spouse) or to pay her counsel fees. Porter v. Citizens Bank, 251 N.C. 573, 111 S.E.2d 904 (1960).

Although the rents and profits therefrom and the actual possession thereof may be made available for the support of the wife (dependent spouse), the court does not have the power to order the sale of land owned by husband and wife as tenants by the entirety in order to procure funds to pay alimony to the wife or to pay her counsel fees. Koob v. Koob, 283 N.C. 129, 195 S.E.2d 552 (1973).

The court may allow plaintiff possession of the home owned by the parties as tenants by the entireties in fixing alimony pendente lite under this section. Sellars v. Sellars, 240 N.C. 475, 82 S.E.2d 330 (1954).

Possession of Real or Personal Property as Alimony. — There is no requirement that alimony be denominated as such for it to be a valid award of alimony. Furthermore, possession of real or personal property, including the marital home, is one form of alimony provided by statute. Minor v. Minor, 70 N.C. App. 76, 318 S.E.2d 865, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 495, 322 S.E.2d 558 (1984).

Transfer of Title or Possession of Real Property. — While the court has authority to order a transfer of title or possession of real property under subsection (a) of this section and § 50-17, these sections do not require it to do so. Clark v. Clark, 44 N.C. App. 649, 262 S.E.2d 659, aff'd, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

While a trial court has the authority to order payment of alimony by possession of real property under subsection (a) of this section, as well as the power to issue a writ of possession when necessary under § 50-17, the pertinent statutory provisions do not require it to do so. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

This section in no way renders it mandatory or incumbent upon the trial court to order any transfer of property as part of alimony. Spillers v. Spillers, 25 N.C. App. 261, 212 S.E.2d 676 (1975).

This section does not authorize the court to direct that alimony be paid by the transfer of title to real estate. Taylor v. Taylor, 26 N.C. App. 592, 216 S.E.2d 737 (1975).

Subsections (b) and (c) of this section do not enlarge the authority given the trial judge in subsection (a). Rather, these subsections enable the court to order a transfer of title to real property to secure an award of alimony made under subsection (a). Thus, the trial judge may order the transfer of title to real property, but only if it is necessary to insure the payment of alimony. Gilbert v. Gilbert, 71 N.C. App. 160, 321 S.E.2d 455 (1984).

Power to Transfer Personalty Dependent on Alimony Power. — Although subsection (a) of this section clearly vests the court with power to order a transfer of personalty, that power does not exist independently of the court's power to order alimony for the dependent spouse. This section contemplates such transfers only in terms of satisfaction of the obligation to support. Where the court was not ordering a transfer of property as payment of alimony, the statute was, therefore, inapplicable. Clark v. Clark, 44 N.C. App. 649, 262 S.E.2d 659, aff'd, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Court order requiring defendant to secure payment of temporary alimony by means of deed of trust did not give to plaintiff fixed or permanent interest as cestui que trust, or any right to the entire proceeds of foreclosure sale under deed of trust; the order simply provided a means of securing payment of alimony, and the court was not required to find a change of circumstances as a basis for ordering the payment of a part of the proceeds of foreclosure sale to satisfy a judgment lien against defendant or to pay the fee of defendant's attorney. Johnson v. Johnson, 25 N.C. App. 448, 213 S.E.2d 427 (1975).

No Present Right to Disbursement of Eminent Domain Deposit for Land Owned by Entirety. — A wife separated from her husband and seeking alimony pendente lite had no present right to disbursement of money deposited by the State Highway Commission (now Board of Transportation) as a credit against just compensation for land owned by the wife and her husband as tenants by entirety. North Carolina State Hwy. Comm'n v. Myers, 270 N.C. 258, 154 S.E.2d 87 (1967), decided under former § 50-16.

Validity and Enforceability of Consent Judgment. — In an action for alimony without divorce, a judgment, entered by consent of the parties, which orders defendant to make alimony payments to his wife (dependent spouse), is valid and is enforceable against the husband (supporting spouse) by attachment for contempt, notwithstanding the absence of allegations or findings that the separation was caused by the misconduct of the husband. Whitesides v. Whitesides, 271 N.C. 560, 157 S.E.2d 82 (1967).

Where consent judgment ordered that plaintiff pay alimony in a certain amount per month and that if either party willfully failed to comply with and perform the terms and conditions of the separation agreement, the court could hold the breaching party in contempt of court, and the divorce decree ordered that the consent judgment should remain in effect according to the respective terms and conditions and applicable law, the judgment was actually an adjudication by the court which was enforceable by contempt and subject to modification upon a change of conditions, rather than a contract approved by the court which could not be modified absent a consent of the parties. Britt v. Britt, 36 N.C. App. 705, 245 S.E.2d 381 (1978).

Effect of Consent Judgment. — Where the parties to an action for alimony without divorce entered into a consent judgment, approved by the court, providing for the payment to the wife of a certain sum monthly and making such sums a lien upon the husband's real estate, and the husband failed to make payments in accordance with the judgment and the wife brought a separate action alleging abandonment, it was held that plaintiff's rights were remitted to the prior judgment. Turner v. Turner, 205 N.C. 198, 170 S.E. 646 (1933).

Trial judge's authority to incorporate a deed of separation into a judgment does not depend on the validity of deed of separation. Wells v. Wells, 92 N.C. App. 226, 373 S.E.2d 879 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 342, 378 S.E.2d 810 (1989).

Divorce Actions Awarding Alimony Remain Open for Enforcement. — Divorce actions in which alimony is awarded are not ended merely by the rendition of judgment. Such actions are always open for motions in the cause for the enforcement of the order for alimony. Miller v. Miller, 98 N.C. App. 221, 390 S.E.2d 352 (1990), cert. denied, 327 N.C. 637, 399 S.E.2d 124 (1990).

Service of Notice of Motion for Enforcement on Defendant's Attorney. — Plaintiff seeking enforcement of an order for alimony need not serve defendant with a new summons. Simply serving him with notice of the motion for enforcement is sufficient. Unless otherwise ordered by the court, § 1A-1, Rule 5(b) allows service of notice of written motions by service on defendant's attorney of record. Miller v. Miller, 98 N.C. App. 221, 390 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 637, 399 S.E.2d 124 (1990).

Service of defendant's attorney of record in divorce case in 1976 with copies of motion for assignment of wages and show cause order of 1988 was proper, despite defendant's contention that attorney was hired only to protect defendant's interest in the dissolution of his marriage in 1976. Miller v. Miller, 98 N.C. App. 221, 390 S.E.2d 352, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 637, 399 S.E.2d 124 (1990).

Divorce Decree Does Not Affect Prior Order for Alimony. — A decree of absolute divorce on the ground of separation as provided in § 50-6 would not affect a prior order for alimony without divorce rendered under former § 50-16. Howell v. Howell, 206 N.C. 672, 174 S.E. 921 (1934).

A judgment for absolute divorce does not invalidate a judgment for alimony without divorce entered before the action for absolute divorce was instituted. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

A decree of absolute divorce will neither impair husband's (supporting spouse's) liability for alimony under a former judgment for permanent alimony under former § 50-16, nor affect the power of the court to enforce it by contempt proceedings or otherwise. Wilson v. Wilson, 260 N.C. 347, 132 S.E.2d 695 (1963).

A judgment for subsistence survives a judgment of absolute divorce obtained by defendant. Simmons v. Simmons, 223 N.C. 841, 28 S.E.2d 489 (1944).

But where a pendente lite order was effective only "pending the trial of this action," it was superseded by rendition of the final judgment. Clarke v. Clarke, 47 N.C. App. 249, 267 S.E.2d 361 (1980).

Amount Due Under Prior Orders May Be Determined upon Motion. — The wife (dependent spouse) may have the amount of alimony due under prior orders determined by the court upon motion in the cause. Barber v. Barber, 217 N.C. 422, 8 S.E.2d 204 (1940).

An action is not ended by the rendition of a judgment, but is still pending until the judgment is satisfied for the purpose of motions affecting the judgment but not the merits of the original controversy, especially judgments allowing alimony with or without divorce, and where the defendant makes a general appearance in the original action for subsistence without divorce in which judgment is duly rendered for plaintiff, the court acquires jurisdiction over defendant by the proper service of notice of plaintiff's subsequent petition to recover past due installments, and defendant may not challenge the court's jurisdiction to hear plaintiff's motion and petition for such recovery by special appearance. Barber v. Barber, 216 N.C. 232, 4 S.E.2d 447 (1939).

Where the obligor under a judgment awarding alimony and child support is in arrears in the periodic payment of the alimony and child support, the court may, upon motion in the cause, judicially determine the amount then properly due and enter its final judgment for the total then properly due, and execution may issue thereon. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 34 N.C. App. 201, 237 S.E.2d 561 (1977).

Attachment Will Lie. — An attachment against the husband's (supporting spouse's) land will lie in favor of the wife (dependent spouse) abandoned by him, for a reasonable subsistence or allowance adjudged by the court, under the implied contract that he support and maintain her, under the statute declaring and enforcing it and under the order of court; and attachment of the husband's land is a basis for the publication of summons. Walton v. Walton, 178 N.C. 73, 100 S.E. 176 (1919).

A proper order for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite may be enforced against a nonresident or absconding husband (supporting spouse) by attachment against his property without notice, and in such case the court may also appoint a receiver to collect the income from the husband's property. Perkins v. Perkins, 232 N.C. 91, 59 S.E.2d 356 (1950).

Writ of Possession. — To enforce an order allowing alimony and counsel fees pursuant to the provisions of this section, the court may issue a writ of possession pursuant to the provisions of § 50-17, giving the wife (dependent spouse) possession of property held by her and her husband (supporting spouse) as tenants by the entireties, in order that she may apply the rents and profits therefrom, as they shall accrue and become personalty, to the payment of alimony and counsel fees as fixed by the court. Porter v. Citizens Bank, 251 N.C. 573, 111 S.E.2d 904 (1960).

Priority of Claim. — The wife's (dependent spouse's) inchoate right to alimony makes her a creditor of her husband (supporting spouse) and is enforceable by attachment, in case of her abandonment, which puts everyone on notice of her claim and her priority over other creditors of her husband. Walton v. Walton, 178 N.C. 73, 100 S.E. 176 (1919).

Where the wife (dependent spouse) has obtained an order for support from her husband (supporting spouse), which has been declared a lien on his property under this section, in order for her to intervene in an action in another jurisdiction and claim priority over an attachment therein issued, it is necessary that she should show some valid service of process or waiver by her husband in an appropriate civil action against him. In this case it was questioned whether the lien of the wife would in any event prevail as against the lien of a valid attachment first levied in another court of equal concurrent jurisdiction. Mitchell v. Talley, 182 N.C. 683, 109 S.E. 882 (1921).

An order was entered in a divorce cause to the effect that if a deed of trust on property held by the husband and wife by the entireties was foreclosed, the husband's share of the surplus should be secured for the payment of the alimony awarded. The deed of trust was foreclosed and the trustee voluntarily paid in the office of the clerk the surplus realized in the sale. In an action on account instituted by a creditor of the husband prior to the sale, a warrant of attachment was issued and the husband's share in the surplus attached on the date it was put in the hands of the clerk. It was held that there having been no attachment of the funds in the divorce action, nor the surplus placed in custodia legis in that action, and the orders issued therein not constituting a lien in futuro upon such funds, the lien of the attaching creditor was superior to the rights of the wife therein. Porter v. Citizens Bank, 251 N.C. 573, 111 S.E.2d 904 (1960).

Unless Decree Constitutes Lien, Arrears Must Be Reduced to Judgment Before Execution. — A decree for periodic payments of alimony and support, in the absence of a provision in the decree itself which constitutes it a specific lien upon the property of the obligor, is not enforceable by execution until the arrears are reduced to judgment by a judicial determination of the amount then due. This is so because the decree for alimony and support may be modified as circumstances may justify. Lindsey v. Lindsey, 34 N.C. App. 201, 237 S.E.2d 561 (1977).

Income from Trust Administered in State Is Subject to Execution. — In a wife's (dependent spouse's) action for divorce from bed and board and for permanent alimony, the husband's (supporting spouse's) income from a trust created in another jurisdiction and administered by a trustee bank in this State is subject to execution to satisfy the judgment of the wife against the husband for alimony, child support and counsel fees. Swink v. Swink, 6 N.C. App. 161, 169 S.E.2d 539 (1969).

Homestead and Personal Property Exemptions. — The allowance made under this section is not such a "debt" as will give the husband the right to claim his homestead or personal property exemptions. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N.C. 139, 110 S.E. 863 (1922). See also, Wright v. Wright, 216 N.C. 693, 6 S.E.2d 555 (1940).

Garnishment of Wages. — Garnishment of defendant's wages for payment of alimony was not improper since defendant's future earnings were not garnished and since defendant was not entitled to a 60-day exemption because he could not show that his earnings were necessary for the use of a family supported wholly or partly by his labor. Sturgill v. Sturgill, 49 N.C. App. 580, 272 S.E.2d 423 (1980).

Military Retirement Pay May Not Be Assigned to Enforce Payment. — An assignment of defendant's military retirement pay pursuant to court-ordered specific performance of a separation agreement conflicts with the federal law and would threaten grave harm to clear and substantial federal interests. Harris v. Harris, 58 N.C. App. 175, 292 S.E.2d 775, rev'd on other grounds, 307 N.C. 684, 300 S.E.2d 369 (1983).

Estoppel to Challenge Divorce Judgment. — Where husband filed for divorce and performed some of his obligations under separation agreement for several years, remarried in reliance on the divorce judgment, and did not object to the validity of the divorce decree or the agreement until he sought to defend his failure to comply with the judgment on grounds that it was void, he was estopped from questioning its validity and effect. Amick v. Amick, 80 N.C. App. 291, 341 S.E.2d 613 (1986).

Vested or Accrued Payments. — If under subsection (a), the court has ordered alimony in a single lump sum payment and this lump sum has not been paid, such alimony has vested or accrued and similarly, if under subsection (a), the court has ordered alimony in periodic payments and payments have come due but have not been paid, these payments have also vested or accrued; in either case, the dependent spouse's remarriage would not terminate the ordered amounts that had vested or accrued by virtue of being "due and payable." Potts v. Tutterow, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, rehearing denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Effect of Remarriage on Periodic Payment Plan. — Where trial court delineated alimony payable by husband to wife as a "lump sum" or as a "fixed amount," and the payment methodology was not in a single payment but instead was in periodic payments, wife's remarriage terminated the monthly alimony obligations not yet due and payable, as they had not vested prior to remarriage. Potts v. Tutterow, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, rehearing denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Applied in Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969); Little v. Little, 9 N.C. App. 361, 176 S.E.2d 521 (1970); Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Yearwood v. Yearwood, 287 N.C. 254, 214 S.E.2d 95 (1975); Amaker v. Amaker, 28 N.C. App. 558, 221 S.E.2d 917 (1976); Love v. Love, 41 N.C. App. 308, 254 S.E.2d 642 (1979); Williams v. Williams, 299 N.C. 174, 261 S.E.2d 849 (1980); Wade v. Wade, 63 N.C. App. 189, 303 S.E.2d 634 (1983).

Quoted in Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971); Bridges v.

Bridges, 29 N.C. App. 209, 223 S.E.2d 845 (1976); Summerlin v. Summerlin, 26 Bankr. 875 (Bankr. E.D.N.C. 1983).

Stated in Harper v. Harper, 50 N.C. App. 394, 273 S.E.2d 731 (1981).

Cited in Boston v. Freeman, 6 N.C. App. 736, 171 S.E.2d 206 (1969); Hinton v. Hinton, 17 N.C. App. 715, 195 S.E.2d 319 (1973); Conrad v. Conrad, 35 N.C. App. 114, 239 S.E.2d 862 (1978); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982); Phillips v. Phillips, 83 N.C. App. 228, 349 S.E.2d 397 (1986).

II. CONTEMPT.

Duty to provide support is not a debt in the legal sense of the word, but an obligation imposed by law, and penal sanctions are provided by this section for its willful neglect or abandonment. Ritchie v. White, 225 N.C. 450, 35 S.E.2d 414 (1945).

And a judgment ordering payment of alimony may be enforced by contempt. Peoples v. Peoples, 8 N.C. App. 136, 174 S.E.2d 2 (1970).

An order to pay alimony may be enforced by imprisonment for contempt. Pain v. Pain, 80 N.C. 322 (1879); Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N.C. 432, 18 S.E. 334 (1893).

A district court judge may hold a party to a proceeding before him in civil contempt for failure to comply with court orders issued pursuant to a confession of judgment regarding payment of alimony which was entered in the superior court prior to the establishment of a district court for the district in which the order was entered. Peoples v. Peoples, 8 N.C. App. 136, 174 S.E.2d 2 (1970).

With Willful Failure Punishable by Imprisonment. — A willful failure of husband (supporting spouse) to comply with court's order to pay to the wife (dependent spouse) the amount fixed by order of the court, having due regard to the situation of the parties, the ability of the husband to pay, and the needs of the wife is a contempt, and can be punished as such by imprisonment, and is not within the constitutional inhibition against imprisonment for debt. Wilson v. Wilson, 261 N.C. 40, 134 S.E.2d 240 (1964).

Trial Court Has Jurisdiction to Enforce Alimony Order During Appeal. — Trial court did not lack authority to enter contempt order and initial show cause order against defendant where defendant had appealed original order for periodic alimony payments; appeal did not remove jurisdiction of trial court under § 1-294 since this section dictates that trial court has jurisdiction to enforce alimony order during appeal. Cox v. Cox, 92 N.C. App. 702, 376 S.E.2d 13 (1989).

Agreement of Parties Incorporated in Judgment Is Enforceable by Contempt Proceedings. — Where, in wife's action for alimony and child support, the parties agreed to the terms of a judgment providing that husband would make specified monthly support payments, and the judgment entered by the court ordered the husband to make the payments which he had agreed to make, the husband's obligation to make the support payments could be enforced by contempt proceedings. Parker v. Parker, 13 N.C. App. 616, 186 S.E.2d 607 (1972).

Property settlement provisions of a separation agreement incorporated by reference in a divorce decree are enforceable by contempt proceedings. Cobb v. Cobb, 54 N.C. App. 230, 282 S.E.2d 591 (1981), cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 304 N.C. 724, 288 S.E.2d 809 (1982).

Contempt in Failure to Comply with Consent Judgment. — Under a consent judgment entered in an action by a husband against his wife where no pleadings were filed, providing for certain money payments in lieu of alimony by the husband to the wife and that it should be more than a simple judgment for debt and as binding upon plaintiff as if rendered under this section, and also providing that, upon proper cause shown, it would subject husband to such penalties as the court might require in case of contempt of its orders, the court could commit the plaintiff upon his failure to make the payments required. Edmundson v. Edmundson, 222 N.C. 181, 22 S.E.2d 576 (1942).

Although a judgment may be entered by consent, based on a written agreement, if such judgment orders and decrees that the husband shall pay certain sums as alimony for the support of his wife, a willful refusal to make the payments as directed therein will subject the husband in a proper proceeding to attachment for contempt. Stancil v. Stancil, 255 N.C. 507, 121 S.E.2d 882 (1961).

Punishment by Contempt Requires "Willful" Disobedience. — Failure to obey an order of a court cannot be punished by contempt proceedings unless the disobedience is willful. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

And "willful" imports knowledge and a stubborn resistance. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

One does not act "willfully" in failing to comply with a judgment if it has not been within his power to do so since the judgment was rendered. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

The trial court must find as a fact that the defendant possessed the means to comply with orders of the court during the period when he was in default. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Where the court enters judgment as for civil contempt, the court must find not only failure to comply with the order but that the defendant presently possesses the means to comply. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Where the lower court had not found as a fact that defendant possessed the means to comply with the orders for payment of subsistence pendente lite at any time during the period when he was in default in such payments, the finding that defendant's failure to make the payments of subsistence was deliberate and willful was not supported by the record, and the decree committing him to imprisonment for contempt would be set aside. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

An order for a defendant's arrest for willful contempt of an earlier court order requiring him to make alimony payments would be remanded where there was no evidence to support a finding that defendant presently possessed the means to comply with the alimony order. Earnhardt v. Earnhardt, 9 N.C. App. 213, 175 S.E.2d 744 (1970).

Evidence of Willful Noncompliance with Order. — The mere fact that a defendant ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the necessary subsistence of his wife and child has a right to move at any time for modification of the order does not support the conclusion that defendant's failure to comply with the order is willful. Smithwick v. Smithwick, 218 N.C. 503, 11 S.E.2d 455 (1940).

Findings Required to Support Judgment for Contempt. — In contempt proceedings for willful failure to comply with an order of court, it is required that the court find facts supporting the conclusion of willfulness, and findings of fact that defendant had been ordered to pay a certain sum monthly for the necessary subsistence of his wife and child, and that defendant had failed to comply with the order, without findings as to the property possessed by defendant or his earning capacity, will not support a judgment attaching defendant for contempt. Smithwick v. Smithwick, 218 N.C. 503, 11 S.E.2d 455 (1940).

Facts Found in Contempt Proceedings Not Reviewable Except upon Their Sufficiency. — In proceedings for contempt, the facts found by the judge are not reviewable except for the purpose of passing upon their sufficiency to warrant the judgment. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

Husband Held in Contempt. — For case in which defendant was held in contempt for disobedience of the court's order for him to pay certain weekly sums to his wife under former § 50-16, see Little v. Little, 203 N.C. 694, 166 S.E. 809 (1932).

Imprisonment Erroneous. — Where the trial judge found that the party was a healthy and able-bodied man for his age, and further found that he could pay at least a portion of the alimony, it was error to imprison him until he should pay the whole amount. Cox v. Cox, 10 N.C. App. 476, 179 S.E.2d 194 (1971).

As to habeas corpus after commitment for contempt, see In re Adams, 218 N.C. 379, 11 S.E.2d 163 (1940).

§ 50-16.8. Procedure in actions for postseparation support.

When an application is made for postseparation support, the court may base its award on a verified pleading, affidavit, or other competent evidence. The court shall set forth the reasons for its award or denial of postseparation support, and if making an award, the reasons for its amount, duration, and manner of payment. (1871-2, c. 193, ss. 37, 38, 39; 1883, c. 67; Code, ss. 1290, 1291, 1292; Rev., ss. 1565, 1566, 1567; 1919, c. 24; C.S., ss. 1665, 1666, 1667; 1921, c. 123; 1923, c. 52; 1951, c. 893, s. 3; 1953, c. 925; 1955, cc. 814, 1189; 1961, c. 80; 1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1971, c. 1185, s. 25; 1979, c. 709, s. 4; 1995, c. 319, s. 6.)

Cross References. — As to court having jurisdiction over alimony proceedings, see § 7A-244.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows:

"Procedure in actions for alimony and alimony pendente lite.

"(a) The procedure in actions for alimony and actions for alimony pendente lite shall be as in other civil actions except as provided in this section and in G.S. 50-19.

"(b) Payment of alimony may be ordered:

(1) Upon application of the dependent spouse in an action by such spouse for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board; or

(2) Upon application of the dependent spouse in a separate action instituted for the purpose of securing an order for alimony without divorce; or

(3) Upon application of the dependent spouse as a cross action in a suit for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, or a proceeding for alimony without divorce, instituted by the other spouse.

"(c) A cross action for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, shall be allowable in an action for alimony without divorce.

"(d) Payment of alimony pendente lite may be ordered:

(1) Upon application of the dependent spouse in an action by such spouse for absolute divorce, divorce from bed and board, annulment, or for alimony without divorce; or

(2) Upon application of the dependent spouse as a cross action in a suit for divorce, whether absolute or from bed and board, annulment, or for alimony without divorce, instituted by the other spouse.

"(e) No order for alimony pendente lite shall be made unless the supporting spouse shall have had five days' notice thereof; but if the supporting spouse shall have abandoned the dependent spouse and left the State, or shall be in parts unknown, or is about to remove or dispose of his or her property for the purpose of defeating the claim of the dependent spouse, no notice is necessary.

"(f) When an application is made for alimony pendente lite, the parties shall be heard orally, upon affidavit, verified pleading, or other proof, and the judge shall find the facts from the evidence so presented.

"(g) When a district court having jurisdiction of the matter shall have been established, application for alimony pendente lite shall be made to such district court, and may be heard without a jury by a judge of said court at any time.

"(h) In any case where a claim is made for alimony without divorce, when there is a minor child, the pleading shall set forth the name and age of each such child; and if there be no minor child, the pleading shall so state."

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 6, which amended this section, was effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For note discussing arbitration of domestic cases, see 4 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1981).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-15, which dealt with alimony pendente lite and counsel fees in actions for divorce, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

Sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Enforcement of Duty of Support. — The law imposes a continuing legal duty upon a husband (supporting spouse) to support his wife (dependent spouse). Such duty is enforceable in a variety of ways: through criminal sanctions imposed for willful abandonment coupled with nonsupport, and through civil decrees granting alimony, alimony pendente lite, or alimony without divorce on the basis of misconduct or failure to support. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

Contractual Limitation on Duty of Support. — Duty of support is considered to be so fraught with a public interest that any contractual undertaking between a husband and wife living together and not contemplating imminent separation which purports to quantify or limit the duty is, under North Carolina law, void as against public policy. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

Jurisdiction over Alimony Proceedings. — The district court has jurisdiction over alimony proceedings and, indeed, the legislature has decreed that it is the only "proper" division for such a proceeding. Peoples v. Peoples, 8 N.C. App. 136, 174 S.E.2d 2 (1970). See § 7A-244.

Alimony Without Divorce and Alimony

Pendente Lite Are Separate Remedies. — Former § 50-16 provided two remedies, one for alimony without divorce, and another for subsistence and counsel fees pending trial and final disposition of the issues involved. Richardson v. Richardson, 268 N.C. 538, 151 S.E.2d 12 (1966); Myers v. Myers, 270 N.C. 263, 154 S.E.2d 84 (1967).

A party suing for divorce from bed and board may, but is not required to, apply for alimony. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

A party may seek permanent alimony upon filing for a divorce from bed and board. Coombs v. Coombs, 121 N.C. App. 746, 468 S.E.2d 807 (1996).

Procedure Where Grounds for Alimony Are Asserted Simultaneously as Grounds for Divorce. — While it is true that the determination of dependency properly rests with the trial judge, and not with the jury, where the grounds asserted for alimony are asserted simultaneously as grounds for divorce, the right to alimony depends on the legal entitlement to divorce, regardless of financial dependency. The ordinary and correct procedure in such cases, therefore, is to allow the jury to render its verdict on the "fault" issues of divorce, and then and only then to move to a bench hearing on dependency and the proper amount, if any, of alimony. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

The term "application," as used in this section, means a motion in the cause, the procedure for which is governed by the North Carolina Rules of Civil Procedure, § 1A-1. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

The legislature intended the word "application," as used in subsections (b) and (d) of this section and in § 1A-1, Rule 7(b)(1), to have reference to the same kind of procedure. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Application for Alimony or Alimony Pendente Lite in Divorce Action Need Not Be Contained in Pleadings. — Nothing in this section indicates that an application for either alimony or alimony pendente lite must be contained in the pleadings or an amendment thereto in an action for absolute divorce. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Burden on Applicant for Alimony. — This section looks first to the ability of the spouses to maintain the standard of living to which they have become accustomed during the last years of the marriage. The burden on the applicant for alimony is to show the accustomed standard of living and lack of means to maintain that standard. Only then does the ability of the other spouse to pay become significant. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Application Properly Served on Defendant's Attorney. — Where motion for alimony did not specify a date for a hearing, but was served, by depositing it in the mail, properly addressed to defendant's attorney, at least five days before an already scheduled hearing, plaintiff properly proceeded to apply for alimony. McCarley v. McCarley, 289 N.C. 109, 221 S.E.2d 490 (1976).

Counterclaims. — The statutes dealing specifically with divorce actions do not prescribe a procedure for counterclaims different from that prescribed in § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). Gardner v. Gardner, 294 N.C. 172, 240 S.E.2d 399 (1978).

There is no conflict between the statutes dealing with procedure in divorce actions and § 1A-1, Rule 13(a). Rather § 1A-1, Rule 13(a) superimposes an additional characteristic on certain kinds of counterclaims. Gardner v. Gardner, 294 N.C. 172, 240 S.E.2d 399 (1978).

Improper venue, in an action for alimony pendente lite and alimony without divorce, is subject to attack under § 1A-1, Rule 12(b)(3). Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

Court Lacked Authority to Rule While Change of Venue Motion Was Pending. — When supporting spouse in apt time made a proper motion for change of venue under § 1A-1, Rule 12(b)(3), it became a matter of right, and the district court was without authority to proceed further in the cause until the motion to remove had been determined. Since the court lacked authority to make any ruling on the merits while the motion to change venue was pending, it was error to enter an order granting alimony pendente lite and counsel fees. Little v. Little, 12 N.C. App. 353, 183 S.E.2d 278 (1971).

"Supporting Spouse" Defined. — A "supporting spouse" is a spouse, whether husband or wife, upon whom the other spouse is actually substantially dependent or from whom such other spouse is substantially in need of maintenance and support. A spouse meets the definition if he or she qualifies under either test, which essentially is the same as that applied for "dependent spouse." The primary issue is not the supporting spouse's ability to pay, but whether the spouse seeking alimony is a dependent spouse. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Determination of what constitutes a "dependent spouse" and what constitutes a "supporting spouse" requires an application of principles of statutory law to facts and therefore involves mixed questions of law and fact. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971). See § 50-16.1.

Accustomed Standard of Living Determinative. — It is not necessary that a spouse be reduced to penury to be considered dependent; the accustomed standard of living is the proper measure. Long v. Long, 71 N.C. App. 405, 322 S.E.2d 427 (1984).

Vacation of Consent Judgments Without Making Specific Findings Held Error. — While a consent order for alimony or alimony pendente lite may be modified or vacated at any time upon motion and a showing of changed circumstances, where defendant husband offered some evidence of changed circumstances but the trial court failed to comply with the statutory mandate as to the making of specific findings, and erroneously ruled that consent judgments were invalid for failure of the court to make a finding of dependency, the cause would be remanded for a de novo hearing. Cox v. Cox, 36 N.C. App. 573, 245 S.E.2d 94 (1978).

Judgment as Judicial Separation for Purpose of § 50-6. — A judgment in an action instituted under former § 50-16 decreeing that the husband had willfully abandoned the wife and awarding her support and maintenance constituted a judicial separation which, two years (now one year) thereafter, would permit the husband to obtain an absolute divorce. Rouse v. Rouse, 258 N.C. 520, 128 S.E.2d 865 (1963).

Action for Divorce Not Defeated by Order for Support. — An order for support, either pendente lite or for alimony without divorce, without more, would not perforce defeat an action for divorce under § 50-6. Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943).

Binding Arbitration Available. — Since the parties may settle spousal support by agreement, there exists no prohibition to their entering into binding arbitration under §§ 1-567.1 through 1-567.20 to settle the issue of spousal support. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

But Not by Court Order. — Binding arbitration is not available in this State by court order in a civil action for alimony, custody and child support. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Court May Not Delegate Duties to Arbitration. — While, in the absence of court proceedings, parties may settle their disputes by arbitration, once the issues are brought into court, the court may not delegate its duty to resolve those issues to arbitration. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Advantages of Binding Arbitration for Dependent Spouse. — In light of the fact that the right of a dependent spouse to support and maintenance is a property right which can be released by contract, the advantages to binding and nonmodifiable arbitration outweigh its disadvantages. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Effect of § 14-322. — Section 14-322, requiring the State to show the husband's willful abandonment of his wife, etc., beyond a reasonable doubt, does not deprive the wife of her civil remedies. State v. Falkner, 182 N.C. 793, 108 S.E. 756 (1921).

Determining Proper Amount of Counsel Fees. — The trial court is under an obligation to conduct a broad inquiry in making its determination of the proper amount of counsel fees which are to be awarded a dependent spouse as litigant, considering as relevant factors the nature and worth of the services rendered, the magnitude of the task imposed upon counsel, and reasonable consideration for the parties' respective conditions and financial circumstances. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

It would be contrary to what the court perceives to be the intent of the legislature to require a dependent spouse to meet the expenses of litigation through the unreasonable depletion of her separate estate where her separate estate is considerably smaller than that of the supporting spouse. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Appellate Review. — The granting or denial of a motion for temporary alimony (pendente lite) is within the discretion of the trial judge and as such is normally not reviewable on appeal. However, the same may not be said about a dismissal of an action for alimony without divorce. Holcomb v. Holcomb, 7 N.C. App. 329, 172 S.E.2d 212 (1970).

Applied in Kearns v. Kearns, 6 N.C. App. 319, 170 S.E.2d 132 (1969); Peeler v. Peeler, 7 N.C. App. 456, 172 S.E.2d 915 (1970); Boone v. Boone, 8 N.C. App. 524, 174 S.E.2d 833 (1970); Briggs v. Briggs, 21 N.C. App. 674, 205 S.E.2d 547 (1974); Simmons v. Simmons, 22 N.C. App. 68, 205 S.E.2d 582 (1974); Yearwood v. Yearwood, 287 N.C. 254, 214 S.E.2d 95 (1975); Guy v. Guy, 27 N.C. App. 343, 219 S.E.2d 291 (1975); Hill v. Hill, 27 N.C. App. 423, 219 S.E.2d 273 (1975); Brondum v. Cox, 30 N.C. App. 35, 226 S.E.2d 193 (1976); Harris v. Harris, 58 N.C. App. 314, 293 S.E.2d 602 (1982); Whedon v. Whedon, 313 N.C. 200, 328 S.E.2d 437 (1985).

Stated in Howell v. Howell, 19 N.C. App. 260, 198 S.E.2d 462 (1973); Therrell v. Therrell, 19 N.C. App. 321, 198 S.E.2d 776 (1973); Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Cited in Harper v. Harper, 9 N.C. App. 341, 176 S.E.2d 48 (1970); Mitchell v. Mitchell, 12 N.C. App. 54, 182 S.E.2d 627 (1971); Hogue v. Hogue, 20 N.C. App. 583, 202 S.E.2d 327 (1974); Beall v. Beall, 290 N.C. 669, 228 S.E.2d 407 (1976); Blake v. Blake, 34 N.C. App. 160, 237 S.E.2d 310 (1977); Davis v. Davis, 35 N.C. App. 111, 240 S.E.2d 488 (1978); Steele v. Steele, 36 N.C. App. 601, 244 S.E.2d 466 (1978); Hamilton v. Hamilton, 36 N.C. App. 755, 245 S.E.2d 399 (1978); Benson v. Benson, 39 N.C. App. 254, 249 S.E.2d 877 (1978); Wyatt v. Hollifield, 114 N.C. App. 352, 442 S.E.2d 149 (1994).

II. ALIMONY WITHOUT DIVORCE.

Suits for alimony without divorce are within the analogy of divorce laws. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

Procedure in Actions for Alimony Without Divorce. — This section changes the procedure to be followed in actions for alimony without divorce from the divorce procedure set forth in § 50-10 to the procedure applicable to other civil actions. Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Whitaker v. Whitaker, 16 N.C. App. 432, 192 S.E.2d 80 (1972).

Upon application for a postseparation support award, the trial court might grant or deny awards based upon paper filings at abbreviated hearings conducted early in the litigation process and prior to significant discovery. Wells v. Wells, 132 N.C. App. 401, 512 S.E.2d 468 (1999).

Inapplicability of Residency Requirement. — The residency requirement of § 50-8 is not applicable in an action for alimony without divorce. Eudy v. Eudy, 288 N.C. 71, 215 S.E.2d 782 (1975), overruled on other grounds, Quick v. Quick, 305 N.C. 446, 290 S.E.2d 653 (1982).

Residence is a condition to the maintenance of an action for divorce, but this was not true of an action brought under former § 50-16. Harris v. Harris, 257 N.C. 416, 126 S.E.2d 83 (1962).

Venue of Suit for Alimony Without Divorce — County of Wife's Residence. — Suits for alimony without divorce are within the analogy of divorce laws, and where a wife was forced by her husband's conduct to leave his residence, she could bring an action for alimony without divorce in the county where she resided, notwithstanding the provision of former § 50-16 that "the wife may institute an action in the superior court of the county in which the cause of action arose." Rector v. Rector, 186 N.C. 618, 120 S.E. 195 (1923).

A wife who was forced by her husband to leave his home and take refuge elsewhere could acquire a separate domicile, and could sue him for alimony without divorce in the county of her residence, and the husband was not entitled to removal to the county of his residence as a matter of right under the provisions of former § 50-16 and §§ 1-82 and 50-3. Miller v. Miller, 205 N.C. 753, 172 S.E. 493 (1934).

Same — County Where Parties Were Living at Time of Abandonment. — The wife may institute action for alimony without divorce in the county in which the parties were living at the time of the husband's alleged abandonment. Robbins v. Robbins, 262 N.C. 749, 138 S.E.2d 632 (1964).

Plaintiff, though she and defendant were both domiciled in South Carolina, was allowed to maintain an action under former § 50-16 in a county in North Carolina where defendant had large properties, including a farm and house in which the parties were living when defendant abandoned plaintiff. Harris v. Harris, 257 N.C. 416, 126 S.E.2d 83 (1962).

Same — Action by Nonresident. — Intent of plaintiff, a nonresident, to establish a residence in the future in Madison County did not authorize a trial of the suit in that county, but the proper place for trial was in Haywood County, where defendant was a resident. Burrell v. Burrell, 243 N.C. 24, 89 S.E.2d 732 (1955).

Action for Alimony Not Abated by Prior Action of Husband for Absolute Divorce. — The prior institution of an action by the husband for an absolute divorce does not abate the wife's subsequent action for alimony without divorce, nor deprive the court of power to award her alimony and counsel fees pendente lite therein. Reece v. Reece, 231 N.C. 321, 56 S.E.2d 641 (1949).

The pendency of the husband's action for absolute divorce under § 50-6 is not ground for abatement of the wife's subsequent action for alimony without divorce. Beeson v. Beeson, 246 N.C. 330, 98 S.E.2d 17 (1957), commented on in 36 N.C.L. Rev. 203 (1958).

If an action for absolute divorce is instituted and the wife is the defendant therein, she is not estopped from bringing an action for alimony without divorce during the pendency of such action. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 256 N.C. 638, 124 S.E.2d 857 (1962).

Action for Alimony Barred by Verdict in Divorce Action. — The doctrine of res judicata applies to divorce actions as well as other civil cases, and hence the fact that the wife has the alternate remedy of independent action or a cross-action to secure alimony without divorce does not authorize her to bring an independent action based upon abandonment when the issue of abandonment has theretofore been determined adversely to her by verdict of the jury in the husband's action for divorce on the grounds of separation. Garner v. Garner, 268 N.C. 664, 151 S.E.2d 553 (1966).

Effect of Prior Divorce in Another State. — No action will lie for alimony without divorce where it appears that the court of a state having jurisdiction over the parties has declared them not husband and wife. Bidwell v. Bidwell, 139 N.C. 402, 52 S.E. 55 (1905).

Complaint Praying for Subsistence and Other Relief as Action for Alimony Without Divorce. — Where a complaint alleges certain acts of misconduct constituting bases for divorce, both absolute and from bed and board, with prayer for relief demanding subsistence for the plaintiff and the minor child of the marriage and for such other relief as may be just and proper, without prayer for divorce, the cause is an action for alimony without divorce. Brooks v. Brooks, 226 N.C. 280, 37 S.E.2d 909 (1946).

Cross-Action for Alimony Without Divorce. — A wife may assert a cause of action for alimony without divorce as a cross-action in the husband's suit for divorce. Scott v. Scott, 259 N.C. 642, 131 S.E.2d 478 (1963).

The 1955 amendment to former § 50-16 gave a wife the right to set up a cross-action for alimony without divorce in the husband's suit for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, without disturbing the right of the wife to bring an independent action under the statute for alimony without divorce, the alternative procedure being permissive but not mandatory. Beeson v. Beeson, 246 N.C. 330, 98 S.E.2d 17 (1957).

Former § 50-16, as it stood before the 1955 amendment, could not be used by the wife as the basis of a cross-action in a suit for divorce instituted by the husband. Silver v. Silver, 220 N.C. 191, 16 S.E.2d 834 (1941); Shore v. Shore, 220 N.C. 802, 18 S.E.2d 353 (1942). See also, Ericson v. Ericson, 226 N.C. 474, 38 S.E.2d 517 (1946).

Notice of Intended Cross-Action Does Not Preclude Taking of Voluntary Nonsuit. — Plaintiff, in an action for absolute divorce, is entitled as a matter of right to take a voluntary nonsuit upon paying costs and alimony pendente lite to the date of motion, notwithstanding he has had notice of defendant's intention to file a cross-action for alimony without divorce, and where the nonsuit has been taken, no action is pending in which defendant may amend her answer to assert such cross-action. Scott v. Scott, 259 N.C. 642, 131 S.E.2d 478 (1963).

Requirements of Complaint. — The complaint in an action for alimony without divorce must allege facts sufficient to constitute a good cause of action under the provision of the statute for the court to allow wife (dependent spouse) from the estate or earnings of her husband (supporting spouse) a reasonable support and counsel fees, and when the wife alleges only that she has left her husband because he failed to fulfill his promise to supply certain conveniences, this is insufficient. McManus v. McManus, 191 N.C. 740, 133 S.E. 9 (1926).

The plaintiff, in an action for alimony without divorce on the ground of abandonment, is not required to allege the acts and conduct relied upon as the basis of the action with that degree of particularity as is required when the cause of action is based on such indignities to the person of plaintiff as to render her condition intolerable and life burdensome. Sguros v. Sguros, 252 N.C. 408, 114 S.E.2d 79 (1960).

In an action for alimony without divorce, allegations that the husband had been abusive and violent toward plaintiff and that she had been made to fear for her safety were insufficient, it being necessary that plaintiff allege specific acts of misconduct on the part of the husband so that the court could determine whether his conduct was in fact such as constituted cause for divorce from bed and board, and that plaintiff also specify what, if anything, she did or said at the time, in order that the court could determine whether she provoked the difficulty. Ollis v. Ollis, 241 N.C. 709, 86 S.E.2d 420 (1955).

The essential elements required to be alleged in an action for alimony without divorce are (1) separation of the husband (supporting spouse) from the wife (dependent spouse), and (2) his failure to provide her with necessary subsistence according to his means and condition in life. Trull v. Trull, 229 N.C. 196, 49 S.E.2d 225 (1948); Bowling v. Bowling, 252 N.C. 527, 114 S.E.2d 228 (1960).

In an action for alimony without divorce, it suffices for wife (dependent spouse) to allege and prove (1) the existence of a valid marriage between the parties, and (2) that the husband (supporting spouse) has separated himself from the wife and failed to provide her (and the children of the marriage) with necessary subsistence according to his means, or, instead of the latter, that the husband is a drunkard or spendthrift. Caddell v. Caddell, 236 N.C. 686, 73 S.E.2d 923 (1953).

A wife's complaint states a cause of action for alimony without divorce under the statute if it alleges separation without providing subsistence, or alleges that the husband (supporting spouse) is a drunkard or spendthrift or is guilty of any misconduct or acts that would be or constitute cause for divorce either absolute or from bed and board. Thurston v. Thurston, 256 N.C. 663, 124 S.E.2d 852 (1962).

To state a cause of action for alimony without divorce it is necessary to allege: (1) the marriage, (2) the separation of the husband (supporting spouse) from the wife (dependent spouse) and his failure to provide the wife and children of the marriage reasonable subsistence, i.e., abandonment, or some conduct on the part of the husband constituting cause for divorce, either absolute or from bed and board, and (3) want of provocation on the part of the wife. Murphy v. Murphy, 261 N.C. 95, 134 S.E.2d 148 (1964).

Allegation That Acts of Husband Were Without Provocation — In General. — An allegation in an action for alimony without divorce that the separation of defendant from plaintiff wife was without fault or misconduct on her part was a sufficient allegation that husband's acts were without provocation on her part. Trull v. Trull, 229 N.C. 196, 49 S.E.2d 225 (1948).

In an action for alimony without divorce, as in an action for divorce a mensa et thoro by the wife (dependent spouse), she must not only set out with some particularity the acts of cruelty upon the part of the husband (supporting spouse), but she must also aver, and consequently offer proof, that such acts were without adequate provocation on her part. The omission of such allegations is fatal. Howell v. Howell, 223 N.C. 62, 25 S.E.2d 169 (1943); Best v. Best, 228 N.C. 9, 44 S.E.2d 214 (1947); Ollis v. Ollis, 241 N.C. 709, 86 S.E.2d 420 (1955).

In an action by the wife (dependent spouse) for alimony without divorce on the ground of mistreatment constituting constructive abandonment, the absence of an allegation that defendant's misconduct was without adequate provocation is fatal. Barker v. Barker, 232 N.C. 495, 61 S.E.2d 360 (1950).

Same — Where Adultery Is Charged. — Where a complaint alleges adultery and also sets forth acts of misconduct constituting a basis for divorce from bed and board, the failure of the complaint to allege that the misconduct was without adequate provocation is not fatal, since such allegation is not necessary in an action for absolute divorce on the ground of adultery, and this ground, independently, is sufficient to sustain the action for alimony without divorce. Brooks v. Brooks, 226 N.C. 280, 37 S.E.2d 909 (1946).

Allegations Held Sufficient. — Allegations in an action for alimony without divorce to the effect that defendant constantly mistreated plaintiff and offered such indignities to her person as to endanger her health and safety and forced her to separate herself from defendant, that defendant drank excessively and failed to provide for her support, and that plaintiff had at all times been a dutiful wife, were sufficient to state a cause of action for alimony without divorce, and defendant's demurrer thereto was properly overruled. Bateman v. Bateman, 232 N.C. 659, 61 S.E.2d 909 (1950).

Allegation that defendant had become an habitual drunkard constituted a ground for divorce from bed and board, and hence was sufficient to support an action for alimony without divorce even though other insufficient allegations also appeared in the complaint. Allen v. Allen, 244 N.C. 446, 94 S.E.2d 325 (1956).

For case in which allegations were held sufficient, see also Ollis v. Ollis, 241 N.C. 709, 86 S.E.2d 420 (1955).

Allegations Deemed Denied. — Section 50-10 applies to actions for alimony without divorce, and all allegations of the complaint are deemed denied whether actually denied by pleadings or not. Schlagel v. Schlagel, 253 N.C. 787, 117 S.E.2d 790 (1961).

Where plaintiff did not reply and expressly deny defendant's allegations of adultery, but these allegations did not relate to a counterclaim, they were taken as controverted. Creech v. Creech, 256 N.C. 356, 123 S.E.2d 793 (1962).

Indefinite Allegations in Answer. — Vague and indefinite allegations of infidelity on the part of a wife made by a husband in his answer to her complaint in a proceeding for support and maintenance would not be allowed to affect the question of the husband's liability in such proceedings. Cram v. Cram, 116 N.C. 288, 21 S.E. 197 (1895).

Parties May Waive Jury Trial. — Issues of fact in an action for alimony without divorce may be determined by the judge if a jury trial is waived by failure to make timely demand pursuant to § 1A-1, Rule 38(b), since this section changes the procedure to be followed in actions for alimony without divorce from the divorce procedure set forth in § 50-10 to the procedure applicable to other civil actions. Williams v. Williams, 13 N.C. App. 468, 186 S.E.2d 210 (1972); Whitaker v. Whitaker, 16 N.C. App. 432, 192 S.E.2d 80 (1972); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

Judge May Not Determine Facts upon Evidence Introduced at Another Trial. — The trial judge may not pass upon the issuable facts in proceedings for alimony without divorce upon evidence introduced before him theretofore upon a trial of the husband for criminal abandonment, etc., of which he was acquitted, when the witnesses are present and ready to testify. Crews v. Crews, 175 N.C. 168, 95 S.E. 149 (1918), distinguishing Cooper v. Southern R.R., 170 N.C. 490, 87 S.E. 322 (1915).

The only material facts at issue in the action for alimony without divorce are the questions of the existence of the marriage relation and whether the husband abandoned the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N.C. 72, 40 S.E. 851 (1902); Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N.C. 1, 80 S.E. 64 (1913).

Finding of Facts by Judge. — In a wife's application for alimony without divorce, it was not required by former § 50-16 that the judge hearing the matter should find the facts as a basis for his judgment, as was required in proceedings for alimony pendente lite under former § 50-15, although it was necessary that wife allege sufficient facts to constitute a good cause of action thereunder. Price v. Price, 188 N.C. 640, 125 S.E. 264 (1924); Vincent v. Vincent, 193 N.C. 492, 137 S.E. 426 (1927).

Attack on Consent Judgment by Infant's Guardians. — Where the court in proceedings for alimony without divorce approves a consent judgment providing for the support and subsistence of the defendant's wife and child, the validity of such consent judgment may be later attacked by the child's authorized guardians on the ground of irregularity and that it is not binding on the minor. In re Reynolds, 206 N.C. 276, 173 S.E. 789 (1934).

III. ALIMONY PENDENTE LITE.

An application for alimony pendente lite may be made by motion in the cause. Reeves v. Reeves, 82 N.C. 348 (1880), overruled on other grounds, Medlin v. Medlin, 175 N.C. 529, 95 S.E. 857 (1918).

The resident judge of the district has the jurisdiction to hear and determine the motion for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite in an action for alimony without divorce. Herndon v. Herndon, 248 N.C. 248, 102 S.E.2d 862 (1958).

Where Motion May Be Heard. — Insofar as alimony pendente lite and counsel fees for plaintiff are concerned, a hearing could be held on proper notice anywhere in the judicial district. Joyner v. Joyner, 256 N.C. 588, 124 S.E.2d 724 (1962).

A motion for alimony pendente lite may be heard anywhere in the judicial district. Moore v. Moore, 130 N.C. 333, 41 S.E. 943 (1902).

As may a motion to reduce alimony. Moore v. Moore, 131 N.C. 371, 42 S.E. 822 (1902).

But a resident judge holding court in another district cannot hear a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite in a suit pending in the district in which he resides. Moore v. Moore, 131 N.C. 371, 42 S.E. 822 (1902).

Motion May Be Heard Out of Term. — In an action for alimony without divorce, a motion for alimony pendente lite may be heard out of term, after five days' notice to the husband. In re Burton, 257 N.C. 534, 126 S.E.2d 581 (1962).

Alimony pendente lite may be allowed before the return term if the complaint has been filed. Moore v. Moore, 130 N.C. 333, 41 S.E. 943 (1902).

Effect of Suit for Divorce Instituted After Suit for Alimony. — Where, after the wife instituted a suit for alimony without divorce, in which action the question of the custody of the minor child of the marriage was not raised, the husband instituted suit for absolute divorce, it was held that the 1953 amendment to former § 50-16 did not affect the jurisdictional power of the court to award subsistence for the mother and child pendente lite in her action. Barnwell v. Barnwell, 241 N.C. 565, 85 S.E.2d 916 (1955).

Necessity for Notice to Defendant. — An order entered in action for alimony without divorce requiring defendant to pay subsistence and counsel fees pendente lite is void when the order is entered without notice to defendant. Barnwell v. Barnwell, 241 N.C. 565, 85 S.E.2d 916 (1955).

An order allowing alimony pendente lite without notice is void. In re Burton, 257 N.C. 534, 126 S.E.2d 581 (1962).

The provision in former § 50-15 requiring five days' notice applied only when the motion was heard out of term; and parties were fixed with notice of all motions or orders made during the term of the court. Coor v. Smith, 107 N.C. 430, 11 S.E. 1089 (1890); Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N.C. 432, 18 S.E. 334 (1893); Jones v. Jones, 173 N.C. 279, 91 S.E. 960 (1917).

An order of court continuing the motion for alimony to a future term of court made in the presence of counsel for both parties was sufficient notice, under former § 50-15, of such motion. Lea v. Lea, 104 N.C. 603, 10 S.E. 488 (1889).

When Notice Dispensed with. — An affidavit of the wife that husband had left the State the day after the filing of the complaint and that she had good reason to believe that he had left to defeat her claim for alimony, having been selling his property for several months with that purpose in view, dispensed with the necessity of notice. Barker v. Barker, 136 N.C. 316, 48 S.E. 733 (1904).

Where the supporting spouse abandons the dependent spouse and leaves the State, notice of hearing on motion for alimony pendente lite is not required, nor is service on the supporting spouse's counsel of record required. Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 40 N.C. App. 397, 252 S.E.2d 849 (1979), cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 446 U.S. 930, 100 S. Ct. 2144, 64 L. Ed. 2d 783 (1980).

Specification of Time of Hearing. — The fact that a notice of a motion for alimony pendente lite, duly served upon the defendant, did not specify the time of hearing, did not invalidate the order allowing the same, it having been heard at a time of court at which the cause stood regularly for trial. Zimmerman v. Zimmerman, 113 N.C. 432, 18 S.E. 334 (1893).

Whether the wife is entitled to alimony pendente lite is a question of law, upon the facts found, and is reviewable on appeal by either party. Morris v. Morris, 89 N.C. 109 (1883); Moore v. Moore, 130 N.C. 333, 41 S.E. 943 (1902); Barker v. Barker, 136 N.C. 316, 48 S.E. 733 (1904).

Jury Trial Not Required. — In respect of allowances for alimony and counsel fees pendente lite, the allowances pendente lite form no part of the ultimate relief sought and do not affect the final rights of the parties, and the power of the judge to make them is constitutionally exercised without the intervention of the jury. Davis v. Davis, 269 N.C. 120, 152 S.E.2d 306 (1967).

Pursuant to subsection (g) of this section, a supporting spouse is not entitled to a jury trial on the matter of alimony pendente lite. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

Power of Court to Require Disclosure of Information. — The court has jurisdiction of the parties and has plenary power and authority to require the disclosure of any information which is within their knowledge or is available to them bearing upon a temporary allowance. It is not necessary that the parties agree as to what the husband's income is. The findings of the court will not be disturbed if based on competent evidence. Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961).

Right of Defendant to Offer Evidence. — Where it affirmatively appeared that defendant was not permitted to offer evidence which was pertinent to the allegations of the complaint, exception thereto would be sustained. Parker v. Parker, 261 N.C. 176, 134 S.E.2d 174 (1964).

Discretion of Judge as to Form of Evidence. — The words "may be heard in or out of term, orally or upon affidavit, or either or both" in former § 50-16 gave the judge hearing the motion for alimony pendente lite the discretion to decide in what form he should receive the evidence in his efforts to ascertain the truth. Miller v. Miller, 270 N.C. 140, 153 S.E.2d 854 (1967).

Judge Must Pass on Truth or Falsity of Evidence. — When the issue has been raised as to whether the husband has separated himself from the wife, it is not sufficient that the judge merely examine the evidence or testimony to see whether there is any evidence to support plaintiff's charges or allegations which would operate as a prima facie showing. He must, by application of his sound judgment, pass upon its truth or falsity and find according to his conviction. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

And Must Make Findings of Fact. — The provision of § 1A-1, Rule 52(a)(2) that the trial judge is not required to make findings of fact unless requested to do so by a party does not abrogate the specific requirement of subsection (f) of this section that the trial judge shall make findings of fact upon an application for alimony pendente lite, since the Rules of Civil Procedure are of general application and do not abrogate the requirements of a statute of more specificity. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 7 N.C. App. 562, 173 S.E.2d 33 (1970).

Section 1A-1, Rule 52 does not apply in awarding alimony pendente lite. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

While the precise factual findings which must be made under subsection (f) of this section will vary depending upon the pleadings, evidence and circumstances of each case, the trial judge must make sufficient findings of the controverted material facts at issue to show that the award of alimony pendente lite is justified and appropriate. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971); Presson v. Presson, 13 N.C. App. 81, 185 S.E.2d 17 (1971).

But Detailed Findings Are Not Required. — In making findings of fact under subsection (f) of this section, it is not necessary that the trial judge make detailed findings as to each allegation and evidentiary fact presented. It is only necessary that he find the ultimate facts sufficient to establish that the dependent spouse is entitled to an award of alimony pendente lite under the provisions of § 50-16.3(a). Blake v. Blake, 6 N.C. App. 410, 170 S.E.2d 87 (1969).

In making findings of fact, it is not necessary that the trial judge make detailed findings as to each allegation and evidentiary fact presented. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Findings Must Show That Award Is Justified. — The Court of Appeals does not interpret subsection (f) of this section to require the trial judge to make findings as to each allegation and evidentiary fact presented. However, it is necessary for the trial judge to make findings from which it can be determined, upon appellate review, that an award of alimony pendente lite is justified and appropriate in the case. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 7 N.C. App. 562, 173 S.E.2d 33 (1970); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972); Newsome v. Newsome, 22 N.C. App. 651, 207 S.E.2d 355 (1974).

It is necessary for the trial judge to make findings from which it can be determined, upon appellate review, that an award of alimony pendente lite is justified and appropriate in the case. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

And the judge must find ultimate facts sufficient to establish that the dependent spouse is entitled to an award of alimony pendente lite under the provisions of § 50-16.3(a). Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

As Well as Specific Factual Findings as to Ultimate Facts. — Specific factual findings as to each ultimate fact at issue upon which the rights of the litigants are predicated must be found. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

As to what are evidentiary facts and what are ultimate facts, see Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Finding of Fact as Narrative Statement of Ultimate Fact. — A finding of fact in an alimony pendente lite matter is a narrative statement by the trial judge of the ultimate fact at issue and need not include the evidentiary or subsidiary facts required to prove the ultimate facts. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

Findings that the defendant left the home on July 21, 1970, had abandoned the plaintiff, and had failed to provide adequate support for her were a narrative statement of some of the ultimate facts at issue, and were not conclusions. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

The ultimate facts at issue in proceedings often differ, and thus a necessary finding of facts in one case may not be necessary in another case. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

The findings of fact in any given case should be "tailor-made" to settle the matters at issue between the parties. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Present Requirement for Findings of Fact Is Departure from Previous Practice. — The present statutory requirement for findings of fact by the trial judge in pendente lite awards of alimony is a departure from the practice as it existed prior to October 1, 1967. Hatcher v. Hatcher, 7 N.C. App. 562, 173 S.E.2d 33 (1970); Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

The requirement of subsection (f) of this section that facts be found to support an award of alimony is a new one imposed by Session Laws 1967, c. 1153, s. 2. Austin v. Austin, 12 N.C. App. 286, 183 S.E.2d 420 (1971).

The statutory requirement for findings of fact changes the prior rule that no findings of fact were necessary in alimony pendente lite matters unless adultery was charged against the wife. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972).

The distinction between the "finding of facts" and the "stating of conclusions" by the trial judge after he has heard the evidence in an alimony pendente lite matter is somewhat analogous to the distinction between a witness testifying as to a "fact" and stating his "opinion." Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Facts are the basis for conclusions, and to call a "conclusion" a "finding of fact" does not make it one. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971).

Facts found in an alimony pendente lite case must be determinative of all questions at issue. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

A failure to make a proper finding of fact in a matter at issue will result in prejudicial error, especially where the evidence is conflicting. Peoples v. Peoples, 10 N.C. App. 402, 179 S.E.2d 138 (1971); Sprinkle v. Sprinkle, 17 N.C. App. 175, 193 S.E.2d 468 (1972).

Award of permanent alimony ordinarily terminates an order for subsistence pendente lite or counsel fees. Rickert v. Rickert, 282 N.C. 373, 193 S.E.2d 79 (1972); Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Where a pendente lite order by its express language was effective only "pending the trial of this action," it was in all respects superseded by the rendition of the final judgment. Clarke v. Clarke, 47 N.C. App. 249, 267 S.E.2d 361 (1980).

Stay of Execution Pending Appeal. — Where alimony pendente lite is allowed, and the husband (supporting spouse) appeals from such order, an injunction should be granted to stay execution against the property of the husband pending the appeal. Barker v. Barker, 136 N.C. 316, 48 S.E. 733 (1904).

§ 50-16.9. Modification of order.

(a) An order of a court of this State for alimony or postseparation support, whether contested or entered by consent, may be modified or vacated at any time, upon motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances by either party or anyone interested. This section shall not apply to orders entered by consent before October 1, 1967.

Any motion to modify or terminate alimony or postseparation support based on a resumption of marital relations between parties who remain married to each other shall be determined pursuant to G.S. 52-10.2.

(b) If a dependent spouse who is receiving postseparation support or alimony from a supporting spouse under a judgment or order of a court of this State remarries or engages in cohabitation, the postseparation support or alimony shall terminate. Postseparation support or alimony shall terminate upon the death of either the supporting or the dependent spouse.

As used in this subsection, cohabitation means the act of two adults dwelling together continuously and habitually in a private heterosexual relationship, even if this relationship is not solemnized by marriage, or a private homosexual relationship. Cohabitation is evidenced by the voluntary mutual assumption of those marital rights, duties, and obligations which are usually manifested by married people, and which include, but are not necessarily dependent on, sexual relations. Nothing in this section shall be construed to make lawful conduct which is made unlawful by other statutes.

(c) When an order for alimony has been entered by a court of another jurisdiction, a court of this State may, upon gaining jurisdiction over the person of both parties in a civil action instituted for that purpose, and upon a showing of changed circumstances, enter a new order for alimony which modifies or supersedes such order for alimony to the extent that it could have been so modified in the jurisdiction where granted. (1871-2, c. 193, ss. 38, 39; 1883, c. 67; Code, ss. 1291, 1292; Rev., ss. 1566, 1567; 1919, c. 24; C.S., ss. 1666, 1667; 1921, c. 123; 1923, c. 52; 1951, c. 893, s. 3; 1953, c. 925; 1955, cc. 814, 1189; 1961, c. 80; 1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1987, c. 664, s. 3; 1995, c. 319, s. 7.)

Cross References. — As to distribution by court of marital property upon divorce, see § 50-20.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319 read as follows: "Modification of order.

"(a) An order of a court of this State for alimony or alimony pendente lite, whether contested or entered by consent, may be modified or vacated at any time, upon motion in the cause and a showing of changed circumstances by either party or anyone interested. This section shall not apply to orders entered by consent before October 1, 1967.

"Any motion to modify or terminate alimony or alimony pendente lite based on a resumption of marital relations between parties who remain married to each other shall be determined pursuant to G.S. 52-10.2.

"(b) If a dependent spouse who is receiving alimony under a judgment or order of a court of this State shall remarry, said alimony shall terminate.

"(c) When an order for alimony has been entered by a court of another jurisdiction, a court of this State may, upon gaining jurisdiction over the person of both parties in a civil action instituted for that purpose, and upon a showing of changed circumstances, enter a new order for alimony which modifies or supersedes such order for alimony to the extent that it could have been so modified in the jurisdiction where granted."

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 7, which amended this section, was effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For a survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

For note on reinstatement of alimony under a prior divorce decree after annulment of remarriage, see 14 Wake Forest L. Rev. 273 (1978).

For survey of 1978 family law, see 57 N.C.L. Rev. 1084 (1979).

For note on specific performance of separation agreements, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 867 (1980).

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For note on separability of support and property provisions in ambiguous separation agreements, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 152 (1980).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the State in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For note on consent judgments in family law in light of Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), see 6 Campbell L. Rev. 125 (1984).

For note, "Discarding the Dual Consent Judgment Approach in Family Law in Light of Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983)," see 20 Wake Forest L. Rev. 297 (1984).

For note, "Alimony Modification and Cohabitation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. (1985).

For survey, "Termination of Lump Sum Alimony upon the Remarriage of a Dependent Spouse: Potts v. Tutterow," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2432 (1995).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50-14, which dealt with alimony in actions for divorce a mensa et thoro, former § 50-15, which dealt with alimony pendente lite in divorce actions, and former § 50-16, which dealt with actions for alimony without divorce.

Former sections 50-16.1 Through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Jurisdiction Under Long-Arm Statute. — This section provides only that an alimony order entered by a court of another jurisdiction may be modified by a court of this State "upon gaining jurisdiction over the person of both parties"; therefore, statutory jurisdiction arises, if at all, under § 1-75.4, the North Carolina "long-arm" statute. Schofield v. Schofield, 78 N.C. App. 657, 338 S.E.2d 132 (1986).

Money payments are "things of value" within the meaning of § 1-75.4(5)d, the long-arm statute; thus, in an action brought by resident husband against nonresident wife to have alimony obligation reduced or terminated, statutory jurisdiction existed. However, under the circumstances, defendant did not have sufficient minimum contacts with North Carolina and her motion to dismiss for lack of personal jurisdiction was improperly denied. Schofield v. Schofield, 78 N.C. App. 657, 338 S.E.2d 132 (1986).

An order for payment of alimony is not a final judgment, since it may be modified upon application of either party; thus, an action for alimony would continue to be "pending" in the court of proper jurisdiction, which is now the district court. Peoples v. Peoples, 8 N.C. App. 136, 174 S.E.2d 2 (1970).

A final judgment could not be entered under former § 50-16, as the necessity of such provisions for the wife and children would cease if the parties resumed the marriage relation, and could not properly be continued if the husband procured a divorce for the fault of the wife. Skittletharpe v. Skittletharpe, 130 N.C. 72, 40 S.E. 851 (1902); Hooper v. Hooper, 164 N.C. 1, 80 S.E. 64 (1913); Crews v. Crews, 175 N.C. 168, 95 S.E. 149 (1918).

An order entered under former § 50-16 was not a final determination and did not affect the final rights of the parties. Deal v. Deal, 259 N.C. 489, 131 S.E.2d 24 (1963).

And the allowance is subject to modification from time to time. Harrell v. Harrell, 256 N.C. 96, 123 S.E.2d 220 (1961).

The court may reopen and amend prior orders awarding subsistence to wife and children. Wright v. Wright, 216 N.C. 693, 6 S.E.2d 555 (1940).

Where, within the exercise of his sound discretion, the judge having jurisdiction has allowed the wife a reasonable subsistence, attorneys' fees, etc., in her proceedings for alimony without divorce, the order of allowance may be thereafter modified or vacated as the statute provides upon application to the proper jurisdiction for the circumstances to be inquired into and the merits of the case determined. Anderson v. Anderson, 183 N.C. 139, 110 S.E. 863 (1922).

Modification of Alimony Improper Where Motion Only Sought Modification of Child Support. — Where, the only motion before the trial court was one for modification of child support, not alimony, and at no point in the proceedings did either party move for modification of the alimony payments, order modifying alimony agreement would be reversed. Van Nynatten v. Van Nynatten, 113 N.C. App. 142, 438 S.E.2d 417 (1993).

Upon a Showing of Changed Conditions. — An order for support is not final, and may be modified or set aside on a showing of changed conditions. Byers v. Byers, 223 N.C. 85, 25 S.E.2d 466 (1943).

An order for the payment of alimony is res judicata between the parties, but is not a final judgment, since the court has the power, upon application of either party, to modify the order for changed conditions of the parties. Barber v. Barber, 217 N.C. 422, 8 S.E.2d 204 (1940).

An award of subsistence for defendant and the children born of the marriage, decreed by a court in conjunction with a divorce a mensa et thoro, before the commencement of a proceeding by the wife for a divorce a vincula under the provisions of § 50-6, which she obtained, can be increased in amount by the court in its discretion, on her motion in the action when and where subsistence was awarded, when changed circumstances of the parties reasonably require it. Rayfield v. Rayfield, 242 N.C. 691, 89 S.E.2d 399 (1955).

A court may vacate or modify its prior award of either permanent or temporary alimony upon a showing of changed circumstances. Roberts v. Roberts, 38 N.C. App. 295, 248 S.E.2d 85 (1978).

Although there is no requirement that the alimony be modified, upon a showing of changed circumstance, the trial court should consider, in its discretion, whether to modify the original decree of alimony. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 121 N.C. App. 771, 468 S.E.2d 466 (1996), rev'd on other grounds, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

Changed Circumstances Relating to Factors in Original Determination of Alimony. — Only those changed circumstances that relate to the factors used in the original determination of the amount of alimony awarded are relevant to a request for modification. Kowalick v. Kowalick, 129 N.C. App. 781, 501 S.E.2d 671 (1998).

Modification Referable to Date Petition Filed. — Orders which modify alimony or support payments effective as of the date of the petition, or subsequent thereto, but prior to the date of the order of modification, are not subject to the criticism that they have retroactive effect which destroys vested rights. This is true because the modification and the whole proceeding in which it is made are referable to the date of the filing of the petition and any change effective as of that date cannot be said to be retroactive. Hill v. Hill, 335 N.C. 140, 435 S.E.2d 766 (1993).

Support Payments Not Part of Integrated Agreement. — The opinion in Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983) did not change the law in North Carolina that property settlement provisions of a separation agreement included in a consent decree are beyond the power of the judge to modify without the consent of both parties, nor did it change the law in North Carolina which prohibits the modification of support provisions of an integrated property settlement agreement; however, since support payments not part of an integrated agreement are modifiable by law, Walters would allow such support provisions to be modified if included in a court-ordered decree at the request of the parties. Hayes v. Hayes, 100 N.C. App. 138, 394 S.E.2d 675 (1990).

But a New Order for Alimony After Final Divorce Is Not Authorized. — Although an order granting alimony may be modified, when a party has secured an absolute divorce, it is beyond the power of the court thereafter to enter a new order for alimony. Baugh v. Baugh, 44 N.C. App. 50, 260 S.E.2d 161 (1979).

Order for subsistence pendente lite may be modified at any time before the trial on application of either party. Rock v. Rock, 260 N.C. 223, 132 S.E.2d 342 (1963).

Material Change Not Required for Modification of Order for Alimony Pendente Lite. — An order for subsistence pendente lite may be modified at any time before trial on application of either party without a finding of a material change of condition. Snuggs v. Snuggs, 260 N.C. 533, 133 S.E.2d 174 (1963).

Either Party May Apply for Modification of Award of Alimony Pendente Lite. — The amounts allowed for reasonable subsistence and counsel fees upon application for alimony pendente lite are determined by the trial court in its discretion and are not reviewable, although either party may apply for a modification before trial. Tiedemann v. Tiedemann, 204 N.C. 682, 169 S.E. 422 (1933).

Alimony regularly ordered to be paid a wife pendente lite may be increased or reduced in amount by the court from time to time, but that which she has already received in the course and practice of the courts may not be ordered to be given up by her. White v. White, 179 N.C. 592, 103 S.E. 216 (1920).

Power to Modify Includes Power to Terminate Award. — The power to modify includes, in a proper case, power to terminate the award absolutely. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966); Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

This power to modify includes the power to terminate alimony altogether. Self v. Self, 93 N.C. App. 323, 377 S.E.2d 800 (1989).

Survival of Lump Sum Award. — A lump sum alimony award that has vested prior to the dependent spouse's remarriage survives the remarriage. Potts v. Tutterow, 114 N.C. App. 360, 442 S.E.2d 90 (1994), aff'd, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, reh'g denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Lump Sum's Failure to Vest. — Lump sum award did not vest prior to the defendant's remarriage where defendant was only entitled to semi-monthly payments and if plaintiff failed to make one of the payments, defendant could only execute on that amount. Potts v. Tutterow, 114 N.C. App. 360, 442 S.E.2d 90 (1994), aff'd, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, reh'g denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Change of Dependent Spouse Status Not Contemplated. — Although dependent spouse status is not properly reconsidered on a motion for modification and a change in circumstances could result in a reduction of alimony to zero, such modification does not result in the loss of dependent spouse status. Kowalick v. Kowalick, 129 N.C. App. 781, 501 S.E.2d 671 (1998).

This section does not contemplate that the jury should pass on requests for reductions in alimony because of changed circumstances; the motion is addressed to the trial judge. Shankle v. Shankle, 26 N.C. App. 565, 216 S.E.2d 915, cert. denied, 288 N.C. 394, 218 S.E.2d 467 (1975).

Judgment Presumed Correct. — The presumption is in favor of the correctness of the judgment of the lower court and the burden is upon appellant to show error. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

When the evidence is not in the record, it will be presumed that there was sufficient evidence to support the findings of fact necessary to support the judgment. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C.

App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

As to basing of award on capacity to earn in certain circumstances, see Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971); Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

Contempt Hearing May Not Be Transformed to Modification Hearing Without Notice. — The court, on its own motion and without notice to plaintiff, cannot transform a hearing for defendant to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for willful failure to comply with a court order to pay alimony and support into a hearing for modification of such order. Conrad v. Conrad, 35 N.C. App. 114, 239 S.E.2d 862 (1978).

Trial court's suspension of support payments without proper motion by defendant and without notice in a hearing for defendant to show cause why he should not be held in contempt for failure to pay support deprived plaintiff of her property rights without due process as required by the U.S. Const., Amend. XIV and N.C. Const., Art. I, § 19. Conrad v. Conrad, 35 N.C. App. 114, 239 S.E.2d 862 (1978).

Court order requiring defendant to secure payment of temporary alimony by means of a deed of trust did not give plaintiff fixed or permanent interest as cestui que trust, or any right to the entire proceeds of foreclosure sale under deed of trust; the order simply provided a means of securing payment of alimony, and the court was not required to find a change of circumstances as a basis for ordering the payment of a part of the proceeds of foreclosure sale to satisfy a judgment lien against defendant or to pay the fee of defendant's attorney. Johnson v. Johnson, 25 N.C. App. 448, 213 S.E.2d 427 (1975).

Section Does Not Expressly Authorize Award of Counsel Fees. — This section contains no express statutory authorization for an order directing payment of counsel fees for services rendered subsequent to an absolute divorce of the parties. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

But Such Fees May Be Awarded Subsequent to Absolute Divorce. — Unless the case falls within one of the two exceptions made by § 50-11(c), counsel fees may be awarded for services rendered to a dependent spouse subsequent to an absolute divorce in seeking to obtain or in resisting a motion for a revision of alimony or other rights provided under any judgment or decree of a court rendered before or at the time of the rendering of the judgment for absolute divorce. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

And Such Award Is Discretionary. — Whether any award of counsel fees for services subsequent to an absolute divorce should be made in a particular case, and the amount of such an award, must remain within the sound discretion of the trial court. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

Showing Necessary to Obtain Attorneys' Fees. — To be entitled to attorney fees it must be shown that they were necessary to enable the dependent spouse to litigate on substantially even terms by making it possible for her to employ counsel. The dependent spouse must be unable to defray the necessary expenses of the litigation. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

In order to obtain an award of counsel fees in a proceeding seeking a modification of alimony subsequent to divorce, the party seeking the fees must show: (1) That he or she is a dependent spouse; (2) that he or she is entitled to the relief demanded based upon all the evidence; and (3) that he or she has insufficient means to defray the expenses of the proceeding. Cecil v. Cecil, 74 N.C. App. 455, 328 S.E.2d 899 (1985).

Award of Counsel Fees Held Proper. — The former husband, by his own action in seeking to terminate his obligation to make further payments to plaintiff, forced the plaintiff to incur expenses for attorneys' fees simply to preserve rights which were already hers as result of a decree originally entered prior to the divorce. The trial court had authority, in its sound discretion, to order defendant to pay plaintiff's reasonable counsel fees. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

Award of Attorneys' Fees Held Improper. — Attorneys' fees can properly be awarded in custody and child support cases upon adequate findings that the moving party acted in good faith and has insufficient means to defray the expense of the suit; thus, in an action for child support, custody and alimony, where the court found that plaintiff did not have sufficient income and assets with which to pay her attorney, but made no finding as to plaintiff's good faith in bringing the action, the award of attorneys' fees could not stand. Voshell v. Voshell, 68 N.C. App. 733, 315 S.E.2d 763 (1984).

New Motion After Failure of Original. — Where a motion to reduce alimony pendente lite has been disallowed, another motion for the same purpose should not be heard unless a different state of facts is shown and a receipt exhibited for a reasonable proportion of the allowance made at the former hearing. Moore v. Moore, 131 N.C. 371, 42 S.E. 822 (1902).

Appeal of order terminating dependent spouse's right to receive temporary alimony was not premature, as the question of plaintiff's continued entitlement to the previously ordered alimony pendente lite until such time as her prayer for permanent alimony could be heard affected a "substantial right" of the dependent spouse. Brown v. Brown, 85 N.C. App. 602, 355 S.E.2d 525, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 511, 358 S.E.2d 516 (1987).

The trial court's failure to make any findings regarding plaintiff's reasonable current financial needs and expenses and the ratio of those needs and expenses to her income constituted error. Self v. Self, 93 N.C. App. 323, 377 S.E.2d 800 (1989).

Evidentiary Hearing Required. — Where a separation agreement did not contain explicit, unequivocal provisions on integration or nonintegration, an evidentiary hearing was required to determine the intent of the parties regarding whether the agreement was separable or integrated. Hayes v. Hayes, 100 N.C. App. 138, 394 S.E.2d 675 (1990).

For a case discussing modification of separation agreements prior to the decision in Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), which was expressly made prospective only and applies to judgments entered on or after 11 January 1983, see Rogers v. Rogers, 111 N.C. App. 606, 432 S.E.2d 907 (1993).

Applied in Brooks v. Brooks, 12 N.C. App. 626, 184 S.E.2d 417 (1971); Downey v. Downey, 29 N.C. App. 375, 224 S.E.2d 255 (1976); Lindsey v. Lindsey, 34 N.C. App. 201, 237 S.E.2d 561 (1977); Rowe v. Rowe, 74 N.C. App. 54, 327 S.E.2d 624 (1985); Barham v. Barham, 127 N.C. App. 20, 487 S.E.2d 774 (1997), aff'd, 347 N.C. 570, 494 S.E.2d 763 (1998).

Quoted in Dunn v. Dunn, 1 N.C. App. 532, 162 S.E.2d 73 (1968).

Stated in Ratton v. Ratton, 73 N.C. App. 642, 327 S.E.2d 1 (1985).

Cited in Smith v. Smith, 17 N.C. App. 416, 194 S.E.2d 568 (1973); Bowen v. Bowen, 19 N.C. App. 710, 200 S.E.2d 214 (1973); Bailey v. Bailey, 26 N.C. App. 444, 216 S.E.2d 394 (1975); Bugher v. Bugher, 34 N.C. App. 601, 239 S.E.2d 303 (1977); Russ v. Russ, 43 N.C. App. 74, 257 S.E.2d 676 (1979); Markham v. Markham, 53 N.C. App. 18, 279 S.E.2d 905 (1981); Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29 (1982); Coleman v. Coleman, 74 N.C. App. 494, 328 S.E.2d 871 (1985); Graham v. Graham, 77 N.C. App. 422, 335 S.E.2d 210 (1985); Rice v. Rice, 81 N.C. App. 247, 344 S.E.2d 41 (1986); Hayes v. Hayes, 100 N.C. App. 138, 394 S.E.2d 675 (1990); Rhew v. Rhew, 138 N.C. App. 467, 531 S.E.2d 471 (2000).

II. CHANGE OF CIRCUMSTANCES.

A change in circumstances must be shown in order to modify an order relating to custody, support or alimony. Elmore v. Elmore, 4 N.C. App. 192, 166 S.E.2d 506 (1969); McDowell v. McDowell, 13 N.C. App. 643, 186 S.E.2d 621 (1972).

A court is not warranted in modifying or changing a prior valid order absent a showing of a change in conditions. Vandooren v. Vandooren, 27 N.C. App. 279, 218 S.E.2d 715 (1975).

A change of condition and circumstances must be established before an order for the support of children and permanent alimony can be modified. Rock v. Rock, 260 N.C. 223, 132 S.E.2d 342 (1963).

Termination of Consent Order for Alimony Justified. — Defendant husband was entitled to have his alimony payments terminated pursuant to § 50-16.9(b), as trial court order directing that he continue to pay alimony was a consent order rather than an order of specific performance of his and plaintiff wife's separation agreement, and thus, allowed for termination because parties agreed that statutory grounds for termination of alimony, that plaintiff was cohabiting with another man, existed, regardless of the separation agreement provisions. Jones v. Jones, 144 N.C. App. 595, 548 S.E.2d 565 (2001).

Party moving for modification of an award of alimony has the burden of showing a change of circumstances. Gill v. Gill, 29 N.C. App. 20, 222 S.E.2d 754 (1976).

The burden of proving, by a preponderance of the evidence, that a material change in the circumstances has occurred is upon the party requesting the modification. Shore v. Shore, 15 N.C. App. 629, 190 S.E.2d 666 (1972).

Upon a motion for modification of an award of alimony and support pendente lite, the movant had the burden of going forward with the evidence to show a change of circumstances. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971); McDowell v. McDowell, 13 N.C. App. 643, 186 S.E.2d 621 (1972).

A finding of a change of circumstances does not necessarily require or justify modification of the previous order. Robinson v. Robinson, 10 N.C. App. 463, 179 S.E.2d 144 (1971).

Relevant Circumstances Listed in § 50-16.5. — The change of circumstances required by this section for modification of an alimony order involve those circumstances listed in § 50-16.5. Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

To determine whether a change of circumstances under this section has occurred, it is necessary to refer to the circumstances or factors used in the original determination of the amount of alimony awarded under § 50-16.5. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Change Must Relate to Financial Needs or Ability to Pay. — As a general rule, the changed circumstances necessary for modification of an alimony order must relate to the financial needs of the dependent spouse or the supporting spouse's ability to pay. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Post-Marital Conduct Is Not a Changed Circumstance. — The "changed circumstances" under this section must bear upon the financial needs of the dependent spouse or the ability of the supporting spouse to pay. The term has no relevance to the post-marital conduct of either party. Stallings v. Stallings, 36 N.C. App. 643, 244 S.E.2d 494, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 249 (1978); Britt v. Britt, 49 N.C. App. 463, 271 S.E.2d 921 (1980).

There is no statute that allows the court to modify an award of alimony solely because of post-marital fornication. Stallings v. Stallings, 36 N.C. App. 643, 244 S.E.2d 494, cert. denied, 295 N.C. 648, 248 S.E.2d 249 (1978).

Any Considerable Change in Health or Financial Condition Warrants Change of Decree. — Any considerable change in the health or financial condition of the parties will warrant an application for change or modification of an alimony decree. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966); Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

But payment of alimony may not be avoided merely because it has become burdensome, or because the husband has remarried and voluntarily assumed additional obligations. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966); Crosby v. Crosby, 272 N.C. 235, 158 S.E.2d 77 (1967).

Reduction in Husband's Salary or Income. — The fact that the husband's salary or income has been reduced substantially does not automatically entitle him to a reduction in alimony or maintenance. If the husband is able to make the payments as originally ordered, notwithstanding the reduction in his income, and the other facts of the case make it proper to continue the payments, the court may refuse to modify the decree. Medlin v. Medlin, 64 N.C. App. 600, 307 S.E.2d 591 (1983).

Increase in Wife's Needs or Decrease in Estate. — An increase in the wife's needs, or a decrease in her separate estate, may warrant an increase in alimony. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

On a motion to modify or terminate an order of alimony, it is appropriate for the trial court to consider whether the dependent spouse's financial need, that is, dependency, as it relates to the factors in § 50-16.5, has changed. Cunningham v. Cunningham, 345 N.C. 430, 480 S.E.2d 403 (1997).

Decrease in Wife's Needs. — A decrease in the wife's needs is a change in condition which may be properly considered in passing upon a husband's motion to reduce her allowance. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

Acquisition of Property or Increase in Its Value. — The fact that the wife has acquired a substantial amount of property, or that her property has increased in value, after entry of a decree for alimony or maintenance, is an important consideration in determining whether and to what extent the decree should be modified. Sayland v. Sayland, 267 N.C. 378, 148 S.E.2d 218 (1966).

An increase in the dependent spouse's income would entitle the supporting spouse to petition for modification of the alimony order under this section. Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

As to wife's income, see also Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Effect of Change in Income. — A modification should be founded upon a change in the overall circumstances of the parties. A change in income alone says nothing about the total circumstances of a party. The significant inquiry is how that change in income affects a supporting spouse's ability to pay or a dependent spouse's need for support. Rowe v. Rowe, 52 N.C. App. 646, 280 S.E.2d 182 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

A conclusion as a matter of law that changed circumstances exist, based only on the parties' incomes, is erroneous and must be reversed. Britt v. Britt, 49 N.C. App. 463, 271 S.E.2d 921 (1980).

Failure to Exercise Capacity to Earn. — A court may refuse to modify a support and/or alimony award on the grounds that the husband has failed to exercise his reasonable capacity to earn because of a disregard of his marital and parental obligations to provide reasonable support for his wife and minor child. Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

The determination that a husband's change in circumstances has been voluntarily effected by him in disregard of his marital and parental obligations justifying imposition of the earnings capacity rule is a conclusion of law based on the factual findings in the particular case. Wachacha v. Wachacha, 38 N.C. App. 504, 248 S.E.2d 375 (1978).

Change Must Be Substantial. — Not any change of circumstances will be sufficient to order modification of an alimony award; rather, the phrase is used as a term of art to mean a substantial change in conditions, upon which the moving party bears the burden of proving that the present award is either inadequate or unduly burdensome. Britt v. Britt, 49 N.C. App. 463, 271 S.E.2d 921 (1980).

The change in circumstances must be substantial, with a final decision based on a comparison of the facts existing at the time of the original order and the time when the modification is sought. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C.

269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Determining Whether Substantial Change Occurred. — The present overall circumstances of the parties must be compared with the circumstances existing at the time of the original award in order to determine if there has been a substantial change. Britt v. Britt, 49 N.C. App. 463, 271 S.E.2d 921 (1980).

Changed circumstances do not have to be pled with specificity. White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Sufficiency of Allegations. — Allegations in a motion for modification to the effect that the then-current alimony payments were inadequate were sufficient to withstand defendant's motion to dismiss. Specific allegations as to the basis of such inadequacy were not required. White v. White, 37 N.C. App. 471, 246 S.E.2d 591 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Plaintiff's allegation in a motion for increased support that the payments she was receiving were totally inadequate under current circumstances was sufficient to withstand a motion to dismiss under § 1A-1, Rule 12(b)(6). White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Trial court could not automatically terminate alimony upon cohabitation where action was filed before the provisions of this section were applicable. Bookholt v. Bookholt, 136 N.C. App. 247, 523 S.E.2d 729 (1999).

Mere discovery of dependent spouse's adultery held not sufficient for a finding of "changed circumstances" necessary for a modification of an order of alimony pendente lite under subsection (a) of this section, where the adultery occurred before the parties' separation and before plaintiff filed her complaint for divorce, and where the pleadings revealed that defendant suspected his wife's adultery and alleged adultery as a bar to plaintiff's claim for permanent alimony under § 50-16.6(a) and entered into a consent judgment agreeing to pay her alimony pendente lite. Brown v. Brown, 85 N.C. App. 602, 355 S.E.2d 525, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 511, 358 S.E.2d 516 (1987).

Fulfillment of Assumptions in Original Order. — Where in the original order, the court clearly calculated the amount of alimony on the assumption that plaintiff would be able to secure a job paying at least minimum wage, the fact that plaintiff subsequently did so did not substantially alter the relative positions of the parties. Hightower v. Hightower, 85 N.C. App. 333, 354 S.E.2d 743, cert. denied, 320 N.C. 792, 361 S.E.2d 76 (1987).

Where neither party moving for a modification of an award of alimony presented evidence as to the circumstances of the parties on which the original award of alimony was based, and no finding was made as to such circumstances, it could not be determined if there was a change of circumstances, and defendant's motion to reduce the amount of the award would be denied. Gill v. Gill, 29 N.C. App. 20, 222 S.E.2d 754 (1976).

Refusal to Reduce Alimony Upheld. — Where although plaintiff ex-wife, at time of hearing, made $22,788.00 per year, she had a debt of $20,000.00, much of which was attributable to defendant's failure to make past alimony payments, the trial court did not err in failing to reduce defendant ex-husband's alimony payments to her. Patton v. Patton, 88 N.C. App. 715, 364 S.E.2d 700 (1988).

Change of Circumstances Not Shown. — Findings of fact found by the trial court held supported by the evidence and clearly and more than amply supported the court's conclusion that defendant had failed to show a substantial change of circumstances that would warrant a modification of consent judgment providing for alimony and child support. Outlaw v. Outlaw, 89 N.C. App. 538, 366 S.E.2d 247 (1988).

III. SEPARATION AGREEMENTS, CONSENT JUDGMENTS, ETC.

Editor's Note. — Many of the cases cited below were decided prior to rendition of the opinion in Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), cited below.

Legislative Intent. — The legislative intent, as expressed in this section, is that the public policy of North Carolina shall be in favor of modification of alimony provisions contained in consent judgments and the analogous area of incorporated separation agreements. Acosta v. Clark, 70 N.C. App. 111, 318 S.E.2d 551 (1984).

Separation agreements that have not been incorporated into a court order cannot be modified by the court except with the consent of the parties. Voshell v. Voshell, 68 N.C. App. 733, 315 S.E.2d 763 (1984).

Two Types of Consent Judgments No Longer Distinguished. — Two separate forms of consent judgments within domestic relations law, i.e., court approved contracts and court ordered consent judgments resulting from adoption of separation agreements, will no longer be recognized. Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983).

All Separation Agreements Approved by Court Are Modifiable. — Whenever the parties bring their separation agreements before the court for the court's approval, it will no longer be treated as a contract between the parties. All separation agreements approved by the court as judgments of the court will be treated similarly, to-wit, as court ordered judgments. These court ordered separation agreements, as consent judgments, are modifiable, and enforceable by the contempt powers of the court, in the same manner as any other judgment in a domestic relations case. Walters v.

Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983).

But This Rule Applies Only to Judgments After January 11, 1983. — Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983), which announced the new rule that every court approved separation agreement is to be considered as part of a court ordered judgment and is thus modifiable and enforceable by the contempt powers of the court, applies only to judgments that were entered after January 11, 1983. Doub v. Doub, 68 N.C. App. 718, 315 S.E.2d 732 (1984), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 169, 326 S.E.2d 259 (1985); Cecil v. Cecil, 74 N.C. App. 455, 328 S.E.2d 899 (1985).

The parties can avoid the burdens of a court judgment by not submitting their agreement to the court. By not coming to court, the parties preserve their agreement as a contract, to be enforced and modified under traditional contract principles. Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983).

Options of Parties. — Consenting parties may still elect any of the options available to them prior to this opinion. For example, the parties may keep the property settlement provision aspects of their separation agreement out of court and in contract, while presenting their provision for alimony to the court for approval. The result of such action would be that the alimony provision is enforceable and modifiable as a court order while the property settlement provisions would be enforceable and modifiable under traditional contract methods. Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983).

The power of the court to enforce its judgment is no less and no greater for a court-adopted consent judgment than for a judgment resulting from a jury verdict in a hotly contested adversary proceeding. Henderson v. Henderson, 307 N.C. 401, 298 S.E.2d 345 (1983).

Once a separation agreement is incorporated into a court order, it loses its character as a contract and becomes a court order, which must then be enforced through the contempt powers of the court. Pitts v. Broyhill, 88 N.C. App. 651, 364 S.E.2d 738 (1988).

Nature of Award Is Determinative. — Whether a decree or award made pursuant to an agreement or arrangement between the parties is subject to modification may depend upon whether it is in effect an award of alimony or support or an adjustment and settlement of property rights. White v. White, 37 N.C. App. 471, 246 S.E.2d 591 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Agreement as to Alimony Is Binding. — Parties to a divorce may enter into a valid agreement settling the question of alimony, and unless the court then orders alimony to be paid, the terms of the agreement are binding and can only be modified by the consent of both parties. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Provisions of a valid arbitration award concerning alimony may by agreement be made binding on the parties and nonmodifiable by the courts, although provisions of the award concerning custody and child support continue to be within the court's jurisdiction and are modifiable pursuant to § 50-13.7. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

And Consent Judgment Settling All Rights of Parties May Not Be Modified. — A judgment which purports to be a complete settlement of all property and marital rights between the parties and which does not award alimony within the accepted definition of that term is not subject to modification even though it adjudges that the wife recover a specific money judgment. This is a consent judgment in its technical sense. Britt v. Britt, 36 N.C. App. 705, 245 S.E.2d 381 (1978).

If the support provision and the division of property constitute a reciprocal consideration so that the entire agreement would be destroyed by a modification of the support provision, they are not separable and may not be changed without the consent of both parties. Britt v. Britt, 36 N.C. App. 705, 245 S.E.2d 381 (1978).

If a divorce decree or a consent judgment merely approves and sanctions the support payments which the parties have agreed in a separation agreement will be paid to a spouse, then the separation agreement is simply a contract approved by the court. It cannot be modified by order of the court. Cecil v. Cecil, 59 N.C. App. 208, 296 S.E.2d 329 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 468, 299 S.E.2d 220 (1983).

But Consent Order for Alimony May Be Modified. — Under subsection (a) of this section, the spouse may obtain a modification of the order for permanent alimony upon a showing of changed circumstances, even though the order was by consent. Seaborn v. Seaborn, 32 N.C. App. 556, 233 S.E.2d 67 (1977); Bowes v. Bowes, 43 N.C. App. 586, 259 S.E.2d 389 (1979).

Where Court Adopts Parties' Agreement as Its Own. — Where a court adopts the agreement of the parties as its own determination of the rights of the parties and orders the husband to pay alimony, the consent judgment is a decree of the court and is modifiable and enforceable by contempt. Jones v. Jones, 42 N.C. App. 467, 256 S.E.2d 474 (1979).

A court-adopted consent judgment in a domestic setting has been variously characterized as a species of contract which has been superseded by the court's adoption of the agreement between the parties as its own determination of their respective rights and obligations. Once the court adopts the agreement of the parties and sets it forth as a judgment of the court with appropriate ordering language and the signature of the court, the contractual character of the agreement is subsumed into the court-ordered judgment. At that point the court and the parties are no longer dealing with a mere contract between the parties. That is not to say that such a contract may not eventually result in a judgment of the court which would be enforceable by contempt. Henderson v. Henderson, 307 N.C. 401, 298 S.E.2d 345 (1983).

For a court to have power to modify a consent judgment, the first requirement of this section, as with case law, is that the judgment consented to be an order of a court. The second essential requirement is that the order be one to pay alimony. White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Where the court incorporates by reference a separation agreement into a consent judgment, making the agreement a part of the judgment and ordering compliance with its terms, the agreement merges into the consent judgment and is superseded by the court's decree, any language to the contrary notwithstanding. Marks v. Marks, 316 N.C. 447, 342 S.E.2d 859 (1986), decided under the law as it existed prior to Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338, reh'g denied, 307 N.C. 703, 301 S.E.2d 397 (1983).

Unless Reciprocity Would Thereby Be Destroyed. — If the court adopts the separation agreement as its own determination of the rights and obligations of the parties and orders the support payments to be made, the separation agreement becomes a decree of the court. The support payments may then be modified upon a showing of a change in circumstances, unless the support provision and the other provisions of the separation agreement constitute reciprocal consideration for each other so that the agreement would be destroyed by a modification of the support provision. Cecil v. Cecil, 59 N.C. App. 208, 296 S.E.2d 329 (1982), cert. denied, 307 N.C. 468, 299 S.E.2d 220 (1983).

Even though denominated as such, provisions in a consent order for periodic support payments to a dependent spouse may not be alimony within the meaning of this section and thus modifiable if they and other provisions for a property division between the parties constitute reciprocal consideration for each other. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982); Doub v. Doub, 68 N.C. App. 718, 315 S.E.2d 732 (1984), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 169, 326 S.E.2d 259 (1985).

Even though denominated as such, support payment provisions may not be alimony, and thus modifiable, if those provisions and other provisions for a property division between the parties constitute a complete settlement of all property and marital rights between the parties. Furthermore, where those provisions constitute a reciprocal consideration, so that the entire agreement would be destroyed by a modification of the support provision, they are not separable and may not be changed without the consent of both parties. Walters v. Walters, 54 N.C. App. 545, 284 S.E.2d 151 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983); Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981).

Where provisions for alimony payments were included in one subsection of an eleven-part section of a separation agreement, in which section the parties detailed a "division and settlement of marital rights and remaining properties," the provisions for alimony payments to plaintiff wife and the other property distributions as provided by the separation agreement were clearly reciprocal and therefore not separable or modifiable. Doub v. Doub, 68 N.C. App. 718, 315 S.E.2d 732 (1984), modified on other grounds, 313 N.C. 169, 326 S.E.2d 259 (1985).

Support Provisions Merged into Consent Order so as to Preclude Modification. — Evidence held to support court's findings and conclusion that the support provisions in a separation agreement merged into a consent order and made a decree of the court were not separable but were reciprocal with the property settlement provisions, so as to preclude modification. Cecil v. Cecil, 74 N.C. App. 455, 328 S.E.2d 899 (1985), decided under the law obtaining prior to the decision in Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983).

Separable Provisions in Consent Judgment. — An agreement for the division of property rights and an order for the payment of alimony may be included as separable provisions in a consent judgment. In such event the division of property would be beyond the power of the court to change, but the order for future installments of alimony would be subject to modification in a proper case. However, if the support provision and the division of property constitute a reciprocal consideration so that the entire agreement would be destroyed by a modification of the support provision, they are not separable and may not be changed without the consent of both parties. Jones v. Jones, 42 N.C. App. 467, 256 S.E.2d 474 (1979).

An agreement for the division of property rights and an order for the payment of alimony may be included as separable provisions in a consent judgment. In such event the division of property would be beyond the power of the court to change, but the order for future installments of alimony would be subject to modification in a proper case. Britt v. Britt, 36 N.C. App. 705, 245 S.E.2d 381 (1978).

In North Carolina (1) an agreement for division of property rights, and (2) an order for the payment of alimony, within the accepted definition of that term, may be included as separable provisions in a consent judgment. In such a case, the alimony provision is subject to modification where it has been ordered by the district court. However, if the support provision and the division of property constitute a reciprocal consideration so that the entire agreement would be destroyed by a modification of the support provision, they are not separable and may not be changed without the consent of both parties. White v. White, 37 N.C. App. 471, 246 S.E.2d 591 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Where plaintiff failed to present any evidence to the district court which would tend to rebut the presumption of separability of provisions, the deed of separation incorporated into a 1974 consent judgment between the parties would not be deemed an integrated property settlement which could not be modified by the trial court. Marks v. Marks, 316 N.C. 447, 342 S.E.2d 859 (1986), decided under the law as it existed prior to Walters v. Walters, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338, rehearing denied, 307 N.C. 703, 301 S.E.2d 397 (1983).

How Separability Determined. — While an agreement for the division of property rights and an order for the payment of alimony may be included as separate provisions in a consent judgment, the fact that both provisions are included in the judgment is, standing alone, inconclusive of the issue of separability. White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

Recitals in a consent judgment and the judgment of divorce to the effect that all matters in controversy arising from the pleadings had been agreed upon were not determinable upon the question as to whether the support provision of the consent decree was separable, and therefore modifiable, or instead constituted consideration for a property settlement. White v. White, 37 N.C. App. 471, 246 S.E.2d 591 (1978), aff'd, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

In determining whether a provision in a consent judgment is for alimony alone and thus severable from the remaining provisions and terminable upon the wife's remarriage, or whether the provision for alimony and the provisions for division of property constitute reciprocal consideration so that they are not separable and may not be changed without the consent of both parties, a consent judgment must be construed in the same manner as a contract to ascertain the intent of the parties. Allison v. Allison, 51 N.C. App. 622, 277 S.E.2d 551, appeal dismissed and cert. denied, 303 N.C. 543, 281 S.E.2d 660 (1981).

Where a consent judgment is ambiguous, the intentions of the parties must be determined from evidence of the facts and circumstances surrounding its entry, just as the intentions of the parties to an ambiguous written contract must be determined from the surrounding circumstances. Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981).

Where the intention of the parties regarding the reciprocity of agreements in a consent order is not evident from a reading thereof, evidence of the negotiations and contemporaneous property settlement agreements of the parties is admissible to clarify the uncertainty created when the nonmodification provision of the order appears to be void as a matter of law under this section. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Burden of Proof on Separability. — In cases in which the question of whether provisions in a consent judgment or separation agreement are separable is not adequately addressed in the document itself, there is a presumption that provisions in a separation agreement or consent judgment made a part of the court's order are separable and that provisions for support payments therein are subject to modification upon an appropriate showing of changed circumstances. The effect of this presumption is to place the burden of proof on the issue of separability on the party opposing modification. The policies underlying the presumption require that this burden be discharged only by a preponderance of the evidence. White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979).

For purposes of determining whether a consent judgment may be modified under this section, there is a presumption that the provisions for property division and support payments are separable. The burden of proof rests on the party opposing modification to show that the provisions are not separable. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Consent Order Purporting to Waive Applicability of Section. — In accord with this section, a consent order containing a proviso purporting to waive the applicability of this section may be modified unless defendant can show that it was an integral part of the property settlement. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

By enacting this section, the legislature has clearly expressed that it is the public policy of this state that consent orders to pay alimony are modifiable. In the usual case a proviso in an order purporting to waive applicability of this section would be contrary to this policy and, therefore, without force and effect. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

In a consent judgment, the word "alimony" and the provision that plaintiff's support payments to defendant would continue "until the defendant remarries or dies," is evidence, albeit inconclusive, of the parties' intention to treat the support provisions as alimony. Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981).

Language in a consent judgment finding plaintiff a "dependent" spouse and defendant a "supporting" spouse are indicative of the payment and receipt of alimony and the absence of this language supports an interpretation that the payment provisions are not alimony. Walters v. Walters, 54 N.C. App. 545, 284 S.E.2d 151 (1981), rev'd on other grounds, 307 N.C. 381, 298 S.E.2d 338 (1983); Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981).

Language in the preamble to a consent judgment that "the parties had settled their differences" is subject to the interpretation that the agreement was considered a complete settlement by the parties. Barr v. Barr, 55 N.C. App. 217, 284 S.E.2d 762 (1981).

Lump Sum Payment Pursuant to Negotiated Settlement. — The trial court did not have authority to reduce an executed lump sum payment and order a refund of a portion thereof, where the lump sum payment represented not only child support, but also constituted a negotiated settlement of all matters of dispute between the parties, including the effect of foreseeable changes in those matters, and there were no compelling equitable circumstances justifying a refund. Reavis v. Reavis, 82 N.C. App. 77, 345 S.E.2d 460 (1986).

Periodic Support Payments as Consideration for Property Division. — Even though denominated as such, periodic support payments to a dependent spouse may not be alimony within the meaning of this section and thus modifiable if they and other provisions for a property division between the parties constitute reciprocal consideration for each other. White v. White, 296 N.C. 661, 252 S.E.2d 698 (1979); Jones v. Jones, 42 N.C. App. 467, 256 S.E.2d 474 (1979).

Right to Present Evidence on Issue of Separability. — On wife's motion for increase in alimony payments, where consent order entered into between husband and wife contained support provisions and property settlement provisions, an evidentiary hearing was required to determine the intent of the parties regarding whether the provisions of the agreement were separable or integrated, and it was error for the trial court to refuse to allow husband to present evidence on this issue. Lemons v. Lemons, 103 N.C. App. 492, 406 S.E.2d 8 (1991), decided under law in effect in 1978 at time of consent decree.

Vacation of Consent Judgments Without Making Specific Findings Held Error. — While a consent order for alimony or alimony pendente lite may be modified or vacated at any time upon motion and a showing of changed circumstances, where defendant husband offered some evidence of changed circumstances but the trial court failed to comply with the statutory mandate as to the making of specific findings, and erroneously ruled that consent judgments were invalid for failure of the court to make a finding of dependency, the cause would be remanded for a de novo hearing. Cox v. Cox, 36 N.C. App. 573, 245 S.E.2d 94 (1978).

The eminence, experience and character of counsel who represented the plaintiff in procuring a property settlement would bear directly on her subsequent attempt to set it aside as fraudulent. Van Every v. Van Every, 265 N.C. 506, 144 S.E.2d 603 (1965).

Surrender of Right to Enforce Agreement as Consideration for New Agreement. — Contractual surrender of plaintiff's right to bring an action to enforce portion of separation agreement which was incorporated in divorce decree was sufficient legal detriment to constitute consideration under a new agreement. Pitts v. Broyhill, 88 N.C. App. 651, 364 S.E.2d 738 (1988).

IV. REMARRIAGE OF DEPENDENT SPOUSE.

Vested Periodic Payments. — Where trial court delineated alimony payable by husband to wife as a "lump sum" or as a "fixed amount," and the payment methodology was not in a single payment but instead was in periodic payments, wife's remarriage terminated the monthly alimony obligations not yet due and payable, as they had not vested prior to remarriage. Potts v. Tutterow, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, rehearing denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Obligation Ceases upon Remarriage of Dependent Spouse. — Defendant's obligation to make payments pursuant to a consent judgment with plaintiff which designated such payments as alimony ceased as a matter of law pursuant to this section when the plaintiff remarried. Martin v. Martin, 26 N.C. App. 506, 26 S.E.2d 456 (1975).

Whether the alimony award is in the form of a "lump sum" or "periodic payments" is irrelevant since subsection (b) clearly provides that the supporting spouse's obligation to pay any alimony is terminated by the dependant spouse's remarriage and does not distinguish between the method of payment. Potts v. Tutterow, 114 N.C. App. 360, 442 S.E.2d 90 (1994), aff'd, 340 N.C. 97, 455 S.E.2d 156, reh'g denied, 340 N.C. 364, 458 S.E.2d 189 (1995).

Obligation Held to Terminate. — Where in consent judgment incorporating parties' deed of separation and property settlement, $400.00 per month payment was twice denominated "alimony," while there was no reference whatsoever to the distribution of stock, vehicles, and other property, the $400.00 payment was alimony, and defendant's obligation to make such payments terminated upon plaintiff's remarriage in accordance with the mandate of subsection (b) of this section. Garner v. Garner, 88 N.C. App. 472, 363 S.E.2d 670 (1988).

Terminating Alimony on the Basis of Cohabitation. — This section affirmatively states that cohabitation automatically terminates any alimony obligation, but the supporting spouse must first file a motion with the trial court, notify the dependant spouse, and obtain a court order authorizing termination of payments as of a date certain. Williamson v. Williamson, 142 N.C. App. 702, 543 S.E.2d 897 (2001).

V. MODIFICATION OF FOREIGN JUDGMENTS AND MODIFICATION BY FOREIGN COURTS.

North Carolina law applies prospectively from the date of registration under the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, § 52A-1 et seq. Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988), aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

But Not Retroactively. — Registration is a ministerial duty of the clerk, not exercising any power over the obligor's person or property. Such registration cannot lawfully transform foreign alimony orders that are modifiable as to past-due installments in the jurisdiction of rendition into North Carolina orders subject to North Carolina law retrospectively. Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

Alimony orders registered pursuant to former § 52A-26, et seq., retain, for their lifespan prior to registration, their foreign identity, and the laws of the foreign jurisdiction apply in any subsequent enforcement proceeding. This means that at any enforcement proceeding under former § 52A-30 the obligor may apply, just as at a civil action instituted under subsection (c) of this section, for a new order modifying or superseding the foreign order "to the extent that it could have been so modified in the jurisdiction where granted." Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

An obligee may not strip an obligor of rights and defenses otherwise available by the simple expedient of litigating under Chapter 52A, the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, rather than under subsection (c) of this section. Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

Refusal to Hear Evidence for Modification Held Error. — In an action to recover past due alimony payments under a foreign judgment, the trial judge erred in refusing to hear evidence offered by the defendant of changed circumstances as it related to possible modification of future payments. Thompson v. Thompson, 34 N.C. App. 51, 237 S.E.2d 282 (1977).

Modification of a Texas judgment to provide for payment of one-half of retirement pay to plaintiff was not necessary, since retirement pay and the division thereof is not alimony in Texas but under certain circumstances is community property. Brown v. Brown, 21 N.C. App. 435, 204 S.E.2d 534 (1974).

A money judgment for arrears of alimony, not by its terms conditional and on which execution was directed to issue, was not subject to modification or recall, and hence was entitled to full faith and credit. Barber v. Barber, 323 U.S. 77, 65 S. Ct. 137, 89 L. Ed. 82 (1944).

Seeking Relief as to Future Payments under Foreign Alimony Decree. — There is no impediment to a defendant's seeking relief as to future alimony payments in an action by a plaintiff for recovery of payments accrued under a foreign alimony decree. However, it is advisable that he should do so by counterclaim specifically alleging a change of circumstances and specifically seeking relief only as to future payments. Thompson v. Thompson, 34 N.C. App. 51, 237 S.E.2d 282 (1977).

Power of Alabama Court to Modify North Carolina Alimony Decree. — An Alabama court which had in personam jurisdiction over the parties could modify a North Carolina alimony decree, where the Alabama court in effect found that circumstances had changed since the entry of the North Carolina decree. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

An Alabama court with in personam jurisdiction over the parties could not modify retroactively a North Carolina alimony judgment where there was no showing of any sudden emergency requiring such a reduction. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

Where an Alabama court which had in personam jurisdiction over the parties modified a North Carolina alimony decree, the dependent spouse's right to alimony was terminated as of the entry of the Alabama decree. There was no need to prolong the litigation by requiring the supporting spouse to commence a third proceeding in North Carolina to set aside the prior North Carolina judgment. Vincent v. Vincent, 38 N.C. App. 580, 248 S.E.2d 410 (1978).

§ 50-16.10. Alimony without action.

Alimony without action may be allowed by confession of judgment under G.S. 1A-1, Rule 68.1. (1967, c. 1152, s. 2; 1985, c. 689, s. 19.)

CASE NOTES

Sections 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 Construed in Pari Materia. — The statutes codified as §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10 all deal with the same subject matter, alimony, and are to be construed in pari materia. Rowe v. Rowe, 305 N.C. 177, 287 S.E.2d 840 (1982).

Section 50-16.9 does not list factors to help in the modification decision, but the alimony statutes, §§ 50-16.1 through 50-16.10, have been read in pari materia because they deal with the same subject matter. Broughton v. Broughton, 58 N.C. App. 778, 294 S.E.2d 772, cert. denied, 307 N.C. 269, 299 S.E.2d 214 (1982).

Cited in Richardson v. Richardson, 4 N.C. App. 99, 165 S.E.2d 678 (1969).

§ 50-16.11: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 1.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which repealed this section, in section 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after that date, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the repeal by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows:

"Judgment that a supporting spouse is not liable for alimony.

"If a final judgment is entered in any action denying alimony because none of the grounds specified in G.S. 50-16.2 exists, upon motion by the supporting spouse, the court shall enter a judgment against the spouse to whom the payments were made for the amount of all alimony paid by the supporting spouse to that spouse pending a final disposition of the case. In addition, upon motion by the supporting spouse, if a final judgment is entered in any action denying alimony because none of the grounds specified in G.S. 50-16.2 exists, the court may enter a judgment against the spouse to whom the payments were made for the amount of alimony pendente lite paid by the supporting spouse to that spouse pending a final disposition of the case. When there has been judgment entered granting permanent alimony, after a prior denial of alimony pendente lite upon the same allegations, the court may enter judgment against the supporting spouse and in favor of the dependent spouse in an amount equal to the monthly permanent alimony awarded multiplied by the number of months between entry of the prior order denying alimony pendente lite and entering of the final judgment.

"A judgment awarded against a dependent spouse under this section may not be satisfied by setting off any award of child support to the dependent spouse."

CASE NOTES

Plain Meaning. — The plain and definite meaning of this section is that when a jury or trial judge finds that none of the grounds on which a spouse alleges entitlement to permanent alimony pursuant to § 50-15.2 exists, the trial court, in its discretion, may order recoupment of any alimony pendente lite paid by the supporting spouse. Wyatt v. Hollifield, 114 N.C. App. 352, 442 S.E.2d 149 (1994).

§ 50-17. Alimony in real estate, writ of possession issued.

In all cases in which the court grants alimony by the assignment of real estate, the court has power to issue a writ of possession when necessary in the judgment of the court to do so. (1868-9, c. 123, s. 1; Code, s. 1293; Rev., s. 1568; C.S., s. 1668.)

CASE NOTES

The court has the power to grant the possession of real estate as a part of alimony. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 34 N.C. App. 658, 239 S.E.2d 701 (1977), cert. denied, 294 N.C. 363, 242 S.E.2d 634 (1978).

But Ordering Payment of Alimony by Possession of Real Property Is Not Required. — While a trial court has the authority to order payment of alimony by possession of real property under § 50-16.7(a), as well as the power to issue a writ of possession when necessary under this section, the pertinent statutory provisions do not require it to do so. Clark v. Clark, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Statutes Do Not Require Transfer of Title or Possession. — While the court has authority to order a transfer of title or possession of real property under § 50-16.7(a) and this section, these sections do not require it to do so. Clark v. Clark, 44 N.C. App. 649, 262 S.E.2d 659, rev'd on other grounds, 301 N.C. 123, 271 S.E.2d 58 (1980).

Award of Homeplace as Part of Support. — The award of the homeplace does not constitute a writ of possession within the meaning of this section, and the trial judge may award exclusive possession of the homeplace, even though it is owned by the entirety, as a part of the support under § 50-13.4. Arnold v. Arnold, 30 N.C. App. 683, 228 S.E.2d 48 (1976).

Reversion of Title. — Where alimony is allotted to the wife (dependent spouse) in specific property of the husband (supporting spouse), the title to such property remains in him, and will revert at the death of the wife or upon a reconciliation. Taylor v. Taylor, 93 N.C. 418 (1885).

Cited in Whedon v. Whedon, 58 N.C. App. 524, 294 S.E.2d 29 (1982).

§ 50-18. Residence of military personnel; payment of defendant's travel expenses by plaintiff.

In any action instituted and prosecuted under this Chapter, allegation and proof that the plaintiff or the defendant has resided or been stationed at a United States army, navy, marine corps, coast guard or air force installation or reservation or any other location pursuant to military duty within this State for a period of six months next preceding the institution of the action shall constitute compliance with the residence requirements set forth in this Chapter; provided that personal service is had upon the defendant or service is accepted by the defendant, within or without the State as by law provided.

Upon request of the defendant or attorney for the defendant, the court may order the plaintiff to pay necessary travel expenses from defendant's home to the site of the court in order that the defendant may appear in person to defend said action. (1959, c. 1058.)

Legal Periodicals. — For note concerning residence requirement for servicemen, see 40 N.C.L. Rev. 343 (1962).

For comment, "Conflicts of Law in Divorce Litigation: A Looking-Glass World?," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 145 (1987).

CASE NOTES

This section is an expression of policy by the General Assembly that a serviceman stationed on a military reservation in the State is capable of establishing his domicile in North Carolina. The statute removes the barriers which might prevent a serviceman so situated from establishing a legal residence in this State where he actually has the present intention of changing his domicile to this State. Martin v. Martin, 253 N.C. 704, 118 S.E.2d 29 (1961).

§ 50-19. Maintenance of certain actions as independent actions permissible.

(a) Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 13(a), any action for divorce under the provisions of G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6 that is filed as an independent, separate action may be prosecuted during the pendency of an action for:

(1) Alimony;
(2) Postseparation support;
(3) Custody and support of minor children;
(4) Custody and support of a person incapable of self-support upon reaching majority; or
(5) Divorce pursuant to G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 13(a), any action described in subdivision (a)(1) through (a)(5) of this section that is filed as an independent, separate action may be prosecuted during the pendency of an action for divorce under G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6.

(c) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 569, s. 1. (1979, c. 709, s. 2; 1985, c. 689, s. 20; 1991, c. 569, s. 1; 1995, c. 319, s. 10.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 319, which amended this section, in s. 12 provides that this act applies to civil actions filed on or after October 1, 1995, and shall not apply to pending litigation, or to future motions in the cause seeking to modify orders or judgments in effect on October 1, 1995.

This section, prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1995, c. 319, read as follows: "Maintenance of certain actions as independent actions permissible.

"(a) Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 13(a), any action for divorce under the provisions of G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6 that is filed as an independent, separate action may be prosecuted during the pendency of an action for:

(1) Alimony;
(2) Alimony pendente lite;
(3) Custody and support of minor children;
(4) Custody and support of a person incapable of self-support upon reaching majority; or
(5) Divorce pursuant to G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6.

"(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 13(a), any action described in subdivision (a)(1) through (a)(5) of this section that is filed as an independent, separate action may be prosecuted during the pendency of an action for divorce under G.S. 50-5.1 or G.S. 50-6.

"(c) Repealed by Session Laws 1991, c. 569, s. 1, effective October 1, 1991."

Session Laws 1995, c. 319, s. 10, which amended this section, was effective October 1, 1995, and applicable to civil actions filed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For survey of 1982 law on civil procedure, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 991 (1983).

CASE NOTES

Effect on Legal Consequences of Prior Supreme Court Decision. — The enactment of this section, providing that an action for divorce could be maintained during the pendency of an action for alimony notwithstanding the provisions of § 1A-1, Rule 13(a), did not apply to affect the legal consequences of a prior Supreme Court decision determining the law of the case. Gardner v. Gardner, 48 N.C. App. 38, 269 S.E.2d 630 (1980).

Applied in Arney v. Arney, 71 N.C. App. 218, 321 S.E.2d 472 (1984).

Quoted in Banner v. Banner, 86 N.C. App. 397, 358 S.E.2d 110 (1987).

§ 50-20. Distribution by court of marital and divisible property upon divorce.

(a) Upon application of a party, the court shall determine what is the marital property and divisible property and shall provide for an equitable distribution of the marital property and divisible property between the parties in accordance with the provisions of this section.

(b) For purposes of this section:

(1) "Marital property" means all real and personal property acquired by either spouse or both spouses during the course of the marriage and before the date of the separation of the parties, and presently owned, except property determined to be separate property or divisible property in accordance with subdivision (2) or (4) of this subsection. Marital property includes all vested and nonvested pension, retirement, and other deferred compensation rights, and vested and nonvested military pensions eligible under the federal Uniformed Services Former Spouses' Protection Act. It is presumed that all property acquired after the date of marriage and before the date of separation is marital property except property which is separate property under subdivision (2) of this subsection. This presumption may be rebutted by the greater weight of the evidence.

(2) "Separate property" means all real and personal property acquired by a spouse before marriage or acquired by a spouse by bequest, devise, descent, or gift during the course of the marriage. However, property acquired by gift from the other spouse during the course of the marriage shall be considered separate property only if such an intention is stated in the conveyance. Property acquired in exchange for separate property shall remain separate property regardless of whether the title is in the name of the husband or wife or both and shall not be considered to be marital property unless a contrary intention is expressly stated in the conveyance. The increase in value of separate property and the income derived from separate property shall be considered separate property. All professional licenses and business licenses which would terminate on transfer shall be considered separate property.

(3) "Distributive award" means payments that are payable either in a lump sum or over a period of time in fixed amounts, but shall not include alimony payments or other similar payments for support and maintenance which are treated as ordinary income to the recipient under the Internal Revenue Code.

(4) "Divisible property" means all real and personal property as set forth below:

a. All appreciation and diminution in value of marital property and divisible property of the parties occurring after the date of separation and prior to the date of distribution, except that appreciation or diminution in value which is the result of postseparation actions or activities of a spouse shall not be treated as divisible property.

b. All property, property rights, or any portion thereof received after the date of separation but before the date of distribution that was acquired as a result of the efforts of either spouse during the marriage and before the date of separation, including, but not limited to, commissions, bonuses, and contractual rights.

c. Passive income from marital property received after the date of separation, including, but not limited to, interest and dividends.

d. Increases in marital debt and financing charges and interest related to marital debt.

(c) There shall be an equal division by using net value of marital property and net value of divisible property unless the court determines that an equal division is not equitable. If the court determines that an equal division is not equitable, the court shall divide the marital property and divisible property equitably. The court shall consider all of the following factors under this subsection:

(1) The income, property, and liabilities of each party at the time the division of property is to become effective.

(2) Any obligation for support arising out of a prior marriage.

(3) The duration of the marriage and the age and physical and mental health of both parties.

(4) The need of a parent with custody of a child or children of the marriage to occupy or own the marital residence and to use or own its household effects.

(5) The expectation of pension, retirement, or other deferred compensation rights that are not marital property.

(6) Any equitable claim to, interest in, or direct or indirect contribution made to the acquisition of such marital property by the party not having title, including joint efforts or expenditures and contributions and services, or lack thereof, as a spouse, parent, wage earner or homemaker.

(7) Any direct or indirect contribution made by one spouse to help educate or develop the career potential of the other spouse.
(8) Any direct contribution to an increase in value of separate property which occurs during the course of the marriage.
(9) The liquid or nonliquid character of all marital property and divisible property.
(10) The difficulty of evaluating any component asset or any interest in a business, corporation or profession, and the economic desirability of retaining such asset or interest, intact and free from any claim or interference by the other party.
(11) The tax consequences to each party.
(11a) Acts of either party to maintain, preserve, develop, or expand; or to waste, neglect, devalue or convert the marital property or divisible property, or both, during the period after separation of the parties and before the time of distribution.
(11b) In the event of the death of either party prior to the entry of any order for the distribution of property made pursuant to this subsection:
a. Property passing to the surviving spouse by will or through intestacy due to the death of a spouse.
b. Property held as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship passing to the surviving spouse due to the death of a spouse.
c. Property passing to the surviving spouse from life insurance, individual retirement accounts, pension or profit-sharing plans, any private or governmental retirement plan or annuity of which the decedent controlled the designation of beneficiary (excluding any benefits under the federal social security system), or any other retirement accounts or contracts, due to the death of a spouse.
d. The surviving spouse's right to claim an "elective share" pursuant to G.S. 30-3.1 through G.S. 30-33, unless otherwise waived.
(12) Any other factor which the court finds to be just and proper.

(c1) Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a second or subsequent spouse acquires no interest in the marital property and divisible property of his or her spouse from a former marriage until a final determination of equitable distribution is made in the marital property and divisible property of the spouse's former marriage.

(d) Before, during or after marriage the parties may by written agreement, duly executed and acknowledged in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 52-10 and 52-10.1, or by a written agreement valid in the jurisdiction where executed, provide for distribution of the marital property or divisible property, or both, in a manner deemed by the parties to be equitable and the agreement shall be binding on the parties.

(e) Subject to the presumption of subsection (c) of this section that an equal division is equitable, it shall be presumed in every action that an in-kind distribution of marital or divisible property is equitable. This presumption may be rebutted by the greater weight of the evidence, or by evidence that the property is a closely held business entity or is otherwise not susceptible of division in-kind. In any action in which the presumption is rebutted, the court in lieu of in-kind distribution shall provide for a distributive award in order to achieve equity between the parties. The court may provide for a distributive award to facilitate, effectuate or supplement a distribution of marital or divisible property. The court may provide that any distributive award payable over a period of time be secured by a lien on specific property.

(f) The court shall provide for an equitable distribution without regard to alimony for either party or support of the children of both parties. After the determination of an equitable distribution, the court, upon request of either party, shall consider whether an order for alimony or child support should be modified or vacated pursuant to G.S. 50-16.9 or 50-13.7.

(g) If the court orders the transfer of real or personal property or an interest therein, the court may also enter an order which shall transfer title, as provided in G.S. 1A-1, Rule 70 and G.S. 1-228.

(h) If either party claims that any real property is marital property or divisible property, that party may cause a notice of lis pendens to be recorded pursuant to Article 11 of Chapter 1 of the General Statutes. Any person whose conveyance or encumbrance is recorded or whose interest is obtained by descent, prior to the filing of the lis pendens, shall take the real property free of any claim resulting from the equitable distribution proceeding. The court may cancel the notice of lis pendens upon substitution of a bond with surety in an amount determined by the court to be sufficient provided the court finds that the claim of the spouse against property subject to the notice of lis pendens can be satisfied by money damages.

(i) Upon filing an action or motion in the cause requesting an equitable distribution or alleging that an equitable distribution will be requested when it is timely to do so, a party may seek injunctive relief pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 65 and Chapter 1, Article 37, to prevent the disappearance, waste or conversion of property alleged to be marital property, divisible property, or separate property of the party seeking relief. The court, in lieu of granting an injunction, may require a bond or other assurance of sufficient amount to protect the interest of the other spouse in the property. Upon application by the owner of separate property which was removed from the marital home or possession of its owner by the other spouse, the court may enter an order for reasonable counsel fees and costs of court incurred to regain its possession, but such fees shall not exceed the fair market value of the separate property at the time it was removed.

(i1) Unless good cause is shown that there should not be an interim distribution, the court may, at any time after an action for equitable distribution has been filed and prior to the final judgment of equitable distribution, enter orders declaring what is separate property and may also enter orders dividing part of the marital property, divisible property or debt, or marital debt between the parties. The partial distribution may provide for a distributive award and may also provide for a distribution of marital property, marital debt, divisible property, or divisible debt. Any such orders entered shall be taken into consideration at trial and proper credit given.

Hearings held pursuant to this subsection may be held at sessions arranged by the chief district court judge pursuant to G.S. 7A-146 and, if held at such sessions, shall not be subject to the reporting requirements of G.S. 7A-198.

(j) In any order for the distribution of property made pursuant to this section, the court shall make written findings of fact that support the determination that the marital property and divisible property has been equitably divided.

(k) The rights of the parties to an equitable distribution of marital property and divisible property are a species of common ownership, the rights of the respective parties vesting at the time of the parties' separation.

(l) A pending action for equitable distribution shall not abate upon the death of a party. (1981, c. 815, s. 1; 1983, c. 309; c. 640, ss. 1, 2; c. 758, ss. 1-4; 1985, c. 31, ss. 1-3; c. 143; c. 660, ss. 1-3; 1987, c. 663; c. 844, s. 2; 1991, c. 635, ss. 1, 1.1; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 960, s. 1; 1995, c. 240, s. 1; c. 245, s. 2; 1997-212, ss. 2-5; 1997-302, s. 1; 1998-217, s. 7(c); 2001-364, ss. 2, 3.)

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-364, ss. 2 and 3, effective August 10, 2001, and applicable to actions pending or filed on or after that date, substituted "The court shall consider all of the following factors under this subsection" for "Factors the court shall consider under this subsection are as follows" at the end of the introductory language of subsection (c); deleted "and" at the end of subdivision (c)(11a); added subdivision (c)(11b); added subsection (l); and made minor punctuation changes.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on resulting trusts in entireties property when the wife furnishes purchase money, see 17 Wake Forest L. Rev. 415 (1981).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For comment on the tax effects of equitable distribution upon divorce, see 18 Wake Forest L. Rev. 555 (1982).

For comment on this section, see 18 Wake Forest L. Rev. 735 (1982).

For note on Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982), see 18 Wake Forest L. Rev. 780 (1982).

For analysis of North Carolina's equitable distribution of property statute, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 247 (1983).

For survey of 1982 family law, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1155 (1983).

For survey of 1982 law on property, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1171 (1983).

For comment on contingent fees in domestic relations actions, see 62 N.C.L. Rev. 381 (1984).

For article, "The Professional Degree as Marital Property Under North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute," see 6 Campbell L. Rev. 101 (1984).

For article, "Divisibility of Advanced Degrees in North Carolina — An Examination and Proposal," see 15 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1984).

For comment, "Time Sharing: The North Carolina General Assembly's Response to Ownership of Time Share Contracts," see 15 N.C. Cent. L.J. 56 (1984).

For note, "The Validity of Foreign Divorce Decrees in North Carolina," see 20 Wake Forest L. Rev. 765 (1984).

For 1984 survey, "Property Settlement or Separation Agreement: Perpetuating the Confusion," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1166 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Equitable Distribution Without Consideration of Marital Fault," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1204 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "The Brief Death of Alienation of Affections and Criminal Conversation in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1317 (1985).

For note, "The Contingent Fee Contract in Domestic Relations Cases," see 7 Campbell L. Rev. 427 (1985).

For comment, "The Wedding Veil or the Corporate Veil?: Appreciation of Close Corporation Stock Under North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Law," see 15 N.C. Cent. L.J., 213 (1985).

For note on contractual agreements as a means of avoiding equitable distribution, in light of Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984), see 21 Wake Forest L. Rev. 213 (1985).

For note, "North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute: Recent Developments," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1395 (1986).

For note, "Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright — Creditors' Rights to Entireties Property Awarded to Nondebtor Spouse Upon Divorce," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1986).

For article, "The Partnership Ideal: The Development of Equitable Distribution in North Carolina," see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 195 (1987).

For 1987 note on equitable distribution law as it relates to personal injury awards in divorce actions, see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1332 (1987).

For note on the continued prohibition of contingency fees in divorce actions, see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1378 (1987).

For article, "The Equitable Distribution of Professional Degrees upon Divorce in North Carolina," see 10 Campbell L. Rev. 69 (1987).

For note, the valuation of a professional practice in equitable distribution, in light of 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, disc. rev. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985), see 22 Wake Forest L. Rev. 327 (1987).

For note relating to revocation of the marital presumption and adoption of the analytic approach to the classification of personal injury settlements, in light of Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986), see 22 Wake Forest L. Rev. 931 (1987).

For note on separation agreements, see 66 N.C.L. Rev. 1254 (1988).

For note on post-separation sexual intercourse precluding enforcement of agreement requiring parties to live separate and apart, see 11 Campbell L. Rev. 73 (1988).

For article, "Increases in Separate Property and the Evolving Marital Partnership," see 24 Wake Forest L. Rev. 239 (1989).

For note, "McLean v. McLean: North Carolina Adopts the Gift Presumption in Equitable Distribution," see 68 N.C. L. Rev. 1269 (1990).

For article, "Semantics as Jurisprudence: The Elevation of Form Over Substance in the Treatment of Separation Agreements in North Carolina," see 69 N.C.L. Rev. 319 (1991).

For note, "Post-Separation Failure to Support a Dependent Spouse as a Sole Ground for Alimony Despite the Absence of Marital Misconduct Before Separation — Brown v. Brown," see 15 Campbell L. Rev. 333 (1993).

For Survey of Developments in North Carolina Law (1992), see 71 N.C.L. Rev. 1893 (1993).

For note, "Kuder v. Schroeder: The North Carolina Court of Appeals Holds That a Professional Education Is Not Within the Spousal Duty of Support," see 72 N.C.L. Rev. 1784 (1994).

For note, "Family Law — Equitable Distribution — Brown v. Brown, 112 N.C. App. 15, 434

S.E.2d 873 (1993)," see 72 N.C.L. Rev. 1801 (1994).

For note, "The Diploma Dilemma: An Inequitable Result Under North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute — Kuder v. Schroeder," see 17 Campbell L. Rev. 361 (1995).

For survey, "Termination of Lump Sum Alimony upon the Remarriage of a Dependent Spouse: Potts v. Tutterow," see 73 N.C.L. Rev. 2432 (1995).

For article, "Giving Credit Where Credit is Due: North Carolina Recognizes Custodial Obligations as a Factor in Determining Alimony Entitlements," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2128 (1996).

For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

For 1997 legislative survey, see 20 Campbell L. Rev. 459.

For an article on the creation of a new category of property — divisible property — in divorce law, see 76 N.C.L. Rev. 2017 (1998).

For note, "O'Brien v. O'Brien: The Changing Nature of Property Under the Equitable Distribution Laws in North Carolina," see 77 N.C. L. Rev. 2280 (1999).

CASE NOTES

I. GENERAL CONSIDERATION.

Constitutionality. — This section is not unconstitutionally vague. Ellis v. Ellis, 68 N.C. App. 634, 315 S.E.2d 526 (1984).

Legislative Intent. — In enacting the equitable distribution statute, the General Assembly intended to avoid taxable events which would chill the use of equitable distribution. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

The legislature did not intend the Equitable Distribution Act to apply solely to property acquired on or after the effective date of the act or its amendments. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Only married persons are afforded the protections of this statute; therefore, the Court of Appeals would not expand the legislature's clear definition of marital property to include property acquired prior to marriage. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

No Right to Jury Trial in Equitable Distribution Action. — No right to bring an action for equitable distribution of marital property existed prior to the adoption of the equitable distribution statutes, this section and § 50-21, and the language of the statutes themselves create no new right to trial by jury; therefore, there is no right to trial by jury for such an action under the Constitution of North Carolina. Kiser v. Kiser, 325 N.C. 502, 385 S.E.2d 487 (1989).

This section sets forth reasonably clear guidelines and definitions for courts to interpret and administer it uniformly and in accordance with the legislative intent. Ellis v. Ellis, 68 N.C. App. 634, 315 S.E.2d 526 (1984).

Same Rules to Apply to Both Spouses. — With the enactment of this section the legislature indicated its view that the same rules should apply to both spouses in determining ownership of property. Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982).

This section is a remedial statute enacted to ensure a fairer distribution of marital assets than under common-law rules. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

Separate Trials for Divorce and Distribution. — The trial court's order granting the plaintiff's motion for separate trials of his claim for absolute divorce and the defendant's claim for equitable distribution of the marital property did not constitute an abuse of discretion, nor did it prejudice the defendant's substantial rights. Sharp v. Sharp, 84 N.C. App. 128, 351 S.E.2d 799 (1987).

Section 52-4 is not inconsistent with or repugnant to this section. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Section 52-4 governs legal interests in property during an ongoing marriage, while this section governs its disposition after divorce. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Trial judge is required to conduct a three-stage analysis in order to equitably distribute the marital assets. He must first ascertain, upon appropriate findings of fact, what is marital property; then determine the net market value of the marital property as of the date of separation; and finally, make an equitable distribution between the parties. Willis v. Willis, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

In applying our equitable distribution statutes, the trial court must follow a three-step procedure: (1) classification, (2) evaluation and (3) distribution. Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Equal division of marital property is favored by public policy behind the Equitable Distribution Act. Weaver v. Weaver, 72 N.C. App. 409, 324 S.E.2d 915 (1985), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

One policy underlying the Equitable Distribution Act is to wind up the marriage and distribute the marital property fairly with as much certainty and finality as possible. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Public policy of this State is that equitable distribution of property shall follow a decree of absolute divorce. Hendrix v. Hendrix, 67 N.C. App. 354, 313 S.E.2d 25 (1984).

But Written Agreement Between the Parties Is an Alternative. — It is North Carolina's public policy that an equitable distribution of property shall follow a decree of absolute divorce. However, a resort to the equitable distribution law is not the only recognized way for married people to dispose of their marital property. An alternative is in § 50-20(d). Case v. Case, 73 N.C. App. 76, 325 S.E.2d 661, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 597, 330 S.E.2d 606 (1985). See also, Hendrix v. Hendrix, 67 N.C. App. 354, 313 S.E.2d 25 (1984).

Purpose of Section. — This section is designed to divide property equitably, based upon the relative positions of the parties at the time of the divorce, rather than on what they may have intended when the property was acquired. Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982).

This section's primary focus is to devise a procedure for equitably distributing "marital," as opposed to "separate," property upon dissolution of the marriage. Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982).

This section reflects a trend nationwide towards recognizing marriage as a partnership, a shared enterprise to which both spouses make valuable contributions, albeit often in different ways. Loeb v. Loeb, 72 N.C. App. 205, 324 S.E.2d 33 (1985), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Equitable distribution reflects the idea that marriage is a partnership enterprise to which both spouses make vital contributions and which entitles the homemaker spouse to a share of the property acquired during the relationship. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

A spouse's vested right to equitable distribution of marital property does not create a property right in marital property, nor does separation create a lien on specific marital property in favor of the spouse. Hearndon v. Hearndon, 132 N.C. App. 98, 510 S.E.2d 183 (1999).

Effect of Section. — This section was enacted in recognition of marriage as a partnership, economic and otherwise, to which both parties contribute, either directly or indirectly. By enacting this section, the Legislature granted courts the power to consider factors other than legal title in distributing the marital assets upon the dissolution of the marriage, thereby permitting the courts to make an equitable distribution which effects a return to each party of that which he or she contributed to the marriage. Hinton v. Hinton, 70 N.C. App. 665, 321 S.E.2d 161 (1984).

Section Is Applicable Only to Divorce Actions Filed on or After October 1, 1981. — The Equitable Distribution Act was enacted in 1981 and made applicable only when the action for an absolute divorce is filed on or after October 1, 1981. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

As to history and purposes of the Equitable Distribution Act, see White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

For a case applying subsection (c) prior to its amendment, effective October 1, 1991, in upholding equitable distribution, see Munn v. Munn, 112 N.C. App. 151, 435 S.E.2d 74 (1993).

Jurisdiction Must Meet Minimum Contacts Standard. — In an equitable distribution action, the court is exercising jurisdiction over the interests of persons in property and not over a status of the parties. Exercise of this jurisdiction must meet the minimum contacts standard. Carroll v. Carroll, 88 N.C. App. 453, 363 S.E.2d 872 (1988).

Personalty in State Is Not Sufficient to Confer Jurisdiction. — The fact that there exists some personal property in North Carolina in which a nonresident defendant may have an interest because of the equitable distribution statute is not alone sufficient to establish jurisdiction over defendant or his property. Carroll v. Carroll, 88 N.C. App. 453, 363 S.E.2d 872 (1988).

Jurisdiction Not Shown. — Where defendant had not lived in North Carolina during any part of the parties' marriage, although certain property of the parties was located in North Carolina, and there was no indication of any action by defendant purposefully directed towards this state, the trial court lacked jurisdiction over defendant and his property for equitable distribution purposes and therefore could not properly determine the equitable distribution claim. Carroll v. Carroll, 88 N.C. App. 453, 363 S.E.2d 872 (1988).

Jurisdiction of Bankruptcy Court. — A claim for equitable distribution is a claim against property of the estate and therefore within the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court. Perlow v. Perlow, 128 Bankr. 412 (E.D.N.C. 1991).

An equitable distribution action can be a "claim" under the bankruptcy code. Hearndon v. Hearndon, 132 N.C. App. 98, 510 S.E.2d 183 (1999).

Right to Equitable Distribution Must Be Asserted Before Final Divorce. — Under § 50-11, a judgment of absolute divorce destroys the right to equitable distribution unless the right is asserted prior to judgment of absolute divorce. Howell v. Howell, 321 N.C. 87, 361 S.E.2d 585 (1987).

Where death ends all chance for divorce, any equitable distribution action then pending must abate; the 1995 amendment to § 50-21 did not change the relationship between equitable distribution and divorce. Instead, the amendment continued the legislative trend for equitable distribution to occur at any time prior to or after an absolute divorce. Brown v. Brown, 353 N.C. 220, 539 S.E.2d 621 (2000), decided prior to the 2001 amendment clarifying that an action for equitable distribution does not abate upon the death of a party.

Heirs of wife's deceased husband were necessary parties to equitable distribution action in which husband's administrator had been substituted as defendant, and they were properly added as parties defendant. Swindell v. Lewis, 82 N.C. App. 423, 346 S.E.2d 237 (1986).

Rights of Creditors Without Notice. — Legislative intent is that rights of creditors without notice be protected in the equitable distribution of real property. Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright, 74 N.C. App. 550, 328 S.E.2d 840 (1985).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying defendant's motion for a compulsory reference in an equitable distribution proceeding. Vick v. Vick, 80 N.C. App. 697, 343 S.E.2d 245, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 341, 346 S.E.2d 149 (1986).

Trial court erred in granting defendant wife's motion to be "relieved of the effect" of a divorce judgment solely to the extent that the judgment barred her claim for equitable distribution. Howell v. Howell, 321 N.C. 87, 361 S.E.2d 585 (1987).

Claim to Property Was Not Notice of Equitable Distribution Claim. — In divorce case, defendant's answer asserting a claim to an interest in a specific piece of property, or to proceeds in plaintiff's possession flowing from defendant's interest in that piece of property, was not sufficient to put plaintiff on notice that he was asserting a claim for equitable distribution under this section. Goodwin v. Zeydel, 96 N.C. App. 670, 387 S.E.2d 57 (1990).

Attorneys' fees are not recoverable from the other spouse in an action for equitable distribution, so that, in a combined action, the fees awarded must be attributable to work by the attorneys on the divorce, alimony and child support actions. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Actions for Breach of Fiduciary Duty, Unjust Enrichment, and Marital Destruction Are Not Maintainable Against Former Spouse. — A spouse or former spouse may not maintain actions against the other spouse for breach of fiduciary duty, unjust enrichment, and intentional marital destruction, all pertaining to the marital relationship and its dissolution either in an equitable distribution proceeding, or other proceedings. Smith v. Smith, 113 N.C. App. 410, 438 S.E.2d 457, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 74, 445 S.E.2d 37 (1994).

Power of Court Upon Finding of Contempt. — Upon a finding of contempt, in situations where original order requires transfer of property (including intangible property such as that represented by stock certificates), the trial court has authority to order contemnor to transfer said property as a condition of purging contempt, but does not have authority to require contemnor to pay compensatory damages incurred as a result of his noncompliance with original order. Hartsell v. Hartsell, 99 N.C. App. 380, 393 S.E.2d 570 (1990).

But the contempt power of the district court includes the authority to require one to pay attorneys' fees in order to purge himself from a previous order of contempt for failing and refusing to comply with an equitable distribution order. Conrad v. Conrad, 82 N.C. App. 758, 348 S.E.2d 349 (1986).

Applied in Dixon v. Dixon, 62 N.C. App. 744, 303 S.E.2d 606 (1983); Crumbley v. Crumbley, 70 N.C. App. 143, 318 S.E.2d 525 (1984); Brown v. Brown, 72 N.C. App. 332, 324 S.E.2d 287 (1985); Phillips v. Phillips, 73 N.C. App. 68, 326 S.E.2d 57 (1985); Dusenberry v. Dusenberry, 73 N.C. App. 177, 326 S.E.2d 65 (1985); Appelbe v. Appelbe, 76 N.C. App. 391, 333 S.E.2d 312 (1985); Hill v. Hill, 94 N.C. App. 474, 380 S.E.2d 540 (1989); Swilling v. Swilling, 99 N.C. App. 551, 393 S.E.2d 303 (1990); Christensen v. Christensen, 107 N.C. App. 431, 420 S.E.2d 469 (1992); Albritton v. Albritton, 109 N.C. App. 36, 426 S.E.2d 80 (1993); Wilkins v. Wilkins, 111 N.C. App. 541, 432 S.E.2d 891 (1993); Leighow v. Leighow, 120 N.C. App. 619, 463 S.E.2d 290 (1995); Becker v. Becker, 127 N.C. App. 409, 489 S.E.2d 909 (1997); Atkinson v. Chandler, 130 N.C. App. 561, 504 S.E.2d 94 (1998).

Quoted in Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982); Halverson v. Halverson, 151 Bankr. 358 (M.D.N.C. 1993).

Stated in Burmann v. Burmann, 64 N.C. App. 729, 308 S.E.2d 101 (1983); Broome v. Broome, 112 N.C. App. 823, 436 S.E.2d 918 (1993); Torres v. McClain, 140 N.C. App. 238, 535 S.E.2d 623 (2000).

Cited in Myers v. Myers, 61 N.C. App. 748, 301 S.E.2d 522 (1983); Myers v. Myers, 62 N.C. App. 291, 302 S.E.2d 476 (1983); Cator v. Cator, 70 N.C. App. 719, 321 S.E.2d 36 (1984); Williams v. Williams, 72 N.C. App. 184, 323 S.E.2d 463 (1984); Blount v. Blount, 72 N.C. App. 193, 323 S.E.2d 738 (1984); McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985); Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985); Bruce v. Bruce, 79 N.C. App. 579, 339 S.E.2d 855 (1986); Basinger v. Basinger, 80 N.C. App. 554, 342 S.E.2d 549 (1986); North Carolina Baptist Hosps. v. Harris, 319 N.C. 347, 354 S.E.2d 471 (1987); Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 109, 356 S.E.2d 405 (1987); Lefler v. Lefler, 91 N.C. App. 286, 371 S.E.2d 287 (1988); Lee v. Lee, 93 N.C. App. 504, 378 S.E.2d 554 (1989); Shook v. Shook, 95 N.C. App. 578, 383 S.E.2d 405 (1989); Lowry v. Lowry, 99 N.C. App. 246, 393 S.E.2d 141 (1990); Hartsell v. Hartsell, 99 N.C. App. 380, 393 S.E.2d 570 (1990); State v. Morris, 103 N.C. App. 246, 405 S.E.2d 351 (1991); Lemons v. Lemons, 103 N.C. App. 492, 406 S.E.2d 8 (1991); Smith v. Smith, 104 N.C. App. 788, 411 S.E.2d 197 (1991); Topper v. Topper, 105 N.C. App. 239, 412 S.E.2d 173 (1992); Sonek v. Sonek, 105 N.C. App. 247, 412 S.E.2d 917 (1992); Gilbert v. Gilbert, 111 N.C. App. 233, 431 S.E.2d 805 (1993); King v. King, 112 N.C. App. 92, 434 S.E.2d 669 (1993); Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993); King v. King, 114 N.C. App. 454, 442 S.E.2d 154 (1994); Diggs v. Diggs, 116 N.C. App. 95, 446 S.E.2d 873, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 515, 452 S.E.2d 809 (1994); Stanley v. Stanley, 118 N.C. App. 311, 454 S.E.2d 701 (1995); Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995); Forsyth Mem. Hosp. v. Chisholm, 342 N.C. 616, 467 S.E.2d 88 (1996); Holterman v. Holterman, 127 N.C. App. 109, 488 S.E.2d 265 (1997); Weatherford v. Keenan, 128 N.C. App. 178, 493 S.E.2d 812 (1997); Vann v. Vann, 128 N.C. App. 516, 495 S.E.2d 370 (1998); Inman v. Inman, 134 N.C. App. 719, 518 S.E.2d 777 (1999); Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000); Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 143 N.C. App. 387, 545 S.E.2d 788 (2001).

II. MARITAL AND SEPARATE PROPERTY.

A. In General.

Classification as Marital Property by Stipulation of Parties. — Husband's deferred compensation plan was marital property, notwith- standing that the deferred compensation paln had not vested, where the parties had stipulated in a pre-trial order that the deferred compensation plan was marital property. Hamby v. Hamby, 143 N.C. App. 635, 547 S.E.2d 110 (2001), cert. denied, 354 N.C. 69, — S.E.2d — (2001), review denied, 354 N.C. 69, 553 S.E.2d 39 (2001).

North Carolina recognizes the dual nature of property acquired with both marital and separate assets. This approach has generally been referred to as the source of funds theory. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

Property can have a dual nature, and can be classified as part separate and part marital. This approach takes into account the active appreciation of separate property which often results from contributions made by one or both spouses. Nix v. Nix, 80 N.C. App. 110, 341 S.E.2d 116 (1986).

Dual Nature of Property Shown. — Defendant's interest in financial corporation was of a dual nature, having both a marital property and a separate property component. Smith v. Smith, 111 N.C. App. 460, 433 S.E.2d 196, petition denied as to additional issues, 335 N.C. 177, 438 S.E.2d 202 (1993), rev'd on other grounds, 336 N.C. 575, 444 S.E.2d 420 (1994).

Three-Step Analysis of Equitable Distribution. — A trial judge is required to conduct a three-step analysis when making an equitable distribution of the marital assets. These steps are: (1) To determine which property is marital property, (2) to calculate the net value of the property, fair market value less encumbrances, and (3) to distribute the property in an equitable manner. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App.

58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

The requirements that the trial court (1) classify and value all property of the parties, both separate and marital, (2) consider the separate property in making a distribution of the marital property, and (3) distribute the marital property necessarily exist only when evidence is presented to the trial court which supports the claimed classification, valuation and distribution. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

There may be both marital and separate ownership interests in the same property. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Both legal and equitable interest in real and personal property are subject to distribution under this section. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 122 N.C. App. 172, 468 S.E.2d 61 (1996), review denied, 343 N.C. 517, 472 S.E.2d 26 (1996).

"Source of Funds" Rule as to When Property Is Acquired. — The Court of Appeals has adopted the source of funds rule, by which property is "acquired" as it is paid for, so that it may include both marital and separate ownership interests. Under the source of funds rule acquisition is an ongoing process. It does not depend upon inception of title, but upon monetary or other contributions made by one or both of the parties. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

Under the source of the funds theory, when both the marital and separate estates contribute assets towards the acquisition of property, each estate is entitled to an interest in the property in the ratio which its contribution bears to the total investment in the property. Thus, both the separate and marital estates receive a proportionate and fair return on their investments. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

The courts have adopted a source of funds approach to distinguish marital and separate contributions to a single asset. Under the source of funds approach, each party retains as separate property the amount he contributed to purchase the property plus passive appreciation in value. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

In applying the source of funds rule, the financial or other contributions by the marital and separate estates toward the acquisition of property must be identified and accounted for. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

The trial court erred in using a source of funds approach to determine what portion of a tract of land was marital property as opposed to separate property; the source of funds analysis is not applicable until the donor spouse has rebutted the gift presumption by clear, cogent and convincing evidence. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 100 N.C. App. 1, 394 S.E.2d 267 (1990).

"Source of Funds" Rule Is Applicable Even When Property Is Converted After Separation. — North Carolina has adopted the "source of funds" rule to determine whether and to what extent an asset is part of the marital estate. Even when property is converted after the date of separation, this rule continues to apply, and the dispositive question in determining if an asset is a marital asset remains whether the source of funds therefor were marital funds. Mauser v. Mauser, 75 N.C. App. 115, 330 S.E.2d 63 (1985); Freeman v. Freeman, 107 N.C. App. 644, 421 S.E.2d 623 (1992).

Only after determining the nature of the asset received by one spouse after separation, yet claimed by the other to be "marital property," may a classification be made of that asset as between "marital" or "separate" property. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

Premarital Contributions. — Premarital contributions are relevant in an equitable distribution proceeding, to the extent those contributions constitute separate property, entitling the contributing spouse to credit when property of mixed marital and separate character is distributed. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

For the purpose of classification of property, the marital estate is frozen as of the date of separation. While its components clearly may increase in value after separation and before distribution, no new property may be added to the marital estate after the date of separation. Becker v. Becker, 88 N.C. App. 606, 364 S.E.2d 175 (1988).

Debt, as well as assets, must be classified as marital or separate property; if the debt is classified as marital, the court must value the debt and distribute it pursuant to subsection (c). Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987); Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

Medical debts incurred for the benefit of defendant's child were not for the joint benefit of the parties and thus were not marital debts. Crisp v. Crisp, 126 N.C. App. 625, 486 S.E.2d 485 (1997), cert. granted, 347 N.C. 264, 493 S.E.2d 744 (1997), aff'd in part, cert. dismissed in part, 347 N.C. 659, 496 S.E.2d 379 (1998).

Reduction in Separate Debt Using Marital Assets. — A reduction in the separate debt of a party to a marriage, caused by the expenditure of marital funds, is, in the absence of an agreement to repay the marital estate, neither an asset nor a debt of the marital estate and such a reduction is properly considered as a distributional factor within the context of subdivision (c)(12). Adams v. Adams, 115 N.C. App. 168, 443 S.E.2d 780 (1994).

Debt incurred after the separation of the parties was not subject to equitable distribution. Harrington v. Harrington, 110 N.C. App. 782, 431 S.E.2d 240 (1993).

The burden of proof is on the party seeking to classify a debt as marital. If the debt is classified as separate, the court must value it and then, pursuant to subdivision (c)(1), consider it in making a distribution. Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987).

The burden of proof is on the party claiming that property is marital property to show by a preponderance of the evidence that the property: (1) was acquired by either spouse or both spouses; (2) during the marriage; (3) before the date of the separation of the parties; and (4) is presently owned. Caudill v. Caudill, 131 N.C. App. 854, 509 S.E.2d 246 (1998).

Showing That Property Is Separate. — A spouse may challenge a claim that property is marital by showing by a preponderance of the evidence that the property: (1) was acquired by the spouse by bequest, devise, descent, or gift from a third party during the course of the marriage; or (2) was acquired by gift from the other spouse during the course of the marriage and the intent that it be separate property was stated in the conveyance; or (3) was acquired in exchange for separate property and no contrary intention that it be marital property was stated in the conveyance. Caudill v. Caudill, 131 N.C. App. 854, 509 S.E.2d 246 (1998).

Classification of Increases in Value to Separate Property — Burden of Proof. — Plaintiff, as the party claiming the increases in value to separate property to be marital, had the burden of showing by the preponderance of the evidence that the increases in value were marital property. Plaintiff met her burden by showing that all the increases in value were acquired by either or both spouses, were acquired during the course of the marriage, were acquired before the date of separation, and were presently owned. Accordingly, the burden shifted to the defendant to show by the preponderance of the evidence that the acquired increases in value to the properties were his separate property. Ciobanu v. Ciobanu, 104 N.C. App. 461, 409 S.E.2d 749 (1991).

If the party claiming the property to be separate and the party claiming the property to be marital both meet their burdens, then under the statutory scheme of N.C.G.S. subdivisions (b)(1) and (2) of this section, the property is excepted from the definition of marital property and is, therefore, separate property. This allocation of the burdens of proof is consistent with the General Assembly's recent amendment to subsection (b)(1) establishing a rebuttable presumption that property acquired between the dates of marriage and separation is marital property. Ciobanu v. Ciobanu, 104 N.C. App. 461, 409 S.E.2d 749 (1991).

Property acquired after separation of the parties is specifically excepted from the definition of marital property contained in subdivision (b)(1) of this section. However, property acquired in exchange for marital funds is considered marital property to the extent of the contribution even after separation. Peak v. Peak, 82 N.C. App. 700, 348 S.E.2d 353 (1986), decided under this section as it read in 1983.

Use of Marital Property to Acquire Separate Property After Separation. — The fact that marital property was used to acquire other property after the date of the parties' separation did not cause it to lose its marital character. The characterization of property as separate or marital depends not on whether it was acquired after the date of separation, but on whether the source of funds for its purchase was marital property or separate property. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Acquisition of Entireties Property in Exchange for Separate Property. — When property titled by the entireties is acquired in exchange for separate property, the conveyance itself indicates the "contrary intention" to preserving separate property required by the statute. Furthermore, when separate property is used as consideration to acquire entireties property, a gift of separate property to the marital estate is presumed, which is rebuttable by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence. Manes v. Harrison-Manes, 79 N.C. App. 170, 338 S.E.2d 815 (1986).

When property titled by the entireties is acquired in exchange for separate property, the conveyance itself indicates the "contrary intention" to preserving separate property required by the statute. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

Presumption of gift of property to which title is taken by the entirety is limited to real property acquired by both spouses, as tenants by the entirety, in exchange for the separate property of one of them. The presumption does not extend to jointly held personal property which is acquired in exchange for the separate property of one spouse, as to do so would seem to defeat the legislative intent of subdivision (b)(2) of this section. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

House Built with Marital Funds on Property Acquired Prior to Marriage. — By treating a house and lot as separate property solely because the house, built with marital funds, was built on land acquired by defendant prior to the marriage, the court erred in classifying the property. Classification must be according to the statutory definitions of separate property and marital property. Cable v. Cable, 76 N.C. App. 134, 331 S.E.2d 765, cert. denied, 315 N.C. 182, 337 S.E.2d 856 (1985).

Additions, etc., to Wife's Real Property Made During Marriage. — That part of the real property (i.e., house and water-front area) consisting of the unimproved property owned by the wife prior to marriage should have been characterized as separate, and that part of the property consisting of the additions, alterations and repairs provided during marriage should have been considered marital in nature and the marital estate was entitled to proportionate return of its investment. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 75 N.C. App. 592, 331 S.E.2d 186, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 541, 335 S.E.2d 18 (1985).

Findings Required as to Debts Incurred During Marriage. — Where trial court failed to make adequate findings regarding the actual use of proceeds from a debt husband and wife incurred jointly, the findings were inadequate to determine whether the debt was marital or separate property; therefore, the case was remanded for further factual findings on the issue. Rawls v. Rawls, 94 N.C. App. 670, 381 S.E.2d 179 (1989).

Marital Investment of Mortgage Payments. — Where marital home was purchased by wife before the marriage and remained in her name only, and the marital estate invested $9,900 into the home by way of mortgage payments during the marriage, while the separate estate vested an amount not disclosed in the record, the trial judge should have divided the equity based on the proportion invested by the marital and separate estates, so as to determine what percentage of the total investment in the property was marital and what was separate, and then award each estate a proportionate return on its investment. Willis v. Willis, 85 N.C. App. 708, 355 S.E.2d 828, rev'd on other grounds, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

Home Equity Derived from Wife's Contribution. — Where wife's contribution to marital residence was a gift, and there was no statement of her intent that it be separate property, the proportion of the home equity derived from her contribution was marital property. Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 376, 344 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

Effect of Dissolution of Tenancy by Entirety. — Although conveyances from wife to husband dissolved tenancy by the entirety in the parcels of land and vested title thereto solely in the husband, as provided by § 39-13.3(c), husband nevertheless acquired title to the property thereunder, not by gift, but during the course of the marriage and before the parties separated, and property so acquired is ipso facto marital property. Thus, contrary to the husband's contention, dissolving of the tenancy by entirety did not remove the property involved from the ambit of the Equitable Distribution Act, and the trial judge did not err in finding and concluding otherwise. Beroth v. Beroth, 87 N.C. App. 93, 359 S.E.2d 512, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 296, 362 S.E.2d 778 (1987), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Fact that both names were on note, standing alone, was not sufficient to show an intent to make a gift to the marital estate. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Findings Needed to Determine Portion of Spouse's Inheritance Constituting Marital Property. — In order to determine what part of a spouse's inherited interest in a corporation constituted marital property, the trial court would be required to make findings as to: (1) the value of plaintiff's minority interest at the time of inheritance; (2) the value of plaintiff's controlling interest at the date of separation; (3) the difference between the two; and (4) the proportion of that difference that were due to active appreciation, i.e., attributable to funds, talent, or labor that were assets of the marital community. The resulting amount would be marital property subject to equitable distribution. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

Property Acquired While Parties Cohabited Out-of-Wedlock. — It was error for the trial judge to classify as marital property any interest in property acquired before the parties were married but while they lived together. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

The interests acquired by the parties in a parcel of real property that they purchased together, but as unmarried persons before they were married, were their respective separate property; however, any increases in equity and any debt incurred during the marriage were marital property. Glaspy v. Glaspy, 143 N.C. App. 435, 545 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

Property Purchased in Anticipation of Marriage. — The sole fact that property was purchased in anticipation of marriage is not, in and of itself, sufficient to establish donative intent. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Term "acquired" has a dynamic meaning, thus adopting the source of funds theory which recognizes that because property is acquired over time, it may have a dual nature and must therefore be designated according to whether the funds used for acquisition were marital or separate. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Property Acquired During Marriage Prior to Effective Date of Equitable Distribution. — The fact that husband acquired property during marriage but prior to the effective date of the Equitable Distribution Act does not mean that he also acquired a vested right in the law governing the disposition of property upon divorce which was in effect either at the time the property was acquired or at the time of his marriage. There is no such thing as a vested right in the continuation of an existing law. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Classification of property must be supported by the evidence and by appropriate findings of fact. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Availability of Equitable Remedies Does Not Affect Classification of Property. — The potential availability of equitable remedies—such as constructive trust, resulting trust, recovery in quantum meruit or quasi-contract—does not transform property acquired before marriage into marital property subject to equitable distribution under this section. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Awards or settlements arising from a personal injury claim frequently are composed of many elements of recovery, some of which represent compensation for injury to, or loss of, marital property and some of which represent compensation for injury to separate property of the injured spouse. Personal injury recoveries may also include compensation for injury to the separate property of the non-injured spouse, such as the right of consortium, where such injuries have been properly alleged and proved. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Proceeds representing a settlement recovered by a spouse upon a claim for his or her personal injuries sustained during the marriage of the parties may constitute marital property subject to distribution upon dissolution of the marriage, depending on the purpose for which they were received. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Any part of an award compensating a non-injured spouse for loss of consortium is the separate property of the non-injured spouse. Lilly v. Lilly, 107 N.C. App. 484, 420 S.E.2d 492 (1992).

Although, based on his evidence, husband technically met his burden of proving that insurance proceeds from wife's personal injury settlement were marital property, the characterization of a spouse's personal injury settlement as marital or separate property depends on what the award was intended to replace. Lilly v. Lilly, 107 N.C. App. 484, 420 S.E.2d 492 (1992).

To the extent that an award replaces medical expenses, lost wages, or loss of earning capacity sustained during the marriage, it is marital property subject to equitable distribution. To the extent that the award replaces such economic loss occurring after separation, it is the separate property of the injured spouse. However, if the party claiming that the award is marital, i.e., the noninjured spouse, shows by a preponderance of the evidence that the award was acquired by the injured spouse during the marriage and before separation, then the entire award will be marital property unless the other party proves by a preponderance that the award, or some portion of it, was to compensate for economic loss occurring after the date of separation and is therefore separate property. Freeman v. Freeman, 107 N.C. App. 644, 421 S.E.2d 623 (1992).

Wife was entitled to a claim against one-half of any monies which represented reimbursement for husband's lost wages prior to the parties' separation and those reimbursing him for medical expenses incurred prior to separation. Taylor v. Taylor, 92 N.C. App. 413, 374 S.E.2d 644 (1988).

Personal injury award is composed of three potential elements of damages: (1) Those compensating the injured spouse for pain and suffering, disability, disfigurement, or lost limbs; (2) those compensating for lost wages, lost earning capacity, and medical and hospital expenses; and (3) those compensating the non-injured spouse for loss of services or loss of consortium. The portion of an award representing compensation for non-economic loss, i.e., personal suffering and disability, is the separate property of the injured spouse; the portion of an award representing compensation for economic loss, i.e., lost wages, loss of earning capacity during the marriage, and medical and hospital expenses paid out of marital funds, is marital property. Dunlap v. Dunlap, 85 N.C. App. 324, 354 S.E.2d 734 (1987).

Gift From a Third Party. — A gift received by a spouse from a third party is the separate property of the receiving spouse. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 131 N.C. App. 508, 507 S.E.2d 900 (1998).

Distinction Between Active and Passive Appreciation. — There is a distinction between active and passive appreciation of separate property, in that active appreciation refers to financial or managerial contributions of one of the spouses to the separate property during the marriage, while passive appreciation refers to enhancement of the value of separate property due solely to inflation, changing economic conditions or other such circumstances beyond the control of either spouse. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 131 N.C. App. 411, 508 S.E.2d 300 (1998).

Test for Active Increase. — If either or both of the spouses perform substantial services during the marriage which result in an increase in the value of an investment account, that increase is to be characterized as an active increase and classified as a marital asset. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 131 N.C. App. 411, 508 S.E.2d 300 (1998).

Workers' compensation awards are classified as either marital or separate property depending on what the award was intended to replace. Freeman v. Freeman, 107 N.C. App. 644, 421 S.E.2d 623 (1992).

The trial court erred in determining that the plaintiff converted certain marital funds to her own use during the marriage and in treating the allegedly converted funds as part of the marital estate in making its equitable distribution order, as defendant did not prove that any of this money was used to purchase assets that were owned by either of the parties on the date of separation. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 100 N.C. App. 1, 394 S.E.2d 267 (1990).

Refusal to Consider Evidence of Husband's Conversion of Property After Separation Held Error. — The trial court erred in refusing to consider evidence concerning the husband's conversion of property (i.e., shares of stock) after the parties' separation. The ruling was error regardless of whether the property was originally obtained with marital or separate funds. Mauser v. Mauser, 75 N.C. App. 115, 330 S.E.2d 63 (1985).

Court to Determine What Is Marital Property. — Subsection (a) of this section makes it incumbent upon the court to determine what is marital property. Thomas v. Thomas, 102 N.C. App. 127, 401 S.E.2d 367 (1991).

"Use and Possession" of Marital Asset. — It is plain on the face of this section that the provision for transfer of "the use and possession" of a marital asset contemplates the transfer of an asset in kind; transferring the "use and possession" means that the spouse receiving the transfer is entitled to hold the asset pending a final equitable distribution award and use it as it was meant to be used. Brown v. Brown, 112 N.C. App. 15, 434 S.E.2d 873 (1993).

B. Marital Property Generally.

This section mandates a complete listing of marital property, and an order that fails to do so is fatally defective. Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985); Cornelius v. Cornelius, 87 N.C. App. 269, 360 S.E.2d 703 (1987).

"Acquired" as Used in Subdivision (b)(1). — A dynamic rather than static interpretation of the term "acquired" as used in subdivision (b)(1) will best serve to prevent inequity. Acquisition must be recognized as the ongoing process of making payment for property or contributing to the marital estate rather than being fixed on the date that legal title to property is obtained. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

"Vested" as Used in Subdivision (b)(1). — Vesting occurs when an employee has completed the minimum terms of employment necessary to be entitled to receive retirement pay at some point in the future. Milam v. Milam, 92 N.C. App. 105, 373 S.E.2d 459 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 247, 377 S.E.2d 755 (1989).

"Presently owned" defined. — "Presently owned" under subsection (b)(1) refers to the date of separation, not the date of trial. Wornom v. Wornom, 126 N.C. App. 461, 485 S.E.2d 856 (1997).

The legislature's decision not to provide by statute for a marital property presumption was deliberate. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Assets to Be Classified According to Proof. — Under our statutory scheme, without the aid of any presumption, assets, the classification of which is disputed, must be labeled for equitable distribution purposes either as "marital" or "separate," depending upon the proof presented to the trial court of the nature of those assets. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Where plaintiff failed to meet his burden of proving that liability was marital, he could not later claim error in the trial court's classification of the debt. Tucker v. Miller, 113 N.C. App. 785, 440 S.E.2d 315 (1994).

Joint Account. — Absent clear and convincing evidence to the contrary, creation of a spousal joint account should as a matter of law imply consent by each spouse to the use by the other of funds from the account for purposes of sustaining the family or enhancing its standard of living. Spence v. Jones, 83 N.C. App. 8, 348 S.E.2d 819 (1986).

Separate Property Not "Transmuted" into Marital Property. — Insurance settlement, originally the separate property of wife, was not transmuted into marital property as a result of wife's having deposited it into the parties' joint checking account. Lilly v. Lilly, 107 N.C. App. 484, 420 S.E.2d 492 (1992).

Entireties Property Presumed to Be Gift to Marital Estate. — A presumption of a gift to the marital estate of entireties property is consistent with a public policy to further the intent of both parties as evidenced by their mutual agreement. When one party titles property jointly it is reasonable that the other party expects it to be an addition to marital property.

To protect those expectations the property should be classified as marital unless the donor's contrary intent was clearly brought to the attention of the donee. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

While there was evidence that plaintiff's grandmother intended checks written to plaintiff and the checks written to defendant husband only as a gift to plaintiff, where the record was void of any evidence concerning plaintiff's intent when placing those checks into property titled in the entireties, the trial court erred by finding that plaintiff did not intend to make a gift to the marital estate. Upon remand, the trial court could consider the individual contributions of separate property if it viewed those contributions as an appropriate factor under subdivision (c)(12). Hunt v. Hunt, 85 N.C. App. 484, 355 S.E.2d 519 (1987).

Presumption May Be Overcome by Clear, Cogent and Convincing Evidence. — Under common law, a deed conveying real estate to a husband and wife creates an estate by the entireties. However, title is not absolutely controlling under the Equitable Distribution Act. Joint title merely creates a rebuttable presumption of marital property, which may be overcome by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence of the third party donor's contrary intent. Loeb v. Loeb, 72 N.C. App. 205, 324 S.E.2d 33 (1985), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Where a spouse furnishing consideration from separate property causes property to be conveyed to the other spouse in the form of tenancy by the entireties, a presumption of a gift of separate property to the marital estate arises, which is rebuttable by clear, cogent, and convincing evidence. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985); McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, Garris v. Garris, 92 N.C. App. 467, 374 S.E.2d 638 (1988).

Presumption That Gifts Between Spouses Are Marital Property. — Provision of subdivision (b)(2) of this section that "property acquired by gift from the other spouse during the course of the marriage shall be considered separate property only if such an intention is stated in the conveyance" has been interpreted as creating a presumption that gifts between spouses are marital property. Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 376, 344 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

Presumption of Use for Marital Purposes Overcome. — Findings, along with plaintiff's testimony that he was unaware that defendant was converting funds, and defendant's acknowledgment that she could not account for $150,000 she spent were sufficient to overcome the presumption that the withdrawal of funds was with plaintiff's consent and for marital purposes. Wornom v. Wornom, 126 N.C. App. 461, 485 S.E.2d 856 (1997).

In order for property to be considered marital property it must be acquired before date of separation and must be owned at date of separation. Foster v. Foster, 90 N.C. App. 265, 368 S.E.2d 26 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 245, 376 S.E.2d 739 (1989).

Marital property is valued as of the date of the parties' separation. This valuation date is used to determine the equitable distributive share of each party. However, where there is evidence of active or passive appreciation of the marital assets after that date, the court must consider such appreciation as a factor under subdivision (c)(11a) or (12), respectively. Mishler v. Mishler, 90 N.C. App. 72, 367 S.E.2d 385, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 174, 373 S.E.2d 111 (1988).

The trial court must make a written finding of the passive or active character of post-separation appreciation and in that context the trial court is not required to quantify the post-separation increase on each marital asset as active or passive but must make ultimate findings of fact regarding the character of the total post-separation appreciation. Smith v. Smith, 336 N.C. 575, 444 S.E.2d 420 (1994).

Requiring trial courts to make ultimate findings of fact as to whether post-separation appreciation is active or passive will effectuate meaningful appellate review by informing appellate judges as to how distributional factors were used. Smith v. Smith, 336 N.C. 575, 444 S.E.2d 420 (1994).

Passive Appreciation in Investment Account. — Any appreciation of an investment account established with the wife's separate funds was purely passive appreciation, and thus, appreciation was the wife's separate property, where the spouses merely met with an investment advisor and chose among investment alternatives. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 131 N.C. App. 411, 508 S.E.2d 300 (1998).

Increase in Value of Separate Property Due to Active Appreciation Is Marital Property. — Subdivision (b)(2) of this section refers only to passive appreciation of separate property, such as that due to inflation, and not to active appreciation resulting from the contributions, monetary or otherwise, by one or both spouses. The increase in the value of separate property due to active appreciation, which otherwise would have augmented the marital estate, is marital property. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 75 N.C. App. 592, 331 S.E.2d 186, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 541, 335 S.E.2d 18 (1985).

While an inherited interest in a closely-held corporation qualifies as separate property under the statute, any increase in its value due to active appreciation is marital property. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

An increase in value of separate property due to active appreciation, which otherwise would have augmented the marital estate, is marital property. Thus the marital partnership shares in increases in the value of property it has proportionately "acquired" in its own right. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

Active appreciation of the value of separate property due to contributions of either spouse during marriage is nonetheless marital property, and therefore, is subject to equitable distribution. Rogers v. Rogers, 90 N.C. App. 408, 368 S.E.2d 412, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 366, 373 S.E.2d 548 (1988).

The post-separation appreciation of marital property must be treated as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a) or (c)(12). Mrozek v. Mrozek, 129 N.C. App. 43, 496 S.E.2d 836 (1998).

When a spouse uses separate property in the acquisition of property titled by the entireties, a gift to the marital estate is presumed; this presumption is rebuttable only by clear, cogent and convincing evidence that a gift was not intended. McLean v. McLean, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Bonus Payments. — A bonus based upon work performed during the marriage is not necessarily marital property. The bonus must also be vested. Edwards v. Edwards, 110 N.C. App. 1, 428 S.E.2d 834, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 172, 436 S.E.2d 374 (1993).

Vested Stock Options. — Stock options granted an employee by his or her employer which are exercisable upon the date of separation or which may not be cancelled, and which may, therefore, be said to be vested as of the date of separation, are marital property. Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

With regard to failure of trial court to equally divide the marital debts, subdivision (c)(11a) was not controlling where the payment of the marital debts in question was ordered as a part of the award of alimony pendente lite. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408 (1988).

Active Appreciation in Nonowned Real Property. — Where marital funds were expended to make improvements upon the couple's nonowned dwelling, the improvements were an asset acquired by the parties during marriage; consequently, plaintiff was entitled to an equitable share in the insurance proceeds realized upon destruction of the premises. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

Improvements on Nonowned Property. — Parties had a marital property interest in premises owned by defendant's parents arising from the improvements in the property accomplished by the parties during their marriage. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

When a third party holds legal title to property which is claimed to be marital property, that third party is a necessary party to the equitable distribution proceeding, with their participation limited to the issue of the ownership of that property. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 122 N.C. App. 172, 468 S.E.2d 61 (1996), review denied, 343 N.C. 517, 472 S.E.2d 26 (1996).

Taxes on Maritally Owned Property. — A debt incurred during marriage for the joint benefit of husband and wife is a marital debt, and taxes on maritally owned property is such a debt. Bowman v. Bowman, 96 N.C. App. 253, 385 S.E.2d 155 (1989).

Insurance proceeds intended as exclusive recompense for a spouse's lost wages and medical expenses are part of the marital estate subject to distribution. Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985).

Wife was entitled to a proportionate return on the $5,000 in marital funds which she contributed toward purchase of property. Peak v. Peak, 82 N.C. App. 700, 348 S.E.2d 353 (1986), remanding for findings to determine the reasonableness of the court's award.

The trial court properly classified the parties' residence as marital property, where the parties' residence was titled in their names as entireties property, and the defendant did not come forward with clear, cogent, and convincing evidence to rebut the presumption created by the property being titled as entireties property. Thompson v. Thompson, 93 N.C. App. 229, 377 S.E.2d 767 (1989).

Since in an equitable distribution proceeding, only marital property is subject to distribution by the court, the trial court was without authority to appoint the spouses as trustees of an educational fund belonging to the parties' two children; further, the condition that the funds would be distributed to the children only after they complete four years of college is a creation of the court and one for which the trial court had no authority. Lawrence v. Lawrence, 100 N.C. App. 1, 394 S.E.2d 267 (1990).

Property Subject to Bankruptcy Proceedings. — When a pending claim for equitable distribution concerns property whose status as marital is foreseeably a matter of some dispute, a former spouse cannot sit on her rights in bankruptcy, only to surface later and lay claim to that property after it had already been subjected to possible liquidation, attachment, or other manner of disposal. Walston v. Walston, 190 Bankr. 66 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

Leased Car. — The trial court did not err in failing to classify, value, and distribute a leased Porsche as a marital asset, where after the separation date, defendant returned the car to the leasing company and received no money in return because he had no equity in it. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

Goodwill of Corporation. — The trial court erred in concluding that the goodwill of the corporation was an asset unique to plaintiff and in finding 100% of the goodwill to be a marital asset. Using the uncontested value of the goodwill, the trial court should include that value as part of the valuation of the corporation, calculate the portion of the corporation that is marital at 80%, and distribute accordingly. Tucker v. Miller, 113 N.C. App. 785, 440 S.E.2d 315 (1994).

Post-separation appreciation of a marital asset is not marital property and therefore cannot be distributed by the trial court. Such appreciation is a distributional factor which the court must consider in resolving what division of the marital property would be equitable. Fox v. Fox, 114 N.C. App. 125, 441 S.E.2d 613 (1994).

A marital debt is one incurred, during the marriage and before the date of separation, by either or both spouses for the joint benefit of the parties. Huguelet v. Huguelet, 113 N.C. App. 533, 439 S.E.2d 208, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 605, 447 S.E.2d 392 (1994).

Any debt incurred by one or both of the spouses after the date of separation to pay off a marital debt which exists on the date of separation is properly classified as a marital debt. Huguelet v. Huguelet, 113 N.C. App. 533, 439 S.E.2d 208, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 605, 447 S.E.2d 392 (1994).

Separate debt cannot be distributed; however, the trial court should consider such debt as a factor in deciding what constitutes an equitable division of the marital property. Fox v. Fox, 114 N.C. App. 125, 441 S.E.2d 613 (1994).

Federal Tax Lien Properly Classified as Marital Debt. — A federal tax lien on a masonry business started by the husband after the parties' marriage was properly determined to be a marital debt since the business profits were for the joint benefit of the parties as husband and wife during the marriage. Glaspy v. Glaspy, 143 N.C. App. 435, 545 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

C. Separate Property Generally.

Legislative Intent. — Subsection (b) expresses a clear legislative intent that separate property brought into the marriage or acquired by a spouse during the marriage be returned to that spouse, if possible, upon dissolution of the marriage. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 131 N.C. App. 508, 507 S.E.2d 900 (1998).

There is no requirement that spouse who owns separate property declare the intention that the property remain separate, or that the property for which separate property is exchanged be separate. Lewis v. Lewis, 98 N.C. App. 138, 389 S.E.2d 638, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 637, 399 S.E.2d 124 (1990).

Separate property remains separate property when it is exchanged for other separate property unless the conveyance states a contrary intention. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Property acquired in exchange for separate property is separate property, as is income derived from separate property and as are increases in the value of separate property. Caudill v. Caudill, 131 N.C. App. 854, 509 S.E.2d 246 (1998).

Separate property is not subject to equitable distribution. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

And Must Be Returned to Spouse Who Owns It. — Separate property brought into the marriage or acquired by a spouse during the marriage must be returned to that spouse, if possible, upon dissolution of the marriage. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

Effect of Title. — Where land or personalty is purchased with the "separate property" of either spouse, it remains the "separate property" of that spouse, regardless of how the title is made. Mims v. Mims, 305 N.C. 41, 286 S.E.2d 779 (1982).

Passive Appreciation in Separate Property's Value Is Separate Property. — Subdivision (b)(2) of this section, which classifies an increase in value of separate property as separate property, refers only to an increase due to passive appreciation, which does not deplete the marital state. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

Increases in value of separate property remain separate property only to the extent that the increases are passive, as opposed to active appreciation resulting from the contributions of the parties during the marriage. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

No Active Appreciation In Value of Medical License. — Where plaintiff was unable to show an increase in the value of defendant's medical license and the evidence tended to show that marital efforts led to the acquisition of the separate property rather than to an active increase in its value, the trial court did not err in refusing to value the active appreciation. Conway v. Conway, 131 N.C. App. 609, 508 S.E.2d 812 (1998).

No Difference Between Passive and Active Increases in Evaluating Contributions. — For the purposes of evaluating contributions to the marital economy for equitable distribution, there is no difference between "passive" increases in separate property (interest, inflation) and "active" increases brought about by the labor of third parties for whom neither spouse has responsibility. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Wife's Contribution to Husband's Separate Property. — Fact that wife's contributions to husband's separate property, a beach condominium, consisted of those functions which a homemaker performs did not disentitle her from having the appreciation in the property's value classified as marital property. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App. 58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

Courts have consistently recognized the interest acquired by the nontitled spouse in separately-owned property which increases in value due to the personal efforts of the nontitled spouse. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App. 58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

There is no rule of law which even intimates that a nontitled spouse should be penalized and not allowed a return on his or her investment because the efforts expended were characteristic of those which a caring and loving spouse would have performed in any event. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App. 58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

Annuity and Bank Account. — As to annuity and bank account acquired in exchange for separate property of husband, there was no error in the trial court's conclusion that the property remained the separate property of husband, where although husband added wife's name to the bank account and annuity, the record disclosed no evidence of any intention that the funds would not remain his separate property. Manes v. Harrison-Manes, 79 N.C. App. 170, 338 S.E.2d 815 (1986).

Social Security Disability Benefits. — The defendant's Social Security disability benefits should not have been valued within the marital estate and distributed as part of the marital estate. Cooper v. Cooper, 143 N.C. App. 322, 545 S.E.2d 775 (2001).

Separate Property Used to Pay Mortgage. — Separate property in the sum of $8,983.37 acquired by wife from her mother, which was used to help pay the mortgage on the family residence held as tenants by the entirety, became marital property upon such use. Draughon v. Draughon, 82 N.C. App. 738, 347 S.E.2d 871 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 107 (1987).

Where mortgage payments made after separation consisted entirely of defendant's separate property, it would appear that defendant should be credited with at least the amount by which he decreased the principal owed in the marital home. Hunt v. Hunt, 85 N.C. App. 484, 355 S.E.2d 519 (1987).

Despite fact that the plaintiff and the defendant shared custody of the children by alternating their presence in the marital home during the couple's separation, the court erred in failing to credit plaintiff with paying the entire mortgage debt on the marital property as of the date of separation. Hendricks v. Hendricks, 96 N.C. App. 462, 386 S.E.2d 84 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 264, 389 S.E.2d 113 (1990).

The entireties conveyance itself sufficiently indicated the "contrary intention" under this section to preserving separate property. Thompson v. Thompson, 93 N.C. App. 229, 377 S.E.2d 767 (1989).

Separate Property Exchanged for Property Owned as Tenants by the Entireties. — Husband was presumed to have made gift of separate property to marital estate where separate property was exchanged for residential lot which was owned by parties as tenants by the entireties without reservation of interest. Haywood v. Haywood, 106 N.C. App. 91, 415 S.E.2d 565, cert. denied, 331 N.C. 553, 418 S.E.2d 665 (1992), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 553, 418 S.E.2d 666 (1992).

House Bought with Proceeds of Separate Property. — The proceeds from the subsequent sale during marriage of a boat which husband had built before the marriage belonged to him, as the source of those funds, the boat, was his; when the monies were then used to construct husband's and wife's house, the house became the separate property of the husband, absent evidence that the home was taken by the entireties, or that husband made a gift of the house to his wife. Lewis v. Lewis, 98 N.C. App. 138, 389 S.E.2d 638, cert. denied, 327 N.C. 637, 399 S.E.2d 124 (1990).

Storage of Separate Property in Joint Safety Deposit Box. — Gold coins that were acquired in exchange for the plaintiff's separate property were the plaintiff's separate property. That the plaintiff stored the coins in a joint safety deposit box was not an express contrary intention in the conveyance that the coins be considered to be marital property. Haywood v. Haywood, 106 N.C. App. 91, 415 S.E.2d 565, cert. denied, 331 N.C. 553, 418 S.E.2d 665 (1992), cert. denied, 331 N.C. 553, 418 S.E.2d 666 (1992).

Where a $17,000 BMW was paid with $10,000 given to the husband by his grandmother and deposited by him in a joint bank account, and there was no evidence of any donative intent, absent the deposit, $10,000 of the BMW purchase price should be considered the husband's separate property. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Where an automobile was purchased prior to marriage with a $7,000 down payment by husband, and was titled to both husband and wife, and they both made payments out of separate funds before marriage, and wife continued to make payments during separation, the automobile should not have been included as marital property in divorce proceedings but instead should have been apportioned pro rata to each estate (husband's separate, wife's separate, and marital). Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Nonvested Stock Options. — Stock options granted to an employee by his or her employer which are not exercisable as of the date of separation and which may be lost as a result of events occurring thereafter are not vested, and should be treated as the separate property of the spouse for whom they may, depending upon circumstances, vest at some time in the future. Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

Money in Separate Account. — In divorce proceeding, where defendant argued that because her father gave money to her, and she deposited it in an account which was solely in her name, that the account should be classified as her separate property, however, the only evidence which was presented indicating donative intent as to this gift was defendant's testimony that "well, my daddy wants me to have this and I'm going to keep it separate," defendant did not meet the burden of showing by a preponderance of the evidence that the account met the definition of separate property. Johnson v. Johnson, 114 N.C. App. 589, 442 S.E.2d 533 (1994).

Inherited Funds Deposited in Joint Account. — Funds deposited into a joint account were the separate property of the husband, where the funds were inherited from the husband's mother even though he stated he intended to use part of the inheritance for marital purposes. Friend-Novorska v. Novorska, 131 N.C. App. 508, 507 S.E.2d 900 (1998).

Transmutation Doctrine Rejected. — The doctrine of transmutation is not recognized in this state, so that the mere commingling of marital funds with separate funds alone does not automatically transmute the separate property into marital property. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 131 N.C. App. 411, 508 S.E.2d 300 (1998).

Gifts to Spouse. — In equitable distribution cases, gifts to a spouse from the other spouse may be classified as separate property under subsection (b)(2). Milner v. Littlejohn, 126 N.C. App. 184, 484 S.E.2d 453 (1997).

The party seeking to show its separate nature must show by the preponderance of the evidence that the gift was given with such and intention. Milner v. Littlejohn, 126 N.C. App. 184, 484 S.E.2d 453 (1997).

Checks from the wife's aunt made out to the husband were the wife's separate property, where in attempting to distribute her property to her beneficiaries to avoid inheritance taxes, the aunt sent two $10,000 checks to the husband but noted in a letter her intention that the checks were gifts for the wife. O'Brien v. O'Brien, 131 N.C. App. 411, 508 S.E.2d 300 (1998).

D. Professional and Business Licenses.

Valuation of Professional Practice and Goodwill Generally. — In ordering an equitable distribution of marital property, a court should make specific findings regarding the value of a spouse's professional practice and the existence and value of its goodwill, and should clearly indicate the evidence on which its valuations are based, preferably noting the valuation method or methods on which it relied. The court may appoint an additional expert witness under § 8C-1, Rule 706, if needed. On appeal, if it appears that the trial court reasonably approximated the net value of the practice and its goodwill, if any, based on competent evidence and on a sound valuation method or methods, the valuation will not be disturbed. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

Where trial court established a net value for husband's landscaping business equal to the net value of the tangible assets of that business, and it could not be determined from the court's findings what method the court used in determining that the business had no goodwill and whether that determination was based on a sound method of valuation, the cause would be remanded for further findings as to the value of plaintiff's business. Draughon v. Draughon, 82 N.C. App. 738, 347 S.E.2d 871 (1986), cert. denied, 319 N.C. 103, 353 S.E.2d 107 (1987).

Criteria for valuation of a professional association set out in Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985), are factors for the court to consider in valuing a professional interest, and are not criteria for admissibility of the expert's opinion. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Goodwill is an asset which must be valued and considered in determining the value of a professional practice for purposes of equitable distribution. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

Trial court's recognition of the existence of corporation's goodwill, but failure to determine its value, was error. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

Method of Valuation. — Any legitimate method of valuation that measures the present value of goodwill by taking into account past results, and not the post-marital efforts of the professional spouse, is a proper method of valuing the goodwill of a professional practice. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

Factors listed in Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985), as relevant in valuing goodwill, namely, age, health, reputation of the practitioner, nature of the practice, length of time in existence, profitability, and comparative professional success, are helpful, though not exclusive or absolute. McLean v. McLean, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

When a professional practice has not been established for a sufficient period to determine goodwill based on comparable past earnings, the capitalization of excess earnings method of valuing goodwill should be used, which is based in part on the amount by which the earnings of the professional spouse exceed that which would have been earned by a person with similar education, experience, and skill as an employee in the same general locale. Conway v. Conway, 131 N.C. App. 609, 508 S.E.2d 812 (1998).

License to Practice Dentistry. — It was error for the trial court to fail to find that a spouse's license to practice dentistry was separate property. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

In an equitable distribution action, the dental license of a practicing dentist was separate property, which the trial court should have considered as one of the factors affecting equitable distribution. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

Medical License and Interest in Medical Clinic. — The trial court did not commit error in concluding as a matter of law that the husband's medical license, including any increases or additions thereto, whether active or passive, as well as his interest in a medical clinic, constituted his separate property. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

Value of Spouse's Law Practice. — On remand to determine the value of spouse's law practice, the trial court was directed to consider the following components of the association as enumerated in Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985): (a) its fixed assets including cash, furniture, equipment, and other supplies; (b) its other assets including accounts receivable and the value of work in progress; (c) its goodwill, if any; and (d) its liabilities. McLean v. McLean, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Appointment of Expert to Appraise Dental Practice. — In an equitable distribution action, the trial court has the authority under § 8C-1, Rule 706 to appoint an expert witness to appraise the goodwill and other value of a dental practice. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 677, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Criteria for admissibility of an expert opinion as to the value of a professional association set out in Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985), are factors for the court to consider in valuing the professional interest, and are not criteria for admissibility of the expert's opinion. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, Cline v. Cline, 6 N.C. App. 523, 170 S.E.2d 645 (1969).

Valuation Held Unsupported. — The trial court's valuation of a spouse's professional association, based on "available evidence including the tangible assets and net income" of the practice, did not appear to be based on a sound method of valuation, nor was it supported by the evidence, and for this reason the equitable distribution order was vacated and remanded for a new hearing. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

E. Pension and Retirement Benefits.

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided prior to the amendments to this section by Session Laws 1987, c. 663, and all were decided prior to the amendment by Session Laws 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 960.

As to distributive award of benefits, see also analysis line III. C., Distributive Awards.

Constitutionality of Reclassifying Pension as Marital Property. — Claim that husband's rights to due process and equal protection were violated because the Equitable Distribution Act was applied retroactively and in a way which took his property without compensation was meritless. Husband's expectation of a continuance of existing law relating to pension payments did not amount to a vested right. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

The 1987 amendment did not change the portion of the section permitting retirement benefits to be made payable "[a]s a prorated portion of benefits." In both versions of the section, the award is based on the benefits vested at the time of separation and must include any "growth" or "gains and losses" arising out of the vested benefits. Neither version permits an award based on contributions after the date of separation. Workman v. Workman, 106 N.C. App. 562, 418 S.E.2d 269 (1992).

Applicability of Amendment Making Vested Pension Rights Marital Property. — The 1983 amendment to this section which reclassified vested pension and retirement rights as marital property is applicable only to actions for absolute divorce filed on or after August 1, 1983. Morton v. Morton, 76 N.C. App. 295, 332 S.E.2d 736, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 314 N.C. 667, 337 S.E.2d 582 (1985); Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 376, 344 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

Where an action for divorce is filed before August 1, 1983, all pension and retirement rights are considered separate property for purposes of equitable distribution. Where a divorce action is filed on or after August 1, 1983, vested pension and retirement rights are considered marital property, and the expectation of nonvested rights are considered separate property. Johnson v. Johnson, 74 N.C. App. 593, 328 S.E.2d 876 (1985).

The amendment of this section to include military pensions as marital property, made effective August 1, 1983, is presumed to apply prospectively only. Morris v. Morris, 79 N.C. App. 386, 339 S.E.2d 424, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 733, 345 S.E.2d 390 (1986).

In an action instituted on July 29, 1983, only three days prior to August 1, 1983, when amendment to subdivision (b)(1) of this section took effect making vested pension or retirement rights marital property, the trial court's consideration, under the "catchall" provision of subdivision (c)(12), of the timing of the action in deciding whether an equal distribution of the marital property would be equitable was essentially a superfluous restatement of its finding under subdivision (c)(5) as it then read, requiring the court to consider pension or retirement rights, and was not error. Peak v. Peak, 82 N.C. App. 700, 348 S.E.2d 353 (1986).

Defendant, an enlisted man, was not guaranteed the right to receive retirement benefits because defendant had served only 17 years in the military; therefore, defendant did not have a vested right to retirement benefits at the time the parties separated. George v. George, 115 N.C. App. 387, 444 S.E.2d 449 (1994).

Application of Equitable Distribution Held Not Retroactive When Pension Benefits Had Accrued Prior to Adoption. — Although the defendant's right to his pension benefits had accrued fully prior to the adoption of the Equitable Distribution Act and the August 1, 1983 amendment to § 50-20 subjecting his pension to equitable distribution, the act and amendment did not affect his property interests until the plaintiffs claim for equitable distribution was filed on May 14, 1984, well after both the act and the amendment became effective. This was not a retroactive application of the act or of the amendment. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

1982 Agreement Held to Bar Share in Spouse's Military Pension. — Separation agreement entered into on August 2, 1982, which contained no reference to defendant-husband's military pension, but specifically provided that each party was forever barred from any or all rights or claims not therein reserved which arose out of the marital relation and that each party released and relinquished all claims or interest in and to all property of the other, whether then owned or subsequently acquired, barred an award to plaintiff wife under the Equitable Distribution Act of a share in defendant-husband's military pension; the subsequent amendment of the act effective August 1, 1983, to include military pensions as marital property, did not permit plaintiff-wife to avoid the release provisions of the agreement. Morris v. Morris, 79 N.C. App. 386, 339 S.E.2d 424, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 733, 345 S.E.2d 390 (1986).

Interest in Military Pension Not Dischargeable in Bankruptcy. — Marital property interests in a debtor's military pension are not dischargeable in bankruptcy. Walston v. Walston, 190 Bankr. 66 (E.D.N.C. 1995).

In the absence of an agreement of the parties, there are two methods for dividing retirement benefits: (1) award the pension to the employee-spouse and award other marital property of offsetting value to the other spouse under subdivision (b)(3)d, or (2) of this section divide the pension benefits if and when paid, under subdivision (b)(3)c of this section. The first method is known as the present value method, or the immediate offset method, while the second method is known as the fixed percentage method, or the deferred distribution method. Bishop v. Bishop, 113 N.C. App. 725, 440 S.E.2d 591 (1994).

Disability payments must be classified as the retiree's separate property and, as such, treated as a distributional factor. Bishop v. Bishop, 113 N.C. App. 725, 440 S.E.2d 591 (1994).

The amount of plaintiff's "disability retirement benefits" clearly attributable to his physical disability was plaintiff's separate property, under this section. Johnson v. Johnson, 117 N.C. App. 410, 450 S.E.2d 923 (1994).

Wife's Contributions as Homemaker to Husband's Vested Interest in Pension Plan. — In light of the subsequent recognition that vested pension and retirement rights should be considered marital property in the 1983 amendment to subsection (b)(1), fairness required that wife's contributions as a homemaker to the acquisition of at least husband's vested interests in the pension and profit sharing plans of his professional association should have been considered by the court under subsection (c)(12) in determining an equitable division of the marital property. Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 543, 335 S.E.2d 316 (1985).

Because of the substantial disparity between the value of the pension benefits and the other assets of the parties, it was determined to be equitable to award fifty-five percent (55%) of the portion of the defendant's pension benefits that were accumulated during the marriage to the plaintiff, as provided for in subsection (b)(3)(c). Barlow v. Barlow, 116 N.C. App. 257, 447 S.E.2d 464 (1994).

The increased component of a retirement annuity, offered to a spouse only after separation and for which the spouse was not eligible without additional service after the date of separation, is separate property for purposes of equitable distribution, since the increase vested only after the date of separation, and since the incentive increase in pension benefits was compensation for the loss of future earnings. Boger v. Boger, 103 N.C. App. 340, 405 S.E.2d 591 (1991).

Gains on Retirement Benefits After Separation. — The trial court did not err by failing to account for and distribute gains which accrued on the parties' retirement benefits after the date of separation. Harvey v. Harvey, 112 N.C. App. 788, 437 S.E.2d 397 (1993).

Methods of Evaluation and Distribution. — For case discussing the relative advantages and disadvantages of the present discounted value method and the deferred distribution method in evaluating and distributing pension and retirement benefits, see Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Prescribed valuation method under this section can be expressed as a fraction. The numerator of the fraction is the total period of time the marriage existed (up to the date of separation) simultaneously with the employment which earned the vested pension or retirement rights; the denominator is the total amount of time the employee spouse is employed in the job which earned the vested pension or retirement rights. This statutorily prescribed fraction automatically provides the method by which to value the pension or retirement pay, as marital property, as of the date of separation, by requiring the numerator to be the amount of time up to the date of separation that the employment which earns the retirement pay exists simultaneously with the marriage period. Lewis v. Lewis, 83 N.C. App. 438, 350 S.E.2d 587 (1986).

Division of Retirement Pay Upheld. — Where at the time the parties separated defendant had been in the Marine Corps during the marriage for 21 years, and at the time of the equitable distribution hearing defendant had been in the Marine Corps for 30 years and thus had achieved the maximum amount of retirement pay permitted regardless of the number of years served, the trial court properly calculated the amount of military retirement pay attributable to the marriage as 21/30 or seventy percent (70%), and having determined that an equal division was equitable, properly awarded the wife one-half of this seventy percent (70%), or thirty-five percent (35%), of the defendant's gross military retirement pay, while limiting this award to fifty percent (50%) of the defendant's disposable retired or retainer pay, consistent with the requirement of this section. Lewis v. Lewis, 83 N.C. App. 438, 350 S.E.2d 587 (1986) (decided prior to 1992 amendment).

Trial court properly awarded nonemployee spouse joint and survivor annuity benefits and pre-retirement benefits. Workman v. Workman, 106 N.C. App. 562, 418 S.E.2d 269 (1992).

Section 135-9 and this section do not mandate entry of a Qualified Domestic Relations Order to assign a retirement plan; therefore, the plain language of a property settlement agreement incorporated into a consent order served to secure ex-wife's 20% interest in her ex-husband's state university retirement plan. Patterson ex rel. Jordan v. Patterson, 137 N.C. App. 653, 529 S.E.2d 484 (2000).

Date-of-Separation Value for 401(k) Account. — The trial court erred in assigning a marital estate value to the 401(k) account other than its value on the date of separation. Cooper v. Cooper, 143 N.C. App. 322, 545 S.E.2d 775 (2001).

Calculation of Pension Value. — Under subsection (b)(3) the value of defendant's pension must be calculated as of the date of separation and years of service after the date of separation are not to be included in the valuation. Surrette v. Surrette, 114 N.C. App. 368, 442 S.E.2d 123 (1994).

Deferral of Distribution of Pension Benefits Held Error. — The trial court erred and abused its discretion when, after properly choosing in its discretion to use the present value evaluation method of husband's pension, it impermissibly postponed or deferred payment to wife instead of ordering immediate payment. Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Court erred in deferring, until actual receipt, payments calculated under present valuation method of evaluating pension and retirement benefits. This, in effect, operated as a double reduction: plaintiff received a discounted value for immediate distribution, but nevertheless was required to wait to receive payment until, if and when, the defendant reached retirement and began receiving benefits. Seifert v. Seifert, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

But Deferral Possible Under Fixed Percentage Method. — Under the fixed percentage method of evaluating pension and retirement benefits, deferral of payment is possible without unfairly reducing the value of the award. The present value of the pension or retirement benefits is not considered in determining the percentage to which the nonemployee spouse is entitled. Moreover, because the nonemployee spouse receives a percentage of the benefits actually paid to the employee spouse, the nonemployee spouse shares in any growth in the benefits. Yet, the formula gives the nonemployee spouse a percentage only of those benefits attributable to the period of the marriage, and that spouse does not share in benefits based on contributions made after the date of separation. Seifert v. Seifert, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Fifty-percent Cap Under Fixed Percentage Formula. — Use of the fixed percentage formula prohibits nonemployee spouse from receiving more than 50% of the retirement benefits. Workman v. Workman, 106 N.C. App. 562, 418 S.E.2d 269 (1992).

In-Kind Distribution, Anticipating Future Benefits, Allowed. — If the marital estate contains adequate property other than pension and retirement benefits, an in-kind or monetary distribution of these assets may be made which takes into account the anticipated pension and retirement benefits. This is impermissible only when the value of the pension or retirement benefits is so disproportionate in relation to other marital property that an immediate distribution would be inappropriate. Seifert v. Seifert, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Benefits of amended pension plan which listed the vesting date prior to the date of separation were properly classified as marital property, and the court was also correct in valuing the pension at its net value, by subtracting the taxes which defendant had paid thereon. Mishler v. Mishler, 90 N.C. App. 72, 367 S.E.2d 385, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 174, 373 S.E.2d 111 (1988).

Social Security Retirement Benefits Cannot Be Disbursed In Equitable Distribution Award. — Where at separation husband had received monthly Social Security retirement benefits of six hundred seventy-nine dollars ($679.00) and trial court awarded wife four-ninths of husband's Social Security, trial court erred in its award of Social Security benefits to wife since Social Security benefits cannot be disbursed in equitable distribution award. Cruise v. Cruise, 92 N.C. App. 586, 374 S.E.2d 882 (1989).

Court improperly used the withdrawal value of a pension plan as valuation method where the pension plan did not allow early withdrawal of accumulated monies. Stiller v. Stiller, 98 N.C. App. 80, 389 S.E.2d 619 (1990).

The trial court erred by failing to classify a husband's retirement account as either marital or separate property where the husband's partnership agreement provided for vesting and both the husband's and the wife's experts testified about the value of the retirement interest. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

III. DISTRIBUTION OF PROPERTY.

A. In General.

Only Marital Property Distributed. — Under subsection (c), only marital property is subject to distribution. Rogers v. Rogers, 90 N.C. App. 408, 368 S.E.2d 412, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 366, 373 S.E.2d 548 (1988).

Only considerations which are just and proper within the meaning of subdivision (c)(12) of this section are those related to the marital economy. Burnett v. Burnett, 122 N.C. App. 712, 471 S.E.2d 649 (1996).

Both legal and equitable interests are subject to distribution as marital property. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 128 N.C. App. 461, 495 S.E.2d 738 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 291, 501 S.E.2d 925 (1998).

Subsection (c) of this section establishes a presumption of equal division of the marital property. White v. White, 64 N.C. App. 432, 308 S.E.2d 68 (1983); Smith v. Smith, 71 N.C. App. 242, 322 S.E.2d 393 (1984), modified and aff'd, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

And Equal Division Is Mandatory Absent Determination That It Would Not Be Equitable. — This section is a legislative enactment of public policy so strongly favoring the equal division of marital property that an equal division is made mandatory unless the court determines that an equal division is not equitable. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985); Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985); Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

Equal division of marital property is mandatory unless the trial court determines that equal is not equitable. Coleman v. Coleman, 89 N.C. App. 107, 365 S.E.2d 178 (1988).

Equal division of the marital property mandatory, unless the court determines in the exercise of its discretion that such a distribution is inequitable. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App. 58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

Right to Equitable Distribution Revived. — Although § 50-11(e) requires that a claim for equitable distribution be brought prior to the granting of the divorce; where the trial court granted defendant relief from the judgment of absolute divorce and permitted defendant to file her answer, the effect was the same as if the judgment had never been entered, and defendant's right to equitable distribution was revived. Baker v. Baker, 115 N.C. App. 337, 444 S.E.2d 478 (1994).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in ordering an unequal division of the marital property in favor of the defendant where the trial court concluded that because the defendant had physical custody of the two minor children born of the marriage she had a need to occupy the marital residence and because the plaintiff had an income approximately twice the defendant's income an unequal division in favor of the defendant was equitable. Barlowe v. Barlowe, 113 N.C. App. 797, 440 S.E.2d 279 (1994), aff'd, 339 N.C. 732, 453 S.E.2d 865 (1995).

When evidence is presented from which a reasonable finder of fact could determine that an equal division would be inequitable, the trial court is required to consider the factors set forth in subsection (c), but guided always by the public policy expressed in the act favoring an equal division. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Burden of Proving That Equal Division Is Not Equitable. — A party desiring an unequal division of marital property bears the burden of producing evidence concerning one or more of the twelve factors in the statute and the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that an equal division would not be equitable. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985); Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Subsection (c) of this section requires an equal division unless the trial court, in its discretion, determines that an equal division would not be equitable. The party seeking a greater than equal share bears the burden of proving that an unequal division would be equitable with respect to the 12 factors listed under subsection (c). Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 376, 344 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

The burden is on the party seeking an unequal division of marital assets to prove by a preponderance of the evidence that an equal division is not equitable. Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

Where the trial court has accepted an expert's methodology, a party desiring to challenge the methodology must produce other testimony challenging that methodology and set out the prejudicial error which resulted from its use. Sharp v. Sharp, 116 N.C. App. 513, 449 S.E.2d 39, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 669, 453 S.E.2d 181 (1994).

Failure in Burden to Present Evidence. — Where the party claiming a debt to be marital has failed in his burden to present evidence from which the trial court can classify, value and distribute the property, that party cannot on appeal claim error when the trial court fails to classify the property as marital and distribute it. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

Because defendant did not seek to set aside her stipulations and present evidence to the trial court as to the value of the property at the date of distribution, defendant was bound by her stipulations. Sharp v. Sharp, 116 N.C. App. 513, 449 S.E.2d 39, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 669, 453 S.E.2d 181 (1994).

Trial Judge Must Consider Distributional Factors. — Where the trial court's valuation of the marital home on the date of separation, the trial judge did not properly consider the post-separation appreciation as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a) or (12). The trial judge must consider those distributional factors raised by the evidence of post-separation appreciation under subdivisions (c)(11a) and (12). Truesdale v. Truesdale, 89 N.C. App. 445, 366 S.E.2d 512 (1988).

Task of a trial court when faced with an action under this section is to equitably distribute the marital property between the litigants. This is evident from the language and the title of the Act. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

Procedure to Be Followed. — In an action for equitable distribution, first the court must classify property as either marital or separate, as defined in subdivisions (b)(1) and (b)(2) of this section. Next it must divide the marital property equally, unless it determines that an equal division is not equitable. McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 331, 333 S.E.2d 488 (1985).

In applying the Equitable Distribution Statute, the trial judge must follow a three step procedure, i.e., (i) classification, (ii) evaluation and (iii) distribution. Cable v. Cable, 76 N.C. App. 134, 331 S.E.2d 765, cert. denied, 315 N.C. 182, 337 S.E.2d 856 (1985).

Under subsection (c) of this section, equitable distribution applies only to the net value of marital property. This requires the trial court to first ascertain what is marital property, then to find the net value of that property, and finally to make a distribution based upon the equitable goals of the statute and the various factors specified therein. Turner v. Turner, 64 N.C. App. 342, 307 S.E.2d 407 (1983); Lawrence v. Lawrence, 75 N.C. App. 592, 331 S.E.2d 186, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 541, 335 S.E.2d 18 (1985).

To equitably distribute property, it is necessary to identify the property owned, evaluate it and order its distribution. Capps v. Capps, 69 N.C. App. 755, 318 S.E.2d 346 (1984).

Court Must Weigh Factors and Balance

Evidence. — When evidence tending to show that an equal division of marital property would not be equitable is admitted, the trial court must exercise its discretion in assigning the weight each factor should receive in any given case. It must then make an equitable division of the marital property by balancing the evidence presented by the parties in light of the legislative policy which favors equal division. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

Court Not Required to Read Distribution Proposal in Open Court. — Where record established facts from which it reasonably appeared that the parties understood the terms of a proposed distribution of marital property, including the fact that both parties were represented by counsel, that the parties had participated in an equitable distribution hearing, that the major asset was the marital home encumbered by a deed of trust and unpaid tax lien, and that the parties indicated that they either read or understood the terms of the proposed distribution, the trial court was not required to read to the parties in open court the terms of the proposed distribution of marital property. Watson v. Watson, 118 N.C. App. 534, 455 S.E.2d 866 (1995).

If a court divided the property equally after referring to this section and considering the factors and evidence, any improper reliance upon the statute could only result in harmless error, as the property was in fact divided equally. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 109 N.C. App. 127, 425 S.E.2d 742 (1993).

Guide as to Which Party Gets What Specific Property. — Once property has been properly designated marital property and valued, and the court has decided in what proportions its value should be divided, there appears to be no other guide than the discretion and good conscience of the trial judge in determining which party gets what specific property. An exception might arise with regard to the marital home or in cases of property of great sentimental value. Andrews v. Andrews, 79 N.C. 228, 338 S.E.2d 809, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 730, 345 S.E.2d 385 (1986).

Pleadings. — Since there is no specific requirement in this section regarding the correct manner in which to plead a claim for equitable distribution, where defendant joined in plaintiff's prayer for equitable distribution in his answer, the defendant's answer was, in effect, a counterclaim. Rabon v. Rabon, 102 N.C. App. 452, 402 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Distribution of Articles Having No Net Value Not Required. — The Equitable Distribution Act requires the distribution of marital assets according to their "net value." It does not require the distribution of articles that have no net value. McManus v. McManus, 76 N.C. App. 588, 334 S.E.2d 270 (1985).

Deed of Trust Executed Without Wife's Consent Attached to Husband's Interest. — When defendants were divorced, the tenancy by the entirety in which their marital home was held became a tenancy in common, and the lien of deed of trust executed by husband without wife's consent attached to defendant husband's one-half undivided interest in the property. Thus when the marital home was distributed pursuant to this section, defendant wife took title in fee simple absolute, subject to plaintiff bank's deed of trust on defendant husband's one-half undivided interest. Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright, 74 N.C. App. 550, 328 S.E.2d 840 (1985).

Equitable distribution judgment held incomplete and erroneous in several respects, i.e., failure to identify, classify, value and distribute various bank accounts and household property, failure to find net value of marital estate, failure to make findings pursuant to subsection (c) of this section, failure to properly divide and distribute three tracts of marital real estate, and failure to make conclusions of law. Carr v. Carr, 92 N.C. App. 378, 374 S.E.2d 426 (1988).

Defendant Entitled to Have Court Consider Post-Separation Appreciation. — Although defendant was entitled to have the trial court consider the post-separation appreciation of marital property and the effect the appreciation had on the parties, defendant was not necessarily entitled to a distribution of this post-separation appreciation. Sharp v. Sharp, 116 N.C. App. 513, 449 S.E.2d 39, cert. denied, 338 N.C. 669, 453 S.E.2d 181 (1994).

Post-Separation Rental Income. — Rental income received from marital property between the date of separation and the date of the equitable distribution action may not be added to the marital estate. Rather than distributing the sums representing the income received from marital property, the trial court must consider the existence of this income, determine to whose benefit the income has accrued, and then consider that benefit when determining whether an equal or unequal distribution of the marital estate would be equitable. Chandler v. Chandler, 108 N.C. App. 66, 422 S.E.2d 587 (1992).

Award of Rental Value of Marital Residence for Post Separation Period. — Trial court did not err in denying the application by the defendant for judgment against the plaintiff for one-half of the fair rental value of the residence of the parties from the time of the separation of the parties through the date of the hearing. Black v. Black, 94 N.C. App. 220, 379 S.E.2d 879 (1989).

Post-Separation Appreciation of a Marital Asset Cannot Be Distributed. — Post-separation appreciation of a marital asset, whether passive appreciation or appreciation due to the efforts of an individual spouse, is not marital property and cannot be distributed by the trial court. Gum v. Gum, 107 N.C. App. 734, 421 S.E.2d 788 (1992).

But Should Be Considered as a Distributional Factor. — An increase in the value of a marital asset which occurs after separation of the parties but before the date of the equitable distribution trial should be considered pursuant to subdivisions (c)(11a) or (c)(12) as a distributional factor by the court in its determination of what constitutes an equitable distribution of the marital estate. Chandler v. Chandler, 108 N.C. App. 66, 422 S.E.2d 587 (1992).

Failure to File For Equitable Distribution Because of Misrepresentation. — If plaintiff did not file a claim for equitable distribution before the entry of the divorce judgment due to misrepresentations made by defendant, the trial court is not barred from making an equitable distribution. Where defendant's misrepresentation caused the plaintiff to forego pleading for equitable distribution prior to divorce, the defendant shall be equitably estopped from pleading § 50-11(e) as a bar to plaintiff's claim for an equitable distribution of the marital property. Harroff v. Harroff, 100 N.C. App. 686, 398 S.E.2d 340 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 330, 402 S.E.2d 833 (1991).

Death Subsequent to Claim for Equitable Distribution. — Ex-wife's death, which came subsequent to her divorce from plaintiff and which followed the institution of the claim for equitable distribution, did not abate her estate's action for equitable distribution. Tucker v. Miller, 113 N.C. App. 785, 440 S.E.2d 315 (1994).

Plaintiff's actions in dissuading his brother from seeking criminal charges against defendant did not affect the marital economy and therefore was not a proper distributional factor under subdivision (c)(12). Wornom v. Wornom, 126 N.C. App. 461, 485 S.E.2d 856 (1997).

Voluntary Dismissal of Claim. — Where at the time the plaintiff filed his voluntary dismissal of his claim for equitable distribution, the defendant had filed no pleadings, plaintiff was free to enter his voluntary dismissal of his equitable distribution claim without any notice to the defendant or the defendant's consent. Carter v. Carter, 102 N.C. App. 440, 402 S.E.2d 469 (1991).

Credit Not Allowed. — Defendant was not entitled to a credit for debts incurred by defendant for paying a house cleaning bill, grocery bills, a clothing bill, a telephone bill, dry cleaning bills, etc., which debts were incurred after separation. Edwards v. Edwards, 110 N.C. App. 1, 428 S.E.2d 834, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 172, 436 S.E.2d 374 (1993).

Unequal Division Upheld. — Where at the time the division of property was to become effective wife had no earnings and was receiving no monies other than those in the form of child support, food stamps, and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), whereas husband had earnings of at least five to six thousand dollars a year, this evidence supported the court's finding that there was a disparity in the parties' income within the meaning of subdivision (c)(1) of this section and tended to show that an equal division of the marital property would not be equitable, and the Court of Appeals could not say that the trial court abused its discretion in ordering an unequal division in favor of wife, particularly in light of wife's poor health. Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985).

Findings of the court that an equal distribution would not be equitable, relying on child custody, household services, and difficulty of evaluation factors, supported the court's discretionary decision to make an unequal distribution. Andrews v. Andrews, 79 N.C. App. 228, 338 S.E.2d 809, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 730, 345 S.E.2d 385 (1986), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Although none of the equitable distribution cases suggest that a spouse should take out of the marriage exactly that which was brought into it, plus at least one half of the marital estate, defendant who was awarded just that had no reason to complain. Nix v. Nix, 80 N.C. App. 110, 341 S.E.2d 116 (1986).

Defendant mother's custody of children, children's residency in family home for most of their lives, their attendance at nearby schools, and defendant's need to occupy the marital residence (i.e., her lower income) were all factors supporting trial court's disproportionate award in equitable distribution proceeding. Hendricks v. Hendricks, 96 N.C. App. 462, 386 S.E.2d 84 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 264, 389 S.E.2d 113 (1990).

Where the trial court found the presence of a number of distributional factors, including appellee's payment of property taxes, interest, insurance, and repairs on marital property over a period of three years, the trial court did not err in ordering an unequal distribution of marital property. Cobb v. Cobb, 107 N.C. App. 382, 420 S.E.2d 212 (1992).

Trial court's findings were sufficient to support its finding of an unequal division where the plaintiff established five grounds, including the parties disparate income and future earning capacity, present and future pension benefits, the liquidity of the marital assets and tax consequences to each party, and plaintiff's mortgage payments. Mrozek v. Mrozek, 129 N.C. App. 43, 496 S.E.2d 836 (1998).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by ordering an unequal distribution of the marital property and the ordered division did not result in an obvious miscarriage of justice. Davis v. Sineath, 129 N.C. App. 353, 498 S.E.2d 629 (1998).

Where the district court's jurisdiction over equitable distribution was not invoked prior to a judgment for absolute divorce, the superior court was not precluded from exercising jurisdiction over the former husband's action for contribution pursuant to §n/ 23-5-116. Sparks v. Peacock, 129 N.C. App. 640, 500 S.E.2d 116 (1998).

B. Factors to Be Considered.

Single Factor May Support Unequal Distribution. — A finding that a single factor supported an unequal distribution, if supported by the evidence, would be within the court's discretion and upheld on appeal. Andrews v. Andrews, 79 N.C. App. 228, 338 S.E.2d 809, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 730, 345 S.E.2d 385 (1986), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988); Shoffner v. Shoffner, 91 N.C. App. 399, 371 S.E.2d 749 (1988).

Findings as to the parties' incomes, liabilities or health and other factors must be made and considered, when evidence concerning them is introduced, in determining whether marital property has been equitably divided. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

If, at an equitable distribution hearing, evidence concerning the income and health of the parties tends to show that an equal division of the marital property is inequitable, the trial court must make findings of fact as to these factors. Taylor v. Taylor, 92 N.C. App. 413, 374 S.E.2d 644 (1988).

Timing of Professional Career. — The trial court property considered the brief amount of time which elapsed between the opening of defendant's medical practice and the termination of the marriage in determining the extent of plaintiff's contribution to defendant's career potential and development. Conway v. Conway, 131 N.C. App. 609, 508 S.E.2d 812 (1998).

Separate Property to Be Considered in Determining Division of Marital Property. — In determining an equitable division of the marital property, the court must consider the separate property owned by each party at the time the property division is to become effective. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

A spouse's contribution of his separate property to acquire property titled in the entireties, and classified as marital, qualifies as a distributional factor under subsection (c). Collins v. Collins, 125 N.C. App. 113, 479 S.E.2d 240 (1997).

A spouse's contribution of his separate property to the marital estate is a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(12). Collins v. Collins, 125 N.C. App. 113, 479 S.E.2d 240 (1997).

Considering Source of Property Held by the Entireties is Error. — The trial court could not award to the husband the entire interest in a tree farm on the ground that the source of the interest was the husband's mother as the mother gave an equal interest to the husband and wife, and the parties thereafter titled their separate interests as a tenancy by the entireties. Daetwyler v. Daetwyler, 130 N.C. App. 246, 502 S.E.2d 662 (1998), aff'd, 350 N.C. 375, 514 S.E.2d 89 (1999).

Court Authorized to Consider Parties' Future Prospects. — The factors listed under subsection (c) of this section indicate that the Legislature intended to grant the trial court the authority to consider the future prospects of the parties, as well as their status at the time of the hearing, in determining whether an equal division of marital assets would be equitable. Harris v. Harris, 84 N.C. App. 353, 352 S.E.2d 869 (1987).

The future value of timber, which is planted but will not mature until some years in the future, should not be considered for the purposes of equitable distribution. Cobb v. Cobb, 107 N.C. App. 382, 420 S.E.2d 212 (1992).

Increase in Value of Marital Property. — Trial court did not err in considering, as a distributional factor, that the value of the marital property had increased from the date of the separation to the date of the trial and that such increase inured to the benefit of the defendant husband. Atkins v. Atkins, 102 N.C. App. 199, 401 S.E.2d 784 (1991).

Post-separation appreciation, only refers to that which accumulates to the date of the order for equitable distribution, not in the future. If the rule allowed otherwise, parties would attempt to project the future value of any number of items of marital property, and the equitable distribution trial would become overwhelmingly complicated. Cobb v. Cobb, 107 N.C. App. 382, 420 S.E.2d 212 (1992).

Increase in Value of Stock. — Where it was established by the court's findings of fact that defendant's stock had no value when parties separated and that its increase in value was largely due to his efforts, award of the post-separation increase therein to defendant was authorized by § 50-20(c)(11a) and (12). Nye v. Nye, 100 N.C. App. 326, 396 S.E.2d 91 (1990).

Consideration of Penalties Caused by Distribution of Thrift Plan. — Evidence was sufficient to require the trial court to make appropriate findings concerning husband's thrift plan before ordering the husband to make a lump sum distributive award from the plan where such a withdrawal would result in the loss of employer contributions or harsh tax consequences. Shaw v. Shaw, 117 N.C. App. 552, 451 S.E.2d 648 (1995).

Spouse's Earning Potential to Be Considered. — The trial court properly considered the defendant husband's earning potential as a factor leading to its determination that an equal division would be inequitable. Harris v. Harris, 84 N.C. App. 353, 352 S.E.2d 869 (1987).

Loan Eligibility of Spouse. — Defendant's VA loan eligibility did not constitute distributable property for purposes of equitable distribution. Jones v. Jones, 121 N.C. App. 523, 466 S.E.2d 342 (1996).

Subdivision (c)(1) of this section requires the court to consider all debts of the parties, whether a debt is one for which the parties are legally, jointly liable or one for which only one party is legally, individually liable. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Marital Debt. — Regardless of who is legally obligated for the debt, for the purposes of an equitable distribution, a marital debt is defined as a debt incurred during the marriage for the joint benefit of the parties. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987); Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987).

The mere fact that a judgment was entered against both spouses is not alone evidence sufficient to require classification of the debt as marital. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

Pursuant to equitable distribution statute, the trial court is required to classify, value and distribute, if marital, the debts of the parties to the marriage. The party claiming the debt to be marital has the burden of proving the value of the debt on the date of separation and that it was incurred during the marriage for the joint benefit of the husband and wife. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

Distribution of Marital Debts. — The court has the discretion, when determining what constitutes an equitable distribution of the marital assets, to also apportion or distribute the marital debts in an equitable manner. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

When the court distributes debts, the court must make findings to show it considered all debts of the parties and to identify those which comprise marital debts. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Under this section, the court had the discretion to assign one-half of the marital debts to each party and to then award defendant additional funds sufficient to pay plaintiff's one-half share of the debt. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Since the assets and obligations of a husband and wife are reciprocally related, there can be no complete and equitable distribution of their property without also considering and distributing their debt. Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987).

Credit for Decreasing Marital Debt. — The court must credit a former spouse with at least the amount by which he decreased the principal owed on marital debt by using his separate funds. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Marital Residence. — While paragraph (4) of subsection (c) of this section requires the court to consider the custodial parent's need to occupy the marital residence, it does not require that a party must be a custodial parent in order to be awarded ownership of the marital residence. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Need of spouse to occupy the marital residence, unless it involves a spouse with custody of children, does not relate to the economic condition of the marriage and is not properly considered as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(12) of this section. Burnett v. Burnett, 122 N.C. App. 712, 471 S.E.2d 649 (1996).

A trial court is not foreclosed from considering the post-separation use of the marital residence in reaching its decision as to whether an equal distribution is equitable. Becker v. Becker, 88 N.C. App. 606, 364 S.E.2d 175 (1988).

A party's exclusive use of marital residence subsequent to date of separation is a relevant distributional factor. Burnett v. Burnett, 122 N.C. App. 712, 471 S.E.2d 649 (1996).

Payment by One of Spouses on Marital Home Mortgage. — Payment by one of the spouses, after the date of separation, on a marital home mortgage is a factor appropriately considered by the trial court pursuant to subdivisions (c)(11a) and (c)(12) in determining what division of marital property is equitable. However, trial court correctly refused to credit husband with any mortgage payments he made after the separation of the parties where they had stipulated that an equal division of property was equitable. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

The trial court did not err by failing to credit plaintiff with reducing mortgage on marital home and paying for taxes and insurance, where the court found that plaintiff made mortgage payments on the property since the date of separation, paid property taxes on the residence for one year, and paid homeowner's insurance premiums for three years, and also considered these facts as a distributional factor. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

Trial court properly considered defendant's post-separation payments toward mortgages as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a) rather than crediting defendant for those payments. Edwards v. Edwards, 110 N.C. App. 1, 428 S.E.2d 834, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 172, 436 S.E.2d 374 (1993).

Waiver of Child Support. — In the absence of a separation agreement, nothing in the statute requires the trial court to take a waiver of child support into account in calculating an equitable distribution. To the contrary, the determination of child support is to be made separately from that of equitable distribution. Wieneck-Adams v. Adams, 104 N.C. App. 621, 410 S.E.2d 525 (1991), aff'd, 331 N.C. 688, 417 S.E.2d 449 (1992).

Custody is not an appropriate consideration within this section. The only factors considered "just and proper" within the meaning of the section are those relating to the source, availability, and use by a wife and husband of economic resources during the course of their marriage. Gum v. Gum, 107 N.C. App. 734, 421 S.E.2d 788 (1992).

Need of Custodial Parent as Justification for Unequal Distribution. — Under the facts, the need of the parent with custody of the child of the marriage to occupy the marital residence and to use or own household effects alone justified the unequal distribution of marital property, without requiring the trial judge to simply recite the other factors. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Obligation to Care for Child. — The trial court erred by considering plaintiff's separate obligation to care for child as a distributional factor. Pott v. Pott, 126 N.C. App. 285, 484 S.E.2d 822 (1997).

Value of Contributions by Nonstudent Spouse. — The Legislature gave no guidance on the issue of how to value the direct and indirect contributions of the nonstudent spouse under paragraph (7) of subdivision (c) of this section; thus, as with any statutory factor under subsection (c), it is a matter of discretion what weight the court assigns a particular factor in any given case. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Professional Licenses. — As this section expressly provides that professional licenses are separate property, professional licenses are not subject to valuation and distribution; nevertheless, the Legislature recognized the need to consider the contributions of one spouse that enhance the career of the other when determining what constitutes an equitable result. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Subdivision (c)(12) Is Limited to Considerations Relevant to Marital Economy. — Only items affecting the marital economy are considered under the first eleven factors of subsection (c). Thus, under subdivision (c)(12), the only other considerations which are "just and proper" within the theory of equitable distributions as expressed by subdivisions (c)(1) to (c)(11) are those which are relevant to the marital economy. Smith v. Smith, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

The only factors which may properly be considered under the catchall provision of subdivision (c)(12) of this section are those factors which are relevant to the marital economy. Marital economy relates to the source, availability and use by the wife and husband of economic resources during the course of the marriage. Johnson v. Johnson, 78 N.C. App. 787, 338 S.E.2d 567 (1986).

The trial court failed to consider defendant's contributions to the marital estate as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(12) of this section. Minter v. Minter, 111 N.C. App. 321, 432 S.E.2d 720, cert. denied, 335 N.C. 176, 438 S.E.2d 201 (1993).

Consideration of Post-Separation Income. — Where post-separation income is not a result of either party's action, the income can be considered as "any other distributional factor" under subdivision (c)(12). Chandler v. Chandler, 108 N.C. App. 66, 422 S.E.2d 587 (1992).

Monies Paid by Husband to Wife After Separation Were Advances. — Trial court correctly treated the $45,457 paid to wife as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11) or (12) of this section. Interspousal gifts under subdivision (b)(2) of this section do not become the separate property of the recipient spouse unless the donor expresses the intention to make a gift. This rule is applicable to an even greater extent after the parties have separated. As a matter of public policy, if trial courts are not allowed to consider such payments as distributional factors, then the spouse with possession of marital property during the period between separation and the order of equitable distribution may seek to hold this marital property exclusively. Cobb v. Cobb, 107 N.C. App. 382, 420 S.E.2d 212 (1992).

When Fault May Be Considered. — The general rule is that marital fault or misconduct of the parties which is not related to the economic condition of the marriage is not germane to a division of marital property and should not be considered. However, fault which is related to the economic condition of the marriage may be considered. Spence v. Jones, 83 N.C. App. 8, 348 S.E.2d 819 (1986).

Fault or misconduct which dissipates or reduces marital property for nonmarital purposes is just and proper to consider under subdivision

(c)(12) of this section. Spence v. Jones, 83 N.C. App. 8, 348 S.E.2d 819 (1986).

Misconduct during the marriage which dissipates or reduces the value of marital assets for nonmarital purposes may properly be considered under this section, because it is consonant with the essential philosophy of equitable distribution. Smith v. Smith, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985); Coleman v. Coleman, 89 N.C. App. 107, 365 S.E.2d 178 (1988).

Marital fault or misconduct which does not adversely affect the value of marital assets is not a just and proper factor within the meaning of subdivision (c)(12). Smith v. Smith, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985); Dusenberry v. Dusenberry, 314 N.C. 608, 335 S.E.2d 892 (1985); Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985), cert. denied, 316 N.C. 376, 344 S.E.2d 1 (1986).

Fault is not a relevant or appropriate consideration in determining an equitable distribution of marital property. Hinton v. Hinton, 70 N.C. App. 665, 321 S.E.2d 161 (1984).

Removal of Spouses Separate Property. — The trial court properly considered evidence that the defendant wife removed or disposed of the plaintiff husband's separate property as a non-statutory distributional factor where (1) the wife entered the dwelling of the husband after separation and removed approximately $4,000 worth of property, including all the furniture in the house with the exception of a bed, chair, and kitchen table, (2) she then entered the home again at a later date and removed such items as food, guns, a leather coat, frozen meats, and personal items of the plaintiff, and (3) she even hauled off their 1971 Chevy pickup truck and sold it for $400. Glaspy v. Glaspy, 143 N.C. App. 435, 545 S.E.2d 782 (2001).

Misconduct During Litigation May Not Be Considered. — The court may not punish a plaintiff by considering his misconduct during litigation as a factor under subdivision (c)(12). Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

Failure to comply with discovery orders, or misconducting oneself during the course of litigation may not be considered as a factor in determining the distribution of marital property. Shoffner v. Shoffner, 91 N.C. App. 399, 371 S.E.2d 749 (1988).

When the failure to assist in the compilation and valuation of marital property during litigation causes one party to incur additional expenses, the court may consider such a purely financial consideration in making its distributive award. This is equivalent to the proper consideration of marital misconduct which is related to the economic condition of the marriage as a factor in making the distributive award. Shoffner v. Shoffner, 91 N.C. App. 399, 371 S.E.2d 749 (1988).

Parties' Premarital Relationship. — Recitation in the findings of the extramarital nature of the parties' premarital relationship suggested that the trial judge may have improperly considered fault in making the distribution; however, where the husband did not assert, nor was there anything to indicate that he was prejudiced by, this consideration, the error, if any, was harmless. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Meaning of "Income". — The legislature used the word "income" in subdivision (c)(1) of this section to convey its natural and ordinary meaning. Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985).

Food Stamps Are Not Income. — Based on 7 U.S.C. § 2017(b), which provides that the value of food stamp allotment provided to an eligible household shall not be considered income or resources for any purpose under any federal, state or local laws, the value of food stamps received by a party may not be considered as income under subdivision (c)(1) of this section. Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985).

Child Support and AFDC Are Not Income. — Since the amounts received by a spouse in the form of child support and Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) are for the benefit and support of the parties' children, they are not income within the meaning of subdivision (c)(1) of this section. Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985).

Working Outside Home and Participating in Child-Rearing and Homekeeping. — Under subdivision (c)(12) of this section, it is within the trial court's equitable powers to consider that one spouse worked outside the home and participated in child-rearing and homekeeping, while the other spouse only participated in child-rearing and homekeeping. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Consideration of Unvalued Inheritance and Fact of Appraisal Held Error. — Where there was no evidence to support the value of the inheritance the husband received from his mother, it was error for the trial court to consider as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(1) of this section that the husband had received an inheritance of "significant value" from his mother's estate; furthermore, since the party claiming property to be marital has the burden of presenting evidence on the value of such property, it was error to consider as a distributional factor that the party with the burden of proof had the property appraised and the appraiser testified as to the value of the property. Atkins v. Atkins, 102 N.C. App. 199, 401 S.E.2d 784 (1991).

Decrease in Separate Property Through Activities Which Increased Marital Estate. — Where the marital estate was increased due to activities which decreased the value of wife's separate property, this decrease in separate property through depreciation related to the economy of the marriage; thus, the court properly considered this depreciation under subdivision (c)(12) when dividing the marital property. Johnson v. Johnson, 78 N.C. App. 787, 338 S.E.2d 567 (1986).

Disregarding Family Corporation Held Error. — Action of the trial court in equitable distribution action in disregarding the corporate entity of a family corporation on the grounds that the corporation was a "sham," and in distributing the assets of the corporation as marital property, but holding defendant personally liable for $23,000 worth of notes and deeds of trust which she had executed, apparently in the name of the corporation, after the parties separated, constituted reversible error, where several of the reasons cited by the trial court for disregarding the corporate entity were unsupported by the evidence or were irrelevant. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Trial court did not err in forbidding either party from receiving a commission or broker's fee on the sale of the marital home (the order being directed primarily at defendant, a licensed real estate broker), since if the parties could sell the home by themselves, without paying a real estate commission, then the net proceeds of the sale would be greater and there would be more marital property for equitable distribution. This was an equitable factor that the trial court could consider. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

In case involving equitable distribution, trial court is required to consider liabilities of each party, whether the debts are joint or individual. Mishler v. Mishler, 90 N.C. App. 72, 367 S.E.2d 385, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 174, 373 S.E.2d 111 (1988).

Attribution of husband's payment of $3,000 debt accumulated by wife and minor children for necessities after date of separation to husband's continuing obligation to support his minor children did not constitute an improper use of child support to inflate the income of either party in violation of subsection (f) of this section, but, rather, was a determination that the debt was incurred to purchase necessities after the parties' separation. Beightol v. Beightol, 90 N.C. App. 58, 367 S.E.2d 347, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 171, 373 S.E.2d 104 (1988).

Failure of Court to Find Distributional Factors. — In determining an appropriate distribution of the marital property, the trial court erred by failing to consider the following factors: (1) evidence that the husband paid homeowner's insurance premiums on the marital home between the date of separation and the date of the trial should have been considered as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a); (2) evidence that the husband was primarily responsible for maintaining and preserving the marital property between the date of separation and the date of trial also should have been considered as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a); and (3) evidence that the wife earned a larger income than the husband should have been considered by the trial court as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(1). Atkins v. Atkins, 102 N.C. App. 199, 401 S.E.2d 784 (1991).

C. Distributive Awards.

Subdivision (b)(3) of this section authorizes the court to make distributive awards for periods of not more than six years after the date on which the marriage ceases, except upon a showing by the payor spouse that legal or business impediments, or some overriding social policy, prevent completion of the distribution within the six-year period. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

As Does Subsection (e). — Subsection (e) of this section clearly recognizes that the court may make a distributive award, payable over an extended period. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

But a court's authority to make distributive awards is limited, and a court may not enter a distributive award that will be treated as ordinary income under the Internal Revenue Code. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Distributive awards for periods longer than six years, if necessary, should be crafted to assure completion of payment as promptly as possible. This will serve both statutory goals: Affording the recipient's share nonrecognition treatment under the Internal Revenue Code, and fairly wrapping up the marital affairs as quickly and certainly as possible. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Seven Year Payment Schedule Held Erroneous. — Where the court's decision to award the marital residence to the plaintiff wife resulted in property having a net value of $78,978.00 being distributed to her, while property passing to the defendant husband had a net value of only $13,140.63, the distributive award of $23,706.82 which the court ordered the wife to pay to the husband was within the authority vested in the court by subdivision (e) of this section; however, where the payment of the distributive award would not become due for more than seven years after the termination of the marriage, and the trial court made no findings which would permit completion of the payment of the distributive award beyond six years from the date the parties' marriage was terminated, that portion of the order providing for the distributive award would be vacated and the case remanded for further proceedings. Harris v. Harris, 84 N.C. App. 353, 352 S.E.2d 869 (1987).

18.3 Year Payment Schedule Held Erroneous. — Where payor husband made no showing of legal or business impediments to an earlier distribution, the 18.3 year payment schedule of distributive award to wife was erroneous as a matter of law and would be vacated. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Where escrow balance was not included in the trial court's net valuation of the marital home or otherwise considered in the order, the trial court erred by failing to properly distribute this asset. Pott v. Pott, 126 N.C. App. 285, 484 S.E.2d 822 (1997).

The trial court did not abuse its discretion in ordering an unequal distribution of the marital estate in favor of the defendant/husband, the effect of which was that he received $100,000 more than he would have received under an equal division and resulted in a split between the couple of their four Hallmark stores, nor was it error for the court to consider certain post-separation payments made by him, taxes incurred as a result of the forced sale of a residence, financial losses, and the allocation of associated debts as distributional factors. Khajanchi v. Khajanchi, 140 N.C. App. 552, 537 S.E.2d 845 (2000).

IV. VALUATION OF PROPERTY.

Subsection (a) of this section effectively provides for the "freezing" of the marital estate as of the date of the parties' separation, and marital assets, distributed thereafter, are valued as of that date; attempts by one or both spouses to deplete the marital estate or dispose of marital property after the date of separation but before distribution may be considered by the court when making the division, and any conversion of marital property for individual purposes may be charged against the acting spouse's share. Sharp v. Sharp, 84 N.C. App. 128, 351 S.E.2d 799 (1987).

Net Value Used to Determine Equitable Distribution. — In determining what distribution of the property is equitable, the court must use the net value of the property rather than its fair market value. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

Net value, rather than fair market value, is the proper measure for valuing marital property for equitable distribution. Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985).

The division of marital property is to be accomplished by using the net value of the property, i.e., its market value, if any, less the amount of any encumbrance serving to offset or reduce market value. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C. App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Date of Separation to Be Used in Valuing Property. — The trial court did not err in failing to consider the current fair market value of all marital assets. Subsection (b) of this section provides that for purposes of equitable distribution, marital property shall be valued as of the date of the separation of the parties. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

For the test for determining the date of separation under the equitable distribution statutes, see Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

Appreciation Is Factor to Be Considered. — Post-separation appreciation of marital property itself is neither marital nor separate property. Such appreciation must instead be treated as a distributional factor under subdivision (c)(11a) or (12). Truesdale v. Truesdale, 89 N.C. App. 445, 366 S.E.2d 512 (1988).

Where there is evidence of active or passive appreciation of marital assets after the date of separation, the court must consider the appreciation of the assets as a factor under subdivisions (c)(11a) or (12) of this section. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

When Separation Held to Occur. — Where at all times prior to December 26, 1983, the relationship between plaintiff and defendant was of such a character as to give the appearance that they were husband and wife living together and that they held themselves out to be such, their separation, as that term is defined by case law, did not occur until December 26, 1983. Hall v. Hall, 88 N.C. App. 297, 363 S.E.2d 189 (1987).

Meaning of "Net Value". — The term "net value" is to be given its ordinary and commonly understood interpretation: i.e., market value, if any, less the amount of any encumbrance serving to offset or reduce market value. Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984); Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266 (1985); Nix v. Nix, 80 N.C. App. 110, 341 S.E.2d 116 (1986).

Meaning of "Equity". — Equity is net value of property, i.e., its present value minus the outstanding mortgage. Willis v. Willis, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

Meaning of "Presently Owned." — The term "presently owned" under subdivision (b)(1) refers to the date of separation. Wornom v. Wornom, 126 N.C. App. 461, 485 S.E.2d 856 (1997).

Failure of judge to value marital property as of date of separation was error prejudicial to wife. By looking only to funds in husband's account at time of equitable distribution hearing, rather than at time of separation, judge failed to properly trace marital property. Account in question was established by husband after separation and before hearing, and funds deposited to account came from three sources, two of which were part marital and part separate and one of which was wholly marital. Willis v. Willis, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

The trial court erred in considering post-separation events in determining the value of the marital corporation where the case arose prior to the 1997 amendments to the Equitable Distribution Act; events which occurred following the date of separation were to be considered only as distributional factors under this section while events which occurred prior to the separation—for example, the wife's freezing the equity line which, for all practical purposes, destroyed the relationship between the marital corporation and its major client—could be considered in valuation of the property. Offerman v. Offerman, 137 N.C. App. 289, 527 S.E.2d 684 (2000).

Trial Court Is Required to Value Property Stipulated to Be Marital. — When parties to an equitable distribution action make a valid stipulation that certain property is to be classified as marital property, the trial court is nonetheless required to value and distribute that property. Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987).

Property Must Be Valued Before It Is Distributed. — Subsection (c) of this section requires the trial court to determine what is marital property, then to find the net value of the property, and finally to make an equitable distribution of that property; thus, where the court made some findings and conclusions regarding marital property, but did not place a value on the marital home, its order that the marital home be sold for not less than $140,000 was at least premature, as the court had not placed a value upon the marital property. Soares v. Soares, 86 N.C. App. 369, 357 S.E.2d 418 (1987).

No Requirement to Assign Monetary Value to Medical License. — Having classified the husband's medical license as separate property and considered it as having "very substantial value" in making equitable distribution, the trial court did not err in refusing to assign it a monetary value. Conway v. Conway, 131 N.C. App. 609, 508 S.E.2d 812 (1998).

This section does not require the trial court to place a monetary value on any distributional factor; this would be an unnecessary burden upon the trial court. Gum v. Gum, 107 N.C. App. 734, 421 S.E.2d 788 (1992).

Dual Classification and Valuation. — Although evidence supported judge's dual classification of marital home, in that the home was acquired in part by separate estate and in part by marital estate, judge erred by assigning a combined marital and separate property value when he distributed property. Trial judge must divide the equity based on the proportion invested by marital and separate estates. Willis v. Willis, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

Mortgage payments are acquisitive, not appreciative. Active/passive distinction concerning appreciation has no utility when property has dual classification (i.e., was acquired in part with separate property and in part with marital property). Each estate, marital and separate, is entitled to a proportionate return on its investment whether appreciation is active or passive. Willis v. Willis, 86 N.C. App. 546, 358 S.E.2d 571 (1987).

Valuation of Property After Separation Held Proper. — There was no error when the trial court based its distribution of the marital property on evidence of values of the marital property assigned after the date of the parties' separation, where although plaintiff and defendant were separated on December 24, 1984, the court valued the parties' pensions as of December 31, 1984, defendant failed to demonstrate that either of the parties made any additional contributions, or that any additional interest had accrued to the retirement plans during the seven day interval between the parties' date of separation and the date of valuation. Shoffner v. Shoffner, 91 N.C. App. 399, 371 S.E.2d 749 (1988).

Items Charged on Credit Card. — Court erred in its equitable distribution judgment by including the gross fair-market value of those marital properties which had an outstanding credit card balance and then failing to credit plaintiff for the debt; however, since plaintiff was awarded all of the items charged on the credit card in the property division award, the error was not prejudicial. Hendricks v. Hendricks, 96 N.C. App. 462, 386 S.E.2d 84 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 264, 389 S.E.2d 113 (1990).

Value of Truck and Lease of Truck. — Trial court did not commit error in assigning a value to, and including as marital property of the parties, both the net fair market value of the truck, and the net present fair market value of a lease of truck; the truck and the lease were two separate items of property and, therefore, the trial judge properly valued the truck and the lease as separate assets. Black v. Black, 94 N.C. App. 220, 379 S.E.2d 879 (1989).

Value of Growing Timber. — Trial judge correctly included the actual value of the land and timber at the date of separation. Because neither party presented evidence of appreciation, if any, between the time of separation and the order for equitable distribution, the trial judge was not required to find the presence of this distributional factor. Cobb v. Cobb, 107 N.C. App. 382, 420 S.E.2d 212 (1992).

For a thorough consideration of valuation and distribution of a considerable marital estate, see Smith v. Smith, 111 N.C. App. 460, 433 S.E.2d 196, petition denied as to additional issues, 335 N.C. 177, 438 S.E.2d 202 (1993), rev'd on other grounds, 336 N.C. 575, 444 S.E.2d 420 (1994).

Valuation Held Erroneous. — Evidence held insufficient to support trial court's valuation of marital home for purposes of equitable distribution of the marital property. Coleman v. Coleman, 89 N.C. App. 107, 365 S.E.2d 178 (1988).

Offer to Purchase or Sell as Evidence of Value. — While mere offers to purchase or sell are not generally competent as evidence of value, where the offer constitutes an admission against interest, operating against the landowner's or offeror's contended value, the rule has been relaxed. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

For case upholding the valuation and award of the stock of a minority shareholder in a closely-held corporation in equitable distribution proceedings, see Hartman v. Hartman, 82 N.C. App. 167, 346 S.E.2d 196 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 397, 354 S.E.2d 239 (1987).

Valuation of Partnership Interest. — When considering the value of a spouse's interest in a business partnership, the task of the appellate court on review is to determine whether the approach used by the trial court reasonably approximates the net value of the partnership interest. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

The withdrawal formula for valuing a partnership interest is presumptively correct, though it may be attacked if not reasonably representative of the value of the defendant's interest. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

In valuing husband's interest in a business partnership, the trial court did not err by using a withdrawal formula, as opposed to a book value approach. Nor did it err by using the withdrawal formula found in the partnership agreement. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

Where there was no evidence that defendant had actually withdrawn his partnership interest, or that the distribution ordered by the court would require him to do so, but the court deducted from the value of defendant's partnership interest the amount of income tax defendant would have owed had he withdrawn his partnership interest, it was improper for the court to consider such hypothetical and speculative tax consequences in valuing defendant's partnership interest. Harvey v. Harvey, 112 N.C. App. 788, 437 S.E.2d 397 (1993).

Debts. — Trial court erred by failing to consider defendant's obligation on notes created to establish accounting firm and erred by finding defendant earned $120,000 a year without sufficient evidence. Pott v. Pott, 126 N.C. App. 285, 484 S.E.2d 822 (1997).

V. AGREEMENTS.

This section did not purport to change the general validity of separation agreements or to modify existing agreements. McArthur v. McArthur, 68 N.C. App. 484, 315 S.E.2d 344 (1984).

Subsection (d) was enacted to insure against fraud and overreaching on the part of one of the spouses. McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985).

Effect of Subsection (d). — By the enactment of subsection (d) of this section, the General Assembly manifested a clear intent to change the former rule which required the actual separation of the parties to a marriage in order for a property settlement to be effective between spouses. Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984).

The public policy of the state, as expressed by subsection (d) of this section, permits spouses to execute a property settlement at any time, regardless of whether they separate immediately thereafter or not. Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984).

Subsection (d) did not reverse a prior public policy against agreements releasing spousal property rights; by incorporating § 52-10, it instead mandated, among other things, that the policy favoring property settlements continue so that a prior settlement of spousal property rights would also constitute a plea in bar to the equitable distribution of "marital" property under § 50-20. Small v. Small, 93 N.C. App. 614, 379 S.E.2d 273, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 273, 384 S.E.2d 519 (1989).

Separation Agreement Fully Disposing of Property Rights. — If a court finds that a separation agreement fully disposes of the parties' rights arising out of the marriage, the court may not set aside the separation agreement and property settlement, absent fraud or misrepresentation. A separation agreement and property settlement entered into by the parties which fully disposes of the property rights arising out of a marriage acts as a bar to equitable distribution. Rabon v. Rabon, 102 N.C. App. 452, 402 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Release of Rights Did Not Violate Public Policy. — Wife's release of property rights under 1980 Post-Nuptial Contract did not violate public policy simply because it was executed prior to the adoption of subsection (d) of this section. Small v. Small, 93 N.C. App. 614, 379 S.E.2d 273, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 273, 384 S.E.2d 519 (1989).

Right to Cancel Separation Agreement. — In enacting subsection (d) of this section, the General Assembly did not intend that a written separation agreement, once entered into, would be forever binding or forever a bar to an equitable distribution action. Rather, the parties to separation agreements must still be able to cancel their agreements, and the indicia of the intent to cancel as developed in the common law must also still be intact. Carlton v. Carlton, 74 N.C. App. 690, 329 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

When Separation Agreement Is Valid. — To be valid, a separation agreement must be untainted by fraud, must be in all respects fair, reasonable and just, and must have been entered into without coercion or the exercise of undue influence, and with full knowledge of all the circumstances, conditions, and rights of the contracting parties. McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985).

Failure of husband and wife to separate until 31 days after the execution of a separation and property settlement agreement did not render the post-separation support and alimony provisions null and void. Newland v. Newland, 129 N.C. App. 418, 498 S.E.2d 855 (1998).

Transactions Between Spouses Must Be Fair and Reasonable. — The relationship between a husband and a wife is the most confidential of all relationships, and transactions between them, to be valid, must be fair and reasonable. A separation agreement must have been entered into without coercion. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

When examining whether both parties freely entered into separation agreement, trial courts should use considerable care because contracts between husbands and wives are special agreements. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Fraud Need Not Be Shown, Where Settlement Is Unfair Due to Other's Overreaching. — Courts have thrown cloak of protection about separation agreements and made it their business, when confronted, to see to it that they are arrived at fairly and equitably. To warrant equity's intervention, no actual fraud need be shown, for relief will be granted if settlement is manifestly unfair to spouse because of other's overreaching. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Unless both parties legally consent to rescinding the agreement, the court is without the power to discard valid contracts between the parties and to order equitable distribution. Rabon v. Rabon, 102 N.C. App. 452, 402 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Existence of Confidential Relationship After One Spouse Has Left Home. — A confidential relationship, and a fiduciary duty, between husband and wife can exist even after one spouse has left the home. Where such a relationship exists, there is a duty to disclose all material facts relevant to a separation agreement, and failure to do so constitutes fraud. Harroff v. Harroff, 100 N.C. App. 686, 398 S.E.2d 340 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 330, 402 S.E.2d 833 (1991).

Same — After Involvement of Attorney. — The involvement of an attorney does not automatically end the confidential relationship of husband and wife. Where one spouse alleges and offers evidence that the confidential relationship still existed and that the attorneys' role was merely to record the agreement the spouses negotiated, it is a question of fact as to whether the confidential relationship has been terminated. Harroff v. Harroff, 100 N.C. App. 686, 398 S.E.2d 340 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 330, 402 S.E.2d 833 (1991).

Stipulations as to Division of Marital Property Must Be Scrutinized. — The same scrutiny which is applied to separation agreements must also be applied to stipulations entered into by a husband and a wife regarding the distribution of their marital property. McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985).

Distribution Agreement Should Be Written, Executed, and Acknowledged. — Any agreement entered into by the parties regarding the distribution of their marital property should be reduced to writing, duly executed and acknowledged. McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985).

Without the signature of both the husband and the wife, an agreement may not conform to the requirements of subsection (d) of this section. Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 105, 356 S.E.2d 407 (1987).

Judgment which effectuated a distribution of the parties' marital property pursuant to an agreement that was not signed by both husband and wife was a court-ordered equitable distribution granted before absolute divorce, and as such was expressly prohibited by § 50-21(a). Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 105, 356 S.E.2d 407 (1987).

Otherwise, Record Must Show Understanding of and Agreement with Terms. — If oral stipulations between spouses regarding the distribution of their marital property are not reduced to writing, it must affirmatively appear in the record that the trial court made contemporaneous inquiries of the parties at the time the stipulations were entered into. It should appear that the court read the terms of the stipulations to the parties, and that the parties understood the legal effects of their agreement and the terms of the agreement and agreed to abide by those terms of their own free will. McIntosh v. McIntosh, 74 N.C. App. 554, 328 S.E.2d 600 (1985).

Although plaintiff claimed the parties stipulated for trial that certain land would be classified as marital property, the record showed no evidence of stipulation; therefore, as the property was a gift to defendant from his mother, trial court's classification of the land as marital property was error. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

Where there was no evidence of a written agreement nor any affirmative assurance that the parties were in agreement concerning the division of personal property, the trial court's reliance on the parties' oral agreement or existing division of personal property was error and all marital personal property should have been included in the equitable distribution. Holder v. Holder, 87 N.C. App. 578, 361 S.E.2d 891 (1987).

Handwritten agreement which was not acknowledged before a certifying officer as defined in § 52-10(b) was not binding upon the court and the court was free to distribute the property. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

Handwritten Agreement Superseded by Later Agreement Incorporated in Judgment. — Trial court did not err in refusing to enforce a 1986 handwritten agreement between the parties which concerned the distribution of marital assets and which provided that defendant would pay plaintiff $15,000 upon her remarriage or upon her sale of a specific parcel of marital property. The language in the judgment clearly indicated that property settlement agreement of 1988, which was incorporated into the judgment, was a full and final settlement of the distribution of marital property which superseded any and all prior agreements between the parties. Rosania v. Rosania, 108 N.C. App. 58, 422 S.E.2d 348 (1992).

Separation Agreement as Bar to Equitable Distribution. — A separation agreement which contained no specific references to any real property, but only to personal property, nevertheless fully disposed of the parties' property rights arising out of the marriage and thus acted as a bar to equitable distribution. Hartman v. Hartman, 80 N.C. App. 452, 343 S.E.2d 11 (1986).

In view of separation agreement between the parties, which provided for (1) division of property, (2) effect of reconciliation on the property settlement, (3) mutual release of all personal and real property claims that the parties might have against each other or might acquire under any statute of distribution, right of election or otherwise, and (4) joint custody and support of the parties' two children, and which the court found valid, the trial court erred in ordering that further proceedings might be held to accomplish an equitable distribution of marital property which had allegedly not been taken account of. Rice v. Rice, 81 N.C. App. 247, 344 S.E.2d 41, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 706, 347 S.E.2d 439 (1986).

Valid marital agreements releasing all spousal property rights will bar claims for equitable distribution — even if those settlements were executed prior to the adoption of equitable distribution under this section. Morrison v. Morrison, 102 N.C. App. 514, 402 S.E.2d 855 (1991).

Separation agreement which released each spouse from the common law rights incident to marriage (dower, curtesy, inheritance, descent, and distribution), as well as "all other rights arising out of the marital relationship in and to any and all property," fully disposed of the parties' property rights arising out of the marriage and thus acted as a bar to equitable distribution. Hagler v. Hagler, 319 N.C. 287, 354 S.E.2d 228 (1987).

Equitable Distribution Barred Where Separation Agreement Dividing Property Has Been Executed. — If parties who had entered into a 1963 separation agreement divided and conveyed property prior to resuming their marital relationship, then the provisions of the separation agreement concerning that property were "executed," and an equitable distribution suit to divide that property upon the parties' again separating in 1982 would be barred, unless the evidence showed an intent to cancel those provisions of the separation agreement. Carlton v. Carlton, 74 N.C. App. 690, 329 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

But Not by Executory Promises. — Wife's promise in 1963 separation agreement that she would make no future claims to husband's future property required future performance and therefore was executory, and where the parties became reconciled and lived again as husband and wife between 1963 and 1982, then this promise was void as to property acquired after they resumed the marital relationship. A suit for equitable distribution of this property was therefore proper. Carlton v. Carlton, 74 N.C. App. 690, 329 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

Separation agreement is terminated insofar as it remains executory on resumption of marital relation. This rule has not been superseded by subsection (d). Camp v. Camp, 75 N.C. App. 498, 331 S.E.2d 163, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 663, 335 S.E.2d 493 (1985).

Condition in Separation Agreement Not Met. — Condition in separation agreement that if the parties lived continuously separate and apart for a full year, then in that event, wife would transfer her interest in residence and lot to husband as part of property settlement was not met where the evidence showed that on a number of occasions during the year the parties had had sexual relations. Higgins v.

Higgins, 321 N.C. 482, 364 S.E.2d 426, rehearing denied, 322 N.C. 116, 367 S.E.2d 911 (1988), decided prior to § 52-10.2.

Misapplication of Stipulations in Agreement. — A trial court abused its discretion in misapplying a $5000 credit, where the parties agreed (1) that certain property would be divided unequally, and (2) that the husband would receive less personal property but would receive the $5000 credit. The trial court applied the credit but in effect ignored the remainder of the stipulation by including property against which the credit was to be an offset when it divided the marital estate equally. Fox v. Fox, 103 N.C. App. 13, 404 S.E.2d 354 (1991).

Property Settlement Not Negotiated as Reciprocal Consideration. — If a property settlement is negotiated as "reciprocal consideration" for a separation agreement, the agreements are deemed integrated and the resumption of marital relations will terminate the executory provisions of the property settlement agreement. If not in reciprocal consideration, the provisions of the property settlement are deemed separate and the resumption of marital relations will not affect either the executed or executory provisions of the property settlement agreement. Morrison v. Morrison, 102 N.C. App. 514, 402 S.E.2d 855 (1991).

The absence of a divorce decree did not cancel buy-sell agreement which provided that wife could purchase husband's equity in property "within one year of the date of the entry of an order of divorce"; that if she did not exercise her right of purchase within that time, he could purchase her equity for the same amount within 90 days after "the termination of the one-year period as is hereinabove set forth"; and that if neither bought the equity of the other, the property would be listed for sale with a licensed real estate broker and upon it being sold, the net proceeds would be equally divided. Riley v. Riley, 86 N.C. App. 636, 359 S.E.2d 252, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 121, 361 S.E.2d 596 (1987).

Tenancy by Entirety Not Destroyed by Separation Agreement. — Despite contention of creditor of husband that separation agreement executed by husband and wife destroyed tenancy by the entirety and vested a property interest in husband against which creditor was entitled to levy, where husband and wife were not divorced until over 8 months following the conveyance of the marital property to husband's parents, the property remained entirety property at the time of the conveyance and could not be the subject of a conveyance in defraud of husband's individual creditors. The trial court erred in ordering that creditor was entitled to receive the proceeds of the sale of this property. Dealer Supply Co. v. Greene, 108 N.C. App. 31, 422 S.E.2d 350 (1992), cert. denied, 333 N.C. 343, 426 S.E.2d 704 (1993).

Effect of Reconciliation on Property Settlements. — A single act of sexual intercourse between a husband and wife constitutes a reconciliation and terminates alimony obligations. However, property settlements may be executed before, during or after marriage and are not necessarily terminated by reconciliation. Love v. Mewborn, 79 N.C. App. 465, 339 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 704, 347 S.E.2d 43 (1986).

Obligation to Make Money Payments Held Not Terminated on Renewal of Sexual Relations. — The trial court's finding of fact that property settlement and alimony payments were mutually dependent supported its conclusion that the husband's obligation to make money payments denominated as "alimony" did not terminate upon renewal of sexual relations. Love v. Mewborn, 79 N.C. App. 465, 339 S.E.2d 487, cert. denied, 317 N.C. 704, 347 S.E.2d 43 (1986).

A premarital agreement concerning alimony is void as against public policy. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Invalidity of alimony provision in a premarital agreement did not affect the property provisions of the agreement. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Lack of Acknowledgment in Premarital Agreement. — The validity of a premarital agreement is not affected by the lack of acknowledgment. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Stipulation That Equal Division of Marital Property Is Equitable. — Where the parties stipulate that an equal division of the marital property is equitable, it is not only unnecessary but improper for the trial court to consider, in making that distribution, any of the distributional factors set forth in subsection (c) of this section. Miller v. Miller, 97 N.C. App. 77, 387 S.E.2d 181 (1990).

Error in Conclusion That Agreement Was Sufficiently Identical to Act. — Trial court erred in concluding that premarital agreement was sufficiently identical to the Equitable Distribution Act to allow the trial court to distribute the property according to the Act despite the premarital agreement, where the Act did not exist at the time of the agreement's execution, and the parties could not have intended that the Act govern their property division. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386

S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Attacking Consent Judgment. — A consent judgment incorporates the bargained agreement of the parties. Such a judgment can only be attacked on limited grounds. The party attacking the judgment must properly allege and prove that consent was not in fact given, or that it was obtained by mutual mistake or fraud. Stevenson v. Stevenson, 100 N.C. App. 750, 398 S.E.2d 334 (1990).

Contract Principles Apply to Consent Judgments. — A contract may be avoided based on mutual mistake where the mistake is common to both parties and because of it each has done what neither intended. A unilateral mistake, unaccompanied by fraud, imposition, or like circumstances, is not sufficient to avoid a contract. These contract principles apply to consent judgments. Stevenson v. Stevenson, 100 N.C. App. 750, 398 S.E.2d 334 (1990).

Consent Judgment Held Enforceable. — Where the agreement, in the form of a consent judgment, was altered many times by both parties, both of whom had attorneys, it should have been enforced as written. Stevenson v. Stevenson, 100 N.C. App. 750, 398 S.E.2d 334 (1990).

Right to Present Evidence on Issue of Separability. — On wife's motion for increase in alimony payments, where consent order entered into between husband and wife contained support provisions and property settlement provisions, an evidentiary hearing was required to determine the intent of the parties regarding whether the provisions of the agreement were separable or integrated, and it was error for the trial court to refuse to allow husband to present evidence on this issue. Lemons v. Lemons, 103 N.C. App. 492, 406 S.E.2d 8 (1991), decided under law in effect in 1978 at time of consent decree.

Summary Judgment Held Improper. — Summary judgment was improper where there was a genuine issue of material fact as to whether defendant disclosed all material facts pertaining to separation agreement. Harroff v. Harroff, 100 N.C. App. 686, 398 S.E.2d 340 (1990), discretionary review denied, 328 N.C. 330, 402 S.E.2d 833 (1991).

Plaintiff's affidavit stated she was forced to sign separation agreement under duress and coercion, and defendant denied allegation; therefore, taking plaintiff's affidavit as true, there was a genuine issue of material fact on question of duress and coercion concerning the separation agreement, and grant of summary judgment was error. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Award of 401(k) Plan. — Trial court's judgment and orders awarding defendant post-separation gains and losses on her portion of 401(k) plan held consistent with both the parties' agreement and the law of this state. Allen v. Allen, 118 N.C. App. 455, 455 S.E.2d 440 (1995).

VI. ALIMONY AND CHILD SUPPORT.

Purpose of alimony pendente lite is to give dependent spouse immediate support and allow her to maintain her action. Giving supporting spouse credit for equitable distribution purposes for various payments made as part of alimony pendente lite would defeat the purpose of alimony pendente lite by penalizing the dependent spouse in the final distribution of the marital assets. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408, overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

When Contingent Fee Agreement Is Enforceable. — A contingent-fee arrangement covering services rendered in an equitable distribution action is fully enforceable as long as it does not provide compensation to the attorney for securing the divorce. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Contingent Fee Agreement for Equitable Distribution Must Be Separate from Fee Agreement for Divorce. — If an attorney represents a client in both a divorce proceeding and an equitable distribution proceeding, and the client wishes to have a contingent fee contract in the equitable distribution proceeding, the parties must execute a separate agreement to provide for a fee in the divorce action that is not contingent upon the securing of the divorce. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Contingent fee contract in which the fee was contingent with respect to both divorce and equitable distribution actions was void as against public policy, even though the uncontested divorce involved relatively minimal time compared with the time the attorney spent on the equitable distribution claim; and the attorney could not recover either under the contract itself or in quantum meruit for services rendered pursuant to the contract. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Equitable distribution in this State is accomplished without regard to alimony previously awarded; the amount of alimony previously awarded may be modified or vacated by the court after the marital property is equitably distributed. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Equitable Distribution to Be Decided Before Permanent Alimony. — When both permanent alimony and equitable distribution are requested, the equitable distribution should be decided first. Talent v. Talent, 76 N.C.

App. 545, 334 S.E.2d 256 (1985).

Where alimony, child support, and equitable distribution of marital property are requested, the equitable distribution of the property must be decided first. Soares v. Soares, 86 N.C. App. 369, 357 S.E.2d 418 (1987).

Where equitable distribution order took into consideration fatally defective order for temporary alimony, the court vacated the order for equitable distribution and remanded the cause to the district court. Haywood v. Haywood, 95 N.C. App. 426, 382 S.E.2d 798, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 706, 388 S.E.2d 454 (1989).

Modification of child support must be vacated and remanded where it is part of equitable distribution judgment and thus appears to have been decided and entered at the same time as equitable distribution, rather than after equitable distribution as required by subsection (f) of this section. Dorton v. Dorton, 77 N.C. App. 667, 336 S.E.2d 415 (1985).

Agreement Speaking to Equitable Distribution Did Not Waive Alimony Rights. — Defendant's execution of a separation agreement which stated that it was executed with "the express understanding" and "in full satisfaction of all obligations" did not constitute an express waiver of her alimony rights within the meaning of §§ 52-10.1 or 50-16.6 where the preamble to the agreement referred to this section on equitable distribution, thus excluding issues of spousal support. Napier v. Napier, 135 N.C. App. 364, 520 S.E.2d 312 (1999).

Reconsideration of Alimony or Child Support After Equitable Distribution. — Section 50-20 (f) obviously contemplates that a child support order may precede an equitable distribution order. No child support order is ever final and delaying the child support order in lengthy case until after the equitable distribution issue was decided would have prolonged an already long-pending case. The trial court's decision to enter child support order prior to a determination of the equitable distribution issue was proper under the statute. Cohen v. Cohen, 100 N.C. App. 334, 396 S.E.2d 344 (1990).

If alimony and child support have not been previously awarded, equitable distribution must be made first; but if alimony or child support has already been awarded, the awards must be reconsidered upon request after the marital property has been equitably distributed. This order of events is required, no doubt, because of the obvious relationship that exists between the property that one has and his or her need for support and the ability to furnish it. Capps v. Capps, 69 N.C. App. 755, 318 S.E.2d 346 (1984).

Equitable Distribution Judgment May Not Offset Child Support. — Defendant was not entitled to a "credit" against his future child support payments for the $12,435.50 he paid over and above his court-ordered obligation or for the $500.00 plaintiff owed him as a result of an equitable distribution judgment; child support obligations may not be offset by other obligations. Brinkley v. Brinkley, 135 N.C. App. 608, 522 S.E.2d 90 (1999).

The phrase "children of both parties" The phrase "children of both parties" clearly includes any child, legitimate or illegitimate. Pott v. Pott, 126 N.C. App. 285, 484 S.E.2d 822 (1997).

Where child was not the biological child of the plaintiff and was not adopted by her, the plaintiff had no legal obligation to provide for the medical care unless she specifically agreed to do so; therefore, child's medical bills were not marital debts. Crisp v. Crisp, 126 N.C. App. 625, 486 S.E.2d 485 (1997), cert. granted, 347 N.C. 264, 493 S.E.2d 744 (1997), aff'd in part, cert. dismissed in part, 347 N.C. 659, 496 S.E.2d 379 (1998).

VII. TRANSFER OF TITLE.

Authority to Order Conveyance of Title. — Courts have within their powers in equity the authority to compel one person to convey title to property to another person when justice requires it, as is best demonstrated by the courts' use of the equitable remedy of constructive trust. As is indicated by subsection (g), the legislature recognized this power of the courts to order the transfer of real property under appropriate circumstances. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

The court has the authority, within its power in equity, to compel one former spouse to convey title to property to the other former spouse when justice requires. Geer v. Geer, 84 N.C. App. 471, 353 S.E.2d 427 (1987).

Release of Obligations. — Where husband was required by court order to make monthly payments for the mortgages on the parties' house and aluminum siding, fact that he agreed in his complaint for absolute divorce to transfer title to the property to wife and delivered deed to the property to wife, which deed contained an assumption clause purporting to indemnify defendant from any liability for the mortgages, this did not constitute sufficient evidence that wife agreed to assume the mortgages and relieve husband of his obligations. Marrow v. Marrow, 118 N.C. App. 332, 454 S.E.2d 853 (1995).

VIII. FINDINGS OF COURT.

Written Findings of Facts Required in Any Order for Equitable Distribution. — The plain language of subsection (j) mandates that written findings of facts be made in any order for the equitable distribution of marital property made pursuant to this section. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Written findings of fact are required in every case in which a distribution of marital property is ordered under the Equitable Distribution Act, even when marital property is equally divided. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Written findings of fact are required in every case in which a distribution of marital property is ordered under the Equitable Distribution Act, not merely when property is divided unequally. Chandler v. Chandler, 108 N.C. App. 66, 422 S.E.2d 587 (1992).

When Factors in Subsection (c) Must Be Addressed. — If evidence of one or more of the factors listed in subsection (c) is presented, the findings must reflect that the trial judge considered those factors, whether the judge ultimately orders an equal or an unequal distribution. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Judge Must Make Findings as to Each Statutory Factor. — When a party presents evidence which would allow the trial court to determine that an equal distribution of the marital assets would be inequitable, the trial court must then consider all of the distributional factors listed in subsection (c), and must make sufficient findings as to each statutory factor on which evidence was offered; therefore, where the trial court's order explicitly stated that it considered only one factor in determining how the marital assets should be divided, was error. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988), cert. granted, 324 N.C. 336, 378 S.E.2d 794 (1989).

Findings Must Include Ultimate Facts. — The trial court's findings were insufficient where the trial court stated that it considered all statutory factors and specifically listed some of those factors but did not include ultimate facts considered in applying those factors; for example, the trial court did not make any findings regarding the actual income and liabilities of the parties, the amount of plaintiff's contribution of separate funds to the marital home, and what the tax consequences to the parties would be, nor did it determine whether plaintiff's contentions that she "helped the career potential of the defendant" were accurate and, if so, the extent of plaintiff's contribution. Rosario v. Rosario, 139 N.C. App. 258, 533 S.E.2d 274 (2000).

Findings Must Support Award. — In all equitable distribution cases, findings of fact must support the determination that the marital property has been equitably divided. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Specific Statement That Distribution Is Equitable Is Not Required. — Once the trial court orders a distribution, it has held sub silentio that such distribution is fair and equitable. A specific statement that the distribution ordered is equitable is not required. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

But Reasons for Unequal Division Should Be Stated in Order. — If, in a particular case, the court concludes, after its careful and clearly articulated consideration of all of the statutory factors and of any nonstatutory factor raised by the evidence which is reasonably related to the rights to, interest in, and need for the marital property, that an equal division is not equitable, the trial court may properly order an unequal division, but should state in its order the basis and reasons for its division. Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984); Weaver v. Weaver, 72 N.C. App. 409, 324 S.E.2d 915 (1985), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

As Should Findings of Fact Supporting Unequal Division. — The trial court should clearly set forth in its order findings of fact based on the evidence which support its conclusion that an equal division is not equitable. Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984); Weaver v. Weaver, 72 N.C. App. 409, 324 S.E.2d 915 (1985); Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985), overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

In making its determination, the court must consider the factors listed in subsection (c) and set forth findings of fact in its judgment reflecting its consideration of the relevant factors. Wade v. Wade, 72 N.C. App. 372, 325 S.E.2d 260, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 612, 330 S.E.2d 616 (1985).

If, in a particular case, the trial court concludes, after its consideration of all the statutory factors and any nonstatutory factors raised by the evidence which are reasonably related to the rights to, interest in, and need for the marital property, that an equal division is not equitable, the court may properly order an unequal division; in this case, it should clearly set forth in its order findings of fact based on the evidence which support its conclusion that an equal division is not equitable. Smith v. Smith, 71 N.C. App. 242, 322 S.E.2d 393 (1984), modified and aff'd, 314 N.C. 80, 331 S.E.2d 682 (1985).

When a party has met its burden of proof and the court has concluded that an equal distribution would not be equitable, the court must make written findings, based upon relevant statutory and nonstatutory factors, which support its conclusion that an equal distribution is not equitable. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Findings as to Increase in Value of Separate Property During Marriage. — A trial court's order which did not disclose the steps by which the trial court arrived at its conclusion that the entire increase in value of separate property was marital property, left the Court of Appeals unable to determine whether the trial court correctly applied the "source of funds" theory to the facts; therefore, the order was reversed and remanded for appropriate findings of fact from the evidence previously submitted. Ciobanu v. Ciobanu, 104 N.C. App. 461, 409 S.E.2d 749 (1991).

Findings as to Closely Held Corporation. — A mere recitation of the factors the trial court considered in its valuation of the corporation is not sufficient; the trial court must also indicate the value it attaches to each of the enumerated factors. Locklear v. Locklear, 92 N.C. App. 299, 374 S.E.2d 406 (1988).

Findings as to Stock. — Because competent evidence was presented in equitable distribution action to support the finding that shares of stock acquired by appellee during marriage and prior to separation were a gift from his father and thus separate property, the finding was not disturbed on appeal. Godley v. Godley, 110 N.C. App. 99, 429 S.E.2d 382 (1993).

Impracticality of In Kind Distribution. — Adequate findings did not support a judgment equitably distributing three retirement plans, where the judgment contained no finding of fact, supported by evidence in the record, that an in kind distribution would be impractical, nor did it support a finding that the parties had stipulated to distribution in the manner directed by the court. Heath v. Heath, 132 N.C. App. 36, 509 S.E.2d 804 (1999).

Where the parties stipulated to an equal division of the marital property, which was equivalent to a stipulation that an equal division of the marital property was equitable, the trial court properly refused to make separate findings of fact regarding the post-separation appreciation of the marital home, its post-separation occupancy by the plaintiff, and the tax savings allegedly realized by the plaintiff because of the post-separation occupancy of the house. Christensen v. Christensen, 101 N.C. App. 47, 398 S.E.2d 634 (1990).

Failure to Enter Finding That Defendant Did Not Rebut Presumption Was Harmless Error. — Where there was no evidence in the record to support a finding that certain real property was to remain the separate property of the husband, the failure of the trial court to enter a finding that defendant did not rebut the marital presumption by clear, cogent and convincing evidence was harmless. Furthermore, there was no "intention" in the deed to the parties as tenants by the entirety that the property was to remain defendant's separate property. Therefore, the trial judge correctly included the property among the marital assets. Taylor v. Taylor, 92 N.C. App. 413, 374 S.E.2d 644 (1988).

IX. RIGHTS CREATED BY SUBSECTION (k).

Legislature's intent in subsection (k) was to create a right to equitable distribution of the marital property, which had not existed up to that time, and to make that right vest at the time of filing for divorce (now at the time of separation). Subsection (k) did not create any vested rights in particular marital property; it created a right to the equitable distribution of that property, whatever a court should determine that property is. Wilson v. Wilson, 73 N.C. App. 96, 325 S.E.2d 668, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 121, 332 S.E.2d 490 (1985).

Subsection (k) did not create substantive rights in any party to particular marital property which that party argues comes within the meaning of that acquired during the course of the marriage. Wilson v. Wilson, 73 N.C. App. 96, 325 S.E.2d 668, cert. denied, 314 N.C. 121, 332 S.E.2d 490 (1985).

The right to equitable distribution is an inchoate right exercisable only in a divorce action; thus, absent a consent judgment, the right to equitable property distribution could not be effectuated during the one-year separation period that necessarily precedes a filing for absolute divorce; however, this does not mean that a claim for equitable distribution cannot be made during that period. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

The vested right of equitable distribution does not create a property right in marital property, nor does the fact of separation create a lien on specific marital property in favor of the spouse. Rather, it only creates a right to an equitable distribution of that property, whatever a court should determine that property is. Perlow v. Perlow, 128 Bankr. 412 (E.D.N.C. 1991).

Subjection of Each Spouse's Interest to Claims of Creditors. — Upon divorce, each former spouse's undivided one-half interest becomes subject to the claims of his or her individual creditors. Union Grove Mill and Mfg. Co. v. Faw, 103 N.C. App. 166, 404 S.E.2d 508 (1991).

Attachment of Lien Against Spouse upon Conversion to Tenancy in Common. — When property is held by married persons as tenants by the entireties, a lien of judgment effective against only one spouse does not attach to the property until the property is converted into another form of estate. One such type of conversion occurs upon divorce, where property held as a tenancy by the entirety is converted into property held as a tenancy in common, and each former spouse thereafter holds an undivided one-half interest in the subject property. Union Grove Mill and Mfg. Co. v. Faw, 103 N.C. App. 166, 404 S.E.2d 508 (1991).

Insurance Policies. — At the time of separation there were no vested rights under insurance policy on the life of party's son. The rights only vested at his death, and until then plaintiff, as owner of the policy, could have cancelled the policy or changed the beneficiary. At the time of separation, the cash value of the insurance policies was marital property, since the premiums to that point had been paid for with marital assets. The premiums after separation were paid for with plaintiff's assets and therefore the proceeds from the insurance policy were separate property of plaintiff. Foster v. Foster, 90 N.C. App. 265, 368 S.E.2d 26 (1988), cert. denied, 324 N.C. 245, 376 S.E.2d 739 (1989).

X. DISCRETION OF TRIAL COURT AND APPELLATE REVIEW.

Trial Court Has Broad Discretion. — The legislature clearly intended to vest trial courts with discretion in distributing marital property under this section, but guided always by the public policy expressed therein favoring an equal division. The legislative intent to vest our trial courts with such broad discretion is emphasized by the inclusion of the catchall factor codified in subdivision (c)(12). White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

The trial court has broad discretion in the division of marital property. Hartman v. Hartman, 82 N.C. App. 167, 346 S.E.2d 196 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 396, 354 S.E.2d 239 (1987).

But Court's Discretion Is Not Unlimited. — The courts do not have unlimited discretion in the division of marital property. They are limited by the presumption of equal division and by the requirement of subsection (j) of this section that they justify their distribution of property with written findings of fact. Furthermore, the exercise of discretion implies conscientious judgment arrived at in accordance with established rules, and not arbitrary action. White v. White, 64 N.C. App. 432, 308 S.E.2d 68 (1983), modified and aff'd, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

The trial judge's discretion is to be upheld unless it fails to comply with the requirements of the statute. Wieneck-Adams v. Adams, 104 N.C. App. 621, 410 S.E.2d 525 (1991), aff'd, 331 N.C. 688, 417 S.E.2d 449 (1992).

Standard of Review. — Where defendant's argument on appeal was that he had brought forth enough evidence at the equitable distribution hearing to have allowed the trial judge to identify certain personal and real property as being marital property in part and defendant's separate property in part, the standard of review on appeal would be limited to the question of whether any competent evidence in the record sustains the court's findings. Taylor v. Taylor, 92 N.C. App. 413, 374 S.E.2d 644 (1988).

Judgment Not Disturbed on Appeal Absent Abuse of Discretion. — The division of marital property is a matter within the sound discretion of the trial court, and its judgment should not be disturbed on review unless it is shown that the division made was an abuse of discretion. White v. White, 64 N.C. App. 432, 308 S.E.2d 68 (1983), modified and aff'd, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985); Johnson v. Johnson, 78 N.C. App. 787, 338 S.E.2d 567 (1986).

When evidence concerning one or more of the factors in subsection (c) of this section tending to show that an equal division of the marital property would not be equitable is admitted, the court must balance that evidence with the other evidence presented, keeping in mind the legislative policy strongly favoring an equal division, and must determine what constitutes an equitable division in that particular case. The balance struck by the court in weighing such evidence will not be disturbed absent a clear showing of abuse of discretion. Bradley v. Bradley, 78 N.C. App. 150, 336 S.E.2d 658 (1985).

Appellate review of equitable distribution awards is limited to a determination of whether there has been a clear abuse of discretion. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

The trial court's rulings in equitable distribution cases receive great deference and may be upset only if they are so arbitrary that they could not have been the result of a reasoned decision. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Findings of fact by the trial court are upheld on appeal as long as they are supported by competent evidence. Gum v. Gum, 107 N.C. App. 734, 421 S.E.2d 788 (1992).

Trial court did not abuse its discretion by awarding plaintiff 50 percent of the marital portion of defendant's pension. Judkins v. Judkins, 113 N.C. App. 734, 441 S.E.2d 139, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 781, 447 S.E.2d 424 (1994).

Unequal Distribution. — Although there is a presumption that an equal division of marital property is equitable, so long as the trial court considers all the distributional factors in subsection (c) and makes sufficient findings as to each statutory factor on which evidence is offered, the finding of a single distributional factor by the trial court may support an unequal division. Judkins v. Judkins, 113 N.C. App. 734, 441 S.E.2d 139, cert. denied, 336 N.C. 781, 447 S.E.2d 424 (1994).

Or Miscarriage of Justice. — A proper order concluding that an equal division is not equitable should not be disturbed on appeal unless the appellate court, upon consideration of the cold record, can determine that the division ordered by the trial court has resulted in an obvious miscarriage of justice. Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984).

Nor Will Trial Court's Findings Be Disturbed Absent Abuse. — The trial court's findings in support of an equitable but unequal division will not be disturbed on appeal unless there was a clear abuse of discretion. Weaver v. Weaver, 72 N.C. App. 409, 324 S.E.2d 915 (1985).

Only when evidence fails to show any rational basis for the distribution ordered by the court will its determination be upset on appeal. Nix v. Nix, 80 N.C. App. 110, 341 S.E.2d 116 (1986).

Equitable distribution order should not be disturbed unless the appellate court, upon consideration of the cold record, can determine that the division ordered has resulted in an obvious miscarriage of justice. Morris v. Morris, 90 N.C. App. 94, 367 S.E.2d 408, overruled in part on other grounds, Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

In complex litigation involving equitable distribution, appellate court will not remand judgment for obviously insignificant errors. Mishler v. Mishler, 90 N.C. App. 72, 367 S.E.2d 385, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 174, 373 S.E.2d 111 (1988).

Formal errors in an equitable distribution judgment do not require reversal, particularly where the record reflects a conscientious effort by the trial judge to deal with complicated and extensive evidence. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Abuse of discretion occurs when the trial court has failed to consider proper factors or has made a mistake or error with respect to the facts upon which the division was made, or when the division itself was, under the circumstances, either excessive or inadequate. White v. White, 64 N.C. App. 432, 308 S.E.2d 68 (1983), modified and aff'd, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

Awards Payable in Lump Sum or Over Time. — It is within the trial court's sound discretion to determine whether the distributive award is to be made payable as a lump sum or over a fixed period of time. Atkins v. Atkins, 102 N.C. App. 199, 401 S.E.2d 784 (1991).

Payment of Interest. — The decision of whether to order the payment of interest on a distributive award is one that lies within the discretion of the trial judge. Mrozek v. Mrozek, 129 N.C. App. 43, 496 S.E.2d 836 (1998).

As to the proper standard of review of equitable distribution awards where evidence was admitted tending to show that an equal distribution would not be equitable, see White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

Inadequate Findings by Trial Court Precluded Appellate Review. — Where, among other things, the classification of certain property as marital was erroneous, tainting the findings and conclusions regarding valuation and distribution, and the method of valuing the marital portion of the home was inadequate to support the award to the wife, the findings and conclusions of the trial court were insufficient to allow appellate review. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

Trial court's conclusion that equal division of marital property would not be equitable was not supported by its findings of fact, where the court failed to make specific findings with regard to a number of factors listed under subsection (c) of this section, and the case would be remanded for further proceedings. Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C. App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984).

A ruling resulting in an unequal division of marital property will be upset only if it is manifestly unsupported by reason. Upchurch v. Upchurch, 128 N.C. App. 461, 495 S.E.2d 738 (1998), cert. denied, 348 N.C. 291, 501 S.E.2d 925 (1998).

Trial court did not have authority to reaffirm divorce decree and reserve for future resolution the issue of equitable distribution; since the trial court did not set aside the divorce, but rather, attempted to nullify the consequences of defendant's failure to assert her claim for equitable distribution prior to the entry of judgment of divorce, the order failed. Even if the court had effectively set aside, briefly, the divorce decree itself and then immediately reinstated the divorce decree with a reservation of an equitable distribution claim, the reservation of the equitable distribution claim would have been a legal nullity because plaintiff voluntarily dismissed his equitable distribution claim and defendant did not, during the time the divorce was arguably set aside, file an answer, counterclaim, or separate action requesting equitable distribution. Carter v. Carter, 102 N.C. App. 440, 402 S.E.2d 469 (1991).

Authority of Court. — Where neither party made application or stated a claim for equitable distribution prior to the judgment of absolute divorce, the trial court lacked the authority to enter such a judgment. Stirewalt v. Stirewalt, 114 N.C. App. 107, 440 S.E.2d 854 (1994).

Trial court did not err in order purging defendant of contempt for failure to comply with equitable distribution judgment, by awarding the plaintiff the present value of the stock which had been assigned to her when the initial judgment had been entered. It was proper for the trial court to require the defendant to compensate the plaintiff for the stock splits and the dividends which she would have received had defendant not been recalcitrant in carrying out the trial court's orders. Conrad v. Conrad, 82 N.C. App. 758, 348 S.E.2d 349 (1986).

Interim order regarding the nature of insurance proceeds did not affect a substantial right as plaintiff's rights would be adequately protected by an appeal timely taken from the final equitable distribution judgment Hunter v. Hunter, 126 N.C. App. 705, 486 S.E.2d 244 (1997).

Immediate Appeal Contrary to Public Policy. — Permitting an immediate appeal from an interim equitable distribution order would be contrary to the policy of this state discouraging fragmentary appeals. Hunter v. Hunter, 126 N.C. App. 705, 486 S.E.2d 244 (1997).

XI. ATTORNEYS' FEES.

Court Had Jurisdiction. — Trial court was not without jurisdiction at the time it entered its subsection (i) order and it therefore had jurisdiction to award attorney's fees under that section. McKissick v. McKissick, 129 N.C. App. 252, 497 S.E.2d 711 (1998).

When Contingent Fee Agreement Is Enforceable. — A contingent fee arrangement covering services rendered in an equitable distribution action is fully enforceable as long as it does not provide compensation to the attorney for securing the divorce. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Contingent Fee Agreement for Equitable Distribution Must Be Separate from Fee Agreement for Divorce. — If an attorney represents a client in both a divorce proceeding and an equitable distribution proceeding, and the client wishes to have a contingent fee contract in the equitable distribution proceeding, the parties must execute a separate agreement to provide for a fee in the divorce action that is not contingent upon the securing of the divorce. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

Contingent fee contract in which the fee was contingent with respect to both divorce and equitable distribution actions was void as against public policy, even though the uncontested divorce involved relatively minimal time compared with the time the attorney spent on the equitable distribution claim; and the attorney could not recover either under the contract itself or in quantum meruit for services rendered pursuant to the contract. In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986).

§ 50-20.1. Pension and retirement benefits.

(a) The award of vested pension, retirement, or other deferred compensation benefits may be made payable:

(1) As a lump sum by agreement;

(2) Over a period of time in fixed amounts by agreement;

(3) By appropriate domestic relations order as a prorated portion of the benefits made to the designated recipient at the time the party against whom the award is made actually begins to receive the benefits; or

(4) By awarding a larger portion of other assets to the party not receiving the benefits and a smaller share of other assets to the party entitled to receive the benefits.

(b) The award of nonvested pension, retirement, or other deferred compensation benefits may be made payable:

(1) As a lump sum by agreement;

(2) Over a period of time in fixed amounts by agreement; or

(3) By appropriate domestic relations order as a prorated portion of the benefits made to the designated recipient at the time the party against whom the award is made actually begins to receive the benefits.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsections (a) and (b) of this section, the court shall not require the administrator of the fund or plan involved to make any payments until the party against whom the award is made actually begins to receive the benefits unless the plan permits an earlier distribution.

(d) The award shall be determined using the proportion of time the marriage existed (up to the date of separation of the parties), simultaneously with the employment which earned the vested and nonvested pension, retirement, or deferred compensation benefit, to the total amount of time of employment. The award shall be based on the vested and nonvested accrued benefit, as provided by the plan or fund, calculated as of the date of separation, and shall not include contributions, years of service, or compensation which may accrue after the date of separation. The award shall include gains and losses on the prorated portion of the benefit vested at the date of separation.

(e) No award shall exceed fifty percent (50%) of the benefits the person against whom the award is made is entitled to receive as vested and nonvested pension, retirement, or other deferred compensation benefits, except that an award may exceed fifty percent (50%) if (i) other assets subject to equitable distribution are insufficient; or (ii) there is difficulty in distributing any asset or any interest in a business, corporation, or profession; or (iii) it is economically desirable for one party to retain an asset or interest that is intact and free from any claim or interference by the other party; or (iv) more than one pension or retirement system or deferred compensation plan or fund is involved, but the benefits award may not exceed fifty percent (50%) of the total benefits of all the plans added together; or (v) both parties consent. In no event shall an award exceed fifty percent (50%) if a plan prohibits an award in excess of fifty percent (50%).

(f) In the event the person receiving the award dies, the unpaid balance, if any, of the award shall pass to the beneficiaries of the recipient by will, if any, or by intestate succession, or by beneficiary designation with the plan consistent with the terms of the plan unless the plan prohibits such designation. In the event the person against whom the award is made dies, the award to the recipient shall remain payable to the extent permitted by the pension or retirement system or deferred compensation plan or fund involved.

(g) The court may require distribution of the award by means of a qualified domestic relations order, or as defined in section 414(p) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, or by other appropriate order. To facilitate the calculating and payment of distributive awards, the administrator of the system, plan, or fund may be ordered to certify the total contributions, years of service, and pension, retirement, or other deferred compensation benefits payable.

(h) This section and G.S. 50-21 shall apply to all pension, retirement, and other deferred compensation plans and funds, including vested and nonvested military pensions eligible under the federal Uniform Services Former Spouses Protection Act, and including funds administered by the State pursuant to Articles 84 through 88 of Chapter 58 and Chapters 120, 127A, 128, 135, 143, 143B, and 147 of the General Statutes, to the extent of a member's accrued benefit at the date of separation, as determined by the court. (1997-212, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1997-212, s. 6, made this section effective October 1, 1997, and applicable to actions for equitable distribution filed on and after that date.

CASE NOTES

Quoted in Patterson ex rel. Jordan v. Patterson, 137 N.C. App. 653, 529 S.E.2d 484 (2000).

§ 50-21. Procedures in actions for equitable distribution of property; sanctions for purposeful and prejudicial delay.

(a) At any time after a husband and wife begin to live separate and apart from each other, a claim for equitable distribution may be filed and adjudicated, either as a separate civil action, or together with any other action brought pursuant to Chapter 50 of the General Statutes, or as a motion in the cause as provided by G.S. 50-11(e) or (f). Within 90 days after service of a claim for equitable distribution, the party who first asserts the claim shall prepare and serve upon the opposing party an equitable distribution inventory affidavit listing all property claimed by the party to be marital property and all property claimed by the party to be separate property, and the estimated date-of-separation fair market value of each item of marital and separate property. Within 30 days after service of the inventory affidavit, the party upon whom service is made shall prepare and serve an inventory affidavit upon the other party. The inventory affidavits prepared and served pursuant to this subsection shall be subject to amendment and shall not be binding at trial as to completeness or value. The court may extend the time limits in this subsection for good cause shown. The affidavits are subject to the requirements of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 11, and are deemed to be in the nature of answers to interrogatories propounded to the parties. Any party failing to supply the information required by this subsection in the affidavit is subject to G.S. 1A-1, Rules 26, 33, and 37. During the pendency of the action for equitable distribution, discovery may proceed, and the court shall enter temporary orders as appropriate and necessary for the purpose of preventing the disappearance, waste, or destruction of marital or separate property or to secure the possession thereof.

Real or personal property located outside of North Carolina is subject to equitable distribution in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 50-20, and the court may include in its order appropriate provisions to ensure compliance with the order of equitable distribution.

(b) For purposes of equitable distribution, marital property shall be valued as of the date of the separation of the parties, and evidence of preseparation and postseparation occurrences or values is competent as corroborative evidence of the value of marital property as of the date of the separation of the parties. Divisible property and divisible debt shall be valued as of the date of distribution.

(c) Nothing in G.S. 50-20 or this section shall restrict or extend the right to trial by jury as provided by the Constitution of North Carolina.

(d) Within 120 days after the filing of the initial pleading or motion in the cause for equitable distribution, the party first serving the pleading or application shall apply to the court to conduct a scheduling and discovery conference. If that party fails to make application, then the other party may do so. At the conference the court shall determine a schedule of discovery as well as consider and rule upon any motions for appointment of expert witnesses, or other applications, including applications to determine the date of separation, and shall set a date for the disclosure of expert witnesses and a date on or before which an initial pretrial conference shall be held.

At the initial pretrial conference the court shall make inquiry as to the status of the case and shall enter a date for the completion of discovery, the completion of a mediated settlement conference, if applicable, and the filing and service of motions, and shall determine a date on or after which a final pretrial conference shall be held and a date on or after which the case shall proceed to trial.

The final pretrial conference shall be conducted pursuant to the Rules of Civil Procedure and the General Rules of Practice in the applicable district or superior court, adopted pursuant to G.S. 7A-34. The court shall rule upon any matters reasonably necessary to effect a fair and prompt disposition of the case in the interests of justice.

(e) Upon motion of either party or upon the court's own initiative, the court shall impose an appropriate sanction on a party when the court finds that:

(1) The party has willfully obstructed or unreasonably delayed, or has attempted to obstruct or unreasonably delay, discovery proceedings, including failure to make discovery pursuant to G.S. 1A-1, Rule 37, or has willfully obstructed or unreasonably delayed or attempted to obstruct or unreasonably delay any pending equitable distribution proceeding, and

(2) The willful obstruction or unreasonable delay of the proceedings is or would be prejudicial to the interests of the opposing party.

Delay consented to by the parties is not grounds for sanctions. The sanction may include an order to pay the other party the amount of the reasonable expenses and damages incurred because of the willful obstruction or unreasonable delay, including a reasonable attorneys' fee, and including appointment by the court, at the offending party's expense, of an accountant, appraiser, or other expert whose services the court finds are necessary to secure in order for the discovery or other equitable distribution proceeding to be timely conducted. (1981, c. 815, s. 6; 1983, c. 671, s. 1; 1985, c. 689, s. 21; 1987, c. 844, s. 1; 1991, c. 610, s. 2; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 910, s. 1; 1993, c. 209, s. 1; 1995, c. 244, s. 1; c. 245, s. 1; 1997-302, s. 2; 2001-364, s. 1.)

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-364, s. 1, effective August 10, 2001, and applicable to actions pending or filed on or after that date, substituted "filed and adjudicated" for "filed" in the first sentence of subsection (a).

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on resulting trusts in entireties property when the wife furnishes purchase money, see 17 Wake Forest L. Rev. 415 (1981).

For survey of 1982 law on property, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1171 (1983).

For note, "North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute: Recent Developments," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1395 (1986).

For note, "Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright — Creditors' Rights to Entireties Property Awarded to Nondebtor Spouse Upon Divorce," see 64 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1986).

For article, "The Partnership Ideal: The Development of Equitable Distribution in North Carolina," see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 195 (1987).

Semantics as Jurisprudence: The Elevation of Form Over Substance in the Treatment of Separation Agreements in North Carolina, 69 N.C.L. Rev. 319 (1991).

For 1997 legislative survey, see 20 Campbell L. Rev. 459.

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Some of the cases below were decided prior to the rewriting of this section by Session Laws 1987, c. 844, which provides for entry of a consent judgment of equitable distribution prior or subsequent to entry of a divorce judgment, and for institution of an action of equitable distribution prior to entry of a divorce judgment.

Public policy of this State is that equitable distribution of property shall follow decree of absolute divorce. Hendrix v. Hendrix, 67 N.C. App. 354, 313 S.E.2d 25 (1984).

Equitable distribution, when properly demanded, must be granted upon the divorce decree being entered; and if alimony and child support has not been previously awarded, equitable distribution must be made first; but if alimony or child support has already been awarded, the awards must be reconsidered upon request after the marital property has been equitably distributed. This order of events is required, no doubt, because of the obvious relationship that exists between the property that one has and his or her need for support and the ability to furnish it. Capps v. Capps, 69 N.C. App. 755, 318 S.E.2d 346 (1984). But see now subsection (a) of this section.

It is North Carolina's public policy that an equitable distribution of property shall follow a decree of absolute divorce. However, a resort to the equitable distribution law is not the only recognized way for married people to dispose of their marital property. An alternative is in § 50-20(d). Case v. Case, 73 N.C. App. 76, 325 S.E.2d 661, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 597, 330 S.E.2d 606 (1985). And see now subsection (a) of this section.

The plain language of subsection (a) of this section clearly provides that the equitable distribution of marital property must follow a decree of absolute divorce; however, the distribution proceedings may be instituted as a cross action or in a suit altogether separate from the divorce action. This section does not require that the distribution hearing must be held immediately following entry of the absolute divorce. Sharp v. Sharp, 84 N.C. App. 128, 351 S.E.2d 799 (1987). And see now subsection (a) of this section.

No Right to Jury Trial in Equitable Distribution Action. — No right to bring an action for equitable distribution of marital property existed prior to the adoption of the equitable distribution statutes, § 50-20 and this section, and the language of the statutes themselves create no new right to trial by jury; therefore, there is no right to trial by jury for such an action under the Constitution of North Carolina. Kiser v. Kiser, 325 N.C. 502, 385 S.E.2d 487 (1989).

Discretion of Trial Court. — The trial court retains the discretion to choose the appropriate method of compensating the spouse for his post-separation payment of marital debt. Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995).

Judgment effectuating a property distribution pursuant to an agreement that was not signed by both spouses was a court-ordered equitable distribution granted before absolute divorce, and as such was expressly prohibited by subsection (a) of this section. Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 105, 356 S.E.2d 407 (1987).

Jurisdiction over Out-of-State Property. — Subsection (a) of this section simply authorizes jurisdiction over the property of the defendant located outside North Carolina once due process concerns are satisfied. Carroll v. Carroll, 88 N.C. App. 453, 363 S.E.2d 872 (1988).

Alternative Procedures for Making Application for Distribution. — Although subsection (a) of this section sets out the procedure for making application for the distribution of property, it is not the only recognized way for married people to dispose of their marital property. An alternative is found in § 50-20(d). Hendrix v. Hendrix, 67 N.C. App. 354, 313 S.E.2d 25 (1984).

Pleadings. — A plaintiff in a divorce action may admit to a claim for equitable distribution in a reply, and join in the claims for an equitable distribution of the marital property through a reply pleading. The defendant is precluded, by principles of equitable estoppel, from defeating plaintiff's right to equitable distribution by submitting to a voluntary dismissal of his counterclaim. Hunt v. Hunt, 117 N.C. App. 280, 450 S.E.2d 558 (1994).

Bankruptcy. — Following the parties' separation, a spouse's right to equitable distribution does not create any vested rights in particular marital property, but rather creates in each spouse an unliquidated, unsecured, contingent claim as defined by federal law which may be discharged in bankruptcy. Justice v. Justice, 123 N.C. App. 733, 475 S.E.2d 225 (1996), aff'd, 346 N.C. 176, 484 S.E.2d 551 (1997).

Equitable distribution reflects the idea that marriage is a partnership enterprise to which both spouses make vital contributions and which entitles the homemaker spouse to a share of the property acquired during the relationship. White v. White, 312 N.C. 770, 324 S.E.2d 829 (1985).

Equitable distribution is not automatic. A party seeking equitable distribution must specifically apply for it, either by way of cross-action in an action brought for absolute divorce or as a separate action. Hagler v. Hagler, 319 N.C. 287, 354 S.E.2d 228 (1987).

Where death ends all chance for divorce, any equitable distribution action then pending must abate; the 1995 amendment to this section did not change the relationship between equitable distribution and divorce. Instead, the amendment continued the legislative trend for equitable distribution to occur at any time prior to or after an absolute divorce. Brown v. Brown, 353 N.C. 220, 539 S.E.2d 621 (2000).

Trial Court Must Make Written Findings. — When determining equitable distribution, the trial court must make written findings characterizing postseparation appreciation of marital assets as either passive or active. Smith v. Smith, 336 N.C. 575, 444 S.E.2d 420 (1994).

The trial court's error in failing to make specific findings of fact as to each factor under this section did not prejudice the wife, where she asked for and received an equal distribution of marital assets. Crutchfield v. Crutchfield, 132 N.C. App. 193, 511 S.E.2d 31 (1999).

Formerly No Authority to Enter Order of Equitable Distribution Preceding Divorce. — Prior to the 1987 amendment to this section, although the trial court had jurisdiction over the parties and their property, it was without authority to enter an order of equitable distribution of the marital property preceding an absolute divorce, notwithstanding the parties' consent. McKenzie v. McKenzie, 75 N.C. App. 188, 330 S.E.2d 270 (1985).

Evidence of Divorce Required. — An order of equitable distribution must be supported by a finding of fact, based on competent evidence, that a judgment of absolute divorce has been entered by a court of competent jurisdiction. McIver v. McIver, 77 N.C. App. 232, 334 S.E.2d 454 (1985). But see now subsection (a) of this section.

Separate Trials for Divorce and Distribution. — The trial court's order granting the plaintiff's motion for separate trials of his claim for absolute divorce and the defendant's claim for equitable distribution of the marital property did not constitute an abuse of discretion, nor did it prejudice the defendant's substantial rights. Sharp v. Sharp, 84 N.C. App. 128, 351 S.E.2d 799 (1987).

When Equitable Distribution Becomes Operative. — By the terms of subsection (a), equitable distribution becomes operative only after a husband and wife have separated and a claim for equitable distribution has been filed.

Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Husband's argument that one must be a party to an existing divorce action before an equitable distribution claim may be asserted had no merit under subsection (a) of this section as it existed in 1981, and would have been summarily dismissed under the 1987 amended version. McIver v. McIver, 92 N.C. App. 116, 374 S.E.2d 144 (1988).

The classification, valuation, and distribution of the marital debt is required without regard to whether the debt may be liquidated after the date of separation and before the trial; just as with assets, the question is whether the debt was acquired during the marriage and before the date of separation and in existence on the date of separation. Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995).

Marital Property Valued at Net Value. — Net value, rather than fair market value, is the proper measure for valuing marital property for equitable distribution. Little v. Little, 74 N.C. App. 12, 327 S.E.2d 283 (1985).

Marital property valued as of the date of the parties' separation. This valuation date is used to determine the equitable distributive share of each party. However, where there is evidence of active or passive appreciation of the marital assets after that date, the court must consider such appreciation as a factor under § 50-20(c)(11a) or (12), respectively. Mishler v. Mishler, 90 N.C. App. 72, 367 S.E.2d 385, cert. denied, 323 N.C. 174, 373 S.E.2d 111 (1988).

Presumption that a gift to the other spouse was intended applies only when a spouse uses separate property to acquire other property which is titled in the entireties, or when a spouse directs a title of his separate property be placed in the entireties. Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995).

Effect of Obligation to Build Road on Fair Market Value. — In making a determination as to the fair market value of property the trial court must ascertain the price a willing buyer would pay to purchase the land on the open market from a willing seller as of the date of the parties' separation. Thus, the value, if any, of the obligation to build an access road on the property is intrinsic to the fair market price and should have been included in the trial court's fair market valuation of the real property. Carlson v. Carlson, 127 N.C. App. 33, 487 S.E.2d 784 (1997), cert. denied, 347 N.C. 396, 494 S.E.2d 407 (1997).

Date of Valuation. — When a divorce is granted on the ground of a year's separation, the trial court is to determine the net market value of the marital assets as of the date of separation in order to effect an equitable distribution of these assets. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Trial court committed error in valuing stock as of the date of trial, as opposed to the date of separation. Lawing v. Lawing, 81 N.C. App. 159, 344 S.E.2d 100 (1986).

Value of property at the time of separation is especially important when an appreciation or diminution in the value of the property has taken place since separation, such as the incurring or removing of encumbrances by one spouse. Swindell v. Lewis, 82 N.C. App. 423, 346 S.E.2d 237 (1986).

Even if property division was made on the basis of 1983 values, rather than values in 1972, when the parties separated, that division would merely reflect the 50% of the marital property that plaintiff wife was entitled to at separation plus 50% of any appreciation after separation, which would be her separate property, where defendant administrator did not show that the property's appreciation was due to deceased husband's contributions, monetary or otherwise. The plaintiff thus would receive the same amount of property regardless of whether the marital property was considered at its 1972 value or its 1983 value. Swindell v. Lewis, 82 N.C. App. 423, 346 S.E.2d 237 (1986).

Where plaintiff and defendant were divorced on the ground of one year separation, defendant's vested military pension and retirement benefits would be valued as of the date of separation. Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Trial court is required to consider only evidence of the value of the marital property as of the date of separation, thus rendering evidence of post-separation occurrences incompetent for the purpose of valuing marital property. Consequently, a trial court is under a duty to exclude such incompetent evidence from its consideration, and its failure to do so is reviewable by the appellate court even in the absence of an objection to the evidence at trial. Christensen v. Christensen, 101 N.C. App. 47, 398 S.E.2d 634 (1990).

Where parties are divorced on the ground of one year's separation, the district court must value husband's military pension, as marital property, as of the date of separation. Lewis v. Lewis, 83 N.C. App. 438, 350 S.E.2d 587 (1986).

The spouse not receiving the distribution of the marital debt who makes some payment on the marital debt after the date of separation and before the equitable distribution trial is entitled to either (1) a reimbursement from the other spouse for the amount of the payment, (2) a credit to his share of the equitable distribution award in an amount equal to the payment, or (3) an upward adjustment in his percentage of the distribution of the marital properties. Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995).

Payment on Debt Before Distribution. — Where the marital debt which was distributed to plaintiff and valued at $9,000 on the date of separation had a value of zero on the date of distribution, because it had been fully paid by the defendant, failure of the trial court to consider this fact as a distributional factor in making its distribution was reversible error. Loving v. Loving, 118 N.C. App. 501, 455 S.E.2d 885 (1995).

Valuation of Pension and Retirement Benefits. — For case discussing the relative advantages and disadvantages of the present discounted value method and the deferred distribution method in evaluating and distributing pension and retirement benefits, see Seifert v. Seifert, 82 N.C. App. 329, 346 S.E.2d 504 (1986), aff'd, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987).

Where an expert at trial testified that the "before tax" value of the pension plans was $157,242.81 as of the date of separation, the trial court erred in concluding that the net present value of the pensions as of the date of separation was $93,084.60. Wilkins v. Wilkins, 111 N.C. App. 541, 432 S.E.2d 891 (1993).

The subjective opinions of the owner of property as to its value are admissible and competent. Patterson v. Patterson, 81 N.C. App. 255, 343 S.E.2d 595 (1986).

Treatment of Entireties Property. — Under subsection (a) of this section, which prior to the rewriting of this section in 1987 stated that "equitable distribution of property shall follow a decree of absolute divorce", the estate of a tenancy in common of necessity intervened between absolute divorce and an award of title pursuant to equitable distribution when property was held by the entireties, whether or not the divorce and the equitable distribution occurred in a single proceeding. Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright, 74 N.C. App. 550, 328 S.E.2d 840, appeal withdrawn, 318 N.C. 505, 353 S.E.2d 225 (1985).

Deed of Trust Executed Without Wife's Consent Attached to Husband's Interest. — When defendants were divorced the tenancy by the entirety in which their marital home was held became a tenancy in common, and the lien of deed of trust executed by husband without wife's consent attached to defendant husband's one-half undivided interest in the property. Thus when the marital home was distributed pursuant to § 50-20 defendant wife took title in fee simple absolute subject to plaintiff bank's deed of trust on defendant husband's one-half undivided interest. Branch Banking & Trust Co. v. Wright, 74 N.C. App. 550, 328 S.E.2d 840, appeal withdrawn, 318 N.C. 505, 353 S.E.2d 225 (1985).

Effect of Findings. — The trial court's findings concerning valuation, as are all factual findings in an equitable distribution order, are binding on appellate courts when supported by competent evidence. Patton v. Patton, 78 N.C. App. 247, 337 S.E.2d 607 (1985), rev'd in part on other grounds, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986).

Refusal to Consider Evidence of Husband's Conversion of Property after Separation Was Error. — The trial court erred in refusing to consider evidence concerning the husband's conversion of property (i.e., shares of stock) after the parties' separation. The ruling was error regardless of whether the property was originally obtained with marital or separate funds. Mauser v. Mauser, 75 N.C. App. 115, 330 S.E.2d 63 (1985).

Application of Equitable Distribution Held Not Retroactive When Pension Benefits Had Accrued Prior to Adoption. — Although the defendant's right to his pension benefits had accrued fully prior to the adoption of the Equitable Distribution Act and the August 1, 1983 amendment to § 50-20 subjecting his pension to equitable distribution, the act and amendment did not affect his property interests until the plaintiff's claim for equitable distribution was filed on May 14, 1984, well after both the act and the amendment became effective. This was not a retroactive application of the act or of the amendment. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 322 N.C. 396, 368 S.E.2d 595 (1988).

Sanctions for Willful Obstruction and Unreasonable Delay. — Whether to impose sanctions and which sanctions to impose under this section are decisions vested in the trial court and reviewable on appeal for abuse of discretion, and in applying this standard the appellate court will uphold a trial court's order of sanctions unless it is manifestly unsupported by reason. Crutchfield v. Crutchfield, 132 N.C. App. 193, 511 S.E.2d 31 (1999).

Evidence that the wife willfully obstructed or attempted to obstruct or unreasonably delay discovery proceedings and equitable distribution proceedings, which caused prejudice to the husband, supported the imposition of sanctions requiring the wife to pay $1,500 of the husband's attorney fees. Crutchfield v. Crutchfield, 132 N.C. App. 193, 511 S.E.2d 31 (1999).

Applied in Crumbley v. Crumbley, 70 N.C. App. 143, 318 S.E.2d 525 (1984); Lofton v. Lofton, 71 N.C. App. 635, 322 S.E.2d 654 (1984); Weaver v. Weaver, 72 N.C. App. 409, 324 S.E.2d 915 (1985); Dusenberry v. Dusenberry, 73 N.C. App. 177, 326 S.E.2d 65 (1985); Seifert v. Seifert, 319 N.C. 367, 354 S.E.2d 506 (1987); Hunt v. Hunt, 112 N.C. App. 722, 436 S.E.2d 856 (1993).

Quoted in Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Stated in Alexander v. Alexander, 68 N.C.

App. 548, 315 S.E.2d 772 (1984); Poore v. Poore, 75 N.C. App. 414, 331 S.E.2d 266 (1985); Dewey v. Dewey, 77 N.C. App. 787, 336 S.E.2d 451 (1985).

Cited in Smith v. Smith, 71 N.C. App. 242, 322 S.E.2d 393 (1984); Camp v. Camp, 75 N.C. App. 498, 331 S.E.2d 163 (1985); Gebb v. Gebb, 77 N.C. App. 309, 335 S.E.2d 221 (1985); In re Cooper, 81 N.C. App. 27, 344 S.E.2d 27 (1986); Patton v. Patton, 318 N.C. 404, 348 S.E.2d 593 (1986); North Carolina Baptist Hosps. v. Harris, 319 N.C. 347, 354 S.E.2d 471 (1987); Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 109, 356 S.E.2d 405 (1987); Byrd v. Owens, 86 N.C. App. 418, 358 S.E.2d 102 (1987); Caldwell v. Caldwell, 93 N.C. App. 740, 379 S.E.2d 271 (1989); Trogdon v. Trogdon, 97 N.C. App. 330, 388 S.E.2d 212 (1990); Carter v. Carter, 102 N.C. App. 440, 402 S.E.2d 469 (1991); State v. Morris, 103 N.C. App. 246, 405 S.E.2d 351 (1991); Forsyth Mem. Hosp. v. Chisholm, 342 N.C. 616, 467 S.E.2d 88 (1996); Atkinson v. Atkinson, 132 N.C. App. 82, 510 S.E.2d 178 (1999); Khajanchi v. Khajanchi, 140 N.C. App. 552, 537 S.E.2d 845 (2000).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Statutory Requirement. — The requirement that an equitable distribution of property must follow a decree of absolute divorce is statutory and not constitutional. See opinion of Attorney General to The Honorable Henson P. Barnes, North Carolina Senate, 57 N.C.A.G. 30 (1987). And see now subsection (a) of this section.

§ 50-22. Action on behalf of an incompetent.

A general guardian for an incompetent spouse may commence, defend or maintain any action authorized by this Chapter; however, the court shall not enter a decree of absolute divorce in such an action filed by the guardian on behalf of the incompetent spouse. As an exception to G.S. 50-21, the court may order equitable distribution on behalf of an incompetent spouse without entering a decree of divorce after the parties have lived separate and apart for a period of one year. Provided, however, that the competent spouse may seek and obtain a divorce from the incompetent spouse upon showing basis for the same. (1991, c. 610, s. 1.)

§§ 50-23 through 50-29: Reserved for future codification purposes.

Article 2.

Expedited Process for Child Support Cases.

§ 50-30. Findings; policy; and purpose.

(a) Findings. — The General Assembly makes the following findings:

(1) There is a strong public interest in providing fair, efficient, and swift judicial processes for establishing and enforcing child support obligations. Children are entitled to support from their parents, and court assistance is often required for the establishment and enforcement of parental support obligations. Children who do not receive support from their parents often become financially dependent on the State.

(2) The State shall have laws that meet the federal requirements on expedited processes for obtaining and enforcing child support orders for purposes of federal reimbursement under Title IV-D of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 66(a)(2). The Secretary of the United States Department of Health and Human Services may waive the expedited process requirement with respect to one or more district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 on the basis of the effectiveness and timeliness of support order issuance and enforcement within the district.

(3) The State has a strong financial interest in complying with the expedited process requirement, and other requirements, of Title IV-D of the Social Security Act, but the State would incur substantial expense in creating statewide an expedited child support process as defined by federal law.

(4) The State's judicial system is largely capable of processing child support cases in a timely and efficient manner and has a strong commitment to an expeditious system.

(5) The substantial expense the State would incur in creating a new system for obtaining and enforcing child support orders would be reduced and better spent by improving the present system.

(b) Purpose and Policy. — It is the policy of this State to ensure, to the maximum extent possible, that child support obligations are established and enforced fairly, efficiently, and swiftly through the judicial system by means that make the best use of the State's resources. It is the purpose of this Article to facilitate this policy. The Administrative Office of the Courts and judicial officials in each district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 shall make a diligent effort to ensure that child support cases, from the time of filing to the time of disposition, are handled fairly, efficiently, and swiftly. The Administrative Office of the Courts and the State Department of Health and Human Services shall work together to improve procedures for the handling of child support cases in which the State or county has an interest, including all cases that qualify in any respect for federal reimbursement under Title IV-D of the Social Security Act. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1037, s. 86; 1997-443, s. 11A.18.)

Legal Periodicals. — For note, "Legislating Responsibility: North Carolina's New Child Support Enforcement Acts," see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1354 (1987).

§ 50-31. Definitions.

As used in this Article, unless the context clearly requires otherwise:

(1) "Child support case" means the part of any civil or criminal action or proceeding, whether intrastate or interstate, that involves a claim for the establishment or enforcement of a child support obligation.

(2) "Dispose" or "disposition" of a child support case means the entry of an order in a child support case that:
   a. Dismisses the claim for establishment or enforcement of the child support obligation; or
   b. Establishes a child support obligation, either temporary or permanent, and directs how that obligation is to be satisfied; or
   c. Orders a particular child support enforcement remedy.

(3) "Expedited process" means a procedure for having child support orders established and enforced by a magistrate or clerk who has been designated as a child support hearing officer pursuant to this Article.

(4) "Federal expedited process requirement" means the provision in Title IV, Part D of the Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 666(a)(2), that requires as a condition of the receipt of federal funds that a state have laws that require the use of federally defined expedited processes for obtaining and enforcing child support orders.

(5) "Filing" means the date the defendant is served with a pleading that seeks establishment or enforcement of a child support obligation, or the date written notice or a pleading is sent to a party seeking establishment or enforcement of a child support obligation.

(6) "Hearing officer" or "child support hearing officer" means a clerk or assistant clerk of superior court or a magistrate who has been designated pursuant to this Article to hear and enter orders in child support cases.

(7) "Initiating party" means the party, the attorney for a party, a child support enforcement agency established pursuant to Title IV, Part D of the Social Security Act, or the clerk of superior court who initiates an action, proceeding, or procedure as allowed or required by law for the establishment or enforcement of a child support obligation. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1; 1987, c. 346.)

§ 50-32. Disposition of cases within 60 days; extension.

Except where paternity is at issue, in all child support cases the district court judge shall dispose of the case from filing to disposition within 60 days, except that this period may be extended for a maximum of 30 days by order of the court if:

(1) Either party or his attorney cannot be present for the hearing; or

(2) The parties have consented to an extension. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Hearing Scheduled on Regular Domestic Calendar Instead of Expedited Calendar. — In an action for modification of child custody order seeking child support, where the trial judge scheduled a hearing on the regular domestic calendar instead of the expedited calendar for domestic court cases, the defendant was not prejudiced by the court's placement of this case as the case was continued within the 60 day requirement of this section. Payne v. Payne, 91 N.C. App. 71, 370 S.E.2d 428 (1988).

§ 50-33. Waiver of expedited process requirement.

(a) State to Seek Waiver. — The State Department of Health and Human Services, with the assistance of the Administrative Office of the Courts, shall vigorously pursue application to the United States Department of Health and Human Services for waivers of the federal expedited process requirement.

(b) Districts That Do Not Qualify. — In any district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 that does not qualify for a waiver of the federal expedited process requirement, an expedited process shall be established as provided in G.S. 50-34. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1037, s. 87; 1997-443, s. 11A.19.)

§ 50-34. Establishment of an expedited process.

(a) Districts Required to Have Expedited Process. — In any district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 that is required by G.S. 50-33(b) to establish an expedited child support process, the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts shall notify the chief district court judge and the clerk or clerks of superior court in the district in writing of the requirement. The Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, the chief district court judge, and the clerk or clerks of superior court in the district shall implement an expedited child support process as provided in this section.

(b) Procedure for Establishing Expedited Process. — When a district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 is required to implement an expedited process, the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts, the chief district judge, and the clerk of superior court in an affected county shall determine by agreement whether the child support hearing officer or officers for that county shall be one or more clerks or one or more magistrates. If such agreement has not been reached within 15 days after the notice required by subsection (a) when implementation is required, the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts shall make the decision. If it is decided that the hearing officer or officers for a county shall be magistrates, the chief district judge, the clerk of superior court, and the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts shall ensure his or their qualification for the position. If it is decided that the hearing officer or officers for a county shall be the clerk or assistant clerks, the clerk of superior court in the county shall designate the person or persons to serve as hearing officer, and the chief district judge, the clerk of superior court, and the Director of the Administrative Office of the Courts shall ensure his or their qualification for the position.

(c) Public To Be Informed. — When an expedited process is to be implemented in a county or district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133, the chief district court judge, the clerk or clerks of superior court in affected counties in the district, and the Administrative Office of the Courts shall take steps to ensure that attorneys, the general public, and parties to pending child support cases in the county or district are informed of the change in procedures and helped to understand and use the new system effectively. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1037, s. 88.)

§ 50-35. Authority and duties of a child support hearing officer.

A child support hearing officer who is properly qualified and designated under this Article has the following authority and responsibilities in all child support cases:

(1) To conduct hearings and to ensure that the parties' due process rights are protected;
(2) To take testimony and establish a record;
(3) To evaluate evidence and make decisions regarding the establishment or enforcement of child support orders;
(4) To accept and approve voluntary acknowledgements of support liability and stipulated agreements setting the amount of support obligations;
(5) To accept and approve voluntary acknowledgements and affirmations of paternity;
(6) Except as otherwise provided in this Article, to enter child support orders that have the same force and effect as orders entered by a district court judge;
(7) To enter temporary child support orders pending the resolution of unusual or complicated issues by a district court judge;
(8) To enter default orders; and
(9) To subpoena witnesses and documents. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1.)

§ 50-36. Child support procedures in districts with expedited process.

(a) Scheduling of Cases. — The procedures of this section shall apply to all child support cases in any district court district as defined in G.S. 7A-133 or county in which an expedited process has been established. All claims for the establishment or enforcement of a child support obligation, whether the claim is made in a separate action or as part of a divorce or any other action, shall be scheduled for hearing before the child support hearing officer. The initiating party shall send a notice of the date, time, and place of the hearing to all other parties. Service of process shall be made and notices given as provided by G.S. 1A-1, Rules of Civil Procedure.

(b) Place of Hearing. — The hearing before the child support hearing officer need not take place in a courtroom, but shall be conducted in an appropriate judicial setting.

(c) Hearing Procedures. — The hearing of a case before a child support officer is without a jury. The rules of evidence applicable in the trial of civil actions generally are observed; however, the hearing officer may require the parties to produce and may consider financial affidavits, State and federal tax returns, and other financial or employment records. Except as otherwise provided in this Article, the hearing officer shall determine the parties' child support rights and obligations and enter an appropriate order based on the evidence and the child support laws of the State. All parties shall be provided with a copy of the order.

(d) Record of Proceeding. — The record of a proceeding before a child support hearing officer shall consist of the pleadings filed in the child support case, documentation of proper service or notice or waiver, and a copy of the hearing officer's order. No verbatim recording or transcript shall be required or provided at State expense.

(e) Transfer to District Court Judge. — Upon his own motion or upon motion of any party, the hearing officer shall transfer a case for hearing before a district court judge when the case involves:

(1) A contested paternity action;
(2) A custody dispute;
(3) Contested visitation rights;
(4) The ownership, possession, or transfer of an interest in property to satisfy a child support obligation; or
(5) Other complex issues.

Upon ordering such a transfer, except in cases of contested paternity, the hearing officer shall also enter a temporary order that provides for the payment of a money amount or otherwise addresses the child's need for support pending the resolution of the case by the district court judge. The chief district court judge shall establish a procedure for such transferred cases to be given priority for hearing before a district court judge. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 1037, s. 89.)

CASE NOTES

Hearing Scheduled on Regular Calendar Instead of Expedited Calendar. — In an action for modification of child custody order seeking child support, where the trial judge scheduled a hearing on the regular domestic calendar instead of the expedited calendar for domestic court cases, the defendant was not prejudiced by the court's placement of this case as the case was continued within the 60 day requirement of this section. Payne v. Payne, 91 N.C. App. 71, 370 S.E.2d 428 (1988).

§ 50-37. Enforcement authority of child support hearing officer; contempt.

When a child support case is before a child support hearing officer for enforcement of a child support order, the hearing officer has the same authority that a district court judge would have, except in cases of contempt. Orders that commit a party to jail for civil or criminal contempt for the nonpayment of child support, or for otherwise failing to comply with a child support order, may be entered only by a district court judge. When it appears to a hearing officer that there is probable cause for finding such contempt in a case before the child support hearing officer and that no other enforcement remedy would be effective or sufficient, the hearing officer shall enter an order finding probable cause and referring the case for hearing before a district court judge. The order may indicate the amount of payment the responsible parent may make, or other action he may take, or both, to comply with the child support order. If proof of compliance is made to the hearing officer within a time specified in the order, the hearing officer may cancel the referral of the contempt case to district court. Except as specifically limited by this section, a clerk or magistrate acting as a child support hearing officer retains all of the contempt powers he or she otherwise has by virtue of being a clerk or magistrate. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1.)

§ 50-38. Appeal from orders of the child support hearing officer.

(a) Appeal; Hearing De Novo. — Any party may appeal an order of a child support hearing officer for a hearing de novo before a district court judge by giving notice of appeal at the hearing or in writing within 10 days after entry of judgment. Upon appeal noted, the clerk of superior court shall place the case on the civil issue docket of the district court. The chief district court judge shall establish a procedure for such transferred cases to be given priority for hearing before a district court judge. Unless appealed from, the order of the hearing officer is final.

(b) Order Not Stayed Pending Appeal. — Appeal from an order of a child support hearing officer does not stay the execution or enforcement of the order unless, on application of the appellant, a district court judge orders such a stay. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1.)

§ 50-39. Qualifications of child support hearing officer.

(a) Qualifications. — A clerk or assistant clerk of superior court or a magistrate, to be designated and serve as a child support hearing officer, shall satisfy each of the following qualifications:

(1) Be at least 21 years of age and not older than 70 years of age, and have a high school degree or its equivalent.
(2) Be qualified by training and temperament to be effective in relating to parties in child support cases and in conducting hearings fairly and efficiently.
(3) Be certified by the Administrative Office of the Courts as having completed the training required by subsection (b).
(4) Establish that he has one of the following qualifications;
    a. Election or appointment as the clerk of superior court; or
    b. Three years experience as an assistant clerk of superior court working in child support or related matters; or
    c. Six years experience as an assistant clerk of superior court; or
    d. Four years experience as a magistrate whose duties have included, in substantial part, the disposition of civil matters; or
    e. Pursuant to G.S. 7A-171.1, five to seven years eligibility for pay as a magistrate; or
    f. Three years experience working in the field of child support enforcement or a related field.

(b) Training Required. — Before a clerk or assistant clerk or a magistrate may conduct hearings as a child support hearing officer he must satisfactorily complete a course of instruction in the conduct of such hearings established by the Administrative Office of the Courts. The Administrative Office of the Courts shall establish a course in the conduct of such hearings. The Administrative Office of the Courts may contract with qualified educational organizations to conduct the course of instruction and must reimburse the clerks or magistrates attending for travel and subsistence incurred in taking such training. (1985 (Reg. Sess., 1986), c. 993, s. 1.)

§ 50-40: Reserved for future codification purposes.

Article 3.

Family Law Arbitration Act.

§ 50-41. Purpose; short title.

(a) It is the policy of this State to allow, by agreement of all parties, the arbitration of all issues arising from a marital separation or divorce, except for the divorce itself, while preserving a right of modification based on substantial change of circumstances related to alimony, child custody, and child support. Pursuant to this policy, the purpose of this Article is to provide for arbitration as an efficient and speedy means of resolving these disputes, consistent with Chapters 50, 50A, 50B, 51, 52, 52B, and 52C of the General Statutes and similar legislation, to provide default rules for the conduct of arbitration proceedings, and to assure access to the courts of this State for proceedings ancillary to this arbitration.

(b) This Article may be cited as the North Carolina Family Law Arbitration Act. (1999-185, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For legislative survey on family and juvenile law, see 22 Campbell L. Rev. 253 (2000).

§ 50-42. Arbitration agreements made valid, irrevocable, and enforceable.

(a) During, or after marriage, parties may agree in writing to submit to arbitration any controversy, except for the divorce itself, arising out of the marital relationship. Before marriage, parties may agree in writing to submit to arbitration any controversy, except for child support, child custody, or the divorce itself, arising out of the marital relationship. This agreement is valid, enforceable, and irrevocable except with both parties' consent, without regard to the justiciable character of the controversy and without regard to whether litigation is pending as to the controversy.

(b) This Article does not apply to an agreement to arbitrate in which a provision stipulates that this Article does not apply or to any arbitration or award under an agreement in which a provision stipulates that this Article does not apply. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-43. Proceedings to compel or stay arbitration.

(a) On a party's application showing an agreement under G.S. 50-42 and an opposing party's refusal to arbitrate, the court shall order the parties to proceed with the arbitration. If an opposing party denies existence of an agreement to arbitrate, the court shall proceed summarily to determine whether a valid agreement exists and shall order arbitration if it finds for the moving party; otherwise, the application shall be denied.

(b) Upon the application of a party, the court may stay an arbitration proceeding commenced or threatened on a showing that there is no agreement to arbitrate. This issue, when in substantial and bona fide dispute, shall be immediately and summarily tried and the court shall order a stay if it finds for the moving party. If the court finds for the opposing party, the court shall order the parties to go to arbitration.

(c) If an issue referable to arbitration under an alleged agreement is involved in an action or proceeding pending in a court of competent jurisdiction, the application shall be made in that court. Otherwise, the application may be made in any court of competent jurisdiction.

(d) The court shall order a stay in any action or proceeding involving an issue subject to arbitration if an order or an application for arbitration has been made under this section. If the issue is severable, the stay may be with respect to that specific issue only. When the application is made in an action or proceeding, the order compelling arbitration shall include a stay of the court action or proceeding.

(e) An order for arbitration shall not be refused and a stay of arbitration shall not be granted on the ground that the claim in issue lacks merit or because grounds for the claim have not been shown. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-44. Interim relief and interim measures.

(a) In the case of an arbitration where arbitrators have not yet been appointed, or where the arbitrators are unavailable, a party may seek interim relief directly from a court as provided in subsection (c) of this section. Enforcement shall be granted as provided by the law applicable to the type of interim relief sought.

(b) In all other cases a party shall seek interim measures as described in subsection (d) of this section from the arbitrators. A party has no right to seek interim relief from a court, except that a party to an arbitration governed by this Article may request from the court enforcement of the arbitrators' order granting interim measures and review or modification of any interim measures governing child support or child custody.

(c) In connection with an agreement to arbitrate or a pending arbitration, the court may grant under subsection (a) of this section any of the following:

(1) An order of attachment or garnishment;
(2) A temporary restraining order or preliminary injunction;
(3) An order for claim and delivery;
(4) Appointment of a receiver;
(5) Delivery of money or other property into court;
(6) Notice of lis pendens;
(7) Any relief permitted by G.S. 7B-502, 7B-1902, 50-13.5(d), 50-16.2A, 50-20(h), 50-20(i), or 50-20(i1); or Chapter 50A, Chapter 50B, or Chapter 52C of the General Statutes;
(8) Any relief permitted by federal law or treaties to which the United States is a party; or
(9) Any other order necessary to ensure preservation or availability of assets or documents, the destruction or absence of which would likely prejudice the conduct or effectiveness of the arbitration.

(d) The arbitrators may, at a party's request, order any party to take any interim measures of protection that the arbitrators consider necessary in respect to the subject matter of the dispute, including interim measures analogous to interim relief specified in subsection (c) of this section. The arbitrators may require any party to provide appropriate security, including security for costs as provided in G.S. 50-51, in connection with interim measures.

(e) In considering a request for interim relief or enforcement of interim relief, any finding of fact of the arbitrators in the proceeding shall be binding on the court, including any finding regarding the probable validity of the claim that is the subject of the interim relief sought or granted, except that the court may review any findings of fact or modify any interim measures governing child support or child custody.

(f) Where the arbitrators have not ruled on an objection to their jurisdiction, the findings of the arbitrators shall not be binding on the court until the court has made an independent finding as to the arbitrators' jurisdiction. If the court rules that the arbitrators do not have jurisdiction, the application for interim relief shall be denied.

(g) Availability of interim relief or interim measures under this section may be limited by the parties' prior written agreement, except for relief pursuant to G.S. 7B-502, 7B-1902, 50-13.5(d), 50-20(h), 50B-3, Chapter 52C of the General Statutes; federal law; or treaties to which the United States is a party, whose purpose is to provide immediate, emergency relief or protection.

(h) Arbitrators who have cause to suspect that any child is abused or neglected shall report the case of that child to the director of the department of social services of the county where the child resides or, if the child resides out-of-state, of the county where the arbitration is conducted.

(i) A party seeking interim measures, or any other proceeding before the arbitrators, shall proceed in accordance with the agreement to arbitrate. If the agreement to arbitrate does not provide for a method of seeking interim measures, or for other proceedings before the arbitrators, the party shall request interim measures or a hearing by notifying the arbitrators and all other parties of the request. The arbitrators shall notify the parties of the date, time, and place of the hearing. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-45. Appointment of arbitrators; rules for conducting the arbitration.

(a) Unless the parties agree otherwise, a single arbitrator shall be chosen by the parties to arbitrate all matters in dispute.

(b) If the arbitration agreement provides a method of appointment of arbitrators, this method shall be followed. The agreement may provide for appointing one or more arbitrators. Upon the application of a party, the court shall appoint arbitrators in any of the following situations:

(1) The method agreed upon by the parties in the arbitration agreement fails or for any reason cannot be followed.

(2) An arbitrator who has already been appointed fails or is unable to act, and a successor has not been chosen by the parties.

(3) The parties cannot agree on an arbitrator.

(c) Arbitrators appointed by the court have all the powers of those arbitrators specifically named in the agreement. In appointing arbitrators, a court shall consult with prospective arbitrators as to their availability and shall refer to each of the following:

(1) The positions and desires of the parties.

(2) The issues in dispute.

(3) The skill, substantive training, and experience of prospective arbitrators in those issues, including their skill, substantive training, and experience in family law issues.

(4) The availability of prospective arbitrators.

(d) The parties may agree to employ an established arbitration institution to conduct the arbitration. If the agreement does not provide a method for appointment of arbitrators and the parties cannot agree on an arbitrator, the court may appoint an established arbitration institution the court considers qualified in family law arbitration to conduct the arbitration.

(e) The parties may agree on rules for conducting the arbitration. If the parties cannot agree on rules for conducting the arbitration, the arbitrators shall select the rules for conducting the arbitration after hearing all parties and taking particular reference to model rules developed by arbitration institutions or similar sources. If the arbitrators cannot decide on rules for conducting the arbitration, upon application by a party, the court may order use of rules for conducting the arbitration, taking particular reference to model rules developed by arbitration institutions or similar sources.

(f) Arbitrators and established arbitration institutions, whether chosen by the parties or appointed by the court, have the same immunity as judges from civil liability for their conduct in the arbitration.

(g) "Arbitration institution" means any neutral, independent organization, association, agency, board, or commission that initiates, sponsors, or administers arbitration proceedings, including involvement in appointment of arbitrators.

(h) The court may award costs, as provided in G.S. 50-51(f), in connection with applications and other proceedings under this section. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-46. Majority action by arbitrators.

The arbitrators' powers shall be exercised by a majority unless otherwise provided by the arbitration agreement or this Article. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-47. Hearing.

Unless otherwise provided by the agreement:

(1) The arbitrators shall appoint a time and place for the hearing and notify the parties or their counsel by personal service or by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, not less than five days before the hearing. Appearance at the hearing waives any claim of deficiency of notice. The arbitrators may adjourn the hearing from time to time as necessary and, on request of a party and for good cause shown, or upon their own motion, may postpone the hearing to a time not later than the date fixed by the agreement for making the award unless the parties consent to a later date. The arbitrators may hear and determine the controversy upon the evidence produced notwithstanding the failure of a party duly notified to appear. Upon application of a party, the court may direct the arbitrators to proceed promptly with the hearing and determination of the controversy.

(2) The parties are entitled to be heard, to present evidence material to the controversy, and to cross-examine witnesses appearing at the hearing.

(3) All the arbitrators shall conduct the hearing, but a majority may determine any question and may render a final award. If, during the course of the hearing, an arbitrator for any reason ceases to act, the remaining arbitrators appointed to act as neutrals may continue with the hearing and determination of the controversy.

(4) Upon request of any party or at the election of any arbitrator, the arbitrators shall cause to be made a record of testimony and evidence introduced at the hearing. The arbitrators shall decide how the cost of the record will be apportioned. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-48. Representation by attorney.

A party has the right to be represented by counsel at any proceeding or hearing under this Article. A waiver of representation prior to a proceeding or hearing is ineffective. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-49. Witnesses; subpoenas; depositions; court assistance.

(a) The arbitrators have the power to administer oaths and may issue subpoenas for attendance of witnesses and for production of books, records, documents, and other evidence. Subpoenas issued by the arbitrators shall be served and, upon application to the court by a party or the arbitrators, enforced in the manner provided by law for service and enforcement of subpoenas in a civil action.

(b) On the application of a party and for use as evidence, the arbitrators may permit depositions to be taken in the manner and upon the terms the arbitrators designate.

(c) All provisions of law compelling a person under subpoena to testify apply.

(d) The arbitrators or a party with the approval of the arbitrators may request assistance from the court in obtaining discovery and taking evidence, in which event the Rules of Civil Procedure under Chapter 1A of the General Statutes and Chapters 50, 50A, 52B, and 52C of the General Statutes apply. The court may execute the request within its competence and according to its rules on discovery and evidence and may impose sanctions for failure to comply with its orders.

(e) A subpoena may be issued as provided by G.S. 8-59, in which case the witness compensation provisions of G.S. 6-51, 6-53, and 7A-314 shall apply. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-50. Consolidation.

(a) If parties to two or more arbitration agreements agree, in their respective arbitration agreements or otherwise, to consolidate arbitrations arising out of those agreements, they may agree upon common arbitrators to hear all arbitrations, and these arbitrations shall proceed as consolidated.

(b) If parties to two or more arbitration agreements agree, in their respective arbitration agreements or otherwise, to consolidate arbitrations arising out of those agreements, the court, upon application by a party, may do any of the following:

(1) Order the arbitrations consolidated on terms the court considers just and necessary;

(2) If all parties cannot agree on arbitrators for the consolidated arbitration, appoint arbitrators as provided by G.S. 50-45; and

(3) If all parties cannot agree on any other matter necessary to conduct the consolidated arbitration, make other orders it considers necessary. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-51. Award; costs.

(a) The award shall be in writing, dated and signed by the arbitrators joining in the award, with a statement of the place where the award was made. Where there is more than one arbitrator, the signatures of a majority of the arbitrators suffice, but the reason for any omitted signature shall be stated. The arbitrators shall deliver a copy of the award to each party personally or by registered or certified mail, return receipt requested, or as provided in the agreement. Time of delivery shall be computed from the date of personal delivery or date of mailing.

(b) Unless the parties agree otherwise, the award shall state the reasons upon which it is based.

(c) Unless the parties agree otherwise, the arbitrators may award interest as provided by law.

(d) The arbitrators in their discretion may award specific performance to a party requesting an award of specific performance when that would be an appropriate remedy.

(e) Unless the parties agree otherwise, the arbitrators may not award punitive damages. If arbitrators award punitive damages, they shall state the award in a record and shall specify facts justifying the award and the amount of the award attributable to punitive damages.

(f) Costs:

(1) Unless the parties otherwise agree, awarding of costs of an arbitration shall be in the arbitrators' discretion.

(2) In making an award of costs, the arbitrators may include any or all of the following as costs:

a. Fees and expenses of the arbitrators, expert witnesses, and translators;

b. Fees and expenses of counsel and of an institution supervising the arbitration, if any;

c. Any other expenses incurred in connection with the arbitration proceedings;

d. Sanctions awarded by the arbitrators or the court, including those provided by N.C.R. Civ. P. 11 and 37; and

e. Costs allowed by Chapters 6 and 7A of the General Statutes.

(3) In making an award of costs, the arbitrators shall specify each of the following:

a. The party entitled to costs;

b. The party who shall pay costs;

c. The amount of costs or method of determining that amount; and

d. The manner in which costs shall be paid.

(g) An award shall be made within the time fixed by the agreement. If no time is fixed by the agreement, the award shall be made within the time the court orders on a party's application. The parties may extend the time in writing either before or after the expiration of this time. A party waives objection that an award was not made within the time required unless that party notifies the arbitrators of his or her objection prior to delivery of the award to that party. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-52. Change of award by arbitrators.

On a party's application to the arbitrators or, if an application to the court is pending under G.S. 50-53 through G.S. 50-56, on submission to the arbitrators by the court under the conditions ordered by the court, the arbitrators may modify or correct the award upon grounds stated in subdivisions (1) and (3) of subsection (a) of G.S. 50-55, or clarify the award. The application shall be made within 20 days after delivery of the award to the opposing party, stating that the opposing party must serve objections to the application, if any, within 10 days from notice. An award modified or corrected under this section is subject to the provisions of G.S. 50-53 through G.S. 50-56. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-53. Confirmation of award.

Upon a party's application, the court shall confirm an award, unless within time limits imposed under G.S. 50-54 through G.S. 50-56 grounds are urged for vacating or modifying or correcting the award, in which case the court shall proceed as provided in G.S. 50-54 through G.S. 50-56. The court may award costs, as provided in G.S. 50-51(f), of the application and subsequent proceedings. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-54. Vacating an award.

(a) Upon a party's application, the court shall vacate an award for any of the following reasons:

(1) The award was procured by corruption, fraud, or other undue means;

(2) There was evident partiality by an arbitrator appointed as a neutral, corruption of an arbitrator, or misconduct prejudicing the rights of a party;

(3) The arbitrators exceeded their powers;

(4) The arbitrators refused to postpone the hearing upon a showing of sufficient cause for the postponement, refused to hear evidence material to the controversy, or otherwise conducted the hearing contrary to the provisions of G.S. 50-47;

(5) There was no arbitration agreement, the issue was not adversely determined in proceedings under G.S. 50-43, and the party did not participate in the arbitration hearing without raising the objection. The fact that the relief awarded either could not or would not be granted by a court is not a ground for vacating or refusing to confirm the award;

(6) The court determines that the award for child support or child custody is not in the best interest of the child. The burden of proof at a hearing under this subdivision is on the party seeking to vacate the arbitrator's award;

(7) The award included punitive damages, and the court determines that the award for punitive damages is clearly erroneous; or

(8) If the parties contract in an arbitration agreement for judicial review of errors of law in the award, the court shall vacate the award if the arbitrators have committed an error of law prejudicing a party's rights.

(b) An application under this section shall be made within 90 days after delivery of a copy of the award to the applicant. If the application is predicated on corruption, fraud, or other undue means, it shall be made within 90 days after these grounds are known or should have been known.

(c) In vacating an award on grounds other than stated in subdivision (5) of subsection (a) of this section, the court may order a rehearing before arbitrators chosen as provided in the agreement, or in the absence of a provision regarding the appointment of arbitrators, by the court in accordance with G.S. 50-45, except in the case of a vacated award for child support or child custody in which case the court may proceed to hear and determine all such issues. The time within which the agreement requires an award to be made applies to the rehearing and commences from the date of the order.

(d) If an application to vacate is denied and no motion to modify or correct the award is pending, the court shall confirm the award and may award costs, as provided in G.S. 50-51(f), of the application and subsequent proceedings. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-55. Modification or correction of award.

(a) Upon application made within 90 days after delivery of a copy of an award to an applicant, the court shall modify or correct the award where at least one of the following occurs:

(1) There is an evident miscalculation of figures or an evident mistake in the description of a person, thing, or property referred to in the award;

(2) The arbitrators have awarded upon a matter not submitted to them, and the award may be corrected without affecting the merits of the decision upon the issues submitted; or

(3) The award is imperfect in a matter of form, not affecting the merits of the controversy.

(b) If the application is granted, the court shall modify or correct the award to effect its intent and shall confirm the award as modified or corrected. Otherwise, the court shall confirm the award as made.

(c) An application to modify or correct an award may be joined in the alternative with an application to vacate the award.

(d) The court may award costs, as provided in G.S. 50-51(f), of the application and subsequent proceedings. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-56. Modification of award for alimony, postseparation support, child support, or child custody based on substantial change of circumstances.

(a) A court or the arbitrators may modify an award for postseparation support, alimony, child support, or child custody under conditions stated in G.S. 50-13.7 and G.S. 50-16.9 in accordance with procedures stated in subsections (b) through (f) of this section.

(b) Unless the parties have agreed that an award for postseparation support or alimony shall be nonmodifiable, an award by arbitrators for postseparation support or alimony under G.S. 50-16.2A, 50-16.3A, 50-16.4, or 50-16.7 may be modified if a court order for alimony or postseparation support could be modified pursuant to G.S. 50-16.9.

(c) An award by arbitrators for child support or child custody may be modified if a court order for child support or child custody could be modified pursuant to G.S. 50-13.7.

(d) If an award for modifiable postseparation support or alimony, or an award for child support or child custody, has not been confirmed pursuant to G.S. 50-53, upon the parties' agreement these matters may be submitted to arbitrators chosen by the parties as provided in G.S. 50-45, in which case G.S. 50-52 through G.S. 50-56 apply to this modified award.

(e) If an award for modifiable postseparation support or alimony, or an award for child support or child custody has been confirmed pursuant to G.S. 50-53, upon the parties' agreement and joint motion, the court may remit these matters to arbitrators chosen by the parties as provided in G.S. 50-45, in which case G.S. 50-52 through G.S. 50-56 apply to this modified award.

(f) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the provisions of G.S. 50-55 apply to modifications or corrections of awards for postseparation support, alimony, child support, or child custody. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-57. Orders or judgments on award.

Upon granting an order confirming, modifying, or correcting an award, an order or judgment shall be entered in conformity with the order and docketed and enforced as any other order or judgment. The court may award costs, as provided in G.S. 50-51(f), of the application and of proceedings subsequent to the application and disbursements. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-58. Applications to the court.

Except as otherwise provided, an application to a court under this Article shall be by motion and shall be heard in the manner and upon notice provided by law or rule of court for making and hearing motions in civil actions. Unless the parties agree otherwise, notice of an initial application for an order shall be served in the manner provided by law for service of summons in civil actions. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-59. Court; jurisdiction.

The term "court" means a court of competent jurisdiction of this State. Making an agreement in this State described in G.S. 50-42 or any agreement providing for arbitration in this State or under its laws confers jurisdiction on the court to enforce the agreement under this Article and to enter judgment on an award under the agreement. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-60. Appeals.

(a) An appeal may be based on failure to comply with the procedural aspects of this Article. An appeal may be taken from any of the following:

(1) An order denying an application to compel arbitration made under G.S. 50-43;
(2) An order granting an application to stay arbitration made under G.S. 50-43(b);
(3) An order confirming or denying confirmation of an award;
(4) An order modifying or correcting an award;
(5) An order vacating an award without directing a rehearing; or
(6) A judgment entered pursuant to provisions of this Article.

(b) Unless the parties contract in an arbitration agreement for judicial review of errors of law as provided in G.S. 50-54(a), a party may not appeal on the basis that the arbitrator failed to apply correctly the law under Chapters 50, 50A, 52B, or 52C of the General Statutes.

(c) The appeal shall be taken in the manner and to the same extent as from orders or judgments in a civil action. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-61. Article not retroactive.

This Article applies to agreements made on or after October 1, 1999, unless parties by separate agreement after that date state that this Article shall apply to agreements dated before October 1, 1999. (1999-185, s. 1.)

§ 50-62. Construction; uniformity of interpretation.

Certain provisions of this Article have been adapted from the Uniform Arbitration Act in force in this State, the North Carolina International Commercial Arbitration and Conciliation Act, and Chapters 50, 50A, 50B, 51, 52, and 52C of the General Statutes. This Article shall be construed to effect its general purpose to make uniform provisions of these Acts and Chapters 50, 50A, 50B, 51, 52, 52B, and 52C of the General Statutes. (1999-185, s. 1.)

Chapter 50A.

Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act.

Article 1.

Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act.

Article 2.

Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act.

Part 1. General Provisions.

Part 2. Jurisdiction.

Part 3. Enforcement.

Article 1.

Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act.

§§ 50A-1 through 50A-25: Repealed by Session Laws 1999-223, s. 1(b), effective October 1, 1999, and applicable to causes of action arising on or after that date.

Cross References. — See now the Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act, § 50A-101 et seq.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1999-223, s. 1(a), effective October 1, 1999, designated G.S. 50A-1 through 50A-25, which were repealed by s. 1(b), as Article 1 of Chapter 50A.

Article 2.

Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act.

Editor's Note. — Commentary for the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act was taken from: Copyright © 1997 by the American Law Institute and the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. Reprinted with their permission.

Part 1. General Provisions.

§ 50A-101. Short title.

This Article may be cited as the Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Section 1 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-1] was a statement of the purposes of the Act. Although extensively cited by courts, it was eliminated because Uniform Acts no longer contain such a section. Nonetheless, this Act should be interpreted according to its purposes which are to:

(1) Avoid jurisdictional competition and conflict with courts of other States in matters of child custody which have in the past resulted in the shifting of children from State to State with harmful effects on their well-being;

(2) Promote cooperation with the courts of other States to the end that a custody decree is rendered in that State which can best decide the case in the interest of the child;

(3) Discourage the use of the interstate system for continuing controversies over child custody;

(4) Deter abductions of children;

(5) Avoid relitigation of custody decisions of other States in this State;

(6) Facilitate the enforcement of custody decrees of other States.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1999-223, s. 15, made this Part effective October 1, 1999, and applicable to causes of action arising on or after that date.

Session Laws 1999-223 repealed §§ 50A-1 to 50A-25, the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, and added §§ 50A-101, et seq., the Uniform Child-Custody Jurisdiction and Enforcement Act. Where applicable, the historical citations and case notes under the former sections have been transferred to the corresponding new sections.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For survey of 1981 family law, see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 1379 (1982).

For comment discussing the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act in North Carolina, see 4 Campbell L. Rev. 371 (1982).

For legislative survey on family and juvenile law, see 22 Campbell L. Rev. 253 (2000).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-1.

Legislative Intent. — The former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was intended to prevent forum shopping for the convenience of competing parents to the detriment of the real interest of the child. Holland v. Holland, 56 N.C. App. 96, 286 S.E.2d 895 (1982).

Purpose. — The former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act sought to prevent parents from forum shopping their child custody disputes and to assure that these disputes were litigated in the state with which the child and the child's family had the closest connection. In re Van Kooten, 126 N.C. App. 764, 487 S.E.2d 160 (1997), appeal dismissed, 347 N.C. 576, 502 S.E.2d 618 (1998).

What Law Governs. — The issue of a state court's jurisdiction over child custody matters is governed by the Uniform Child Custody

Jurisdiction Act (see now § 50A-101 et seq.) and the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A. Schrock v. Schrock, 89 N.C. App. 308, 365 S.E.2d 657 (1988).

Applicability of Chapter to Permanent Custody Situations. — The jurisdictional prerequisites of the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) only governed in permanent custody situations. In re Arends, 88 N.C. App. 550, 364 S.E.2d 169 (1988).

Chapter 50B is not designed to establish alternative grounds for jurisdiction over custody disputes apart from those set forth in this Chapter. Danna v. Danna, 88 N.C. App. 680, 364 S.E.2d 694, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 479, 370 S.E.2d 221 (1988).

Whenever the relief sought under Chapter 50B is a determination of custody or visitation rights, the existence of subject matter jurisdiction over the action is governed by this Chapter (see now Article 2 of this Chapter), just as it is in any other custody dispute. Danna v. Danna, 88 N.C. App. 680, 364 S.E.2d 694, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 479, 370 S.E.2d 221 (1988).

Only by making recognition and enforcement mandatory can purposes of this Chapter (see now Article 2 of this Chapter) be realized. Williams v. Richardson, 53 N.C. App. 663, 281 S.E.2d 777 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 733, 288 S.E.2d 382 (1982).

The question of subject matter jurisdiction could be raised at any point in a proceeding under the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act, and such jurisdiction could not be conferred by waiver, estoppel or consent. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

The district courts of this State possess general subject matter jurisdiction over child custody disputes. Such matters are in no wise reserved by the Constitution or laws of North Carolina to the exclusive consideration of another tribunal. Therefore, the real question under the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act was whether jurisdiction was properly exercised according to the statutory requirements in a particular case. Sloop v. Friberg, 70 N.C. App. 690, 320 S.E.2d 921 (1984).

Full Faith and Credit Properly Refused. — Refusal of North Carolina court to give full faith and credit to a Michigan custody award was not improper, where Michigan's exercise of jurisdiction was not consistent with the Parental Kidnapping Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, and the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. Schrock v. Schrock, 89 N.C. App. 308, 365 S.E.2d 657 (1988).

Power to Award Custody to Foster Parents. — Having acquired subject matter jurisdiction, trial court, guided by the best interests of the child, had broad dispositional powers, including the power to award legal custody of child to its foster parents. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Evidence was insufficient to determine that it was in the child's best interest to have another state assume jurisdiction. Watkins v. Watkins, 120 N.C. App. 475, 462 S.E.2d 687 (1995), appeal dismissed, 343 N.C. 128, 468 S.E.2d 795 (1996).

§ 50A-102. Definitions.

In this Article:

(1) "Abandoned" means left without provision for reasonable and necessary care or supervision.

(2) "Child" means an individual who has not attained 18 years of age.

(3) "Child-custody determination" means a judgment, decree, or other order of a court providing for the legal custody, physical custody, or visitation with respect to a child. The term includes a permanent, temporary, initial, and modification order. The term does not include an order relating to child support or other monetary obligation of an individual.

(4) "Child-custody proceeding" means a proceeding in which legal custody, physical custody, or visitation with respect to a child is an issue. The term includes a proceeding for divorce, separation, neglect, abuse, dependency, guardianship, paternity, termination of parental rights, and protection from domestic violence in which the issue may appear. The term does not include a proceeding involving juvenile delinquency, contractual emancipation, or enforcement under Part 3 of this Article.

(5) "Commencement" means the filing of the first pleading in a proceeding.

(6) "Court" means an entity authorized under the law of a state to establish, enforce, or modify a child-custody determination.
(7) "Home state" means the state in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as a parent for at least six consecutive months immediately before the commencement of a child-custody proceeding. In the case of a child less than six months of age, the term means the state in which the child lived from birth with any of the persons mentioned. A period of temporary absence of any of the mentioned persons is part of the period.
(8) "Initial determination" means the first child-custody determination concerning a particular child.
(9) "Issuing court" means the court that makes a child-custody determination for which enforcement is sought under this Article.
(10) "Issuing state" means the state in which a child-custody determination is made.
(11) "Modification" means a child-custody determination that changes, replaces, supersedes, or is otherwise made after a previous determination concerning the same child, whether or not it is made by the court that made the previous determination.
(12) "Person" means an individual, corporation, business trust, estate, trust, partnership, limited liability company, association, joint venture, government; governmental subdivision, agency, or instrumentality; public corporation; or any other legal or commercial entity.
(13) "Person acting as a parent" means a person, other than a parent, who:
a. Has physical custody of the child or has had physical custody for a period of six consecutive months, including any temporary absence, within one year immediately before the commencement of a child-custody proceeding; and
b. Has been awarded legal custody by a court or claims a right to legal custody under the law of this State.
(14) "Physical custody" means the physical care and supervision of a child.
(15) "State" means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.
(16) "Tribe" means an Indian tribe or band, or Alaskan Native village, which is recognized by federal law or formally acknowledged by a state.
(17) "Warrant" means an order issued by a court authorizing law enforcement officers to take physical custody of a child. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The UCCJA did not contain a definition of "child." The definition here is taken from the PKPA.

The definition of "child-custody determination" now closely tracks the PKPA definition. It encompasses any judgment, decree or other order which provides for the custody of, or visitation with, a child, regardless of local terminology, including such labels as "managing conservatorship" or "parenting plan."

The definition of "child-custody proceeding" has been expanded from the comparable definition in the UCCJA. These listed proceedings have generally been determined to be the type of proceeding to which the UCCJA and PKPA are applicable. The list of examples removes any controversy about the types of proceedings where a custody determination can occur. Proceedings that affect access to the child are subject to this Act. The inclusion of proceedings related to protection from domestic violence is necessary because in some States domestic violence proceedings may affect custody of and visitation with a child. Juvenile delinquency or proceedings to confer contractual rights are not "custody proceedings" because they do not relate to civil aspects of access to a child. While a determination of paternity is covered under the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, the custody and visitation aspects of paternity cases are custody proceedings. Cases involving the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction have not been included at this point because custody of the child is not determined in a proceeding under the International Child Abductions Remedies Act. Those proceedings are specially included in the Article 3 enforcement process.

"Commencement" has been included in the definitions as a replacement for the term "pending" found in the UCCJA. Its inclusion simplifies some of the simultaneous proceedings provisions of this Act.

The definition of "home State" has been reworded slightly. No substantive change is intended from the UCCJA.

The term "issuing State" is borrowed from UIFSA. In UIFSA, it refers to the court that issued the support or parentage order. Here, it refers to the State, or the court, which made the custody determination that is sought to be enforced. It is used primarily in Article 3.

The term "person" has been added to ensure that the provisions of this Act apply when the State is the moving party in a custody proceeding or has legal custody of a child. The definition of "person" is the one that is mandated for all Uniform Acts.

The term "person acting as a parent" has been slightly redefined. It has been broadened from the definition in the UCCJA to include a person who has acted as a parent for a significant period of time prior to the filing of the custody proceeding as well as a person who currently has physical custody of the child. In addition, a person acting as a parent must either have legal custody or claim a right to legal custody under the law of this State. The reference to the law of this State means that a court determines the issue of whether someone is a "person acting as a parent" under its own law. This reaffirms the traditional view that a court in a child custody case applies its own substantive law. The court does not have to undertake a choice-of-law analysis to determine whether the individual who is claiming to be a person acting as a parent has standing to seek custody of the child.

The definition of "tribe" is the one mandated for use in Uniform Acts. Should a State choose to apply this Act to tribal adjudications, this definition should be enacted as well as the entirety of Section 104.

The term "contestant" as has been omitted from this revision. It was defined in the UCCJA § 2(1) [former § 50A-2(1)] as "a person, including a parent, who claims a right to custody or visitation rights with respect to a child." It seems to have served little purpose over the years, and whatever function it once had has been subsumed by state laws on who has standing to seek custody of or visitation with a child. In addition UCCJA § 2(5) [former § 50A-2(4)] of the which defined "decree" and "custody decree" has been eliminated as duplicative of the definition of "custody determination."

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-2.

Home State. — Findings held to sufficiently establish that North Carolina was the home state of child and to establish that child and at least one parent had a significant connection with North Carolina. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

The trial court had subject matter jurisdiction over the custody of a child, where the father's former companion sought custody of the child as the child had lived with the companion in North Carolina until a month before her complaint was filed. Ellison v. Ramos, 130 N.C. App. 389, 502 S.E.2d 891 (1998), appeal dismissed, 349 N.C. 356, 517 S.E.2d 891 (1998).

Modification Decree. — North Carolina decree modifying a prior custody decree by a Virginia court was improper under the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act of 1980, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, where the Virginia court had continuing jurisdiction and had not declined to exercise it. Meade v. Meade, 650 F. Supp. 205 (M.D.N.C. 1986), aff'd, 812 F.2d 1473 (4th Cir. 1987).

Changed Circumstances. — Where the parties crossed out a cohabitation provision on the face of their separation memorandum, the trial court only partially discharged its duty when it found that a change of circumstances occurred when husband began cohabiting with his girlfriend but failed to determine whether plaintiff had met her burden of showing the effect, if any, such change had upon the welfare of the children. Browning v. Helff, 136 N.C. App. 420, 524 S.E.2d 95 (2000).

Refusal to Assert Jurisdiction Held Proper. — For case holding trial court properly declined to assert jurisdiction based upon conclusion that another state had assumed jurisdiction as the home state of the children involved in the custody matter in question, see Bhatti v. Bhatti, 98 N.C. App. 493, 391 S.E.2d 201 (1990).

Trial Court Erred in Exercising Jurisdiction. — The trial court in this State erred in exercising its jurisdiction over a custody matter where a proceeding was already pending in an Indiana court and the child had lived in Indiana since 1981, a period of six years. Indiana was exercising jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), and North Carolina was required to decline jurisdiction over the custody issue. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

§ 50A-103. Proceedings governed by other law.

This Article does not govern an adoption proceeding or a proceeding pertaining to the authorization of emergency medical care for a child. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Two proceedings are governed by other acts. Adoption cases are excluded from this Act because adoption is a specialized area which is thoroughly covered by the Uniform Adoption Act (UAA) (1994). Most States either will adopt that Act or will adopt the jurisdictional provisions of that Act. Therefore the jurisdictional provisions governing adoption proceeding are generally found elsewhere.

However, there are likely to be a number of instances where it will be necessary to apply this Act in an adoption proceeding. For example, if a State adopts the UAA then Section 3-101 of the Act specifically refers in places to the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act which will become a reference to this Act. Second, the UAA requires that if an adoption is denied or set aside, the court is to determine the child's custody. UAA § 3-704. Those custody proceedings would be subject to this Act. See Joan Heifetz Hollinger, The Uniform Adoption Act: Reporter's Ruminations, 30 Fam.L.Q. 345 (1996).

Children that are the subject of interstate placements for adoption or foster care are governed by the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children (ICPC). The UAA § 2-107 provides that the provisions of the compact, although not jurisdictional, supply the governing rules for all children who are subject to it. As stated in the Comments to that section: "Once a court exercises jurisdiction, the ICPC helps determine the legality of an interstate placement." For a discussion of the relationship between the UCCJA and the ICPC see J.D.S. v. Franks, 893 P.2d 732 (Ariz. 1995).

Proceedings pertaining to the authorization of emergency medical care for children are outside the scope of this Act since they are not custody determinations. All States have procedures which allow the State to temporarily supersede parental authority for purposes of emergency medical procedures. Those provisions will govern without regard to this Act.

§ 50A-104. Application to Indian tribes.

(a) A child-custody proceeding that pertains to an Indian child, as defined in the Indian Child Welfare Act, 25 U.S.C. § 1901 et seq., is not subject to this Article to the extent that it is governed by the Indian Child Welfare Act.

(b) A court of this State shall treat a tribe as if it were a state of the United States for the purpose of applying Parts 1 and 2.

(c) A child-custody determination made by a tribe under factual circumstances in substantial conformity with the jurisdictional standards of this Article must be recognized and enforced under Part 3. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section allows States the discretion to extend the terms of this Act to Indian tribes by removing the brackets. The definition of "tribe" is found at Section 102(16). This Act does not purport to legislate custody jurisdiction for tribal courts. However, a Tribe could adopt this Act as enabling legislation by simply replacing references to "this State" with "this Tribe."

Subsection (a) is not bracketed. If the Indian Child Welfare Act requires that a case be heard in tribal court, then its provisions determine jurisdiction.

§ 50A-105. International application of Article.

(a) A court of this State shall treat a foreign country as if it were a state of the United States for the purpose of applying Parts 1 and 2.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (c), a child-custody determination made in a foreign country under factual circumstances in substantial conformity with the jurisdictional standards of this Article must be recognized and enforced under Part 3.

(c) A court of this State need not apply this Article if the child-custody law of a foreign country violates fundamental principles of human rights. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The provisions of this Act have international application to child custody proceedings and determinations of other countries. Another country will be treated as if it were a State of the United States for purposes of applying Articles 1 and 2 of this Act. Custody determinations of other countries will be enforced if the facts of the case indicate that jurisdiction was in substantial compliance with the requirements of this Act.

In this section, the term "child-custody determination" should be interpreted to include proceedings relating to custody or analogous institutions of the other country. See generally, Article 3 of The Hague Convention on Jurisdiction, Applicable Law, Recognition, Enforcement and Co-operation in Respect of Parental Responsibility and Measures for the Protection of Children. 35 I.L.M. 1391 (1996).

A court of this State may refuse to apply this Act when the child custody law of the other country violates basic principles relating to the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms. The same concept is found in of the Section 20 of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction (return of the child may be refused if this would not be permitted by the fundamental principles of the requested State relating to the protection of human rights and fundamental freedoms). In applying subsection (c), the court's scrutiny should be on the child custody law of the foreign country and not on other aspects of the other legal system. This Act takes no position on what laws relating to child custody would violate fundamental freedoms. While the provision is a traditional one in international agreements, it is invoked only in the most egregious cases.

This section is derived from Section 23 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-23.]

§ 50A-106. Effect of child-custody determination.

A child-custody determination made by a court of this State that had jurisdiction under this Article binds all persons who have been served in accordance with the laws of this State or notified in accordance with G.S. 50A-108 or who have submitted to the jurisdiction of the court and who have been given an opportunity to be heard. As to those persons, the determination is conclusive as to all decided issues of law and fact except to the extent the determination is modified. (1979, c. 110, s.1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

No substantive changes have been made to this section which was Section 12 of the UCCJA.

§ 50A-107. Priority.

If a question of existence or exercise of jurisdiction under this Article is raised in a child-custody proceeding, the question, upon request of a party, must be given priority on the calendar and handled expeditiously. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

No substantive change was made to this section which was Section 24 of the UCCJA. The section is placed toward the beginning of Article 1 to emphasize its importance.

The language change from "case" to "question" is intended to clarify that it is the jurisdictional issue which must be expedited and not the entire custody case. Whether the entire custody case should be given priority is a matter of local law.

§ 50A-108. Notice to persons outside State.

(a) Notice required for the exercise of jurisdiction when a person is outside this State may be given in a manner prescribed by the law of this State for service of process or by the law of the state in which the service is made. Notice must be given in a manner reasonably calculated to give actual notice but may be by publication if other means are not effective.

(b) Proof of service may be made in the manner prescribed by the law of this State or by the law of the state in which the service is made.

(c) Notice is not required for the exercise of jurisdiction with respect to a person who submits to the jurisdiction of the court. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section authorizes notice and proof of service to be made by any method allowed by either the State which issues the notice or the State where the notice is received. This eliminates the need to specify the type of notice in the Act and therefore the provisions of Section 5 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-5] which specified how notice was to be accomplished were eliminated. The change reflects an approach in this Act to use local law to determine many procedural issues. Thus, service by facsimile is permissible if allowed by local rule in either State. In addition, where special service or notice rules are available for some procedures, in either jurisdiction, they could be utilized under this Act. For example, if a case involves domestic violence and the statute of either State would authorize notice to be served by a peace officer, such service could be used under this Act.

Although Section 105 requires foreign countries to be treated as States for purposes of this Act, attorneys should be cautioned about service and notice in foreign countries. Countries have their own rules on service which must usually be followed. Attorneys should consult the Hague Convention on the Service Abroad of Judicial and Extrajudicial Documents in Civil or Commercial Matters, 20 U.S.T. 36, T.I.A.S. 6638 (1965).

§ 50A-109. Appearance and limited immunity.

(a) A party to a child-custody proceeding, including a modification proceeding, or a petitioner or respondent in a proceeding to enforce or register a child-custody determination, is not subject to personal jurisdiction in this State for another proceeding or purpose solely by reason of having participated, or of having been physically present for the purpose of participating, in the proceeding.

(b) A person who is subject to personal jurisdiction in this State on a basis other than physical presence is not immune from service of process in this State. A party present in this State who is subject to the jurisdiction of another state is not immune from service of process allowable under the laws of that state.

(c) The immunity granted by subsection (a) does not extend to civil litigation based on acts unrelated to the participation in a proceeding under this Article committed by an individual while present in this State. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section establishes a general principle that participation in a custody proceeding does not, by itself, give the court jurisdiction over any issue for which personal jurisdiction over the individual is required. The term "participate" should be read broadly. For example, if jurisdiction is proper under Article 2, a respondent in an original custody determination, or a party in a modification determination, should be able to request custody without this constituting the seeking of affirmative relief that would waive personal jurisdictional objections. Once jurisdiction is proper under Article 2, a party should not be placed in the dilemma of choosing between seeking custody or protecting a right not to be subject to a monetary judgment by a court with no other relationship to the party.

This section is comparable to the immunity provision of UIFSA § 314. A party who is otherwise not subject to personal jurisdiction can appear in a custody proceeding or an enforcement action without being subject to the general jurisdiction of the State by virtue of the appearance. However, if the petitioner would otherwise be subject to the jurisdiction of the State, appearing in a custody proceeding or filing an enforcement proceeding will not provide immunity. Thus, if the non-custodial parent moves from the State that decided the custody determination, that parent is still subject to the state's jurisdiction for enforcement of child support if the child or an individual obligee continues to reside there. See UIFSA § 205. If the non-custodial parent returns to enforce the visitation aspects of the custody determination, the State can utilize any appropriate means to collect the back-due child support. However, the situation is different if both parties move from State A after the determination, with the custodial parent and the child establishing a new home State in State B, and the non-custodial parent moving to State C. The non-custodial parent is not, at this point, subject to the jurisdiction of State B for monetary matters. See Kulko v. Superior Court, 436 U.S. 84 (1978). If the non-custodial parent comes into State B to enforce the visitation aspects of the determination, the non-custodial parent is not subject to the jurisdiction of State B for those proceedings and issues requiring personal jurisdiction by filing the enforcement action.

A party also is immune from service of process during the time in the State for an enforcement action except for those claims for which jurisdiction could be based on contacts other than mere physical presence. Thus, when the non-custodial parent comes into State B to enforce the visitation aspects of the decree, State B cannot acquire jurisdiction over the child support aspects of the decree by serving the non-custodial parent in the State. Cf. UIFSA § 611 (personally serving the obligor in the State of the residence of the obligee is not by itself a sufficient jurisdictional basis to authorize a modification of child support). However, a party who is in this State and subject to the jurisdiction of another State may be served with process to appear in that State, if allowable under the laws of that State.

As the Comments to UIFSA § 314 note, the immunity provided by this section is limited. It does not provide immunity for civil litigation unrelated to the enforcement action. For example, a party to an enforcement action is not immune from service regarding a claim that involves an automobile accident occurring while the party is in the State.

§ 50A-110. Communication between courts.

(a) A court of this State may communicate with a court in another state concerning a proceeding arising under this Article.

(b) The court may allow the parties to participate in the communication. If the parties are not able to participate in the communication, they must be given the opportunity to present facts and legal arguments before a decision on jurisdiction is made.

(c) Communication between courts on schedules, calendars, court records, and similar matters may occur without informing the parties. A record need not be made of the communication.

(d) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (c), a record must be made of a communication under this section. The parties must be informed promptly of the communication and granted access to the record.

(e) For the purposes of this section, "record" means information that is inscribed on a tangible medium or that is stored in an electronic or other medium and is retrievable in perceivable form. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section emphasizes the role of judicial communications. It authorizes a court to communicate concerning any proceeding arising under this Act. This includes communication with foreign tribunals and tribal courts. Communication can occur in many different ways such as by telephonic conference and by on-line or other electronic communication. The Act does not preclude any method of communication and recognizes that there will be increasing use of modern communication techniques.

Communication between courts is required under Sections 204, 206, and 306 and strongly suggested in applying Section 207. Apart from those sections, there may be less need under this Act for courts to communicate concerning jurisdiction due to the prioritization of home state jurisdiction. Communication is authorized, however, whenever the court finds it would be helpful. The court may authorize the parties to participate in the communication. However, the Act does not mandate participation. Communication between courts is often difficult to schedule and participation by the parties may be impractical. Phone calls often have to be made after-hours or whenever the schedules of judges allow.

This section does require that a record be made of the conversation and that the parties have access to that record in order to be informed of the content of the conversation. The only exception to this requirement is when the communication involves relatively inconsequential matters such as scheduling, calendars, and court records. Included within this latter type of communication would be matters of cooperation between courts under Section 112. A record includes notes or transcripts of a court reporter who listened to a conference call between the courts, an electronic recording of a telephone call, a memorandum or an electronic record of the communication between the courts, or a memorandum or an electronic record made by a court after the communication.

The second sentence of subsection (b) protects the parties against unauthorized ex parte communications. The parties' participation in the communication may amount to a hearing if there is an opportunity to present facts and jurisdictional arguments. However, absent such an opportunity, the participation of the parties should not to be considered a substitute for a hearing and the parties must be given an opportunity to fairly and fully present facts and arguments on the jurisdictional issue before a determination is made. This may be done through a hearing or, if appropriate, by affidavit or memorandum. The court is expected to set forth the basis for its jurisdictional decision, including any court-to-court communication which may have been a factor in the decision.

§ 50A-111. Taking testimony in another state.

(a) In addition to other procedures available to a party, a party to a child-custody proceeding may offer testimony of witnesses who are located in another state, including testimony of the parties and the child, by deposition or other means allowable in this State for testimony taken in another state. The court on its own motion may order that the testimony of a person be taken in another state and may prescribe the manner in which and the terms upon which the testimony is taken.

(b) A court of this State may permit an individual residing in another state to be deposed or to testify by telephone, audiovisual means, or other electronic means before a designated court or at another location in that state. A court of this State shall cooperate with courts of other states in designating an appropriate location for the deposition or testimony.

(c) Documentary evidence transmitted from another state to a court of this State by technological means that do not produce an original writing may not be excluded from evidence on an objection based on the means of transmission. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

No substantive changes have been made to subsection (a) which was Section 18 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-18.]

Subsections (b) and (c) merely provide that modern modes of communication are permissible in the taking of testimony and the transmittal of documents. See UIFSA § 316.

§ 50A-112. Cooperation between courts; preservation of records.

(a) A court of this State may request the appropriate court of another state to:

(1) Hold an evidentiary hearing;

(2) Order a person to produce or give evidence pursuant to procedures of that state;

(3) Order that an evaluation be made with respect to the custody of a child involved in a pending proceeding;

(4) Forward to the court of this State a certified copy of the transcript of the record of the hearing, the evidence otherwise presented, and any evaluation prepared in compliance with the request; and

(5) Order a party to a child-custody proceeding or any person having physical custody of the child to appear in the proceeding with or without the child.

(b) Upon request of a court of another state, a court of this State may hold a hearing or enter an order described in subsection (a).

(c) Travel and other necessary and reasonable expenses incurred under subsections (a) and (b) may be assessed against the parties according to the law of this State.

(d) A court of this State shall preserve the pleadings, orders, decrees, records of hearings, evaluations, and other pertinent records with respect to a child-custody proceeding until the child attains 18 years of age. Upon appropriate request by a court or law enforcement official of another state, the court shall forward a certified copy of those records. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is the heart of judicial cooperation provision of this Act. It provides mechanisms for courts to cooperate with each other in order to decide cases in an efficient manner without causing undue expense to the parties. Courts may request assistance from courts of other States and may assist courts of other States.

The provision on the assessment of costs for travel provided in the UCCJA § 19 [former § 50A-19] has been changed. The UCCJA provided that the costs may be assessed against the parties or the State or county. Assessment of costs against a government entity in a case where the government is not involved is inappropriate and therefore that provision has been removed. In addition, if the State is involved as a party, assessment of costs and expenses against the State must be authorized by other law. It should be noted that the term "expenses" means out-of-pocket costs. Overhead costs should not be assessed as expenses.

No other substantive changes have been made. The term "social study" as used in the UCCJA was replaced with the modern term: "custody evaluation." The Act does not take a position on the admissibility of a custody evaluation that was conducted in another State. It merely authorizes a court to seek assistance of, or render assistance to, a court of another State.

This section combines the text of Sections 19-22 of the UCCJA [former §§ 50A-19 to 50A-22.]

Part 2. Jurisdiction.

§ 50A-201. Initial child-custody jurisdiction.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204, a court of this State has jurisdiction to make an initial child-custody determination only if:

(1) This State is the home state of the child on the date of the commencement of the proceeding, or was the home state of the child within six months before the commencement of the proceeding, and the child is absent from this State but a parent or person acting as a parent continues to live in this State;

(2) A court of another state does not have jurisdiction under subdivision (1), or a court of the home state of the child has declined to exercise jurisdiction on the ground that this State is the more appropriate forum under G.S. 50A-207 or G.S. 50A-208, and:

a. The child and the child's parents, or the child and at least one parent or a person acting as a parent, have a significant connection with this State other than mere physical presence; and

b. Substantial evidence is available in this State concerning the child's care, protection, training, and personal relationships;

(3) All courts having jurisdiction under subdivision (1) or (2) have declined to exercise jurisdiction on the ground that a court of this State is the more appropriate forum to determine the custody of the child under G.S. 50A-207 or G.S. 50A-208; or

(4) No court of any other state would have jurisdiction under the criteria specified in subdivision (1), (2), or (3).

(b) Subsection (a) is the exclusive jurisdictional basis for making a child-custody determination by a court of this State.

(c) Physical presence of, or personal jurisdiction over, a party or a child is not necessary or sufficient to make a child-custody determination. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section provides mandatory jurisdictional rules for the original child custody proceeding. It generally continues the provisions of the UCCJA § 3 [former § 50A-3.] However, there have been a number of changes to the jurisdictional bases.

1. Home State Jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of the home State has been prioritized over other jurisdictional bases. Section 3 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-3] provided four independent and concurrent bases of jurisdiction. The PKPA provides that full faith and credit can only be given to an initial custody determination of a "significant connection" State when there is no home State. This Act prioritizes home state jurisdiction in the same manner as the PKPA thereby eliminating any potential conflict between the two acts.

The six-month extended home state provision of subsection (a)(1) has been modified slightly from the UCCJA. The UCCJA provided that home state jurisdiction continued for six months when the child had been removed by a person seeking the child's custody or for other reasons and a parent or a person acting as a parent continues to reside in the home State. Under this Act, it is no longer necessary to determine why the child has been removed. The only inquiry relates to the status of the person left behind. This change provides a slightly more refined home state standard than the UCCJA or the PKPA, which also requires a determination that the child has been removed "by a contestant or for other reasons." The scope of the PKPA's provision is theoretically narrower than this Act. However, the phrase "or for other reasons" covers most fact situations where the child is not in the home State and, therefore, the difference has no substantive effect.

In another sense, the six-month extended home state jurisdiction provision is this Act is narrower than the comparable provision in the PKPA. The PKPA's definition of extended home State is more expansive because it applies whenever a "contestant" remains in the home State. That class of individuals has been eliminated in this Act. This Act retains the original UCCJA classification of "parent or person acting as parent" to define who must remain for a State to exercise the six-month extended home state jurisdiction. This eliminates the undesirable jurisdictional determinations which would occur as a result of differing state substantive laws on visitation involving grandparents and others. For example, if State A's law provided that grandparents could obtain visitation with a child after the death of one of the parents, then the grandparents, who would be considered "contestants" under the PKPA, could file a proceeding within six months after the remaining parent moved and have the case heard in State A. However, if State A did not provide that grandparents could seek visitation under such circumstances, the grandparents would not be considered "contestants" and State B where the child acquired a new home State would provide the only forum. This Act bases jurisdiction on the parent and child or person acting as a parent and child relationship without regard to grandparents or other potential seekers of custody or visitation. There is no conflict with the broader provision of the PKPA. The PKPA in § (c)(1) authorizes States to narrow the scope of their jurisdiction.

2. Significant connection jurisdiction. This jurisdictional basis has been amended in four particulars from the UCCJA. First, the "best interest" language of the UCCJA has been eliminated. This phrase tended to create confusion between the jurisdictional issue and the substantive custody determination. Since the language was not necessary for the jurisdictional issue, it has been removed.

Second, the UCCJA based jurisdiction on the presence of a significant connection between the child and the child's parents or the child and at least one contestant. This Act requires that the significant connections be between the child, the child's parents or the child and a person acting as a parent.

Third, a significant connection State may assume jurisdiction only when there is no home State or when the home State decides that the significant connection State would be a more appropriate forum under Section 207 or 208. Fourth, the determination of significant connections has been changed to eliminate the language of "present or future care." The jurisdictional determination should be made by determining whether there is sufficient evidence in the State for the court to make an informed custody determination. That evidence might relate to the past as well as to the "present or future."

Emergency jurisdiction has been moved to a separate section. This is to make it clear that the power to protect a child in crisis does not include the power to enter a permanent order for that child except as provided by that section.

Paragraph (a)(3) provides for jurisdiction when all States with jurisdiction under paragraphs (a)(1) and (2) determine that this State is a more appropriate forum. The determination would have to be made by all States with jurisdiction under subsection (a)(1) and (2). Jurisdiction would not exist under this paragraph because the home State determined it is a more appropriate place to hear the case if there is another State that could exercise significant connection jurisdiction under subsection (a)(2).

Paragraph (a)(4) retains the concept of jurisdiction by necessity as found in the UCCJA and in the PKPA. This default jurisdiction only occurs if no other State would have jurisdiction under subsections (a)(1) through (a)(3).

Subsections (b) and (c) clearly State the relationship between jurisdiction under this Act and other forms of jurisdiction. Personal jurisdiction over, or the physical presence of, a parent or the child is neither necessary nor required under this Act. In other words neither minimum contacts nor service within the State is required for the court to have jurisdiction to make a custody determination. Further, the presence of minimum contacts or service within the State does not confer jurisdiction to make a custody determination. Subject to Section 204, satisfaction of the requirements of subsection (a) is mandatory.

The requirements of this section, plus the notice and hearing provisions of the Act, are all that is necessary to satisfy due process. This Act, like the UCCJA and the PKPA is based on Justice Frankfurter's concurrence in May v. Anderson, 345 U.S. 528 (1953). As pointed out by Professor Bodenheimer, the reporter for the UCCJA, no "workable interstate custody law could be built around [Justice] Burton's plurality opinion .... Bridgette Bodenheimer, The Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act: A Legislative Remedy for Children Caught in the Conflict of Laws, 22 Vand.L.Rev. 1207,1233 (1969). It should also be noted that since jurisdiction to make a child custody determination is subject matter jurisdiction, an agreement of the parties to confer jurisdiction on a court that would not otherwise have jurisdiction under this Act is ineffective.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1999-223, s. 15, made this Part effective October 1, 1999, and applicable to causes of action arising on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-3.

Purpose. — The former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act sought to prevent parents from forum shopping their child custody disputes and to assure that these disputes were litigated in the state with which the child and the child's family had the closest connection. In re Van Kooten, 126 N.C. App. 764, 487 S.E.2d 160 (1997), appeal dismissed, 347 N.C. 576, 502 S.E.2d 618 (1998).

Courts which render a custody decree normally retain continuing jurisdiction to modify the decree under local law. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

Once jurisdiction of the court attaches to a child custody matter, it exists for all time until the cause is fully and completely determined. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Jurisdiction over Petition Brought by DSS. — The district court had jurisdiction over the subject matter of petition filed, signed and verified by county division of social services, which alleged that child had been placed with DSS by its mother; that the putative father was unknown; that North Carolina was the home state of the child and no other state had jurisdiction over the child; and that the best interest of the child would be served if the court assumed jurisdiction over him. In re Scearce, 81 N.C. App. 531, 345 S.E.2d 404, cert. denied, 318 N.C. 415, 349 S.E.2d 589 (1986).

Refusal to Assert Jurisdiction Held Proper. — For case holding trial court properly declined to assert jurisdiction based upon conclusion that another state had assumed jurisdiction as the home state of the children involved in the custody matter in question, see Bhatti v. Bhatti, 98 N.C. App. 493, 391 S.E.2d 201 (1990).

Although the child resided in North Carolina, the court properly declined jurisdiction because the father continued to reside in the state of the court of original jurisdiction; thus, the Florida court retained jurisdiction under the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A. In re Bean, 132 N.C. App. 363, 511 S.E.2d 683 (1999).

Trial Court Erred in Exercising Jurisdiction. — The trial court in this State erred in exercising its jurisdiction over a custody matter where a proceeding was already pending in an Indiana court and the child had lived in Indiana since 1981, a period of six years. Indiana was exercising jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), and North Carolina was required to decline jurisdiction over the custody issue. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

Where an Indiana order, which awarded custody of child living in Indiana to mother, contained no findings of fact that Indiana was child's home state, or had been her home state within six months before the action was commenced, or that it was in her best interests for Indiana to assume jurisdiction because she had significant connection with the state, a North Carolina trial court erred in concluding that North Carolina must give full faith and credit to the Indiana orders; the Indiana court had not assumed jurisdiction over the custody determination of the child in substantial conformity with this Act. Williams v. Williams, 110 N.C. App. 406, 430 S.E.2d 277 (1993).

Personal jurisdiction over the nonresident parent is not a requirement under this Chapter. Hart v. Hart, 74 N.C. App. 1, 327 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

Ex Parte Order for Temporary Custody. — Once the trial court has gained jurisdiction by establishing one of the bases for jurisdiction, it may enter an ex parte order for temporary custody prior to service of process or notice, if the circumstances of the case render it appropriate. Hart v. Hart, 74 N.C. App. 1, 327 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

Exercise of Jurisdiction Where Foreign Order Is Pending or Has Been Entered. — When a North Carolina court considered jurisdiction in a custody proceeding, and a prior order was pending or had been entered by a court of another state, the North Carolina court could exercise jurisdiction if it determined (1) that the court of the other state no longer had jurisdiction and North Carolina had jurisdiction under one of the four alternatives listed in former § 50A-3, or (2) the court of the other state did not exercise jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the former UCCJA and North Carolina had jurisdiction pursuant to former § 50A-3. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Former § 50A-3(a)(2) of this section essentially conferred jurisdiction where it was in the child's best interest, because the child and at least one parent had significant ties to the state, and where substantial evidence pertaining to the child's present or future well-being and activities existed within the state. Brookshire v. Brookshire, 89 N.C. App. 48, 365 S.E.2d 307 (1988).

Service of Process on Defendant in State Sufficient to Establish Jurisdiction. — The singular fact that defendant was served with process while present within this state was sufficient to establish in-personam jurisdiction over him for purposes of a child custody and support action. Brookshire v. Brookshire, 89 N.C. App. 48, 365 S.E.2d 307 (1988).

Exercise of Jurisdiction Upheld. — Where the oldest two of the three minor children of the parties had been born in North Carolina, both plaintiff and defendant grew up in the state, both maternal and paternal grandparents of the minor children resided within the state, and plaintiff and the minor children had moved to the state from Ohio in June, 1985, with the intention of becoming permanent residents, and at the time of the entry of the order had become permanent residents of the state, the district court properly exercised subject matter jurisdiction over custody and support action. Brookshire v. Brookshire, 89 N.C. App. 48, 365 S.E.2d 307 (1988).

Where the minor child resided in North Carolina for about one year after birth, North Carolina was the only state where the parties and the minor child lived as a family unit and, although there are a number of witnesses that reside in New Hampshire, there are numerous other witnesses who reside in North Carolina, district court's order that North Carolina was the most appropriate and convenient forum was appropriate. Westneat v. Westneat, 113 N.C. App. 247, 437 S.E.2d 899 (1994).

The trial court had subject matter jurisdiction over the custody of a child, where the father's former companion sought custody of the child as the child had lived with the companion in North Carolina until a month before her complaint was filed. Ellison v. Ramos, 130 N.C. App. 389, 502 S.E.2d 891 (1998), appeal dismissed, 349 N.C. 356, 517 S.E.2d 891 (1998).

Emergency Jurisdiction. — The exercise of emergency jurisdiction confers authority to enter temporary protective orders only. In re Van Kooten, 126 N.C. App. 764, 487 S.E.2d 160 (1997), appeal dismissed, 347 N.C. 576, 502 S.E.2d 618 (1998).

The emergency conditions giving rise to jurisdiction to enter a temporary order under former § 50A-3(a)(3) may exist either in this State, or in the state that entered the custody decrees. In re Van Kooten, 126 N.C. App. 764, 487 S.E.2d 160 (1997), appeal dismissed, 347 N.C. 576, 502 S.E.2d 618 (1998).

In a proceeding by the Department of Social Services seeking protective custody of a child based on evidence of sexual abuse by the father, the trial court had authority under the emergency jurisdiction provision of former § 50A-3(a)(3)(ii) to enter a temporary nonsecure custody order. In re Malone, 129 N.C. App. 338, 498 S.E.2d 836 (1998).

North Carolina court had emergency jurisdiction in custody matter where defendant father's family made numerous threats to abduct children and take them to Turkey. Tataragasi v. Tataragasi, 124 N.C. App. 255, 477 S.E.2d 239 (1996).

North Carolina decree modifying a prior custody decree by a Virginia court was improper under the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act of 1980, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, where the Virginia court had continuing jurisdiction and had not declined to exercise it. Meade v. Meade, 650 F. Supp. 205 (M.D.N.C. 1986), aff'd, 812 F.2d 1473 (4th Cir. 1987).

When Petitions for Modification of Foreign Decree to Be Addressed to Foreign Court. — All petitions for modification of a custody decree under local law are to be addressed to the prior state if that state has sufficient contact with the case to satisfy this section. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

Effect of Foreign Decree Not in Compliance with This Section. — Where the record does not show that a foreign court assumed jurisdiction under the standards set forth in this section, its decree is null and void. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

Severability of Custody Action from Divorce Proceeding. — The portion of plaintiff's complaint seeking custody of his minor son constituted a separate action severable from his divorce proceeding, so that dismissal of the divorce action for lack of subject matter jurisdiction did not result in dismissal of the custody action, and the trial court was authorized to assert subject matter jurisdiction over the custody portion of the case where the child was physically within the State. Lynch v. Lynch, 302 N.C. 189, 274 S.E.2d 212, modified, 303 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

Physical Presence, Generally. — It is a generally accepted principle that the courts of the state in which a minor child is physically present have jurisdiction consistent with due process to adjudicate a custody dispute involving that child. Lynch v. Lynch, 302 N.C. 189, 274 S.E.2d 212, modified, 393 N.C. 367, 279 S.E.2d 840 (1981).

Proper Determination of Home State. — Mother and children had significant connection to North Carolina and there was substantial evidence in North Carolina. Therefore, North Carolina court correctly determined that North Carolina, not Georgia, was home state. Court did not err in assuming jurisdiction and modifying Georgia custody decree, even though children resided in Georgia and there was no evidence that Georgia had declined jurisdiction. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

Where children had lived in North Carolina continuously from March 1987 until March 1989 when custody action was filed except for the 10-month period during which the children resided with defendant in Georgia pursuant to the Georgia temporary custody decree and the plaintiff resided in North Carolina for the entire period, the trial court correctly determined that North Carolina was the home state, thereby meeting one of the bases of jurisdiction under this section. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

Physical Presence of Child Coupled with Emergency. — To meet the requirements of former § 50A-3(a)(3)(ii) and former § 50A-14(a), the following three questions must be answered affirmatively: (1) Did the foreign court lack jurisdiction under jurisdictional prerequisites similar to those of the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act or has the foreign court declined to exercise jurisdiction to modify the decree? (2) Was the child physically present in North Carolina? (3) Did an emergency situation exist? Naputi v. Naputi, 67 N.C. App. 351, 313 S.E.2d 179 (1984).

Findings held to sufficiently establish that North Carolina was the home state of child and to establish that the child and at least one parent had a significant connection with North Carolina. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Significant Connection. — Where children resided in North Carolina for all but ten months of the two-year period prior to this action and that plaintiff resided in North Carolina for the entire period, the children and plaintiff had a "significant connection" with North Carolina, and there was substantial evidence regarding the children's "present or future care, protection, training, and personal relationships" in North Carolina. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

In an action for child support, child support arrearages and child custody where the child and plaintiff had resided in North Carolina since 1982, it was within the best interest of the welfare of the minor child to consider North Carolina the home state of the minor child, and for the court to assume jurisdiction, since the minor child and at least one parent had significant connections with North Carolina. Shores v. Shores, 91 N.C. App. 435, 371 S.E.2d 747 (1988).

Finding that husband "is on active duty with the United States Marine Corps and is stationed at Camp Lejeune, North Carolina" is sufficient to satisfy the home state rule requirement that a parent or person acting as parent continues to live in this State. Hart v. Hart, 74 N.C. App. 1, 327 S.E.2d 631 (1985).

Fifteen-Month Residence of Child Held Sufficient for Jurisdiction. — Evidence was sufficient to support the court's exercise of jurisdiction pursuant to either former § 50A-3(a)(1) or § 50A-3(2) of this section, where the minor child had resided with the plaintiffs for an almost continuous 15-month period immediately preceding the commencement of the action. This was sufficient to qualify North Carolina as the minor child's home state. The child's brief visit to Texas during this time period was not sufficient to prevent such a conclusion. Plemmons v. Stiles, 65 N.C. App. 341, 309 S.E.2d 504 (1983).

Findings of Court Where Child Is Improperly Retained in This State. — Even when the district court has jurisdiction over the person of the out-of-state parent in an action to modify a foreign custody decree, it has no authority to exercise its jurisdiction without making findings of fact which support the conclusion that such exercise is required in the interest of the child, if the record shows that the parent seeking the modification has improperly retained the child. Jerson v. Jerson, 68 N.C. App. 738, 315 S.E.2d 522 (1984).

A recitation of the trial court's order that it was in the best interest of child who was improperly retained by mother in this State that it assume jurisdiction did not comply with the stated policy of the former UCCJA or with the case law, as it did not contain specific facts. Jerson v. Jerson, 68 N.C. App. 738, 315 S.E.2d 522 (1984).

The quality of evidence required under former § 50A-3 goes beyond the standard of more than a scintilla or any competent evidence. Holland v. Holland, 56 N.C. App. 96, 286 S.E.2d 895 (1982).

"Substantial Evidence" Required. — To be able to enter a well-founded custody order, the trial court must look beyond the declarations of competing parents, seeking to find the real circumstances of the child's welfare. The "substantial" evidence required by former § 50A-3, therefore, must be such as would enable the trial court to look to sources within the State that could address each of the statutory aspects of the child's interest, care, protection, training, and personal relationships. Holland v. Holland, 56 N.C. App. 96, 286 S.E.2d 895 (1982).

Parental Rights Proceedings. — While a determination of jurisdiction over child custody matters will precede a determination of jurisdiction over parental rights, it does not supplant the parental rights proceedings; the language of [former] § 7A-289.22(4) is that it shall not be "used to circumvent" Chapter 50A (see now Article 2 of this chapter), not that it shall "be in conformity with" Chapter 50A (see now Article 2 of this chapter). In re Leonard, 77 N.C. App. 439, 335 S.E.2d 73 (1985).

Temporary Nonsecure Order. — The trial court had jurisdiction to enter a temporary nonsecure custody order where there was a reasonable factual basis to believe that one child had been sexually abused and hospitalized for depression and the other child had been physically abused and was hospitalized for stress disorder. In re Van Kooten, 126 N.C. App. 764, 487 S.E.2d 160 (1997), appeal dismissed, 347 N.C. 576, 502 S.E.2d 618 (1998).

§ 50A-202. Exclusive, continuing jurisdiction.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204, a court of this State which has made a child-custody determination consistent with G.S. 50A-201 or G.S. 50A-203 has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction over the determination until:

(1) A court of this State determines that neither the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent do not have a significant connection with this State and that substantial evidence is no longer available in this State concerning the child's care, protection, training, and personal relationships; or

(2) A court of this State or a court of another state determines that the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent do not presently reside in this State.

(b) A court of this State which has made a child-custody determination and does not have exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under this section may modify that determination only if it has jurisdiction to make an initial determination under G.S. 50A-201. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This is a new section addressing continuing jurisdiction. Continuing jurisdiction was not specifically addressed in the UCCJA . Its absence caused considerable confusion, particularly because the PKPA, § 1738(d), requires other States to give Full Faith and Credit to custody determinations made by the original decree State pursuant to the decree State's continuing jurisdiction so long as that State has jurisdiction under its own law and remains the residence of the child or any contestant.

This section provides the rules of continuing jurisdiction and borrows from UIFSA as well as recent UCCJA case law. The continuing jurisdiction of the original decree State is exclusive. It continues until one of two events occurs:

1. If a parent or a person acting as a parent remains in the original decree State, continuing jurisdiction is lost when neither the child, the child and a parent, nor the child and a person acting as a parent continue to have a significant connection with the original decree State and there is no longer substantial evidence concerning the child's care, protection, training and personal relations in that State. In other words, even if the child has acquired a new home State, the original decree State retains exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, so long as the general requisites of the "substantial connection" jurisdiction provisions of Section 201 are met. If the relationship between the child and the person remaining in the State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction becomes so attenuated that the court could no longer find significant connections and substantial evidence, jurisdiction would no longer exist.

The use of the phrase "a court of this State" under subsection (a)(1) makes it clear that the original decree State is the sole determinant of whether jurisdiction continues. A party seeking to modify a custody determination must obtain an order from the original decree State stating that it no longer has jurisdiction.

2. Continuing jurisdiction is lost when the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent no longer reside in the original decree State. The exact language of subparagraph (a)(2) was the subject of considerable debate. Ultimately the Conference settled on the phrase that "a court of this State or a court of another State determines that the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent do not presently reside in this State" to determine when the exclusive, continuing jurisdiction of a State ended. The phrase is meant to be identical in meaning to the language of the PKPA which provides that full faith and credit is to be given to custody determinations made by a State in the exercise of its continuing jurisdiction when that "State remains the residence of...." The phrase is also the equivalent of the language "continues to reside" which occurs in UIFSA § 205(a)(1) to determine the exclusive, continuing jurisdiction of the State that made a support order. The phrase "remains the residence of" in the PKPA has been the subject of conflicting case law. It is the intention of this Act that paragraph (a)(2) of this section means that the named persons no longer continue to actually live within the State. Thus, unless a modification proceeding has been commenced, when the child, the parents, and all persons acting as parents physically leave the State to live elsewhere, the exclusive, continuing jurisdiction ceases.

The phrase "do not presently reside" is not used in the sense of a technical domicile. The fact that the original determination State still considers one parent a domiciliary does not prevent it from losing exclusive, continuing jurisdiction after the child, the parents, and all persons acting as parents have moved from the State.

If the child, the parents, and all persons acting as parents have all left the State which made the custody determination prior to the commencement of the modification proceeding, considerations of waste of resources dictate that a court in State B, as well as a court in State A, can decide that State A has lost exclusive, continuing jurisdiction.

The continuing jurisdiction provisions of this section are narrower than the comparable provisions of the PKPA. That statute authorizes continuing jurisdiction so long as any "contestant" remains in the original decree State and that State continues to have jurisdiction under its own law. This Act eliminates the contestant classification. The Conference decided that a remaining grandparent or other third party who claims a right to visitation, should not suffice to confer exclusive, continuing jurisdiction on the State that made the original custody determination after the departure of the child, the parents and any person acting as a parent. The significant connection to the original decree State must relate to the child, the child and a parent, or the child and a person acting as a parent. This revision does not present a conflict with the PKPA. The PKPA's reference in § 1738(d) to § 1738(c)(1) recognizes that States may narrow the class of cases that would be subject to exclusive, continuing jurisdiction. However, during the transition from the UCCJA to this Act, some States may continue to base continuing jurisdiction on the continued presence of a contestant, such as a grandparent. The PKPA will require that such decisions be enforced. The problem will disappear as States adopt this Act to replace the UCCJA.

Jurisdiction attaches at the commencement of a proceeding. If State A had jurisdiction under this section at the time a modification proceeding was commenced there, it would not be lost by all parties moving out of the State prior to the conclusion of proceeding. State B would not have jurisdiction to hear a modification unless State A decided that State B was more appropriate under Section 207.

Exclusive, continuing jurisdiction is not reestablished if, after the child, the parents, and all persons acting as parents leave the State, the non-custodial parent returns. As subsection (b) provides, once a State has lost exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, it can modify its own determination only if it has jurisdiction under the standards of Section 201. If another State acquires exclusive continuing jurisdiction under this section, then its orders cannot be modified even if this State has once again become the home State of the child.

In accordance with the majority of UCCJA case law, the State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction may relinquish jurisdiction when it determines that another State would be a more convenient forum under the principles of Section 207.

§ 50A-203. Jurisdiction to modify determination.

Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204, a court of this State may not modify a child-custody determination made by a court of another state unless a court of this State has jurisdiction to make an initial determination under G.S. 50A-201(a)(1) or G.S. 50A-201(a)(2) and:

(1) The court of the other state determines it no longer has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-202 or that a court of this State would be a more convenient forum under G.S. 50A-207; or

(2) A court of this State or a court of the other state determines that the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent do not presently reside in the other state. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section complements Section 202 and is addressed to the court that is confronted with a proceeding to modify a custody determination of another State. It prohibits a court from modifying a custody determination made consistently with this Act by a court in another State unless a court of that State determines that it no longer has exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Section 202 or that this State would be a more convenient forum under Section 207. The modification State is not authorized to determine that the original decree State has lost its jurisdiction. The only exception is when the child, the child's parents, and any person acting as a parent do not presently reside in the other State. In other words, a court of the modification State can determine that all parties have moved away from the original State. The court of the modification State must have jurisdiction under the standards of Section 201.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-14.

Georgia's version of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA) conforms to North Carolina's version. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

Physical Presence of Child Coupled with Emergency. — To meet the requirements of former § 50A-14(a) and former § 50A-3(a)(3)(ii), the following three questions must be answered affirmatively: (1) Did the foreign court lack jurisdiction under jurisdictional prerequisites similar to those of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act or has the foreign court declined to exercise jurisdiction to modify the decree? (2) Was the child physically present in North Carolina? (3) Did an emergency situation exist? Naputi v. Naputi, 67 N.C. App. 351, 313 S.E.2d 179 (1984).

Proper Exercise of Jurisdiction and Modification of Custody Decree. — Mother and children had significant connection to North Carolina and there was substantial evidence in North Carolina. Therefore, North Carolina court correctly determined that North Carolina, not Georgia, was home state. Court did not err in assuming jurisdiction and modifying Georgia custody decree, even though children resided in Georgia and there was no evidence that Georgia had declined jurisdiction. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

Trial Court Erred in Exercising Jurisdiction. — The trial court in this State erred in exercising its jurisdiction over a custody matter where a proceeding was already pending in an Indiana court and the child had lived in Indiana since 1981, a period of six years. Indiana was exercising jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (U.C.C.J.A.), and North Carolina was required to decline jurisdiction over the custody issue. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

§ 50A-204. Temporary emergency jurisdiction.

(a) A court of this State has temporary emergency jurisdiction if the child is present in this State and the child has been abandoned or it is necessary in an emergency to protect the child because the child, or a sibling or parent of the child, is subjected to or threatened with mistreatment or abuse.

(b) If there is no previous child-custody determination that is entitled to be enforced under this Article and a child-custody proceeding has not been commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203, a child-custody determination made under this section remains in effect until an order is obtained from a court of a state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203. If a child-custody proceeding has not been or is not commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203, a child-custody determination made under this section becomes a final determination if it so provides, and this State becomes the home state of the child.

(c) If there is a previous child-custody determination that is entitled to be enforced under this Article, or a child-custody proceeding has been commenced in a court of a state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203, any order issued by a court of this State under this section must specify in the order a period that the court considers adequate to allow the person seeking an order to obtain an order from the state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203. The order issued in this State remains in effect until an order is obtained from the other state within the period specified or the period expires.

(d) A court of this State which has been asked to make a child-custody determination under this section, upon being informed that a child-custody proceeding has been commenced in, or a child-custody determination has been made by, a court of a state having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203 shall immediately communicate with the other court. A court of this State which is exercising jurisdiction pursuant to G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203, upon being informed that a child-custody proceeding has been commenced in, or a child-custody determination has been made by, a court of another state under a statute similar to this section shall immediately communicate with the court of that state to resolve the emergency, protect the safety of the parties and the child, and determine a period for the duration of the temporary order. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The provisions of this section are an elaboration of what was formerly Section 3(a)(3) of the UCCJA [former § 50A-3(a)(3).] It remains, as Professor Bodenheimer's comments to that section noted, "an extraordinary jurisdiction reserved for extraordinary circumstances."

This section codifies and clarifies several aspects of what has become common practice in emergency jurisdiction cases under the UCCJA and PKPA. First, a court may take jurisdiction to protect the child even though it can claim neither home State nor significant connection jurisdiction. Second, the duties of States to recognize, enforce and not modify a custody determination of another State do not take precedence over the need to enter a temporary emergency order to protect the child.

Third, a custody determination made under the emergency jurisdiction provisions of this section is a temporary order. The purpose of the order is to protect the child until the State that has jurisdiction under Sections 201-203 enters an order.

Under certain circumstances, however, subsection (b) provides that an emergency custody determination may become a final custody determination. If there is no existing custody determination, and no custody proceeding is filed in a State with jurisdiction under Sections 201-203, an emergency custody determination made under this section becomes a final determination, if it so provides, when the State that issues the order becomes the home State of the child.

Subsection (c) is concerned with the temporary nature of the order when there exists a prior custody order that is entitled to be enforced under this Act or when a subsequent custody proceeding is filed in a State with jurisdiction under Sections 201- 203. Subsection (c) allows the temporary order to remain in effect only so long as is necessary for the person who obtained the determination under this section to present a case and obtain an order from the State with jurisdiction under Sections 201-203. That time period must be specified in the order. If there is an existing order by a State with jurisdiction under Sections 201-203, that order need not be reconfirmed. The temporary emergency determination would lapse by its own terms at the end of the specified period or when an order is obtained from the court with jurisdiction under Sections 202-203. The court with appropriate jurisdiction also may decide, under the provisions of 207, that the court that entered the emergency order is in a better position to address the safety of the person who obtained the emergency order, or the child, and decline jurisdiction under Section 207.

Any hearing in the State with jurisdiction under Sections 201-203 on the temporary emergency determination is subject to the provisions of Sections 111 and 112. These sections facilitate the presentation of testimony and evidence taken out of State. If there is a concern that the person obtaining the temporary emergency determination under this section would be in danger upon returning to the State with jurisdiction under Sections 201-203, these provisions should be used.

Subsection (d) requires communication between the court of the State that is exercising jurisdiction under this section and the court of another State that is exercising jurisdiction under Sections 201-203. The pleading rules of Section 209 apply fully to determinations made under this section. Therefore, a person seeking a temporary emergency custody determination is required to inform the court pursuant to Section 209(d) of any proceeding concerning the child that has been commenced elsewhere. The person commencing the custody proceeding under Sections 201-203 is required under Section 209(a) to inform the court about the temporary emergency proceeding. These pleading requirements are to be strictly followed so that the courts are able to resolve the emergency, protect the safety of the parties and the child, and determine a period for the duration of the temporary order.

Relationship to the PKPA. The definition of emergency has been modified to harmonize it with the PKPA. The PKPA's definition of emergency jurisdiction does not use the term "neglect." It defines an emergency as "mistreatment or abuse." Therefore "neglect" has been eliminated as a basis for the assumption of temporary emergency jurisdiction. Neglect is so elastic a concept that it could justify taking emergency jurisdiction in a wide variety of cases. Under the PKPA, if a State exercised temporary emergency jurisdiction based on a finding that the child was neglected without a finding of mistreatment or abuse, the order would not be entitled to federal enforcement in other States.

Relationship to Protective Order Proceedings. The UCCJA and the PKPA were enacted long before the advent of state procedures on the use of protective orders to alleviate problems of domestic violence. Issues of custody and visitation often arise within the context of protective order proceedings since the protective order is often invoked to keep one parent away from the other parent and the children when there is a threat of violence. This Act recognizes that a protective order proceeding will often be the procedural vehicle for invoking jurisdiction by authorizing a court to assume temporary emergency jurisdiction when the child's parent or sibling has been subjected to or threatened with mistreatment or abuse.

In order for a protective order that contains a custody determination to be enforceable in another State it must comply with the provisions of this Act and the PKPA. Although the Violence Against Women's Act (VAWA), 18 U.S.C. § 2265, does provide an independent basis for the granting of full faith and credit to protective orders, it expressly excludes "custody" orders from the definition of "protective order," 22 U.S.C. § 2266.

Many States authorize the issuance of protective orders in an emergency without notice and hearing. This Act does not address the propriety of that procedure. It is left to local law to determine the circumstances under which such an order could be issued, and the type of notice that is required, in a case without an interstate element. However, an order issued after the assumption of temporary emergency jurisdiction is entitled to interstate enforcement and nonmodification under this Act and the PKPA only if there has been notice and a reasonable opportunity to be heard as set out in Section 205. Although VAWA does require that full faith and credit be accorded to ex parte protective orders if notice will be given and there will be a reasonable opportunity to be heard, it does not include a "custody" order within the definition of "protective order."

VAWA does play an important role in determining whether an emergency exists. That Act requires a court to give full faith and credit to a protective order issued in another State if the order is made in accordance with the VAWA. This would include those findings of fact contained in the order. When a court is deciding whether an emergency exists under this section, it may not relitigate the existence of those factual findings.

§ 50A-205. Notice; opportunity to be heard; joinder.

(a) Before a child-custody determination is made under this Article, notice and an opportunity to be heard in accordance with the standards of G.S. 50A-108 must be given to all persons entitled to notice under the law of this State as in child-custody proceedings between residents of this State, any parent whose parental rights have not been previously terminated, and any person having physical custody of the child.

(b) This Article does not govern the enforceability of a child-custody determination made without notice or an opportunity to be heard.

(c) The obligation to join a party and the right to intervene as a party in a child-custody proceeding under this Article are governed by the law of this State as in child-custody proceedings between residents of this State. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section generally continues the notice provisions of the UCCJA. However, it does not attempt to dictate who is entitled to notice. Local rules vary with regard to persons entitled to seek custody of a child. Therefore, this section simply indicates that persons entitled to seek custody should receive notice but leaves the rest of the determination to local law. Parents whose parental rights have not been previously terminated and persons having physical custody of the child are specifically mentioned as persons who must be given notice. The PKPA, § 1738A(e), requires that they be given notice in order for the custody determination to be entitled to full faith and credit under that Act.

State laws also vary with regard to whether a court has the power to issue an enforceable temporary custody order without notice and hearing in a case without any interstate element. Such temporary orders may be enforceable, as against due process objections, for a short period of time if issued as a protective order or a temporary restraining order to protect a child from harm. Whether such orders are enforceable locally is beyond the scope of this Act. Subsection (b) clearly provides that the validity of such orders and the enforceability of such orders is governed by the law which authorizes them and not by this Act. An order is entitled to interstate enforcement and nonmodification under this Act only if there has been notice and an opportunity to be heard. The PKPA, § 1738A(e), also requires that a custody determination is entitled to full faith and credit only if there has been notice and an opportunity to be heard.

Rules requiring joinder of people with an interest in the custody of and visitation with a child also vary widely throughout the country. The UCCJA has a separate section on joinder of parties which has been eliminated. The issue of who is entitled to intervene and who must be joined in a custody proceeding is to be determined by local state law.

A sentence of the UCCJA § 4 which indicated that persons outside the State were to be given notice and an opportunity to be heard in accordance with the provision of that Act has been eliminated as redundant.

§ 50A-206. Simultaneous proceedings.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204, a court of this State may not exercise its jurisdiction under this Part if, at the time of the commencement of the proceeding, a proceeding concerning the custody of the child has been commenced in a court of another state having jurisdiction substantially in conformity with this Article, unless the proceeding has been terminated or is stayed by the court of the other state because a court of this State is a more convenient forum under G.S. 50A-207.

(b) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204, a court of this State, before hearing a child-custody proceeding, shall examine the court documents and other information supplied by the parties pursuant to G.S. 50A-209. If the court determines that a child-custody proceeding has been commenced in a court in another state having jurisdiction substantially in accordance with this Article, the court of this State shall stay its proceeding and communicate with the court of the other state. If the court of the state having jurisdiction substantially in accordance with this Article does not determine that the court of this State is a more appropriate forum, the court of this State shall dismiss the proceeding.

(c) In a proceeding to modify a child-custody determination, a court of this State shall determine whether a proceeding to enforce the determination has been commenced in another state. If a proceeding to enforce a child-custody determination has been commenced in another state, the court may:

(1) Stay the proceeding for modification pending the entry of an order of a court of the other state enforcing, staying, denying, or dismissing the proceeding for enforcement;

(2) Enjoin the parties from continuing with the proceeding for enforcement; or

(3) Proceed with the modification under conditions it considers appropriate. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section represents the remnants of the simultaneous proceedings provision of the UCCJA § 6 [former § 50A-6.] The problem of simultaneous proceedings is no longer a significant issue. Most of the problems have been resolved by the prioritization of home state jurisdiction under Section 201; the exclusive, continuing jurisdiction provisions of Section 202; and the prohibitions on modification of Section 203. If there is a home State, there can be no exercise of significant connection jurisdiction in an initial child custody determination and, therefore, no simultaneous proceedings. If there is a State of exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, there cannot be another State with concurrent jurisdiction and, therefore, no simultaneous proceedings. Of course, the home State, as well as the State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, could defer to another State under Section 207. However, that decision is left entirely to the home State or the State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction.

Under this Act, the simultaneous proceedings problem will arise only when there is no home State, no State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction and more than one significant connection State. For those cases, this section retains the "first in time" rule of the UCCJA. Subsection (b) retains the UCCJA's policy favoring judicial communication. Communication between courts is required when it is determined that a proceeding has been commenced in another State.

Subsection (c) concerns the problem of simultaneous proceedings in the State with modification jurisdiction and enforcement proceedings under Article 3. This section authorizes the court with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction to stay the modification proceeding pending the outcome of the enforcement proceeding, to enjoin the parties from continuing with the enforcement proceeding, or to continue the modification proceeding under such conditions as it determines are appropriate. The court may wish to communicate with the enforcement court. However, communication is not mandatory. Although the enforcement State is required by the PKPA to enforce according to its terms a custody determination made consistently with the PKPA, that duty is subject to the decree being modified by a State with the power to do so under the PKPA. An order to enjoin the parties from enforcing the decree is the equivalent of a temporary modification by a State with the authority to do so. The concomitant provision addressed to the enforcement court is Section 306 of this Act. That section requires the enforcement court to communicate with the modification court in order to determine what action the modification court wishes the enforcement court to take.

The term "pending" that was utilized in the UCCJA section on simultaneous proceeding has been replaced. It has caused considerable confusion in the case law. It has been replaced with the term "commencement of the proceeding" as more accurately reflecting the policy behind this section. The latter term is defined in Section 102(5).

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former §§ 50A-6 and 50A-14.

Duty to Contact State With Original Jurisdiction. — In a proceeding by the Department of Social Services seeking protective custody of a child based on evidence of sexual abuse by the father, the trial court was required to contact the appropriate Florida court to determine if that state was willing to assume jurisdiction of the case. In re Malone, 129 N.C. App. 338, 498 S.E.2d 836 (1998).

What Law Governs. — The issue of a state court's jurisdiction over child custody matters is governed by this Chapter, the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (see now Article 2 of this chapter), and the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A. Schrock v. Schrock, 89 N.C. App. 308, 365 S.E.2d 657 (1988); In re Bean, 132 N.C. App. 363, 511 S.E.2d 683 (1999).

When there is an action already pending in another state, trial court must answer threshold question of whether the other state was exercising jurisdiction substantially in conformity with this Chapter. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

Full Faith and Credit Properly Refused. — Refusal of North Carolina court to give full faith and credit to a Michigan custody award was not improper, where Michigan's exercise of jurisdiction was not consistent with the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, and the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. Schrock v. Schrock, 89 N.C. App. 308, 365 S.E.2d 657 (1988).

Jurisdiction of Foreign Court Not Obtained in Conformity with Chapter. — California court did not obtain jurisdiction over child custody proceeding substantially in conformity with this Chapter where North Carolina rather than California was the home state of the children; there was no evidence that the children had a "significant connection" with California or that "substantial evidence" was available in California concerning the children's care; and there was significant evidence that defendant had on several occasions taken the children from North Carolina to California without plaintiff's consent. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

Refusal to Assert Jurisdiction Held Proper. — For case holding trial court properly declined to assert jurisdiction based upon conclusion that another state had assumed jurisdiction as the home state of the children involved in the custody matter in question, see Bhatti v. Bhatti, 98 N.C. App. 493, 391 S.E.2d 201 (1990).

Although the child resided in North Carolina, the court properly declined jurisdiction because the father continued to reside in the state of the court of original jurisdiction; thus, the Florida court retained jurisdiction under the Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A. In re Bean, 132 N.C. App. 363, 511 S.E.2d 683 (1999).

Trial Court Erred in Exercising Jurisdiction. — The trial court in this State erred in exercising its jurisdiction over a custody matter where a proceeding was already pending in an Indiana court and the child had lived in Indiana since 1981, a period of six years. Indiana was exercising jurisdiction in substantial conformity with the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (U.C.C.J.A.), and North Carolina was required to decline jurisdiction over the custody issue. Lynch v. Lynch, 96 N.C. App. 601, 386 S.E.2d 607 (1989).

Exercise of Jurisdiction Upheld. — Trial court did not err in exercising jurisdiction in a child custody proceeding on the ground that an identical action was pending in Virginia where judgment was entered by the Virginia court three weeks before the mother commenced an action in this State, and the mother, who was the losing party in the Virginia proceeding, showed that she had no interest in appealing the Virginia judgment when she filed her action in this State. Williams v. Richardson, 53 N.C. App. 663, 281 S.E.2d 777 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 733, 288 S.E.2d 382 (1982).

District court was not precluded from exercising subject matter jurisdiction over custody and support action by former 50A-14(a) of this section, where there was no proceeding concerning the custody of the minor children pending in a court of another state when plaintiff filed her complaint. Brookshire v. Brookshire, 89 N.C. App. 48, 365 S.E.2d 307 (1988).

§ 50A-207. Inconvenient forum.

(a) A court of this State which has jurisdiction under this Article to make a child-custody determination may decline to exercise its jurisdiction at any time if it determines that it is an inconvenient forum under the circumstances, and that a court of another state is a more appropriate forum. The issue of inconvenient forum may be raised upon motion of a party, the court's own motion, or request of another court.

(b) Before determining whether it is an inconvenient forum, a court of this State shall consider whether it is appropriate for a court of another state to exercise jurisdiction. For this purpose, the court shall allow the parties to submit information and shall consider all relevant factors, including:

(1) Whether domestic violence has occurred and is likely to continue in the future and which state could best protect the parties and the child;
(2) The length of time the child has resided outside this State;
(3) The distance between the court in this State and the court in the state that would assume jurisdiction;
(4) The relative financial circumstances of the parties;
(5) Any agreement of the parties as to which state should assume jurisdiction;
(6) The nature and location of the evidence required to resolve the pending litigation, including testimony of the child;
(7) The ability of the court of each state to decide the issue expeditiously and the procedures necessary to present the evidence; and
(8) The familiarity of the court of each state with the facts and issues in the pending litigation.

(c) If a court of this State determines that it is an inconvenient forum and that a court of another state is a more appropriate forum, it shall stay the proceedings upon condition that a child-custody proceeding be promptly commenced in another designated state and may impose any other condition the court considers just and proper.

(d) A court of this State may decline to exercise its jurisdiction under this Article if a child-custody determination is incidental to an action for divorce or another proceeding while still retaining jurisdiction over the divorce or other proceeding. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section retains the focus of Section 7 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-7.] It authorizes courts to decide that another State is in a better position to make the custody determination, taking into consideration the relative circumstances of the parties. If so, the court may defer to the other State.

The list of factors that the court may consider has been updated from the UCCJA. The list is not meant to be exclusive. Several provisions require comment. Subparagraph (1) is concerned specifically with domestic violence and other matters affecting the health and safety of the parties. For this purpose, the court should determine whether the parties are located in different States because one party is a victim of domestic violence or child abuse. If domestic violence or child abuse has occurred, this factor authorizes the court to consider which State can best protect the victim from further violence or abuse.

In applying subparagraph (3), courts should realize that distance concerns can be alleviated by applying the communication and cooperation provisions of Sections 111 and 112.

In applying subsection (7) on expeditious resolution of the controversy, the court could consider the different procedural and evidentiary laws of the two States, as well as the flexibility of the court dockets. It also should consider the ability of a court to arrive at a solution to all the legal issues surrounding the family. If one State has jurisdiction to decide both the custody and support issues, it would be desirable to determine that State to be the most convenient forum. The same is true when children of the same family live in different States. It would be inappropriate to require parents to have custody proceedings in several States when one State could resolve the custody of all the children.

Before determining whether to decline or retain jurisdiction, the court of this State may communicate, in accordance with Section 110, with a court of another State and exchange information pertinent to the assumption of jurisdiction by either court.

There are two departures from Section 7 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-7.] First, the court may not simply dismiss the action. To do so would leave the case in limbo. Rather the court shall stay the case and direct the parties to file in the State that has been found to be the more convenient forum. The court is also authorized to impose any other conditions it considers appropriate. This might include the issuance of temporary custody orders during the time necessary to commence a proceeding in the designated State, dismissing the case if the custody proceeding is not commenced in the other State or resuming jurisdiction if a court of the other State refuses to take the case.

Second, UCCJA, § 7(g) [former § 50A-7(g)] which allowed the court to assess fees and costs if it was a clearly inappropriate court, has been eliminated. If a court has jurisdiction under this Act, it could not be a clearly inappropriate court.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-7.

Without a showing that the best interests of the child would be served if another state assumed jurisdiction, North Carolina courts should not defer jurisdiction pursuant to this section. Kelly v. Kelly, 77 N.C. App. 632, 335 S.E.2d 780 (1985).

Discretion of Trial Court. — Deferring jurisdiction on inconvenient forum grounds rests in the sound discretion of the trial court. Kelly v. Kelly, 77 N.C. App. 632, 335 S.E.2d 780 (1985).

Forum Appropriate. — Where the trial court made 15 detailed findings of fact including findings that support was paid by the defendant in North Carolina, three of the four parties live in Wilmington, North Carolina, and the plaintiff was moving to Virginia allegedly to go to school, these findings were sufficient to show that North Carolina was a convenient forum for the continued exercise of jurisdiction. Wilson v. Wilson, 121 N.C. App. 292, 465 S.E.2d 44 (1996).

§ 50A-208. Jurisdiction declined by reason of conduct.

(a) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-204 or by other law of this State, if a court of this State has jurisdiction under this Article because a person seeking to invoke its jurisdiction has engaged in unjustifiable conduct, the court shall decline to exercise its jurisdiction unless:

(1) The parents and all persons acting as parents have acquiesced in the exercise of jurisdiction;
(2) A court of the state otherwise having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203 determines that this State is a more appropriate forum under G.S. 50A-207; or
(3) No court of any other state would have jurisdiction under the criteria specified in G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203.

(b) If a court of this State declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a), it may fashion an appropriate remedy to ensure the safety of the child and prevent a repetition of the unjustifiable conduct, including staying the proceeding until a child-custody proceeding is commenced in a court having jurisdiction under G.S. 50A-201 through G.S. 50A-203.

(c) If a court dismisses a petition or stays a proceeding because it declines to exercise its jurisdiction pursuant to subsection (a), it shall assess against the party seeking to invoke its jurisdiction necessary and reasonable expenses including costs, communication expenses, attorneys' fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings, unless the party from whom fees are sought establishes that the assessment would be clearly inappropriate. The court may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against this State unless authorized by law other than this Article. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The "Clean Hands" section of the UCCJA has been truncated in this Act. Since there is no longer a multiplicity of jurisdictions which could take cognizance of a child-custody proceeding, there is less of a concern that one parent will take the child to another jurisdiction in an attempt to find a more favorable forum. Most of the jurisdictional problems generated by abducting parents should be solved by the prioritization of home State in Section 201; the exclusive, continuing jurisdiction provisions of Section 202; and the ban on modification in Section 203. For example, if a parent takes the child from the home State and seeks an original custody determination elsewhere, the stay-at-home parent has six months to file a custody petition under the extended home state jurisdictional provision of Section 201, which will ensure that the case is retained in the home State. If a petitioner for a modification determination takes the child from the State that issued the original custody determination, another State cannot assume jurisdiction as long at the first State exercises exclusive, continuing jurisdiction.

Nonetheless, there are still a number of cases where parents, or their surrogates, act in a reprehensible manner, such as removing, secreting, retaining, or restraining the child. This section ensures that abducting parents will not receive an advantage for their unjustifiable conduct. If the conduct that creates the jurisdiction is unjustified, courts must decline to exercise jurisdiction that is inappropriately invoked by one of the parties. For example, if one parent abducts the child pre-decree and establishes a new home State, that jurisdiction will decline to hear the case. There are exceptions. If the other party has acquiesced in the court's jurisdiction, the court may hear the case. Such acquiescence may occur by filing a pleading submitting to the jurisdiction, or by not filing in the court that would otherwise have jurisdiction under this Act. Similarly, if the court that would have jurisdiction finds that the court of this State is a more appropriate forum, the court may hear the case.

This section applies to those situations where jurisdiction exists because of the unjustified conduct of the person seeking to invoke it. If, for example, a parent in the State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Section 202 has either restrained the child from visiting with the other parent, or has retained the child after visitation, and seeks to modify the decree, this section in inapplicable. The conduct of restraining or retaining the child did not create jurisdiction. Jurisdiction existed under this Act without regard to the parent's conduct. Whether a court should decline to hear the parent's request to modify is a matter of local law.

The focus in this section is on the unjustified conduct of the person who invokes the jurisdiction of the court. A technical illegality or wrong is insufficient to trigger the applicability of this section. This is particularly important in cases involving domestic violence and child abuse.

Domestic violence victims should not be charged with unjustifiable conduct for conduct that occurred in the process of fleeing domestic violence, even if their conduct is technically illegal. Thus, if a parent flees with a child to escape domestic violence and in the process violates a joint custody decree, the case should not be automatically dismissed under this section. An inquiry must be made into whether the flight was justified under the circumstances of the case. However, an abusive parent who seizes the child and flees to another State to establish jurisdiction has engaged in unjustifiable conduct and the new State must decline to exercise jurisdiction under this section.

Subsection (b) authorizes the court to fashion an appropriate remedy for the safety of the child and to prevent a repetition of the unjustified conduct. Thus, it would be appropriate for the court to notify the other parent and to provide for foster care for the child until the child is returned to the other parent. The court could also stay the proceeding and require that a custody proceeding be instituted in another State that would have jurisdiction under this Act. It should be noted that the court is not making a forum non conveniens analysis in this section. If the conduct is unjustifiable, it must decline jurisdiction. It may, however, retain jurisdiction until a custody proceeding is commenced in the appropriate tribunal if such retention is necessary to prevent a repetition of the wrongful conduct or to ensure the safety of the child.

The attorney's fee standard for this section is patterned after the International Child Abduction Remedies Act, 42 U.S.C. § 11607(b)(3). The assessed costs and fees are to be paid to the respondent who established that jurisdiction was based on unjustifiable conduct.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-8.

Findings of Court Where Child Is Improperly Retained in This State. — Even when the district court has jurisdiction over the person of the out-of-state parent in an action to modify a foreign custody decree, it has no authority to exercise its jurisdiction without making findings of fact which support the conclusion that such exercise is required in the interest of the child, if the record shows that the parent seeking the modification has improperly retained the child. Jerson v. Jerson, 68 N.C. App. 738, 315 S.E.2d 522 (1984).

A recitation in the trial court's order that it was in the best interest of child who was improperly retained by mother in this state that it assume jurisdiction did not comply with the stated policy of the former UCCJA or with the case law, as it did not contain specific facts. Jerson v. Jerson, 68 N.C. App. 738, 315 S.E.2d 522 (1984).

Findings Where Child Is Abducted. — The trial court was not required by former § 50A-8 to decline jurisdiction of a proceeding to modify a Virginia child custody decree merely because the mother had abducted one of the children and had taken her to this State if the court properly determined that it was in the best interest of the children that the court exercise jurisdiction despite the abduction; however, as the trial court's conclusion that it should exercise jurisdiction was unsupported by findings of fact, the case would be remanded for such findings. Williams v. Richardson, 53 N.C. App. 663, 281 S.E.2d 777 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 733, 288 S.E.2d 382 (1982).

California court did not obtain jurisdiction over child custody proceedings substantially in conformity with this Chapter where North Carolina rather than California was the home state of the children; there was no evidence that the children had a "significant connection" with California or that "substantial evidence" was available in California concerning the children's care; and there was significant evidence that defendant had on several occasions taken the children from North Carolina to California without plaintiff's consent. Davis v. Davis, 53 N.C. App. 531, 281 S.E.2d 411 (1981).

§ 50A-209. Information to be submitted to court.

(a) In a child-custody proceeding, each party, in its first pleading or in an attached affidavit, shall give information, if reasonably ascertainable, under oath as to the child's present address or whereabouts, the places where the child has lived during the last five years, and the names and present addresses of the persons with whom the child has lived during that period. The pleading or affidavit must state whether the party:

(1) Has participated, as a party or witness or in any other capacity, in any other proceeding concerning the custody of or visitation with the child and, if so, the pleading or affidavit shall identify the court, the case number, and the date of the child-custody determination, if any;

(2) Knows of any proceeding that could affect the current proceeding, including proceedings for enforcement and proceedings relating to domestic violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, and adoptions and, if so, the pleading or affidavit shall identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding; and

(3) Knows the names and addresses of any person not a party to the proceeding who has physical custody of the child or claims rights of legal custody or physical custody of, or visitation with, the child and, if so, the names and addresses of those persons.

(b) If the information required by subdivisions (a) is not furnished, the court, upon motion of a party or its own motion, may stay the proceeding until the information is furnished.

(c) If the declaration as to any of the items described in subdivisions (a)(1) through (3) is in the affirmative, the declarant shall give additional information under oath as required by the court. The court may examine the parties under oath as to details of the information furnished and other matters pertinent to the court's jurisdiction and the disposition of the case.

(d) Each party has a continuing duty to inform the court of any proceeding in this or any other state that could affect the current proceeding.

(e) If a party alleges in an affidavit or a pleading under oath that the health, safety, or liberty of a party or child would be jeopardized by disclosure of identifying information, the information must be sealed and may not be disclosed to the other party or the public unless the court orders the disclosure to be made after a hearing in which the court takes into consideration the health, safety, or liberty of the party or child and determines that the disclosure is in the interest of justice. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The pleading requirements from Section 9 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-9] are generally carried over into this Act. However, the information is made subject to local law on the protection of names and other identifying information in certain cases. A number of States have enacted laws relating to the protection of victims in domestic violence and child abuse cases which provide for the confidentiality of victims names, addresses, and other information. These procedures must be followed if the child-custody proceeding of the State requires their applicability. See, e.g., California Family Law Code § 3409(a). If a State does not have local law that provides for protecting names and addresses, then subsection (e) or a similar provision should be adopted. Subsection (e) is based on the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judge's, Model Code on Domestic and Family Violence § 304(c). There are other models to choose from, in particular UIFSA § 312.

In subsection (a)(2), the term "proceedings" should be read broadly to include more than custody proceedings. Thus, if one parent was being criminally prosecuted for child abuse or custodial interference, those proceedings should be disclosed. If the child is subject to the Interstate Compact on the Placement of Children, facts relating to compliance with the Compact should be disclosed in the pleading or affidavit.

Subsection (b) has been added. It authorizes the court to stay the proceeding until the information required in subsection (a) has been disclosed, although failure to provide the information does not deprive the court of jurisdiction to hear the case. This follows the majority of jurisdictions which held that failure to comply with the pleading requirements of the UCCJA did not deprive the court of jurisdiction to make a custody determination.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-9.

Former § 50A-9 required that every party in a custody pleading give information under oath regarding the children's present address, the places where they lived within the last five years, and the names and present addresses of the persons with whom the children lived during that period. Bhatti v. Bhatti, 98 N.C. App. 493, 391 S.E.2d 201 (1990).

Proper Exercise of Jurisdiction Despite Noncompliance with Oath Requirements. — Court of appeals declined to accept plaintiff's argument that failure to comply fully with former 50A-9's oath requirements defeated the court's subject matter jurisdiction. Pheasant v. McKibben, 100 N.C. App. 379, 396 S.E.2d 333 (1990).

Purpose of Oath Requirement. — An obvious purpose of the requirement of former 50A-9 that certain information be presented under oath was to enable the court to determine whether it should properly exercise jurisdiction, under the former UCCJA, of a child custody dispute. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

Affidavit Not Prerequisite to Jurisdiction Obtained under former § 7A-523. — Where the court obtained jurisdiction over a juvenile matter pursuant to former § 7A-523, and not the former UCCJA, the affidavit referred to in this section was not a prerequisite to its jurisdiction. In re Botsford, 75 N.C. App. 72, 330 S.E.2d 23 (1985).

Where Texas decree made no findings of fact to support its exercise of jurisdiction in determining custody of child, the North Carolina trial court correctly found and concluded that the Texas court had not assumed jurisdiction over the custody determination in substantial conformity with the former UCCJA or upon a finding of factual circumstances meeting the jurisdictional requirements of the former UCCJA. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

§ 50A-210. Appearance of parties and child.

(a) In a child-custody proceeding in this State, the court may order a party to the proceeding who is in this State to appear before the court in person with or without the child. The court may order any person who is in this State and who has physical custody or control of the child to appear in person with the child.

(b) If a party to a child-custody proceeding whose presence is desired by the court is outside this State, the court may order that a notice given pursuant to G.S. 50A-108 include a statement directing the party to appear in person with or without the child and informing the party that failure to appear may result in a decision adverse to the party.

(c) The court may enter any orders necessary to ensure the safety of the child and of any person ordered to appear under this section.

(d) If a party to a child-custody proceeding who is outside this State is directed to appear under subsection (b) or desires to appear personally before the court with or without the child, the court may require another party to pay reasonable and necessary travel and other expenses of the party so appearing and of the child. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

No major changes have been made to this section which was Section 11 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-11.] Language was added to subsection (a) to authorize the court to require a non-party who has physical custody of the child to produce the child.

Subsection (c) authorizes the court to enter orders providing for the safety of the child and the person ordered to appear with the child. If safety is a major concern, the court, as an alternative to ordering a party to appear with the child, could order and arrange for the party's testimony to be taken in another State under Section 111. This alternative might be important when there are safety concerns regarding requiring victims of domestic violence or child abuse to travel to the jurisdiction where the abuser resides.

Part 3. Enforcement.

§ 50A-301. Definitions.

In this Part:

(1) "Petitioner" means a person who seeks enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction or enforcement of a child-custody determination.

(2) "Respondent" means a person against whom a proceeding has been commenced for enforcement of an order for return of a child under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction or enforcement of a child-custody determination. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

For purposes of this article, "petitioner" and "respondent" are defined. The definitions clarify certain aspects of the notice and hearing sections.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1999-223, s. 15, made this Part effective October 1, 1999, and applicable to causes of action arising on or after that date.

§ 50A-302. Enforcement under Hague Convention.

Under this Part, a court of this State may enforce an order for the return of the child made under the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction as if it were a child-custody determination. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section applies the enforcement remedies provided by this article to orders requiring the return of a child issued under the authority of the International Child Abduction Remedies Act (ICARA), 42 U.S.C. § 11601 et seq., implementing the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction. Specific mention of ICARA proceedings is necessary because they often occur prior to any formal custody determination. However, the need for a speedy enforcement remedy for an order to return the child is just as necessary.

§ 50A-303. Duty to enforce.

(a) A court of this State shall recognize and enforce a child-custody determination of a court of another state if the latter court exercised jurisdiction in substantial conformity with this Article or the determination was made under factual circumstances meeting the jurisdictional standards of this Article, and the determination has not been modified in accordance with this Article.

(b) A court of this State may utilize any remedy available under other law of this State to enforce a child-custody determination made by a court of another state. The remedies provided in this Part are cumulative and do not affect the availability of other remedies to enforce a child-custody determination. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is based on Section 13 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-13] which contained the basic duty to enforce. The language of the original section has been retained and the duty to enforce is generally the same.

Enforcement of custody determinations of issuing States is also required by federal law in the PKPA, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a). The changes made in Article 2 of this Act now make a State's duty to enforce and not modify a child custody determination of another State consistent with the enforcement and nonmodification provisions of the PKPA. Therefore custody determinations made by a State pursuant to the UCCJA that would be enforceable under the PKPA will generally be enforced under this Act. However, if a State custody determination made pursuant to the UCCJA would not be enforceable under the PKPA, it will also not be enforceable under this Act. Thus a custody determination made by a "significant connection" jurisdiction when there is a home State is not enforceable under the PKPA regardless of whether a proceeding was ever commenced in the home State. Even though such a determination would be enforceable under the UCCJA with its four concurrent bases of jurisdiction, it would not be enforceable under this Act. This carries out the policy of the PKPA of strongly discouraging a State from exercising its concurrent "significant connection" jurisdiction under the UCCJA when another State could exercise "home state" jurisdiction.

This section also incorporates the concept of Section 15 of the UCCJA [former § 50A-15] to the effect that a custody determination of another State will be enforced in the same manner as a custody determination made by a court of this State. Whatever remedies are available to enforce a local determination can be utilized to enforce a custody determination of another State. However, it remains a custody determination of the State that issued it. A child-custody determination of another State is not subject to modification unless the State would have jurisdiction to modify the determination under Article 2.

The remedies provided by this article for the enforcement of a custody determination will normally be used. This article does not detract from other remedies available under other local law. There is often a need for a number of remedies to ensure that a child-custody determination is obeyed. If other remedies would easily facilitate enforcement, they are still available. The petitioner, for example, can still cite the respondent for contempt of court or file a tort claim for intentional interference with custodial relations if those remedies are available under local law.

§ 50A-304. Temporary visitation.

(a) A court of this State which does not have jurisdiction to modify a child-custody determination may issue a temporary order enforcing:

(1) A visitation schedule made by a court of another state; or

(2) The visitation provisions of a child-custody determination of another state that does not provide for a specific visitation schedule.

(b) If a court of this State makes an order under subdivisions (a)(2) of this section, it shall specify in the order a period that it considers adequate to allow the petitioner to obtain an order from a court having jurisdiction under the criteria specified in Part 2. The order remains in effect until an order is obtained from the other court or the period expires. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section authorizes a court to issue a temporary order if it is necessary to enforce visitation rights without violating the rules on nonmodification contained in Section 303. Therefore, if there is a visitation schedule provided in the custody determination that was made in accordance with Article 2, a court can issue an order under this section implementing the schedule. An implementing order may include make-up or substitute visitation.

A court may also issue a temporary order providing for visitation if visitation was authorized in the custody determination, but no specific schedule was included in the custody determination. Such an order could include a substitution of a specific visitation schedule for "reasonable and seasonable."

However, a court may not, under subsection

(a)(2) provide for a permanent change in visitation. Therefore, requests for a permanent change in the visitation schedule must be addressed to the court with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Section 202 or modification jurisdiction under Section 203. As under Section 204, subsection (b) of this section requires that the temporary visitation order stay in effect only long enough to allow the person who obtained the order to obtain a permanent modification in the State with appropriate jurisdiction under Article 2.

§ 50A-305. Registration of child-custody determination.

(a) A child-custody determination issued by a court of another state may be registered in this State, with or without a simultaneous request for enforcement, by sending to the appropriate court in this State:

(1) A letter or other document requesting registration;

(2) Two copies, including one certified copy, of the determination sought to be registered, and a statement under penalty of perjury that to the best of the knowledge and belief of the person seeking registration the order has not been modified; and

(3) Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-209, the name and address of the person seeking registration and any parent or person acting as a parent who has been awarded custody or visitation in the child-custody determination sought to be registered.

(b) On receipt of the documents required by subsection (a), the registering court shall:

(1) Cause the determination to be filed as a foreign judgment, together with one copy of any accompanying documents and information, regardless of their form; and

(2) Direct the petitioner to serve notice upon the persons named pursuant to subdivison (a)(3), including notice of their opportunity to contest the registration in accordance with this section.

(c) The notice required by subdivision (b)(2) must state that:

(1) A registered determination is enforceable as of the date of the registration in the same manner as a determination issued by a court of this State;

(2) A hearing to contest the validity of the registered determination must be requested within 20 days after service of notice; and

(3) Failure to contest the registration will result in confirmation of the child-custody determination and preclude further contest of that determination with respect to any matter that could have been asserted.

(d) A person seeking to contest the validity of a registered order must request a hearing within 20 days after service of the notice. At that hearing, the court shall confirm the registered order unless the person contesting registration establishes that:

(1) The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2;

(2) The child-custody determination sought to be registered has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2; or

(3) The person contesting registration was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of G.S. 50A-108 in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which registration is sought.

(e) If a timely request for a hearing to contest the validity of the registration is not made, the registration is confirmed as a matter of law, and the person requesting registration and all persons served must be notified of the confirmation.

(f) Confirmation of a registered order, whether by operation of law or after notice and hearing, precludes further contest of the order with respect to any matter that could have been asserted at the time of registration. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1997-81, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This remainder of this article provides enforcement mechanisms for interstate child custody determinations.

This section authorizes a simple registration procedure that can be used to predetermine the enforceability of a custody determination. It parallels the process in UIFSA for the registration of child support orders. It should be as much of an aid to pro se litigants as the registration procedure of UIFSA.

A custody determination can be registered without any accompanying request for enforcement. This may be of significant assistance in international cases. For example, the custodial parent under a foreign custody order can receive an advance determination of whether that order would be recognized and enforced before sending the child to the United States for visitation. Article 26 of the 1996 Hague Convention on Jurisdiction, Applicable Law, Recognition and Cooperation in Respect of Parental Responsibility and Measures for the Protection of Children, 35 I.L.M. 1391 (1996), requires those States which accede to the Convention to provide such a procedure.

Legal Periodicals. — For note, "A Public Goods Approach to Calculating Reasonable Fees Under Attorney Fee Shifting Statutes," see 1989 Duke L.J. 438.

For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The case cited below was decided under former § 50A-15.

Failure to Award Fees and Expenses Upheld. — Where the court determined that plaintiff had not violated Texas custody decree and that defendant was not entitled to its enforcement in North Carolina, there was no abuse of discretion in the court's failure to award attorneys' fees and travel expenses to plaintiff. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

§ 50A-306. Enforcement of registered determination.

(a) A court of this State may grant any relief normally available under the law of this State to enforce a registered child-custody determination made by a court of another state.

(b) A court of this State shall recognize and enforce, but may not modify, except in accordance with Part 2, a registered child-custody determination of a court of another state. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

A registered child-custody determination can be enforced as if it was a child-custody determination of this State. However, it remains a custody determination of the State that issued it. A registered custody order is not subject to modification unless the State would have jurisdiction to modify the order under Article 2.

§ 50A-307. Simultaneous proceedings.

If a proceeding for enforcement under this Part is commenced in a court of this State and the court determines that a proceeding to modify the determination is pending in a court of another state having jurisdiction to modify the determination under Part 2, the enforcing court shall immediately communicate with the modifying court. The proceeding for enforcement continues unless the enforcing court, after consultation with the modifying court, stays or dismisses the proceeding. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The pleading rules of Section 308, require the parties to disclose any pending proceedings. Normally, an enforcement proceeding will take precedence over a modification action since the PKPA requires enforcement of child custody determinations made in accordance with its terms. However, the enforcement court must communicate with the modification court in order to avoid duplicative litigation. The courts might decide that the court with jurisdiction under Article 2 shall continue with the modification action and stay the enforcement proceeding. Or they might decide that the enforcement proceeding shall go forward. The ultimate decision rests with the court having exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Section 202, or if there is no State with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction, then the decision rests with the State that would have jurisdiction to modify under Section 203. Therefore, if that court determines that the enforcement proceeding should be stayed or dismissed, the enforcement court should stay or dismiss the proceeding. If the enforcement court does not do so, the court with exclusive, continuing jurisdiction under Section 202, or with modification jurisdiction under Section 203, could enjoin the parties from continuing with the enforcement proceeding.

§ 50A-308. Expedited enforcement of child-custody determination.

(a) A petition under this Part must be verified. Certified copies of all orders sought to be enforced and of any order confirming registration must be attached to the petition. A copy of a certified copy of an order may be attached instead of the original.

(b) A petition for enforcement of a child-custody determination must state:

(1) Whether the court that issued the determination identified the jurisdictional basis it relied upon in exercising jurisdiction and, if so, what the basis was;

(2) Whether the determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court whose decision must be enforced under this Article and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding;

(3) Whether any proceeding has been commenced that could affect the current proceeding, including proceedings relating to domestic violence, protective orders, termination of parental rights, and adoptions and, if so, identify the court, the case number, and the nature of the proceeding;

(4) The present physical address of a child and the respondent, if known;

(5) Whether relief in addition to the immediate physical custody of the child and attorneys' fees is sought, including a request for assistance from law enforcement officials and, if so, the relief sought; and

(6) If the child-custody determination has been registered and confirmed under G.S. 50A-305, the date and place of registration.

(c) Upon the filing of a petition, the court shall issue an order directing the respondent to appear in person with or without the child at a hearing and may enter any order necessary to ensure the safety of the parties and the child. The hearing must be held on the next judicial day after service of the order unless that date is impossible. In that event, the court shall hold the hearing on the first judicial day possible. The court may extend the date of hearing at the request of the petitioner.

(d) An order issued under subsection (c) must state the time and place of the hearing and advise the respondent that at the hearing the court will order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child and the payment of fees, costs, and expenses under G.S. 50A-312, and may schedule a hearing to determine whether further relief is appropriate, unless the respondent appears and establishes that:

(1) The child-custody determination has not been registered and confirmed under G.S. 50A-305 and that:
   a. The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2;
   b. The child-custody determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2;
   c. The respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of G.S. 50A-108 in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which enforcement is sought; or

(2) The child-custody determination for which enforcement is sought was registered and confirmed under G.S. 50A-304, but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section provides the normal remedy that will be used in interstate cases: the production of the child in a summary, remedial process based on habeas corpus.

The petition is intended to provide the court with as much information as possible. Attaching certified copies of all orders sought to be enforced allows the court to have the necessary information. Most of the information relates to the permissible scope of the court's inquiry. The petitioner has the responsibility to inform the court of all proceedings that would affect the current enforcement action. Specific mention is made of certain proceedings to ensure that they are disclosed. A 'procedure relating to domestic violence' includes not only protective order proceedings but also criminal prosecutions for child abuse or domestic violence.

The order requires the respondent to appear at a hearing on the next judicial day. The term 'next judicial day' in this section means the next day when a judge is at the courthouse. At the hearing, the court will order the child to be delivered to the petitioner unless the respondent is prepared to assert that the issuing State lacked jurisdiction, that notice was not given in accordance with Section 108, or that the order sought to be enforced has been vacated, modified, or stayed by a court with jurisdiction to do so under Article 2. The court is also to order payment of the fees and expenses set out in Section 312. The court may set another hearing to determine whether additional relief available under this state's law should be granted.

If the order has been registered and confirmed in accordance with Section 304, the only defense to enforcement is that the order has been vacated, stayed or modified since the registration proceeding by a court with jurisdiction to do so under Article 2.

§ 50A-309. Service of petition and order.

Except as otherwise provided in G.S. 50A-311, the petition and order must be served, by any method authorized by the law of this State, upon respondent and any person who has physical custody of the child. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

In keeping with other sections of this Act, the question of how the petition and order should be served is left to local law.

§ 50A-310. Hearing and order.

(a) Unless the court issues a temporary emergency order pursuant to G.S. 50A-204 upon a finding that a petitioner is entitled to immediate physical custody of the child, the court shall order that the petitioner may take immediate physical custody of the child unless the respondent establishes that:

(1) The child-custody determination has not been registered and confirmed under G.S. 50A-305 and that:
   a. The issuing court did not have jurisdiction under Part 2;
   b. The child-custody determination for which enforcement is sought has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2; or
   c. The respondent was entitled to notice, but notice was not given in accordance with the standards of G.S. 50A-108 in the proceedings before the court that issued the order for which enforcement is sought; or

(2) The child-custody determination for which enforcement is sought was registered and confirmed under G.S. 50A-305 but has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court of a state having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2.

(b) The court shall award the fees, costs, and expenses authorized under G.S. 50A-312 and may grant additional relief, including a request for the assistance of law enforcement officials, and set a further hearing to determine whether additional relief is appropriate.

(c) If a party called to testify refuses to answer on the ground that the testimony may be self-incriminating, the court may draw an adverse inference from the refusal.

(d) A privilege against disclosure of communications between spouses and a defense of immunity based on the relationship of husband and wife or parent and child may not be invoked in a proceeding under this Part. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The scope of inquiry for the enforcing court is quite limited. Federal law requires the court to enforce the custody determination if the issuing state's decree was rendered in compliance with the PKPA. 28 U.S.C. § 1738A(a). This Act requires enforcement of custody determinations that are made in conformity with Article 2's jurisdictional rules.

The certified copy, or a copy of the certified copy, of the custody determination entitling the petitioner to the child is prima facie evidence of the issuing court's jurisdiction to enter the order. If the order is one that is entitled to be enforced under Article 2 and if it has been violated, the burden shifts to the respondent to show that the custody determination is not entitled to enforcement.

It is a defense to enforcement that another jurisdiction has issued a custody determination that is required to be enforced under Article 2. An example is when one court has based its original custody determination on the UCCJA § 3(a)(2) [former § 50A-3(a)(2)] (significant connections) and another jurisdiction has rendered an original custody determination based on the UCCJA § 3(a)(1) [former § 50A-3(a)(1)] (home State). When this occurs, Article 2 of this Act, as well as the PKPA, mandate that the home state determination be enforced in all other States, including the State that rendered the significant connections determination.

Lack of notice in accordance with Section 108 by a person entitled to notice and opportunity to be heard at the original custody determination is a defense to enforcement of the custody determination. The scope of the defense under this Act is the same as the defense would be under the law of the State that issued the notice. Thus, if the defense of lack of notice would not be available under local law if the respondent purposely hid from the petitioner, took deliberate steps to avoid service of process or elected not to participate in the initial proceedings, the defense would also not be available under this Act.

There are no other defenses to an enforcement action. If the child would be endangered by the enforcement of a custody or visitation order, there may be a basis for the assumption of emergency jurisdiction under Section 204 of this Act. Upon the finding of an emergency, the court issues a temporary order and directs the parties to proceed either in the court that is exercising continuing jurisdiction over the custody proceeding under Section 202, or the court that would have jurisdiction to modify the custody determination under Section 203.

The court shall determine at the hearing whether fees should be awarded under Section 312. If so, it should order them paid. The court may determine if additional relief is appropriate, including requesting law enforcement officers to assist the petitioner in the enforcement of the order. The court may set a hearing to determine whether further relief should be granted.

The remainder of this section is derived from UIFSA § 316 with regard to the privilege of self-incrimination, spousal privileges, and immunities. It is included to keep parallel the procedures for child support and child custody proceedings to the extent possible.

§ 50A-311. Warrant to take physical custody of child.

(a) Upon the filing of a petition seeking enforcement of a child-custody determination, the petitioner may file a verified application for the issuance of a warrant to take physical custody of the child if the child is immediately likely to suffer serious physical harm or be removed from this State.

(b) If the court, upon the testimony of the petitioner or other witness, finds that the child is imminently likely to suffer serious physical harm or be removed from this State, it may issue a warrant to take physical custody of the child. The petition must be heard on the next judicial day after the warrant is executed unless that date is impossible. In that event, the court shall hold the hearing on the first judicial day possible. The application for the warrant must include the statements required by G.S. 50A-308(b).

(c) A warrant to take physical custody of a child must:

(1) Recite the facts upon which a conclusion of imminent serious physical harm or removal from the jurisdiction is based;

(2) Direct law enforcement officers to take physical custody of the child immediately; and

(3) Provide for the placement of the child pending final relief.

(d) The respondent must be served with the petition, warrant, and order immediately after the child is taken into physical custody.

(e) A warrant to take physical custody of a child is enforceable throughout this State. If the court finds on the basis of the testimony of the petitioner or other witness that a less intrusive remedy is not effective, it may authorize law enforcement officers to enter private property to take physical custody of the child. If required by exigent circumstances of the case, the court may authorize law enforcement officers to make a forcible entry at any hour.

(f) The court may impose conditions upon placement of a child to ensure the appearance of the child and the child's custodian. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The section provides a remedy for emergency situations where there is a reason to believe that the child will suffer imminent, serious physical harm or be removed from the jurisdiction once the respondent learns that the petitioner has filed an enforcement proceeding. If the court finds such harm exists, it should temporarily waive the notice requirements and issue a warrant to take physical custody of the child. Immediately after the warrant is executed, the respondent is to receive notice of the proceedings.

The term "harm" cannot be totally defined and, as in the issuance of temporary retraining orders, the appropriate issuance of a warrant is left to the circumstances of the case. Those circumstances include cases where the respondent is the subject of a criminal proceeding as well as situations where the respondent is secreting the child in violation of a court order, abusing the child, a flight risk and other circumstances that the court concludes make the issuance of notice a danger to the child. The court must hear the testimony of the petitioner or another witness prior to issuing the warrant. The testimony may be heard in person, via telephone, or by any other means acceptable under local law. The court must State the reasons for the issuance of the warrant. The warrant can be enforced by law enforcement officers wherever the child is found in the State. The warrant may authorize entry upon private property to pick up the child if no less intrusive means are possible. In extraordinary cases, the warrant may authorize law enforcement to make a forcible entry at any hour.

The warrant must provide for the placement of the child pending the determination of the enforcement proceeding. Since the issuance of the warrant would not occur absent a risk of serious harm to the child, placement cannot be with the respondent. Normally, the child would be placed with the petitioner. However, if placement with the petitioner is not indicated, the court can order any other appropriate placement authorized under the laws of the court's State. Placement with the petitioner may not be indicated if there is a likelihood that the petitioner also will flee the jurisdiction. Placement with the petitioner may not be practical if the petitioner is proceeding through an attorney and is not present before the court.

This section authorizes the court to utilize whatever means are available under local law to ensure the appearance of the petitioner and child at the enforcement hearing. Such means might include cash bonds, a surrender of a passport, or whatever the court determines is necessary.

§ 50A-312. Costs, fees, and expenses.

(a) The court shall award the prevailing party, including a state, necessary and reasonable expenses incurred by or on behalf of the party, including costs, communication expenses, attorneys' fees, investigative fees, expenses for witnesses, travel expenses, and child care during the course of the proceedings, unless the party from whom fees or expenses are sought establishes that the award would be clearly inappropriate.

(b) The court may not assess fees, costs, or expenses against a state unless authorized by law other than this Article. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is derived from the International Child Abduction Remedies Act, 42 U.S.C. § 11607(b)(3). Normally the court will award fees and costs against the non-prevailing party. Included as expenses are the amount of investigation fees incurred by private persons or by public officials as well as the cost of child placement during the proceedings.

The non-prevailing party has the burden of showing that such an award would be clearly inappropriate. Fees and costs may be inappropriate if their payment would cause the parent and child to seek public assistance.

This section implements the policies of Section 8(c) of Pub.L. 96-611 (part of the PKPA) which provides that:

In furtherance of the purposes of section 1738A of title 28, United States Code [this section], as added by subsection (a) of this section, State courts are encouraged to — (2) award to the person entitled to custody or visitation pursuant to a custody determination which is consistent with the provisions of such section 1738A [this section], necessary travel expenses, attorneys' fees, costs of private investigations, witness fees or expenses, and other expenses incurred in connection with such custody determination....

The term "prevailing party" is not given a special definition for this Act. Each State will apply its own standard.

Subsection (b) was added to ensure that this section would not apply to the State unless otherwise authorized. The language is taken from UIFSA § 313 (court may assess costs against obligee or support enforcement agency only if allowed by local law).

§ 50A-313. Recognition and enforcement.

A court of this State shall accord full faith and credit to an order issued by another state and consistent with this Article which enforces a child-custody determination by a court of another state unless the order has been vacated, stayed, or modified by a court having jurisdiction to do so under Part 2. (1979, c.110, s.1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The enforcement order, to be effective, must also be enforced by other States. This section requires courts of this State to enforce and not modify enforcement orders issued by other States when made consistently with the provisions of this Act.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The cases cited below were decided under former § 50A-13.

State Issuing Order Need Not Have Adopted former UCCJA. — States which have adopted the former Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act must enforce an out-of-state custody order which substantially complies with the terms of the former UCCJA, regardless of whether the state issuing the order has adopted the former UCCJA. Copeland v. Copeland, 68 N.C. App. 276, 314 S.E.2d 297 (1984).

To modify a foreign child custody decree, trial court must detail a substantial change in circumstances affecting the welfare of the child, unless the court finds that the foreign decree was a disciplinary or punitive measure. Williams v. Richardson, 53 N.C. App. 663, 281 S.E.2d 777 (1981), cert. denied, 304 N.C. 733, 288 S.E.2d 382 (1982).

Failure to Attempt Service. — Where there was no attempt to serve other parent with notice of a Tennessee temporary custody hearing and she in fact never received notice of the hearing, the Tennessee court did not act substantially in conformity with the former UCCJA, and the order made by the Tennessee court was jurisdictionally defective. Henson v. Henson, 95 N.C. App. 777, 384 S.E.2d 70 (1989).

Where the court of another state has not properly assumed jurisdiction, the courts of this state are not bound to recognize and enforce the out-of-state judgment. Brewington v. Serrato, 77 N.C. App. 726, 336 S.E.2d 444 (1985).

§ 50A-314. Appeals.

An appeal may be taken from a final order in a proceeding under this Part in accordance with expedited appellate procedures in other civil cases. Unless the court enters a temporary emergency order under G.S. 50A-204, the enforcing court may not stay an order enforcing a child-custody determination pending appeal. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The order may be appealed as an expedited civil matter. An enforcement order should not be stayed by the court. Provisions for a stay would defeat the purpose of having a quick enforcement procedure. If there is a risk of serious mistreatment or abuse to the child, a petition to assume emergency jurisdiction must be filed under Section 204. This section leaves intact the possibility of obtaining an extraordinary remedy such as mandamus or prohibition from an appellate court to stay the court's enforcement action. In many States, it is not possible to limit the constitutional authority of appellate courts to issue a stay. However, unless the information before the appellate panel indicates that emergency jurisdiction would be assumed under Section 204, there is no reason to stay the enforcement of the order pending appeal.

§ 50A-315. Role of prosecutor or public official.

(a) In a case arising under this Article or involving the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, the prosecutor or other appropriate public official may take any lawful action, including resort to a proceeding under this Part or any other available civil proceeding to locate a child, obtain the return of a child, or enforce a child-custody determination if there is:

(1) An existing child-custody determination;
(2) A request to do so from a court in a pending child-custody proceeding;
(3) A reasonable belief that a criminal statute has been violated; or
(4) A reasonable belief that the child has been wrongfully removed or retained in violation of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction.

(b) A prosecutor or appropriate public official acting under this section acts on behalf of the court and may not represent any party. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Sections 315-317 are derived from the recommendations of the Obstacles Study that urge a role for public authorities in civil enforcement of custody and visitation determinations. One of the basic policies behind this approach is that, as is the case with child support, the involvement of public authorities will encourage the parties to abide by the terms of the court order. The prosecutor usually would be the most appropriate public official to exercise authority under this section. However, States may locate the authority described in the section in the most appropriate public office for their governmental structure. The authority could be, for example, the Friend of the Court Office or the Attorney General. If the parties know that prosecutors and law enforcement officers are available to help secure the return of a child, the parties may be deterred from interfering with the exercise of rights established by court order.

The use of public authorities should provide a more effective method of remedying violations of the custody determination. Most parties do not have the resources to enforce a custody determination in another jurisdiction. The availability of the prosecutor or other government official as an enforcement agency will help ensure that remedies of this Act can be made available regardless of income level. In addition, the prosecutor may have resources to draw on that are unavailable to the average litigant.

The role of the public authorities should generally not begin until there is a custody determination that is sought to be enforced. The Act does not authorize the public authorities to be involved in the action leading up to the making of the custody determination, except when requested by the court, when there is a violation the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction, or when the person holding the child has violated a criminal statute. This Act does not mandate that the public authorities be involved in all cases referred to it. There is only so much time and money available for enforcement proceedings. Therefore, the public authorities eventually will develop guidelines to determine which cases will receive priority.

The use of civil procedures instead of, or in addition to, filing and prosecuting criminal charges enlarges the prosecutor's options and may provide a more economical and less disruptive means of solving problems of criminal abduction and retention. With the use of criminal proceedings alone, the procedure may be inadequate to ensure the return of the child. The civil options would permit the prosecutor to resolve that recurring and often frustrating problem.

A concern was expressed about whether allowing the prosecutor to use civil means as a method of settling a child abduction violated either DR 7-105(A) of the Code of Professional Responsibility or Model Rule of Professional Responsibility 4.4. Both provisions either explicitly or implicitly disapprove of a lawyer threatening criminal action to gain an advantage in a civil case. However, the prohibition relates to threats that are solely to gain an advantage in a civil case. If the prosecutor has a good faith reason for pursuing the criminal action, there is no ethical violation. See Committee on Legal Ethics v. Printz, 416 S.E. 2d 720 (W.Va. 1992) (lawyer can threaten to press criminal charges against a client's former employee unless employee made restitution).

It must be emphasized that the public authorities do not become involved in the merits of the case. They are authorized only to locate the child and enforce the custody determination. The public authority is authorized by this section to utilize any civil proceeding to secure the enforcement of the custody determination. In most jurisdictions, that would be a proceeding under this Act. If the prosecutor proceeds pursuant to this Act, the prosecutor is subject to its provisions. There is nothing in this Act that would prevent a State from authorizing the prosecutor or other public official to use additional remedies beyond those provided in this Act.

The public authority does not represent any party to the custody determination. It acts as a "friend of the court." Its role is to ensure that the custody determination is enforced.

Sections 315-317 are limited to cases covered by this Act, i.e. interstate cases. However, States may, if they wish, extend this part of the Act to intrastate cases.

It should also be noted that the provisions of this section relate to the civil enforcement of child custody determinations. Nothing in this section is meant to detract from the ability of the prosecutor to use criminal provisions in child abduction cases.

§ 50A-316. Role of law enforcement.

At the request of a prosecutor or other appropriate public official acting under G.S. 50A-315, a law enforcement officer may take any lawful action reasonably necessary to locate a child or a party and assist a prosecutor or appropriate public official with responsibilities under G.S. 50A-315. (1979, c. 110, s. 1; 1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section authorizes law enforcement officials to assist in locating a child and enforcing a custody determination when requested to do so by the public authorities. It is to be read as an enabling provision. Whether law enforcement officials have discretion in responding to a request by the prosecutor or other public official is a matter of local law.

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — The case cited below was decided under former § 50A-20.

Court erred in authorizing law enforcement officers to pick up children who were residing with petitioner and deliver them to respondent in an effort to assist Georgia court in enforcing its custody order; while trial court could have resorted to traditional contempt proceedings, there was no statutory basis for invoking the participation of law enforcement officers in producing the children. Bhatti v. Bhatti, 98 N.C. App. 493, 391 S.E.2d 201 (1990).

§ 50A-317. Costs and expenses.

If the respondent is not the prevailing party, the court may assess against the respondent all direct expenses and costs incurred by the prosecutor or other appropriate public official and law enforcement officers under G.S. 50A-315 or G.S. 50A-316. (1999-223, s. 3.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

One of the major problems of utilizing public officials to locate children and enforce custody and visitation determinations is cost. This section authorizes the prosecutor and law enforcement to recover costs against the non-prevailing party. The use of the term "direct" indicates that overhead is not a recoverable cost. This section cannot be used to recover the value of the time spent by the public authorities' attorneys.

Chapter 50B.

Domestic Violence.

§ 50B-1. Domestic violence; definition.

(a) Domestic violence means the commission of one or more of the following acts upon an aggrieved party or upon a minor child residing with or in the custody of the aggrieved party by a person with whom the aggrieved party has or has had a personal relationship, but does not include acts of self-defense:

(1) Attempting to cause bodily injury, or intentionally causing bodily injury; or

(2) Placing the aggrieved party or a member of the aggrieved party's family or household in fear of imminent serious bodily injury or continued harassment, as defined in G.S. 14-277.3, that rises to such a level as to inflict substantial emotional distress; or

(3) Committing any act defined in G.S. 14-27.2 through G.S. 14-27.7.

(b) For purposes of this section, the term "personal relationship" means a relationship wherein the parties involved:

(1) Are current or former spouses;

(2) Are persons of opposite sex who live together or have lived together;

(3) Are related as parents and children, including others acting in loco parentis to a minor child, or as grandparents and grandchildren. For purposes of this subdivision, an aggrieved party may not obtain an order of protection against a child or grandchild under the age of 16;

(4) Have a child in common;

(5) Are current or former household members;

(6) Are persons of the opposite sex who are in a dating relationship or have been in a dating relationship. For purposes of this subdivision, a dating relationship is one wherein the parties are romantically involved over time and on a continuous basis during the course of the relationship. A casual acquaintance or ordinary fraternization between persons in a business or social context is not a dating relationship. (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 113, s. 1; 1987, c. 828; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 893, ss. 1, 3; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 591, s. 1; 1997-471, s. 1; 2001-518, s. 3.)

Cross References. — As to privileged nature of communications with agents of rape crisis centers and domestic violence programs, see § 8-53.12.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-518, s. 3, effective March 1, 2002, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, inserted "or continued harassment, as defined in G.S. 14-277.3, that rises to such a level as to inflict substantial emotional distress" in subdivision (a)(2).

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For comment, "North Carolina's Domestic Violence Act: Preventing Spouse Abuse?", see 17 N.C. Cent. L.J. 82 (1988).

For 1997 legislative survey, see 20 Campbell L. Rev. 459.

CASE NOTES

Applicability of Chapter. — This Chapter did not become effective until October 1, 1979, and applies only to acts of domestic violence occurring on or after that date. Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982).

This Chapter is not designed to establish alternative grounds for jurisdiction over custody disputes apart from those set forth in Chapter 50A. Danna v. Danna, 88 N.C. App. 680, 364 S.E.2d 694, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 479, 370 S.E.2d 221 (1988).

Jurisdiction over Custody and Visitation Rights Is Governed by Chapter 50A. — Whenever the relief sought under this Chapter is a determination of custody or visitation rights, the existence of subject matter jurisdiction over the action is governed by Chapter 50A, just as it is in any other custody dispute. Danna v. Danna, 88 N.C. App. 680, 364 S.E.2d 694, cert. denied, 322 N.C. 479, 370 S.E.2d 221 (1988).

This Chapter does not establish an affirmative duty on the part of law enforcement agencies to protect victims or threatened victims of domestic violence upon request; its effect is limited to enabling such persons to more readily obtain the court's protection and such assistance as any local agency approached sees fit to give. Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752, modified on other grounds, 330 N.C. 363, 410 S.E.2d 897 (1991).

Subjective Fear of Imminent Serious Bodily Injury — This section imposes a subjective test, rather than an objective reasonableness test, to determine whether an act of domestic violence has occurred. Brandon v. Brandon, 132 N.C. App. 646, 513 S.E.2d 589 (1999).

Evidence of Imminent Serious Bodily Injury — The evidence supported a finding that the husband threatened imminent serious bodily injury to the wife, where a deputy had to stop the husband from entering a rental house owned by the parties, the husband threatened the wife in the deputies' presence, and his subsequent threat to kill her was relayed to the wife. Brandon v. Brandon, 132 N.C. App. 646, 513 S.E.2d 589 (1999).

Cited in State v. Getward, 89 N.C. App. 26, 365 S.E.2d 209 (1988).

§ 50B-2. Institution of civil action; motion for emergency relief; temporary orders.

(a) Any person residing in this State may seek relief under this Chapter by filing a civil action or by filing a motion in any existing action filed under Chapter 50 of the General Statutes alleging acts of domestic violence against himself or herself or a minor child who resides with or is in the custody of such person. Any aggrieved party entitled to relief under this Chapter may file a civil action and proceed pro se, without the assistance of legal counsel. The district court division of the General Court of Justice shall have original jurisdiction over actions instituted under this Chapter.

(b) Emergency Relief. — A party may move the court for emergency relief if he or she believes there is a danger of serious and immediate injury to himself or herself or a minor child. A hearing on a motion for emergency relief, where no ex parte order is entered, shall be held after five days' notice of the hearing to the other party or after five days from the date of service of process on the other party, whichever occurs first, provided, however, that no hearing shall be required if the service of process is not completed on the other party. If the party is proceeding pro se and does not request an ex parte hearing, the clerk shall set a date for hearing and issue a notice of hearing within the time periods provided in this subsection, and shall effect service of the summons, complaint, notice, and other papers through the appropriate law enforcement agency where the defendant is to be served, upon payment of the required service fees.

(c) Ex Parte Orders. — Prior to the hearing, if it clearly appears to the court from specific facts shown, that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the court may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts provided, however, that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the court finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse.

Upon the issuance of an ex parte order under this subsection, a hearing shall be held within 10 days from the date of issuance of the order or within seven days from the date of service of process on the other party, whichever occurs later. If an aggrieved party acting pro se requests ex parte relief, the clerk of superior court shall schedule an ex parte hearing with the district court division of the General Court of Justice within 72 hours of the filing for said relief, or by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed, whichever shall first occur. If the district court is not in session in said county, the aggrieved party may contact the clerk of superior court in any other county within the same judicial district who shall schedule an ex parte hearing with the district court division of the General Court of Justice by the end of the next day on which said court division is in session in that county. Upon the issuance of an ex parte order under this subsection, if the party is proceeding pro se, the Clerk shall set a date for hearing and issue a notice of hearing within the time periods provided in this subsection, and shall effect service of the summons, complaint, notice, order and other papers through the appropriate law enforcement agency where the defendant is to be served, upon payment of the required service fees.

(c1) Ex Parte Orders by Authorized Magistrate. — The chief district court judge may authorize a magistrate or magistrates to hear any motions for emergency relief ex parte. Prior to the hearing, if the magistrate determines that at the time the party is seeking emergency relief ex parte the district court is not in session and a district court judge is not and will not be available to hear the motion for a period of four or more hours, the motion may be heard by the magistrate. If it clearly appears to the magistrate from specific facts shown that there is a danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child, the magistrate may enter such orders as it deems necessary to protect the aggrieved party or minor children from such acts, except that a temporary order for custody ex parte and prior to service of process and notice shall not be entered unless the magistrate finds that the child is exposed to a substantial risk of bodily injury or sexual abuse. An ex parte order entered under this subsection shall expire and the magistrate shall schedule an ex parte hearing before a district court judge by the end of the next day on which the district court is in session in the county in which the action was filed. Ex parte orders entered by the district court judge pursuant to this subsection shall be entered and scheduled in accordance with subsection (c) of this section.

(c2) The authority granted to authorized magistrates to award temporary child custody to pursuant subsection (c1) of this section and pursuant to G.S. 50B-3(a)(4) is granted subject to custody rules to be established by the supervising chief district judge of each judicial district.

(d) Pro Se Forms. — The clerk of superior court of each county shall provide to pro se complainants all forms which are necessary or appropriate to enable them to proceed pro se pursuant to this section. The Clerk shall provide a supply of pro se forms to authorized magistrates who shall make the forms available to complainants seeking relief under subsection (c1) of this section. (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 113, ss. 2, 3; 1987 (Reg. Sess., 1988), c. 893, s. 2; 1989, c. 461, s. 1; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 4, s. 1; 1997-471, s. 2; 2001-518, s. 4.)

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-518, s. 4, effective March 1, 2002, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, in subsection (c1), in the fourth sentence, deleted "within 72 hours of the filing for relief under this subsection, or" preceding "by the end of the next day" and deleted "whichever occurs first" at the end of that sentence, and deleted the former fifth sentence, which read: "A party who has paid court costs due for seeking an order from the magistrate under this subsection shall not be liable for court costs for a hearing before the district court judge scheduled and heard pursuant to an order entered by the magistrate under this subsection."

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For 1997 legislative survey, see 20 Campbell L. Rev. 459.

CASE NOTES

The dismissal of a temporary ex parte domestic violence protective order was interlocutory, did not affect a substantial right, and therefore was not immediately appealable. Hayes v. Hayes, 139 N.C. App. 831, 534 S.E.2d 639 (2000).

Applied in Smart v. Smart, 59 N.C. App. 533, 297 S.E.2d 135 (1982).

Stated in Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752 (1990); Brandon v. Brandon, 132 N.C. App. 646, 513 S.E.2d 589 (1999).

Cited in Anderson v. Anderson, 101 N.C. App. 682, 400 S.E.2d 764 (1991).

§ 50B-3. Relief.

(a) The court, including magistrates as authorized under G.S. 50B-2(c1), may grant any protective order or approve any consent agreement to bring about a cessation of acts of domestic violence. The orders or agreements may:

(1) Direct a party to refrain from such acts;
(2) Grant to a party possession of the residence or household of the parties and exclude the other party from the residence or household;
(3) Require a party to provide a spouse and his or her children suitable alternate housing;
(4) Award temporary custody of minor children and establish temporary visitation rights;
(5) Order the eviction of a party from the residence or household and assistance to the victim in returning to it;
(6) Order either party to make payments for the support of a minor child as required by law;
(7) Order either party to make payments for the support of a spouse as required by law;
(8) Provide for possession of personal property of the parties;
(9) Order a party to refrain from doing any or all of the following:
    a. Threatening, abusing, or following the other party,
    b. Harassing the other party, including by telephone, visiting the home or workplace, or other means, or
    c. Otherwise interfering with the other party;
(10) Award costs and attorney's fees to either party;
(11) Prohibit a party from purchasing a firearm for a time fixed in the order;
(12) Order any party the court finds is responsible for acts of domestic violence to attend and complete an abuser treatment program if the program is approved by the Department of Administration; and
(13) Include any additional prohibitions or requirements the court deems necessary to protect any party or any minor child.

(b) Protective orders entered or consent orders approved pursuant to this Chapter shall be for a fixed period of time not to exceed one year. Upon application of the aggrieved party, a judge may renew the original or any succeeding order for up to one additional year. Protective orders entered or consent orders approved shall not be mutual in nature except where both parties file a claim and the court makes detailed findings of fact indicating that both parties acted as aggressors, that neither party acted primarily in self-defense, and that the right of each party to due process is preserved.

(c) A copy of any order entered and filed under this Article shall be issued to each party. In addition, a copy of the order shall be issued promptly to and retained by the police department of the city of the victim's residence. If the victim does not reside in a city or resides in a city with no police department, copies shall be issued promptly to and retained by the sheriff, and the county police department, if any, of the county in which the victim resides.

(d) The sheriff of the county where a domestic violence order is entered shall provide for prompt entry of the order into the National Crime Information Center registry and shall provide for access of such orders to magistrates on a 24-hour-a-day basis. Modifications, terminations, and dismissals of the order shall also be promptly entered. (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 463; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 4, s. 2; 1995, c. 527, s. 1; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 591, s. 2; c. 742, s. 42.1.; 1999-23, s. 1; 2000-125, s. 9.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1999-23, s. 8, provides that the amendments made by ss. 1 and 2 of that act become effective February 1, 2000, only if funds are received by federal grant to implement those sections. The State Revisor of Statutes was informed that funds were received.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 1999-23, s. 1 added "promptly" following "issued" twice in subsection (c); and, in subsection (d), substituted "prompt entry of the order into the National Crime Information Center registry" for "immediate entry of the order onto the Division of Criminal Information Network" in the first sentence, and substituted "Modifications, terminations, and dismissals of the order shall also be promptly" for "Modifications of the order shall also be" in the second sentence. See editor's note for contingency and effective date.

Session Laws 2000-125, s. 9, effective December 1, 2000, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, deleted "available within a reasonable distance of that party's residence and is" following "the program is" in subdivision (a)(12).

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For legislative survey on family and juvenile law, see 22 Campbell L. Rev. 253 (2000).

CASE NOTES

Domestic Violence Protective Order Improperly Issued. — The court's findings of fact did not support its conclusion of law that an act of domestic violence had occurred, where the court found that the husband had threatened the wife with immediate serious bodily injury, but no acts of domestic violence had been shown of which the court could bring about a cessation. Brandon v. Brandon, 132 N.C. App. 646, 513 S.E.2d 589 (1999).

Evidence indicating that the former wife entered the former husband's trailer and spilled pasta and spices on the floor did not support the conclusion that domestic violence occurred to support issuance of a domestic violence protective order. Price v. Price, 133 N.C. App. 440, 514 S.E.2d 553 (1999).

Domestic violence protective order was not appropriate when daughter said that her father's touching made her feel creepy, but failed to demonstrate that she was in fear of bodily injury. Smith v. Smith, — N.C. App. —, 549 S.E.2d 912, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 666 (2001).

Mootness. — Father's appeal of domestic violence protective order was not moot even though the order had expired as the father still might face legal consequences from the order. Smith v. Smith, — N.C. App. —, 549 S.E.2d 912, 2001 N.C. App. LEXIS 666 (2001).

Stated in Story v. Story, 57 N.C. App. 509, 291 S.E.2d 923 (1982); Benfield v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 82 N.C. App. 293, 346 S.E.2d 283 (1986); Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752, modified on other grounds, 330 N.C. 363, 410 S.E.2d 897 (1991).

Cited in Brandon v. Brandon, 132 N.C. App. 646, 513 S.E.2d 589 (1999).

§ 50B-4. Enforcement of orders.

(a) A party may file a motion for contempt for violation of any order entered pursuant to this Chapter. This party may file and proceed with that motion pro se, using forms provided by the clerk of superior court or a magistrate authorized under G.S. 50B-2(c1). Upon the filing pro se of a motion for contempt under this subsection, the clerk, or the authorized magistrate, if the facts show clearly that there is danger of acts of domestic violence against the aggrieved party or a minor child and the motion is made at a time when the clerk is not available, shall schedule and issue notice of a show cause hearing with the district court division of the General Court of Justice at the earliest possible date pursuant to G.S. 5A-23. The Clerk, or the magistrate in the case of notice issued by the magistrate pursuant to this subsection, shall effect service of the motion, notice, and other papers through the appropriate law enforcement agency where the defendant is to be served, upon payment of the required service fees.

(b) Repealed by Session Laws 1999-23, s. 2, effective February 1, 2000.

(c) A valid protective order entered pursuant to this section shall be enforced by all North Carolina law enforcement agencies without further order of the court.

(d) A valid protective order entered by the courts of another state or the courts of an Indian tribe shall be accorded full faith and credit by the courts of North Carolina whether or not the order has been registered and shall be enforced by the courts and the law enforcement agencies of North Carolina as if it were an order issued by a North Carolina court. In determining the validity of an out-of-state order for purposes of enforcement, a law enforcement officer may rely upon a copy of the protective order issued by another state or the courts of an Indian tribe that is provided to the officer and on the statement of a person protected by the order that the order remains in effect. Even though registration is not required, a copy of a protective order may be registered in North Carolina by filing with the clerk of superior court in any county a copy of the order and an affidavit by a person protected by the order that to the best of that person's knowledge the order is presently in effect as written. Notice of the registration shall not be given to the defendant. Upon registration of the order, the clerk shall promptly forward a copy to the sheriff of that county. Unless the issuing state has already entered the order, the sheriff shall provide for prompt entry of the order into the National Crime Information Center registry pursuant to G.S. 50B-3(d).

(e) Upon application or motion by a party to the court, the court shall determine whether an out-of-state order remains in full force and effect. (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 113, s. 4; 1987, c. 739, s. 6; 1989, c. 461, s. 2; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 4, s. 3; 1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 591, s. 3; 1999-23, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws, 1999-23, s. 8, provides that the amendments made by ss. 1 and 2 of that act become effective February 1, 2000, only if funds are received by federal grant to implement those sections. The State Revisor of Statutes was informed that funds were received.

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 1999-23, s. 2, in the second sentence in subsection (a), substituted "This" for "Said" and "that" for "such"; repealed subsection (b) pertaining to an officer's right to take a person into custody without a warrant if the officer has probable cause to believe that the person has violated a court order; in subsection (c), inserted "A" before "valid" and substituted "order" for "orders"; rewrote subsection (d); added subsection (e); and made stylistic changes. See editor's note for contingency and effective date.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

CASE NOTES

Stated in Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752 (1990).

§ 50B-4.1. Violation of valid protective order.

(a) Except as otherwise provided by law, a person who knowingly violates a valid protective order entered pursuant to this Chapter or who knowingly violates a valid protective order entered by the courts of another state or the courts of an Indian tribe shall be guilty of a Class A1 misdemeanor.

(b) A law enforcement officer shall arrest and take a person into custody without a warrant or other process if the officer has probable cause to believe that the person knowingly has violated a valid protective order excluding the person from the residence or household occupied by a victim of domestic violence or directing the person to refrain from doing any or all of the acts specified in G.S. 50B-3(a)(9).

(c) When a law enforcement officer makes an arrest under this section without a warrant, and the party arrested contests that the out-of-state order or the order issued by an Indian court remains in full force and effect, the party arrested shall be promptly provided with a copy of the information applicable to the party which appears on the National Crime Information Center registry by the sheriff of the county in which the arrest occurs.

(d) Unless covered under some other provision of law providing greater punishment, a person who commits a felony at a time when the person knows the behavior is prohibited by a valid protective order as provided in subsection (a) of this section shall be guilty of a felony one class higher than the principal felony described in the charging document. This subsection shall not apply to a person who is charged with or convicted of a Class A or B1 felony or to a person charged under subsection (f) of this section.

(e) An indictment or information that charges a person with committing felonious conduct as described in subsection (d) of this section shall also allege that the person knowingly violated a valid protective order as described in subsection (a) of this section in the course of the conduct constituting the underlying felony. In order for a person to be punished as described in subsection (d) of this section, a finding shall be made that the person knowingly violated the protective order in the course of conduct constituting the underlying felony.

(f) Unless covered under some other provision of law providing greater punishment, any person who knowingly violates a valid protective order as provided in subsection (a) of this section, after having been previously convicted of three offenses under this Chapter, shall be guilty of a Class H felony. (1997-471, s. 3; 1997-456, s. 27; 1999-23, s. 4; 2001-518, s. 5.)

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-518, s. 5, effective March 1, 2002, and applicable to offenses committed on or after that date, deleted "a misdemeanor" at the end of the section catchline; in subsection (a), added "Except as otherwise provided by law" at the beginning thereof and inserted "who knowingly violates a valid protective order entered"; and added subsections (d) through (f).

§ 50B-4.2. False statement regarding protective order a misdemeanor.

A person who knowingly makes a false statement to a law enforcement agency or officer that a protective order entered pursuant to this Chapter or by the courts of another state or Indian tribe remains in effect shall be guilty of a Class 2 misdemeanor. (1999-23, s. 5.)

§ 50B-5. Emergency assistance.

(a) A person who alleges that he or she or a minor child has been the victim of domestic violence may request the assistance of a local law enforcement agency. The local law enforcement agency shall respond to the request for assistance as soon as practicable. The local law enforcement officer responding to the request for assistance may take whatever steps are reasonably necessary to protect the complainant from harm and may advise the complainant of sources of shelter, medical care, counseling and other services. Upon request by the complainant and where feasible, the law enforcement officer may transport the complainant to appropriate facilities such as hospitals, magistrates' offices, or public or private facilities for shelter and accompany the complainant to his or her residence, within the jurisdiction in which the request for assistance was made, so that the complainant may remove food, clothing, medication and such other personal property as is reasonably necessary to enable the complainant and any minor children who are presently in the care of the complainant to remain elsewhere pending further proceedings.

(b) In providing the assistance authorized by subsection (a), no officer may be held criminally or civilly liable on account of reasonable measures taken under authority of subsection (a). (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 113, s. 5; 1999-23, s. 6.)

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1979 family law, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 1471 (1980).

For article, "Litigating Police Misconduct Claims in North Carolina," see 19 N.C. Cent. L.J. 113 (1991).

CASE NOTES

Subsection (b) Not a Directive. — The provision of subsection (b) absolving officers from liability if reasonable measures are taken cannot be construed as a directive to take such measures. Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752, modified on other grounds, 330 N.C. 363, 410 S.E.2d 897 (1991).

§ 50B-6. Construction of Chapter.

This Chapter shall not be construed as granting a status to any person for any purpose other than those expressly stated herein. This Chapter shall not be construed as relieving any person or institution of the duty to report to the department of social services, as required by G.S. 7B-301, if the person or institution has cause to suspect that a juvenile is abused or neglected. (1979, c. 561, s. 1; 1985, c. 113, s. 6; 1998-202, s. 13(r).)

CASE NOTES

Marital Status Not Changed. — The legislature obviously did not intend for protective orders under this Chapter to change marital status. Benfield v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 82 N.C. App. 293, 346 S.E.2d 283 (1986).

Wife who had obtained a temporary protective order under this Chapter containing findings that husband had physically assaulted wife, ordering him to vacate and not return to the family residence, and granting exclusive possession and full use of the home to wife was not legally separated at the time of her husband's death, for purposes of insurance policy providing benefits upon the death of husband unless they were legally separated. Benfield v. Pilot Life Ins. Co., 82 N.C. App. 293, 346 S.E.2d 283 (1986).

Quoted in Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752 (1990).

§ 50B-7. Remedies not exclusive.

The remedies provided by this Chapter are not exclusive but are additional to remedies provided under Chapter 50 and elsewhere in the General Statutes. (1979, c. 561, s. 1.)

CASE NOTES

Stated in Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752 (1990).

§ 50B-8. Effect upon prosecution for violation of § 14-184 or other offense against public morals.

The granting of a protective order, approval of a consent agreement, prosecution for violation of this Chapter, or the granting of any other relief or the institution of any other enforcement proceedings under this Chapter shall not be construed to afford a defense to any person or persons charged with fornication and adultery under G.S. 14-184 or charged with any other offense against the public morals; and prosecution, conviction, or prosecution and conviction for violation of any provision of this Chapter shall not be a bar to prosecution for violation of G.S. 14-184 or of any other statute defining an offense or offenses against the public morals. (1979, c. 561, s. 1.)

Cross References. — For similar provision applicable to domestic criminal trespass, see § 14-134.3.

CASE NOTES

Stated in Braswell v. Braswell, 98 N.C. App. 231, 390 S.E.2d 752 (1990).

§ 50B-9. Domestic Violence Center Fund.

The Domestic Violence Center Fund is established within the State Treasury. The fund shall be administered by the Department of Administration, North Carolina Council for Women, and shall be used to make grants to centers for victims of domestic violence and to The North Carolina Coalition Against Domestic Violence, Inc. This fund shall be administered in accordance with the provisions of the Executive Budget Act. The Department of Administration shall make quarterly grants to each eligible domestic violence center and to The North Carolina Coalition Against Domestic Violence, Inc. Each grant recipient shall receive the same amount. To be eligible to receive funds under this section, a domestic violence center must meet the following requirements:

(1) It shall have been in operation on the preceding July 1 and shall continue to be in operation.
(2) It shall offer all of the following services: a hotline, transportation services, community education programs, daytime services, and call forwarding during the night and it shall fulfill other criteria established by the Department of Administration.
(3) It shall be a nonprofit corporation or a local governmental entity. (1991, c. 693, s. 3; 1991 (Reg. Sess., 1992), c. 988, s. 1.)

Chapter 51.

Marriage.

Article 1.

General Provisions.

Article 2.

Marriage Licenses.

Article 1.

General Provisions.

§ 51-1. Requisites of marriage; solemnization.

A valid and sufficient marriage is created by the consent of a male and female person who may lawfully marry, presently to take each other as husband and wife, freely, seriously and plainly expressed by each in the presence of the other, either:

(1)a. In the presence of an ordained minister of any religious denomination, a minister authorized by a church, or a magistrate; and

b. With [the consequent declaration by] the [minister or] magistrate [that] the [persons are husband and] wife; or

(2) In accordance with any mode of solemnization recognized by any religious denomination, or federally or State recognized Indian Nation or Tribe.

Marriages solemnized before March 9, 1909, by ministers of the gospel licensed, but not ordained, are validated from their consummation. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 3; Code, s. 1812; Rev., s. 2081; 1908, c. 47; 1909, c. 704, s. 2; c. 897; C.S., s. 2493; 1945, c. 839; 1965, c. 152; 1971, c. 1185, s. 26; 1977, c. 592, s. 1; 2000-58, ss. 1, 2; 2001-14, ss. 1, 2; 2001-62, ss. 1, 17.)

Local Modification. — Bertie: 1951, c. 852; town of Sparta: 1969, c. 1020.

Cross References. — As to divorce and alimony, see Chapter 50. As to powers and liabilities of married persons, see § 52-1 et seq.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1998-120, s. 3, provides: "Section 2 of this act shall apply only to district court judges, who were formerly assistant district attorneys of the Thirteenth Judicial District, and shall expire on July 31, 1999."

Session Laws 2000-58, s. 1, effective June 30,

2000, inserted "superior court judge of this State or of another state" following "authorized by his church" and inserted "judge" following "declaration by such minister." Section 2 of the act provided for the amendment to expire September 15, 2000. The section is set out above as it reads following the expiration of the 2000 amendment.

Session Laws 2001-14, s. 1, effective April 13, 2001, and expiring April 16, 2001, inserted "emergency superior court judge of this State" following "minister authorized by his church," and substituted "declaration by such minister, judge" for "declaration by such minister."

Session Laws 2001-14, s. 2, effective June 1, 2001, and expiring June 4, 2001, inserted "district court judge of this State" following "minister authorized by his church," and substituted "declaration by such minister, judge" for "declaration by such minister."

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 17, amended this section effective May 19, 2001, and expiring May 28, 2001, by substituting "minister authorized by a church, regular resident superior court judge of this State, or of a magistrate, and the consequent declaration by such minister, judge, or officer" for "minister authorized by his church, or of a magistrate, and the consequent declaration by such minister or officer."

This section was amended by Session Laws 2001-62. s. 1, in the coded bill drafting format provided by § 120-20.1. Subdivision (1)b. has been set out in the form above at the direction of the Revisor of Statutes. Words in brackets were added by Session Laws 2001-62, but were not underlined per coded bill drafting guidelines.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 1, effective October 1, 2001, rewrote the section. See editor's note.

Legal Periodicals. — For article on common-law marriage in North Carolina, see 16 N.C.L. Rev. 259 (1938).

For comment on the enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 815 (1969).

For article, "An Evolutionary Consideration of the Marriage Formalities of Licensure and Solemnization in Contemporary English and North Carolinian Statutory Law," see 10 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1978).

For note on constitutional law and an illegitimate child's paternal inheritance rights, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 205 (1980).

For survey of 1980 family law, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 1194 (1981).

CASE NOTES

As to history of marriage laws, see State v. Bray, 35 N.C. 289 (1852); State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890); State v. Wilson, 121 N.C. 650, 28 S.E. 416 (1897).

There is no such thing as marriage simply by consent in this State. State v. Samuel, 19 N.C. 177 (1836); State v. Patterson, 24 N.C. 346 (1842); State v. Bray, 35 N.C. 289 (1852); Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N.C. 583 (1868); State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890); State v. Melton, 120 N.C. 591, 26 S.E. 933 (1897); State v. Wilson, 121 N.C. 650, 28 S.E. 416 (1897); State v. Alford, 298 N.C. 465, 259 S.E.2d 242 (1979); State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980), decided prior to the amendment by Session Laws 2001-62, s. 1.

Essentials of This Section Must Be Followed. — While consent is essential to marriage in this State, it is not the only essential, but it must be acknowledged in the manner and before some person prescribed by this section. State v. Wilson, 121 N.C. 650, 28 S.E. 416 (1897); State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980), decided prior to the amendment by Session Laws 2001-62, s. 1.

When Marriage Is Complete. — Marriage is in law complete when parties able to contract and willing to contract have actually contracted to be man and wife, in the forms and with the solemnities required by law. Consummation by carnal knowledge is not necessary to its validity. State v. Patterson, 24 N.C. 346 (1842).

A valid marriage must be solemnized in the presence of one of three persons: (1) an ordained minister of any religious denomination; (2) a minister authorized by his church; or (3) a magistrate., rev'd on other grounds, State v. Lynch, 46 N.C. App. 608, 265 S.E.2d 491; 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980), decided prior to the amendment by Session Laws 2001-62, s. 1.

Instructions Defining "Church" and "Religious Denomination" Properly Refused. — In a bigamy prosecution in which the crucial determination was whether the person before whom a purported prior marriage of defendant was solemnized was an ordained minister of any religious denomination or a minister authorized by his church, the determination of whether there was a church or a religious denomination was not for the jury, since it was a matter of ecclesiastical law, and the trial court properly refused to give defendant's requested instructions defining "church" and "religious denomination." State v. Lynch, 46 N.C. App. 608, 265 S.E.2d 491, rev'd on other grounds, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980).

Mail-Order Minister Not Qualified to Perform Valid Ceremony. — A ceremony solemnized by a Roman Catholic layman in the mail order business, who bought for $10.00 a mail order certificate giving him "credentials of minister" in the Universal Life Church, Inc., was not a ceremony of marriage to be recognized for purposes of a bigamy prosecution in this State. State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980). But see § 51-1.1.

For case in which church elder was held an ordained minister, authorized to celebrate the rites of matrimony, see State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890).

Impersonation of Minister. — A private citizen who impersonates an ordained minister and, with the consent of the parties, solemnizes a marriage between a man and woman is not guilty of any criminal offense known to the common or statute law. State v. Brown, 119 N.C. 825, 25 S.E. 820 (1896).

Evidence of Marriage by Justice of Peace. — It is sufficient evidence of a marriage that it was solemnized by one in the known enjoyment of the office of justice of the peace, and acting as such. His commission need not be produced. State v. Robbins, 28 N.C. 23, 44 Am. Dec. 64 (1845).

A marriage procured by force or fraud is void ab initio, and may be treated as null by every court in which its validity may be incidentally drawn in question. Scroggins v. Scroggins, 14 N.C. 535 (1832).

But a marriage contracted while under arrest for seduction is not contracted under duress. State v. Davis, 79 N.C. 603 (1878).

Sham Marriage a Nullity. — A marriage pretendedly celebrated before an unauthorized person is a nullity and not capable of being legalized by consent. State v. Wilson, 121 N.C. 650, 28 S.E. 416 (1897).

Indian Custom Held Not a Valid Marriage. — There is but one law of marriage for all the residents of this State. Hence cohabitation between an Indian man and woman according to the customs of their tribe, by which the parties were at liberty to dissolve the connection at pleasure, did not constitute a marriage. State v. Ta-cha-na-tah, 64 N.C. 614 (1870), decided prior to the amendment by Session Laws 2001-62, s. 1.

Legislature May Dispense With Formality. — The substance of marriage, the consent of the parties, existing, it was as clearly within the power of the legislature to dispense with any particular formality as it was to prescribe such. State v. Whitford, 86 N.C. 636 (1882).

Validation by Retroactive Legislation. — It is competent for the legislature by retrospective legislation to give validity to a marriage which is invalid by reason of the nonobservance of some solemnity required by statute. It is otherwise where such marriage is a nullity. Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N.C. 583 (1868).

Wife Need Not Use Husband's Surname. — There is no statutory requirement in this State that a married woman use her husband's surname. In re Mohlman, 26 N.C. App. 220, 216 S.E.2d 147 (1975).

Applied in State v. Woodruff, 99 N.C. App. 107, 392 S.E.2d 434 (1990).

Cited in Western Conference of Original Free Will Baptists v. Creech, 256 N.C. 128, 123 S.E.2d 619 (1962).

§ 51-1.1. Certain marriages performed by ministers of Universal Life Church validated.

Any marriages performed by ministers of the Universal Life Church prior to July 3, 1981, are validated, unless they have been invalidated by a court of competent jurisdiction, provided that all other requirements of law have been met and the marriages would have been valid if performed by an official authorized by law to perform wedding ceremonies. (1981, c. 797.)

CASE NOTES

Where marriage was never invalidated, this section applied to validate it. The net effect of this section was to render the marriage valid from its inception, as it was voidable, rather than void. Fulton v. Vickery, 73 N.C. App. 382, 326 S.E.2d 354, cert. denied, 313 N.C. 599, 332 S.E.2d 178 (1985).

§ 51-1.2. Marriages between persons of the same gender not valid.

Marriages, whether created by common law, contracted, or performed outside of North Carolina, between individuals of the same gender are not valid in North Carolina. (1995 (Reg. Sess., 1996), c. 588, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "Distinctions of Form or Substance: Monogamy, Polygamy and Same-Sex Marriage," see 75 N.C.L. Rev. 1501 (1997).

§ 51-2. Capacity to marry.

(a) All unmarried persons of 18 years, or older, may lawfully marry, except as hereinafter forbidden.

(a1) Persons over 16 years of age and under 18 years of age may marry, and the register of deeds may issue a license for the marriage, only after there shall have been filed with the register of deeds a written consent to the marriage, said consent having been signed by the appropriate person as follows:

(1) By a parent having full or joint legal custody of the underage party; or

(2) By a person, agency, or institution having legal custody or serving as a guardian of the underage party.

Such written consent shall not be required for an emancipated minor if a certificate of emancipation issued pursuant to Article 35 of Chapter 7B of the General Statutes or a certified copy of a final decree or certificate of emancipation from this or any other jurisdiction is filed with the register of deeds.

(b) Persons over 14 years of age and under 16 years of age may marry as provided in G.S. 51-2.1.

(b1) It shall be unlawful for any person under 14 years of age to marry.

(c) When a license to marry is procured by any person under 18 years of age by fraud or misrepresentation, a parent of the underage party, a person, agency, or institution having legal custody or serving as a guardian of the underage party, or a guardian ad litem appointed to represent the underage party pursuant to G.S. 51-2.1(b) is a proper party to bring an action to annul the marriage. (R.C., c. 68, s. 14; 1871-2, c. 193; Code, s. 1809; Rev., s. 2082; C.S., s. 2494; 1923, c. 75; 1933, c. 269, s. 1; 1939, c. 375; 1947, c. 383, s. 2; 1961, c. 186; 1967, c. 957, s. 1; 1969, c. 982; 1985, c. 608; 1998-202, s. 13(s); 2001-62, s. 2; 2001-487, s. 60.)

Cross References. — As to declaration of certain marriages as void on application of either party, see § 50-4.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 2, effective October 1, 2001, rewrote the section.

Session Laws 2001-487, s. 60, effective December 16, 2001, in subsection (a1) as enacted by Session Laws 2001-62, s. 2, deleted the first sentence in the concluding language of the subsection, which read "The written consent required by this subsection shall be either acknowledged before a notary public or signed in the presence of the register of deeds."

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1923 amendment, see 1 N.C.L. Rev. 295 (1923).

As to annulment under the 1939 amendment, see 17 N.C.L. Rev. 353 (1939).

For comment on the 1947 amendment, see 25 N.C.L. Rev. 414 (1947).

For article on a model act to prevent the sexual exploitation of children, see 17 Wake Forest L. Rev. 535 (1981).

CASE NOTES

Effect of Lack of Parental Consent and Special License. — The marriage of a female between the ages of 14 and 16 (now between 16 and 18) without the written consent of her parent and without the special license required by this section, is not void but voidable. Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N.C. 697, 146 S.E. 864 (1929).

Stated in Gastonia Personnel Corp. v. Rogers, 276 N.C. 279, 172 S.E.2d 19 (1970).

§ 51-2.1. Marriage of certain underage parties.

(a) If an unmarried female who is more than 14 years of age, but less than 16 years of age, is pregnant or has given birth to a child and the unmarried female and the putative father of the child, either born or unborn, agree to marry, or if an unmarried male who is more than 14 years of age, but less than 16 years of age, is the putative father of a child, either born or unborn, and the unmarried male and the mother of the child agree to marry, the register of deeds is authorized to issue to the parties a license to marry; and it shall be lawful for them to marry in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter, only after a certified copy of an order issued by a district court authorizing the marriage is filed with the register of deeds. A district court judge may issue an order authorizing a marriage under this section only upon finding as fact and concluding as a matter of law that the underage party is capable of assuming the responsibilities of marriage and the marriage will serve the best interest of the underage party. In determining whether the marriage will serve the best interest of an underage party, the district court shall consider the following:

(1) The opinion of the parents of the underage party as to whether the marriage serves the best interest of the underage party.

(2) The opinion of any person, agency, or institution having legal custody or serving as a guardian of the underage party as to whether the marriage serves the best interest of the underage party.

(3) The opinion of the guardian ad litem appointed to represent the best interest of the underage party pursuant to G.S. 51-2.1(b) as to whether the marriage serves the best interest of the underage party.

(4) The relationship between the underage party and the parents of the underage party, as well as the relationship between the underage party and any person having legal custody or serving as a guardian of the underage party.

(5) Any evidence that it would find useful in making its determination.

There shall be a rebuttable presumption that the marriage will not serve the best interest of the underage party when all living parents of the underage party oppose the marriage. The fact that the female is pregnant, or has given birth to a child, alone does not establish that the best interest of the underage party will be served by the marriage.

(b) An underage party seeking an order granting judicial authorization to marry pursuant to this section shall file a civil action in the district court requesting judicial authorization to marry. The clerk shall collect court costs from the underage party in the amount set forth in G.S. 7A-305 for civil actions in district court. Upon the filing of the complaint, summons shall be issued in accordance with G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, and the underage party shall be appointed a guardian ad litem in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 1A-1, Rule 17. The guardian ad litem appointed shall be an attorney and shall be governed by the provisions of subsection (d) of this section. The underage party shall serve a copy of the summons and complaint, in accordance with G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, on the father of the underage party; the mother of the underage party; and any person, agency, or institution having legal custody or serving as a guardian of the underage party. The underage party also shall serve a copy of the complaint, either in accordance with G.S. 1A-1, Rule 4, or G.S. 1A-1, Rule 5, on the guardian ad litem appointed pursuant to this section. A party responding to the underage party's complaint shall serve his response within 30 days after service of the summons and complaint upon that person. The underage party may participate in the proceedings before the court on his or her own behalf. At the hearing conducted pursuant to this section, the court shall consider evidence, as provided in subsection (a) of this section, and shall make written findings of fact and conclusions of law.

(c) Any party to a proceeding under this section may be represented by counsel, but no party is entitled to appointed counsel, except as provided in this section.

(d) The guardian ad litem appointed pursuant to subsection (b) of this section shall represent the best interest of the underage party in all proceedings under this section and also has standing to institute an action under G.S. 51-2(c). The appointment shall terminate when the last judicial ruling rendering the authorization granted or denied is entered. Payment of the guardian ad litem shall be governed by G.S. 7A- 451(f). The guardian ad litem shall make an investigation to determine the facts, the needs of the underage party, the available resources within the family and community to meet those needs, the impact of the marriage on the underage party, and the ability of the underage party to assume the responsibilities of marriage; facilitate, when appropriate, the settlement of disputed issues; offer evidence and examine witnesses at the hearing; and protect and promote the best interest of the underage party. In fulfilling the guardian ad litem's duties, the guardian ad litem shall assess and consider the emotional development, maturity, intellect, and understanding of the underage party. The guardian ad litem has the authority to obtain any information or reports, whether or not confidential, that the guardian ad litem deems relevant to the case. No privilege other than attorney-client privilege may be invoked to prevent the guardian ad litem and the court from obtaining such information. The confidentiality of the information or reports shall be respected by the guardian ad litem, and no disclosure of any information or reports shall be made to anyone except by order of the court or unless otherwise provided by law.

(e) If the last judicial ruling in this proceeding denies the underage party judicial authorization to marry, the underage party shall not seek the authorization of any court again under this section until after one year from the date of the entry of the last judicial ruling rendering the authorization denied.

(f) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the rules of evidence in civil cases shall apply to proceedings under this section. All hearings pursuant to this section shall be recorded by stenographic notes or by electronic or mechanical means. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no appeal of right lies from an order or judgment entered pursuant to this section. (2001-62, s. 3.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 18, makes this section effective October 1, 2001.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 2001-62 having been § 51-2A.

§ 51-2.2. Parent includes adoptive parent.

As used in this Article, the terms "parent", "father ", or "mother" includes one who has become a parent, father, or mother, respectively, by adoption. (2001-62, s. 4.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 18, makes this section effective October 1, 2001.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

The number of this section was assigned by the Revisor of Statutes, the number in Session Laws 2001-62 having been § 51-2B.

§ 51-3. Want of capacity; void and voidable marriages.

All marriages between any two persons nearer of kin than first cousins, or between double first cousins, or between a male person under 16 years of age and any female, or between a female person under 16 years of age and any male, or between persons either of whom has a husband or wife living at the time of such marriage, or between persons either of whom is at the time physically impotent, or between persons either of whom is at the time incapable of contracting from want of will or understanding, shall be void. No marriage followed by cohabitation and the birth of issue shall be declared void after the death of either of the parties for any of the causes stated in this section except for bigamy. No marriage by persons either of whom may be under 16 years of age, and otherwise competent to marry, shall be declared void when the girl shall be pregnant, or when a child shall have been born to the parties unless such child at the time of the action to annul shall be dead. A marriage contracted under a representation and belief that the female partner to the marriage is pregnant, followed by the separation of the parties within 45 days of the marriage which separation has been continuous for a period of one year, shall be voidable unless a child shall have been born to the parties within 10 lunar months of the date of separation. (R.C., c. 68, ss. 7, 8, 9; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 2; Code, s. 1810; 1887, c. 245; Rev., s. 2083; 1911, c. 215, s. 2; 1913, c. 123; 1917, c. 135; C.S., s. 2495; 1947, c. 383, s. 3; 1949, c. 1022; 1953, c. 1105; 1961, c. 367; 1977, c. 107, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to penal provisions for incest, see §§ 14-178 and 14-179. As to penal provisions for bigamy, see § 14-183. As to suits to nullify marriages which were entered into contrary to the provisions of this section, see § 50-4.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the 1947 amendment, see 25 N.C.L. Rev. 414 (1947).

For comment on the 1949 amendment, see 27 N.C.L. Rev. 453 (1949).

For comment on the 1953 amendment, see 31 N.C.L. Rev. 412 (1953).

CASE NOTES

Power of Legislature to Remove Conditions. — The competency of the General Assembly to impose the restraints and conditions incident to the formation of the marriage relation and the contract which creates it implies the right to remove same. Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N.C. 293 (1884).

Void and Voidable Marriages Compared. — A voidable marriage is valid for all civil purposes until annulled by a competent tribunal in a direct proceeding, but a void marriage is a nullity and may be impeached at any time. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

The marriage of a party under the minimum age required by statute is voidable and not void. Such marriage may be ratified by the subsequent conduct of the parties. Koonce v. Wallace, 52 N.C. 194 (1859); State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890); Sawyer v. Slack, 196 N.C. 697, 146 S.E. 864 (1929); Parks v. Parks, 218 N.C. 245, 10 S.E.2d 807 (1940).

Although this section provides that all marriages "between a male person under 16 years of age and any female, or between a female person under 16 years of age and any male ... shall be void," it is well established that such marriages are voidable rather than void. This was the rule of the common law. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

But May Be Ratified by Subsequent Conduct. — A marriage which is not void ab initio, but merely voidable, because one of the parties thereto was at its date under the age at which he or she might lawfully marry, may be ratified by the subsequent conduct of the parties in recognition of the marriage. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

Bigamous Marriages Are Void. — Where a wife attempts to marry again when no valid divorce a vinculo has been obtained from her living husband, such second attempted marriage is absolutely void and may be annulled by the husband of the second attempted marriage in an action instituted for that purpose. Pridgen v. Pridgen, 203 N.C. 533, 166 S.E. 591 (1932).

The fact that a presumption which has arisen of the death of a woman's husband shields her from prosecution for bigamy upon marrying another, does not render the last marriage any the less bigamous or void if the first husband is, in fact, alive. Ward v. Bailey, 118 N.C. 55, 23 S.E. 926 (1896).

A bigamous marriage is a nullity, with no legal rights flowing from it, and can be collaterally attacked at any time. Taylor v. Taylor, 321 N.C. 244, 362 S.E.2d 542 (1987).

And Are Subject to Collateral Attack. — A marriage between parties, either of whom has a living spouse at the time of the purported marriage, is void ab initio and such a marriage being a nullity, it may be attacked collaterally at any time; no legal rights flow from it. Redfern v. Redfern, 49 N.C. App. 94, 270 S.E.2d 606 (1980).

But Second Marriage Is Presumed Valid. — When two marriages of the same person are shown and both parties to the first marriage are living at the time of the second marriage, the second marriage is presumed to be valid and the first marriage is presumed to have been dissolved by divorce. Parker v. Parker, 46 N.C. App. 254, 265 S.E.2d 237 (1980).

Wife who knowingly entered a bigamous marriage was subsequently estopped from asserting the invalidity of that marriage in order to avoid the consequences flowing from her wrongful conduct; therefore, the trial court correctly terminated husband's obligation to pay alimony under the separation agreement. Taylor v. Taylor, 321 N.C. 244, 362 S.E.2d 542 (1987).

Impotency Renders Marriage Voidable. — Impotency in a husband does not render a marriage by him void ab initio, but only voidable by sentence of separation, and until such sentence, it is deeded valid and subsisting. Smith v. Morehead, 59 N.C. 360 (1863).

Marriage of One Incapable of Contracting for Want of Understanding Is Voidable. — Under the common law as modified by this section and § 50-4, a marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding is not void, but voidable. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Under the rule of the common law as modified by statute, the marriage of a person incapable of contracting for want of understanding is not void ipso facto, but if and when declared void in a legally constituted action, such marriage is void ab initio. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

What Constitutes Mental Capacity. — As to what constitutes mental capacity or incapacity to enter into a contract to marry, the general rule is that the test is the capacity of the person to understand the special nature of the contract of marriage and the duties and responsibilities which it entails, which is to be determined from the facts and circumstances of each case. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Knowledge of the provisions of the statutory law relating to the revocation of a will by marriage and relating to the persons who shall succeed to the estate of an intestate is not a prerequisite or necessary element of mental capacity sufficient to contract a valid marriage. Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

Test of Incompetency in Guardianship Matters Compared. — Tests judicially applied for a determination of incompetency in guardianship matters differ markedly from those applied for the determination of mental capacity to contract a marriage, for even though a person may be under guardianship as an incompetent, he may in fact have sufficient mental capacity to validly contract marriage. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Mental capacity of a party at the precise time when the marriage is celebrated controls its validity or invalidity. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Prior adjudication of incompetency is not conclusive on the issue of later capacity to marry and does not bar a party from entering into a contract to marry. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Burden of Persuasion as to Invalidity for Lack of Mental Capacity. — When the fact of marriage has been established by evidence, the burden of persuasion on the issue of invalidity is on the party asserting such. And even if a party's insanity is proved to be of such a chronic nature that it is presumed to continue, it does not shift the burden of the issue. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Capacity to Marry as Affected by Guardianship. — Unlike other transactions, an insane person's capacity to marry is not necessarily affected by guardianship. Geitner ex rel. First Nat'l Bank v. Townsend, 67 N.C. App. 159, 312 S.E.2d 236, cert. denied, 310 N.C. 744, 315 S.E.2d 702 (1984).

Certain Marriages Not Voidable After Death of Party. — As to provision that marriage followed by cohabitation and birth of issue shall not be declared void after death of either party except for bigamy, see Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N.C. 293 (1884); Ward v. Bailey, 118 N.C. 55, 23 S.E. 926 (1896); Ivery v. Ivery, 258 N.C. 721, 129 S.E.2d 457 (1963).

Annulment decree rendered when children of the marriage are living is contrary to this section and improvidently entered. Scarboro v. Morgan, 233 N.C. 449, 64 S.E.2d 422 (1951).

Marriage Valid Where Celebrated Is Valid Here. — The marriage relation, if legally created elsewhere, is recognized as a valid subsisting relation when the parties come into this State from that of their former residence. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N.C. 109, 9 S.E. 492 (1889).

Attempt to Evade Provisions of Section. — The validity of a foreign marriage is not recognized here when parties having their domicile here, to evade our laws, go to a state which allows such marriage, with intent to return and keep up their domicile. Woodard v. Blue, 103 N.C. 109, 9 S.E. 492 (1889).

There is a difference between declaring a marriage valid and preventing one from asserting its invalidity. The theory behind the equitable estoppel doctrine is not to make legally valid a void divorce or to make an invalid marriage valid, but rather, to prevent one from disrupting family relations by allowing one to avoid obligations as a spouse. Mayer v. Mayer, 66 N.C. App. 522, 311 S.E.2d 659, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 760, 321 S.E.2d 140 (1984).

Equitable Estoppel to Attack Divorce. — Equitable estoppel is dependent upon events which led to the divorce or which may have occurred after the divorce. It is a personal disability of the party attacking the divorce judgment; it is not a function of the divorce decree itself. Mayer v. Mayer, 66 N.C. App. 522, 311 S.E.2d 659, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 760, 321 S.E.2d 140 (1984).

Husband who encouraged his wife to obtain a divorce from her prior spouse was estopped from questioning its validity. This problem most commonly arises when a man persuades a married woman to divorce her husband so that she will be free to marry him. When he does so, or even when he merely marries her with full knowledge of the circumstances surrounding the divorce, he is estopped to question the validity of the divorce, since he has engaged in conduct calculated to induce reliance on the divorce, and indeed, he has relied on it himself. Mayer v. Mayer, 66 N.C. App. 522, 311 S.E.2d 659, cert. denied, 311 N.C. 760, 321 S.E.2d 140 (1984).

Applied in Goins v. Trustees Indian Training School, 169 N.C. 736, 86 S.E. 629 (1915); Wiseman v. Wiseman, 68 N.C. App. 252, 314 S.E.2d 566 (1984); Heiser v. Heiser, 71 N.C. App. 223, 321 S.E.2d 479 (1984), cert. denied, 474 U.S. 824, 106 S. Ct. 80, 88 L. Ed. 2d 66 (1985).

Quoted in Swann v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bd. of Educ., 318 F. Supp. 786 (W.D.N.C. 1970).

Stated in Fungaroli v. Fungaroli, 53 N.C. App. 270, 280 S.E.2d 787 (1981).

Cited in Chance v. Board of Educ., 224 F. Supp. 472 (E.D.N.C. 1963); Armstrong v. Armstrong, 41 N.C. App. 168, 254 S.E.2d 209 (1979).

§ 51-3.1. Interracial marriages validated.

All interracial marriages that were declared void by statute or a court of competent jurisdiction prior to March 24, 1977, are hereby validated. The parties to such interracial marriages are deemed to be lawfully married, provided that the provisions of this Chapter have been complied with. (1977, c. 107, s. 2.)

§ 51-3.2. Marriage licensed and solemnized by a federally recognized Indian Nation or Tribe.

(a) Subject to the restriction provided in subsection (b), a marriage between a man and a woman licensed and solemnized according to the law of a federally recognized Indian Nation or Tribe shall be valid and the parties to the marriage shall be lawfully married.

(b) When the law of a federally recognized Indian Nation or Tribe allows persons to obtain a marriage license from the register of deeds and the parties to a marriage do so, Chapter 51 of the General Statutes shall apply and the marriage shall be valid only if the issuance of the license and the solemnization of the marriage is conducted in compliance with this Chapter. (2001-62, s. 5.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 18, makes this section effective October 1, 2001.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

§ 51-4. Prohibited degrees of kinship.

When the degree of kinship is estimated with a view to ascertain the right of kinspeople to marry, the half-blood shall be counted as the whole-blood: Provided, that nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to invalidate any marriage heretofore contracted in case where by counting the half-blood as the whole-blood the persons contracting such marriage would be nearer of kin than first cousins; but in every such case the kinship shall be ascertained by counting relations of the half-blood as being only half so near kin as those of the same degree of the whole-blood. (1879, c. 78; Code, s. 1811; Rev., s. 2084; C.S., s. 2496.)

§ 51-5. Marriages between slaves validated.

Persons, both or one of whom were formerly slaves, who have complied with the provisions of section five, Chapter 40, of the acts of the General Assembly, ratified March 10, 1866, shall be deemed to have been lawfully married. (1866, c. 40, s. 5; Code, s. 1842; Rev., s. 2085; C.S., s. 2497.)

CASE NOTES

Section Is Valid. — As to the validity of this section, see Cooke v. Cooke, 61 N.C. 583 (1868); State v. Harris, 63 N.C. 1 (1868); State v. Adams, 65 N.C. 537 (1871); State v. Whitford, 86 N.C. 636 (1882); Long v. Barnes, 87 N.C. 329 (1882); Baity v. Cranfill, 91 N.C. 293 (1884).

For other cases decided under the statute, see Woodard v. Blue, 103 N.C. 109, 9 S.E. 492 (1889); State v. Melton, 120 N.C. 591, 26 S.E. 933 (1897); Bettis v. Avery, 140 N.C. 184, 52 S.E. 584 (1905).

Declarations as to Paternity. — Where a marriage was validated by this section, declarations as to the paternity of a child born subsequent to the marriage, made anti litem motam by the alleged father and mother, were admissible in evidence without regard to § 49-12, which legitimates children born out of wedlock whose parents subsequently intermarry. Family tradition or pedigree is a recognized exception to the rule which generally excludes hearsay evidence. Bowman v. Howard, 182 N.C. 662, 110 S.E. 98 (1921).

Article 2.

Marriage Licenses.

§ 51-6. Solemnization without license unlawful.

No minister, officer, or any other person authorized to solemnize a marriage under the laws of this State shall perform a ceremony of marriage between a man and woman, or shall declare them to be husband and wife, until there is delivered to that person a license for the marriage of the said persons, signed by the register of deeds of the county in which the marriage license was issued or by a lawful deputy or assistant. There must be at least two witnesses to the marriage ceremony.

Whenever a man and woman have been lawfully married in accordance with the laws of the state in which the marriage ceremony took place, and said marriage was performed by a magistrate or some other civil official duly authorized to perform such ceremony, and the parties thereafter wish to confirm their marriage vows before an ordained minister or minister authorized by a church, or in a ceremony recognized by any religious denomination, federally or State recognized Indian Nation or Tribe, nothing herein shall be deemed to prohibit such confirmation ceremony; provided, however, that such confirmation ceremony shall not be deemed in law to be a marriage ceremony, such confirmation ceremony shall in no way affect the validity or invalidity of the prior marriage ceremony performed by a civil official, no license for such confirmation ceremony shall be issued by a register of deeds, and no record of such confirmation ceremony may be kept by a register of deeds. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 4; Code, s. 1813; Rev., s. 2086; C.S., s. 2498; 1957, c. 1261; 1959, c. 338; 1967, c. 957, ss. 6, 9; 1977, c. 592, s. 2; 2001-62, s. 6.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 6, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "No minister, officer ... laws of this State" for "No minister or officer," substituted "that person" for "him," and substituted "the marriage license was issued ... deputy or assistant" for "the marriage is intended to take place or by his lawful deputy" in the first paragraph; and in the second paragraph, substituted "magistrate" for "justice of the peace," substituted "a church" for "his church," and inserted "or in a ceremony ... Nation or Tribe."

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "An Evolutionary Consideration of the Marriage Formalities of Licensure and Solemnization in Contemporary English and North Carolinian Statutory Law," see 10 N.C. Cent. L.J. 1 (1978).

CASE NOTES

Failure to procure a license will not invalidate a marriage otherwise good. State v. Robbins, 28 N.C. 23 (1845); State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890); Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893); Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N.C. 438, 114 S.E. 628 (1922).

A marriage is not invalid because solemnized under an illegal license. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893); Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N.C. 438, 114 S.E. 628 (1922).

Actual Delivery of License Required. — This section requires an actual delivery; constructive delivery will not suffice. So performance of the ceremony by a justice after a telephone communication informing him that the license had been mailed would subject him to the penalty prescribed by § 51-7. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N.C. 438, 114 S.E. 628 (1922).

Officer or Minister Penalized. — The only effect of marrying a couple without a legal license is to subject the officer or minister to the penalty of $200.00 prescribed by § 51-7. State v. Robbins, 28 N.C. 23 (1845); State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890); Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893).

Cited in State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980).

§ 51-7. Penalty for solemnizing without license.

Every minister, officer, or any other person authorized to solemnize a marriage under the laws of this State, who marries any couple without a license being first delivered to that person, as required by law, or after the expiration of such license, or who fails to return such license to the register of deeds within 10 days after any marriage celebrated by virtue thereof, with the certificate appended thereto duly filled up and signed, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars ($200.00) to any person who sues therefore, and shall also be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. (R.C., c. 68, ss. 6, 13; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 8; Code, s. 1817; Rev., ss. 2087, 3372; C.S., s. 2499; 1953, c. 638, s. 1; 1967, c. 957, s. 5; 1993, c. 539, s. 415; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 2001-62, s. 7.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 7, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "Every minister, officer...laws of this State" for "Every minister or officer," substituted "delivered to that person" for "delivered to him," and deleted "he" preceding "shall be guilty."

CASE NOTES

Marriage Not Affected. — Failure to comply with statutory requirements as to the license subjects the officer or minister to the penalty under this section, but the marriage is nevertheless good for every intent and purpose. State v. Parker, 106 N.C. 711, 11 S.E. 517 (1890).

Statute of Limitations. — Where a summons was issued to recover the penalty against an officer, under this section, for performing marriage ceremony without the delivery of the license therefor to him, within less than a year from the time he had performed it, it was held that the plea of the statute of limitations, § 1-54, subdivision (2), could not be sustained. Wooley v. Bruton, 184 N.C. 438, 114 S.E. 628 (1922).

Cited in In re Thomas, 290 N.C. 410, 226 S.E.2d 371 (1976); State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980).

§ 51-8. License issued by register of deeds.

Every register of deeds shall, upon proper application, issue a license for the marriage of any two persons who are able to answer the questions regarding age, marital status, and intention to marry, and, based on the answers, the register of deeds determines the persons are authorized to be married in accordance with the laws of this State. In making a determination as to whether or not the parties are authorized to be married under the laws of this State, the register of deeds may require the applicants for the license to marry to present certified copies of birth certificates or birth registration cards provided for in G.S. 130-73, or such other evidence as the register of deeds deems necessary to such determination. The register of deeds may administer an oath to any person presenting evidence relating to whether or not parties applying for a marriage license are eligible to be married pursuant to the laws of this State. Each applicant for a marriage license shall provide on the application the applicant's social security number. If an applicant does not have a social security number and is ineligible to obtain one, the applicant shall present a statement to that effect, sworn to or affirmed before an officer authorized to administer oaths. Upon presentation of a sworn or affirmed statement, the register of deeds shall issue the license, provided all other requirements are met, and retain the statement with the register's copy of the license. The register of deeds shall not issue a marriage license unless all of the requirements of this section have been met. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 5; Code, s. 1814; 1887, c. 331; Rev., s. 2088; C.S., s. 2500; 1957, c. 506, s. 1; 1967, c. 957, s. 2; 1997-433, s. 4.5; 1998-17, s. 1; 1999-375, s. 1; 2001-62, s. 8.)

Cross References. — For decisions relating to this section and § 51-17, see note to § 51-17.

Editor's Note. — Section 130-73, referred to in this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1983, c. 891, s. 1. As to birth certificates, see now § 130A-101, et seq.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 8, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "who are able to answer ... determines the person" for "if it appears that such persons" in the first sentence.

CASE NOTES

This section and § 51-17 are in pari materia and should be construed together. Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N.C. 398 (1885); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911).

Defense to Breach of Promise of Marriage. — The fact that at the time of the breach of promise of marriage, a license for the marriage of the parties could not have been lawfully issued under this section, was a defense to an action for damages for breach of promise of marriage. Winders v. Powers, 217 N.C. 580, 9 S.E.2d 131 (1940), decided under former former health certification requirement.

Effect of Noncompliance. — Failure to file a health certificate as required by former § 51-14 did not invalidate an otherwise legal marriage, but such failure to comply with the statute in this respect did make the parties subject to indictment, and if they were convicted, to the penalty or penalties provided by this section. Hall v. Hall, 250 N.C. 275, 108 S.E.2d 487 (1959), decided under former former health certification requirement.

Cited in State v. Lynch, 301 N.C. 479, 272 S.E.2d 349 (1980).

OPINIONS OF ATTORNEY GENERAL

Aliens. — Where the register of deeds is satisfied that an applicant is an alien who has not come to the United States for the purpose of establishing a permanent residence or for the purpose of engaging in employment, and who otherwise meets the lawful requirements for a marriage license, the register of deeds should issue the license even though the alien is ineligible for a social security number. See opinion of Attorney General to The Honorable Katherine Lee Payne, Guilford County Register of Deeds, Guilford County Courthouse, 1998 N.C.A.G. 36 (8/14/98).

§ 51-8.1: Repealed by Session Laws 1967, c. 53.

§ 51-8.2. Issuance of marriage license when applicant is unable to appear.

If an applicant for a marriage license is over 18 years of age and is unable to appear in person at the register of deeds' office, the other party to the planned marriage must appear in person on behalf of the applicant and submit a sworn and notarized affidavit in lieu of the absent applicant's personal appearance.

The affidavit shall be in the following or some equivalent form:

_____, [applicant] appearing before the undersigned notary and being duly sworn, says that:

1. I, _____, [applicant's name] am applying for a license in _____ County, North Carolina, to marry _____ [name of other applicant] in North Carolina within the next 60 days and I am authorized under G.S. 51-8.2 to complete this Affidavit in Lieu of Personal Appearance for Marriage License Application.
   I attach: (1) documentation that I am over 18 years of age as required in county of issuance; and (2) documentation of divorce as required by county of issuance.
2. I submit the following information in applying for a marriage license:
   Name: _____
   First Middle Last Residence: _____
   State County City or Town
   _____
   Street and Number
   Inside City Limits (Yes or No): _____
   Birthplace: _____
   County & State or Country
   Birth Date: _____ Age: _____
   Father: _____
   Name State of Birth
   _____
   Address (if living) or Deceased
   Mother: _____
   Name State of Birth
   _____
   Address (if living) or Deceased

Race (Optional): _____
Number of this marriage: 1st, 2nd, etc. _____
Last Marriage Ended by: _____
Death, Divorce, Annulment
Date Marriage Ended: _____
Specify Highest Grade Completed in School (Optional): _____
Social Security # _____ (If applicant does not have Social Security number, attach affidavit of ineligibility)
I hereby make application to the Register of Deeds for a Marriage License and solemnly swear that all of the statements contained in the above application are true and I further make oath that there is no legal impediment to such marriage.

_____
Signature of Applicant
Sworn to (or affirmed) and subscribed before me this ____ day of _____, _____.

_____
[Seal] Notary Public
My commission expires: _____

_____
[Notary's typed or printed name].

(2001-62, s. 9.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 18, makes this section effective October 1, 2001.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

§§ 51-9 through 51-11: Repealed by Session Laws 1994, c. 647, ss. 1-3.

§ 51-12: Repealed by Session Laws 1985, c. 589, s. 27.

§ 51-13: Repealed by Session Laws 1994, c. 647, s. 4.

Editor's Note. — The repealed section was amended by Session Laws 1993, c. 539, s. 416, as amended by Session Laws 1994, Extra Session, c. 24, s. 14(c), effective October 1, 1994. The section is set out above as repealed.

§ 51-14: Repealed by Session Laws 1967, c. 957, s. 3.

§ 51-15. Obtaining license by false representation misdemeanor.

If any person shall obtain, or aid and abet in obtaining, a marriage license by misrepresentation or false pretenses, that person shall be guilty of a Class 1 misdemeanor. (1885, c. 346; Rev., s. 3371; C.S., s. 2501; 1967, c. 957, s. 4; 1993, c. 539, s. 417; 1994, Ex. Sess., c. 24, s. 14(c); 2001-62, s. 10.)

Cross References. — As to false pretenses generally, see § 14-100 et seq.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 10, effective October 1, 2001, inserted "or aid and abet in obtaining"; and substituted "that person shall be guilty" for "he shall be guilty."

§ 51-16. Form of license.

License shall be in the following or some equivalent form:

To any ordained minister of any religious denomination, minister authorized by a church, any magistrate, or any other person authorized to solemnize a marriage under the laws of this State: A.B. having applied to me for a license for the marriage of C.D. (the name of the man to be written in full) of (here state his residence), aged _____ years (race, as the case may be), the son of (here state the father and mother, if known; state whether they are living or dead, and their residence, if known; if any of these facts are not known, so state), and E.F. (write the name of the woman in full) of (here state her residence), aged _____ years (race, as the case may be), the daughter of (here state names and residences of the parents, if known, as is required above with respect to the man). (If either of the parties is under 18 years of age, the license shall here contain the following:) And the written consent of G.H., father (or mother, etc., as the case may be) to the proposed marriage having been filed with me, and there being no legal impediment to such marriage known to me, you are hereby authorized, at any time within 60 days from the date hereof, to celebrate the proposed marriage at any place within the State. You are required within 10 days after you shall have celebrated such marriage, to return this license to me at my office with your signature subscribed to the certificate under this license, and with the blanks therein filled according to the facts, under penalty of forfeiting two hundred dollars ($200.00) to the use of any person who shall sue for the same.

Issued this _____ day of _____, _____

_____ L.M.

Register of Deeds of _____ County

Every register of deeds shall, at the request of an applicant, designate in a marriage license issued the race of the persons proposing to marry by inserting in the blank after the word "race" the words "white," "black," "African-American," "American Indian," "Alaska Native," "Asian Indian," "Chinese," "Filipino," "Japanese," "Korean," "Vietnamese," "Other Asian," "Native Hawaiian," "Guamarian," "Chamorro," "Samoan," "Other Pacific Islander," "Mexican," "Mexican-American," "Chicano," "Puerto Rican," "Cuban," "Other Spanish/Hispanic/Latino," or "other," as the case may be. The certificate shall be filled out and signed by the minister, officer, or other authorized individual celebrating the marriage, and also be signed by two witnesses present at the marriage, who shall add to their names their place of residence, as follows:

I, N.O., an ordained or authorized minister or other authorized individual of (here state to what religious denomination, or magistrate, as the case may be), united in matrimony (here name the parties), the parties licensed above, on the _____ day of _____, _____, at the house of P.R., in (here name the town, if any, the township and county), according to law.

_____ N.O.

Witness present at the marriage:

S.T., of (here give residence).

(1871-2, c. 193, s. 6; Code, s. 1815; 1899, c. 541, ss. 1, 2; Rev., s. 2089; 1909, c. 704, s. 3; 1917, c. 38; C.S., s. 2502; 1953, c. 638, s. 2; 1967, c. 957, s. 7; 1971, c. 1072; c. 1185, s. 27; 1999-456, s. 59; 2001-62, s. 11.)

Local Modification. — Bladen: 1941, c. 95.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 1999-456, s. 59, effective January 1, 2000, twice deleted "19" from the date lines in this section.

Session Laws 2001-62, s. 11, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "a church, magistrate, or any other person authorized to solemnize a marriage under the laws of this State" for "his church, or to any magistrate for _____ County" in the introductory language of the form; substituted "within the State" for "within the county" at the end of the next to last sentence of the form; in the paragraph beginning "Every register of deeds," substituted "at the request of an applicant, designate in a marriage license" for "designate in every marriage license" and expanding the list of racial designations in a marriage license and including references to other persons authorized to solemnize a marriage; and inserted "or other authorized individual" in the last paragraph.

CASE NOTES

License Not Issued Until Filled Out. — A blank marriage license, though signed by the register of deeds, is not issued until it is filled out and handed to the person who is to be married, or to someone for him, and if at the time of such issuance the register has become functus officio, the failure to record it does not render him liable to the penalty imposed by §§ 51-18 and 51-19 for failure to record the substance of each marriage license issued. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893).

Quoted in Swann v. Charlotte-Mecklenburg Bd. of Educ., 318 F. Supp. 786 (W.D.N.C. 1970).

§ 51-17. Penalty for issuing license unlawfully.

Every register of deeds who knowingly or without reasonable inquiry, personally or by deputy, issues a license for the marriage of any two persons to which there is any lawful impediment, or where either of the persons is under the age of 18 years, without the consent required by law, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars ($200.00) to any parent, guardian, or other person standing in loco parentis, who sues for the same: Provided, that requiring a party to a proposed marriage to present a certified copy of his or her birth certificate, or a certified copy of his or her birth record in the form of a birth registration card as provided in G.S. 130-102, in accordance with the provisions of G.S. 51-8, shall be considered a reasonable inquiry into the matter of the age of such party. (R.C., c. 68, s. 13; 1871-2, c. 193, s. 7; Code, s. 1816; 1895, c. 387; 1901, c. 722; Rev., s. 2090; C.S., s. 2503; 1957, c. 506, s. 2.)

Editor's Note. — Section 130-102, referred to in this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1983, c. 891, s. 1, effective January 1, 1984. As to birth registration, see now § 130A-101 et seq.

CASE NOTES

I. In General.
II. Action for Penalty.

I. IN GENERAL.

Editor's Note. — Section 51-8 and this section have generally been construed together, as they relate to the same subject. Therefore, the cases decided under both sections have been treated in the note to this section.

Purpose. — The statute is a wise and beneficent one, the object being to prevent hasty and improvident marriages. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911). See also Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

The statute is remedial in its nature. Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

This section and § 51-8 are in pari materia and should be construed together. Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N.C. 398 (1885); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911); Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

Duties of Register Are Highly Important. — The duties of the register of deeds in issuing marriage licenses are most important and solemn. He must exercise them carefully and conscientiously, and not as a mere matter of form. Agent v. Willis, 124 N.C. 29, 32 S.E. 322 (1899); Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Julian v. Daniels, 175 N.C. 549, 95 S.E. 907 (1918).

Duties Cannot Be Delegated. — A register of deeds cannot delegate to another the duty of making the required reasonable inquiry into the legal competency of persons applying for a license to marry. Cole v. Laws, 108 N.C. 185, 12 S.E. 985 (1891).

Inquiry by Deputy Will Not Excuse Register. — If a party to a marriage is under the age authorized by law, the register cannot excuse himself from liability because his deputy or agent made proper inquiry, if he did not make the inquiry himself. The trust is personal to him. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893).

Delivery of License to Third Party Prohibited. — The register is not authorized to permit the completed license to pass from the office and beyond his control into the hands of any applicant acting for a party to the proposed marriage. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N.C. 21 (1884).

Where the register delivered a license complete in form to one with instructions not to give it to the parties until the mother's consent in writing was given, and the license was never presented to the mother nor was her consent obtained, but the marriage ceremony was performed under it, it was held that the register was liable to the penalty. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N.C. 21 (1884).

"Reasonable Inquiry". — By reasonable inquiry is meant such inquiry as renders it probable that no impediment to the marriage exists. Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N.C. 398 (1885).

It would seem that "reasonable inquiry" involves at least an inquiry made of, or information furnished by, some person known to the register to be reliable, or, if unknown, identified and approved by some reliable person known to the register. This is the rule upon which banks act in paying checks, and surely in the matter of such grave importance as issuing a marriage license the register should not be excused upon a less degree of care. Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Furr v. Johnson, 140 N.C. 157, 52 S.E. 664 (1905); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911); Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

The requirement of reasonable inquiry is not merely a formal matter, which is met by taking the oaths of the husband or other parties unknown to the register, but it is expressive of a sound principle of public policy designed to protect immature persons from hasty and ill-advised marriages, made without the consent of their parents or guardians or those properly having the care over them. Julian v. Daniels, 175 N.C. 549, 95 S.E. 907 (1918).

Reasonable Inquiry Precludes Liability. — The register is not liable to the penalty when he has made reasonable inquiry and has been deceived, without laches on his part. Williams v. Hodges, 101 N.C. 300, 7 S.E. 786 (1888); Cole v. Laws, 104 N.C. 651, 10 S.E. 172 (1889); Agent v. Willis, 124 N.C. 29, 32 S.E. 322 (1899); Laney v. Mackey, 144 N.C. 630, 57 S.E. 386 (1907); Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

Examination under Oath Discretionary. — Section 51-8 does not require that the register shall make inquiry by examination of the applicant under oath, but merely declares that he shall have "the power to do so." His using, or failing to use, such discretionary power is merely a circumstance to be considered by the jury. Furr v. Johnson, 140 N.C. 157, 52 S.E. 664 (1905); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911).

Sworn Statements of Unknown Persons Insufficient. — It is not sufficient that the register takes the sworn statements of the parties or their friends not known to him. Snipes v. Wood, 179 N.C. 349, 102 S.E. 619 (1920).

Instances of Reasonable Inquiry. — When a reliable man of good character applied for a license, and produced to the register a written statement purporting to give to age of the female as over 18 years, and also the name and residence of the parents, and the person producing the statement said it was true, though no name was signed to it, it was held that the register had made such inquiry as was required of him, and was not liable for the penalty. Bowles v. Cochran, 93 N.C. 398 (1885).

For other cases where inquiry was held reasonable, see Walker v. Adams, 109 N.C. 481, 13 S.E. 907 (1891); Harcum v. Marsh, 130 N.C. 154, 41 S.E. 6 (1902).

Instances of Lack of Reasonable Inquiry. — When the register issued a license for the marriage of a woman under 18 years of age, without the assent of her parents, upon the application of one of whose general character for reliability he was ignorant, and who falsely stated the age of the woman, without making any further inquiry as to his sources of information, it was held that he had not made such reasonable inquiry into the facts as the law required, and he incurred the penalty for the neglect of his duty in that respect. Cole v. Laws, 104 N.C. 651, 10 S.E. 172 (1889).

To the same effect are the following cases: Williams v. Hodges, 101 N.C. 300, 7 S.E. 786 (1888); Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Morrison v. Teague, 143 N.C. 186, 55 S.E. 521 (1906); Laney v. Mackey, 144 N.C. 630, 57 S.E. 386 (1907); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911); Julian v. Daniels, 175 N.C. 549, 95 S.E. 907 (1918); Snipes v. Wood, 179 N.C. 349, 102 S.E. 619 (1920).

Written Consent Prerequisite to Issuance of Certain Licenses. — A register of deeds is not permitted to issue a marriage license where one of the parties is under 18 years of age, until the consent in writing of the person under whose charge he or she is shall be delivered to the register. The written consent is a condition precedent to the issuance of the license. Coley v. Lewis, 91 N.C. 21 (1884).

As to requirement under former law of consent of father, if living, see Littleton v. Haar, 158 N.C. 566, 74 S.E. 12 (1912); Owens v. Munden, 168 N.C. 266, 84 S.E. 257 (1915).

The word "father" used in the former statute did not include "stepfather," and the written consent of the mother, the father being dead, would authorize the issuing of the license. Owens v. Munden, 168 N.C. 266, 84 S.E. 257 (1915).

Violation of Section. — Issuance of a marriage license by a register of deeds in violation of the section is not an indictable offense, unless the illegal act is done mala fide. State v. Snuggs, 85 N.C. 541 (1881).

II. ACTION FOR PENALTY.

As to jurisdiction, see Joyner v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 111, 16 S.E. 917 (1893); Dixon v. Haar, 158 N.C. 341, 74 S.E. 1 (1912).

Venue. — An action for the penalty under this section should be tried in the county wherein the cause of action arises, and if brought in the wrong county, it should be removed and not dismissed. Dixon v. Haar, 158 N.C. 341, 74 S.E. 1 (1912).

Effect of Register's Death. — Under former § 1-74, it was held that an action for a penalty against a register of deeds and the surety on his official bond abated on the death of the officer. Wallace v. McPherson, 139 N.C. 297, 51 S.E. 897 (1905). For present provisions as to abatement of actions, see § 1A-1, Rule 25.

Allegations in Complaint. — In an action under this section, it is essential that the complaint should allege that the register issued the license knowingly or without reasonable inquiry. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N.C. 174, 12 S.E. 890 (1891).

Burden of Proof. — The burden of proof is upon the plaintiff to show that the officer issued the license when he knew of the impediment to the marriage, or that it was forbidden by the law, or when he had not made reasonable inquiry. Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Furr v. Johnson, 140 N.C. 157, 52 S.E. 664 (1905); Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911).

Presumption as to Time of Issuance. — The presumption is that a marriage license, signed by a register of deeds, was issued during his term of office. The burden of proving the contrary is on the party asserting it. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893).

Evidence. — In a civil suit against a register, evidence of nolo contendere pleaded by the husband in a criminal action was not admissible. Snipes v. Wood, 179 N.C. 349, 102 S.E. 619 (1920).

Proof of the officer's failure to administer the oath to the applicant for the license is admissible to show a lack of reasonable inquiry. Laney v. Mackey, 144 N.C. 630, 57 S.E. 386 (1907).

The testimony of a witness as to the age of the woman, depending solely upon her statements to him which he repeated to the register when the license was applied for, was not substantive evidence of her age. Joyner v. Harris, 157 N.C. 295, 72 S.E. 970 (1911).

"Reasonable Inquiry" as Question of Law. — It is well-settled that the facts being admitted or found by the jury, the question as to what is "reasonable inquiry" is one of law for the court. Joyner v. Roberts, 114 N.C. 389, 19 S.E. 645 (1894); Trolinger v. Boroughs, 133 N.C. 312, 45 S.E. 662 (1903); Julian v. Daniels, 175 N.C. 549, 95 S.E. 907 (1918); Snipes v. Wood, 179 N.C. 349, 102 S.E. 619 (1920).

"Reasonable Inquiry" as Question for Jury. — Where there is a conflict of evidence, whether there has been "reasonable inquiry" is to be submitted to the jury upon all the evidence under proper instructions. Joyner v. Roberts, 114 N.C. 389, 19 S.E. 645 (1894); Harcum v. Marsh, 130 N.C. 154, 41 S.E. 6 (1902); Furr v. Johnson, 140 N.C. 157, 52 S.E. 664 (1905).

The fact that the register administered an oath to the applicant and his friend did not, of itself, exonerate him. He was permitted by the statute to do so, so that he might better elicit the facts, and his doing so or failing to do so would be but a circumstance for the jury to consider. Gray v. Lentz, 173 N.C. 346, 91 S.E. 1024 (1917).

If the evidence is conflicting as to the reasonableness of the inquiry made by the register, the question should be submitted to the jury, and a judgment as of nonsuit thereon is erroneously entered. Lemmons v. Sigman, 181 N.C. 238, 106 S.E. 764 (1921).

Instructions. — If the facts are admitted, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury whether they are sufficient to constitute "reasonable inquiry"; if they are in controversy, it is the duty of the court to instruct the jury that certain facts to be determined from the evidence do or do not constitute "reasonable inquiry." Spencer v. Saunders, 189 N.C. 183, 126 S.E. 420 (1925).

§ 51-18. Record of licenses and returns; originals filed.

The register of deeds shall maintain a separate index for marriage licenses and returns thereto. Each marriage license shall be indexed alphabetically according to the name of the proposed husband and proposed wife. Each index entry shall include, but not be limited to, the full name of the intended husband and wife, the date the marriage ceremony was performed, and the location of the original license and the return thereon. The original license and return shall be filed and preserved. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 9; Code, s. 1818; 1899, c. 541, s. 3; Rev., s. 2091; C.S., s. 2504; 1963, c. 429; 1967, c. 957, s. 8; 1979, c. 636, s. 1; 1983, c. 699, s. 2.)

§ 51-18.1. Correction of errors in application or license; amendment of names in application or license.

(a) When it shall appear to the register of deeds of any county in this State that information is incorrectly stated on an application for a marriage license, or upon a marriage license issued thereunder, or upon a return or certificate of an officiating officer, the register of deeds is authorized to correct such record or records upon being furnished with an affidavit signed by one or both of the applicants for the marriage license, accompanied by affidavits of at least two other persons who know the correct information.

(b) When the name of a party to a marriage has been changed by court order as a result of a legitimation action or other cause of action, and the party whose name is changed presents a signed affidavit to the register of deeds indicating the name change and requesting that the application for a marriage license, the marriage license, and the marriage certificate of the officiating officer be amended by substituting the changed name for the original name, the register of deeds may amend the records as requested by the party, provided the other party named in the records consents to the amendment. (1953, c. 797; 1959, c. 344; 1987, c. 576; 2001-62, s. 12.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 16, provides: "The Administrative Office of the Courts shall develop any and all forms necessary for carrying out the purpose of this act and distribute them to the Office of the Clerk of Superior Court in each county."

Effect of Amendments. — Session Laws 2001-62, s. 12, effective October 1, 2001, substituted "errors in application" for "errors in names in application" in the section catchline; substituted "that information is incorrectly stated" for "that the names of either or both parties to a marriage is incorrectly stated," deleted "to show the true names of the parties to the marriage" following "record or records," and substituted "know the correct information" for "know the true name or names of the person or persons seeking such correction" in subsection (a); and substituted "presents a signed affidavit" for "present a signed affidavit" in subsection (b).

§ 51-19. Penalty for failure to record.

Any register of deeds who fails to record, in the manner above prescribed, the substance of any marriage license issued by him, or who fails to record, in the manner above prescribed, the substance of any return made thereon, within 10 days after such return made, shall forfeit and pay two hundred dollars ($200.00) to any person who sues for the same. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 10; Code, s. 1819; Rev., s. 2092; C.S., s. 2505.)

CASE NOTES

Jurisdiction. — A plaintiff may unite several causes of action for several penalties against the same party, in the same complaint, and if the aggregate amount thereof exceeds the requisite amount, the superior court will have jurisdiction. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N.C. 174, 12 S.E. 890 (1891).

The penalty given by this section is in the alternative, either for failure to record the substance of the license issued or for failure to record the substance of the return. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N.C. 174, 12 S.E. 890 (1891).

Prosecution in Name of Person Suing for Penalty. — An action against a register of deeds to recover the penalties imposed for failure to comply with the provisions of the statute in relation to issuing marriage licenses under this section must be prosecuted in the name of the person who sues therefor, and not in the name of the State. Maggett v. Roberts, 108 N.C. 174, 12 S.E. 890 (1891).

No Penalty for Not Recording Invalid License. — If the filling up and handing of the paper previously signed to the party proposing to be married was done not by the register but by an agent, and at the time the register was functus officio, the paper would be equally invalid because lacking the signature of a de facto register, and there could be no penalty for not recording it. Maggett v. Roberts, 112 N.C. 71, 16 S.E. 919 (1893).

A statute relieving the register from the penalty imposed by this section, passed after an action was brought to recover the penalty, but before judgment, was held constitutional. Bray v. Williams, 137 N.C. 387, 49 S.E. 887 (1905).

§ 51-20: Repealed by Session Laws 1969, c. 80, s. 6.

§ 51-21. Issuance of delayed marriage certificates.

In all those cases where a minister or other person authorized by law to perform marriage ceremonies has failed to file his return thereof in the office of the register of deeds who issued the license for such marriage, the register of deeds of such county is authorized to issue a delayed marriage certificate upon being furnished with one or more of the following:

(1) The affidavit of at least two witnesses to the marriage ceremony;

(2) The affidavit of one or both parties to the marriage, accompanied by the affidavit of at least one witness to the marriage ceremony;

(3) The affidavit of the minister or other person authorized by law who performed the marriage ceremony, accompanied by the affidavit of one or more witnesses to the ceremony or one of the parties thereto.

(4) When proof as required by the three methods set forth in subdivisions (1), (2), and (3) above is not available with respect to any marriage alleged to have been performed prior to January 1, 1935, the register of deeds is authorized to accept the affidavit of any one of the persons named in subdivisions (1), (2), and (3) and in addition thereto such other proof in writing as he may deem sufficient to establish the marriage and any facts relating thereto; provided, however, that if the evidence offered under this paragraph is insufficient to convince the register of deeds that the marriage ceremony took place, or any of the pertinent facts relating thereto, the applicants may bring a special proceeding before the clerk of superior court of the county in which the purported marriage ceremony took place. The said clerk of the superior court is authorized to hear the evidence and make findings as to whether or not the purported ceremony took place and as to any pertinent facts relating thereto. If the clerk finds that the marriage did take place as alleged, he is to certify such findings to the register of deeds who is to then issue a delayed marriage certificate in accordance with the provisions of this section.

The certificate issued by the register of deeds under authority of this section shall contain the date of the delayed filing, the date the marriage ceremony was actually performed, and all such certificates issued pursuant to this section shall have the same evidentiary value as any other marriage certificates issued pursuant to law. (1951, c. 1224; 1955, c. 246; 1967, c. 957, s. 10; 1969, c. 80, s. 12.)

Chapter 52.

Powers and Liabilities of Married Persons.

§ 52-1. Property of married persons secured.

The real and personal property of any married person in this State, acquired before marriage or to which he or she may after marriage become in any manner entitled, shall be and remain the sole and separate estate and property of such married person and may be devised, bequeathed and conveyed by such married person subject to G.S. 50-20 and such other regulations and limitations as the General Assembly may prescribe. (Const., Art. X, s. 6; Rev., s. 2093; C.S., s. 2506; 1965, c. 878, s. 1; 1981, c. 815, s. 3.)

Cross References. — For constitutional provision as to property of married women, see N.C. Const., Art. X, § 4. As to conveyances by husband and wife, see § 39-7 et seq. As to contracts of married persons, see § 52-2.

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1965, c. 878, s. 1, repealed and rewrote Chapter 52 of the General Statutes. Where present provisions are similar to prior statutory provisions, the historical citations from the former sections have been added to the new sections. Former § 52-1 applied to married women only.

Annotations to present Chapter 52 construing provisions of the former Chapter have been retained where it is thought they will be helpful.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 815 (1969).

For comment on the tax effects of equitable distribution upon divorce, see 18 Wake Forest L. Rev. 555 (1982).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases below were decided under former statutory provisions relating to the property of married women.

History. — For a discussion of the history of this legislation and of many of the earlier cases construing it, see Ball v. Paquin, 140 N.C. 83, 52 S.E. 410 (1905).

Common Law. — At common law, marriage was an absolute gift to the husband of all the personal property of the wife in possession, and the same became his property instantly on the marriage; and it was a qualified gift of all the personal property adversely held, and all the choses in action of the wife, which became the husband's absolutely upon his reduction of the same into possession, during coverture, with the right in case the wife died to administer on her estate, and in that character to collect, and after payment of her debts to hold the surplus to his own use, without obligation to distribute to anyone. O'Connor v. Harris, 81 N.C. 279 (1879).

At common law it was competent to the husband having choses in action "jure mariti" to assign the same for value, or as a security to pay his debts, and the assignment availed to pass the right to the assignee to collect and have the proceeds as his absolute property, if collected during coverture, just as the husband might have done if he had kept and reduced it into possession himself. O'Connor v. Harris, 81 N.C. 279 (1879).

The legislature may abolish all the incapacities of married women, and give them full power to contract as femes sole. Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N.C. 437 (1876).

Chapter Abridges Common-Law Rights of Husband. — The provisions of this Chapter, insofar as the husband is concerned, constitute in the main abridgements of rights he had as to his wife's property under the common law, and do not purport to create in him, as against her, rights he did not have at common law. Scholtens v. Scholtens, 230 N.C. 149, 52 S.E.2d 350 (1949).

Section Applies to Property Not Secured to Wife by Act of Parties. — This section does not apply to cases where the property is secured to the wife by marriage settlement or deed of gift or will. The property is thereby secured to her by act of the parties. The object of the section is to secure the property to the wife by act of law when it has not been done by act of the parties, who may make restrictions and limitations over. Cooper v. Landis, 75 N.C. 526 (1876).

Vested Rights Protected. — Where a husband's right to receive and appropriate to his own use his wife's distributive share in her mother's estate was vested under the law then in force, no subsequent legislation could deprive him of it without his consent. Morris v. Morris, 94 N.C. 613 (1886).

Husband Without Vested Interest in Wife's Real Property. — The real property of the wife, whether acquired before or after marriage, remains her sole and separate property under N.C. Const., Art. X, § 4, and therein the husband has no vested interest. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N.C. 661, 47 S.E. 784 (1904); Kilpatrick v. Kilpatrick, 176 N.C. 182, 96 S.E. 988 (1918).

Wife May Hold Legal as Well as Equitable Estate. — Since the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, a married woman has or can have the legal as well as the equitable estate. Sanderlin v. Sanderlin, 122 N.C. 1, 29 S.E. 55 (1898).

Prior to the adoption of the Constitution of 1868 it was held that deeds by which property was conveyed to a trustee for the sole and separate use of a married woman created an active trust in the trustee, and this was held because otherwise the statute would execute the use, and the husband would, as husband, become vested with rights in and control over his wife's property. But by the Constitution of 1868, as declared in Walker v. Long, 109 N.C. 510, 14 S.E. 299, 1891, the wife's property was rendered secure to her, and not subject to the control of, or to the debts or obligations of, her husband. Thus, it was no longer necessary to invoke the fiction of the law in order to protect the wife's property from the husband or his creditors in deeds made subsequent to the adoption of that Constitution. Freeman v. Lide, 176 N.C. 434, 97 S.E. 402 (1918). See also Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N.C. 437 (1876).

Conveyance of Separate Property. — Where a married person conveys separate property without permission or joinder of the spouse and the non-owner spouse survives the owner spouse, the conveyed property is subject to the non-owner spouse's elective life estate. Melvin v. Mills-Melvin, 126 N.C. App. 543, 486 S.E.2d 84 (1997).

Disposition of Personalty. — There is no restriction whatever upon the right of a married woman to dispose of her personalty as fully and freely as if she had remained unmarried, either in the Constitution or by any statute. Vann v. Edwards, 135 N.C. 661, 47 S.E. 784 (1904); Ball v. Paquin, 140 N.C. 83, 52 S.E. 410 (1905); Rea v. Rea, 156 N.C. 529, 72 S.E. 873 (1911).

Money from Sale of Wife's Realty. — Money received by the husband from a sale of the wife's lands before the adoption of the Constitution in 1868 belonged to him absolutely, unless at the time he received it he agreed to invest it for her in some other way. But if the wife acquired the title and the marriage occurred prior to 1868, and the sale was made subsequent to that time, the proceeds would be her separate estate; and if the husband purchased other lands with such proceeds and took title in his own name, in the absence of any special agreement to the contrary, he would become a trustee for her. Kirkpatrick v. Holmes, 108 N.C. 206, 12 S.E. 1037 (1891).

Mechanic's Lien on Married Woman's Property. — For all debts contracted for work and labor done, a lien is given upon the property of a married woman. Ball v. Paquin, 140 N.C. 83, 52 S.E. 410 (1905).

Presumption as to Property Delivered to Husband. — Under the change made in the law of married women's property rights by this section and N.C. Const., Art. X, § 4, where a married woman receives checks from her parents as personal gifts to her, which she endorses and delivers to her husband, there is a presumption that he receives the money in trust for her, and in the absence of evidence that it was a gift, she may recover the same in her action against him, or, after his death, against his personal representative. Etheredge v. Cochran, 196 N.C. 681, 146 S.E. 711 (1929).

Statute of Limitations. — Since a wife may now maintain an action without the joinder of her husband, when it concerns her separate property, and against her husband when it is between the husband and wife, and there is no exception in favor of the wife when she holds a claim against him, the statute of limitation will run against a note thus held by her. Graves v. Howard, 159 N.C. 594, 75 S.E. 998 (1912). See § 1-18.

Quoted in Heller v. Heller, 7 N.C. App. 120, 171 S.E.2d 335 (1969).

§ 52-2. Capacity to contract.

Subject to the provisions of G.S. 52-10 or 52-10.1, G.S. 39-7 and other regulations and limitations now or hereafter prescribed by the General Assembly, every married person is authorized to contract and deal so as to affect his or her real and personal property in the same manner and with the same effect as if he or she were unmarried. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 17; Code, s. 1826; Rev., s. 2094; 1911, c. 109; C.S., s. 2507; 1945, c. 73, s. 16; 1965, c. 878, s. 1; 1977, c. 375, s. 13.)

Cross References. — As to conveyances by husband and wife, see § 39-7 et seq. As to repeal of laws requiring private examination of married women, see § 47-14.1.

Editor's Note. — Former § 52-2 applied to married women only.

Laws 1871-1872, c. 193, s. 17, known as the Marriage Act, was the first legislation directly regulating the power of a married woman to make contracts. It seems that the only change made by this act was that the consent of the husband in writing was required in order to allow her to charge her separate estate. See Arrington v. Bell, 94 N.C. 247 (1886). However, a subsequent statute, known as the Martin Act, was passed March 6, 1911, and entirely changed the law. See 13 N.C.L. Rev. 62. The present section, except insofar as it is not limited to married women, is similar to the Martin Act.

Legal Periodicals. — For note on right of husband to recover medical expenses of wife from tort-feasor, see 37 N.C.L. Rev. 82 (1958).

For comment on the enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 815 (1969).

For note on the presumption of a wife's gratuitous services, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 235 (1980).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the state in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

CASE NOTES

I. IN GENERAL.

The trust relationship existing between the parties may be revealed to alter the otherwise absolute obligation of the signers. Grimes v. Grimes, 47 N.C. App. 353, 267 S.E.2d 372 (1980).

Where wife executes a promissory note as a comaker, she is primarily liable thereunder. Grimes v. Grimes, 47 N.C. App. 353, 267 S.E.2d 372 (1980).

Comaker's right to contribution is unaffected by the marital relationship of the parties to a note. Grimes v. Grimes, 47 N.C. App. 353, 267 S.E.2d 372 (1980).

Wife is liable for necessary medical expenses provided for husband. North Carolina Baptist Hosps. v. Harris, 319 N.C. 347, 354 S.E.2d 471 (1987).

Conveyance of Separate Property. — Where a married person conveys separate property without permission or joinder of the spouse and the non-owner spouse survives the owner spouse, the conveyed property is subject to the non-owner spouse's elective life estate. Melvin v. Mills-Melvin, 126 N.C. App. 543, 486 S.E.2d 84 (1997).

Quoted in Heller v. Heller, 7 N.C. App. 120, 171 S.E.2d 335 (1969).

Cited in United States v. Yazell, 382 U.S. 341, 86 S. Ct. 500, 15 L. Ed. 2d 404 (1966).

II. DECISIONS UNDER FORMER LAW.

A. Generally.

Editor's Note. — The cases below were decided under former statutory provisions relating to the capacity of married women to contract.

Common Law. — At common law, the contract of a married woman was void, but it was held in equity that she might have an estate settled to her separate use, and that although she had no power to bind herself personally, she might with the concurrence of the trustee specifically charge her separate estate, and the courts of equity would enforce the charge against the property. But her contracts, in order to create a charge, had to refer expressly, or by necessary implication, to the separate estate as a means of payment, this being in the nature of an appointment or appropriation. Frazier v. Brownlow, 38 N.C. 237 (1844); Knox v. Jordan, 58 N.C. 175 (1859); Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N.C. 437 (1876); Sanderlin v. Sanderlin, 122 N.C. 1, 29 S.E. 55 (1898).

The common-law rule continued to be the law in this State until the adoption of the Constitution of 1868. Pippen v. Wesson, 74 N.C. 437 (1876).

Legislature Has Power to Remove Restraints. — The restraints upon a married woman's power to contract rest upon statute, not upon the Constitution, and of course can be removed by statute. There is no prohibition upon the legislature to do so, and indeed the Supreme Court in many instances has indicated to the legislature that justice might be facilitated by more liberal legislation in that regard. Finger v. Hunter, 130 N.C. 529, 41 S.E. 890 (1902).

This section operated prospectively and did not apply to contracts made prior to its adoption. Stephens v. Hicks, 156 N.C. 239, 72 S.E. 313 (1911).

Section Does Not Apply to Estates Held by the Entirety. — The doctrine of title by entireties between husband and wife as it existed at common law remains unchanged by statute in this State. And this section has been construed in Jones v. Smith, 149 N.C. 318, 62 S.E. 1092 (1908), as not affecting estates held by husband and wife as tenants by the entirety. Davis v. Bass, 188 N.C. 200, 124 S.E. 566 (1924); In re City of Durham Annexation Ordinance No. 5791, 66 N.C. App. 472, 311 S.E.2d 898 (1984).

Statute providing that earnings and damages from personal injury are wife's property (see now § 52-4) should be read in light of this section. Helmstetler v. Duke Power Co., 224 N.C. 821, 32 S.E.2d 611 (1945), overruled on other grounds, Nicholson v. Hugh Chatham Mem. Hosp., 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

B. Powers Conferred.

Married Women Made Sui Juris. — The effect of the Martin Act was to take married women out of the classification which the law recognized, prior to its enactment, and to make them, with respect to capacity to contract, sui juris. Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N.C. 508, 83 S.E. 820 (1914); Royal v. Southerland, 168 N.C. 405, 84 S.E. 708 (1915); Warren v. Dail, 170 N.C. 406, 87 S.E. 126 (1915); Thrash v. Ould, 172 N.C. 728, 90 S.E. 915 (1916); Satterwhite v. Gallagher, 173 N.C. 525, 92 S.E. 369 (1917); Dorsey v. Corbett, 190 N.C. 783, 130 S.E. 842 (1925); Tise v. Hicks, 191 N.C. 609, 132 S.E. 560 (1926); Taft v. Covington, 199 N.C. 51, 153 S.E. 597 (1930). See Davis v. Cockman, 211 N.C. 630, 191 S.E. 322 (1937); Etheridge v. Wescott, 244 N.C. 637, 94 S.E.2d 846 (1956).

By virtue of this section, a married woman may make contracts affecting her personal and real property as though she were unmarried, except that the requirements of former § 52-6 had to be met in contracts between her and her husband. Martin v. Bundy, 212 N.C. 437, 193 S.E. 831 (1937). See §§ 39-7 et seq., 52-6, and notes thereto.

This section should be held to mean what it plainly says, that, except as to contracts with her husband, in which the forms required by former § 52-6 had to be observed, a married woman can now make any and all contracts so as to affect her real and personal property, in the same manner and to the same effect as if she were unmarried. Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N.C. 508, 83 S.E. 820 (1914); Warren v. Dail, 170 N.C. 406, 87 S.E. 126 (1915); Everett v. Ballard, 174 N.C. 16, 93 S.E. 385 (1917); Taft v. Covington, 199 N.C. 51, 153 S.E. 597 (1930). See also, Davis v. Cockman, 211 N.C. 630, 191 S.E. 322 (1937); Cruthis v. Steele, 259 N.C. 701, 131 S.E.2d 344 (1963).

This section practically constitutes married women free traders as to all their ordinary dealings. Price v. Charlotte Elec. Ry., 160 N.C. 450, 76 S.E. 502 (1912); Croom v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 182 N.C. 217, 108 S.E. 735 (1921).

Former § 52-6 Not Affected. — This section did not alter the effect of former § 52-6, requiring certain findings and conclusions by the probate officer to accompany a conveyance of wife's lands directly to her husband, and wife's deed not probated accordingly was void. Singleton v. Cherry, 168 N.C. 402, 84 S.E. 698 (1916); Butler v. Butler, 169 N.C. 584, 86 S.E. 507 (1915).

Husband and Wife May Form Business Partnership. — This section has been held to vest the wife with the power to contract with the husband so as to create a business partnership. Eggleston v. Eggleston, 228 N.C. 668, 47 S.E.2d 243 (1948).

Oral Agreement to Hold Land in Trust for Husband. — A married woman is under no legal handicap which would prevent her from entering into an oral agreement with her husband to hold title to real estate for his benefit or for their joint benefit. Carlisle v. Carlisle, 225 N.C. 462, 35 S.E.2d 418 (1945).

C. Liabilities Incurred.

Liability for Breach of Contract. — When the legislature authorized a married woman to contract and deal so as to affect her real and personal property in the same manner, and with the same effect, as if she were unmarried, it authorized contracts for breach of which she would be liable as fully as if she had remained unmarried. Everett v. Ballard, 174 N.C. 16, 93 S.E. 385 (1917).

On a breach of a married woman's contract to convey her land, she may be held responsible in damages, as in other contracts by which she is properly bound. Warren v. Dail, 170 N.C. 406, 87 S.E. 126 (1915).

Under the former law it was held that a married woman whose husband was an alien and never visited or resided in the United States was personally liable on her contracts. Levi v. Marsha, 122 N.C. 565, 29 S.E. 832 (1898).

Liability of Wife Where Husband Acts as Her Agent. — Under this section, a wife may appoint her husband as her agent for doing in her behalf work which may be of such dangerous character as to be a menace to the safety of others, and is liable with him for his negligence. Richardson v. Libes, 188 N.C. 112, 123 S.E. 306 (1924).

Liability as Partner or Surety. — Since the passage of the Martin Act, a wife has been held liable jointly and severally on her contracts whenever a partner or a surety. Bristol Grocery Co. v. Bails, 177 N.C. 298, 98 S.E. 768 (1919).

Liability Where Wife Is Surety for Husband. — A wife, by becoming surety on the obligations of her husband, creates a direct and separate liability to the creditor of the husband which makes her personally responsible, under this section, without requiring the statutory formalities necessary to the validity of certain contracts made directly between the wife and her husband. Royal v. Southerland, 168 N.C. 405, 84 S.E. 708 (1915).

Estoppel. — Since, in this State, the common-law disabilities of a married woman to contract, with certain exceptions, have been removed, she is bound by an estoppel the same as any other person. Tripp v. Langston, 218 N.C. 295, 10 S.E.2d 916 (1940). See also, Builders' Sash & Door Co. v. Joyner, 182 N.C. 518, 109 S.E. 259 (1921), wherein the question whether the doctrine of title by estoppel applies to a married woman was raised but not decided; Cruthis v. Steele, 259 N.C. 701, 131 S.E.2d 344 (1963).

Husband Still Liable for Funeral Expenses and Necessaries. — The common-law rule that the husband is liable for the funeral expenses of his deceased wife and for "necessaries" during their married life is not affected by this section, when there is nothing to show an express promise to pay on her part, or that the articles were sold on her credit or under such circumstances as to make her exclusively or primarily liable according to the equitable principles of indebitatus assumpsit. Bowen v. Daugherty, 168 N.C. 242, 84 S.E. 265 (1915).

D. Remedies for Breach.

Specific Performance. — When a married woman makes an executory contract to convey land and the requirements of § 39-7, regarding instruments affecting a married woman's title, are not complied with, she can only be held in damages, and specific performance may not be enforced. Warren v. Dail, 170 N.C. 406, 87 S.E. 126 (1915).

Judgment Against Wife as Surety for Husband. — In Royal v. Southerland, 168 N.C. 405, 84 S.E. 708 (1915), it was held that under this section a judgment could be rendered against a wife upon her obligation as surety to her husband. Thrash v. Ould, 172 N.C. 728, 90 S.E. 915 (1916).

Judgment Enforced by Execution. — It was held in Lipinsky v. Revell, 167 N.C. 508, 83 S.E. 820 (1914), that judgment could be rendered against a married woman upon her contracts and enforced by execution, though she had not specifically charged her property with payment thereof. Thrash v. Ould, 172 N.C. 728, 90 S.E. 915 (1916).

Wife May Claim Personal Property Exemption. — Under the provisions of N.C. Const., Art. X, § 1, and of this section, the wife could claim her personal property exemption from the assets of a partnership with her husband when the validity of the partnership contract was not questioned by them under the provisions of former § 52-6, and each had consented that such exemption should be allowed to the other therefrom. Bristol Grocery Co. v. Bails, 177 N.C. 298, 98 S.E. 768 (1919).

§ 52-3. Married person may insure spouse's life.

Any married person in his or her own name, or in the name of a trustee with his assent, may cause to be insured for any definite time the life of his or her spouse, for his or her sole and separate use, and may dispose of the interest in the same by will. (Rev., s. 2099; C.S., s. 2512; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Cross References. — As to right of an individual to insure his or her life for the benefit of spouse and children, see N.C. Const., Art. X, § 5.

Editor's Note. — Former § 52-3 related to the capacity of a married woman to draw checks.

CASE NOTES

Insurable Interest in Spouse's Life. — This section does not create in a wife an insurable interest in the life of her husband. She has such an interest without the benefit of the section. Cook v. Bankers Life & Cas. Co., 329 N.C. 488, 406 S.E.2d 848 (1991).

Right to Insure Spouse's Life Without Consent. — This section gives married persons the right to insure their spouses' lives without their consent. Cook v. Bankers Life & Cas. Co., 329 N.C. 488, 406 S.E.2d 848 (1991), distinguishing Acme Mfg. Co. v. McCormick, 175 N.C. 277, 95 S.E. 555 (1918).

§ 52-4. Earnings and damages.

The earnings of a married person by virtue of any contract for his or her personal service, and any damages for personal injuries, or other tort sustained by either, can be recovered by such person suing alone, and such earnings or recovery shall be his or her sole and separate property. (1913, c. 13, s. 1; C.S., s. 2513; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Cross References. — For constitutional provision as to property of married women, see N.C. Const., Art. X, § 4.

Editor's Note. — Former § 52-4 related to husband's joinder in conveyance or lease of wife's land.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on this section, see 29 N.C.L. Rev. 178 (1951).

For note on equitable distribution law as it relates to personal injury awards in divorce actions, see 65 N.C.L. Rev. 1332 (1987).

For note relating to revocation of the marital presumption and adoption of the analytic approach to the classification of personal injury settlements, in light of Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986), see 22 Wake Forest L. Rev. 931 (1987).

For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Editor's Note. — Most of the cases below were decided under former statutory provisions relating to married women.

Basis of Section. — In the concurring opinion in Patterson v. Franklin, 168 N.C. 75, 84 S.E. 18 (1915), Clark, C.J., states that this section was passed as a result of the decision in Price v. Charlotte Elec. Co., 160 N.C. 450, 76 S.E. 502 (1912). To the same effect, see 301 N.C. 728, 274 S.E.2d 230 (1981).

This section is not inconsistent with or repugnant to § 50-20. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

This section governs legal interests in property during an ongoing marriage, while § 50-20 governs its disposition after divorce. Johnson v. Johnson, 317 N.C. 437, 346 S.E.2d 430 (1986).

Section Read in Light of Constitution and § 52-2. — This section should be read in the light of N.C. Const., Art. X, § 4, which protects a married woman in the sole ownership of her property, and also in connection with § 52-2, which seeks to secure to her the free use of her property. Helmstetler v. Duke Power Co., 224 N.C. 821, 32 S.E.2d 611 (1945), overruled on other grounds, Nicholson v. Hugh Chatham Mem. Hosp., 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

Husband Deprived of Former Rights. — By virtue of the statutes giving married women separate property rights and the right to sue for injuries, the husband is deprived of his former rights in his wife's property and choses in action. Hinnant v. Tidewater Power Co., 189 N.C. 120, 126 S.E. 307 (1925), overruled on other grounds, Nicholson v. Hugh Chatham Mem. Hosp., 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

Marital Rights and Duties Unaffected. — The mutual rights and duties growing out of the marital relationship are not affected by this and the following sections. Ritchie v. White, 225 N.C. 450, 35 S.E.2d 414 (1945).

A married woman is still a feme covert with the rights, privileges and obligations incident to such status under the law. Coley v. Dalrymple, 225 N.C. 67, 33 S.E.2d 477 (1945). See also Buford v. Mochy, 224 N.C. 235, 29 S.E.2d 729 (1944).

This section does not relieve a married woman of her marital obligations or deny to her the privilege of sharing in the family duties and aiding in such work as the helpmate of her husband, when minded so to do. Coley v. Dalrymple, 225 N.C. 67, 33 S.E.2d 477 (1945).

Spouses May Sue Each Other in Tort. — The common-law disability of spouses to sue each other in tort actions has been completely removed in this State. Foster v. Foster, 264 N.C. 694, 142 S.E.2d 638 (1965).

A married woman has the fullest power to bring actions, even against her husband, and in all cases whatever. Crowell v. Crowell, 180 N.C. 516, 105 S.E. 206 (1920); In re Will of Witherington, 186 N.C. 152, 119 S.E. 11 (1923).

Wife's right to sue her husband extends to tort actions. Crowell v. Crowell, 181 N.C. 66, 106 S.E. 149 (1921).

In this jurisdiction a wife may maintain an action against her husband for negligent injury, or if such injury results in death, her personal representative may maintain such action. King v. Gates, 231 N.C. 537, 57 S.E.2d 765 (1950); First Union Nat'l Bank v. Hackney, 266 N.C. 17, 145 S.E.2d 352 (1965).

Nonresident Wife Has Right of Action for Husband's Tort. — The right of a married woman to maintain an action against her husband to recover for negligent injury is not limited to residents of this State, and a nonresident wife may maintain an action here against her nonresident husband on a transitory cause of action which arises in this State, and she is entitled to any recovery as her separate property. Bogen v. Bogen, 219 N.C. 51, 12 S.E.2d 649 (1941).

Impairment of Capacity to Work and Earn Money. — This section is in accord with the realistic trend of the modern decisions, which recognize the fact that a wife, as an individual, has a personal right to work and earn money, whether she is gainfully employed at the time or engaged merely in the performance of household duties; and where her capacity to work and earn money is impaired by injury, she has suffered a definite, substantial loss. Johnson v. Lewis, 251 N.C. 797, 112 S.E.2d 512 (1960).

A person is not deprived of the right to recover damages because of inability to labor or transact business in the future, because of the fact that at the time of the injury he is not engaged in any particular employment. The fact that a woman attends merely to household duties will not deprive her of a right to recover for loss of earning capacity. Johnson v. Lewis, 251 N.C. 797, 112 S.E.2d 512 (1960).

Services Rendered to Husband. — For a wife to recover for services rendered to her husband in his business, or outside of her domestic duties, while living with him under the marital relation, there must be either an express or an implied promise on his part to pay for them; and the relationship of marriage, nothing else appearing, negatives an implied promise on his part to pay. Dorsett v. Dorsett, 183 N.C. 354, 111 S.E. 541, 23 A.L.R. 15 (1922).

Husband and Wife Employed Together. — Since the passage of the Martin Act and this section, the separate earnings of a married woman belong to her, and she may sue and recover them alone; and where the evidence tends only to establish the fact that the employer was to pay husband and wife each a certain and different amount for services, the husband could not recover the whole upon the theory that the amount he was to receive was augmented by what wife was to receive for her separate services. Croom v. Goldsboro Lumber Co., 182 N.C. 217, 108 S.E. 735 (1921).

Services rendered by a married woman outside the home, and not within the scope of her household or domestic duties, would properly be recoverable on implied assumpsit or quantum meruit in her own name. Coley v. Dalrymple, 225 N.C. 67, 33 S.E.2d 477 (1945).

Recovery for Loss of Consortium. — It is now well settled in practically every jurisdiction that wife has a right to the consortium of her husband and can recover when there has been an intentional and direct invasion or breach of the marital relations. In every case, however, the recovery was allowed only where there was an intentional invasion. The right of the wife to recover in North Carolina for a direct and intentional invasion is clearly settled. Brown v. Brown, 124 N.C. 19, 32 S.E. 320 (1899). See also, 3 N.C.L. Rev. 100 (1925).

Recovery for Loss of Consortium Allowed in Negligence Cases. — Wife has cause of action for loss of consortium resulting from a negligent injury to her husband. Nicholson v. Hugh Chatham Mem. Hospital, 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

Married women's legislation in North Carolina gave a wife the equal right to sue for loss of her husband's consortium. Nicholson v. Hugh Chatam Mem. Hospital, 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

But Action for Loss of Consortium Must Be Joined With Injured Spouse's Action. — A spouse may maintain a cause of action for loss of consortium due to the negligent actions of third parties so long as that action for loss of consortium is joined with any suit the other spouse may have instituted to recover for his or her personal injuries. Nicholson v. Hugh Chatam Mem. Hospital, 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

"Consortium" defined. — While consortium is difficult to define, better view is that it embraces service, society, companionship, sexual gratification and affection. Nicholson v. Hugh Chatam Mem. Hospital, 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

Action of Wife for Tort to Husband. — Under the former wording of this section, the husband could not sue to recover his wife's earnings or damages for tort committed to her and there was no reason why she could sue for tort or injuries inflicted on her husband. The law has never authorized the wife to maintain such action for torts sustained by the husband. Hipp v. Dupont, 182 N.C. 9, 108 S.E. 318 (1921).

Action Against Seducer. — Under the provisions of this section, a married woman who had been seduced could, in proper instances, maintain her action for damages against her seducer without joinder of her husband as a party. Hayatt v. McCoy, 194 N.C. 25, 138 S.E. 405 (1927).

Joinder of Husband. — Since the passage of this section, a married woman may sue without joining her husband to recover damages she has sustained by reason of a personal injury wrongfully inflicted. Kirkpatrick v. Crutchfield, 178 N.C. 348, 100 S.E. 602 (1919).

While husband is not a necessary party to wife's action to recover for the value of her services rendered upon a quantum meruit, under this section, his joinder therein as a party plaintiff is not improper; and where he has alleged an independent cause of action upon a quantum meruit, the Supreme Court, on appeal, in the exercise of its discretion, may remand the cause with direction that the allegations of the complaint as to the statement of the husband's cause be stricken out and the action of the wife proceeded with. Shore v. Holt, 185 N.C. 312, 117 S.E. 165 (1923).

The law formerly prevailing allowed the husband the earnings of his wife and the proceeds of her labor, but the husband could confer upon the wife the right to her earnings, upon which they became her separate estate, giving her a right of action to recover them in her own name. Patterson v. Franklin, 168 N.C. 75, 84 S.E. 18 (1915).

Applied in Owens v. Kelly, 240 N.C. 770, 84 S.E.2d 163 (1954); Burton v. Dixon, 259 N.C. 473, 131 S.E.2d 27 (1963).

Cited in Nicholson v. Hugh Chatham Mem. Hosp., 300 N.C. 295, 266 S.E.2d 818 (1980).

§ 52-5. Torts between husband and wife.

A husband and wife have a cause of action against each other to recover damages sustained to their person or property as if they were unmarried. (1951, c. 263; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on this section, see 29 N.C.L. Rev. 395 (1951).

For note on choice of law rules in North Carolina, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 243 (1970).

For comment on adverse marital testimony in criminal actions after the modification of the common-law rule by State v. Freeman, 302 N.C. 591, 276 S.E.2d 450 (1981), see 60 N.C.L. Rev. 874 (1982).

For note, "It's Time to Abolish North Carolina's Parent-Child Immunity, But Who's Going to Do It?—Coffey v. Coffey and North Carolina General Statutes Section 1-539.21," see 68 N.C. L. Rev. 1317 (1990).

For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

For note and comment, "Liner v. Brown: Where Should We Go From Here—Two Different Approaches for North Carolina," see 19 Campbell L. Rev. 447 (1997).

CASE NOTES

Purpose of Section. — This section was intended to change for the future the result reached in Scholtens v. Scholtens, 230 N.C. 149, 52 S.E.2d 350 (1949); Shaw v. Lee, 258 N.C. 609, 129 S.E.2d 288 (1963). See also, 29 N.C.L. Rev. 359.

The legislature by statute modified the common law and permitted the wife to sue the husband for injuries tortiously inflicted. Shaw v. Lee, 258 N.C. 609, 129 S.E.2d 288 (1963); Ayers v. Ayers, 269 N.C. 443, 152 S.E.2d 468 (1967).

This section permits one spouse to maintain an action against the other for injuries caused by his or her tort. Cox v. Shaw, 263 N.C. 361, 139 S.E.2d 676 (1965).

The common-law disability of spouses to sue each other in tort actions has been completely removed in this State. Foster v. Foster, 264 N.C. 694, 142 S.E.2d 638 (1965).

A wife may maintain an action against her husband for assault and battery. Ayers v. Ayers, 269 N.C. 443, 152 S.E.2d 468 (1967).

Or for Personal Injuries from His Negligence. — In this jurisdiction a wife has the right to sue her husband and recover damages for personal injuries inflicted by his actionable negligence. First Union Nat'l Bank v. Hackney, 266 N.C. 17, 145 S.E.2d 352 (1965).

Husband May Recover from Wife Medical Expenses He Paid for Daughter Negligently Injured by Wife. — By virtue of the express provisions of this section, plaintiff father was entitled to recover from defendant mother the medical expenses expended by him on behalf of his daughter for injuries to her caused by defendant's actionable negligence in the operation of an automobile. Foster v. Foster, 264 N.C. 694, 142 S.E.2d 638 (1965).

Plaintiff's action to recover necessary medical expenses expended by him for his infant daughter is within the fair intent and meaning of this section imposing liability for damages sustained to property. Foster v. Foster, 264 N.C. 694, 142 S.E.2d 638 (1965).

Marriage does not automatically preclude an action for trespass. Miller v. Brooks, 123 N.C. App. 20, 472 S.E.2d 350 (1996).

And Wrongful Death Action May Be Maintained Against Husband for Wife's Death. — If a husband's negligence results in the death of his wife, her personal representative may maintain an action against him for her wrongful death. Cox v. Shaw, 263 N.C. 361, 139 S.E.2d 676 (1965); First Union Nat'l Bank v. Hackney, 266 N.C. 17, 145 S.E.2d 352 (1965).

Since this section provides that an injured wife has a cause of action against her husband for damages for personal injury, the administrator of her estate may maintain an action for wrongful death when she does not survive. Cummings v. Locklear, 12 N.C. App. 572, 183 S.E.2d 832 (1971).

Conflict of Laws. — In cases involving intra-family immunity, the law of the state where the wrong took place applies instead of the law of the state of the parties' residence. Henry v. Henry, 29 N.C. App. 174, 223 S.E.2d 564, aff'd, 291 N.C. 156, 229 S.E.2d 158 (1976). But see § 52-5.1.

Cited in Coffey v. Coffey, 94 N.C. App. 717, 381 S.E.2d 467 (1989).

§ 52-5.1. Tort actions between husband and wife arising out of acts occurring outside State.

A husband and wife shall have a cause of action against each other to recover damages for personal injury, property damage or wrongful death arising out of acts occurring outside of North Carolina, and such action may be brought in this State when both were domiciled in North Carolina at the time of such acts. (1967, c. 855.)

Legal Periodicals. — For article on "Conflict of Spousal Immunity Laws: The Legislature Takes a Hand," discussing this section, see 46 N.C.L. Rev. 506 (1968).

For note on the "greatest interest rule" as a choice-of-law conflicts rule, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 407 (1969).

For note on choice-of-law rules in North Carolina, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 243 (1970).

CASE NOTES

Former Law. — Before the passage of this section, it was held that the legislature did not intend in § 52-5 to extend its enactment beyond State borders and create in a spouse a right of action against the other for acts done beyond the borders of North Carolina. Shaw v. Lee, 258 N.C. 609, 129 S.E.2d 288 (1963).

This section was designed by the legislature to enable a North Carolina resident to sue in the courts of this State, notwithstanding the rule that the law of the state wherein the injury occurred determines the right of the injured spouse to bring an action for damages. Henry v. Henry, 291 N.C. 156, 229 S.E.2d 158 (1976).

The legislature, by the enactment of this section, rescinded the rule with reference to the right of a wife domiciled in North Carolina to maintain, in the courts of this State, an action for damages for injuries proximately caused by the negligence of her husband in another state. Henry v. Henry, 291 N.C. 156, 229 S.E.2d 158 (1976).

This section left untouched the rule with reference to the right of a nonresident wife to sue her husband in the courts of North Carolina to recover damages for injuries inflicted in this State and proximately caused by his negligence. Henry v. Henry, 291 N.C. 156, 229 S.E.2d 158 (1976).

§ 52-6: Repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 375, s. 1.

Cross References. — As to contracts between husband and wife, see now § 52-10.

§ 52-7. Validation of certificates of notaries public as to contracts or conveyances between husband and wife.

Any contract between husband and wife coming within the provisions of G.S. 52-6, executed prior to the first day of January, 1955, acknowledged before a notary public and containing a certificate of the notary public of his conclusions and findings of fact that such conveyance is not unreasonable or injurious to the wife, is hereby in all respects validated and confirmed, to the same extent as though said certifying officer were one of the officers named in G.S. 52-6. (1955, c. 380; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Section 52-6, referred to in this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 375, s. 1.

Former § 52-7 prohibited conveyance or lease of wife's land by husband without her consent. The provisions of present § 52-7 are almost identical to those of former § 52-12.1.

§ 52-8. Validation of contracts failing to comply with provisions of former § 52-6.

Any contract between husband and wife coming within the provisions of G.S. 52-6 executed between January 1, 1930, and January 1, 1978, which does not comply with the requirement of a private examination of the wife or with the requirements that there be findings that such a contract between a husband and wife is not unreasonable or injurious to the wife and which is in all other respects regular is hereby validated and confirmed to the same extent as if the examination of the wife had been separate and apart from the husband. This section shall not affect pending litigation. (1957, c. 1178; 1959, c. 1306; 1965, c. 207; c. 878, s. 1; 1967, c. 1183, s. 1; 1971, c. 101; 1973, c. 1387, s. 1; 1975, c. 495, s. 1; 1977, c. 375, s. 15; 1981, c. 599, s. 16.)

Editor's Note. — Section 52-6, referred to in this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 375, s. 1, effective January 1, 1978.

Former § 52-8 related to the capacity of a married woman to make a will. The provisions of present § 52-8 are similar to those of former § 52-12.2.

Legal Periodicals. — For note discussing purchase money resulting trust doctrine in North Carolina, see 12 N.C. Cent. L.J. 526 (1981).

CASE NOTES

This section is a curative statute. Hutchins v. Hutchins, 260 N.C. 628, 133 S.E.2d 459 (1963).

This section was amended in 1981 in an attempt to cure deeds which lack the certification that the transaction was not unreasonable or injurious to the wife. West v. Hays, 82 N.C. App. 574, 346 S.E.2d 690 (1986).

Legislative Intent. — In enacting this section, the legislative intent was to validate contracts made void by former § 52-6, except for those in pending litigation. Murphy v. Davis, 61 N.C. App. 597, 300 S.E.2d 871, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 309 N.C. 192, 305 S.E.2d 735 (1983), overruled on other grounds, Dunn v. Pate, 334 N.C. 115, 431 S.E.2d 178 (1993).

Applicability of Section. — This section was not applicable where not only was the private examination of the wife required by former § 52-6 not taken, but there was no finding by the certifying officer of the officer's conclusions and findings of fact as to whether or not the deed was unreasonable or injurious to the wife as required by former § 52-6(b) and the certifying officer was not one of those authorized by former § 52-6(c) to make the required certificate. Boone v. Brown, 11 N.C. App. 355, 181 S.E.2d 157 (1971).

Deed executed in 1947, which was void because the then applicable provisions of former §§ 47-39 and 52-12 were not complied with, in that the clerk of court failed to find that the transaction was not "unreasonable or injurious" to grantor's wife, could not be cured by this section as amended in 1981, where the rights of wife's devisees in the property vested in 1978 upon her death. West v. Hays, 82 N.C. App. 574, 346 S.E.2d 690 (1986).

This section would not operate to cure a deed which was void for failure to comply with former version of § 52-12, relating to a private examination of a married woman grantor and a finding that the conveyance was not unreasonable or injurious to the wife. Dunn v. Pate, 98 N.C. App. 351, 390 S.E.2d 712 (1990).

This section purports to cure the execution of a trust agreement not acknowledged by the wife as required by former § 52-6. Godwin v. Wachovia Bank & Trust Co., 259 N.C. 520, 131 S.E.2d 456 (1963).

Conveyance Not Complying with Former § 52-6 Void Unless Validated. — A wife's deed purporting to convey property to her husband, without complying with former § 52-6, and not validated by this section, was void. Murphy v. Davis, 61 N.C. App. 597, 300 S.E.2d 871, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 309 N.C. 192, 305 S.E.2d 735 (1983), overruled on other grounds, Dunn v. Pate, 334 N.C. 115, 431 S.E.2d 178 (1993).

A contract between a husband and wife to make a joint will was void as to the wife where it was not executed by her in accordance with former § 52-6, and its invalidity was not affected by this curative statute and § 39-13.1(b), where both curative statutes were enacted after the rights of the parties under the contract vested upon the death of the husband, and the contract was not "in all other respects regular" except for the failure to privately examine the wife as required by the curative statutes. Mansour v. Rabil, 277 N.C. 364, 177 S.E.2d 849 (1970).

Postnuptial agreement executed in 1977 could not be set aside due to any alleged noncompliance with former § 52-6 (repealed 1977) or § 52-10 (amended 1977). Brantley v. Watson, 113 N.C. App. 234, 438 S.E.2d 211 (1994).

Use of Section to Validate Separation Agreement Precluded. — Where a wife's acknowledgment of a separation agreement was fatally defective under former § 52-6 because there was no private examination of the wife and thus no finding as to whether the agreement was unreasonable or injurious to the wife, and because the acknowledgment was certified by a Judge Advocate in the Marine Corps who did not qualify as a "certifying officer" under former § 52-6(c) since his position was not that of an "equivalent or corresponding officer" of the jurisdiction where the examination and acknowledgment were to be made, the omission of the private examination and the lack of authority on the part of the certifying officer precluded the use of curative statutes, this section and § 47-81.2, to validate the agreement. DeJaager v. DeJaager, 47 N.C. App. 452, 267 S.E.2d 399 (1980).

Quoted in Spencer v. Spencer, 430 F. Supp. 683 (M.D.N.C. 1977).

Cited in Spencer v. Spencer, 37 N.C. App. 481, 246 S.E.2d 805 (1978); Tarkington v. Tarkington, 45 N.C. App. 476, 263 S.E.2d 294 (1980).

§ 52-9. Effect of absolute divorce decree on certificate failing to comply with § 52-6.

Whenever it appears that, since the execution of a contract between a husband and wife in which the certificate of acknowledgment thereof fails to comply with the requirements of G.S. 52-6, a valid decree of absolute divorce between said husband and wife has been rendered, no action shall be maintained by her or anyone claiming under her for the recovery of the possession of, or to establish title to any interest in any property described in such contract unless such action is commenced within seven years after such decree of absolute divorce has become final or unless such action is commenced before January 1, 1978, whichever date is earlier. (1957, c. 1260; 1965, c. 878, s. 1; 1977, c. 375, s. 14.)

Editor's Note. — Section 52-6, referred to in this section, was repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 375, s. 1, effective January 1, 1978.

Provisions similar to former § 52-9 are now contained in present § 52-3. The provisions of present § 52-9 are almost identical to those of former § 52-12.3.

§ 52-10. Contracts between husband and wife generally; releases.

(a) Contracts between husband and wife not inconsistent with public policy are valid, and any persons of full age about to be married and married persons may, with or without a valuable consideration, release and quitclaim such rights which they might respectively acquire or may have acquired by marriage in the property of each other; and such releases may be pleaded in bar of any action or proceeding for the recovery of the rights and estate so released. No contract or release between husband and wife made during their coverture shall be valid to affect or change any part of the real estate of either spouse, or the accruing income thereof for a longer time than three years next ensuing the making of such contract or release, unless it is in writing and is acknowledged by both parties before a certifying officer.

(b) Such certifying officer shall be a notary public, or a justice, judge, magistrate, clerk, assistant clerk or deputy clerk of the General Court of Justice, or the equivalent or corresponding officers of the state, territory or foreign country where the acknowledgment is made. Such officer must not be a party to the contract.

(c) This section shall not apply to any judgment of the superior court or other State court of competent jurisdiction, which, by reason of its being consented to by a husband and wife, or their attorneys, may be construed to constitute a contract or release between such husband and wife. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 28; Code, s. 1836; Rev., s. 2108; C.S., s. 2516; 1959, c. 879, s. 12; 1965, c. 878, s. 1; 1977, c. 375, s. 2.)

Cross References. — As to abolition of dower and curtesy, see § 29-4. As to right of surviving spouse to elect life estate in lieu of intestate share, see § 29-30. As to distribution by court of marital property upon divorce, see §§ 50-20 and 50-21. As to separation agreements, see § 52-10.1. As to antenuptial contracts, see § 52B-1 et seq.

Editor's Note. — Provisions similar to former § 52-10 are now contained in present § 52-4. The provisions of present § 52-10 are similar to those of former § 52-13.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 815 (1969).

For article dealing with marriage contracts as related to North Carolina law, see 13 Wake Forest L. Rev. 85 (1977).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the state in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For survey of 1982 law on property, see 61 N.C.L. Rev. 1171 (1983).

For 1984 survey, "Property Settlement or Separation Agreement: Perpetuating the Confusion," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1166 (1985).

For 1984 survey, "Intestate Succession of Illegitimate Children in North Carolina," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1274 (1985).

For note on contractual agreements as a means of avoiding equitable distribution, in light of Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984), see 21 Wake Forest L. Rev. 213 (1985).

CASE NOTES

Common Law. — At common law the husband and wife were regarded as so entirely one as to be incapable of either contracting with or suing one another, but in equity it was always otherwise, and there many of their contracts with each other were recognized and enforced. George v. High, 85 N.C. 99 (1881).

Construction With Other Provisions. — This section and § 52-10.1 are distinguishable in that a separation agreement may affect support rights whereas this section refers only to "rights ... in property"; further, as indicated by the terms requiring formalities for contracts entered into "during coverture," a contract under this section may be entered into at any time during marriage, not only in contemplation of separation or divorce. Williams v. Williams, 120 N.C. App. 707, 463 S.E.2d 815 (1995), aff'd per curium, 343 N.C. 299, 469 S.E.2d 553 (1996).

The validity of a separation agreement as it related to a waiver of alimony was not to be judged in the context of this section, but executed pursuant to § 52-10.1. Napier v. Napier, 135 N.C. App. 364, 520 S.E.2d 312 (1999).

Those contracts between spouses which conflict with public policy are void. Williams v. Williams, 120 N.C. App. 707, 463 S.E.2d 815 (1995), aff'd per curium, 343 N.C. 299, 469 S.E.2d 553 (1996).

Legislature Did Not Intend to Reduce Marriage to Commercial Basis. — While in ordinary transactions married women are permitted to deal with their earnings and property practically as they please or as free traders, the General Assembly did not intend to reduce the institution of marriage, or the obligations of family life, to a commercial basis. Ritchie v. White, 225 N.C. 450, 35 S.E.2d 414 (1945).

Sections 52-10 and 52-10.1 were enacted without providing women any extra protection not offered to men; therefore, a separation agreement should be viewed today like any other bargained-for exchange between parties who are presumably on equal footing. Knight v. Knight, 76 N.C. App. 395, 333 S.E.2d 331 (1985).

Same rules which govern interpretation of contracts generally apply to separation agreements. Blount v. Blount, 72 N.C. App. 193, 323 S.E.2d 738 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 506, 329 S.E.2d 389 (1985).

What Contracts Included. — This section clearly refers throughout to contracts between the husband and the wife, and does not and was not intended to affect contracts between husband and wife and third parties. Jackson v. Beard, 162 N.C. 105, 78 S.E. 6 (1913); Brawley v. Brawley, 87 N.C. App. 545, 361 S.E.2d 759, cert. denied, 321 N.C. 471, 364 S.E.2d 918 (1987).

Postnuptial agreement executed in 1977 could not be set aside due to any alleged noncompliance with former § 52-6 (repealed 1977) or § 52-10 (amended 1977). Brantley v. Watson, 113 N.C. App. 234, 438 S.E.2d 211 (1994).

Antenuptial Agreement. — A woman in contemplation of marriage was expressly authorized by this section to release by valid contract her former right of dower in the lands of her intended husband. Turner v. Turner, 242 N.C. 533, 89 S.E.2d 245 (1955).

It is well settled in this jurisdiction that a man and woman contemplating marriage may enter into a valid contract with respect to the property and property rights of each after the marriage, and such contracts will be enforced as written. In re Estate of Loftin, 285 N.C. 717, 208 S.E.2d 670 (1974).

Antenuptial contracts, when properly executed and acknowledged, are not against public policy and may act as a bar to the wife's right to dissent and to petition for a year's allowance. In re Estate of Loftin, 285 N.C. 717, 208 S.E.2d 670 (1974).

In the absence of contrary provisions in an antenuptial agreement, or of special statutory provisions, a separation and reconciliation between husband and wife will not affect or extinguish property rights under such an agreement. Turner v. Turner, 242 N.C. 533, 89 S.E.2d 245 (1955).

When one person provides purchase money to pay for real property and the title is taken in the name of another a resulting trust commensurate with his interest arises in favor of the one furnishing the consideration. Such a trust is not dependent upon any agreement between the parties. Rather, it functions to effectuate the intention, at the time of transfer, of the party furnishing the purchase money and such intention is to be determined from all the attendant facts and circumstances. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Section Inapplicable to Support Obligation. — This section, which authorizes postnuptial interspousal agreements not inconsistent with public policy that affect the spouses' marital property interests, is construed not to apply to the husband's (supporting spouse's) obligation, and the wife's (dependent spouse's) right, to support. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

This section relates to the release of an interest in property, but has no bearing whatever on the right of a wife to support. Motley v. Motley, 255 N.C. 190, 120 S.E.2d 422 (1961).

Duty of Support May Be Discharged under Separation Agreement. — North Carolina law has long recognized that the husband's (supporting spouse's) duty of support may be discharged by a valid separation agreement between the spouses under which fixed benefits are provided the wife (dependent spouse) in consideration of the discharge. To be valid, such a discharge of support agreement must (1) be made between spouses either actually separated or intending immediately to separate; and (2) be executed in accordance with statutory formality requirements. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

Separation Agreement Not Against Public Policy. — A deed of separation executed by husband and wife is not against the policy of this State, when properly made. Archbell v. Archbell, 158 N.C. 408, 74 S.E. 327 (1912).

Construction of Separation Agreement. — The language of a separation agreement that the husband released "all rights" that he might have "in any estate" of his wife at her death was sufficient to support the conclusion that a release of his former right of tenancy by the curtesy was intended. The word "estate" was comprehensive enough to include land. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 234 N.C. 162, 66 S.E.2d 680 (1951).

Where the terms of a separation agreement are plain and explicit, the court will determine the legal effect and enforce it as written by the parties. Blount v. Blount, 72 N.C. App. 193, 323 S.E.2d 738 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 506, 329 S.E.2d 389 (1985).

To be valid, a separation agreement must be untainted by fraud, must be in all respects fair, reasonable and just, and must have been entered into without coercion or the exercise of undue influence, and with full knowledge of all the circumstances, conditions, and rights of the contracting parties. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Until deed of separation is rescinded, defendant cannot attack the legality of the separation or obtain alimony from plaintiff. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

As to attack on deed of separation by married woman, see Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968); In re Estate of Loftin, 21 N.C. App. 627, 205 S.E.2d 574, aff'd, 285 N.C. 717, 208 S.E.2d 670 (1974).

Agreement as to Alimony. — Parties to a divorce may enter into a valid agreement settling the question of alimony, and unless the court then orders alimony to be paid, the terms of the agreement are binding and can only be modified by the consent of both parties. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Mutual Releases Do Not Bar Wife's Right to Temporary Alimony. — Mutual releases between husband and wife of their interests in each other's separate property do not bar the wife from making application for temporary alimony and attorneys' fees in a subsequent suit for divorce. Bailey v. Bailey, 127 N.C. 474, 37 S.E. 502 (1900).

Binding Arbitration as to Spousal Support. — Since the parties may settle spousal support by agreement, there exists no prohibition to their entering into binding arbitration to settle the issue of spousal support. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Release and Quitclaim of Property Rights. — This section allows husband and wife to enter a separation agreement which releases and quitclaims any property rights acquired by marriage, and that a release will bar any later claim on the released property. Such a valid separation agreement is an enforceable contract between husband and wife. Blount v. Blount, 72 N.C. App. 193, 323 S.E.2d 738 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 506, 329 S.E.2d 389 (1985).

A release by a husband of his former right of tenancy by the curtesy in his wife's lands by properly executed contract with his wife was expressly authorized by this section, with the added provision that such release could be pleaded in bar of any proceeding to recover the rights released. Blankenship v. Blankenship, 234 N.C. 162, 66 S.E.2d 680 (1951).

Prior Agreement as Bar to Equitable Distribution. — When a prior separation agreement fully disposes of the spouses' property rights arising out of the marriage, it acts as a bar to equitable distribution. Blount v. Blount, 72 N.C. App. 193, 323 S.E.2d 738 (1984), cert. denied, 313 N.C. 506, 329 S.E.2d 389 (1985).

A separation agreement which contained no specific references to any real property, but only to personal property, held to have nevertheless fully disposed of the parties' property rights arising out of the marriage and thus to act as a bar to equitable distribution. Hartman v. Hartman, 80 N.C. App. 452, 343 S.E.2d 11 (1986).

Separation agreement which released each spouse from the common law rights incident to marriage (dower, curtesy, inheritance, descent, and distribution), as well as "all other rights arising out of the marital relationship in and to any and all property," fully disposed of the parties' property rights arising out of the marriage and thus acted as a bar to equitable distribution. Hagler v. Hagler, 319 N.C. 287, 354 S.E.2d 228 (1987).

Agreement as Bar to Pension Rights. — Separation agreement entered into on August 2, 1982, which contained no reference to defendant-husband's military pension, but specifically provided that each party was forever barred from any or all rights or claims not therein reserved which arose out of the marital relation and that each released and relinquished all claims or interest in and to all property of the other, whether then owned or subsequently acquired, barred an award to plaintiff-wife under the Equitable Distribution Act of a share in defendant-husband's military pension; the subsequent amendment of the act effective August 1, 1983, to include military pensions as marital property did not permit plaintiff-wife to avoid the release provisions of the agreement. Morris v. Morris, 79 N.C. App. 386, 339 S.E.2d 424, cert. denied, 316 N.C. 733, 345 S.E.2d 390 (1986).

Money Lent to Husband Recoverable. — In a suit brought by a wife against the administrator of her deceased husband for money "advanced and lent" to him during coverture, where the marriage took place after the adoption of the Constitution of 1868, it was held that the contract between them was not inconsistent with public policy, and was, therefore, valid. George v. High, 85 N.C. 99 (1881).

Rent Notes Given Wife by Husband Valid. — Where a husband occupied his wife's land for 9 years, during the whole of which period he received the rents therefrom, under an express agreement with his wife to account to her for such rents, and each year gave his wife a note for the rent, it was held that the notes constituted a valid indebtedness on the part of the husband to his wife. Battle v. Mayo, 102 N.C. 413, 9 S.E. 384 (1897).

Acts Sufficient to Qualify as an Acknowledgment. — When defendant and wife signed a separation agreement in front of a notary, the defendant performed acts sufficient to qualify as an acknowledgment under the statute, since no rights of creditors or third parties were involved. Lawson v. Lawson, 321 N.C. 274, 362 S.E.2d 269 (1987).

A certificate of acknowledgment may be subsequently affixed to a separation agreement if the agreement was valid under the appropriate statute, no rights of creditors or third parties being involved. Lawson v. Lawson, 321 N.C. 274, 362 S.E.2d 269 (1987).

Acknowledgment in Premarital Agreements. — Since this section requires acknowledgment only during coverture, the period of marriage, it does not require acknowledgment for premarital agreements. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990).

The validity of a premarital agreement is not affected by the lack of acknowledgment. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990).

Husband's attorney, who was a notary, could acknowledge property settlement agreements under this section; this section merely provides that persons acknowledging the marital contract must not be a party to the contract. Small v. Small, 93 N.C. App. 614, 379 S.E.2d 273, cert. denied, 325 N.C. 273, 384 S.E.2d 519 (1989).

Handwritten agreement which was not acknowledged before a certifying officer as defined in subsection (b) of this section was not binding upon the court, and the court was free to distribute the property, pursuant to § 50-20. McLean v. McLean, 88 N.C. App. 285, 363 S.E.2d 95 (1987), petition allowed as to additional issues, 322 N.C. 112, 367 S.E.2d 912, aff'd, 323 N.C. 543, 374 S.E.2d 376 (1988).

To impeach a notary's certification, there must be more than a bare allegation that no acknowledgment occurred, and where plaintiff never asserted that the actual signature on an agreement was other than his own, but suggested only a technical violation of § 52-10.1, he did not bring forth sufficient evidence to overcome the presumption created in favor of the validity of the acknowledgment. Moore v. Moore, 108 N.C. App. 656, 424 S.E.2d 673, aff'd per curiam, 334 N.C. 684, 435 S.E.2d 71 (1993).

Failure to Make Full Disclosure Held to Invalidate Antenuptial Agreement. — Where the husband failed to make a full disclosure of his financial status, and that the wife was presented with an agreement drawn by the husband's attorney which she signed without knowledge of its contents and without seeking independent legal advice, absent any voluntary waiver, especially considering the confidential relationship between prospective spouses, husband's failure to fully disclose his financial status was grounds for invalidating an antenuptial agreement. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Resulting Trust Held Established. — Where the evidence showed that $10,000 check was delivered into the wife's hands, that it was made out to her maiden name, that she deposited it in her separate bank account before marriage, and that the husband testified that the funds were the wife's to do with as she pleased, and she gave it to her husband to purchase a condominium, a $10,000 resulting trust was properly established in the wife's favor upon divorce. Tiryakian v. Tiryakian, 91 N.C. App. 128, 370 S.E.2d 852 (1988).

Applied in Nye v. United States, 407 F. Supp. 1345 (M.D.N.C. 1975); McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910 (1985); Beroth v. Beroth, 87 N.C. App. 93, 359 S.E.2d 512 (1987); Hill v. Hill, 94 N.C. App. 474, 380 S.E.2d 540 (1989); In re Estate of Tucci, 94 N.C. App. 428, 380 S.E.2d 782 (1989); Rabon v. Rabon, 102 N.C. App. 452, 402 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Stated in Lawson v. Lawson, 84 N.C. App. 51, 351 S.E.2d 794 (1987).

Cited in Heller v. Heller, 7 N.C. App. 120, 171 S.E.2d 335 (1969); Spencer v. Spencer, 37 N.C. App. 481, 246 S.E.2d 805 (1978); Wright v. Wright, 305 N.C. 345, 289 S.E.2d 347 (1982); Biesecker v. Biesecker, 62 N.C. App. 282, 302 S.E.2d 826 (1983); Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984); Peak v. Peak, 82 N.C. App. 700, 348 S.E.2d 353 (1986); Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 105, 356 S.E.2d 407 (1987); Brimley v. Logging, 93 N.C. App. 467, 378 S.E.2d 52 (1989); Lee v. Lee, 93 N.C. App. 584, 378 S.E.2d 554 (1989); Small v. Small, 93 N.C. App. 614, 379 S.E.2d 273 (1989); Hamby v. Hamby, 143 N.C. App. 635, 547 S.E.2d 110 (2001), cert. denied, 354 N.C. 69, — S.E.2d — (2001), review denied, 354 N.C. 69, 553 S.E.2d 39 (2001).

§ 52-10.1. Separation agreements.

Any married couple is hereby authorized to execute a separation agreement not inconsistent with public policy which shall be legal, valid, and binding in all respects; provided, that the separation agreement must be in writing and acknowledged by both parties before a certifying officer as defined in G.S. 52-10(b). Such certifying officer must not be a party to the contract. This section shall not apply to any judgment of the superior court or other State court of competent jurisdiction, which, by reason of its being consented to by a husband and wife, or their attorneys, may be construed to constitute a separation agreement between such husband and wife. (1965, c. 803; 1977, c. 375, s. 3.)

Cross References. — As to distribution by court of marital property upon divorce, see §§ 50-20 and 50-21. As to antenuptial contracts, see § 52B-1 et seq.

Editor's Note. — The act inserting this section designated it as § 52-13.1, to follow former § 52-13 in Article 1 of Chapter 52 prior to the repeal and revision of that Chapter by Session Laws 1965, c. 878. This section was redesignated as § 52-10.1, since the provisions of present § 52-10 are similar to those of former § 52-13.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on the enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 815 (1969).

For note on specific performance of separation agreements, see 58 N.C.L. Rev. 867 (1980).

For note on enforcement of separation agreements by specific performance, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 117 (1980).

For note on voiding separation agreements by isolated acts of sexual intercourse, see 16 Wake Forest L. Rev. 137 (1980).

For article on the rights of individuals to control the distributional consequences of divorce by private contract and on the interests of the state in preserving its role as a third party to marriage and divorce, see 59 N.C.L. Rev. 819 (1981).

For 1984 survey, "Property Settlement or Separation Agreement: Perpetuating the Confusion," see 63 N.C.L. Rev. 1166 (1985).

For note on contractual agreements as a means of avoiding equitable distribution, in light of Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984), see 21 Wake Forest L. Rev. 213 (1985).

For note on post-separation sexual intercourse precluding enforcement of agreement requiring parties to live separate and apart, see 11 Campbell L. Rev. 73 (1988).

For article, "Semantics as Jurisprudence: The Elevation of Form Over Substance in the Treatment of Separation Agreements in North Carolina," see 69 N.C.L. Rev. 319 (1991).

For survey on the award of attorneys' fees for breach of a separation agreement, see 70 N.C.L. Rev. 2016 (1992).

For note, "The Diploma Dilemma: An Inequitable Result Under North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute — Kuder v. Schroeder," see 17 Campbell L. Rev. 361 (1995).

For article, "Bromhal v. Stott: Revisiting the Court's Role in Separation Agreements in the Context of Attorneys' Fees," see 74 N.C.L. Rev. 2151 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Construction With Other Sections. — The validity of a separation agreement as it related to a waiver of alimony was not to be judged in the context of § 52-10, but executed pursuant to this section. Napier v. Napier, 135 N.C. App. 364, 520 S.E.2d 312 (1999).

Construction With Other Sections. — Section 52-10 and this section are distinguishable in that a separation agreement may affect support rights whereas § 52-10 refers only to "rights ... in property"; further, as indicated by the terms requiring formalities for contracts entered into "during coverture," a contract under § 52-10 may be entered into at any time during marriage, not only in contemplation of separation or divorce. Williams v. Williams, 120 N.C. App. 707, 463 S.E.2d 815 (1995), aff'd per curium, 343 N.C. 299, 469 S.E.2d 553 (1996).

Separation Agreements Binding. — Under this section separation agreements are binding in all respects so long as they are not inconsistent with public policy and parties may, in settling disputes, agree to the payment of attorney's fees. Bromhal v. Stott, 116 N.C. App. 250, 447 S.E.2d 481 (1994), petition denied as to additional issues, 339 N.C. 609, 454 S.E.2d 246, aff'd, 341 N.C. 702, 462 S.E.2d 219 (1995).

Parties May Enter Agreement to Settle Question of Alimony. — Both parties to a divorce may enter into an agreement to settle the question of alimony, and the terms of the agreement are binding and may be modified only with the consent of both parties. Edwards v. Edwards, 102 N.C. App. 706, 403 S.E.2d 530, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 787, 408 S.E.2d 518 (1991).

Agreement Did Not Waive Alimony Rights. — Defendant's execution of a separation agreement which stated that it was executed with "the express understanding" and "in full satisfaction of all obligations" did not constitute an express waiver of her alimony rights within the meaning of this section or § 50-16.6 where the preamble to the agreement referred to § 50-20, an equitable distribution statute, thus excluding issues of spousal support. Napier v. Napier, 135 N.C. App. 364, 520 S.E.2d 312 (1999).

Both Parents Have Duty to Support Children. — It is the policy of this State that both parents have a duty to support their minor children. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Sections 52-10 and 52-10.1 were enacted without providing women any extra protection not offered to men; therefore, a separation agreement should be viewed today like any other bargained-for exchange between parties who are presumably on equal footing. Knight v. Knight, 76 N.C. App. 395, 333 S.E.2d 331 (1985).

Duty of Support May Be Discharged under Separation Agreement. — North Carolina law has long recognized that the husband's (supporting spouse's) duty of support may be discharged by a valid separation agreement between the spouses under which fixed benefits are provided the wife (dependent spouse) in consideration of the discharge. To be valid, such a discharge of support agreement must (1) be made between spouses either actually separated or intending immediately to separate; and (2) be executed in accordance with statutory formality requirements. Gray v. Snyder, 704 F.2d 709 (4th Cir. 1983).

When examining whether both parties freely entered into separation agreement, trial courts should use considerable care because contracts between husbands and wives are special agreements. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

This section requires that a separation agreement be in writing and be acknowledged by both parties before a certifying officer, not a party to the contract, as defined by statute. Greene v. Greene, 77 N.C. App. 821, 336 S.E.2d 430 (1985).

To be valid a separation agreement must be untainted by fraud, must be in all respects fair, reasonable and just, and must have been entered into without coercion or the exercise of undue influence, and with full knowledge of all the circumstances, conditions, and rights of the contracting parties. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Relationship between husband and wife is the most confidential of all relationships, and transactions between them, to be valid, must be fair and reasonable. Separation agreement must have been entered into without coercion. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Actual Fraud Need Not Be Shown. — Courts have thrown cloak of protection about separation agreements and made it their business, when confronted, to see to it that they are arrived at fairly and equitably. To warrant equity's intervention, no actual fraud need to be shown, for relief will be granted if settlement is manifestly unfair to spouse because of other's overreaching. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

There was nothing inconsistent with public policy in an indemnity clause within a separation agreement where the clause read: "If either party hereto for any reason fails to perform his or her financial or other obligations to the other party or their child, and as a result thereof incurs any expense, including reasonable attorney's fees, to collect the same or otherwise enforce his or her rights with respect thereto, the defaulting party shall indemnify and hold the other harmless from any such expense." Edwards v. Edwards, 102 N.C. App. 706, 403 S.E.2d 530, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 787, 408 S.E.2d 518 (1991).

Duty to Pay Child Support Not Dependent upon Compliance with Other Provisions. — A spouse's obligation under the terms of a separation agreement to pay child support is not dependent upon plaintiff's compliance with visitation, non-harassment, or non-cohabitation provisions, or other provisions unrelated to the financial support of the children. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Provisions Dependent upon Compliance with Other Provisions in Agreement. — Whether a spouse's right to alimony or maintenance and support is dependent upon that spouse's compliance with other provisions in the separation agreement is determined by the construction of the contract between the parties. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Where a separation agreement is silent on the question of whether the provisions for alimony and visitation are dependent of each other, the trial court must determine whether defendant's payment of alimony is dependent upon the plaintiff's complying with the provisions of the agreement dealing with visitation, non-cohabitation and non-harassment. The burden of proof of integration of the provisions is on the defendant. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Breach of Provisions. — If the trial court finds provisions in a separation agreement relating to alimony and visitation are dependent, the trial court must then determine whether plaintiff breached the pertinent provisions, and, if so, whether those breaches were of a substantial nature. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

Modification of Separation Agreement Must Be Pursuant to This Section. — In North Carolina, the modification of an original separation agreement must be made pursuant to the formalities and requirements of this section. Greene v. Greene, 77 N.C. App. 821, 336 S.E.2d 430 (1985).

An attempt to orally modify a separation agreement would fail to meet the formalities and requirements of this section. Therefore, the findings of the trial court would not support, much less require, a conclusion that the parties modified their separation agreement when plaintiff told defendant, upon learning of his remarriage, that she was making him a wedding present of the payments under the agreement. Greene v. Greene, 77 N.C. App. 821, 336 S.E.2d 430 (1985).

Equitable Distribution Barred by Agreement. — Separation agreement which released each spouse from the common law rights incident to marriage (dower, curtesy, inheritance, descent, and distribution), as well as "all other rights arising out of the marital relationship in and to any and all property," fully disposed of the parties' property rights arising out of the marriage and thus acted as a bar to equitable distribution. Hagler v. Hagler, 319 N.C. 287, 354 S.E.2d 228 (1987).

Agreement Was Valid Waiver of Property Rights. — In response to plaintiff's complaint for divorce, equitable distribution and alimony, defendant alleged a valid separation/property settlement agreement waived all of plaintiff's marital rights to equitable distribution and alimony and requested the agreement be incorporated in the court's final judgment; as valid contractual waivers of these rights are enforceable in this State, defendant's allegation of the agreement was properly characterized as a plea in bar to plaintiff's complaint. Garris v. Garris, 92 N.C. App. 467, 374 S.E.2d 638 (1988).

Agreement Not Signed by Wife Was Invalid and Did Not Bar Equitable Distribution. — Having determined that a separation agreement was not valid and enforceable under North Carolina law because only the husband acknowledged the execution of the separation agreement before the certifying officer and further, that the parties intended North Carolina law to govern, although the agreement was executed in Maryland, the Court of Appeals of North Carolina held that the agreement was invalid and did not bar the wife's claim for equitable distribution under § 50-21. Morton v. Morton, 76 N.C. App. 295, 332 S.E.2d 736, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 314 N.C. 667, 337 S.E.2d 582 (1985).

Agreement Held Not Unconscionable. — Wife failed to show agreements were unconscionable where evidence in record plainly showed that she considered the agreements equitable when she entered into them and knowingly chose to bring an end to the continuing aggravation and stress associated with the outstanding equitable distribution claim. Hill v. Hill, 94 N.C. App. 474, 380 S.E.2d 540 (1989).

Agreements did not involve constructive fraud where the fiduciary obligation normally existing between parties to a marriage had long been extinguished; not only were the parties divorced before the agreements were entered, but each had employed independent counsel to represent them in the equitable distribution action and the settlement negotiations, and through counsel, they hammered out the terms of property settlement. Hill v. Hill, 94 N.C. App. 474, 380 S.E.2d 540 (1989).

Acts Sufficient to Qualify as an Acknowledgment. — When defendant and wife signed a separation agreement in front of a notary the defendant performed acts sufficient to qualify as an acknowledgment under the statute, since no rights of creditors or third parties were involved. Lawson v. Lawson, 321 N.C. 274, 362 S.E.2d 269 (1987).

A certificate of acknowledgment may be subsequently affixed to a separation agreement if the agreement was valid under the appropriate statute, no rights of creditors or third parties being involved. Lawson v. Lawson, 321 N.C. 274, 362 S.E.2d 269 (1987).

A wife's acknowledgment of a separation agreement was fatally defective under former § 52-6 where there was no private examination of the wife and thus no finding as to whether the agreement was unreasonable or injurious to the wife, and where the acknowledgment was certified by a Judge Advocate in the Marine Corps who did not qualify as a "certifying officer" under former § 52-6(c) because his position was not that of an "equivalent or corresponding officer" of the jurisdiction where the examination and acknowledgment were to be made; and the omission of the private examination and the lack of authority on the part of the certifying officer precluded the use of curative statutes, §§ 52-8 and 47-81.2, to validate the agreement. DeJaager v. DeJaager, 47 N.C. App. 452, 267 S.E.2d 399 (1980).

Presumption of Validity of Acknowledgment. — To impeach a notary's certification, there must be more than a bare allegation that no acknowledgment occurred, and where plaintiff never asserted that the actual signature on an agreement was other than his own, but suggested only a technical violation of this section, he did not bring forth sufficient evidence to overcome the presumption created in favor of the validity of the acknowledgment.

Moore v. Moore, 108 N.C. App. 656, 424 S.E.2d 673, aff'd per curiam, 334 N.C. 684, 435 S.E.2d 71 (1993).

Attorney's Fees. — The public policy of this state encourages settlement agreements and supports the inclusion of a provision for the recovery of attorney's fees in settlement agreements. Bromhal v. Stott, 341 N.C. 702, 462 S.E.2d 219 (1995).

Provision for recovery of attorney's fees in separation agreement was not inconsistent with public policy and was legal, valid, and binding under this section. Bromhal v. Stott, 341 N.C. 702, 462 S.E.2d 219 (1995).

Agreement as to Alimony. — Parties to a divorce may enter into a valid agreement settling the question of alimony, and unless the court then orders alimony to be paid, the terms of the agreement are binding and can only be modified by the consent of both parties. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Renunciation under Separation Agreement. — Where a husband executed a will devising and bequeathing all his property to his wife, and the spouses thereafter entered into a separation agreement in which each waived and renounced all rights under any previously executed will of the other, and the husband subsequently died without having revoked or modified his will, the separation agreement constituted a valid renunciation which adeemed the devise and bequest to the wife. Sedberry v. Johnson, 62 N.C. App. 425, 302 S.E.2d 924, cert. denied, 309 N.C. 322, 307 S.E.2d 167 (1983).

Breach of Separation Agreement. — Breach by husband of a part of a separation agreement requiring him to pay the difference in the federal and state income tax that wife was required to pay by virtue of being unable to make a deduction for attorneys' fees was not the breach of a personal contract provision which would allow recovery of special damages for mental anguish. Stanback v. Stanback, 37 N.C. App. 324, 246 S.E.2d 74, aff'd in part and rev'd in part, 297 N.C. 181, 254 S.E.2d 611 (1979).

Enforcement of Separation Agreement by Specific Performance. — A separation agreement that has not been incorporated into a divorce judgment may be equitably enforced by an order of specific performance. Harris v. Harris, 50 N.C. App. 305, 274 S.E.2d 489, cert. denied and appeal dismissed, 302 N.C. 397, 279 S.E.2d 351 (1981).

A separation agreement not incorporated into a final divorce decree may be enforced through the equitable remedy of specific performance. Edwards v. Edwards, 102 N.C. App. 706, 403 S.E.2d 530, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 787, 408 S.E.2d 518 (1991).

Defendant Held Able to Specifically Perform Agreement. — Where defendant's current wife's background was in the administrative sphere of her company, and the consulting work performed by defendant was indispensable to that company, the court was incorrect in concluding that the company was a joint venture for defendant and his wife and that defendant chose not to receive a salary in order to depress his income; therefore, the evidence in the record supported the conclusion that defendant was financially able to specifically perform the separation agreement. Brandt v. Brandt, 92 N.C. App. 438, 374 S.E.2d 663 (1988), aff'd, 325 N.C. 429, 383 S.E.2d 656 (1989).

As to attack on deed of separation by married woman, see Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Until deed of separation is rescinded, defendant cannot attack the legality of the separation or obtain alimony from plaintiff. Eubanks v. Eubanks, 273 N.C. 189, 159 S.E.2d 562 (1968).

Binding Arbitration as to Spousal Support. — Since the parties may settle spousal support by agreement, there exists no prohibition to their entering into binding arbitration to settle the issue of spousal support. Crutchley v. Crutchley, 306 N.C. 518, 293 S.E.2d 793 (1982).

Separation agreements may not by their own terms promote objectives which are offensive to public policy. Sethness v. Sethness, 62 N.C. App. 676, 303 S.E.2d 424 (1983).

Because a separation agreement does not specifically prohibit "illicit intercourse" and cohabitation and may, by implication, even condone such acts, it does not therefore follow that the agreement promotes such acts. Whether the silence of a separation agreement on such issues renders it void as against public policy is a matter of legislative, not judicial, determination. Sethness v. Sethness, 62 N.C. App. 676, 303 S.E.2d 424 (1983).

Separation Agreement Not Shown. — Where document recited that on the date of execution, the parties were "living separate and apart", however, it further provided that the parties may desire to resume cohabitation in an effort to reconcile and that the parties were considering the resumption of cohabitation, the express and unambiguous language of the agreement declared that the parties were not contemplating living "separate and apart forever." Thus, the agreement was not a separation agreement under this section. Williams v. Williams, 120 N.C. App. 707, 463 S.E.2d 815 (1995), aff'd per curium, 343 N.C. 299, 469 S.E.2d 553 (1996).

Failure of Court to Follow Dictates of Agreement. — Although signed by the parties and the court and filed with the clerk of the court, a custody and child support agreement was vacated because the trial court did not read its terms to the parties and inquire into the parties' understanding of and voluntary consent to the terms, as provided in the agreement. Tevepaugh v. Tevepaugh, 135 N.C. App. 489, 521 S.E.2d 117 (1999).

Summary Judgment Held Improper. — Plaintiff's affidavit stated she was forced to sign the separation agreement under duress and coercion, and defendant denied allegation, therefore, taking plaintiff's affidavit as true, there was a genuine issue of material fact on question of duress and coercion concerning the separation agreement, and grant of summary judgment was error. Stegall v. Stegall, 100 N.C. App. 398, 397 S.E.2d 306 (1990), cert. denied, 328 N.C. 274, 400 S.E.2d 461 (1991).

Where separation agreement provided for percentage adjustments in the amount of alimony and child support based on the "Consumer Price Index for Consumer Goods," but did not specify which "Consumer Price Index," trial court erred by granting summary judgment on amount of arrearages. The court must decide what index the parties intended when they signed the agreement. Nisbet v. Nisbet, 102 N.C. App. 232, 402 S.E.2d 151, cert. denied, 329 N.C. 499, 407 S.E.2d 538 (1991).

The law in North Carolina strongly favors enforcing contracts as written, wherever they may be entered into. Policy does not favor allowing spouses to escape their lawful support obligations simply by crossing state lines. White v. Graham, 72 N.C. App. 436, 325 S.E.2d 497 (1985).

Applied in White v. Graham, 72 N.C. App. 436, 325 S.E.2d 497 (1985); McLeod v. McLeod, 74 N.C. App. 144, 327 S.E.2d 910 (1985); Brandt v. Brandt, 92 N.C. App. 438, 374 S.E.2d 663 (1988).

Cited in Buffington v. Buffington, 69 N.C. App. 483, 317 S.E.2d 97 (1984); Peak v. Peak, 82 N.C. App. 700, 348 S.E.2d 353 (1986); Collar v. Collar, 86 N.C. App. 105, 356 S.E.2d 407 (1987); Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989); Moyer v. Moyer, 122 N.C. App. 723, 471 S.E.2d 676 (1996).

§ 52-10.2. Resumption of marital relations defined.

"Resumption of marital relations" shall be defined as voluntary renewal of the husband and wife relationship, as shown by the totality of the circumstances. Isolated incidents of sexual intercourse between the parties shall not constitute resumption of marital relations. (1987, c. 664, s. 1.)

Legal Periodicals. — For note on post-separation sexual intercourse precluding enforcement of agreement requiring parties to live separate and apart, see 11 Campbell L. Rev. 73 (1988).

CASE NOTES

There are two lines of cases regarding resumption of marital relations: those which present the question of whether the parties hold themselves out as man and wife as a matter of law, and those involving conflicting evidence such that mutual intent becomes an essential element; these two lines of cases establish two alternative methods by which a trial court may find that separated spouses have reconciled. Schultz v. Schultz, 107 N.C. App. 366, 420 S.E.2d 186 (1992), cert. denied, 333 N.C. 347, 426 S.E.2d 710 (1993).

Future, but Not Existing, Alimony Obligations Cease upon Reconciliation. — When the parties resumed marital relations, appellant's obligations to pay alimony in the future ceased. His duty under the consent judgment to pay alimony up to the date of reconciliation, however, as an executed portion of the consent judgment, remained enforceable through the court's contempt power. Schultz v. Schultz, 107 N.C. App. 366, 420 S.E.2d 186 (1992), cert. denied, 333 N.C. 347, 426 S.E.2d 710 (1993).

Reconciliation Not Shown. — Four hours on each of six evenings spent together in the former marital home eating dinner and visiting with the parties' children in combination with three or four isolated acts of sexual intercourse did not constitute reconciliation as a matter of law. Fletcher v. Fletcher, 123 N.C. App. 744, 474 S.E.2d 802 (1996).

Section Not Applied Retroactively. — Testimony of plaintiff and defendant alike showed that the parties had sexual intercourse several times between the execution of Separation Agreement and Property Settlement and June 1, 1985, and under the law that existed when the acts of intercourse occurred, they rendered null and void the unperformed obligations of the agreement; furthermore, plaintiff's position was not aided by this section, as that enactment became effective October 1, 1987, more than two years after the occurrences involved. Moser v. Moser, 96 N.C. App. 273, 385 S.E.2d 160 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 483, 392 S.E.2d 93 (1990).

Cited in Higgins v. Higgins, 321 N.C. 482,

364 S.E.2d 426 (1988); Wells v. Wells, 92 N.C. App. 226, 373 S.E.2d 879 (1988); Miller v. Brooks, 123 N.C. App. 20, 472 S.E.2d 350 (1996).

§ 52-11. Antenuptial contracts and torts.

The liability of a married person for any debts owing, or contracts made or damages incurred before marriage shall not be impaired or altered by such marriage. No person shall by marriage incur any liability for any debts owing, or contracts made, or for wrongs done by his or her spouse before the marriage. (1871-2, c. 193, ss. 13, 14; Code, ss. 1822, 1823; Rev., ss. 2101, 2106; C.S., s. 2517; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Former § 52-11 was repealed by Session Laws 1943, c. 543. The provisions of present § 52-11 are similar to those of former § 52-14.

Legal Periodicals. — For case law survey on tort law, see 43 N.C.L. Rev. 906 (1965).

For comment on enforceability of marital contracts, see 47 N.C.L. Rev. 816 (1969).

For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Wife May Appoint Husband as Agent. — A wife may appoint her husband to act as her agent to settle her antenuptial debts in the same manner as one sui juris may appoint an agent, and compliance with the requirements of former § 52-6 was not necessary. Stout v. Perry, 152 N.C. 312, 67 S.E. 757 (1910).

Where prior to marriage wife incurs liability for negligent injury to husband, the subsequent marriage does not affect her liability. Shirley v. Ayers, 201 N.C. 51, 158 S.E. 840 (1931).

§ 52-12. Postnuptial crimes and torts.

No married person shall be liable for damages accruing from any tort committed by his or her spouse, or for any costs or fines incurred in any criminal proceeding against such spouse. (1871-2, c. 193, s. 25; Code, s. 1833; Rev., s. 2105; C.S., s. 2518; 1921, c. 102; 1965, c. 878, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Provisions similar to former § 52-12 were contained in the § 52-6 repealed by Session Laws 1977, c. 375, s. 1. The provisions of present § 52-12 are similar to those of former § 52-15.

CASE NOTES

Common Law. — At common law, husband was liable for the tort of his wife, although committed without his knowledge or consent and in his absence, and although husband and wife were living separate at the time, on the ground that as her legal existence was incorporated in that of her husband, she could not be sued alone, and if the husband was protected from responsibility the injured party would be without redress. Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N.C. 136 (1882).

For cases decided under former law, see Roberts v. Lisenbee, 86 N.C. 136 (1882); Presnell v. Moore, 120 N.C. 390, 27 S.E. 27 (1897); Brittingham v. Stadiem, 151 N.C. 299, 66 S.E. 128 (1909); Young v. Newsome, 180 N.C. 315, 104 S.E. 660 (1920).

Applied in Burton v. Dixon, 259 N.C. 473, 131 S.E.2d 27 (1963).

Cited in Lawson v. Lawson, 321 N.C. 274, 362 S.E.2d 269 (1987).

Chapter 52A.

Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

§§ 52A-1 through 52A-32: Repealed by Session Laws 1995, c. 538, s. 7(a).

Cross References. — For the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act, see Chapter 52C.

Chapter 52B.

Uniform Premarital Agreement Act.

Editor's Note. — The official commentary to this Act has been printed through the permission of the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws, and copies of the Uniform Act may be ordered from them at 676 North St. Clair Street, Suite 1700, Chicago, Illinois 60611, (312) 915-0195.

The number of marriages between persons previously married and the number of marriages between persons each of whom is intending to continue to pursue a career is steadily increasing. For these and other reasons, it is becoming more and more common for persons contemplating marriage to seek to resolve by agreement certain issues presented by the forthcoming marriage. However, despite a lengthy legal history for these premarital agreements, there is a substantial uncertainty as to the enforceability of all, or a portion, of the provisions of these agreements and a significant lack of uniformity of treatment of these agreements among the states. The problems caused by this uncertainty and nonuniformity are greatly exacerbated by the mobility of our population. Nevertheless, this uncertainty and nonuniformity seem reflective not so much of basic policy differences between the states but rather a result of spasmodic, reflexive response to varying factual circumstances at different times. Accordingly, uniform legislation conforming to modern social policy which provides both certainty and sufficient flexibility to accommodate different circumstances would appear to be both a significant improvement and a goal realistically capable of achievement.

This Act is intended to be relatively limited in scope. Section 1 defines a "premarital agreement" as "an agreement between prospective spouses made in contemplation of marriage and to be effective upon marriage." Section 2 requires that a premarital agreement be in writing and signed by both parties. Section 4 provides that a premarital agreement becomes effective upon the marriage of the parties. These sections establish significant parameters. That is, the Act does not deal with agreements between persons who live together but who do not contemplate marriage or who do not marry. Nor does the Act provide for postnuptial or separation agreements or with oral agreements.

On the other hand, agreements which are embraced by the act are permitted to deal with a wide variety of matters and Section 3 provides an illustrative list of those matters, including spousal support, which may properly be dealt with in a premarital agreement.

Section 6 is the key operative section of the Act and sets forth the conditions under which a premarital agreement is not enforceable. An agreement is not enforceable if the party against whom enforcement is sought proves that (a) he or she did not execute the agreement voluntarily or that (b) the agreement was unconscionable when it was executed and, before execution of the agreement, he or she (1) was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party, (2) did not voluntarily and expressly waive, in writing, any right to disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party beyond the disclosure provided, and (3) did not have, or reasonably could not have had, an adequate knowledge of the property and financial obligations of the other party.

Even if these conditions are not proven, if a provision of a premarital agreement modifies or eliminates spousal support, and that modification or elimination would cause a party to be eligible for support under a program of public assistance at the time of separation, marital dissolution, or death, a court is authorized to order the other party to provide support to the extent necessary to avoid that eligibility.

These sections form the heart of the Act; the remaining sections deal with more tangential issues. Section 5 prescribes the manner in which a premarital agreement may be amended or revoked; Section 7 provides for very limited enforcement where a marriage is subsequently determined to be void; and Section 8 tolls any statute of limitations applicable to an action asserting a claim for relief under a premarital agreement during the parties' marriage.

§ 52B-1. Short title.

This Chapter may be cited as the "Uniform Premarital Agreement Act". (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1987, c. 473, s. 3 made this Chapter effective July 1, 1987, and applicable to any premarital agreement executed on or after that date.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "North Carolina's Uniform Premarital Agreement Act, A Contract Perspective," see 12 Campbell L. Rev. 221 (1990).

For comment, "The Uniform Premarital Agreement Act and Modern Social Policy: The Enforceability of Premarital Agreements Regulating the Ongoing Marriage," see 28 Wake Forest L. Rev. 1037 (1993).

For note, "The Diploma Dilemma: An Inequitable Result Under North Carolina's Equitable Distribution Statute — Kuder v. Schroeder," see 17 Campbell L. Rev. 361 (1995).

CASE NOTES

Summary judgment was appropriate where a premarital agreement signed by the parties irrefutably barred the wife's claims for postseparation support, alimony and equitable distribution; the language in the subject agreement—drafted by the wife's attorney—was sufficiently "express" to constitute a valid and enforceable waiver of the wife's claims for postseparation support pursuant to § 50-16.2A and alimony pursuant to § 50-16.3A. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

Cited in Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

§ 52B-2. Definitions.

As used in this Chapter:

(1) "Premarital agreement" means an agreement between prospective spouses made in contemplation of marriage and to be effective upon marriage.

(2) "Property" means an interest, present or future, legal or equitable, vested or contingent, in real or personal property, including income and earnings. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The definition of "premarital agreement" set forth in subsection (1) is limited to an agreement between prospective spouses made in contemplation of and to be effective upon marriage. Agreements between persons living together but not contemplating marriage (see Marvin v. Marvin, 18 Cal.3d 660 (1976), judgment after trial modified, 122 Cal.App.3d 871 (1981)) and postnuptial or separation agreements are outside the scope of this Act. Formal requirements are prescribed by Section 2. An illustrative list of matters which may be included in an agreement is set forth in Section 3.

Subsection (2) is designed to embrace all forms of property and interests therein. These may include rights in a professional license or practice, employee benefit plans, pension and retirement accounts, and so on. The reference to income or earnings includes both income from property and earnings from personal services.

CASE NOTES

Quoted in Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

Cited in King v. King, 114 N.C. App. 454, 442 S.E.2d 154 (1994).

§ 52B-3. Formalities.

A premarital agreement must be in writing and signed by both parties. It is enforceable without consideration. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section restates the common requirement that a premarital agreement be reduced to writing and signed by both parties (see Ariz. Rev. Stats. § 25-201; Ark. Stats. § 55-310; Cal.Civ.C. § 5134; 13 Dela.Code 1974 § 301; Idaho Code § 32-917; Ann.Laws Mass. ch. 209, § 25; Minn.Stats.Ann. § 519.11; Montana Rev.C. § 36-123; New Mex. Stats.Ann.1978 40-2-4; Ore.Rev.Stats. § 108.140; Vernon's Texas Codes Ann. § 5.44; Vermont Stats. Ann. Title 12, § 181). Many states also require other formalities, including notarization or an acknowledgement (see, e.g., Arizona, Arkansas, California, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico) but may then permit the formal statutory requirement to be avoided or satisfied subsequent to execution (see In re Marriage of Cleveland, 76 Cal.App.3d 357 (1977) (premarital agreement never acknowledged but "proved" by sworn testimony of parties in dissolution proceeding)). This act dispenses with all formal requirements except a writing signed by both parties. Although the section is framed in the singular, the agreement may consist of one or more documents intended to be part of the agreement and executed as required by this section.

Section 2 also restates what appears to be the almost universal rule regarding the marriage as consideration for a premarital agreement (see, e.g., Ga. Code § 20-303; Barnhill v. Barnhill, 386 So.2d 749 (Ala. Civ. App. 1980); Estate of Gillilan v. Estate of Gillilan, 406 N.E.2d 981 (Ind.App.1980); Friedlander v. Friedlander, 494 P.2d 208 (Wash.1972); but cf. Wilson v. Wilson, 170 A.2d 679, 685 (Me.1961)). The primary importance of this rule has been to provide a degree of mutuality of benefits to support the enforceability of a premarital agreement. A marriage is a prerequisite for the effectiveness of a premarital agreement under this act (see Section 4). This requires that there be a ceremonial marriage. Even if this marriage is subsequently determined to have been void, Section 7 may provide limits of enforceability of an agreement entered into a contemplation of that marriage. Consideration as such is not required and the standards for enforceability are established by Sections 6 and 7. Nevertheless, this provision is retained here as a desirable, if not essential, restatement of the law. On the other hand, the fact that marriage is deemed to be consideration for the purpose of this act does not change the rules applicable in other areas of law (see, e.g., 26 U.S.C.A. §§ 2043 (release of certain marital rights not treated as consideration for federal estate tax, 2512); Merrill v. Fahs, 324 U.S. 308, rehearing denied 324 U.S. 888 (release of marital rights in premarital agreement not adequate and full consideration for purposes of federal gift tax).)

Finally, a premarital agreement is a contract. As required for any other contract, the parties must have the capacity to contract in order to enter into a binding agreement. Those persons who lack the capacity to contract but who under other provisions of law are permitted to enter into a binding agreement may enter into premarital agreement under those other provisions of law.

CASE NOTES

Acknowledgment Not Required. — The Uniform Premarital Agreement Act does not require acknowledgment of premarital agreements. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990).

§ 52B-4. Content.

(a) Parties to a premarital agreement may contract with respect to:

(1) The rights and obligations of each of the parties in any of the property of either or both of them whenever and wherever acquired or located;

(2) The right to buy, sell, use, transfer, exchange, abandon, lease, consume, expend, assign, create a security interest in, mortgage, encumber, dispose of, or otherwise manage and control property;

(3) The disposition of property upon separation, marital dissolution, death, or the occurrence or nonoccurrence of any other event;

(4) The modification or elimination of spousal support;

(5) The making of a will, trust, or other arrangement to carry out the provisions of the agreement;
(6) The ownership rights in and disposition of the death benefit from a life insurance policy;
(7) The choice of law governing the construction of the agreement; and
(8) Any other matter, including their personal rights and obligations, not in violation of public policy or a statute imposing a criminal penalty.

(b) The right of a child to support may not be adversely affected by a premarital agreement. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Section 3 permits the parties to contract in a premarital agreement with respect to any matter listed and any other matter not in violation of public policy or any statute imposing a criminal penalty. The matters are intended to be illustrative, not exclusive. Paragraph (4) of subsection (a) specifically authorizes the parties to deal with spousal support obligations. There is a split in authority among the states as to whether a premarital agreement may control the issue of spousal support. Some few states do not permit a premarital agreement to control this issue (see, e.g., In re Marriage of Winegard, 278 N.W.2d 505 (Iowa 1979); Fricke v. Fricke, 42 N.W.2d 500 (Wis.1950)). However, the better view and growing trend is to permit a premarital agreement to govern this matter if the agreement and the circumstances of its execution satisfy certain standards (see, e.g., Newman v. Newman, 653 P.2d 728 (Colo.Sup.Ct.1982); Parniawski v. Parniawski, 359 A.2d 719 (Conn.1976); Volid v. Volid, 286 N.E.2d 42 (Ill.1972); Osborne v. Osborne, 428 N.E.2d 810 (Mass.1981); Hudson v. Hudson, 350 P.2d 596 (Okla.1960); Unander v. Unander, 506 P.2d 719 (Ore.1973)) (see Sections 7 and 8).

Paragraph (8) of subsection (a) makes clear that the parties may also contract with respect to other matters, including personal rights and obligations, not in violation of public policy or a criminal statute. Hence, subject to this limitation, an agreement may provide for such matters as the choice of abode, the freedom to pursue career opportunities, the upbringing of children, and so on. However, subsection (b) of this section makes clear that an agreement may not adversely affect what would otherwise be the obligation of a party to a child.

NORTH CAROLINA COMMENT

If the parties contract with respect to the ownership rights in and disposition of the death benefit from a life insurance policy and the provisions of the premarital contract conflict with the provisions of the life insurance policy, the provisions of the life insurance policy shall prevail with respect to payment by the insurance company but not with respect to the rights of the parties to the premarital agreement.

Legal Periodicals. — For article, "A Spouse's Right to Control Assets During Marriage: Is North Carolina Living in the Middle Ages?," see 18 Campbell L. Rev. 203 (1996).

CASE NOTES

Relinquishment of Equitable Distribution Rights. — The trial court erred in allowing the husband an equitable distribution of the marital property where a valid prenuptial agreement, in which the parties relinquished all such rights, existed pursuant to this section. Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

The appellant-wife effectively waived her rights to the husband's retirement accounts under this section, and her waiver was not subject to the spousal waiver requirements of ERISA. Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

§ 52B-5. Effect of marriage.

A premarital agreement becomes effective upon marriage. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section establishes a marriage as a prerequisite for the effectiveness of a premarital agreement. As a consequence, the act does not provide for a situation where persons live together without marrying. In that situation, the parties must look to the other law of the jurisdiction (see Marvin v. Marvin, 18 Cal.3d 660 (1976); judgment after trial modified, 122 Cal.App.3d 871 (1981)).

CASE NOTES

Relinquishment of Equitable Distribution Rights. — The trial court erred in allowing the husband an equitable distribution of the marital property where a valid prenuptial agreement, in which the parties relinquished all such rights, existed pursuant to § 52B-4. Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

Cited in Stewart v. Stewart, 141 N.C. App. 236, 541 S.E.2d 209 (2000).

§ 52B-6. Amendment, revocation.

After marriage, a premarital agreement may be amended or revoked only by a written agreement signed by the parties. The amended agreement or the revocation is enforceable without consideration. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section requires the same formalities of execution for an amendment or revocation of a premarital agreement as are required for its original execution (cf. Estate of Gillilan v. Estate of Gillilan, 406 N.E.2d 981 (Ind.App.1980) (agreement may be altered by subsequent agreement but not simply by inconsistent acts).

CASE NOTES

Oral Rescission Not Valid under This Section. — The trial court violated the principles of this section in declaring a prenuptial agreement void based on its finding that a paragraph was orally rescinded; the husband, who had failed to convey half of his residence to the wife as promised in the agreement, presented no evidence that the parties ever entered into a written agreement amending or revoking the original prenuptial agreement. Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

A cancellation of wedding plans does not automatically nullify the provisions of a prenuptial agreement in the event the parties subsequently reconcile and marry. In re Estate of Pate, 119 N.C. App. 400, 459 S.E.2d 1 (1995).

§ 52B-7. Enforcement.

(a) A premarital agreement is not enforceable if the party against whom enforcement is sought proves that:

(1) That party did not execute the agreement voluntarily; or

(2) The agreement was unconscionable when it was executed and, before execution of the agreement, that party:

a. Was not provided a fair and reasonable disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party;

b. Did not voluntarily and expressly waive, in writing, any right to disclosure of the property or financial obligations of the other party beyond the disclosure provided; and

c. Did not have, or reasonably could not have had, an adequate knowledge of the property or financial obligations of the other party.

(b) If a provision of a premarital agreement modifies or eliminates spousal support and that modification or elimination causes one party to the agreement to be eligible for support under a program of public assistance at the time of separation or marital dissolution, a court, notwithstanding the terms of the agreement, may require the other party to provide support to the extent necessary to avoid that eligibility. Before the court orders support under this subsection, the court must find that the party for whom support is ordered is a dependent spouse, as defined by G.S. 50-16.1A, and that the requirements of G.S. 50-16.2A regarding postseparation support or G.S. 50-16.3A regarding alimony have been met.

(c) An issue of unconscionability of a premarital agreement shall be decided by the court as a matter of law. (1987, c. 473, s. 1; 1995, c. 319, s. 11; 1997-456, s. 27.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section sets forth the conditions which must be proven to avoid the enforcement of a premarital agreement. If prospective spouses enter into a premarital agreement and their subsequent marriage is determined to be void, the enforceability of the agreement is governed by Section 7.

The conditions stated under subsection (a) are comparable to concepts which are expressed in the statutory and decisional law of many jurisdictions. Enforcement based on disclosure and voluntary execution is perhaps most common (see, e.g, Ark. Stats. § 55-309; Minn.Stats.Ann. § 519.11; In re Kaufmann's Estate, 171 A.2d 48 (Pa.1961) (alternate holding)). However, knowledge or reason to know, together with voluntary execution, may also be sufficient (see, e.g., Tenn.Code Ann. § 36-606; Barnhill v. Barnhill, 386 So.2d 479 (Ala. Civ. App. 1980); Del Vecchio v. Del Vecchio, 143 So.2d 17 (Fla.1962); Coward and Coward, 582 P.2d 834 (Or.App. 1978); but see Matter of Estate of Lebsock, 618 P.2d 683 (Colo.App.1980)) and so may a voluntary, knowing waiver (see Hafner v. Hafner, 295 N.W.2d 567 (Minn.1980)). In each of these situations, it should be underscored that execution must have been voluntary (see Lutgert v. Lutgert, 338 So.2d 1111 (Fla.1976); see also 13 Dela.Code 1974 § 301 (10 day waiting period)). Finally, a premarital agreement is enforceable if enforcement would not have been unconscionable at the time the agreement was executed (cf. Hartz v. Hartz, 234 A.2d 865 (Md.1967) (premarital agreement upheld if no disclosure but agreement was fair and equitable under the circumstances)).

The test of "unconscionability" is drawn from Section 306 of the Uniform Marriage and Divorce Act (UMDA) (see Ferry v. Ferry, 586 S.W.2d 782 (Mo.1979); see also Newman v. Newman, 653 P.2d 728 (Colo.Sup.Ct.1982) (maintenance provisions of premarital agreement tested for unconscionability at time of marriage termination)). The following discussion set forth in the Commissioner's Note to Section 306 of the UMDA is equally appropriate here:

"Subsection (b) undergirds the freedom allowed the parties by making clear that the terms of the agreement respecting maintenance and property disposition are binding upon the court unless those terms are found to be unconscionable. The standard of unconscionability is used in commercial law, where its meaning includes protection against onesidedness, oppression, or unfair surprise (see section 2-302, Uniform Commercial Code), and in contract law, Scott v. U. S., 12 Wall (U.S.) 443 (1870) ('contract . . . unreasonable and unconscionable but not void for fraud'); Stiefler v. McCullough, 174 N.E. 823, 97 Ind. App. 123 (1931); Terre Haute Cooperage v. Branscome, 35 So.2d 537, 203 Miss. 493 (1948); Carter v. Boone County Trust Co., 92 S.W.2d 647, 338 Mo. 629 (1936). It has been used in cases respecting divorce settlements or awards. Bell v. Bell, 371 P.2d 773, 150 Colo. 174 (1962) ('this division of property is manifestly unfair, inequitable and unconscionable'). Hence the act does not introduce a novel standard unknown to the law. In the context of negotiations between spouses as to the financial incidents of their marriage, the standard includes protection against overreaching, concealment of assets, and sharp dealing not consistent with the obligations of marital partners to deal fairly with each other.

"In order to determine whether the agreement is unconscionable, the court may look to the economic circumstances of the parties resulting from the agreement, and any other relevant evidence such as the conditions under which the agreement was made, including the knowledge of the other party. If the court finds the agreement not unconscionable, its terms respecting property division and maintenance may not be altered by the court at the hearing."

(Commissioner's Note, Sec. 306, Uniform Marriage and Divorce Act.)

Nothing in Section 6 makes the absence of assistance of independent legal counsel a condition for the unenforceability of a premarital agreement. However, lack of that assistance may well be a factor in determining whether the conditions stated in Section 6 may have existed (see, e.g., Del Vecchio v. Del Vecchio, 143 So.2d 17 (Fla.1962)).

Even if the conditions stated in subsection (a) are not proven, if a provision of a premarital agreement modifies or eliminates spousal support, subsection (b) authorizes a court to provide very limited relief to a party who would otherwise be eligible for public welfare (see, e.g., Osborne v. Osborne, 428 N.E.2d 810 (Mass.1981) (dictum); Unander v. Unander, 506 P.2d 719 (Ore.1973) (dictum)).

No special provision is made for enforcement of provisions of a premarital agreement relating to personal rights and obligations. However, a premarital agreement is a contract and these provisions may be enforced to the extent that they are enforceable are under otherwise applicable law (see Avitzur v. Avitzur, 459 N.Y.S.2d 572 (Ct. App.).

Section 6 is framed in a manner to require the party who alleges that a premarital agreement is not enforceable to bear the burden of proof as to that allegation. The statutory law conflicts on the issue of where the burden of proof lies (contrast Ark. Stats. § 55-313; 31 Minn.Stats.Ann. § 519.11 with Vernon's Texas Codes Ann. § 5.45). Similarly, some courts have placed the burden on the attacking spouse to prove the invalidity of the agreement. Linker v. Linker, 470 P.2d 921 (Colo.1970); Matter of Estate of Benker, 296 N.W.2d 167 (Mich.App.1980); In re Kauffmann's Estate, 171 A.2d 48 (Pa.1961). Some have placed the burden upon those relying upon the agreement to prove its validity. Hartz v. Hartz, 234 A.2d 865 (Md.1967). Finally, several have adopted a middle ground by stating that a premarital agreement is presumptively valid but if a disproportionate disposition is made for the wife, the husband bears the burden of proof of showing adequate disclosure. (Del Vecchio v. Del Vecchio, 143 So.2d 17 (Fla.1962); Christians v. Christians, 44 N.W.2d 431 (Iowa 1950); In re Neis' Estate, 225 P.2d 110 (Kans. 1950); Truitt v. Truitt's Adm'r, 162 S.W.2d 31 (Ky. 1942); In re Estate of Strickland, 149 N.W.2d 344 (Neb. 1967); Kosik v. George, 452 P.2d 560 (Or.1969); Friedlander v. Friedlander, 494 P.2d 208 (Wash.1972).

Cross References. — As to postseparation support, see § 50-16.2A.

CASE NOTES

A premarital agreement concerning alimony is void as against public policy. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Invalidity of alimony provision in a premarital agreement did not affect the property provisions of the agreement. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Party Claiming Invalidity Has Burden of Proof. — In an action to enforce a premarital agreement executed prior to enactment of Chapter 52B, the party claiming the invalidity of the agreement for reasons of undue influence, duress, fraud, unconscionability or inadequate disclosure has the burden of proof. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Presentation of a premarital agreement to wife on the day before the wedding, combined with the threat that the marriage would not take place unless the document was executed, did not amount to duress and undue influence. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Premarital Agreement Was Not Sufficiently Identical to Act. — Trial court erred in concluding that premarital agreement was sufficiently identical to the Equitable Distribution Act to allow the trial court to distribute the property according to the Act despite the premarital agreement, where the Act did not exist at the time of the agreement's execution, and the parties could not have intended that the Act govern their property division. Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989), cert. denied, 326 N.C. 482, 392 S.E.2d 90 (1990), decided under law in effect prior to enactment of Chapter 52B.

Foreign Contract. — Syrian contract would not be viewed as a premarital agreement limiting plaintiff's relief under the laws of North Carolina because the contract, signed by plaintiff's father as her agent, did not meet the requirements of this chapter. Atassi v. Atassi, 117 N.C. App. 506, 451 S.E.2d 371, cert. denied, 340 N.C. 109, 456 S.E.2d 310 (1995).

Stated in Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

Cited in King v. King, 114 N.C. App. 454, 442 S.E.2d 154 (1994).

§ 52B-8. Enforcement: void marriage.

If a marriage is determined to be void, an agreement that would otherwise have been a premarital agreement is enforceable only to the extent necessary to avoid an inequitable result. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Under this section a void marriage does not completely invalidate a premarital agreement but does substantially limit its enforceability. Where parties have married and lived together for a substantial period of time and one or both have relied on the existence of a premarital agreement, the failure to enforce the agreement may well be inequitable. This section, accordingly, provides the court discretion to enforce the agreement to the extent necessary to avoid the inequitable result (see Annot., 46 A.L.R.3d 1403).

§ 52B-9. Limitation of actions.

Any statute of limitations applicable to an action asserting a claim for relief under a premarital agreement is tolled during the marriage of the parties to the agreement. However, equitable defenses limiting the time for enforcement, including laches and estoppel, are available to either party. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

In order to avoid the potentially disruptive effect of compelling litigation between the spouses in order to escape the running of an applicable statute of limitations, Section 8 tolls any applicable statute during the marriage of the parties (contrast Dykema v. Dykema, 412 N.E.2d 13 (Ill.App.1980) (statute of limitations not tolled where fraud not adequately pleaded, hence premarital agreement enforced at death)). However, a party is not completely free to sit on his or her rights because the section does preserve certain equitable defenses.

CASE NOTES

Quoted in Huntley v. Huntley, 140 N.C. App. 749, 538 S.E.2d 239 (2000).

Cited in Howell v. Landry, 96 N.C. App. 516, 386 S.E.2d 610 (1989).

§ 52B-10. Application and construction.

The Uniform Premarital Agreement Act shall be applied and construed to effectuate its general purpose to make uniform among the states enacting it, the law on premarital agreements. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Section 9 is a standard provision in all Uniform Acts.

§ 52B-11. Severability.

If any provision of this Chapter or its application to any person or circumstance is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of the Chapter which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this act are severable. (1987, c. 473, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Section 11 is a standard provision included in certain Uniform Acts.

Chapter 52C.

Uniform Interstate Family Support Act.

Article 1.

General Provisions.

Article 2.

Jurisdiction.

Part 1. Extended Personal Jurisdiction.

Part 2. Proceedings Involving Two or More States.

Part 3. Reconciliation of Multiple Orders.

Article 3.

Civil Provisions of General Application.

Article 4.

Establishment of Support Order.

Article 5.

Enforcement of Order of Another State Without Registration.

Article 6.

Enforcement and Modification of Support Order After Registration.

Part 1. Registration and Enforcement of Support Order.

Part 2. Contest of Validity of Enforcement.

Editor's Note. — Permission to include the Official Comments was granted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and The American Law Institute. It is believed that the Official Comments will prove of value to the practitioner in understanding and applying the text of this Chapter.

Article 1.

General Provisions.

§ 52C-1-100. Short title.

This Chapter may be cited as the Uniform Interstate Family Support Act. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

Editor's Note. — Session Laws 1995, c. 538, s. 7, enacted this Chapter and repealed Chapter 52A. Where appropriate, the annotations under sections of repealed Chapter 52A have been placed under corresponding sections of this Chapter.

Legal Periodicals. — For comment on Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, see 29 N.C.L. Rev. 423 (1951).

For note on conflict of laws, see 34 N.C.L. Rev. 126 (1955).

For note on survival of support and the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, see 48 N.C.L. Rev. 100 (1969).

For comment on access of indigents to the civil courtroom, see 49 N.C.L. Rev. 683 (1971).

For survey of 1976 case law on domestic relations, see 55 N.C.L. Rev. 1018 (1977).

For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

CASE NOTES

As to the history of the uniform act, see Mahan v. Read, 240 N.C. 641, 83 S.E.2d 706 (1954).

A proceeding under former Chapter 52A was a civil proceeding as in actions for alimony without divorce. Brondum v. Cox, 30 N.C. App. 35, 226 S.E.2d 193 (1976), aff'd, 292 N.C. 192, 232 S.E.2d 687 (1977).

A primary function of the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA) was to simplify and streamline the procedure by which an action to enforce a court order rendered in another jurisdiction could be instituted. Williams v. Williams, 97 N.C. App. 118, 387 S.E.2d 217 (1990).

Former Chapter 52A did not establish additional grounds for support; it produced additional means of enforcing support obligations already established. Stevens v. Stevens, 68 N.C. App. 234, 314 S.E.2d 786, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 89, 321 S.E.2d 908 (1984).

Foreign Order. — The effect of a 1986

North Carolina URESA order on a 1981 California child support order was determined in accordance with URESA, not UIFSA; and where no North Carolina order made findings pertaining to the nullification of the California order or to exclusive jurisdiction, the trial court erred in finding that the California order was superseded and effectively voided. Twaddell v. Anderson, 136 N.C. App. 56, 523 S.E.2d 710 (1999), cert. denied, 351 N.C. 480, 543 S.E.2d 510 (2000).

Nonparentage Not a Defense. — Pursuant to § 52C-3-314, a party whose parentage of a child has been previously determined by or pursuant to law may not plead nonparentage as a defense to a proceeding under this chapter. Reid v. Dixon, 136 N.C. App. 438, 524 S.E.2d 576 (2000).

Cited in Hinton v. Hinton, 128 N.C. App. 637, 496 S.E.2d 409 (1998); Haker-Volkening v. Haker, 143 N.C. App. 688, 547 S.E.2d 127 (2001).

§ 52C-1-101. Definitions.

As used in this Article, unless the context clearly requires otherwise, the term:

(1) "Child" means an individual, whether over or under the age of majority, who is or is alleged to be owed a duty of support by the individual's parent or who is or is alleged to be the beneficiary of a support order directed to the parent.

(2) "Child support order" means a support order for a child, including a child who has attained the age of majority under the law of the issuing state.

(3) "Duty of support" means an obligation imposed or imposable by law to provide support for a child, spouse, or former spouse, including an unsatisfied obligation to provide support.

(4) "Home state" means the state in which a child lived with a parent or a person acting as parent for at least six consecutive months immediately preceding the time of filing of a petition or comparable pleading for support and, if a child is less than six-months old, the state in which the child lived from birth with any of them. A period of temporary absence of any of them is counted as part of the six-month or other period.

(5) "Income" includes earnings or other periodic entitlements to money from any source and any other property subject to withholding for support under the law of this State.

(6) "Income-withholding order" means an order or other legal process directed to a payer of income to withhold support from the income of the obligor.

(7) "Initiating state" means a state from which a proceeding is forwarded or in which a proceeding is filed for forwarding to a responding state under this Act or a law or procedure substantially similar to this Act, the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

(8) "Initiating tribunal" means the authorized tribunal in an initiating state.

(9) "Issuing state" means the state in which a tribunal issues a support order or renders a judgment determining parentage.

(10) "Issuing tribunal" means the tribunal that issues a support order or renders a judgment determining parentage.

(11) "Law" includes decisional and statutory law and rules and regulations having the force of law.

(12) "Obligee" means:

a. An individual to whom a duty of support is or is alleged to be owed or in whose favor a support order has been issued or a judgment determining parentage has been rendered;

b. A state or political subdivision to which the rights under a duty of support or support order have been assigned or which has independent claims based on financial assistance provided to an individual obligee; or

c. An individual seeking a judgment determining parentage of the individual's child.

(13) "Obligor" means an individual, or the estate of a decedent:

a. Who owes or is alleged to owe a duty of support;

b. Who is alleged but has not been adjudicated to be a parent of a child; or

c. Who is liable under a support order.

(14) "Register" means to file a support order or judgment determining paternity in the appropriate location for the recording or filing of foreign judgments generally or foreign support orders specifically.

(15) "Registering tribunal" means a tribunal in which a support order is registered.

(16) "Responding state" means a state in which a proceeding is filed or to which a proceeding is forwarded for filing from an initiating state under this Act or a law or procedure substantially similar to this Act, the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

(17) "Responding tribunal" means the authorized tribunal in a responding state.

(18) "Spousal-support order" means a support order for a spouse or former spouse of the obligor.

(19) "State" means a state of the United States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the United States Virgin Islands, or any territory or insular possession subject to the jurisdiction of the United States. The term includes:

a. An Indian tribe; and

b. A foreign jurisdiction that has enacted a law or established procedures for issuance and enforcement of support orders which are substantially similar to the procedures under this Act, the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, or the Revised Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act.

(20) "Support enforcement agency" means a public official or agency authorized to seek:

a. Enforcement of support orders or duties of support;

b. Establishment or modification of child support;

c. Determination of parentage; or

d. To locate obligors or their assets.

(21) "Support order" means a judgment, decree, or order, whether temporary, final, or subject to modification, for the benefit of a child, a spouse, or a former spouse, which provides for monetary support, health care, arrears, or reimbursement, and may include related costs and fees, interest, income withholding, attorneys' fees, and other relief.

(22) "Tribunal" means a court, administrative agency, or quasi-judicial entity authorized to establish, enforce, or modify support orders or to determine paternity, except that, for matters heard in this State, tribunal means the General Court of Justice, District Court Division. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c); 1997-433, s. 10; 1997-456, s. 27; 1998-17, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Twenty-two terms are defined in UIFSA as compared with the parallel RURESA § 2, which had fourteen entries. Many crucial definitions continue to be left to local law. For example, the definitions of "child" and "child-support order" provided by subsections (1) and

(2) refer to "the age of majority" without further elaboration. The exact age at which a child becomes an adult for different purposes is a matter for the law of each State, as is the age at which a parent's duty to furnish child support terminates. Similarly, a wide variety of other terms of art are implicitly left to state law. For example, subsection (21) refers inter alia to "health care, arrearages, or reimbursement ...." All of these terms are subject to individualized definitions on a state-by-state basis.

Subsection (3) defines "duty of support" to mean the legal obligation to provide support before it has been reduced to judgment. This broad definition includes both prospective and retrospective obligations to the extent they are imposed by the relevant state law.

In order to resolve certain conflicts in the exercise of jurisdiction, for limited purposes subsection (4) borrows the concept of the "home State of a child" from the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act (UCCJA), versions of which have been adopted in all 50 States, and incorporated into the federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 42 U.S.C. § 1738A (PKPA).

Subsection (6) is written broadly so states that direct income withholding by an obligor's employer based on "other legal process," as distinguished from an order of a tribunal, may have that legal process recognized as an income-withholding order. Federal law requires that each State provide for income withholding "without the necessity of any application therefor, or for any further action by the court or other entity which issued such order ...." 42 U.S.C. § 666(b)(2). States have complied with this directive in a variety of ways. For example, at the time UIFSA was originally drafted New York provided a method for obtaining income withholding of court-ordered support by authorizing an attorney, clerk of court, sheriff or agent of the child support enforcement agency to serve upon the defaulting obligor's employer an "income execution for support enforcement." New York McKinney's C.P.L.R. 5241. This "other legal process" reportedly was the standard method for obtaining income withholding in that State, while the statutory provision for an income-withholding order, C.P.L.R. 5242, was rarely used by either the courts or the litigants.

Subsections (7) and (8) define "initiating State" and "initiating tribunal" similarly to RURESA § 2(d). It is important to note, however, that UIFSA permits the direct filing of an interstate action in the responding State without an initial filing in an initiating tribunal. Thus, in addition to the traditional resort to a local "initiating tribunal," a petitioner in one State may seek to establish a support order in a second State by either filing in the responding state's tribunal or by directly seeking the assistance of the support enforcement agency in the second State.

The relationship between UIFSA and the prior Uniform Acts is captured in the phrasing of subsection (7), and repeated several times throughout the Act. See, i.e. , subsections (16) and (19). The Act declares that URESA and RURESA are compatible with UIFSA, and the new Act is designed to function with the earlier Acts without conflict. Support orders issued under one of the earlier Acts should be honored and enforced in any State with any of the three Uniform Acts. But, despite their common roots, neither URESA nor RURESA can be said to be "substantially similar" to the one-order system established in UIFSA. States enacting UIFSA are directed to accord full enforcement remedies to support orders from those States, but also to apply UIFSA restraint regarding modification, and to apply its "one-order" rule to orders from non-UIFSA States, infra.

The term "obligee" in subsection (12) is defined in a broad manner similar to RURESA § 2(f), which is consistent with common usage. In instances of spousal support, the person owed the duty of support and the person receiving the payments are almost always the same. Use of the term is more complicated in the context of a child support order. The child is the person to whom the duty of support is owed, and therefore can be viewed as the ultimate obligee. However, "obligee" usually refers to the individual receiving the payments. While this is most commonly the custodial parent or other legal custodian, the "obligee" may be a support enforcement agency that has been assigned the right to receive support payments in order to recoup Temporary Assistance for Needy Families (TANF), 42 U.S.C. § 601 et seq., formerly known as Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC). Even in the absence of such an assignment, a State may have an independent statutory claim for reimbursement for general assistance provided to a spouse, a former spouse, or a child of an obligor. The Act also uses "obligee" to identify an individual who is asserting a claim for support, not just for a person whose right to support is unquestioned, presumed, or has been established in a legal action.

Subsection (13) provides the correlative definition of an "obligor," which includes an individual who is alleged to owe a duty of support as well as a person whose obligation has previously been determined.

The definitions of "responding State" and "responding tribunal" in subsections (16) and (17) accommodate the direct filing of a petition under UIFSA without the intervention of an initiating tribunal. Both definitions acknowledge the possibility that there may be a responding State or tribunal in a situation where there is no initiating State or tribunal.

Subsection (19) withdraws the requirement of reciprocity between the several States and other U.S. jurisdictions formerly demanded by RURESA and URESA. A State need not enact UIFSA for support orders issued by its tribunals to be enforced by other States. Public policy favoring such enforcement is sufficiently strong to warrant waiving any quid pro quo among the States. This provision will be mooted by the likelihood that all States will enact UIFSA by January 1, 1998, as mandated by Congress in its 1996 welfare reform. In the original promulgation of UIFSA, the language of subsection (19) was somewhat ambiguous regarding the necessity of extending reciprocity to an Indian tribe and to foreign jurisdictions. By reorganizing the statutory language, the 1996 amendment clarifies that reciprocity is not required between the several States and Indian tribes. Further, the additional language and reorganization in subsection (19)(ii) makes clear that in this instance UIFSA follows the pattern of RURESA to require that a foreign nation must have substantially similar law or procedures to either UIFSA, RURESA, or URESA (that is, reciprocity) in order for its support orders to be treated as if they had been issued by a sister State. This is sharply different from the rule for States; amended UIFSA 1996 recognizes that in international relations the concept of reciprocity is crucial to acceptance of child support orders by other nations.

Subsection (20), "Support Enforcement Agency," includes the state IV-D agency (Part IV-D, Social Security Act, 42 U.S.C. § 651 et seq.), and other state or local governmental entities charged with establishing or enforcing support.

Subsection (22) introduces a completely new term, "tribunal," which replaces the term "court" used in RURESA. With the advent of federally-funded IV-D programs, a number of States have delegated various aspects of child support establishment and enforcement to quasi-judicial bodies and administrative agencies. UIFSA adopts the term "tribunal" to account for the breadth of state variations in dealing with support orders. Unless expressly noted otherwise, throughout the Act the term refers to a tribunal of the enacting State. To avoid confusion, however, when actions of tribunals of the enacting State and another State are contrasted in the same section or subsection, the phrases "tribunal of this State" and "tribunal of another State" are used for the sake of clarity.

CASE NOTES

Applicability. — UIFSA governs the proceedings over any foreign support order which is registered in North Carolina after January 1, 1996; URESA laws remain in effect only for (1) pending actions, rights, duties, or liabilities based on URESA, (2) any penalty, forfeiture, or liability incurred under URESA, and (3) for the purpose of sustaining any pending or vested right as of January 1, 1996 and for the enforcement of rights, duties, penalties, forfeitures, and liabilities under the repealed laws. Welsher v. Rager, 127 N.C. App. 521, 491 S.E.2d 661 (1997).

Support Order. — The language "all duties of support" in former 52A-9 included all common law duties of support, all statutory duties of support, and duties growing out of judgments or decrees for alimony or child support, both as to amounts in arrears and as to amounts owed currently or in the future. Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

Former Chapter 52A, North Carolina's version of the Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA), clearly embraced alimony orders. Allsup v. Allsup, 88 N.C. App. 533, 363 S.E.2d 883, aff'd, 323 N.C. 603, 374 S.E.2d 237 (1988).

Enforcement. — In terms of choice of law, former URESA generally required that the law applied in interpreting and/or enforcing the support order be that of the state in which enforcement was sought; however, UIFSA provides that the law of the issuing state governs the current payments and other obligations of support and the payment of arrears under the order, and any order for the support of a child until age 21 must be recognized and enforced in that manner in a state in which the duty of support of a child ends at age 18. Welsher v. Rager, 127 N.C. App. 521, 491 S.E.2d 661 (1997).

"State" Not Shown. — The record failed to establish that Switzerland was a "state" as that term is defined by this section where the record contained no evidence that Switzerland had enacted a law for the issuance and enforcement of support orders that was "substantially similar to the procedures under [UIFSA]" and (2) although the Swiss order itself was arguably some evidence that legal procedures had been established in Switzerland for the issuance and enforcement of support orders. Haker-Volkening v. Haker, 143 N.C. App. 688, 547 S.E.2d 127 (2001).

§ 52C-1-102. District court has jurisdiction under this Act.

The General Court of Justice, District Court Division is the court authorized to hear matters under this Act. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The enacting State must identify the court, administrative agency, or the combination of those entities, which constitute the tribunal or tribunals authorized to deal with family support. In a particular State there may be several different such entities authorized to determine family support matters.

CASE NOTES

Cited in Haker-Volkening v. Haker, 143 N.C. App. 688, 547 S.E.2d 127 (2001).

§ 52C-1-103. Remedies.

Remedies provided by this Act are cumulative and do not affect the availability of remedies under other law. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

The existence of procedures for interstate establishment, enforcement, or modification of support or a determination of parentage in UIFSA does not preclude the application of the general law of the forum. Even if the parents live in different States, for example, a petitioner may decide to file an original action for child support (and most likely for other relief as well) directly in the State of residence of the respondent and proceed under that forum's generally applicable support law. In so doing, the petitioner thereby submits to the personal jurisdiction of the forum and foregoes reliance on UIFSA. Once a child support order has been issued, this option is no longer available to interstate parties. Under UIFSA, a State may not permit a party to proceed to obtain a second support order; rather, in further litigation the tribunal must apply the Act's provisions for enforcement of an existing order and limit modification to the strict standards of UIFSA.

Legal Periodicals. — For survey of 1977 law on domestic relations, see 56 N.C.L. Rev. 1045 (1978).

CASE NOTES

Former Chapter 52A did not establish additional grounds for support. It provided additional means of enforcing support obligations. Blake v. Blake, 34 N.C. App. 160, 237 S.E.2d 310 (1977).

The doctrine of res judicata applied to civil actions brought under former Chapter 52A. Blake v. Blake, 34 N.C. App. 160, 237 S.E.2d 310 (1977).

Scope of Act. — The duty of support was the only subject matter covered by the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act (URESA); nothing in that act allowed the adjudication of child custody or visitation privileges or other matters commonly determined in domestic relation cases. Vanburen County Dep't of Social Servs. ex rel. Swearengin v. Swearengin, 118 N.C. App. 324, 455 S.E.2d 161 (1995).

Article 2.

Jurisdiction.

Part 1. Extended Personal Jurisdiction.

§ 52C-2-201. Bases for jurisdiction over nonresident.

In a proceeding to establish, enforce, or modify a support order or to determine parentage, a tribunal of this State may exercise personal jurisdiction over a nonresident individual or the individual's guardian or conservator if:

(1) The individual is personally served with a summons and complaint within this State;
(2) The individual submits to the jurisdiction of this State by consent, by entering a general appearance, or by filing a responsive document having the effect of waiving any contest to personal jurisdiction;
(3) The individual resided with the child in this State;
(4) The individual resided in this State and provided prenatal expenses or support for the child;
(5) The child resides in this State as a result of the acts or directives of the individual;
(6) The individual engaged in sexual intercourse in this State and the child may have been conceived by that act of intercourse;
(7) The individual asserted paternity in an affidavit which has been filed with the clerk of superior court; or
(8) There is any other basis consistent with the constitutions of this State and the United States for the exercise of personal jurisdiction. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Sections 201 and 202 assert what is commonly described as long-arm jurisdiction over a nonresident respondent for purposes of establishing a support order or determining parentage. Inclusion of this long-arm provision in this interstate Act is justified because residents of two separate States are involved in the litigation, both of whom are subject to the personal jurisdiction of the forum. Thus, the case has a clear interstate aspect, despite the fact that only the law of the forum State is applicable. Moreover, this is sufficient to invoke additional UIFSA provisions in an otherwise intrastate lawsuit. See Sections 202, 316, and 318, infra. The intent is to insure that every enacting State has a long-arm statute as broad as constitutionally permitted. In situations in which the long-arm statute can be satisfied, the petitioner (either the obligor or the obligee) has two options: (1) utilize the long-arm statute to obtain personal jurisdiction over the respondent; or (2) initiate a two-state action under the succeeding provisions of UIFSA seeking to establish a support order in the respondent's State of residence. Of course, a third option is available that does not implicate UIFSA; a petitioner may file a suit in the respondent's State of residence (perhaps to settle all issues between the parties in a single proceeding).

This long-arm statute applies to an order for spousal support as well as for child support. However, almost all of the specific provisions relate to child support orders or determinations of parentage. This accords with the fact that very few States have chosen to enact specific domestic relations long-arm statutes and that the focus of UIFSA is primarily on child support. Only subsections (1), (2) and (8) are applicable to an action for spousal support asserting long-arm jurisdiction over a nonresident. The first two subsections are wholly noncontroversial insofar as an assertion of personal jurisdiction is concerned. Moreover, assertion of personal jurisdiction under subsections (1), (2), or (8) will doubtless yield jurisdiction over all matters to be decided between the spouses, including division of property on divorce. Thus, the most obvious basis for asserting long-arm jurisdiction over spousal support, i.e., "last-matrimonial domicile," is not included in Section 201 to avoid the potential problem of another instance of bifurcated jurisdiction. That is, a situation is not created in which a tribunal is authorized to order a nonresident to pay spousal support, but may not personally bind the nonresident to a property division on divorce.

Under RURESA, multiple support orders affecting the same parties were commonplace. UIFSA creates a structure designed to provide for only one support order at a time. The new one-order regime is facilitated and combined with a broad assertion of personal jurisdiction under this long-arm provision. The frequency of a two-state procedure involving the participation of tribunals in both States should be substantially reduced by the introduction of this long-arm statute.

Subsections (1) through (8) are derived from a variety of sources, including the Uniform Parentage Act § 8, Texas Family Code § 102.011, and New York Family Court Act § 154.

Subsection (1) codifies the holding of Burnham v. Superior Court, 495 U.S. 604 (1990), which reaffirms the constitutional validity of asserting personal jurisdiction based on personal service within a State.

Subsection (2) expresses the principle that a nonresident party concedes personal jurisdiction by seeking affirmative relief or by submitting to the jurisdiction by answering or entering an appearance. However, the power to assert jurisdiction over a support issue under the Act does not extend the tribunal's jurisdiction to other matters.

Subsections (3) through (6) identify specific fact situations justifying the assertion of long-arm jurisdiction over a nonresident. Each provides an appropriate affiliating nexus for such an assertion, when judged on a case-by-case basis with an eye on procedural and substantive due process. Further, each subsection does contain a possibility that an overly literal construction of the terms of the statute will overreach due process. For example, subsection (3) provides that long-arm jurisdiction to establish a support order may be asserted if "the individual resided with the child in this State." The typical scenario contemplated by the statute is that the parties lived as a family unit in the forum State, separated, and one of the parents subsequently moved to another State while the other parent and the child continued to reside in the forum. No time frame is stated for filing suit; this is based on the fact that the absent parent has a support obligation that extends for at least the minority of the child (and often longer in many States). On the other hand, suppose that the two parents and their child lived in State A for many years, and then decided to move the family to State B to seek better employment opportunities. Those opportunities did not materialize and, after several weeks or a few months of frustration with the situation, one of the parents returned with the child to State A. Under these facts a tribunal of State A may conclude it has long-arm jurisdiction to establish the support obligation of the absent parent. But, suppose that the family's sojourn in State B lasted for many years, and one parent unilaterally decides to return to State A. Many, and perhaps all, tribunals will conclude that assertion of personal jurisdiction over the absent parent immediately after the return based on subsection (3) would offend due process. The interstate provisions of UIFSA are available to the returning parent to establish child support. Note that State B will have long-arm jurisdiction to establish support under Section 201. See also Section 204, infra, for the resolution of simultaneous proceedings provided by the Act.

The factual situations catalogued in the first seven subsections are appropriate and constitutionally acceptable grounds upon which to exercise personal jurisdiction over an individual. Subsection (7) is bracketed because not all States maintain putative father registries.

Finally, subsection (8) tracks the broad, catch-all provisions found in many state statutes, including California, Civ. P. Code § 410.10 (1973); New York, supra; and Texas, supra. Note, however, that the California provision, standing alone, was found to be inadequate to sustain a child support order under the facts presented in Kulko v. Superior Court of California for San Francisco, 436 U.S. 84 (1978).

CASE NOTES

Legislative Intent. — The Legislature did not intend to limit the effect of former Chapter 52A to obligors residing in this State. Rather, the Legislature intended to extend the obligations of an obligee without the suit for domestication of a foreign judgment when proper jurisdiction was present. Stevens v. Stevens, 68 N.C. App. 234, 314 S.E.2d 786, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 89, 321 S.E.2d 908 (1984).

Broad Grant of Authority. — Because the State had an interest in the welfare and support of those persons living within its boundaries, the former statute was broad in granting authority to bring suit for support, and granted authority to the official who prosecuted criminal actions for the State to appear on behalf of the obligee, although the action could also have been brought by another. Stevens v. Stevens, 68

N.C. App. 234, 314 S.E.2d 786, cert. denied, 312 N.C. 89, 321 S.E.2d 908 (1984).

Jurisdiction over Parties. — The former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act applied only where the obligee was present in the initiating state and the obligor was subject to the jurisdiction of the responding state. Mahan v. Read, 240 N.C. 641, 83 S.E.2d 706 (1954).

In a proceeding under the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act, the court of the initiating state, by approval of the petition and the certification of the documents, enabled petitioner to submit herself to the jurisdiction of the responding state without the necessity of personal presence or employment of counsel, and the responding state acquired jurisdiction of the respondent through service of summons and notice. Mahan v. Read, 240 N.C. 641, 83 S.E.2d 706 (1954).

Modification of Valid Orders. — Under the Federal Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA), 28 U.S.C. § 1738B, modification of a valid order is only allowed if: (1) all parties have consented to the jurisdiction of the forum state to modify the order; or (2) neither the child nor any of the parties remains in the issuing state and the forum state has personal jurisdiction over the parties. Welsher v. Rager, 127 N.C. App. 521, 491 S.E.2d 661 (1997).

Removal of Obligee to a Third State at Time of Hearing. — Where, after filing a petition under the former Uniform Reciprocal Enforcement of Support Act of the initiating state, the obligee moved to another state and was a resident of such third state at the time of the hearing in North Carolina, the responding state, the North Carolina court had no jurisdiction to make an award for transmittal to the initiating state for transmittal in turn to the petitioner in the third state, and judgment of nonsuit and dismissal should have been entered in the North Carolina court upon motion. Mahan v. Read, 240 N.C. 641, 83 S.E.2d 706 (1954).

§ 52C-2-202. Procedure when exercising jurisdiction over nonresident.

A court of this State exercising personal jurisdiction over a nonresident under G.S. 52C-2-201 may apply G.S. 52C-3-315 to receive evidence from another state, and G.S. 52C-3-317 to obtain discovery through a tribunal of another state. In all other respects, Articles 3 through 7 of this Chapter do not apply and the tribunal shall apply the procedural and substantive law of this State, including the rules on choice of law other than those established by this Chapter. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Assertion of long-arm jurisdiction over a nonresident essentially results in a one-state proceeding, notwithstanding the fact that the parties reside in different States. With two exceptions, the provisions of UIFSA — labeled an interstate act — are not applicable to such a proceeding. To facilitate interstate exchange of information and to enable the nonresident to participate as fully as possible in the proceedings without the necessity of personally appearing in the forum State, Section 202 expressly incorporates two special UIFSA sections to long-arm cases. The first exception allows the tribunal to apply the special rules of evidence and procedure of Section 316 in order to facilitate decision-making when one party resides in another State, even though that party is subject to the personal jurisdiction of the tribunal. The same consideration accounts for the second exception; the two-state discovery procedures of Section 318 are applicable to a one-state proceeding when a foreign tribunal can assist in that process. In all other situations, the substantive and procedural law of the forum State applies. In sum, a one-state UIFSA case may utilize those two-state procedures which forward the interests of economy, efficiency, and fair play.

Part 2. Proceedings Involving Two or More States.

§ 52C-2-203. Initiating and responding tribunal of state.

Under this Chapter, a tribunal of this State may serve as an initiating tribunal to forward proceedings to another state and as a responding tribunal for proceedings initiated in another state. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c); 1997-433, s. 10.1; 1998-17, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

Sections 203 through 206 track the traditional RURESA action involving residents of separate States. In this situation the initiating State does not assert personal jurisdiction over the nonresident, but instead forwards the case to another, responding State, which has the authority to assert personal jurisdiction over its resident. This section identifies the various roles a tribunal of the forum may serve; as appropriate, it may act as either an initiating or a responding tribunal. Under UIFSA a tribunal may serve as a responding tribunal even when there is no initiating tribunal in another State. This accommodates the direct filing of an action in a responding tribunal by a nonresident.

This section identifies the roles a tribunal of the forum may serve; as appropriate, it may act as either an initiating or a responding tribunal under UIFSA. Note that a tribunal can serve as a responding tribunal when there is no initiating tribunal in another state. This is to accommodate the direct filing of an action in a responding tribunal by a nonresident.

§ 52C-2-204. Simultaneous proceedings in another state.

(a) A tribunal of this State may exercise jurisdiction to establish a support order if the petition or comparable pleading is filed after a petition or comparable pleading is filed in another state only if:

(1) The petition or comparable pleading in this State is filed before the expiration of the time allowed in the other state for filing a responsive pleading challenging the exercise of jurisdiction by the other state;

(2) The contesting party timely challenges the exercise of jurisdiction in the other state; and

(3) If relevant, this State is the home state of the child.

(b) A tribunal of this State may not exercise jurisdiction to establish a support order if the petition or comparable pleading is filed before a petition or comparable pleading is filed in another state if:

(1) The petition or comparable pleading in the other state is filed before the expiration of the time allowed in this State for filing a responsive pleading challenging the exercise of jurisdiction by this State;

(2) The contesting party timely challenges the exercise of jurisdiction in this State; and

(3) If relevant, the other state is the home state of the child. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is similar to Section 6 of the Uniform Child Custody Jurisdiction Act. Under the one-order system established by UIFSA, it is necessary to provide a new procedure to eliminate the multiple orders so common under RURESA and URESA. This requires cooperation between, and deference by, sister-state tribunals in order to avoid issuance of competing support orders. To this end, tribunals are expected to take an active role in seeking out information about support proceedings in other States concerning the same child. Depending on the circumstances, one or the other of two tribunals considering the same support obligation should decide to defer to the other. In this regard, UIFSA makes a significant departure from the approach adopted by the UCCJA, which chooses "first filing" as the method for resolving competing jurisdictional disputes. In the analogous situation, the federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act chooses the home State of the child to establish priority. Given the preemptive nature of the PKPA, and the possibility that custody and support are both involved in the case, UIFSA opts for the federal method of resolving disputes between competing jurisdictional assertions by establishing a priority for the tribunal in the child's home State. If the child has no home State, "first filing" controls.

§ 52C-2-205. Continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

(a) A tribunal of this State issuing a support order consistent with the law of this State has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a child support order:

(1) As long as this State remains the residence of the obligor, the individual obligee, or the child for whose benefit the support order is issued; or

(2) Until all of the parties who are individuals have filed written consents with the tribunal of this State for a tribunal of another state to modify the order and assume continuing, exclusive jurisdiction.

(b) A tribunal of this State issuing a child support order consistent with the law of this State may not exercise its continuing jurisdiction to modify the order if the order has been modified by a tribunal of another state pursuant to a law substantially similar to this Chapter.

(c) If a child support order of this State is modified by a tribunal of another state pursuant to a law substantially similar to this Chapter, a tribunal of this State loses its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction with regard to prospective enforcement of the order issued in this State, and may only:

(1) Enforce the order that was modified as to amounts accruing before the modification;

(2) Enforce nonmodifiable aspects of that order; and

(3) Provide other appropriate relief for violations of that order which occurred before the effective date of the modification.

(d) A tribunal of this State shall recognize the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of a tribunal of another state which has issued a child support order pursuant to a law substantially similar to this Chapter.

(e) A temporary support order issued ex parte or pending resolution of a jurisdictional conflict does not create continuing, exclusive jurisdiction in the issuing tribunal.

(f) A tribunal of this State issuing a support order consistent with the law of this State has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a spousal support order throughout the existence of the support obligation. A tribunal of this State may not modify a spousal support order issued by a tribunal of another state having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over that order under the law of that state. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c); 1997-433, s. 10.2; 1998-17, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is perhaps the most crucial provision in UIFSA. Drawing on the precedent of the federal Parental Kidnapping Prevention Act, 28 U.S.C. § 1738A, the issuing tribunal retains continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a child support order, except in very narrowly defined circumstances. As long as one of the individual parties or the child continues to reside in the issuing State, and as long as the parties do not agree to the contrary, the issuing tribunal has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over its order — which in practical terms means that it may modify its order. The statute attempts to be even-handed — the identity of the remaining party — obligor or obligee — does not matter. If the individual parties have left the issuing State but the child remains behind, continuing, exclusive jurisdiction remains with the issuing State.

The other side of the coin follows logically. Just as subsection (a)(1) defines the retention of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction, by clear implication the subsection also defines how jurisdiction to modify may be lost. That is, if all the relevant persons — the obligor, the individual obligee, and the child — have permanently left the issuing State, the issuing State no longer has an appropriate nexus with the parties or child to justify exercise of jurisdiction to modify. Further, the issuing tribunal has no current information about the factual circumstances of anyone involved, and the taxpayers of that State have no reason to expend public funds on the process. Note, however, that the original order of the issuing tribunal remains valid and enforceable. That order is in effect not only in the issuing State and those States in which the order has been registered, but also may be registered and enforced in additional States even after the issuing State has lost its power to modify its order, see Sections 601-604 (Registration and Enforcement of Support Order), infra. The original order remains in effect until it is properly modified in accordance with the narrow terms of Sections 609-612 (Registration and Modification of Child Support Order), infra.

According to the logical implication of subsection (a)(2), the issuing State may also lose its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction to modify if the parties consent in writing for another State to assume jurisdiction to modify (even though one of the parties or the child continues to reside in the issuing State). The only statutory requirement for the parties to divest the issuing tribunal of its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction is the filing of a written agreement to that effect with that tribunal. The Drafting Committee anticipated that such an agreement would seldom occur because of the almost universal desire of each party to prefer his or her local tribunal; but, the Committee also believed that the parties should be allowed to agree upon an alternate forum if they choose to do so.

Although subsection (a) identifies the methods for the retention and the loss of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction by the issuing tribunal, it does not confer jurisdiction to modify on another tribunal. Modification requires that a tribunal have personal jurisdiction over the parties and meet other criteria as provided in Sections 609 through 614, infra. It should also be noted that nothing in this section is intended to deprive a tribunal which has lost continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the power to enforce arrearages that have accrued during the existence of a valid order.

Spousal-support is treated differently; the issuing tribunal retains continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over an order of spousal support throughout the entire existence of the support obligation. Sections 205(f) and 206(c) state that the procedures of UIFSA are not available to a responding tribunal to modify the existing spousal support order of the issuing State. This marks a radical departure from RURESA, which treated spousal and child support orders identically. Under UIFSA, modification of spousal support is limited to a procedure whereby an action is initiated outside of the issuing State and a tribunal in that original State modifies its order under its law. While UIFSA revises RURESA in this regard, in fact this will have a minimal effect on actual practice. Interstate modification of pure spousal support was relatively rare under RURESA, and played almost no part in the activities of support enforcement agencies.

The prohibition of modification of spousal support by a nonissuing State tribunal under UIFSA is consistent with the principle that a tribunal should apply local law to such cases to insure efficient handling and to minimize choice of law problems. Avoiding conflict of law problems is almost impossible if spousal support orders are subject to modification in a second State. For example, States take widely varying views of the effect on a spousal support order of the obligee's remarriage or nonmarital cohabitation. Making a distinction between spousal and child support is further justified because the standards for modification of child support and spousal support are very different. In most jurisdictions a dramatic improvement in the obligor's economic circumstances will have little or no relevance in an action seeking an upward modification of spousal support, while a similar change in an obligor's situation typically is the primary basis for an increase in child support. This disparity is founded on a policy choice that post-divorce success of an obligor-parent should benefit the obligor's child, but not the obligor's ex-spouse.

Finally, UIFSA does not provide for shifting the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a spousal-support order by mutual agreement. That procedure is limited to child support under subsection (a)(2). Note that the Act is silent rather than preclusive on the subject. If the parties wish to enter into such an agreement, it is up to the individual States to decide whether to recognize it. A waiver of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction and subsequent modification of spousal support by a tribunal of another State simply is not authorized under the auspices of UIFSA.

CASE NOTES

Modification of Valid Order. — Under the Federal Full Faith and Credit for Child Support Orders Act (FFCCSOA), 28 U.S.C. § 1738B, modification of a valid order is only allowed if: (1) all parties have consented to the jurisdiction of the forum state to modify the order; or (2) neither the child nor any of the parties remains in the issuing state and the forum state has personal jurisdiction over the parties. Welsher v. Rager, 127 N.C. App. 521, 491 S.E.2d 661 (1997).

Jurisdiction of Texas Court. — Where father sought to modify Texas order for child support, the Texas court retained exclusive jurisdiction over the matter. Hinton v. Hinton, 128 N.C. App. 637, 496 S.E.2d 409 (1998).

Jurisdiction Not Found. — The trial court erred both in failing to register a 1995 New Jersey order and in entering a North Carolina Voluntary Support Agreement terminating child support at age eighteen, contrary to the terms of the New Jersey order; the court did not have subject matter jurisdiction where the record demonstrated that the plaintiff met the requirements of § 52C-6-602 by properly transmitting all of the required URESA documentation and where, upon notification, the defendant did not contest the foreign support order; furthermore, the law of the issuing state, allowing for child support until the child reaches twenty-two, should have been applied by the adopting state. State ex rel. Harnes v. Lawrence, 140 N.C. App. 707, 538 S.E.2d 223 (2000).

§ 52C-2-206. Enforcement and modification of support order by tribunal having continuing jurisdiction.

(a) A tribunal of this State may serve as an initiating tribunal to request a tribunal of another state to enforce or modify a support order issued in that state.

(b) A tribunal of this State having continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a support order may act as a responding tribunal to enforce or modify the order. If a party subject to the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the tribunal no longer resides in the issuing state, in subsequent proceedings the tribunal may apply G.S. 52C-3-315 to receive evidence from another state and G.S. 52C-3-317 to obtain discovery through a tribunal of another state.

(c) A tribunal of this State which lacks continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a spousal support order may not serve as a responding tribunal to modify a spousal support order of another state. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c).)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

This section is the correlative of the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction asserted in the preceding section. Subsection (a) authorizes a tribunal of the enacting State to initiate a request for enforcement or modification to the tribunal with continuing, exclusive jurisdiction over a support order.

Subsection (b) confirms the power of the issuing tribunal to modify its child support order as the responding tribunal, provided it retains a sufficient nexus with its order. UIFSA defines that nexus as a situation in which the child or at least one of the parties continues to reside in the issuing State. Subsection (b) also makes a vital contribution to the exercise of its continuing, exclusive jurisdiction if one of the parties leaves the State after the initial order was issued. The petitioner and the absent respondent may take advantage of the special rules of evidence and discovery in order to provide the tribunal with maximum current information in a modification proceeding.

Subsection (c) is the correlative of Section 205(f), acknowledging the continuing, exclusive jurisdiction of the tribunal ordering alimony and specifically prohibiting a responding tribunal from modifying a spousal support order of another State.

Part 3. Reconciliation of Multiple Orders.

§ 52C-2-207. Recognition of controlling child support order.

(a) If a proceeding is brought under this Chapter and only one tribunal has issued a child support order, the order of that tribunal controls and must be so recognized.

(b) If a proceeding is brought under this Chapter, and two or more child support orders have been issued by tribunals of this State or another state with regard to the same obligor and child, a tribunal of this State shall apply the following rules in determining which order to recognize for purposes of continuing, exclusive jurisdiction:

(1) If only one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this Chapter, the order of that tribunal controls and must be so recognized.

(2) If more than one of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this Chapter, an order issued by a tribunal in the current home state of the child controls and must be so recognized, but if an order has not been issued in the current home state of the child, the order most recently issued controls and must be so recognized.

(3) If none of the tribunals would have continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under this Chapter, the tribunal of this State having jurisdiction over the parties shall issue a child support order, which controls and must be so recognized.

(c) If two or more child support orders have been issued for the same obligor and child and if the obligor or the individual obligee resides in this State, a party may request a tribunal of this State to determine which order controls and must be so recognized under subsection (b) of this section. The request must be accompanied by a certified copy of every support order in effect. The requesting party shall give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by a certified copy of every support order in the effect. The requesting party shall give notice of the request to each party whose rights may be affected by the determination.

(d) The tribunal that issued the controlling order under subsection (a), (b), or (c) of this section is the tribunal that has continuing, exclusive jurisdiction under G.S. 52C-2-205.

(e) A tribunal of this State which determines by order the identity of the controlling order under subdivision (b)(1) or (2) of this section or which issues a new controlling order under subdivision (b)(3) of this section shall state in that order the basis upon which the tribunal made its determination.

(f) Within 30 days after issuance of an order determining the identity of the controlling order, the party obtaining the order shall file a certified copy of it with each tribunal that issued or registered an earlier order of child support. A party who obtains the order and fails to file a certified copy is subject to appropriate sanctions by a tribunal in which the issue of failure to file arises. The failure to file does not affect the validity or enforceability of the controlling order. (1995, c. 538, s. 7(c); 1997-433, s. 10.3(b); 1998-17, s. 1.)

OFFICIAL COMMENT

