justice for all

Chief Justice Paul Newby

It has been an outstanding year for the North Carolina Judicial Branch. Thanks to the dedicated and talented people in our court system, we continue to make progress in several areas that have been a priority of mine since becoming Chief Justice. I continue to be grateful to the General Assembly and its generous support of our Branch and our dedicated employees.

We expanded the transition to our eCourts by adding 23 more counties, including Mecklenburg County. This was a major step. Plans call for adding an additional 46 counties over the next year, meaning more than half of North Carolina's counties will be using the eCourts services by the end of June 2025.

In May, we took another large step forward in modernizing our court system by installing eCourts kiosks in courthouses across the state. These ADA-compliant kiosks enable the general public to scan and print court documents and also make payments. Many of the services that would have required a visit to the Clerk's office are now available in a self-serve option.

In December, the Chief Justice's Task Force on ACEs-Informed Courts issued its final report. The report memorializes the work of the ACEs Task Force and provides recommendations for further integration of trauma-informed care. The report is the product of collaborative work of a dedicated group of justice and allied professionals, diverse in every respect. I created the Task Force in March 2021 to address ACEs-Adverse Childhood Experiences and Adverse Community Environments. The work of the Task Force and its advisory committee made the work relevant, scalable, and sustainable. Continuous training and monitoring of outcomes, facilitated by the Bolch Institute at Duke Law School and UNC's School of Government, will ensure that the work of the Task Force outlives individual efforts. I continue to work with our state partners serving on the front lines with ACEs victims to identify ways to better utilize the information we have gleaned.

As I continue to travel across the state, I am reminded of how fortunate we are to have such talented and dedicated individuals working in our courthouses. North Carolina is truly blessed to have them serving our state. Our local Judicial Branch employees are the faces of our courts in their areas. Together we continually strive to administer justice without favor, denial, or delay.

Sincerely

A MESSAGE FROM THE DIRECTOR

Lady Justice stands tall on the Seal of the North Carolina Judicial Branch symbolizing the equal justice promised to all within our state. However, it takes the dedication of nearly 7,500 officials and staff to transform this promise into reality. Every member of the Judicial Branch has been hard at work over the past year to support the administration of justice throughout North Carolina.

The eCourts modernization effort has continued as we've implemented digital records management and access in nearly two dozen more counties. We remain on track to complete this long-needed digital conversion in October 2025. We've also introduced self-service eCourts kiosks to enhance customer service and accessibility in local courthouses. These kiosks are being piloted in select counties and we hope to expand into additional areas soon.

Despite our state's rapid growth, courts continue to swiftly adjudicate pending business. Case dispositions continue to outpace filings for the fourth straight year.

Behavioral health remains a focus throughout the Branch as we realize that our courts are often the entry point for those suffering from such issues. In October, we welcomed NCDHHS, law enforcement, and other stakeholders to a Behavioral Health Roundtable to discuss emerging issues and opportunities for collaboration. Out east, judicial leaders in District Two worked together to develop a behavioral health diversion program serving five counties. The Chief Justice's Task Force on ACEs-Informed Court released in final report in December outlining a variety of proposals for better addressing trauma within our courts. The launch of the Safe Baby Court pilot program met with early success, and we will continue exploring methods for expediting child permanency. We remain focused on these important issues armed with the knowledge that individuals with unmet mental health needs will likely appear in our courts as victims, defendants, or both.

We remain grateful for our partnership with the General Assembly this past legislative session. Our legislature again demonstrated its commitment to the Judicial Branch by investing in significant salary increases for all judicial groups, critical programs such as recovery court services and human trafficking grants, and by enacting legislation to make our courts more efficient.

The Judicial Branch is fortunate to have many dedicated individuals, and we were honored to recognize two of them, Howard Hand and Ella Wrenn, who received the Richard Caswell Award earlier this year for their 45 years of state service. We're thankful to every member of our Branch and grateful for the opportunity to serve our state by securing the guarantee of swift and impartial justice.

Judicial Branch budget as a percentage of the State General Fund

North Carolina’s court system is a unified statewide and state-operated system. The state pays the majority of operating expenses of the Judicial Branch. By state statute, G.S. 7A–302, counties and municipalities are responsible for the physical facilities occupied by court personnel across the state. G.S. 7A–343 sets forth the duties of the North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts Director (appointed by the Chief Justice), which include identifying staffing needs and managing and authorizing expenditures for the judicial budget. Detailed budget information is in the Budget Management and Financial Services Statistical and Operational Report at NCCourts.gov.

BUDGET AND PERSONNEL

NCAOC partners with the National Center for State Courts to develop methodology that is used to determine staffing needs for district court judges, superior court judges, clerks of superior court staff, magistrates, assistant district attorneys, and legal assistants. Using the same case weight-based approach, NCAOC has conducted workload studies for family court case coordinators and custody mediators.

This information is used to advise the General Assembly about needs for staffing and other resources. Whenever the fiscal situation does not permit the filling of all vacancies, this information is the basis of the vacancy management system. In addition, the workload information is used to reassign vacant resources to needier offices throughout the state.

The Supreme Court of North Carolina is the state's highest court, and there is no further appeal from its decisions on matters of state law. The Supreme Court has no jury and makes no determinations of fact. It considers whether error occurred at trial or in judicial interpretation of the law. The court consists of the Chief Justice, who also serves as the head of the Judicial Branch, and six associate justices. Each justice serves an eight-year term.

Established in 1967, the North Carolina Court of Appeals is the state's intermediate appellate court. The court is led by a chief judge, who is appointed by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of North Carolina. The Court of Appeals reviews the proceedings that occurred in the trial courts for errors of law or legal procedure; it decides only questions of law—not questions of fact. The court decides if the trial court correctly applied the law, or if there was prejudicial error in the conduct of the trial.

BUSINESS COURT

Established in 1996, the North Carolina Business Court is a specialized forum of the superior court division. Cases involving complex and significant issues of corporate and commercial law in our state are designated by the Chief Justice as mandatory complex business cases for assignment to a Business Court judge.

Appeals from Business Court decisions go directly to the Supreme Court. The Business Court has four locations across the state in Charlotte, Greensboro, Raleigh, and Winston-Salem. The chief Business Court judge manages the administrative duties of the court and a full caseload.

For more information, please see the Business Court’s annual reports found at: www.NCcourts.gov/courts/business-court.

JUDICIAL BRANCH HIGHLIGHTS

The North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts (NCAOC) Customer Service Award was launched in January 2021 by Chief Justice Paul Newby. Each month an NCAOC employee who demonstrates outstanding performance and exemplifies excellent customer service while performing work for the courts is honored and recognized.

“Chief Justice Newby has always stressed service and how important it is to serve the needs of the North Carolina court system,” said NCAOC Director Ryan Boyce. “This award is one way to recognize individuals who go above and beyond in their service.”

Recipients are recognized in the following ways:

- Presented a certificate of recognition by the NCOAC Director
- Name and photo displayed in the lobby area of the North Carolina Judicial Center
- Congratulated with an article in a staff-wide email and employee intranet.

This fiscal year the following were recognized for their service with the award: Darian Rebb, Julianna Kirschner, Sean Callan, Lawson Seropian, Sarvani Jami, Brian Mackey, Heide Rumble, Ba Thien Nguyen, Mike Nelms, Aaron Davison, and Paulette L. Gallegos

Congratulations to all of this year's recipients.

JUDICIAL BRANCH PODCAST NCCOURTS.GOV/PODCAST

All Things Judicial

All Things Judicial is a podcast about the important role of the North Carolina Judicial Branch in state government. With each episode, you'll hear interviews from recognizable figures in our judicial communities and learn about topics you may not have realized were related to what we do every day — human trafficking prevention, civics education, and the modernization of our courts, just to name a few.

EXPANDING ACCESS TO JUSTICE

The eCourts transition for North Carolina courts expanded across the state with electronic filing and online search for court records in 2023-24:

eCourts launched in Mecklenburg County in October 2023, bringing the total to five counties along with Harnett, Johnston, Lee, and Wake.

In February 2024, eCourts went live in twelve (12) additional counties along the coast: Beaufort, Camden, Chowan, Currituck, Dare, Gates, Hyde, Martin, Pasquotank, Perquimans, Tyrrell, and Washington.

eCourts launched in ten (10) additional counties in April 2024: Alamance, Chatham, Durham, Franklin, Granville, Guilford, Orange, Person, Vance, and Warren.

With these additions, eCourts became available across 27 counties, including the state's three largest metropolitan regions, and provides electronic access to justice for more than 4.5 million North Carolinians. The eCourts transition empowers the public by converting paper court records previously accessible only at the courthouse, with an online, cloud-hosted court records system that enables electronic filing and allows free, online access to search case documents and information. Learn more at NCCourts.gov/eCourts.

eCOURTS KIOSKS DEPLOYED TO N.C. COURTHOUSES

New eCourts kiosks became available in North Carolina courthouses in June. The kiosks allow the public to more easily engage with the court system by providing on-site access to search court dates and case events, file documents electronically, make payments, and use a scanner, printer, or other services available through the Judicial Branch's digital case management system that serves nearly half the state's population.

The kiosk deployment began with an initial testing phase in June 2024 to distribute approximately 20 devices to the earliest adopters of eCourts in North Carolina, including courthouses in Harnett, Johnston, Lee, Mecklenburg, and Wake counties.

In addition to printers, scanners, and payment services, the kiosks provide public access to eCourts' primary applications for search (Portal), filing (File & Serve), and user-assisted interviews to help create common legal filings (Guide and File).

Prior to eCourts, most North Carolinians could only access court records and case events at a clerk's office or at public computer terminals located inside courthouses. In the 27 counties using eCourts today, the public can file and access court records and make payments online from anywhere with an internet connection.

"As eCourts propels our state forward into the 21st century with digital access to justice for millions of North Carolinians, these all-in-one kiosks help meet the needs of folks who may not have connected devices or internet access."

- NCAOC Director Ryan S. Boyce

N.C. ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICE OF THE COURTS HOSTS FIRST TECH FAIR TO SHOWCASE COURT TECHNOLOGY

Attendees at the Tech Fair learn about available court technology.

The North Carolina Administrative Office of the Courts (NCAOC) Technology Services Division (TSD) partnered with the N.C. Conference of Clerks of Superior Court to host a first-of-its-kind Tech Fair at the North Carolina Judicial Center (NCJC). Elected clerks of superior court were invited to attend and send available personnel from their offices for demonstrations of various court support technology currently being utilized in courthouses and courtrooms across North Carolina.

Over 200 people, representing 38 counties, joined during the 2-day event. The educational sessions were the same each day. Eleven topics were presented by TSD managers over the course of both days with a question-and-answer session at the end of each session. This format allowed participants to rotate to each classroom throughout the day to observe all demonstrations and allowed offices an opportunity to send more staff to attend.

Technology sessions included the following:

- ECOURTNET - Integral to eCourts and the transition to the Integrated Case Management System (ICMS) implementation, a major network redesign effort was rolled out statewide. This project supports the ongoing effort to modernize the courts with functionality that enables employees to stay connected anytime, anywhere, securely by: replacing end-of-life network infrastructure in court facilities across the state, implementing a network design supporting cloud technologies, expanding network capacity and speed, and further securing the courts network and infrastructure.
- SOFTPHONE- To assist with business continuity when weather conditions or other situations arise that may alter normal operations, NCAOC offers various technology connectivity / unified communications solutions that may prove beneficial including telephone capabilities via Webex using a laptop.
- WAVE [Wireless Access for Virtual Enhancement] Initiative

- CRAVE [Courtroom Audio / Visual Experience]
- REMOTE HEARING SCHEDULER - Provide means for NCAOC staff (Clerks, Judges, DAs) to use an intuitive, simple, central scheduling application for remote hearings
- IDWEB- Hiring Authorities no longer need to fill out a form for new personnel and they can now add / update / separate accounts via the internet based IDWeb system.
- ENCRYPTED FILE TRANSFER | LIQUIDFILES - Judicial Branch staff use Encryption Email or LiquidFiles when transmitting Confidential or Highly Confidential information internally to other Judicial Branch staff or externally to individuals outside the Judicial Branch.
- O365- Furthering the NCAOC eCourts initiative, the upgrade of all Judicial Branch computers to Microsoft Office 365, MS Teams, and Windows 10 was foundational and helped to continue modernizing the courts with features that enable employees to stay connected anytime, anywhere. Rollout of Office 365 and Windows 10 to all counties was completed in 2019.
- WEBEX VS MS TEAMS- Offers remote meeting and other remote capabilities for staff.
- LAPTOP USE AS TABLET - Employee laptops can be used as a tablet for easier portability, note taking, and working throughout the courthouse.
- PAPERCUT - This system allows for copy / pay to print services within court facilities (replaced HECON) that ensures better security than previous technology.

“We are pleased to offer this unique event to showcase our court technology. The AOC continues to offer technology that enhances access to justice for the public and provides greater efficiency in our court offices and courtrooms across the state.”

- NCAOC Director Ryan S. Boyce

NCAOC COMMUNICATIONS WINS NATIONAL COMMUNICATOR AWARD

The NCAOC Communications Office was the recipient of a 2024 National Communicator Award for its recruiting campaign for the NCAOC Human Resources Division. The campaign entitled “Do Your Career Justice,” consisted of a full range of recruitment materials including posters, post cards, business cards, audio commercials, and other marketing materials. NCAOC HR used the materials at job fairs and other recruiting events with great success. The award was in the category of Campaign: Identity Program Campaign.

The Communicator Awards are presented nationally by the Academy of Interactive & Visual Arts. This was the 30th year for the awards program.

FORSYTH COUNTY NEW COURTHOUSE

The new Forsyth County Courthouse is located at 175 N. Chestnut Street in Winston-Salem and opened October 23, 2023. It covers 250,000 square feet and replaces the existing and smaller 48-year-old courthouse. The new courthouse spans six floors and has 17 courtrooms, three hearing rooms, two escalators, and four public elevators. In comparison, there are currently 16 courtrooms in the Forsyth County Hall of Justice. The new courthouse is about 2½ times larger than the existing courthouse on North Main Street.

JIMBO PERRY APPOINTMENT TO CJCP

James “Jimbo” S. Perry was named executive director of the Chief Justice’s Commission on Professionalism (CJCP) beginning January 1, 2024. Perry replaced former Executive Director Melvin Wright who served in that capacity since November 1999.

Perry is an attorney with Perry, Perry, & Perry in Kinston. Perry studied at the University of North Carolina School of Law where he graduated in 1980. Immediately after graduation, he worked in private practice then transitioned into the role of assistant United States attorney in the United States Attorney’s Office in Raleigh until 1985. From there, Perry moved back to his hometown of Kinston to work with his father, mother, sister, and uncle in private practice after founding the firm Perry, Perry, & Perry where he continues to work today.

Perry has served as a member of the Chief Justice’s Commission on Professionalism and is the recipient of the Citizen Lawyer Award, John B. McMillan Distinguished Service Award, Tommy Jarrett Service Award, QC Honors Recognition, Southern Star Recognition, and the 2021 Chief Justice’s Professionalism Award.

HARNETT COUNTY VETERANS TREATMENT COURT CELEBRATES A DECADE OF SERVICE

In November 2023, Harnett County’s Veterans Treatment Court (VTC) marked a major milestone: its 10-year anniversary. As the first court of its kind in North Carolina, the VTC has become a lifeline for veterans across the state, drawing participants from communities as far-reaching as Morehead City, Jacksonville, Hillsborough, and Cary.

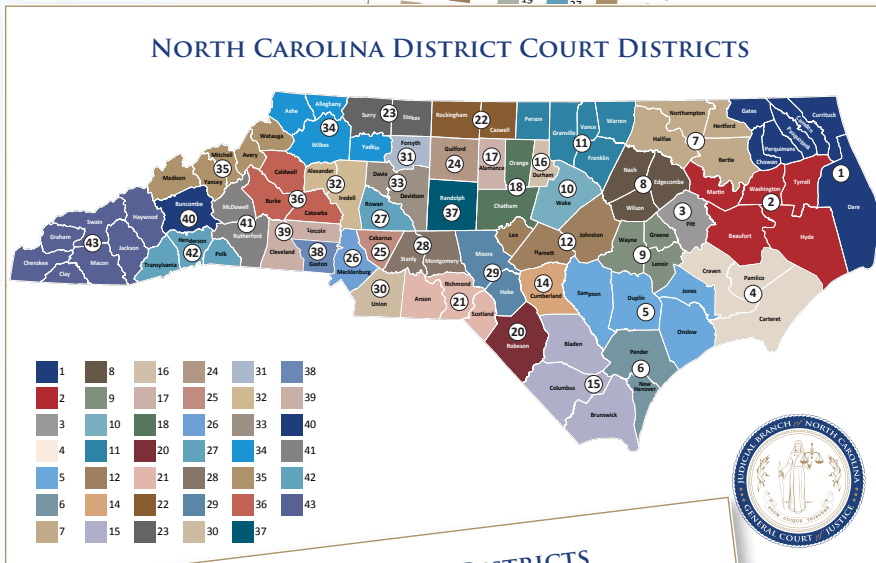

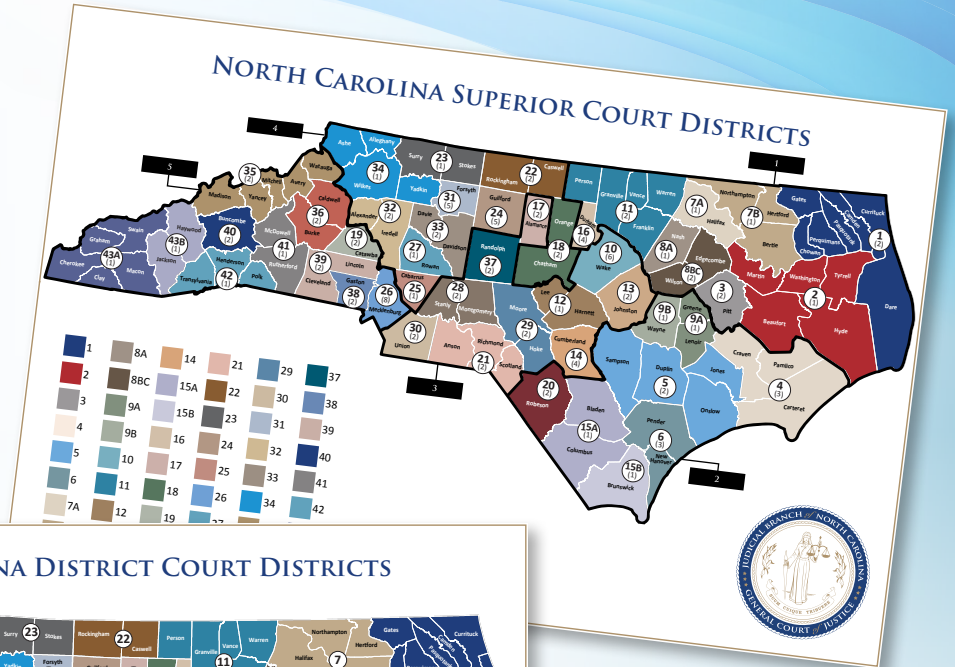

Modeled after other recovery courts, such as drug treatment courts, the VTC operates under the jurisdiction of the district court and is designed to address the unique challenges faced by veterans. The program focuses on providing a pathway to recovery and rehabilitation rather than traditional punitive measures, offering specialized support tailored to the needs of those who have served.

The success of Harnett County’s VTC is a testament to the power of collaboration. It is made possible through the dedicated efforts of Chief District Court Judge Frank Wood Jr., District Attorney Suzanne Matthews, Clerk of Superior Court Renee Whittenton, and a wide network of partners. These include the Veterans Health Administration, the Veterans Benefit Administration, Harnett County Veterans Services, Central Carolina Community College, and numerous veterans’ service organizations and community partners.

As it celebrates a decade of impact, the Harnett County Veterans Treatment Court stands as a pioneering example of how communities can come together to honor, support, and uplift those who have served our nation.

On January 1, 2024, changes to North Carolina’s district court, superior court, and prosecutorial district numbers became effective. These changes align district court and superior court district numbers with their respective prosecutorial district numbers.
